ALPENA YOUTH IS VICTIM IN AUTO CRASH

Accident Occurs Wednesday Evening Near Tawas City Limits

Woodward H. Anderson, 21 year old gas station attendant at Davison, was instantly killed Wednesday evening on U. S. 23, within the city limits, when the car in which he was riding collided with a truck parked on the highway. The young man was on his way to spend Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. Martha Anderson, at Alpena.

The truck is owned by the Border Cities Trucking company and was carrying an eleven ton load of cardboard cartons to the Alpena Garment company. It had been parked on the side of the highway for several hours with a broken wheel. Lawrence Jones of Detroit, driver, told Sheriff John Moran Thursday morning that he left his truck, after putting out flares, and went to Bay City to secure a new wheel. Not finding one there he went to Detroit. When he returned that morning he learned of the accident and immediately reported to Sheriff Moran. Jones was not held, but was ordered to appear at the inquest.

The driver of the death car, who had been injured in the collision, disappeared from the scene of the accident Wednesday night. Later it was learned that he was Gerald King of Alpena and had gone to that city in a passing car. State police at Alpena said that King had reported to them as soon as he had received medical aid. King claimed that he had been unable to locate a physician here.

Coroner W. A. Evans said yesterday that an inquest would be held Monday afternoon. A jury was empanelled Thursday afternoon. The body of the unfortunate young man was taken to the home of his mother at Alpena.

Iosco Religious Council To Sponsor Festival Of Song

Rev. Ralph McAfee, Executive Secretary of the Detroit Council of Churches says, "American protestantism is everywhere groping for consolidation. Christian unity alone will answer the Master's prayer that we may be 'one people'."

To further this spirit of Christian fellowship, the Iosco Council of Religious Education is sponsoring a Festival of Song to be held Sunday evening, December 15th, at 8:00 o'clock E. S. T., at the Community Building, East Tawas.

All grade children and high school glee clubs throughout the county are invited to join the massed choirs which will lead the singing of hymns and Christmas carols. Many special numbers are also being arranged.

Public school teachers and Sunday school leaders are enthusiastically cooperating in promoting the success of the Festival.

Rep. Fred C. Holbeck Announces Candidacy For State Senator

Representative Fred C. Holbeck recently announced his candidacy for the State Senate following the announcement of Senator Carpenter to make the run for the State Treasurer's office.

Mr. Holbeck has been a member of the legislature for the past eight years and has been responsible for several pieces of important legislation including the township road bill which turned all township roads over to the county and provided money out of the gas tax for future maintenance and improvement.

He also was the introducer of the ten year moratorium delinquent tax law now in operation.

In the last session of the legislature Mr. Holbeck introduced and succeeded in getting passed through the House an old age homestead tax exemption bill, also a state income tax bill for the support of schools. These bills failed of passage in the Senate.

As a member of the House of Representatives Mr. Holbeck has been very active and if elected to the Senate his past experience should be valuable both to himself and to the people he represents.

MISSLER BOY KILLS SELF TO AVOID ARREST

Stopped Near Mt. Morris By State Police, Would Not Submit To Search

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Tawas City Baptist church for Howard Missler, 16 year old farm youth, who ended his brief but hectic adventure into crime Monday afternoon when he fired a bullet into his head rather than submit to capture by the state police near Mt. Morris. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Missler who reside about five miles from this city.

Young Missler began his short criminal career early last Sunday morning when he disappeared from his home, taking with him a rifle, revolver and $15.00 in cash of his parents' money and $5.00 belonging to Carl Fritz. Fritz is a relative from Carleton who is here hunting. Sheriff John Moran was notified by the parents about the missing boy and he went in search. While at National City Sheriff Moran asked his son-in-law, Howard Freel, to be on the lookout for Missler. A little later in the morning Missler appeared at the Freel home. Mrs. Freel immediately telephoned to her father, Sheriff Moran, and Mr. Freel tried to hold the boy in conversation until the sheriff could arrive. Missler said he had to get a pair of gloves. Mr. Freel accompanied him to the Billings store, but it was closed. Near the store they met Mr. Freel's father and Missler talked with him for a few minutes. While Howard Freel's attention was diverted, and seeing Sheriff Moran approach in a car, Missler disappeared around some buildings. A thorough search was made there and in the nearby woods but he could not be located.

Missler did not go far because at two o'clock in the afternoon he again appeared at National City—this time at the home of Mrs. Maggie Croff. Here he ordered some clothing and food, threatening her with a gun. He changed clothing and walked out. A call was sent to Lansing and it was broadcast. Sheriff Moran and state police, who were searching in the woods, received the message and hurried to National City, but Missler had again disappeared.

The boy made his way toward Bay City where he arrived Monday morning. He went to the McCormick Chevrolet company where he told them that he worked for a farmer near that city and wished to purchase a car. Miles Shearer, salesman, was sent out to give him a demonstration. At the corner of Euclid road and U. S. 23 Missler ordered Shearer out of the car at the point of a gun and disappeared. His description and the car license number were broadcast from Lansing and he was stopped by state police at the intersection of the Dort highway and U. S. 10 near Mt. Morris. With him were three hitch-hikers. The men were lined up and the latter three were searched by one of the state police who then turned to Missler and said, "I guess you're next, we'll have to search you, too." Missler jumped back and in a leaping position, jerked a gun to the side of his head and

"Mutiny on the Bounty" Is Screen's Mightiest Thrill

Adventure loving men have, for months, been living again the perils of angry seas, the silent suffering of tyranny, the heartbreak of loneliness to recreate the immortal "Mutiny on the Bounty," showing at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 1-2-3-4.

Using the original plans of H.M.S. Bounty, furnished by the British Admiralty, Pacific Coast shipbuilders constructed an absolute replica of the picturesque "hell ship" with which to make the picture.

Charles Laughlin is seen as the tyrannical disciplinarian, Captain. Eighy, Clark Gable portrays the amazing role of Fletcher Christian and Franchot Tone is seen in the most coveted role of the screen season, Midshipman Byam.

An expedition to the South Seas; scenes that required the use of thousands of natives from forty villages; hundreds of Tahitian boatmen in the water spectacle; the most beautiful girls ever to come out of the South Sea Islands; spectacular scenes aboard the Bounty; the sensational drama of the most thrilling maritime story ever penned are some of the highlights of this new M-G-M attraction.

Japan Suddenly Squelches North China Autonomy Scheme—Italy Struggles Against Economic Sanctions—President Talks to Mayors About Taxes.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

JAPAN suddenly learned that the autonomy movement in the northern provinces of China, fostered by the Japanese army commanders, was likely to prejudice her case in the naval conference soon to open in London. Therefore the army high command in Tokyo told its subordinates on the continent to "lay off," and the ambitious schemes of Maj. Gen. Kenji Dohara came to naught, at least for the present. That plotter, who had become known as "the Lawrence of China," quietly departed from Peking and his early return was not expected.

Thus, for the first time in recent years, the Japanese militarists have been checked, by the Tokyo government, which informed them that the mission of the Japanese army in Manchukuo did not include intriguing for separation of the Chinese provinces and that it would not be permitted to pass south of the great wall without an imperial order.

Instead of the autonomy coup, the Nanking government was told by the Japanese authorities in China that it must institute reforms in the northern provinces. Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese ambassador, had a long conference with Dictator Chiang Kai-shek in Nanking, and told the press he had received assurance that the Chinese government was adequately prepared to cope with the situation in north China. Ariyoshi said he had also received assurance that Nanking desired to continue friendly relations with Japan.

