Preliminary Farm Census Report

The principal grain crops grown in Iosco county in 1934 were corn and oats, according to the 1935 Federal Farm Census preliminary report released March 1 by Director W. L. Austin of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. An increase in corn acreage from 1,565 in 1929 to 4,275 acres in 1934 put corn almost equal to oats in point of acreage, whereas in 1929 oats were well in the lead with 3,655 acres. The 1934 acreage of oats was 4,464.

Hay was harvested from more land than any other crop, the acreage in 1934 being 18,604. The tonnage produced that year amounted to 11,698. In 1929 with a slightly smaller acreage of hay, 22,136 tons were harvested.

According to the inventory of live stock taken as of January 1, 1935, there were in Iosco county on that date 1,591 horses, 48 mules, 7,897 cattle, 10,346 sheep, and 1,287 hogs.

There were 781 farms in the county on the last census date with a total estimated value of $2,382,930. The average size of farms was 138.8 acres, with an average value of land and buildings of $3,051 per farm.

Charles R. Jackson, Jr., who was born and brought up in East Tawas, passed away very suddenly at his home in Birmingham, Michigan, February 13, 1936. His health had given his family some concern for several months, but for a few weeks prior to his passing there seemed to be a marked improvement. He went to the clinic for a treatment, but the doctor informed him he was so much improved he did not need it. After waiting quite some time for a taxi, he at last decided to walk home, though the weather was practically the worst of the winter. He reached his home, but immediately collapsed, and within five minutes the end had come.

Charles was born January 21, 1884 and remained in East Tawas until he reached young manhood. He became identified with the automotive industry when it was in its infancy. He was with the Buick Company in Flint, the Cole Company in Indianapolis, and had connections in Kokomo, and Charlotte, N. C. before finally joining the General Motors staff. He was head of Customer Correspondence, Pontiac division, in which capacity he served for several years.

Besides the brothers and sisters, he leaves his wife, Clarice Motherwell, and two children, Charles Rowe III and Mary Frances. His mother, Mary Ellen Jackson, passed away in 1931, and his father, Charles Rowe Jackson, Sr., passed away less than a year ago.

One of his associates said of him: "If Jack had left us, a pauper, and if we had had to bury him in a pauper's lot, he still would have left untold wealth behind him." Few men saw more opportunities to help those of less fortunate circumstances.

Interment took place in Acacia Cemetery (Masonic), and the services there were in charge of the Masonic and Eastern Star orders, he being an officer in the latter.

"Not weaker now, our chain, but stronger. In all our loss, and all our ill, We yet shall look a little longer At every star above the hill, And think of him, and have him, still. To all Eternity he binds us, He links the planet with the star, He links ahead, the trail he finds us, And where he is, and where we are, Will never seem again so far."

Iosco Men Attend Gladwin Horse Meet

County Agricultural Agent Wilton Finley, Thomas Scarlett, Charles T. Prescott, Waldo Curry and Harry Goodale attended a meeting Wednesday at Gladwin which was held for the purpose of encouraging better horse management and to lay preliminary plans for a community horse sale to be held early in April at that place.

Mr. Curry was appointed to represent Iosco county and Mr. Prescott to represent Ogemaw county on the sale committee. Speakers at the meeting were Commissioner of Agriculture James Thompson; H. F. Moxley, Bureau of Animal Husbandry, M. S. C.; Dr. J. P. Hutton, Veterinary Department, M. S. C., and Sherman Read of Richland.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club met Saturday at their club rooms with 25 members and two guests present. After the business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Nyda Leslie, in charge of the Drama Day program. Mrs. Leslie gave a most interesting review on the history of the drama. Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Giddings and Mrs. Grace Mark read the court scene from "The Merchant of Venice" and Mrs. Campbell read an excerpt from "Julius Caesar."

To close, Miss Elsie Ahonen sang three songs, accompanied by Mrs. Leslie. The next meeting will be held on March 14th. Following is the program: Roll Call—Bit of Wit; Life of Will Rogers—Mrs. Bing; Humorous Poem—Mrs. Grace Mark; Humorous Story—Mrs. Horton; and Special Music.

A special committee was appointed by the president, Mrs. Campbell, to meet with the business men's association regarding the perch festival. Mrs. Helen Ferguson, Mrs. Mable Bigelow and Mrs. Grace Mark were appointed on this committee.

Baldwin School Has Best TB Seal Sale Record For Rural Districts Of County

Because they sold more tuberculosis Christmas seals per capita than any other rural school in Iosco county, children at the Baldwin school were recently awarded a handsomely framed picture of Louis Pasteur, famed French scientist and benefactor of mankind. Presentation of the picture to Miss Ruth Alstrom, teacher at the Baldwin school, was made by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

The Turtle and Hottis schools were winners of the second and third prizes, respectively. They will be allowed to make a choice of any of the prizes which the Association offered as school awards during the recent campaign. Simon Gingerich is the teacher at the Turtle school, and at the Hottis school Mrs. Alfrietta Brookins is in charge.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Famous Author, Whose Serial, "Maiden Voyage," Is to Appear in This Paper

Kathleen Norris, daughter of a San Francisco banker, never attended school. She was taught at home by her parents, with an occasional governess for language study.

When she was nineteen—the second child in a family of six—her mother and father died within a month, and she immediately became a wage-earner, her first job being with a hardware house at $30 a month. Fortunately, however, for the American reading public, she later became a librarian and while engaged in that work she began writing. In 1904 she sold her first story, "The Colonel and the Lady," to a San Francisco newspaper. She served as society editor and reporter for other San Francisco papers but this work ended in 1909 when she married Charles G. Norris, brother of the late Frank Norris, the author, and himself a novelist.

Since 1910 Mrs. Norris has written a great number of novels and short stories, many of which have been published serially in the leading magazines and newspapers of the country. Her best known novels include "The Lucky Lawrences," "Second Hand Wife," "The Foolish Virgin," "Walls of Gold" and "The Story of Julia Page." Now comes "Maiden Voyage."

Announcement of a new story by Kathleen Norris always is something of an event and the editor of this paper feels that it is a great privilege to be able to tell you that "Maiden Voyage" is to be published serially in these columns. You will thoroughly enjoy every installment.

Open Law and Insurance Offices In Bank Building

T. George Sternberg, attorney at law, has moved his office from the Blanche Richards insurance building in East Tawas to the bank building in Tawas City. He is continuing to live at the Holland Hotel in East Tawas.

Clarence Fowler has opened an office in the bank building in Tawas City, sharing space with Mr. Sternberg. Mr. Fowler will be engaged in general insurance and bonding business. He has also been appointed agent for the trustee of the Ealy, McKay banks and all accounts due to these banks can be paid to Mr. Fowler who will be collecting them.

Three Feature Cage Games Played Last Friday Night

Three feature basketball games were on the bill at the Community House, East Tawas, last Friday night. St. Joe played Pinconning, East Tawas tangled with St. Bernard's of Alpena, and the East Tawas high school faculty took on the Bay City Business College quintet. Of the three local teams participating that evening only one was able to register a victory, East Tawas high defeating St. Bernard by the narrow margin of two points, 29-27.

The first game of the evening saw St. Joe go down to a hard defeat at the hands of Pinconning, 19 to 12. After maintaining a lead through the first three quarters, St. Joe met with a disastrous fourth period in which it scored no points while Pinconning rained the basket for 12 counters to grab the lead and victory.

East Tawas high's Indians and St. Bernard provided the most thrilling contest of the evening. After the lead had changed from one team to the other several times during the first three periods, the Indians faced the task of overcoming a four-point deficit at the beginning of the final canto. A ten-point rally in the last minutes of the game took care of this nicely when the Alpena team was able to tally only four. Many fine plays were made by both teams during the contest.

The third game on the card saw the East Tawas high school faculty defeated by the Bay City Business College, 11 to 8. The contest was a listless affair, marked especially by a good deal of inaccurate shooting.

Refereeing was handled in fine style by Willis Kraus of Oscoda. Scores by periods—
St. Joe 5 3 4 0—12
Pinconning 2 3 2 12—19
East Tawas 8 6 5 10—29
St. Bernard 7 8 8 4—27

Beer And Liquor Dealers To Meet With Enforcement Officers At Oscoda Mar. 11

Representatives of the Michigan State Liquor Control Commission will preside at a meeting of north-eastern Michigan beer and liquor dealers and law enforcement officers of 12 counties to be held in the municipal auditorium at Oscoda beginning at 7:30 Wednesday evening, March 11. The meeting, arranged locally by Wm. Boehme, Oscoda restaurant operator, is one of a series of sectional meetings which will be conducted this year in an effort to promote greater understanding and closer cooperation between liquor dealers and law enforcement agencies throughout the state.

Louis Robinson, district superintendent of the Commission, will preside as chairman of the session. Principal speakers will include Walter Rice, legal counsel for the Commission; Lawrence Ehmman, of enforcement division; Sergeant Leon Topkins of the Michigan State Police and others.

Counties which will be represented at the meeting are: Alpena, Presque Isle, Cheboygan, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Alcona, Oscoda, Crawford, Roscommon, Rosconmcon, Arenac and Iosco. All beer dealers and enforcement officers are urged to be present.

Late News Events

LANSING, March 6—According to Chief Alfred Seymour, of the Lansing police department, Calvin Roberts, charged with assault in the tabbing of Jess Shellenbarger at Hale, has had a long criminal record. He was sentenced here to serve 25 to 40 years for armed robbery. Roberts was paroled from this before going to Hale. He had previously been paroled from Ionia to which he was sentenced in 1928 to serve one to five years for stealing in automobile.

STERLING, March 6—The district basketball tournament for class D and C schools opened here last night. Two games were played in class D competition, the first between St. Joe of Tawas and St. Michael of Pinconning and the second between Alabaster and Pinconning. A class C game between Whittemore and Sterling wound up the evening's activities. The semi-finals of the tourney take place tonight and the finals tomorrow night.

BAY CITY, March 6—A jury yesterday brought in a verdict of no cause for action in a $20,000 damage case against J. D. Mulvena of Alpena. The suit was brought against Mulvena by the administrator of the estates of M. R. Miller and E. A. Streeter of Twining and H. M. Goodrich of Turner who were killed May 10, last, in a crash on U. Leslie Howard, Bette Davis Star In "Petrified Forest"

Robert Emmet Sherwood's stage hit, "The Petrified Forest," which ran all last season on Broadway to crowded houses, comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, March 8-9-10, in the screen version produced by Warner Bros.

Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, who gave such sterling performances in "Of Human Bondage," are again playing the star roles in this picture. They are supported by a brilliant cast which includes Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Humphrey Bogart, Joseph Sawyer and others.

The story is set in the picturesque and colorful background of the Arizona desert, the scenes taking place in and about a way-side gas station and eating house a few miles from the real Petrified Forest.

In this strange locale are gathered a group of the world's misfits, held there by a band of killers who are hiding from a posse searching for them, awaiting their chance to escape over the border into Mexico.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Japanese Rebels Slay Four Statesmen and Dictatorship Is Rumored—Hagood's Removal Starts a Row—Vandenberg Won't Enter the Ohio Primary.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

MILITARISTS of Japan, led by a group of young army officers who were impatient with the government's policy of economy and restraint in the matter of advances in China and Mongolia, suddenly staged a revolt in Tokyo with the avowed purpose of eliminating liberal statesmen whom they considered obstacles to the restoration of a military dictatorship under imperial rule. Seizing certain government buildings in the capital, they rushed to the homes of the listed statesmen and succeeded in assassinating four—Premier Admiral Keisuke Okada; Admiral Viscount Makoto, former premier and lord keeper of the privy seal; Gen. Jotaro Watanabe, chief of military education, and Koreyiko Takahashi, finance minister. Several others were wounded, and servants of all of them were killed.

Emperor Hirohito immediately took charge of the situation, called a council of state and made Fumio Goto temporary premier. Martial law was proclaimed in Tokyo and the loyal army forces, largely outnumbering the rebels, surrounded the latter in the buildings they had taken. Meanwhile the second fleet, also loyal, moved up to the mouth of Tokyo bay, its guns dominating the city.

During the first day of the uprising an agreement was reached that the rebel troops should return to their barracks, but this they refused to do. Then the censorship, temporarily raised, was clamped down again. Diplomatic quarters in Shanghai received a report that Gen. Sadao Araki, former minister of war, had established a military dictatorship. He has been the most chauvinistic of all Japan's high army officers.

Political observers in Tokyo believed that the emperor's advisers would urge the right wing elements to be given a chance to form a cabinet, to see whether they would be able to conduct the government.

Even liberal political sources shared this belief, confident that such an experiment would produce a strong public reaction to the left, permitting early restoration of a normal government.

SENATE and house conferees patched up the new farm bill, substitute for the invalidated AAA, both houses accepted the revised measure and it was sent to the White House. Senator Borah argued in vain especially against the so-called "consumers'" amendment which authorizes the "re-establishment, at as rapid a rate as the secretary of agriculture determines to be practicable and in the general public interest, of the ratio between the purchasing power of the net income per person on farms and the income per person on farms that prevailed during the five-year period August, 1909, to July, 1914."

Speaking of the extraordinary delegation of power to the secretary of agriculture, Senator Borah said: "We are now asked to confer upon him a task which would require omnipotence. It is manifestly on the face of it an absurdity.

"This idea that even by divine power you can go out and equalize the purchasing power of the producer and equalize the purchasing power of the laborer, when above them both is a power which is fixing a rule under which they live, is to me inconceivable."

ON THE ground that the seed loan requirements of farmers can be met from relief funds on hand, President Roosevelt vetoed the $50,000,000 crop production bill passed by congress. In his message he called attention to his budget message urging that congress provide additional taxes if it enacted legislation imposing charges not covered in the budget. He said he expected, last year, that such loans as the seed loan would be tapered off. He realizes they still are necessary but added:

"I am fully convinced that the immediate and actual need to which I have referred can be met during the year 1936 by an expenditure of funds materially less than that proposed in the bill under discussion."

SUMMARY removal of Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood from his command of the Eighth Corps area because of his critical expressions concerning the WPA and other New Deal activities stirred up a pretty row in Washington. Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff, signed the order to Hagood, by order of the secretary of war and the President. The Republicans in congress, backed up by Tom Blanton of Texas and some other Democrats, assailed the action vigorously, and Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island introduced a resolution for an inquiry into the incident on behalf of "free speech."

Breaking its "usual rule of silence," the War department made public a letter from General Craig to Secretary Dern, declaring Hagood's record was "marked by repeated examples of lack of self-control, irresponsible and in-temperate statements."

Hagood had told a house subcommittee that it was "almost impossible" to get WPA's "stage money" for "anything worthwhile." These remarks, said Craig, "can only be characterized as flippant in tone and entirely uncalled for and designed to bring ridicule and contempt upon civil agencies of the government."

Accusing him of "thinly veiled" opposition and "contempt" toward War department policies in the past, Craig pointed out as "contemptuous" Hagood's references to CCC activities as "hobbies," "collecting postage stamps" and "taking an interest in butterflies."

Seeking a quick settlement of the controversy, Senator Byrnes, Democrat, and Representative McSwain, Democratic chairman of the house military affairs committee, both of whom had from Hagood's home state of South Carolina, arranged a conference with Secretary of War Dern. This had no result.

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan has formally declined to enter the Ohio Presidential primary, but does not bar himself from consideration for the Republican nomination. Writing to the Republican state committee of Ohio, in reply to an inquiry as to whether he would run, Vandenberg asserted his "sole interest" in the Republican convention was that it should make "the wisest possible decisions respecting both party leadership and party policies."

To conform to Ohio law, the Borah forces have found the required "second choice." This is Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, N. Y., publisher of a chain of newspapers, who has agreed to fight alongside the Idaho senator for Ohio's 52 delegates, to receive the votes of those pledged to Borah should the nomination of the latter be blocked in the convention. Mr. Gannett has expressed the belief that Borah is the one member of the party "most likely to recover the upstate New York vote," and he also holds the view that the Idahoan would be the strongest candidate in the agricultural states.

WHILE waiting for instructions as to what to do in the matter of taxation, the members of the house—and many others—directed their attention to the investigation of the activities of the Townsend pension plan promoters. Speaker Byrnes appointed on the probing committee of eight two avowed Townsendites—John H. Tolan, Democrat, and Samuel L. Collins, Republican, both from California. The chairman is J. Jasper Bell of Missouri, Democrat, author of the resolution for the investigation. It was understood that Mr. Bell had already gathered a mass of information to substantiate the charge that the Townsend plan has become a huge racket. The leaders of both parties in congress have been getting rather nervous over the growth of the Townsend movement and are glad to see it attacked; but some impartial observers call attention to the fact that the way the committee is going after it smacks of unconstitutional abridgment of the right to petition.

It was expected that one of the first questions to be considered by the committee would be the salaries received by Dr. Francis E. Townsend, author of the scheme, and R. E. Clements, former California real estate operator, co-founder and general manager.

SENATOR NYE of North Dakota is determined that the war profits bill devised by his munitions committee shall be brought up for consideration at this session. Indeed he more than threatens a filibuster to bring this about, if necessary, to get the measure out of the hands of a finance subcommittee which is headed by Tom Connally of Texas, one of Nye's bitter opponents.

The Nye bill provides for stiff taxes on earnings and virtual confiscation of individual income above $10,000 a year in time of war. In addition it would empower the President virtually to conscript industrial leaders to maintain production of essential war supplies.

UNEXPECTEDLY revolting against administration direction, the house voted down, 172 to 164, the bill to exempt from state and local taxation bank stocks held by the Reconstruction corporation. A similar measure passed the senate 38 to 28 the day before. The defeat was surprising because the measure had been unanimously supported by Republicans and Democrats on the house banking committee. Democratic leaders expressed the belief that the measure would not be revived.

The legislation was written after the Supreme court held in a Maryland bank case that the stocks held by RFC were subject to taxation.

GOV. EUGENE TALMADGE is virtually financial dictator of Georgia, because the general assembly did not enact an appropriation bill, but he is having his troubles finding funds to carry on. He declared there was a "plan hatched in Washington" to hamper him, and ousted State Treasurer George Hamilton and Controller General William Harrison for refusal to honor treasury warrants. Hamilton removed all the money from the treasury vault to a bank. Three state departments provided funds for temporary operation of fiscal affairs.

Then depository banks, the United States post office and the state's attorney general took a hand. Mail addressed to the suspended officers was impounded, cutting off the flow of tax remittances; all but one of the depository banks refused to honor state checks pending a court decision on the legal status of de facto officials; and Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, once cited by Talmadge as an authority for his actions, declared his position had been misinterpreted.

DEATH took from the scene two men prominent in national life—Albert Cabell Ritchie, governor of Maryland for four terms, and Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy and distant cousin of the President. Mr. Ritchie was a leader among conservative Democrats, from the start a determined foe of national prohibition, and in 1932 a candidate for the Presidential nomination by his party. Though beaten out by F. D. Roosevelt, he had the satisfaction of seeing his repeal plank put into the Democratic platform. Of late he had been an outspoken critic of the New Deal policies, for he was a champion of state rights.

Henry L. Roosevelt was the fifth member of his family to serve as assistant secretary of the navy, and in recent months he had played an increasingly important part in the affairs of the department, acting as secretary during the illness of Secretary Swanson. He was a student in the naval academy class of 1909, but left before graduation to become a second lieutenant in the marine corps, in which service he rose to the rank of colonel.

POLITICAL conditions in Puerto Rico, notoriously unsatisfactory, may be rectified as a result of the assassination in San Juan of E. Francis Riggs, chief of the Insular police, and a district police chief. Riggs, a former United States army colonel, was shot by two Nationalists; two hours later District Police Chief Francisco Velez N. Ortiz attempted to put down a Nationalist riot at Utuado and was killed. Gov. Blanton Winship announced that a full inquiry into the incidents would be energetically pushed. Deploring the slaying of Riggs as "dastardly," he asserted a revival of capital punishment, being urged upon the legislature, would prevent such crimes.

The assassins of Riggs were caught and admitted the killing, saying it was in revenge for the Rio Pedras "massacre" in which police killed four Nationalists last November. While being questioned, the murderers, the police said, reached for guns and were shot to death.

DEVELOPMENTS in Washington lead to the belief that the Copeland ship subsidy bill has been abandoned. Word came from the White House that the President, although he initiated the principles of the measure, would not press for its passage; and Senator Royal S. Copeland, whose commerce committee approved the bill which was a part of the administration program, is so irritated that he may drop it. Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania has prepared a rival measure, not yet introduced.

Shipping interests have given warning that new construction for foreign trade will continue to be paralyzed by uncertainty and lead to additional insistence by the Navy department on the building of its own auxiliaries.

CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, British foreign minister, stood up in the house of commons and warned the world that recurrence of the World War was imminent and in his opinion could not be averted except by a system of collective security "embracing all nations in an authority which is unchallengeable and unchallengeable."

