Year	Isosco Co.	State	Total
1922	$ 600.00	$ 100.00	$ 700.00
1923	2,600.00	100.00	2,700.00

1930	1,342.56	325.91	1,668.47
1931	3,442.55	285.12	3,727.67

$15,269.11 $2,094.55 $17,363.66

"I hereby certify the above to be a true and correct statement of statistics as above indicated." (Signed) R. H. McKenzie, County Clerk.

"I hereby certify that the above amount was paid by the State to the Isosco County Agricultural Society for a period of ten years beginning 1922." (Signed) A. W. Colby, Secretary, Isosco County Agricultural Society.

2nd—Money expended by the U. S. Forest Service in Isosco county for labor, materials, and supplies:

A—For salaries and wages to persons in Isosco County, fiscal year 1935 (not including wages on C.C.C. projects) $78,182.81

B—For materials, payments other than services to individuals and firms in Isosco County (not including lands purchased in Isosco County) 11,858.08

C—For freight and express charges, fiscal year 1935 1,919.81

Average per month spent in Isosco County, fiscal year 1935 $7,663.35

*—Pay rolls for fiscal year 1936 will exceed pay rolls for previous years.

These figures were prepared and furnished by Warren T. Murphy, Forest Supervisor, Huron National Forest.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

France Forming Solid Front Against Germany in New Crisis—Paraguay Made Totalitarian State—Chester Davis Is Sent to Europe.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

SIXTY thousand German troops in the Rhineland was supposed to be demilitarized. Practically the entire French army in and behind the vast system of fortifications along France's eastern frontier. The French government, backed by the other signers of the violated Locarno treaty and by the little entente, Poland and Russia, demanded that Germany withdraw her troops from the Rhineland or that sanctions, economic and possibly military, be imposed by the League of Nations. Great Britain trying hard to keep the peace, reproving Germany, supporting the French demands in great measure, but urging that Hitler's proposal of new non-aggression pacts be given consideration. Reichsfuehrer Hitler reviewing his forces in the re-occupied territory and receiving the loud plaudits of the inhabitants for restoring their military sovereignty.

M. Flandin

That in a nutshell was the perilous situation in Europe as the representatives of the League of Nations and the council of the league assembled in London to consider what to do next. Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin of France was there with the full support of Premier Sarraut for his demand that immediate action be taken to bring Hitler to time. He was represented as "almost convinced" that a "preventive war" now would be preferable to "carnage two years hence," and in Paris it was disclosed that France counted on having at her disposal, from her own forces and those of Russia, Poland and the little entente, a potential army of about 40,000,000 men. It was said 8,000,000 could be mobilized in 48 hours and 31,000,000 were trained reserves; and that 8,000 airplanes and a million tons of warships were ready.

The Franco-Russian treaty came up in the French senate and was ratified by a huge majority. It is this pact that Hitler gave as his excuse for remilitarizing the Rhineland, asserting that it was a violation of the Locarno treaty, being aimed at Germany. It is the final link in the "iron ring" around the reich which France has been forging.

At first the British government's response to France's demands for full support against Germany was ambiguous and not satisfactory to Sarraut and Flandin. After conferences with Prime Minister Baldwin and other ministers, Capt. Anthony Eden, the young foreign secretary, appeared before the house of commons and declared any attack on France or Belgium in violation of the Locarno pact would compel Britain to go to their assistance. He added, however, that there was no reason to suppose "the present German action implies a threat of hostilities." Then he indicated Britain was willing to consider Hitler's proposals for new peace covenants.

The British statesmen seemed so calm in the crisis that there was reason to believe they knew in advance what Hitler intended to do. When Flandin and the other Locarno signatory representatives arrived in London, the attitude of the British cabinet changed and grew decidedly stiffer.

HITLER was not represented at either the Locarno conference or the session of the league council in London. He himself, having precipitated the crisis, made his triumphant appearance in the Rhineland and then awaited events. His dramatic and sudden denunciation of the Locarno treaty was accomplished in a speech before the reichstag and in formal announcements to the ambassadors in Berlin of the nations concerned. He asserted that the troops he sent into the Rhineland comprised a "symbolic" army only, and that the reich, while ready to defend itself, was wholly desirous of peace. To prove this he offered a plan which includes: A demilitarized strip of German, French and Belgian land; a 25-year non-aggression treaty among Germany, France and Belgium, with Great Britain and Italy as guarantors; inclusion of the Netherlands in the system of pacts; an air pact with the western powers; a non-aggression pact with Germany's eastern neighbors, including Lithuania; and return of Germany to the League of Nations after her equality is established and her sovereignty restored.

France's reply to this was that, having just violated one treaty, Hitler could not be trusted to observe another; and anyway, France would not even listen to the reichsfuehrer's new proposals until he had withdrawn his troops from the Rhineland. The French army was moved toward the frontier and the "Magnet line" of fortifications and underground passages was fully manned. This system of defenses has been criticized because it requires so many troops that the army is rendered virtually stationary—that has been called in Paris "the concrete army." Remaining forces would be insufficient for offensive movement. But this fault might be disregarded if France gets the expected millions of soldiers from her allies.

CHIEF JUSTICE ALFRED A. WHEAT of the District of Columbia Supreme court checked the telegram-seizing activities of the Black senate committee on lobbying. He granted the Chicago law firm of Silas H. Strawn an injunction restraining the Western Union Telegraph company from giving the committee copies of the firm's telegrams.

The judge said the subpoena served on the telegraph company by the committee, calling for copies of telegrams "goes way beyond" the committee's powers.

Next day William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, began a fight in court to keep an original confidential telegram out of the hands of the Black committee; and the American Newspaper Publishers' association denounced the reported seizure of that telegram, which was to one of Mr. Hearst's editors. The association advised any other editor, should he learn of similar action, to consult counsel and "take vigorous steps to protect his constitutional rights."

COL. RAFAEL FRANCO, who became provisional president of Paraguay after the recent revolution there, has set up a totalitarian government modeled after German Nazism and Italian Fascism. He issued a decree which declared the state and the "liberating revolution" of February 17 as indivisible and banned for one year political, labor, or other unions which "do not emanate explicitly from the state."

Paraguay, the government asserted, will be purged of "endemic, demagogic, industrial, and sectarian evils." The official statement places in the "liberating army" the principal source of authority.

The aims of the new government, the decree said, will be the construction of a new, strong Paraguay and constitutional reorganization for a future republic.

CHESTER C. DAVIS, head of the invalidated AAA, is not going to administer the soil conservation program devised as a substitute. President Roosevelt announced that Mr. Davis would leave soon on a trip to Europe to make a special study for the government of economic conditions bearing on the agricultural plans for this country. Critics of the administration immediately assumed that Mr. Davis and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had disagreed and that the former was being gently edged out of the picture. This Mr. Wallace warmly denied, asserting there had been no friction and that he had deep affection for Mr. Davis and the sincerest respect for his ability and integrity.

In announcing the assignment, Mr. Roosevelt said: "In requesting him to make this study for our government, Secretary Wallace and I have had in mind the distinguished service Mr. Davis has given American agriculture, especially during the last two and one-half years. As administrator he has been directing governmental efforts which, to a considerable degree, were made necessary by changes in the European outlets for American farm products.

"Information to be gathered by him at close hand as to the precise nature and extent of these economic changes abroad is expected to assist greatly in developing American farm programs."

GREAT BRITAIN is interested and pleased to learn that King Edward VIII may abandon his state of bachelorhood and take unto himself a wife. This was revealed when the king authorized these lines in the message submitting the civil list to the house of commons: "His majesty desires that the contingency of his marriage should be taken into account so that, in that event, there should be a provision for her majesty."

EARL BEATTY, commander of the British war fleet in 1916-18 and afterward first lord of the admiralty, died in London after a long illness at the age of sixty-five. Rising from a sick-bed to attend the funeral of Earl Jellicoe last November, he predicted that he would soon follow his colleague. Lord Beatty had a meteoric career as a naval commander and displayed his ability in the battles of Heligoland Bight and Dogger Bank, and especially in the battle of Jutland where he commanded the first battle cruiser squadron. His wife, who died in 1932, was Ethel Field, daughter of the Chicago merchant prince, Marshall Field.

POWERS of the federal trade commission to investigate unfair trade practices will be greatly broadened by the Wheeler bill approved by the senate interstate commerce committee. It is vigorously opposed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Association of Manufacturers and the American Newspaper Publishers' association. The measure would: Make "deceptive acts and practices in commerce" unlawful in addition to "unfair methods of competition" specified in existing law.

Expressly give the commission authority to proceed "upon its own initiative," as well as that of the President, or either house of congress as now provided.

Include persons and partnerships as well as corporations within the scope of the commission's authority to investigate business practices and conditions in interstate and foreign commerce.

