Because of circumscribed limits the decision was much narrower than most of the New Deal findings of the Supreme court. It was limited strictly to the terms of the contract on which the suit was brought, namely, acquisition by TVA of a transmission line to convey power from the Wilson

Certain phases are still open for possible legal contest in the future, and only Wilson dam, not Norris dam or any other dam constructed or projected on the Tennessee river was involved in the court's finding.

The legal right of the federal government to acquire and own transmission lines to a market for surplus energy-never before directly passed upon by the United States Supreme court-was ruled upon in the affirmative. Unanswered is the question of what constitutes surplus power.

Among the chief points in the ma jority opinion were these:

Congress has undisputed power to order disposal of electricity developed

The government acted legally in building or obtaining through purchase from private companies certain transmission lines to transport power to a wider market.

The government has the same right to dispose of surplus power as it would have to dispose of copper, gold, and minerals on public lands.

Justice McResnolds in answer to this said:

"If under the thin mask of disposing of property the United States can enter the business of generating, transmitting and selling power, as, when and wherever, some board may specify, with the definite design to accomplish ends wholly beyond the sphere marked out for them by the Constitution, an easy way has been found for breaking down the limitations heretofore supposed to guarantee protection against aggression.

Attacked by Republicans as a subterfuge to get around the Supreme court AAA decision, and frankly conceded by Democrats to be a measure indirectly continuing control of farm production, the soil erosion bill would accomplish its objective as follows:

The secretary of agriculture would be empowered to make benefit payments to farmers who voluntarily cooperate with the government's suggestions on retiring certain land from production to conserve its fertility. Payments would be determined on four

1. Acreage of crop land.

2. Acreage of soil improving crops. 3 Changes in farming practices.

4. Percentage of normal farm pro duction which equals that percentage of normal national production of farm commodities required for domestic consumption.

This arrangement would be limited to two years. It would be replaced by a system of 48 individual state AAA's to regulate production, with the federal government apportioning funds to the states, instead of to farmers. The senate bill provides the state systems may be set up at any time during the next two years.

Gen. Badoglio youm. The Italians were left in full possession of the fertile and strategic Enderto region and in control of the passes in the Tembien region.

After six days of encircling operations. during which torrential rains bogged the field of battle and heavy clouds enabled the Ethiopians to make invisible movements, the March 23 division of blackshirts planted the flew from Minneapolis through a storm | Italian flag on the mist-veiled high summit of Aradam, completing that particular operation. They then had a clear path to Amba Alagia, 18 miles further south, and it was presumed that the taking of that mountain would mark the cessation of activities because of the coming March rains.

It was estimated that in this battle more than 6,000 Ethiopians had been killed and many times that number wounded. The Italian casualties were not announced but they undoubtedly were not light. Only white Italians participated in the fighting.

CONSIDERABLE interest was aroused in Europe by the publication in a Rome newspaper of a "secret" report made by a British commission appointed in the spring of 1935 "to study British interests in Ethiopia."

The commission reported that it found no outstanding British interests in Ethiopia "of sufficient importance to justify his majesty's government in resisting Italian conquest in Ethiopia." It declared, however, that steps should be taken to safeguard British interests in Lake Tsana, source of the Blue Nile.

O NE of the most spectacular and dynamic figures in American life of today passed with the death of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell in a New York hospital. He succumbed to a heart attack and influenza at the age of fiftyseven years. "Billy," as he was known to airmen, was commander in chief of the American air forces in France during the World war and was decorated by six governments. Afterward, while yet in the regular service, he severely criticized the government's air preparedness policy and was courtmartialed and suspended. Immediately resigning, he devoted himself to lecturing and writing to further his demands for a separate department of aviation in the cabinet, combining both any and navy air defense.

THE War department bill, appropriating approximately 545 million dollars for "national defense," was passed by the house. For purely military purposes the sum of $376,866,333 is allotted. The remainder, $168,359,985, goes for rivers and harbors projects, generally classed as "pork." An attempt to put back into the bill a $29,000,000 appropriation for carrying on such projects as the Passamaquoddy tidal power experiment in Maine and the Florida ship canal was suppressed firmly. Not until congress has authorized these projects will more funds be provided them, the leaders

The military budget provided by the bill will be sufficient to maintain an average army of 147,000 men during the coming year. By 1939, according to the War department, the maximum of 165,000 permitted by congress should be reached.

The most important amendment added to the bill was one providing for the employment each year of 1,000 reserve officers on active duty for a 12month period, of whom 50 will be annually commissioned in the regular

A CTING on behalf of the senate finance committee, Senator Byrnes consulted the executive department and then introduced an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill to provide $1,746,000,000 to cash the veterans' bonus. He predicted that it would require no new taxes. The sum mentioned will be sufficient, Byrnes said, together with the 254 million dollars now in the adjusted service certificate fund, to pay in full every outstanding bonus certificate.

In addition to appropriating the cash, the Byrnes amendment would transfer 507 million dollars in bonds to the United States government life insurance fund to repay loans on bonus certificates.

and logical question New Farm is, what does it

Relief Law mean? A parallel question is, what will it do? And, among the cold and nonpartisan analysts of the Washington field one also hears a third question, namely, is the sponsorship of any of the numerous farm plans, Republican or Democratic, sincere?

Congress, for the sake of its political hide, is anxious to do right by agriculture. It is attempting to supplant the invalidated Agricultural Adjustment act with a law about which its indi vidual campaigning members can talk, to which they can point with pride. But there are other and unofficial farm plans bobbing up here, there and everywhere. It seems to be the open season for proposals to aid agriculture. Few, if any, of them are grounded completely in sound practice. Each of them ought to be conceded commendation for some of the provisions they include. None of them, including that which is backed by the New Dealers, is going to completely solve the farm problem because we are going to have the farm problem with us for next year and the next and a good many years thereafter whether we like it or not.

