Gripping Drama Laid In Modern War-Torn China

A gripping drama of intrigue, romance and adventure, "The General Died at Dawn," which will be shown at the Rivola Theatre, Tawas City, on Sunday and Monday, October 18 and 19, brings Gary Cooper to the screen in another colorful soldier-of-fortune role.

With modern China as its background, the plot of "The General Died at Dawn" revolves around the awakening of China to the oppressions of her predatory warlords and the beginnings of a spirit of resistance. Cooper, as the champion of the down-trodden, is in the ranks of the new movement. Playing opposite him is beautiful Madeleine Carroll in the role of the lure held out by a warlord to lead Cooper to destruction.

"The General Died at Dawn" is the thrilling story of a love that blooms between a man to whom danger is life and the girl who was paid to get him out of the way. Having trapped him she soon finds herself enmeshed in the same web. Remorse causes her to offer her life for the freedom of the man she loves. In a thrilling climax the pair snatch happiness and love from the very jaws of death and save the cause to which the man had dedicated his life.

The West Branch Tigers were officially declared winners of the NorthEastern Michigan league baseball title at a meeting of league officials held at Standish Tuesday night. Presentation of the trophy was made at that time to E. L. Millard, director of the West Branch team.

In winning the league title, West Branch compiled the fine record of 17 games won out of 21 contests played. Edgar McPhee was manager of the club during the past season.

The Marshall Packing company team of Bay City was runner-up for the title. The Bay Cityans won 14 games while losing five. Twining was third with 14 victories and six losses.

At Tuesday's meeting the following league officers were elected for the 1937 season: E. L. Millard of West Branch, president; Asa Whiting of Standish, Merle Shell of Gladwin and Edgar McPhee of West Branch, vice-presidents; F. E. Periberg of Standish, secretary; and Theodore Reichle of AuGres, treasurer.

Luedtke--Diehl

Miss Irmgard Luedtke, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George T. Luedtke of Toledo, Ohio, and Rev. Walter Diehl, son of Rev. and Mrs. Henry Diehl of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, were united in marriage in the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church of Toledo, Ohio. The fathers of the bride and groom read the marriage service at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, October 10, before an audience of eight hundred people.

The wedding march was played by John Gehm of Toledo, Ohio, and a member of the Lutheran choir sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Paul Luedtke, brother of the bride, assisted Rev. Diehl as best man, and Miss Margaret Diehl, sister of the groom, assisted Miss Luedtke as maid of honor. Joan Zache of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, was flower girl.

A large reception at the bride's home followed the ceremony. Out of town guests who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Benz and family of Ann Arbor, Miss Peggy Waack of Lansing, Enno Schrafft of Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Eino Haglund and family of East Tawas, and Mrs. H. Bauer and family of Ann Arbor.

Rev. and Mrs. Diehl left after the reception for an extended trip, after which they will reside in Elkhorn, Wisconsin, where Rev. Diehl will resume his duties as pastor.

First Meeting of P.-T. A. Held Last Thursday

The first meeting of the P.-T. A. was held Thursday evening of last week in the high school assembly room with the new president, Mrs. Orville Westcott, presiding.

During the business meeting a new secretary, Miss Doris Boone, was elected to succeed her predecessor, the former Miss Mackie.

It was voted that the association purchase the P.-T. A. magazine. Mrs. King, as chairman of the award committee, presented a fine report suggesting that the award for attendance this year be a flag which at the close of the year be given to the primary room. The report was unanimously approved and accepted.

Proposed Amendments Would Practically Destroy Local Government and Wreck Education

The voters of Michigan will vote upon four proposed amendments to the state constitution at the general election, November third. The school is particularly interested in numbers three and four, as their acceptance would do much to destroy local government and wreck public education.

Proposed amendment number three has been submitted by the Taxpayers Protective Association of Detroit. It would abolish the sales tax on certain food articles and prepared meals. Sales tax accountants estimate that it would cost $1,000,000 annually. (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Emanuel Lutheran Church

K. W. Vertz, Vacancy Pastor
Sunday, October 18—Divine services at 7:00 p. m. in the English language.

Whoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven. But whoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven." When Jesus spoke, he meant every word that he said; so let's take him at his word.

Tawas City Couple Will Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Osborne of Prescott. Mr. Osborne worked in the lumber woods for C. H. Prescott and Sons, and later became foreman for H. M. Loud and Sons for two years. They then moved back to Prescott where he worked in the grist mill as engineer for Barney Mills and Company. They purchased the German farm and cleared the land and built their home there.

Mr. Osborne has held several township offices and took an active part in politics and church activities. Both are members of the Tawas City M. E. church.

Retiring from farm life they moved to Tawas City in 1919 where they have since resided. They have two children, one son, Arley, who lives on the old farm at Prescott, and one daughter, Mrs. G. W. Gilroy of Rose City, and six grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne have been good citizens, standing for the things that were upright and for betterment of the communities.

Will Discuss Proposed Amendments At Meeting Next Thursday Evening

A citizens' meeting will be held at the school building next Thursday evening, October 22, at 8:15 o'clock. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the four proposed amendments to the Michigan constitution which will be voted upon November 3. Attorney H. Read Smith has consented to lead the discussion. These proposed amendments are vital to the interests of the state, and a good representation should be present. The girls' glee club and the high school band will furnish music for the occasion.

Deer and Game Bird Foods Will Be Planted In Forest

Planting trees for timber is not the only reason for planting on the Huron National Forest. This year for the first time deer and game bird foods are being raised in the nursery and will be planted in the forest, according to Supervisor Murphy.

A total of 90,000 mountain ash, Virginia creeper, elderberry, wild grape, bittersweet, red-osier dogwood and Siberian pea trees are being grown for game food. The Siberian pea tree was tried during the past summer and despite the severe drought 60% of the planted trees survived.

For the first time on the forest Virginia creeper, elderberry and wild grape are being raised because their fruits are a valuable addition to the birds' diet.

In addition to making more food available, these plants also offer valuable protection as the vines furnish a thick tangle which is used by birds and rabbits as escape cover.

These plants will be placed in the natural range of the game birds which has been previously determined by game surveys.

M.S.C. RAM TRUCK TO BE IN IOSCO COUNTY OCT. 20

Will Display 40 to 60 Rams At Clarence Earl Farm Next Tuesday

The Michigan State College ram truck will be at the Clarence Earl farm, known as the old Joseph Brabant farm, one-half mile north of the John McArdle gas station, Hemlock road, on Tuesday, October 20, from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m.

This truck is made available through the Michigan State College Animal Husbandry Extension department and the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association. The truck carries from 40 to 60 purebred rams of the leading Michigan breeds and rams selected from the leading purebred flocks of Michigan.

If you will be needing a different ram this fall, load your old ram in the back of the car and attend the meeting Tuesday afternoon. You may trade your old purebred ram in on a new one, or perhaps you will be able to trade with some other farmer who has a ram that you like.

Delmer H. LaVoi, animal husbandry extension specialist, who is in charge of the truck, will assist in choosing rams that are suitable for flocks of various types and breeding. He will also discuss proper feeding and management practices for the ewe flock during the fall and winter months.

In addition to the displaying of these rams, Bert Hoben of the Michigan Livestock Exchange, Detroit, will conduct a lamb grading demonstration. He will point out the various market grades of lambs and explain why these lambs fall into their respective grades and price levels.

If you are interested in the promotion of better sheen for Iosco county, plan to attend this meeting next Tuesday afternoon.

Hotel Holland Will Give Entire Banquet Receipts to Park Board

The entire receipts of a banquet which will be held Tuesday evening, November 3, at the Hotel Holland will be used to decorate the Community house in the State park at East Tawas. This was made possible through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stasinos, genial hosts at the Hotel Holland. One hundred twenty-five tickets will be offered to citizens of the community by the Park Board.

The banquet will be held at 6:30 in the evening. Warren T. Murphy will be in charge of the program. The tickets will be one dollar each and may be procured at the desk of the hotel. Because there will be only 125 tickets sold, it will be necessary to reserve your tickets now.

Barkman Store Joins Buyers Association

By invitation of the membership committee of the Michigan Buyers Association, Harris Barkman was their guest at a meeting in Pontiac on Tuesday, after which a banquet was held in Bloomfield Hills.

This organization is composed solely of furniture dealers of the better stores throughout Michigan. It has been organized several years and has a membership of 21 at the present time. The aim of the association is, that through the co-operation of its members and their exchange of ideas they are able to present to the public the better values in merchandise. Through this medium the dealers have the advantage of each other's experiences and in that way can serve their customers in the best manner possible.

The Barkman Outfitting company feels proud of the fact that it has been chosen to join this organization.