Neutral observers in China are not convinced that the autonomy movement will not be revived at the first opportunity.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has gone to Warm Springs, Ga., for his annual visit, and for three weeks will divide his time among rest, politics and work. He was to deliver one speech at Atlanta; and after his return to Washington he will journey to Chicago to deliver an address on December 9 which probably will be an argument for a permanent AAA.

Following his Chicago speech, President Roosevelt will go to South Bend, Ind., to accept an honorary degree and make a brief address at the University of Notre Dame. The acceptance of this invitation was considered an adroit political move because of his recent refusal to take any action concerning the Catholic persecutions in Mexico.

SOMETHING new under the sun is now being tried out—an economic war to put a trip to a military war. Fifty-two nations are united in the imposition of sanctions against Italy, which became an outlaw nation on November 18 by decree of the League of Nations.

Gen. Badoglio

Four league nations, all unimportant, refused to participate. They are Austria, Hungary, Albania and Paraguay. Indirect support is given the league by two non-member nations, the United States and Germany. Nearly all the world's chief ports are closed to Italian goods, and exports to Italy of arms, war materials and a long list of key products has stopped. Loans and credits for the Italian government, public bodies, corporations and individuals are forbidden.

Should this momentous action succeed, it would seem that the end of Benito Mussolini and the Fascist regime in Italy is in sight. Should it fall, the League of Nations fails, the British communications in the Mediterranean would be threatened, and the peace of the world would be menaced.

Standing steadfast against the sanctions, Premier Mussolini proclaimed the day on which they were established "a day of ignominy and infamy," as had been declared by the Fascist grand council. The day was made a holiday, flags flew from all buildings and there were numerous angry demonstrations against the member nations of the league. The frontiers of Italy and its ports were closed to goods of those nations except for certain necessities. Restrictions of food, fuel and light were put in force.

It was announced in Rome that 100,000 of the recently mobilized soldiers would be given a furlough of three months to aid industrial and agricultural production.

There were new negotiations for peace, fostered by the British and French, and the Italian authorities were deeply interested but said the war would not stop until Italy had possession of a large strip of Ethiopia.

As for the Ethiopian war itself, Mussolini announced an important change in commanders. Gen. Emilio de Bono was recalled with warm praise for having achieved his mission "under exremely difficult circumstances" and was to be elevated to the rank of marshal. Gen. Pietro Badoglio, chief of staff, was appointed to succeed De Bono as commander in chief of the invading armies.

Emperor Haile Selassie made two airplane trips to the fighting fronts, visiting Harar and Dire-dawa and inspecting his troops in the South. The government at Addis Ababa denied Italian claims that 2,000 Ethiopians had been killed in a terrific battle with Italian fliers. The communique said: "Information from the commander of troops in the region of Makale states the recent intensive bombardment of their positions by ten Italian planes caused thirty deaths and slightly wounded fifty. Instead of the 2,000 killed as mentioned in the press communique from Asmara."

POPE PIUS surprised the world by naming twenty new cardinals, who will be installed at a secret consistory December 16 and a public one December 19. In the group are fifteen Italians, two Frenchmen, one Argentine, one Spaniard and one Czechoslovakian. With these additions the sacred college will have sixty-nine members, the largest number in the history of the church and only one short of the full complement. The sacred college will now be composed of thirty-nine Italians and thirty non-Italians.

The pope also named the Most Rev. Joseph C. Plagens, recently auxiliary bishop of Detroit, as bishop of the diocese of Marquette—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia, as bishop of the Savannah diocese.

WHEN a hundred mayors, assembled in Washington to discuss the work relief program, called on the President, he talked chiefly about taxes, which he said "have grown up like Topsy in this country."

Mayor La Guardia

He then announced that he planned to call a conference of city and state officials late in the winter for the purpose of studying the whole system of taxation which, he said, should be simplified. Concerning the matter of continuance of relief, Mr. Roosevelt told the mayors:

"It is a question that you have to combat. My answer, and I am sure yours will be the same for city governments, is that we do not propose to let people starve. Some people will be surprised to find that the gigantic works program will be substantially carried out by the end of November, just as it was planned last spring."

The mayors elected F. H. La Guardia of New York president of their annual conference and Edward J. Kelly of Chicago vice president, a position usually leading to the presidency the following year. La Guardia succeeds Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee.

The mayors recommended that the social security act be amended to include old age pensions for municipal employees and urged co-operation by cities with the Department of Justice for the suppression of crime.

CHAIRMAN HENRY P. FLETCHER of the Republican national committee issued a call for a meeting of the committee in Washington on December 16 to fix the time and place of the party's national convention of 1936 and to consider the apportionment of delegates. It was reported that Chicago was in the lead among the cities seeking the convention.

Mr. Fletcher also announced the appointment of a committee of sixteen prominent industrialists and lawyers to raise a big campaign fund. William B. Bell of New York, president of the American Cyanamid company, will be chairman of the committee, and Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant treasurer of the Republican national committee, Chicago lawyer, will be vice chairman. Many of the members have never before participated actively in national politics.

DAVID A. REED, former senator from Pennsylvania, heretofore considered a possibility for the Republican Presidential nomination, has eliminated himself from the competition, explaining that he lacks "political sex appeal." What that is he couldn't exactly define, but he said: "Roosevelt has it. But I discovered last year that I didn't. I'm not a candidate for any public office."

JESSE H. JONES, chairman of the RFC, let it be known that the New York Central railroad has agreed to repay $15,600,000 which it borrowed from the corporation. The loan, which matures December 1, will be repaid out of the road's $25,000,000 cash balance. The repayment will be the largest ever received by the RFC from a railroad. In return the RFC agreed to extend until July 1, 1941, the remaining $11,899,000 which the New York Central owes to it.

ANOTHER prominent figure of the World War passed with the death of Earl Jellicoe, who commanded the united British fleet in the great battle of Jutland and was severely criticized because he did not succeed in completely defeating the German fleet. Jellicoe, who entered the navy as a cadet at thirteen years of age, had a colorful career on British ships and in administrative positions throughout the world until at the end of four years as governor general of New Zealand in 1924 he practically retired from official public life.

PLANS to establish a three hundredth anniversary fund at Harvard university this year, for the awarding of large annual prize scholarships to boys in each state of the Union, were announced by President James B. Conant in a letter sent to 65,000 Harvard alumni. The fund will also be used for the creation of pioneering professorships of an entirely new type.

AMERICAN business generally is pleased with the terms of the new trade treaty with Canada, made public simultaneously in Washington and Ottawa. Farmers and the lumber men of the northwest will not like it. High tariff advocates in congress are sure to attack the pact, but its terms cannot be affected for three years, even were congress to repeal the reciprocal trade act under which President Roosevelt acted in negotiating the agreement. It is considered a trade agreement rather than a formal treaty, and goes into effect January 1 next.

Government officials, foreseeing adverse reaction in some quarters because of some of the sliced American duties, sought to show the pact would lead to greatly increased trade and employment which would benefit the country.

An analysis of the pact shows that the United States grants concessions to Canada on 79 major commodities, including:

Tariff slash on four-year-old whisky from $1 to 50 cents per fifth of a gallon.

Reductions in duties on specified quotas of beef cattle (from 3 to 2 cents per pound on animals over 700 pounds); dairy cows (2½ to 1½ cents); cream (56.6 cents to 35 cents per gallon); white or Irish seed potatoes (75 to 45 cents per 100 pounds); Douglas fir and western hemlock (50 per cent).

Reduced duties on lumber and timber of other kinds; cheddar cheese, turnips, apples, hay, maple sugar, live poultry, horses, halibut and some other fish; some leathers and ferro-manganese.