Redefine "documentary evidence" to include "books of account, financial and corporate records," and make such records subject to commission subpoena.

COMMUNISTS and radicals who appeared as representatives of the Workers' Alliance of America went before WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and made a series of demands that were all coldly turned down by that gentleman. These included the dismissal of Victor F. Ridder, New York WPA director; no cut in the 3,500,000 persons on works relief, and full union pay and union hours for persons on relief and pay for sick leave. They also demanded that all employed, whether or not on relief rolls, be given WPA work.

IN RECENT financing operations the government sold $1,355,643,550 in bonds and notes, according to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. The offerings, largest since the Victory bond issue of 1919, were heavily oversubscribed by banks. This borrowing brings the public debt up to the record figure of $31,413,000,000. The treasury's cash balance is increased to $2,675,000,000.

The funds will finance New Deal spending in the near future, partially defray bonus costs and retire $450,000,000 worth of treasury bills falling due March 16.

PLANS to furnish TVA power to the city of Knoxville, Tenn., under a project to be financed with PWA funds were blocked by a temporary restraining order issued by the District of Columbia Supreme court.

The order was granted on the petition of the Tennessee Public Service company which contended its $4,000,000 investment in Knoxville would be rendered practically worthless, if the government brought cheaper power into the city.

Also in the District Supreme court, 66 producers of soft coal attacked the Guffey coal control act as unconstitutional in its entirety on the ground that it invades the rights of the states and deprives producers of their property without due process of law.

KOKI HIROTA, former foreign minister, formed a new ministry for Japan and submitted the names to the emperor. He, besides being premier, takes the foreign minister's portfolio. Lieut. Gen. Goto Juichi Taruchi is put in as minister of war and Admiral Osami Nagano as minister of navy. Military leaders insisted that Hirota "show a proper recognition of the gravity of the times and the necessity for renovation of Japanese foreign policy," and to this demand he yielded somewhat.

Hirota issued a statement saying that "the present empire situation requires independent and positive readjustment of our foreign relations in order to liquidate this emergency."

Hachiro Arita, new Japanese ambassador to China, told the press in Shanghai that "it is fundamental that China recognizes Manchukuo and that the other North China questions should be settled on the spot."

"There has been no change in Japanese policy in China as a result of the recent Tokyo incident," he declared. "Japan will carry out the three principles of Koki Hirota, former Japanese foreign minister, requiring that China eliminate anti-Japanism, co-operate economically with Japan and Manchukuo and co-operate in the elimination of communism within China and along the borders."

LIEUT. ROBERT K. GIOVANNOLI of Lexington, Ky., hero of the spectacular bombing plane crash during army tests at Dayton, Ohio, last October, was killed in a crackup of his army plane at Logan field, Baltimore.

Giovannoli's single seated pursuit plane lost its right wing coming out of a glide and hurtled down in a crazy spin from an altitude of less than 500 feet. It rolled over after hitting the landing field and was demolished.

JAMES J. FARLEY, chairman of the Democratic national committee, let it be known that the party chieftains would make no effort to keep Al Smith out of the national convention in Philadelphia if he is elected a delegate and presents proper credentials. And once he is seated, there will be no attempt to keep him from speaking his mind. Administration leaders, it was represented, believe Mr. Roosevelt will dominate the convention so completely that no attack by Smith or anyone else on the New Deal can have any considerable effect.

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

Elkton—Bands and orchestras of 13 Thumb high schools will take part in the fourth annual music festival here April 17.

Lansing—Michigan last month turned over to the Federal Government $11,424,858.51 in taxes. February taxes paid in the State were nearly $1,900,000 in excess of those of January.

Cadillac—National Youth Administration projects now under way here include a survey of 10-year records of the health department and survey of why pupils leave school without completing 12 grades.

Jackson—The Michigan Taxpayers' Service League, claiming a membership in excess of 30,000 in 32 counties, has opened executive offices here. The league is sponsor of a movement for amendment of the Michigan sales tax law to exempt all foodstuffs.

Battle Creek—Contributing to missions is more than a casual affair to Seventh Day Adventists, newly released figures prove. In 1935, Adventists in the United States and Canada gave $2,030,227 for missions, an increase of $121,256 over the previous year.

Lansing—The State Highway Department announces that Michigan will receive an additional $4,000,000 for the purpose of road construction. Congressional revision of Works Progress Administration rules makes possible resubmission of certain projects that were refused.

Cheboygan—It used to be that every undertaker had a sleigh-hearse, but they were stored away in barns, and a good many of the younger generation never had seen one until this winter. Sleighs have been necessary this year, with the sleigh-hearse followed by a cortege of sleighs carrying mourners.

Cheboygan—While chilly temperatures prevail, the Cheboygan Chamber of Commerce is going ahead with plans to establish a municipal bathing beach where summer tourists can tan to their heart's content. The Chamber of Commerce is also considering sites for a winter sports park with toboggan slides and ski jumps.

Detroit—Detroit is to have a year-round circus; that is, if the Board of Commerce can find a place for it. The James M. Cole Circus has decided to make its permanent headquarters here each winter. When the site is chosen, three large brick buildings will be erected to shelter 250 horses, 11 elephants and a menagerie of 200 other wild animals.

Lansing—A program is being considered which would consolidate the state's 6,700 school districts into not more than 700 or 800. It is thought that the reduction could be brought about by establishing community school districts, with a city or large village as the center of each. Each school district would take in the territory that normally constitutes the community's trading area.

Lansing—The State Highway Department has extended truck loading restrictions as far north as M-20. The size of loads is limited in order that excess weight on trucks may not damage trunk lines weakened by the spring thaws. Restrictions previously had been in effect as far north as Port Huron and Grand Rapids. The department plans to extend the load limit northward as spring advances.

Sebewaing—Assurance that a cut-off drain will be built here by the WPA as a flood relief measure has been given the Lansing office of the WPA. The drain will tap the Sebewaing River Drain a mile south of Sebewaing and run two and a half miles west to Saginaw Bay. It is estimated the cutoff will divert two-thirds of the water of the big drain which serves 63,000 acres of farming lands in Huron and Tuscola counties.

Owosso—The almost complete skeleton of a man, believed to have been an Indian, was dug up here by WPA workers preparing to build tennis courts at the Emerson school grounds. Some remnants of cloth remained with the skeleton and there was a knife nearby, also the skeleton of two dogs. Human bones have been dug up on the Emerson grounds at intervals for years, and legend has it that many years ago there was an Indian cemetery there.

Battle Creek—An architect's mistake is one of the most prominent features of the City's skyline, seen daily by thousands of taxpayers who helped pay for it. It consists of an astronomical observatory, forming a dome on the high school roof. The copper-covered dome and its contents cost $15,000 but it was found that the observatory could never be used because vibration from traffic and trains caused the instruments to move as much as three feet.

Lansing—During the last 2 years the Highway Department has given "reaction time tests" to 50,000 persons, determining how long it takes the motorist to act after a traffic problem has arisen. Persons tested were required to fill out questionnaires from which approximately 20,000 "case" cards have been compiled. It has been found that the average motorist drives with a feeling of false security and is without a thorough understanding of the factors involved in safe driving. Reaction time does not improve with experience.

Munising—The fifty-one-year-old grade school at Wetmore, three miles south of Munising, was destroyed by fire recently, with a loss of $8,000.

Muskegon—Muskegon has become the fourteenth city in Michigan to organize a Junior Chamber of Commerce. The organization was formed this month.

Saginaw—With the city facing a housing shortage estimated at 700 houses, the staff of Federal Housing Administration have arranged a drive to get private capital interested in building homes.

Hancock—Bursting water mains have raised the possibility of a serious shortage of water here. It was found necessary to cut off the supply of 120,000 gallons furnished daily to Houghton and residents here had to rely on an emergency water line to Portage Lake.

Lansing—Sponsors of a contest conducted by the Ingham County Conservation League estimated that 3,000 crows were killed by contestants. Bobby Olds, 22 years old, who won the 1932 international trap shoot took first place in the local contest by killing 335 crows.

Alpena—Three dogs—a hound, a collie and a German shepherd—were branded as public enemies to deer herds in the area west of Alpena, where 13 bucks, does and fawns have been found victims of exhaustion and the killer dogs. The dogs were ordered shot on sight.

Lansing—Working in three shifts, 300 employees of the auditor general's office are now preparing the lists of lands to be sold by the county treasurers in May because of non-payment of taxes. In the last tax sale, held in May of 1932, the treasurers offered 556,290 descriptions of property.

Vanderbilt—Stanley M. Oswald, chief foreman at the Pigeon River CCC Camp, is amazed at the digestive organs of a porcupine. He says porcupines have chewed away most of the telephone line brackets on a circuit connecting the camp to its south fire tower, although the wood was treated with creosote to defy them.

