The feasibility of various features for the festival were discussed and it was decided that it would be a three-day event, with a float parade, crowning of a queen, several contests in which prizes will be given and many other things which would add to the enjoyment of the visitors. Special emphasis was placed on entertainment and accommodations for the guests. Indications are that a special excursion train will be run from Bay City. The Boy and His Dog

If you see a boy with a package under his arm hurrying along the road, don't be too sure that he is carrying home the week's groceries. It may be your favorite dog's head on the way to the township clerk to be used as evidence in securing that $2.00 dog bounty.

John O. Johnson, clerk of Plainfield township, says that the problems confronting township clerks have greatly increased since the last session of the board of supervisors. He asks, "What in heck are you going to do with the heads? They will not burn in the stove and the ground is frozen so hard you can't bury them."

Business started up in dog heads without much warning and caught township officials unprepared. They met the emergency, however. Rat order blanks are being changed with the pen to indicate to County Clerk Russell McKenzie that the bearer is entitled to the $2.00 dog bounty.

REBEKAHS HOLD "OPEN HOUSE" WEDNESDAY

Louis D. McGregor, Flint Attorney, Gives Travel Talk At Meeting

A large audience was entertained by an interesting and educational travel talk by Louis D. McGregor, prominent attorney of Flint, at the "open house" meeting of the Rebekahs in East Tawas Wednesday night.

The travel talk concerned the ancient Mayan civilization. These people occupied Central America and the northern-most part of South America many hundred years ago and their civilization is said to date back about six thousand years. Mr. McGregor illustrated his talk with a number of still-pictures showing many of the ruins of their temples and other structures. His talk explained many of the romantic phases of their lives and also many of their weird pagan religious rites.

Dr. C. F. Klump opened the meeting with remarks about Abraham Lincoln. He was followed by T. George Sternberg, local attorney, who likewise made several remarks relative to the celebration of Abraham Lincoln's birthday and then introduced Mr. McGregor.

During the afternoon Mr. McGregor appeared before the Tawas City high school and presented the same travel talk to a large group of wide-eyed highly interested students.

The committee of the Rebekahs in charge of the "open house" were: Mrs. Ray Tuttle, Mrs. W. A. DeGroot, Mrs. Arvid Carlson, Mrs. Frank Moore, and Mrs. C. F. Klump.

Iosco Road Commission Finds Snow More Than Equipment Can Handle

The large amount of unusually heavy frozen snow recently has put the County Road Commission up against an almost impossible task. County men report that it is more like plowing ice than snow and that their equipment with the exception of the caterpillar plow will stand the strain but a few hours. While very much discouraged, they have not given up. Repair work has been kept up day and night. Most of the units have been reconditioned several times during the last two weeks. Many times in answer to relief calls they have promised to open pieces of road only to find everything broken down before reaching their destination.

Officials report that the Commission's present equipment will not stand plowing the kind of snow we have with us this winter. The situation seems to be general in northern Michigan. Adjoining counties report the same conditions of broken down equipment and inability to remove snow.

PLAINFIELD MAN STABBED IN ARGUMENT

Calvin Roberts, Jos. Nixon Arraigned Thursday Morning

Joseph Nixon and Calvin Roberts, Plainfield township men, were arraigned yesterday before Justice W. C. Davidson of this city charged with stabbing Jesse Shellenbarger of Hale Tuesday night. The formal charge was "assault to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder." The stabbing occurred at the door of Otto Rader's Hale Inn. Following the arraignment the two men asked for an examination which will be held February 25 if Shellenbarger's condition will permit him to appear. Bond was set at $1000.00 each for Nixon and Roberts which neither man has secured.

Nixon and his wife, Roberts and his wife and Shellenbarger were in the Rader Inn Tuesday evening. Nixon and Shellenbarger became embroiled in an argument. Shellenbarger said that he had invited Nixon out on to the street to settle the difficulty. The Nixons and Roberts say that they started to leave the building to go home at that time. Roberts left by a rear door. Shellenbarger said that when he stepped out of the door of the building he was attacked from the front and back. He received several stabs in the back and chest and his thumb was gashed.

A few minutes later James McKean assisted Shellenbarger to the Danin store where he was treated by Dr. E. A. Hasty, who appeared on the scene within 20 minutes after he had been called from Whittemore. Dr. Hasty said that it would be at least ten days before the wounded man would be in condition to be on his feet again, having lost much blood from the four wounds.

He made the plane in short order and got the dead policeman to the cabin by way of the wing.

She had slung the showshoes on her back, floundered through the first drift, and collapsed.

"I tried, Alan. I can't even walk," she said. "Go back. It's all my fault. Hurry and save yourself. Maybe I can—delay him."

For a moment, Garth swung her up across his shoulders and headed again for the plane. There still might be time. He put all his strength into another burst of speed.

They came to the glacier stream, with no sight or sound of the pursuers behind them. Garth lifted the girl from his shoulder and set her on the front edge of the monoplane wing.

A bullet fanned the girl's pain-whitened cheek. Another bullet struck the wing edge between her and Garth. He jerked her down off the wing.

After murdering Constable Dillon but before starting to trail Garth, Huxby must have sent one of his men running along the foot of the tundra slope to take possession of the planes.

Garth did not hesitate a split second. He carried Lilith to the mooring tree and slashed the line with his knife.

His one backward glance showed him that the plane was drifting out into the lake. But the cross-wind had died down.

The rifleman up on the edge of the tundra was off to the right of the stream. Garth knew he had a thick screen of spruce trees and scrub all the way to timberline.

Before long, other yells came from the lake shore. They were followed by rifle shots. It was easy to guess that one or more of the pursuers had sighted the plane and opened fire.

Garth moderated his rush. Even so, his steady uphill slogging brought him near timberline before the four men got together down at the lake shore.

For the first time since leaving the plane, he spoke to Lilith: "Try holding out farther from my neck, Miss Ramill. We're safe enough now. We're climbing faster than they can wade the drifts."

With less than a hundred paces, Garth saw a whitish pall surge out from the down-rolling clouds on the western mountain side.

Fortunately for Lilith, the storm was only an early autumn blizzard, not a 30 or 40 below zero gale of the subarctic winter.

He went out across the rock-strewn gulch bed. Within a few moments Lilith suddenly found herself out of the wind and snow and the white glow of the storm.

A match flared in Garth's upraised hand. The light glinted and sparkled on ice walls. She was in the mouth of the cave, up inside the glacier-stream tunnel.

He pointed to an outspread caribou skin. "Crawl in on that. Then rub your face and pound yourself."

She scrambled to the skin mat, her teeth clenched on her lip to keep from crying out from the pain of her ankle.

Garth had struck another match and held it to the moss wick of the stone lamp. A third match was necessary before enough of the frozen fat was thawed and melted to feed the wick.

Garth's smile hardened. "Neither can they. Now tend to your ankle. I'm going for meat."

He dressed and crawled out into the storm. When at last he came back in, he had brought nearly half of the caribou meat from the ice cave and stacked it around the igloo.

Over near the far end of the glacier front, he found a drift with a four-inch crust packed by the drive of the wind during the previous snowstorm.

After he had gathered a high pile of the blocks on a fairly level spot just beyond the drift, he started to cut others and lay them edgewise in a circular wall around the pile.

Garth shook his head. "You take too much of the credit, Miss Ramill. So far as regards Constable Dillon, the result would have been the same if you had stayed at Fort Simpson."

He laid his belt-ax on a hind-quarter of caribou, and smiled at her in the growing light of the wick.

"Chop off a shank or two. We'll need bone spits," he said. "But first warm some of the other skins and wrap them around you. Also put more fat in the lamp. I'll be gone two or three hours."