A pledge to keep on the free list Canadian pulpwood, newsprint, unmanufactured wood, shingles, lath, lobsters, certain furs, crude asbestos, artificial abrasives and fertilizers.

A promise to maintain the present 10 per cent duty on feedstuffs for animals.

On the part of Canada the duties are cut on 180 commodities, some of the leading concessions being: Reductions on wheat (from 30 to 12 cents a bushel); off-season fresh vegetables (50 per cent); vegetables imported in marketing season (35 per cent); most classes of farm machinery (50 per cent); industrial machinery (35 to 25 per cent); mining and textile machinery; radios (30 to 25 per cent); electric refrigerators; tinplate manufactures; dressed lumber; building materials; motor vehicles; cotton fabrics, furs, chemicals, silk fabrics, cotton manufactures, electrical apparatus.

Also rate cuts on oranges, grapefruit, nuts, iron and steel manufactures.

Place magazines and potatoes on the free list.

A pledge to grant the United States, on 767 articles, the lowest rates paid by any non-British country.

A pledge to liberalize the system of establishing arbitrary valuations on American products.

A promise to keep raw cotton on the free list and to put tractors on that list.

PRIME MINISTER STANLEY BALDWIN and his Conservative government party won an impressive victory in the British parliamentary elections, although the Laborites succeeded in decreasing the Conservative majority in the house by about 60 seats. Baldwin himself was unopposed for re-election, but Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council and former prime minister, was badly defeated, as was his son, Malcolm, who has been minister of colonies.

Ramsay MacDonald

The elder MacDonald left the Labor party to form the national government, and the Laborites had been after his scalp ever since. The government party will have a majority of about 250 in the next house of commons.

NO CANON of ethics was violated by the lawyers' committee of the American Liberty league when it offered to defend gratis the constitutional rights of any citizen unable to pay fees for such defense. Moreover, the lawyers' committee is justified in preparing and disseminating "opinions upon legislation with particular reference to the constitutionality of such legislation."

Such is the opinion of the American Bar association's committee on professional ethics and grievances, given in response to a complaint made by O. N. Davie of Atlanta, Ga. The bar committee emphasized that it expressed "no opinion as to the soundness of the conclusions reached by the national lawyers' committee."

These Men May Make Starhemberg a King

HERE in Vienna are members of the Heimwehr, the private army of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice chancellor of Austria, which is planning to elevate him to the rank of regent of the country and later to proclaim him king. They believe the establishment of a Starhemberg royal dynasty preferable to the restoration of the Hapsburgs in the person of Archduke Otto, as the latter action would be strongly opposed by the little entente and some of the great powers.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

SAMMY JAY ARRIVES

WHEN Reddy Fox arrived at the pond of Paddy, the Beaver, the hunter who was hiding there saw him instantly. So did Lightfoot, the Deer. But no one else did. He approached in that cautious, careful way that he always uses when he is hunting. The instant he reached a place where he could see all over Paddy's pond he stopped as suddenly as if he had been turned to stone. He stopped with one foot lifted in the act of taking a step. He had seen Mr. and Mrs. Quack.

Now you know there is nothing Reddy Fox likes better for a dinner than a duck. The instant he saw Mr. and Mrs. Quack, a gleam of longing crept into his eyes and his mouth began to water.

Reddy stood motionless until, both Mr. and Mrs. Quack had their heads under water as they searched for food in the mud in the bottom of the pond. Then, like a red flash, he bounded out of sight behind the dam of Paddy, the Beaver. Presently the hunter saw Reddy's black nose at the end of the dam as Reddy peeped around it to watch Mr. and Mrs. Quack. The latter were slowly moving along in that direction as they fed. Reddy was quick to see this. If he remained right where he was and Mr. and Mrs. Quack kept on feeding in that direction, the chances were that he would have a dinner of fat duck. All he need do was to be patient and wait. So, with his eyes fixed fast on Mr. and Mrs. Quack, Reddy Fox crouched behind Paddy's dam and waited.

Watching Reddy and the ducks, the hunter almost forgot Lightfoot, the Deer. Mr. and Mrs. Quack were getting very near to where Reddy was waiting for them. The hunter was tempted to get up and frighten those Ducks. He didn't want Reddy Fox to have them because he hoped some day to get them himself.

"I suppose," thought he, "I was foolish not to shoot them when I had the chance. They are too far away now and it looks very much as if that red rascal will get one of them. I believe I'll spoil that red scamp's plans by frightening them away. I don't believe that deer will be back here today, anyway, so I may as well save those ducks."

But the hunter did nothing of the kind. You see, just as he was getting ready to step out from his hiding place, Sammy Jay arrived. He perched in a tree close to the end of Paddy's dam, and at once he spied Reddy Fox. It didn't take him a second to discover what Reddy was hiding there for. "Thief! Thief! Thief!" screamed

HE COMES TO CHURCH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

AT LAST he came to church today; Six neighbors carried him that way; But, when he passed the portals straight, Another had to swing the gate, Another open wide the door, For he could open it no more. But now at last he came in search Of something that they have in church.

The preacher spoke a helpful word, And yet I wonder if he heard, Or, if he heard, he understood? His hearing now was not so good. He was made welcome, for all men Are always welcome, even then; And yet he would have been, I know, As welcome years and years ago.

We all must go to church some day, But some of us too long delay. The words of comfort by our bier We could have come in life to hear, For here to greet us waits a Friend At the beginning, not the end. Religion is for living—aye, To live by, not alone to die.

DISHES THAT ARE DIFFERENT

A CREAM puff pastry is very simple to make, but the baking is the test of its perfection.

Bagdad Cream Puffs.

Heat together one cupful of boiling water and one-third cupful of corn oil. When boiling add altogether three-fourths of a cupful of flour mixed with one and one-half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and one-half teaspoonful of salt, all well sifted together. Stir and mix vigorously until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan. Cool and add one at a time three eggs, beating well after the addition of each; now add one teaspoonful of baking powder and beat well and drop by spoonfuls on a baking sheet, shaping into circular form. Bake from 35 to 45 minutes, depending upon the size of the puff. Cool, cut with a sharp knife near the bottom of the puff, remove any doughy center and fill with the following:

Cut one-half a package of dates and one cupful of marshmallows with the scissors. Dip the scissors into water to keep the mallows from sticking. Chop one-half cupful of nuts, add one cupful of cream beaten until stiff, add a pinch of salt and a flavoring of vanilla. This amount will make one dozen large puffs.

Irish Kisses.

To one-half cupful of peanut butter add one-half cupful of dates, three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar and two unbeaten egg whites. Mix and beat until they are thoroughly blended. Drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered baking sheet and bake 15 minutes. This makes 18 kisses.

This "puck" hat, inspired by "Mid-Summer Night's Dream," is made of green felt and trimmed with a pheasant's feather. The hand-knit scarf and the English suede gloves match the hat. The crocodile bag is russet brown.

In Ethiopia

Ethiopian Warriors In Mock Cavalry Charge.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Since the fall of Aduwa, important trading center of northern Ethiopia, to the forces of Italy, the towns of Aksum, Harar and Direwawa, and the province of Ogaden have taken important places in the news owing to the further movements of Italian and Ethiopian troops.

Perched high in the mountains, about 7,000 feet above the sea, and only 12 miles almost due west of Aduwa, Aksum today is a small town of only about 5,000 inhabitants, but the memory of ancient glories still clings to huge stone monuments that stand there.

Aksum was the capital of Ethiopia, according to ancient records, and since time immemorial has been regarded as sacred by the people. Its sacred character has made the city immune to attack or plundering by brigands or the armies of rival Ethiopian chieftains fighting for the surrounding country.

