TAWAS DOWNS BENTLEY BY 13 TO 1 SCORE

Mallon's 6-Hit Pitching and Local Attack Too Much For Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Force of Ferndale have been vacationing at the Huron Shore and visiting friends in the Tawas.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Waters and Miss Belle Prescott of Cleveland are spending their vacation at their summer home here.

Gilbert Abbey of Flint is spending a couple of weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Braddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lemke, Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Ross and Lois, Eunice and Paul Ross of this city attended the joint Lutheran mission services held at Royston last Sunday.

Capt. Edmund Connor and two sons of Milwaukee visited several days this week with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Connor. Capt. Connor went to Detroit Thursday evening where in an address he invited Michigan veterans of the Red Arrow Division to attend a convention of that division which will be held at Milwaukee.

Puppet show at Community Building Friday night at 8:00 o'clock.

Mrs. Jos. Watts, Mrs. Lillian Morden and Mrs. Archie McCordell and sons are visiting at Gaylord and Cheboygan for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McGarry of Flint spent the week end with the latter's mother, Mrs. Lulu Harris.

At the regular meeting of the common council held Monday evening, Mayor John Brugger appointed M. C. Musolf chief of police and street commissioner. Frank Mueller was retained as deputy.

Mrs. Christ. Hoshbach, Mrs. Emil Kasischke, Arnold and Leonard Hoshbach and Walter Kasischke spent the week end at Ann Arbor and Northville. While at Ann Arbor they attended the Wandersee-Scheele wedding. Arnold and Leonard Hoshbach and Walter Kasischke also saw the Detroit-Washington baseball game at Detroit Sunday.

The Republican Women's Club will meet Tuesday, August 11, at the Community House East Tawas.

Mrs. George Koenig of Detroit is spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rempert.

According to a communication received Wednesday Tawas City's water works bonds have been accepted by the Federal Government. Funds will be available within the next 15 days for the construction of the water works system.

Mrs. C. M. Crum of Flint and Mrs. Minnie Horton of Detroit visited Mrs. Chas. Groff this week.

Mrs. Jane Chambers returned on Sunday from a two weeks visit in Alpena with relatives and friends.

Thomas Metcalf, Bernard Stepanski, Gordon Myles and Willard Wright returned last Friday from Fort Brady, where they spent a month in the Citizens Military Training Camp.

Wm. Powell, Jean Arthur Are Co-Starred At Rivola

William Powell is back again, and this time has as his co-star and loveliest beautiful fair-haired Jean Arthur. The picture is "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," and will be shown at the Rivola Theatre, Tawas City, on Sunday and Monday, August 9 and 10.

In this picture there are together the most fascinating detective who ever kept an audience guessing and the most heart-disturbing charmer who ever kept a gentleman sleuth on edge. The whole screen-play from end to end is a riot of merriment in the face of deadly danger. The screen's most delectable detective exposed to "blonde danger" more alarming than the threats of crooks and killers—that's "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford!"

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors for the sympathy and kindness extended us during our sad bereavement.

Eric Gremberg, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bennen, Mrs. Thelma Trainor, Mrs. Selma Gerfere, Mrs. Ida Velen.

Notice

Because of circumstances over which I had no control, I was unable to appear at the Hale town hall Saturday, August 1, to discuss Bang's disease work with herd owners as it was announced in this paper. I am very sorry that I was not there to confer with them. However, I shall endeavor to arrange a conference at an early date.
G. S. Eversole, Federal Veterinary Inspector on Bang's Disease Work

John A. Banks

John A. Banks died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Hill, Sr. He was the son of the late James Banks and Isabelle Lowery Banks. He was in his 85th year.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna M. Banks of New Hartford, N. Y.; three daughters, Mrs. Thomas Hill, Sr., of Tawas City, Miss Lillian B. Banks of Industry, N. Y., and Mrs. Stewart G. Miller of New Hartford, N. Y.; one son, W. L. Banks of Fairlawn, N. Y.; one brother, William J. Banks of Utica, N. Y.; eight grandchildren; seven great grandchildren; several nieces and nephews, and other relatives.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Tawas City Baptist church. Rev. Frank Metcalf officiated.
Out of town relatives called here by the death of John A. Banks were Mrs. Mary Anna Banks and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart G. Miller of New Hartford, N. Y., and Charles A. Moore of Bay City.

Mrs. Louisa Hayes

Mrs. Louisa Hayes, a former resident of this city, died Sunday at Saginaw. The funeral services were held Wednesday morning from the L. D. S. church at Tawas City. Rev. M. A. Sommerfield officiated.

The deceased is survived by three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Dixon of Hazel Park, Mrs. Joseph Sladwick and Mrs. Joseph Seifert of Saginaw; four sons, Clifford Hayes of Tawas City, Andrew Hayes of Flint, Grant Hayes of Detroit and Robert Hayes of Saginaw; her father, Henry Rich of Mio; 20 grandchildren, and a great grandchild.

Louisa Rich was born August 26, 1877, at Elm Hall, Michigan. She was married to Frank Hayes in 1898 at Mack Lake.

Wandersee-Scheele

In a charming ceremony performed at the Salem Lutheran church, near Ann Arbor, last Saturday afternoon, Miss Viola Wandersee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wandersee of Ann Arbor, was united in marriage to the Reverend Roland Scheele of Saline. The Reverend Arthur Wacker officiated. Following the ceremony a reception attended by about two hundred persons was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were present from Detroit, Bay City, Owosso, Tawas City, Ann Arbor, and other cities besides several from Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Making the above of local interest is the fact that the bride was formerly a resident of this city. Her father was for a number of years a teacher in the local Emanuel Lutheran school. She has been a frequent visitor here since the family moved to Ann Arbor.

Settingington-Webb

Vance Webb of River Rouge, formerly of Tawas City, and Miss Marjory Settingington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Settingington of Leamington, Ontario, were united in marriage last Friday afternoon.
The bride looked charming in a floor-length dress of white bridal satin with spider-wee lace and blue accessories. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bridal bouquet of cream Talisman roses and forget-me-nots. Miss Reta Hillman, bridesmaid, wore a pink taffeta dress with blue accessories and carried Talisman roses. Carl Butler acted as best man.
After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Settingington. Twenty-five guests were present. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webb, daughters, Edna and Doris, and Richard Earle of River Rouge, Miss Eleanor Williamson of Wyandotte and Miss Rita Koepke of Tawas City.

Smith-Long

A quiet wedding was solemnized last Friday morning, July 31, at the St. Joseph rectory in East Tawas when Miss Agnes Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith of Alabaster, became the bride of Glenn Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Long of this city. Rev. E. A. Kirchoff performed the ceremony.

The bride was dressed in a gown of blue crepe and wore a corsage bouquet. She was attended by Miss Verna Schindler, who also was attired in blue crepe and wore a corsage bouquet. William Sherman acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Long will make their home in this city for the present. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the community for the kindness extended us at the death of our daughter and mother.

Henry Rich, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sladwick, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seifert.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kobs Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. John Kobs observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home on the Plank road Sunday, August 2, in the presence of their children and families.

Dinner was served to about fifty guests. After dinner the Rev. W. C. Voss in a brief address reminded the jubilarians of the goodness and mercy which the Lord their God had bestowed upon them in sickness and health, prosperity and adversity, during these fifty years of wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kobs are pioneers of Tawas township and have spent all of the past fifty years in this vicinity. All nine children born to them are living and were present to observe the fiftieth milestone of the married life of their father and mother.

FRED W. ROLLIN FUNERAL RITES HELD SUNDAY

The funeral services for Fred W. Rollin, pioneer resident of this city who died last Thursday, July 30, were held from the residence Sunday afternoon. Rev. S. A. Carey of the Methodist Episcopal church officiated. Last rites were given by Tawas City Lodge No. 302, F. & A. M.

Fred W. Rollin was born November 22, 1855, in Rice township, New York. He came to Tawas City when eight years of age. On December 26, 1881, he was united in marriage to Mary Ann McCord. During the greater portion of his active life Mr. Rollin was fireman at the Prescott mills and at the United States Gypsum plant at Alabaster. The deceased was a supervisor in the third ward for several years and had held other offices of public trust. He was a charter member of Tawas City Lodge No. 302, F. & A. M.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Mary Ann Rollin; seven children, Fred Rollin, Harry Rollin and Mrs. Arthur Nelson of Tawas City, Philip Rollin of Raymond, Washington, Mrs. Chester Moore of Farmington, Indiana, Russell Rollin of Alabaster, and Howard Rollin of Langhorne, Pennsylvania; two brothers, John Rollin and George Rollin of Duluth, Minnesota; one sister, Mrs. William Piper of California; 22 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Gladwin Falls Before Hemlock Sluggers, 13-8

Hemlock won out over Gladwin in a free-hitting ball game last Sunday by a score of 13 to 8. C. Frank went the entire route on the mound for the victors and was touched for a total of 12 hits. He struck out seven men, issued three passes, and hit one batter. Gladwin used two hurlers, Adams and Witer. The former, who started the game, was hit quite freely by the Hemlock sluggers and had to be relieved early in the contest by Witer. Hemlock blasted out 15 hits off their combined offerings, and these included two triples and two doubles.

Blust paced the victors' attack with a perfect day at bat, getting four singles in four official times up. Pavelka had three out of three for the Gladwin crew.

Miles M. Callaghan Announces Candidacy For State Senator

Miles M. Callaghan, veteran member of the state house of representatives from the Clare-Osceola district, announced this week that he would be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator.

from the 28th district. Callaghan's announcement followed closely the action of a large number of friends, including Senator Ben Carpenter of Harrison, urging him to become a candidate. Carpenter will not be a candidate for re-election.

In making his announcement Representative Callaghan said: "I am taking this action as the result of solicitation on the part of many republicans representing every county in the 28th district. These friends have circulated my petitions which have been filed with the secretary (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)"

Mrs. Emma Gremberg

Mrs. Emma Gremberg, nee Bennen, of Alabaster, the wife of Eric Gremberg, died July 28 at the University hospital in Ann Arbor after a year's lingering sickness. The departed was born April 4, 1904. Her husband, now of Detroit, was until lately employed at the plant in Alabaster. Rev. Ernest Ross of the Zion Lutheran church, Tawas City, officiated at the funeral services which were held after a brief reading service in the home of the parents of the deceased, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bennen, in the Community church at Alabaster. The burial service was read at the Alabaster cemetery.

The deceased leaves her sorrowing husband, Eric Gremberg; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Bennen of Alabaster; and three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Trainor of Detroit, Mrs. Selma Gerfere of Detroit, and Mrs. Ida Velen of Alabaster.