Eden impressed upon members of the parliament the difference between a policy of collective security and one of encirclement, such as the "ring of steel" which Germany complains is being forged about her by France. "The British government will have no lot or part in encirclement," Eden said.

MUSSOLINI had an ambitious plan for a five-power agreement that would embrace Italy, Germany, Austria, Poland and Hungary. But when it was submitted to Hitler he declined to enter the combination. However, the reichsfuehrer, it is said, told Mussolini Germany looks with sympathy on the stand Italy has taken. Hitler pointed out that Germany is at present economically and militarily weak and needs a breathing space to recruit her forces. He cannot therefore do anything at present that is likely to draw the hostility of France and Great Britain, but he will maintain an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward Italy.

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Lansing—Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state, has indicated that the 1937 license plates for motor cars in Michigan would be maize on blue, the colors of the University of Michigan.

Bay City—Police are holding $625 in old currency which a 17-year-old boy found in a glass jar when wreckers demolished a barn near his home. The barn was on the property formerly owned by Robert Rochnow, who died last year.

Detour—Members of the road crew recovered the body of Andrew Thompson, 35 years old, from beneath 15 tons of frozen coal that fell on him as he was loading coal. Thompson, a Great Lakes sailor, drove a coal sleigh during the winter.

Lansing—Inmates of Michigan's prisons are to wear hand-made shoes. Only the arrival of materials is needed to start the new shoemaking industry in the Marquette Branch prison. To provide as much work as possible, most of the cobbling will be done by hand. Necessary machinery will be rented from the manufacturers.

Sault Ste. Marie—Late opening of navigation on St. Mary's River was predicted by Coast Guard and United States Navy hydrographic officers due to the heavy ice caused by the prolonged cold wave. Last year the season opened April 16. The ice this year averages 10 inches in thickness. Ice in St. Mary's River is 22 inches thick.

Lansing—By presidential order, $700,000 has been put in the hands of Secretary of the Interior for purchase of Isle Royale land to become a National Park. Thinking the Federal appropriation might be insufficient, promoters of the National Park plan got the State Administrative Board to set aside an additional $100,000.

Ann Arbor—Arthur Peters, of Birmingham, a University of Michigan freshman, was the only representative of the state to capture a first prize in the annual Avery Hopwood literary competition for yearlings. Peters won $50 in the essay division. A third prize of $20 was awarded to Christine Gezell of Ann Arbor, for her entry in the fiction class.

Lansing—The State Old Age Assistance bureau received a check for $330,000 as its allotment from the National Social Security Board. The director of the state bureau, has estimated that the Federal supplement to Michigan funds would raise old-age assistance checks to nearly 20,000 recipients from an average of $11 a month to $16.50 in March and April.

Houghton Lake—Enrollees from CCC Camp Houghton Lake are engaged in building a 103-foot log bridge, the largest of its kind in the Lower Peninsula, across the Muskegon River, near Houghton Lake. When completed the bridge will be an important link between the old area of the Houghton Lake State forest and the newly acquired deer refuge areas in Missaukee county.

Grand Haven—If Mussolini ever reads this he will junk his auto and buy a different make. It seems that Il Duce's car and Haile Selassie's throne are both upholstered with the same make of leather—provided by the Eagle Ottawa Leather Co. of this city. The company here has specialized until it leads the world in the manufacture of leather for cars and for chairs.

Lansing—The State Highway Department has awarded contracts for two hard surfacing road projects on US-27. The Grace Construction Co. of Marshall received the contract for 5.319 miles of surface from Olivet northeast. Its bid was $133,057. The McKenzie Co. of Dearborn received the contract for 2.827 miles from Charlotte south on its bid of $72,206. The projects will provide a hard surface on US-27 from the state line to a point just north of Harrison.

Lansing—A $500,000 WPA flood control fund for Michigan has been asked of Washington by Harry L. Pierson, state works progress administrator. WPA headquarters has sent out information that funds will be available "to provide for necessary emergency work when danger to life or grave risk to property is engendered by flood conditions." Pierson recently met with his eight district directors and asked them to draft projects where conditions indicate a danger of floods.

Lansing—The 1937 Legislature will decide whether the state shall refund $2,000,000 of sales tax money. Items used in agricultural production or industrial processing were exempted from the sales tax by the 1935 legislature. The act was made retroactive despite some doubt as to whether this could be done legally, and the attorney-general held the provision valid. About $2,000,000 had been paid on items used in agricultural production or industrial processing before the exemption became effective.

Lansing—Included in the three rural settlement administration and the forest service plans for the developing of three forest community projects, is the Basswood settlement near Iron River. The Basswood project, located in the Ottawa national forest, calls for a village type of settlement for 113 families. Acreage from one-half to ten acres, and small houses will be provided for each family, and the major income of the individual family, said the announcement, will be derived from logging of private and Government timber.

Jackson—Notice was received here from Washington that approval has been given an application of the Jackson Safety and Traffic Committee for a WPA traffic survey.

Lansing—A drop of $10,532,235 in property taxes in Michigan was reported by the State Tax Commission. Property taxes of all kinds amounted to only $147,498,199 in 1935, according to the commission's tabulation, as compared with $158,030,435 in 1934.

Battle Creek—Residents here satisfied a life long urge by pulling fire alarm boxes all in fun as a part of the entertainment at the "open house" celebration to observe final payment on the structure. The highlight of the celebration was the burning of the bonds.

Lansing—Glenn M. Tow, 33 years old, survived a four-story fall when he slipped on the ice covering a window ledge in a building here as he crawled outside to wash the windows. He landed feet first on the icy sidewalk. Both ankles were fractured and his head was cut, but he is expected to recover from his injuries.

Lansing—The state has taken its fight for jurisdiction over valuable fishing waters in Green Bay to the United States Supreme Court. The question at issue is whether Michigan or Wisconsin fishing licenses are required in the disputed waters of Whaleback shoal and waters north of Rock Island Passage.

Saginaw—Federal approval of a WPA appropriation of $33,050 to be used in reconditioning the Saginaw Municipal airport has been granted, according to advices received here. With an appropriation of $1,846 by the city, $34,896 will be available for the work, which is expected to provide six months' employment for about 78 men.

Battle Creek—The Michigan Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and affiliated organizations will be held here June 10 to 12. The veterans of Foreign Wars previously had set their annual meeting for June 23 to 27, but it was expected an adjustment would be made on dates to make them conform. About 13,000 are expected to attend.

Alma—Crude oil from Central Michigan was pumped across the Ohio border and straight into the tanks at Toledo for the first time in a bee-line trip of 140 miles, which took six and one-half days. The new eight-inch pipeline holds 45,000 barrels by itself, and that much crude oil had to be pumped in before there were any results at Toledo.

Lansing—The State department of Labor and Industry reported a slight decline in industrial employment in Michigan in January, as compared with December, but revealed evidence that wage scales were increasing. The weekly payroll averaged $11,506,027, only .7 per cent lower than in December, and 26 per cent higher than in the previous January.

Saginaw—New peaks in population and enterprises have been achieved by Saginaw, according to the new city directory recently issued. The directory lists 46,104 names, almost 2,000 more than in 1929, and 494 kinds of commercial, industrial and professional establishments as against 475 six years ago. Only persons over 18 are listed. The city's population was not estimated.

Holland—Hope college, founded in 1866 by the Reformed Church of America, now has nearly 2,000 Alumni, records of the school show. Every member of the first seven classes has died and but one member of the class of 1873 is living. He is the Rev. Josias Meulendyke, of Rochester, N. Y., 86 years old, who will celebrate his sixtieth anniversary as a minister this year.

Gaylord—Samuel Hagadorn, of Jonesburg, has lost seven head of thoroughbred and good-grade dairy cows. The clerk at the local feed store gave him arsenic, which he thought was bone meal as they look very much alike. The arsenic was used by the farmers here last summer to kill off grasshoppers, and in some way it got mixed with the bone meal stock.

Lansing—The Legislature's involved mathematical formula for equalizing burdens of excessively poor school districts before there is a general distribution of state aid will fall $664,297 short of expectations, says Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction. The amount represents error in the calculations of the framer of the school aid act. It will mean a larger distribution to all schools instead of special grants to so-called poor schools.

Lansing—Appointment of 17 grievance committees for Michigan was announced by Roberts P. Hudson, president of the State Bar of Michigan. Hudson said 3,385 lawyers have registered as required by law, and received their certificates of active membership from the State Bar's Lansing headquarters. The number of lawyers in Michigan is estimated at 5,000. April 1, Hudson reminded, is the final date for registration. The law says no unregistered lawyer may practice.

Lansing—Four high school students have been awarded two-week trips to Isle Royale next summer, at the expense of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan. They are Mary Lou Mills of Ann Arbor; Gwen Gordon of MacKenzie high school, Detroit; Robert Gunderson, Pontiac, and Thomas D. Landas of Kalamazoo. They won the club's poster-slogan contest conducted in the interest of conservation. The posters will be used by the State Department of Conservation to emphasize the need for obeying conservation laws.

Washington Digest
NATIONAL TOPICS INTERPRETED
By William Bruckart
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington—Congress, again, has given a fine illustration of how a horse goes up to the jump, then falls to take it.

Neutrality a Shell
It faltered on the neutrality question. True, congress has re-enacted for another year the neutrality law that was put through under pressure a year ago but it did not have the necessary courage to go into that question and work out anything of a permanent character. The result, I am convinced, is that as soon as there is any excuse whatsoever, neutrality for the United States will be nothing but a shell.

I do not know, nor do I believe anybody can tell at this juncture whether the United States ought to embark on a rigid policy of isolation from affairs of the world but that is a question that is subordinate at this moment. The point is that congress, a year ago, made a great show of neutrality and put on a second stage performance only lately with the same theme song. Since it has backed away from the real issue it begins to appear that the original action was but hollow mockery; that the politicians moved a year ago with the thought in mind that they would not have to go on record so soon and that they could make the country feel it had elected statesmen. But, instead, their course has led them to the point where a decision had to be made—and they have dodged it.

One of the reasons why this neutrality question has become so important is the combination of circumstances that has developed in Europe. Those maneuvers have put our congress on the spot and it, like so many previous times, again has wavered.

It is difficult to forecast what is going to happen in Europe but there are certain signs and portents that may not be ignored. History, as we all know, has a habit of repeating itself and it promises to repeat itself in a hurry this time.

