Democratic Victory Sweeps State and Nation Tuesday

IOSCO CASTS LARGEST VOTE IN HISTORY

Moran, McKenzie and Britt Win In County Contests

President Roosevelt has been returned to office for four more years by the largest vote ever given a presidential candidate. Rock-ribbed Republican Michigan made an about face and helped to add to his victory and the Democrats made a clean sweep in state offices.

In Iosco county Republican candidates carried substantial leads, although Roosevelt received the largest Democratic vote ever cast in the county. It totaled 1547 votes. Landon received 1768 votes. It is estimated that about 3700 ballots were cast in the county. Lemke, the Third Party candidate, received 142 votes. Thirty-two of these were cast in Plainfield township.

Iosco county voted as follows: Governor—Fitzgerald 2117, Murphy 1251; lieutenant governor—Dickinson 1997, Nowicki 1222; secretary of state—Atwood 2081, Case 1167; state treasurer—Warner 1859, Fry 1350; auditor general—O'Hara 1985, Gundry 1225; attorney general—Crowley 1968, Starr 1272; justice of supreme court—Toy 1971, Chandler 1198; U. MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

The annual Roll Call for the Iosco County Chapter of the American Red Cross will begin on Armistice Day, November 11th, and end on Thanksgiving Day.

There is little need for me to remind citizens of our community how vital the Red Cross is in the life of our country. During the past year, both from actual observation and from the accounts of work done which were carried in daily newspapers, we have seen just how important it is that we have an active agency of the American people to administer assistance when the need arises.

The frequency with which this need does arise has been demonstrated during the past twelve months when we recall the floods, the tornadoes, the hurricanes, and the epidemics that have been suffered in various parts of this great country, and the work that the Red Cross has done to relieve distress and actual suffering as a result of these catastrophes. Other but less spectacular work carried on by the Red Cross has been just as important.

The Red Cross comes to us now with another appeal for membership dues that will finance the work during the year ahead. Our Red Cross asks little from the community, yet contributes much to the general welfare of our people.

For this reason, I sincerely urge those who are asked to participate in this great program by paying the relatively small membership to respond in a spirit of good neighborliness. I hope all will take part in the work by becoming members of the society.

It gives me great pleasure, therefore, as mayor of Tawas City, to hereby set aside the designated period as the time when all past members will be asked to renew their membership and for those who have not enrolled before to add their names to the ranks of Red Cross members in our community.

Signed: J. A. Brugger.

Warren Curtis

Funeral services for the late J. Warren Curtis, 22, of Whittemore, who was killed Sunday, October 18, when his car plunged into the AuGres river, were held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curtis Tuesday, October 20th. The Rev. H. E. Davis, pastor of the M. E. church, officiated at the house, while Whittemore Lodge, F. & A. M., in which he was an officer, conducted the service at the grave. Burial was made in the Whittemore cemetery.

Warren, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curtis, was born February 28, 1914, in the same house from which he was buried. He was graduated from Whittemore high school in the class of 1931. The following year he attended Junior College in Bay City and later completed a two-year course in business administration and higher accounting at Ferris Institute. Immediately after graduating in May, 1934, he began work in the office of the National Gypsum company, where he received a promotion each year. Mr. Curtis was an outstanding, ambitious young man with high ideals, who was respected and loved by everyone whom he met. This was proven to the bereaved family by the great number of floral contributions which exceeded anything ever remembered by anyone. Business was suspended during the funeral.

Besides being an officer in the Whittemore Masonic Lodge No. 471, he was a member of the Sigma Alpha Delta fraternity, and secretary of the Iosco County Young Republican Club in which he was an ardent worker.

On June 7th, less than five months before his tragic death, he was united in marriage to Miss Marjorie Common. They established what promised to be an unusually well regulated and very happy home but God saw fit to snatch him away and his young wife is left to mourn with the sorrowing parents.

The deepest sympathy of the community is extended to the heartbroken wife and parents.

Mrs. Boomer gave a paper on Origin of Halloween, bringing in some little known and pertinent facts about this night which though originally a holy time has now become a fun and jest time. Mrs. Giddings then favored us with a piano solo, and Mrs. Musf chose a ghost story from Mark Twain's "Tales, Old and New," a humorous though spooky tale. Therefore we are taking this way to express our sincere thanks to every contributing person belonging to Iosco County Republican Organizations, National Gypsum Company Employees, Whittemore Masonic Order, Whittemore Alumni Association, Sigma Alpha Delta Fraternity.

Trade Balance for Nine Months Is Unfavorable—Mrs. "Wally" Simpson Gets Divorce—Goering Launches Nazi Economic Plan.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

EXPORTS of manufactured goods and raw materials exceeded imports to the United States during September by more than four million dollars, according to a report released by Secretary of Commerce Roper. But the flow the other way was so strong during the previous three months that the country suffered an unfavorable balance of trade during the first nine months of the year amounting to $33,136,000. This is in contrast with a favorable balance of $66,496,000 in the corresponding period of 1935.

Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years. Pressed for further explanation Roper insisted that "our government as such does not compete with other governments in the selling of goods," and this was the province of private business. On reciprocal trade agreements he was mum.

"We'd like to end the year with a favorable trade balance, naturally," he said, "but we are going through a period of study and readjustment in world trade."

In fact, Roper found the increase in import trade to be "encouraging." He said that it showed our industries were buying raw materials abroad for expansion of their production in this country. Heavy increases in wheat and meats resulted from the drought, according to Roper, rather than from the killing of six million pigs and non-raising of grain under the AAA.

UNCLE SAM'S nephews and nieces now number 128,429,000, according to the estimate of Director William L. Austin of the bureau of census. The new figure, as of July 1, represented an increase of 908,000, or 0.71 per cent, since July 1, 1935. It was based on the number of births and deaths during the year ending June 30, 1936, and the excess of immigration over emigration.

Births exceeded deaths by 899,956 and the net immigration was 8,044, according to the data taken by Austin. The population figure on the basis of the 1930 census was 122,775,046, and the biggest annual increase since then was 1,022,000, for the year ending July 1, 1931.

The bureau of agricultural economics also has been doing some population estimating. It says the back to the farm movement of the depression years has halted and that the farm population remained practically stationary during 1935, being 31,809,000 at the end of that year. This figure, the bureau says, was only slightly greater than in 1920 and "somewhat less" than in 1910.

PROCEEDINGS lasting nineteen minutes in the court of assizes at Ipswich, England, sufficed to give marital freedom to Mrs. "Wally" Simpson.

Justice Sir Anthony Hawke heard neatly arranged evidence of the infidelity of Ernest Simpson, who was not represented, and gruffly gave a decree nisi to the attractive American woman who has been and is the close friend of King Edward VIII. For six months she will be on probation, technically chaperoned at all times, and if her behavior satisfies the king's proctor she will be unconditionally free April 27 to marry again. Whether or not her new husband, if she takes one, will be King Edward is a question that only time and the two persons most directly concerned can determine.

Mrs. Simpson returned from Ipswich to her London residence on Cumberland terrace, Regents park, and there told interviewers that she was angered and humiliated by the international sensation her divorce has caused. She said she might go abroad for a time but that she would never return to the United States because of "all the nasty things" said of her here.

The Week, a radical London weekly, was the first English newspaper to carry an open reference to Mrs. Simpson's friendship with King Edward. The article was at the same time a denunciation of the American press for giving the story such prominence and of the British press for suppressing it entirely. It also made it clear that there would be widespread opposition to a marriage between Edward and "Wally." Papers from Paris and elsewhere outside the United Kingdom have been in great demand in London, but of course the vast majority of the English people know nothing about the affair.

SPURRED to quick action by the new accord between Germany and Italy, Leon Blum's popular front cabinet approved a large increase in France's military air force, already reputed to be one of the most powerful in the world. To modernize and build up the aerial squadrons the government will spend $230,000,000 at once. It was reported, too, that the cabinet decided to ask parliament to vote extraordinary funds for the fortification of the northern frontier because of Belgium's reversion to a policy of armed neutrality.

BENITO MUSSOLINI rattled his sword again on the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. "The Italian people," he proclaimed, "today are ready and determined to defend as never before—with all their force right up to the last drop of blood—victory and empire."

