

TAWAS BAY REGATTA OPENS TOMORROW

TAWAS CITY

LOCALS LOSE TO CCC TEAM IN 11 INNINGS

Outhit Opponents But Fail To Come Through In Pinches; Score 6-5

Tawas came out on the short end of the score in another close battle last Sunday, this time taking a defeat at the hands of the Ogemaw CCC team by the count of 6-5. The game, played at the CCC diamond, went eleven innings before the victor was decided.

Bill Mallon, on the rubber for the locals, turned in a fine performance. He outpitched his opposing moundman, Christy, in both hits allowed and strikeouts, giving up 12 safeties to Christy's 14 and whiffing 12 batters. Christy fanned four. Bill, however, lacked his usual good control and as a result walked five men and hit one batsman. This lack of control gave him considerable trouble at times. No fielding miscues were marked against his mates but they did commit several errors in judgment which added to his difficulties.

Christy, on the other hand, was given excellent support despite two errors, his mates coming through with a number of fine plays to get him out of several precarious positions.

With the help of Mallon's wildness in the first frame in which he walked three men, the CCC's got off to a flying two-run start. The locals cut a run off that lead in the sixth but the Ogemaw team completely overshadowed this mild outburst by tallying three times in their half of the seventh on a hit batter and three successive singles. Tawas, after having passed up several opportunities.

Black-Benson

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Black in Reno township Wednesday evening, July 22, when their eldest daughter, Miss Vida, became the bride of Paul Benson, son of Mrs. Belle Benson of Commerce, Mo. Rev. H. E. Davis, pastor of the M. E. church at Whittemore, officiated.

The bride, lovely in blue flowered chiffon, was attended by Miss Lenore White of West Branch, who wore blue chiffon, and Miss Ella Ross of Whittemore, who was clad in peach chiffon. George Thorn of West Branch and Melvin Black of Whittemore attended the groom.

A reception for the young couple was held after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Benson will reside at West Branch, where both have had employment for some time. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

Lutherans of Northeastern Michigan To Meet In Joint Mission Festival Sunday

The Lutheran congregations from Cheboygan down to Tawas City will gather at Cordes' Grove near Royston next Sunday for a joint mission festival. Large preparations have been made to make the festival a success. Pastor Marmaduke Carter (colored) has been secured for the German-English morning services at 10:30 and Pastor Herbert Manus, missionary on furlough from India, is slated to preach in the English services at 2:30 p. m. Missionary Manus will also have an exhibit of idols, images, instruments of worship, household articles, etc.

The direction to Cordes' Grove, where the joint mission festival is to be celebrated, are: Follow county road from Hillman to Hawks and watch for signs to Cordes' Grove.

Because of the distance Zion Lutheran congregation of Tawas City will not drop services next Sunday, but it is expected that several groups of members will motor to Royston for the joint mission festival.

Peter J. Hottois

Peter J. Hottois, a resident of Burleigh township for the past 60 years, died Tuesday, July 21, at the home of his daughter in Whittemore. The deceased was born June 30, 1858, at Marrilla, Erie county, New York, and came to Burleigh township when 18 years of age. He worked in lumber camps and then homesteaded a farm in Burleigh township where he lived the remainder of his life with the exception of the past two years.

Mr. Hottois was very active in the politics of the township and county, having been supervisor of Burleigh township 13 terms, also highway commissioner. He was a school director of District No. 3 for 21 years, when he resigned. He was always a staunch democrat and a loyal citizen and at one time was a candidate for state representative from his district.

Those left to mourn his loss are his daughters, Mrs. Mary Kelley, Mrs. Viola Williams, Mrs. Anna Mishall and Mrs. Emma Parent; two sisters, Frank Hottois, Sr.; two sisters, Mrs. Kate Murhard and Mrs. Tena Harr; twelve grandchildren, and nine nieces and nephews.

Local Lutherans Celebrate Mission Sunday July 26th

Members of the two local Lutheran congregations met for Mission Sunday at Zion Lutheran church last Sunday. Members of Trinity congregation at Mikado and St. John's congregation near AuGres were also present. The church had been decorated with many flowers from the garden spot of Northeastern Michigan. Outside speakers had been procured for the occasion. Pastor Walter Kutch of Detroit delivered a sermon and an address in the morning services and Pastor Kenneth Vertz of Hale spoke in the evening services.

Both services were well attended. Attractive announcements and a pictorial review of mission activities in many lands supplied by the synod had been distributed through the mails. The exceptionally large attendance proved that also in church matters it pays to advertise.

Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

To celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Wednesday of this week, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Johnson gathered with their family on the banks of the AuSable river near Iargo Springs.

The day's program included a picnic dinner at which forty guests were seated. An enormous gold and white cake beautifully decorated with white doves, cupids and gold rings adorned the center of the table. Heart shaped molds of pink ice cream, trimmed with white cupids, completed the dinner.

A double-ring wedding ceremony was read by Reverend Carl Larson of Bay City. The rings were the gifts of the Johnson children in commemoration of their parents' golden anniversary. This was followed by a life sketch of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson given by Mrs. Evangeline Rendall. At the close of the reading Mr. Johnson gave some reminiscences of his boyhood life in Sweden and early days in America.

The children present to enjoy the day's festivities with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierson and family of Bay City, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and daughter of Whittemore, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Johnson and family of Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and daughters of Flint, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson and daughter of Zion, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Philip Johnson and sons of National City, and Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Rendall and sons of Zion, Ill. Others present were: Mrs. Evangeline Rendall of Zion, Ill., Rev. and Mrs. Carl Larson and children and Mrs. Anna Pierson of Bay City, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Webb of Hale.

CAPT. R. M. SMALL DIES WEDNESDAY

Captain R. M. Small, age 75, died at his home in East Tawas on Wednesday. Captain Small had retired from the United States Coast Guard service 21 years ago.

He was born in Kincardine, Ontario, December 9, 1861, and at the age of 15 years came to East Tawas. On December 23, 1886, he was united in marriage to Rebecca Bennett. To this union four sons were born, all of whom survive him. They are: Captain David Small of East Tawas, Captain Frank Small of New Jersey, William Small of Detroit and Carl Small of East Tawas.

The deceased was a prominent resident of East Tawas for over sixty years. He was a thirty-second degree Mason.

Funeral services will be held from his home Saturday afternoon under Masonic auspices and burial will be in the East Tawas cemetery.

Hemlock Wins Slugfest From Prescott, 12 to 11

Hemlock took Prescott into camp last Sunday in a wild game played at the Tawasville diamond. The final score was 12 to 11. Hemlock slammed out 19 hits at the expense of Don and Bob Christie, and Prescott found C. Frank, the victor's moundman, for ten. Fifteen errors were committed by the two teams during the game, ten of these being chalked against Hemlock while the other five were marked against Prescott.

30 TO 50 YACHTS EXPECTED TO ENTER EVENTS

Highlight Of East Michigan Summer Festival

An elaborate eight-day program of waterfront activity will be offered summer visitors and northern Michigan motorists August 1-8 when the Fourth Annual Tawas Bay Water Carnival and Regatta comes into being as a highlight in East Michigan summer festival activity.

Opening on Saturday with the Point Lookout to Tawas Bay yacht race, an event held in traditional reverence by skippers along Lake Huron, and closing the following Sunday with conducted tours through the Huron National Forest which has its headquarters at East Tawas, the eight-day aquatic celebration includes a variety of entertainment, planned to hold the interest of every type of summer visitor to this popular warm months retreat.

From thirty to fifty yachts, coming from Alpena, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit and other points along Lake Huron in addition to entries from the Tawas, will participate in the races scheduled for every day of the regatta. Sailing headquarters will be set up on the dock at East Tawas and it is at this point, lying on the edge of the East Tawas State Park, all races will start and finish.

Including the most outstanding yacht competition along the Huron lake front, the regatta program is planned to attract many types and forms of outdoor devotees. To this end, each of the eight days has been given over to a specific group of interest.

"Skipper's Day," "Kiwans Day," "Centennial Day," "Conservation Day," "Tawas City Day," "East Tawas Day," "Tourist Day," "Commodore's Day" and "National Forest Day" are the terms given over to the periods during the fete, announces Merrill Pollard, general chairman, speaking for the Tawas Bay Yacht Club, sponsors.

Family Theatre To Install A New Sound System

Arrangements for the installation of a remarkable new RCA Photophone "High Fidelity" sound reproducing system which promises to revolutionize all previous conceptions of realism in sound motion picture reproduction have been completed by A. J. Berube, manager of the Family Theatre, East Tawas, with the photophone division of the RCA Manufacturing Company.

"High Fidelity" apparatus, the Family Theatre will be one of the first in this vicinity to be equipped with apparatus capable of faithfully reproducing the finest sound which recent advances in recording have made possible. Theatre patrons will be assured of brilliantly natural and intelligible sound—sound that until very recently was only possible in the world's largest laboratories, according to Mr. Berube.

"In line with our policy of making the best possible entertainment available to our patrons, we made a thorough study of the various types of equipment on the market and unhesitatingly chose the new RCA Photophone 'High Fidelity' sound system from all the others," said Mr. Berube.

"With the RCA Photophone sound system, which is the most recent major development to emerge from the great laboratories of the RCA Manufacturing Company, at Camden, N. J. there is a perceptible 'lift' to the sound reproduced. Instruments in the orchestra take on new life and delineation. Spoken words lose their metallic quality and take on an intimate, human timbre, and the whole effect is a revelation of recreated sound. Our patrons are due for a pleasant surprise when they hear this new system in operation."

Those who are interested in beautifying an Old Land Mark, the old Congregational church, now owned by the Latter Day Saints, are invited to send their financial contributions to Elder M. A. Sommerfeld, pastor and chairman of committee. A new roof, interior decorations and outside paint are much needed.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank sincerely all those who were so kind during the illness and at the death of our father; those who assisted with the funeral, furnished the cars, floral tributes and spiritual bouquets and the St. James choir.

E. G. Robinson In Dynamic Drama At Family Theatre

Edward G. Robinson's newest and most dynamic picture for First National, "Bullets Or Ballots," comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday and Monday, August 2 and 3.

