LOCALS SHUT OUT SUNDAY BY GLADWIN

Tawas Makes Trip Lacking Pitcher and Gets Severe Trimming, 12-0

Tawas received its worst beating of the year at Gladwin last Sunday, the score being 12 to 0. Witter, Gladwin hurler, yielded only three hits in whitewashing the local crew.

Nine Tawas players made the trip, and, although that number is all that is required to play the game, there didn't happen to be a pitcher in the group. Capt. Walt Laidlaw was therefore immediately confronted with a major problem and since a quick decision was necessary to get the game underway, elected to start himself on the mound.

Everything went along smoothly until the first pitch, which was slapped for a double by Dickens. Before the side was retired, four runs had crossed the plate. No encouragement was given Laidlaw in the opening frame by his mates, who committed all the misuses they had during the game in that inning. However, he heroically stuck to his self-assumed assignment for two more innings and by the end of the third had allowed seven runs and seven hits and struck out two men while issuing no passes.

Counties Receive Gas and Weight Tax Money

Vouchers totaling $4,094,008 were turned over by Murray D. Van Wagener, State Highway Commissioner, to Auditor General John J. O'Hara Tuesday for payment to the 83 counties out of state highway revenues.

The vouchers cover the second quarter of the weight tax returns amounting to $2,819,008 while the additional $1,275,000 covers the first half payment on the gasoline tax returns. The counties receive the entire amount of the weight tax collected by the state.

With the returns announced this week, the total vouchered to the counties to date out of state highway revenues amounts to $17,584,297 embracing the first two quarters of the weight tax returns, the first half of the gasoline tax payment, and the first half, or $2,000,000, on the McNitt township road law requirement.

The figures reveal an increase of $1,800,000 returned to the counties from weight tax receipts for the first two quarters of this year compared with the same in 1935. At that time the two payments amounted to $12,518,471 compared with $14,309,297 this year.

The McNitt returns to the counties likewise are half a million dollars more this year than in 1935 when a total of $3,500,000 was paid out of state highway revenues. The law abolishing the township road system fixes the annual payment starting this year at $4,000,000.

Current returns in Isosco and nearby counties are as follows: Isosco, $12,646.33; Alcona, $9,845.22; Alpena, $19,813.87; Arenac, $12,957.55; Ogemaw, $14,570.62.

Mrs. Wm. Charters

Mrs. Wm. Charters, age 79 years, seven months and 20 days, passed away last Thursday, July 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Leslie, in this city. She had been ill for the past eight years.

Keturah A. Chapman was born at Kinglake, Ontario, on November 19, 1856. She came to Michigan in 1880 and was united in marriage to Wm. Charters on May 3, 1886. To this union two children were born.

The deceased resided in Reno township for 31 years and thereafter spent the remainder of her life in Whittemore and Tawas City. She was a faithful member of the Reno Baptist church for 50 years.

Mrs. Charters was a patient sufferer, never in all her years of illness complaining and always meeting everyone with a smile. When her health permitted she went far and near to help any one in sickness or distress, which endeared her to many. The profusion of floral tributes spoke the esteem in which she was held throughout the community.

Those left to mourn are her husband, Wm. Charters; one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Leslie of Tawas City; one son, Roy Charters of Whittemore; nine grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Martha Smith of Kinglake, Ontario, four nieces of Kinglake, Ontario, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Tawas City Baptist church. Rev. F. Metcalf officiated, assisted by Rev. Mack of Prescott. Burial was made in the Reno cemetery. Four grandsons of the deceased, Waldo, William and Wallace Leslie and Arden Charters, acted as pall bearers.

Relatives from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. James Syze of Detroit, Mrs. Ella McDougald and daughter, Eunice, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith of Lansing, Rev. and Mrs. Floyd Voller of Alpena, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lalonde and Mr. and Mrs. Neil McDougald and family of Bay City, and Miss Florence Neuman of Marquette.

Mr. and Mrs. Charters celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on May 3, 1936 at the home of their daughter in Tawas City.

God knew that she was tired and the hill was hard to climb, So he closed her weary eyelids And whispered "Peace be thine."

Qualifying Examinations For ERA Clerical Workers Will Take Place July 18

Qualifying examinations for all stenographers, typists, and clerical workers employed by county emergency relief commissions will take place Saturday, July 18, according to a statement by Dr. William Haber, State Relief Administrator. The examination will be conducted by state field representatives or other persons appointed to act for the state commission.

Examinations for case workers and other administrative employees will take place at a later date, probably on either or both of the following Saturdays. These will be followed by qualifying tests for employees of the state office.

The time limit for the examinations will range from one and one-half to three hours. Most of the short examinations will stress the short answer type of question. The short answer type involves questions which can be answered with merely a true or false indication or the correct completion of a statement.

Rivola Theatre Opens With "Follow the Fleet" Sunday

San Francisco, melting pot of world romance and magnet for the ships of the seven seas, is caught at its most colorful and romantic moment—when the U. S. fleet is in—as background for the singing and dancing of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in their new musical, "Follow the Fleet," which will be shown Sunday and Monday, July 19-20, at the Rivola Theatre, Tawas City.

When the old town sees the bulldogs of the fleet steaming through the Golden Gate excitement electrifies the air. Love is around every corner; old lies are retold and new promises made to be broken. It is all in "Follow the Fleet," with the big ships bringing in Astaire and Randolph Scott as sailors with different ideas on love and Miss Rogers and Harriet Hilliard waiting for them.

The battle greyhounds carry a cargo of seven Irving Berlin melodies, too, and their decks and the gay spots of San Francisco are the scenes for five novel dance numbers by the co-starring masters of rhythm.

Walter L. Main Circus To Be At East Tawas July 24

There are many other features too numerous to mention, such as animals, clowns, acrobats, wirewalkers, dogs, ponies, herds of elephants, and droves of camels, making up a full two hours' performance that will please every amusement-loving person. There will be two performances, at 2:00 and 8:00 p. m., rain or shine.

SUPERVISORS AUTHORIZE $200 REWARD

West and Corrigan Face Lie Detector In Kenyon Murder Case

Yesterday morning a majority of the members of the Board of Supervisors authorized Prosecuting Attorney John A. Stewart to offer a reward for information that would lead to a conviction in the Kenyon murder case. The supervisors set no limit to the amount to be offered, but Prosecuting Attorney Stewart said Thursday afternoon that it would be $200.00. Several of the supervisors, when interviewed yesterday, said that they were in favor of the county doing everything in its power to apprehend the murderer of the Kenyon boy.

Zeno West and Charles Corrigan were taken Thursday to Lansing where they cleared themselves from any suspicions as to their having knowledge of the crime. Both men were questioned in polygraph tests. West is an employe at the Hill ranch where Robert Kenyon had been living with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas. Corrigan, a neighbor, is the owner of the pasture in which the boy's body was found.

A portion or small fish was a part of the last meal eaten by Robert Kenyon before his death, according to the detailed report received by Sheriff John Moran from Dr. John Bugher, pathologist of the University of Michigan. Death came from two to four hours after this meal. The wound in the neck indicated that the knife had been wielded by someone holding the boy from behind his back.

