LADIES' CLUBS HOLD BANQUETS

20th Century Club, Ladies Literary Club Observe Annual Events

The Twentieth Century Club observed its annual Gentlemen's Night last Thursday evening at the club rooms with over 80 members and guests present.

The banquet was served at five beautifully appointed tables decorated in the club colors of pink and green. After group singing at the tables, Mrs. Emmelie Mark, program chairman, presented the following program:

Welcome—Mrs. May Campbell, club president.

Response—Rev. F. S. Metcalf.

Piano Solo—Mrs. Lois Giddings.

Readings—Mrs. Grace Mark.

Piano Solo—Miss Helmie Huhtala.

Group of Songs—Mrs. Nyda Leslie.

Two Musical Numbers by the High School Little German Band.

The banquet and social hour were greatly enjoyed by both members and visitors.

The committees in charge of the banquet and program received a great deal of praise from everyone present for their efforts in making Gentlemen's Night a success.

The fifty-first anniversary banquet of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the Holland Hotel Wednesday evening, January 22. Members and guests numbering eighty were present. The tables were arranged in a U-shape and were lovely with pale tapers and bowls of pink roses.

After the serving of a delicious dinner the following program was presented, with the president, Mrs. F. E. Kunze, acting as toastmistress:

Welcome by the President; Response—Rev. C. E. Edinger; Minutes of the Last Anniversary—Mrs. S. Goupil; "Oh, Susannah," "Santa Lucia"—Four Clarinets; The Pine Tree (Mary Turner Salton), Down in the Forest (Landon Ronald), Cuckoo Clock (Victor Young)—Mrs. F. E. Kunze; Capricante (Wachs), Lisztonia (Grooms)—Piano Solos by Mrs. J. R. Edwards; One Day I Gathered Roses (Herbert Wyn Jones), You'd Better Ask Me (Samuel Lover)—Rev. Edinger; Talk, The Position of the Schools in the Community—C. J. Creaser; America, the Beautiful—Audience.

Pat, having blistered his fingers in trying on a new pair of boots, explained, "I shall never get them on at all until I wear them for a day or two."

Everyone has been busy shoveling snow the last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McIvor and two friends of Flint spent the week end with relatives here.

Silas Thornton was at Tawas City on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Matt. Jordan and son, Pat, were at Bay City Saturday. They report that their daughter and sister, Kathryn, who underwent an operation recently, is getting along nicely.

Dr. Gladys J. Kleinschmidt of West Branch and County Nurse Ethel Hoffa of Tawas City vaccinated the school children here last week.

A number from here attended the banquet at Turner Wednesday evening.

Jos. and A. B. Schneider were at Turner Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Hull of Flint spent Sunday at the home of her parents here.

Frank Schneider was a business caller at Tawas City Tuesday.

Gray Duck Is Attractive

Although inconspicuous from a distance, the gadwall, or gray duck is attractive at close range. It is found in both the Old world and North America where it is most numerous in the Great Plains area.

A series of short talks by college and high school students will be given over W.J.R. Sunday at 12:45. The topic will be, "Youth Looks at the World." Dr. Howard McClusky of the University of Michigan will preside.

The report cards will be given out Wednesday as the present week closes the first semester of the school year. The cards will contain the marks obtained on the semester's examinations and also the final mark for the first half of the year.

Miss Worden reports that the yearly institute for the teachers of the county will be held in the high school assembly room Friday, February 7th.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

TAWAS BAY WATER FRONT

Edward F. Loud of Oscoda has placed an order with the Tawas Bay Boat Works for a 16-foot outboard runabout. The boat will be delivered May 1. It will be used on Van Ettan lake.

At Alpena snow is being removed from the skating rink on Thunder bay with the city's light truck and snow plow. Only a few minutes are required for the job. Perhaps some such arrangement could be made for Tawas bay.

Following the ice break-up on the bay, many fine catches of perch were made.

Fourteen have registered in the sailing class at the Community college.

Will Celebrate Golden Wedding Sunday, Jan. 26

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ferguson will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, January 26th. Relatives from Detroit, Sault Ste. Marie, Saginaw, and several points in Canada are expected to come for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson were married in Chelsea, Ontario, on January 26, 1886. They moved to East Tawas in 1887, coming to Tawas City in 1904, where Mr. Ferguson entered the grocery and meat business.

Their family of three children, George Ferguson, Mrs. R. W. Tuttle and Douglas Ferguson, and two grandchildren make their home in Tawas City. The Fergusons will hold open house Sunday afternoon after three o'clock for their friends. A full account will be given next week.

Young People Conference Will Be Held February 1

An Iosco county young people's conference on religious education will be held at the M. E. church, East Tawas, Saturday, February 1. This is an all day session and a good program from registration at 9:30 until the close of the religious drama in the evening is promised. A pot luck lunch at noon is planned and the banquet will take place at 5:30.

Vital and interesting questions will be discussed. Miss Ione Catton, superintendent of religious education in Michigan, will be at the conference all day to give some inspiring talks. Music will be provided at intervals by individuals or groups from Whittemore, Oscoda, Tawas City and East Tawas. Recreation in the afternoon will consist of skating and basketball games. Young people and all adults interested in young people are invited to attend.

SHERMAN

Four-H Club Work To Be On Community Club Basis

Four-H club work in Iosco county during the spring and summer of 1936 will be organized on the community club basis.

The available projects for the coming spring and summer are: Sheep, colt, dairy, beef, pig, corn, potato, garden, canning, food study, and forestry. Any boy or girl of club age, ten to twenty years inclusive, who is interested in one of these projects should get in touch with the county agricultural agent or Mr. Rhodes, district club agent, Tawas City.

HORSES IN IOSCO COUNTY WILL BE TREATED FOR BOTS

Late last fall a horse bot and intestinal parasite control campaign was started in Iosco county in cooperation with the Michigan State college. To date horse owners have signed the agreement to have 350 horses treated at a cost of 50c per head. This number is but a small percentage of the horses in Iosco county. Horse owners who were unable to attend the meetings and desire to have their horses treated on the community plan write or call the county agricultural agent, Wilton Finley, Tawas City, at the court house by January 30.

The 1936 crop of bot flies are in the horse's stomach as bots sapping away the vitality of the animals and along with the intestinal round worms are the cause of 90% of horse colic. This treatment eliminates bots and round worms.

Horse owners having already enrolled will be informed when the veterinary will call at their farm.

Will Continue Federal Bang Test Until Further Notice

The abortion testing will continue under the Federal plan until further notice. To date many farmers in Burleigh, Sherman, Reno, Tawas and Plainfield townships have taken advantage of the free test and the indemnity plan similar to the T.B. testing.

In some communities work has been slow. If you still care to make application or desire more information write or call the county agricultural agent. Do not use the original application blanks sent to you some time ago. The new official blanks which Dr. Rich requests that you use can be had at this office.

After sending in the application blank you will receive an agreement to sign. The restrictions in this agreement are only for the purpose of helping you maintain a clean herd. This disease causes much breeding, calving and udder trouble and when it is transmitted to humans causes undulant fever.

Talk it over with your neighbor and make application at once. This is the last notice of this opportunity.

FRED REMPERT ADDS SERVICE STATION TO GARAGE BUSINESS

Fred Rempert has leased the sales room and service station formerly occupied by the Huron Auto & Supply company and will operate this business in connection with his garage. He will carry a full line of tires, auto accessories, oil and gasoline. Mr. Rempert will take possession immediately.

Late News Events

WEST BRANCH, Jan. 24—Judge Fred W. George of Port Huron upheld the contention that mineral rights cannot be reserved by the state on tax lands in the case of Nick Krench vs. Fortney Oil company in Ogemaw county. If Judge George's decision is sustained by the supreme court millions of dollars will be involved in the various oil fields of Michigan. Krench was the owner of the tax title of land on which a 10,000 barrel gusher had been drilled. The oil company purchased the oil rights from the state.