The tragedy of the current situation is that the farm relief plans, taken individually or collectively, constitute-I was going to say a mess and on second thought I believe that is the most appropriate word that can be used. Throughout the administration's proposal for aid to agriculture and permeating every other proposal that has been put forward, whether by statesmen or panacea promoters, one can find a splendid collection of objectives that cancel each other. I mean exactly that, Recognizing the breadth of the statement I have just made, evidence seems to be necessary. Let us look at these various plans, or certainly at the one that is scheduled to take the place of

First, the administration proposes to take something like five hundred million dollars each year

Purpose from taxpayers in one form or another Is O. K. to use for benefit payments to farmers. It proposes to use these funds to save the soil, to prevent further carrying away of productive elements in our soil by continued cropping. New Dealers describe the purpose as prevention of erosion.

With that purpose, it seems to me there can be no quarrel. Ever since the successive portions of our country were settled and the forest coverings removed, soil has been subject to erosion by rain, by flood and by wind. The Department of Agriculture says that the top soil of probably fifty million acres has been destroyed in that manner. It would seem, then, that it was high time our government was finding ways to stop it.

Admitting the soundness of this phase of the program, one then must turn to another phase that is not written into law but results from it. If the fertility of soil is improved, is it not natural then that there should be an increase in production? And if there is an increase in production, is it not logical further that we may find ourselves developing a huge surplus of commodities from the farm-and with no foreign market? The answer obviously is, ves.

So, we find these two circumstances in the administration farm bill, proposed, even driven, by that group of New Dealers who, until a few months ago, were declaring here, there and everywhere that to maintain price we must have scarcity of production. That theory was basic in the AAA and was carried out to the furthest by Secretory Wallace and Administrator Chester Davis.

I know of no one with a superintelligence sufficient to enable him to picture the result of this combination nor have I heard any argument that was convincing to me, reconciling the previous policy under AAA with that now projected in the new farm relief

There seems to be no doubt among students of the farm problem that a subsidy, whether by Must Pay that name or some trick phrase, for ag-Benefits

riculture cannot be avoided. Some way, somehow, money is going to be taken out of the federal treasury to pay benfits, subsidies. to the farm population. I do not know whether anyone can predict where such a policy will lead as a long-term national program. Political figures seem to be content with a temporary solution, something to get farm votes. In all of the debate that has moved through the ventilators of the house and senate chambers, discussion of the farm problem on a long-term basis has been noticeably absent.

This fact is just as true when anti-New Deal farm programs are subjected to a searching analysis as is the administration's plan itself. It applies to the proposal of an export bounty, offered by Senator McNary, senate Republican leader; to the plan of George Peek, former AAA administrator, to elief law on the way. The natural Borah, Idaho Republican Presidential prospect or to the ideas advanced by Senator Dickinson, Iowa Republican or any of the others.

> Since it seems established that the subsidy idea will and must be kept as a part of any farm policy, the problem is narrowed down to the question of how it will be administered. Each plan provides machinery-political jobs-for administration. That fact, however, would seem to guarantee inefficiency rather than efficiency in administration. Each of the plans obviously must reach into nearly every county in the United States and the experience gained from AAA administration forces the conclusion, regretful as it is, that no efficient means for administration has been suggested.

> An unbiased investigation of the whole situation, as far as I have been able to make it, prompts me to say that until partisan politics is eliminated from farm relief considerations. farm aid is going to continue in a mess. Perhaps it is a character of our system of government that the condition exists, but whatever the reason may be, I am convinced that there ought to be a distinction between the giving of a subsidy as such and the giving of a subsidy to accomplish other purposes. I mean by that if we are to have a subsidy, let us not get it all mangled up with a lot of prescribed conditions which bind the farmer hand and foot. I am one of those who believe that the average farmer is better equipped to solve his own problem than are his professional leaders who call themselves heads of farm organizations or the politicians who prate about the farmer and think only in the terms of his voting number. So I say until the farm problem can be senarated from politics and until it can be separated from theories of regimentation and crop-control and binding the farmer by a lot of conditions, there will not be any effective solution for the farm problem.

Several years ago, when the present work-relief policy was young, a reader wrote me a rather Grafters Take critical letter be-Their Toll cause I made the statement that

crookedness was bound to crop into administration of the relief programs. My prediction was predicated not upon any clairvoyance or ability as a soothsayer but upon a knowledge of the difficulty that necessarily harasses the management of a far-flung organization. It was predicated as well on an understanding that there was no way on earth to keep politicians and visionaries out of these organizations. I had no apology to make to that reader then but I do have the privilege of boasting just a bit since administrative heads of these organizations in Washington have been put to the necessity of cleaning up one dirty problem after another. It has happened in countless places, not with the consent of the ruling authorities, that petty grafters have crept in, have taken their toll.

through to the top in record form, of another danger in the attempted management of so many different groups from a central office in Washington. The best illustration of this that I have seen comes from New York where the local relief organization has a "writers' project" in operation. Just at this time the local New York authorities, with the assistance of Washington headquarters, are trying to find out whether radicals, many of them of foreign birth, have taken charge of the New York "writers' project."

Now, however, evidence is seeping

One man, Samuel McCoy, assistant director, has been dismissed. He has charged that reds are in control and that they are taking up their time proselyting and seeking new members of a Communistic organization.

Against his charges, those he attacked countered with accusations that McCov has continuously sought to promote Fascism among the writers.

It is an unhappy thing to occur. Here we have a paternalistic federal government seeking to provide people with work and some measure of compensation for that work, and we see a political problem injected into it. I do not know what the end will be, nor is it pertinent to this discussion. The point is, after all, that it represents, indeed it proves, the futility of attempting to run all of these things. from Washington, Those who favor the old idea of states' rights certainly cannot want for ammunition in defense of their beliefs.