Let us look at the European picture. On the one hand we have an alignment of France and England and probably Russia. On the other, we see Hitlerized Germany, Austria and Italy. There has been nothing more tangible thus far than a baring of fangs. That is, no overt acts have been committed but it always has been the case that the snarling and showing of teeth has provided the setting, the atmosphere, for more serious accusations. It may never happen that Germany or Austria or Italy will take steps which France or Russia could regard as an invasion of national rights and then, again, any one of them at any time may accidentally or deliberately do some minor thing that would provoke hostilities.

The chief significance of the reported alignment of Italy with Germany and Austria is that the Central Powers, as they stood in 1914, have been augmented by the strength of Fascist Italy. It means that the Germany of 1914 has access to the North sea and the Mediterranean instead of just the North sea as occurred 20 years ago.

Coupled with that fact is the condition of a better defense for the Central Powers. If the agreement between Germany and Italy sticks, Germany has only the western and Russian fronts to maintain. It allows for a more compact military program because, instead of guarding against Italy on the south, Germany has an ally in that direction from which sources of supply can be established.

The fresh understandings worked out between France and England really are nothing more than a restoration of the arrangement that existed in the World War. The British, on the surface at least, have no compact with Russia but the French have a very definite agreement with the Soviet. It seems likely, therefore, that if hostilities should break out again, the British and the Soviet will have no difficulty in establishing a pact of mutual help.

As a sidelight, it seems to me that the new developments rather turn the spotlight on the policies of Pierre Laval, former French foreign minister, was ousted because of alleged pro-Italian policies. He sought for months to maintain friendship between France and Italy because he feared to do otherwise would result in alignment of Mussolini with Hitler. The bulk of the French parliament disagreed with him, however, and M. Laval was replaced by Foreign Minister Flandrin.

Now, Europe has seen the prompt desertion of Mussolini from the French side and his alignment with Hitler.

So, the old picture has been put together again in Europe with the only change being the placement of Italy on the opposite side of the fence from where that nation stood in 1914. But let not the fact that the alignment differs only because of Italy's position be minimized. It is the most important of the combination that has developed in Europe.

The new situation, insofar as Great Britain is concerned, means that in case of a clash in the Mediterranean between the forces of Mussolini and of the British there will be French support. It means, therefore, that Mussolini hardly dare disturb the concentration of British warships around the Suez. To do so would call down upon his head not only the shells of the British fleet but those of the French as well.

For the French, the revived understanding with Great Britain gives support against the slow flow of Hitler lava into the Rhineland which was demilitarized by the Treaty of Versailles at the end of the World War. The French are very touchy about the Rhineland and any attempt by Germany to fortify that territory makes French nerves very jittery. It is only natural, then, that the French look upon the agreement with London as an assurance of security in event Hitler should strike in the Rhineland.

Through it all, foreign advices indicate that British fists are gradually being doubled up against Hitler. This is true notwithstanding the fact that the new King Edward VIII is trying to be friendly with Germany. Foreign dispatches and private advices explain that there is a notable recurrence among the British of discussion recalling German atrocities in the World War. Slowly but surely throughout England the old hatred is arising.

On the northern frontier of Germany there is a new line of steel. The Communistic state of Russia looks with disfavor upon the Nazi. My information is that it would take very little to provoke trouble there.

Altogether, the situation is one where, if a stone rolls down a mountain side, it could very easily become the detonation cap that would explode an ammunition dump.

With these facts in mind, one can understand readily the gravity of the relations between the United States and the rest of the world. One can understand as well why congress was rather anxious to avoid legislation of a broader scope in international affairs than already was operative. Yet, this does not alter the fact that if congress had no intention of establishing a real neutrality policy, it should not have embarked on a course designed to that end. It was either engaging in a game of fooling the public a year ago or it has just now demonstrated a most cowardly attitude.

Now, to get back home, we observe a maneuver by President Roosevelt to link North and South American nations into a new agreement. While none of our officials will say that this move has any connection with European development, I believe that observers generally are of the opinion that it has an important bearing on the situation beyond the Atlantic. It ought to be helpful in keeping the United States out of that mess or, if the future forces us into it and, in the meantime, there is a sound arrangement worked out between nations of the western hemisphere, their combined strength ought to put an end to European strife more quickly than if those European nations were left to fight it out alone. In other words, if Mr. Roosevelt can work out a binding agreement between all the nations of the western hemisphere, they can exert a tremendous influence. This influence will carry further than on the homeland of any of the countries now involved in the European case of jitters. It possibly may extend to the point of becoming the balance of power in the settlement of colonial disputes between the central powers and the newly re-established allies. European interests in South America are important and if our South American neighbors have the important weight of the United States on their side, they will be in a position, for the first time, to force proper adjustment of colonial rights in the western hemisphere insofar as those colonial rights are concerned in settlement of European differences.

Saxony Densely Populated
One of the most densely populated regions in Germany is Saxony. The capital and seat of the government is Dresden, an old town situated on the banks of the Elbe. Another famous city of Saxony is Leipzig, known for its semiannual industrial fairs and as a renowned music center. It was in Leipzig that Bach wrote many of his masterpieces.

Wood for Guitars
The sides and back of guitars are usually made of maple, ash, service or cherry, not infrequently adorned with inlays of rosewood or other woods. The sound board or face is of deal. Hard woods, such as ebony, beech or pear, are used for the neck and fingerboard. The bridge may be of ebony.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"On Jacob's Ladder"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

WELL, sir, here's one of those automobile stories I've been looking for. By golly, I knew they were there waiting for me. Why, doggone it, there must be a million good auto adventures in hiding. The field isn't even scratched yet.

Half our adventuring today is done in automobiles, and I'll bet most every one of you has a good gas-buggy yarn in mind that you just haven't gotten around to sending me yet.

This automobile yarn is a lulu, too. It comes from George H. Smith, and the trouble George got into, well, gosh hang it, it's almost enough to make a man sell his car and put the dough into life insurance.

Of course, George Smith can't very well sell that bus of his. In the first place he doesn't own it, and in the second he makes his living driving the doggone thing.

George has been a truck driver since 1921 and he must be a pretty good one, too, for he drove that old petrol wagon for 12 years without getting into any really serious trouble.

Here Begins the Story of George's Woes.

One day, back in 1933 though, George did get into trouble. But I'm not the man to tell you about that. Let George do it!

"I was driving a big freight van," says George, "from Boston to Albany. I was getting along fine until just before I got to Pittsfield. Then, coming down a steep hill called Jacob's Ladder, the car seemed to get away from me.

"I had to grab the hand brake to prevent a smash, and what a racket that brake made. I got her to the bottom of the hill all right, though, and there I found I'd broken the brake shoe on the drive shaft.

"That left me nothing but the foot brakes. Maybe I should have stopped right there and had it fixed. If I'd had any idea of what was going to happen, I darned sure would have. But lots of drivers got along with a hand brake so I stepped on the gas and took a chance."

Only One More Big Hump to Get Over.

George's truck rolled on through Pittsfield and took the steep grade down Lebanon mountain without any trouble. He had left all the steep spots in his

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

route behind him now—all except one, and he was coming to that—a small mountain that drops down into the town of Nassau, New York.

George rolled over the top of that mountain and had just started down the other side when suddenly his foot brake slipped and the van leaped forward.

George grabbed for the shift lever—tried to throw her back into first. It was no use. He tried the brake again, but this time the foot brake didn't work at all. And all the time the truck was gathering speed as it raced down the steep incline toward the bottom.

It's Not the Hill—It's What's Below!

It was only four miles to the bottom of that hill, but, as George says, a lot can happen on a four-mile hill, especially when there's a town at the bottom. The truck, by this time, was going faster than any truck was ever built to go—swaying from side to side and all but leaping from the road.

George made a right turn and negotiated a left—prayed that he wouldn't meet any traffic. Now houses began to flash by, warning him that the town at the bottom of the hill was not far away.

"All I had," says George, "was a horn and a prayer. I dropped down a grade steeper than the rest, with a sharp curve at the bottom. And at the speed I was making I knew I'd never make that turn."

Crash of Truck Saves Driver's Life.

Well, he didn't—exactly. The van hit the curve and started to dip. George clutched the wheel and held his breath as both his left wheels raised off the ground. He braced himself for a fall and then—SMASH—the side of the van hit a tree, tearing half the body from the wheels.

But that crash had saved George's life. The force of the impact knocked the big truck back on all four wheels again and it caromed off down the last steep grade toward the town.

Ahead of him red traffic lights turned green as he roared through the village of Nassau, his horn screeching a frantic warning. George steered the big van to the side of the road—rubbed his tires against the curb in a vain effort to slow it down. Then he hit a short up-grade and came to a stop on the outskirts of the village.

"My knees," George says, "were like rags and I had to sit down a while. I looked back down the street and there was freight scattered along the curb as far as I could see. I looked under the truck and found that the pinion gear was gone out of the rear end.

"A town officer drove up and I was arrested. Reckless driving was the charge, but when the kindly old judge heard my story he let me off with a $10 fine."

St. Bernard Dogs Swiss

Heroes as Life-Savers

So universal is the fame of the St. Bernard dogs that it goes without saying that they rank first among the aristocracy of Switzerland's canine world. Their home, as their name suggests, is the Great St. Bernard Hospice, founded over 1,000 years ago by Bernard de Menthon, a saintly priest, and inhabited up to this day by brethren of the Order of St. Augustine, states a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Winter lasts from eight to nine months in that isolated mountain region and the snow is sometimes piled up as high as 12 to 15 feet. Blizzards are sudden and descend with such fury that many travelers would surely perish were it not for the vigilance and devotion of the monks and their marvelously trained dogs.

Historic records show that the Hospice was without any dogs up to 1670 A. D. From then on the brethren kept a few watch dogs, but it is not clearly established of what breed they were. These animals soon took delight in accompanying their masters on their many errands of mercy and were quickly appreciated for their unerring sense of location.

The race which has for the last 250 years been described as St. Bernards has, according to a noted naturalist, been gradually developed by the monks through careful breeding and training in life-saving work.

The short-haired variety is the original kind. In 1830 some of the brethren decided to cross their dogs with Newfoundlanders, in order to raise animals which would be protected against the inclement climate with longer hair. However, this crossing did not affect the physical characteristics of the St. Bernards, and only the hair became longer.

General Morgan's View

A Union soldier who had been captured by Gen. John Morgan during the latter's raid through southern Ohio in the Civil war raised his arms to break his musket across a rock. To prevent this, one of Morgan's men instantly drew a revolver to shoot the prisoner, but Morgan forbade this with the statement: "Never harm a man who has surrendered. In breaking his musket, he is doing just as I would were I in his place."