LANSING, Jan. 24—Michigan has ceased to be the dumping ground for poor eggs shipped here from other states, Commissioner of Agriculture James F. Thompson announced today. The Indiana and Ohio borders are being closely watched by department field men. The egg regulations call for grading as to quality only. There are four grades, "Fancy" and Grades "A," "B" and "C."

EAST TAWAS

The East Tawas high school basketballers will play St. Anne at Alpena Friday night, January 24. This will be the first meeting of these teams this season. The local team has been victorious in all but two of its games during the season.

Hauptmann Reprived by Governor Hoffman—Plan Devised to Avoid New AAA Legislation— Bonus Bill Favored in Senate.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

LESS than thirty hours from the time when he was to die in the electric chair, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnaper and slayer of the Lindbergh baby, was given a thirty-day reprieve by Governor Hoffman of New Jersey. This means he will have at least sixty more days to live, because he will have to be re-sentenced. The governor did not give specific reasons for his action. He did say: "A reprieve is an act of executive clemency rather than judicial clemency. I am not required to give a reason, but I might say that there are grave doubts in this case, not only in my mind, but in the minds also of our citizens."

There will be only the one reprieve, "unless the evidence should warrant" another, the governor said. If Hauptmann is to be finally saved it must be through the presentation of sufficient new evidence to warrant Justice Trenchard granting a request for a new trial, or for a new plea for clemency to the state pardons court.

The stay came after the United States Supreme court at Washington refused to admit attorneys to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for Hauptmann. That closed the door to all further legal action designed to delay the execution.

Various stories about the crime, some new and others old, are going the rounds and are being investigated by authorities and by the forces of the defense. They are too complicated for summary here.

LITERARY DIGEST'S Presidential straw vote has been concluded, and the final returns indicate a growing opposition to the New Deal. A total of 1,907,681 ballots was received, and of these 62.66 per cent were cast against the President's policies and acts, and 37.34 per cent were for the administration.

Thirty-six states gave majorities against to eleven still in favor of the President and his policies. Among the pro-Roosevelt states was Utah. The others were classified in the release as "southern and border" states.

Of the different sections of the country, New England cast the heaviest "No" vote, going 77.98 per cent against the administration. The Middle Atlantic states from New York to West showed 68.89 per cent of the voters against Mr. Roosevelt and his recovery schemes, while the Middle Western states in the farm belt and the Rocky Mountain states indicated a ratio approximately the same as the nation at large—3 to 2 against. The three Pacific coast states totaled 58.04 against the New Deal.

THERE will be no new legislation to continue the aims of the AAA, if the plans of the administration are adopted, for it has been found by officials that the soil conservation act of 1935 will permit the undertaking of about everything in the bill that the house and senate agriculture committees were drawing up.

In a White House conference the new program was agreed upon by President Roosevelt, Senator J. T. Robinson, majority leader; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Attorney General Cummings, Chairman Ellison D. Smith of the senate agriculture committee, Chairman Marvin Jones of the house agriculture committee, Speaker Joseph W. Byrnes, Senator John H. Bankhead (Dem., Ala.), AAA Administrator Davis, and M. G. White of the AAA.

The administration will work out a system of granting farm subsidies to farmers restricting acreage under authority of the soil conservation act of 1935. In connection with the program the administration will make provision for obligations incurred under the AAA.

In a radio address Herbert Hoover offered the country his own plan for bringing recovery to the farmer. Asserting that a new road must be built by which agriculture can "get back onto the solid ground from the quicksand of the New Deal," Mr. Hoover outlined three general or group proposals for farm recovery.

They were: 1. The restoration of the home market to American farmers. 2. The retirement of "thin" and sub-marginal acres, along with a slowing up of reclamation of projects. 3. Encouragement of co-operative marketing and the further improvement of farm credit machinery.

SEVENTEEN persons met a tragic fate in the worst airplane accident that the United States has had. A big transport plane of the American Airlines, en route from New York to Los Angeles, crashed in a swamp near the village of Goodwin, Ark., and its 14 passengers, two pilots and stewardess were killed. With great difficulty the bodies of the victims were brought out of the marsh where their bodies were found scattered among fragments of the shattered plane. Officials of the government and of the airline company immediately started an investigation, but the cause of the disaster could not easily be determined.

ALL the air lines of the country have united in the formation of the Air Transport Association of America, whose president and "czar" is Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, chief of staff of the army air service during the World War. Fowler W. Barker, war pilot and former secretary of the transport branch of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Co-ordination of schedules, credits, advertising, engineering data, and purchasing power among the various operators prompted the organization of the new association which is intended to be an "ideal trade association." Its functions will be similar to those of the North Atlantic steamship conference and Colonel Gorrell will have powers approximating those of Will Hays of the movies and Judge Landis of baseball.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON'S compromise bonus measure, providing for payment in baby bonds redeemable on demand, was given the right of way in the senate and its passage seemed certain after a brief and lively debate. The veterans' organizations whose bill had been passed by the house accepted the compromise, so it evidently was on its way to the White House for action by the President.

Sen. Pat Harrison

What Mr. Roosevelt would do was not known, reports that he would veto the bill being offset by rumors that he would approve it despite the disapproval of treasury officials.

On the eve of action by the senate every member of that body received from the Economy League a letter written by its president, Henry H. Curran, warning that the bonus legislation would "destroy any chance for confidence in the finances of our government that is necessary if we are ever to regain national prosperity."

The letter said that the national budget is unbalanced, national credit slipping, taxes increasing, purchasing power of the dollar declining and inflation drawing near.

"But that is not all," Curran declared; "the veterans' organizations, as soon as the prepayment of the bonus is authorized by you—if it is—are going after you for service pensions, that is to say, for money pensions to veterans just because they are veterans, even though they were never touched by the war."

"And this means more billions handed out to a special class at the unjust expense of all the rest of our people who are trying, in the face of heavy taxes and financial uncertainty, to struggle up out of five years of hard times."

HAPPY days are nearing for the indigent, for the Social Security board is beginning to operate. It has announced the appointment of five persons who will administer the social security act.

Murray W. Latimer of Mississippi was appointed director of the bureau of federal old age benefits. R. Gordon Wagenet of Berkeley, Calif., was appointed director of the bureau of unemployment compensation. Miss Jane M. Hoey of New York was made director of the public assistance bureau of the social security board. Louis Resnick of New York was named director of the informational service bureau.

The board also announced the appointment of Robert E. Huse of Cambridge, Mass., as assistant.

HAVING spent about $22,000,000 in connection with the steamship Leviathan, the government will now spend approximately $9,000,000 more on the building of a new vessel to take the place of the great ship that was taken from Germany in wartime. Secretary of Commerce Roper announced the acceptance of a contract submitted by the United States Lines for construction of a sister ship to the Washington and Manhattan.

The contract was executed by the shipping line with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock corporation for $11,900,000 for the new ship. Under the new agreement the government may lend up to 75 per cent of $9,000,000 of the cost of the vessel.

MRS. THOMAS D. SCHALL has filed nomination papers as candidate for the senate seat made vacant by the death of her husband, the late senator from Minnesota. Mrs. Schall says if elected she will carry on "the same vigorous fight" against the New Deal as was waged by her husband.

Rains in Ethiopia Stop the Italian Operations

ETHIOPIA'S "little" rainy season has come, and the advances of the invading Italians are therefore stopped effectually for several weeks at least. The downpours are heavy and continuous, roads are being destroyed, especially in the northern part of the country, and landslides in the mountains are frequent. Foreign observers were of the opinion that all fighting must cease, even in the south where the rains are not so heavy. The "big" rainy season is due to begin in May.

