School Notes

High School

It was with much regret that we learned of the death of Miss Helen Brothwell, commercial teacher in our high school for the two years from 1932-1934. Previous to this, she held similar positions in the Tecumseh and Comstock high schools. She was a graduate of the Michigan State Normal College and of the Cleary Business College. Miss Brothwell was a conscientious teacher, and of much help in the social life of the school.

Report cards were given out on Wednesday.

Preparations are underway for the semester's examination which will take place during the last week of the present school month. All of the pupils above the fourth grade are expected to write an examination in each subject.

The Junior class is having a bake sale at Moeller Brothers' store next Saturday afternoon to raise money for the annual Junior-Senior banquet. The class also plans to have a bridge party two weeks from Friday night, January 24.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
We are busy reviewing for examinations.

The following pupils have a "B" average for December: Norma Burtzloff and Marion Musolf.

Kathleen Davis and Martha Hermand had perfect spelling papers throughout December.

Third and Fourth Grades
Dorothy White's penmanship paper was voted the best in our penmanship contest Monday.

The third graders have started (Turn to No. 1. Back Page)

Ronald Colman Triumphs In Film Of Dickens Story

With Ronald Colman at the head of an amazing list of stars and featured players, one of the great photoplays of all time will show at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, January 12-13-14.

It is "A Tale of Two Cities," from Charles Dickens' novel.

The picture takes its place with the few great immortal photoplays of history, from which time is dated in screen annals. It is magnificent entertainment.

Yet with a deftness that is almost inspired, the producers have not permitted the spectacular aspects to overshadow the human elements that make the picture truly great.

Players, directed by Jack Conway, include Elizabeth Allan, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen, Basil Rathbone, Blanche Yurka, Henry B. Walthall and Donald Woods, with hundreds in supporting roles.

New Bids Are Asked On Water Works System

New bids were asked this week on the proposed city water works system. They will be opened January 24. A bid submitted December 11 by Carroll L. Williams of Grand Rapids was rejected by the city council.

In arranging to submit the project to contractors, Engineer George Francis divided it into two contracts. One contract will cover the distribution system and the other a 50,000 gallon storage tank. The distribution system will consist of 31,000 feet of two-inch to eight-inch mains, 35 hydrants, 56 valves and miscellaneous items.

The installation was conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Tuttle as installing officer and Mrs. Grace DeGrow as installing marshal. Miss Selma Hagstrom sang "My Task," accompanied by Mrs. Lu Bigelow.

A delicious lunch was served by the committee to over 50 members.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brack

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Emily Brack of Detroit, a former Tawas City resident, were held Saturday at Emmaus Lutheran church. Burial was in Glen Eden Lutheran Memorial Park cemetery.

Mrs. Brack died at her home on Thursday after an illness of five weeks. She was born in Tawas City 38 years ago and had lived at Detroit since she was 16 years old.

Surviving are her husband, Bernhard Brack; two children, Violet and Jerome; her mother, Mrs. Caroline Miller; four brothers, Herman, Albert, George and Henry Miller, and two sisters, Mrs. George Schultz and Mrs. William Lawrence.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club met at the club rooms last Saturday with 19 members and one visitor present.

The special committee for the Christmas baskets reported that they had packed 16 baskets for the sick. The following program was presented:

Roll call of current events; Contributions of Medical Science Since 1900—Mrs. Austin; Recent Scientific Research—Miss Worden. Both of these papers were very interesting.

The next meeting will be Gentlemen's Night on Thursday, January 16th. Members are requested to bring dishes and silver for themselves and guests. Mrs. Emmelie Mark, Mrs. Ruth Keiser and Mrs. Lois Prescott have charge of the program for the evening.

Starting January 1, 1936, we are doing business on a strictly cash basis.

Signed—Marie W. Krueger.

Establish Live Stock Exchange At Tawas City

Prescott Brothers have established a Live Stock Exchange at the Prescott barn in this city. This barn has not been in operation for about 15 years.

In announcing the plan, Charles T. Prescott said, "I feel that a place where the farmer can sell horses or live stock or buy the animals he needs will be valuable to the people of the community. If you want horses, colts, cows, calves, a bull, breeding sow or ewes—we have a large number at the barn or farm. If we haven't what you want, we'll get it for you. Come and look our stock over."

"Right now, we are in the market for cattle, horses, sheep, calves and hogs."

Arenac Youth Pleads Guilty To Forgery

Edwin Wilson of Standish pleaded guilty Tuesday to forgery before Justice W. C. Davidson and was bound over to circuit court. He is 20 years old.

Wilson appeared at the Danin store at Hale claiming that he was "Don Webber" and an employe at the Mundy ranch. He gave one of the employes at the store a letter which purported to be from Robert Mundy. This letter directed the store to sell Webber clothing he needed and charge to the Mundy account. He purchased $18.98 worth of goods. Later it was found that the letter was a forgery and that "Don Webber" was an assumed name.

Veterans' Association Organized At Oscoda

About 70 Isoco county World War veterans met Wednesday evening at Oscoda. At this meeting the Isoco County Veterans' association was organized. George Klump was elected president. The meeting was held at the Community building.

The purpose of the association will be the promotion of the general welfare of veterans. It will be non-partisan in politics. Meetings will be held every three months.

The following were elected officers of the newly formed organization:
President—George Klump, East Tawas.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE WILL OPEN MONDAY

College Credit and Adult Non-Credit Courses Will Be Taught

Next Monday registration for the Tawas Community college, East Tawas, will be held, announced Director N. D. Vaughan. Registration will be at 4:00 and 7:00 o'clock p. m. at the high school building.

Director Vaughan, who was at the head of the college last year, said, "The community college, previously known as the freshman college, will extend two kinds of work. The first, similar to last year, offers college credit to those high school graduates who are unable to attend a regular university. The second type of work will be a non-credit adult educational program. This course will be open to anyone, regardless of age, who is capable of doing the work."

"The college program will last 24 weeks or the equivalent of two regular terms. All people who are interested are urged to register Monday. The number who plan to attend should be known at the earliest opportunity."

"Adult educational work will probably take place in the evening—the credit course during the day if possible. All indications point to the required attendance being filled."

"The success of last year's freshman college assures the successful completion of the college work undertaken this year and that the college will be enthusiastically supported. Twenty students completed freshman college work last year. Many of them are now in attendance at regular colleges."

"Additional information may be secured from Superintendent Creaser of the East Tawas high school. Complete details will be given on registration day."

Congress Opens and President Delivers His Message at a Night Session—Neutrality and Bonus Are Due for Speedy Action

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONGRESS began a session that gives promise of being, not short and calm, as administration leaders had predicted, but long and lively.

President Roosevelt

Right at the start President Roosevelt caused the Republicans to howl loudly by deciding to deliver his annual message on the state of the Union before a joint night session of congress so it could be broadcast at a time when the maximum number of American citizens could be beside their radios. This required a special rule in the house for without it that body can meet but once a day; and the minority leaders made no considerable objection.

But Chairman Fletcher of the Republican national committee was so aroused by Mr. Roosevelt's plan that he demanded equal time on the national radio chains for a Republican reply. Mr. Fletcher was sarcastic in his comments, saying: "The President's decision to dramatize his message and to bring down to the level of a political speech his constitutional right and duty to address the congress on the state of the Union, is understandable in the light of past performances."

Senator Dickinson of Iowa denounced what he called "an attempt to use congress as the sounding board for a grand stand play by the President," but Senator Borah said he had no objection to the plan and no criticism to offer.

Anyhow, the President went ahead with his program and in his message gave his view of the nation's present condition, naturally holding that the New Deal was proving a success.