Family Books Gigantic Picture, "Anthony Adverse"

Hervey Allen's monumental literary classic, "Anthony Adverse," brought to the screen with all its wealth of color and dramatic fire, has been booked by Manager Berube for the Family Theatre, East Tawas, where it will have its local premiere on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 18-19-20.

Fredric March has the stellar role, with beautiful and talented Olivia de Havilland playing the leading feminine role.

In order to give this sweeping panoramic story the magnificence and magnitude it merited, Warner Bros. the producers, are said to have spared neither time, nor effort, nor cost. In fact more than two years were spent in preparing the script, in research work to make perfect the atmospheric settings, and in the actual filming of the many and intricate scenes.

There never has been a cast to approach this one in size, and few that will equal it in talent.

The colorful and picturesque backgrounds are set in five countries on three continents.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Mildred Rempert, who passed away October 17, 1934—

October 17 brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest. You will always be remembered by us who loved you best.

Parents, Brothers and Sisters.

An Appreciation

To all who so kindly, generously, and willingly helped us in repairing and redecorating our church—Hemlock Road Baptist—we wish to express our sincere thanks. Also those who helped at the time our Association was held, both with work and donations.

Lewis Doesn't See Peace in Federation of Labor—Russia Resents Fascist Aid Given Spanish Rebels—Mormons All Off Dole.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the A. F. of L., who had just been calling on President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., told the newspapermen that the prospects for peace between the warring factions in the federation were better and that those participating in the controversy were becoming "more temperate."

J. L. Lewis

Kagan's communication made the direct charges that German airplanes reached the Spanish rebels from Germany, that poison gas reached the rebels from Italy, and that Portugal permitted its frontier to be used by the rebels.

Spanish Fascists pushed their lines so closely around Madrid that they called on the government to surrender the capital immediately and thus save it from a destructive bombardment.

The government claimed that an army of loyalist miners had fought its way to the center of Oviedo against the desperate resistance of the rebel defenders.

Gen. Francisco Franco, chief of the insurgents, decreed a Fascist dictatorship and created a "junta of state" which will govern subject to his will.

Gen. Francisco Franco, chief of the insurgents, decreed a Fascist dictatorship and created a "junta of state" which will govern subject to his will.

It had been stated that David Dubinsky, head of one of the suspended unions, had submitted a compromise peace proposal, but Lewis told the correspondents that he knew of no change in feeling between the battling factions; that he had made no move for peace and contemplated none; that the C. I. O. drive to unionize the steel industry was "proceeding satisfactorily" and that the Dubinsky proposal was similar to the one previously offered to and rejected by the A. F. of L. council.

POLITICAL expediency brought about a strange state of affairs in Minnesota. Fred Curtis and Patrick J. Delaney, respectively Democratic gubernatorial and senatorial nominees, withdrew from the race in favor of the Farmer-Labor candidates in return for Farmer-Labor support for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

John E. Regan, the party's 1934 gubernatorial candidate, issued a statement asserting that Minnesota Democrats had traded votes and engineered "coalition of parties" before, but "never has there been an absolute sellout."

Alic Anderson, St. Paul attorney who was the Democratic candidate for attorney-general two years ago, marshaled his followers into the "Democrats-for-Nelson Club."

Joseph Wolf, former national committeeman, and Judge J. D. F. Meighen, state central committee chairman, led that group of Democrats supporting both Farmer-Labor candidates and President Roosevelt.

ATTACKING abuse of the franking privilege, which has been practiced by followers of any and all parties when they got the chance, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan proposes that congress pass legislation that will put a stop to this evil.

When John G. Winant resigned from the social security board, his letter to the President was a strong pro - New Deal document. It was printed by the press bureau of the social security board and franked to a large mailing list, and Senator Vandenberg asked Mr. Winant whether he thought that was a legitimate use of the franking privilege.

Mr. Winant replied promptly that, lest there be any question of the propriety of the matter, he had paid the mailing costs. This attitude was warmly commended by Senator Vandenberg, as it must be by all good citizens.

HELP given the Spanish insurgents by Fascist countries so enraged soviet Russia that she gave notice that, unless it ceased she would free herself from any obligations to the agreement for neutrality. The representatives of the 27 nations on the international committee of non - intervention in the Spanish war were about to meet in London, and Moscow's challenge caused a real sensation.

KURT BJORKVALL, Swedish aviator, made an attempt to fly alone from New York to Stockholm. Thirty-two hours after the start he was picked up from the ocean about one hundred miles off the coast of Ireland. Supposedly he had run short of fuel. The rescue was made by a French trawler. The plane was badly damaged and was abandoned.

SIX months ago the Latter Day Saints church—otherwise the Mormons—instituted a program to make every able bodied member self-supporting by October 1.

In the great tabernacle at Salt Lake City Heber J. Grant, president of the church, told an audience of thousands that the plan had succeeded and that the drive had taken all the needy members off public relief.

The gold value of the lira was placed at 4.677 grams of gold for each 100 lire. Gold reserves of the Bank of Italy will be revalued on the basis of the new lira with the surplus to be placed at the disposition of the treasury.

FRANCE may be on the verge of a civil war between Communists and Fascists comparable to the terrible conflict in Spain. In Paris desperate fighting already has begun. The Reds, numbering many thousands, and the nationalists, under orders from Col. Francois de la Rocque whose Croix de Feu organization was disbanded by the government, undertook rival demonstrations; and the result was a day-long series of street battles in which hundreds were wounded.

In London, also, there was a big riot in which a hundred persons were injured. Sir Oswald Mosley's Black Shirts, a Fascist organization, planned a parade but Communists and Socialists numbering 100,000 were determined to prevent it and battled with a big force of east end police to get at their enemies. The authorities forbade the parade as scheduled but the opposing mobs got together in various localities and fought desperately.

RESIDENTS of Frankfort, Ky., dropped work and politics for three days and, with thousands of guests, celebrated the sesquicentennial of their pretty city. A pioneer touch was given the affair by the arrival of many families from other parts of Kentucky in horse-drawn vehicles and on horseback.

PRINCE ERNST VON STARHEMBERG of Austria ousted from the Fascist Heimwehr or home guard Maj. Emil Fey, once his trusted lieutenant, and thereby stirred up quite a muss in Vienna. It was reported that Premier Mussolini of Italy had taken a hand in the quarrel by demanding that Chancellor Schuschnigg give complete control of the heimwehr to Von Starhemberg.

THE prince declared in a public document that Fey's conduct at the time of the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss never was satisfactorily explained. The major, enraged, challenged the prince to a duel, but dueling is illegal in Austria.

THREE complaints were filed by the federal trade commission under the Robinson-Patman act, naming five concerns, launching the first move to test its powers under this far-reaching legislation which forbids the granting or receiving by merchandisers of discriminatory price discounts in interstate commerce.

The complaints named Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc.; Kraft - Phenix Cheese corporation, Chicago; Shefford Cheese company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y.; Bird and Son, Inc., and Bird Floor Covering Sales corporation, East Walpole, Mass.

ACCUSED of complicity in the plot against Dictator Stalin for which 16 prominent Russians were executed in August, Karl Radek, brilliant journalist, is under arrest and in danger of losing his life. He disappeared just after the executions of the others, but was caught a few days ago.

In his last article, published in the official newspaper Izvestia, Radek confessed his unfaithfulness to the Communist party, but defended himself with a vitriolic attack on Trotsky and claimed he had "expiated" his sins by foiling Trotsky's attempted sabotage of the Stalin regime.

ACCUSED of complicity in the plot against Dictator Stalin for which 16 prominent Russians were executed in August, Karl Radek, brilliant journalist, is under arrest and in danger of losing his life. He disappeared just after the executions of the others, but was caught a few days ago.

In his last article, published in the official newspaper Izvestia, Radek confessed his unfaithfulness to the Communist party, but defended himself with a vitriolic attack on Trotsky and claimed he had "expiated" his sins by foiling Trotsky's attempted sabotage of the Stalin regime.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE C. B. KENNEMER of Montgomery, Ala., issued an order halting collection in Alabama of a one per cent payroll tax to finance the unemployment program. The result, it is expected, will be a clear cut test of the validity of the New Deal's social security act, for lawyers had no doubt the case would be carried to the United States Supreme court. The order was granted the Gulf States Steel corporation of Gadsden, Ala., on a plea that the unemployment insurance program, operated in co-operation with the federal government, violates both state and federal constitutions.

JESSE ISADOR STRAUS, merchant prince and, until his resignation last August, American ambassador to France, passed away in his New York home at the age of sixty-four. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia, but Mr. Straus had been in ill health for some time, this being the reason for his retirement from the ambassadorship.

Graduating from Harvard in 1893, Mr. Straus began work as a bank clerk. In 1896 he obtained employment with R. H. Macy & Co., big New York department store, and by 1919 was its president, holding that position until he was given the Paris post by President Roosevelt in 1933. He was a Democrat and was a member of the board of overseers of Harvard and of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. He maintained a country estate at Mount Kisco, N. Y., as well as a city apartment.