Dispatches received in Rome said 50,000 native troops under General Granziani and 60,000 Ethiopians commanded by Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, engaged in a desperate battle along the entire southern front, and that the Ethiopians, who had been converging on the Italian army at Dolo, were in "full retreat."

The Ethiopian government announced that a Red Cross unit headed by Maj. Gerald Burgoyne of England had been bombed and destroyed by Italian planes at Walidia, 90 miles north of Dessye, the communique said seven women and seven old men were killed and half the town burned, and added that the unit was plainly marked with the Red Cross insignia.

Mussolini continued the dispatch of fresh troops to Ethiopia, despite unfavorable conditions. He postponed the meeting of the Fascist grand council from January 18 to February 1, by which time the League of Nations council, it is presumed, will have decided whether to impose an oil embargo on Italy. The league council would very much like to have the United States congress pass its neutrality legislation before the oil embargo question is settled.

Dr. Marcel Junod, International Red Cross delegate, announced at Addis Ababa that he would recommend withdrawal of all Red Cross units from Ethiopia unless Italy definitely promised not to bomb them.

FAILING in their demand for the right of full equality of naval strength for Japan with Great Britain and the United States, the Japanese delegates withdrew from the conference in London and prepared to go home. The American, British, French and Italian delegates, however, refused to let the parley collapse and constituted themselves a four-power conference. Their hope is that they may arrive at some agreement on the size of warships and on limitation of gun calibers; but any real building limitation agreement is admittedly impossible without Japan. It is the intention to invite Germany and Russia to take part in the deliberations, and later the Balkan nations may be invited to participate.

The Japanese, in withdrawing, emphasized their desire to avoid a building race. Their demand is for equality with other powers, on the ground that if the big navies were equal, none could attack another in the defender's home waters. The American argument is that equality does not mean real security, because the United States is so situated geographically, and has such possessions to defend, that it needs a navy superior to Japan's to feel secure.

SOVIET RUSSIA expects to be attacked on both flanks, and is making ready for the conflict, feeling that it can count for defense only on its own forces. The government's newspaper, Journal de Moscou, asserts that Germany and Japan have completed a military coalition or are about to do so, and that it appears Italy wishes to join that alliance.

The Soviet Union already has delivered its answer to alleged war threats with the announcement that its army—the greatest in the world—has been increased during the last year to 1,300,000 men. The bolsheviks estimate they also have a trained reserve as large as that under the czars, when 10,000,000 were called to arms.

If this expected war comes in the east it will start because of the attacks by Manchukuo on the Mongolian frontier, where there have been repeated clashes. In the west it may begin with an attempt of Germany and Poland to conquer the Ukraine.

Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese in North China, predicts that a Russo-Japanese war will begin with a Russian offensive when the soviet's second five year plan is completed, possibly this year.

Gives Two Million

HARRY L. HOPKINS, WPA administrator, has sent to state administrators a set of regulations intended to protect WPA workers from "chisel" employers and to keep up wage standards. In his letter to the state officials Mr. Hopkins said:

"I want to make perfectly clear the policy of the works progress administration relative to private employment or employment on contract jobs under the direction of other federal departments which may be offered the WPA workers. It is expected that WPA workers will accept available jobs in private employment, whether of a permanent or temporary nature, provided:

- (1) That the temporary or permanent work shall be a full-time job.
- (2) That such work shall be at a standard or going rate of wages.
- (3) That such work shall not be in conflict with established union relationships.
- (4) That workers shall be offered an opportunity to return to the WPA upon completion of temporary jobs."

CCC Boys Are Confirmed in Pasadena Church

WHILE two thousand of their fellow corpsmen looked on, 250 boys of the CCC at Pasadena, Calif., received the sacrament and were confirmed in St. Andrew's Catholic church. Bishop Cantwell was assisted in the rites by Mgr. John McCarthy, and more than a dozen priests clad in cassocks, surplices and birettas knelt in the sanctuary during the services.

THE HUNTER LIES IN WAIT FOR LIGHTFOOT

IF EVER there was an angry hunter it was the one who had followed Lightfoot, the Deer, across the Big River. When he was ordered to get off the land where Lightfoot had climbed out, he got back into his boat, but he didn't row back to the other side. Instead, he rowed down the Big River, finally landing on the same side, but on land which Lightfoot's friend did not own.

"That's where that deer will head for," he muttered.

"When that deer has become rested he'll get uneasy," thought the hunter. "He won't stay on that man's land. He'll start for the nearest woods. I'll go up there and wait for him. I'll get that deer if only to spite that fellow back there who drove me off. Had it not been for him I'd have that deer right now. He was too tired to have gone far. He's got the handsomest pair of antlers I've seen for years. I can sell that head of his for a good price."

So the hunter tied his boat to a tree and once more got out. He climbed up the bank and studied the land. Across a wide meadow he could see a brushy old pasture, and back of that, some thick woods. He grinned. "That's where that deer will head for," he muttered. "There isn't any other place for him to go. All I've got to do is to be patient and wait."

So the hunter shouldered his terrible gun and tramped across the meadow to the brush-grown pasture. There he hid among the bushes where he could peep out and watch the land of Lightfoot's friend. He was still angry because he had not been allowed to shoot Lightfoot. But at the same time he chuckled, because he thought himself very smart. Lightfoot couldn't possibly reach the shelter of the woods without giving him a shot, and he hadn't the least doubt that Lightfoot would start for the woods just as soon as he felt able to travel. So he made himself comfortable and prepared to wait the rest of that day if necessary.

Now Lightfoot's friend who had driven the hunter off had seen him row down the Big River, and he had guessed just what was in that hunter's mind. "We'll fool him," said he, chuckling to himself as he walked back toward the shed where poor Lightfoot was resting.

He did not go too near Lightfoot, paying no attention to him, but going about his work. You see, this man loved and understood the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, and he knew that there was no surer way of winning Lightfoot's confidence and trust than by appearing to take no notice of him. Lightfoot, watching him, understood. He knew that this man was a friend and would do him no harm. Little by little, the wonderful blessed feeling of safety crept over Lightfoot. No hunter could harm him there. He knew it.

WAFFLE TIME

WAFFLE time is any time with most folks, but during the cold weather waffles, hot cakes, muffins and gems are more especially enjoyed. The following recipe for the hurried housewife will be most welcome:

Quick Waffles.

Take two and three-fourths cups of pastry flour or one and one-half cups of bread flour and one-half cup of corn starch, add four teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, mix well, add three well beaten eggs and one-half cup of vegetable oil. Mix well and add one and one-half cups of milk. Beat thoroughly and bake on a hot waffle iron. Serve with maple or canned sirup.

Jiffy Griddle Cakes.

Take two and one-half cups of bread flour and one-fourth of a cup of corn starch, five and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, one and one-half teaspoons of salt, one-half cup of sugar, one beaten egg, one-half cup of vegetable oil and two cups of milk. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add the oil to the beaten egg and mix gradually with the milk, giving a good beating. Serve with butter and sirup. Less sugar may be used if desired.

Health Muffins.

Sift one cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, four teaspoons of baking powder, one cup of bran, one cup of milk, two tablespoons each of brown sugar and vegetable oil, mix well and stir in a half package of

RESPONSIBLE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I DO not think that I could drink a part
Instead of play it, making drink my art.
Nor think that I, my very soul undressed,
Could make a woman's virtue but a jest.
I do not think that I could do these things,
No matter what the recompense it brings.
And not look farther than my weekly pay,
A little farther than my ease today.