In this picture Robinson has a role as strong as that of "Little Caesar," although he is neither crook nor gunman, but one of the coldest and most hard-boiled detectives of the New York police force.

Two other particularly noted screen "bad men" appear with him in the picture, Barton MacLane and Humphrey Bogart.

Joan Blondell has the leading feminine role, playing opposite Robinson as his sweetheart.

There is an unusually strong supporting cast which includes, besides those mentioned, Frank McHugh, Richard Purcell, George E. Stone, Joseph Crehan, Henry O'Neill, Henry Kolker, and many others, besides several hundred in the extra roles.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Governor Landon Accepts Republican Presidential Nomination—Organized Labor Schism Widens—Spain Torn by Bloody Civil War.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

GOV. ALF. M. LANDON now knows officially that he is the Republican nominee for President of the United States. Before more than 100,000 of his fellow citizens he stood at the south entrance of the Kansas capitol in Topeka and received the formal notification from Congressman Snell of New York, who was permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention. Around him were grouped a thousand leaders of the party, and in front of him were the throngs of his supporters and admirers who had gathered from far and near to do him honor and to witness the ceremonies. Trains, automobiles, buses and airplanes had been pouring them into Topeka for several days and the gaily decorated little city was crowded to the limit. Everyone was happy and enthusiastic and every one appeared confident that Landon would be the next chief executive of the country.

The nominee's speech of acceptance was the plain spoken, outright kind of talk his hearers expected. Asking divine guidance to make him worthy of the faith and confidence shown in him, he said: "This call, coming to one whose life has been that of the everyday American, is proof of the freedom of opportunity which belongs to the people under our government."

Here, briefly, is what Mr. Landon had to say on some of the more vital issues: Recovery—"The record shows that these (New Deal) measures did not fit together into any definite program of recovery. Many of them worked at cross-purposes and defeated themselves. The nation has not made the durable progress, either in reform or recovery, that we had the right to expect. . . . We must be freed from incessant governmental intimidation and hostility. We must be freed from excessive expenditures and crippling taxation. We must be freed from the effects of an arbitrary and uncertain monetary policy, and from private monopolistic control."

Relief—"Let me emphasize that while we propose to follow a policy of economy in government expenditures, those who need relief will get it. We will not take our economies out of the allotments to the unemployed. We will take them out of the hides of the political exploiters." Agriculture—"We shall establish effective soil conservation and erosion control policies in connection with a national land use and flood prevention program—and keep it all out of politics. Our farmers are entitled to all of the home market they can supply without injustice to the consumer. We propose a policy that protects them in this right. . . . We propose to pay cash benefits in order to cushion our farm families against the disastrous effects of price fluctuations and to protect their standard of living."

Labor—"The right of labor to organize means to me the right of employees to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry. It means that, in the absence of a union contract, an employee has an equal right to join a union or to refuse to join a union." Constitution—"It is not my belief that the Constitution is above change. The people have the right, by the means they have prescribed, to change their form of government to fit their wishes. . . . But change must come by and through the people and not by usurpation. . . . The Republican party, however, does not believe that the people wish to abandon the American form of government."

State Rights—"There has now appeared in high places a new and dangerous impulse. This is the impulse to take away and lodge in the Chief Executive, without the people's consent, the powers which they have kept in their state governments or which they have reserved in themselves. In its ultimate effect upon the welfare of the whole people, this is the most important question now before us. Shall we continue to delegate more and more power to the Chief Executive or do we desire to preserve the American form of government?"

FATHER COUGHLIN, the Detroit "radio priest" who in a speech before the recent Townsendite convention called President Roosevelt a "great betrayer and liar," has realized the impropriety of his language. He has published an open letter to the President offering his "sincere apology." The priest also says: "As my President I still respect you. As a fellow citizen and as a man I still regard you highly, but as an executive, despite your excellency's fine intentions, I deem it best for the welfare of our common country that you be supplanted in office." Dispatches from Rome said Father Coughlin's speech caused a "painful impression" at the Vatican, and Bishop Gallagher, the priest's ecclesiastical superior, leaving for a visit to the Vatican, intimated he might report on the incident.

IT SEEMS at this time that nothing can prevent the great schism in the ranks of American organized labor. John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, and his followers in the industrial union movement, are determined to go ahead with their plans for the organization of steel workers into a mass union, and now have expanded their program, proposing to unionize thus the employees of steel fabrication and processing plants. Moreover, Lewis and his associates have declared they will not appear before the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to stand trial on charges of "fomenting insurrection," so it appears the council can do nothing but suspend the rebels and their unions, these constituting about one third of the federation's membership. If this is done, the final decision as to expulsion of these unions will be made by the national convention in Tampa in November.

The members of the Committee for Industrial Organization, the Lewis group, assert the contemplated proceedings of the council are unwarranted by the constitution of the federation. Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, gave out the news of the CIO drive to gather in the steel fabricators and processors, who number between 300,000 and 400,000 men. As there are about 446,000 employees in the steel mills, the goal of the CIO is now the organization of more than three quarters of a million steel workers.

SPANISH Fascists and royalists, in rebellion against the leftist government, were temporarily in control of most of the northern part of the country and were moving on Madrid from Burgos and Segovia, threatening to bomb the capital from the air if the government did not capitulate. In Barcelona, capital of Catalonia, fierce fighting was reported, and at the request of the Washington authorities a vessel of the American Export line was hastening there to evacuate Americans, whose lives were in danger. Catalonia had declared against the rebels.

The rebels gained possession of San Sebastian, near the French border, and the loyalists were said to be making a desperate attempt to recover that town. This is the place where Claude G. Bowers, American ambassador, is in summer residence, and as communications were completely disrupted there was much anxiety in Washington as to Mr. Bowers' safety. Socialists, Communists and workers in large numbers were joining the loyal troops for the defense of Madrid, and also helped in crushing the rebellion in several towns, according to the claims of the government.

In the south, where Gen. Francisco Franco commanded the revolutionaries, there was almost continuous fighting, and in the engagements between rebel planes and loyal warships some bombs and shells struck the Rock of Gibraltar and others fell close to a British destroyer. The latter fired warning shots and the acting governor of Gibraltar protested to General Franco.

THROUGH an executive order of President Roosevelt, all postmaster appointments in the future are to be subject to civil service examination. The order affects 13,730 postmaster positions of the first, second and third classes as vacancies occur. Incumbents chosen for reappointment must pass a non-competitive examination, as must employees promoted to postmaster. In other cases the examinations will be open and competitive. Fourth class postmasters already were under civil service.

COL. AND MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH flew in a borrowed plane from London to Berlin, and were given a big reception by high Nazi officials, the press and the populace. The colonel was the guest of the air ministry at a luncheon attended by Germany's best aviators.

EXPLANATIONS and apologies are not enough for J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation, who was angered by the revelation that the doings of his "G men" had been under investigation by secret service men of the Treasury department. His strenuous protests started an inquiry that at this writing is still going on. Mr. Hoover also heard a rumor that some one was probing his "brokerage accounts," and this didn't help to calm him. Said he: "Anybody making such an inquiry is wasting his time. I have no brokerage accounts, so any effort to find them will be futile." It is admitted by the Treasury that the secret service has no legal right to investigate the actions of any other government department.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE SWALLACE, addressing the International Baby Chick association in Kansas City, discussed at length the drought situation and the measures taken or contemplated for relief. He suggested this four-point program for the protection of both farmers and consumers: 1. Judicious commodity loans, especially in years of excessive supplies. 2. The ever normal granary. 3. Crop insurance. 4. Government purchase of land which definitely never should have been plowed.

SCATTERED rains over limited areas brought only temporary relief from the heat and drought, and then warm weather started a new advance over the corn belt. The federal crop reporting board in Washington said the drought was as severe as that of 1934 and worse than any previous droughts since the western country was settled. The serious conditions prevailed over practically the entire area from the Rocky mountains in Montana to the Hudson valley in New York and southward over western Pennsylvania, central Maryland, the Ohio valley, parts of Arkansas, and most of Oklahoma. It was announced in Washington that President Roosevelt had created a national committee to study measures for remedying conditions in the drought region through utilization of natural resources. The committee is headed by Morris L. Cooke, rural electrification administrator. Other members are Col. Richard C. Moore of the army engineers; John C. Page, acting commissioner of the bureau of reclamation; Frederick H. Fowler of the national resources committee; Rexford G. Tugwell, resettlement administrator, and Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

IN OLYMPIA, Greece, scene of the first Olympic games, a torch was lighted by the rays of the sun and a Greek runner seized it and started it on a 12-day relay to the sports field in Berlin where the Olympic flame is to be lighted on August 1. Five thousand distinguished persons were selected to carry the torch, these including King Boris of Bulgaria, King Peter of Yugoslavia, and a long list of princes, statesmen and sportsmen. On the last leg it was to be borne by S. Loues of Greece, winner of the marathon in the games of 1896. A hundred thousand youths will accompany Loues in a parade to the stadium.

UNLESS the protests of Poland are effective, all opposition to Nazi power in the Free City of Danzig is due to be crushed. Dr. Arthur Karl Greiser, president of the Danzig senate, which is controlled by Nazis, has issued administrative decrees ordering: 1. Dissolution of any organization whose members, with knowledge of its executive board, spreads news "endangering the state interest." 2. Prohibition of review by the courts of police measures of a political nature, including those aimed at the right of assembly, the press, and free speech. 3. Prohibition of Jewish ritual slaughtering for food purposes. 4. Imposition of three month protective custody on persons declared to be "endangering the public peace."

Thus the city's constitution is virtually set aside, and the Poles especially, having extensive economic interests there, are indignant. REVOLT of the Cantonese against the Nanking government has collapsed and latest reports say government troops have entered Canton and taken over maintenance of peace and order. There was no opposition and the city was quiet. Chen Chi-tang, the Canton warlord, deserted his followers and fled to Hongkong on a gunboat. There was a scramble to find Chen's alleged silver hoard, said to amount to many million dollars, but much of it is believed to be deposited in foreign banks.