TAWAS CITY BOAT LEADS IN POINT RACE

Moeller's Yucatan Takes Lead From Sauk Tuesday

Wednesday afternoon Harold Moeller's Yucatan still retained its two-point lead over the Sauk for first place in the Class A point race although the Sauk won the day's race. The Sauk is owned by Hubert Smith of Bay City. The Yucatan, a Tawas built boat, gained its lead Tuesday when the Sauk finished in sixth place. The fourth point race will be run this afternoon and the final Saturday.

Twenty boats have been entered in the various races and much enthusiasm has been displayed in the different events. The eight-day program of entertainment and races has brought several thousand people to the community to enjoy the peer of water sports.

Race Standings Class A Boats

Sunday—1st, Sauk, 7 points; 2nd, Yucatan, 6 points; 3rd, Aurora, 5 points; 4th, Couquette, 4 points; 5th, Chinook, 3 points; 6th, E, 2 points; 7th, Y-Not, 1 point.
Tuesday—1st, Aurora, 7 points; 2nd, Yucatan, 6 points; 3rd, Couquette, 5 points; 4th, E, 4 points; 5th, Chinook, 3 points; 6th, Sauk, 2 points; 7th, Y-Not, no points.
Wednesday—1st, Sauk, 7 points; 2nd, Yucatan, 6 points; 3rd, Couquette, 5 points; 4th, E, 4 points; 5th, Chinook, 3 points; 6th, Aurora, aground, received aid from judges, therefore no finish.

Of the two six-meter boats from Alpena the Meteor, owned by Harry Fletcher, has proved herself more efficient in the light weather than the Jack, owned by Phil Fletcher, by taking two firsts out of three starts to give her five points to the four points of the Jack. These yachts are racing for a separate trophy although they start their races with the Class A boats.
The Do-No of East Tawas, sailed by Floyd Fernette, enjoys a comfortable lead over the Class C boats. The Boryan, formerly owned here, holds first place in Class B.

T. George Sternberg Enters Race For State Senatorship

T. George Sternberg, East Tawas attorney, last Tuesday announced his candidacy for the State Senate from the 28th district on the Democratic ticket. He seeks the seat now held by Ben Carpenter of Harrison, who will not seek re-election.
Sternberg, educated in Detroit and a resident of the 28th district since 1930, seeks a place in the state senate in the belief that there is a definite need for representation by one who knows the problems peculiar to this district, he said Tuesday, and his efforts will be directed definitely toward bringing about those things needed by his constituents. He said: "There are four important industries—tourist, agriculture, fishing and oil—in the 28th district that need adequate and able representation, and my efforts will be to the benefit of this group primarily. Naturally, I am heart and soul for better highways, relief from heavy taxation and the finest educational system money and ability can produce. But it will be the four prime industries of my section that I shall keep in mind."

Sternberg's record as a lawyer, both in Detroit and in this section, has been a splendid one, and that legal training fits him admirably for the place he now seeks.
It was highly significant that in the nominating petitions which went to Lansing last week Tuesday as many republicans as Democrats were represented, and indications are that there will be very little party politics in his campaign. His record as public administrator in northern Michigan, to which post he was appointed in 1933, gave him wide acquaintance among business and professional leaders, as well as in his own profession, and it has been from among this group that most of the insistence on his candidacy has come.

New RCA High Fidelity Sound System Installed At Family Theatre

You will enjoy your favorites more than ever before at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, because of the new RCA high fidelity sound system which was installed this week.

Music-minded patrons, especially, will appreciate how clear, full and effortless is the speech and singing of favorite stars over the RCA high fidelity system. All the overtones which give a personality to each voice and instrument are reproduced with mirror-like faithfulness.

You will notice, when you listen to a 40-piece orchestra for instance, that it sounds like a 40-piece orchestra—not an eight or ten piece one. You will be able to distinguish each instrument separately. The piano, most difficult of all instruments to reproduce naturally, sounds smooth, firm and clear—not tinny or "hard." Low notes are rich and resonant, the high notes clear and complete. In short, a superb performance is superbly reproduced.

These are but a few of the improvements which " earmark" the truly wonderful RCA high fidelity sound system—the finest money can buy—which has just been installed in the Family Theatre for your greater enjoyment.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Frank Knox Notified of Republican Vice Presidential Nomination—Spanish Rebels Winning Victories—Third PWA Building Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
Western Newspaper Union.

FACING an enthusiastic crowd that completely filled the big Chicago stadium, Col. Frank Knox received from Senator Steiwer of Oregon the official notification of his nomination for the vice presidency by the Republican party. National Chairman John Hamilton introduced the senator, who spoke briefly but forcefully and with his customary eloquence. As Colonel Knox stepped forward to deliver his speech of acceptance he was greeted by a roar of applause that continued for many minutes. His fellow citizens were glad to express their gratification for the honor done him, and the thousands from outside Chicago were no less warm in their appreciation of the candidate. In the streets surrounding the stadium was another vast throng of people who, unable to get into the building, listened to the proceedings as broadcast by a loud-speaker system.

Unlike Governor Landon, Colonel Knox devoted much of his address to the alleged failures of the Roosevelt administration which, he said, had the most glorious opportunity in the history of the nation but ignored its responsibility, failed in its job and defaulted in its obligations.

"From the day that it took office," he declared, "it embarked on a series of hysterical experiments on the economic life of a burdened nation. At a time when universal co-operation was a necessity it initiated a campaign of abuse and vilification of business men. At a time when the credit of the country should have been strengthened it inaugurated a policy of credit adulteration and currency experiment that demoralized foreign trade and frightened domestic finance. It set up a system of regimentation of industry that reduced production and prevented re-employment. By coercion of congress it forced the passage of reform measures so recklessly drawn that they hamstrung the revival of enterprise and paralyzed the renewal of investment. It installed a regimentation of agriculture that destroyed food and reduced foreign markets and increased the cost of living and multiplied the expense of relief.

"At a time when private industry was struggling desperately for a new start it set up governmental enterprise to compete with private business. At a time when the burden of taxation was already hard to bear it embarked on a policy of squandering public funds and increasing the weight of taxes. At a time when united effort and mutual good-will would have completed recovery it promoted sectional hatred and class strife. At a time when returning business confidence was ending depression it began a campaign to terrorize business and subjugate the banks. At a time when confidence in the character of government was vital it established a spoils system. At a time when the economic system was worn and emaciated it performed major surgical operations upon the industrial body to see what was inside. It adopted an economic philosophy of scarcity and forced it upon a hungry and distressed people.

"No one can define the New Deal or even describe it. But we know what it means. It means federal control over local business, over local bank credit, over local wages, over local conditions of work. It leads to federal regimentation of the labor, the business, and the home of every American citizen. It leads to price-fixing and production control by federal authority. It leads inevitably to the extinction of the small business man, to the end of free enterprise in America."

Before the ceremonies started there were four big parades, converging at the stadium; and elaborate musical programs were provided both inside and outside the building.

THE WEEKLY crop report and weather summary of the Department of Agriculture revealed that the drought and high temperature were playing havoc with the corn crop in most of the leading producing states. In some sections there will not even be fodder and over a much larger area no grain will be obtained this year. There were good rains, however, in parts of the central and eastern areas and improvement was noted there in both corn and pasturage.

The present drought in Iowa, the department said, has caused greater damage to corn than that of 1934. The summary reported almost complete destruction of the crop in two southern and two western tiers of counties, with serious damage in some other sections.

Threshing of winter wheat revealed expected yields, the report said, but spring wheat conditions were termed disappointing.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ended his 437 mile cruise when his yacht docked at Campobello island, New Brunswick, where he has a summer home. He shaved off the sidewhiskers he had grown to surprise his wife and mother and went ashore for a picnic and a reception with members of his family and friends in the summer colony of the island. Canadian Royal Mounted police joined with the American secret service men in guarding the distinguished visitor.

Mr. Roosevelt remained at Campobello only two days and then took a special train to Quebec, where he visited with Lord Tweedsmuir, governor general of Canada.

GEN. FRANCISCO FRANCO'S rebel forces in Spain, according to late reports, were pressing the government troops seriously and winning some bloody encounters.

This despite the claims of Madrid that the Fascists had been checked. The rebel columns advancing on the capital from the south were reported to be threatening communications between Madrid and the eastern coast at Valencia and Alicante, chief sources of the government's food supplies. Indeed, it was announced by the insurgent radio station at Seville that the garrison at Valencia had revolted and gone over to the rebels. Leaders of the insurgents claimed they held Huelva, important seaport, and all the territory between Seville and the Portuguese border. The loyalists directed a strong attack on Saragossa but advices from the front reaching Perpignan, France, said their three columns were ambushed by the rebels in a narrow canyon and lost perhaps 2,000 killed. General Caballero commanded the insurgents in that action.

General Franco has been quoted as saying the revolution, when successful, will result in a military dictatorship for the time being.

The government, now a red dictatorship, has taken possession of all church property and assumed control of all industry and agriculture. It also has confiscated the merchant marine to form a defense fleet. The loyalists were encouraged by victories in and around San Sebastian.

Claude G. Bowers, American ambassador to Spain, was cut off from communication with the summer quarters of his embassy at San Sebastian for several days, being himself at his summer residence in Fuentarrabia, close to the French border. He finally got in touch with the embassy and removed the staff to his villa. Mr. Bowers also provided safe haven for a number of other foreign diplomats and their families. He said he had ascertained that not a single American had been injured in the civil war. American warships and liners were utilized to evacuate all the Americans in ports where their lives were in danger.

Later Ambassador Bowers and his staff went aboard the cruiser Cayuga, taking with them some of the American refugees.

TWO MEMBERS of the American Olympic boxing squad failed to take warning from the fate of Eleanor Holm Jarrett and broke training rules soon after their arrival in Berlin. Roy Davis, manager of the boxers, advised that they be sent home, and the American Olympic committee so ordered. The two delinquents were Joe J. Church, featherweight, of Batavia, N. Y., and Howell King, welterweight, of Detroit. Their places on the team were filled by Theodore E. Kara and Chester Rutcki, both of Chicago.

EMPHASIS is placed on smaller scale projects to be completed speedily, in the third building program of the public works administration, which was opened by the allotment of $22,742,034 by President Roosevelt. It includes 352 projects in 37 states, and the largest of these is a courthouse for New York city to cost the government $4,835,000. The average allotment is only $64,323.

Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, said that, in addition to 45 per cent donation, PWA will lend $2,142,000 to help communities defray their 55 per cent share of the cost. President Roosevelt has ordered that all projects "be commenced by October 1, 1936, reach a peak by the end of the year and be completed by October 1, 1937."

UNOFFICIALLY, Germany admits that she is re-fortifying Helgoland, the Gibraltar of the North sea which was demilitarized by the treaty of Versailles. The report that the Nazis were taking this action was brought up in the English house of commons and Foreign Secretary Eden said the government did not intend to deal separately with the question, hoping for a fresh effort for European peace "in which Germany would play a full part." He hinted that Great Britain would let the affair pass without comment as one of Germany's "minor affronts." It was believed France would take the same stand.