ANNUAL TAX SALE

STATE OF MICHIGAN, ss.

COUNTY OF IOSCO

The Circuit Court for the County of Iosco in Chancery.

In the matter of the petition of John J. O'Hara, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest, and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the March term of this Court, to be held at Tawas City, in the County of Iosco, State of Michigan, on the 24th day of March, A. D. 1936, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Iosco, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be re-offered, and if, on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Herman Dehnke, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Iosco County this 18th day of February, A. D. 1936.

Herman Dehnke, Circuit Judge.

Countersigned,

R. H. McKenzie, Clerk.

State of Michigan

To the Circuit Court for the County of Iosco in Chancery:

The petition of John J. O'Hara, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Iosco upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A," as aforesaid, for the first instalment of taxes of 1932, or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale, or sales, so made have been set aside by court of competent jurisdiction by Legislative Action (See Act 126, P. A. of 1933, as amended by Act 11, Extra Session of 1934, as amended by Act 73, P. A. of 1935), or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Dated Feb. 17, 1936.

John J. O'Hara,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.

A list of the lands referred to as included in "Schedule A" is on file in the office of the County Clerk and subject to public inspection.

The Returned Delinquent Rolls and the Supplemental Returned Delinquent Rolls, together with the delinquent taxes of 1933, are all filed in the County Treasurer's office and contain the descriptions which will be offered for sale. They are subject to public inspection.

Only One Low Priced Car is FIRST in Everything That Counts
...TERRAPLANE
JUST COMPARE THIS with THIS

Terraplane alone among all popular low priced cars gives you this:

- Full 115-inch wheelbase.
- 195 inches over-all length.
- Most power—88 or 100 horsepower—with freedom from vibration at all speeds.
- Body all of steel, with seamless roof of solid steel.
- Most inside room—145 cubic feet—more leg and shoulder room, and widest rear seat.
- Completely new style—best insurance of the investment value of your car.
- The only rear opening baggage and tire compartment on 5 and 6-passenger models that can be had in any low priced car without extra cost. Spare tire lies flat inside.
- Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for), two braking systems operating automatically from one brake pedal. And a third braking system from the easiest operating parking brake in the world.
- Extra deep "V-type" windshield—for added beauty and wider vision.

In every other popular low priced car this is what you get:

- 2 to 6 inches less wheelbase.
- 5 to 12 1/2 inches less over-all length.
- 3 to 18 less horsepower than Terraplane's 88—nor nearly as smooth.
- Body only partly of steel—or steel body with "soft-top."
- Less inside room—less shoulder and leg room—narrower rear seats.
- 1935 styling, changed only in details. Far more likely to be out of date by 1937.
- No rear opening baggage and tire compartment, except in cars where trunk models are available—at considerable extra cost. Spare tire mounted outside on all other models.
- Single main braking system—either hydraulic or mechanical—without complete reserve braking system and without Terraplane's type of easy acting parking brakes.
- Nothing like Terraplane's deep "V-type" windshield in any other low priced car.

The list of Terraplane advantages doesn't stop with those listed here. There's greater ruggedness, proved by owner mileages of 125,000, 150,000 and more. Greater economy, too, certified by thousands of sworn owner statements... emphasized again just the other day in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run when a

Ball Clubs' Need of Costly Training Belied by Facts

A DAY or two ago I talked with a gentleman who owns most of the bank that—very reluctantly—owns most of a major league ball club. While he waved fingers which had been burned from laying too many loans on the line for those Central American republics which have such a rapid turnover in presidents, he scolded the fate that always keeps him playing with fire.

"Do you know what it costs?" he said. "Wait," he hastened on. "Wait, I'll show you." He gave an order. There was great activity in the outer office. One group of young men sprang to their adding machines. Another, far larger group, sprang to their subtracting machines. Then I knew that the excitement was caused by the memory of the $25,000 which must be advanced for the club's spring training trip.

"Do they have to go all the way down there?" he asked, pointing to a distant spot on the southern map. "Do they really have to take almost two months to get ready to play?"

Since it is a pleasure to experiment with the truth now and then I told him "No." I added that most sane baseball men believe that a team can be trained in any temperate climate. I recalled that John McGraw once said that any team should be in shape after two weeks of training, and that during the rest of the spring junket a manager was most sorely beset in trying to keep the players that way.

The Baltimore Orioles, who won seven successive International league pennants, specialized in conquering big-time clubs in exhibition affairs and never trained farther south than North Carolina during five of these years.

Build-Up Spoiled by Poor Pre-Season Showing

Obviously the real purpose of long and expensive spring training periods is to build up the expectant excitement of the home town fans. It is an advertising means for creating a definite demand for the product before it is placed on the market.

This theory is excellent, and yet in practice the results sometimes are unfortunate. Having gone through years in the belief that the home town fans will stand for anything, the club owners naturally do not have any higher opinion of so-called tank towners. Therefore they request a bunch of realistic young men, who do not get paid until the season starts, to give a performance which means nothing before people who mean even less to them.

Baseball, jelly beans and movies all cost money. It is true that in Macon, in Jackson, or in some such town, you can get the same jelly beans or movies as you can on Broadway, and often the price is less. So if the natives, with full knowledge of what big-time baseball offers them and asks for it, decide to stick to jelly beans and movies there seems no—

"Hold on," interrupted the gentleman. "I get part of it, but isn't it true that the Yankees charge the same prices as the other clubs and that they haven't always had the best team?"

"Yes," I told him. "But, until in a moment of weakness they parted with him, they always had Babe Ruth. And all you need to put on a show that will pack them in is one guy like—"

But the banking gentleman no longer was listening. Some things are too much even for one of his hopeful calling. He rose and darted into the other room. He can still be heard shouting frantically to the clerks to warm up a dozen new subtracting machines.

Ring Title's Yours if You Have $20,000

If you can make the weight and have $20,000 to spare you can become a world champion. One of the pugilistic titles is for sale at that price. . . . Jack Curley claims that in a wrestler versus boxer match the boxer is sure to have 90 per cent the worst of the going.

N. Y. U. students do not hold exclusive squawking rights about not being able to get into their own basketball games. Neither the Brigham Young U. nor the Colorado U. gyms are big enough to hold all the excited student ticket holders. At Brigham Young recently they had to rig up a loud speaker gadget in the university assembly hall so that the students could find out what the players were doing in the nearby gym.

I WONDER: If most of the overgrown lambs set in front of Joe Louis during the past year were really jittery because of his punching prowess and his well press-agented fighting face? Or whether they might not have been in anguish because they knew their own defects made them pushovers for any reasonably able citizen?

If Jack Dempsey thinks he has been divinely appointed to rescue the white race from the Joe Louis peril and so must devote his precious time to a heavy-weight elimination tournament with a Jim Crow clause? Or if Jack Dempsey does not know that the world probably will go along just the same if the clean-living and capable Joe Louis does take permanent possession of the title?

And if Jack Dempsey wouldn't do better if he stuck to his cooking?

Whether that Puerto Rico training trip of the Cincinnati Reds really is such a swell publicity and money getting stunt as the National League president and the multi-millionaire owner of the club seem to believe? And isn't it true that the Reds usually have wound up overtired even during those recent seasons when they did not start training a full month ahead of the other teams? Or are the Cincinnati fans supposed to go on forever being satisfied with a second division club, adorned with night baseball and other trimmings.

Why racetrack pari-mutuel betting is supposed to violate the lottery laws in a state where the constables never chirp about the prize contests regularly conducted at small neighborhood movie houses?

Why the American League does not sign Dolly Stark, the best of all possible umpires, who recently cut himself loose from the National League's bed and board?

Why the flag waving A. A. U. sent such an inferior hockey team to the Olympic Games? Could it have been because the departure of Sam Babcock, Reb Russell, Ty Anderson, Frank Splaine and other recognized stars would have cut too deeply into those weekly $6,000 amateur gates at the Garden?

Six-Day Bike Aces Are Born That Way

Things the six-day bicycle riders—who are now battling it out in Madison Square Garden—probably never even knew about themselves:

John Chapman, who promotes and profits, says that the cyclists are born with powerful legs and that if they do not have them in the cradle they seldom can develop them. Tino Reboli of Newark has the most highly extolled Dietrichs of the present era.

Bike riding papas raise their boys to be bike riders. Alfred Buisse, the Belgian, is the son of Marcel Buisse, who used to thrill the fans in the old Garden. And Cesar Moretti's dad once was Italian champion.

There are physicians who claim that the bike riders are the gamiest of all athletes and take more punishment than any others.

Norman Hill went to a San Jose, Calif., high school with Marvin Owen, the Detroit third baseman. Says that he (Hill) never could play ball but that Owen might have become a swell bike rider.

Franco Georgetti probably is the wealthiest rider. He makes it both in the races and in Wall Street and is one of those people who have staged magnificent comebacks after being clipped in 1920.

Georgetti is the American motor-paced champion and is one of the two titleholders who will compete in the coming event. The other is Hill, who is the all-around champion of the United States.

Although most of the riders are covered with scars, only one man ever has been killed in a six-day race. That was Urban MacDonald, who went over the top of the track in the Garden in 1908. He died in the hospital the next day as a result of his injuries.

Grid Stars Can't Resist Lehigh's Opportunities

Big-time football players no longer are passing up Lehigh's opportunities for higher education. Within two years the team is scheduled to rank with the best in the East. . . . Joe Cooper, "amateur bad man" with the Crescents last season, picked on the wrong guy for his first pro hockey scrap. He swung his stick at Lionel Conacher, Canada's best athlete, and was rewarded with six stitches.

Sammy Berne, the old-time lightweight, who trained Benny Leonard for the two Lew Tendler fights, is post office clerk for one of the nation's busiest publishing houses. . . . There continues to be no great meeting of the minds between football folks at Holy Cross. . . . Although the football team could stand some improvement, Harvard's band could compete with Penn for the eastern intercollegiate music-making honors.

Johnny Scherf, Michigan graduate and Windsor wingman, has taken the play away from the major league veterans in the International Hockey circuit, although this is only his first season as a pro. Old-timers say that he is almost certain to become one of the few Americans who have been able to keep up with the other stars in big time rink company.

New Age of Cathedral Building Is Under Way

America's Largest Church Is Nearing Completion.

Washington.—Removal of the iron scaffolding from the west facade of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, on Morningside Heights, New York city, recently disclosed the entrance to this immense Gothic church and marked another important step toward completion of America's largest religious edifice.