TWO major issues that call for quick consideration by congress are neutrality and the veterans' bonus. The existing neutrality law expires on February 29, and the President and his advisers have determined that a new law shall be passed which will give him broad discretionary powers with regard to shipments, loans and credits to belligerents. There is in congress a strong group, headed by Senators Clark of Missouri, Vandenberg of Michigan and Nye of North Dakota and Representative Maury Maverick of Texas, that demands extension of the present mandatory neutrality law. Presumably the new measure will be a compromise.

Speedy passage of bonus payment legislation is expected, for its proponents are determined and vigorous. Officials of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans have just agreed on a bill which will include these provisions:

Immediate full cash payment of the adjusted service certificates.

Refund of interest paid on loans on certificates.

Cancellation of interest accrued and unpaid.

Provision that veterans who do not desire to cash their certificates may draw interest upon the maturity value thereof (less principal of loan, if any), to be paid thereon from a date to be specified.

Provision for issuance of special government obligations in lieu of adjusted service certificates to the value of about a half a billion dollars now held as security by the United States life insurance reserves account.

The veterans' organizations estimated their united proposal would entail a cash expenditure of approximately $1,000,000,000, rather than the $2,200,000,000 generally accepted as the cost of payment.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, on his arrival in Washington for the opening of congress gave out the welcome statement that: no new general tax legislation would be pushed through during this session. Said he: "I don't look for it and I don't think it is in the realm of possibility."

Adoption of a manufacturer's excise tax was also "out," according to Harrison.

He pictured an unusually short session of congress with appropriation bills and amendments to existing legislation the principal business to be handled.

In the senator's opinion a compromise on the bonus, always politically vexatious, would be reached and a presidential veto would be avoided. Harrison reiterated his opposition to the Townsend old age pension plan and said it would make no progress at the new session.

Many house members agreed with Harrison as to taxes. It wouldn't be good policy to pass such measures this session for there will be elections in 435 congressional districts in 1936.

gram offered to congress. The league, he said, was "ready to take over the legislative and judicial functions" of the national government and might be magnanimous enough to take over the executive branch as well. The senator called the league a "lobby" and described its statements as "plutocratic propaganda."

NEW tax levies of more than $350,000,000 a year went into effect on New Year's day, these being the result of delayed tax rates passed at the last session of congress. The heaviest is from the unemployment insurance and old age pensions act, which is expected to raise about $240,000,000 in taxes on industrial pay rolls. Other new taxes include:

Raising of individual returns, $50,000,000.

Corporation tax boost, $40,000,000.

Gift tax increase, $25,000,000.

Intercorporate tax levy, $30,000,000.

Revision of the personal holding company and corporate liquidation tax provisions of the tax program will increase the country's tax bill. The Treasury department has made no estimate of such income.

WHAT may be expected from Elmer A. Benson, the new Farmer-Laborite senator from Minnesota, is indicated in a radio speech he made in Chicago on his way to the National Capital. He declared he believed that capitalism is doomed, and urged a much larger measure of public ownership and "production for use rather than for profit."

"I am convinced," he said, "that nothing short of social ownership of key industries can save us. Inasmuch as it has been demonstrated that we can produce enough for all if our productive plant is used wisely, society must take over that plant and our financial system as well and operate them in the interests of all the people because big business definitely refuses to do so."

Mr. Benson, who has been serving as state banking commissioner, was appointed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson to complete the term of the late Senator Thomas B. Schall. He will serve until December 31, 1936. He has been a Farmer-Laborite since the birth of that party and before that was active in the Nonpartisan league in Minnesota.

FRANKLIN C. HOYT has resigned as federal alcohol administrator and his resignation has been accepted by the President with the usual expressions of regret. Mr. Hoyt cited his poor health and other personal reasons to explain his action, but in his letter to Mr. Roosevelt he plainly indicated that he was dissatisfied with the liquor control setup.

MRS. EUGENE TALMADGE, wife of the governor of Georgia, has joined Alfred E. Smith in declining an invitation to the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt asked her to be her guest the afternoon of January 8, the day before a meeting of the Democratic national committee in Washington. Governor Talmadge, a hot opponent of the New Deal, was to attend the meeting, but his wife told Mrs. Roosevelt that her cotton plantation in Telfair county demanded her attention.

"I have to get my farm started on the 1936 crops," explained Mrs. Talmadge to the reporters. "The first few weeks of the year are a busy time."

NEW DEALERS speak scornfully of the Literary Digest, but everyone is eager to see what it reveals. The latest returns show a still further decline in New Deal popularity. Out of a total of 1,370,774 votes received, 828,929 answered negatively the question "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" This brought the negative percentage to the new high figure of 60.47 per cent. The last preceding percentage was 58.51.

Eleven of the thirteen southern states continued solidly New Deal. Only Florida and Oklahoma voted against it. The twelve middle western farm states continued balloting more than 3 to 2 against the administration. The Rocky Mountain states, with the single exception of Utah, contributed substantial majorities against the New Deal, as did four of the six New England states, which were voting 3 to 1 against Roosevelt.

TWELVE persons, nine of them passengers, perished when the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum crashed in the Mediterranean off Alexandria, Egypt. The only survivor was Pilot Vernon G. Wilson, who was taken from the water in a critical condition. Among the victims was one American, James C. Luke of Philadelphia, an oil engineer on his way from London to Basra, Iraq.

The City of Khartoum, which had accommodations for 15 passengers and four members of the crew, had been retired from service recently, but was recalled to replace a flying boat which burned in the harbor of Brindisi.

FROM his field headquarters in Dessye Emperor Haile Selassie sent to the League of Nations a vigorous protest against the war methods of the invading Italians. The emperor charged specifically that Italian flyers, in raining explosives on the southern army of his son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, near Dolo, used poison gas and destroyed a Swedish Red Cross ambulance laden with sick and wounded.

A special meeting of the Swedish Red Cross was held in Stockholm to take action in this matter. The Italian government in Rome asserted the aerial bombardment was fully justified by the alleged beheading of two Italian aviators by the Ethiopians after the flyers had crashed at Daggah Bur in Ogaden. The communique also said it was well known that "Ethiopian chieftains take shelter under Red Cross signs when they see Italian airplanes."

Fierce fighting was going on along the northern front in Ethiopia. In Addis Ababa it was claimed that one of the emperor's armies had scored a decided victory, but there was evidence that others of his units had suffered reverses.

DISPATCHES from Addis Ababa said reliable sources there disclosed the terms on which Emperor Haile Selassie had authorized his delegation at Geneva to discuss peace. They were thus stated:

Withdrawal of Italian troops from Ethiopia; recognition of the African empire's sovereignty; payment of indemnity by Italy; delimitation of East African boundaries between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies by a league of nations committee, and foreign economic, administrative, and financial aid and advice for Ethiopia only on the condition there would be no Italian influence.

DECLARING that all America is menaced with violence by the Communists, the Uruguayan government severed relations with the government of Soviet Russia; Minister Alexander Rinkin and his staff were handed their passports, and the Uruguayan charge d'affaires was recalled from Moscow. The decree, signed by President Gabriel Terra and all members of the cabinet, asserted that Montevideo was the headquarters of Communists who were plotting uprisings in all South America countries, and quoted the Brazilian charges that the abortive rebellion there in November was instigated by the Soviet government and that the Montevideo legation was its intermediary.

Dr. Jose Espalter, Uruguayan foreign minister, said:

"We have proof that Montevideo was the center of a gigantic Soviet expansionist plot and that Minkin was organizing a revolution in Uruguay for next February or March."

Uruguay is the only South American nation that recognized the Soviet Russian government.

WITHOUT waiting for a ruling by the Supreme court on the validity of the Tennessee Valley authority act, Senator Norris of Nebraska, father of that and much other advanced legislation, has prepared a bill for a Mississippi Valley authority along the same lines as the TVA but immensely greater in scope. He intends to introduce the measure soon in congress. It would embrace more than half of continental United States, including all the vast plain between the Alleghenies and the western continental divide and from near the Canadian border to the delta of the Mississippi; only the Tennessee valley would be omitted from the plan.