This is not the first time that Italian armies have held Aksum. The Italians conquered the city and nearby territory in the war which was ended by their disastrous defeat at Aduwa in 1896.

In Aksum is a church which, according to legend, contains the original Ark of the Covenant of the Hebrews. The church has been so closely guarded by the clergy, however, that no scholars from the Western world have been able to confirm or deny the legend.

Tradition says that the Ark was brought to Ethiopia by Menelik I, son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. Menelik, according to the story, was educated at Jerusalem by Solomon until he reached the age of nineteen; he then went to Ethiopia with the Ark and a large delegation of Hebrews.

Ark May Have Been Burned.

The original church in which the Ark of the Covenant was supposed to have been lodged was burned when the city was sacked by a Moslem invader, Mohammed Gran, about 1535, but a new one was erected soon after by the Portuguese, who had visited Ethiopia earlier and had established friendly relations there. There is no record of whether the Ark was destroyed in this fire, or carried to some safe place before the invasion and later restored to the new church.

Native tradition says that Aksum dates back many thousands of years. The earliest authoritative mention of it is in a manuscript written in 67 A. D., in which it is described as the capital of the Aksumite kingdom, which was the successor of the ancient land of Punt and the forerunner of Ethiopia. Punt is mentioned in Egyptian records as a place with which the Egyptians traded for gold, ivory, ostrich feathers, and other valuable merchandise.

An inscription in Greek on a column at Aksum is evidence that what is now Ethiopia had contacts with the ancient Grecian world. Aksum is well known for its huge stone obelisks, some of which are still standing while others have fallen and have been broken. They form a consecutive series from rough, unheaven stones to highly finished obelisks of which the tallest standing, at least until recently, was 60 feet in height and 8 feet, 7 inches in width. They are believed to have been connected with some form of ancient Semitic sun worship.

Aksum is thought to have been much larger in ancient times than now, for there are traces of stone foundations of large buildings over a wide area near the present town, some of them probably temples and palaces.

The city of Harar, about 180 miles from the Red sea and 35 miles south of the railroad from Addis Ababa to Djibouti, was originally settled by Arabs who migrated from Yemen on the eastern shore of the Red sea.

Harar a Walled City.

A survivor of the Middle ages of Europe would feel at home in Harar, for it has long been the custom to close the five gates in its high stone wall at nightfall. None may leave or enter the city until the following morning, just as was the former practice in European walled cities. The wall, about three miles in circumference, is guarded by 24 towers. Recent reports from Harar say that the governor of the city has torn breaches in the walls to make it possible for the inhabitants to flee without congestion at the narrow gates in case of raids by Italian bombing planes.

The streets of Harar are little more than narrow alleys, some of them only three or four feet wide, steep and ill-paved and cluttered with refuse. They wind between one and two-story buildings built of undressed stone and mud, with thatched roofs. Along the streets are many small shops, some a few steps below the street level, in which work blacksmiths, silversmiths, swordmakers, and other artisans.

Harar lost some of its former commercial importance to Direwawa, 35 miles to the north, when the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad was built. It still remains an important center for caravan trade, however, doing a brisk business in coffee, kat, (a plant producing a drug much used by the Mohammedans), cattle, mules, camels, hides, ivory and gums.

About 40,000 people, according to the most recent estimate, normally live in and around Harar and the city contains the palace of the governor and several foreign consulates which are of more substantial construction than the huts of the common folk. There are both Christian (Ethiopian) churches and Moslem mosques, and two hospitals within the walls.

Harar and its province stand on a plateau, between 4,000 and 5,000 feet above the sea, which has a pleasing climate and is extremely fertile. Harar province is famous for its coffee, much of which is exported, a portion of the crop coming to the United States where it is preferred by many discriminating coffee drinkers. Coffee grows wild in some parts of Harar province, for Ethiopia was the original home of coffee.

Arabs Founded Harar.

The history of Harar goes back to the Seventh century A. D. when the Immigrant Arabs from Yemen arrived and founded the city, according to tradition. The state which was then organized was known as Adel or Zaila. Of this state Harar was the capital in the Fifteenth century. During that century a ruler of Harar, Mohammed Gran (the left-handed), invaded what was then Ethiopia and conquered a large part of it.

No white man visited Harar, so far as is known, until 1854 when an Englishman, Sir Richard Burton, spent ten days there disguised as an Arab. In 1875 the region was occupied by an Egyptian army and held for ten years until troubles in the Sudan forced the withdrawal of the garrison. The province then was under British influence until 1887 when it was conquered by Menelik II who later became emperor of Ethiopia and who conquered the Italians at Aduwa in 1896.

Direwawa, 35 miles to the north of Harar, can be reached in one day's journey on mule back or in four hours by automobile over the rough terrain. This city, in many ways the most progressive in Ethiopia, is a key-point on the railroad which is Ethiopia's only outlet to the sea.

Formerly Direwawa was the terminus of the railroad from Djibouti. It is about 180 miles from the coast and stands on the fringe of the Ethiopian plateau about 4,000 feet above sea level.

The modern well-built railroad station at Direwawa is much like that in any small American town, and the city contains the Ethiopian customs house and the residences of several European employees of the railroad.

Ogaden Province.

Ogaden province is in Ethiopia's southeastern corner, jutting out into an angle formed by British Somaliland on the north and Italian Somaliland on the south and east.

On the southwest it extends to the Webbe (river) Shihell, one of Ethiopia's two queer streams which flow hundreds of miles toward the sea only to disappear into the earth a few miles from their goal.

This strange river tumbles down from Ethiopia's high central mountains, almost reaches the sea near Mogadiscio on the Indian ocean, then changes its mind and runs 170 miles along the coast only 12 to 15 miles inland, finally losing itself in the Italian Somaliland plains a few miles from the equator. Another of Ethiopia's disappearing rivers, the Awash, flows out of the mountains near Addis Ababa northeasterly, but loses itself about 60 or 70 miles inland from Djibouti, the chief port of French Somaliland on the Gulf of Aden.

GREAT CONCERN OVER NEWCOMER IN A COMMUNITY

The newcomer is a person who appears to make his home in the community and who thereby raises the questions:

Where will he send his children to school? Where will he keep his bank account? Where will he buy his groceries? Will he purchase a house? Does he need an automobile? How is he off for insurance?

Would he be interested in an oil burner? What church will he attend? Is he a prospect for a contribution to charity? Does he require legal advice? Has he an electric refrigerator? Is he, or members of his family, in need of medical attention?

Would he be good material for a ducking club or a golf club or a luncheon club? Or is he a person of intellectual interests who might be drafted for a discussion group or an association for or against war or in the study of foreign affairs?

Is he a good speaker? If so, what is his subject? Could he be persuaded to make a talk? Will his house need weatherstripping? How does he vote? Could he use an electric washer or a vacuum cleaner?

Where does he buy his clothes? Could he be persuaded to open a few accounts? Has he settled on a dentist? Has he engaged a handy man to look after his place? Would his children be interested in instruction in French or the piano or rhythmic dancing? Would he be interested in supporting the art museum?

In fact, if a newcomer were able to hear all the questions his arrival raised and realized the number of endeavors in which he was regarded as a prospect, he would probably pack up and go back as quickly as he could to the place from which he came.—Christopher Biloppo in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains—and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

All Around the House

A little olive oil rubbed over paper that has stuck to a polished surface softens paper and makes it easier to remove.

Rings of canned pineapple browned and sprinkled with chopped green peppers and pimientos make an attractive garnish for steak, chops or roasts.