FOLLOWING the example set by France and other countries, the Italian cabinet voted to devalue the lira, setting its value at approximately 5.2 cents, as compared with the latest previous figure of 7.6 cents. The cabinet also let it be known that it would take action to prevent rent and price increases; and it voted a new 5 per cent capital levy to which property owners are obliged to subscribe to the extent of 5 per cent of their wealth.

The gold value of the lira was placed at 4.677 grams of gold for each 100 lire. Gold reserves of the Bank of Italy will be revalued on the basis of the new lira with the surplus to be placed at the disposition of the treasury.

FRANCE may be on the verge of a civil war between Communists and Fascists comparable to the terrible conflict in Spain. In Paris desperate fighting already has begun. The Reds, numbering many thousands, and the nationalists, under orders from Col. Francois de la Rocque whose Croix de Feu organization was disbanded by the government, undertook rival demonstrations; and the result was a day-long series of street battles in which hundreds were wounded.

In London, also, there was a big riot in which a hundred persons were injured. Sir Oswald Mosley's Black Shirts, a Fascist organization, planned a parade but Communists and Socialists numbering 100,000 were determined to prevent it and battled with a big force of east end police to get at their enemies. The authorities forbade the parade as scheduled but the opposing mobs got together in various localities and fought desperately.

RESIDENTS of Frankfort, Ky., dropped work and politics for three days and, with thousands of guests, celebrated the sesquicentennial of their pretty city. A pioneer touch was given the affair by the arrival of many families from other parts of Kentucky in horse-drawn vehicles and on horseback.

PRINCE ERNST VON STARHEMBERG of Austria ousted from the Fascist Heimwehr or home guard Maj. Emil Fey, once his trusted lieutenant, and thereby stirred up quite a muss in Vienna. It was reported that Premier Mussolini of Italy had taken a hand in the quarrel by demanding that Chancellor Schuschnigg give complete control of the heimwehr to Von Starhemberg.

THE prince declared in a public document that Fey's conduct at the time of the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss never was satisfactorily explained. The major, enraged, challenged the prince to a duel, but dueling is illegal in Austria.

THREE complaints were filed by the federal trade commission under the Robinson-Patman act, naming five concerns, launching the first move to test its powers under this far-reaching legislation which forbids the granting or receiving by merchandisers of discriminatory price discounts in interstate commerce.

The complaints named Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc.; Kraft - Phenix Cheese corporation, Chicago; Shefford Cheese company, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y.; Bird and Son, Inc., and Bird Floor Covering Sales corporation, East Walpole, Mass.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Flint—The C. S. Mott foundation has announced a contribution of $20,000 to be used in conjunction with the city school system to provide supervised recreation for both adults and children.

Lansing—A system of auxiliary fire stations in which fire apparatus can be cached for local use is being built for the department of conservation by CCC labor. The purpose is to eliminate time-consuming long-distance transport of heavy fire-fighting equipment in the areas involved.

Allegan—It has been reported that the damage caused in this county during the recent 2nd army maneuvers amounted to .7 of a cent per man. The remarkable record, as contrasted with the intense activity, was credited to careful planning, the reduction of fire hazard by rain and the hospitality of local residents.

Cheboygan—A change in the type of resorters made the summer a rosy one for hotel and cottage owners near Mackinac. A much larger proportion of middle class persons brought the total number higher than usual. The increase ranged up to 70 per cent, a figure noted by the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

Lansing—In two more years there will not be a lot in Lansing unprovided with shade trees, according to Lee Bancroft, city forester. Lansing is one of the few cities in the United States which adopted a tree planting and tree removal schedule and has held to it year after year, it is said. The plan was put into effect 20 years ago.

Lansing—In a summary of federal expenditures from the $4,880,000,000 relief appropriation passed by congress in 1935, the national emergency council reported that Michigan has spent $109,221,045 from the state's allocation of $144,051,689. Most of the unexpended balance of $34,830,644 in the Michigan allocation has been obligated.

Charlotte — Charlotte postoffice has been designated as one of eight state bases in the cost survey being conducted by the postoffice department. Two offices in each of four classes have been selected in each state for the survey. In Michigan they include, among others, Charlotte and Negaunee in the second class. Complete records of every work transaction are being kept.

Traverse City—Perhaps one of the most unique displays of any city, is the model village of Traverse City itself, which is maintained here. Built at a cost of nearly $25,000, the miniature city shows tiny landscaping, railroads, streets, buildings and even paint jobs exactly like the city itself. It is the outgrowth of a hobby of Con Foster, a retired circus man who lives here.

Lansing—The oil industry in Michigan has been given access to approximately 22,000 acres of state-owned land for development and in part payment has paid $12,717 in bonuses into the state general fund. The land became available when private operators bid in the oil and gas lease rights on 21,949 acres of land held by the state in fee, at a public auction conducted by the department of conservation in Lansing.

Lansing—Despite one of the worst droughts in the history of Michigan agriculture, the state's hay supply is only 13 per cent smaller than the bumper production in 1935, according to a report issued by the federal hay and feed market news service. The production of tame hay, including all varieties and classes, is estimated at 3,094,000 tons, against 3,564,000 tons in 1935. The largest percentage of decrease took place in alfalfa.

South Haven—A new peach has been christened the Kalhava at the South Haven Horticultural Experiment Station, its birthplace. Until recently it has been known only as seedling No. 10. For two years pomologists at Michigan State College, the Michigan Experiment Station and the South Haven station have been telling growers about this peach. Orchardists were permitted to see and taste the fruit, and pass judgment upon its merits.

East Lansing—The farm crops staff at Michigan State college is trying to develop a strain of corn with stalks too tough for the corn borer's drill. A. R. Marston and S. T. Dexter, in charge of the project, said they thought they were on the road to success. The tough-stalked corn was developed while Marston and Dexter were attempting to breed a strain the odor of which would repel the destructive pests, although it would not be noticeable to persons.

Paw Paw—A Michigan state police radio transmitting station will be operating here within two months. The new equipment is to be placed in the recently completed district headquarters at Paw Paw and consists of a 1,000-watt transmitter. Mobile units from the Paw Paw station and posts at White Pigeon and New Buffalo will be directed from the new station. The state police key station at East Lansing will continue regular transmission schedules to other points in the state as at present.

Holland—About 136,000 more tulip bulbs have arrived to be added to the number already used in the annual Tulip Time festival, it is announced by Gerrit VanBragt, city park superintendent. Planting of the new bulbs will be finished in six weeks.

Ionia—Ionia will join with six other western and central Michigan counties in a rat extermination campaign. A survey will be taken with aid of elevator and mill operators to determine the amount of poison bait needed. The bait will be distributed to farmers by county agents.

Munising—A beautiful new thirty-foot waterfall has been uncovered in Alger County. It probably has been viewed by only a few travelers since the discovery of America. The falls has been named Alger Falls in honor of Gen. Russell A. Alger, governor of Michigan when Alger County was established.

Lansing—Michigan's concert and opera lovers have been assured by WPA music directors of a varied program this season. Professional musicians in Michigan employed by the WPA will be organized into an all-state WPA symphony, said Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff, director of the federal music project, and will make a concert tour of the chief cities and towns in the state.

Ann Arbor—The University of Michigan Medical school conferred honorary degrees upon Russell Sturgis Rowland, Detroit physician, for his work in pediatrics, and Dr. Reuben Peterson, professor of obstetrics and gynecology from 1901 to 1931. The awards were in connection with the formal opening exercises of the medical school, which is beginning its 87th year.

Lansing—Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood will accept and place on the ballots names of candidates submitted by the Third Party. The Third Party has endorsed William Lemke, the Union Party's standard bearer, as its presidential candidate; Lemke's running mate, Thomas C. O'Brien, for vice president, and Louis B. Ward, of Pontiac, for United States senator.

Grand Rapids—The manufacture of tourist trailers has been termed the "young giant" by business leaders here. Output predictions of approximately 300 manufacturers indicate that more than 100,000 American families will take to trailer life during 1937. With some of the best known trailers built in the state, Michigan expects to take the lead in this new industry as in the motor car industry.

Cadillac—Emerson Coffey, 18, was seriously injured recently in an unusual dual auto and train accident here. While waiting for an Ann Arbor railroad train to pass, his car was struck by a truck and pushed against the train. At the same time a car driven by Merle Kidder, 17, waiting on the other side of the crossing was struck by a truck and also pushed into the train and damaged. Kidder was unhurt.

Houghton—Nearly tying the record set five years ago, 213 new students enrolled at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology here this fall. This is two under the 1931 record. Total registration was 545. The most popular courses are chemical engineering, mining and metallurgy. Fifty-five percent of the 213 new students have done practical business and engineering work as against 30 per cent last year.