A thousand theaters I would behold,
Would see them now, and see them when I'm old,
Where youths and maidens sit in semi-dark,
On whom each word and gesture leave a mark.

If I were showing little children's eyes
To drink is clever and to sin is wise,
Then I would wish to seek some secret place,
Ashamed to look all children in the face.

I do not think that I could speak a line
To some one's child I would not speak to mine,
Nor speak to age, however gray and sere,
A line not fit for anyone to hear.

For they who play with hearts upon the stage,
Or mold the mind upon the printed page,
Cannot, whatever their excuse may be,
Escape their great responsibility.

THE STORY OF HATTIE

1—Hattie came of a long line of traveling folks.
 2—Many of her ancestors were globe trotters.
 3—They liked to think there was gypsy blood in their veins.
 4—Hattie's great-grandfather had been with Stanley in Africa and she had two grandfathers who perished on Arctic expeditions.
 5—Her father, Phineas, had flown over the South Pole in a blimp and attempted a voyage to the North Pole by submarine.
 6—Ma was quite a tourist, too. She always said she was as much at home in Paris, Omsk, Vienna or Peiping as she was in Wappingers Falls.
 7—Naturally they raised their girl to be a globe trotter. They wanted her to carry on the family tradition.
 8—Hattie was raised on a Baedeker and as a little child she knew all the Cook tours by heart.
 9—"Mother wants you to grow up and be a cosmopolite," Hattie's ma used to say. "You must see the world, penetrating the far places and exploring the far-away spots."
 10—But one day when Hattie was about seventeen she ran away and married a home-town feller.
 11—It broke her parents' hearts.
 12—He was one of those men who own a motorcycle with side-car attached!
 MORAL—It all depends on what you mean by travel.

ON HOME GARDENS

Each little boy, each little girl
 A gardener should be,
 For vegetables raised at home
 Should aid economy.
 A spade, a little land, a hoe—
 These are the things you'll need

 By planting of a seed.
 Potatoes, peas and cabbages,
 String beans and spinach, too,
 Taste better when you realize
 That 'twas for you they grew.

'Tis pleasant, yes, to plant a seed
 And know that rain and heat
 Will some day turn it into a

Head Hunting Becoming Thing of the Past in the Philippines

Still Persists in the Remote Areas, but Loses Its Appeal Elsewhere.

The biggest and busiest native market in all the Philippines is situated in Baguio. Sunday marks the high point of any week's trading. All day Friday and Saturday the mountain trails for miles around are dotted with natives coming to market, bringing their products for sale and having in mind the purchase of things they need.
 Baguio is the most beautiful and most healthful resort in the Far East, with wild mountain scenery, and cool forests of stately pines spreading out in every direction. It is the "summer capital" of the Philippines; Americans predominate the population.
 Sunday crowds at the market are estimated to number from four thousand to seven thousand. Some come in carts drawn by caraboa or bullocks; some by bus; a few in automobiles so old and broken that one wonders if they will hold together for the return trip; others on freight trucks, but the majority walks.

Let the Women Do the Work.

The women are the burden carriers and they bring to market the products of garden, field, and jungle in large baskets carried on their backs and supported by a wide leather head strap resting across their foreheads. Another type of basket is carried on top of the head.

In addition to the foodstuffs displayed in the market there are many examples of native handicraft—home woven fabrics, coarser, and not beautifully embroidered as is the pina cloth of the South; silver jewelry, wood carvings, including book ends for the tourist trade, curios, brass and metal work, and rattan and wicker baskets of many sizes, shapes, and styles.

The Dog Market.

A short distance into a ravine leading to the market is the stockyards of the Philippines, where pigs and hogs to the number of a hundred are tethered to stakes while awaiting buyers. Beyond the pig market is the spot where horse trading takes place. And beyond this, until recently when the white residents of Baguio protested against its continuance, was found the dog market.

Roast dog is a prized delicacy among Igorrotes. The protest was not based upon an fastidious objection to dog eating, but the Igorrotes stuffed the poor animals with rice while alive and then beat them to death with clubs, thus assuring tender meat. So the dog market was moved. It is now in the hills back of the principal hotel, and at dawn the howls of the tortured and suffering canines render the morning hideous.

Good roads have accomplished much toward abolishing the former popular pastime of head hunting. In the old days villages of different tribes, though only a few miles distant from each other, regarded each other as enemies. It was the old story of "hating the stranger." Good roads brought them together, they got acquainted, and became less hostile, if not friendly.

 Head hunting still persists in the remote areas of Luzon, but is almost obsolete in the mountain province. The custom originated in the desire of the surviving members of a family to provide companions for a dead chief's spirit on the mysterious journey from earth to the Igorrote heaven. The quickest way to provide good company for the departing one was to remove the heads of a few members of an adjoining tribe. This done, reprisals were in order. Thus head hunting became an honored institution.

The taking of a head or heads was the occasion of a great feast in celebration of the event, and all the men, women, and children participating in the feast were entitled to the decoration of tattooing as a distinguishing mark. It is worthy of note that three in every five adult natives at the Baguio market bear the tattooed designs on the arms, indicating participation in a head hunting feast.

Wrap-Around Makes Good Utility Frock

PATTERN 2539

Does household routine demand that you be the first downstairs in the morning? Then here's a frock that makes it possible. A jiffy wrap-around, with smart shirtwaist air, is grand for general utility wear from early morning until you've time to change. Easy to make, it slips on as smoothly as a coat, opens out flat for ironing, and no petticoat is necessary with it due to the generous overlap in front. Unequaled for comfort and slenderizing effect.

Pattern 2539 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 16 takes 3 3/4 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

 Absolutely.
 Will the lady wear it to settle an election bet?
 No. She will not wear it to settle an election bet.
 Then what will be her excuse?
 She will have no excuse. She will wear it because it is the style.
 When the lady appears on the beach in the suit, what will the police do?
 Nothing except lose their eyesight.
 Can a lady appear in a suit like that and escape arrest?
 Yes.

SPECIAL SUNDAY RATES

for Long Distance telephone calls

and

after 7 every evening

EFFECTIVE January 15, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company extends to all day Sunday the same reduced rates which have been in effect on long distance station-to-station calls after 7 p. m. each evening. The reductions apply to most calls on which the day rate for three minutes is more than 35 cents, and range from about 10 per cent on some of the shorter calls to 40 per cent or more on distant calls.

ALSO . . .

EFFECTIVE January 15, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company offers reduced rates on person-to-person calls every night after 7 p. m. and all day Sunday. They apply, in general, on long distance calls on which the day station-provided for in said mortgage, and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 21st day of March, A. D. 1936, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, I shall sell at Public Auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Tawas City (that being the place where the Circuit Court for said County of Iosco is held), the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, with six per cent interest, and all legal costs, together with an attorney's fee of fifteen dollars, as provided by law and as covenanted for therein, the premises being described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit:

All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the township of Tawas, in the County of Iosco and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: The Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section Twenty (20), Township Twenty-two (22) North, of Range Seven (7) East. Forty acres more or less according to Government survey.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Must Be Felt If responsibility doesn't weigh anything, it isn't responsibility.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

He smiled with cool irony. "Why so theatrical? Hysterics are not in your line, my dear Lillith."

That lowered her voice, but not the knife and ax. She began to edge towards him, with the blades raised ready to strike. Her voice came from her stiffened lips, low and hoarse and deathly calm:

"If you do not go, I will kill you, unless you first kill me."

The smile left his lips. His eyes narrowed. He replied no less quietly: "You are stark crazy. I'm going. It may be two or three weeks before I can get back. That should be long enough for you to starve into sanity. You'll be glad to welcome me then. Only, how about your father? Does it not sober you to realize it will be your fault if he dies?"