Norris said it was an expansion of his former plan for a Missouri valley authority. Flood control would be its chief goal, he disclosed, but it also would direct the development of navigation, irrigation, hydroelectric power, soil conservation and reforestation. Like TVA it would be managed by a three-man directorate. The cost is not stated. Congress would vote funds from year to year as the work progressed.

NOTEWORTHY among recent deaths are those of Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, hero of four wars and leader of the American first army in France where he was second in command to General Pershing; and Harry B. Smith, well known and prolific light opera librettist who wrote the books and lyrics for "Robin Hood" and many other productions.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL J. R. McCARL issued an order that blocked the plans of the Federal Surplus Commodity corporation to buy surplus farm products for relief distribution. He held that the administration could not use the 30 per cent of gross customs receipts set aside for the AAA to buy farm products to be given to relief clients. In a letter to Secretary Wallace, McCarl said relief legislation and relevant statutes provided another way to handle such purchases.

It was believed McCarl's ruling would not affect AAA plans for purchases for diversion purposes and not for relief distribution. An offer has been made for purchases of surplus potatoes from the 1935 crop, to be diverted into industrial channels. Officials said, however, they did not expect growers to take advantage of this offer because of recently advanced prices for potatoes.

LIGHTFOOT FINDS A FRIEND

AS LIGHTFOOT the Deer stood resting and trying to recover his breath out there on the little sandbar in the Big River, his great, soft, beautiful eyes watched first one bank and then the other. On the bank he had left he could see two black-and-white specks moving about, and across the water came the barking of dogs. Those two specks were the hounds who had driven him into the Big River. They were barking now instead of baying.

Presently a brown form joined the black-and-white specks. It was a hunter drawn there by the barking of the dogs. He was too far away to be dangerous, but the mere sight of him filled Lightfoot with terror again. He watched the hunter walk along the bank and disappear in the bushes.

Presently out of the bushes came a boat, and in it was the hunter. He headed straight toward Lightfoot, and then Lightfoot knew that his brief rest was at an end. He must once more swim or be shot by the hunter in the boat. So Lightfoot again struck out for the shore. His rest had given him new strength, but still he was very, very tired, and swimming was hard work.

Slowly, oh, so slowly, he drew nearer to the bank. What new dangers there might be there he did not know. He had never been on that side of the Big River. He knew nothing of the country on that side. But the uncertainty was better than the certainty behind him. He could hear the sound of the oars as the hunter in the boat

A MYSTERIOUS KNOT

THIS is a very deceptive trick that can be performed with an ordinary handkerchief. The magician holds the handkerchief by one corner. He raises the lower corner; then shakes it loose. The movement is repeated, the free hand always bringing up the loose end. Finally, on the third shake, a knot appears in the lower corner of the handkerchief. You must prepare for this trick by tying a knot in the upper corner of the handkerchief. That corner is held hidden by the thumb and fingers of the right hand. After twice raising the lower corner and shaking it down again, simply change the ends. You retain the original lower corner, while the knotted corner falls. Done smoothly, this completely deceives the onlookers. They will think that you actually shook a knot into a corner of the handkerchief.

GREATLY GOOD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THIS is the greatness of great deeds. By which the humble man succeeds. Where oftentimes the mighty fails. That greatness is not measured in the name we wear or wealth we win. Where often littleness prevails: For any can be great who would. Since all men can be greatly good.

THIS is the greatness of this earth. That greatness counts not wealth as worth.

Nor title the important thing. For men, what task they may pursue, Are measured by the good they do. Not by the profit it may bring. The measure of man's brotherhood is merely being greatly good.

THIS is the greatness of the great. Whether they nobly lead the state Or nobly teach a village school: That they more happiness have brought By noble principles they taught. Than those who poorly teach or rule. Both shall be judged, as heaven would. By whether they are greatly good.

Story of the Turkey

On His Way to the Dining Table.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

One of the largest of wild game birds which has been domesticated, the turkey has become "the national festival bird" of various countries. As a wild bird in North America, the turkey supplied the numerous tribes of Indians and the early white settlers with "game" fowl in great abundance, whereas in later times the domesticated turkey has provided kings and presidents, as well as the more lowly in rank, in various nations with a class of meat that has come to be regarded as essential in the proper celebration of certain holidays.

The turkey is the only race of poultry that originated in the United States. When Francisco Fernandez, under the patronage of Philip II of Spain, arrived at the northern coast of Yucatan in 1517, turkeys were observed to have been domesticated by the natives. In 1518 Grijalva discovered Mexico and found domesticated turkeys in great numbers. Gomara and Hernandez refer to wild as well as domesticated forms.

Various Indian tribes fed freely upon turkey meat, obtained from both wild and domesticated flocks. The Aztecs were more inclined to domesticate the turkey than the northern Indians, but all tribes hunted the wild birds.

The flesh was not the only part of the turkey used by the Indians. Feathers served to adorn the wearing apparel, and they were also made into robes and blankets, being twisted separately into strands of wild hemp and then woven together.

In its original habitat the wild turkey ranged from the Atlantic coast to as far north as the Dakotas, and from southern Ontario to southern Mexico. It was not a native of the three Pacific coast states, nor of Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada and Wyoming.

With practically a whole continent for his home, the more favored haunts of the wild turkey were the forests and brush lands, where food was abundant and there was some protection from natural enemies. He fed on acorns, seeds, berries, grass and insects, especially grasshoppers.

Found Wild in Southern States.

The clearing of the forests and brush lands for agricultural purposes and the shooting of thousands of birds by hunters were two of the most important factors contributing to the gradual retreat of the wild turkey from northern and eastern states.

It is still to be found in Arizona, New Mexico, Kentucky, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Arkansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, and Mexico. Various state game departments are reintroducing the bird, and restocking depleted areas.

Although there is no doubt that the wild turkey originated in America, there is much doubt as to how it got its name. Some early writers have suggested that the name "turkey" was adopted because of the supposed resemblance between the adornments of the fowl's head and the fez worn by Turkish citizens. But the most widely accepted explanation is that the name bears some resemblance to the bird's repeated call-notes—"turk, turk, turk."

The turkey is not a migratory bird in the sense that ducks and geese migrate hundreds of miles from the south to the north in the spring and return in the fall, much to the delight of thousands of hunters.

The wild turkey is a handsome bird of stately carriage. His glossy plumage is mostly greenish bronze, with gold and copper reflections. In the sunlight the effect is a delight to the eye. The feathers of the neck, breast, body, and back are tipped with a band of velvety black, thus accentuating the glowing sheen of the remainder of the plumage.

One outstanding characteristic of the turkey is that the upper portion of the neck and the head is bare of feathers, the skin being rich purple or blue. The folds or lumps of bare skin are called caruncles. There is a single wattle, and from the crown of the head there hangs a pencil-like projection of the skin, which reddens when the gobblers make love to the hens.

Another outstanding character of the turkey is the tuft of wiry, hairlike "beard" springing from the center of the breast. In some old male wild turkeys, the beard trails to the ground.

The feet of the wild turkey are light purple. They are equipped with short, heavy spurs, but while the male chicken fights principally with his spurs, the turkey fights almost entirely with his beak.

Gobbler's "Breast Sponge." The wild gobbler is provided with an interesting appendage, which is not found on the females or on young gobblers. John James Audubon, writing in 1831, speaks of it as the "breast sponge," and it serves a very important function. In the spring, during the gobbling season, this sponge is filled with fat and serves to sustain the bird; he usually eats little while strutting, gobbling, and otherwise making love to the females.