"Hero" Criminals

Popular interest in criminals long before the present day has gone to the extent of making heroes of murderers and thieves. In 1754 Rev. Mr. Villettte, of London, described a sermon he had heard by a street preacher praising the remarkable skill with which Jack Sheppard, a notorious thief, had escaped from jail and "manfully burst his fetters asunder." Sheppard, as well as Dick Turpin, died in his neatest attire, and the execution of both was just the theatrical show the crowd expected.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

"How Wars Are Born

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter,

ERE'S a lad who says he saw me in Shanghai-and boy, would I have a tough time trying to prove an alibi on that statement. As a matter of fact, any alibi I might try to dig up would be shot to pieces before I started, because this lad sends in a picture he took of Colonel Freddie Barker and me, standing at one of the rifle emplacements in the International Settlement, during the late Sino-Japanese argument at Shanghai.

The man who took that picture is Frank B. Eckhardt. And along with the picture he sends the story of an incident that happened over there, in which he participated—an incident that might easily have started another war -a war between Japan and the good old U. S. A.

This incident happened to Frank and a bunch of his buddies while he was doing duty with the First Battalion, United States Marines, stationed on Sinza road, Shanghal. It was in January, 1932, just about a week after the trouble had broken out between the Japs and the Chinese, and the whole place was in a turmoil.

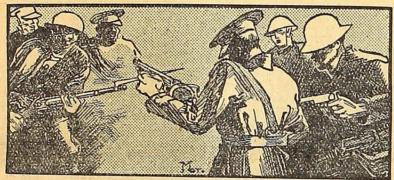

The officers of the battalion had a Chinese tailor by the name of Fong Kee, and one day Kee came to battalion headquarters and asked for a guard to take him to his shop on Boone road, Hong Kew district, to get the officers' uniforms. He couldn't go and get them alone, because the shop was inside the Japanese lines, and an unprotected Chinese in that territory wouldn't stand a chance of getting out with any merchandise.

Guard Is Armed for Any Emergency.

A guard was made up which consisted of a battalion major and headquarters company commander, two other privates and Frank. They rode in a truck and were armed with pistols and Thompson sub-machine guns.

They got to the tailor shop all right, and the officers and Fong Kee went inside while Frank and one other private stood guard at the entrance. And no sooner had the officers gone in than a Japanese patrol, consisting of 20 men and an officer, came marching down the street. They stopped at the sight of two American marines in the tailor shop doorway, turned and leveled their rifles in a menacing manner. They stood that way, poised on their toes, for a moment, then suddenly one of the Japanese soldiers lowered his bayonet and sprang toward them. The Jap pointed the bayonet at Frank's buddy-the other marine private on guard with him at the doorway. He raised his machine gun, knocked the bayonet aside, pulled back the extractor of his gun and yelled at him to stopthat he meant business.

Even a Jap Was Afraid of a Tommy Gun.

The Jap took a step backward at the sight of that deadly machine-gun pointed at him. The marine officers came running out of the tailor shop and the officer of the Japanese patrol stepped forward to see what the trouble was.

During the heated conversation that ensued, the Jap officer demanded Fong Kee as his prisoner and expressed his intention of seizing the uniforms that had been placed in the truck. The marine officers finally convinced him, however, that the goods were American property and that they were not aiding the Chinese in any way, and the truck was then allowed to proceed

When the truck was loaded it started back toward battalion headquarters. They were approaching the Woochang road crossing when another Japanese patrol halted them. They surrounded the truck, ordered the marines to get out, and again came the demand for the truck's contents and for Fong Kee, Major Lets Japs Know He'll Fight.

The second patrol was even more threatening in its attitude than the first. The American major ordered his men to cock their pieces-told the Japanese that if they approached the truck, or even touched it, he would give the word

The Jap officer's face turned black with anger. There followed a few moments of tense silence while he stood deliberating. Then he said that the marines could proceed with the truck if they left the goods behind and turned Fong Kee over to them.

Again the major had to go through that long-winded explanation that the goods were the property of American officers and that he was not seeking to aid the Chinese in any way. After considerable argument, then, the Jap officer accepted the explanation. The truck started for headquarters once more and this time it managed to get back to Sinza road without meeting any more Japanese patrols out looking for an argument.

Frank says you can't get any idea of how scared he was. Those Japs, he says, looked as though they were spoiling for trouble. And although they got out of it each time with nothing more dangerous than a little heated discussion, he never knew when those Japs were going to take it into their heads to

"If you ask me," he goes on, "I'd say I was looking into the eyes of death twice inside of half an hour. And that's plenty for one day."

Graham Bread Named for Lecturer on Temperance

Graham bread received its name from Sylvester Graham (1794-1851), an American lecturer on temperance and food reform. He was born at Suffield, Conn. After studying at Amherst for a time he entered the Presbyterian ministry in 1826. He maintained that a vegetable diet was incompatible with a desire for stimulants, and as part of his temperance and food reform campaign he not only advocated total abstinence from meat but also recommended the eating of bread made of unsifted or unbolted wheat flour; that is, flour in which all the wheat kernel except the husk is used. In "A Defense of the Graham System of Living," published in 1835, Graham wrote:

"Of wheat bread, there are three varieties; in the first, all the bran is separated; in the second, only the coarse, and, in the third, none at all, The bread made of flour from which all the bran has been separated is that most commonly used, but bread made of flour from which none of the bran has been separated is the most bread. He was neither, for wholewheat bread was the first wheat bread made. Graham's name became associated with its because he included the article in his dietary regimen, which at one time had many thousands of adherents throughout the United States. The system was called Graham and its adherents Grahamites .-Indianapolis News.