"Paralleling the cathedral building era of the Middle ages, a new age of cathedral building is under way in many parts of the world," says the National Geographic society. "Architects are poring over blueprints, cranes are lifting huge blocks of stone into position, and artisans are busy chiseling out statues and delicate stone tracery as new temples rear their pinnacles skyward.

"When finished, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine will rank third on the list of the world's largest, seating 10,000 people, with standing room for homes from the crest of Nob Hill, San Francisco, the cornerstone was laid there in 1910 for Grace cathedral, to be the largest of its kind west of the Mississippi. This partially constructed, 340-foot edifice is being built chiefly of steel-reinforced concrete. The lighted cross on its central tower will be the highest point on the city skyline, and visible for miles to ships entering San Francisco bay.

"Other cathedrals being projected in the United States are St. Phillip's in Atlanta, Ga.; Trinity, in Trenton, N. J.; St. Mark's, in Seattle and the partly finished St. John the Evangelist, in Spokane, Wash.

England Builds More. "Spain is building two new cathedrals. In the suburbs of Madrid have been built the foundations and shrine of La Almudena. In Barcelona, the shrine and two towers of La Sagrada Familia have been completed.

"England, home of many ancient cathedrals, is still building them. An Anglican cathedral, that will take its place with the largest in the world, is being erected in Liverpool. Situated on St. James Mount, this huge Gothic structure dominates the city and is a landmark to ships on the River Mersey. Built principally of locally-quarried red sandstone. Its exterior will be 619 feet long and its large central tower, 97 feet square, will rise 308 feet above floor level. Its foundation stone was laid in 1904 by King Edward, and the choir alone was 20 years in building. A War Memorial chapel contains an illuminated vellum roll of honor on which are inscribed names of the nearly 40,000 Liverpool men who perished in the World war.

"Brownlow hill, Liverpool, has been chosen as the place for an immense Roman Catholic cathedral, in which 10,000 worshippers will be able to see the high altar at the same time. On the site, where the foundation stone was laid in June, 1933, will rise a massive domed brick structure, probably of the Renaissance period. It is expected that it will take at least 20 years to build."

Cedar of Lebanon Down Paris.—A historic tree, one of the few authentic cedars of Lebanon in France, has been blown over at Montigny-Lencoup, according to reports received here. Seed of the tree was brought from Lebanon by a French botanist in 1734. The tree was 35 feet in girth and 105 feet high.

Rare Book Worth $5,000 Is Bought for Trifle Closter, N. J.—A rare edition of "Pilgrim's Progress," said to be worth $5,000, was bought for 8 1/2 cents by Mayor William A. Oliver at an auction of the personal effects of the late Mrs. Ellen Jane Ackerman, wealthy recluse.

Mayor Oliver bid 25 cents for three books, among them the John Bunyan work, which was published in 1846. Mayor Oliver, who is a bibliophile, as well as a borough executive, said he recognized the value of the book as soon as it was offered for sale. In the volume were newspaper clippings saying Mrs. Ackerman had once refused an offer of $3,200 for it, according to Mayor Oliver.

French Cows Journey South for Winter

Chambery, France.—A special vacation train for cows is the latest innovation of the French railroads. One hundred and twenty-four de luxe cows boarded the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean special recently to pass the winter months in the sunny climate of southern Provence. Enjoying the same privileges as public celebrities, these bovine passengers were able to take advantage of a 10 per cent reduction in railroad fare.

Auto Industry Takes 24 Per Cent of Steel Output

Chicago.—The automotive industry was the leading consumer of finished steel in 1935, being the fourth consecutive year, according to the magazine Steel. Automobile, parts, and allied manufacturers took 24.04 per cent of the steel industry's output during the year, compared with 20.87 per cent a year ago, 20.95 per cent in 1933, and 18.15 per cent in 1932.

Second leading consuming outlet for finished steel during 1935 was the building industry at 13.01 per cent, maintaining the same rating as in 1934, when the consumption amounted to 12.70 per cent.

The container industry went into third place, pushing down the railroads, due largely to the trend toward merchandising beer, oil, and other products in cans. This industry took 9.30 per cent of total finished steel production, against 8.68 per cent in 1934. Railroads used 7.75 per cent of output, the lowest in the 14 years that the magazine made the survey, and compared with 12.96 per cent in 1934.

Other principal outlets for steel during 1935 were: Agriculture, 4.74 per cent; machinery, 4.37 per cent; oil, gas, and water, 4.29 per cent, and exports, 3.85 per cent.

Lesson for March 8 JESUS AND THE LAWYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Good Neighbor. JUNIOR TOPIC—Who Is My Neighbor? INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Neighbor. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Whose Neighbor Am I?

The subject, "Jesus Teaches Neighborliness," chosen by the lesson committee, deals only with one side of the question; namely, man's duty to his fellow men; whereas, his first duty is to God.

I. How to Inherit Eternal Life (vv. 25-28).

1. The lawyer's question (v. 25). The term "lawyer" here means "one versed in religious law, the Scriptures," not "lawyer" in our modern sense of that term. It more nearly corresponds to our theological professor. The lawyer's object was to trip Jesus, to induce him to take such a stand as would weaken his influence as a teacher.

2. Jesus' question (v. 26). "What is written in the law?" He sent him to the law, the field which was familiar to him. Jesus thus robbed him of his own weapon. Though Jesus knew the motive of the lawyer, he did not evade his question.

3. The lawyer's reply (v. 27). He made an intelligent answer, declaring that the entire content of the law was embraced in love to God and man.

4. Jesus' reply (v. 28). The straightforward answer went to the heart of the lawyer. Perfect love to God and man is truly the love of life. No man has yet had or can have such love. His sinful condition precludes its possibility. The lawyer keenly felt this thrust. He was defeated on his own grounds and, therefore, convicted of guilt.

II. "Who Is My Neighbor?" (vv. 29-37).

1. The lawyer's question (v. 29). "Who is my neighbor?" This question reveals the insincerity of the lawyer. Christ's answer had reached his conscience and now he seeks to escape the difficulty by asking a captious question.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 30-37). Jesus' reply more than answered the lawyer's question. In the parable of the Good Samaritan he makes clear who is a neighbor, and also what it means to be a neighbor and what loving a neighbor means. Christ's answer had a double meaning. He not only made clear "Who is my neighbor," but also that the lawyer was not playing the neighbor.

a. This destitute and wounded man, left on the wayside by the robbers, is a man who needs a neighbor. My neighbor, therefore, is the one who needs my help, whether he lives next door, or on the other side of the world. Love does not regard locality, nationality, or blood relation. Those who have the spirit of Christ can see their neighbors on every hand.

b. What being a neighbor means. Our supreme consideration should not be, "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" To be a neighbor is (1). To be on the lookout for those in need of help (v. 33). Love is always on a journey. It is keen to discern the needs of those with whom it is brought into contact.

(2). To have compassion on the needy (v. 33). Christ's compassion was aroused as he came into contact with those who were suffering and in need. Those who are Christlike will be likewise moved.

(3). To give to those in need (v. 34). Love does not calculate the cost of its actions. Whenever there is the calculation of cost there is the expression of selfishness. Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy, but are unwilling personally to minister to them. Many times the personal touch is more important than the material aid.

(4). To bind up wounds. If we have eyes to discern we shall see many wounds about us that need attention.

(5). To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34). This is the proof of the genuineness of our love. Those who are like Christ will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those in need.

(6). To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34). Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. Much Christian service is partial, leaving the man to take care of himself.

(7). To give money (v. 35). It costs a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God his only Son; it cost Jesus Christ his life.

Goodness

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good; myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy if I may.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Overdoing It

A man can be so painfully modest that he fatigues you.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adierka helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never feel better. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life."—Mrs. Mabel Schott.

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adierka. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adierka gives complete action, clearing your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

CHAPTER I

While she waited, Antoinette remained standing; she was nervous and excited, and it seemed easier to stand. Except for herself, there was nobody in the place.

There had been an inky, shabby, cold-looking boy in a suit too small for him idling at the battered and inky desk, spearing vainly at flies with an old pen. But he had disappeared through the glass-topped splintered door marked "Editor, Private," to tell Mr. Lawrence Bellamy, editor of the San Francisco Journal of Commerce and Business, that Miss Antoinette Taft was waiting to see him.

Rain was falling in gray sheets. Traffic crashed and honked on Montgomery Street.

The boy returned; Mr. Bellamy would be free in a minute. Antoinette sat down, her heart beating fast, and peered about the waiting room of the Journal.

Antoinette was seeking for a job. "You kin go in now," the boy said, not moving any muscle of his entire person except those involved in the toneless speech. Antoinette rose graciously. In her heart she said, "Mr. Bellamy told him to keep me waiting exactly five minutes. Ha! Just to make himself important—"

But when she stepped into the editor's office she revised her opinion.

"And You Think You'd Like a Job on a Newspaper?"

There was a fat young man in a cafe-au-lait raincoat in the revolving chair opposite that of Mr. Lawrence Bellamy.

"I wish you'd let me send you our figures?" said this individual engagingly, rising as Antoinette came in.

"I won't!" said Mr. Bellamy. "May I leave you my card?" asked the visitor.

"Sure!" the editor agreed. The young man took out his fountain pen and wrote on the card, and Antoinette took the vacated chair. She saw the older man, lolling in his seat, glance at her card. "Miss Taft?" he asked. "Funny thing—my mother's brother was Taft Baldwin," he said.

"They're both good New England names," Antoinette said, with a slight effort to seem friendly and at ease.

"Your people from Boston?"

"My father's family was. But his father came round the Horn in 'Forty-nine." Antoinette went through the usual little story smilingly. She was still terrified of the editor—any editor—but he was rather less frightening than most of them.

He was dark, his brown face thin; his aquiline nose gave a sort of autocratic significance to his face. His hands were big and lean, his mouth large, his dark thick hair was in an untidy tumble, and he wore glasses.

"Job, eh?" he began. Antoinette only smiled deprecatingly. "What experience have you had?"

"Not much—on newspapers. I did the social column for the Bulletin for two weeks. Then Margaret Russell—my friend, who had got me into it—came back from her vacation."

"That was the only work you ever did?"

"Oh, no." Antoinette smiled ruefully. "I've done lots of other things," she confessed. "I was in the Mercantile library for a year, and then in Younger's bookstore, helping my older sister."

"I know Paul Younger well," Mr. Bellamy said, with what appeared to be characteristic musing irrelevance. "Nice feller—dreamer, but that's all right. Your sister work there?"