When potatoes are baked in their skins the moisture in potato supplies the steam that makes the texture of the vegetable soft and mealy, at the same time preserving the flavor.

Varnished dark woodwork will have a fine gloss if washed with warm water and kerosene. Add a cup of kerosene to a large pail of warm water.

Sheer wool crepe in the brighter colors makes very attractive side draperies. They are lined with egg-shell saten.

Gravy will not soak through the lower crust of a meat pie if the white of an egg is brushed over lower crust of pie.

Some stucco walls may be washed with soap and water, but a coat of stucco sprayed over the whole surface is much more satisfactory than washing.

When pressing neckties, cut a piece of cardboard the shape of the tie and slip inside of it. Cover tie with a cloth and press with hot iron. There will then be no marks left by seams and hems.

Always iron ecreu linens on the wrong side. Ironing on the right side robs them of their luster.

Fill ugly cracks in furniture with beeswax and then varnish over.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

COMMENTS ON CURRENT TOPICS BY NATIONAL CHARACTERS

Opinions expressed in the paragraphs below are not necessarily concurred in by the editor of this newspaper.

OUR FOREIGN POLICY

By CORDELL HULL, Secretary of State. Our policy as a member of the community of nations should be twofold—first, to avoid being brought into a war and, second, to promote as far as possible the interests of international peace and good-will.

A virile policy tempered with prudent caution is necessary if we are to retain the respect of other nations and at the same time hold our position of influence for peace and international stability in the family of nations.

In summary, while our primary aim should be to avoid involvement in other people's difficulties and hence to lessen our chances of being drawn into a war, we should, on appropriate occasions and within reasonable bounds, use our influence toward the prevention of war and the miseries that attend and follow in its wake. For, after all, if peace obtains, problems regarding neutrality will not arise.

QUALIFIED NEUTRALITY

By BERNARD M. BARUCH, Former Chairman of War Industries Board. I AM sufficiently crass to say that if cotton is to be sold to a country from which it may find its way into the hands of a belligerent, then America should have the right to sell that cotton unless and until every other country agrees to withhold its supply.

Look at other countries who are selling or who have sold munitions and other supplies to both Italy and Ethiopia. Why should we continue to be the great international Fat Boy, at whose stick of candy other nations take an unwelcome bite?

WHY MILLIONS CARRY TUMS!

MILLIONS now know the smart thing is to carry a roll of Tums, always. Heartburn, gas, and other symptoms of acid indigestion have a habit of occurring at unexpected times. You don't have to drench your stomach with harsh alkalies which physicians have long warned may make the tendency toward acid indigestion worse. Tums, a real scientific advancement, contain no soda or other alkalies. Instead a wonderful antacid that simply neutralizes stomach acidity, the balance passing out of the body in the form of water and carbon dioxide. Only 10c a roll. Put a roll in your pocket now.

White Chief Rules Indians in Texas

Prosperity Due to Forceful Leader, Tribe Claims.

Livingston, Texas.—The only Indian tribe in Texas, the peaceful Alabamas, has a white chief.

Nekko Si, or Little Chief, known to his business associates here as Clem Fain, Jr., became director of the tribe at Indian Village following the death of Big Chief Sun-Kee, seventy-five.

Fain has been a friend and adviser of the Alabamas for many years, and was so loved that he was given the title of Nekko Si.

Affairs of the tribe, which had drifted from the land east of the Mississippi a century ago, greatly interested Fain.

Advised Old Chief. Sun-Kee became chief of the tribe 25 years ago upon the death of his predecessor, Chief John Scott. Fain became his friend and advised the chief.

When adversity struck at the foundation of the band of 250 Indians in 1928, Fain advised Chief Sun-Kee, then sixty-seven, to organize the tribe formally and present a plea to the government for aid.

The tribal braves, numbering 49, formally elected Sun-Kee, then called Charley Thompson, as chief.

Immediately Chief Sun-Kee left for Washington, where he was granted an audience with Calvin Coolidge, then President. The chief asked for aid and obtained it.

Before the trip to Washington Chief Sun-Kee was grieved deeply over the poverty-stricken condition of the tribe. His band found it difficult to eke a bare living from the sandy loam near Indian village.

Have New Outlook. The Indians were backward and had no funds to buy modern farming equipment, but now, thanks to the courage of Chief Sun-Kee and the advice of Nekko Si, they have a new outlook on life.

Farms yield good crops from sandy soil, and Indian Village has new homes, a hospital and new church and school buildings.

The Alabamas no longer have to move to more fertile lands, as did their forefathers. When the original band moved into Texas it settled near Peach Tree village in Tyler county. The Texas war for independence forced them to move, but they were friendly to Gen. Sam Houston and were rewarded in 1854 by the land grant upon which they now live.

Fain, the Alabamas' Little Chief, will rule until next January, when the tribe will elect one of its own blood to carry on the work of Sun-Kee, beloved chief.

Two Sisters Work Before Mast to See the World

Vancouver, British Columbia.—An attempt to work their way around the world in ships is being made by two young Vancouver sisters.

They are Clara M. Wilson, a school teacher, and Katherine, a stenographer. They started out on the first lap of their journey aboard the British freighter Harmatris, on which they signed as members of the crew. The Harmatris will take them to Sydney, New South Wales.

From Sydney they hope to catch a boat to India or the west coast of Australia, work their way to South Africa and up the east coast of Africa, and then go through Europe and England, returning to New York and Montreal.

The sisters said they had no special motive for undertaking the adventure.

Cut Out All the Fun, Live to Ripe Old Age

San Francisco.—If you would enjoy longevity, happiness and health, take the following advice from Dr. E. Payne Palmer, of Phoenix, and don't:

- Indulge in alcoholism. Use tobacco excessively. Become excessively emotional. Submit to anger, avarice, ambition, vanity, gluttony or uncleanness. Attempt to avert parenthood. Vanity, the doctor explained, usually affects health in connection with attempts to acquire a graceful figure by injurious means.

BASIC VALUES

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

An old German motto reads:

When wealth is lost, nothing is lost; When health is lost, something is lost; When character is lost, all is lost.

"He who steals my purse, steals trash, but he who steals my good name, takes not only that which enriches him, but makes me poor indeed." How true this is. Money is only a symbol. We exchange it for the necessities and the luxuries of life. The invested dollar is valuable as a reserve; otherwise, it is more of a liability than an asset because we lose what it might earn.

It is far easier to win back the money we have lost than to regain either health or character.

"When wealth is lost, nothing is lost"—not so with health, for in losing health one has lost his capacity for work and his ability to enjoy the good things of life. A prominent educator wrote as his last New Year's resolution: "This year I will take care of my health, my most precious possession. I will sleep eight hours out of twenty-four. I will not worry. I will relax, rest, eat wholesome food, and

He's Moving Up

Jack Gibbons, twenty-two years old, carries a name famous in ring history. As he started a tour of the Pacific coast this St. Paul lad could boast of winning 64 bouts, 24 by knock-outs. Experts think he may be a contender for the heavyweight title. Jack's father is Mike Gibbons, welterweight champion in 1912, and his uncle was Tom Gibbons, who fought Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., in 1923.

cultivate proper and regular habits in all my living." A wise resolution! The loss of health destroys much that life holds dear. Guard your health. It is your most precious physical and mental possession. For, "When health is lost, something is lost."

The most important factor in the economic and the social world is character. Character is what we are in the organic unity of our secret thinking. Remove character from business and we have bankruptcy. Character is our most important asset in the world of social values. No matter how wealthy or healthy we may be, if we do not possess character, we will be neither trusted nor admired. There are many kinds of hunger, hunger for food, for knowledge, for pleasure, but the deepest hunger is that for friendship and love.