All the remainder of that day of death and storm, both of them plied awl and buckskin needle and catgut thread. Neither was an Eskimo seamstress. But their stitches, though coarse, were strong.

After another meal of broiled meat, Garth went out and climbed the lateral moraine to gather a quantity of caribou moss from between the snow-drifts on the wind-swept tundra.

When he returned, Lilith lay asleep on one of the uncut skins. She had sunk down, completely tired out. Garth covered her, blocked the roof hole with a chunk of soft snow, and spread his own skin mat on the other side of the lamp from the girl.

Lilith opened her eyes as Garth finished his hasty meal of lamp-seared meat and fat. He explained about the plane. Her hands clutched together till they whitened.

"You—you'll be careful?" "Never fear. I'll come back to look out for you. The storm has blown out. Clear sky, and about 10 below zero. Keep treating your ankle, and work on your suit."

He handed her the knife, but took the belt-ax. "If I'm not back soon, it will not be till late afternoon or after dark. They may turn out early, like myself, to have a look at their plane. In that case, I'll have to hide-out all day."

That won a smile from him. "This is an Eskimo rig. I've sat in one for hours beside a seal hole, at 40 below zero. Finish your own suit, and crawl out to enjoy the frost. Only be careful of that ankle. When outside, keep close to the igloo, and duck inside if you see anyone else than myself."

She flung out her hands. "Oh, if only I could go along to help! I'm so afraid he'll find you. All those guns—he and his men—you, empty-handed!"

Garth met the almost frantic outburst with a look of cool irony. "Do you take me for a chechahco? Mark this—that scoundrel Huxby is the man who's in danger."

With the assurance, Garth crept out through the tunnel, shoving his snowshoes ahead of him. Snow had continued to fall after the wind had died down. That meant easy tracking.

During the night, the last dwindling flow had choked the channel with anchor ice, had flooded over the snow, and frozen solid. Garth took off his snowshoes and crept across the glare ice without leaving any marks.

On the other bank, he plowed a heavy trail up into the ice tunnel, and brought from the storage cave one of the remaining legs of caribou. He left the meat atop the moraine, and started down the tundra as fast as he could travel by starlight.

Dawn was graying over the east mountain wall of the valley when he neared the lake. He crossed over the frozen ford and went to peer at the three-seater plane in the growing twilight. It stood much higher than he had left it.

A close view showed that the engineer and his men had managed to raise the craft above water by cribbing logs under the shattered pontoons.

At that, all her pent-up emotion burst out: "Oh, how you must despise me! Get you into this frightful danger—then go lame! A helpless, useless drag on you! That beastly coward—he'll hunt you on... murder you like the poor policeman. And all my fault!"

Garth's smile hardened. "Neither can they. Now tend to your ankle. I'm going for meat."

He dressed and crawled out into the storm. When at last he came back in, he had brought nearly half of the caribou meat from the ice cave and stacked it around the igloo.

Over near the far end of the glacier front, he found a drift with a four-inch crust packed by the drive of the wind during the previous snowstorm.

After he had gathered a high pile of the blocks on a fairly level spot just beyond the drift, he started to cut others and lay them edgewise in a circular wall around the pile.

Garth shook his head. "You take too much of the credit, Miss Ramill. So far as regards Constable Dillon, the result would have been the same if you had stayed at Fort Simpson."

sharp-edged sheet of ice, so that the aircraft had foundered in deep water. But then he made out vaguely a white shape against the white of the snow-covered ice.

The plane had been driven across into this corner of the lake, along with the sledge. The shoreward-slung tail was only a biscuit toss out from the solid bank.

The last extension proved touch and go. Cross pieces and stringers drove down under his weight into the sludge-filled water and the mud beneath.

He climbed upon the tail, ran forward to the cabin, and swung inboard. The frozen body of Constable Dillon lay on the floor where he had placed it.

The side of the cockpit had been pierced by several bullets. But when Huxby fired at the drifting plane, in his attempt to kill the supposed hidden fugitives, he had aimed with great care to avoid damage to the instruments and controls and the motor.

After removing the breaker points from the magneto, Garth ran back to the tail of the plane. Here came the greatest of his risks. The bridge poles had risen to the surface again, but the outermost cross logs remained embedded in the mud under the water.

He let himself down sideways. As his moccasins touched the slender trunks, he let go of the rudder and leaped. Though the ends of the poles sloped downwards, his swift dash carried him up their sharp slant to the next pair of trunks.

Safe back on solid ground, he at once stepped into his snowshoes and headed straight away from the shore into a dense growth of spruce. There he circled to the right towards the glacier gulch, keeping well back from the lake.

"Mountain of Hellfire" Emits Ammoniacal Gases

Over a great area on the frontier between Baluchistan and Persia everything is dead. Not a bird, beast, or reptile, not even an insect, survives.

This is the only mountain which produces this particular gas, but not the only one which exudes poison gas.

In 1912 the volcano of Katmai in Alaska exploded, producing the biggest crater in the world, which is now known as the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes.

The Sakura Shima volcano in Japan blew up in 1914 and overwhelmed the city of Kagoshima. The loss of life was over 70,000, and a great number of these people were suffocated by pestilence gases which rushed up from earthquake fissures a long way from the mountain itself.

Before the great Chilean earthquake of 1857 poison gas rose in the floor of the Bay of Payta and killed enormous quantities of fish and crabs.

The most ghastly disaster of recent times was the destruction of the beautiful city of St. Pierre by a cloud of gas and dust flung out by Mont Pelee. Within a matter of moments 40,000 people were blotted out.

Docksider Slanguage "Luters," scurfers, and "toshers" are among the quaint nicknames given to the workers in London's dockland.

A "luter" is a man who clears mud from the beds of barges, a "scurfer" is one who scrapes away the crust from the insides of ships' boilers, and a "tosher" is a waterman who searches for stray bits of floating timber or dredges for a wet haul of coal.

A coal boat that ducks her funnel when she passes beneath the bridges is known as a "fat-iron," a vessel belonging to the Steam Navigation company is called a "Navy," and the river police are humorously dubbed "Lord Trenchard's Navy."

Who Are You?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Ross?

THIS is the name of a very old Scottish clan that furnished most of the people of this name in America.

The name itself is derived from the Gaelic word "Ros" meaning an isthmus or promontory. It was first applied as a name to a shire in Scotland.

The plaid or "tartan" of the Ross clan is very attractive. It is dark blue, red and green, arranged in broad and narrow stripes, producing an effect that is very vivid and pleasing.

The ancient home of this family in Scotland was in the district of Belnagowan, and the founder was William Ross, a great patriot and friend of Robert the Bruce.

William's son, Earl Hugh, was killed fighting for the king at Halidon Hill. In 1745 the fighting force of the Ross clan was estimated at 500 men.

It is supposed that the first Ross to come to America was Thomas Rosse, who was of the Jamestown colony. He settled on the River James, in Virginia.

After the massacre of 1622 he was reported dead, leaving a wife and two children. Descendants of this family are to be found in North Carolina and other Southern states.

Another early settler was Rev. George Ross, who came from Scotland and settled in Delaware in 1703. His son, George, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Another settler was John Ross, who went from Scotland to Ireland in 1680. He came to America in 1706 and purchased land in Chester county, Pennsylvania.

This property was known as "Ross Common." George Ross, a descendant of this branch, was Governor of Pennsylvania.

The Rosses were noted for their unswerving loyalty to their convictions and for their bravery in defending those principles which made them a clan to be reckoned with.

Among the many members of the family who have distinguished themselves by outstanding achievements there is Betsy Ross, who was entrusted with the making of the first American flag.

She, however, was not a Ross by birth, being the wife of John Ross, who was the nephew of George Ross, the "signer."