For a Hundred Years the Mountains Had Guarded Wolfpen

Here is a story of saga proportions that breathes all the virility and strength of the Kentucky pioneers it describes—

PATTERNS OF WOLFPEN BY Harlan Hatcher

Four generations of the Pattern family had thrived in the beautiful isolation of Wolfpen—the valley high in the carefully-guarded reaches of the Cumberlands. Their life was a design of tranquil, self-sufficient harmony, a fine native American culture enjoyed since Revolutionary days. At last, however, the rising tide of American industrialism swept over the mountain barriers, churned up the quiet rivers, promising destruction to their peaceful way of life—evoking from this fourth generation of Patterns a battle more valiant than the clan had ever known.

Drouth Damage Estimated at $300,000,000—Steel Fight Brings Union Labor Crisis—Landon Reconvenes Kansas Legislature.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

WHILE relentless heat drove the nation's farm losses from drouth toward the $300,000,000 mark and sent grain prices soaring, long needed rains in scattered regions of the drouth belt brought temporary relief. In sections of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Ohio, which faced the prospect of the disaster already confronting the Northwest, the rains were a Godsend to sun-parched corn fields, pastures, and crops of spring wheat. Rains in the Northwest revived portions of North and South Dakota, Montana and Nebraska.

But a heat wave lasting nearly a week had brought temperatures ranging from 90 to 114 in the Great Plains territory.

Twenty-three states, eight of them in the South, were listed as suffering in some degree from the drouth. Ten of them—North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Minnesota, Missouri, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Virginia and South Carolina—were already in a critical stage. Five others—Kentucky, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and West Virginia—were borderline cases. Eight others where the full severity of the drouth had not yet been felt were: Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Indiana and Ohio.

With the full extent of the damage in the "dust bowl" area of the Northwest not yet known, the federal government made plans to deal with a long-range disaster. President Roosevelt, taking personal command of the relief program in Washington, announced that he would make a personal tour of the drouth-stricken areas within the next few weeks.

The President announced that the federal government had prepared a comprehensive plan whereby 170,000 out of 204,000 farm families impoverished by the drouth in the Northwest would be given immediate cash assistance. He declared that he will make his trip after the relief program has had an opportunity to get under way, to see for himself exactly how much damage was caused by the drouth and whether financially ruined families are receiving the proper assistance.

He said that 50,000 farmers were being given jobs immediately on WPA projects at an average wage of $15 per week, carrying out useful work—digging wells, constructing earth dams to hold any rains which may fall in the near future and building farm-to-market roads. A livestock program is under way which would call for the movement of cattle from the arid sections as a private enterprise, to protect the foundation herds of the livestock growers.

ROMANCE outmaneuvered diplomacy in the life of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister to Denmark and former member of congress. The engagement of the daughter of William Jennings Bryan to Captain Boerge Rohde, an officer of the Danish army, was announced in Denmark by the latter's mother. Captain Rohde is a member of King Christian's personal bodyguard.

Captain Rohde arrived in America on the liner Drottningholm a day or two after his fiancée had reached the country. They were married at an estate on Long Island.

In political circles the opinion was expressed that Mrs. Owen will probably resign her diplomatic post in a short time. While there are no formal regulations which compel an American woman minister to resign when she weds, it has been customary for women in minor positions in the American foreign service to retire when they marry.

GOVERNOR Alf M. Landon returned to Topeka, Kas., after a vacation in the Colorado mountains, for the reconvening of the state legislature and to prepare for the acceptance speech he will deliver at the Republican notification ceremonies July 23.

The Republican presidential nominee appeared before a joint session of the legislature and urged passage of amendments to the state constitution to provide adequate social security measures. Governor Landon declared that care of the needy aged and others suffering misfortunes is a "public obligation."

Following his address, the Kansas senate adopted a constitutional amendment by a vote of 35 to 1, empowering the legislature to enact a uniform system of direct aid for needy aged persons, indigent infirm persons and others suffering misfortunes which give them a claim on society for aid. It likewise passed by a unanimous vote another proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the state to levy taxes on employers and employees for systems of old age pensions and unemployment insurance to which the beneficiary must contribute.

Meanwhile, Governor Landon opened a series of major conferences with farm leaders for the purpose of drafting a farm relief program for inclusion in his acceptance speech. He conferred with former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, and former Senator Otis F. Glenn, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, Representative Clifford Hope of Kansas and R. K. Laubengayer, a Kansas farm publisher.

AS THE long-awaited campaign to unionize the nation's steel industry was under way, one of the most serious crises in the history of the American labor movement arose when strife broke out between William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, who has promoted the unionization drive in the steel industry.

Meeting in Washington, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor considered the matter of suspending eight national and international unions on the ground that these eight unions have begun the formation of a rival, or dual labor federation.

John L. Lewis announced that he would not respond to a summons of the executive council to answer charges that he had violated the federation's policy by trying to organize 500,000 steel workers into one big industrial union instead of into several unions divided by crafts.

Should the rift widen and a break occur, observers believe it would split the organized labor movement and affect its prestige and power at a critical time.

Denouncing the action of the Lewis group, President Green declared:

"It is sincerely to be regretted that the committee for industrial organization thwarted the purpose of the American Federation of Labor to inaugurate an organizing campaign in the steel industry."

Back of the collision over the attempted unionization of the steel industry are two contending schools of thought over the future of organized labor in America. One is that sponsored by Mr. Green which rose to power on a policy of trained craftsmen, trained by crafts. The other is championed by John L. Lewis who visions a powerful labor machine organized regardless of crafts, which includes the semi-skilled and unskilled workers as well as the trained craftsmen.

DEFYING the threats of Communist members of the chamber of deputies, the French government decided to use armed force "with care" to oust French strikers who refuse to evacuate their places of business.

The announcement of this new policy was made by Minister of the Interior Roger Salengro, following the outbreak of fresh "folded arm" strikes in Paris and the provinces. It was estimated that 80,000 workers were still on strike in various industries throughout France.

SENATOR William E. Borah, about whose future political plans considerable doubt existed, formally announced that he would be a candidate for re-election to the senate.

Several days before making his announcement the Idaho statesman had pledged allegiance to the Republican ticket and platform, thus removing the expressed doubts of many political leaders throughout the country regarding his stand in the presidential campaign. Previously Senator Borah had commented favorably on both the Republican and Democratic platforms, praising both for the stand they had taken on the question of monopolies.

The seventy-one-year-old senator in clarifying his position on the Republican platform said:

"I have no intention of bolting the ticket.

"I am supporting the platform and I have been supporting the platform from the beginning."

SOON after returning to his desk from a three-day pilgrimage to Virginia, President Roosevelt announced that he had granted Postmaster General James A. Farley leave of absence without pay from August 1 to November 5, the day after the presidential elections.

Thus Mr. Farley will be freed from official duties to devote himself during the next three months to the direction of the President's campaign for re-election. The announcement did not come as a surprise to those in informed political circles in Washington, but it had been rumored in some quarters that Mr. Farley would resign his cabinet post and retain his job as chairman of the Democratic National committee.