As for Fascism, he said, "When it finds obstacles in its path, it throws itself against them and burns its bridges behind it."

NOT to be outdone in martial gestures by other nations, Japan trotted out her entire navy for review by Emperor Hirohito. It was the greatest fleet ever brought together in Asiatic waters, comprising 108 warships aggregating nearly 700,000 tons and manned by 40,000 men. Large numbers of aircraft also took part in the evolution in Osaka bay.

GEN. HERMANN WILHELM GOERING, German minister of air and now the director of the Nazi four-year economic scheme to make the reich independent of the rest of the world in raw materials, launched his program at a great Nazi rally in Berlin. "We shall hack finger after finger off the foreign hand clutching at Germany's throat within the next four years," he declared.

Outlining his plans, Goering said no German had starved, nor would starve. The high seas fishing fleet will be increased, he asserted, so the people can eat fish when meat is not available. Whale fishing will be developed for the margarine it can produce, he promised.

Goering urged all Germans to follow the example of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler who, he said, eats neither meat nor butter. The audience yelled with delight when the robust Goering told them he had lost 22 pounds by eating less butter.

Germany would prefer the old system of international exchange of wares, but this now is impossible in a mad world, so Germany will build her factories, produce her own synthetic rubber and her own substitutes for cotton and other materials for which she now must spend millions of dollars yearly, the general declared.

MANY American travelers join the English in mourning the death of Sir Edgar Britten, commander of the great liner Queen Mary and commodore of the Cunard-White Star lines. He was stricken with paralysis in Southampton and died within a few hours. Sir Edgar was sixty-two years old and first went to sea as a lad of eighteen in sailing ships. He was knighted by King George V in 1934.

EIGHT armored cars escorted by armed private guards and state police, carried a fortune of $25,000,000 from the estate of the late Col. E. H. R. Green in South Dartmouth, Mass., to the First National bank of Boston.

The fortune, which consists of the famous coin collection, valued at $5 millions; the stamp collection, valued at 3½ millions; a large amount of cash and securities, and a quantity of uncut diamonds, has been under constant guard at the Green home since his death.

BEFORE taking a recess of two weeks the United States Supreme court announced that it would review and hand down a decision at this term upon the Wagner labor relations act. Many lawyers believe this law will be held unconstitutional, for in the Guffey coal act decision the Supreme court held that the relationship between employers and employees was local and beyond the power of congressional regulation.

SECRETARY OF LABOR FRANCES PERKINS announced that the third national conference on labor legislation, designed to stimulate the raising of work standards through federal and state co-operative efforts, will be called into session in Washington on November 9, and will last three days.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Kansas City—A Michigan State College livestock judging team placed eighth in competition at the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show here.

Big Rapids—Minor work relief projects in Mecosta and Osceola counties were halted by WPA officials to provide labor for the potato and apple harvest.

Mt. Pleasant—How would you like to walk around the world five times? Frank A. Owen, veteran mail carrier here has done the equivalent of that in the 33 years he has worn the grey uniform of Uncle Sam's letter carriers in Mt. Pleasant. He plans to retire this year.

Lansing—A vast majority of Michigan's deer hunters apparently are indifferent as to what license number they wear on their hunting coats this fall. Less than 60 low-number license tags were issued by the department. Several higher numbers have been reserved on request.

Hartland—In February, 1934, a cautious start in the manufacture of looms was begun here. The first year 50 were sold, surprising even believers in the plan. This year more than 1,000 will be marketed. In these figures is contained the story of the revival of spinning and weaving.

Grand Rapids—A "he-man" hobby show, the newest idea in exhibitions, will be held in this city early in January, fashioned after an exhibition held recently in Des Moines, Iowa. The show will consist of fine creative work done by men in their leisure hours. There will be hooked rugs, needlework, knitted things, hand-carved articles and various other types of handicraft.

Grand Rapids—Reports in the current issue of Forbes Magazine that Grand Rapids is one of the Nation's "sales high spots," are borne out by recent business developments. Berkey & Gay's furniture company, which reopened last year after a long shutdown, has announced that it will open Plant No. 3 this fall. The Michigan Bumper Co. announces plans to erect an addition which will add 25,000 feet of floor space.

Lansing—The first of the fall and winter trapping seasons opened in Michigan Nov. 1. Beginning on that date and continuing to Jan. 31 it is legal to trap opossum, skunk and badger throughout the state. In the upper peninsula muskrat trappers begun setting their traps on Nov. 1. The muskrat season in the upper peninsula closes on Nov. 30. The open seasons on trapping muskrat and raccoon in the lower peninsula are staggered.

Grand Haven—The Highway Education Board announced in Washington that Dean Misner, a sixth grade pupil in the Central School at Grand Haven, was the Michigan winner in the eleventh national safety essay contest. The reward is a gold medal and a check for $15. The essay will be entered in competition with best essays from other states for the national prizes. The awards were made possible by the automotive industry.

Lansing—P. J. Hoffmaster, State conservation director, designated W. J. Kingscott, superintendent of State parks, as his representative at a regional conference on state parks to be held Nov. 13-15 in Missouri. Hoffmaster said Kingscott will deliver an address on trailer camps and the new problems they bring in regard to park roadways and service. He said about 50 per cent of all camps this year in Michigan parks were of trailer type.

Olivet—The strip of US-27 lying between Charlotte and Olivet, once an Indian trail, has been opened for traffic following several months of paving construction. At Five Points a gradual curve, has raised the grade 1.9 feet; thus slow-moving vehicles, such as loaded grain wagons take the old road which is left in certain localities for that purpose. There is less of valley and sharp curves on the new road and the distance between the two towns is somewhat lessened.

East Lansing—Michigan corn growers may not have realized it, but they have been playing in luck during the last two seasons when they thought climatic conditions were not in their favor. By turning on plenty of heat in May, June and July, Old Sol was doing more than make corn plantings hustle skyward, according to plant breeders at Michigan State college. The sun was baking the eggs and larvae of the European corn borers on the leaves and stalks, holding this pest in check.

Lansing—State government "men of science" will have a new kind of Christmas this year, for by that time nearly all of them will be under one roof for the first time in history. Centralized in one laboratory building will be analysts, technicians and biologists of several agencies that have operated separately in the past. The union will affect technical services of the Department of Health, State Board of Pharmacy, Department of Agriculture and Department of Conservation.

Lansing—The office of the Secretary of State estimates that voters' registrations have increased 10 per cent over 1934 for the Nov. 3 election.

Lansing—A recommendation that Michigan and its municipalities spend $55,000,000 to improve water resources and drainage basins in the next 10 years has been laid before the state planning commission. The recommendation followed a survey of state water resources and needs.

Lansing—State Highway Department revenues in an amount higher than ever before are being returned to county governments. The Highway Commissioner estimated that total returns to counties will exceed $24,000,000 this year. Total departmental revenues are estimated at $38,000,000.

Lansing—Eighty-six per cent of the 1,258 SERA employees passed their merit system qualifying examinations, says Dr. William Haber, State emergency relief administrator. Only 178 employees, or 14 per cent of those who took the tests, failed to achieve a passing percentage and must forfeit their present positions.

Lansing—Among the vast stores of valuable historical data guarded under lock and key at the Michigan state library, none is more highly prized than a group of papers added to the collection only a few years ago. They are the original documents tracing the most important steps of the federal government in the matter of admitting Michigan to statehood a century ago.

Ann Arbor—Ten Michigan cities sent several hundred young men and women here for the purpose of strengthening and extending the Allied Youth organization, a movement seeking to encourage total abstinence from alcoholic beverages. Cities represented were: Detroit, Battle Creek, Port Huron, Jackson, Royal Oak, Birmingham, Lansing, Grand Rapids, Pontiac and Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor—Costs and returns of selective logging, appraisal of timber lands for tax purposes and problems created by Federal acquisition of forest areas for wild life preserves formed the chief topics for 75 timberland owners of the state, who met here for their ninth annual Land Utilization Conference. The meeting was sponsored by the school of forestry and conservation of the University of Michigan.