Cheboygan—Among nature's products at Cheboygan: Mrs. Elizabeth Walton has a sunflower back of her millinery shop which has grown to a height of 13 feet. Mrs. Charles Louisignau, who thinks nothing of raising 60 to 70 tomatoes on one vine, raised a plant with 107 tomatoes. P. M. Zorn has an apple tree which bears four varieties of apples simultaneously. Three kinds Zorn can identify; the fourth, he says, looks like a cucumber.

Lansing—The monthly report of the state liquor control commission disclosed that August set a new high for summer liquor sales. Total sales were $2,188,298, as compared with $1,919,204 in May, $2,164,370 in June, and $2,120,858 in July. Specially designated distributors sold $1,052,543 worth of liquor, the report disclosed, as compared with $476,458 sold directly to the public by retail stores and $654,306 sold by the stores to retail licensees.

Bay City—Fourteen Michigan cities containing about 52.30 per cent of the State's population "rank well statistically in comparison with leading cities in other states" in the field of new housing. A survey of 310 cities in 41 states, was recently made by Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis. The 14 cities surveyed include Detroit, Highland Park, Hamtramck, Battle Creek, Bay City, Flint, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Muskegon, Pontiac, Port Huron and Saginaw.

Charlevoix—A romantic chapter in the history of Lake Michigan navigation ends this December when the last of a long line of lightships goes out of commission. The last of its kind, Gray's Reef, stationed at an entrance to the Straits of Mackinac, is now giving its last few weeks of service. Next year its place will be taken by Gray's Reef lighthouse, under construction for the last two years. It will be completed and ready for occupancy before the 1937 navigation season opens.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Several years ago I expressed in these columns the conviction that one thing America needed was a congress which would cease attempting to amend the law of supply and demand.

One Thing Needed Reference to that circumstance is made here at this time, because it is apropos again. It is apropos because we are in a political campaign out of which will come either the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt or the election of Governor Landon of Kansas.

The results of this political campaign are going to hinge to a considerable extent on the attitude of the farmers of this country and if there is one segment of whom the law of supply and demand means more than to another, it is to the farmers.

Now, Democratic spokesmen are going about the country talking about soil conservation, about relief for the farmers, about anything and everything that will give the farmers money.

Republican spokesmen are shouting and waving their arms with its other propositions to aid the farmer. Some of them probably are workable, and if they are workable they must be considered constructive.

But the point I am trying to make is that in the case of either candidate, there is still too much of the idea of the superficial, of surface help, for agriculture. In other words, the programs still take into account some circumvention of the law of supply and demand.

That statement is not wholly true of Governor Landon's farm program, but unless the New Dealers come forward with more than they have thus far advanced, I think it can be said their program offers nothing more than a continued raid on the Treasury of the United States with no plans at all for correcting underlying conditions.

There was one phase of Governor Landon's program, as advanced in speeches at Des Moines, Iowa and Minneapolis, Minn. that appealed to me. Brushing aside verbiage and detail, Governor Landon basically has in mind, apparently, a desire to get the government out of the farmer's hair. He seems convinced that there are many things which the farmers would like to do for themselves and will do for themselves if the machinery upon which they can operate is made available.

He proposes, for example, to seek legislation that will enable the farmers to finance themselves through borrowing from commercial agencies, banks and trust companies, instead of from the government. With that I agree to the fullest. It means simply that farmers again can be masters of their own souls as well as the crops which they grow for it, puts them in a position to sell when they want to sell, without the necessity for asking permission from a bureaucrat in Washington. It means further that no bureaucrat in Washington can issue an order to that farmer that he must dispose of his stored crop.

It seems to me as well that anyone who analyzes the present regimentation of the farmers from Washington must recognize that which has always been true: Every time the government, which means politicians, attempts to mess into private business, that private business goes from bad to worse and it does not matter how bad it was when bureaucrats took hold. It will be worse thereafter.

I have been wondering, however, how far Mr. Landon will go in encouragement of the family type Farm Problem farms. You will remember that he spoke at length of family type farms in his Des Moines address. Personally, I feel that he hit upon a very important point. I think it is important because it strikes at the root of the farm problem.

In discussing help for the man who owns or wants to own a small farm, Governor Landon surely is proposing a program that will serve this nation well because no nation whose farms are widely owned by those who operate them can be headed toward fascism or communism. I do not know how the Governor as President will be able to put the federal government behind such a program, but it is to be assumed that he had definite ideas on the subject or he would not have boldly stated his position. My hope is that it can be done not with government money, but with money supplied from private institutions since there has been too much government competition with business of the nation already. Further, regretful as it is, the federal government has not and cannot have any function in that field for the reason that it inevitably leads further into politics, further into waste and the eventual destruction of the people whom the demagogues claim they are helping.

The reason I have advocated this action so strongly is the fact that there are too many tenant farmers in the United States now, far too many. It is fundamental, in my opinion, that this nation can get on with the present trend. It is sad, but it is true, that there are about forty per cent of our farms now operated by tenants. In other words, one out of less than three farms in the United States is worked by a man who does not own it.

Some information was made public the other day to the effect that 85 per cent of the newspapers of the country were supporting Governor Landon as against President Roosevelt in this campaign. I do not know the actual percentage and I do not vouch for the figures I have reported to you. But of this I am certain: I believe that Governor Landon does have more editorial support than any presidential nominee has had in the last six campaigns, with the exception of President Roosevelt as a candidate in 1932.

It has been interesting to watch the various important independent newspapers as they have studied the two candidates this year and have reached conclusions as to the nominee they will support. I am not now referring to hide-bound Republican papers, nor to newspapers that could normally be expected to support the more conservative of the two candidates. I am thinking of independent or distinctly Democratic newspapers that have announced their opposition to the Roosevelt cause. Let me mention a few of them: The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Omaha World Herald, the Baltimore Sun, to mention only three.

There was a great newspaper, one of the greatest, that took a stand for President Roosevelt a few days ago. I refer to the New York Times. No one can ever say that the New York Times ever has failed to arrive at its conclusions without giving all factors concerned careful study. I am saying by this that the New York Times is honest and sincere. But I must say at the same time that the New York Times has a background as an institution and it has a clientele of readers for whom it speaks and its accession to the Roosevelt cause is a perfectly natural position for it to take. For years the New York Times has contended that America should participate to a greater extent in world affairs. It has contended, without exception, for policies of an internationalism with which a great many thinking people disagree. Its view, concretely, appears to be that we cannot correct depression conditions unless the United States as a nation wholeheartedly moves in the circle of governments that rule Europe and Asia, especially in matters of an economic character.

I do not know what Governor Landon's pronouncements on foreign policy are going to be. But I have observed the policies that I have had the backing of the New York Times over a number of years and it seems to me that they result in greater benefits to a limited class than to the country as a whole. I am not a rabble rouser; I do not link the New York Times with the money-changers of Wall street as the demagogues describe them. It is just the perspective that I have gained of the whole picture since I have no axes to grind.

In the case of those newspapers that have turned against Mr. Roosevelt, there is to some extent a consideration of local interests, circumstances of concern to the communities which they serve, just as in the case of the New York Times. The point is, however, that in the case of newspapers turning against Mr. Roosevelt, their new positions are predicated on what appears to me to be traditional American bases. That is to say, they are adhering to the principles which I believe to have been the foundation stones of American history. I have no quarrel with the attitude of that school of thought that believes we should engage further in international affairs than we have done. It is their conviction and they have a right to it. Yet, it is not mine.

I have said many times in these columns that I will support any proposition that is good for America as a whole; I have contended consistently for Americanism and the things which that means, and I have argued always for sound government.

Bitsy Grant Alone Supplies Thrills to Modern Tennis

PERHAPS it is because little guys must stick together or get stuck by an unappreciative world.

It is a most distressing situation. After witnessing the national championship at Forest Hills, a while back, I got loaded with all sorts of other information.

I can tip off one of those anti-perspiration companies that they have a good prospect in Perry.

I can wiser up the gents who don't go to tennis matches, too, that they are missing something.

It's Polite to Applaud Other Fellow's Error

I know that tennis still is the only sport where the polite thing to do is to applaud some unfortunate fellow's error.

I know that Helen Jacobs wears a gold chain on her left wrist while playing and that Miss Marble is adorned with a wrist watch.

I know that Frankie Parker needs a long rest so that he can get in such physical shape that he no longer needs to wait over those soft serves.

I-but, as has been mentioned before, such items leave me cold. Until waning strength and Big Bill Tilden finally took the play away from him, and he retired, I used to go to tennis affairs to watch a frail little guy named Bill Johnston.

Now-for all that I would not give one Dodger double-header for all the tennis of the season-I again am willing to pay to get into the park.