Mr. Farley announced that Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas would be chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau. The campaign, he said, would be in full swing by Labor Day.

President Roosevelt's sojourn in Virginia took him to the dedication of Shenandoah National Park, to Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson and to Williamsburg, capital of the Old Dominion from 1699 to 1779. In an address at Jefferson's home, the President called on the nation to rekindle the "sacred fire" of "true freedom" which had lighted the "golden age" of American history. He declared the present emergency required the same leadership as that displayed by Thomas Jefferson.

CUTTING a big cake to celebrate his ninety-seventh birthday, John D. Rockefeller predicted that he would live to be one hundred. Despite temperature of 92 in the shade, the famous nonagenarian donned a sun helmet and went outdoors on his summer estate near Lakewood, N. J.

The multimillionaire oil man and philanthropist did not let the celebration of his birthday interfere with his daily nap or his daily afternoon automobile ride.

Mr. Rockefeller long since has given up all forms of athletic activities, including golf, formerly his favorite pastime. A few years ago he was down to a few holes of golf a day, but now he has given it up entirely. It has been his custom to spend his winters at Ormond Beach, Fla., and his summers either at Lakewood or at his other estate at Pocantico Hills near Tarrytown, N. Y.

WAR-WORRIED Europe shifted its anxiety from the Italo-Ethiopian sanctions problem to the newer and baffling question of what to do about the Free City of Danzig now seeking to free itself from the bonds of the League of Nations.

The league disposed of the sanctions problem by voting to abolish them, thus to all practical intents and purposes removing Ethiopia from the family of sovereign states. Appearing personally before the league assembly, the refugee emperor, Haile Selassie, made a last moving bid for Ethiopia's freedom.

The "king of kings" denounced France and Great Britain without mentioning their names. To the generally expressed desire to reform the league, he said the weakness was not the league covenant itself, but a lack of international morality. The Negus' request for a loan of $50,000,000 to Ethiopia was voted down. Previously Haile had informed Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, that he would return to Ethiopia immediately to join his loyal tribesmen and fight for Ethiopian independence.

With Mussolini given satisfaction, the Danzig situation brought into the foreground the figure of Adolf Hitler, chancellor of Nazi Germany. It was a Nazi follower of Hitler, Dr. Arthur Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, who demanded independence for the former German city now surrounded by Polish territory and who denounced the league and Sean Lester, league high commissioner for the port.

Observers were of the opinion that Greiser was acting under orders from Chancellor Hitler. In view of Germany's expansionist program and its rearmament, they feel that Danzig will be the next Nazi objective now that the Rhineland is remilitarized. By the elimination of Commissioner Lester or by the curtailment of his authority over the international affairs of the city, it is believed the Nazi would be in a position to crush the opposition party and pave the way for annexation of Danzig by Germany.

A TOLL of 346 lives was exacted in the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States.

Booming cannon crackers played a comparatively innocent part in the slaughter, for only 11 lives were lost in accidents due to firecrackers.

But if the nation heeded warnings about the danger of fireworks, it forgot the menace of motor accidents, for 208 people in 36 states were killed as the result of accidents on streets and highways. Ninety persons were drowned in 36 states. Miscellaneous tragedies accounted for 37 additional fatalities in 15 states.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Big Rapids—A 22-ton grinder, the last of a series of six ordered for automobile work by Russia, was recently shipped to the Soviet by the Hanchett Swage Works of this community.

East Lansing—The Board of Agriculture plans to start construction this summer of two new dormitories at Michigan State College. The two buildings will cost $900,000, one to house 310 men students and the other 250 women.

Cass City—Twin colts, a roan gelding and a dark roan mare, born May 15 on the Claud Karr farm near here, have gained over 125 pounds each since birth. The pair are being watched with interest throughout the country since twin colts are a rarity.

Ann Arbor—Dr. William Haber, State emergency relief administrator and director of the NYA in Michigan, will become professor of economics at the University of Michigan in the fall. Dr. Frank Robbins, assistant to the president of the university, has announced.

Grand Rapids—The largest Federal white-collar project ever attempted here will get under way when more than 150 men begin a tax reassessment survey under the WPA. The cost will be $219,044 with $5,000 to be paid by the City. About 45,000 buildings will be examined.

Grand Rapids—Welfare families will raise much of their own food again this year. They are uniting to take care of 350 community gardens in addition to 1,150 gardens planted by individual families. The Kent Garden Club has donated 40,000 cabbage and tomato plants.

Lansing—A statewide report of traffic deaths over the Fourth of July holiday weekend revealed that 38 persons lost their lives by accident during the 48-hour period. This is alarming news to safety minded persons—Michigan having the largest toll among all of the states in the union.

Lansing—The National Reemployment Service in Michigan has thirteen district offices which serve Michigan's 83 counties. Major Howard Starret, state director, announced that up to July 1st, nearly 3,000 persons had been referred to jobs through the service, being placed either in private industry or relief projects.

Standish—Extensive tree planting operations calculated to furnish plenty of forage for deer during the coming winter have just been completed on the flats of the Molasses River, under a project sponsored by the Department of Conservation and carried out by enrollees of CCC Camp Molasses River. The seedling trees placed in this area, numbering approximately 34,000, included white ash, green ash, silver maple, hard maple and box elder.

Saginaw—A reduction of $1.43 on each $1,000 in Saginaw's tax rate for the coming year was determined when the City Council set the rate at $10.65 per thousand. Made up of 6.90 mills for operating costs and 3.75 mills for prior obligations, the rate combines with 5 mills for school operation, 1.77 mills for prior school obligations and 3.10 mills for County operation, to produce a total tax for the year of $20.42 against a rate of $21.85 for 1935-36.

Kalamazoo—The Wolf Lake Hatchery near here has received 100,000 more eggs of Montana grayling trout. They will be placed in rearing ponds soon after hatching, where they will be brought to fingerling size by a special feeding technique worked out at the hatchery. Michigan's stock of adult Montana grayling was destroyed last winter by herring gulls and merganser ducks. There is a stock of fingerling grayling, but not as many as desired.

Evart—George and Orville Glerum have maintained a 600-acre wild life sanctuary at Wright and Grovers Lake for the past five years and it will be continued for at least another five years. A grant was recently renewed by the State Conservation Department. The land surrounds a 120-acre lake with a 2-acre island, and is partly productive although left largely wild with virgin timber standing. One of the few pine stump fences left in Michigan is located here.

East Lansing—An expected increase in the Michigan State College enrollment to a new high record in the fall drew an appropriation of $30,260 from the State Board of Agriculture for enlargement of the faculty. The money will provide for 32 new members of the teaching staff, principally graduate assistants, and two extra stenographers. Secretary John A. Hannah told the board he expected at least a 600 increase in student enrollment, which would bring the student body to about 4,600.

Lansing—Arrangements to provide WPA jobs at $100 a month for all the township supervisors in Michigan struck a snag in Washington. The WPA Co-ordinating Committee ruled that elected officials could not receive Federal pay. The project was to make a detailed land survey of the State. Each township supervisor, it was expected, would be employed for a month or more. The work was started a month ago and about 50 supervisors have been employed. Under the WPA ruling the surveys begun will be completed, but no new ones started.