Denominations in the Colonies The principal denominations in the colonies were the Church of England, the Lutheran, Congregational or Nonconformist, and later the Baptist, and Methodist, as well as the Roman Catholic. The Bibles principally in use were the King James version of the English Bible, the Lutheran translation of the German Bible, and the Douai translation of the Catholic or French Bible.

Two Kinds of Fox Terriers

There are two kinds of fox terriers, namely, the smooth-haired and the wire-haired. The smooth-haired terrier has the same courageous and lovable qualities as his brother and up to recent years has been the most popular. The two types weigh somewhere between 12 and 20 pounds and are considered one of the most popular breeds "inventor" or "introducer" of Graham in the dog kingdom.

Only One Low Priced Car is FIRST in Everything That Counts

...TERRAPIANE

with

Terraplane alone among all popular low priced cars gives you this:

• Full 115-inch wheelbase.

• 195 inches over-all length.

 Most power−88 or 100 horsepower− with freedom from vibration at all speeds.

 Body all of steel, with seamless roof of solid steel.

● Most inside room-145 cubic feetmore leg and shoulder room, and widest rear seat.

● Completely-new style—best insurance of the investment value of your car.

The only rear opening baggage and tire compartment on 5 and 6-passenger models that can be had in any low priced car without extra cost. Spare tire lies flat

• Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for), two braking systems operating automatically from one brake pedal. And a third braking system from the easiest operating parking brake in the world.

• Extra deep "V-type" windshield-for added beauty and wider vision.

In every other popular low priced car this is what you get:

2 to 6 inches less wheelbase.

• 5 to 121/2 inches less over-all length.

• 3 to 18 less horsepower than Terraplane's 88-and not nearly as smooth.

● Body only partly of steel—or steel body with "soft-top."

• Less inside room—less shoulder and leg room-narrower rear seats.

 1935 styling, changed only in details. Far more likely to be out of date by 1937.

 No rear opening baggage and tire compartment, except in cars where trunk models are available-at considerable extra cost. Spare tire mounted outside on all other models.

• Single main braking system—either hydraulic or mechanical—without complete reserve braking system and without Terraplane's type of easy acting parking brakes.

Nothing like Terraplane's deep "V-type" windshield in any other low priced car.

The list of Terraplane advantages doesn't stop with those listed here. There's greater ruggedness, proved by owner mileages of 125,000, 150,000 and more. Greater economy, too, certified by thousands of sworn owner statements ... emphasized again just the other day in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run when a

Yellowstone Bears Develop Gangster Habits; Are Shot

With depression, Yellowstone tourists have grown fewer, hotel scraps scarcer, and bears hungrier. In Washington recently Director Horace Marden Albright announced that the National Park service had been forced to kill 49 Yellowstone black bears and one grizzly last summer and autumn.

The worst offenders among the park's 550 black bears and 175 grizzlies were earmarked or had their feet painted so they would leave tracks when they broke into cabins or motor cars. For repeated offenses the penalty was death by bullet.

"They didn't mean any harm," Mr. Albright said, "but when they developed gangster habits among the tourists . . . we had to kill them."

CHAPTER XI-Continued -19-

WNU Service

Garth put his fingers to his lips for silence, and held a fuse-wrapped stick of dynamite close to his match. The miner let go of his rifle and straightened upon his feet, his hands high above his head.

The match flickered out, Garth dropped the dynamite and darted forward. He was none too quick. The slight thud of the fallen rifle had wakened Huxby. As Garth paused behind the corner of the leanto, the engineer peered out, with his pistol thrust forward.

As Garth jumped he struck with the butt of his belt-ax. It cracked down on Huxby's wrist. The engineer's pistol dropped. With a curse, Huxby grasped at the weapon, but Garth was quicker. As he caught it up, Huxby clutched at his throat. Garth felled him with a tap of the ax butt on the Wakened by the sudden flurry, the two miners in the leanto were grasping at the pair of rifles on which Huxby had lain. Garth whirled the pistol to cover them.

"Hands up, and get out beside your mate," he ordered. "We want only the murderer. But we'll shoot you down like dogs if you interfere."

One of the pair jerked up his hands. The other man hesitated. The miner outside called warningly: "The jig's up, Laney. The other feller has got the drop on us too."

Laney lifted his hands and stared out after his bed-mate. Huxby was staggering up, still dazed from the blow that had felled him. Wild with desperate rage, he struck out furiously. Garth side-stepped and thrust in a tripping foot.

The engineer pitched face-down on the hard-crusted snow. Before he could spring up again, Garth jumped upon his back. The blow knocked him breathless. It was then as easy matter to click Constable Dillon's handcuffs on the wrists of the murderer.

"Stop that cursing, or I'll gag you." Garth said. "There's a lady present. All right, Miss Ramill. Join us."

Huxby fell silent, to gape like the miners at the skin-clad form that came forward out of the black shadows into the firelight. The girl still carried the constable's pistol raised ready to shoot. Huxby saw enough of her face in its border of wolverine fur to make certain Garth had not been bantering him.

"Lilith! You?"

"Yes, it's me, you cowardly sneak killer! I came after you with Alan and he has let me catch you."

The murderer twisted around with his back to her and the fire. His head sagged forward. With a sudden return of alertness. Lilith turned her gaze away from his shadowed profile to watch the three lined-up miners.

Garth did not smile at the girl's needless caution. She had earned the right to think herself an invaluable He allowed her to stand guard while he gathered up the three rifles and unloaded them.

"Right-o, Miss Ramill," Garth said. "Sit down. It's all over now but the talking."

She lowered the pistol but drew back where she could watch Huxby as well as the miners. Garth looked soberly at the men.

"If you know Kipling, you'll bear in mind that the female of the species is more deadly than the male. I dare say, though, you can safely venture to lower your hands and sit down with us."