Big Rapids—This city's new filtration plant, destined to give Big Rapids pure water in its mains, virtually is completed. The plant will not be in operation for at least three months, however, as numerous technical details remain to be completed and an operator trained. Work on the filtration plant and a hydro-electric plant which will provide power for operation has been under way for the last 11 months.

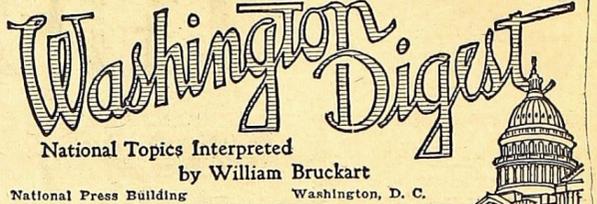

Charlotte—Tanglewood school is making preparations for its annual moving day. For several years at fall migration time, Tanglewood, with its six teachers and more than a score of pupils, has packed its equipment and departed for its winter residence at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Tanglewood school is a year-round institution for children who require special education. It is located on a farm about six miles from Charlotte.

Traverse City—Michigan's highest hill which has ever been sodded—192 feet—is located near here. A pulley attached to a small wagon and operated by an engine stationed at the foot of the hill is the means used to convey the thousands of loads of sod up the steep incline. Skirting the bay, eighteen hundred yards of riprap are being placed at the water's edge as a protection to a beautiful sodded slope from the highway to the shoreline.

Hastings—The fifteenth annual high school exposition recently held here, had conservation as its general theme this year. The exposition, sponsored by the agricultural department and the Future Farmers of America, has for the last two years been the largest exhibit of its kind in the state. Exhibits include rural, grade and high school work in home economics and agriculture, a conservation department exhibit with motion pictures of wild life of the state, and an exhibit of all farm products of the county.

Lansing—Nearly 91 per cent of the motorists subject currently to the Financial Responsibility Act of 1933 were convicted of drunk driving, according to Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state. Drunk drivers are placed under the terms of the act, although it was intended primarily to bar from the highways those drivers unable to satisfy judgments in damage suits. They may be barred from driving a car for three years if they fail to post $11,000 in cash or file a special form of liability insurance policy.

Sault Ste. Marie—That cargoes from all over the world are transported on the Great Lakes was shown here when shipments from Holland, Wales and Poland locked through the St. Mary Falls Canal. One load of general merchandise passed upbound from Rotterdam, Holland to Duluth. A load of hard coal from Wales went to Fort William and two loads of barley were taken from Poland to Duluth. Recently there was a shipment of china clay from England to Fort William.

World Conditions

Washington—I have been wondering whether the rank and file of the American citizens have been able to piece together the many loose ends of the distressing conditions extant throughout the world. It is to be recognized, of course, that when a man like Dictator Stalin of Russia makes a statement that war in Europe is just ahead, it awakens the peoples of the world with a sudden start. That is the spectacular side. But there is much more about European political conditions than is disclosed in the Stalin declaration.

The thing that students and observers of European affairs can see in conditions abroad, as they view them in the light of our own State Department's information, is that a gigantic battle is on between two schools of thought. On the one hand is communism. On the other hand, and just as firmly entrenched and as deeply determined, is fascism. Followers of these two lines of thought are both literally and figuratively at each other's throat, and the picture when pieced together, can lead to no other conclusion than that which Stalin foresees, namely, war.

I have lately heard some observers make the statement that the Spanish rebellion is the crux of the problem. I cannot agree with that. Spain and her revolution may prove to be the spark that ignites the European powder keg, but Spain and her revolution are just incidents in the developments that came originally from the overthrow of the Czar's government in Russia and the establishment for the first time of a commune of the proletariat in the world.

It was unfortunate for the world and for those people who wanted to promote peace at all times that the Versailles treaty had to take shape as it did. The Versailles treaty subjected Germany beyond all reason. I think that will be accepted by all save the most violent partisans of the late President Wilson. It seems to me, however, that the Versailles treaty has proved to be the second stage in the chain of circumstances that led to Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany, overthrow of the royalists in Spain, and lately the election of a "people's front" in France.

Any analysis of that chain of circumstances cannot fail to include the effect the Versailles treaty had upon European conditions. In some ways, the effect was direct; in others, it was indirect, and the full import of the treaty provisions were not evident until eight or ten or even twelve years after the four great powers had made that treaty effective and, they believed, effectually disarmed and bottled up Germany.

After many conversations with diplomats, foreign students and Washington government officials, I believe too much importance cannot be attached to the attempt made by the Versailles treaty to break up political jurisdictions. The treaty, it will be remembered, created a vast number of insignificant and rather helpless states in Europe. They were supposed to serve as a buffer between the larger nations and prevent snarling and making faces among those world powers that had engaged in the last war. The effect, it has now been proved, is exactly the opposite.

Throughout Europe, according to the official and unofficial word that I get, there is a new kind of hatred among nations. It is not the hatred that obtained between France and Germany under Kaiser Wilhelm. It is a hatred not between the statesmen of the various countries, but among the rank and file of the people. That is to say, it is a vengeful feeling and when that is understood, it is not difficult to realize how vicious the undercurrent of relations is from Russia on the north to the Straits of Gibraltar, or even into Africa on the south.

To bring this condition into today's light, one hardly need look further than the various cabled dispatches from European capitals, each telling a story how the respective governments are watching the Spanish revolution. Again, the Russian Stalin puts the thing into a spectacular relief. If reports can be accredited, and official information indicates that they can be regarded as having a basis of fact, Stalin is ready to lend assistance to the so-called loyalist armies in Spain.

Now the loyalist armies, representing the government that is barely holding on by the skin of its teeth, are wholly communistic. Hence, Stalin's interest.

But the Russian dictator might be regarded as horning into a mess that does not concern his nation, except for another and most important piece of information. That information, not officially confirmed but generally believed, is to the effect that Italy's Mussolini has a finger in the pie on the fascist side of the Spanish revolution. The rebel armies in Spain are fascists. Hence it is quite understandable how the Italian dictator may be mixed up in promoting, even extending military assistance, to the rebel Spaniards. Thus we have definitely a triangle that surrounds the peoples of Europe. Within the boundaries of that triangle are jealousies unparalleled, political propaganda of a sort never before unleashed on the world, and millions upon millions of people who may be classed as unthinking. They are of a type comparable to the lowest grade of American individuals who, while not wholly illiterate, cannot be accredited with the power to reason. They are being led into the very jaws of another war by wholly unscrupulous and unprincipled agitators who are posing as the friend of the common man. They are working on fertile ground.

Repeatedly, I hear questions asked concerning whether the United States is likely to get involved in that bottomless pit of Europe and, a kindred question, whether communism and fascism are gaining in the United States. The answer to the first half of that question must be made in two ways. We are likely to get involved unless some of our government policies are changed. But we can stay out if those policies do undergo revision. Whether we find ourselves embroiled in that horrible mess, depends entirely on the attitude of the Washington government appears entirely upon the attitude of the American people.

And that statement brings me to the most important observation that I have to make in connection with this discussion. It is now a definite fact that communists are spreading their propaganda through the United States in an effort to create a war spirit. It is the beginning of their movement to drag us into another world war and if we get in, it means the end of the American nation, as the land of freedom for us all. Our economic structure, as well as our government, will be destroyed. I have no hesitancy in making such a statement.

After the World war it took us twenty years to recognize what the cost of that war was. I mean the cost of disturbed lives more than I refer to money cost. The depression resulted from that war just as surely as the sun shines, and we are all now getting well fed up with this depression. And so I say on the basis of conclusions given me from countless authoritative sources, we cannot stand another war of the proportions of the World war and retain our government in its present form, our traditions, our institutions. There will be no preventing such a breakdown.

As I have said in these columns before, one particular criticism that I have against the Roosevelt administration is its capitulation to Russia. Frankly, I believe Mr. Roosevelt was trapped. I believe he saw too late what the full meaning of his action was when he recognized Russia—that is, recognized his mistake too late unless he believes in the doctrine of the communists. In any event, it is my firm conviction that the recognition of the Soviet opened the door through which now are marching hordes of men and women squinty-eyed, unprincipled in character, unpronounceable names, ruthless in design. They are bringing the propaganda which I mentioned. This is not intended to be a scare story. The evidence of communistic propaganda probably is all about you in your own communities. It is subtle, cleverly handled. Sometimes, it is even very boldly done. For example, in many of the larger cities today, handbills in appearance like those that are used announcing a public sale, are finding their way into the playgrounds of public schools. Allegedly brilliant lecturers are going about the country making what appear to be educational addresses, but containing, in many instances, propaganda in support of the communistic theory.