We can buy food and pleasure with money, but not true friendship and love. The latter is achieved through character expressing itself in devotion and service.

When William the Silent died, the little children cried in the streets, not because he was wealthy or possessed a healthy constitution, but because he had character. One must possess an impeccable character to be truly loved by little children. "When character is lost, all is lost." How true in the life of today is this old German motto.

Point in Decoration

It is a pleasing point in decoration to have the union of several elements in textiles employed. For example, the visual sense can be pleased by color combinations, while the mind is gratified by correct design formations. When to these elements is added the pleasure afforded the sense of touch of certain textiles, little more is left to be desired of the fabric.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

A homestead map outlined on linen, indicating where the place is and how to get to it. Such a map may also be drawn.

THE woman who wants to give gifts that are individual and unique should work maps of her home and send them to friends who live at a distance, especially. If you have a good snap shot of your house in one of its most attractive aspects, have it enlarged to whatever size you would like it in the map picture. Trace the outlines and transfer to natural colored linen. It is well to put in traceries of tree and shrub outlines, and the street or road, if it shows. If not, make the transfer first to a large sheet of paper, and then draw lines indicating the street or road. This picture can be further embellished by birds flying in the sky above house and trees, by curls of smoke coming from chimneys, by extra trees, shrubs, etc. And be sure to put a compass in the lower left or right hand corner of the pictorial map.

Remember this is a map, not a realistic picture, and it requires to be a plan rather than a sketch. This is so true that a certain crudity is permissible. For example, the dwelling may be drawn from the enlarged photographs instead of traced, as mentioned. The trees can be indicated (see accompanying illustration) and hills, rivers and surrounding country be outlined. These should be correctly positioned. That is, the river or pond, hill or mountain, and especially the roads leading to the place should be so drawn that they come as they would in relation to the view of the house. A hill back of the house must be back of it in the drawing.

Be Accurate. Do not let your imagination run away with you in the map-scape. Stick to the lay-out of the land, trees, dwellings, etc., as it really is in the section of country you are including in the picture. The names of streets or roads should be lettered in. Print the words in the spaces indicated as roads. Names of hills, mountains and rivers and ponds should be so lettered.

The compass would be merely crossed lines, one running due north and south crossed by one running due east and west, with the letters N. S. W. E. put correctly at ends of lines. Across the bottom of the map, letter in a phrase to indicate it's a map of your place, and how to get to it. Something like: "Map showing how to get to Home of Smith, by Mary Smith"; or "Welcome to our Home, drawn and worked by Mary Smith"; or "Map of Smith Homestead and Surrounding Country by Mary Smith."

Crude Maps Interesting. The crudity of the drawing is part of the charm of these maps of homesteads, so do not hesitate to draw and work one in any preferred outline stitches. Plain outline is best for houses, and indeed for map purposes. Lettering should be as good as you can print it. However, the important thing is to have the words readable and in their correct places. As maps are free from puzzling details, make yours simple and do not put too much in it. When the map is done, dampen and press it on the wrong side and frame it in a narrow black molding, or make a passe-partout of it. Colored embroidery medium is best to use—green for hills, brown for roads, blue for rivers and water indicated, the house color for your home, with red chimney, etc.

Smart for Afternoon

Emerald green uncut velvet with an all-over scroll design makes a smart little frock for afternoon wear. The gold metal clasp at the neck and the buckle on the woven metal belt are set with green stones.

Super Clock Will Vary Only Fraction of Second

London.—A clock that will not lose or gain more than a fraction of a second in a year is to be installed at the Royal Observatory. It will be recognized as the world's super time-piece.

Controlled by electricity, its pendulum will swing in a partial vacuum at a constant temperature, and a series of electric impulses will be given out each time the pendulum swings. The electric impulses will control the dials and mechanism.

Camels Perform Philatelic Stunt

Philatelists especially were interested in the stunt performed by these two circus camels the other day. They carried the mail from Fort Tejon to Los Angeles, Calif., as did the camels of Gen. Edward Beale in the 1850's, the trip being a feature of philatelic week. The letters carried special souvenir stamps or labels and cachets. At Los Angeles they were transferred to trains and planes. The photograph shows the camels getting their loads.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly worthless. Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount. Sensing treachery ahead, Garth secretly removes a part from the motor of the plane. Huxby and Lilith taunt Garth, but their tone soon changes when they try to start the plane. Returning to shore they try to force Garth to give up the missing part. Garth manages to set the monoplane adrift and the current carries it over the falls. He points out that he is their only hope in guiding them out of the wilderness. Garth begins the work of preparing for the long journey. He insists that the others help. Ramill and his daughter must be hardened for the hardships ahead in their trek to the outpost on the Mackenzie.

CHAPTER IV

The Whip Hand.

The girl licked her fingers and turned to stare covetously at the pieces of moose dangling in the smudge-fire smoke. She spoke to Garth almost civilly:

"I've no need to rest like Dad. Do I have to wait for another piece?"

"Certainly not. But you've let the cook-fire go out. Keep this one going, and you can use it. Better cut another spit. Mind the knife edge, if you don't want to lose a finger."

She showed she could be deft enough when she chose. One stroke of the knife hacked off a willow twig, two cuts sharpened the end. Grasping the bottom of the uncut second liver, she sliced up lengthwise, all the way to the rawhide thong. She poked the green wood from the near edge of the fire, piled on dry sticks, and crouched down to hold her spit over the blaze.

Garth had at once begun to make catgut. It would be needed to sew the moccasins. He was intent on work, and the girl was still more intently eyeing her meat, when Huxby came striding between the spruces.

The once elegant engineer was smeared with mud from his midbody down to where the rock-milk water of the ford had drenched the bog slime from his shoes and leather aviator trousers. Snags had scratched his flying jacket and even torn through one sleeve.

Worst of all, his bare face and neck was a swollen mass of mosquito-bite welts and the bleeding wounds of deer-fly stings. The skin had already begun to puff and discolor.

At sight of the man's condition, Garth picked up his rifle. Even the most cold-blooded, calculating schemer can be tortured into crazed violence.

Miss Ramill glanced up from her cooking, and uttered a startled cry. It awakened her father from his doze. He sat erect to start at Huxby.

"My G—d, Vivian, what's happened? You look like something the car brought home."

"Those d—d pests," Huxby cursed. "Left my headnet. Hey, you airplane thief, fetch me a drink. Jump lively."

Garth lifted his rifle. "Put up your hands. No, don't reach for your pistol. Up with them, or I'll wing you—That's it. Now hold them there while Mr. Ramill takes your pistol. I've had enough of your threatening."

The millionaire looked at Garth's cool gray eyes, and heaved himself upon his feet to shuffle around behind Huxby's shoulder. He pulled open the leather jacket and drew the automatic pistol from its high-slung sheath. Holding the butt forward, he brought the weapon to Garth.

"Keep it yourself," Garth told him. "You can give it back to him soon as he gets over this fly madness. There's your headnet, Huxby. Better stand in the smoke till you get it on."

The tormented man first ran to lie down on the mill bank. Between deep drinks, he doused his bitten face in a pool and dashed the gratefully cool water over the back of his neck. The moment he stopped, the pests buzzed at him again. He ran to the smoky side of the fire without stopping for his headnet.

For the first time since Garth had met Lilith Ramill, she showed consideration for someone else than herself. Her second piece of liver had been cooked enough to be eatable. She tore it in two and gave half to her fiancé.

"It's good, Vivian. Try it. You must be famished."

Her unexpected graciousness calmed his half-crazed mind.