At the welcome permission, the three dropped their arms. Two of them at once squatted on a log. Laney lingered for a surly question, before following suit:

"What's the play?"

"All we came for was to arrest Huxby. Help with the cabin plane, and there will be no mention of any shooting other than his murder of the constable. What wages did he promise you?"

"Double the usual. Tole us he had to get in his assessment work before the freeze-up.'

"The claim belongs to me," Garth replied. "I will pay you the double wages.'

"Ugh," growled Laney. "You outplayed the d-n fourflusher. It's a deal. You're boss. We're working for you."

Gazza walked back into the black ness of the spruce trees. He returned with the floursack packbag, his own and Lilith's buckskin suits, and a hindquarter of fat caribou meat. At his invitation, the men eagerly went at the frozen mear with an ax, and put the big teapot, full of snow, on the Lilith and Garth had eaten before coming down from the igloo. They sat back, on a snowdrift, and watched while the others devoured the tender brolled meat and gulped down cups of hot tea. The flesh of the old she-bear had been as tough as leather and her fat very rank.

Huxby continued to sit in morose silence, with his back to the fire. The feasters paid no heed to him. After a time Lilith began to stir uneasily. At last she had to act. She handed a piece of meat on a spit. When it was broiled, she took it and a cup of tea to Huxby.

He started up at her as if dumfounded, then shook his head sullenly. She put down the cup and plate beside him, and returned to Garth. At his look of cool inquiry, her eyes flashed with defiance. "I don't care! It's not right to starve anyone." He replied in a noncommittal tone:

'You're a woman." The murderer took up his cup of hot tea in his manacled hands and drank. He began to eat the meat.

When daylight came, Garth ordered everyone out to the cabin plane. The hard-frozen slush ice gave splid footing over the bog. It also gave a solid foundation out at the plane upon which were based the engineer's lifting operations. The ice had been chopped from around the floats, and a crib built under the inner end of each wing. By hoisting first on the outer end of one wing and then the other, the cribs had been heightened until the floats were level with the top of the

A glance inside the cabin showed Garth the body of Constable Dillon lying where he had left it. Laney explained, with a jerk of a mittened thumb to Huxby:

"He first says we'd chuck the stiff under the ice. Then he says, no, to wait an' heave it out when we was flying over the muskegs."

'We'll wait still longer," Garth said. "That brave constable is going to receive an honorable burial. Now get to work with those sapling levers. Another pair of logs on the cribs will raise the floats high enough to roller her clear." Garth showed the men how to skew the rollers for turning the plane. He went to shove sidewards on the tail. The plane started to curve around.

A shriek from Lilith whirled Garth face about. Huxby was rushing at him, with an ax lifted high in his manacled hands. Lilith flew at the attacker as if frenzied. She sought to block his charge. He gave her his shoulder with the skill of a football player. It caught her on the chin and sent her spinning.

But the slight check allowed Garth time for a leap in under the ax before the blade could whirl down on his head. His left fist appeared to punch deep into the pit of Huxby's stomach. His right drove up under the chin of the gasping murderer. The uppercut lifted the killer off his feet and dropped him on his face, clean knocked out. With no more than a glance at his fallen attacker, Garth sprang to help Lilith's dazed effort to sit up. "Well played," he said. "Not hurt, are

"N-no-I-you - he didn't!" she cried, and burst into tears.

Garth gave her a pat on the head, and turned away, embarrassed. "No wonder you're overcome. It's been too much for a girl. We'll hop out of here at once.'

He lashed the unconscious killer's wrists to his belt, tied his ankles together, and climbed into the cockpit of the plane. After replacing the breaker points, he had the men take turns spinning the propeller. He then tried the self-starter. The engine roared. Pulled by the whirling propeller, the plane slid forward off the log rollers. After cutting the gun, Garth ordered two of the men to heave Huxby into the cabin. The third man he sent for the rifles. "I want the one with which he shot Constable Dillon. But you may as well bring the othersalso a lot of that bear fat."

He himself went to pick up the stillweeping girl and help her to the second seat in the cockpit. He made sure of the supply of gasoline, and climbed down again to see that the men gave the bottom of the floats a thorough greasing with the bear fat.

After that, when all were aboard. and the rifles in Lilith's keeping, he started the engine. The plane at first moved slowly. The floats dragged on the rough surface of the frozen slush. But when they glided out on the streak of glare ice, the friction became less than that of a water take-off.

Within a half mile the speed had so increased that an easy pull on the joystick sent the plane skimming up off the glassy surface. Garth banked in a long curve to the left, listening to the roar of the warmed motor. Every cylinder was hitting sweet.

He made a wide spiral over the valley for elevation, and drove out eastwards above a saddle in the jagged mountain barrier. When clear of the valley, he did not keep straight on across to the Mackenzie. He turned more to the south.

CHAPTER XII

Squaw Lilith. The cross-country flight brought the plane to the Mackenzie at the great bend below the Liard. But Garth did not come down at Fort Simpson. He flew on up the vast river to Great Slave lake, and east across the lake to Fort Resolution.

Some time before s' nset, he set the her pistol to Garth, and went to put | cabin plane down at the landing of the Airways base by the mouth of the Slave river. After handing Lilltn ashore, he left her standing while he went to speak to the Airways superintendent. That courteous gentleman hastened to tell the girl that his wife would be delighted if the daughter of Mr. Burton Ramill would honor their hospitality.

> Garth was not invited. He turned away to meet the red-coated sergeant of police for whom he had sent. Lilith did not see him again until the next morning.

Sight of him in his caribou parka brought her to a startled halt. Her eyes widened. "Oh, still in your skin suit! You-you're going back!"

"What difference does it make to you?" he asked. "You'll soon be in Edmonton-and civilization."