SENATOR VIC DONAHEAY of Ohio, while fishing in Chesapeake bay, was struck by lightning, and painfully but not dangerously injured. The bolt hit and split the mast of his launch, ran along the rail and burned the senator's hands badly.

Another senator, Robert Reynolds of North Carolina, was among a group of tourists who were robbed by bandits near Taxco, Mexico. The victims lost their money, watches and jewelry but were not otherwise abused.

IOWA Republicans nominated Barry Halden of Chariton, editor and American Legion leader, for the United States senate seat made vacant by the death of Louis Murphy. His Democratic opponent is Guy M. Gillette.

The state Farmer-Labor party delegates met in Des Moines and named former Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart as their candidate for the seat. Until recently he has been connected with the New Deal farm organization.

In Oklahoma's runoff primary young Representative Josh Lee won the Democratic nomination for United States senator, badly defeating Gov. E. W. Marland. Lee's Republican opponent is Herbert K. Hyde.

SIR HENRY WELLCOME, who was born in a log cabin in Wisconsin 83 years ago and who became one of England's greatest scientists and explorers, died in London following an operation. His scientific achievements ranged from the establishment of physiological laboratories to pioneering in the field of archaeological survey through the use of airplanes. He won the Royal Humane society life saving medal in 1885 and as late as 1927 founded the Lady Stanley Maternity hospital in Uganda, Central Africa.

MORE than 100,000 persons stood in silence at Vimy, France, as King Edward VIII of England unveiled the magnificent memorial built by France to commemorate the heroic capture of Vimy Ridge by the Canadian forces in April, 1917. After greeting President Lebrun of France in French, the king said:

"We raise this memorial to Canadian warriors. It is an inspired expression in stone chiseled by a skillful Canadian hand of Canada's salute to her fallen sons. It marks the scene of feats of arms which history will long remember and Canada can never forget. And the ground it covers is the gift of France to Canada."

The dedication culminated ten years of labor and an expenditure of about $1,000,000 on erection of the memorial. The work was completed after earlier delays in construction because of difficulties in finding the 7,000 to 8,000 tons of special stone required.

Walter S. Allward, Toronto architect and sculptor who designed the monument for the Canadian battlefields memorial commission, supervised the preparations for the unveiling.

DIRECTOR ROBERT FECHNER reports that nearly 13,000 members of the Civilian Conservation Corps left that organization during June to accept private employment, and he said this was largely attributable to the general improvement in business conditions, and in part to the practical education given the men.

The exact number discharged in June was 12,995, the largest group to quit since the corps was reduced to a maximum of 350,000.

THE Queen Mary, Cunard White Star line's great liner, set a new transatlantic record in her latest crossing to New York, taking the blue ribbon of the sea from the Normandie of the French line. Her time from Cherbourg break-water to Ambrose lightship was four days, eight hours and thirty-seven minutes. This beat Normandie's record by three hours and five minutes, but Queen Mary's course was somewhat shorter than that taken by her rival, and the latter still holds the speed by hour record.

ACCORDING to announcement by a Polish news agency which is generally considered to be the mouthpiece of the Polish foreign office, an accord has been reached between Berlin and Warsaw on the policies to be followed in the Free City of Danzig. The Nazis are said to have agreed to give explanations that will take the sting out of recent incidents in the city.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Marshall—Traffic on US-12 was tied up for two hours because a truck backfired. The backfire set the truck ablaze, and destroyed it, and the wreckage was too hot to move.

Battle Creek—Howard O. Olney, just chosen as one of Michigan's ten safest drivers, was involved in his first accident in 20 years. He does not believe that his record will be affected, however, for his automobile was parked at the time. He has driven 150,000 miles without an accident.

Battle Creek—The General Foods Corporation announced that it will spend $1,500,000 for two new buildings to be added to its Post Products division. Harry W. Brown, plant manager, said increased business made the additions necessary, and that they will afford increased employment.

Port Huron—The price of beans has increased $2.40 a hundred pounds in three months. The price paid to growers April 18 was $2. Now they are offered $4.40 for the 1935 crop. The 1936 crop will be harvested in September. Heavy rain in the district would be followed by a sharp price drop, dealers say.

Kalamazoo—Michigan today has the largest fish hatchery in the world at Wolf Lake, Van Buren County, with a yearly capacity of 15,000,000 fingerling game fish. Twenty-four ponds and lakes, the largest covering 35 acres, have been constructed by WPA workmen to augment the original 22-acre natural lake.

Hale—Thomas McCormick says that in the course of the heat wave he found a hard-boiled egg in one of the nests at his farm, "I guess," he said, hooking his thumb under his suspender, "that that just about ties them city slickers with their yarns about frying eggs on the pavement." As proof, he'll show you the egg.

Lansing—Members of 59 reorganized county emergency relief commissions were announced by the state emergency relief commission. County commission reorganization was decided upon because local officials urged they should be given a larger share of welfare responsibility. SER members and Gov. Fitzgerald approved the new procedure.

Detroit—"Uncle Jerry" Combs, who never liked the taste of medicine, but who liked a "reasonable amount" of pure moonshine, died in his one hundred and seventh year. Death was believed due to complications incident to advancing age, although Uncle Jerry never spent a day in a sickbed. He was a devotee of hiking as a health-building exercise.

Flint—Severe thunder and lightning storms accompanied by rain caused a large amount of damage in this area recently. Several homes are reported to have been struck by lightning and straw stacks and chicken coops were destroyed on several Genesee county farms. Approximately 800 employees of the AC Spark Plug Company were thrown out of work when a transformer was damaged by the storm.

Mt. Clemens—Whether or not the city can ban all advertising signs and billboards objectionable to owners of adjacent property will be determined in a suit in circuit court. Walker & Co. contends that the sign boards it erects in the city are "beautiful, artistic, inspiring and educational." City officials charge they are "a nuisance, a menace to public health and safety, an eyesore and subversive to public morals."

Adrian—The farmers of Lenawee and Hillsdale counties have been holding picnics annually at Devil's Lake since shortly after the Civil War, but the directors have decided to abandon the event. The revenue has fallen off with the development of the automobile. The gatekeepers who were able to collect a nominal admission fee from a family party riding in a carriage now have to be pretty agile to keep from being run over by streamlined sedans.

Flint—A verdict of $7,500 was awarded by Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola in favor of the estate of Earl J. McEntire, against Edward LeFebvre. McEntire was killed when struck by LeFebvre's car. The defense was that LeFebvre did not see the victim. Judge Gadola, in handing down the decision, pointed out, "Motorists must realize that they are not the only ones on the road. Pedestrians also have a right to use the highways and their rights are entitled to every consideration."

Battle Creek—Following the example of the French during the First Battle of the Marne, when authorities commandeered all available vehicles to the front, 1,000 taxicabs from Chicago and Detroit will be pressed into service during the maneuvers of the Second Army of the United States from Aug. 8 to 22, according to unofficial word here. A large number of taxicabs will be used to speed officers to various places in the large field of operations, and also to transport the umpires.

Saginaw—Armchair hunters get a break at last. The Saginaw Zoo has too many buck deer, so John Pierce, zookeeper, will take bids on them from prospective purchasers.

Owosso—Edward Cord, 60 years old, drove his car onto the Michigan Central tracks just in time for a train to demolish it. He crawled out of the wreckage with only a few scratches. "I was thinking about something else," he explained.

Detroit—Veterans of the Red Arrow Division will hold their biennial reunion in Milwaukee on Sept. 5 and 6, according to Richardson E. Browne, president. A committee forming plans for an expected record attendance has opened headquarters at 110 E. Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee.

Alpena—Sergt. Detective Leo Doyle, of the homicide squad of the Detroit police department, was enroute home after a record trout catch. Sergt. Doyle, while trolling from the stern of the tug Tramp, hauled in 120 pounds of trout, the specimens tipping the scales at five to seven pounds each.

Lansing—Detroit will receive $846,223.45 as the first 1936 installment of liquor license fee funds, Edward Stevens, comptroller for the liquor control commission, said. Stevens said the license fees to June 1, the great bulk of the year's license business, were $1,667,142.47. Last year's total was $1,724,429.46.

Lansing—Paving of an 11-mile stretch of US-27 north of Harrison, which will almost close the last unpaved piece of road on Michigan's main north and south highway, is under way, highway department officials said. A 24-mile detour will carry traffic east from Harrison to M-18, and from there north to Prudenville.

Detroit—A new plant for the production of DeSoto automobiles will be opened in September, it was announced by K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation. The new plant represents an investment of approximately $5,000,000 and will provide employment for about 1,750 additional men, he said. The plant capacity will be 500 cars a day.

Charlevoix—Gene Barrus, 76 years old, died a half hour after being pinned between a pier pile and the swing bridge over the channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. Barrus, one of numerous fishermen on the trestle, heard the bridge tender's warning but his clothing caught on a timber and he was unable to free himself.

Lansing—Public debt in Wayne County fell $7,485,563.73 in the year ending June 30, 1935, the public debt commission reported. The Wayne County government decreased its debt by $476,152.31, to a total of $4,099,216.97. Detroit's net debt during the period remained nearly stationary at $297,642,473.45. A year before the total was $296,252,950.99.

Detroit—Burglars who broke into his house while he was vacationing like it so well they stayed two weeks, Edward Misch discovered. They didn't leave (by the back door) until they heard Misch come in the front. His guests had drunk up all his private stock (five quarts.) They'd dirtied all the dishes. Slept in all the beds. Cooked all their meals in the Misch kitchen. Littered the house with cards and dice.

Owosso—The city commission has taken under advisement two sets of petitions, one asking for the passage of an ordinance closing food stores on Sunday and the other protesting against such action. The attorney for stores keeping open, said that if fees really want a closed town they could invoke the blue laws of 1857, and close the town so tight on Sunday that no one could do any business or attend any gathering except a religious service.

Lansing—Opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment which would exempt foods from the state sales tax came from Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction. State officials estimate variously that its passage would reduce sales tax revenues by $10,000,000 to $14,000,000. Dr. Elliott fears that much of this revenue reduction will be taken from emergency financial aid to school districts which, he said, was to reach $23,000,000.

Lansing—Arthur Gloster, Detroit attorney, renewed his effort to obtain an amendment to the state constitution which would take the State from the liquor business. The proposal, besides barring the state from direct liquor business, would permit the legislature to create a one-man liquor commission to supervise the collection of license fees and excise taxes. Gloster offered a similar proposal several months ago but failed to qualify it for the November election.