For answer, she took a full step nearer. The look in her eyes daunted him. He slanted sideways, caught up Garth's rifle, and ran across to the bank above the canoe. When, more slowly, she came to the top of the bank, he had the canoe launched and was heaving in the wolfskin knapsack.

He jumped aboard with the rifle and one paddle. As he backed offshore, she ran down to the water's edge and flung his engagement ring at his face. It struck his upturned forehead and glanced off. The ash-cleansed diamond flashed like a bit of blue-white lightning that was instantly quenched in the water.

The canoe swung around and went yawning out upon the mighty expanse of the Mackenzie.

CHAPTER VIII

Woodcraft.

Out of the pit of blackness, Garth's first dimly conscious thoughts were of water. He was still in swimming. . . . No, the water was only on his face. Not rain, nor poured water—something wet sopping his forehead.

He opened his eyes, blinked the daze from them, and found himself gazing up into a pair of sunken blue eyes. They were clouded and dark with misery. Yet with strange suddenness they brightened. At that he realized they were the eyes of Lillith Ramill.

"What's—happened?" he murmured. Even as his lips moved, he remembered. "Huxby—his pistol. Must have—shot me."

"Yes, Dad also." Garth sought to tense his flaccid muscles, ready to bound up. She laid a restraining hand on his forehead. "Lie still. He went—"

"What?" "Right after it. Be quiet, else you may go unconscious again. The bullet cut across the back of your head. All these two days you've lain there in that frightful stupor. I could not wake you up. I felt sure you'd die."

"Stupor—two days?" he muttered. "Concussion—brain." He made deliberate trial, and found he could move his legs and arms. "Luck—no paralysis. Soon be all right. But—your father? You said, 'father also.' Can't see why. Wolf was rabid only for my claim—not blood mad."

"Of course! The cowardly beast meant only to murder you. But when he fired again, Dad jumped up between."

"Bad?" "Not if there was a doctor. It's through the shoulder. The coward—to run off with the canoe, instead of shooting himself like a man!"

"Ran off, did he? Thought he had killed your father?" "No, he said it wasn't serious. All we needed was to take Dad in the canoe and get that man Tobin's medical kit."

"Yet he ran off without you?" "I made him go. I drove him off, the beastly sneaking coward!" Garth stared, perplexed. "You did that? Yet he wanted to take your father where he could receive treatment."

She frowned. "He thought you dead. But after I nearly fainted, I pushed against you to get up. I felt you were still alive. I was afraid you'd come to—would move. He would have—fished you. So I—drove him off."

"Leaving yourself and your father marooned here." The girl stiffened. Her mouth went hard. "Don't fancy I did it for you! It was—it was because I was not going to let him finish his sneak murder. It would have been the same if I'd gone off and let you die. You can see that. You must!"

He smiled up at her frown. "All the more sporting of you. Not half bad, I'd say."

"Oh, but it is bad—frightfully bad! No food—not a thing to give Dad all this time. No chance of getting any for either of you. And now his fever, too. No medicine for it!"

A sudden thought jerked Garth up to a sitting position. He swayed from dizziness. Then his head cleared. He was only rather weak from blood-loss and sore about the back of his head. An exploring hand found a wad of moss, tied upon his wound with a band of platted grass. He heard the girl murmur:

"I fixed Dad's the same way—ashes and the moss to hold it on. Ashes or soot—I once heard about something like that for cuts."

He pointed to the scattered ashes of the dead fires. "Be quick. Build a big blaze and throw on green wood. That southbound plane! Must signal it. Even if he's aboard, he can't keep the pilot from coming down."

Lillith Ramill's head dropped despondently. "I saw it this morning—way out across the sky. First there was the drone of the motor. Then I saw it—way off. Only, I could do nothing. Yesterday I used your last match. I wanted to boil for Dad the one pinch of tea that's left. A puff of wind blew out the flame. Now there's no hope. He took your rifle too. No fire or food or gun, or any chance of rescue!"

Garth looked around and saw her father tossing in feverish sleep under the shade of a slight brush canopy. He gave the overwrought girl a bantering smile. "What, merely a matter of fire, medicine, food, and escape? If only you were a boy scout! How about becoming a Campfire Girl? Fetch me a two-foot willow branch the size of your forefinger, a thong, one straight dry stick, and that chunk of dead birch trunk."

A little sand increased the friction of the fire-drill point at the bottom of the shallow hole he made in the block of wood. The dry birch soon began to smoke. Lillith had gathered tinder of dead inner bark. In wide-eyed wonderment, she watched the simple primitive method of fire making.

When Garth stood up beside the crackling flames of the new fire, he found himself stronger than he expected. All shock from his wound had passed during his two days' unconsciousness, and his healthy tissues had already begun to heal.

"Now we're under way," he said. "Next comes medicine. By using the ashes, you gave, our wounds sterile dressings. Your father was tuned up to the pink of condition. His wound will heal as rapidly as mine. What little fever he has means nothing. To cool it, crush in his drinking water some of the cranberries from over there along the edge of the muskeg. You might boil willow bark and add a little of the bitter decoction to the cranberry juice."

"Oh, it's good to know he's not sick. But to starve to death!" "Garth pointed to the wild fowl out in the swamp. They were beginning to flock together with the approach of autumn. "How would you like canvas-back or mallard for dinner?"

Her eyes brightened, only to cloud again. "You have no gun."

After looping some thongs to his belt, he went to stack a hollow pile of brush on a forked stub that had broken off from a fallen birch tree. Out in the water, he bobbed under and came up with his head between the forks of the float. The leaves and twigs made a blind from which he could see out without being seen.

He waded, neck deep, up the muskeg stream so slowly that the stub and branches appeared to be an ordinary bunch of driftwood. He allowed a flock of teal to swim by. They were too small to bother with.

When he stepped off over his depth, he began to tread water. By a quiver movement of his hands under the surface, he gilded the blind into the midst of a mallard flock. The trick was to grasp a duck's feet and jerk the bird under before it could squawk. He waded back to shore with five dead mallards tied to his belt.

After the meal on roast duck, he set some rabbit snares. He then showed Lillith how to make cords by splitting off strands from peeled spruce roots. While she worked at this, he collected more ducks and hung them over a smudge for smoke curing.

Next came the carving of Eskimo hooks from duck bones. With bait, a catgut leader and a spruce-root line, he began to catch Mackenzie whitefish. Lillith had never seen so beautiful a fresh-water fish, all mother-of-pearl below and frosted silver above.

The newly caught fish proved far better eating than even the best of trout. Mr. Ramill's slight fever gave him a distaste for duck meat and the rabbits that were snared. But he ate his full share and more of the delicious fish.

Besides the cranberries, Lillith gathered black currants and blueberries and mushrooms. More fish were caught than could be eaten fresh. A number were soon on the smoke rack, along with ducks and rabbits. For the present and near future, the question of food had been met. But the subarctic summer had about reached its end. Still more rapidly than before, the nights were becoming longer and blacker.

A cold sleety rainstorm drenched the camp. It brought only temporary discomfort, for Garth kept the fire alive under a slanted heap of spruce boughs. None the less, the storm spurred him to redoubled activity. He knew it to be the forerunner of the autumn blizzards that might now howl down off the snowclad Selwyns at any time.

While Mr. Ramill's slight fever remained, he said little and seemed to take everything as a matter of course. He had fully recovered from the effects of shock even before the fifth day, when the bullet wound through his upper chest began to heal. But with the passing of his feverish condition, the irritability of convalescence jabbed him out of his placid contentment.

"Why are you loafing around here, Garth?" he rasped. "Instead of wasting all this time piling up food, you could have made a canoe and run us down across to that refueling post days ago."