"You'd identify her because she's tall and dark, and she wears her hair—" Antoinette made a gesture. One always made this gesture in describing Brenda's crown of braids.

"I know; young girl, rather pretty, wears turned-down collars; 'bout twenty-four or five?"

"That's Brenda. She's really—a little older than that."

"Just the two of you?"

"Two brothers, Cliff and Bruce." "Mother and father?"

"No, we lost them years ago. But my aunt, Miss Bruce, lives with us." "And you think you'd like a job on a newspaper? No social stuff on this paper, you know."

"I know. I know it's a commercial paper." Now was her time to show that she was an up-to-date business girl, full of bright ideas.

"This is what I was thinking, Mr. Bellamy, why shouldn't the Journal have one page of society news and of things interesting to women, recipes and fashions and a puzzle or two?" Her voice was dying into a suffocated silence under the effect of his narrowed smiling look and slowly shaking head. She struggled on: "It might mean that men would take it home to their wives—"

"I don't think we want to go into that line," Lawrence Bellamy told her. "You don't?" Life was bitter in her mouth, but she could seem interested, could manage to smile.

"No!" But we've got to put on more advertising before we—Let me explain the whole thing to you," the editor said. He proceeded to explain it, illustrating figures with a pencil. Antoinette listened respectfully, because she had no choice.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do, Miss Taft," Lawrence Bellamy said finally, "I've put a new man on here to rustle me up ads—only had him two weeks, and I don't know how he's going to turn out. I'll give him another week, and then why don't you get in on this? I'll let him keep whatever he's got, and I'll tell him that you're going after the department stores and the milliners and the tea rooms, how's that? You get forty per cent of what you bring in. The fellow that did have it, Hansen, used to clean up about fifty a week on it."

"And meanwhile—" they were standing now—"meanwhile I'll ask Mrs. Bellamy what she thinks of any woman's stuff in the Journal," the editor said, guiding her toward the door. "She gives me pretty good steers sometimes!"

Antoinette bowed a smiling farewell, went into the dark, wooden, inky hall, and walked down two flights to the street. The whole morning had been an utter waste of time.

Rain was still falling heavily; there was no use going home; nobody was there. Aunt Meggy would be at the sewing society meeting, Bruce was in school, Cliff at the office, Brenda at the store.

Antoinette wandered past the Hall of Justice and the little park whose green leaves were tossing in the warm sticky rain, and went idly along the narrow streets of Chinatown. Somehow she was still smarting over the recent interview with the handsome, aristocratic editor of the Journal.

While they had been talking, he had told her something of his own history. He had graduated very young from Harvard, and after some experience on college periodicals had become associated with a financial journal in New York, had married almost immediately, had continued in newspaper work ever since. The present venture in San Francisco was new but already was marked with success. He was only thirty-one or -two, Antoinette judged, probably less than ten years older than herself, he was pleased with life, sure of himself and his job!

It was "his idea" to do this, and "his innovation" to do that; he could smile down, he could deprecatingly shake away her poor little suggestions; he was full of suggestions and ideas himself.

After all she would go home to lunch. She climbed into a car on Market street. Presently she entered the doorway of a dilapidated building that contained eight five-room flats on four floor levels. Steep wooden steps, peeling and paintless, led up from the street that ran for blocks between the shabbiest and least interesting of the city's dwellings. Almost all the windows had little signs on them, little confessions of poverty and failure. "Modes," "Violin Studio," "Rooms," "Home Board," said the signs, patient and fly-specked, year after year.

There were no signs on the Taft windows; they were top-floor windows, anyway, above the eyes of the crowd. On the right of the narrow entrance hall there was the doorway of a dark bedroom, Antoinette's and Brenda's room, where one must always snap on a light. Lighted, however, it was a pleasant room enough, with a great window that was always open, on an airshaft, and an oblique upward view of the sky.

Next to this bedroom was the bathroom, dark and dank, with a smell of ammonia and yellow soap on Fridays when Asterbell came to clean, and an unpleasant odor of plumbing, rotting wood, damp rags, and plaster at other times. Then came Aunt Meg's room; the best bedroom in the house, small but bright, for it looked out across the southern city and Twin Peaks, and shared with the sitting room next to it the only exposed side of the apartment.

No one ever entered Aunt Meg's room except when she was ill, so that it reduced the apartment, strictly speaking, to four rooms. Of these one, on the left side of the hall, was a small black hole originally intended for an occasional servant, and now occupied contentedly enough by seventeen-year-old Bruce, who had a very treasure house of broken cameras, nails, tools, radio equipment, guns and cartridges on table, window ledge, bureau, mingling in casually with his shirts and collars. The other was a fair-sized kitchen with a skylight upon whose dusty face the rain was hammering and dancing again, as Antoinette came in.

The kitchen clock said twenty minutes past two. Antoinette made herself a luxurious meal of brown toast and tea. There was a saucer of stewed tomatoes in the icebox; one sardine. She grilled the sardine, scrambled an egg in the tomato sauce, and presently carried an epicurean tray in to the sitting-room window; found her book, The Father Brown Stories, and settled down for an hour of sheer pleasure. The rain, the discouraging editors, the depressing downtown streets, the condition of the family budget were all forgotten; Antoinette was in London streets, in London clubs and studios, following a shabby cask through strange and dramatic adventures.

After a while the food was gone, and the rain had disappeared, too. Antoinette put her head down on her arms and sat motionless for some fifteen minutes. Then suddenly she sprang up, her book coasting to the floor, and snatching up the tray fled rather than walked with it to the kitchen. Cup, spoons, plate into the dishpan, hot water, tray tipped up on the dresser again, teapot rinsed and turned upside down—

Antoinette worked as if whips were driving her. She went into the bedroom and came out with two waists and several pairs of stockings, took a basin from the damp, vegetable-scented back porch, rinsed and soaped busily. Her electric iron was plugged in, and a board brought from the same back porch, which was fortunately spacious, and served as a store-room.

Meanwhile, with characteristic fatal determination to be thorough, Antoinette was starting several other things and planning in her busy brain to do more. She hung the waists daintily on hangers in the sitting room, put the dish towels on to boil, took out the stove tray and slid it into the sink to give it a thorough cleaning, brought her sewing materials into the kitchen to catch up a run in one stocking and the split heel of another, and poured a bag of peas into a pan.

"I really ought to find an old sheet and re-cover that ironing board—we'll only burn the blanket right through at this rate—I wonder if there's an old sheet in Aunt Meggy's room?"

She went into her aunt's room and gave a dramatic shriek.

The window had been left open, and Jingle had performed his favorite trick of coming along the back porch and over the roof and down the fire escape, and so making a leap into his favorite spot, in the center of Aunt Meggy's bed. His paws had, of course, been thick with soot and mud, and more than that, he had knocked to the floor the little flower vase that Aunt Meggy always kept before Grandma's picture; violets and water were everywhere.

"Yes, and you know you're a bad cat!" Antoinette said grimly, as he leaped gayly past her to the kitchen. She repaired the damage gingerly; her own hands were far from clean. Presently she went into the bathroom to wash them and was in there when Brenda came home a moment later.

"Hell-oo!"

"Brenda, my darling, you're early!" Antoinette kissed her sister affectionately. "Darling, what time is it?" she asked, going on with the wiping of her hands.

"It isn't five yet. But it was so dark, and going to rain again, and appraisers or accountants were there, or something. Anyway, Paul," said Brenda, who usually spoke of her employer thus familiarly, "told us we all could go home!"

She was as tall as Antoinette, but more slender, with a certain fastidious delicacy of build and expression.

"Oh, it's good to get home!" she exclaimed. Presently she followed Antoinette to the kitchen, to find her in a whirl of activities.

"What on earth are you up to?"

"I did the stockings—oh, and both waists, too—and then I got into the vegetable box."

"And you're cleaning the stove too."

"Sit down, Brenda, and rest. Here, do the peas. I'll get out of all this!" Antoinette brought to the confusion her own swift energy and concentration, and was wringing out the hot clean dish towels when her aunt came in.

Little Miss Bruce was cramped with the cold; her gloves and boots and shoulders were damp; she fairly shuddered with pleasure as she came into the comfortable warm kitchen.

"You got caught in it, Aunt Meggy!"

"Caught in it, I should say I did!" scolded Miss Bruce, with a pretty little petulant manner that had remained with her since long-ago days of popularity and youth and prettiness. "I do believe we could have a fire in the sitting room tonight. Oh, later, later. There's Jingle—Jingle, you bad cat, where were you all morning?"

"Bad cat is right!" said Antoinette. "He was out on the roof again, and he leaped in your window and knocked your violets over. And I wish you could see your quilt!"

Miss Bruce, small, gray, fuzzy-headed in her mackintosh and tied small hat, stood rooted with horror to the spot, both small clawlike hands at her breast.

"He didn't! I left—alackaday! I left that window open at the bottom; I'm always forgetting that!" lamented the older woman. "Yes, rub yourself against my legs now," she reproached the cat. "You villain, you! Here, you might as well come along with me if you've done all the mischief you could do for once," she added, trailing from the room with the cat pushing affectionately against her. "Cliffy home tonight, darling?"

"None. Gone to Sacramento."

"That looks as if Barney Kerr was half as important as Cliff!" Miss Bruce said triumphantly, scornfully.

"Maybe they need Barney here," Antoinette, who for reasons of her own did not quite like to have Barney deprecated, even for the aggrandizement of Cliff, offered mildly.

"Boo-boo home?"

"He went to the water polo."

"I don't think, after his pneumonia, that he ought to play water polo."

"I don't believe he's playing, but of course he had to go yell for his team."

Brenda sat at the kitchen table in a contented dream of pea shelling; Antoinette finished up the other odds and ends of work with the familiarity of long practice. Miss Bruce, returning in a practical alpaca gown of many seasons' wear and a large checked apron, inspected the kitchen alertly. Presently Antoinette spoke musingly:

"I wonder if queens—or let's say movie queens, there are so few of the other sort left—I wonder if movie queens ever do anything as pleasant as to come out to a nice warm kitchen and have the sort of dinner they like to cook!"

This affected Miss Bruce emotionally. Her back was to the kitchen, as she filled the kettle at the sink, but her voice was thick with sudden tears.

"I declare, Tony, you have a wonderful nature!" she said.

"Hasn't she?" Brenda asked.

"You flatter and charm me, ladies," said Tony, kneeling at the oven door and turning to look over her shoulder. "What have I done that merits this—this unsolicited testimonial? I have contented moods," said Tony, "and then I have moments of frenzy!"