There are many other types of this propaganda under way. Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell published a text book on government a few years ago and he has succeeded in getting that volume into the special list of books for Delaware schools. It contains declarations definitely opposed to the American form of government.

It is unnecessary to point out more of these things. The point is quite definite and clear. The movement toward communism in this country is proceeding slowly, cautiously, because the communistic leaders recognize American sentiment must be changed slowly, but the slimy head of the snake is coming out of the water and it will be much bolder if we become involved in the European struggle. Communists would make of us American citizens each and every one a communist and would throw us into the world struggle on the side of communism and against fascism.

Hugh Bradley Says

Sports Writer Has to Ramble Around Once in a While

THE best football press box in New York is that at Randalls Island. It is inclosed and windows protect the scribes from rain, snow and sun so nicely that they never have to do pieces like this in bed . . . An over-loud whisper has a group of Boston sportsmen bidding for Brooklyn's baseball (and popularity) Dodgers . . . Gunboat Smith, now guardian of the Garden gallery, says the right hand Georges Carpentier landed on him in London was the hardest punch he ever caught in his long career. He also claims to have knocked down Jack Johnson in training and refuses to consider Joe Louis as anywhere near Sam Langford's equal.

A year ago George Parnassas, manager of Ceferino Garcia, received a hurry call from a Mexican featherweight stranded in Yuma, Arizona. He pondered the touch and then dispatched five dollars, the bus fare to Los Angeles. Since then the investment has returned him $6,400 as his manager's share of Bobby Pancho Leyvas's ring earnings . . . George H. Bull, racing steward and president of the Saratoga track, is one of the nation's most ardent football fans . . . Babe Ruth wore sliding pads only one afternoon during his entire career. After that one experiment he decided he would rather have bruises on the legs than be slowed down by the weight of the protective devices.

Press agents seeking that "international flavor," stumped their tootsies when they had the star English three-year-old Thankerton in the Santa Anita handicap. As this horse is not eligible for the General Stud Book in England, he is ineligible here, save under National Steeplechase and Hunt rules . . . John McKim, secretary of the Nassau F. C. and member of the N. Y. S. F. A. executive committee, has done many fine things for soccer on Long Island. He likes best to recall that when he was the man who gave Alec Kelso, right fullback of the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's Celtics, his first pair of football shoes . . . Harry Voiler, producer of boxing pictures and manager of Lorenzo Packs, the undefeated Negro heavyweight, has deserted Broadway to prepare for the opening of his Miami hotel.

Recalling When Frisch Outsmarted Himself

One of Frankie Frisch's most painful recollections is the day when he outsmarted himself, while trying to equal Wilbert Robinson's record of seven hits in a game. The pitcher was a bad fielder and so, on the seventh time up, Frankie decided to bunt and beat out the hit. He bunted, the ball bounded off a pebble, hopped into the pitcher's glove and he was an easy out . . . Keep an eye on that Junior quarterback, Di Nateli, of Boston college. He is a smashing tackle, a good runner, exceptional punter and a better than ordinary passer.

Racing officials, who take photos even when it is evident a horse has won by half a length, have a reason. It is to discourage those critics who insist the outside horse always is favored when it is close. The same reason also prevents them (the racing officials) from mentioning that when an inside horse wins by half a length it only shows up a head in the photo, anyhow . . . Mel Ott and Joe Moore are the two most diligent football fans among the Giants . . . Little Eddie Farrell, who played for the Giants, Yankees, Cubs and a few other teams after graduating from Penn, now is one of New Jersey's most enterprising dentists. . . Even though his Hippodrome never will seriously rival the Garden as a fight arena, Mike Jacobs is feeling well pleased with himself. The reason is that the opera which runs at the emporium pays him $1,400 a performance.

The world's largest athletic event, according to Francis Albertanti, who has more than a press agent's interest in the proposition, is the World's Bowling Championships. There are 20,000 contestants in this event listed for New York next spring . . . Critics who claim Jimmy Stout is not really a great jockey because he never sneaks in on the rail, should remember Jimmy Maiben.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

LAFAYETTE is so far ahead of the rest of the East in football squabbling that another athletic shakeup is predicted at Easton during the winter . . . After a summer of left-handed home-run hitting Mel Ott will devote the next several months to improving his right-handed golf . . . Jack Curley has it all figured out that the average top flight wrestlers travel 150,000 miles a year . . . During his twenty-five years of sports writing Frank Menke has ghost written (penned stories under the signatures of the celebrities) for 172 famous athletes . . . Granville definitely will not be shipped abroad to join Omaha.

Golf pros would rather have a handful of $12,000 to $15,000 a year than as members of their clubs than all the 50 G, 100 G and over lads you can pack into a locker room. They say they have so many ways of obtaining diversion that golf is just a minor interest and so any pro who can peddle three golf balls around to one of the big gees considers that he has made a big deal. Whereas the $12,000 gent makes golf his principle hobby and really puts out for lessons and new equipment . . . Fat Stewart of Seattle has achieved forty-one perfect games during his thirty-five years of bowling . . . Maryland develops all-around athletes. Eight of the football regulars also are baseball letter men at the Old Line university . . . If you want to compliment Pepper Martin, boost his pitching. The Card infelder-outfielder is far prouder of his very good fast ball than he is of his base-running and hitting.

Balsamo Rated Tops by First Class Hitters

Young Otto, who stiffened sixteen fighters in a total of sixteen rounds during his days as a great right-hand puncher, thinks that Harry Balsamo is the hardest hitter he ever has seen. Another testimonial to the former subway boy comes from that tireless press agent, Maurie Waxman, Mr. Balsamo had just emerged from a knockdown and dragout affair with

Harry Balsamo

Paul Pirrone, a famed dynamiter who once flattened Micky Walker for the full count. One of the seconds who had been anxiously watching the other corner announced that Pirrone finally had been revived. "Geez, that's too bad," said Mr. Balsamo, "I thought I'd killed the bum." . . . Mr. Balsamo, incidentally, is called tops by Eric Seelig whom he recently put to sleep.

Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the celebrated Philadelphia fight promoter, wears size four shoes and gets so embarrassed about it that he tells the clerks in the boy's departments he's shopping for his kid . . . In addition to being one of Ridgewood's leading butchers Pete Wagner also is manager of the German-Hungarian A. C. and one of the top officials in the German-American Football (soccer) association . . . Aside from putting the okay on Di Maggio, Crosetti, Lazzeri and other famous Yankees, Joe Devine, the Pacific coast scout, has something else about which he can tell his children. He once boxed four rounds with the late Stanley Ketchel. "The names of at least one jockey and several book-makers have been associated in serious charges," says the Sydney referee in reviewing Australian racing for the year.

Tab Bazarak, Duquesne center, is an All-American prospect . . . Joe Austin is boys' counselor and director of New York Y. M. C. A. soccer activities as well as a member of the Flushing Liberty F. C. and secretary of the N. Y. S. F. A. Cup committee. But the distinction of which he is proudest is the ownership of that Staffordshire Charity Cup medal.