In the census of 1790 there were 67 Ross families in South Carolina alone, numerous families in New Jersey, Maryland and other Southern states.

Isaac Ross was a captain in the Revolution. The coat of arms above shown is used by Rosses who trace to Rev. George Ross, mentioned in this sketch.

He was a direct descendant of the Belgowan branch of England.

An Edmonstone?

THIS family originated in northern France, with Count de Edmont, a duke of Flanders, whose son William, in 1063, went to Scotland as a special attaché to Queen Margaret, wife of King Malcolm.

The king bestowed upon him the land of Edmonstone and Umef for faithful service. Archibald Edmonstone was the first of the family in America. He patented land in 1689 in Maryland and Virginia, and succeeded his father as commander of county militia in Maryland.

Through intermarriages the Edmonstones became connected with many prominent families, among them the Ormes, who claim descent from the royal house of Stuart.

Gold Coming in Faster Than It Can Be Stored

Vast Stream of Metal Flowing Into Country.

Washington.—A new gold rush is on, but it's a rush of the yellow metal into Uncle Sam's vaults this time, and not a rush of miners to get rich quick at the scene of some new "gold strike."

While Italian women give up their gold wedding rings to help finance their country's military activity in Ethiopia, gold is pouring into the United States almost faster than it can be stored. This country now has in its vaults an enormous treasure of more than ten billion dollars' worth of monetary gold, the most valuable gold store ever held by the American government, and possibly by any government.

"Those gold-hungry old conquerors, Cortes and Pizarro, and even Croesus or Midas himself, would gasp could they see this gold hoard of the United States piled up in one place," says the National Geographic society.

"The Inca Atahualpa of Peru sought to purchase his freedom from Pizarro by filling a room about 20 feet square with treasure as high as he could reach, but America's present gold supply would form a cube 120 feet high, wide and deep, the size of a 12-story building.

INSPECTOR GENERAL

In the recent army promotions Walter L. Reed was made inspector general with the rank of major general.

Production Stimulated.

"This vast golden wealth is being guarded with extraordinary care. Near Fort Knox, Ky., 600 miles inland from the Atlantic coast, a huge new steel and stone storage 'fortress' is being built to house much of the government's gold supply. It will be guarded not only by the latest type of burglar-proof vaults but by the army's most modern mechanized cavalry units stationed at the fort. Another large supply of gold has been moved from San Francisco to Denver, 1,300 miles inland. Though the possibility of invasion is remote, the government is not risking its gold too near either seat coast.

"Gold is flowing to America partly because of its high price, $35 per ounce, established when the American dollar was devalued (gold content reduced) at the beginning of 1934; and because of trade requirements and fears of gold holders in disturbed regions of the world. When a nation buys more from the United States than it sells to her, the difference must be made up in gold.

"The high price of gold has stimulated gold production all over the world to feverish new activity. In the first eleven months of 1935, the world produced 26,700,000 ounces of gold. The present stock of the United States is about 288,000,000 ounces. In 1934 the entire world produced 27,300,000 ounces.

"South Africa, mining 9,900,000 ounces up to December 1, was far in the lead in 1935. Soviet Russia, which has jumped to the fore only recently in gold production, was second with 3,900,000 ounces. Third was the United States with 3,300,000 ounces, and Canada came fourth with 3,000,000.

"Mines not worth working when the price of gold is lower now can be worked profitably. In South Africa gold mines are being cooled by air-conditioning plants as the miners delve down to depths where it becomes so hot that work otherwise would be extremely difficult or impossible. Reports from Siberia, Manchukuo, New Guinea and Canada tell of the opening of new gold fields. Airplanes are carrying mining equipment into regions where no roads exist.

"Gold is found widely over the world, even in sea water. According to some estimates the sea contains as much as ten billion tons of gold, but diluted down to from five to 250 parts of gold to 100,000,000 of water. At present it is not practicable to extract gold from the sea, but chemists have predicted that new processes will make it feasible.

Greatest Gold Hoarder.

"No one knows just how much gold there is in the world today. The world's monetary stock of gold—gold coins and gold reserves held by governments as backing for currency—totals 633,400,000 ounces, and America's present holdings are nearly half of this. But there is nearly as much more gold scattered throughout the world in the form of jewelry, ornaments, fillings for teeth, church, mosque, and temple ornaments, gold leaf signs, and in private hoards. Greatest of the gold hoarding countries is India, where native princes and rulers have stored vast sums, adding to them through the centuries.

"Most of the world's gold has been mined in modern times, though conceivably the gold in your watch might have come originally from the ornaments of Solomon's temple or some ancient treasure ship plundered by Arabian corsairs. When Columbus sailed for America, all the gold in Europe was worth less than many modern private fortunes.

"Since 1492, when his voyage opened the way to the rich gold supplies of the New World, gold production has totaled 1,189,400,000 ounces. But of this amount, all but 217,000,000 ounces has been mined since 1860. Nearly a billion ounces have been added to the world's gold store in the last 75 years, as rich new 'strikes' and improved mining and refining methods have enormously speeded up production."

Woods sends his two trained shepherd dogs after the runaway and the rebellious excursion is practically closed. Wood has a record of catching 40 cows this year and 228 since he entered the profession.

Test Robot in Lightship Off Coast of Michigan

Detroit, Mich.—The United States lighthouse service is experimenting near here with a new type of robot warning ship that may replace many present-day lighthouses.

Eight miles off the Michigan coast in Lake St. Clair—connecting lake between Lakes Erie and Huron—a crewless ship performs all the functions of warning mariners of nearby danger.

As soon as darkness closes down a warning beacon flares, a radio beacon sends steady calls and fog signals blare warnings during murky weather. In a lighthouse along the coastline the keeper merely presses buttons to work the apparatus.

The present ship, in operation for the last six months, will continue as an experiment for another year. The success of its operation probably will decide future policy of the government service to seafarers.

The ranching company will raise the karakul sheep principally for fox food. It owns thousands of fur-bearing foxes on several islands of the Aleutian archipelago. Pelts of the sheep also are valuable for the fur.

Flowers, Jewels and Rich Fabrics

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS THE winter and midseason social activities reach their height and as high-life society carries on gay festivity in fashionable southern resorts, one is impressed with the surpassing elegance of the more formal modes. Smart gatherings, be they grand opera audiences, dinners at the smartest places in town or sojourners in the Southlands, all bespeak the trend to a new high in splendor and opulence as expressed in terms of rich fabrics, precious furs, gorgeous jewels and the wearing of rare and lovely flowers.

To add to the fascination of the style picture there is a definite movement toward individual, distinctive hairdress such as recaptures the charm of wearing flowers, jeweled ornaments or exotic feather fancies in ornate coiffures.

The aristocracy of current mode calls for materials of high degree fashioned with that master simplicity which makes rich fabrics look richer. Such is the lovely ensemble centered in the accompanying illustration. Consider it, if you will, as a fantasy "in lilac time" for such it would seem to be. A petite society girl wore this very lovely creation at a velvet fashion revue presented during a ball at a leading "way down south" hotel recently. The dress is lilac veizanza, which is sheer and cool to wear. The long voluminous cape with big scarf collar draped over the shoulders is of lilac crush-resistant velvet. Note the glittering jeweled bracelet and the corsage which declares a revival of that lovely custom of wearing flowers.

The lady to the left, in the picture, tells you via her very charming costume that to interpret fashion correctly, one must wear a glamorous necklace with bracelet to match, furthermore the coiffure must be enhanced with an ornate bandeau, which, in this instance, is of velvet and wide ostrich tips. The unique velvet belt done in petal or leaf motif, also the coronet of feathers and velvet, are in a deep rich purple tone matching the cape that was worn with the gown. A semi-sheer nubby material woven on a velvet loom is the fabric of this pale leaf-green evening dress.