Garth swept his right hand edgewise out across his upturned empty left palm. "No gun—no hides. Dead birch—no bark. No hides, no bark—no canoe."

"Huh! Do you mean to say we'll have to stick here and freeze in your d-d Arctic winter?" "Growl away, sir," Garth approved. "Sounds good. It means you'll soon be in shape for rafting. As for your question, perhaps you imagine Miss Ramill and I have been heaving that down timber over the bank just for sport."

The millionaire staggered to his feet unaided for the first time since Huxby had shot him down. "A raft! How the devil can you make one if you can't make a canoe? No rope or raw-hide thongs to tie the logs together."

Garth supported him over through the spruce thicket to the drop-off of the bank. The wobbly invalid squatted on the brink and stared in surprise. Down the beach, close beside the water, his daughter sat plating a great pile of willow withes into a thick line. Before her floated a partly built raft of dead birch tree trunks. The shorter, smaller cross logs were lashed on with spruce root and platted-willow ties.

Mr. Ramill's gaze passed over the raft, to peer out across the immense lake-like expanse of the great river.

"You'll Not Have Much Longer to Insult Me."

The water was covered with whitecaps, whipped up by the chill northerly wind.

"Raft! Ugh! It's worse out there than the white water when we shot those rapids."

"There'll be plenty of free bathing for us, but no danger of drowning," Garth replied. "Only trouble, this wind would blow us upstream. We'll have to wait for a shift. The only other chance is that one of the boats may be coming out."

"Boats?" "The supply steamers of the Hudson's Bay company and other traders, taking out the season's cargoes of furs."

The millionaire grunted his relief: "Ugh—steamers! Almost good as a plane."

"If one comes along, and if we see it in time," Garth qualified. "You are rather farsighted. You might watch for smoke downriver."

"I'll do that. D—n your dithering with any raft! Ten to one, you've already let every steamer slip past. All this time with your nose rubbing those d-d logs!"

Garth went down to tell Lillith that her father was by way of being a well man. He sent her to move the camp to a small opening in the thicket, close behind the grumbler. Fuel for a bonfire had already been heaped up on the beach.

But Garth did not count strongly on sighting any steamer. The boats might have lingered at the far-away Arctic trading posts. Delay meant danger of an early blizzard. He rushed his work on the raft. When dusk came, Lillith went on watch, in place of her father. Garth relieved her at midnight. But neither of them saw any light out on the vast expanse of ghostly gleaming whitecaps.

By another sunset Garth had the raft completed to his satisfaction. He had built a superstructure that raised the footing well above the waterline. Ralia guarded against the risk of quall waves washing the still weak millionaire overboard. For sweeps, Garth lashed the paddles to poles made of spruce saplings. He rigged other saplings for mast and yardarm, ready to hoist the blanket as a sail in case of a favorable change in the wind.

"Shift or calm, we'll put off at sunrise," he announced.

Though Mr. Ramill grumbled, he ate his fill of broiled whitefish, and rolled up for the night to fall into the healthy heavy sleep of a convalescent. Lillith again took the first watch.

In the midst of his first sleep, Garth opened his eyes with the instant alert wakefulness of a hunter. The girl's hand was on his forehead.

"Yes?" he asked. "I—I'm not sure," she murmured. "The wind has gone down. . . . It looks like a star. But it's so low on the water, I thought I'd better call you."

He rolled from the bed of spruce tips and dry moss. A single glance downriver was enough. He jumped to light the prepared bundle of brush at the smudge-fire and leap with it down the bank.

As the heap of fuel on the beach burst into flame he heard the girl's gasping murmur, close behind his shoulder: "It can't be—a mistake? You're certain—certain that it's really —"

"A steamer," he replied.

"But what if—if they don't—see us? It's night."

"Darker the better, if no fog. They can't miss seeing this fire."

Assured of rescue, she sighed her relief. With that, woman-like, her feminine vanity came suddenly to life. "Oh, but to go among people like this! Such a sight!"

Garth turned to eye her in the glare of the upflaring fire. He looked at her worn moccasins and lynxskin leggings, at the crude skirt of moose-calf skin and the tattered upper part of the sports dress. He looked at her dope-smearing face, and at the tight pig-tails of the semi-bobbed hair that had once been so frozen in that modish permanent wave. His gray eyes twinkled in the freight.

"Well, I'd say you're less a sight than when I first met you."

Her eyes did not twinkle. They flashed. "You'll not have much longer to insult me!"

French Acadian Villages

Live On in Nova Scotia Although the Acadians were driven from the famous Land of Evangeline in 1745 their traditions and culture still live on in many a little French village in Nova Scotia that even now is not unlike the Grand Pre of the days when France ruled the new land. Many of them found their way back to their beloved Acadia and others fled to settle in remote parts of what was then a wild country.

Of these French villages one of the quaintest is the little town of Clare where words written a century ago by a traveler still hold true today. This foreign visitor to Clare in 1835 wrote, "The moment a traveler enters Clare the houses, the implements of husbandry, the foreign language, and uniform but peculiar dress of the inhabitants excite his surprise that any township in Nova Scotia should possess such a distinctive character."

A later visitor to Clare found that these French Acadians, in the words of the earlier traveler, "still preserve their language and their customs with peculiar attachments and though their traffic naturally leads them to an intercourse with the English, they never intermarry with them, adopt their manners or move into their villages. This does not arise from an aversion to the English government, but is ascribable rather to habit, national character and their system of education."

Few debts haunt these descendants of the original French settlers of Acadia. Their more progressive English or Scotch neighbors may use the tractor and automobile, but for them the ox drawn plow and the horse surface. The aura of the romantic land Longfellow wrote about still hangs over their villages.

Fuel Waste Cited

For years owners of Industrial Plants have known that an uncovered steam pipe or boiler means dollars wasted in fuel bills. The same method of insulation used in such large plants is needed in the home, for an uncovered furnace in the cellar with unprotected pipes leading from it will mean just the same percentage of waste as would occur in a giant foundry or coke furnace. Insulation used for such purposes is easy and economical to apply and is just as important in having an effective heating system.

Sanitary Science

Sanitary science is the science of sanitary conditions and of preserving health, and is accordingly synonymous with hygiene. The term is usually restricted, however, to the methods and apparatus for making and maintaining houses healthy, for removing waste and nuisance by drainage and otherwise, for securing abundance of fresh air and for the exclusion of poisonous gases, such as sewer gas.

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Fontaine?

THIS is a French name meaning "at the fountain." The family was established for many generations in the province of Maine, near the border of Normandy. It was there in the year 1500 that Jacques (John) de la Fontaine, with his father, became identified with the Huguenots. He bore arms for Kings Francis I, Henry II and Francis III, until 1562, when his strong adherence to the Protestant cause brought about his resignation and he retired to his ancestral home in the province of Maine.

The intensity of feeling and great animosity against Jacques de la Fontaine because of the strength he gave to the cause of the Protestants led to his murder and that of his wife and faithful servant by spies sent to his house. His children, James and Abraham, and one other whose name is unknown, fled from the scene of the tragedy and made their way to Rochelle. In a single moment they had been bereft of everything except their pure faith, their intellectual strength and noble bearing. The story of their lives indicates the reward which follows strict adherence to the principles of truth and courage.

The Rev. James Fontaine, grandson of the above-mentioned James, was the first to drop the "de la" indicative of the nobility, from the name of Fontaine. He was a minister of high spiritual and intellectual attainments. His son, the Rev. James, also possessed high courage and lofty characteristics of mind and soul. He succeeded in escaping from France, after the Edict of Nantes, and went to England, and from there to Cork, Ireland. John Fontaine was his son.