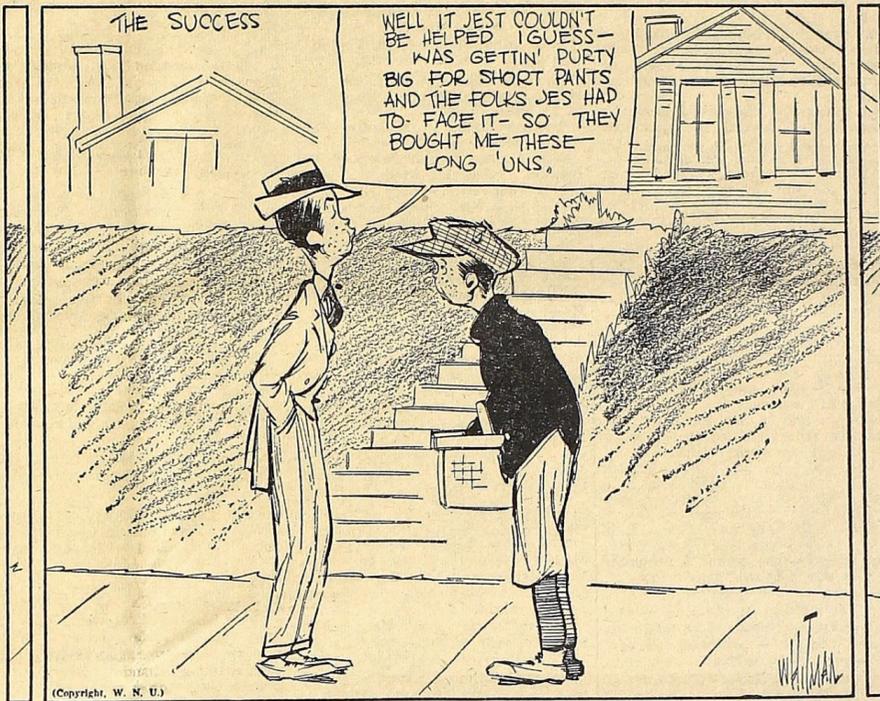

Close to 100 dead heats have been run in this country (according to the pictures) since the electric eye replaced judges at the racetrack finishes . . . Anybody who doubts that a college education pays might note the latest statistics, which reveal that six out of ten wrestlers on the average grappling card played football for some alma mornie . . . Joe Toots Mondt plays golf almost as well as he promotes wrestling . . . Add prospective bests, Merrie Scott, Yale tackle, and the Tiger Frosh football team.

Coach Howard Jones admits that Davey Davis, who sparked Southern California to victory over Illinois, is the best triple threat quarter back he has had . . . That's a high tribute, considering that Jones has coached Cotton Warburton, Russell Saunders, Orv Mohler, and others who won national recognition . . . Ed Widseth, co-captain and star tackle of the Minnesota eleven, served as lecturer for the Young People's Luther league last summer and plans to go into young people's advisory work or coaching after graduation . . .

Nebraska's 1903 ends, Chick Shedd and Bill Johnson, used to place bags filled with shot around their legs and stomachs during the week day practices . . . These were removed on game days and they would feel like a feather in the breeze . . . Helen Hicks shot a 78 in the first round of the South Australian open golf tournament . . . Well, the partridges and pheasants will be able to come out of hiding and breathe a sigh of relief, now that their open season is past. Partridges and bunnies have been comparatively scarce this season, and it is a good thing that few were killed in this locality.

This writer could get but one partridge, and that without shooting it. It flew into a fence and broke its neck.
There are lots of black squirrels in the woods, but fox squirrels are not quite so plentiful.
The contraption I rigged up in Guiley creek to provide electricity works fine, but an undershot wheel would freeze solid in cold weather unless a cover were built over it. Therefore I am now attempting a different arrangement, with a screw inside a tube. Whether or not it will provide enough power to drive the generator is hard to tell. If it does, it will make an ideal arrangement, with no danger of freezing up. We hope for the best.

"It's wonderful to see you again," Reuben said. "I've stood on a ridge waiting for the ax-men to clear a line through the brush and heard the doves make that lonesome sound and I thought about you up here on Wolfpen. I have wanted you."

She surrendered to her joy without speaking, watching the sun on the top of Cranest, listening to his voice and making her own unspoken words.

"You've had a lot of trouble," he said. "I've thought about that. So many things can happen all of a sudden."

"Yes," she said finally, "things you don't ever dream could happen."

"I think you've about had your share now, Cynthia."

She had never talked to anyone of her grief. Now she was overcome by the moment, by her feelings and his sympathy, and she unloosed to him all that had been tight in her heart so long: the sickness and quick death of Julia, Sparrel's wordless unhappiness and growing concern over Dry Creek, Doug Mason, Jesse's going away, giving up the Institute to look after things, the break-up of the place, and Jasper's approaching marriage. As she talked, she drew nearer to him and it was wonderful to her to feel the miracle of the burden lifting and the heart being purged of its heaviness.

CHAPTER XVI

Through the next weeks after Reuben had gone, Cynthia was much alone in and about the house. She would often stand by the well in the evening, the days visibly growing longer, watching the shadow of the Pinnacle glide up the hillside and finally rest its finger on the fresh graves of Sparrel and Julia, sweeping them into the eternal quiet of the dust. In a year. One procession of the seasons, spring to spring. From the garden behind the picket fence, from the steam-mill, to the profound silence of Cranest Shelf. As the days passed with their thought of Reuben and the life ahead, the finality of the procession began to seem supportable to her, so much grief tempering the heart to the sorrow inherent in a precarious life. The way lay onward and not back and was filled with a degree of hope bravely disproportioned to the defeat of yesterday.

The mountain laurel against the sun-warmed rocks of the Pinnacle would be flushing pink at the bud hearts and the birds would be welcoming the return of another spring. She would go there now to meet them and weave Reuben and her vision of life with him into the memory of that place where she had through the years communed with herself.

In the afternoon she went out through the barnyard, down into the just perceptible green mist in the orchard, across the creek, stepping through the low sound of the water playing among the rocks in the bed, and then the sharp climb up the steep contours of the path. It was good to feel again the muscle pull in her calves and thighs, the thump of her heart, the sweet intake of fresh breath, to see the valley begin to spread and drop away, to hear the cattle, the sheep, the chickens, recede below her. Step by climbing step she mounted upward out of the events that had assaulted the Wolfpen Hollows in a year. She felt her soul growing calmer, released from the sharp clutch of ever repeated broodings: Shellenberger, lumbering, Julia, Sparrel, the place; the place, Sparrel, lumbering, Abrael, Julia; Reuben and the vision of him taking possession of her.

At the Pinnacle she passed her hand over her forehead, lifting her head, breathing mountain air into her mouth, feeling exalted by the triumph of glad animal life over the depression of spirit. She wandered around the rock ledges of the Pinnacle, peeping down the abrupt emptiness to the creek and mill below, examining the miracle of columbine extracting sustenance from a break in the rock, musing on the timeless heavy flopping of crows' wings the effortless sailing on the wind up and down over Wolfpen and Gannon. There were cardinals in the boughs of the pine tree on the edge of the precipice. She sat on the ledge with her feet resting on the last shelf and looked across the valley, yielding to her unworded thoughts.

"April and another spring rolling silently into these hills and spilling into Wolfpen. It's a queer gladness all tangled up with a sorrow and a longing in a body's heart when you see the spring coming green again. I reckon it is the seed urge pent up for a winter and breaking out of its shell. Wanting to feel the earth warm around it, and open itself and say, 'Here I am, take me and I shall bear fruit.' I wonder if the sweet-corn seeds are like me, thinking of Mother's garden as I do of Reuben? Would I dare even to think of it? Corn seed into the warm ground, man seed . . . woman . . . a planting. To bear his children. With Reuben, in the spring, in a few more days it will be. To be thinking of such things. Always before it seemed like a thought of shame to think of a man in that way. But not with Reuben and not now. Like it was a part of a body's life, beautiful, the best part. Looking to this time. Strong he is and gentle in his strength.

the hearing of it. A warm flush overspread her face. She dropped her eyes to the moss on the stone and then lifted them beyond it through the bare sycamore limbs to the cloud fluff above the Pinnacle golden in the sun.

"Will you?" he said.

"Yes, Reuben, if you want me to," she said.

"When?"

"April."

He kissed her, holding her tight in his arms, and it was natural and inevitable like a curled wave forming far out under the sky and moving always shoreward till it breaks at last on the rim of warm sand.

"I love you more than anything," he said.

"And I love you, Reuben."

Every burden oppressive to men, commanding pity for their unhappy lot, writing the marks of suffering below their eyes, and warping the lines about their mouth, was removed from them as they walked slowly down the hollow while the sun was hurrying out of the valley in its endless flight before the stars. And through their eyes made bright by the high passion of their hope, the world was a new and beautiful place wherein no sorrow and no failure could ever intrude.