Pointe Aux Barques—If Theodore M. Shunk, treasurer of Pointe aux Barques Township, has his way his township will be the first in the United States to report its vote in the presidential election this fall. For years the township has reported a 100 per cent vote and has been the first to report in the State. "I think we can have every vote cast and counted by 9:30 a. m., and that should be early enough to make this the first precinct in the nation to report," said Shunk.

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—There seems to be little doubt any longer that President Roosevelt is getting ready to spring a new surprise among his many surprises and that he will employ it to wean away as much of the farm vote from Governor Landon of Kansas as is possible. The President usually has a card up his sleeve, one that he can pull out with a flourish and one that, on the surface at least, carries very convincing prospects in the particular line he has chosen.

In this instance, it seems rather well established that you may expect the President to come forward shortly with a brand new proposition for greater co-operative effort between the farmers and the city consumers. He is likely to present this new proposition—some of his critics have been unkind enough to describe it as a new rabbit from the hat—in a dressing that will be quite alluring. It is not clear yet just when the new plan will be offered by the President and his New Deal associates, but the guess can be made that it will come in time to permit a full exposition of the program by the New Dealers in advance of election. By the same token, it is apparent that the President's 1936 promises for the farmers will be disclosed late enough so that the Republicans will have little time to pick it to pieces.

The tip-off on the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is developing another farm program comes in Mr. Secretary Wallace's latest book "Whose Constitution." Of course, the secretary's observations may not be charged directly to the President. Nevertheless, it is the opinion of many of us who have watched the New Deal wheels go around that the secretary of agriculture usually leads the procession in offering new suggestions for New Deal activities.

Secretary Wallace is a candid man and his frankness continuously has been of an engaging sort. For the reason that he is of this type, I think it can be said usually that his views reflect what is going on beneath the surface. That is, his views ordinarily serve as a trial balloon, whether the secretary realizes it or not, and if they are watched closely, an accurate forecast of what is coming may be made.

It might have been that the secretary's book would have escaped attention as a vehicle carrying a message from the inner circle of New Dealers except for one line that was tucked away in the Democratic platform, or the platform adopted by the Philadelphia convention. The sentence in the platform with which the secretary's book may properly be connected reads: "We will act to secure to the consumer fair value, honest sales and a decreasing spread between the price he pays and the price the producer receives."

Some observers here have linked that proposition with a thought that Mr. Roosevelt proposes to organize not only co-operatives among the farmers but to link those co-operatives with similar co-operatives among the consumers. The conviction held by these individuals is that Mr. Roosevelt, astute politician that he is, is seeking to kill two birds with one stone. In other words, they contend that his plan will be thrown out as an inducement for the farmers to support his policies and re-elect him and that when he deals with the voters in great industrial areas he will point out to them the possibility of cheaper food in this manner.

It is to be remembered in connection with the reported new farm program that Mr. Roosevelt has sent a commission to Europe to study the co-operative idea. There has been no fanfare, no blare of trumpets about the departure of these men, each being an avowed New Dealer and each one being thoroughly dependable. That is, they are men who can be depended upon to present the facts they gather in true New Deal light. They have been in Europe now about a month. It is expected they will remain at least one month longer. If, then, they take a month to write that we can expect another New Deal farm program, based upon the co-operative idea, to emerge from the White House around October 1. It is just 30 days from that date to the election.

We now have had acceptance speeches by both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Landon, his opponent. To the extent that the keynote speeches of the national conventions indicate the trend of mind of the party workers and to the extent that the acceptance speeches tell in a way the deeply rooted views of the candidates, the issues of the campaign are drawn. Of course, it has frequently been the case that the issues of July are not the issues that decide the election in November. There are those students of politics who are saying this year that the questions discussed by President Roosevelt and Governor Landon in their acceptance speeches are going to have very little to do with the decision of the voters three months hence. I can report only on a consensus among political authorities on this point. That consensus seems to be that Mr. Landon is going to stick to discussion of the major problems as he sees them and that Mr. Roosevelt's strategy will be governed entirely by whatever changes take place in campaign conditions.

In other words, these writers in Washington who have gone through many a harried political battle, seem to feel that Mr. Roosevelt's campaign strategy is going to be exactly like the policies he has followed in his present administration. By that I mean, to quote the President's own words, that "If one thing fails, we will try something else."

There is the conviction among these same writers that Governor Landon will resort to no oratorical flourishes nor will he employ any of the tactics that Mr. Roosevelt has so often used in his fireside radio chats. Further, it is quite evident, I believe, that Governor Landon will make the burden of his plea to the American people an appeal to restore what he considers to be the American form of government. It was quite obvious from his acceptance speech, as it has been evident in some of his pre-campaign pronouncements, that he favors the common sense idea in government management and that he will permit nothing to swerve him from that course.

But it should be said, it seems to me, that if Governor Landon is able to maintain that plane throughout his campaign, he will be deserving of great commendation. There are many observers here who believe he has undertaken a task of the most difficult kind. The governor has built up or others have built up around him an atmosphere of simplicity. It has reached a high pitch. The question is—can he keep the campaign attuned to that pitch from now until November? If he does, he will surprise a great many observers.

Lately, I have heard through underground channels that Democratic Chairman Farley is getting a little irked at the methods employed by the youthful John Hamilton, who is chairman of the Republicans. "Big Jim" has taken a leave of absence as postmaster general, you will remember, in order to devote his time to re-electing President Roosevelt. He is now in a position to battle and, judging by his record, he can be expected to carry on a vigorous fight. That makes it all the more surprising to know that "Big Jim" has grown a little bit peevish as a result of the nudging and the razing that the red-headed Republican chairman has been handing him.

Six weeks elapsed between the nomination of Governor Landon and the date of his formal notification. During this time, Mr. Hamilton alone had to carry the Republican ball. He made numerous speeches and minced no words in any of them. He struck out straight from the shoulder at Mr. Farley. During that time, Mr. Hamilton really had no one firing back at him. It was exactly the same condition as obtained before the Republicans had selected a candidate and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley had no one to fight back at them. The test for Mr. Hamilton, therefore will come when Mr. Farley gets into action and the Democratic campaign is fully under way. He is young in national politics and some of the success of the Republican campaign is going to depend upon how Mr. Hamilton conducts himself, when Mr. Farley starts jibing and knocking down the Republican chairman's ears in the heat of battle.

There is another phase of the campaign that is going to be interesting to watch. For three years, Mr. Roosevelt has had open channels on the radio, has had the utmost freedom in picking his spots for delivering new pronouncements or his appeals for patience by the people. But that time has passed insofar as the President is concerned. He is now confronted with competition. What I am trying to say is that everywhere and every time the President speaks, he will speak with the knowledge that a fighting opposition is ready to leap on every word and every proposal that he makes. This is an entirely different circumstance than any Mr. Roosevelt has faced since he entered the White House March 4, 1933.

Terry and Cochrane Are Facing Crisis in Baseball Jobs

DEFINITELY Bill Terry and Mickey Cochrane now are in the midst of what higher class writers might term a crisis. Aside from their spot efforts to keep crippled and hard luck teams in the first division they also are undergoing tests which may determine whether it is worthwhile for them to continue in baseball.

Because each of them won a world championship early in his managerial career and so, immediately, was acclaimed as one of the greatest of all time pilots this view may require a bit of explaining. It involves putting the reverse on that old "Don't do as I do but as I say" bit of philosophy by which the youth of the nation once was entertained.

Terry

Terry possibly was the best first baseman who ever played the game and Cochrane holds similar high rating among the catchers. They took over their manager's jobs while still able to perform in sprightly fashion. They starred in their own right while their example undoubtedly inspired lesser teammates to reach hitherto (and since then) unthought-of heights.

Now, when they are sorely tried by an assortment of ailments which inevitably take toll of aging athletes, things do not add up the same. Reibers, Myatts, Leslies and such folk are hired men of average worth, but they simply do not possess the spark that makes Terrys and Cochrane. So, as has been apparent all season, the two managers immediately are beset by problems even more vexing than thyroids or sciatica while attempting to readjust their baseball lives.

If the law of averages operated properly there could be some compensation for all this. Blood streams, which formerly had to do double duty while generating both base blows and strategy, could be entirely at the service of deep thinking. In place of the line drives which once encouraged their championship ambitions the Tigers and the Giants could be inspired by daily strokes of managerial genius.

This, of course, would indicate a most sublime future but, unfortunately, neither Hoyle nor Hughie has much influence with the law of averages.

Both Bill and Mickey are men of action. They seem to function best, mentally as well as physically, while on their feet in the midst of heated action. Probably a proper appreciation of his own muscular possibilities has inspired each of these managers as much as it has inspired his followers.

Undoubtedly this has been true of Terry during the past two years. Without attempting to second guess a guy who has been trying hard in the midst of severe handicaps most fans are aware that he is a far better manager when playing than when spending an afternoon in the dugout.

Less opportunity has been provided for judging Cochrane as a dugout executive. Yet it is possible that the future may be even harder on him than on Terry. Mickey is an intensely nervous type—in some ways resembling Ty Cobb who failed as a manager. At least once during each of his best playing years when he could release pent-up emotions through direct actions he came close to just such a breakdown as finally overtook him this season. He also is excessively irked by players who cannot comport themselves according to his own high athletic standards.

During one inning at Yankee stadium recently I watched him. He made six trips from one end of the dugout to the other. He kneeled in front of the dugout five times. He sat down and immediately arose eight times.

There you have the question for the future. Will Cochrane wear himself out of the majors with worrying? Will Terry achieve the same results through disgust over the essential dumbness of his fellow men?

TIRES on those midget autos last only four miles during a race . . . Did the Giants pay $21 dividend on each share of stock last year? . . . Jockey Sonny Workman during his recent suspension improved his time upon the golf links where he is almost as good as he is in the saddle . . . Fortune tellers probably can improve their batting averages if they give Bob Pastor a high rating for 1937. The Washington Heights youngster is the most improved heavyweight of the year. . . His coaches say that sixteen-year-old Bob Sandbach, kid brother of the Princeton star, will be even better than Ken.

If the president of the Phils had not vetoed the deal at the last minute a Frenchy Bordagaray-Johnny Moore swap would have been made in May . . . The Giants will operate the Jersey City club as a farm when an International league franchise is moved to Hagueville next season . . . Unless thoroughbred prices are upped considerably Colonel E. R. Bradley will not take his yearlings to the Saratoga sales next month. He still is annoyed at the low receipts obtained last August . . . Charley Gehringer and Billy Herman, the game's two best second basemen, share an easily understandable weakness. Ballplayers say they do not like to be slid into with spikes.