The Fontaines have been prominent in the history of Virginia and in many other states, occupying high positions in almost every phase of life. The family has furnished many clergymen. The Rev. Walker Maury Fontaine was a noted minister and teacher in Williamsburg, Albemarle and Norfolk, Va. The Rev. Peter Fontaine, a descendant, was rector of Westover parish in Charles City county, for over 40 years.

Colonel John Fontaine married Martha, the daughter of Patrick Henry. Fontaine intermarried with the Bealls, Armisteads, Stewarts, Dabneys, Meades and other distinguished families in Virginia.

A Scott?

MANY authorities claim that this name is derived from Scotia, a daughter of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who was drowned in the Red sea. However that may be, it is thought that many of this name adopted it from their native country, Scotland. The ancient Ossian was Scotia, meaning a restless wanderer.

The arms reproduced below were found on a bookplate of the illustrious Lieutenant General Winfield Scott of Virginia. It has been found that this coat of arms was borne by many Scottish families, among which are the dukes of Buccleugh.

The emigrant Scott to this country was the grandfather of the general, who came over after the Battle of Culoden, in 1746, having taken sides with the Young Pretender. His elder brother was slain in that battle. He practiced law in Virginia.

Another branch of the Scotts settled on Long Island. This line descended from Sir Reginald Scott of Scots Hall, County Kent, England. An old petition record states: "That John Scott sold in 1641 an estate worth £2,200 per annum and lent £14,300 to King Charles I, in whose service he lost his life." After this John Scott was sent to America by the Cromwellians. He first located in New England, but later moved to Long Island, where it is said he bought one-third of the island.

JACK—THAT FAT PORK WILL FINISH YOU! TUMS HAVE CHANGED EVERYTHING!

WHO ELSE WANTS TO FORGET SOUR STOMACH?

THE way to eat favorite foods and avoid heartburn, sour stomach, gas and other symptoms of acid indigestion is no secret now. Millions carry Tums. Nothing to mix up. No drenching your stomach with harsh alkalies, which doctors say may increase the tendency toward acid indigestion. Just enough of the antacid in Tums is released to neutralize the stomach. The rest passes on inert. Cannot over-alkalize the stomach or blood. You never know when so carry a roll in your pants. 10c at all druggists.

Harder to Get Over We ought to be more offended at extravagant praise than injuries.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life." — Mrs. Mabel Schott.

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adlerika. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adlerika gives complete action, clearing your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

Transatlantic Air Service Next Year

U. S. and England Agree on Two Routes.

Washington.—The State department announced an agreement between the United States and Great Britain which is expected to open the way for regular air transportation service across the Atlantic ocean by the summer of 1937.

The agreement was reached at the conferences between representatives of England, Irish Free State, Canada, and the United States here. Negotiations are under way for the northern route by way of Canada, Newfoundland, and Irish Free State to England and the southern route from Porto Rico and American ports to England.

The northern route is more practicable than the southern route because of the shorter distance, but is less practicable because flights would be undertaken under less favorable conditions in winter months. One obstacle stands in the way of best employment of the southern route. That is the failure of Portugal to grant permission to use the Azores for landings. The State department hopes to obtain such permission.

Based on Reciprocity.

Transatlantic air service would have been inaugurated before the trans-Pacific service but for the fact that Great Britain and Portugal blocked proposed use of stations.

Under the agreement experimental flights will begin next summer. When regular service is inaugurated, according to the agreement, four round trips will be made each week. The problem of air mails was postponed for future consideration.

"As a result of the conferences which have been in progress since December 5 between representatives of the United Kingdom, the Irish Free State, Canada and the United States, understandings have been reached which, it is confidently hoped, will bring about the early establishment of transatlantic air transport services connecting these several countries," R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state, said.

"These understandings are based upon the principle of full reciprocity between the countries interested. They do not operate to exclude similar arrangements between the United States and other countries.

"The Department of Commerce has given its approval to the establishment of transatlantic airways by way of Canada, Newfoundland, and the Irish Free State to England, and from Bermuda to Porto Rico, the latter route to be extended by mutual consent.

Plan Entry Ports.

"The Atlantic seaboard ports in contemplation as termini are New York city; Baltimore, Md.; Cape Charles or Norfolk, Va., and Charleston, S. C., any one of which may be designated as ports of entry, but no final determination with reference to places has been made.

"It is recognized that the northern route is much shorter than the southern route and therefore will have the advantage of more economical operation, but this fact does not preclude the possibility of considerable use being made of the southern route. It is expected that experimental flights will be begun early in the summer of 1936, and it is hoped that scheduled services will begin by the summer of 1937. When the full regular service is inaugurated it is provided that there will be four round trips per week.

EPIDEMIC OPINIONS

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Comparatively few persons dare to be original. Most of us are imitators of each other. In the matter of style, some one introduces a new fashion, and the crowd imitates it. When a slang phrase appeals to the fancy of the masses, they insist on repeating it on all occasions. Many persons are guilty of yielding, at times, to the glamour of a popular song, not because it is music, but because everyone is singing it. The psychology of suggestion is a very important element in our daily experience. It has a greater influence than we realize in molding character and changing environment.

A more serious aspect of the problem faces us when we permit our opinions to be formulated by the same process. A statement is made in glaring headlines with the determined purpose of molding our opinion, and "we fall for it." It is like a contagious disease. We "take" it, only to realize later that we have become the victims of distorted thinking. It is unfortunate that so many persons are satisfied not only to "catch" but to express enthusiastically an epidemic opinion. They "caught" their ideas from some source best known to themselves, or for a few pennies bought their ideas from news stands. Rather than think for themselves they let some one else do their thinking for them, and thus they become victims of the epidemic of popular opinion.

33 MILES TO SCHOOL

Violet Johnson, who lives near Peach, Wash., evidently thinks an education is quite worth while, for she walks five miles every day through rough mountain country to catch a bus that takes her 28 more miles to and from school. Violet is now eight years old and has carried on this early morning ritual, zero weather or not, since she was six.

This is a free country and no centralized authority has a right to deprive one of his right of independent and original thinking. On the other hand, this high privilege of reason should not become atrophied through lack of use.

The freedom of speech—the right to express our opinions, if we have any, is one of the distinguishing characteristics of our American liberty. Why surrender it? Why sacrifice it? Why substitute for it an acquiescence with popular opinion, unless we are too lazy to think the problem through for ourselves?

It is intensely interesting to study the psychology of a mob. It is easy for the blind to lead the blind. However, we need not be blind to the truth or error in any statement or problem, if we have sufficient courage and strength to think for ourselves and then to express our original opinions.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

REMEMBER to dust the baseboards of rooms after sweeping whether this is done with a broom or with a vacuum cleaner. If with the former, dust is raised and this must be wiped off, or the room betrays lack of care. If the vacuum cleaner is used, very little dust is raised, but the need for dusting is not eliminated by any means. The molding that finishes the top of the baseboard or mop board as it is still sometimes called, has curves and thin ledges usually, and these catch floating particles in the air at all times, but especially when dirt is stirred up, whether on carpets, rugs, or bare floors.

French door frames set with window glass. The horizontal parts need wiping off frequently, as do those of windows. The sills are recognized as requiring dusting as much, or more, than other places, but this same care does not always extend to sashes.

It is disturbing, after a room is cleaned, to still find dust which has seeped through the crevice between sashes of windows. Maids have to be constantly reminded to dust this main sash, since the dust is seldom visible, being above the line of vision. The dust is revealed when windows are opened or closed because it clings to the hands, and this is mortifying to the careful homemaker.