"Last spring I sat here and had never seen him. Then Mother was making her garden. Then Daddy was excited about his mill, not thinking of selling land, or lying on Cranest Shelf in a year. I will think of my father. Wolfpen without him; Jasper to carry on; Jasper's new wife to have the house now. How does a body go about beginning to think about things? First you have a place where you feel alone with yourself. Like this. Where the lay of the land is like all the folds in your own soul. They fit right over each other and then you haven't any body any more. The way the sky and the mountains come together in the blue. The stir of thoughts rises there in the heart of God. It comes with the air waves of the mountain-tops and the dark blue pockets over the hollows, surging to me, play of His thoughts forever beating on this Pinnacle. This cardinal feather fluttering out of the sky almost into my lap, I guess it must be a blood drop from the head of God. The sudden bell note of the cardinal's call from the laurel spray is the music of His voice through these hills. It does not belong to the rebird. Another one sounded it last year, still another the year before. He lends it to each bird generation, blowing upon them with His breath as they come into the earth. The Indians heard it, too, and they are dead. My grandfathers heard it and my father, and they are dead as the birds are. Now I hear it going on. The feathers flutter in the pine boughs and flit down into the apple orchard in Wolfpen for a season or two and are brushed away. But the bell note sings on forever over these hills in the very breath of God.

"Or could it be after all a sigh? A despairing sigh from a bleeding heart before the black plague on hawk's wings stifles the melody of the song? My father's song stopped by a stone in the hands of wicked men. I will think of him. Yonder is the upper ford and the big rocks where a great evil hawk battered the song from my father's mouth. There floats over Ferguson's meadow the black shadow from the only cloud in the sky. It seems to lie now at rest on the rocks at the very spot where they struck him down. And still no trace of them that did it. Why did it have to happen? Or Doug broken up and blinded by a worthless log? There is no why, no reckoning with destruction and death. Hurrying on somewhere else to strike again, but giving no answer to a body's why. Where in the heart of God does death dwell? I guess there is also no answer to a body's where.

"I keep thinking of death. I will not think of death. I will think of Daddy, of Sparrel Pattern. Every eye between here and Pikeville turned upon him when he rode. Jasper tries to sit a horse like him but he can't. Jesse seems to be dreaming when he rides. Abrael is fidgety. Daddy rode upright and easy and men looked at him. And women. I can't keep going straight with a thought. I steal up on one to catch it in hand like it was a moth on a grapevine, and when I reach out my fingers it flutters away.

"Reuben marrying me. Married? It is a strange word. Wife. From Cynthia Pattern who always lived with her mother and father and brothers as a girl sister, to wife and the love of a man, married and in a house with him, together in the same bed. With Reuben. Husband, he will be. Children . . . Julia or Sparrel, or ought he to be called Reuben? To leave Wolfpen and go away with him the way Mother left Scioto and came here with Sparrel Pattern, and Granny Louverna from Virginia with Saul. His eyes when he told of the house in the orchard on the hill above the river. I could live forever in the look in his eyes. Maybe I could marry in Mother's dress, with a little making over, for she was taller than I and prettier. Reuben says no, but she really was. How the days go since he went away. Planning all the time, fixing out clothes and quilts and blankets, too good to use, to keep for keepsakes, no, not too good for Reuben to use.

"That day Jesse went away and I cried, and Doug came and grabbed me and said Reuben wouldn't get me. I wonder what he aimed to do then, and if he would have done it if he hadn't happened to him. He is a fine boy and I could nearly love him for the proud way he went into himself and never said another word to me. I hope he marries Judy and has a good family. I couldn't ever have, Doug.

"I will think of my father. I never heard him lift his tongue on anybody. Not even on the bad men coming into these hills and giving them a bad name. Why do bad men kill the good men? Because they sneak behind a rock from behind. They wouldn't, none of them, stand up to him eye to eye like a man straight and fair. Abrael calls them dirty devils, and keeps saying to Jasper they ought to catch and hang them. Jesse thinks Sheriff Hatler'll get them because he has some clues? It might lead to more feuds. There's been too much feuding and fighting in these hills, Daddy always said about those Harrison and McClurgs. Patterns have kept out of any trouble ever since they've been here.

"The law's got to keep this valley an orderly place for a man and his family," he said that evening before he went away. I guess that meant Jasper and his family. Jesse is wrapped up in the law and won't live here. Abrael is right now getting ready to go on a raft. I hope he takes it around the curves without running into the bank. Or would it be better if he grounded? No. It wouldn't. He's so confident. He ought to keep it. He'll go on down to Cincinnati or up to Pittsburgh, I'm sure, hearing Shellenberger talk of the world. Shellenberger. He owes me for his board. He'll never offer to pay it. He owes Daddy a thousand dollars on a note and a payment on the place. Jesse says it ought to have been a mortgage instead of a note because it's hard to collect a note. I don't know. Neither did Jesse either last fall. Jesse says he'll look after all that now. He says there is enough money for me to have twelve hundred dollars when I go with Reuben. Is that an awful lot of money? And Reuben has some saved. Maybe it would be enough to buy the orchard so we could start off in our own place. Reuben will be surprised. What did they use to call it? A dowry? Reuben, I bring a dowry of twelve hundred dollars cash and a chest of linen made on the loom in Wolfpen. Mother had a chest, too, but no money. Only she was a beautiful girl, more than I am. I reckon if Shellenberger gets his other debts paid it won't hurt me any to give him his victuals and his bed. Even if he did want two sheets all the time.

"The house looks so little down there in the trees, but it appears happy again, like it understood it was about to start all over again with Jasper and Jane Burden. Saul and Louverna, then Barton and Mima, then Tivis and Adah, then Sparrel and Julia, and now Jasper and Jane, the people ending but the house going on and the things in it. Jane is a good girl. She's been at town a right smart but she is a good girl. She can't weave as well as Mother or me, but maybe she'll learn better. And she won't have the garden Mother made, with every clod out no bigger than a robin's egg, and the flowers all around the fence. But she can do all right and I don't be-

How Some of World's Great Writers Secured Publication of Their Works

John Drinkwater was not original when, in the autumn of 1903, he paid a local bookseller to print his first book of poems. Oscar Wilde had done the same before him. So had Edward FitzGerald, with his immortal translation of "Omar Khayyam," and Walt Whitman with his "Leaves of Grass." But in Drinkwater's case he made no attempt to find a publisher for his poems. Probably he felt it was hopeless, for he says in his autobiography:

"It was, in truth, a pathetic little book. I think 250 copies were printed. I had most of them on my hands for two or three years when, having learnt better, I destroyed them."

You recall that poor Edward FitzGerald, after hawking "Omar Khayyam" around the London publishing world and not being able to interest a single publisher in it, had it printed at his own expense. Just a few hundred copies were run off and very few were sold. Finally, discouraged, he got rid of the remaining stock to Quaritch, the London bookseller, who dumped them in his penny box and left them to their fate. So far as is known, there are only a few copies in existence today and each is worth its weight in gold.

After trying for nearly a year to get his first book of poems published, Oscar Wilde paid for the printing and production of the book himself. It had an extraordinary success, four editions being sold in a few weeks. That was in the summer of 1881.

grudge her the place—much—only I'm right glad I'm going down to a cottage in an orchard looking over two rivers and three states to live with Reuben. I'd rather be away and let Jane and Jasper have it the way they want it. She'll want things changed some, and right she should, but I wouldn't want anything different from the way Mother left it. And Jasper will ask her about things and not me. It is the custom and custom is a good thing. Mother coming up here, me going down there. I guess it is about the same, always new things for a body to get used to. I reckon it's life."

In a series of pictures and with few words formed she let her mind play over the things that touched her life. Sitting there on the rocks, high above the valley, each mountain ridge shouldering its blue-green mist above the one before it, stretching on into the purple fusion with the sky on the horizon. The graves on Cranest Shelf were wrapped in peace. The mill was idle and the abandoned wheel at rest. Behind her in Dry Creek she heard the shouts of the men. She had not for a long time looked into that hollow. Now she felt released from it and detached. She would turn and confront it from this high place. She arose from the ledge and climbed across the back of the Pinnacle. The brown pine needles were thick on the thin soil under the clump of trees. Emerging, she stood on the jagged rock on the west, the sun in her face, and looked down into Dry Creek.