EIGHT signatories to the Lausanne post-war treaty have granted to Turkey the right to militarize the Dardanelles, and they, with Turkey, have signed a convention covering the matter. Only Japan made slight reservations because it is no longer a member of the League of Nations.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Lapeer—A rural electrification program to add 600 miles of power lines in the Thumb is under way in Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola and Lapeer Counties.

East Tawas—Thousands of fish killed by the extreme heat and low water were removed from Tawas Lake. Pike suffered most, but many bass and perch were taken from the lake also.

Newberry—More than 100 persons were trapped temporarily in a forest fire north of here until a change in the direction of the wind permitted fire fighters to get the fire under control.

Lansing—Bids on $1,115,000 in road projects were asked by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner. The projects include pavement construction on trunk lines in Alcona, Gratiot, Montcalm, Newaygo and Roscommon Counties.

Flint—An airplane pilot, with an operating license only a week old, and his two passengers incurred only minor injuries when the plane in which they were riding struck high tension wires north of Flint. The plane fell 65 feet to the ground.

Detroit—A 48-year-old woman who began her driving career with a horse and buggy at the age of 3, and has driven automobiles 963,360 miles in the past 36 years without an accident or a traffic ticket, was selected as the safest driver in Michigan.

Escanaba—Ray Murphy, national commander of the American Legion, asserted that "the door of opportunity is wide open," for the Legion to earn "the priceless honor of being the greatest peace-time service organization our country ever has known."

Caro—During the period when the temperatures in Caro ranged upward to 108 degrees, Walter R. Ayre, proprietor of a chick hatchery here, went into his big incubator to keep cool. The temperature of the machine is maintained constantly at 98½ degrees.

Big Rapids—The hot, dry weather wilted zinnia plants—and thereby ruined this city's plans for a civic zinnia festival, with a queen and all that goes with such affairs. The Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring the proposed festival, said that 12,600 of the 29,000 zinnia plants in the city have been destroyed by the hot weather.

Lansing—Legal action against 18 oil producing companies of the Crystal Field was threatened by Milton P. Adams, executive secretary of the Stream Control Commission. The commission some time ago ordered 32 producing companies to cease polluting Michigan waters with brine from their wells. Only 14 have complied.

Dundee—Nine members of two Pennsylvania families were killed when the sedan in which they were riding was struck by a passenger train. The locomotive carried the car 75 feet to a high trestle and hurled the bodies of the victims 30 feet into the shallow water of the Raisin River. Wreckage of the automobile burst into flames and ignited ties of the bridge.

Mackinac Island—The horses which provide the chief means of transportation on this island must have treatment in accordance with their importance, the Mackinac Island State Park Commission decreed. To forestall further complaints of inhumane treatment of the horses, the commission has arranged for a state veterinarian to be stationed on the island for the remainder of the resort season.

Detroit—Fire of undetermined origin which destroyed the boys' dressing tent at the Belle Isle bathing beach proved a double calamity to 250 juvenile bathers. Not only did they lose their clothes but it was several hours before police and motorists were able to return them to their homes. With the river only a few feet away from the large tent, volunteer fire fighters on the beach found themselves without facilities to throw even a pail of water on the blazing tent.

Marquette—A Michigan "ghost town" is to walk again. The community of Big Bay, 30 miles northwest of Marquette, has received a new lease on life with the announcement that the Kerry and Hanson Flooring Co. of Grayling had purchased the mill, townsite and timber holdings of the Brunswick Lumber Co. and would operate them for eight or ten years. Big Bay had been considered "dead" for four years, along with many other former lumbering centers of the Upper Peninsula.

Lansing—The State Highway Department, in which stenographers have been fainting from the heat recently, computed the cost of moving last winter's snow from the State trunk line system. Accountants found that removal costs totaled $1,145,583, an average cost of $129.40 for each mile of trunk line highway. Officials recalled sub-zero temperatures and blizzards as they figured out that severe weather conditions last winter swelled the snow removal cost to $385,760 higher than in 1934-35.

Lansing—Democrats of Michigan will meet in Battle Creek Sept. 25 and 26 to choose their candidates for State offices.

Inlay City—A mother and her two-year-old son were killed and seven persons injured in an automobile crash near here.

Battle Creek—Operation of the A-B Stove Co. foundry, which has been idle for some time, has been resumed, giving employment to 100 men.

Munith—Members of the First United Brethren Church, four miles northeast of Munith, are celebrating the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of the church.

Pontiac—Randall Chapman, Lawrence Institute of Technology student, kept his glider in the air 40 minutes and reached an altitude of 4,000 feet, unofficially breaking a national and a state record.

Hastings—F. J. Buckhor, 60, of Barberton, O., dropped dead in a restaurant at Delta, soon after he was arrested by State Conservation Officers on charges of fishing under a license issued to his former wife.

Detroit—The number of criminal cases prosecuted in Wayne County during the first six months of 1936 totaled 12,096, a decrease of 3,516 over the second six months of 1935, according to Prosecutor McCrae's semi-annual report.

Sandusky—Moose roamed lower Michigan at a much later date than most persons believe. In 1856, a moose was killed in Worth Township, Sanilac County, and at about the same date another was killed in Maple Valley Township.

Richmond—John Nothart, manager of a fox farm near here, says he owes his life to two police dogs. After he was overcome by heat and collapsed, his dogs dragged him into the shade and howled until neighbors came to his assistance.

Grayling—An Ohio school teacher brutally assaulted at a resort cabin in which she was spending her vacation, was in a critical condition in a Grayling hospital while officers investigated the attack and the subsequent drowning of the middle-aged operator of the resort.

Lansing—Lansing citizens will vote on a charter amendment providing half-pay pensions for members of the Police and Fire Departments. Under the proposal pensions would be paid policemen and firemen completing 25 years of service or who are totally disabled while on duty.

Lansing—School teachers lost in an attempt to have their salaries spread on a year-round basis. They now receive no pay checks during the summer vacation period. The board of education ruled the suggested change would increase clerical work and complicate the transfer of teachers from this to other cities.

Petoskey—Robert Fechner, national director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, envisions the organization as a permanent institution. The director, who is making a tour of the CCC camps in Michigan, expressed this belief in an address to CCC executive and army officers during a meeting at Camp Wolverine, near here.

Lansing—A pedigreed Duroc pig was honored with a life membership in the Lansing Optimist Club. The pig was a guest at the club's luncheon which opened a membership campaign. The distinguished porker will be rotated among members of the club. Each will have to provide it a home until he signs up a new member.

Allegan—All the lessons of transport, supply and tactics which the United States Army has learned since that morning in 1916 when Gen. John J. Pershing led his punitive expedition into Mexico will be reviewed in Western Michigan next month, when 24,000 regular and National Guard troops start their "big push" against Camp Custer.

Muskegon—Muskegon for the first time in 70 years of passenger ship service was the home port of a passenger-boat line. The Lake Michigan Lines Corp. established headquarters at the West Michigan Dock and Market Corp. The line operates ships to Milwaukee and Chicago. Its ships formerly were registered at Milwaukee and Manistee.

Detroit—Doubling the amount of damages, Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrae filed a new $500,000 libel suit against the Times Publishing Co., publishers of the Detroit Times. McCrae's first declaration, asking $250,000, was dismissed recently by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson on the grounds that it was too ambiguous and contained too much extraneous matter. The suit grows out of the publication of articles in the Times concerning McCrae and the Black Legion.

Flint—Genesee County farmers will not consider taking cattle from the drought areas through Government agencies, James R. Campbell, County agricultural agent, declared. He informed Governmental investigators that Genesee County could absorb 15 carloads of cattle and added restrictions as to quality and price. Local farmers learned their lesson in the 1934 drought, according to Campbell, when private operators culled western herds and left only scrub cattle for the Government shipments.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington—The steel industry of the United States has cast for itself a role in the forthcoming campaign—whether it intended to do so or not. The same is true of John L. Lewis and his segment of organized labor—and it is pretty generally suspected that Mr. Lewis intended to get labor questions well mixed up in politics. It is all more important because of President Roosevelt's attack on "economic royalists" in his Philadelphia acceptance speech.

Whatever rights the steel industry has or whatever rights Mr. Lewis and his followers have, the fact remains that they are all knee deep in politics and there is every reason to believe that each side will suffer in public esteem as a result. It means simply this: each side is mixing up problems that are basically economic in character with sordid, even unclean, political motives.

This outburst is prompted by two things: the gigantic steel industry has taken the position that it will defend itself against encroachment of professional labor leaders like Mr. Lewis and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and their satellites "from any source." The steel industry thereby has thrown down the challenge and now that such a die is cast, the steel industry will be compelled to do a number of indefensible things if it adheres to its program.

The same condition is to be observed in the organized labor situation. Whether Mr. Lewis is willing to admit it or not, his declaration that he will foster, even enforce, his scheme for organizing the steel workers is likely to lead to overzealous acts by his followers—and overzealous and foolish acts all too frequently lead to bloodshed.

For a number of years, steel companies have refused steadfastly to recognize union labor as represented by the professional leaders in the American Federation of Labor. They have attempted to defeat the inroads of that organization by forming what is known as company unions, groups of employees on the pay roll of each corporation. They have accorded to these groups the right of collective bargaining and have insisted that they would deal only with the representatives of the company unions for the reason that they believe they then are dealing with the employees concerned with questions of pay and working conditions in that particular plant. If the national unions were recognized, officials of a given company always have had to negotiate with the expert union negotiators who are paid by the national organization. The results have not always been happy. This combination of circumstances, together with a disposition on the part of the steel companies, I am afraid, to be rather selfish in their attitude toward labor has developed a continuing controversy that has raged over the last score of years.

It happened that the rather insolent announcement of the steel companies, their challenge, came almost simultaneously with the delivery of President Roosevelt's speech accepting the Democratic nomination for re-election. It was in this speech, it will be remembered, where Mr. Roosevelt denounced "economic royalists," in which he resorted to expressions bound to create class hatred and in which he used language that is certainly going to help discredit corporations which are large enough to attract national attention. Of course, I know that Mr. Roosevelt did not have the steel industry particularly in mind in his assault on massed capital but the effect is the same as though he had been shooting directly at the steel industry because of the coincidence mentioned above.