"Why, Lilith—you roasted this yourself! It will taste doubly delicious." He forced a laugh. "But I couldn't take the food out of your mouth."

"I'll soon cook more. There's plenty."

Garth caught Mr. Ramill's hungry look, and shook his head. "Not yet for us, sir. We'll pack in some more of the meat before the wolverines get it."

He laid a mat of willow foliage, sliced up what was left of the second liver, and started off with Ramill.

Though at first stiff, the millionaire did not get out of breath so quickly as before. This was an encouraging sign. That easy climb to the claim and the fast return had been violent exercise for the mine investor. He could not have recovered so soon if his heart had been bad.

But when he opened his cigar case, Garth interposed.

"You have only four left, sir. Better hold them back to taper off gradually. This change of diet is going to jolt you hard enough. No wine or whiskey, either."

Mr. Ramill walked along quite a distance with the cigar case open, his face impassive inside the mosquito gauze of the headnet. When at last he looked up, he closed the cigar case and handed it to Garth. "You're the doctor."

Garth put the case in his shirt pocket.

"All right, sir. You'll get them when they'll do you the most good—and you'll get them all."

Again Mr. Ramill walked along with his gaze on the ground. They were near the muskeg swamp before he looked up. He turned his shrewd gaze upon Garth, and spoke with blunt directness: "What's your game?"

"My game?"

"Yes. We may as well settle this now as later. Don't tell me you haven't some big scheme in mind. You guessed we meant to cast off and leave you holding the sack. Otherwise you wouldn't have taken that key part from the plane motor."

Garth chuckled. "Did you ever outwit a fox, corner a pack of wolves, or trap a crafty old bear?"

The ruddy face of the millionaire purpled. "What is the connection?"

"Nothing invidious," Garth assured him. "I had in mind only the fun of the game."

"So? Well, young man, it has already been admitted that you've so far taken all the tricks. I gave you credit for more sense, however, than you showed when you cast loose the plane."

Garth Lifted His Rifle. "Put Up Your Hands."

You had no need to walk up like a dupe and permit Vivian to get the drop on you. Easy enough for you to've come out of cover with your rifle up. Don't tell me you'd rather travel afoot to the Mackenzie than fly out in a plane."

"That depends, sir. Perhaps I did not wish to part company with you so soon. Over at the river, I could of course have invited myself to fly out to Fort Smith with you. But that would hardly have given us time to get acquainted. As it is, in the weeks of close companionship to come we may even learn to be friends."

Mr. Ramill frowned. "Is that a taunt, or maudlin sob stuff?"

"Neither."

"Then what's your game? If you think, after marooning us here in these d—d wilds, you can win our friendship or gratitude by guiding us out, you're a sadly mistaken young man."

Garth agreed. "It would be a stupid mistake to expect anything decent from you or your daughter or Huxby. But think what fun I've already had, facing that pistol and telling Huxby he dared not use it."

"Fun? You must be crazy!"

"Not at all. I had him sized up. The game was to let him think he had me trapped, then give him the laugh."

The big man chewed on this. "That's clear enough. But why wreck the plane? Will your next joke be to walk off and leave us to starve?"

"Does it look that way? Two moose make a deal of eating."

As Garth spoke, he pointed ahead at the red chunks on the spruce branches. Almost at the same instant his rifle jerked up. The second shot was followed by a snarling squall. The squall shrilled into a shriek that nipped off into silence.

When Mr. Ramill rather hesitatingly followed Garth to the hanging legs of moose, he saw a three-foot, stub-tailed wildcat with black-tufted ears lying under a torn shoulder of moose meat. A second cat, slightly larger, had leaped several yards away before dropping.

Garth drew his knife. "Only a pair of lynx. Not much for two shots. We haven't any cartridges to throw away. But we can use the skins, and the meat will make a change from moose."

He flayed the bodies, bagged the best cuts of meat in the skins, and hung them high. The next move was to see if Mr. Ramill could pack the hide of the cow moose. He made a game attempt to walk off under it, but at once began to stagger. Garth relieved him of the load, and in place of it gave him one of the bagged lynx skins. He himself bagged one of the bull moose quarters in the cowhide and heaved it upon his back.

They came back to the camp with Mr. Ramill panting and sweating. Garth swung lightly ahead of him. He slipped off his heavy pack and stood looking at the idle couple on the mill bank. They had eaten their fill of liver, and stretched out to rest. No smoke was rising from the embers of the smudge-fire. Flies were beginning to cluster on the moose tongues and other meat.

The girl met his look with contemptuous indifference. Huxby stared with bloodshot hostility from between his swollen eyelids.

Instead of speaking to the couple, Garth addressed the girl's father as he relieved him of the lynx pack:

"As I remember, sir, I told Miss Ramill she could cook on the smudge-fire if she kept it going. I will say now that I do not intend to shoot any more meat until use is made of what we have. There are none too many rifle cartridges. If the three of you prefer rotten, maggoty meat, I'll go you to the last mouthful. I've lived for weeks at a time on spoiled fish and rotten walrus."

Huxby's face and neck were as swollen and sore as if covered with boils. His temper was no less sore. "You're the one who put us in this fix, you wood louse!"

Garth gave him a pitying look. "That's the fly venom talking. No cool, calculating schemer in his right senses would ask for trouble when his hands were tied. I might point out, however, that the venom was due to your haste in trying to—uh—appropriate my discovery claim."

"That's a lie. You cast the plane adrift. I was stung while trying to save it. Curse the luck! I came within an ace of reaching the snagged line. Almost had it, when the plane dragged it loose and went down over those hellish falls!"

"I might remind you that you ordered me to cast off the line—at the point of your pistol."

The thrust proved too much for Huxby. He sat silent. Garth went on with his quiet argument:

"All that is now past history. We're more concerned with the present and future. Mr. Ramill has shown his common sense by facing the facts of the situation. He has fallen into line. The question is, do you and Miss Ramill throw in with us, or do you go on your own? If with us, I'm to be chief. How about it?"

Huxby had cooled down enough to see the point. "You win. I join up."

Miss Ramill looked puzzled and a bit alarmed. "What's the great idea, Vivian?"

"Very simple, my dear. He has the whip hand. He is boss. We must obey his orders, or we'll never get back to civilization."

"Oh! The despicable, cowardly—"

She met Garth's cool gaze and fell silent.

He nodded. "You'll begin by rebuilding that fire. After that you'll cook the other liver for your father and yourself. You will then start graining the hair off the moosehides while Huxby and your father go back for more meat."

"I will do no such thing!"

"Very well. That means you get no moccasins to replace your boots when those flimsy soles wear through on the rocks."

She flared: "Gallant Sir Galahad!"

"Leave her be, Garth," her father interposed. "I'll tend the fire and scrape the skins."

"No. Lie down. Whenever you work, it's to be on your feet. We must build up both your wind and your muscle. Huxby, I'll ask you to fetch that pot and the gold pan."

The mining engineer rose and started up towards the trough without a word of inquiry or protest. Miss Ramill's eyes widened. She gazed wonderingly from him to her father. Mr. Ramill had no less obediently lain down as ordered.

Garth ignored the girl. He chopped deep notches in the trunks of the food-cache birch trees, about seven feet high. He then cut saplings to span across from tree to tree, with ends wedged in the notches. The next move was to fetch a number of alder poles

When he returned, smoke was billowing up to drive the flies from the moose tongues and muffs. Miss Ramill had rebuilt the smudge-fire and taken down the liver, ready for slicing. She gazed up at him, stormy-eyed, ready to flare if he had shown the slightest flicker of amusement or gloating.