Monroe—The State PWA director has informed Monroe officials that a project for improvement of the new State Park on Lake Erie has been approved.

Grand Rapids—Police and firemen here are looking forward to an increase in pay of approximately 5 per cent, as a result of the city obtaining $38,000 in impounded bank funds.

Mt. Pleasant—The State's natural gas open flow potential, rated at little more than a half-billion cubic feet daily in August of last year, exceeds the 3,000,000,000 mark at the present time.

Leslie—He who doesn't bring his seat with him to the free movies in Tuttle Park at Leslie goes seatless. Village merchants provide the movies without cost every week, but spectators must provide their own seats.

Onaway—A new bridge over Rainey River on US 23, east of Onaway, will be erected this summer. The present narrow bridge at this point has been considered one of the most serious traffic hazards in Northern Michigan.

Ann Arbor—Summer school registration at the University of Michigan set a record with 4,348 students enrolled for courses on and off the campus. Figures from the biological camp at Douglas Lake are expected to increase the total to 4,500.

Shingleton—Approximately 100 miles of trout streams in the vicinity of Shingleton in the Upper Peninsula will be improved by crews from CCC Camp Cusino. Removal of beaver dams authorized by the Department of Conservation will be the first improvement project, to be followed by installation of deflectors to speed stream flow.

Grand Rapids—This city's long delayed WPA project, improvement and beautification of Grand River between Grand Rapids and Grandville, has received approval and will soon be under way. The river will be dredged to a depth of five feet. Parks will be developed along the river, drives constructed, and the banks landscaped. Flood control devices, already started, will be completed.

Lansing—The Old Age Assistance Bureau has received a third Federal Government check for $946,727.32, under provisions of the National Social Security Act. The check will be the Federal contribution toward Michigan old age pensions and administrative costs during July, August and September. Nearly 30,000 elderly Michigan men and women now receive pensions, which average $16.50 a month.

Lansing—Space for exhibits and concessions at the Michigan State Fair will be limited this year because of the many Centennial exhibits planned, Secretary George A. Prescott, has announced. "The fair this year will celebrate the 100th anniversary of Michigan's admission to the Union, and the history and progress of the state will be represented in a tableau which will occupy much of the Fair Grounds space," Prescott said.

Charlotte—A trail of fire that caught up with Milton Fullerton, 13 years old, and exploded a gallon can of shellac in his hands, cost his life. The boy had found the leaky can of shellac on a rubbish pile and carried it with him as he and companions were at play. One of the boys dropped a lighted match into a pool of shellac that had dripped from the can, and flames flashed along the shellac trail until they reached the can and exploded it.

Lansing—Two free lance officers will be attached to each of the four regions in Michigan's conservation law setup to assist local officers, according to the head of the field administration department. The enlargement of the force, is, however, dependent upon available funds. The free lance system has been effective in handling difficult cases of conservation law violation. Under the new system, it will be used as a "proving ground" for newly appointed officers.

Lansing—What is your car's average miles per gallon of gasoline? Two hundred thousand Michigan motorists have been asked to forget pride in the old bus and confess the truth. The answers when compiled by the State Highway Planning Survey, will go far to provide a solution to another often argued question, namely, who pays for the cost of Michigan's highways? The United States Bureau of Public Roads and the planning survey have mailed questionnaires asking a number of questions.

Port Huron—In August the Fort Gratiot Lighthouse here will have sent its guiding beam over the waters of Lake Huron for 111 years. The first light shone out the night of Aug. 8, 1825. The structure was 18 feet in diameter at the base, 9 1/2 feet at the top and 32 feet high. In 1828 the lighthouse was undermined by a great storm and collapsed. A year later the present brick tower was erected at a cost of $4,445. It is 25 feet in diameter at the base and 80 feet high. The light is visible for 10 to 28 miles.

Lansing—Another $2,819,008 in second quarter weight tax refunds to the various counties has been announced by the Department of State. The department said weight tax distribution for the first six months of this year now total $14,379,751, compared to $12,577,828 in the same half of 1935. During six months of 1936 weight tax collections were $11,374,686 on full license plates and $2,996,065 on "sticker" permits. The number of full licenses increased 107,417 to a total of 988,317, and "sticker" issuances rose 35,406 to a total of 447,824.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington.—As the full meaning of the platforms of the two major party conventions sinks in, certain very definite conclusions cannot be avoided. In each instance, the two old political organizations have moved into virgin territory, entirely new fields.

In the case of the Republicans, their Cleveland convention completely reorganized their party leadership and placed the responsibility in the hands of younger men, casting onto the ash heap along with the old guard leaders, many of the old time conservative ideas.

In the case of the Democrats, their Philadelphia convention virtually created a new party. They went further toward the radical side than they have ever gone before. In no spirit of criticism, it must be said that the Philadelphia convention really gave birth to a New Deal party, as such. The one thing they kept was the Democratic label.

The theme song of the Republican platform was molded out of the fabric that is part and parcel of the younger generation as distinguished from the attitude given birth and promoted and protected by the Penroses, the Lodges, the Smoots and others of that texture. This is to say that the Republican convention, for the first time in many years, has moved its campaign pronouncements out onto something approximating a moral plan, or at least the evidence is they have attempted to do so.

The Democrats, having had ten days between the Republican convention and their own in which to study the Republican document and improve upon it, went considerably beyond their opponents in the language they used. They have made an appeal to the voters of the nation that surely will attract many thousands of voters to the support of Mr. Roosevelt.

On the other hand, the Philadelphia convention proceeded to cast aside many traditions, many principles, which old line Democrats, who love the Jeffersonian theory, regard as their political bible, and they may antagonize that segment of the old party by so doing.

To state the proposition in another way, many observers and political analysts hold that while the Democratic platform contains fewer contradictions than does the Republican pronouncement and that, on the whole, it is a much better written platform, they have leaned so far to the radical side that they are leaving conservative Democrats and old guard Republicans only one place to go—to the Republican candidate. This develops because, in the first instance, the old guard Republicans obviously cannot embrace a Democratic platform which they regard as too liberal and they have no choice but the Republicans. The conservative Democrats will have the choice to make. They can go to the New Deal party or they can remain as old line Democrats and swallow their pride of party affiliation long enough to support the Republican, Governor Landon.

One may look back over the doings at Philadelphia and recognize that the meeting was a thoroughly controlled from Washington. That was natural because the party in power obviously has all of the important federal offices filled with its own men. The convention included among its delegates about 64 per cent of federal office holders-delegates.

That explains better than any way I know how the 104-year-old two-thirds rule was so easily abrogated. That rule has been a sore spot in conventions for years. It has many times been the direct cause of bitter convention battles and has bred scores of bitter personal animosities. It was none the less interesting, however, to see the Philadelphia delegates toss out principles of the Democratic party with such utter abandon.

I am convinced that the Democrats have not seen the end of the two-thirds rule yet. There is every indication that it will arise again when the next quadrennial meeting is held. There are plenty of Democrats who believe that the requirement of a vote of two-thirds of all delegates shall be recorded for the man selected as the party's Presidential nominee is a protective measure. But when the convention voted out the two-thirds rule, it took the Democratic party out of the hands of the South.