The tragedy of the thing is that the professional labor leaders are going to use the steel industry's challenge politically.

From all of the inside discussions that I have heard, it appears that the issue between the steel industry and its workers is no longer simply whether the steel industry shall be unionized. It is a question of how it shall be unionized. In addition to this, Mr. Lewis has been chiseling away for several years in promoting his labor union idea of organizing all workers in one unit instead of the craft union idea that is basic in the American Federation of Labor. That is to say, Mr. Lewis proposes to have a steel union or a shipbuilding union or a textile union instead of organizing the workers in accordance with the particular jobs they do, whether they be engineers, painters, carpenters, moulders or any one of the various other crafts.

Since 1798 or thereabouts, there has been a law which permitted a returning American to bring in commodities of whatever kind he desired, except narcotics, up to $100 in value but that law permitted the Treasury to make exceptions. The Treasury notice the other day was an announcement of an exception to this $100 exemption. It said that no inbound traveler could carry more than one wine gallon of liquor without the payment of the customs tax thereon. A practice had sprung up since the import duty on liquors has been made so high of returning tourists bringing in almost the full exemption in liquor alone. Probably the practice was getting very bad and no one questions the judgment of the Treasury in determining policy. But it is the method employed in making this change that has aroused criticism.

In ordering the new regulation "effective immediately," the Treasury forced upon hundreds of travelers the necessity for paying duty on their personal stocks of liquor in what amounts to a surprise order. They had left foreign shores under one regulation and arrive under another. I have no doubt at all that the Treasury's reason for changing the rule while the game was being played will result in a considerable amount of revenue for the government. But there are many who believe, as I do, that the department in all fairness should have issued its regulation to become effective at some fixed date in the future in order that citizens who must comply with it would be prepared by proper notification of what they were expected to do and the penalties for failure to obey.

The incident to which I have referred is an outstanding example of inconsideration and such things always cause citizens to have a hurt feeling, a feeling that the government changed the rules without consulting those who must obey the rules.

Steel Bucks Unions

Tax Law Irritation

The Real Issue

Since the steel industry has its company unions, there is a conviction in many quarters that Mr. Lewis might well pause to consider whether this is the time to carry forward his program of bringing steel workers under national labor union control. There are those who believe that the company unions eventually will become units in the larger labor structure of the country and, if that be true, it is made to appear that Mr. Lewis has hurt labor's cause.

On the other hand, the steel industry already is under attack by the government. Mr. Roosevelt suddenly "cracked down" on some of the major companies recently, charging them with collusion in bids on government work. He came out with this charge at a time which undoubtedly will stiffen the backbone of the union agitators—and it is not unlikely that by the same token he has stiffened the resistance which the steel companies will use.

Yet, it does seem that the steel companies made a fatal mistake in the pronouncement they have issued. There are too many people who will be inclined to believe that the steel companies have taken advantage of an apparent assurance of collapse of federal supervision. There are few who believe that the federal compulsory collective bargaining statute will last very long but the fact that this statute is due for the discard, it seems to me, hardly warrants the action which the steel companies have taken. They are no more warranted in that than union labor is warranted in taking advantage of the political situation to feather their own nest. A real danger, in addition to this, is that Communist agitators are going to use this situation as one vehicle for spreading their propaganda of dissatisfaction and discontent and Mr. Roosevelt's attack on massed capital unfortunately lends itself to the nefarious schemes of the Reds.

It long has been said that the method of administering laws frequently has created more dissatisfaction among the citizens than the requirements of laws themselves. Tax laws of whatever kind furnish a splendid example. It has always been true since we have had income tax laws that taxpayers have complained more about bureaucratic regulation, indecision, lack of uniformity in administration, and generally speaking, slow processes of settlement than about the amount they were required to pay. The same is true about our customs laws despite the fact that they affect fewer persons directly.

The other day the Treasury issued a notice to customs inspectors that was "effective immediately." It was a change in policy respecting the quantity of goods an individual may bring in from foreign shores without the payment of the customs tax.

Since 1798 or thereabouts, there has been a law which permitted a returning American to bring in commodities of whatever kind he desired, except narcotics, up to $100 in value but that law permitted the Treasury to make exceptions. HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON
Talks About

Spacing Meal Times

IT IS hard to understand how the idea ever started, and still persists, that an individual doesn't weigh any more after than before eating food. Yet the increase in weight after eating is exactly the amount of the weight of the food. Putting it into the stomach is just the same to the scales as putting it on the scales themselves.

Boxers, jockeys, and others who must keep their weight at a certain figure know exactly what they must eat to attain a certain weight at a certain definite hour. They know also that the amount of liquids must also be measured the same as foods, as water or any other liquid increases weight.

Thus in the case of boxers, where the weight is taken at two o'clock in the afternoon and the bout takes place at 9 o'clock or later, their first thought is for "a big drink of water." This is because they have been "drying out" for weeks. After this large drink of water, and eating a big steak a little later, at the hour of the bout they will be some pounds above the weight taken at two o'clock and will feel much stronger. Boxers are usually in good health and therefore the effects of food and liquids will be the same as in any other healthy individuals.

When food is eaten, the body immediately begins to use it, which really means burning it up to manufacture heat and energy. And just as anything that burns gives off wastes—smoke and other substances—so the body gives off wastes and sends them to the lungs, to the kidneys, to the skin, and to the lower bowel from which organs they are sent out of the body.

Body Weight Adjusted

The urine and the feces remain in the bladder and bowel for hours at a time, whereas the breath and the perspiration are being lost all the time into the surrounding air.

An interesting experiment is recorded in the American Journal of Physiology. Dr. C. I. Howland recorded the hourly loss of weight on two successive days for ten individuals following the eating of (a) a light lunch made up of a glass of milk weighing about seven ounces and a ham sandwich weighing 11 ounces, and (b) a heavy lunch consisting of three glasses of milk and three ham sandwiches—21 and 33 ounces respectively. In other words the light meal weighed a little over one pound and the heavy meal a little over three pounds.

After the light lunch there was a progressive increase in the rate at which the weight was reduced for two hours, then the rate of losing weight became less, so that by the end of five hours, the rate of weight loss was the same as before the food was eaten. Digestion was completed.

After eating the heavy meal there was an increased rate of weight loss for three hours. Five hours after the food was eaten the rate of loss was still nearly 5 per cent above the rate at which the weight is lost when there is no food being digested.

The greatest increase in the rate at which weight was lost after eating the small meal was 10 per cent, and after eating the heavy meal 23 per cent above the normal or average rate with digestion not going on.

Thus the body adjusts itself to the amount of food eaten, increasing the rate of weight loss in proportion to the amount of food eaten.

The above experiment shows that when a heavy meal is eaten although the rate of weight loss is greatly increased, nevertheless five hours after a heavy meal is eaten the rate of weight loss is still 5 per cent above the basal rate, that is the rate of decrease when no food is being digested.

Understanding the Patient

A knowledge of all the sciences included in medicine should naturally be a part of the equipment of the physician but a knowledge of human nature, the workings of the patient's mind, his reactions to everyday life is just as important if the patient—the individual—is to be treated properly or completely.

It has been well said that every patient when he first visits the physician is really a mental patient; he is complaining of some symptoms and whether these symptoms are due to any real underlying cause or only exist in his imagination, they must be carefully considered and treated.

In other words the physician must know men and women and never forget that he is treating men and women and not just some group of symptoms of which these men and women are complaining.

The first consideration of the doctor is not the symptoms or disease but the patient himself. Disease means not being at ease, and the fact that the patient is not at ease may be as much the fault of the patient as of the organism or other condition causing the symptoms.

Lesson for August 2

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 8:4-40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.—Acts 8:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Philip Tells the Glad News.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Philip Tells the Glad News.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Pioneering for Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Crosses the Frontier.

Evangelism is the work of every follower of Christ, and primarily the work of the layman. This duty cannot be delegated to the church as an organized body or to its official servants.

Philip was a layman, a deacon in the church by office, but an evangelist by the gift and calling of the Holy Spirit. His experience in leading the Ethiopian eunuch to Christ demonstrates that one who is yielded to the Spirit—

I. Will Find Opportunity for Soul Winning (v. 26). Most unexpected places will afford opportunities. Philip was in the midst of a great revival in Samaria when the angel of the Lord sent him to Gaza—a desert place. Who would he meet here? Remember that the great world-evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, was converted in a humble shoe store by the earnest approach of a Sunday school teacher.

II. Will Respond Immediately to the Spirit's Leading (vv. 29, 30). The Spirit said "go." Philip "ran." The fundamental of fundamentals in God's children is obedience. The opportunity, the inquiring soul, the equipped personal worker, all were prepared by God for just that moment. All would have been lost had Philip failed to obey.

III. Will Find That Men and Women Are Ready to Receive the Truth (vv. 28, 31-34).

God prepares souls, and more are willing to be saved than we think. Whether it was through his experience at Jerusalem, his spiritual hunger before he went up, or the reading of the Word, or all these together, the eunuch was ready.

Neighbors, schoolmates, tradespeople, fellow workers—they may present God's opportunity for us.

IV. Will Find That God Honors Men by Using Them to Win Others.

He could "save a man all alone on the top of the Alps," but he doesn't ordinarily do it. Remember it was "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon" that wrought a victory. The eunuch needed an interpreter of the truth. Philip was God's man.

V. Will Know God's Word (v. 35). We cannot interpret what we do not know. One who is not personally acquainted with the Living Word by regeneration, and the Written Word by diligent study, is not able to help others. Could you begin (as Philip did) at Isaiah 53:7, and lead a man to Christ? If not, should you not begin to study your Bible with such an end in view?

VI. Will "Carry Through" to a Decision (vv. 36, 37).

A salesman may be brilliant, cultured, and persuasive, but what counts is the signature on the dotted line at the bottom of an order. Philip pressed for and obtained a decision.