Reports from all fashion centers in regard to the new season's trends place emphasis on the importance of strictly tailored short jackets that top rather short slenderizing skirts. The majority of first arrivals in the suit realm give preference to mannish types of hip length. The model to the right is along this line of thought—neat and natty to a nicety. The slim straight skirt is of brown crystelle and the fitted jacket of white. Fabrics such as this, that are woven on a velvet loom, are becoming increasingly popular where dainty lightweight material is wanted that is suitable and practical for year-round wear. The white hat with brown veil that tops this stunning outfit is tres chic. Most of the hats coming from Paris feature decorative veils. Brown kid gloves, brown kid shoes, and a white leather bag complete this up-to-the-moment costume.

Some of the most striking and most beautiful ensembles for formal nights are white in every detail. A likable formula for full dress is the all-white gown of velvet which is as sheer as chiffon, or it may be of white crepe, satin or taffeta, to which add a snowy ermine wrap, long white gloves, two strands of pearls, diamond bracelets or a single wide one, a diamond hair clip and three pure white orchids pinned to a narrow shoulder strap.

PLEATED CREPE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The flair for colorful crepe frocks for afternoon wear is resulting in such stunning models being turned out as this picture depicts. This very attractive luncheon or afternoon tea frock is of crepe in a wistful violet shade. The girdle is of silvered kid and violet suede. The felt hat is in matching violet shade. Pleating, tucking, and stitching, also braiding, will be lavished on fashionable apparel this season.

Many Pleats

It takes a slim figure to wear them, but there is great charm to skirts entirely pleated. Dinner and more formal evening gowns with this skirt feature give the wearer a lovely, buoyant air.

Glad Hands

Nothing is gayer than gold and silver tissue evening gloves seen these days. They are long and very, very elegant.

REAL FLOWERS IN HAIR, IS NEW FAD

Headresses, as the newest of the formal accessories, embrace a wide variety. Such a wealth of real flowers, worn not only in the hair in arresting ways, such as the half cap of six gardenias which covered one side of a young girl's coiffure, but also on the shoulders and corsage of women of all ages—has not been seen around these parts in years. Orchids and gardenias are the favorites, but one sees also real daisies, cornflowers, carnations used in effective fashions.

The little Juliet cap is perhaps the most popular jeweled headress these nights; these are in rhinestones or pearls, and very rarely in coral sometimes with turquoise. Schiaparelli's chenille snood is another variation of this fashion, but most young girls seem to prefer the sparkle of jewels among their curls.

Hobble Skirt Is Returning According to Paris Report

Patou again outdoes himself in his new silhouette treatments and expert dressmaking.

The hobble skirt is returning. Bands of fabric hang free from shoulder to hem. Others have tight front skirts, with wide circular back gores, laid in flat pleats, the width held in place. Some evening models are slit back and front.

Silk taffeta is used to interpret gowns with back fullness, in gathers sweeping backward from the waist. One is in black silk taffeta, with scarlet velvet ribbon encircled around the waistline. Others are in flowered silk taffeta.

Many black tailored cocktail frocks in ankle length are shown in silk satin or silk crepe.

Orchids to You

Here's a captivating fashion that's credited to the debutantes. Orchids in the hair! When London's Mayfair began to wear these white feathers rather high in front on a ribbon band, Miss America improved on the idea by wearing three orchids on a velvet or satin head band to match the flowers. And the real flowers are far more lovely than the original feathers were.

All Around the House

Cacti plants grown in the house should be given air and light. To water set pots in a pan of water and do not remove until soil has become moist.

Apply paint remover with a brush. When paint begins to curl remove with a putty knife. Remover takes time and cannot be hurried.

When poaching eggs let water come to a full rolling boil, drop eggs into it, turn out gas and eggs will finish poaching in the boiling water.

To clean artificial fruit dip it in white soap suds several times, then rinse in clear water to which a few drops of ammonia has been added.

For roasting pork 20 to 25 minutes to the pound is required. Pork should never be roasted in a quick oven.

If hot paraffin is poured over paint left unused in a can it will not harden.

A suds made of naphtha soap and sprayed over house plants will destroy small insects that infest them.

Water should never be poured on burning fat. It will spread the blaze. Flour will extinguish the blaze.

To tighten springs in curtain rollers, hold roller firmly, put end of spring between tines of fork and turn until spring is tight.

FINDS NEED FOR TRANSLATIONS OF 'COLLEGE ENGLISH'

Uncle Tom, spending a well earned furlough in a college town after 25 years in Central America, is greatly enjoying his contact with today's youth. He casually accepts the boisterous romping of his young acquaintances, though he secretly contrasts it with the decorum of the native homes he has known so intimately. Brightly rouged lips calmly holding cigarettes do not bother him, though he has fleeting visions of the toothless feminine smokers he met in the "hill country." He refuses to be shocked at reports of "neckings," but he casts a regretful thought to the well chaperoned "senoritas" of his adopted country.

His chief delight is the notebook he is making of the "American collegiate" conversation about him; often he finds it necessary to pencil in the translation for phrases he hears. Here is a page of his latest discoveries:

"You git 'em out, pappy, you're complainin' about the flies." (Translation, "Quit your fussing or do something about it.")

"Ma's clean tucked out, she done toted four cords a wood terday." (Meaning, "You are not the only one who is busy.")

"Ach! he's in a corner, eatin' his woolly worm." (Translation, "He is angry about something.")

"What bag are you draggin' to the throw?" (Meaning, "Which girl are you taking to the party?")

On the flyleaf of the book are the words "New of today becomes Old of tomorrow?"—Kansas City Star.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin. We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

A Grave Mistake for a Mother to Make

GIVING CHILD UNKNOWN REMEDIES WITHOUT ASKING DOCTOR FIRST

GIVING your child a medicine or remedy you don't know all about—without asking your family doctor first—is a bad risk for any mother to take.

Doctors and child authorities say health, and sometimes life itself, depends on this.

So—when you're offered a "bargain" in a remedy for your child, ask your doctor before you buy it. Do this for your child's sake and your own peace of mind.

Ask him particularly about the frequently used "milk of magnesia"—about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. He will tell you that for over 60 years physicians have endorsed it as SAFE for your child. The kind of remedy you want your child to have.

Remember this when you buy, and say "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" to your druggist. Comes now, also, in tablets that taste of peppermint, that children like to take.

SHERMAN

"Do you know Tom Duffy, Pat?"
"Faith and I do. Sure, he's a near relative of mine. He once wanted to marry my sister Kate."

Clyde Wood of Detroit spent the week end at his home here.
Mrs. Jos. Schneider and Robert
Stoner were at Tawas City on busness Saturday.

Word was received here that Mrs.
Louis Frahm, formerly of this place, died at Detroit Saturday. She was buried at Turner Monday beside her husband.

Peter and Margaret Sokola and Clyde and Bernice Wood had an automobile ride Saturday night they won't forget for some time. They attended a show at Tawas City and started home about twelve o'clock in a blinding snow storm. With the temperature far below the zero mark, they became stuck in a snow drift about two miles south of Melvor.
They were fortunate to have enough gas to keep the motor running and the heater kept the car warm until after daylight, when they walked to the home of Wm. Draeger. However, the feet and hands of both girls were frozen.

We read in the Herald recently that it was so cold in Sherman 40 years ago that the mercury fell through the bottom of the thermometer and that 20 years ago it was so cold that the lights of the candles froze during the night and were used for strawberries the next morning. Sherman is still a cold place. One morning last week two fellows walking met on the road and started talking, but neither could hear what was being said. It was so cold their words froze and didn't thaw out until about noon, when another fellow, walking by the spot, couldn't make out where the talk was coming from.