It seems to me that the Southerners cannot be blamed for desiring to maintain that two-thirds rule. This is their position: through all of the recent elections, the Democratic nominee has begun his campaign with the assurance that 11, 12 or 13 states in the South would give him their electoral vote. He could concentrate, therefore, on the North and the West. The old line southerners have held that since they always supplied from 100 to 140 electoral votes upon which the Democratic nominee could build, they ought to have something to say about his nomination, about the type of man selected. The two-thirds rule gave them a veto power and they have used it many times.

Now, unless the old line Democrats again gain control of the party, the South will no longer be able to sit as the umpire in deciding the type of character of the man who will bear their party label in campaigns.

The question may arise in many minds as to how the rule came to be discarded so easily. Earlier in this report to you, I mentioned that 64 per cent of the delegates to Philadelphia were federal office holders or party leaders selected by the Roosevelt patronage dispensers. The presence of those office holders and party leaders who have been bound to the Roosevelt administration in one way or another constitutes the answer. There were enough of them in the southern delegations to constitute a balance of power on close votes in state delegation caucuses. Hence we witnessed a good many southern states voting to abrogate the two-thirds rule over protests of some of their own numbers.

There is another circumstance about the Philadelphia convention that I believe warrants mention. It may have gone unnoticed generally but just 160 years after Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence, the Philadelphia convention of the Democratic party copied from the immortal Declaration the famous phrase: "We hold these truths to be self-evident."

It was a bold move on the part of the New Dealers to lift that Jeffersonian expression and to place it among the many new theories and new ideals which they advance under the banner of what was the Jeffersonian party. Some observers point out that this action may invite comparison between the political ideals of Thomas Jefferson and Franklin D. Roosevelt because surely there is much more in the Declaration of Independence than the simple expression that certain truths are self-evident.

In these days when the world, as well as the American nation, is sorely troubled and disturbed, those Americans who are convinced that isolation may ruin our country, can find little satisfaction either in the Democratic or Republican platforms. This may not seem important until one looks back over the last two decades. Examination of what has happened in that time is sufficient to demonstrate the significance of this isolationist trend by both major political parties.

The Republican plank on foreign affairs has little to say and what it says is chiefly negative. The plank drafted by the Roosevelt administration and adopted by the Philadelphia convention is as nebulous as the milky way. Each platform talks about peace but it is decidedly doubtful that either platform has offered a genuine way to obtain or maintain peace.

It was only natural that the Republicans should restate their opposition to the League of Nations. It was likewise only natural that the Democratic plank on foreign affairs should be full of glittering generalities because it is yet to be remembered that the late Woodrow Wilson has countless followers in the New Deal party who hold the conviction that the League of Nations, with American support, would solve most world problems. It is obvious, therefore, that the Democrats could not commit the party either to League adherence or non-adherence.

Except for the party split over the old Wilsonian policies whose ideals stood as a ghost in the background in the Philadelphia convention, one might have expected more definite declarations from the Philadelphia conclave. For example, the Roosevelt administration has sponsored reciprocal trade agreements. It has broadened American foreign policy in many other ways but some leader in the group that drafted the 1936 platform was smart enough to realize that a declaration on internationalism that was too strong would have brought about a vicious outburst at Philadelphia. In consequence, almost nothing of a tangible character was forthcoming.

Therefore, in summing up, I think it must be concluded that both platforms have been drawn to appeal to Americans as isolationists. Likewise, it occurs to me that the interpretation of their promises and plans and foreign policies by the two contending candidates will be the more interesting as the campaigns proceed.

ROWING people, who hate loud-er and longer even than fight managers, have topped the Hatfields and McCoys again. This time the feud is between the Cornell and Navy coaches. . . . Walker an' Bartell Have Own Opinions of Squawks, Hexes

IT IS long past midnight at the sign of the Toy Bulldog. The boys who have been cutting up old touches get around to the twin subjects of squawks and alibis. Since this is a prize fight crowd the debate is loud and long. Mickey Walker, who has been listening quietly, now grins and saunters over to the table.

"Maybe there's a time and place for everything," suggests the squat little man who used to ask nothing of giants save that they keep on swinging. "For instance, did I ever tell you about the time I fought Dundee?" He grins again at the memory of the night.

"Well, anyhow, Joe smacks me so hard over one eye that I lose the duke and have to go to the hospital.

"Naturally I'm weighing in with some man-sized beefing because it hurts plenty. All the while, too, I hear a guy on the next table sort of growling, but I don't figure he's got any cause to be sore at me and so I don't pay much attention to him. Instead I just lay there and every time the Doc purrs one on the next row I let out another yelp.

"All of a sudden the guy on the next table bounces up so's they've got to stop operations on him.

"Say you," he says to me. "You know what I'm in here for. Well somebody bounced a bottle off my conk and I've been stretched out here for almost an hour while they've been digging glassware outta my dandruff. That's what they've been doing. Here I was out for a bit of fun and wasn't harming nobody.

"—an' you," he says. "Getting hit is your racket, ain't it. An' you got paid 10 G's for tonight, didn't you? Well, then, what right've you got to squawk?"

It is almost time for a double-header to start. Adolfo Luque stands in front of the Giants' dugout shaking an excited finger at Dick Bartell.

"You oughta done it," he says. "You—"

"Yeah," says the shortstop. "But I didn't have time. I was—"

"It makes no difference," the veteran coach abandons such feeble medium as a long finger and spreads both arms in eloquent gesture. "How we gonna win. How we—"

"Well, I got warmed up anyhow, didn't I?" Bartell's life is built on the theory that a good attack is the best defense. So he plainly is out of his element now. Nevertheless he tries gamely to cover up.

"You warm up! Huh!" Luque sputters feebly with the English idiom for a moment, relieves himself with rippling Spanish phrases and then returns to the language by which he may be understood. "Three weeks you warm up with me, hey? Three weeks you get hits. You warm up with me today. No. Well, then how you expect to—"

He shrugs his shoulders that speak volumes. Then sinks down on the bench overcome by the futility of it all. He becomes as silent as he had been loquacious.

Bartell is not a superstitious lad. He knows that a bat is of considerable more assistance than a rabbit's foot when you are up there cutting for base hits. So he grins at this notion.

The first game starts. Magicians pop up from nowhere to snare hard-hit line drives. The Giants lose that one. The second game starts. A sturdy little fellow continues to slap line drives that should be good for extra bases. They continue to be caught. The Giants lose that one.

When old man Luque comes down the clubhouse steps the next afternoon a blond little fellow is waiting there, ball and glove in hand.

"Hey, Adolf, catch," he calls. "I've been waiting here 10 minutes. How do you expect me to get warmed—"

That afternoon Dick Bartell gets his base hit and the Giants win.

Monday's Grouch Is Out

The Chinese ministry of the interior is determined that the cares and affairs of state shall not rest so heavily upon its staff that they neglect the simpler social courtesies. No more "upstage" manners or stony silences on Monday mornings at the ministry, says a new order.