As the mating season advances the gobbler usually becomes quite thin, as the reservoir of fat is used up. There is no pairing off in couples, as in the case of many other wild birds, for the wild turkey male is polygamous in the extreme and loves a large harem. Bitter fights among the old males are common, the victor claiming the harem of the vanquished. The defeated male must perforce seek battle with another for the possession of another flock of females, or he is obliged to join a group of disconsolate "bachelors."

The females select secluded spots for their nests and make a slight depression in the ground, into which a few dry leaves are scratched. From eight to fifteen eggs, somewhat smaller and more pointed than those of the domestic varieties, are laid.

After four weeks of incubating, the baby turks, or poults, appear, covered with gray down, dotted with dusky spots, and with two dusky stripes running from the top of the head down the sides of the back. The down is soon replaced by feathers, which are replaced by another coat of feathers when the birds molt. The molting season begins in August, and by the latter part of December all of the old feathers have been replaced by new ones.

The young gobbler acquires his "beard" in the center of the breast by November and it continues to grow rapidly until the third year, and thereafter more slowly.

The young turkeys receive the care of their mother until they are four or five months old, after which they look after themselves. At six or seven months of age, the young gobblers separate from the young and old hens and range by themselves. The old gobblers also range by themselves, usually in flocks of about fifteen. The sexes roost apart.

Plenty of Enemies.

This large and magnificent wild bird has always had numerous enemies, such as the fox, coon, mink, skunk, wolf, lynx, and coyote. Its bird enemies include owls, eagles, and hawks. One writer says "There is never a moment in the poor turkey's life that eternal vigilance is not the price of its existence." Not only must the turkey be on guard every hour of the day, but it must also seek roosting places that are more or less inaccessible to its natural enemies. For this reason turkeys favor trees growing in shallow water, which seems to provide some protection from night prowlers.

In early colonial days wild turkeys were very numerous in Massachusetts, and at the beginning of the Nineteenth century they could be purchased for six cents each, while large birds, ranging from 25 to 30 pounds, sold for 25 cents. When Cortez first visited the capital of Mexico, "no less than 500 turkeys, the cheapest meat in Mexico, were allowed for the feeding of the vultures and eagles kept in the royal aviaries."

The turkey was first introduced into Spain in 1519 by Francisco Fernandez. From that country it spread throughout Europe and England, being introduced into the latter country in 1524.

The turkey was introduced to Germany in 1530. The first mention of the bird in Italy was in an ordinance issued by the magistrate of Venice in 1556, "repressing the luxury of serving turkeys." In 1570 Bartolomeo Scappi, cook to Pope Plus V, published receipts for cooking turkey.

In recent years dressed turkeys have been imported into the United States from Hungary, Russia, Austria, and Ireland, and large numbers come from Argentina. Such is the irony of fate; being indigenous to the United States and existing here in countless numbers, the wild turkey was domesticated and later taken to other countries, from which it is now imported in the "dressed" form.

In Texas, Colorado, and the Dakotas many flocks of a thousand or more birds are raised annually. Frequently these large flocks are herded on the prairies in much the same manner as are sheep and cattle.

From the original wild stocks man has developed a number of useful varieties which differ largely in respect to plumage color. There are six standard varieties recognized by the American Poultry association: the Slate, the Bourbon Red, the Black, the Narragansett, the Bronze, and the White Holland.

You Must Govern Self Before You Can Guide Your Offspring

Young Follow Example Set by Parents, Psychologist Shows.

"He's a chip off the old block," you say, little realizing, perhaps, how squarely you are hitting the nail on the head. According to an article in the Parents' Magazine, "Not only in matters of temperament can the origin of a child's problem be traced to the parent but in the realm of attitudes there is very often a definite relationship."

"The major problems of divorce, discordant homes, widowhood, illness and other serious situations are reflected in the maladjustments of the children," in the opinion of Helen Sargent, supervisor of the psychological clinic, Northwestern university. Admitting that the roots and branches of such problems are so far reaching that each requires extensive study and individual solution, Miss Sargent declares:

"There are many less apparent connections between the ways in which adult members of the household choose for meeting their lives and certain trends which appear in youngsters."

High-Tensioned Mother.
The psychologist calls our attention to the "little terror" in the home, whose mother has been warned he has a nervous temperament and must not be overstimulated. She follows expert advice to the letter—makes him rest before going to bed, forbids him exciting radio programs, etc. But Sonny continues to grind his teeth, toss in bed, to "raise Cain" in general during the day hours. Miss Sargent asks us to watch his mother in action:

"With studied quiet she asks him to stop banging on the table while she is telephoning, then in a voice tense with annoyance tells the grocer what she thinks of the peas he sent yesterday. She arranges a simple routine for her son but herself rushes from one task to the next, creating an atmosphere of crackling electricity wherever she moves."

Mother, Daughter Ego-centric.
Dorothy's another example. Miss Sargent points out the poor child simply can't or won't make friends and it worries mother. Yet mother confesses:

"I never have liked many people . . . When I'm with a group, I always wish to get back home . . . I don't miss people . . . I have my family."

Miss Sargent's theory is that if mother is to find out what's wrong with Dorothy, she must search her own character. "Mother must determine why her life has become so ego-centric that she is content to do without friendly contacts that are a vital part of the life of the average human being."

The article clears up a number of points which must puzzle plenty of parents. Its theme song is, before you try to guide your child, you must be able to govern yourself. You must meet your own problems and find a solution or you simply can't map out the program that will benefit your offspring.

The boys proved themselves very fast in conquering the tall Prescott team. This speed combined with a determined will to win enabled the locals to clinch the game in the last quarter after finding themselves on the short end of the score at half time.

This Friday the locals play the Whittemore boys and girls here and some more exciting games are expected as the Whittemore boys defeated Prescott by about the same margin as did Alabaster. The girls likewise look for a very close game. The boys will be seeking their third consecutive win this year, while the girls are anxious to get back in their winning stride.

School reconvened Thursday, January 2, after a week's vacation for the Christmas holidays.

The operetta, "At Home With Santa Claus," given by the pupils of the Alabaster school at their Christmas program, was much enjoyed by everyone present. The carols and specialties between acts were likewise much enjoyed. The program was under the direction of Miss Clara Bolen. Mrs. Grace Mielock acted as accompanist.

Mrs. James Rescoe is visiting her daughter in Pontiac this week.

The local high school basketball teams divided their games with Prescott here December 20. The girls lost, 21-19, while the boys won, 22-14. The girls' game was very hard fought. Each one of the girls played a fine game and the teams were very evenly matched as the score would indicate.

The boys proved themselves very fast in conquering the tall Prescott team. This speed combined with a determined will to win enabled the locals to clinch the game in the last quarter after finding themselves on the short end of the score at half time.

This Friday the locals play the Whittemore boys and girls here and some more exciting games are expected as the Whittemore boys defeated Prescott by about the same margin as did Alabaster. The girls likewise look for a very close game. The boys will be seeking their third consecutive win this year, while the girls are anxious to get back in their winning stride.

DON'T COUGH TONIGHT

Most night coughing is due to simple throat irritation. For this kind of cough you need the soothing, penetrating, relieving action of a real throat medicine—Thoxine.

In 15 minutes and with only one swallow, it will break up that harsh, irritating cough—help loosen phlegm and congestion. Also acts from within to check throat cold. Before you know it you'll be relieved—ready to sleep like a top.

If Thoxine fails you tonight, get your money back tomorrow. Pure, safe even for children. 35c, 60c, $1.00 bottles. McDonald Pharmacy, East Tawas.

RE-ADVERTISEMENT

(Revised January 2, 1936)
For Construction of Distribution Mains and Storage Tank
Tawas City, Michigan
P.W.A. Docket Michigan 8264

Sealed proposals for the construction of distribution mains and an elevated steel storage tank in the City of Tawas City, Michigan, will again be received by the City of Tawas City until 7:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, January 24, 1936.