It was a changed place. The mountainsides were desolate and almost bald now as far as she could see. Brush piles were scattered on the slopes. The round gray splotches of wood-ashes from the burned heaps spotted the hills like the after-marks of a disease. A few scrubby, worthless and unprofitable trees, scorched and seared by the brush fires, withered among the dead stumps. Already a hundred intricately laced gullies were outlined on the naked hills where the giant poplars stood, cut by the muddy water as it rushed down into Dry Creek. The men were gathered about the mountains of logs at the splash dam and in Gannon creek linking rafts with tie-poles.

"Death here also and destruction. Well, that's what that man has done to the woods. I reckon there's nothing one poor body can do about it—only watch the wind come over from Wolfpen to wake up the trees when the night's over, and then hurry sad away because they're dead, like Grandfather Barton. Still, I guess you needn't weep over it, only just wait, and maybe all the little under trees will grow up to meet the wind and lide the scars of Dry Creek. The earth is very old, and to her a season is only an evening and a morning. And death is no older and no stronger than is life."

For the third time in the year, Reuben came to Wolfpen. He rode over with Jesse from Pikeville near the end of April in the evening before the wedding. Cynthia was finishing the dishes and gazing out of the window when he came into view. She was enraptured to see him, watching him as he came through the yard, observed the neat black suit, the Gladstone collar, the wide black silk cravat with small white dots that covered the bosom of his shirt. "He's a handsome man, and as fine a figure as Sparrel Pattern off a horse. And Jesse begins to look professional, but he's still a little self-conscious about it."

Standard Time

Prior to 1883 great confusion as to proper time existed. Towns and cities usually set their clocks by the sun. Under the standard plan the time throughout each zone is the same. The zones each represent roughly fifteen degrees of longitude, with variations that take account of local conditions. From east to west the time is one hour earlier in each successive zone. When it is 3 p. m. in the Eastern zone, for instance, it is 2 p. m. by Central time, 1 p. m. by Mountain time and noon by Pacific time.

The standard time scheme was proposed by Dr. C. F. Dowd, a New York schoolmaster, who worked for twelve years to have it adopted. It was finally put into practice on November 18, 1883.—Literary Digest.

Cod Liver Oil Heals Burns. A NUMBER of years ago while examining the boys in a preparatory school it was interesting to watch the different youngsters go up to a table immediately after lunch and take a spoonful of cod liver oil from their own particular bottle. Thus cod liver oil was known to be a body builder for a number of years, but it was only in recent years that it was discovered that it was the vitamin D that was the important factor.

A couple of years ago it was discovered that in old diseased bones, if the dead bone were scraped out and the bone filled with cod liver oil, healing advanced more rapidly.

And now Dr. J. P. Steel, in the Lancet, tells of the good results he has obtained with cod liver oil in the treatment of burns and wounds.

Lint heavily soaked in cod liver oil was applied widely over the part to be treated and covered with a dressing. The dressing is left in place and re-soaked with cod liver oil every 24 hours, the lint not being taken from the skin surface until the end of 48 hours—a great advantage in extensive burns. Cases that have not done well under the ordinary dressings or were very slow in recovery, seemed to make a rapid recovery with the use of the cod liver oil treatment. Almost every patient has said that the first application of cod liver oil has given much greater ease than other dressings.

Good for Slow Ulcers, Too. Dr. Steel has also used crude cod liver oil as a dressing in slow or indolent ulcers and deep scrapes in the skin, always of course letting the pus out (if present) before applying the cod liver oil. Pus should never be covered or smothered in; it should always be let out, or at least nothing allowed to prevent it from coming out.

Cod liver oil has been found of advantage in a great number of slow healing wounds. After the removal of pus or gangrenous (dead) patches of skin, the oil applied as above has brought about healthy granulation of the tissues and complete healing.

The above information should be helpful in many "slow" cases of wounds or deep scrapes in the skin.

How to Reduce Weight. Such a large percentage of the population is overweight—20 per cent of the entire population and about 40 per cent of those at or past middle age—that the matter of reducing weight is now a popular or unpopular subject in many households.

The first point that every overweight who is really willing to do all possible to reduce weight must fully understand is that no matter how much overweight exists and how much effort has been expended in reducing weight in the past, much of the excess weight can always be taken off.

The only point of difference between one overweight and another is the rate at which the extra weight can be removed.

The fact that fat tissue holds a great amount of water, and that some overweighters drink much more water than do others often accounts for the fast or slow rate at which the weight comes off.

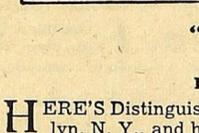

All that is necessary then is to first reduce the liquids until the body stops losing weight. As all foods contain water—10 to 98 per cent—there is no need for the great amount of water so many overweighters drink.

The next point is to use certain foods that will furnish all the needs of the body, but are not too rich in food or fuel value, and to avoid the rich fat and starch foods which, while good energy producers, are big fat storers.

The first foods to use are lean meats and eggs, which, while rich in fuel value, must nevertheless be eaten to maintain the structure of the different parts of the body. These foods are not only absolutely necessary to health but give a "satisfied" feeling to the individual on a reduced diet. Vegetables and fruits must also be eaten for although containing much liquid, they are needed to supply the minerals and vitamins the body needs.

The foods that must be avoided or very greatly reduced in amount are: cream soups, breakfast cereals, bread, potatoes, fat meats, cream, butter, sugar, nuts, dried fruits, rich dressings, and rich desserts. By keeping in mind that meat and eggs must not be reduced although rich in food value; that cabbage, celery, lettuce, and radishes are good foods but bulky with little fuel value and can thus be eaten in large quantities; and that starch foods—bread, potatoes, sugar—are weight producers as are also cream, butter, fat meat and nuts, one has a working or practical knowledge of what to eat and what not to eat to reduce weight.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"The Spark of Life"

By FLOYD GIBBONS, Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S Distinguished Adventurer Howard Hartling of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his yarn starts out like this.

"Up on the surface we sat smoking. "One of the smokers asked me for matches and I passed my box to him. When he returned it I put it back in my pocket without looking at it. A match was never of much value to me UNTIL MY LIFE DEPENDED ON HALF OF ONE."

Remember that Canadian mine disaster that happened up in Nova Scotia and took up so much space in the newspapers a while ago? Well, Howard Hartling is going to tell us the story of a similar misfortune that took place in the same mining district in August, 1900. As a young lad, Howard worked in the Famous gold mines in Halifax county, Nova Scotia. His job was on the 300-foot level where they were digging a new tunnel—a tunnel that was being dug around a deep pit filled with icy water so that the company could tap the gold vein that lay on the other side.

Smokers Borrowed His Matches.

Howard's adventure took place in that tunnel—but as Howard himself points out, it started up at the top of the shaft where a bunch of men sat around smoking and borrowing his matches.

Just about the time Howard's match box was handed back to him, the whistle blew and the men went down in the "cage" to the 300-foot level. They went to work and the afternoon wore on. The distant sounds of dynamiting reminded Howard that it was almost time to knock off, and he started for the mouth of the tunnel. As the sounds of exploding dynamite came nearer, he hurried his steps. He was turning into a cross tunnel leading to the shaft landing when the candle by which he was lighting his way flickered and went out.

Only a little thing, the blowing out of that candle, but it left Howard in darkness, and darkness is one of the things a miner fears most. Once he took a wrong turning he might get into the old abandoned workings and be lost there for days—maybe forever. It wasn't exactly safe, either, for a man to stay below for long after the blastings started, and those explosions were coming perilously near. Hastily, Howard reached for his box of matches, and suddenly the darkness and the dynamiting took on a new and terrifying significance. THE MATCH BOX WAS EMPTY—CLEANED OUT BY THE SMOKERS AT NOON!

"It was a little more than 300 yards to the landing," says Howard, "but that thousand feet had to be covered in pitch black darkness, by feeling my way along the foot-wall of the tunnel. There was no one near to get a light from. All the miners had gone out as their tasks were completed and before the blasting began for the day. Those explosions were coming nearer. I could smell the heavy, choking nitrogen-glycerine smoke. I crept on slowly, but the fumes of the burning dynamite were getting more dense every minute.