Tony said that she would set the table and drifted into the sitting room.

A long, lean, tousle-headed boy was stretched upon the sitting-room couch now; his heavy lesson book slid to the ground as he turned to face Tony.

"Boo," she said, "I didn't hear you come in. How was the meet?"

"Five and five; we tied 'em in the last three seconds," the boy said, with a stretch and a yawn. "Dinner nearly ready?"

CHAPTER II

Presently they were at dinner. Tony, smiling at them all, said suddenly: "Isn't anyone going to ask me about the job on the Journal?"

"I knew the minute I saw you that there was nothing doing," Brenda said. "Nope," Tony said heroically, "nothing doing!"

"Ah, my dear, I'm so sorry!"

"That means," Tony said, starting into space, playing with his knife, "that I've been to every city editor and every Sunday editor in this city. I've been to the Catholic weekly and the Christian Science weekly and the Argonaut and the News Letter and Sunset. And I am not destined to enjoy a newspaper career!"

"Aw, gee! Break you up?" asked Bruce's hoarse young voice, all sympathy.

"Kind of," Tony blinked and laughed.

"What'd he say, the Journal man, Tony?"

"Oh, he was nice enough. But he wasn't interested."

"Snuffy old miser!" Brenda said, helping herself to more strawberries.

"Oh, no, he's not, Betsy. He's a stunning young thing, as tall as Cliff—not much more than thirty, I should think, and very much the gent!"

"What did he say?"

"He wanted me to get advertisements, of course. I wonder," Tony said musingly, her elbow on the table, her square chin in one hand, "I wonder if it's horribly hard to get advertisements. Someone must do it; there are millions of them on all sides. Maybe I ought to try it. It might get me in, anyway."

"It doesn't seem to me the thing for a girl to do," Miss Bruce said with a decision that sat oddly upon her smallness and frailness.

"I'll get something," Tony said again; "but it seems so useless to get started in anything I really don't want to do."

As Tony and Brenda washed the dishes there was a stir at the hall door; a man's voice.

"Hello, everyone. Cliff here?"

"He's really shy—Barney; he's been standing there hating to make the break," Tony thought, as she called back cordially, "Come in, Barney. No, he's not. He went to Sacramento."

Barney's big bulk slid into the chair that Aunt Meggy, flutteringly departing, left empty.

"I can't stay," Barney said half-heartedly.

"You didn't come to dinner, Barney," Brenda observed.

"No—I-I couldn't very well." He was frowning. Tony's grin had a slightly malicious tinge in the dark. There was a silence.

Cormorants Trained to Fish for Their Masters

Cormorants are able to retain four or five river trout—about six inches in length—in their elastic, pouchlike necks at the same time. To keep the birds from swallowing their catch a tight-fitting collar is attached to the base of their necks. The cormorants keep on diving for food to appease their voracious hunger, and, because they are practically brainless, apparently do not mind having their catch taken away from them as soon as their throats are filled with trout.

In China and Japan, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, cormorants have been trained to fish for their masters from time immemorial, and early in the Seventeenth century this practice was introduced into Europe as a sport. In the East the cormorants are taught to fish either from the bank or from a raft or boat. Invariably they wear a tight-fitting collar, to which a cord is attached, to prevent them swallowing their prey.

As the birds come to the surface after a long dive, their throats filled with river trout, the fishermen pull them into their boats or to the shore and force them to disgorge their catch. This is very simple, for all the fisherman has to do is to grasp the base of the bird's neck and squeeze its catch out.

Advancement

To advance in any line of life's endeavors, it is necessary both to study and to think. Achievement is possible to those who have the initiative and determination to equip themselves with knowledge. Real joy and satisfaction are to be found in the realization that one is accomplishing something worth while and in the knowledge that its value is the direct result of one's personal efforts.

Monograms Make Your Linens Doubly Precious

PATTERN 1126

Variety of the Spice of Life—and monograms, too, for the smartest ones today combine letters in varying sizes. That's why we included four different alphabets—a large, a medium and two small ones—so that you may "scramble" your own. They work up easily and quickly, using a combination of satin, seed and buttonhole stitches with a bit of cutwork. Anyone with "Hope Chest" linens will find these alphabets invaluable. They fit beautifully into a diamond or triangular shape.

Pattern 1126 comes to you with a transfer pattern of an alphabet 3 inches high; one 2 inches high; and two alphabets 1½ inches high; information for placing initials and monograms; illustrations of all stitches needed.

Household Questions

Oil the boys' shoes and they will last longer and become water resistant. Use castor oil sparingly on the uppers, but give the soles all the oil they will absorb.

When cutting a frosted lemon peel use a knife that has been dipped into cold water. The meringue then retains its shape.

Chamois gloves should not be wrung out after washing. Squeeze them in the hands and press in a dry towel. Pull into shape and hang to dry in the open air.

Bacon fat may be clarified by slicing a raw potato into it while fat is hot and adding a pinch of baking soda. Strain through a piece of cheesecloth.

An excellent deodorizer is made with a few drops of oil of lavender added to a cup of boiling water.

To remove all grated lemon peel from a grater use a clean vegetable brush kept in the pantry for this purpose. It may also be used to wash the grater.

Wash sieves always in soda water and never in soapy water.

At the regular meeting of the Ladies Literary Club held Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. F. E. Kunze, a very interesting program on Alaska was given by Mrs. W. A. Evans, Mrs. A. L. Anschuetz and Mrs. Wm. Tribe. Miss Roberta Schreck played a piano solo, Fantasia in D Minor by Mozart. A delicious lunch was served.

Arland Bigelow of Clare spent the week end in the city with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bigelow. Miss Margine McLean of Alpena is spending a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. Donna McLean.

Miss Ruby Evans of this city has been selected as one of the 25 members of the Albion College vested choir which will give a series of six Sunday recitals in western Michigan. Mrs. D. Lerner spent Tuesday in Bay City.

HAY FOR SALE—$4 and $6 per ton; also 10 loads of straw. Herbert Phelps, East Tawas.

School Notes

High School

The regular meeting of the P.T. A. will be held at the school Thursday, March 12, at 8:00 o'clock. An interesting program has been planned at which Mrs. George King will be the speaker. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Those who are on the honor roll for the month of February are as follows: Isabelle Dease, Patricia Braddock, Opal Gillespie, Robert Fitzhugh, John Katterman, Norma Musolf, Erma Lou Pfahl, Otto Ross, Myrton Leslie, Marguerite McLean, Emma Sawyer, Frieda Witzke, Lucille DePotty and Albertine Herman.

Counting A as 4, B as 3, C as 2, D as 1, and E as 0, the scholastic averages of the grades for the past month were as follows: Seniors, 2.32; Freshmen, 2.17; Sophomores, 2.019 and Juniors, 1.674.

The percentage of attendance of the high school for February was as follows: Seniors, 96.7; Sophomores, 95.6; Freshmen, 95.1, and Juniors, 94.9. The ninth grade had ten people tardy, the twelfth grade had eleven, the tenth had twelve, and the eleventh had twenty-three.

We desire to call attention to the program which the high school music department will present at the school building Tuesday evening, March 10, at eight o'clock. The details of this program are found elsewhere in the Herald. All are invited to attend.

We are indeed pleased to note the recent article in the Herald, taken from the Hillsdale Collegiate, in regard to William Leslie, Jr., of the Tawas City class of 1931. It is quite evident that "Bill" is one of the foremost, all around men on the Hillsdale campus at the present time. We desire to say, too, that he is simply continuing his high school career in this regard. While William did not have the highest scholastic rank in his class during his four years of high school, he did rank well within the first twenty-five percent. He was also among our best school citizens. He ranked high in all those particulars which commonly go to make up school citizenship; that is, respect for school regulations, trustworthiness, cooperation with others, courtesy and sportsmanship, and loyalty to school and class. As a result of these attributes, we felt certain that his collegiate career would be a success. The same attributes and characteristics will do much toward making a success of his chosen life's work.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
Kathleen Davis, June Smith, Ada Malcolm and Norma Burtzloff have been absent on account of illness.

The eighth grade arithmetic class has been studying stocks and bonds, and members of the class were interested in current quotations of stock listed in their textbook.

Third and Fourth Grades
The following people were on the February honor roll: Harold Burtzloff, Dorothy Dease, Ardith Lake, Donna Moore, Dorothy White, Evelyn Colby, Maxine DePotty, and Norma Lov Westcott.

The fourth graders have started long division in arithmetic.

He Weighed Half a Ton

The United States has its fair share of fat men and giants. Miles Darden was both. He was 7 feet 6 inches and weighed a little better than half a ton. He was born in 1798 and lived until 1857, was married, a father, worked all his life, and was a pretty normal individual in spite of his size.

Life of Wild Game

Wild game thrive better, says a naturalist, if they are permitted to remain primitive than if they are provided with artificial feeding grounds.

Musical Ability Elusive

According to tests made on school children in Germany, musical ability does not depend upon general ability nor upon the surroundings of a child.

There Is No Other Way

In supplying telephone service to Michigan, this Company's first concern is with the present. Above all else, the service must be good today. But to serve the present, we must be constantly preparing for the future.
To illustrate: In Detroit stands Michigan's largest long distance switchboard. It represents invested money, skilled labor and thorough engineering study. The need for this switchboard did not exist at the time plans were made for it. But a careful survey of the future had plainly indicated that such a need was coming. And when it came, this Company was perfectly equipped to handle the heavy traffic of long distance calls that flowed in and out of Michigan's great industrial areas.

The intricate mechanism behind your telephone cannot be assembled overnight, nor thrown together to meet a sudden need. It must be "built ahead." To do this intelligently—and economically—requires an intensive engineering survey of such factors as shifts in population, industrial developments and trends in real estate. The neglect of these preparations could be as wasteful as building a bridge accommodating a single lane of traffic, only to find later that additional lanes are imperative. It is not a mere academic theory that this policy of building for the future is the only way to provide high-grade telephone service. Experience has repeatedly demonstrated that there is no other way.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT FRED MACMURRAY — in —

"The Bride Comes Home"
with Robert Young, William Collier, Sr., Donald Meek

"The Bride Comes Home" brings you the Claudette Colbert you loved in "It Happened One Night" and "The Gilded Lily"—a sprightly, frivolous young lady bubbling over with humor and gaiety. It brings you Fred MacMurray, who shared Claudette's fun in "The Gilded Lily" and was so sensational with Carole Lombard in "Hands Across the Table."