Flint—Welfare officials will seek new homes for indigent families who have been living in inadequate places at public expense. The move comes as City inspectors continue a drastic inspection that may mean the condemnation of about 75 houses or about 5 per cent of the homes for which the Welfare Board is paying rent.

Lansing—Animal pelts turned in for bounties and confiscated from violators totaled 1,516 for the past six months. They were sold by the Department of Conservation at auction for almost $2,000. There were 890 coyote pelts, 194 bobcat, 392 muskrat, 15 raccoon, 13 weasel, four skunk, three beaver, three mink and two opossum.

Lansing—The State Agricultural Department is considering a $43,187 allocation to provide premiums for 4-H Clubs for the fiscal year 1936, instead of the $31,000 spent last year when prizes were as small as 50 cents in cash and some were only buttons. Only $35,000 a year for 4-H Club premiums is provided for in the department's biennial budget.

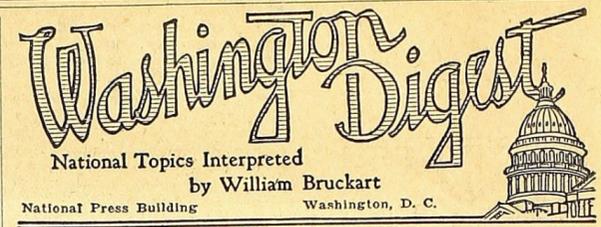

Grand Rapids—Plans have been laid for a chain of regional Jersey cattle parish shows, with a round-up exhibit at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit in September. The parish show movement now is entering its tenth year. Since the first show was held in Grand Rapids, the movement has spread to 25 states. The exposition is patterned after the parish shows on the Isle of Jersey, birthplace of the Jersey breed.

Owosso—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Waffle are probably the only couple in Shiawassee County who are both entitled to draw down bonuses for service in the World War. Mrs. Waffle was employed in St. Mary's Hospital in Detroit, when she enlisted in 1917 and went to France on a British convoy. She went as a member of the regular Army nursing service, and spent 18 months overseas. Waffle was a soldier.

Jackson—Free pickup and delivery service of small freight shipments going by way of New York Central Railroad lines will become effective on the Michigan Central, New York Central and Cincinnati Northern Railroads April 1, it was announced by A. E. Sauer, division freight agent of the Michigan Central for the Jackson division. There will be no increase in rates. The plan also will include a C. O. D. service.

Lansing—Evidence is coming in, showing that the efforts of sportsmen, farmers and bird lovers to feed game and song birds during the weeks of severe January and February winter were a real help in bringing Michigan's birdlife through one of the severest periods of snow, sleet and sub-zero weather to visit the State in a generation. People who have made their way into the swamps report a goodly supply of birds, and few or no dead ones.

Lansing—The State Highway Department will turn over all township roads to Michigan counties on April 1. Under provisions of the McNitt Act, county road systems will maintain all township roads with funds coming out of a $4,000,000 annual State appropriation. The counties have taken over 20 per cent of the roads each year since 1931. Under the fiscal recertification, 62,000 miles of roads will be under county care after April 1. Sanilac County alone has 1,508 miles of township roads. Tuscola has 1,418; Nawaygo 1,393.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington. — President Roosevelt has very neatly called the bluff of his critics that he is wasting billions from the treasury and doing nothing to replace it. With much less ballyhoo than ordinarily precedes the presentation of tax legislation to congress, the President sent a message to the Capitol calling for new tax levies approximating a billion dollars in yield and in so doing dropped into the laps of the house and senate critics one of the hottest potatoes they have ever been called upon to handle. If one were to characterize the play in the language of baseball, since spring is here, I believe one could say that congress either must play ball or let the runners score.

Hot Potato for Congress
It was the greatest tax bill ever submitted in peace time. Whether the proposals the President has made are economically sound or whether the levies he thinks advisable will do the job he expects of them, of course, remains to be seen. But the fact cannot be dodged that Mr. Roosevelt has figuratively settled down around the ears of those who have constantly challenged the waste inherent in his vast reform and recovery program with a straight-from-the-shoulder demand upon congress that it vote new taxes.

It is a most interesting situation, politically. In nearly a score of years of Washington reportorial experience, I cannot recall having seen so much squirming and wriggling as well as fretting and mulling among representatives and senators. It is only natural that they do not wish to go into a campaign for re-election when there is the certainty that here, there and everywhere they will be confronted with heckling as to their vote for new taxes—assuming they will vote terrifically heavy levies as the President has suggested, and as present indications seem to assure. They have no heart for a tax increase at this time. But, to repeat, they are faced with a situation in which they must either vote for new and heavier taxes or else they will be forced to swallow many long-winded speeches in condemnation of the President's course.

Whatever the merits of the Roosevelt proposals may be, there is no course open for his opponents except to support him in the general move to pay these new tax levies, all of the howling and the shouting and tumult about a reduction in the treasury deficit becomes just so much belly-wash.

Force Hands of Opponents
Opponents may differ with the President as to the details of his tax plan but the situation he has created for them compels that they stand with him. To do otherwise would be not only inconsistent but rather dumb.

Frank Kent, the able news commentator, summarized one phase of this situation the other day by saying: "It makes no difference that the situation which compels the imposition of new and heavy taxes is largely Mr. Roosevelt's fault. And it makes no difference that the move is forced by the exigencies of his campaign for re-election and is designed to spike the most damaging charge against him—that he has piled the debt mountain high and by terrific expenditures menaced the national solvency. All that and more may be perfectly true; but for the Republicans and his non-political critics, who have been assailing Mr. Roosevelt for months because of his failure to balance the budget to either obstruct or hold back now that the President urges congress to provide by taxation the money to pay for the vast gifts it has voted beyond the limit in political insincerity and hypocrisy."

In other words, there nearly is no alternative for opponents of the President's policies. They must show their sincerity by going through with him in the laying of new taxes. I do not mean by that statement that it is necessary for them to accept without argument the exact levies which he has proposed. If they were not in accord with the taxes he proposes, they would not be serving their constituencies unless they so stated, but if they object to the levies he has offered, let them bring forward substitute proposals that will produce a revenue yield in a like amount. They cannot afford to criticize and then refuse to offer constructive propositions in turn.

Blames High Court
On the other hand, it seems to be the consensus among Washington observers that Mr. Roosevelt ought not to be allowed to get away with one declaration which he made in submitting his tax proposals to congress. He said that the necessity for these new taxes arose from the Supreme court decision invalidating the processing taxes upon which the Agricultural Adjustment administration and its subsidies to agriculture was predicated. Of course, that may be true at the moment, but, as one frequently hears pointed out in Washington conversation, the President used the bounties to farmers and the AAA itself as one of his keystone policies. The fact that it was unconstitutional surely cannot be said to be the fault of the Supreme court and yet that was the implication in the President's message.

Likewise, the President hinted that a part of the taxes was due to congressional action in passing the bonus, which he vetoed and congress made operative over that veto. Again, I hear it questioned that congress is actually to blame. It is being said with great frequency that had Mr. Roosevelt made the fight against payment of the bonus this year that he did a year ago, it is almost inconceivable that congress would have passed it over his veto.

It is being said in this connection that if Mr. Roosevelt really had desired to kill the cash payment of the bonus, his stalwart leaders in the house and senate could hardly have afforded to refuse his request to vote against it. Instead of that situation, the record shows that such recognized spokesmen as Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader in the senate, Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Senator Byrnes of South Carolina and Senator Radcliffe of Maryland, a personal friend, all voted to pass the bonus over the President's veto. I may not be thoroughly acquainted with the maneuvers of politicians but I cannot believe these men would have turned their backs on the President in the bonus fight unless they entertained a feeling that he did not seriously object.

So it simmers down that the men who a year ago and two years ago voted the President almost limitless power and limitless funds to deal with an emergency are now compelled, if they intend ever to be statesmen, to stick by, vote the taxes and take it on the chin if that is to be the reaction from the voters. After all, it is merely the taxpayers who are the goats and as usual the taxpayers have not a great voice in their own defense. As to the President's tax proposals themselves, congress is asked to levy an unprecedented type of tax on undistributed corporation profits. New processing taxes to replace those outlawed by the Supreme court, being designed to be constitutional, are proposed and a tax which the President described as a "windfall" tax to recover a considerable part of the old processing taxes returned to taxpayers was suggested. He asked also that levies be laid on dividends which are now exempt from normal tax on individual incomes.

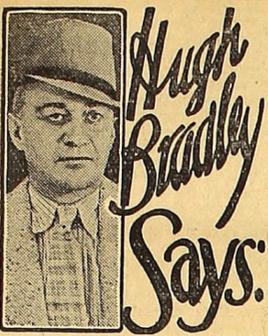

The "windfall" tax is designed to offset the action of the Supreme court which ordered the return of the processing taxes as having been illegally collected. In other words, the administration is attempting to get by one method what the Supreme court said it could not get in the manner it employed.