Underlings sighting superiors for the first time each day in the ministerial corridors must say clearly: "Minister Blank, how are you?" To this the chief must reply: "Very well, thank you."

When making pastry use only enough water to hold ingredients together. Mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible if you wish pastry to be flaky.

The fat side of beef should be placed nearest the flame when roasting. The melting fat will flavor and baste the meat during the cooking.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids if stored away in a closet often cause spontaneous combustion. Keep these cloths in a covered tin container.

Oil or oily substances should never be used on waxed floors. They soften the wax, sink into wood and eventually darken it.

Lingerie must be tinted occasionally to preserve its dainty appearance. A faded blue garment will tint a delicate orchid with the aid of a pink dye, a pale yellow will shade into a delicate green if dipped in blue dye and a pink dye will change the yellow to a shell pink. Be sure to use small quantities of the dye for these pastel shades.

Color Blindness Hereditary

Color blindness, about which very little is known, is hereditary and affects boys to a greater degree than girls. At the same time, people who are color blind are generally above the average in intelligence.

The Term "John Henry"

The term "John Henry" is slang, and has been in use for at least twenty years. It is in wide use among salesmen or solicitors who have substituted it for the older term, "John Hancock," meaning "signature." Probably the similarity of Henry to Hancock suggested the original humorous substitution. The older term arose from the prominence of Hancock's signature on the Declaration of Independence.—Literary Digest.

"WE NEED MORE VACATION TRADE"

GET YOUR SHARE WITH CONCRETE ROADS

It's big business—this vacation trade. Retail stores, restaurants, filling stations, hotels, garages, amusement places, farmers—all profit directly from it. And everybody profits indirectly.

Other communities are in competition with yours. That's why it pays to build concrete roads. For tourists like to follow the concrete—just as you do.

Your community will make money and save money if your roads are concrete. Concrete costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-strength, costs far less to maintain and less to drive on. Insist on concrete.

"Married!" Joe said, Tony drawn down on his knee now, and his kiss against her chin. "We were married two weeks after you were. We've been bursting to tell you, but we've not told anyone except Cliff and Brenda and the family, and Tony didn't want to spill it without asking me, and I didn't dare without asking her! This is my beautiful, my adorable, my glorious wife!" he said. "And she's going to Rio with me next month, aren't you, sweetheart?"

"This is my husband," Tony said, under her breath, looking only at Joe, her arm about his neck, her words only for him. And so said, they sounded like a song.

"And we cook here, and garden here, and fool around here," Joe stated, beginning to serve the ham enthusiastically, as Tony, flushed and laughing, went around to her own place. "And perhaps angels in heaven have something on us for happiness, but we doubt it. I talked Tony into it just after we had word from you, but for various reasons we kept it quiet. They wanted her to finish up her work on the paper, and break some one else in."

"I can't still quite see the reason for the secrecy with us," Caroline observed nippingly, after a somewhat forced flurry of explanations and congratulations, and the evening was over, and the Bellams were going.

"And something tells me that I'll never be intimate with my sister-in-law," Tony observed, in reference to this parting shot, when they were gone.

"Something tells me that neither one enjoyed the evening," Joe said, happy with his pipe, his fireside, his wife, his peaceful Sunday evening. "Tony, did you and he have it out?"

"While I was getting dinner, yes. In a way, we did. And in a way I felt terribly sorry for him, Joe. You're so wise and you're so good, and you know everything, and every one adores you, and you're wonderful," Tony said simply. "But poor old Larry's still the big wooden Injun, handsome and clever and adored by the girls. He just can't believe that life is being mean to him."

"Sit here on this thing." She took the familiar red leather hassock at his knee; her eyes were fixed on his, her dark hair ruffled a little into a babyish aureole about her face. Joe put down his pipe, and they locked hands.

"Do you really love me, Tony?" "Joe, so much that I can't pull out a weed or pick up a shell without needing you to praise me and see me and talk to me about it."

"There wasn't the least twinge to-night?" "Nothing but pity for the poor fool girl who fell in love with a painted totem pole."

"Larry isn't a totem pole, you know." "To me he is. I looked at him and I looked at you, Joe. You are so wise and quiet and good—" She stopped.

"Go on, wench. Your discourse displeases me no whit." "Yes, but you know what I mean. You're so big that you can afford to be little, and fool around here making fires and playing with me. But Larry—did you notice that he spoke of his valet, Joe? He would have a valet! "However," Tony added in satisfaction, "I think he saw how happy we are; I think he did. Anyway, she did." Joe's laugh—she loved it, and it was rather rare—broke out.

"They did, unless they've suddenly gone stone blind. You were rubbing it in all over the place! I never saw you look so pretty or heard you laugh so much. You let 'em have it right in the eye."

"Oh, Joe, I didn't!" Tony protested. "Oh, Tony, you did!" "I didn't mean to," Tony apologized, looking up penitently into his eyes. But her face was radiant. "The truth is, darling," she said, "that I had rather been dreading meeting Larry. I wasn't exactly conscious why, but in the background of my mind—my soul, all these months, there's been the feeling that I'd be glad to meet him—glad to—well, have it over!"

"And was it so awful?" "Awful?" Her joyous laugh rang out. "Why, it was—it was flat!" she said. "For the last two years I haven't seen him, you know, and I have seen—I have had the friendship of a real man. And it was almost dizzying. It was almost bewildering to feel my old emotions slipping about and changing places, and to feel under it all Joe, Joe, Joe's mine and I'm Joe's forever and ever, and this handsome, important, serious man doesn't mean one thing to me!"

She sat silent, staring into the fire for a long moment, her shoulder pressing in comradesly fashion against his knee. "Joe," she said suddenly, "do you know I feel sorry for Larry?" "I've always felt a little that way about him, I think."

"Joe, You're So Wise and You're So Good."

"They were so stupefied," Tony mused, "that I didn't dare spring our real news on them."

"They'd think you were crazy, with this long trip ahead of you, and married only six months."

"Why crazy? There are hospitals and nurses in Rio, I should hope!" Tony said. "Caroline wanted a chinchilla coat. I want something else. That's all there is to it."

Outside the house a soft autumn wind sprang up, whined about the chimney. The dog stirred comfortably on the hearth; two logs fell together and sent up a fresh rush of flame; the lamp burned softly. Tony, her face bright with her own thoughts, stretched a hand up to her shoulder and felt Joe's fingers there.

"What of the way to the end? The end crowns all," she said. [THE END]

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"Death Ship" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

GET ready for action. Here comes Distinguished Adventurer Hobart N. Deane of New York city, and he's bringing with him a tale so packed with thrills that—well—I didn't know whether I was coming or going when I read it, and I'm betting you won't either.

It took place on a ship called the S. S. Barstow, a gasoline tanker, anchored at Fort McHenry, just outside of Baltimore, Md. You could go through all the harbors of the world looking for that boat today, and never find a trace of her.

She just ain't any more. By the time Hobey Deane got through adventuring with her, there wasn't enough left of her to pick your teeth with. That's the story. It was February, 1918, along toward the close of the World war. Hobey and his shipmate Al were in the merchant marine in those days, and the Barstow was the ship they were working on at the moment.