There Is No Other Way

In supplying telephone service to Michigan, this Company's first concern is with the present. Above all else, the service must be good today. But to serve the present, we must be constantly preparing for the future.

To illustrate: In Detroit stands Michigan's largest long distance switchboard. It represents invested money, skilled labor and thorough engineering study. The need for this switchboard did not exist at the time plans were made for it. But a careful survey of the future had plainly indicated that such a need was coming. And when it came, this Company was perfectly equipped to handle the heavy traffic of long distance calls that flowed in and out of Michigan's great industrial areas.

The intricate mechanism behind your telephone cannot be assembled overnight, nor thrown together to meet a sudden need. It must be "built ahead." To do this intelligently—and economically—requires an intensive engineering survey of such factors as shifts in population, industrial developments and trends in real estate. The neglect of these preparations could be as wasteful as building a bridge accommodating a single lane of traffic, only to find later that additional lanes are imperative.

It is not a mere academic theory that this policy of building for the future is the only way to provide high-grade telephone service. Experience has repeatedly demonstrated that there is no other way.

Senator Borah Throws His Hat in the Republican Ring—Administration's Revamped Farm Bill Introduced—Farley Assails Liberty League.

WILLIAM E. BORAH, the liberal Republican senator from Idaho, is now a full fledged candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

He formally put himself in the running by announcing that he would enter the primary in Ohio which will be held May 12. That state requires that the candidate shall declare himself in writing, and this Mr. Borah said he would do.

The senator's statement follows:

"After a thorough survey of the Ohio situation I am convinced that the people of that state should be given an opportunity to express their choice in the Presidential primary on May 12. Under the so-called 'favorite son' plan this privilege is denied them.

"To obtain an expression of popular will it is my intention to place at least eight candidates or delegates at large in the field.

"I shall make a number of speeches in Ohio and present the issues as I see them."

It is understood by his friends that the senator will make a contest for delegates in almost every state having a preference primary. He says the G. O. P. conventions have been dominated by the old conservative leaders through the operations of the "favorite son" scheme and this control he intends to destroy if possible. It is his opinion that only a liberal Republican can defeat President Roosevelt next fall, and few will deny that he is the outstanding liberal in his party.

IN HIS press conference President Roosevelt announced that a billion dollars' worth of lending authorized by acts of congress would not be carried out. For example, the Home Owners' Loan corporation has passed on nearly all proposed loans and will not need between 500 million and a billion dollars, the President declared. Applications for HOLC loans closed last June 27. Outstanding loans of the agency amount to near 2 billion 900 million dollars.

HEADS of various government agencies concerned with housing have submitted to the President a nationwide, low cost program based on cheap federal loans to local communities. According to authoritative sources, this undertaking would contemplate:

1. A long-range building program.
 2. Interest rates perhaps as low as 1 per cent on federal loans.
 3. Construction of facilities for as many as one million families.
- Full control of management and condemnation proceedings would be lodged with local officials under the plan, the aim being to decentralize activities from Washington.

CONFORMING to the request of the President, both senate and house passed measures repealing the cotton, tobacco and potato control acts. In the house nine radicals and John J. O'Connor of New York voted "no" as a protest against the Supreme court after Marcantonio of New York had delivered a violent attack on that tribunal.

Following this action, the senate agriculture committee rewrote and introduced the administration's substitute farm bill. The revamped measure provides that the federal government would make grants to the states just as is done now under the roads act. The states in turn would designate some agency, to be approved by the secretary of agriculture, to distribute the money to individual farmers. This money would be distributed on a formula taking into consideration:

- Acreage of crops.
- Acreage of soil improving or erosion preventing crops.
- Changes in farming practices.
- Percentage of the normal production of any one or more agriculture commodities designated by the secretary of agriculture, which equals that percentage of the normal national production of the commodity.

EVERY Presidential possibility these days must have some plan for the salvation of the American farmer, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, often mentioned for the Republican nomination, now brings out his permanent farm program which he says would divorce the farm problem from "bureaucratic control" in Washington. His plan would embrace erosion control, soil conservation, and restoration of fertility of lands. Administration would be handled jointly by the states and the federal government in a manner similar to highway construction.

The Dickinson program, similar to that advocated by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, includes payment of the balance due signers of AAA contracts, a higher tariff on farm products, continued corn loans, and extension of farm mortgages at a low rate of interest.

INFLATIONISTS in congress, led by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma and Representative Patman of Texas, were all prepared to wage a great battle to force the printing of new money. They were just waiting for the introduction of a new tax program, declaring they would try to block such legislation if it were attempted. It was believed that, if the tax issue were not raised soon, the fight would start over the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgaging re-financing bill.

The forces behind this bill, which calls for the refinancing of farm indebtedness on easy terms through the issuance of up to $3,000,000,000 in new money, had succeeded in getting 215 signatures on a petition to force a vote in the house. Only 218 were needed and its backers were pressing for the three names.

Administration leaders were confident they could defeat the inflationists by a wide margin.

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan has grave doubts of the economic necessity or value of the ship canal that is being dug across central Florida, and offered in the senate commerce committee a resolution for investigation by a special committee. In support of his move he produced letters from eleven companies operating steamships saying they would not use the canal even if no tolls were charged. They asserted the expense of employing canal pilots added to the risk of damage to ships would offset saving in navigation costs.

Work was started some time ago on the canal, which, if completed, will cost between $140,000,000 and $200,000,000.

TWO attacks on the American Liberty league were made in one day. The strongest was by Postmaster General Farley who spoke at a Roosevelt dinner in Miami, Fla.

"The Liberty league," said Farley, "would ruin America. It would squeeze the worker dry in his old age and cast him like an orange rind into the refuse pail. It would continue the infamous policy of using the agencies of government to create a plutocracy that would perpetuate the sorry business of the Mellons and the Morgans in reducing 95 per cent of the people to the status of serfs at the mercy of the exploiters at the top."

"The American Liberty league speaks as conclusively for the reactionaries and their party as do Mr. Hoover, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' association."

"Its program is frankly plutocratic and asks for the rule of money over men, as during the 12 years before Roosevelt's administration."

"It demands that workers and farmers be 'put in their places' and made to understand that they are mere hewers of wood and carriers of water."

"Its idea of the 'American way' is to maintain a system under which all the wealth of the nation was being concentrated in the hands of a very few—5 per cent of the people."

At their convention in Washington the United Mine Workers also took a crack at the Liberty league, adopting a resolution denouncing the organization as "inimical to the interests and people of the United States."

FIVE of the members of the new federal reserve board were inducted into office with due ceremony. A sixth, Ralph W. Morrison of Texas, was to arrive later and be sworn in.

The seventh member had not yet been named by President Roosevelt. Marriner S. Eccles, appointed chairman, and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago, were holdovers. The others besides Morrison are Ronald Ransom, Atlanta banker; John McKee of Ohio, former chief bank examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Joseph A. Proderick of New York.

The reserve board, which has been called "a supreme court of banking," has powers unparalleled in American financial history. Among these is authority to double present margins that member banks are required to maintain against deposits; the dominant voice on the open-market committee—which charts the system's participation in the government bond market, and over which it had no authority under the former law; power of veto over the heads of the various reserve banks which insures the selection of a president who will co-operate with the board, and the power to fix margins governing relations between banks and brokers.