She stepped suddenly close to him, her hands held out in appeal. "No! I-Alan, take me back with you!" "Back there? Don't tell me you like that squaw life. Those days in the valley and the trip out must have been a h-l of torment to you-dirt, rags, mosquito dope, flies, starvation. And now ice, snow, bitter cold."

'Anything-anything just to be with you, Alan-dear!" He put his arms about her. He kissed her red lips and scarler cheeks and tightly closed eyelids "My girl," he said, "you are going with me wherever I go. Get on your parka." Her arms were clasped tight about his neck. She lingered a moment to return his kiss. Then, her blue eyes aglow, she ran to obey him. When she came hastening back, in her Eskimo costume, she ventured an appeal: "Can't I have a comb and brush and-and soap, Alan?"

He looked soberly past her shoulder at the amused face of her hostess. "Well, yes, I dare say you can. We're going first to Edmonton. Your father is there. I sent him a message that we are coming." She plucked at the wolverine fringe of her parka hood. "You-you cheat!" He took her into his arms, regardless of the onlooking lady. "My girl, we are back in civilization. We are first going to be properly married." "But these caribou suits?"

"Best of flying costumes. We're taking a two-seater. The suits will come in handy again this winter when I teach Mrs. Garth how to drive a dog team. Until that it's to be silks for my girl. I must first testify at the trial. After that we'll hop over to Victoria and take a steamer to Japan for our honeymoon." "Oh, Alan, how-how delightful!

But Japan? Why, I never dreamt a prospector like you would care to travel in the Orient. So, if-if you'd rather go back to the valley, dear-" Her hostess could no longer keep silent.

"Prospector, Miss Ramill! Is that all you know about Mr. Garth? His father is one of the heads of the Hudson's Bay company. He himself is a member of our parliament, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, a noted explorer-"

"And the winner of the gamest girl I ever knew," Garth cut in. "Come on, Squaw Lilith. You've proved yourself a mate woman. Now you're going to be my lady wife." [THE END.]

65.000-Year-Old Monster

A 65,000-year-old prehistoric monster, a relic of the days when semitropical waters covered most of Manitoba with their ooze, is on exhibition at the Winnipeg museum. The skeleton of the reptile was found on the banks of the Abissiboine river near Treherne. It is 30 feet long and resembles a huge lizard. It took museum workers 18 months to assemble the bones.

and John, and went into the mount to pray. His chief aim in retirement was to get the disciples into a state of receptivitiy so that he might show them the reality and method of his kingdom. Before going into the mount. he declared that there were some standing in his presence who would not taste death until they should see the Son of man coming in his kingdom (Luke 9:27; cf. Matt. 16:28). That their drooping spirits might be revived and their confidence restored, he was transfigured before them. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with him about his approaching death in Jerusalem (v. 31)the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. Then, too, God's own voice was heard in words of approval of Christ's course, directing them to hear the Master. Surely now they cannot doubt his ability to carry to execution his kingdom plans. The purpose, then, of the transfiguration was to give the disciples a foregleam of the coming kingdom, to enable them to see the kingdom in its embryonic form. That this is true is not only shown by the context and circumstances, but by the inspired interpretation of one who was with him and knew all that transpired (see II Pet. 1:16-19, R. V.). Let us, therefore, note the outstanding features of the kingdom as displayed in the trans-

Let Jack Curley, the famed promoter, tell you some things you ought to know about the ancient pastime. Mr. Curley

FOR every hold there is a counter. Leverage, and not brute strength, wins falls.

Accounts of contests, great and small, are preserved for us in poetry and legend. The great Homer idolized the game.

Wrestling dates back to 4500 B. C. Even among the most ancient nations, wrestling was as well understood, with its various holds and breaks, as It is at the present day.

Again, going back to Homer, we can quote him mentioning the famous encounter between Ajax and Ulysses. Ajax was the incarnation of all physical power in man; Ulysses, the possessor of every art and wile.

The written history of wrestling, however, antedates the legendary tales of Homer and the much sung siege of Troy. In the land of Egypt we find in ancient temples evidence that wrestling was a perfected art many thousand years before Christ.

Not far from the bank of the Nile, In the temple tombs of Beni Hassan, wrestlers are depicted in every hold known today.

Three hundred and eighty-six positions are cleverly cut into the sides of Tomb XVII of Beni Hassan, and Tomb XVI contains another 250 positions.

More Than 100 Styles of Modern Wrestling

There are today more than a humdred known styles of wrestling. Of which catch-as-catch-can is mostly prevalent in America, Graeco-Roman style in Europe, Judo and Souma style in Japan and collar-and-elbow in Ire-

In the old Roman amphitheaters the contests were to the death. The gamblers were seldom accused of fixing things.

The immortal Shakespeare was a wrestling fan. Note Orlando's contest with Duke's wrestler in "As You Like It."

The most famous match in all history was between Henry VIII and Francis I at the meeting of the Cloth of Gold in 1520. At that time the French and English kings were the foremost monarchs in the world.

In India, China and Japan wrestling has been practiced almost uninterruptedly for thousands of years. Regular contests are carried on at Tokio in a ring surrounded with two circles of thirty-six bags of earth. A bow and a bowspring formerly were given as the prize.

The time to throw a man is when he is moving or exerting his strength in the same direction as that in which you desire to throw him. The force of the aggressor is then applied along the line of least resistance.

Wrestlers come and go in cycles. Just before the turn of the century, Youssouf, the Terrible Turk, was the furor. He was an immense-sized gladiator. Yet had a hard time downing a little fellow named Ernst Roeber.

Youssouf was brought here from the sultan of Turkey to impress the world with the strength of his regiment of athletes. Antonio Pierri, a Greek, brought him here, but was relieved of him by Billy Brady.