Yet-but come to think of it, maybe that really is why I like to watch this tiny gee.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE: NOT a soul seems to have noted that Princeton Football Professor Fritz Crisler is wearing specs for the first time this autumn.

Why Shakespeare Isn't Heaving Pro Passes

Bill Shakespeare is not heaving pro passes this year because he has too swell a job as assistant to the secretary of a railroad.

Bill Shakespeare

Luck has played a miserable trick on a Fordham youngster. The boy is the best passer on the Ram football squad but his eyes have failed so badly that he cannot pick out his targets and has even worse luck on pass defense.

A thought that should be preserved was uttered long ago by Rudolph Spreckels, the multi-millionaire turman and sugar king.

Players say the real trouble with Babe Dahlgren, the nifty fielder who will get another chance at the Red Sox first sack next season, is not weak hitting.

Pampero seems to be a lucky name for Argentine ponies. Jack Nelson, who sold a big brown with that name to Winston Guest in 1931, now has a similarly tagged small chestnut he expects to peddle for plenty.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

Use of Drugs WHEN we remember that what we call drugs are in most cases the leaves of the field and the roots of the ground, all provided by Nature, it may be only natural to believe that they should be used often and regularly.

Dr. Barton.

However Osler, our greatest modern physician, stated that he had reduced the number of his drugs to a total of 15, that he thought he would soon have the number down to 4, and perhaps, if he lived long enough, he would use no drugs at all.

What about all the other drugs commonly used for headaches, rheumatic pains, pain of stomach ulcer, to correct constipation, to prevent diarrhoea?

There isn't any question but that a headache powder, some baking soda for the stomach, and the usual remedies for diarrhoea are helpful and harmless when used for short periods.

What caused the headache? Eating too fast or too much; eyestrain? Why not correct the cause? What caused the "gas" pains in the stomach or intestines?

That too much food or the wrong kinds of foods can cause disturbances in the body whether the individual is sick or well is now generally known.

Thus most physicians agree that fasting seems to be of real help in various disturbances of the body.

However, fasting is really dangerous in many cases if not supervised by a physician.

Sometimes the fasting cure is used on patients with a poor appetite, the idea being that if allowed to go without food for some time the appetite will increase.

While the fasting cure is helpful in many cases of heart disease, it should not be used when there is rheumatism or tonsillitis.

The food to be eaten at the end of the fast depends upon the patient and his ailment, for although fruits may be advisable in overweight patients, patients with stomach, intestine or liver disorders need a less harsh diet.

Ripples From Guiley Creek
By the Trout Specialist
During the last few years there has been a very marked change in thought regarding hunting by many sportsmen. It is very fine that at last men who enjoy hunting are turning to predatory animals and birds instead of the usual game. The meat value of partridges, woodcock, etc., is very small, especially when compared with the cost of driving a hundred or more miles for them. In other words, they go hunting for sport, so why not hunt crows, wildcats, kingfishers, fish ducks, hawks, etc., and buy a little meat? Anyway, many sportsmen are beginning to figure it out that way, and I can't help but believe that the north country would be far better off if about 90 per cent of the hunters felt that way.
A young chap from Pontiac was fishing on the Augres one day last summer with a .22 rifle as extra equipment. He accounted for two crows and a kingfisher. Another man, from Detroit, carries a revolver, and killed a crow on the Guiley while fishing.
Off hand, it would seem to be just as much fun to kill a crow or fish duck as a pheasant or mallard. Why don't more people try it?

PATTERNS of WOLFPEN

By HARLAN HATCHER

WNU Service

Copyright by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"No. She looks pretty sick, Jesse." "Yes, she's kind of worn out. I reckon you're not going this morning."

that the service was held under and around the tan-bark shed where there was room for every one. She looked very beautiful in the brown cloth dress she had woven with her own hands.

CHAPTER XIII

In the weeks that followed, the spiritual disruption in this house seemed complete. No one spoke of Julia in words; each one suffered in privacy his own particular degree and quality of grief.

The plans Cynthia and Julia had made for the Institute now seemed as remote as though they belonged with other people. She could construct no vision of herself riding over the hills into town with the things she and Julia had packed in the telescope strapped to a mule.

Gradually the deadness grew customary as the days lengthened into a new routine. The work of the fall harvest filled up and spilled over the days into both ends of the night.

It was unexpected and clothed in a depth of genuine feeling which warmed the coldness she had felt creeping over her. She might even yet say the things in her heart. But he was going on now. She watched him away and then went back into the yard.

It was in the second week of September that Julia Pattern died. She lay in the room which Sparrel had built for her when he brought her as a bride to Wolfpen.

Sparrel was broken. He sat by Julia's side on the chair he had made for her when they were young. He spoke no word and no tear fell.

Cynthia was deathstruck. For the first time she was seeing death invade her own family. She had never thought of her mother as a part of the mutabilities. She was as permanent and timeless as Wolfpen.

Desolate, feeling so little and impotent before the assertion of such invisible strength, she turned from the bed to the window and looked up to the Pinnacle gleaming golden in the sun.

She was surprised that the world continued as though nothing had happened, that the Pinnacle could take the sun and look over a bright land when her own heart was dark with grief and her world black with desolation.

When the first sprinkles shattered the flaming maple near the smoke-house, she cried, "Oh, rain, leave the leaves alone! Give them one more day!"

The news went up to the hollows, over the hills and down the creeks with mysterious speed. The people came to Wolfpen; the old families on Gannon, the folk from the Big Sandy.

Cynthia was not sorry. But the work was nearly done now, and she knew that he was restless to go, and was waiting only for the drovers to come. The news that they were riding up the creek was less exciting than formerly.

The drovers came up the creek from house to house performing the ceremony prescribed by custom. They were dressed in their tight trousers, tall boots, broad hats, and with red handkerchiefs around their necks. They went to the barnyard at each place and leaned over the rails, sizing up the cattle.

At Wolfpen, where they always managed to stay the night, Sparrel gave them the use of a fenced meadow for their cattle and stalls and feed for their saddle mules. But when they talked about buying his steers, Sparrel said:

"I guess I won't be selling any this time."

"Why not, Sparrel?"

"I told Shellenberger I'd let him have all we could spare for his men this winter."

Then Jesse said, "I want to sell mine to you fellows."

Sparrel looked at his son in silent surprise, but offered no interference.

"We'll be glad to look at it, Jesse," they said.

Cynthia watched them go to the barn-look where Jesse had driven in his fat steer. She could see them out there looking and feeling and bargaining.

Then, after a proper time, they drove it out of the pen and down to the meadow with their herd.

Jesse came back to the house where Cynthia was. She knew from his look that he was content, and that it was the pleasure of a man in the quality of his product and in seeing others appreciate it, as well as satisfaction with the price it brought.

"Did they like your steer?"

"They seemed to. It was a good beef."

"Did you get what you wanted for it?"

"Yes. I got thirty-six dollars for it, and I bet that's more than Dad'll get out of Shellenberger for his."

"Why do you say that, Jesse?"

Spring rafts; he was going to float one. Sparrel said little, staring into the fire and looking at his sons. And Jesse twisted his mouth, glanced at his father, at the fire, at Cynthia, at Jasper, put his hands into his pockets and took them out.

"I guess the fall work's about done up now," Jesse said.

"We've done right well with it," Sparrel said.

"I reckon I'll go over to town now and read the law with Tandy Morgan."

It came with nothing but a higher pitch and a brittle utterance to betray the nervous constraint behind it.

Sparrel said easily and very gently, "I allowed you had a mind to it. You'll need some money for that."

He took from his pocket the long leather sack which he carried, and held it out to Jesse. "If you're going to be a lawyer, be a good one, son, and be clean about it. The law can dirty a man."

"It didn't dirty Blackstone or Lincoln any. I mean to be that kind. And I don't need the money," Jesse said, handing the purse back to Sparrel. "I got enough for the winter."

Cynthia knew the fervor of his voice and was moved.

Sparrel had got up from his chair, and stood looking down at Jesse. With unaccustomed demonstration he laid his hand on Jesse's shoulder and pushed away the leather sack. "Keep it, son. That's what I got it for, I'll just ride over with you tomorrow and see you settled, by your leave."

In the morning they rode down Wolfpen, Sparrel choosing the Finemare for the journey, and Jesse on his own mule with the small grip of clothes and the yellow Blackstone firmly strapped to the saddle.

Instead of waiting at the gate until they had passed from sight, Cynthia went to the upstairs window from which she could see over the barn and orchard to the path through the Long Bottom, and as the Finemare and the mule passed swiftly through the meadow and out of sight, she put her hands on the window-sill and bowed her head upon them and wept silently in her loneliness.