WILHELM GUSTLOFF, Nazi leader in Switzerland, was assassinated in Davos by David Frankfurter, son of a rabbi and a native of Jugoslavia who told the police he acted on no one's orders and was not connected with any political group. The German government immediately sent to Switzerland a strong protest, stressing that Berlin has often warned the Swiss government of the "dangers of anti-Nazi agitation by the liberal and Marxist press." The net result of the murder is likely to be bad for the Jews, for they may find that Switzerland will not be the hospitable haven for refugees that it has been in the past.

To reduce the danger of clashes between Jews and militant Nazis, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, prohibited all meetings of Jewish cultural associations.

UNITED Mine Works of America, in convention in Washington, shouted boisterous defiance at William Green's plea that they drop their campaign for industrial organization.

The A. F. of L. president opened his speech before the 1,700 delegates from the coal pits with a plea for co-operation to prevent a split in the ranks of American labor. The A. F. of L., which favors the craft (or skilled worker) unions, had ordered the miners, led by John L. Lewis, to abandon their committee working for industrial unions.

But as he warmed up to his subject, Mr. Green clashed more directly with the views of the miners and their committee working for industrial unions. Remarks changed to boos and shouts of opposition.

When Lewis arose to reply to Green he was given the support of almost every delegate in the hall.

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, co-ordinator of transportation, is trying to wipe out an estimated annual waste of $50,000,000 in railroad terminal operations, and announced that he would soon order the unification of terminal facilities in eleven cities. This, he figures, will save the affected railroads at least $800,000 annually. Mr. Eastman had tried unsuccessfully to have the carriers make the changes voluntarily.

The unifications will be ordered at Worcester, Mass.; Mechanicsville, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Montgomery, Ala.; Meridian, Miss.; Freeport, Ill.; Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, Iowa; Beaumont, Texas, and Ogden, Utah.

After the first group of orders, Eastman said that, if necessary, he was prepared to compel "other steps of increasing magnitude," but would "stand aside if railroads are able to produce their own momentum."

Unless extended by congress, Eastman's office will expire in June. He has recommended that it be continued at least five years.

ON ORDERS from Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, further investigation of the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder case has been started. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, assigned two of his star detectives for the inquiry, and has enlisted the aid of federal investigating agencies and the New York police.

The governor wants the investigation to be painstaking and thorough. The reprieve which he granted Hauptmann will expire on February 15. After that date at least four weeks, and perhaps five, will elapse before the date for the execution which will be ordered by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided over the trial.

The governor believes that by that time his power of reprieve will have expired in this case, and he will not grant another unless Attorney General David T. Wilentz concurs. Unless new developments warrant it, the attorney general will not agree to further delay in the execution.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, former British prime minister who, together with President Wilson and Clemenceau, was largely responsible for the re-making of the map of the world after the war, now admits that work was not wisely done. Rising in parliament to support a resolution by Lansburg, Laborite, urging Britain to call a world conference to deal with the causes of war, Lloyd George said:

"I do not believe there will be peace in the world until you consider the colonial mandates granted at the conclusion of the World war, when Germany's colonies were split up. Belgium got the best part of German East Africa and the whole of the Congo, Portugal and Holland each got millions of square miles. These countries have tropical territories. On the other hand you have Germany with none, Italy with practically none."

The house of commons rejected the proposal, however, passing instead an amendment expressing confidence that the national government is taking all practical steps possible for the promotion of international prosperity and a better understanding among all peoples.

WILHELM GUSTLOFF, Nazi leader in Switzerland, was assassinated in Davos by David Frankfurter, son of a rabbi and a native of Jugoslavia who told the police he acted on no one's orders and was not connected with any political group. The German government immediately sent to Switzerland a strong protest, stressing that Berlin has often warned the Swiss government of the "dangers of anti-Nazi agitation by the liberal and Marxist press." The net result of the murder is likely to be bad for the Jews, for they may find that Switzerland will not be the hospitable haven for refugees that it has been in the past.

To reduce the danger of clashes between Jews and militant Nazis, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, prohibited all meetings of Jewish cultural associations.

WHETHER an oil embargo against Italy could be made effective was the knotty problem confronting a League of Nations committee of experts that met in Geneva. About a dozen countries were represented, but Poland refused to take part on the ground that it exports no oil to Italy, but only to Czechoslovakia.

League authorities said the investigation into practical possibilities of enforcing an oil embargo against Italy, in addition to the present war penalties, was likely to center to a large degree on the attitude of the United States.

Vice President Dallas also played an important part in the annexation of the Texas republic as a state.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

THE HUNTING SEASON ENDS

The very worst things come to an end at last. No matter how bad a thing is, it cannot last forever. So it was with the hunting season for Lightfoot the Deer. There came a day when the law once more protected all deer, a day when the hunters could no longer go searching for Lightfoot.

Usually there was great rejoicing among the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows when the hunting season ended and they knew that Lightfoot would be in no more danger until the next hunting season. But this year there was no rejoicing. You see, no one could find Lightfoot. The last seen of him was when he was running for his life with two hounds baying on his trail and the Green Forest filled with hunters watching for a chance to shoot him.

"I Tell You What It Is," Said Sammy Jay to Bobby Coon, "Something Has Happened to Lightfoot."

Sammy Jay had hunted everywhere through the Green Forest. Blacky the Crow, whose eyes are quite as sharp as those of Sammy Jay, had joined in the search. They had found no trace of Lightfoot. Paddy the Beaver said that for three days Lightfoot had not visited his pond for a drink. Billy Mink, who travels up and down the Laughing Brook, had looked for Lightfoot's footprints in the soft earth along the banks and had found only old ones. Jumper the Hare had visited Lightfoot's favorite eating places at night, but Lightfoot had not been in any of them.

"I tell you what it is," said Sammy Jay to Bobby Coon, "something has happened to Lightfoot. Either those hounds caught him and killed him or he was shot by one of those hunters. The Green Forest will never be the same without him. I don't think I shall want to come over here very much. There isn't one of all the other people who live in the Green Forest who would be missed as Lightfoot will be."

Bobby Coon nodded. "That's true, Sammy," said he. "Without Lightfoot the Green Forest will never be the same. He never harmed anybody. Why those hunters should have been so anxious to kill one so beautiful is something I cannot understand. For that matter, I don't understand why they want to kill any of us. If they really needed us for food it would be a different matter, but they don't. Have you been up in the Old Pasture and asked Old Man Coyote if he has seen anything of Lightfoot?"

Sammy nodded. "I've been up there twice," said he. "Old Man Coyote has been lying very low during the days, but nights he has done a lot of traveling. You know, Old Man Coyote has a mighty good nose, but not once since the day those hounds chased Lightfoot has he found so much as a tiny whiff of Lightfoot's scent. I thought he might have found the place where Lightfoot was killed, but he hasn't, although he has looked for it. Well, the hunting season for Lightfoot is over, but I am afraid it has ended too late."

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

USING LEFTOVERS

PERHAPS a glance at what other cooks have done with the leftovers of feasts will help to use those that are daily problems in most homes. Chicken is the one meat that is not hard to serve in left-over dishes. A cupful will make a delightful salad mixed with tender celery, and less than a cupful, mixed with crumbs and seasoning, will stuff tomatoes or peppers. The following is a good recipe to keep on hand:

Stuffed Peppers.

Slice from the stem end of each pepper, making a cup, removing the seeds and white fiber. Parboil the peppers in boiling water five minutes, then drain and chill. For six peppers use the following: Two tablespoonfuls of minced onion cooked in three tablespoonfuls of oil, add one and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs and one-fourth of a cupful of minced chicken. Season with salt and pepper and add one-half cupful of stock. Mix well, stuff the peppers, place them in a little water in gem pans to bake. Cover the tops with buttered crumbs and when they are well browned the peppers will be ready to serve.

White Sauce That's Different.