The tax on undistributed profits of corporations is the center of all kinds of controversy already. Opponents of this levy maintain that if the government forces corporations to pay taxes on reserve funds they have laid aside for the proverbial rainy day, such as we have experienced for the last six years, none of them can stand the gaff of another depression. Mr. Roosevelt contended that his tax proposal in this direction, which would take away approximately one-third of such reserves, was designed only to prevent the piling up of cash by corporations instead of distribution of those funds to stockholders.

There will be much hauling and filling, many charges and counter-charges, much maneuvering and manipulation as congress mulls over the new tax bill. It will pass some kind of new taxes and citizens will begin early next year to take out of their pockets money to pay off the deficits of the reform and recovery program.

Some 75 years ago, the government organized mail service to inland points without railroad facilities, calling this new service the Star route. This service has been continuously in operation in scores of communities and it is continuing to operate exactly on the same basis as it did three-quarters of a century ago. So, this is a plea in behalf of those who carry the mail on the Star routes and for better service for Star route patrons.

There is a bill in congress now which proposes to provide better service for those carriers and for patrons of those routes. When one recalls that the boasted phrase of the Post Office department—"the mails must go through"—had its origin with the Star route carriers, it seems that the time is long since gone by to consider justice for these faithful servants. It seems, further, that if there are real "forgotten men" in this country, they truly are the carriers on the Star routes and the patrons of those routes. Even in the face of all of the hullabaloo that Senator Black, Alabama Democrat, is making about lobbying, those who desire to see justice done for the Star route service, those who believe that the entire postal service should be considered, and not just a part of it, should do their utmost to have congress act on this legislation.

It's Hard to Judge Rookies Ere First Southern Tests

ONE minute after he had possession of a good two-thirds of the seat, he was proudly displaying a receipt for a lower berth and even more proudly confiding that he was bound all the way to Florida.

"Yeah," he said. "You travel in style when you get to where I am. Why, say, fellow, look at that—"

He could have been an actor, reporter or traveling salesman, but even before he had finished the sentence I had placed him. I also knew why he preferred to ride for a while in the smoking car. People who travel in pullmans are not always sympathetic and they are not always baseball fans. "Look at that big Ruth," he continued. "Why—"

We did not look at Ruth. It would have been rather a difficult assignment anyhow since, at this moment, when the train was speeding through Delaware, Babe was down South banging golf balls up and down the links. Instead, with his fully and happy co-operation, I joined my seatmate in looking at himself.

He is twenty-two years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 192 pounds and won 21 while losing six in a very minor league last year. He comes from (and this part of the information was merely gleaned from the rich harvest of his more important remarks, such as "that Dean, why he talks too much to be good," and "that Mungo, say if I wasn't gonna be faster than him, say I'd—") a town such as Paw Paw, Mich. (Pop. 2,000.)

Possibly experience should have taught me better, but I had to get off at Baltimore and when we shook hands I tried to slip in a word.

"Well, kid," I told him. "If it's not just what you expect or if after the season opens you have any trouble getting to feel at home in—"

"Trouble," He repeated the words and looked at me scornfully. "Why should I have any? I'll be a star, won't I? Besides, one town's just the same as another to me. Why, when we moved to Paw Paw it wasn't a week before I was wise to everything in that burg. Say, fellow, I—"

But the train pulled out then and possibly I shall never know what else he was going to say. Possibly I will, though. Baseball is funny that way and it is especially funny when you try to judge rookies before they have undergone the leavening influence of the first training camp.

Pepper Martin Rode Freight to First Camp

For instance, there was that youngster who arrived at the Cards' camp one spring. Except for two things he would have been the most inconspicuous rookie in town. These two things were that his clothes were extraordinarily shabby and that he seemed in dire need of a good meal.

They told me how $65 was all the money that the boy had in the world when he left home. How he wanted to save that so that he might feel secure and not be obligated to any one. How, in order to do this, he had ridden on freight trains from Oklahoma to Florida. How, a few hours before he had arrived at camp, somebody had stolen the money.

Perhaps such evidence of ambition did cause them to call the turn and predict that the boy was bound to be a good one. I doubt it. Somehow I feel that it was months later, when he was well on his way to running off with a World Series and becoming a front-page sensation throughout the land that everybody realized that rookie really meant business.

By that time, of course, Pepper Martin did not care what had been the springtime thoughts of those who had surrounded him.

By next fall, too, it is possible that the young man on the train will not care what one writer thought of him.

Do you remember way back when— Professional baseball players were put into their first short trousers?

The first important team so sensibly clad were the Cincinnati of 1867.

Possibly the customers never had known that the players had legs.

Anyhow the fans looked, gasped and then yelled in tones of pure admiration.

Thus was born a nickname that— although somewhat abbreviated during the hurrying seasons—has lived longer than any other in the history of the sport.

For the words that burst from the throats of the admiring, pop-eyed fans that afternoon were "Red Stockings!"

IN 1837 John L. Sullivan fought the young and stalwart Patsy Cardiff, whose new-grown reputation had stretched so high that the sports pages hailed him as the "Peoria Giant."

Jawn L. weighed more than 230 pounds that night in Minneapolis. When he donned his tights in the dressing room their waist line immediately was concealed by the lapping flesh. But the Boston Strong Boy parted his mustache, gulped another tall one and stumbled out.

At the bell he charged across the ring, swinging lustily, seeming determined to get it over quickly. But the Peoria Giant was young and sturdy, finely trained for this grand opportunity. He withstood it all, even one of Jawn L.'s best to his jaw. Then he began landing some vicious blows of his own.

They came into the third. Sullivan was breathing in short, quick, noisy puffs. Perhaps this was because he was so far out of shape. Perhaps also it was because he was enraged at this Peoria Giant who had dared to defy him. He leaped across the ring, swinging a fist that had all his 230 pounds behind it.

The blow landed on the young man's jaw. His legs quivered. He staggered. But the Peoria Giant stayed up.

Indeed this youngster who could hit and box and take it stayed for three more rounds until the scheduled affair was ended. Then they called it a draw and also summoned doctors.

When the physicians emerged from the dressing room the fans who loved him listened and were satisfied. They knew now why Jawn L., after landing his Sunday punch, had not been able to finish this aggressive young giant who had faced him.

When, the doctors said, he had landed that right to the jaw of the Peoria Giant, the Boston Strong Boy had broken his arm.

Bill Tilden's New Fame: Sandwich Named for Him

Not in the box score: Bill Tilden at last has achieved real fame. A restaurant somewhere in Ohio has named a sandwich after him.

Quite appropriately the dainty tidbit is composed largely of anchovies and capers. . . . After years of devotion to long red flannels Joe Jacobs, the fight pilot, picked this winter as the one in which to start wearing linen shorts. . . . During a fast game the average center half runs fifteen miles, according to Jack Robbs, the soccer expert, who used to do it. . . . After a brief winter lull the Frankie Frisch-Jimmy Wilson feud is on again.

The gentlemen who are arguing whether Jack Dempsey ever signed a contract to meet Harry Wills might be interested to know that the document reposes in the Madison Square Garden cornerstone. Tex Rickard, who never suspected that the boys would start snapping at one another about it, placed it there when the building was dedicated. . . . Pat McAteer, an Irishman and one of the stars of the German-American Football association, also is a member of the Hatikvah Jewish All-Stars soccer team. . . . Art Lesieur, Les Canadiens' defense ace, to wear a hat even in zero weather. Recently, because they feared that he would catch cold, his bosses bought him a bonnet and placed it on his head. The next day Lesieur caught cold.

There are smart gentlemen who will bet you that Red Rain's name will not be on the list when the Kentucky Derby nominations close on Saturday. . . . Perhaps that is just as well when it is recalled that such Whitney favorites as Equipoise and Top Flight were heavily backed in the winter books after being nominated and yet never reached the Churchill Downs post. . . . Books which recently have reached this department include Stanley Frank's very comprehensive "The Jew in Sports," and "Big Game," a football novel penned by Francis Wallace.