VII. Will Follow-up His Convert (vv. 36, 37).

Much so-called evangelism fails to go beyond a mere profession—a declaration of faith. The eunuch and Philip both knew that an inward faith declares itself in an outward act—and he was baptized.

VIII. Will Recognize That the Message Is Important, Not the Messenger (v. 39). When the work was done the evangelist was carried away by the Spirit. God's work goes on. His workman we set aside. As an advertising company has well expressed it, "The purpose of advertising is to impress the product upon the reader's mind, not the medium."

It is a fine testimony to the effectiveness of Philip's ministry that although he was gone his convert went "on his way rejoicing." His faith did not rest on the evangelist nor any human fellowship—he knew God. Let us be sure to win souls to God and not simply to a personal allegiance to us or to a religious organization.

Why not be a Philip? Any man or woman who knows the Lord Jesus Christ as personal Savior can be a winner of souls. It has been said that all that Philip had was "a love for souls, a knowledge of the Word and a sensitiveness to the leading of the Lord. That is all we need. If every Christian were a Philip the world would be won for Christ in ten years."

Count Your Blessings

A Comfortable Culotte

Pattern No. 1922-B

The perfect antidote for blistering, hot days is this cool, cleverly-designed culotte for bicycling, riding, beach, housework; for tearing through the woods, or running down the street to the grocer's.

Designed for plenty of action and comfort, it fits snugly at the waist by adjustable laced ribbons at each side, with the same feature repeated in the blouse front. A becoming boyish collar and handy pocket create charming effects. The pattern is so easy to follow, you can cut two at once using printed cotton, gingham, broadcloth, seersucker or linen at an expense even lower than your budget provides.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1922-B is available for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material. Send 15 cents in coins.

All Around the House

Always sweep rugs and carpets the way of the grain. Brushing against the grain roughens the surface and it tends to brush the dust in instead of out.

Partly cook cereal in a double boiler the night before; using and leave it on the back of the stove, being sure to cover well with water. It will be well cooked in the morning.

Four pounds of plums will make five pint jars of preserves.

Glass stoppers may be easily removed from bottles if a towel is dipped into boiling water and wrapped around the neck of bottle for a few minutes.

Cloths saturated with polishing liquids and stored away in closets often cause fires through spontaneous combustion. Store the cloths in covered tin or galvanized cans.

If you wish to avoid bean rust, do not pick beans when the dew is on them or after rain.

Sugar sprinkled over the tops of cookies or sponge cakes before putting them into the oven forms a sweet crust and makes a richer cookie.

Wash lettuce and place in refrigerator to get very cold before using in making salads. Crisp lettuce makes the best salad.

There Is Now No Prince of Wales

The title of "Prince of Wales" disappeared when King George died recently and his son, Edward VIII succeeded him as sovereign. The Prince of Wales must be a son of the ruler of England and the new king, being a bachelor, there is no one to claim the title.

Incidentally, Edward VIII is the first bachelor king to occupy the British throne in 176 years. The last bachelor king was George III. However, George married during his reign. Since the time of William the Conqueror, there have been only two adult British rulers who remained unmarried throughout their reigns.—Capper's Weekly.

Reduced Telephone Rates

By order of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission, dated July 1, reductions are made in certain telephone rates and charges in the East Tawas exchange.

On rural lines the charge for the upright or desk type telephone is reduced from 25 cents a month to 10 cents, and will be eliminated entirely after the customer has had that type of telephone in service continuously 18 months.

The charge for the hand telephone is reduced from 25 cents a month to 15 cents, except on rural lines where it remains at 25 cents, and will be eliminated entirely, as at present, after the customer has had that type of telephone in service continuously for 18 months.

The above reductions will be effective in the case of present customers on August 1.

Reductions also are made in the charges for installing and moving telephones, and for changing the type of telephone instrument. For instance, the charge for installing a business telephone where there is no instrument already in place, is $2.50; for a residence telephone where there is no instrument already in place, it is $1.50. Those reductions became effective Saturday, July 11.

Effective August 1, charges for rural multiparty service beyond six miles from the base rate area are reduced. Monthly rates for other residential and business service are unchanged, except that the four party business service is discontinued, and two party business service will be furnished at the former four party business rate.

Telephone service now represents greater value than ever before. To place an order, or to obtain further information, call, visit or write the Telephone Business Office. Installation will be made promptly.

PATTERNS OF WOLFPEN

SYNOPSIS

In 1785 Saul Pattern of Virginia came into the beautiful virgin country of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky. Chief of the perils were the Shawnees, who sought to hold their lands from the ever-encroaching whites. From a huge pinnacl Saul gazed upon the fat bottom and the endless acres of forest in its primeval quietude at the mouth of the Wolfpen, and felt an eagerness to possess it, declaring it a place fit for a man to LIVE in! Five years later he returned with Barton, his fifteen-year-old son, and built a rude cabin. In Saul's absence the Indians attacked Barton and wounded him so badly Saul was forced to return with him to Virginia. In 1796, when it was reasonably safe, Saul returned with his family and a patent for 4,000 acres, this time to stay. He added to the cabin, planted crops and fattened his stock on the rich meadows. Soon other settlers arrived. A century later, in the spring of 1885, we find Cynthia Pattern, of the fifth generation following Saul, perched on the pinnacle from which her great-grandfather had first viewed Wolfpen Bottoms. The valleys, heretofore untouched by the waves of change sweeping the Republic, are at last beginning to feel that restless surge. Her dad, Sparrel, and her brothers, Jesse, Jasper and Abrial, have been busy converting the old water-wheeled mill to steam power.

"Well, boys, there she is," Sparrel shouted to the crowd which was now pressing about the mill and peering through the doors and windows. A stream of yellow meal slid down the chute into a sack.
"Well, now, I'll be dogged," the skeptical neighbor said. "Who'd ever study up a contraption like that to turn a millstone with, anyhow?"
"It runs all right, but it makes a slight of fuss about it," Cynthia said, and arose from the ledge where she sat. "I guess I better get back now."
As she started down the path, she looked across the bottom to the weathered stone slab at the head of old Grandfather Saul's grave on the Cranest Shelf, and she felt that something out of the old life had now to be buried with him.

Down the winding contours of the path to the creek, through the peach orchard, over the Long Bottom, up Sheepfold Hollow a few paces, then along the path and she was at Cranest Shelf. There was for Cynthia something intimate and old about these place-names which had grown out of the very stuff of her family's life. Through the year the emotions of children and grandchildren gathering round these home spots gave meanings to the place-names.

What was spread about in the bottom-land was united in the small plot within the rails on Cranest Shelf where lay at rest the earlier makers of the land. Cynthia leaned forward with her chin in her left hand and her eyes on Stack Bottom, but she was looking at nothing outside of herself. She made worlds of her own and went there to live when she wished.

For she was much alone, without being lonely. Jesse seemed nearer than her other two brothers, but even he was a man. Both of her sisters were gone. Lucy, the oldest of the family, was married years ago and lived over on the Sandy farm at the Pattern Landing; and Jenny, who was next to Jasper, already had two children and seemed miles away on the Horsepen Branch farm. But to Cynthia they were no farther away now than before their marriage because they had always been of another generation from herself, the youngest of the children, save Abrial. Grandfather Saul seemed as close to her as Lucy, perhaps closer. For she could recreate him and his sons to please her own fancy; could dress him in his old buckskin breeches, handed down through the generations, which she would take from their peg in the wall by the staircase landing, stretching out their long legs as far as she could reach, swelling out her imagination until it brought to life a man seven feet tall, a whole foot higher than her own father, great enough to wear those incredible breeches, and go tramping in long strides over all Big Sandy, spying it out with sharp eyes, claiming a share of it for himself, planting a family on this particular spot, building it right into the wilderness with nothing but his great legs and huge hands and unyielding determination.

There was something vital about him which refused to perish. She had always thought of him as living therein a cabin instead of dead in a grave. She fell to thinking of his son, her Great-Grandfather Barton, with the knot in his neck, following out a poplar log to lay Saul's body in and imagining it being borne up to this Shelf which he had selected for himself, while the great shadow of the Pinnacle continued leisurely to space off the hours on the sun-dial of the bottoms which had formerly been his. Now they belonged to his great-grandson who had gone down the river into the great world and brought back a steam-engine to make smoke and roar because the valley was filling up with people.

"I reckon that's just what you'd do yourself though if you lived now instead of then; only it seems different somehow."

Then she forgot the smoke of the mill to fancy in the ancient stillness the cloud puff and sharp report of Saul's long flint-like rifle which now hung above the fireplace on the antlers of the first buck he had shot at the mouth of Wolfpen in 1796. That gun with its bullet-pouch and powder-horn which he had bought from Boone in the autumn of 1785 when they met at Pound Gap, made more human for Cynthia the incorporeal Saul of the poplar log. Its barrel seemed almost as long to her as a cane fishing pole, and too heavy to shoulder. She tried to imagine Daniel Boone and Saul Pattern sitting around a camp-fire trading stories of their adventures in the Big Sandy country when the Indians still held it. The side of the horn which rubbed against the leather pouch was worn smooth and was colored like the ivoried ventral of a minnow; but the outside had darkened and weathered into a deep brown, lending a singularly lifelike animation to the two writhing rattlesnakes which coiled and twisted prominently into the initials D. B. at the big end, and darted forked tongues at the Indians, deer, panthers, stars, and wahoo leaves filling the rest of the space down to the stopper in the tapering point.

Near Saul's grave but under smaller markers, lay her Great-Grandfather Barton and her Grandfather Tivis. They could hope to survive only as Saul's son and grandson. She wondered what Barton was like behind the legend of his strength, if he had really lifted those millstones and what he would think of the new engine.

Barton's son Tivis had built in the late 1820's the central body of the Pattern house. It stood there on a gentle rise a half-mile up the Wolfpen Bottom from this Shelf on the site chosen for it by Saul Pattern under the shelter of a wrinkle in the hill.

Julia was still out in her garden below the house.
"It is a good house for a body to live in. And I better be getting back to it instead of just mooning about here among a lot of gravestones; for Mother will be going in now soon to start supper and the menfolk will be coming home hungry and after while it will be dark again."