The U. S. G. A. is sadly perturbed because of rumors concerning four-ball tournaments and the auction pools which so often make them more than interesting to the performers. These pools—you buy tickets on teams you think are hot—often are worth from $1,000 to $3,000. That, so evil-tongued gents snicker, is enough sugar to bring the racketeers in so that they can arrange such "amateur" golf matches to suit their own high purposes . . . Hun school, right there in the shadow of Princeton's famed Gothic towers, will have five regulars (Elverson, McNamara, Ober, Micheau and Shinn) on the Penn varsity next fall. . . Don Lash, the runner, earns his way through college by mopping up floors in the dormitory at Indiana university . . . Ivy Wilson, the very good twenty-four-year-old girl athlete from the Mercury A. C., makes dolls' wigs when not winning 50-meter championships.

Landis Irks Scribe By Talking Golf

A veteran reporter is very indignant because he had to wait fifteen minutes in Boston before getting some All-Star game information from Judge Landis. It seems that baseball's high commissioner was spending some time in entertaining his audience of club owners with blithesome comment concerning his golf scores.

Could it be true the New York racing commission now has planted dictaphones in the betting ring and other gossip juicy sections of local tracks? Or are naughty boys just blaspheming when they whisper that this cunning device, which was tried out last winter by Florida and Don Meade, produced a carload of worthless chitchat when secreted in the Aqueduct jockey room during the recent meeting?

There is more than a chance that the Ivy league, which now protects the more holy colleges from rude beatings in basketball and baseball, will also provide the same smooth gridiron guardianship in 1938 . . . Although he is a motorboat enthusiast, John D. Spreckels, millionaire horse owner from the West, believes in keeping aquatic sports in their proper place. He has no liking for the regattas which are becoming so popular with the regatta committees at too many Eastern racetracks . . . Another effort may be made next winter to put the Cards in Detroit and leave St. Louis as a one-club (American League variety) town . . . If Joe Louis can score a decisive victory over Al Ettore there need be little doubt about the Brown Bomber having the proper comeback ammunition.

Although he can take the walls of disappointed fans as well as he can give his money to Connie Mack, there is one rift in Tom Yawkey's serenity. The owner of the Red (and frequently) Socked Boston team has been hearing the whispers of his mates among the magnates. They refer to the youthful business man as a "Sap" and a "Sucker," which is rather hard to take considering all he has done for them . . . Each member of that great Husky crew is a native of the state of Washington, is working his way through college and never handled a racing sweep until his freshman year . . . Winslet, the big outfielder listed for the Dodgers, is a good hitter. That is, he is until the pitchers start throwing too close to him.

A Finnish vapor bath has been installed in the Olympic village at the request of Helsingfors . . . The bath was placed on the edge of a lake because the Finns like to cool off with a cold plunge after the baths . . . Paul Waner of the Pirates still uses a bat, now taped half its length to keep it from falling apart, that he borrowed during the 1934 All-Star game in New York.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Warm Weather Vs. Reducing

AS SUMMER progresses, the warm weather gives a favorable opportunity to those who are seriously considering the reduction of their weight.

During warm weather much less food is eaten because about 80 per cent of the food we eat is used simply to keep the body warm and all its processes working nicely. Only about 20 per cent is to supply energy for work or exercise. We don't need to keep as warm during the warm weather.

Thus less food is necessary anyway and that gives a good start toward weight reduction.

Another favorable point is that the rich or concentrated foods which put on weight are not as popular or palatable—do not invite use to the same extent—as the foods that are not so rich or concentrated. Thus we find that foods that have more cellulose or roughage, foods that are more "straw-like" in character, are eaten in greater amounts during the warm than the cold weather.

Salads, both fruit and vegetable, form a large proportion of the summer diet which not only helps to overcome constipation, but prevents increase in weight.

What are known as the high residue foods—containing more fibrous tissue which the body does not absorb—are the fruits and vegetables containing the straw-like cellulose which surround the actual food part of the fruit and vegetable.

The high residue fruits are: figs, dates, apricots, prunes, raisins, raspberries, currants, gooseberries, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, apples, strawberries, cantaloupe, oranges, lemons, grapefruit and rhubarb.

How to Pick Foods.

The high residue vegetables are: peas, beans, green peas, lima beans, corn, parsnip, turnip; raw vegetables—cabbage, tomatoes, carrots, onions, celery, cucumber, lettuce; cooked vegetables—asparagus, beets, carrots, cauliflower, cabbage, brussels sprouts, spinach, tomatoes, onions, string beans.

Foods with a low residue—rich or concentrated foods with little fibre or roughage—are: sugar, fats, meats, eggs, milk.

It can thus be seen that the foods that seem to be most "suitable" for warm or hot weather are the very foods that by their large bulk will satisfy the appetite and stomach and yet will not be as rich in fuel value as the foods that are more popular in cold weather.

Fortunately the warm weather makes the body perspire freely so that the large quantities of water and soft drinks that are consumed do not get a chance to add much if any weight to the overweight individual.

However, it can be readily seen that if during the hot weather the overweight individual will deny himself some of the liquid he so eagerly drinks he will reduce his weight greatly because water makes up much of the weight in these individuals.

Even if taking little or no exercise the hot weather will "melt off" some of the excess weight; and if exercise is taken the perspiration will greatly increase and with it much of the weight will fall away. If at this time when the body is hot from exercise very small quantities of water are taken, or if water is allowed to rest on the throat—gargling—and not allowed to go down the throat to the stomach the thirst will be about as well satisfied and the water will not get into the tissues to increase the weight.

Avoid Fat Foods.

Fortunately another class of food that is not popular in the summer is the fat foods—fat meat, cream, butter, rich pastry. Of course oil is used to some extent in the dressing which is used with salads but some fat "protective" food should be eaten by everybody.

Sugar—so rich in food value and so active as a fat storer—is not needed so much in the warm weather, and may be cut down with a little less regret or longing than during the cold weather.

Lean meat is valuable in reducing weight in the warm weather as it satisfies the appetite, builds worn tissue, but does not store fuel, and makes the body processes work faster, thus helping to burn up or prevent fat formation.

So get a start at weight reduction during the warm weather when everything is in your favor—less food needed, perspiration burning up or removing the fat, and very little exercise necessary to produce profuse perspiration.

I believe the above points should be sufficient to show the overweight individual that the warm weather is a good time in which to start weight reduction.

Quilt of Applique Is Popular; Easy to Do

You can have good luck tokens 'round you year in, year out, if you make this Bluebird quilt, and such a simple one it is too, in easy applique, with each bird all in one patch. You may make the birds uniform in color, or vary them by using up scraps.

Pattern 1191 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to The Sewing Circle Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Great Things

No man ever reached great things without trying for them. Thoughts of what is great, love for great ideals, daily acts done in a great spirit, prepare the hero's hour, and bring it to him. Purposelessness ruins life.

Each lawless thought will mar the plan. Each wasted day will stunt the man. Wouldst thou excel? Let purpose run a thread of gold from sun to sun.

Ripples From Guiley Creek

By the Trout Specialist

Well, trout have been hitting the flies much better the past week. During the recent hot weather the fish seemed to be on a diet.

Rev. Kirchoff of East Tawas had good luck on the AuGres, getting a nice catch which included a 16-inch rainbow, and a man from Detroit got his limit, among which was a 14-inch brookie.

People often ask me what fly I use, and I reply that I use the ones I can't sell, which to a certain extent is true. A trout will take the fly that looks to the fish like a sweet juicy lunch, regardless of how it looks to the fisherman. People often say of a gaudily dressed fly, "My, how pretty, I'll bet the trout would like that." They do not stop to consider that the trout is the real and final judge as to whether or not a fly is good.

I have used only one type of dry fly this season, and if it were put beside a Royal Coachman and offered to a novice, at least 99% would pick I know from experience that the other will take twice as many fish on the average, especially on small streams. If you don't believe it, ask Rev. Kirchoff or Jas. Leslie.

Harold Wade has installed a trap shoot on his property here. The squirrels and bunnies will think a war is on.

Carol Leary and "Mac" McKinley of Detroit were fishing here last week end. Mac carries a .22 calibre target pistol for use on predators. He got a crow while fishing on the Guiley.

Household
Questions

To remove the onion odor from the hands after peeling and slicing them rub the hands with vinegar or lemon juice before washing with soap and water. If the onions are sliced under water and the hands are already wet rub them with dry salt.

If in breaking eggs into a mixing bowl a bac one should accidentally be dropped in, a whole cake may be spoiled. It is, therefore, wise to always break one egg at a time into a cup before putting it into the mixing bowl.

Drain all boiled vegetables as soon as tender. They become soggy if they are allowed to stand unstrained after cooking. The water drained off may be saved for soup stock.

When boiling cauliflowers place them in a kettle with their heads downward. The scum rising to the top of the kettle will not then settle on the flowers and discolor them.

When mending a rip in the glove, button hole the two edges with a fine needle and fine thread, never silk. Now catch these threads together in a button hole stitch and you will have a neat and lasting repair.

To clean ivory and bone knife handles, make a paste of lard, olive oil and whiting. Rub this well into the handles, and if very stained allow the paste to remain for a few hours. Rinse quickly and polish with a soft cloth.

If it can be avoided, never wash combs, as water often makes the teeth split. A small brush made purposely to clean combs can be bought. With this the comb should be well brushed and then cleansed with a cloth.

Baking soda will keep the baby's bottles sweet. After using wash the bottles carefully in hot soapy water, sterilize by scalding, then shake in a little baking soda and fill with cold water. Let stand until bottles are used again.

PATTERNS of WOLFPEN

SYNOPSIS

In 1785 Saul Pattern of Virginia came into the beautiful virgin country of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky. Chief of the perils were the Shawnees, who sought to hold their lands from the ever-encroaching whites. From a huge pinnacle Saul gazed upon the fat bottoms and the endless acres of forest in its primeval quietude at the mouth of the Wolfpen, and felt an eagerness to possess it, declaring it a place fit for a man to LIVE IN! Five years later he returned with Barton, his fifteen-year-old son, and built a rude cabin. In Saul's absence the Indians attacked Barton and wounded him so badly Saul was forced to return with him to Virginia. In 1796, when it was reasonably safe, Saul returned with his family and a patent for 4,000 acres, this time to stay. He added to the cabin, planted crops and fattened his stock on the rich meadows. Soon other settlers arrived. A century later, in the spring of 1885, we find Cynthia Pattern, of the fifth generation following Saul, perched on the pinnacle from which her great-great-grandfather had first viewed Wolfpen Bottoms. The valleys, heretofore untouched by the waves of change sweeping the Republic, are at last beginning to feel that restless surge. Her dad, Sparrel, and her brothers, Jesse, Jasper and Abrel, have been busy converting the old water-wheeled mill to steam power. Sparrel's triumph is complete when the golden stream of meal pours forth at the turning on of the steam. Cynthia feels that something out of the past has been buried with Saul. Cynthia is a pretty and imaginative miss in her late teens, who often re-created Saul and her other forebears, and fancied them still living. Sparrel proudly brings home the first meal out of the steam mill, and Julia, his wife, is pleased. Generation after generation has added comforts and conveniences to Saul's homestead, and Sparrel has not shirked.