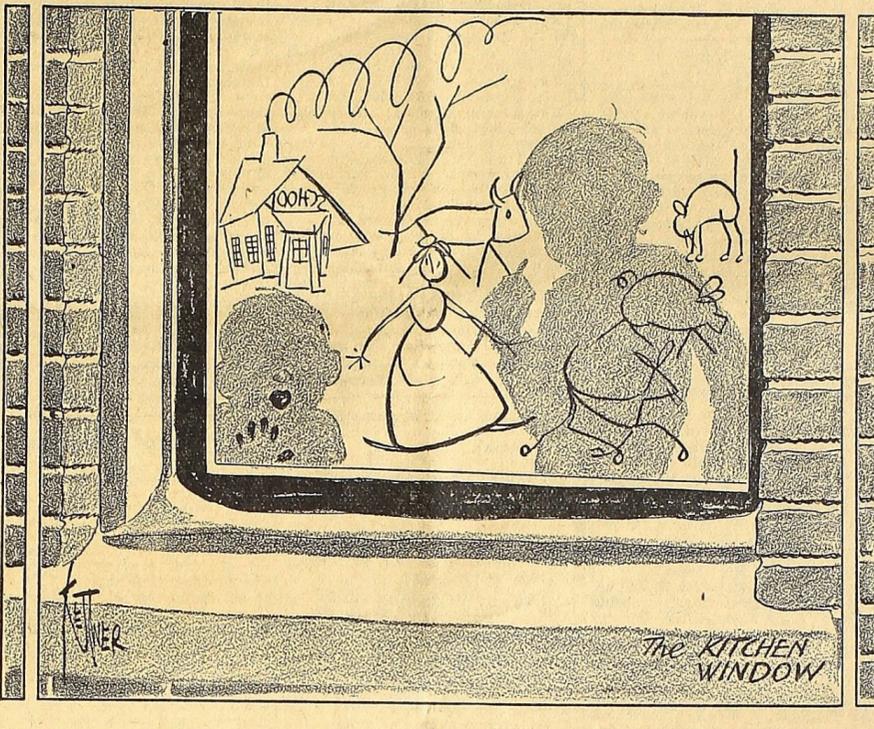

Cornell alumni are urging that Dr. Ray Van Orman be hired as football coach. Thirty years or so ago Van Orman was an all-America end at Ithaca, and since then he has done some highly competent coaching jobs. . . . High school baseball games often draw crowds of 40,000 in Japan, where the cheer leaders balance themselves on the bleacher rails and use fans instead of megaphones. . . . Robert Rosser, past captain of the Crescent-Hamilton A. C. soccer team, was a renowned school-boy cricketer. When only fourteen years old Mr. Rosser, who now is cashier of a celebrated bank, represented South Africa in international contests. . . . The Gastanaga-Camera affair should be the best (financially and otherwise) the Garden has staged all winter. . . . Note to the lads who write letters to this department—"Unless you sign your names, into the waste basket it goes."

A New York state assemblyman is considering a bill which might cut heavily into the profits of those prize fight organizations which now (Hallelujah) operate so prettily in the cause of charity. . . . Although he is the amateur champion people insist upon sending Wilmer Allison's mail to the pro tennis headquarters. . . . Incidentally it was not until his father-in-law advised against it that Allison gave up the idea of becoming a pro.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

SYNOPSIS

Antoinette Taft, twenty-three, attractive and ambitious but unable to hold a job, lives in a drab San Francisco flat with her sister Brenda and brother Cliff, who are older, her seventeen-year-old brother Bruce, and their Aunt Meg. In her job hunting rounds she interviews Lawrence Bellamy, editor of the Journal of Commerce, but finds he has no place for a woman writer. She likes him very much, as she tells Brenda later. "He's a stunning young thing, as tall as Cliff, not much more than thirty, I think, and very much the gentleman." As the sisters talk, dimwit Barney Kerr drops in, asking where Cliff is. Barney has his eye on Tony, but she despises him. Tony gets a telephone call from Mr. Greenwood, city editor of the Call, offering her a job as society reporter. It being late at night, she has promised to see him in the morning. Cliff, returning just then, says: "Why not cinch it tonight?" and accompanies Tony to the newspaper office.

"Is there a man named Burke working here?" Clifford now found a lull in which to ask.

"Sure. Spike, where's Burke? He's usually in the sports," said MacGrath. "Here he is!"

He smote the shirted back of a stalwart young man who was washing not only his face, but his whole head and his arms up to the elbow at one of the basins. This person, dripping and sudsy, turned about with a loud "Quit!"

"Oh, hello, Cliff," Joe Burke said, then added, beaming over the filthy roller towel in a froth of white, "Hello, Miss Taft—say, what a break! What's doing?"

While he quite without embarrassment dried his face and hands, rolled down his sleeves, put on a collar and combed his thick red hair, he told him what was doing, and Tony beamed hopefully into his pleasant red-brown eyes.

"Sure, you can work that society racket like a shot!" Joe Burke told her hearteningly. "It's soft."

"Oh, I hope it is!" Tony said, with a smile, with a lift of thick lashes, with a great rise of her heart.

"Listen, let's eat," Mr. Burke said abruptly.

They went up Market street to Lorenzo's, where Tony and Cliff had had delicious "half-and-halves" and toast, and Joe had a limp pink veal cutlet that had been seized from a long damp pan of cutlets displayed in Lorenzo's window, rolled in egg and crumbs, blackened in a pan of hot grease, smothered in gory catsup and served smoking hot with fried potatoes within the space of six minutes. With this Joe had coffee that had been simmering all day in a black pot, spongy bread, and cocoanut custard pie.

The little restaurant with the window grill was bright and warm on the rainy night; the clock stood at twelve, and Tony felt excited and happy. This was living! There were several men having veal chops and oyster stews in Lorenzo's, and presently her brother was surprised to see her flush and smile a little self-consciously and bow to one of them.

"Who's that?"

"It's Mr. Bellamy of the Journal."

"That's right, too," said Joe. "I don't know him, but I've seen him in here before. He's pretty thick with old Arnoldson on our paper. Arnoldson told Fitch—Fitch is the managing editor—that he thought Bellamy was the smartest man on the coast, except maybe Anders down in Fresno."

Tony knew that the man who was watching her at the counter was watching her; she looked absently at Joe.

"Is Mr. Greenwood smart, Mr. Burke?"

"He is and he isn't," said Joe. "He's a terrible souse. Here's Moore. Sit down, Buck. This is the new society editor, Miss Taft. Miss Taft, Buck Moore, of the Sunday edition. You'll have to see a lot of old Buck!"

Tony hardly heard him. She was thrilled; she was happy. The romantic, dark, brilliant Mr. Bellamy had seen her alone and forlorn and supplicatory this morning in the dreary rain; he saw her tonight with three good-looking men having oysters at Lorenzo's. And to Mr. Moore she had been introduced as the Call's society editor.

CHAPTER IV

Oh, it was good to have a job again, and to have it spring, and morning, and to be twenty-three! Tony awakened eagerly, dressed with enthusiasm, finished her breakfast, and piled her coffee cup and berry saucer in the sink. Then came a blank.

"How do you suppose I can get those photographs for Sunday, Betsy?"

"I've been wondering," Brenda said. "Would any of the photographers help out, do you think?"

"I don't think they'd be allowed to give out pictures for the papers. Just the same, they're my best bet!" Tony decided uneasily. She left the house at nine o'clock and went to six photographers. It was always the same. It was not permitted; they said they were sorry.

At five minutes to one she went into the newspaper office, all the first enthusiasm of the new job clouded by a sense of fear and failure. She hung up her hat and coat in the office and confided her problem to Joe Burke.

"Oh, shucks," Joe said, "I'll tell you what you can do. Look over the other Sunday papers for the last few weeks, and telephone the studios for what you want."

"But I've just been to the studios, and they were awfully mean!"

"They won't be, if you want pictures that have been used. Or telephone the girls, if you like," Joe suggested easily, "and say that you are going to use an old picture and would like permission to have a new one."

"Yes, but have we old pictures?"

"Lord, haven't you seen the gallery?"

He took her in there, and she began to feel excited and happy and confident again. When she came back to her desk she telephoned a downtown studio firmly, authoritatively. This was the society editor of the Call speaking.

"I can have the prints there for you in an hour," the voice promised. Tony felt almost giddy with relief, and laughed aloud.

She sat working in a sea of clip-pings and notes; she was conscious of the increasing stir about her. Men were lounging in, gossiping and smoking; they all looked curiously at her, and she knew it, although she did not look up. The city editor came in and chatted with her, sitting edgewise on her desk, picking his teeth; every moment that passed made her feel more and more that she belonged here, that she was holding her own, and yet the fluttered sensation of uncertainty and novelty persisted, too.

Tony worked away industriously. She clipped, pasted, counted words her face grew hot and her hair tumbled; it seemed to her that a tide of paper was rising steadily about her.

Mr. Florence, acting for the absent editor, asked her for her "stuff" for tomorrow. Tony produced it anxiously. He took it without comment; presently came back to ask: "Oughtn't we have the Harriman bridesmaids?"

"Oh, should we?" Tony asked agitatedly, her heart hammering and her mouth dry. "How do I—shall I go out there?"