Pierri Takes Third Strike. in Promoting the Turks

Undaunted, Pierri sailed forth for another Turk, and this time came with another giant, Nouralah. Strange as it may seem, Pierri again put his trust into American managers, and once more Billy Brady signed the Turk under his management. And still another trip for Antonio and again another Turk. This time it was Jai Ali (pronounced Hali Alali), and this time not Brady but Martin Julian won the affection of the invader, and for the third time Pierri was without his champion.

All these Turks were great wrestlers. On his home-bound trip in 1898 Youssouf was a passenger on the ill-fated French liner, La Bourgogne, and lost his life in the disaster.

A legendary story gained circulation that the Turk wore a belt around his body, with all his money in $20 gold pieces. The story is no doubt a fable, because no American managers would have permitted Youssouf to get away with so much weight in gold.

Did you know that wrestling was the favorite indulgence of the Father of Our Country, George Washington? President Lincoln also made grappling his favorite sport and met all comers in the exercise room.

DO YOU remember way back when: A tall, thick-shouldered man used to stride to the plate at the old Polo Grounds and the boys in the bleachers would start chanting:

"Buck! Buck! Buck! Hit 'er over the fence Just for luck!"

That was Buck Ewing, one of the all-time greats among the catchers and possibly as hard a hitter as Babe Ruth. In 1888 the Giants were playing the St. Louis Browns for the world championship, had lost the first game and were trailing, 3 to 0, in the ninth inning of the second one.

There were three men on base. Buck came to bat, The bleachers roared their refrain. It was a plea, a demand, a battle call. Buck's bat was almost twice as big as those used nowadays. He swing it histily

The ball sailed far over the center fielder's head, seemed still to be rising when it passed over the tally-hos parked close to the fence.

That blow won the game and broke the Browns, who put up only a pale struggle while the Giants were romping away with the rest of the series.

Around town there still are oldtimers who insist manfully that It was the longest and hardest hit ball ever produced in a championship game.

When-in one season-John L. Sulivan stopped 50 opponents in the first round? And when Bob Fitzsimmons, in a so-called world championship affair against Peter Maher at Langtry. Texas, knocked out the Irish giant in thirty seconds of the first round?

Recalling Famous Race Between Turf Royalties

When the "King of the Turf"-that was Ray S, the great stallion owned by the Fleischmans of Cincinnati-met the "Queen of the Turf"-that was Yo Tambien, the fleet little mare owned by Chris Smith of Chicago?

There were two races, both of them on the beautiful old St. Louis Fair Grounds course. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were bet each time, while eminent sportsmen orated that the honor of their great cities was at

In the first race—the Club Members at a mile and a quarter-they galloped down the stretch hell for leather. They came under the wire nose and nose.

No man really knows who won. The judges said "Ray S." Possibly they were correct, because Monk Overton, the little black man who rode him, was a magnificent finisher. The crowd said 'Yo Tambien" and arguments were loud and long, while more hundreds of thousands were bet for the Memorial Handicap

This time Kentucky Bill and Brown Dick, the famous negro trainers who loved the little mare, combined their talents. Perhaps they thought they had been jinxed the first time out. Possibly they thought that Johnny Mooney, the very good Chicago jockey, had been outridden.

They decided to match jockey with jockey, jinx with jinx. They engaged Frankie Jordan, "When you get to the head of the stretch just hurry along home," was all the instructions they gave him.

Perhaps it was the greater skill of the new rider that did it. More likely the great-hearted mare just could not brook another defeat. No one really knows now but-

This time as the horses reached the wire Brown Dick and Kentucky Bill were dancing exultant jigs, crossing and uncrossing gnarled fingers.

Out there on the track the little mare was running as she never had run before while, crouched on her withers, Frank Jordan grinned and looked back through crossed eyes at the horse which this time could not Remember When O'Leary Walked 100 Miles at 78?

When Dan O'Leary celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday by walking 100 miles in 23 hours and 43 minutes at the Cubs' park in Chicago in 1919?

When ice skating was so popular throughout the land and there had to be some rules for governing competition in the sport? So-that was In 1895-the code of rules used at trotting horse meetings was made to apply, with very few changes, to ice skating. And soon came to be the code governing ice skating competition throughout most of the world.

When National league umpires were for the first time granted salaries? That was in 1883, seven years after the league was organized.

When Jim O'Rourke caught his last big-time ball game? That was on October 2, 1904. Jim caught "Iron Man" McGinnity and made a hit while the Giants were winning their hundredth game of the season and taking the pennant away from the Cubs.

Jim was then fifty-two years old. He had been playing professional baseball for 31 years, mostly as an outfielder. He had not become a catcher until a few seasons previously, when he had bought a Connecticut League club and found that he had no backstop on the roster.

INES from an overcrowded notebook:

One of the most profitable of all turf investments was made by John A. Drake. Thirty-five years or so ago that eminent and departed sportsman paid $2,000 for an aged horse named Royal Flush. He then campaigned the thoroughbred in England, and in one season, with the expert assistance of Beta-Million Gates, won more than a million dollars in bets.

Chic Suit, Gay Print Share Honors | Something About a

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LET'S go crystar-gazing of fashion futures for spring. What do we see? According to the signs of the times it's suits, suits and suits plus, coming in endless procession on the new style program. Indeed, 'tis prophesied that this will be the biggest suit season ever.

Of course a suit means just one lovely, stunning blouse after another, and as to accessories, well, you'll be surprised at the smartness, the cleverness and the color-chic of the bags, and the belts, the scarfs, the gloves and the footwear and gadgets that novel they invite a smile, all of which will play a part in dramatizing the suit theme for spring.

After you get an "eye-full" of suits as revealed in the crystal globe of fashion, turn the other eye. Behold! The picture shifts to a scene of riotous color and startlingly new design for the incoming prints are just that. Birds, fruits, vegetables, postage stamps and newspaper print, are some of the many unique motifs that gay print fabrics are staging this season.