Julia came into the room after a little while, and lay beside him under the soft warmth of the sea-star, blue-and-white coverlet.

"You're not asleep, Sparrel?"

"No, Julia. It's quiet this time of night. I've been listening to it. I used to wonder if we'd be any better off to have stayed in Virginia. I don't anymore. Sometimes it 'pears to me like this is what everything before it has been aiming at and now it's here and I'm looking at it and listening to it. That don't hardly sound sensible, does it?"

"We've got about all a body could want here."

"It ain't things, exactly, Julia, it's ... it's ... well, something inside, like the drum on a banjo ... it's ... like going around the hill in the evening to hunt up the cows and when you think you won't find them before dark you hear a bell and there they come out of a hollow along the path around the hill at the edge of the cleared line, one behind the other, and not a bit of hurry in them and that look in their eyes while they flick their tails and chew and ease along to the shed to be milked."

They went on again without words. They could hear Cynthia in the next room.

"Sparrel."

"Yes."

"I was thinking about Cynthia. She's eighteen. I'd just turned seventeen when you rode up to the gate and stared at me with my dress full of chips."

"You were taller than Cynthia."

"I didn't know much about books, Sparrel, like you do."

"There are better things for a woman than books, Julia. You know the way of a house and a family."

"A body can know both, Sparrel; and not be hurt by it. Cynthia's done all the books at the school and yours lots of times, and I reckon she knows as much about a house and family as I do myself. She ought to have a winter at books over at the Pikeville Institute."

"She keeps breaking up the clods and pounding at them until she has out every one that's bigger than a swallow's egg. She is pretty, Mother is."

"She was a whole lot purtier when she was eighteen than I am. She was taller and straighter and her hair was brown and her teeth whiter. Will I be standing in the wood-lot with a dress full of pine chips when a man comes riding up Wolfpen? I'll know him the minute I set eyes on him, just like Mother knew Daddy. I just stood there, Cynthia, and gawked right at him with my mouth gaping open, I reckon. He had ridden all the way from Wolfpen down to Scioto to see his sister, your Aunt Rachel. He was tall and straight, and his beard was silky and flax-colored. I just stared like an owl surprised by a light. He pulled up his horse right in front of the gate and his blue eyes looked agape at me. Then he said, 'You're the purtiest sight I ever saw in my born days.'" Then I looked down, reddening to the roots of my hair, and saw me holding my dress up full of chips. I was so plagued I could have crawled in a pin-hole. I dropped the chips and ran like a scared rabbit back to the kitchen and looked back from the curtained window. He sat there on his big bay horse in a trance, and then rode on at a gallop to your Aunt Rachel's. And that's the first time I ever saw Sparrel Pattern."

"Some day he'll come riding up Wolfpen here on a bay mare that's fifteen to the books she had missed. They did not communicate any more in words but in a harmonious silence which united their separate bodies. Before the late moon could get through the window, they and all their household were fallen asleep in the night quiet of Wolfpen.

CHAPTER III

The simple pattern of life designed so long ago on Wolfpen was again carrying the family easily into the work of the new season. There was a sense of peace and certainty which came from this yearly repetition of an old routine established by successive generations of men.

Cynthia sat in the sun-flooded weaving-room by the wooden loom which Ivis had made and Sparrel had improved, weaving her unworled thoughts into the blue cashmere twill growing into dress goods under her fingers as she tossed the shuttle and worked the treadle and the beating sley.

"Shed, pick, beat; step two threads right; shed, pick, beat. Yellow in the harness, blue in the shuttle. Shed, pick, beat. Plung to the left, plunge to the right. ... Planting time is a good time, even when a body sits at a loom. You can look over the long porch where the honeysuckle awning will arch above the steps, and across the gray palings at the corner of the wood-lot and Mother's garden, and over the roof of the corn-crib and the cider mill and tan-bark shed, above the sea of peach tree buds, and the spring-tangled green of the willows, and then a little way up the hill is Jesse plowing. Maybe by tomorrow I can help with the planting. Daddy and the boys out in the bottoms and on the cleared edges of the hills with the mules turning over the rich soil, getting ready for me to drop the thick wax beans into the hills of corn and watch them lie there, pink and lavender and purple striped beads by the side of the yellow grains of corn. Covering them over with a brown blanket of earth and saying to them: 'Shut your eyes and go to sleep for a short spell, but don't fail to wake up with the sun when it is morning.'"

"There'll be sugar-cane growing up like hearth brooms for thick brown sorghum, and big potatoes in Barn Hollow, and long yellow sweet potatoes in House Field, and peaches and apples for drying and to make butter of, and peas for preserves in Mother's spiced earthenware jars, and each bottom and hollow will be full of its own special crop, all because we plant seeds in the spring, and the earth is alive."

"Outside, the hollow was full of life and sound as it always was, as it always had been in the spring; the chickens in the barnyard, the scream of the hawks darting across the hollow, the liquid notes of nesting cardinals, the dolorous cooing of doves in the tulip trees—all the sounds not meant for death stretching back through the years her family had been here, back into the past when Indians camped on the Pinnacle and deer came to lick salt below the orchard in Wolfpen Bottoms."

"There's Mother going into her garden. How she loves to pull a hoe through the ground and rake it alive into beds of parsnips and radishes and beets and lettuce, and build up little mounds exactly a hoe handle apart for muskmelons, and arranging everything according to its height in the sun and its shadow's length and decorating all the edges with flowers. It's like weaving a patterned blanket."

Passing slowly along a row, Julia framed herself in the window before Cynthia. She stooped in a graceful arc, bending to the hoe. Cynthia waved her hand to the bubble of joy that was within her.

"She keeps breaking up the clods and pounding at them until she has out every one that's bigger than a swallow's egg. She is pretty, Mother is."

"She was a whole lot purtier when she was eighteen than I am. She was taller and straighter and her hair was brown and her teeth whiter. Will I be standing in the wood-lot with a dress full of pine chips when a man comes riding up Wolfpen? I'll know him the minute I set eyes on him, just like Mother knew Daddy. I just stood there, Cynthia, and gawked right at him with my mouth gaping open, I reckon. He had ridden all the way from Wolfpen down to Scioto to see his sister, your Aunt Rachel. He was tall and straight, and his beard was silky and flax-colored. I just stared like an owl surprised by a light. He pulled up his horse right in front of the gate and his blue eyes looked agape at me. Then he said, 'You're the purtiest sight I ever saw in my born days.'" Then I looked down, reddening to the roots of my hair, and saw me holding my dress up full of chips. I was so plagued I could have crawled in a pin-hole. I dropped the chips and ran like a scared rabbit back to the kitchen and looked back from the curtained window. He sat there on his big bay horse in a trance, and then rode on at a gallop to your Aunt Rachel's. And that's the first time I ever saw Sparrel Pattern."

The days were growing longer over Wolfpen Hollows. Cynthia spoke about it, watching the long shadows going before the blaze of sun into the timber earlier in the morning, and coming out later in the afternoon. She was in the fields for the planting. She loved to sense the changing moods of a day from the cool vigor of the early morning, through the slowed pace under the hot sun of noon, then the ebb and drowsiness of the first hour after dinner, the dreamy relaxation and fatigue in the afternoon, the tired joy of the end of day and the smell of the damp and the plowed bottom-land as she walked back to the house through the dusk.

She liked best the long silence of the afternoon when the teams were scattered with her menfolk among the fields, near enough to be seen, far enough not to affect the moment around her. Then there was a whispering in the timber on one slope of the hollow, and an answering rustle from the opposite hillside. She thought of what the trees were saying and saw that the shadows which came silently out of the woods and hurried across the bottoms were the fingers of tulip trees which would soon be scattering honeysweet brown dust from their bursting hearts' core.

Then there was a whispering in the timber on one slope of the hollow, and an answering rustle from the opposite hillside. She thought of what the trees were saying and saw that the shadows which came silently out of the woods and hurried across the bottoms were the fingers of tulip trees which would soon be scattering honeysweet brown dust from their bursting hearts' core.

While Cynthia was watching the quiet movements of Sparrel plowing on Wolfpen, Shellenberger was debarking from the noisy wharf-boat at Catlettsburg at the mouth of the Big Sandy where the river packet Ventura had just landed from Pittsburgh. He got through the piles of sacks and barrels and rolls of wire on the wharf and bank, and walked up the hill to the water-front. There he paused for a minute to look down at the two rivers coming together to form the tri-state view of Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio.

The mood was different when she worked with some one, and at its best when she helped Jesse set out the sweet-potato plants. That time now came, and when toward three o'clock in the afternoon the sun was far enough toward the Pinnacle not to wither the plants, she went up to House Field where Jesse was building the ridges and leveling off the tops with a rake.

"Putting out the sweet-potato plants is about the best part of planting," she said, removing her shoes and letting her feet taste the soft warmth of the yielding ground.

They went to the hotbeds near the patch. They carefully pulled off the sturdy sprouts for planting and laid them roots down in a shallow basket. Then Cynthia dropped them at ten-inch intervals on the top of the ridge, and poured a gourd of water on their roots in the hole Jesse had made with his long fingers.

Cynthia filled the process with a delicate mystery, imagining that she was taking live people from dark beds where they were crowding one another to death, in the great cities she had read about, and giving them space to breathe in the sunlight and a place for their roots in the ground.

When they had done with the last row, and the sun had been behind the mountain so long a time that the dark was coming again, Jesse remained on his knees at the last plant, rubbing his hands and picking idly at the dirt on his nails. Cynthia was flicking off the sand from her feet and pulling on her shoes.

"Cynthia."

"What is it, Jesse?"

"Do you like this, Cynthia?"

"Do I like what?"

"Just being here all the time this way, planting, and tending, and looking after stock, and laying in grub and wood for the winter, over and over the same thing?"

"Why, yes, Jesse; whatever else could a body do, anyway? I could live here forever and ever. It's about the best place in the world, I reckon, to live in."

"I know; it's a good place, and it ain't that I don't like it exactly. But I'd like to be something."

"Be something?"

"Yes. Be something. Live in a town and have a profession. I don't want to just go on on a place where everything is all done and fixed up by Dad and Granddad and the rest of them. I don't see why Jasper and Abrel can't go on with the place if they like, and I'd be something like."

"A doctor like Daddy?"

"No. I want to be a lawyer, Cynthia, and have an office, and plead cases over at town. I read some about them in the Gazette, and I know Tandy Morgan over at town, and I've listened some to the trials over there on court days. I think I could do it."

"Do you suppose Daddy would let you go away?"