"No, I'll get 'em for you," a nice boy named Slosser volunteered lazily, from the adjoining desk. He whirled the leaves of a telephone book that was fluffed up to three times its size. "That's the Paul Harrimans," he muttered. Presently he was penciling hurriedly; he tossed a scribbled sheet to Tony's desk. "Here they are!" he told her carelessly. "You fix 'em up."

Her telephone rang; she answered it apprehensively. But it was the apathetic Henrietta on the switchboard; Miss Taft's sister was there, and should she send her in?

Tony went eagerly to the door to meet Brenda, not quite sure that Brenda had any right here, but all the more welcome for that.

"Darling, do you come home to dinner?"

"I don't know. I could ask Mr. Florence."

They went together to Mr. Florence's desk, and he assured Tony heartily that of course she could go home to dinner; she was tired, she'd been working like a Turk—couldn't one of the boys finish up the Sunday page?

Oh, no, no, no, Miss Taft would be back in about an hour, she had it all in line, there wasn't very much more to do. Tony and Brenda were hugging each other's arms with excitement and pleasure as they got into the elevator, and at the dinner table Tony was voluble about the delights of the new job.

She went back to the office through the black night with a singing heart, and the hot city room, when she reached it, with the boys lounging about, and the typewriters going, telephone bells tinkling and shouts and racket on every side seemed to her the most satisfying spot she had ever known in her life.

CHAPTER V

The nervous excitement persisted for days—for weeks. There were bad hours as well as good. Tony learned that a newspaper office, like an army camp, is a fertile place for rumors, and most of them were alarming. Almost every week there was dark talk of a complete change in management, and no reporter felt sure of himself even from day to day. And especially glib, strange, young man, or well-dressed, unknown young woman, observed to be deep in talk with Greenwood, spread general apprehension.

"What's he after?" the boys would ask the city editor casually when he was gone. Tony would find some excuse to drift up to his desk as soon as the woman caller disappeared. "Who is your pretty friend, Mr. Greenwood?"

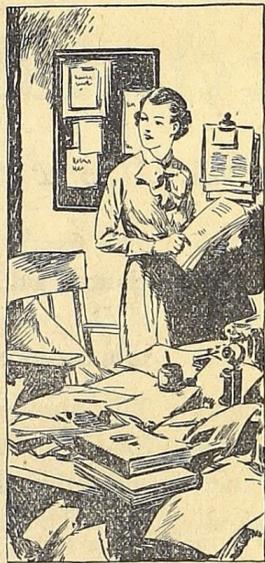

She had accepted Barney's humiliating suggestions in serious earnest; she would take no chances on this job. Tony was always the first to reach the office, the most punctual with her work. She brushed her hair back slickly and saw to it that her cuffs and collar were in trim. Over such mistakes as she made she showed so horrified a contrition that Greenwood's reproofs often turned into good-natured laughter.

"Well, listen here—no harm done. Old Mrs. Rufus Waite got mad because she hasn't ever forgiven George for marrying as he did, and you put the Georges at her big ball. Don't do it again, that's all."

Tony would go back to her desk to take out the indispensable old leather book and turn to the page-tab marked "W." Under "Waite's" she would carefully write "old Mrs. R. hates Georges—his wife Carolyn Petty, light opera."

She was often late at the office as autumn came on with affairs for the debutantes and the reopening of city houses, and she loved every minute of it. Aunt Meggy, assisted more often by colored Asterbel now, insisted that Tony sleep late; there was something very agreeable about awakening at nine instead of seven o'clock, and coming out to the sitting room for late coffee and blackberries and the newspaper and Aunt Meggy's contented chat. It was not only one's natural liking for ease, Tony thought; it went deeper. There was something in this changed routine that flattered her pride, that pride that had been so cruelly hurt and lowered in the long humiliating months when Tony had been the member of the family who lost jobs—was fired—couldn't help with the family's financial problem.

There Were Bad Hours as Well as Good.

Now they saw, all of them, that she wasn't lazy, that she did like work! She was a professional woman now, absorbed and busy, well paid and content, and her hours deserved respect. Tony held her head higher; presently she had a new office dress of dark blue belted childishly in red, and a dark blue hat with a red band; Brenda told her she had never been so pretty, and she suspected that it was true.

The darkness of haunting offices, going about weary and discouraged seeking jobs, going home filled with hurt and resentful thoughts, was forgotten.

At ten o'clock every morning she began her rounds; perhaps a call at one of the fashionable women's clubs, perhaps a visit to some kindly society woman who had offered to help her out with news. Always she went in, on her way to the office, to see Brenda in the bookstore, busy and sweet and helpful among the books, and usually with some items gleaned from her morning's work.

From Brenda she would go to the office, where much of her copy was secured by telephone. Tony came to know that the society folk always felt it necessary to pretend that they disliked any newspaper notoriety. But if she could get it from friends, or by any clever little maneuvering of her own, they were pleased to be called prominent, influential, leaders, exclusive; she had only to convince them thoroughly that she knew they detested publicity to get anything she wanted.

Gathered about the supper table that was spread in daylight now, loitering over the figs and grapes, Cliff and Brenda, Aunt Meggy and Tony agreed that this was the happiest, the most serene time they had ever known.

"We had six hellish years," said Tony. "They're over!"

"Oh, they weren't hellish, darling," Brenda protested. "It was only that after Dad died we floundered for a while, getting our bearings, and that of course, being in mourning for him and Mother, we couldn't have much fun."

"Gosh, what a pull!" Clifford muttered, smiling reminiscently over his pipe.

"They were simply rotten for me," Tony persisted darkly. "I abandon the word 'hellish' because I saw Aunt Meggy shudder, but hellish is what they were, and as hellish I shall continue to remember them!"

"Do they all make love to you down at the office?" Brenda once asked her. Tony laughed.

"That's just what they don't. They borrow quarters, and they tell me their whole histories, and they telephone other girls, right at my desk, but somehow the atmosphere of the city room is anything but romantic," she explained. "There's so much rush and confusion, we're always under such a strain—no, Joe and Van and Spike Illyan—they're darlings. But they don't make passes at me!"

"Aunt Sally is always casting out dark suspicions of these evenings at the office."

"Aunt Sally? She thinks President Harrison is still in office!" Tony could afford to laugh at Aunt Sally. "As for her dear influential friend Augusta Terry," she told the appreciative dinner table one night, "she is a stuffed shirt!"

"Antoinette," said Miss Bruce mildly. "You remember, she was going to help me with social notes and ask all her friends to send me in stuff? Well," Tony said, "I've telephoned her when I got into a tight place two or three times, and nothing doing! So yesterday I went up to see her and said how kind it would be of her—all that, you know. And she stiffened up like an old macaw and said she personally had the greatest abhorrence of newspaper notoriety, and thought it most extraordinary that any girl of a nice family would ever have her name in the paper. She implied that if I were a gentlewoman I'd give up my job! To Hannibal with her!"

"And then, on the other hand," Tony presently resumed, when Aunt Sally's influential friend had received due comment from the group, "on the other hand, Greeny told me to call up Linda Flood—that's Mrs. Paulding Flood—the other day. I was stuck, and he wanted me to go out on this milk investigation story, and of course I wanted to, because it's wonderful for him to give me any of the straight stories—and he said, 'Call up Linda Flood, she'll give you a lot of dope.'"

"And you don't know her?"

"I've never seen her; she's been at Tahoe all summer. So I sort of half-heartedly telephoned her, and said who I was, and I heard this darling voice, 'Why, girl dear, I don't know much, but I'll give you what I have! Got a pencil?' And she began to just pour it out, what everyone was doing, and tips on two engagements, and everything. And she said, 'Now you just call me up whenever you get short—I used to do that social column myself!'"

"Oh, people are lovely when they're kind," Brenda said, her eyes shining. "I'd love her!"

"Old stiff-necked parakeet of an Augusta Terry!" Tony muttered. "Afraid of herself, that's what she is. And this Mrs. Flood isn't, and that's the difference."

"I'll tell you, Tony, send Mrs. Flood some flowers at Christmas."

"I will! I love being able to do things like that," Tony said. "How a little money does help your self-respect!"

"How a little money does help your everything!" Bruce expanded it, with fervor.

"My old smart Tony, I always knew she'd make us proud of her!" Miss Bruce murmured contentedly, reaching for her solitaire cards. Tony and Brenda began to gather up the dessert dishes. They were presently talking with their own unflagging animation over the sink.

"I'd never mind this, you know, Tony, I mean our having to do the dishes—I mean, just as things are now seems richness to me," Brenda said.

"Money doesn't matter terribly," Tony conceded. "Work is the wonderful thing. To be hard working at something you simply love, and to wake up in the morning and think that here's another day's work—that's heaven."