The house Cynthia looked at with the feeling that it was time to return to it, stood in 1885 as a monument to all four generations of Wolfpen Patterns. The sixteen-by-twenty-foot log room which had been Saul's first home, was now the kitchen. Barton had fashioned the stone chimney with the wide log fireplace, and had wrought out on his own anvil the crane which still held the boiling pots. Tivis built on the dining-room, the sitting-room, the hallway and the up-stairs sleeping-rooms. Three years he labored to build his house, and, except for the glass windows and the wrought-iron nails brought across the hills from Mount Sterling to Wolfpen on the backs of mules, all the materials came out of the place and were fashioned by hand. The poplar logs and the pine were felled in the hollow above the orchard.

Her own father had carried on the tradition of his fathers. When, in 1858, he married the beautiful Julia Stratford from Scioto, he made her a wedding-present of the weatherboarded wing, the weaving-room overlooking the garden which Cynthia had left that afternoon, and the two-story porch with the ornamental banisters across the front of the house, all done by hand on the Wolfpen property.

When it was finished there was no better house in the Big Sandy Valley, outside of Pikeville or Prestonsburg, and it established for the remainder of the century the architecture for that district.

CHAPTER II

The half distinct mood of foreboding began to leave Cynthia as she went with easy movement down the steep path and up the hollow to the house. It was almost the same as it had always been in early spring, everything alert with the feeling that the new year was coming again to these bottoms. A new mill that sprayed soot and smoke at the mouth of the creek would make no difference in the plowing and the planting that would soon join this spring to all the others that had passed over Wolfpen.

Cynthia crossed the wood-lot into the yard. Julia was still in her garden behind the picket fence moving the earth with her hoe, not working, but enjoying the smell of the soil, planning her beds, feeling the approach of spring and reluctant to go back into the house. Cynthia waved to her. Then seeing the empty water pail on the bench by the kitchen door, she carried it to the well by the pear tree under the sheltering portico of the cellar house. She leaned over the well box to watch the bucket rise with the end of the pole and to hear the jostled overflow splashing against the stones and echoing with a thin resonance as it fell back into the well.

Julia was hanging her eye hoe between two palings by the gate, and looking quietly over the bare ground that was nearly ready for Sparrel's plow. Cynthia went on into the kitchen. A center of fire still smoldered among the gray wood ashes in the open fireplace. She put a shovelful of red flakes into the stove and laid on some dry wood. As the stove grew warm against the cool damp of the April evening, a sense of well-being spread over the kitchen which held in its walls the family intimacies of the years. Cynthia liked this big room in the evenings and its feel of having been long lived in. The center of interest was Barton's fireplace with the old clock on the shelf above it and the smooth worn hickory chairs gathered around it where the family sat in the evening. On the left of the mantel and behind the stove by the window was Sparrel's own corner: a desk and chair, a shelf of books, and the last and box of tools with which he cobbed shoes for the family. On the right of the mantel was Julia's rocking chair and work-basket.

"I wonder what it is about a kitchen that makes folks like to sit there instead of in a regular sitting-room?" She pushed the chairs from her path to the cupboard. "I reckon it's because it smells so good where the bread bakes and there is always a warmth on a cool evening." She took down the wooden mixing bowl from the shelf above the table.

"I'll make the bread," Julia said. "You get the things out of the cellar."

Cynthia brought the sour milk from the cellar and went to the smoke-house for the meat. Coming back with her hands full, she saw Sparrel entering the yard from the barn gate.

"Mix That Up With Your Sour Milk and Soda, Julia."

"You're early," she called. "Supper's just started."
"You're late. I've got a part of it right here," he said, holding up a white meal sack with blue stripes on it.
"I can guess what it is."

Sparrel smiled at her the kindly recognition which seemed to begin out of sight and spread slowly into the corners of his brown mustache and beard. He went into the kitchen, reaching both arms around Julia from behind and placing the sack on the table beside her.
"Mix that up with your sour milk and soda, Julia. There's the first meal out of the first steam-mill in these hills."

Julia was pleased and proud and she showed it in her movements as she poured and mixed the meal while Sparrel and Cynthia looked on. But she only said, "The new mill pleased you right well, Sparrel?"
"Just about like I figured. Now I can grind any time and I can rig up a saw and it'll be handy to rip out boards. It'll be a big help on the place."

"I was wondering how a bit of steam can do things like that," Julia said.
"I'll have to show you one day for it's not possible to tell you with just words."

Julia poured the yellow batter into the deep skillet and put it into the oven. Sparrel went out to the wash rock, while Cynthia set the table, thinking of her father and all the things he did that distinguished him in her mind from the other men along the creek and how they always thought his ideas wouldn't work. There was the drying kiln with a fireplace under it so they could dry fruit in cloudy weather and not have to hurry sheafulls of drying apples into the house at the first sign of rain. "You'll spile your fruit that way, Sparrel; takes sun to dry apples." Now most of them had kilns. When he built the tanning vat, the bark shed, the lye pits, and used opossom oil to soften the fine leather, they said, "You'll spile those hides, Sparrel, if you put 'em in that hole with that ground-up stuff." Now he tanned most of their hides in his vat. When he planted the new orchard on the slope of Barn Hollow and put a gourdful of corn deep in the bottom of each hole, they said, "The mice'll sure as thunder eat them roots off." But Sparrel said the mice ate the corn instead of the trees and dug easy channels for the young roots to sink into. And when he built the brick plant down by the clay barrow, they said, "You can't ever make that kind of clay hold together, Sparrel." Now they got brick from his kiln to put in place of the old cats-and-clay chimneys.

She heard the three brothers coming in from the barn to wash for supper.
"Supper is a nice time. The dusk of evening begins to crowd the daylight out of the valley and force it up the mountains, bringing everybody and everything from around the place into one spot where it's warm and the food is cooking. The boys are all just tired enough to sit down and rest, and I don't mind doing up the supper things because everybody is happy after he is fed; the chickens go to roost in the trees, and the cows lie down on the wet grass, and the horses go to eating in the meadow and Daddy sits in his corner and Mother in hers."

Cynthia was up and down during the meal, waiting on her father and the boys with buttermilk and fresh hot corn bread while they talked of the big day at the mill, of the men who had come of the plans for the spring's work in the fields: Abrial still full of excitement, eating too fast; Jesse alert and interposing humorous comment; Jasper reserved and keeping silence; Sparrel in good spirits after his great success; Julia, still slender and beautiful with her smooth black hair parted in the middle and drawn back above her fair skin, crumbling the fresh corn bread into the stewed tomatoes and eating slowly, watching over the table and listening to her men.

"It made a real good run of meal, but I didn't get a very good do on the corn bread," she said, after her manner; but the bread was beautifully moist and flaky between the crisp brown crusts.

"You never made a better pone of corn bread in your whole life, I reckon," Sparrel said.

Julia was full of her pride because he said it, even though she knew he was complimenting her no more than the mill.

After supper while the boys were putting things in order for the night at the barn, and Julia was milking her cow and tending to the crocks in the milk-house over the spring, Cynthia was gathering the dishes and washing them in the big tin pan on the stove and Sparrel sat at his desk in the corner stretching his long legs and writing in his ledger.

"He always puts everything down in his books," Cynthia thought, watching him having his pleasure at the end of the day. "April 10, 1885—Erected first steam-mill. Warm. Plenty of sun. Poplar Bottom ready to plow." The best part of him seemed to her to belong in that corner under the shelf of books: the old brown Bible with the family names in it; the complete files of the Franklin Almanac beginning with Number XX, 1838, "being the second after bissextile or leap year and after the Fourth of July, the 63rd of American Independence, calculated by John Armstrong, Teacher of Mathematics, Pittsburg." A book of selections for reading aloud stood beside Duyckinck's Complete Shakespeare in one volume of nine hundred and sixty-eight double-column folio pages with a frontispiece of "OTHELLO relating his adventures." At the mantel end of the shelf was the worn two-volume history of the United States beginning with the discovery of America and ending with the conquest of California and a page picture of San Francisco in 1846 with a steam sloop and three sailing boats at anchor in the bay.

Much of Cynthia's dream-life centered about Sparrel and those two volumes. Long before she could read for herself, she had sat on his knees while he read the pictures to her, or she had laid propped on her elbows on the floor before the light of the log fire making stories of her own from the illustrations.

Through the long winter evenings of the years, these associations had built themselves into her concept of her father, and as he sat at the desk, while Julia sewed, and the boys ended the chores and life proceeded in its old established pattern, Cynthia's thoughts would play over these things.

"And there are his medicine books he doesn't like for me to bother, but he likes for me to gather up the green peach-tree leaves and peppermint and oil of sassafras and get the apple brandy and the brown sugar for him to make up his flux medicine with when people on the creek get sick with bloody-flux; and the yellow dock for the itch; and get the salt and turpentine ready when he pulls a tooth for a neighbor. I like to hear them say, 'Sparrel Pattern's the easiest hand in the world to take a feller's tooth out.' And it's a good thing he can make medicine and doctor people because nobody else on the creek knows how like he does."

She hung the dishpan on its nail in the wall over the stove. Julia came in from the milk-house. Then the boys came in.

"A family is a funny thing when it sits around the fire. There's Mother in her corner finishing up a new shirt for Daddy and her fingers flying about and she looks content and doesn't say anything. You have three brothers, they're all Patterns, but they're all different and you like them all but you like Jesse the best somehow. He sits and reads; when he talks, his voice is good and he may be right serious or he may say a funny thing. Jasper will sit with something on his mind and Abrial will go to sleep before he knows it. And Daddy writes things in his book and reads or cobbles or studies up something, always in good humor, silent, never speaking hard of anybody. And then we'll all be a little sleepy and somebody will yawn and Daddy will wind up the weights on the clock. Then you step outside into the dark, but it isn't dark after a minute because the rain has washed the stars and the wind has blown them back, and there hangs the Milky Way right up above Wolfpen, just like the daylight had been crowded out of the bottoms and was waiting up there all in a long patch until it can come down in our valley again; then you go to bed and forget things and the next morning it has tumbled right back into the hollow. And spring is nearly come again and with it and the fresh morning we begin all over again in a new day. I guess it is a good way to live. If . . ."