Proposals shall be addressed to the City Clerk, Tawas City, Michigan, and endorsed "Proposal For Waterworks Construction - Tawas City, Michigan."

Separate contracts are to be awarded for the construction of the distribution system and the elevated steel storage tank, designated Number 2 and Number 3 respectively. Each proposal for the distribution system shall be accompanied by a certified check or U. S. Government standard form of bidder's bond for Two Thousand ($2,000.00) Dollars and for the elevated steel storage tank a similar type of check or bond for Four Hundred ($400.00) Dollars. Checks or bonds shall be drawn payable to the City of Tawas City, Michigan, as security for acceptance of the contract and as explained in the instructions to bidders.

Contract Number 2 will include a distribution system consisting of approximately 31,000 linear feet of 2-inch to 8-inch mains, 35 hydrants, 56 valves, and miscellaneous items.

Contract Number 3 will include a 50,000 gallon elevated steel storage tank with appurtenances.

This is a non-federal P.W.A. project to be financed by funds from a loan and grant to be obtained from the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works and shall be subject to all P.W.A. regulations and no contract will be awarded until all bids have been examined and passed upon by the State Director of the P.W.A., all in accordance with such regulations and requirements. The award of the contract shall be conditioned upon funds being made available for such construction and the City of Tawas City shall have the right, should it be deemed necessary, to hold the two low bids for a period of 60 days from the date of opening thereof prior to rejection or award. Certified checks or bonds of all but the two low bidders may be returned immediately.

The City of Tawas City reserves the right to waive any informality in any bid, to reject any or all bids, or accept any bid which is considered most favorable to the City.

Attention is called to the fact that not less than minimum wage rates specified must be paid on this project.

Proposal forms, plans, specifications, and all necessary bidding regulations prepared in book form may be secured at the office of The Francis Engineering Company, 303-304 Eddy Building, Saginaw, Michigan, Consulting Engineers for the City, upon application accompanied by a postal money order for Twelve ($12.00) Dollars made payable to The Francis Engineering Company, none of which will be returned. Bidders who previously obtained plans and specifications will be furnished revised sets gratis.

Even after this, Garth had to bear the brunt of the heavy work. Much of the time the others were forced to stop off, to get the camp out of their knees or rest their arms. And when they paddled, their unskillful stroke kept Garth twisting his own stroke to keep the canoe from being swerved from side to side like a ship with the jays.

Had work been the only consideration, he would as soon have done it all. There were, however, reasons for more speed than he could make alone with the heavily loaded skin-covered craft. The summer was now far along. The days were rapidly shortening, the nights becoming colder and darker. Delay would mean a serious chance of being caught in early autumn blizzards. Even Lillith Ramill might not be able to survive an all-day drive of sleet. Such a storm would undoubtedly kill her father and, not improbably, Huxby also. Persistent use of the paddles would continue the toughening of the three chechacos. It would also quicken the speed of the canoe as they acquired skill from practice.

He himself kept to his stroke like the born voyager he was, dipping his paddle for hour after hour. His steady pull never varied except when, at long intervals, he shifted the paddle over to the other side. He stopped that clocklike stroke only when landings had to be made for food or sleep.

On the third day Lillith attempted to keep stroke with him. She paddled until so exhausted that she broke down and wept. After that Huxby quit less often, though he never came so near to overturning himself.

They had twice camped on muskeg. The third afternoon brought them to broken ridges where the stream dashed through a gorge. So far as could be seen, the rapids looked easy to shoot. But Garth said it was a portage.

He slung a pack from his tump-line and took the canoe on his shoulders. The total load was a full two hundred and fifty pounds. At sight of it, the others took on all the rest of the meat and equipment. For miles Garth led them up and down rocky slopes, through brush and bogs. Twice they skirted sheer falls that showed why he had taken to land.

At last, below the lower fall, he launched the canoe in the eddy of a deep pool. The others sank down on the bank, outspent. He built a fire and boiled tea for them. They expected to camp overnight. He ordered them back into the canoe.

"Can't chance waiting here. May be too foggy to see tomorrow," he explained. "Sit flat in the bottom, and keep your paddles inboard."

They understood when a few strokes of his paddle brought the canoe to the foot of the pool. For a long two miles they crouched low in the bottom while the frail craft glanced down the foaming, swirling torrent of white water. Garth smiled at their cowering backs. He had often shot worse rapids, and he had been down these once before. Skillfully as an Athabaskan Indian, he drove the canoe clear of dangerous whirlpools and dodged past rocks with deft twists of his paddle.

At the foot of the rapids, he headed in alongside a bit of gravelly beach and helped Mr. Ramill and Lillith ashore. When he remarked that there was gold in the gravel, Huxby nearly upset the canoe in his haste to get out and look.

"Gold! Why didn't we bring the gold pan?"

Garth laughed and stretched out on the dry grass above the gravel. "Gallant gentleman, your lady is building the fire."

"Don't mind him, Vivian," Lillith chimed in on the banter. "You can use the cup for panning. I need only the pot to boil Alan's tea."

Huxby glanced sidelong at Garth and hastened to help the girl. Her father had flattened out beside Garth. With a yawn, Garth stretched up his arms and let them fall. The left one came down across the millionaire's body. The back of the hand felt a lump under the leather coat. Huxby had not again gained possession of the pistol.

Nothing would have been easier than to have pulled out the weapon and flung it into the stream. The impulse to do so passed as quickly as it flashed into Garth's mind. He was not the kind of sportsman who shoots lions from a boma, or tigers from the backs of elephants. There is far more sport stalking a beast that has a chance to kill the stalker.

The chechacos had now experienced the different phases of canoeing—days of paddling through muskeg, a portage, and the running of rapids. But all proved to be no more than a mild sample of the difficulties and hardships that followed. In the next two weeks three more rapids had to be shot and two very hard portages made. Between times, the canoe was paddled interminably through meandering channels that twisted and looped and split off in blind leads.

Down in the lower country, the pests of black gnats, mosquitoes and stinging flies became worse. At the same time the flask of grease and pitch dope began to give out. Most of the camps were on wet ground. For days the party were drenched by a steady drizzle, varied only by downpours that kept Lillith and her father bailing the canoe.

Several times fog on the water compelled Garth to put ashore. Without sight, even his training could not enable him to follow the right channel. He was not an Indian. But between the forced halts, he put in still longer hours of paddling.

Matters were coming to a pinch. After the first wetting by the rain, what remained of the meat spoiled. It became so flyblown and tainted that Lillith threw it away before Garth could prevent the wastage. He decided to give them all another lesson.

In the fast that followed, Mr. Ramill was the first to fall. Huxby came next; Lillith last of the three. By the third day they had given up all paddling. On the fourth, they lay slumped in the bottom of the canoe. Garth only tightened his belt again and dipped his paddle in his strong, steady, seemingly tireless stroke.

Whenever he found himself nearing his limit, he headed ashore, boiled tea, and then put off again. The fifth day began to draw on the last reserve of his wiry endurance. Towards noon he made the boggy shore, almost outspent. He dragged out the wolfskin knapsack anchor, with its load of platinum alloy. The girl and the two men lay in a stupor of starvation. He himself was so tired that he could not have lifted even Lillith ashore.

As he rested on the west sedges he recalled the place as one of his former camp sites. A spruce-covered ridge of higher ground here thrust out into the muskeg. The first remembrance brought another. The second gave him strength to pull his rifle from the canoe and climb aslant the ridge end. There was a berry patch on the east slope. The fruit would be better than nothing. He hoped, however, for something more.

Circling to get the wind in his face, he crept through the spruce thickets until he could peer out on the open ground of the berry patch. Luck was with him. The old black bear had gone off and left her cub. He rested the rifle barrel on a spruce branch to get a sure aim.