"For a while," Brenda conceded. "But after all," she presently added thoughtfully, "no matter how successful a woman is, it seems to me she's a little lopsided if she doesn't marry."

"You say so, Brenda!"

"Well, I do."

"But you—you—why, you've always said that as far as you were concerned you didn't need anything more than friendship, such as you have with Margaret and Alison and Gay."

"Yes, but that's me."

"You mean I'm different?"

"I mean," Brenda insisted, "that there are different sorts of women. I like men tremendously—I think I'm easier with them than you are. But when it comes to getting quite close to one, going in for all the murmuring and intimacy and—the loving part—all that, it simply doesn't register. It makes me feel uncomfortable. I have heavenly times, going down to Carmel with Alison and the Beattys; we're completely happy. We cook, and talk books, and go uptown and get things for supper in the back garden; I don't miss anything."

"I don't miss anything, now," Tony said. "I'm completely happy."

Brenda, even while she smiled and shook her head, knew that it was true; in finding her work Tony had found herself, and quite innocently liked what she discovered. She seemed to grow taller and slimmer as the months went by; all the qualities that had made Brenda and Aunt Meggy uneasy about her disappeared as if by magic; she was groomed, energetic, purposeful.

Every night she came home to them with tales of her adventures. When Tony told of the scene that restored the little lost Jensen boy to his mother and father, Aunt Meggy had to wipe her eyes; she sketched every separate entity on the big Call staff for their benefit, and they felt that they knew good-natured common little Greeny, and stern handsome Mr. Fitch, and all the boys of the city room, as she did.

Lazy, unwashed, yawning little Arch Slosser continued to occupy the desk next to Tony's, and helped her generously even when he would not do his own work. Spike Illyan came in from the sports department to ask her about the clothes the women had worn to the tennis tournament. Joe Burke assumed the affectionate attitude of an old friend, promising to take her to a fight some night. And Van Florence told her about his wife's tuberculosis. All of them liked her, and she liked them all, and regretted that they were so often a little hazy from their too convivial dinners, and in so constant a state of being fired and re-employed, warned and scolded by Greeny, who was himself a heavy drinker.

Patty Perkins she did not like, but there was a friendly, rangy big woman who "covered Oakland," and who was confidential and friendly with Tony, and there was kindly old Mrs. Magius, who tottered in to do a weekly editorial headed "A Kiss for Everyone's Mother on Mother's Day" or "Baby Annie's Little Hands Keep Daddy Safe and Sane." If there were any event, local or national, with a mother, baby, an old soldier, an old song anywhere involved, Mrs. Magius, who signed "Betsy Ross," pounced hungrily upon it; she often wept when she told Tony what she was writing, sentimentally describing herself as the most beloved and useful newspaper woman in the world.

The only other woman on the staff was a blonde named Bess Cutter, who was paid a hundred dollars a week for a column called "Bessie Saw It." No one in the city office was supposed to know why Gavin Franklin Fitch, general manager, felt justified in paying Miss Cutter so generously for the queer tangled notes she occasionally brought in and that, if indeed they were usable at all, someone in the office always had to put into shape for her, but everyone did know that she had an apartment on Pine street, where Mr. Fitch dined almost every night, and that Mrs. Fitch often had to be told, when she telephoned in meekly to ask where he was, that he had to go to Fresno or Sacramento.

Tony and Bessie got on well together, and after a while it became the custom for Tony to do a great part of Bessie's work. The older woman—she was well into the thirties—would tumble all sorts of little notes upon Tony's desk and look with pathetic confidence at Tony while they were discussed.

That Mr. Fitch, who was all-powerful and much feared, was aware of her kindly assistance to the inefficient Bessie she knew when he stopped, on an autumn day, and put a new thick book on her desk.

"Read that?"

She flipped pages. "No, I haven't, and I've heard a lot about it."

"I thought you might enjoy it." He hesitated, his face rather red. It was a quiet morning hour in the city room, and nobody was within sound of their voices. "Everything comfortable for you in here, Miss Taft?"

"Oh, wonderful!"

"We want you to feel at home, that anything you don't like can be changed," he said stiffly, but with what for him was rare graciousness. Tony sat fingering the book, staring after him, when he went away. This was gratifying, reassuring, as far as the precious job was concerned; there was no one in the office, Greeny included, who would not have given a week's pay for so much from Mr. Fitch. But she saw breakers ahead. Her face flushed, her eyes shining, she sat lost in uncomfortable thought for a long time.

Lee's Invasion of Pennsylvania

The Dictionary of American Biography states that General Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, which resulted in the Battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 2, and 3, 1863, was undertaken for three reasons: (1) to supply his army; (2) to strengthen peace sentiment in the North by showing the futility of the effort to force the South into submission; (3) in hopes that he could compel Lincoln to detach troops from the far South and thereby relieve the pressure on Vicksburg. This hard-fought battle is often regarded by historians as the turning point of the Civil war.

Oriental Are Experts in the Art of Starving Selves

Recently a Yogi ascetic entombed himself in Rishi Kesh, a holy place in the northwest United Provinces of India. After 45 days those without were to listen for the sacred word "Om," whereupon he was to be released and given fruit juice. On the forty-fifth day they heard a faint "Om" and carried out the instructions. During all that time the ascetic had taken neither food nor water.

Oriental seem to be experts in this art of starving. Jatindranath Das, one of sixteen persons arrested in 1929 in the Lahore conspiracy, died in prison after a hunger strike of sixty-one days. Taha Hussein, who tried to assassinate the Egyptian prime minister, Siki Pasha, and was condemned to seven years' hard labor, died in 1932, after fasting fifty days.

Amazingly Fast Relief Now from "Acid Indigestion" Over-Indulgence, Nausea, and Upsets

If you want really quick relief from an upset or painful stomach condition—arising from acidity following over-eating, smoking, mixtures of foods or stimulants—just try this:

Take—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a full glass of water. OR—2 Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, the exact equivalent of the liquid form.

This acts almost immediately to alkalize the excess acid in the stomach. Neutralizes the acids that cause headaches, nausea, and indigestion pains. You feel results at once.

Try it. AND—if you are a

Kidnaping Is Not Entirely an American Crime, Nor New

The crime of kidnaping is not a new one or confined to this country, though the organization of kidnaping gangs for profit has been more greatly developed here in recent years than anywhere else. It is a curious fact that the word "kidnaping" came into use not in America but in England about 250 years ago and referred to the business of stealing young people in that country to provide indentured servants or laborers (virtually slaves) for the American plantations.

In Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," written in 1684, occurs the sentence, "Thou practisest the craft of a kidnaper; thou gatherest up women and children and carriest them into a strange country, to the weakening of my master's kingdom." Maj. Arthur Griffith's "Mysteries of Police and Crime" states: "Child stealing has always been a profitable trade, practiced at the instance of greedy relatives anxious to remove a rightful heir; full-grown youths of muscle and sinew were entrapped in great numbers during the first half of the Eighteenth century to be sold as white slaves for the American plantations."—Detroit News.

GAS, GAS ALL THE TIME, CAN'T EAT OR SLEEP

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Miller.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

"The House of a Friend"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

SOMETIMES it's your best friends that get you into the worst troubles. Take Cecile Saul of New York city as a typical instance. Cecile had a friend once—and not so very long ago, either—who got her into the worst jam of her entire life. It wasn't the friend's fault either. She probably thought she was doing Cecile a favor.

Cecile's friend had a sister. There's the nub of the whole situation. The sister had had a nervous breakdown and was confined to her bed. And when she needed the ministrations of a trained nurse, her sister—Cecile's friend—immediately thought of Cecile.

Cecile was—and is—a trained nurse. She was engaged to take care of the sick woman, and it wasn't a very pleasant job, either. "The woman wasn't a very congenial person," Cecile says, "but I was one of the few people who understood her. Hence, she had implicit confidence in me."

As a matter of fact, the sick gal was doggedly uncongenial. She was a large woman of about middle age, weighing 200 pounds, and powerfully built. She was sensitive about her illness, and that made her reticent and hard to talk to. Her sister—Cecile's girl friend—lived in the house with them, and that helped to cheer the place up—when she was around. But more often than not she went out in the evening, leaving Cecile and her patient alone.

Threatened by Crazed Woman
It was on just such an evening—a coolish night in September, 1934—that Cecile's big adventure took place. Her girl friend was out for the evening, seeing a show at the movie around the corner. The sick woman was asleep, or

She Came Forward Saying: "I'm Going to Kill You."

so Cecile thought. Cecile herself was reading a book, when all of a sudden she looked up and saw her patient rise from the bed. She had a peculiar expression on her face, and she came toward Cecile saying: "You stole my husband and I'm going to kill you."

"I started backing away," says Cecile, "petrified with fright because, in a flash, it had come to me that she had gone mad. When I backed into a wall I just stood there because I was too frightened to cry out or run."