Take one and one-half tablespoonfuls of corn oil, one tablespoonful of minced onion, cook until yellow, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a cupful of milk. Cook until smooth and thick and serve with any leftover vegetable.

Creamed Chicken.

Take two tablespoonfuls of olive oil or any vegetable oil, add a tablespoonful of minced onion, cook three minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, stir until well blended, then add one and one-half cupfuls of top milk or thin cream, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg, a dash of cayenne and paprika. Add two cupfuls of minced chicken. Serve on toast or in bread cases. A dash of currant jelly is an improvement.

ROLY POLY GOLF BALL

THIS is a dinner table trick that will startle all who witness it. The feat is performed with an ordinary golf ball, which the magician places on the table.

Making mysterious passes, he causes the ball to roll along the tablecloth, traveling in a most uncanny fashion. Anyone may lift the ball and examine it.

The motive power is furnished by a strong thread that runs beneath the tablecloth. On the end of the thread is a small metal ring, which the tablecloth hides. It is upon this hidden ring that the wizard places the golf ball.

While his right hand makes its mystic passes, the magician uses his left to draw the thread, which makes the ball roll in a most natural fashion. The trick is made most effective by having a confederate pull the thread from the opposite side of the table. In this case the ball will roll away from the magician.

The Luxury of Crime

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE taxbill's here (it comes each year along about this time). A bill for what? Well, quite a lot will go to pay for crime. No goods we take, no laws we break, no evil path pursue, We tote no guns—we're jost the ones who pay for those who do. We need no bail, police or jail, no courthouse on the square Where men are tried, but those outside must pay for people there. In cells they sit and do their bit and think it quite a chore, And put away three meals a day that we are paying for.

We're just the great (in ev'ry state) majority of men Who day and night live fairly right, without police or pen. We need no laws or courts, because we never climb a wall— We could go on from dawn to dawn without a law at all. In mills we toil, or plow the soil, a living try to win, Give little time to thoughts of crime —and then the bill comes in. I sometimes think that those who wink at crime have failed to see, To folks like us who labor thus, It's just a luxury.

Whale Can Be Drowned

A whale can be drowned if it cannot obtain oxygen; some species cannot remain under the surface for more than an hour at a time, while others, like the great orca whale, can remain submerged for 12 hours.

France Has a Plane Without Wings

WITHOUT wings and with propellers doing double duty, this new gyroplane presents an unusual sight indeed. The propellers not only act in windmill fashion to sustain the craft in the air, but they also propel it. The plane is equipped with a Hispano motor and was piloted by Maurice Claisse in extensive tests.

Great Lakes

Business and Pleasure Craft Pass on the Great Lakes.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

BELIEVE it or not, the Great Lakes of North America contain half the fresh water on earth; enough to cover the continental United States 10 to 18 feet deep, or to fill a 30 foot ship canal from here to the sun!

Africa's largest lake, Victoria Nyanza, would cover most of Lake Superior, but it would take 71 Victorias to fill it. Asia's premier lake, the Aral sea, is a bit larger than Lake Huron, but it would take four Arals to fill one Huron. Two Lake Baikals would scarcely reach beyond the edges of Lake Michigan, although they would contain nearly three times as much water.

If they only lay there, basking in the sun or raging with storms, our inland seas would be impressive. But they have served America as no inland sea has served another land. At every corner of the Great Lakes, and because of them, busy cities have risen. On the banks of a hundred tiny creeks commerce has planted its loading piers or elevators.

Our bridges crossed our lakes as ore before they crossed a river. Scarcely a skyscraper whose framework has not allowed in the swell of our "Big Sea Water" before combing our urban skies. The story of our Great Lakes is one of unbelievably cheap freight rates, of marvelously active freighters, of fur and lumber, iron and grain.

Early Route to the Midwest.

In the days when the principal crop of America was cold-bred fur, the St. Lawrence was the gateway to our Midwest. While the English were seeking the Northwest passage to the alluring Orient and colonists along the Atlantic were consolidating their position against the wilderness, French voyagers and missionaries were following stream and portage to the heart of America.

Colonization was caught between sea and mountain. Exploration paddled its swift canoes on lakes and rivers.

Fur was the incentive, and temporal or spiritual empire the dream. Of Nicolet, Joliet, Marquette, and La Salle, to whom the watershed between the Great Lakes and the wide Mississippi basin was familiar while the British were still settling the seacoast. As early as 1700 one could ride horseback from Portland, Maine, to Richmond, Va., sleeping each night in a village. But the Appalachian barrier held. Meanwhile the French, more nomadic, were spread thinly over a tremendous inland empire.

In 1803 most of this land became ours through the Louisiana purchase, and the vast territory which fur trade and Indian alliances had won for France gave trans-Appalachian colonization new impetus. For a little less than four cents an acre the young American republic acquired rich agricultural lands stretching to the headwaters of the Missouri and the Yellowstone.

Around the lakes, fur ceded its primary place to grain or lumber. Hiawatha's "forest primeval" crashed before Paul Bunyan's saw and ax. Hills of sawdust began to rise like sand dunes, and countless jig-saw verandas embraced American homes.

Buffalo an Aquatic City.

At the northern end of the lakes whole rust-red mountains of ore stood ready for the steam shovels. Coal moved north and iron south, a combination providing profitable return cargoes. Wherever a creek reached the south shore of Lake Erie, coal and ore were tossed back and forth by car tipples and "clamshell."

Protected from early traffic competition by the Niagara falls, which were later to furnish its light and power, Buffalo, rich inland port, stands at the east end of the upper lakes and the west end of the only convenient break in the Appalachians. Superlatives, which swarm around the Great Lakes, live at Buffalo.

This favored spot no more suggests the bison than Rome does Romulus or Syracuse Sicily. And, had an Indian interpreter not made a mistake, it would have been called "Beaver," a startling but suitable name for this busy creek-side port.

A dozen railways now obscure the fact that Buffalo is not a creature of the plains but an aquatic city, founded on the creek that still sustains it. Its real greatness began on October 26, 1825, when the Seneca Chief started down the 4-foot-deep Erie canal. The news of its departure thundered by cannonfire from Buffalo to New York 500 miles in 90 minutes—shots which, like those of the Minutemen, were heard around the world.

On November 4, 1825, the canal-boat flotilla arrived at Sandy Hook, where Governor Clinton poured Lake Erie water into the Atlantic near New York city, which "Clinton's Ditch" was to lift to the position of America's premier port.

Connected With the Gulf.

On June 22, 1833, at Chicago, salt water from the Gulf of Mexico was blended with Lake Michigan water when a flotilla of Mississippi river barges, bearing spices, coffee, and sugar, arrived at Lake Michigan. Bascule bridges, pointing like howitzers at the tall-spired phalanx of skyscrapers, aroused the raucous protests of a chorus of klaxons, and pseudo-Indian war-whoops sounded over the busy waters beside which lonely Port Dearborn first rose on a swampy shore.

The 9-foot channel does today what river and glacier did more than once in the past—links the Great Lakes with the Gulf. St. Louis has become an export port for northern wheat. It took 260 years for Joliet's dream of a Lakes-to-Gulf waterway to come true, although Lake Michigan water has flowed into the Mississippi basin since 1871.

Try to force your way through underbrush or struggle along on foot beneath such a burden as is easily carried in a light canoe, and you will realize why the French penetrated this continent by following Indian guides upon its rivers.

Canals extended the natural waterways. Then wagon wheels overrode the objections raised by the owners of pack horses and railways won their share. The motorcar, bringing broad, smooth highways, set the tax-collecting filling station in the place of tollgates, and passenger car and truck invaded the steel-webbed empire of the Iron Horse. The Panama canal, opened in time to do its bit in the World war, brought our coasts together.