The lesson to be gleaned in this foreglance into fashion's moves is that in assembling the new spring wardrobe one must think in terms of both cloth suit and costume of gay print. One is almost as important as the other in the scheme of fashionable apparel. So count on a budget that makes provision for both.

As to the new suits, their most outstanding message is "mannish" both as to the stunning woolens which fashion them as well as their manner of tailoring. The more "man's-wear" look your suit carries the smarter will it be. The favorite among favorites bids fair to be the strictly tailored short-jacket type buttoned single row or double

As to color for the new tailored mannish woolens, fancy runs decidedly to grays in every degree from light to dark and to mixtures that give a gray impression. Spice brown is also good style and it is interesting to note the many blues showing. The upto-the-moment suit pictured is of chalky French-blue imported woolen. Buttons in double row accent the front panel which is cut in one with the yoke of the brief jacket. The hat, gloves and bag are navy, so are the shoes, for navy footwear, you know, is going to be pronouncedly in fashion this spring.

And now to prints! It will be difficult to choose from the wealth of print fabrics being shown. Jacket frocks made of striking prints claim most of the attention because they are so eminently practical. The dress itself can be worn attractively under the long topcoat, reserving the print jacket for

The refreshing new styling given to the advance spring jacket frocks simply fascinates with display of originality that identifies spring 1936 vintage at a glance, as for example the good-looking print costume pictured. The material of which it is made is an all-bemberg triple sheer in leaf green, brown and beige checks. The jacket with full graceful sleeves alternates bands of net with bands of the triple sheer print, Jeweled buttons lend a brilliant touch.

You will be wanting a number of these smart-looking and practical triple sheers in your spring wardrobe These fabrics are not weighted and consequently launder or dry clean beautifully.

NEW HAT FASHION By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Rancho" hat is making an instantaneous hit is but expressing it mildly See in the illustration herewith Gladys Swarthout, lovely singer and one of filmland's bright and shining stars, wearing this hat just as she wears it in her picture and now many stores and shops are showing it in their advance millinery displays. It is the type young girls will delight in wearing with their sports outfits. The chinstrap detail of cord cleverly drawn through a big button is irresistible. Of course to complete the ensemble one must have a high-color dude-ranch handkerchief-square scarf knotted nonchalantly about the throat.

Jeweled Pins

The highly prized diamond-back terrapins of Maryland and points south have nothing on their swanky little counterpart in catalin and simulated gold. The turtle pin not only has head and legs of gold but also a colorful shell studded with tiny rhinestones. In practically any color this jeweled creature outshines by far the pride of Baltimore.

GREEK INSPIRATION HITS SHOE STYLES

The Greek inspiration which has so noticeably influenced the evening mode for dresses is also affecting shoe styles. There is a very strong tendency to adopt sandals or low-heeled shoes for full evening dress. These sandals are extremely chic for those who know how to wear them, and are seen in the same fabric as the dress-in velvet, in lame and in brocade, sometimes combined with supple gold or silver

Very rich models entirely covered with sequins, with embroidery or with beads of plastic materials, are displayed by leading designers. To accompany Worth evening dresses, Julienne has designed some new sandals with almost flat heels, which are square instead of being round.

Originality Characterizes

New Paris Winter Tailleurs Great originality characterizes the new winter tailleurs, for morning or afternoon purposes. In the line of sport tailleurs, a jacket is almost invari ably in a fabric that contrasts with the skirt. Schiaparelli shows a skirt in plain material while the jacket is in tartan or in fancy woolen. She carries the same idea for the afternoon with a plain skirt in dull rayon crepe and the jacket in a fancy mixture showing slit cellulose film.

Wraps Are Glamorous

For some seasons now, many women have been making a fur coat do when they did don full evening dress. But this season wraps are so glamorous, so handsome, so theatrical, that even she who only goes out once or twice a season can't resist them. A lovely affair is a full-skirted wrap of pale beige velvet with shirring and cordell detail. It has a big mink collar. Another wrap is of quilted white silk in a heavy weave.

New Broom-and a New House Dress!

A house dress, after all, is a house dress-yet it needn't be "just another house dress," as convincingly dem onstrated in this unusually trim and clever design. The V neck front and back is made in a contrasting mate-use of bright buttons. The short and comfortable set-in sleeves are finshed with pointed cuffs, also in con trast and button trimmed. The blouse is gathered to the skirt under a self-fabric belt, and the skirt features a full-length front panel with novel pockets achieved by the distinctive cut of the side pieces. These pieces, pointed and button used in the collar and cuffs, and there are kick pleats in the front necessary for active household duties. Choose your favorite cotton-percale, gingham, chambray, or piquein your most becoming color and make it up in an hour or two.

praises of the Firestone Ground Grip Tire — they say it's the greatest traction tire ever built, and so economical. How was it possible for Firestone to build such a remarkable tire? Firestone patented construction features are the answer. Gum-Dipping, a process that soaks every cotton fiber in every cord with pure liquid rubber, prevents internal friction and heat and gives the cord body greater strength to withstand the stresses and strains of heavy pulling at low air pressures.

The patented feature of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread locks the massive super traction tread securely to the body of the tire. This patented Ground Grip tread is made wider, heavier and deeper, with scientific spacing between the bars so that the tire is self-cleaning, yet rides smoothly on improved roads. These patented construction features are used only in Firestone Tires. This is why you get greatest traction, longest life and outstanding performance in Ground Grip Tires. They are the best investment a farmer can make.

Equip your car, truck, tractor and farm implements with new Firestone Ground Grip Tires and save yourself time, money and hard work. See this remarkable tire at your nearby Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store, at your Tire Dealer, or at your Implement Dealer. Remember, when buying farm equipment specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires for greatest efficiency and economy.