"I don't know, but I've about made up my mind to try this winter, anyhow, when things are slack about the place."

"Does it take real money to read law, Jesse?"

"Some. I been thinking about that too. I'm going to dig ginseng roots this fall, and I ought to get a price for my steer when the drovers come through, and I think I ought to get to try it a winter."

"I'd like to have a winter at books in the Institute, but I don't guess I'd ever get to."

"What would you do with it after you had it?"

"Oh, I'd just like to know things and not be so book ignorant."

"You know about a place, and you know enough about just books for a girl."

She knew how he meant that well to her and she kept it silently for a time. Then she said, "I wouldn't want to see you go away, Jesse. It wouldn't be the same with you gone, but it would be nice for you to read the law if you have that want. Maybe I could go for a while. Let's ask."

"Not just yet, it's too soon. After the crops get laid by, maybe."

There was a pause in words, each one thinking forward in his own way. Then the notes of the supper bell came, and they walked slowly home through the dusk.

CHAPTER IV

While Cynthia was watching the quiet movements of Sparrel plowing on Wolfpen, Shellenberger was debarking from the noisy wharf-boat at Catlettsburg at the mouth of the Big Sandy where the river packet Ventura had just landed from Pittsburgh. He got through the piles of sacks and barrels and rolls of wire on the wharf and bank, and walked up the hill to the water-front. There he paused for a minute to look down at the two rivers coming together to form the tri-state view of Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio.

The little town at the junction of the rivers and three states was bustling with activity. It was the gateway to the Big Sandy Valley. All produce for the new and growing towns up the river came down the Ohio from Pittsburgh or up the river from Cincinnati, and poured itself out on the wharf at Catlettsburg. Shellenberger stood watching the negroes hustle great loads of flour and coffee and salt from the bow of the Ventura.

A few rafts of logs were tied to the willows above the town. Some men were fishing from them. Heavy fleets of coal barges were moving slowly into view from behind the sharp wedge of West Virginia down the Ohio.

"Looks good enough," Shellenberger thought, turning away from it, and going into Sherry Gordon's saloon. The saloon was crowded with rough men from the boats and the mining towns. A friendly-looking hill man was leaning over the rail at the end of the bar. Shellenberger spoke to him and got a hospitable answer.

"Have a beer with me," Shellenberger said.

"Sure. Make it a whisky."

They drank and commented on the spring weather.

"Where you from?" the man asked.

"Pittsburgh."

"A feller could see you didn't come from no place about here. Where you headin' for?"

"Pike County," Shellenberger said.

"You goin' way up there? It's a long ways from here."

"How's the best way to get up there?"

"They ain't no best way, mister. They's only one way withouten you aim to walk. You take the C. & O. from here up to Richardson. That's as far as she goes. You ketch a boat up there and it takes you on up to Pike."

Shellenberger bought drinks again, and then went outside, following the main street back toward the hill to the railroad station. The Big Sandy train was crowded to the baggage car with curious men from the new towns and the mines up the river. They seemed to belong to a different race from Shellenberger—or Sparrel Pattern. Several of them were happily drunk.

Shellenberger in his neat gray tailored suit and polished shoes sat among them aloof but observing. After a while he sat by one who looked more intelligent, inquiring carefully about the work these men did, their wages, the number of surplus men who had wandered into the valley without a steady job. Many of them, he learned, belonged to the poor lower-river towns above Catlettsburg, where they picked up a few dollars around the mines.

The new railroad followed the Big Sandy back into the hills. Shellenberger sat by the window observing with particular interest the width and current of the river below him, appraising the rafts that were coming down from the timber-lands and the rafts-men who were straining mightily at the long oars to get the logs around the sharp bends without breaking up or grounding on the sand-bars. The train passed coal mines at whose base a depressing debris of hovels huddled darkly together. The hillsides, already deflowered of their timber, exposed naked ridges to the sun. Whole families of conventional hill type were out in the bottoms plowing and digging.

The railroad ended about fifty miles up the river at Richardson. Shellenberger and the remaining dozen passengers now got off and had lunch at the only restaurant before going down to the wharf. A half-hour after the train was in, the boat whistled for all those who were going on up the river.

"You're going on by boat?" Shellenberger asked of a tall black-hatted man tramping in long strides toward the wharf.

"Yes," Amos Barnes said, "We're right lucky to have a good boat stage. Takes longer by hack."

They walked on down to the log wharf.

Cincinnati's Name Once Nearly Unpronounceable

Extremely sentimental people regret we have not more Indian names, and they point as examples to such lovely Indian words as Piqua, Scioto, Miami and Erie. But Cincinnati is fortunate that the old Indian name did not stick. The Hurons called Cincinnati Tuentahewaghta, which is really almost a sentence in itself. It means a landing place, or where the trail leaves the water. They called the Ohio Ohezuyandauwa; that is, something great.

If Cincinnati had been obliged to labor under any such many-syllabled word as Tuent and the rest of it, it would have been in a sad way. Col. John Johnson, who for forty years prior to 1840 was an Indian agent, is the authority for the Indian names just quoted. He had lived with the Indians for years, was familiar with their language, and there can be no doubt of his correctness.

Where now is the city's Broadway there was in Indian days a trail that led to the Great Lakes, running almost due north. Very likely it went back to the days of the mound builders. The old Cincinnati took its name because it was there the Indians, who came up the Licking or who were on the Ohio, left the water to begin their inland journey.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Captivating Frock; Unusual Pockets

Pattern No. 1916-B

This clever dress features a flattering yoke which dips to a point in front and is equipped with twin slashes a few inches below the neckline to accommodate a ribbon bow of any color you wish to use. Most women like several different ones to which they match their accessories. Radiating tucks at the yoke and waist contribute a smooth fit and flattering effect, while center seams in front and back terminate in two kick pleats for reserved fullness where it will do the most good. The pointed pockets with shaped turned over flaps are novel. You'll want to make more than one dress, because the pattern is so easy to follow and the fabrics so numerous to choose from. How about seersucker, novelty cotton, linen, crash or silk.

BY PLANE TO THE SOUTH SEAS

Harbor and U. S. Naval Station at Pago Pago, Samoa. This is a Stop on the United States-New Zealand Air Line.

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

THERE is a quiet but persistent search being made for unattached islands in the South Pacific by several nations. Air navigation is the reason.

In the vast water area lying between the Hawaiian Islands on the north and New Zealand on the south there are several thousand unclaimed islands, most of them mere dots in a great ocean. They are coral reefs, uninhabited, and considered valueless until recently. Now several of them have become the subject of international argument, and the objective of secret pioneering expeditions.

The nations most interested in acquiring islands in the South Seas are the United States, England, Japan and Australia, with France not averse to picking up a few for possible future use. Each nation is seeking possible landing places for planes.

For much more than a century Hawaii has been considered the crossroads of the Pacific. It was a stopping place for the American clipper ships from Boston around the Horn and on to China and return. It was the refitting place for American whalers and traders in the early years of the last century. As the commerce of the Pacific increased, Honolulu grew in importance as a port of call, until today nearly 1,000 ships enter its harbor each year. Great Pacific liners from San Francisco and Los Angeles ply to and from the islands. Other liners stop on their way from California ports to Australia, New Zealand and other South Sea islands, as do others from California and other mainland ports to the Philippines, to Japan, to China and around the world. Ships from Europe and eastern American ports, bound for the Far East through the Panama Canal, stop at Honolulu. The islands have been, and are, the crossroads of the Pacific so far as shipping is concerned. You realize all that as you stand atop the Punch Bowl in Honolulu and follow the directions of the arrows pointing to the far cities of the nations, north, south, east and west, bordering this greatest of oceans.

And now to ships there has been added airplanes, the clipper ships of the air, with Hawaii at the crossroads of the air lines.

Race for Bases Starts

Because the American flag flew over two small islands, Midway and Wake, west of Hawaii an American air line to the Far East, to the Philippines and China, was made possible.

Last year Japan established an air service between its mandated islands in the Pacific, and is seeking bases that will make possible a line between Tokyo and South America, a line neither England nor America would wish to see established.

Within the past few months the Japs made an effort to secure Kingman Reef, a coral atoll with a harbor formed by a coral reef, situated about 900 miles south of the Hawaiian Islands. It is American owned, included within the municipal boundaries of Honolulu, and the American owner, a resident of Honolulu, did not sell.

In this race for islands the latest American pioneers are a group of Hawaiian school boys led by Dr. Dana Coman, who colonized Jarvis, Baker and Howland Islands and so established American sovereignty, which has now been recognized by England.

Establish New Air Line

The purpose of it all was the establishment of another American air line from San Francisco to New Zealand, with Honolulu as the first port out of San Francisco. That new line, a contract for which has been signed between Pan-American Airways and the government of New Zealand, is to be in operation by the end of this year. The route is from San Francisco to Honolulu, then to Kingman Reef, which the Japs did not get, to Pago Pago, the American island of the Samoas, and to Auckland. American Sikorsky clipper ships will be used, and a maximum requirement is for two ships each way each week.

Other American air routes in the South Pacific are being considered. If it is possible to secure landing privileges for American planes in Australia, a line will be established between Honolulu and Sydney, using as bases the islands of Jarvis, Baker or Howland. Jarvis Island is on the equator and is the geographical center of the Pacific. These islands are located on the airplane route to Australia and are in positions that lend them a value in relation to flying to that continent that is comparable to Wake on the road to China which provided a stopping place between Midway and Guam.

It long has been a recognized fact that Britain as well as the United States has laid claim to these islands. When the conference on Pacific relations was being set up in Washington in 1922, the United States War department made a map for its use. That map showed Jarvis, Howland and Baker and marked them as being claimed by both Britain and the United States. The Department of Commerce now asserts that there is no question of American ownership, based on residence on the islands from time to time by Americans who were in the guano business. If there is question of ownership the present occupation by representatives of the United States government is expected to establish its claim.

Visits Jarvis Island

William T. Miller, Superintendent of Airways for the Bureau of Air Commerce, recently visited these islands. He reports that Jarvis Island, 1,500 miles due south from American "Colonists" in the Equatorial Pacific.

Hawaii—which U. S. outpost must be the primary base of all air routes in the Pacific—is suitable as an all way landing field for land planes or amphibians. A safe seaplane anchorage can be made on the lee of the island. Two areas on Howland and others on Baker, which are 1,700 miles southwest of Honolulu, can be made usable through the expenditure of small sums of money.

These islands offer alternate routes to the South Pacific. Jarvis is more directly on the route from Hawaii to New Zealand, while Baker and Howland point straight toward Australia.

As Honolulu is today the principal port in the long flight from San Francisco to Manila, so Pago Pago, the beautiful Samoan island and harbor belonging to America, will be the principal port on the long flight from Honolulu to Auckland. Its landlocked and commodious harbor affords an ideal landing place for the ships of the air, as it has for the ships of the water.