Instead, he gave her a curt nod of acknowledgment, laid his knife beside the liver, and turned to space the poles across the sapling framework to make a grill above the smudge. Upon this he laid the moose leg and the pieces of lynx meat.

Huxby came back from the discovery stake with the gold pan and little aluminum pot. He stared in surprise at sight of Miss Ramill cooking the liver. She shrugged her slim shoulders, and drew back from the fire to give one spit to her father. After that she silently offered the other to Garth.

"Thank you," he said. "Let me suggest that you now fill the gold pan with water and slice into it one of the muffs. They don't look promising. But if simmered for a day or two, a single moose muzzel will give us several delicious meals of what might be called aspic jelly."

This won no sign of interest from the girl. She was no longer hungry. Garth ignored her silence.

"After starting that dish, you may cook as much more of the liver as your father can eat. He will keep on resting while Huxby and I go for another load of moose meat. The sooner we pack all to camp, the surer we will be that other mouths do not get away with it."

He unbuckled his pack, slung the pack-board on his back, and picked up his rifle and belt-ax. Huxby trailed after him out of camp. They walked in Indian file all the way around to the muskeg swamp, Huxby with his gaze fixed coldly upon the back of his leader.

At the swamp Garth cut a tote-pole and passed it through the tendons of two hindquarters of moose. The remaining quarter he strapped to his pack-board. He folded the second lynx skin for Huxby to use as a shoulder pad. Upon it the mining engineer rested his end of the tote-pole.

Giraffe, Tallest Among Quadrupeds of the World

Tallest among the quadrupeds of the world, the giraffe is constructed along a variety of levels, its front legs longer than its long hind legs and its neck longer than the longest of its other members, with a tongue of length and flexibility entirely suited to the architectural whole.

In fact, notes a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, there are evidences in support of one belief that nature must have started to make something else when it got around to fashioning the timid creature. Original plans probably called for a quadruped of conventional dimensions and the barrel and rear running gear must have been completed before amendments were decided on. Very likely the many quadrupeds of comparative size looked too much alike. So it was probably decided this new animal should have a much longer neck, and to make its neck longer than the facts justified it must have longer front legs. So we have an animal started in regularity and finished in singularity, with its body sloping up from rear to front legs and a neck so long that it distorts the distortion.

Nature in all truth must have been in a sportive mood when it made the giraffe. If it sought to give the jungle a laugh it succeeded admirably, giving the laughing hyena something about which it could laugh without restraint. The beast has to straddle itself all out of shape to get a drink of water from the level of its own feet! So by habit it has taught itself to drink very little water, or at least to drink it with great infrequency. The long neck, the long front legs and the up-tilted body could hardly have been anything but afterthoughts.

River Flows Uphill

It has been figured out by the United States geological survey that a point at sea level on the equator is about 13 miles farther away from the center of the earth than a sea level point at either of the earth's poles. Their calculations show the mouth of the Mississippi river to be four miles farther from the earth's center than its source. Thus, it may be said the "Father of Waters" runs uphill. This phenomenon results from the water in the river obeying the laws of gravity which cause it to run from the higher surface level at its source to the lesser one at its mouth.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Old Maids' Home an Arsenal

Residents of the peaceful Paris suburb of Montrouge were perturbed over rumors that a house in the district occupied by two aged spinsters was a veritable arsenal. Finally the police were prevailed on to investigate. In the house they found 17 military rifles, dating back to 1870. Modera rifles, revolvers, rounds of ammunition and even hand grenades.

People Heavier, Taller

People of today are taller and heavier than their ancestors, writes F. W. Christmas, Boston, Mass., in Collier's Weekly. The best evidence of this fact is the costumes which adorn the numerous wax effigies in the historical museum. These clothes were actually worn by persons who lived from 50 to 500 years ago, and they are much too small for the average-sized citizen of the Twentieth century.

A short flight next day to Wake Island, a tiny dot in the vast Pacific. There, too, you pass a night. Another daylight flight. A night on Guam. The next night finds you in exotic yet modern Manila. Then the following morning you step ashore for luncheon, in China itself.—W. L. Van Dusen and Daniel Sayre in Cosmopolitan.

Miss Ethel Hoffa, County Nurse, Indorses Seal Sale Campaign

Calling attention to the need for the continuation of the organized fight against tuberculosis, Miss Ethel Hoffa, the Iosco county nurse, today urged that Tawas City people support wholeheartedly the twenty-ninth annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals, opening Thanksgiving Day and continuing until Christmas. Miss Hoffa declared that the nearness of a complete victory over the White Plague was a challenge to every civic-minded person in Tawas City.

"During the past quarter of a century," Miss Hoffa pointed out, "the tuberculosis death rate in Michigan has been lowered by fifty per cent. Where a few years ago a person found to have tuberculosis had nothing but death in prospect, today hundreds of lives are being saved through the miracles of modern medical science and the commendable program of volunteer tuberculosis agencies."

"We are told that medical science has advanced to a point where tuberculosis could be wiped out practically over night, if procedures which are available for combating the disease were utilized to the full extent. Certainly that fact is a challenge to all of us."

"I know of no better way Tawas City people can help the fight against tuberculosis than through the support of the Christmas seal sale which will be opened here soon after Thanksgiving. I am informed that the Michigan Tuberculosis Association has appointed Superintendent A. E. Giddings to act as chairman of the seal sale in Tawas City. He will be assisted by the Misses Patricia Braddock and Jean Robinson who in turn have selected the following committee: Norma Musolf, Lucille DePotty, Mildred Cholzer, Maruerite McLean, Frieda Ross; Phyllis Bigelow, Madelle Brugger, Isabelle Dease, Betty Holland, Effie Prescott, Opal Gillespie and America Bell."

High School
School was closed Thursday and Friday of this week to enable the students and teachers to enjoy the Thanksgiving recess.

Report cards were distributed to the students Wednesday.

Robert Mark, one of the music students of the high school, played said, "Come and get me." One of the police, who had the group covered with a riot gun, fired and hit the boy's hand and wrist, but not quick enough to prevent him from pulling the trigger. Four pellets from the riot gun charge hit Missler's body.

Miss Huhtala gave an interesting talk concerning her trip and experiences abroad at the faculty meeting which was held Tuesday after school.

A post mortem was held by Genesee county authorities at Flint and it was determined that the boy had died from suicide.

Howard Louis Missler was born at Monroe on November 1, 1919, and was 16 years and 24 days of age at the time of his death. Those left to mourn are the father and mother; one sister, Joyce; one brother, Robert; and many other relatives and friends. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery, Rev. Frank Tietz officiated at the funeral services.

Get behind the wheel and get the facts!

IT STANDS to reason that your neighbor's opinion may not be your opinion. He may tell you his Ford V-8 Truck is the best truck he ever owned. But you may hesitate to rely on his opinion when you buy a truck.

Buying by hearsay is a slipshod method. The SURE way . . . the way that is least likely to bring regrets afterwards . . . is to make your own tests. When you have the opportunity of trying a truck right on your own farm, hauling your own loads, running over the same roads you would use if the truck belonged to you . . . you can get a much better idea of what to expect from that truck.

That's just what Ford wants you to do. If you will set a date for an "on-the-job" test, your Ford dealer will gladly place a 1936 Ford V-8 Truck or Commercial Car at your disposal. Try it out on your farm. Use it as you would your own. Keep track of its costs. See how quickly it gets you places . . . how its 80-horsepower V-8 engine enables you to pull out of tough spots with heavy loads.

Could any test be more fair? Is there any better way to find out just exactly what a Ford V-8 Truck or Commercial Car will do for you? Get in touch with your Ford dealer today and set a date for this test.