Hobey's Adventure Starts With a Boom!

Hobey's adventure started with a big BOOM! Yes, I mean that literally. Six or seven sailors were sitting in the mess room about three o'clock one cold February day, when suddenly there came the sound of a loud explosion. Along with it came a shock that seemed to lift Hobey right out of his clothing. He jumped to his feet and ran to the deck, with the rest of the gang right on his heels.

"We arrived on deck," says Hobey, "in time to see a big gas ventilator from the forward tank land like a rocket in a heap of barreled oil that was piled up on the dock, ashore. At the same time, a sheet of flame several hundred feet high shot out of our forward tank. Thousands of gallons of naphtha were ablaze."

Down on the dock, some of the crew were casting off the ropes. A tug came alongside and began to haul the Barstow out into the bay. About a third of the way out, the tug's captain decided it was too risky for him to stick around any longer, and beat a retreat without taking the trouble to ask the men aboard the Barstow if they wouldn't like a ride back to shore.

Two Heroes Sacrifice Their Lives Courageously.

"There were about twenty of us aboard," says Hobey, "and from all appearances we were in a swell way to be blown to chop suey. We were about to get in when it occurred to us what might happen if the ship drifted in close to land and went up.

"The boatswain and his storekeeper, two heroes if I ever saw any, went forward and released the anchor. But on the way back there was another explosion and they were blown to bits. The magazine where we kept the ammunition for our anti-submarine gun had started to go up, and it had taken the boatswain and the storekeeper along with it."

After that, the ship got too hot for comfort. Shells meant for submarines were whizzing from that burning magazine in all directions. The crew made a run for the lifeboat—and just as they reached it, a shell hit it and blew it to splinters. "Believe it or not," says Hobey, "but neither Al nor I were touched by the flying debris. By this time the whole fore and midships were a mass of flame."

Al and Hobey Leave the Floating Bomb.

"It was raining molten metal, chunks of iron and steel and pieces of timber. Al and I and a deck boy made our way back to the stern and, after a conference, decided to jump. We hadn't much time to lose. Even then the ship seemed to be swelling beneath our feet like a giant bomb."

Hobey couldn't swim a stroke, but Al told him to jump, and he'd bring him to shore. The deck boy hesitated until Al assured him he'd be right behind. Then he dove into the icy water. "Al and I waited for him to come to the surface," says Hobey, "but the seconds became minutes, and he didn't show up."

"We never saw him again, and I have never felt so desolate in all my life. But life is sweet, and I realized that no matter how slim my chances were, they were better in the water than on the Barstow. The nearest life preserver was below deck, and by this time, burnt to a crisp, I had to depend on Al."

Tug's Skipper Gambles to Help in Rescue.

Well, sir, Hobey took the plunge. The shock of the cold water numbed him, and he thought he'd never come up. "I didn't much care, either," he says. "But I hit the surface at last, and Al had a hold of me before I knew it. I grabbed his shoulder with one hand and paddled with the other and we set out for a tug that was lying a thousand yards away."

"It seemed we were moving at a snail's pace. We got some distance away from the ship, but I could see the February water wasn't doing Al any good. He was fagged out. My heart and lungs felt as if they were in a steel vise. I was done. All I wanted to do was let go and rest."

Hobey was right. Al WAS fagged. He stopped swimming and began to tread water—shouted to the tug for help. The tug's skipper knew it was dangerous to go any nearer to the burning vessel, but he took a chance. "They came at a good clip," says Hobey, "but it seemed forever before a couple of husky seamen got hold of us and lifted us up onto the deck."

Hobey says he'd like to end his story by saying both he and Al got pneumonia. But they didn't even have a cold the next day. The Barstow, though, didn't do so well. She burned to the water's edge.

Hypnotism Long in Use for Medical Treatments

Psychologists in universities, while investigating the mechanism of the human mind, often employ hypnotism to bring to the surface its hidden workings, while physicians have legitimately used it many times in making cures of certain kinds of cases—such as drug addiction or alcoholism.

Hypnotism is not a mysterious force flashed over hundreds of miles by the power of some dark hypnotic eye, writes Prof. A. H. Estabrook in the Scientific American. A hypnotized person is much like one who walks in his sleep. If you can find such a person and start a conversation without waking him, you are in touch with the sub-conscious mind of one who is already hypnotized. The unconscious mind is in control of the body. In the hypnotic trance, however, the unconscious is also in touch with an operator. This accounts for the curious results obtained, for the unconscious is very open to suggestion and has a remarkable power over the entire body.

Apples, Pears, on Spurs

Most apples and pears are borne on spurs. Spurs are merely shoots which have slowed down in growth. They may grow a very small fraction of an inch year after year, producing only a few small leaves and forming leaf buds each year.

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT — Acts 4:32-35; II Corinthians 8:1-9. GOLDEN TEXT—He said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus' Friends Shared. JUNIOR TOPIC—When Christians See Others in Need. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christians Sharing With Others. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christians and Social Service.

Social service in the early Church was a by-product of the gospel and not the gospel itself. Those who are saved by the gospel will show their concern for their fellow men, especially those who are fellow members of the body of Christ.

I. Characteristics of the Primitive Church (Acts 4:31-35). 1. It was a praying church (v. 31). The early Christians for every want and need betook themselves to God in prayer. Their faith caused them to go to the living God, believing that their needs would be supplied.

2. The Spirit-filled church (v. 31). When they prayed, the place was shaken wherein they were gathered together and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit. 3. It was a church which had great boldness in preaching the Word of God (v. 31). The ministers of the Spirit-filled church will not offer any apology for the Bible, but will preach it.

4. It was a united church (v. 32). They were all of one heart and soul. 5. It was a generous church (v. 32). They held nothing back from those who had need. The needs were supplied from a common fund. This was not communism any more than when the church today helps from a common fund those who have need.

6. The ministers had a powerful testimony (v. 33). 7. It was a church whose members possessed unblemished character (v. 33). Great grace was upon them all.

II. Generous Act of Barnabas (Acts 4:36, 37). He sold a piece of land and turned over all the proceeds to be used for those in need. It is not said that Barnabas sold all the land he had. His act, therefore, cannot in any real sense be used as a precedent for a community of goods in the church.

III. Stephen the Deacon (Acts 6:1-9). As soon as the church had relief from external troubles, difficulties arose within. Up to this time it would seem that the problems of the church were in the hands of the apostles. A congregational meeting was called, the case placed before the church, and the church instructed to select seven men of good reputation and Spirit-filled, to administer the temporalities, giving the apostles time for prayer and the ministry of God's Word. Among the seven deacons thus chosen, Stephen had first place. While engaged in his duties as a deacon, he shined into the light as an eloquent and powerful preacher.

IV. The Good Deeds of Dorcas (Acts 9:36-43). Dorcas was a practical Christian woman. She was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did, not what she talked of doing. Her death was a real loss. If all professing Christian women would use their needles as Dorcas did, there would be more real testimony for Christ.