"Mother died in the month of September: last month, and it might have been all the time there ever was. But the dried stalks of her hollyhocks and sunflowers still stand in the garden. And now Jesse away for the winter to study the law. And Reuben has not come back. The end of July it was, another lifetime. It may be September, and it may be spring. . . . But it is late October, Mother is dead, Jesse is gone away, Reuben has not come back. It is not Wolfpen any more, for Wolfpen is a good place and this is a place of sorrow and loneliness. In the space of one summer. If Reuben would come, Reuben, September is here and past and taken with it my mother, and you do not come. And your two letters. . . . She went to the bureau drawer in her room and took them again, knowing full well each word in the thin precise writing with the perfection of print.

" . . . and my father has accepted the office of surveyor for the Eastern Iron Works and I am to do most of the field work. The company has bought several thousand acres of land around here because of the ore pockets and the charcoal timber. I am beginning the surveys this week and will be in the field most of the autumn but it will not stand in the way of my coming to Wolfpen as soon as I can. . . ."

The other one she knew so well that she merely held it in her hands while she saw the carefully built sentences march through her mind.

" . . . I have been in the hills west of the river for two weeks and just came in this Saturday and my mother gave me your letter. I am sorry and I had to read several times before I could take in what it was saying. I liked her so very much. She was so quiet and so kind and it seemed to me while I was in her house that her life was self-contained and in order like her fine garden and her quilts. I can hardly think of Wolfpen nor of you or your father without your mother. It must be very hard for you. None of my family has ever died, but I remember how I liked your way of thinking of your people in the graveyard on the Shelf. I hope that in your grief now you can think of your mother in the same way. I wish I had known so I could have come. I don't know just when that will be now, but it will be . . ."

She thought it was a good letter. It was like something written in a book, but it was Reuben. The person who wrote was always different from the person who spoke to you, and you must grow used to the difference until you can see the same person in both. The morning was gone, and she realized with surprise that her reluctance to see Jesse go away for the winter and her tears for her mother were not separable from her secret thoughts of Reuben and that in the end they had been curiously submerged and forgotten in him.

In the afternoon Doug came up the hollow. Cynthia had lived so intensely in her day-dreams that the sight of him was a shock. He looked discouraged. His eyes were heavy and his mouth had the pulled appearance of one who had made hopes too confidently and had suffered by their defeat. She felt a sorrow for him akin to pity. She wondered what had brought him to the house on this afternoon.

"How's your mother today, Doug?" "About as well as common. How are all your folks?"

"All well. Jesse went over to town today. He's going to read the law with Tandy Morgan this winter."

"He has a good turn for following something like that. I guess he ought to make about as good a one as Tandy. I didn't take to books much. Seems like I wasn't cut out for lawyering or doctoring or surveying but just to be a Gannon Creek farmer, and not so good at that, 'pears like."

"Now, don't you go to making little of yourself," Cynthia said.

"A feller loses all heart, Cynthia. I've worked harder and done about as poorly this year as ever since I been trying to run the place."

"Didn't they buy your 'seng, Doug?" "I didn't have any, only about four pounds."

"Why, Doug?"

The mice chewed it up, Cynthia. They huddled purr near every single root I had. It just about made me sick when I dug in and there they were eaten up."

"I'm awful sorry, Doug. How's your other stuff?"

"I got a right good crop of corn and beans."

"Ours did right well, too."

There were pauses now between the bits of talk.

"I got the porch fixed up now, and it looks right nice."

"It will be a help to the place," Cynthia said.

"I'm going to work, cut timber with Shellenberger this winter. They're getting a sight of cutting done down there."

"I haven't been down there. I don't want to see it."

There was a silence, the small talk ended. The mention of the lumber camp had driven Cynthia's thought inward so that she forgot Doug for a time until she was pulled into it again by the sudden explosive shock of his words:

"Let's us get married, Cynthia. What do you say?"

She looked full at him for a minute, feeling sorry for him. She knew that she had never loved him, and that she could not marry and live with him. It was difficult to say it in words which would tell him without wounding him.

"I like you, Doug. I've always liked you since we were little. And we all like you. But I couldn't, you see Doug. It's just that I don't love you that way."

She was afraid, even while she was speaking, that he wasn't understanding.

He had never touched her in his shy, indirect love-making, but now his emotions were too wrought on by her nearness and the sense of her withdrawing more than ever and irrevocably from him. He sprang upon the porch and swept her violently into his arms. His movements were so sudden and so unexpected that she was bewildered for a moment, and he held her so firmly that she could not move. He did not try to kiss her. He merely put his cheek against her head and brushed his lips against her hair. It lasted for only an instant, and she sprang away, freeing herself.

"Doug! You stop! What's come over you?"

"I want you for myself. You're aiming to marry that feller, ain't you? I know. He's a surveyor and has down-river manners, and I'm just a Gannon Creek farmer. Well, he won't get you. You hear me? He won't get you."

His outbreak was as much of a surprise to himself as to Cynthia.

"Don't you touch me again, Doug!" she cried.

Great Elm Is Regarded as Most Regal of Trees

The most regal of all trees perhaps is the elm. There is something aristocratic about the elm. It is tall and stately. It carries its head high. It has dignity but is also graceful. Its air is courtly, gracious, calm and strong.

Pines and maples and birches cluster in friendly groups. The elm is more aloof. By preference it stands alone by the roadside or out by the fields or on the side of the hill. It is not a mountain tree, more, perhaps, a low-land tree, liking the open places, even the banks of the streams and the lake shore. In some ways a distant tree, keeping by itself, it nevertheless has consented to come among men and lend its shade and beauty to the streets of the American village and city.

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed. For then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid compound such as Adierika. Adierika contains SEVEN cathartic and carminative ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels. Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adierika's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS pains, sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adierika relieves stomach GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adierika one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvelously refreshed. Leading Druggists.

HOW OCEANIC FLYING PROGRESSES

Giant Floating Airplane Bases Start Trans-Atlantic Flyers on Way by Means of Powerful Catapult, Like 'Shot Out of Gun.'

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

TRANSOCEANIC commercial flying is here. The tests and explorations which for several years have been going on to lay the foundations have been made with so much attendant publicity that the actual arrival of the fact itself is comparatively little known.

Regularly and on schedule the Pan-American Airways ships are now spanning the vast Pacific; the South Atlantic has subjected its expanses to transversal by airplane, and it is expected that soon even the tempestuous North Atlantic will see regularly scheduled commercial flights between North America and Europe.

It is more than 17 years now since that mad, storm-tossed flight over the Atlantic by the two Britishers, Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur Whitten Brown.

It is more than 150 years since the first successful journey by air over the English Channel.

Yet the North Atlantic only recently shows signs of giving up regularly to the flights of man with heavier-than-air craft. And it is only a few months since the first successful trip of the great flying boats over the new air lanes in the Pacific.

Pacific Passenger Runs Begin.

Only a week or two from the time that you read this the giant Clipper ships will begin carrying passengers on the Pacific run, from San Francisco to China, with stops here and there at islands some of which are not even big enough to be a respectable dot on a map of the ocean. Already the Clippers are carrying mail and baggage.

The comings and goings of the Clipper ships are no longer news, and neither are those of the giant Zeppelin Hindenburg, which flies back and forth in all kinds of weather over the Atlantic. The number of passengers she carries has been increasing with every trip, until today 70 persons are just a neat package for her.

Behind the scenes of these flights is where most of the important work is conducted. For the Pacific flights, stations have been built and crews trained at Honolulu, Midway island, Wake island, Guam and Manila. Even in these out-of-the-way spots the early travelers on the trans-Pacific lines will find modern hotels and efficient organizations to take care of the comfort as well as the safety of their trips.

The trips of the Zeppelins between Germany and South America have literally been going on for years. So regular is their performance, they are as much taken for granted as street cars in a big city.

Big airships, however, only cut about a day from the time of the fastest of the new ships which cross the Atlantic. If speed is to be the big advantage of flying, it is to heavier-than-air craft that we must look.

Catapult New Development.

French and German airplanes have for some years been carrying the mail across the South Atlantic. In the hundreds of crossings that have been made only one or two ships have been lost. Their swift planes take off from the water or are speeded on their way from anchored catapults.

The catapult is one of the most important developments in the flights across the Atlantic with which Germany has lately been experimenting. The device is used by method; actually the pilots of the ships would be right at home in the role of "human cannon ball" for a circus. Besides this, the upkeep of the 8,000-ton "mother" ships is an item that eats up any profits that might be expected from airships which can carry at most a small number of passengers.

Will Try Larger Ships.

The two new German planes Aeolus and Zephyr are the two largest ever to be catapulted from a ship. Fully loaded, they weigh ten tons apiece. The catapult of the German ship Schwabenland is so powerful that in a space of 100 feet it starts these great flying boats from standing still to 80 or more miles an hour.

The Aeolus, shown here, is one of the German planes, launched from a "mother" ship by means of a catapult, and which is engaged in the study of weather conditions along the proposed route of Trans-Atlantic flights.