After Sparrel had bathed his feet and felt the gentle friction of his night-shirt against his bare flesh, he lay by the window in their down-stairs room on the soft feather-bed Julia had brought with her to Wolfpen after her wedding. Now that the new mill which he had planned during the winter was completed, and everything on Wolfpen orderly and in its place, and his children content with their life, he could rest in peace as he waited the coming of Julia and sleep.

"Things are about the way I want them around the place now. Everything is handy and we've got just about all we need to run a place on. We've been getting it brought up every year now since Saul's time. My boys won't have much more to do to it only keep it up and enjoy it. It's about as good a place as there is around here. It looks good and feels good. This house here, this Pattern house that took four beginnings of us to get built, it doesn't cover under the mountains nor cringe up a narrow hollow like lots of them do; it stands up and looks around at things coming into order out of the wilderness, the way a man's house ought to stand, like himself. Takes work to order things. They don't order themselves. It's like breaking in a new colt, only a colt stays broke, but nothing wants to stay just right for any length of time after it gets right.

"April again, hurrying by as usual on wet feet. Getting time to put seed in the ground again. Fifty-three Aprils I've seen come and go, and forty-eight I remember. Each one is better, the good of all the past ones recollect in the new one. There are my sons going upstairs: they have many springs ahead of them on this place, and then their sons and grandsons. We old ones die but the feeling is passed on to the new ones. Jasper'll be marrying Jane Burden, I reckon, though he doesn't say much. Quiet boy, good about the work but takes things about as they come and hasn't much fancy to making new contraptions or learning remedies. A man ought to know all these things. Jesse, he must be twenty-one now. He reminds me of his Grandfather Tivis, only there isn't much more to do like building a siding house or a mill-wheel. He ought to take the Marebone farm and build it up like Wolfpen. He's a good hand to do it. And there's Abrial with enough fidgety energy to do two boys. They'll get along, my boys will. And next week we must all buckle in to work and get the crops down. It'll feel good to the legs to follow a plow again.

"Blackguard," "Cad" and "Idiot" Not an Insult

No doubt you would be annoyed if somebody called you a blackguard and a cad, but actually there is no reason why you should regard these words as being objectionable, asserts a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine.

"Blackguard"—or "black guard"—was originally the name given to certain servants of King Henry VII's court, who wore black uniforms. True, these particular servants were of humble rank; but they were never considered to be unworthy people.

There is even less cause for one to resent the word cad, although it is derived from cadaver, meaning a dead body. In olden times, students used to refer to those who lived in their university, but were not members of it, as being "dead." They were, that is to say, "cadavers"—or, for short, "cads."

We don't think it very pleasant to be called idiot, but here again we really should not mind. Back in the past, an idiot was not a foolish person, but merely one who was neither priest nor official. The word probably got its present meaning from a belief that an ordinary citizen could be so intelligent as a clergyman or a man employed in some public office.

Smart Household
Linens in Color

Pattern No. 5348

Let us do a bit of "garden-ing." It's linens we're going to beautify, with cotton patch flowers and flowerpots. This easy applique is sure to enhance a pair of pillow cases, scarf or dainty hand towels. Take colorful scraps, cut them into these simple flower forms, and either turn the edges under and sew them down, or finish them in outline stitch. It's called "Linen-closet Gardening!"

In pattern 5348 you will find a transfer pattern of two motifs 5 1/2 by 15 inches, two motifs 4 3/4 by 15 inches and the patterns for the applique patches; material requirements; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Unique Strike

Recently in Damascus, Syria, the police displeased the guild of thieves and robbers, which, in retaliation, called a strike in the hope that the subsequent inactivity of the police force would result in numerous dismissals. For many weeks the burglars and bandits of the city refused to steal a single thing.—Collier's Weekly.

TANGLEFOOT WILL GET YOU IF YOU DON'T WATCH OUT!

2,000,000,000 flies were caught by Tanglefoot Fly Paper last year. More flies than there are people in the world. By destroying these billions of flies, millions of billions of dangerous disease germs were exterminated. Protect your home and your health with Tanglefoot. It's clean, convenient, economical and effective. Available at your nearest store in standard or junior size, and in fly ribbon form.

Fans Last Ovation to Humphreys Best Memory to Retain

HE HAD been leaning forward from one of the padded leather chairs in a corner of the Garden boxing office. Felt hat carefully balanced on one knee, he had been listening eagerly to the brisk gossip, watching Marge dispose of too presumptuous free-ticket seekers, breathing again the breath of what had been life to him for almost fifty years.

Then the crowd had drifted away. I looked at him again. After all, times change, old friends drop off quickly. When a man who has been out of close touch so long is shoved again into the spotlight he must wonder if it will be the same. He—I thought that I noted one gnarled hand trembling slightly. We fell to talking, not about the illness that came three years ago, but about other brighter days.

There were stories about boyhood moments on Oliver street when he used to play marbles with the "Governor," a gentleman who is known more familiarly to most others as Al Smith.

About how Murphy, who seldom went to fights, once sat beside him at a pulse-strumming bout and punched his ribs black and blue in the midst of the excitement. About how Sullivan named him "Joe the Beaut," a title which he much preferred to the "Bowery Demosthenes" which some newspaper guy tagged on him years later.

There was the proud boast that, for years, he had been able to smoke a cigarette, chew gum and announce a fight at the same time. How did he come to get into this racket? Well, he was a newsboy when he was ten years old and folks who used to listen to him on the old Produce Exchange corner used to admire the power of his voice even then. After that there was a lot of distinction to be achieved as master of ceremonies at balls and parties in the neighborhood.

Call for "Beaut" Started Famed Announcer's Career

Then one night, when Chuck Connors was meeting Billy Welsh at Maisch's Little Casino down on Bowers near Pearl, the regular announcer did not appear. A spectator stood up and demanded that "Joe the Beaut" be given the job. Joe got it. Whether the "Mayor of Chinatown," that was Connors, beat the "Little John L.," that was Welsh, on this occasion is something he could not remember. But he did remember that it was one of the happiest nights of his life, though.

The very happiest? No, those were swell times when he and Sam Harris and Terry McGovern were in the fight business. Best fighter that ever lived, that Terry.

Secret of success? Well, what you had to have to handle a crowd was a voice, personality and color. It ought to be a deep, bass voice with lots of vibrations. You shouldn't ought to antagonize the crowd either. What you should do was use good judgment and try to keep them friendly.

What? Well, yeah, maybe he was sometimes misquoted. But what of it. Suppose he did stand up in the old Garden that last night there and demand silence so he could pronounce a "apostrophe" to the famed statue of Diana. The point about that was that he'd announced fights in this state under three boxing laws since 1899.

Besides, what if some people did laugh at that crack. It made them happy and so kept them satisfied, didn't it? Well, that was the real job of an announcer and if some of those birds who—

The ebb and flow of a boxing evening had brought the crowd back into the little office again? Jimmy Johnston was waiting to go downstairs with his old friend. I rose and shook a hand that no longer trembled.

"So long," he said. "I'll be—hey, I tell you what. You're always using old-time pictures on those sports pages of yours. Why don't you come out some day? I've got a lot of them and we could sit around some more and—"

Along with so many others, I am going to miss Joe Humphreys.

NATIONAL Leaguers aver that Charley Gehring was the best American circuit performer in the All-Star affair, with Lou Gehrig ranking a very close second. Eddie Stuart, best of all lacrosse goalies when he operated in front of the Mount Washington and Crescent A. C. nets, has moved from Westchester to a better business proposition in Boston. Watch Southern California next fall. The behind-the-scenes dope is that Howard Jones again has assembled one of the nation's best football teams.

It's tough preparing for an Olympic invasion. A recent letter from Berlin confides that officials have been working overtime stocking up sixteen different brands of chewing gum for the athletes. Unless he takes a salary cut Jimmy Wilson may be looking for a new job next year. Now that the once great catcher no longer is very active on the playing field his boss seems to feel that a $17,000 annual salary is too much for a mere Phillie manager. Van Mungo is not surprised at the unjustified rumors that he misbehaved before the All-Star game. When he checked in at his hotel on Monday morning he was assigned to Room 313 and when he paid for his breakfast he received a $2 bill in change. After that he was prepared for anything in the way of hard luck.

Pie Traynor Convinced Diz Would Make Pirates

Pie Traynor will tell you that if the Pirates had Dizzy Dean they would win the pennant easily. Although they do not deny that the big boy may do it, the smarter and more honest boxing people feel that Joe Louis will need more than the extra foot of bandage permitted him by the ever-obliging New York boxing commission before he makes a comeback.

Rabbit Warbler, obtained from the A's recently, should be of real help to the Bees. He is one of the best defensive infielders in the business and when he is happy, hits .300 in the clutch. His Philadelphia trouble was that he did not like the way Connie Mack treated him. Incidentally Mr. Mack would be something less than a popular favorite in Boston even if he returned all that dough he has been taking out of the town since he located the Yawkey bakery. The fans are sore because he was in town on a Sunday for a regularly scheduled contest but would not wait over for the all-star affair two days later.

Another hot Boston blast is directed at the National league. The fans, who esteem Wally Berger so highly that the Bees were afraid to make several very promising deals for him this spring, cannot understand why he was kept on the bench during the dream game in his home park. Larry Benton, a great pitcher when he served the Braves and Giants, soon will be released by the Baltimore club. Rudd Hoyle, 185-pound triple-threat star at Hun school in Princeton, is an unreasonable lad. In spite of tempting offers from two major colleges nearer home the youngster, who is tabbed as "surefire varsity," plans to enter Harvard this fall.

The best minor league buy right now is Cliff Melton, who once had a tryout with the Yankees. He is a big, young, limber and not too smart Southerner possessed of a very good fast ball and a sharp breaking curve. Baltimore is asking $50,000 for him and will take 20 G's less—Don Lash, who possibly is the best Olympic distance star ever developed in the U. S., did his first running as a bare-footed boy of thirteen. That was in the cow pasture back of the little red school in his home hamlet of Auburn, Ind. Could it be that Penn, the team which may end Princeton's football winning streak early in October, already has started practice?