"Out of the Muskegs; but a Long Way From Out of This D—d North!"

That was the end of famine. Gorged upon the fat, tender meat of the bear cub, even Mr. Ramill rapidly regained strength. He was still rather weak, however, when they came to the last portage.

The approach to solid ground was across a narrow belt of muskeg. Near the far side of the swamp, the millionaire failed to jump squarely upon a tussock of niggerhead grass. He slipped and plunged headfirst into a pool.

Huxby was following close behind, alert for every move of his partner. He sprang to grasp the feet of the sinking man. A heave dragged him out, slimed and spluttering. Huxby worked over him, scraping off mud, until Lillith hastened back to help assist her father across the rest of the quagmire. Once on firm ground, the millionaire joked about his mishap.

"Haven't had a bath since the last rain," he said. "This one is higher class—equal to the mud baths at Hot Springs. How about my pack Lillith?" She looked in his foxskin bag. "Everything there, Dad—with some mud added."

Garth had been too far ahead, with his heavy pack and canoe, to see or hear the accident. Mr. Ramill joked again about his extra bath when they took to the canoe at the far side of the portage. But all the time until they reached the evening camp and he started to wash the mud from the leather coat, he did not notice that the pistol was missing.

At the announcement of the loss,

Huxby met Garth's gaze with a stare of cold hostility. Garth walked up to him, empty-handed.

"If you've done what I think you have," he said, "I call you for a showdown."

The engineer's lips tightened in an ironical smile. He put up his hands. Not to be fooled by the seeming bluff, Garth went over Huxby's tattered clothes, from coat collar to moccasins. The pistol was nowhere on the engineer.

"This is one time I'm due to apologize," Garth admitted.

"I accept no apology from you," Huxby replied.

Lillith looked from one to the other, her own lips tightening.

Mr. Ramill good-humoredly interposed, as he hung the washed leather coat before the fire: "Postpone your fight, boys. We're still in the muskegs. I'll build a cockpit for you when we get out."

That won a chuckle from Garth. Huxby smiled with his lips—not with his eyes. As Lillith looked from Garth to him, her eyes narrowed and her lips tightened.

CHAPTER VII

The Gaffed Wolf.

Mr. Ramill's good-humor over his fall into the muskeg pool had not been forced. It was based upon his feeling of physical well-being.

Instead of having been broken down by the hard toil and exposure of the trip and that severe lesson in the meaning of famine, he had come through it all in even better shape than before the start from the lost valley. The days of starvation had completed Nature's raid upon the degenerate fats and poisons of his once obese body.

There had followed the feasts of tender bear-cub meat. He was again putting on weight, but it was hard muscle. The healthy blood flooded his brain with a comfortable glow that was not to be dampened by any amount of toil or discomforts.

He was paddling as vigorously if not as skillfully as his daughter, when, mid-morning of the twenty-fourth day from the valley, the canoe neared a wooded point that rose well above the swamps. Garth called out from the stern of the canoe:

"If you want a surprise, friends, shut your eyes while we take ten strokes."

He knew that Huxby would keep on staring ahead. But he guessed right about Lillith and her father. At the end of the tenth stroke, the girl flung up her paddle and uttered a shriek of joyous amazement:

"The river! The river!"

Close upon the cry came the deep-lunged shout of her father: "By the Almighty, you've done it, Garth! We're out."

Huxby continued to stare fixedly ahead at the mighty flood of the Mackenzie. He was lost to speak: "Out of the muskegs; but a long way from out of this d—d North!"

"Long by canoe or even by steamer," Garth agreed. "Not so far, though, by air passage. We can make the emergency supply post by two or three hours' paddling downstream."

"What of it? That fellow Tobin told us planes never stop there, unless foul weather runs them short of gas."

Garth met the suddenly anxious looks of Lillith and her father with a smile.

"All pilots have orders to sight non-stop posts in passing. Tobin has a distress signal. There'll be a plane coming south from the Arctic coast within three days—probably tomorrow. You'll be lying in the lap of luxury at Edmonton within a week or ten days."

The millionaire felt at the grease-and-pitch mat of his month-old beard. He chuckled. "A bath and a barber! Hand over that last cigar, Garth. Here's where I celebrate."

He opened the gold-mounted case bit off the tip of the sole surviving Havana, and snapped his patent lighter. It failed to flair. He tossed it over into the water, and turned to Garth, with an impatient command: "Give me a light."

"Enough to light a cigar. Pass them over."

Instead of taking out his waterproof match case, Garth took up his paddle. "The rule is, never burn your last match until you have to. You've thrown away that little flint and steel. The fire-drill is all right in dry weather but hard to use in wet."

Huxby dipped his own paddle. "Come on, Mr. Ramill. By his own account, three hours more will rid us of him and his insolence."

"Wait," said Lillith. She pointed to the bank where the pleasant green of young spruces showed among the weathered white trunks of fire-killed birch trees. "If we have so much time, we'll land there and clean up."

"But—with the post so near, my dear Lillith!" Huxby protested. "That fellow Tobin had any amount of soap." "All the more reason, I'll not have even a common navy see me in this condition. The rags can't be helped. But the dirt!"—Out burst her suppressed loathing for all the grease and grime that smirched herself and the men. "Mud! slime! rancid fat! spoiled meat! Alan Garth, I know that I have to go in dressed like a squaw. But this—this filth!"

He surged the canoe around shoreward with a powerful sweep of his paddle.

"Not necessary, Miss Ramill. A scouring with hardwood ashes and sand will do the work of soap. We can go in sweet."

They landed where an ice jam of some spring break-up had gouged through the muskeg mud at the end of the ridge and left a clear beach of glacial sand and gravel. Up over the ten-foot cut bank, Garth started a fire with one of his two remaining matches.

Even Huxby joined in gathering other piles of fallen birch branches for more fires. While they were burning, Garth beached the canoe and tilted it so that the sun would dry the soggy inside. Huxby stirred the fires, and Mr. Ramill broiled the last of the partly spoiled bear-cub meat, while Lillith tried out a cupful of the rancid fat for a final mess of mosquito dope. Garth brought the girl pitch for the mix from the nearby thicket of young spruces.

No cleaning could be done until the fires burned out. When Mr. Ramill took off the spits of cooked meat, all squatted down as usual to share the meal. Garth smiled his thanks as he took the slab of hot meat handed to him by the millionaire. The smile hardened.

A sudden change had fallen upon his three companions. He could easily guess the cause. They realized that this was the last meal they were to share as fellow voyagers with him.

The moment they stepped from the canoe onto the wharf at the emergency refueling post, their forced companionship with him in the lost valley and on all the long trip out would be at an end. Instead of a trio dependent upon their opponent for food and guidance—for life itself—they would be a trio not only independent of, but hostile to him and his interests.

That was at least true of the two men. And even Lillith betrayed in her look and manner a vivid consciousness of the impending change of relationship. As for Huxby, the cold gloating in his stare showed how he was anticipating the robbery and ruin of the man who had so far outplayed him.

Coronation of New King or Queen Is Great Event

A great thing to see in London is the crowning of a new king or queen. It does not happen often, but when it does it is an event to remember, says a writer in the Detroit News.

The actual crowning, or coronation, takes place in Westminster abbey and the archbishop of Canterbury is in charge of the ceremony. The new king sits in the famous Coronation chair, which is covered for the event with cloth-of-gold. He promises that he will govern by the laws made by the British parliament; that he will carry out a rule of justice and mercy; and that he will maintain the Protestant religion.

The Coronation chair dates back to the time of King Edward I, who ruled six and a half centuries ago. It is made of oak, but under the seat is "the Stone of Scone," which was taken away from Scotland during the reign of Edward. Before that the stone had been used during the crowning of Scottish kings.