Apart from the architectural units in a room that are so easily forgotten when dusting, there are stationary things, such as lighting fixtures that do not always come under the dust cloth on cleaning days, as they should. There are also semi-stationary things, such as picture frames, that suffer a like fate. These are delicate in finish and have to be carefully treated. Dusters should be soft, perfectly dry and delicately handled.

There is a distinct trend toward soft floors. That is floors, which have, hitherto, been bare or which have been sparsely covered by rugs, are now being fully carpeted, covered by large rugs, or by more scatter rugs. This is true whether the floors are of hard or soft wood, or are covered with felt base coverings. When boards are unsightly they can be given an excellent top of the felt base floor covering, which comes in an unlimited assortment of patterns. When rugs are to be used above it, choose hard wood floor patterns obtainable in plain board designs, parquet floor effects, or perhaps mosaic designs for halls. Or painted floor effects are attractive also, as found in flat grays, wood tones, and colors. Floors painted in these flat colors of subdued tints are recommended when boards are spotted or have knots in them, or are in any way not suited to remaining as they are. The maximum of softness is attained when plain (never patterned) carpets have scatter rugs on them.

When floors are of hard or soft wood, whether remaining in present finishes or painted, there should be carpet lining under carpets or rug linings under rugs according to which coverings are used. Felt base coverings form, in themselves sufficient background linings.

Linings do the double duty of prolonging the life of carpets and rugs, and providing that needed element of softness to the tread. When scatter rugs are on floors these require to be flat at corners and so secured that they will not slip. There are all sorts of gadgets made to prevent rugs slipping, but of this I shall speak another time. Today the softness of floors is the matter of significance. It is sometimes in the way of a radically new vogue as the return of old-time customs often are.

There is an element of luxury instilled into homes where the click of heels on floors is not heard, nor the tramp of foot on bare floors and on stairs, for these, too, are being covered, at least where the tread comes. The quietness of the home is promoted. In these days when there is such confusion of sounds that societies are formed for the prevention of unnecessary noise in cities, it is not surprising that the vogue for eliminating the sound of footsteps indoors is beginning to be featured. Footsteps are the traffic of dwellings. The noise of them can be quelled. One element of peace is promoted in a home when footfalls are like velvet treads, so soft and noiseless that they can scarcely be detected.

Aluminum Craft Is Being Tested

With the eyes of the shipping world upon it, this experimental aluminum "ship" was launched at Bath, Maine. Two years may be necessary to test the theory that light metal alloy, instead of wood, or heavier metal, is practical for shipbuilding. The alloy is one-third the weight of steel but is said to be of equal strength.

Staples One Should Have on Hand to Facilitate Cooking

So-Called Perishables Serve as Foundations for Many Meals.

The wise housewife will keep her pantry shelves well stocked with the staples, and at the same time will keep a larger stock of what might be called perishable staples than is practicable for the business woman. The latter, however, will find that these few perishables are indispensable. They should be bought in quantities depending upon the size of the family and how many dinners are prepared at home during the week.

- |          |                 |
|----------|-----------------|
| Cabbage, | Potatoes—white  |
| Lemons,  | Potatoes—sweet, |
| Oranges, | Onions,         |
| Apples,  | Lettuce,        |
| Bananas, | Parsley.        |

It is labor saving and fuel saving to plan to cook potatoes enough for two meals when they are cooked. They may be served baked or mashed or boiled the first evening and creamed or fried for the second day. Sweet potatoes should not be bought in as large quantities as white potatoes when they cannot be kept in a cool place, as they spoil much more quickly.

Onions may be bought in smaller or larger amounts, depending upon whether they are a favorite vegetable or whether they figure merely as seasoning for salads and other dishes.

If orange juice is used often for breakfast it will be found advisable to buy the smaller oranges, which usually give us the juice at a smaller cost a pint of liquid. Larger oranges should be kept on hand for table use. Lemons for tea, for flavoring and for garnishing are, of course, indispensable.

Grapfruit, if solid when purchased, keep very well, and may be kept ahead for several days. Bananas should be bought in a variety of stages from the ripe, which are to be used at once, to the green, which will ripen as well for us at home as for the grocer in his store. A banana is just right for eating when the yellow skin is flecked with brown. They may be baked at any stage. Unripe, they will take the place of a vegetable, or ripen, when the sugar has developed, they make an easily and quickly prepared cooked dessert.

Unless you have cool storage facilities apples should be bought in small quantities. Raw or cooked they will find a place several times a week at meals. A fruit salad will often provide salad and dessert together, and it is a special help when unexpected company arrives. With some fresh canned fruit it is a simple matter to stretch the salad to fit the number of guests.

Lettuce or some other green salad plant should be on hand always, lettuce, parsley, celery and a small head of cabbage can be kept in the icebox for several days if they are placed in a tightly covered pan. Two good sized bread boxes which are ventilated are excellent receptacles for bags of vegetables and fruit. The Kitchenette will look much neater and the materials will keep well if these are used.

Other perishables should generally be purchased as they are to be used, as in that way waste will be avoided.

- Tomato Juice Cocktail,
- 2 cups strained tomato juice
  - 4 teaspoons chopped parsley
  - 4 teaspoons chopped chives (or chopped mild onions)
  - 1/4 teaspoon tobacco sauce
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 3/4 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
  - 1 cup lemon carbonated beverage

Let chives and parsley stand in tomato juice for three hours. Strain and add seasonings. Chill thoroughly and add lemon beverage, which has been chilled. Shake or stir and serve in glasses surrounded by shaved ice.

- Spaghetti With Chicken Livers,
- 3/4 pound Italian spaghetti (or 1 package)
  - 1 tablespoon butter
  - 1 cup canned tomatoes
  - 1 cup stock
  - 1 cup sauted chicken livers
  - 1 onion
  - Salt, pepper, paprika
  - 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water. Mince onion and heat with tomatoes, stock, butter and seasonings. Saute chicken livers in butter. Drain spaghetti well, add sauce and livers, sprinkle cheese over top.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

Wonderful, thousands say, how the soothing penetration of CUTICURA Soap and Ointment helps banish ugly skin irritations due to external causes. Wonderful, how this mildly medicated Soap cleanses and soothes—how the Ointment relieves and helps heal! Wonderful, you'll agree, as even the first application aids and comforts.

Sold everywhere. Ointment 25c. Soap 25c. Write for FREE sample to "Cuticura," Dept. 11, Malden, Mass.

Whitemore

The regular meeting of the P.-T. A. was held at the Whitemore high school Tuesday night, January 14. Mr. Switzer gave a report on the contagious diseases of our community which now seem to be under control. Mr. Grimm talked on the training of a student for citizenship. Miss Spencer's class presented a short play. Miss Sartain's room having the largest representation of parents present, it was entitled to the flag for the coming month. The P.-T. A. voted to put on the alumni banquet in February.

Mrs. Ivan O'Farrell, Mrs. Norman Schuster and Miss Lois Charters entertained about one hundred friends at a miscellaneous shower at the Bell Inn hall Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. Harrison Snyder, a recent bride. Progressive pedro and lotto were played. Miss Ella Ross carried off the prize for high score in pedro and Mrs. Anson Lail low score. Mrs. Henry Ranger captured the most prizes in lotto. Mrs. Snyder received many useful and beautiful gifts.

The community was saddened on Wednesday evening when word was received of the sudden death of Mrs. Fred Caverly at her home in Logan township. She leaves six children to mourn besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Barnum, several sisters and brothers and a host of other relatives and friends. Her husband preceded her in death a little over a year ago. She was 38 years old.

John Barrington has returned after spending a few days in Buffalo, N. Y., on business.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bellville is under quarantine for scarlet fever.

Tommy and Marilyn Shannon are entertaining the chicken pox.

Norman Schuster has resumed his duties at school again after being absent for nearly two weeks with the mumps.