"They were catching my throat. Breathing was becoming more difficult. The walls were wet and mucky with slime that had been formed millions of years before. It oozed from the rock crevices and dripped down on the floor of the passage. I crawled along till I realized I had gone many yards and should be seeing the lights of the shaft landing. Then something inside of me seemed to shout 'Stop!' I obeyed the impulse!

Lost In The Abandoned Workings.

"Underfoot the floor of the tunnel seemed unfamiliar. It dawned on me then that I had taken the wrong turning at the cross tunnel. I had entered the old abandoned workings. I WAS LOST!"

In his left hand, Howard still gripped his unlighted candle. If only he had another match. Again, something inside him began to prompt him—to urge him to make another search of his pockets. "Carefully," he said, "I wiped my muddy right hand on my coat and opened my vest. Carefully—very carefully—I made my search. In the upper right pocket I found half a match.

I couldn't tell which half it was, but I held the candle over in the shelter of my open coat. Where, in that damp tunnel, could I find a place to scratch this precious half of a match? Would it light? I thought of the buckle on my suspenders. I felt for it. With a prayer I tried that splinter of wood!"

Howard scratched that piece of match—and it lighted. Quickly he guided it to the candle. The wick sputtered but—IT LIT! Howard breathed a prayer of thanks. Then, with a light to see by, he began looking around him.

On the Brink of Waterfilled Pit.

Says he: "I held that candle aloft and let my gaze wander. I was in the old tunnel. Not 20 feet ahead was the old, abandoned, water-filled pit. A hundred feet of icy water was waiting for me. Another minute and I would have plunged to my death. A GRAVE 400 FEET UNDERGROUND! I almost collapsed at the thought!"

But suddenly, Howard was on his toes again. A new blast, so close that it deafened him, reminded him that he still was not out of danger. "I dared not hurry," he says, "as my light might go out again, and this time I wouldn't have even half a match. Another blast and water began trickling in from the old workings. By the time I reached the cross tunnel it was half way to my knees. Then, at last, the lights at the hoisting shaft came into view through the murky smoke. A hoarse voice, choked from the fumes, bawled out, 'F'r Pete's sake hurry up. We're holding the cage. Where in heck were you? You look white as a ghost.'"

"And," says Howard, "I would have been one—only for half a match!"

Contents of Malleable Iron

Malleable iron contains from 1.5 to 2.0 per cent carbon and is cast iron that has received a heat treatment for a week or more, which changes the form of the carbon, making it tough and capable of withstanding considerable twisting and bending. It can not be welded successfully, but is easily and satisfactorily brazed with torch. It is used extensively in farm equipment as well as for pipe fittings, harness hardware, etc. A broken malleable casting has a smoother appearance than ordinary cast iron and bends before breaking.

California's Vigilantes

California's vigilantes of 1851 had to cope with not only the most criminal and lawless gathered from all four corners of the earth, but with the shyder lawyers as well. Just as the worst type of criminal lawyers of later times, their weapons were mistakes in spelling the name of the accused on indictments and warrants, the charge that the law claimed their client killed with a pistol, whereas it should have stated "by the discharge of said pistol," and so on, right through all the technicalities and loopholes we read about.

Lesson for November 8

THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-12, 18-20; Ephesians 6:13-20. GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Eph. 6:10. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Paul Preached in a Schoolhouse.

JUNIOR TOPIC—In a Schoolhouse in Ephesus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Weapons of the Christian Soldier. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Facing the Forces of Evil.

War, war! The whole world is war-conscious in our day. Nations are watching one another with suspicion, and in the meantime arming themselves for conflict. Hatred and suspicion are rife, and as long as sin rules the hearts of men we long in vain for peace, which cannot come until that day when the Prince of Peace himself shall reign.

Yet every Christian hopes and works for the peaceful solution of the nations' problems. Right thinking men do not want war between the peoples of the earth. But there is one warfare that we do seek to foster and promote. We encourage it, and as Christians make a holy resolve to battle to the end. That is the warfare against Satan and his hosts. As long as he rules in the hearts of men, and sin and wickedness are here, we say, "Fight on, my soul."

Christian life and service are presented in Scripture as a fight, and we do well to learn the methods and the weapons of this great spiritual conflict, not stressing a belligerent note of strife against one another, and particularly not between the divisions of God's army in the earth, but standing shoulder to shoulder in the battle against the Evil One.

Our lesson presents a picture of I. The Lord's Warrior (Acts 19:8-12).

Paul, who is now on his third missionary journey, comes again to Ephesus, the leading city of Asia Minor, and the center of the worship of the heathen goddess, Diana. He tarries there for about three years.

Like a good tactician he began his campaign at a strategic point, the synagogue. He brought forward his God-given weapons, "reasoning and persuading." Some he won, others disbelieved—the sad fact which even this greatest of all preachers had to meet.

God attested his work by miracles. The soldier of the Lord does not go into battle alone. Nor does he fight in his own power. God gave him

II. A Mighty Conquest (vv. 18-20).

When a man's profession of faith in Christ carries with it an open forsaking of his confessed misdeeds—a true change of life as well as a declaration of belief—there has been real dealing with God.

Notice, that they burned the bad books found in their homes, even though they were valued at thousands of dollars. Christian, how many books or magazines are there in your home now that minister only to the lowest in your nature? Oh, yes, they may be "literature," they may be in beautiful bindings; you may even read them "in the original," and regard the reading as cultural. But if they are bad books, are you ready to follow the Ephesians in destroying them?

Finally we have from Paul's letter to the Ephesians the glorious presentation of the Christian's

III. God-Given Weapons (Eph. 6:13-20).

This is a familiar, but none the less rich and instructive, passage. We have space to note only that there are (1) five weapons of defense; namely, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shoes of peace, the shield of faith, and the helmet of salvation, and (2) one mighty weapon of offense, the sword of the Spirit—the Word of God. A glorious and impenetrable armor and equipment for battle!

But it will do us not the slightest good unless we obey Paul's admonition and put it on.

Christian, are you wearing and using "the whole armor of God"?

Judging From Appearance

Men in general judge more from appearance than from reality. All men have eyes, but few have the gift of penetration.—Macchiavelli.

God's Way

The strength and the happiness of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way, too.

Acts That Bring Results

No act falls fruitless; none can tell how vast its power may be; nor what results, enfolded, dwell within it silently.—Bulwer.

A Friend Indeed

Keep close to thy Best Friend, and He will refresh and cheer thee.—Spurgeon.

God's Holiness

We must not only bless God for all his benefits; we must rejoice in his holiness.—McIntyre.

Wives, Know Yourselves!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

SPEAKING on the question of trial marriages, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage."

That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "know thy husband"—or "wife," but "know thyself!"

And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves—that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person?

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husband has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a certain other man?

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girls' impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

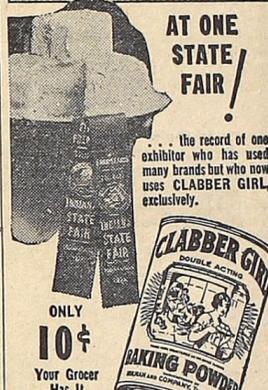

If all discontented wives would look deeply into themselves, measure themselves, stop fooling themselves, many might discover that the other man they might have married is a self-nurtured illusion; that the career of their dreams is not a soft snap and a joy forever; but a grueling, exhausting job which might have worn them out if they had qualified for it, which they probably would have been unable to do; that they themselves are neither devastating beauties nor always charming, but women who are frequently disappointing and difficult to live with. They might discover and admit to themselves that they are greatly in debt to their husbands for many things that make life easier and better and more worthwhile—that they would not get along so well without them.

Then they might think more of doing their part of trying to make those husbands happy. And that effort on the part of one must inevitably go a long way toward a mutually happy and successful marriage.

Value of Persuasion

VIOLENCE ever defeats its own ends. Where you cannot drive you can always persuade. A gentle word, a kind look, a good-natured smile can work wonders and accomplish miracles. There is a secret pride in every human heart that revolts at tyranny. You may order and drive an individual, but you cannot make him respect you.—Hazlitt.

The true past departs not. Nothing that was worthy in the past departs—no truth or goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die.—T. Carlyle.