There is a legend that the Stone of Scone was used as a "pillow" by Jacob, the Hebrew patriarch. The legend says that the stone was moved from Palestine to Ireland, and from there to Scotland before it fell into the hands of the English. There is reason to believe, however, that it was obtained from a quarry near Scone, a town in Scotland.

Underground Schools

Unlike Britain, where schools are built so as to admit as much fresh air and sunlight as possible, the Lapps burrow under the earth. Only the thatch or tiled roofs of their schools can be seen. The rest is all cellar.

Sunlight does not matter, because for at least six months of the year it is perpetually dark, while for only three months does the sun shine continuously. Fresh air in the form of cutting blasts is most unwelcome, and in winter, spring, and autumn everything is done to keep it out. The atmosphere in Lapp schools, with every crevice blocked and heating apparatus full on, is more than English lungs could bear, but the people there are used to it.

Seneca Root

Seneca root or seneca snakeroot is a plant of the milkwort family known to botanists as Polygala senega and found growing mostly in rocky woods and on eroding hillsides. It is a smooth perennial plant with a short rootstock as thick as a lead pencil and rather thick roots. The roots and rootstocks have medicinal value.

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A MacIntosh?

THIS name is, of course, of Scotch origin. Some authorities give the meaning as "son of the leader."

The Clan MacIntosh is a branch of the Clan Chattan, which includes the Macphersons and about a dozen other families. Their home in Scotland is in the Lochaber and Barenoch districts of Inverness-shire. The strength of the clan in the field is about 1,000 men.

Moy Hall, one of the most beautiful castles in Scotland, is the seat of this family or of the Clan Chattan, and is situated on the south end of Loch Moy. This splendid old structure has been the home of the chieftains of this clan for more than 500 years.

The war cry of the Clan Chattan is "Loch Moldheidh." Their badge is "Red Whortle," and their chieftain is called simply "The MacIntosh," which as above explained means "the leader."

The first of this ancient family to settle in America was John MacIntosh, who located in Dedham, Mass., before 1659. There are many descendants of John now in many parts of the country.

It is interesting to note that the MacIntoshs were among the recruits from the Scottish Highlands to come to the assistance of the state of Georgia when strengthening the colony in 1735. An appeal was made to the sturdy Scotch to come over and settle and assist in the work of colonization. One historian says, "They were not reckless adventurers or reduced immigrants, but were men of good character and were picked for their military qualities." They founded a permanent colony of their own in Georgia and called it New Inverness and to the section that was allotted to them to hold and cultivate, they gave the name of Darien. Both of these places are in MacIntosh county.

Also, valuable service was rendered to this county by these men in the Revolution, the war between the states and other national conflicts.

Among the early settlers were John Moore MacIntosh, Col. John MacIntosh and Gen. Lachlan MacIntosh. Each played heroic parts in the early life of our country and wrote the name of MacIntosh into the annals of our history with the same indelible impression of honor and integrity that has ever been its characteristic in Bonnie Scotland.

The MacIntosh plaid is in colors of red, black and yellow.

A Caltharpe?

CALTHARPE, Calthrope or Calthorp, as it is sometimes spelled, is a name that was found in England at a very early date. Ingham and Cockthrop, England, were homes of the Caltharpes.

Richard Caltharpe is the first mentioned by this name, and at a later period John Caltharpe, of Cockthrop, is recorded as being the founder of the Carmelites of Blakeney. He was interred in the old church at Cockthrop.

Sir James Caltharpe, of Suffolk, England, was knighted by Cromwell in 1656.

It was from Christopher Calthorp, of Blakeney, England, that the American family was descended. Christopher came to America on the ship Fortunance in 1622. He was a relative of Nathaniel Bacon, president of the Virginia council. In 1635 he was named a captain. He patented land in York county, Virginia, and was a man of prominence in the state, becoming a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses.

His descendants intermarried with the Howards, Clabornes and Bowens. © Public Ledger, Inc.—WNU Service.

"Dead" Gold Mines Live

With gold at a premium throughout the world, abandoned mines and "diggings," unworked for years, are being tackled with modern machinery and new methods. One of the oldest mines in existence has been reopened, says the Washington Post. It is in Wales, where 2,000 years ago it was discovered and worked by the Roman invaders of the British Isles.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

If Mark Twain had lived a few years longer he would have had to retract his assertion that everybody complains about the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it.

Something will be done about it very shortly.

The disastrous droughts in the Southwest have led scientific men to search for ways and means of doing it.

The job will take a long time, but it will vastly more than repay all the work and all the money that will be consumed in the effort.

The plan is to stretch a forest like a belt across the desert and prairie part of the United States—a forest that will supply shade and make it possible to prevent the terrific damage done by dry spells in that section of the country.

Costly in time and money as this project will be, it will more than pay for itself after the trees have a good strong growth.

The new forest will be a hundred miles wide, and extend from the Canadian line to Mexico.

For years the treeless stretches from Montana to New Mexico have been the breeding places of heat, arid gales, and destructive sand storms.

The parched soil, loosened by the heat is raised at the bidding of the wind and swept on and on like the sands of Sahara.

If you have gone through such a storm you know what it is like.

If you haven't, it would be difficult to convince you of its fury. But when a barrier of well-grown trees holds the gales in check and "ties" the soil to mother earth, the entire character of the weather will be changed and the farmer will have no more fear of the loss of his crops.

This vast enterprise cannot be carried out in a mere handful of years. The most rapidly growing tree—a cottonwood or a poplar—requires years to grow to a useful size.

It must be defended from bugs and other parasites. Many trees will die and replacements will be necessary.

But when this bulwark of living green is at last ready for its colossal job there will be a new climate in the "states which border on it, and states quite remote from the great divide will be benefited favorably by it.

I hope that these trees will be planted forest fashion, and not placed in regular monotonous tiers as they are in Germany and France and other countries in Europe.

And I hope it will be possible to plant those which will supply wood in their old age, and thus in their declining years help to compensate for their cost.

When my valued friend, Samuel G. Blythe, was a small boy, he attended a circus in which the most interesting feature was an electric light.

It wasn't a very good electric light. The carbon pencils spluttered and fizzed, showering multitudes of little white sparks on the ring below.

But the rustic population talked more about that light than they did about any other features of the show.

And well they might. There had been acrobat and equestrian and animal shows, since, probably before, the days of the Roman Coliseum. But up to a little time before Sam was awed and delighted with that exhibition there had never been a light which took its power from a wire.

That, as I said, was a long time ago. Electric engineers have been busily at work since then.

Today we not only still carry messages "by lightning" without any wires, but send music and conversation broadcast across the nation, and even force them to span the ocean.

And now comes the information that television is an accomplished fact, and that before many years a man in San Francisco can plainly see a friend in New York city while he is carrying on a conversation with him.

When I was a boy of ten I heard an old uncle of mine say to my father: "John, what would you think if I said to you that inside of thirty or forty years men would be flying through the air, like birds?"

"I should think," said my father, "that you had suddenly gone crazy. Man will never learn to fly on this world—and most of them won't ever get to heaven that way."

Today three planes pass over my house daily, on their regular route between New York and Boston.

Flight is a regular thing. Television promises us that before long we shall be able to speak with and see friends who are wandering about Europe.

All these changes have been brought about by the power of the human mind.

What will follow; neither you nor I can tell.

But we had better be careful about how we scoff at men who promise fresh wonders.

Science, on its way and in full swing, is capable of miracles which will far surpass those which we marvel at today.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

English Tavern Names Are "Inn-triguing" to Say Least

In provocative, thirst-inspiring names for her Inns, Britain offers the traveler an astonishingly rich variety. Every county has its own masterpieces. Yet where else, save in Essex, can you discover three locals, all within a short distance of each other, so quaintly christened as the "Goat and Compasses," the "Bag of Nails," and the "Sun and Whalebone"? The first two are said to be ingenious corruptions of "God encompasseth us" and the "Bacchanals," while the other probably refers to a primitive sundial, obtained by fixing a whale's jaws at a certain angle.