Next spring the Germans intend to try the catapult with even larger ships. They will make 24 crossings to South America and return with 14-ton planes of the Dornier type, which will take off from catapults.

The catapult is a scientific development of the siege weapon, from which it takes its name, that was used in ancient times. The one aboard the Schwabenland is 126 feet overall. It is mounted on the port side of the ship, with the take-off flush with the stern. Even the mountainous waves of the North Atlantic do not put it out of commission, for the ship carries a great sheet of canvas which is spread out over rough waters to make them lie flat and permit operation. This apron lies about a foot or two under the water and extends from the stern of the ship about 40 feet. When it is used the ship has to be piston shaft. These extend beneath the cylinder to another drum at the far end. From this end there are two more cables which extend upward between the rails of the catapult to a sort of steel sled, upon which the plane about to take off is mounted.

The airplane is held in position by four hinged arms with braces like cantilevers. Two of these press against plates on the boat hull, and the other two fit into slots forward on the hull and beneath the wing. When the machine starts into motion, these last two drop. This leaves only the two in the rear to propel the airplane along the 100-foot greased runway.

The pump which loads the air compressor is powered by a Diesel motor. Beneath the compressor is another compressed air tank which is charged to 150 atmospheres.

Regulate Air "Charge."

The charge in the "air gun" has to be regulated for different winds and loads of different sizes. The captain of the "mother" ship, Alfred

The Aeolus, shown here, is one of the German planes, launched from a "mother" ship by means of a catapult, and which is engaged in the study of weather conditions along the proposed route of Trans-Atlantic flights.

Kottas, turns the ship stern-first into the wind and puts the engines in reverse so that the Schwabenland has some sternway.

There are three instruments called anemometers which tell the crew when the wind is right for a take-off. One is located atop the after mast, one is mounted on the stern and the third is located near the ship about to begin its flight.

The motor of the plane is running, of course, and when the pilot is ready to depart he "gives her the gas" and the engine starts to roar. A light flashes on the nose of his plane.

Allow Plane Full Load.

There is a great flash of flame and a cloud of smoke. In the twinkling of an eye the plane is away, dropping never a foot off the stern. Trailing behind are the hiss of escaping air and the smell of burning oil.

Transoceanic flying has passed out of the "stunt" stage. It is not even very dangerous any more. The treacherous North Atlantic has been flown three times in the last month, twice by a radio crooner and his pilot and once by a woman.

By contrast the Alcock - Brown flight of 17 years ago was one of the most colossal pieces of sheer luck imaginable. They tossed about in the gale for hours, often dipping nearly into the sea, without navigation instruments or radio, and crashed without being hurt upon their landing in Ireland.

The South Atlantic was flown the first time by Cabral and Couthino in 1922. Flying over the land of the polar regions four American army planes spanned the North Pacific and the North Atlantic; two of them completed the flight and the other two were lost, although there was no one killed. The British dirigible R-34 crossed the North Atlantic the week before Alcock and Brown turned the trick. The Los Angeles, dirigible built in Germany for the American army, was flown here. Commander John Rodgers flew 1,700 miles of the route from California to Hawaii in a plane, and Commander Franco of Spain piloted his lighter-than-air craft across the stretches of the South Atlantic.

Invention of Air-Cooled Engine.

It was the invention of the air-cooled engine which took the largest share of danger out of ocean flying, chiefly because it eliminated the necessity for carrying many extra pounds of water for cooling engines. Admiral Byrd used air-cooled engines on his flight to the North Pole and back, and Lindbergh used one on his historic flight.

Remaining aloft for 33½ hours and traveling 3,600 miles in one uneventful hop, Lindbergh probably did more than anyone else to convince the public that flying was a safe and coming thing. Perhaps the greatest importance of all the early flights was not the actual feats they accomplished, but the "public relations" work they did for flying.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for October 18

THE SPOKEN AND THE WRITTEN WORD

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17: 1, 5-11; I Thessalonians 2: 7-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword. Heb. 4: 12.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When People Read the Bible.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus' Name.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How May I Win Others to Christ?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evangelism and the Bible.

The persecution at Philippi served not to discourage Paul and Silas, but rather to send them forward into new territory with the gospel message. Passing through two cities they came to Thessalonica, then as now a city of considerable importance. After a successful though stormy ministry there they journeyed forty miles to Berea, where the Word was gladly received.

The portion of our lesson from the Book of Acts relates how the Word was preached and received in these two cities, and the excerpt from the letter which Paul later wrote to the Thessalonian church shows what manner of life the preacher sought to live among them.

I. Preaching the Word (Acts 17: 1, 5-8).

Paul's experience at Thessalonica presents an excellent illustration of 1. How the Word should be preached (vv. 1, 5-8).

This section is incomplete without verses 2-4, which are omitted from the printed portion but should be included in the study of the lesson. Notice four things concerning his preaching.

a. The place (v. 1). Paul went to the synagogue, not by chance or because it was a great religious holiday, but because it was his "custom." The synagogue was the center of Jewish worship, and there Paul met those who were ready to receive the Word of God.

Some Christians are content to remain comfortably in church and forget to go out into the highways and hedges, but there are others who have become so accustomed to going elsewhere that they neglect the opportunity for spiritual ministry in the church.

b. The method (vv. 2-3). "Reasoning from the Scriptures." No better method has ever been devised. It is God's method. Let us get back to exposition of the Scriptures—"opening" them to men and women, "alleging," or setting out in order the truth.

c. The subject (v. 3). He preached three fundamental doctrines—the atonement, the resurrection, and the deity of Christ. Scripture preaching will be doctrinal.

d. The result (vv. 4-8). Faithful preaching of God's Word brings one of two results in the hearts of men—they are either "persuaded" and converted, or they become angry and persecute. Those who rightly received the truth were glad to join with Paul; the others raised a hue and cry because Paul and Silas were turning "the world upside down." As a matter of fact the world was already wrongside up, and Paul sought to set it right.

It is still upside down in our day. Coming to Berea, we find Paul's experience there an illustration of 2. How the Word should be received (vv. 9-11).

Good hearers are as important as good preachers. How should the Word be received?

a. With readiness of mind (v. 11). This is a mark of nobility. The world regards the sophisticated doubter as the learned man, but he is not. Noble is the mind and heart that receives God's truth.

b. Carefully and thoughtfully (v. 11). There would be less error and folly in the pulpit if there were more intelligent Bible study in the pew. Do not assume that what some learned professor, or distinguished radio preacher says is true. Check his message by the Word.

In the final portion of our lesson, Paul tells the Thessalonians that when he was with them he was concerned not only about preaching the Word, but also about

II. Living the Life (I Thess. 2: 7-12).

Paul did not contradict his preaching by his living. His was a 1. Sacrificial service (vv. 7-9). The man who preaches for his own glory—or gain—is not a true preacher of the gospel.

2. Consistent example (vv. 10-12).

The minister of Christ must be unambiguously "holy, righteously, and unblamably" if his people are to "walk worthy of God."

Our Place in the World

Whatever the place allotted to us by Providence, that for us is the post of honor and duty. God estimates us not by the position we are in, but by the way in which we fill it.—Tyron Edwards.

Getting Rid of Misery

Half the misery of human life might be extinguished, would men alleviate the general curse they lie under, by mutual offices of compassion, benevolence, and humanity.—Addison.

Household Questions

Use two spoons for turning a roast. A fork pierces the surface and allows the juice to escape.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

Flaked salmon and chopped cucumber pickles moistened with mayonnaise makes a tasty sandwich filling.

Sandpapering baby's shoes before they are worn prevents slipping and saves many a fall.

If cream or custard sauce curdles put the vessel in which it is cooking in a pan of hot water and heat well. It will soon become smooth again.

CAMP SILVER CREEK

COC Camp Silver Creek entertained the Right Reverend Herman Page, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, at a luncheon on Friday, October 2. While making his routine tour through nearby communities to confirm new church communicants Bishop Page stopped for nearly three hours to fellowship with members of the camp and to inspect the camp buildings.

In the very early days when enrollees, officers and forestry lived in tents Bishop Page first visited the camp. He expressed surprise and admiration at the changes made since his first visit.

After asking about the work program of the enrollees and being told how the young pine seedlings are now being planted the Bishop headed for the Forest Service toolhouse and grasping a planting bar plunged it into the ground and planted "his" tree.

Rev. C. E. Edinger, rector of Christ Episcopal church in East Tawas, accompanied Bishop Page on his visit to camp.

John Hesse, representing Ralph W. Oyler, supervisor, U. S. Bureau of Narcotics in Detroit, and P. J. Shatterlee, Saginaw police sergeant in charge of the vice squad, were guests of Camp Silver Creek at the company meeting last Tuesday evening. Mr. Hesse talked to members of the company and a group of guests from neighboring communities on problems incident to the federal government's attempt to enforce the Harrison Narcotics Law. Using a collection of bottles containing drugs in various forms and other articles to describe the narcotics trade, he vividly emphasized the damage to human bodies the use of drugs produces. The talk was of interest and definite help to the camp educational program.