The New York state athletic commission has dug up an old rule which decrees that all prize fight contracts must be signed at the commission's offices. This, naturally, will not improve the very messy boxing situation but should give the matchmaking state officials some swell extra chances to get their pictures in the papers. A Boston restaurant features a Bill Terry hot plate on its "Celebrity" menu. The dish is "Freshly made corned beef hash with dropped egg." Jimmy Butwell, who came back from the World war to continue his career as one of the all-time great jockeys, now is a patrol judge.

Jersey City hopes to get the Toronto, International league, franchise next year. Mayor Hague's new stadium, which will seat 38,000 for baseball and 65,000 for fights, being the reason for revived sports interest across the river. Even though the Giants are slipping there is no danger of Eddie Brannick losing his title as the best dressed secretary in baseball. On the club's last Western trip he packed 45 brightly striped and dotted neckties. Aside from winning prize fights lightweight contender Leonard Del Genio likes nothing better than to read Charles Dickens.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"Too Much Courage" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

SOMETIMES it's a fine thing, boys and girls, to have one of those cast-iron, copper-plated nervous systems that don't get all in a jitter the minute something happens.

Steeplejacks have them—and so have structural ironworkers who spend most of their working day twenty stories above the street, balanced on a ten-inch iron beam, playing baseball with red hot rivets. I've always sort of envied birds like that for their courage.

And again, at times, I've been glad I don't have nerves like theirs. After all, our nerves are about the best warning signals we have—and you know what usually happens to the guy who doesn't pay any attention to the signs.

Take the case of Bill Woods, for instance—William H. Woods of Brooklyn, N. Y. Bill isn't an ironworker, but he's got an ironworker's nerve. Put him in a burning building, and my guess is that he wouldn't begin to get excited about it until the fire actually began creeping up his coat-tails. I'm judging him now from the way he acted in that restaurant in Brooklyn on April 30, 1934.

This Adventure Starts With a Cup of Coffee.

It's quite a story, boys and girls—a story that starts out with a walking tour through the streets of Brooklyn. Bill and his friend, Charley Young, had been taking an evening stroll, and eleven o'clock found them at Boro Hall park. Charley suggested that they drop into a cafeteria for a cup of coffee before they hit the hay. Bill agreed, and they crossed the street.

They went into the cafeteria, took their checks from the machine at the door and went over to the long counter. They ordered coffee, and the counterman turned to get it. But no sooner had he turned than he swung back toward the door and said: "What's the matter over there?"

That's the first intimation Bill and Charley had that anything was wrong. They looked in the direction in which the counterman was staring. Several men were scuffling over near the door. Then, suddenly from the center of that milling group came the sound of a shot!

Bedlam Breaks Loose in Cafeteria Following Shots.

"In the moment that immediately followed," says Bill, "no one stirred. Everyone in the place had stopped eating and all eyes were turned toward the door. That moment of indecision didn't last long, however, for suddenly another shot rang out, loud and deafening in that enclosed space. No one knew what had happened, but you couldn't mistake that sound.

At that second shot, bedlam broke loose in the cafeteria. Women screamed. Men jumped up from their seats. Tables were overturned. Everyone thought of just one thing, and that was getting under cover. Everyone was running about in frantic haste to get a door between them and that revolver—everyone, that is, but Bill Woods. In all the hullabaloo he alone kept his head. And it nearly cost him his life.

Bill looked around for Charley. He was gone—evidently into a milling crowd of people who had run toward the back of the cafeteria and were trying to crowd into the washrooms. Those who weren't there were crawling on their hands and knees, trying to get under a table. Bill noticed that and decided to get under cover himself. There was a radiator with a screened grill in front of him and he dropped down behind that. There followed a brief silence punctuated only by the sounds of struggling men, then another shot reverberated through the room. That was when Bill's curiosity and his nerve got the better of his common sense. He stood up to take a look.

Bill Made a Fine Target for the Man With the Gun.

Over by the door, a man, gun in hand, was standing, back up against the cashier's counter, while half a dozen younger men tried to wrestle the gun away from him. "One of the younger men," says Bill, "picked up a heavy sugar container and hit the older man over the head. I saw the glass break and the sugar scatter over the floor, but the man with the gun seemed invincible. They couldn't beat him down. They were too many for him in the end, though, and finally he fell behind the cashier's desk. And then, thinking all danger was past, I walked over to the counter."

Bill walked over until he was within ten feet of the fallen man when, to his amazement, the man started to sit up. The gun, still in his hand, rose until it pointed straight at Bill's midriff. Too late, Bill began to wish he'd been one of those nervous individuals who had taken refuge in the washroom. He stood petrified—afraid to move. He drew in a deep breath and waited to feel the bullet bite into his flesh. At that distance, the man on the floor couldn't miss.

Timely Arrival of Copper Saves Bill's Life.

Then, the only thing that could save Bill's life happened. Through the restaurant door came a police sergeant with a drawn pistol. He got the situation at a glance, took deliberate aim at the man with the gun, and shot him through the stomach. That was the end. The man fell over backwards and was still. A red circle of blood slowly widened beneath him.

More policemen came. They began asking questions. The cashier of the restaurant had been creased over one ear by a bullet, and one young man, shot through the shoulder, was leaning against the counter, trying to staunch the flow of blood.

They told the story. The man with the gun, they said, had been drunk. He had walked over to a table and accused another man of laughing at him. An argument started and the drunk drew a gun. That was when Old Lady Adventure stepped in and started shaking up thrill cocktails—one for everybody in the house, and a deadly one for the man with the gun.

Women Wore Men's Shoes During Ohio's yesteryears the forests were so swampy that women could scarcely walk to church or to other gatherings in their pretty footwear. So instead they wore the rough heavy shoes used by the menfolk. Close to their destination they would deposit the rough shoes in a fence corner or some other near-by place and put on their dainty shoes to wear inside. Thus their Sunday footwear lasted years and years.

Montreal's Historic Crosses Many of the historic crosses in Montreal were raised by the pioneer inhabitants to commemorate being spared from the St. Lawrence River's ravages before it finally was brought under control. Founded by the man who erected its first and most famous cross, Paul de Chomedey, le Sieur de Maisonneuve, Montreal is frequently called the "City of Crosses." Maisonneuve's cross was erected almost 300 years ago.

Uncommon Sense By JOHN BLAKE
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

There are few village smithy shops today under the chestnut trees. One reason is that there aren't any more chestnut trees. Another is that the motor car is rapidly driving horses and vehicles drawn by horses out of business.

I used to think that in fifty years or more practically all the village smithies would disappear. But lately I have learned better. Here in a little coast town in Maine is a village blacksmith who has more work than he can do, though he has probably not shod a horse or repaired an agricultural implement in twenty years or more.

For a time after the "devil wagons" began crowding horses and horse drawn vehicles off the road, he had little to do. Then one day he saw some ornamental grill work that had been sent to his town to be used as an adornment on a new building. He examined it carefully, then went home and thought a little. "There is no reason in the world why I cannot do that kind of work," he said to himself. "I will do it, by Gosh."

Today the children still "love to see his flaming forge and hear the bellows blow."

Over the anvil on which he used to fashion horse shoes he makes beautiful things of steel and iron. Visitors seeing him at work have come in to inquire if his handiwork was on sale. He assured them that it certainly was, and that more of the same kind of work would be in evidence as soon as there was a demand for it. He is known today all over the state, and in many other states, whose residents have bought his work. And if he had the advertising gift that some people have he would have a wide reputation. But not, I am sorry to say, a great business. For his work is artistry, and cannot be done in quantity over a single anvil.

It cannot be said of him that he is another Benvenuto Cellini. He works in iron, not in silver and gold. But he is a master craftsman, which he never might have become had he not been forced by changing conditions to become something besides the village blacksmith. I saw him at work the other morning on a pair of beautiful andirons. I asked him what they cost. "A lot of time," he said. "Yes, but how much money?" "Oh, not so much. But the fellow I'm making them for isn't rich so I wouldn't like to charge him too much."

And there was proof that he really had the soul of an artist.

The Right Spirit
A man of right spirit is not a man of narrow and private views, but is greatly interested and concerned for the good of the community to which he belongs, and particularly of the city or village in which he resides, and for the true welfare of the society of which he is a member.—Jonathan Edwards.

Refresh the Finer Nature
We are too apt to let the mean things of life overgrow the finer nature within us; therefore it is expedient that at least once a day we read a little poetry, or sing a song, or look at a picture.—Goethe.

The Longest Word
The longest word in any language it is believed, is found in line 1,169 of the famous comedy, The Ecclesiastice by Aristophanes. This Greek word which means hash in English, contains 171 letters.—Paul Plasterer, Springsfield, Ohio, in Collier's Weekly.

ties to tally in earlier innings because of the failure to hit with men on the bases, then proceeded to pare down this lead, scoring two runs in the eighth on B. Mallon's single, M. Mallon's double and E. Libka's single, and followed up in the ninth with two more to knot the count. In that frame Hobart led off with a double. An error on W. Laidlaw's grounder, G. Laidlaw's infield out, a fielder's choice on B. Mallon's grounder and M. Mallon's long fly to center allowed Hobart and W. Laidlaw to score. The CCC's went out in order in their half of the ninth and the game was forced into extra innings. Neither team was able to do much until G. Bertovick's double and Raymond's single with two men out in the last half of the eleventh broke up the ball game.

W. Laidlaw and B. Mallon paced the locals' attack, each getting three hits, while Raymond and Christy had three for the Ogemaw team. M. Mallon also did some powerful sticking for the Tawas crew. He drove out two hits that went for easy doubles and was robbed of another by the CCC centerfielder who made a spectacular catch of a drive that would have gone for extra bases. G. Laidlaw did a big job of second-basing for the locals, handling nine chances without a miscue.

Next Sunday's game between Tawas and Bentley at the local athletic field will mark the beginning of the second half of the league season. Each team in the circuit now has played one engagement with the other clubs in the league.