V. Christian Stewardship (II Cor. 8:1-9). 1. Examples of true Christian benevolence (vv. 1-5). The liberality of these Macedonian churches exhibits practically every principle and motive entering into Christian giving.

a. The source of true giving (v. 1). It is said to be the grace of God. b. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2). c. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3).

d. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). e. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5).

2. Emulation of Macedonian benevolence urged (vv. 6-15). a. Not as a command (v. 8). Acceptable giving must be spontaneous. b. As proof of the sincerity of love (v. 8). Sincere love is benevolent action toward the object loved. c. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7). d. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9).

e. The true principle upon which gifts are acceptable to God (vv. 10-12). The motive of the giver determines the value of the gift. f. Every Christian should give something (vv. 13-15).

Philosophy of Bacon "While a little philosophy leads away from religion, much philosophy leads back to it." The man who said this was not an outsider, but a philosopher of the philosophers—Francis Bacon—the one, indeed, on whose inductive philosophy all the science of our modern world is built.

Waste of Life The true waste of life consists in the love we have not given, the service we have not rendered, the sacrifice from which we have drawn back.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BILLY MINK AND BOBBY COON WARN THEIR FRIENDS

BOBBY COON had been so frightened when he had sprung that trap there by the Laughing Brook that probably he would have run clear back to his home in the Green Forest had he not found Billy Mink waiting for him at the old log where they had met earlier in the evening. Billy was grinning. "What are you running for?" he demanded. "I thought you were not afraid."

Bobby Coon stopped. "It—tried to catch me!" he panted. "It—jumped right at me!"

Billy Mink chuckled. "But I see it didn't catch you," said he. "Didn't I tell you it wouldn't hurt you if you put your paw under it? That kind of a trap is perfectly harmless as long as you do not step in it. I'm glad you sprung it. I sprung the one on the other side of the Laughing Brook the same way. Now, both of those traps are perfectly harmless. They will be until the trapper sets them again.

"Hi, You Fellows!" Called Billy Mink. "Come Over Here!"

"We can go up and down the Laughing Brook through the openings in those little fences with nothing to fear as long as those traps are in plain sight. That trapper will probably come around tomorrow, but for the remainder of tonight there is nothing for us to worry about. Let's go down the Laughing Brook to the Smiling Pool."

The idea of going down to the Smiling Pool was too much for Bobby Coon to resist. So he followed Billy Mink down the bank of the Laughing Brook. When they reached the trap which Bobby had sprung, Billy Mink kicked it aside as he passed. It was plain to see that Billy Mink had known what he was talking about when he said that now that trap was perfectly harmless. Then, without hesitating, Billy slipped through the little opening in that fence the trapper had built. That proved there was nothing to fear there now, so Bobby followed. He had to make the opening big enough to get through, but he did this by pulling up a couple of the sticks.

When they reached the Smiling Pool they saw Little Joe Otter sitting on the Big Rock. Jerry Muskrat was swimming over toward his house.

"Hi, you fellows!" cried Billy Mink. "Come over here. We've something to tell you."

Little Joe Otter dived into the Smiling Pool and he and Jerry Muskrat had a race over to the place where Billy Mink and Bobby Coon were waiting. "What is it you have to tell us?" demanded Little Joe. "I don't believe it's anything important."

"That depends on how you look at it," retorted Billy Mink. "Somebody has been setting traps along the Laughing Brook. I've found three of them, Bobby Coon and I have sprung two of them. We thought we'd just come down here and give you fellows warning." Then Bobby and Billy told Little Joe and Jerry all about those traps.

DOING NOW

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

DIVIDE the week in seven equal parts, Divide the seven into twenty-four, And then by sixty, ere the morning starts, The sixty then by even sixty more— And yet we think in years, yea, even lives, When with each second all life re-arrives.

We think in years, who ought to think in these, Of months to come, of weeks to yet appear, Delay in days, waste hours, the minute flees, While ev'ry second life again is here. We dream tomorrow, plan this afternoon; It is too late, and now is not too soon.

Live now, do now!—for now is all you own— Whatever you endeavor, now begin! Who thinks tomorrow finds tomorrow frown, The season gone before the seed is in. For all men do, whatever fields they plow, They do by doing, and by doing now!

SQUEEZE THE PENCIL

Squeezing water from a pencil is a feat that proves humorous as well as mystifying.

You ask a friend for a pencil. Receiving it, you clutch it in your right hand and deliver a squeeze. Water promptly pours from the pencil.

You need a small, dampened sponge, which you carry partly wrapped in a handkerchief. Reaching in your own pocket for a pencil, you find none; as you ask a friend for one you obtain the sponge.

Squeeze the pencil and the sponge together. Before returning the pencil bring out your handkerchief to rub the pencil dry. Put the sponge away with the handkerchief.

Matron's Dress with Vestee

Pattern No. 1907-B

This dress designed with soft capelet sleeves and a contrasting vestee is one of those perennial styles. It is always a pleasure to show by popular request. They're so universally becoming to larger and more mature women, and so adaptable to conventional occasions.

The model shown is a clever street frock which takes into consideration the fitting problem encountered by many women whose tastes incline toward conservative rather than complicated dressmaking. The lines are studied to give slenderness without sacrificing a trim and neat appearance, exemplified in the beautiful pointed up bodice, especially graceful and smart. Sheer cotton, prints and chiffons are delightful for town or country.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1907-B is available for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 4, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39 inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

Send for the Summer Pattern Book containing 100 Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send 15 cents for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Tree Executioner

Standing knee deep in decayed wood chips, a man in armor was recently discovered inside a hollow oak. Beside him rested a sword, which crumbled almost to dust on exposure to daylight; his bones betrayed the same powder-like fragility, and his coat of mail resembled in the observer's eyes "rusty, red tissue paper." Obviously, in his anxiety to hide from his enemies this centuries-old soldier in scuttling into a tree had overlooked the means of getting out. The oak, holding him prisoner, had starved him to death.

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this gruelling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

You of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let your Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer equip your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

THE New Firestone STANDARD

relieve Laidlaw and worked on the rubber during the next four frames. During that time he gave up 11 hits, allowed five runs to be scored, and fanned four. He granted no passes. Kasischke took the next turn at hurling, in the eighth frame, and in his debut as a "pitcher" allowed no hits and no runs, struck out one, and issued a base on balls.
Witer, besides pitching three-hit ball for his team, struck out 13 batters and granted only one pass while his mates were having a field day at bat.
Despite the intense heat, their handicaps, and the severe drubbing, the local boys took without a murmur the defeat which early in the game seemed inevitable. After their bad start in the first inning, they did manage to get some satisfaction out of playing a fine brand of ball in the field.
Next Sunday Tawas is scheduled to take on the league-leading West Branch club. It is hoped that both players and fans will be at the local athletic field for this engagement.

Lobo Wolf
The name lobo wolf is applied to the gray wolf or timber wolf. It is really a formidable animal, but in its dealings with men it has learned to fear the deadly rifle, the poison pot and the trap. Storms, cold and fatigue affect it but little and its powerful teeth, strong jaws and wide gape enable it to bite with great cutting power. In fighting with dogs, every well timed snap means either a deep wound or a piece of flesh bitten out.