"Ye Silent Woman," near Melbury, Dorset, is accompanied, fittingly enough, by a sign depicting a headless female. Many a good Berkshire laugh and frothy tankard is raised at the "Who'd a' Tho't it?" on the Nine Mile Ride in Crowthorne. At Helpston, Northants, stands the "Parting Pot." While the "We Anchor in Hope" near Shooter's Hill is a name perhaps even more highly indicative to a long sojourn and conviviality.—London Tit-Bits.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers
These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Only One Income Tops Five Million

Earnings Between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000.

Washington.—America had one man whose net income was somewhere between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000 in 1934, Treasury department figures disclose. The identity of the country's wealthiest man in 1934 was a closely guarded secret, as were the names of the other 31 persons who were shown by a previous treasury report to have had incomes in excess of $1,000,000 during 1934. In its attempt to screen the richest man's identity the treasury reported only that his income was "over" $5,000,000 and it tried to cloak him further by lumping figures on his income and taxes with those of five other wealthy persons.

"Average" Net Incomes Climb.

That the richest man's taxable income was not less than $6,000,000 and not more than $9,000,000 could be discovered from the treasury's figures, however. Whether this person was the same unnamed individual who also had an income of approximately this same size in 1933 could not be learned at the treasury.

The "average" man who filed an income tax return on his 1934 income had net taxable earnings of $3,123, compared with an average of $2,963 for 1933, according to the treasury's survey of income tax returns. Incomes disclosed by the returns varied all the way from an average income of $1,899 shown on nontaxable returns of persons reporting less than $5,000 up to an average net income of $3,005,982 shown by six persons in the highest brackets, including the one richest man.

Of the 3,988,269 returns filed up to August 31, 1935, however, 2,237,426 showed net incomes so small they were not taxable. All of the federal income tax on individuals, amounting to $506,000,000, was paid by the remaining 1,750,943 persons filing returns. They paid an average tax of $126, or 4 per cent of their net income, compared with an average tax of $101, equal to 3.4 per cent of their incomes for 1933.

SETS WORLD RECORD

Walter Mercurio, Cleveland's leading bowler and captain of the Waldorf Lagers, former national match game champions, was officially notified by the American Bowling congress that his last season's average of 238 is recognized as a new world's record.

Mercurio, who has been one of the nation's outstanding bowlers for 15 years, has also set the outstanding mark in the history of the sport by bowling 12 perfect (300) games. This feat has never been equaled in official competition.

Of the 3,988,269 returns filed up to August 31, 1935, however, 2,237,426 showed net incomes so small they were not taxable. All of the federal income tax on individuals, amounting to $506,000,000, was paid by the remaining 1,750,943 persons filing returns. They paid an average tax of $126, or 4 per cent of their net income, compared with an average tax of $101, equal to 3.4 per cent of their incomes for 1933.

Tax Soars to 57.4 Per Cent.

The remaining 12 millionaires were scattered over five brackets. Four had incomes between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, six had incomes between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, one had an income between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, and one had an income in excess of $5,000,000.

To conceal the identity of the two men at the top of the income scale the treasury lumped figures on their incomes and taxes with those for the four persons having incomes between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. These six incomes combined totaled $18,035,892, but, since the other five incomes included in this total could not amount to more than $12,000,000 nor less than $9,000,000, the total disclosed that the largest income of them all was somewhere between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000.

THE SPIRIT OF UNCERTAINTY

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A spirit of uncertainty is abroad in the land. An early manifestation of this attitude was the converting of stock securities into government bonds, Liquidity was the universal cry. People began to lose confidence in banks, to withdraw their deposits and hoard them in strong boxes. In the business world credit was difficult to procure and loans were made by banks only on the most liquid form of collateral. During the past eighteen months a remarkable change has taken place. Confidence has been restored in the banks and security values have greatly increased. This clearly indicates that we are gradually emerging into the light of better days.

However, the spirit of uncertainty has not entirely disappeared. It still stalks about like a haunting ghost, disturbing the peace and confidence of many who have devoted the larger part of their lives in diligent economic service. The man past forty-five or fifty years of age is not always sure of holding his job today. Young men are displacing older men in business and the latter having been "let out," find it almost impossible to obtain another job. The so-called "retiring age" is also gradually being lowered from seventy to sixty-five years, and in some cases, particularly in the professions, to sixty years. Just at the time when experience enables a man to render his most efficient service, he is placed on the shelf. It is not surprising that this element of uncertainty has caused either a nervous breakdown or has given rise to a sordid form of pessimism with revolutionary dangers.

Employment insurance, old age pensions, and other solutions of the problem of uncertainty have been proposed. But all of these will ultimately fail, for they are powerless to restore confidence in one's self. The feeling of certainty is the result of confidence. When confidence in that individual security which guarantees to every person the inalienable rights of active, useful citizenship is destroyed, we again face the danger of revolution.

Now that the feeling of security in the banks and in many economic values has been restored, the next step necessary is to restore to every person a sense of confidence and security in himself.

There is innate ability the competitive economic world has never discovered. The financial and economic problems arising from the depression are being solved gradually, but no serious efforts have thus far been made to solve the "human problem." Without the solution of this human problem, there can be no complete or permanent "recovery."

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

The clappboards for this new house in old-time architecture suit it well as they are made to simulate clappboards of the same period.

IT IS Interesting to note the return to old-time effects in home building materials. Craftsmanship is accentuated. No longer is it the very essence of the times to have machine improvements apparent in such things as the wood of a house. Rather is it the new idea to have these mechanical perfections quelled. This does not mean that hand-work is actually supplanting machinery in developing the materials, but that the effects of hand work are being introduced through power machines.

Two of these instances are found in hand-hewn beams, and hand-made clappboards, which are all the products of machinery. They are synthetic hand-hewn beams, and hand-made clappboards. Irregularities are stressed, not smoothness and geometric precision. The slight discrepancies, and the marks of tools, that dull the monotony of absolute smoothness, are delighted in, and not duplication of sizes and exactness of finishes. It is the artistry of beauty to accent individuality and this is not attainable through duplication, but through faint differences.

Synthetic Hand-Work

These synthetic hand-hewn beams and clappboards are just the things to use in the construction of old settler types of houses, replicas of Cape Cod farm houses and early dwellings of grandeur that were erected prior to the inroads of machinery so useful and necessary to meet the demands of a growing population. The reproductions of beams and clappboards are out of place in types of houses designed in later years and which mark advanced periods in building. The beams are well-adapted for ceilings in cement, stone and brick dwellings of old Dutch reproduction, and Mission styles, as well as the other types of homes already mentioned.

Many of the early settler houses had clappboards. These came later than the shingled homes, but a study of Cape Cod houses indicates that clappboards frequently were utilized with shingles. The latter were relegated to sides and backs of houses while clappboards were used for front finishes, indicating that clappboards were considered more elegant. The clappboards would be painted, while the shingles remained untouched by paint or stain but were left to get that delightful finish known as "weathered."

Parental Discipline

To discipline children requires courage, the sort of courage parents should have. The word discipline is here used in its primary significance of "to train to obedience," and does not refer especially to punishment. Training to obedience may be through praise of the good things done as well through correction and chastisement for disobedience and wrong doing. Indiscriminate praise, however, contains no element of discipline. It must be to commend good conduct, fine actions, kindnesses and courtesies, etc., for praise to be helpful. Paudits and flattery given to children, whatever they do, just because the children are yours and you have an over-weening pride in them as such, wrecks discipline. A child soon realizes he can do whatever he likes without reproof. Praise is his in any event.