When within a few months the new clipper ships of the air begin their flights, made possible to a large extent by the pioneering of a group of Hawaiian school boys, they will bring us within hailing distance of the beauty and the romance, the adventure of our dreams—the South Seas.

A brief description of these new island outposts for American air-planes follows:

Kingman Reef

Latitude 6:25 north, longitude 162: approximately 922 miles south of Honolulu. It is of atoll character, of triangular shape, with base to the southward and apex to the north. Within the 100-fathom line it is 9-12 miles long east and west by 5 miles north and south. It dries at low water on its northeastern, eastern and southeastern edges; at the western extreme there is a patch of 4 fathoms, and possibly less, on which the sea breaks occasionally. The remainder is encircled by a ridge with depths of 4 to 10 fathoms, between which are soundings of 14 to 45 fathoms. Outside this ridge the bank falls suddenly to depths of 300 to 400 fathoms.

Jarvis Island

Approximately on the equator and the 160th meridian; 1,375 sea miles, 1,575 land miles, slightly west-of-south of Honolulu. A "sandy flat" of coral formation, 1.7 square miles in area.

The island was supposed to have been discovered by Capt. Brown in the English ship Eliza Francis, 1821. Surveyed by officers of U. S. S. St. Mary's, 1857. Annexed to Great Britain, 1889. Leased to Pacific Phosphate Company of London and Melbourne, 1906. Occupied by U. S. colonists from Honolulu, 1935 and American jurisdiction now acknowledged.

Howland Island

Latitude 0:49 north; longitude 176: 43 west; 36 sea miles (approximately 40 land miles) north of Baker Island, 1,620 sea miles (approximately 1,860 land miles) southwest of Honolulu. About two miles long north and south and 1-2 mile wide; from 18 to 20 feet high; of coral formation, with a fringing reef. Water found by digging a few feet; it is slightly brackish.

The island appears to have been first reported by Capt. George E. Netcher, of New Bedford, as discovered September 9, 1842. Alfred G. Benson, American Guano Company of New York and Charles H. Judd of Honolulu took possession February 5, 1857 "by erecting a house and pole, putting up American flag and leaving various implements of business."

It was leased by Great Britain to Pacific Islands Company at one time but United States sovereignty was established in 1935.

Baker Island

Latitude 0:13:20 north; longitude 176:33 west, about 1,650 sea miles, approximately 1,895 land miles, southwest of Honolulu. Of coral formation, about 20 feet high and almost bare of vegetation, except patches of grass. About one mile long east and west, 1500 yards wide, surrounded by a reef 200 to 400 feet wide, awash at low water. There is no fresh water on the island.

The island was discovered by Captain H. Foster, barque Jamaica. Taken by U. S. 1857. Capt. John Paty, Hawaiian schooner Lihohilo, reported to R. C. Wylie, minister of interior, Hawaiian kingdom, visiting island February 12, 1857, and that it had been "taken possession of under American flag by A. Benson, agent of American Guano Company." David L. Gregg, U. S. commissioner to Hawaii, reported to state department, 1857, that Alfred J. Benson of American Guano Company of New York, and Charles H. Judd of Honolulu sailed with Capt. Paty in that year and that formal notice of possession was left at Jarvis, Howland and Baker islands.

Lesson for August 9

SAUL CONVERTED AND COMMISSIONED

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-9, 17-19; 1 Timothy 1:12-14. GOLDEN TEXT—I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26:19. PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Becomes Jesus' Friend. JUNIOR TOPIC—On the Road to Damascus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Appointed for Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—After Conversion, What?

The conversion of Saul of Tarsus is one of the outstanding events of Bible history. It presents one of the strongest evidences of the truth of the Christian faith, for only on the ground of regeneration can we account for the change in Saul's life, and only on the assurance that he met the Living and Risen Christ can we account for his conversion.

As our lesson opens we find the brilliant, zealous, young Jew, Saul, as:

I. A Bold Persecutor (9:1, 2).

He was "yet breathing out threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord." The death of the godly Stephen had only increased his determination to wipe out those who were "of this way"—the followers of the One who is "the way." But as he carries letters from the high priest to Damascus which would authorize him to imprison them, he meets the Christ whom he persecutes and he becomes

II. A Convicted Sinner (vv. 3-9).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he finds himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He hears from his holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people—"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands, or untrue accusation upon God's children had best beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with his people that when they suffer, it is he who bears the hurt.

In a single sentence the Lord disposes of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul enters into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished at his own sin. He spends three days shut in with his own soul and God, not seeing, not caring to eat, losing all consciousness of earth, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life is pulled up by the roots as it is displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus. And now God is ready to send his servant Ananias to address Paul as

III. A Converted Brother (vv. 17-19).

The fears of Ananias that Saul might still be a worker of evil (v. 13) are soon overcome by God's assurance that in the praying Saul he had prepared for himself "a chosen vessel" (v. 15) to bear the gospel to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to the children of Israel. Let us not fail to note carefully that the greatest of all Christian leaders, the apostle Paul, was led out into his life of loyalty and service to Christ by a humble layman. Repeatedly God's Word by precept and example stresses the vital importance of personal work on the part of lay men and women. The leaders of Christian work during the coming generation are now in the Sunday School classes of our churches, perhaps in a little wayside chapel in the country, in the village church, in the mission or settlement house.

Saul knew nothing of that subtle hypocrisy known as being "a secret believer," for at once he made open confession of his faith in baptism, and "Straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues that he is the Son of God" (v. 20). He became indeed

IV. A Mighty Preacher (1 Tim. 1:12-14).

In this passage Paul is writing to his son in the faith, Timothy, about thirty-four years after his conversion. As he looks back over the years he forgets the trials and sorrows, the beating with rods, the shipwrecks, the bitter disappointment over false brethren (Read II Cor. 11:23-28). He remembers only the matchless grace of God that showed mercy toward a blasphemer and persecutor, and counted him faithful, appointing him with "his service."

Paul summarizes that which we know to have been the great life of the world's mightiest preacher by attributing it all in true humility to "the grace of our Lord" which "abounded exceedingly with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." For to him "to live was Christ" (Phil. 1:21).

The films of travel, which carry the vision around the world and back again have vastly broadened the horizons of millions of people, and in that respect have proved to be of high value.

The opportunities of most people for seeing the world are very limited.

The average person in small towns and country places has a very dim idea of the length and breadth of the world, or of the people who live in places remote from him.

Today almost every boy and girl can tell you of the Taj Mahal, or of the Desert of Sahara, or the peaks of the Andes, or of life in remote cities like London, Paris and Constantinople.

Mr. Shakespeare informs us that "home-keeping youth have ever homely wits."

But "homely wits," hardly exist when practically all the people of all the civilized countries of the world can, by paying a small price for a seat in a cinema theater look "round the world and back again."

"The camera man has completely replaced the men who used to go forth and view the world and bring home pictures of it to be thrown on a still screen."

From your seat in a theater you can view the Eskimo catching a seal which will provide him with his supper and an overcoat, with a good clear glance at the peaks of the Alps or the Andes, or at "Elephants a pilin' teak" in Burmah.

Minds feed on what the eyes see.

Wherever there is anything worth seeing the camera goes.

Loving their work, and eager to bring home pictures of all the known world, these daredevils of the films are never daunted by obstacles, or by dangers.

To me it has always been astonishing that every school room in every city and village and town has not long ago been provided with cameras and screens to aid the children in their work.

Not only would they vastly broaden the view of many sections of the world, but they could, I should think, be tremendously useful in teaching such subjects as biology and zoology.

An intelligent teacher provided with a moving picture projector and a stock of films would never lack the earnest attention of her pupils.

Even pictures which only incidentally show the streets of foreign cities would be valuable. What they would do if wisely used would prove a marvel.

"It" in Other Words

A movie star is attractive, says Dr. W. A. Nicholl, a Beverly Hills (Ill.) physician, because he or she possesses "Psychogenic, or psychometric perception, or psychometric conflicting magnetism, or psychogenic positive magnetism." That, he said, is what Elinor Glyn called "it."

"To insure SAFETY, COMFORT and ON-TIME SCHEDULES for our 30,000,000 PASSENGERS, Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES are used on Greyhound Buses"

Says C. E. Wickman, President, Greyhound Corporation, world's largest highway transportation system

FOLLOW the lead of big tire users who buy only on proof of performance.

Last year Greyhound buses traveled 138,000,000 miles from Coast to Coast and from Canada to the Gulf across deserts and over winding mountain roads.

They have won the National Safety Council's highest award in inter-city bus operation for the past four years. This is indeed a tribute to careful driving, efficient equipment and the reserve safety of Firestone Tires made possible by the Firestone Patented Process of Gum-Dipping which prevents internal friction and heat.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires run up to 28° cooler and give greatest blowout protection—the scientifically designed non-skid tread will stop your car up to 25% quicker and give you 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Take no chances! Buy your tires on proof of performance. See your nearby Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store or Firestone Dealer and equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the Masterpiece of Tire Construction!

FOR 25% LONGER TIRE MILEAGE EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH Firestone SEALTYE TUBES

A special compound on inside of tube seals the inner surface against leakage. By maintaining a constant air pressure, Firestone SealTYE Tubes will increase your tire mileage 25%.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH OF HALE
K. W. Vertz, Pastor
Sunday, August 9—Divine services at 10:00 a. m. Sermon: "Come, Follow Me! The Savior Spoke!"
Sunday School and Instructions at 11:00 a. m.

The church, dear reader, is vitally interested in you. Why? Not because it wants to "rope you in" or "put one over on you," but because it has an utterly unselfish desire to confer upon you an infinitely precious and eternal benefit. Therefore come, hear and learn of this gift; yes, take it—it is yours for the asking.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, HALE
Herbert E. Davis, Pastor
Sunday School, 10:45 a. m.; Worship and Sermon, 8:00 p. m. Sermon topic: Lift Up Your Heads.

Let us turn our minds to thoughts of worship. Worship is a public demonstration—social for we join with others, religious for we worship God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, special for it belongs to the sanctuary. Ask yourself the question, "How do I worship God?" Then come and join with us at 8:00 p. m. Sunday, next Sunday, and every Sunday. If you are in our community on vacation we welcome you to our service. Close the quiet of a country Sabbath with an hour of evening worship with us.

on an error. Bentley's lone tally was scored in the sixth inning.

Mallon, provided with a huge lead and given excellent support by his mates, had little trouble in subduing the visitors. He struck out 12 men and issued but one base on balls.

Wasalaski was the only Bentley player able to solve Bill's offerings. He had a perfect day with the stick, getting three singles in three official times at bat, and accounted for half of his team's hits.

The locals will journey to Prescott for next Sunday's game.