A truck load of enrollees from Camp Hale under the supervision of Mr. Stein, Hale camp educational adviser, were in the audience.

Guests from East Tawas and Tawas City included the following: A. F. Giddings, W. A. DeGrow, Sheriff Moran.

Trees on the grounds of Camp

Silver Creek and in the general neighborhood of camp are, as elsewhere, ablaze with autumn color. Certainly these are days for hikes and motor travel.

Enrollees Blackburn and Grathwohl, well known probably to residents along the Lake Shore as the company clerk and assistant educational adviser (editor of Flying Chips, camp newspaper), are leaving camp to join the U. S. Army. They recently passed their physical examinations and after brief visits to their respective homes they will proceed to Detroit and begin their new experience at Fort Wayne. Being fixtures of long standing in camp life their departure will be definitely noticed. Everyone wishes them well.

A new floor has been laid in the library and is being laid in the recreation hall. Improving the appearance of both rooms markedly, it is continuing evidence of the progress being made at Camp Silver Creek.

Coal burning stoves are rapidly replacing the wood burners used in former winters.

Observing St. John's Eve

In Poland, St. John's eve is marked by the lighting of bonfires and the throwing of wreaths into rivers and streams. For the occasion girls weave flowers and herbs into crowns and, placing a light in the center of the leaves, toss them into brooks or rivers. Youthful swains either stand on the bank or boat out into the water and attempt to catch the wreaths on poles. If a girl's lover succeeds in rescuing her wreath, the Poles believe that the love affair will have a happy ending; if he fails to, an unfortunate one. In Warsaw this festival takes the form of a gay water fete.

"Circus Graveyard"

The name "Circus Graveyard" is applied to grounds at Lancaster, Mo. A number of shows are reported to have gone bankrupt there and disbanded, leaving their wagons and equipment behind.

mate that this would reduce the state's income by $12,000,000. In speaking of this, State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry recently said: "The voters must remember that they are surely harnessing themselves to another form of tax if they approve the amendment. Either this, or they must prepare to get along without the money the state is giving them for welfare, or for aid to the distressed schools, or go without other money the state is returning to local treasurers." Experience has shown that the schools are very apt to suffer the most while a change is being made in the form of taxation. No better example of this fact need be cited than the results of the passage of the amendment which limited property tax to fifteen mills.

Proposed amendment number four has been submitted by the Michigan Property Tax Repeal Association of Jackson. It would evidently remove all property tax except for debt service heretofore incurred; that is, debts that have already been contracted. It would seem, then, that local governments would have all power to finance their institutions removed, and that they would be wholly dependent upon the state legislature. The schools of course would lose all income from local taxation, and also would lose practically all of the primary school fund. This fund is financed principally from a specific tax upon public utilities, such as railroad companies, telegraph companies, telephone companies, insurance companies, express companies, etc. The state pays these taxes out to the respective districts at a certain amount each year per census child. This amount is now about ten dollars per child, and the Tawas City district will receive this year approximately $3500. The amount of the tax received from the local property in the district will be about $2500. The total income to the school this year from all sources will be about $15,000. It is easily seen, then, that this one amendment will remove the source of nearly one-half of the income for the local school. It is estimated by reliable authorities that the passage of both amendments will remove the source of sixty per cent of the income for the schools of Michigan.

It would seem, then, that these two amendments are sponsored by selfish interests who do not wish to pay their share of the taxes, and who would bring hardship upon the average citizen. The average citizen would lose control of his local government and would have approximately sixty per cent of the present source of the income for his local school removed.

High School

The average attendance for the whole school for the month of September was 97.5%.

At the first meeting of the Freshmen, the following people were elected as class officers: President, Richard Zollweg; vice-president, James Brown; secretary-treasurer, Leonard Brown.

As usual, the Junior class find it necessary to earn money to defray their expenses for the year. They must raise a large sum to finance the annual Junior and Senior banquet. They are starting their financial program by sponsoring a harvest auction. Parents and patrons are being asked for contributions in the form of apples, potatoes, carrots, pop corn, canned goods, or baked goods. These things will be sold at auction at the school house Friday night, October 16th, at eight o'clock. We urge you to put in your winter supply at bargain prices. Besides, there will be plenty of fun in "The World's Best Spook House" guaranteed to give you a scream, and a bowling alley where you may win a prize. You can learn all about your future from Madame Klamiske, the fortune teller. You can buy plenty to eat at our Dewdrop Inn. The class urges your presence and will appreciate your support.

The members of the shorthand class had their first lessons in writing this week. The students find those little outlines are quite deceiving and that they are harder to write than one would expect. However, their first attempts show fine observation and accuracy.

The first regular practice debate will be held by the debating class next Thursday evening.

The band this year consists of the following members and the instruments they play: Clarinets—Isabelle Dease, Norma Musolf, Phyllis Bigelow, Marguerite McLean; Corsets—Ernest Ross, Roland Buch, Myrton Leslie, Janet McLean, Betty Rapp; Mellophones—Marian Musolf, Margaret Mark, Evelyn Colby, Dorothy Blust; Trombones—Kathleen Davis, Bob Mark; Drums—Lydia Moore, Betty Holland, Kenneth Smith; Baritone—Phil Mark; Saxophone—Herbert Cox; Tuba—Hugh Prescott; Flute—Otto Ross; Saxophone, Madge Bruuger.

The membership of the orchestra is as follows: Violins—Margaret Mark, Kathleen Davis, June Brown, Irene Cunniff, Ruth Giddings, Evelyn Latham, Janet McLean, Betty Rapp; Cornet—Ernest Ross; Trombone—Bob Mark; Drums—Betty Holland, Kenneth Smith; Clarinets—Marguerite McLean, Norma Musolf; Flute—Otto Ross; Saxophones—Herbert Cox, Madge Bruuger; Piano—Isabelle Dease.

The Senior class plans to hold an afternoon tea on October 24. The place will be announced later.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
Mr. Parker of Detroit talked to our room on safety, Monday. Many people have learned the Safety Club pledge and have received their certificates of membership.

Lyle Hughes received a perfect score in a 12 minute sixth grade arithmetic test Monday.

The fifth grade hygiene club has taken the name of "The Junior Health Club."

Third and Fourth Grades
The third graders have new language work books and the fourth graders new geography work books.

The fourth graders memorized the poem, "Jack O'Lantern," in language Thursday.

Most of us have become members in the Safety Club by learning the safety rules.

Several interesting Indian stories were told in the fourth grade language class Friday afternoon.

Primary Room

Luman Howe entered the first grade Monday. He came here from Hale.

We are making Hallowe'en decorations for seat work.

The following second graders received A's in a subtraction test last Friday: Betty Lue Brown, Janet Musolf, Isabelle Toms, and Ida Koopke.

Martin Musolf brought a cotton boll to school in which we were very much interested. We expect to find out more about cotton.

We are learning the safety rules in order that we may belong to the Safety Club in our school.

So far there has been no tardiness in the second grade.

Following the general routine of business the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the program committee, Miss Huhtala, who presented the following program: Selection—High School Orchestra; Flute Solo—Otto Ross; Girls' Trio—Lucille DePott, Isabelle Dease and Betty Holland; Selection—High School Orchestra; Address—Rev. Carey.

The music furnished by the orchestra was highly appreciated by everyone. The flute solo was especially enjoyed. The girls' trio, a new feature of the music department, was received with much enthusiasm.

The address by Rev. Carey proved most worth while and furnished food for much thought. He had for his theme, "The advisability of parental guidance in the recreation of the child." He stressed the idea of guidance versus dominance.

Following the program a delicious lunch was served in the basement by the officers of the association.

A fine spirit was manifest throughout the entire meeting, the continuance of which will mean a splendid year for the P.-T.-A.

Meaning of "Alcatraz"

The word "Alcatraz" is Spanish for pelican. The federal prison was so called because thousands of these birds frequented the cliffs on which it is situated.

The Longest Word

The longest word in any language, it is believed, is found in line 1,169 of the famous comedy, The Ecclesiazusae, by Aristophanes. This Greek word, which means hash in English, contains 171 letters.—Paul Plasterer, Springfield, Ohio, in Collier's Weekly.

Good in Something

Jud Tunkins says he likes a weather report. When it brings bad news it doesn't get you agitated by speeches trying to convince you that it's the fault of somebody in particular.

Carrying the Bride

In olden times it was considered an ill omen for a bride to stumble over the threshold of her new home as she was entering it for the first time. To prevent this calamity some thoughtful bridegroom carried his bride into their home. Bridegrooms have been toting their new wives across the thresholds ever since.