The woman came on toward Cecile, 200 pounds heavy, and looking at least twice that as she towered over the nurse, thrusting clawing hands out to grasp her. Her eyes had gone glassy and foam oozed from the straight determined slit of her mouth.

Feels Lunatic's Hands on Throat.

"I tried to think fast," Cecile says; "at first I thought I could soothe her and get her back to bed. But that didn't work. Her mind had gone completely. So completely that she didn't understand anything I said. All she had in it was that fixed thought that I was her rival for her husband's affections, and that to kill me would be her revenge."

"She came nearer and nearer. Finally, her hands were on my throat. She was 60 pounds heavier than I, and about four inches taller. And she possessed the super-strength of a lunatic. The thought came into my mind that this was not a very pleasant way of dying. I could think then of a good many more agreeable ends than being choked to death by a mad woman. But just about the time I felt that I was going to have the pleasure of meeting with either St. Peter or the Devil, a miracle happened."

The miracle was just the opening of the door. It swung wide, and in came Cecile's girl friend—the sick woman's sister, who just a few minutes before had left for the movie. Luckily for Cecile, she had seen that movie before—had turned around and come back home.

Sister's Quick Act Saves Life.

The sister realized in an instant what had happened. Also, she was a woman with a lot of that stuff called "presence of mind." She understood the super-strength that insane people seem to acquire—knew how futile it would be to try to fight her off. There was no time to lose in calling for help, so she went immediately into action.

There was a large picture hanging on the wall right by the door. The girl picked that up, brought it down on the mad woman's head. The mad woman fell in a heap on the floor—unconscious.

That's all Cecile remembered for a while. Then she came to again, and a doctor was bending over her. They told her later that she too, had sort of lost her mind over the incident—had become hysterical and had to be quieted with a hypodermic.

Still Dreams of Awful Scene.

"It is quite a while since that happened," said Cecile, "and the woman is on the road to recovery. She was told only last week of the attempt to take my life, and she felt very sorry to think of all the grief she had caused me. But believe you me, it will be many years before I stop dreaming of an ugly, distorted, foaming mouth, glassy eyes, disheveled hair, and hard hands pinning me to the wall and choking me while an even harder voice cried: 'I'll kill you. I'll kill you. You stole my husband!'"

Well, personally, I like pleasant dreams.

Mizpah, Anciently Name of Towns in Palestine

Mizpah is a Hebrew word meaning literally "the watchtower." It was anciently the name of several garrisoned towns or regions of Palestine. Use of the word as a parting salutation, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is a reference to its employment in Genesis 31:49, where a place is called . . . "Mizpah, for he said, the Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another."

"Jacob gave it the name it bears," says the Standard Bible Dictionary, "in commemoration of the compact with Laban; but the sense in which the word 'mitspah' is used in this connection is slightly different from that in other places. Instead of an outlook-point, it indicates a place where God is invoked as a watcher. Accordingly it was a place invested with sacredness, and, on this ground perhaps, was resorted to in making covenants between clans. . . . The location of the spot is fixed by the fact that Jacob on his way to Canaan crossed the Jabbok after the covenant with Laban. This would place Mizpah north of the river Jabbok. Suf, northwest of Jerash, is supposed to many to be the exact spot, but the identification is not quite certain."

However, there were five other places named Mizpah or Mizpeh.

Lesson for March 22 JESUS TEACHING TRUE VALUES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12:13-34. GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matthew 6:33. PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts. JUNIOR TOPIC—When Is a Man Rich? INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is Most Worth Living For?

The common tendency of men is to be engrossed with the gifts of God instead of knowing him as the heavenly Father and enjoying his blessed fellowship. Man's supreme need is to know and enjoy God himself.

I. A Warning Against Covetousness (vv. 13-21).

1. The occasion (vv. 13-15). One of the company requested Jesus to be umpire in a disputed estate. Two brothers were in trouble over an inheritance. Christ refused to enter the sphere of the civil law and warned against the spirit of avarice. His mission was pre-eminently spiritual.

2. The warning enforced (vv. 16-22). This was done by the parable of the rich man. He showed most clearly that to be concerned with earthly riches while neglecting God is the highest folly. Concerning this man, note:

a. His increased goods (v. 16). His riches were rightly obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully. A man may be rich because the Lord's blessing is upon him.

b. His perplexity (v. 17). His lands were producing more than his barns would hold. He did not want it to go to waste. No frugal man wants to see the fruits of his toil perish. If he had possessed right views of life and a sense of stewardship before God, he would have seen that his barns had enough for his personal needs, and would have distributed the surplus to the needy.

c. His fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns, and give up his life to ease and luxury. It ought to be a delightful task for men whom God has made rich to devote their time and energy to the distribution of their possessions to benevolent objects.

d. The awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). God calls him a fool and this is no arbitrary judgment. Riches furnish neither contentment in life nor guarantee of the continuance of life. It is not only foolishness but madness to forget God while engaged in heaping up riches. Soon the man must die and his riches may get into the hands of unworthy men or even curse the lives of the children who inherit them.

II. The Certain Cure for Anxiety (vv. 22-34).

Having shown the folly of the rich man who gained gold and lost God, he now urged the disciples to trust God and dismiss all anxious care.

1. The argument (vv. 22, 23). This is summed up in one brief sentence: "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment."

2. The illustrations (vv. 24-28).

a. God's care for the fowls (vv. 24-26). The ravens do not sow nor reap, they have neither storehouses nor barns, yet they live, for God feeds them. If God does not forget the fowl, certainly he will do more for his children who have been created in his likeness and image and redeemed by the precious blood of his Son.

b. God's care for the flowers of the field (vv. 27, 28). If God is so careful of those flowers which appear but for a day, how much more will he clothe his children?

3. The exhortations (vv. 29-34).

a. The getting of food and clothes should not be man's chief concern.

b. Seek the kingdom of God (v. 31). Those who make God's kingdom first shall have all of their needs supplied (Phil. 4:19).

c. Be not afraid (v. 32). God's good pleasure is upon his own and all good things he will give them.

d. Practice self-denial in order to give gifts to those in need (vv. 33, 34).

III. Be Ready for the Coming of the Lord (vv. 35-40).

Having warned the disciples against the acquisition of worldly goods, while forgetting God, and shown them the needlessness of anxiety for food and clothes, he shows them the blessedness of being in a state of readiness when the Lord shall come. Conviction as to the certainty of the Lord's coming is a sure cure for worldliness and anxious care.

This attitude of heart he made clear by two parables; that of the return of the Lord, and that of the thief. The Lord will be so pleased with those who are waiting for him that he will take delight in sitting at the banquet with them, and he will even serve them.

Goodness Before Wealth

You are much in the wrong if you do not prefer the good qualities of the mind, before the advantages of fortune; a good man before a wealthy one; a man capable of being a faithful friend, before a rich unfaithful pretender to friendship.

Nipponese Typists Have but 2,000 Characters to Master

The Nipponese manipulators of typewriters have to struggle with a keyboard of 2,000 characters to be picked out by hand. The slugs have individual compartments in a sliding tray. The stenographer must press a knob in picking out these individual signs of the Katakana Hiragana forms.

Characters which once were pictured have been reduced to their simplest forms on the typewriter and now represent ideas only when placed in sound and thought sequence. When the knob is moved directly over the selected character, pressure is exerted. A metal arm pushes across a tiny ink roller and against the paper which is rolled on a drum. The drum shifts and revolves as the letter progresses.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Firestone PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER
FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRES
SPEED UP FARM WORK—MAKE IT EASIER—MORE PROFITABLE
HARVEY S. FIRESTONE pioneered and Firestone engineers developed a pneumatic tire which is the greatest contribution in recent years to more efficient and economical farming. Farmers using Ground Grip Tires on their tractors are saving more than 25% in time and fuel.

On all farm implements the Ground Grip Tire has proved of practical time-saving and money-saving value. Wagons, combines, mowers, sprayers, grain drills require up to 50% less draft to pull them. Hauling is speeded up. Plowing is done with more uniform depth. Vines and roots are not injured or cut, allowing closer planting and greater yield. Ground Grip Tires do not pack the soil and give greater protection to equipment.

It requires only a minimum investment to put all your equipment on Ground Grip Tires. With Firestone's new demountable rim and cut-down method of applying the rim to the original implement wheels, one set of tires will fit several implements. Tires can be changed quickly from one implement to another—you need only two or three sets for practically all your implements.

Firestone patented Gum-Dipped cords, with two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread, holding the patented super-traction tread to the cord body, made this great tire possible.

See the nearby Firestone Tire Dealer, Implement Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today—and in placing your order for new equipment, be sure to specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires on your new tractor or farm implement.