The new Welland canal and the Illinois waterway are additional transport factors in a region where motor manufacturers, having vied with steam engines, now face competitive traffic problems involving railways, lake steamers, truckways, new car convoys, and widely distributed assembly plants.

Four Routes to Tidewater.

Four routes to tidewater now exist: the Illinois waterway, with a 9-foot channel; the New York state barge canal and its branch to Oswego, both with a depth of 12 feet; and the St. Lawrence canals, in which there are 14 feet of water. The deepest artificial link is the new Welland canal, which not only has 30 feet of water on the sills of its spectacular locks, but also accomplishes the steepest lift—326½ feet in 25 miles.

Even before the war occasional tramp steamers entered the Great Lakes from tidewater, and today ocean bottoms are no novelty. In 1933 over a hundred steamers from overseas ports brought in codliver oil, canned fish, and merchandise from Europe to Detroit, and departed with pitch, wood pulp, and motorcars.

Shiploads of automobiles have been sent direct from Detroit to London and Hamburg. Rumanian oil, coming direct from the Black sea, competes with American gasoline in Detroit. Ships regularly sail from the River Rouge to ocean ports around the world. The economic balance beam is seldom at rest.

Buffalo, welcoming western grain and sending back return cargoes of immigrants and pioneers, helped feed the East with bread and the West with brains and brawn. While retaining its pre-eminence in the transfer of grain, it has since become our milling metropolis.

Slide alongside a grain wharf beside Buffalo creek, and close-built bastions of cement silos, rising to heaven, obscure the view. From a plane a grain elevator looks like a prison wall, barring the river from the rails. This is pure illusion. Through Buffalo's elevators the golden flood of grain pours like water.

ENDING THE WAR

By PROF. GILBERT MURRAY
I SEE with astonishment a tendency in some political circles to depreciate any further action by the League to bring the Ethiopian war to an end on the ground that Italy is sure to be defeated in the long run and that the Ethiopians, the rains and the mountains between them may safely be trusted to do the League's job. This policy seems to me entirely to miss the point at issue. The question is not whether Italy can beat Ethiopia or Ethiopia beat Italy; it is whether the League can be trusted to put an end to an aggressive war.

As a practical policy, this plan of letting the war drag on seems to me about the worst conceivable. It inflicts a maximum of distress and social danger on the Italian nation and a maximum of prolonged war and suffering on the Ethiopians. It would show the League to be a body without either courage or conscience and betray the whole principle of collective security.

A CRISIS FOR AMERICA

By JAMES P. WARBURG
THE year 1936 will be more than the ordinary Presidential year. It will be a year of far-reaching decision for this country. And, more than that, I am convinced that the decision which the American people will make at the polls next autumn will have an important bearing not only upon our own history but upon the history of many other countries.

We are the world's outstanding example of a constitutional democracy. Upon our success or failure may well depend the future of the democratic principle of government throughout western civilization. And our success or failure as a constitutional democracy may easily hinge upon the outcome of the elections which we shall hold this autumn.

CAPITALISM ON TRIAL

By HENRY A. WALLACE
IT SEEMS to me that a universally appealing economic formula might read somewhat as follows: Our national economic goal must be increased balanced production of the things which people really need and want (1) at prices low enough so consumers can buy, but high enough so producers can keep on producing, and with income so distributed that no one is shut off from participation in consumption, except those who refuse to work; (2) with scrupulous regard for the conservation of our remaining natural resources, and (3) by means characteristic of our traditional democratic processes.

I would like to ask those classical economists who have defended the capitalistic system, as it has come down to us out of the past, if they would agree with me that the strongest criticism which can be made of it is that it has permitted and encouraged the ruthless and rapid exploitation of our natural resources without regard to the future.

Those who would drive at an excessive rate of speed must expect to pay for the privilege, judging from tests conducted by the American Automobile association. Different makes of cars were tested at various speeds, and the ratio of gas and oil consumption speed was found to be about the same. School Notes

High School

The Seniors who are taking advanced English and have successfully given orations will introduce a new type of speech activity when they participate in an extempore speaking contest Thursday, February 20. The contestants have been diligently studying conservation and Theodore Roosevelt, the two subjects chosen by the association. About an hour before the contest begins, the participants will draw two topics on each subject, choose one, and prepare a speech to be given at the end of the allotted time. Although brief notes may be used, extensive use of them is discouraged. Regardless of the outcome, the Seniors who will take part are to be commended for their efforts to make the first extempore speaking contest a success.

Due to the large number of pupils in the oratorical contest this year, the class has been divided into two groups. The girls will give their orations on Thursday afternoon, February 20, and the boys will give theirs on Friday afternoon, February 21. Two from each group will be chosen to compete for honors in the local contest.

Believing that a little knowledge of declamatory work would be useful next year, the Freshmen voted to engage in a contest in which each pupil will give a brief declamation about George Washington. The winner of this contest will give his declamation at a George Washington program which is being planned.

The bridge party which the Seniors gave last Thursday evening at the American Legion billet was very successful. The amount of money earned, after paying for expenses, was approximately $11.35.

The faculty of our school had a one-hundred per cent attendance at the county institute which was held in the high school assembly room last Friday, and also at the sub-district banquet of the AuSable district which was held at the Lakeside Tavern in the evening.

The Seniors have decided to give a progressive pedro party at the Legion billet on Friday evening, February 21. This will be managed much like the usual bridge party, except that pedro will be played rather than bridge.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
Sickness and the severe weather have lowered our percentage of attendance.

The pupils in our room are enjoying the following new books: City of Adventure, The Red Roan Pony, Grains of Wheat, Boss Elephant, and Keeper of the Wolves. These books were purchased with library money.

Third and Fourth Grades
Dora Hughes, Marian Bing, Harry Rollin and Jimmie Prescott are absent due to illness.

The third graders memorized the poem, "Our Flag," and the fourth graders memorized "Sing a Song of Lincoln" for the language lessons.

The fourth grade people are studying about the Mediterranean countries in geography.
Gay Young moved to Bay City.

that the Michigan Education Association under its new constitution is planning to solve if possible. The work of this organization is for the interest of education in Michigan. If it is to reach its highest aims it needs the help of all interested in this work.

Mrs. Osgerby gave some excellent reasons as to why we should study the subject of teacher tenure much more than we have been doing. Because of the uncertainty of positions and salaries many of our best teachers have had to leave the profession and others are unable to do their best work even though they are fortunate enough to secure a position.

Mr. Clifford briefly reviewed the work of the Teachers' Retirement Fund Board. He gave an excellent picture of conditions as they are and pointed out the things that need our attention if we wish to have the law improved. The board now sends annuities to many Michigan teachers who are entitled to them.

There were about forty people in attendance at this gathering and they seemed to feel that this new organization would be of real benefit. All teachers are welcome at any meeting and those interested in their work should join as soon as possible.

Enforcement of Immigration Laws

Enforcement of the immigration laws involves two general phases, namely, inspecting all aliens who apply for entry and either admitting or excluding them, and deporting those who enter illegally, or who become deportable because of acts or conditions which occur after entry.

No Indian Name for America

There was no universal Indian name for America before Europeans gave it that name. The Indians were of many tribes and nations, speaking many languages. They had no idea of the extent of the two continents and most of them knew only a few of their neighboring tribes. Tribes had local names for the regions in which they lived, and often other tribes had other names for the same territory.

City Named for Vice President

The only Vice President of the United States to enjoy the distinction of having a large city named in his honor was George Mifflin Dallas, who was President Polk's running mate in 1844. Later he was appointed by President Buchanan minister to England. He was the able son of an able father, Alexander James Dallas, secretary of the treasury under James Madison.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
