RED CROSS ROLL CALL UNDER WAY

Annual Membership Drive Opened Wednesday and Ends Nov. 26

We are privileged and obligated to extend to everyone an invitation to join the Red Cross during the annual Roll Call, this year from November 11 to 26. It is the new and renewed annual memberships, voluntarily given, which enable the essential work of the Red Cross to go forward. Will you help?

The Red Cross is the agency through which the people of the nation act to relieve distress and suffering. With your cooperation we will continue to meet the challenge of disaster, neglect and ignorance during 1937.

Let us consider some of last year's record of service of the Red Cross. Relief was given to the victims of 138 disasters. During the spring floods and tornadoes alone, affecting 20 states, aid was given to 145,000 families. Sufferers were given food, clothing, shelter and medical attention, thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired.

Red Cross public health nurses made 1,000,000 visits to the sick. Home hygiene and care of the sick instruction was given to 50,000 persons.

First aid and life saving was taught to 75,000 enrollees of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Seven hundred highway emergency first aid stations were established by Red Cross chapters at key points to increase the immediate availability of proper equipment and persons trained in first aid at the scene of accidents. More than 3,500 additional stations will soon be in operation.

Service to disabled veterans, their dependents, and men now in service has been carried on.

Eight million school boys and girls were enrolled in the Junior Red Cross, where they were given training in service for others.

Eight hundred chapters gave relief to the needy of their communities.

The annual Roll Call for Tawas City is being sponsored by the (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Twentieth Century Club

The regular meeting Saturday, November 14, promises to be very interesting. Miss Worden will have charge of the forum on Juvenile Delinquency. To make the meeting more helpful some of the members will assist Miss Worden by starting discussions on different phases.

Roll call—As You Like It—might be "How do you like it," and this applies to eats, programs, stories, music, etc. If you have a "special liking" for something, let us know.

At the October 17th meeting the members voted to send a box of vegetables and canned goods to the Star Commonwealth for Boys. Please bring or send your donation of canned fruit or vegetables to the club rooms on Saturday, November 14th.

Road Commission Will Not Attempt To Snow Plow All Roads This Winter

The Road Commission has decided this winter that snow removal will be attempted only on the main gravel roads and mail routes. No plowing will be done on other roads except in case of extreme emergency. The Commission states that this is made necessary because there is not enough money with which to finance snow removal on all roads. No guarantee can be given that even the mail routes will be kept open because the county's snow removal equipment is not adequate for taking care of these roads should there be a heavy snow fall as was the case last winter. However, every effort will be made to keep them open.

Immunization Clinics Postponed To Nov. 19

The immunization clinics which were scheduled to be held by the Children's Fund of Michigan in the Taft, Cottage, Corrihan, Keystone, Hawks and Hottis schools on October 26, were postponed because of the death of Senator James Couzens, founder of the Children's Fund of Michigan. These clinics will be held on Thursday, November 19.

The county nurse and Dr. Thompson of this health district will be in these schools to vaccinate against small pox and give toxoid injections against diphtheria to all school and pre-school children in these districts. Clinics will be held in the Cottage, Taft and Corrihan schools in the morning, and the Hottis, Keystone and Hawks schools in the afternoon. All parents in these school districts who have children under school age are invited to bring them to be immunized.

Dr. Sue Thompson Is New Children's Fund Physician

Dr. Sue Hurst Thompson, graduate of Rush Medical School, Chicago, Illinois, formerly school physician in Gary, Indiana, and recently of the Health Department of the State of Michigan, has come to the Children's Fund of Michigan as physician in district 2, which includes Ogemaw, Alcona, Iosco and Oscoda counties, to take the place of Dr. Gladys Kleinschmidt who resigned on November 1. Dr. Thompson's office is located at West Branch, and she will be there every Saturday morning to consult with anyone who wishes to see her about matters relating to health in our community.

To the Voters of Iosco County

I wish to thank the voters of Iosco county for their splendid support at the polls which resulted in my election to the office of county treasurer. While I had no opposition at the election, the fact that I received such a large vote in all the precincts of the county is indeed gratifying, and I want to assure you that I will perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability, and in the interest of the people of Iosco county who so generously supported me.

Very truly yours,
Grace L. Miller.

Edward J. Bartlett

Edward J. Bartlett of East Tawas died Monday morning at his home. He had been a resident of East Tawas for 30 years. The deceased was 80 years of age.

Edward John Bartlett was born in 1856 at Oberlin, Ohio. He is survived by a daughter and a son, Mrs. August Baumgardt and Arthur Bartlett, both of East Tawas; a brother, Henry Bartlett of Petoskey, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Willis of Chicago.

Mr. Bartlett was caretaker of the Tawas Beach park for 23 years. He had retired about two years ago.

The funeral services were held from the Zion Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Ernest Ross officiated. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Mrs. Bartlett preceded him in death March 27, 1935.

Mrs. Lydia St. James

Mrs. Lydia St. James died last week Wednesday at her home at Whittemore after an illness of one week. She had been a resident of Whittemore for 45 years.

Lydia Strong was born May 9, 1853, in New York state. She was married September 21, 1891, at Saginaw to Peter St. James. The deceased is survived by two children, Theodore St. James and Noe St. James, both of Whittemore.

Funeral services were held from the St. James Catholic church, Whittemore, Saturday morning. Rev. B. B. Roguska officiated. Interment was in St. James cemetery.

Cyrine G. Middleton

Cyrine G. Middleton, age 83 years, a retired farmer who had made his home in Battle Creek for the last ten and one-half years, passed away at two o'clock Wednesday morning, November 4, at Battle Creek. He suffered a stroke the previous Monday and another on Wednesday from which he never rallied.

He was born January 1, 1853, at Lyndhurst, Ontario. He moved to Michigan 55 years ago. His wife, to whom he was married April 26, 1877, preceded him in death April 14, 1926. Mr. Middleton was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist church, in which he was an ardent worker while his health permitted.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Grace Hewitt of Spokane, Washington and Mrs. Clara Armour of Battle Creek; one son, F. L. Middleton, of Battle Creek; 13 grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren. Mr. Middleton lived on a farm west of Whittemore for a number of years prior to going to Battle Creek and was a highly respected citizen, neighbor and friend.

Burial took place in the family lot in the Battle Creek cemetery.

Thompson-Hunt

Mrs. Edith Thompson of Whittemore and Dio L. Hunt of Flint were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the Whittemore Methodist Episcopal parsonage by the Rev. H. E. Davis. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Chester Huff of Flint. The couple have a host of friends in this locality who extend congratulations and best wishes. They will reside in Flint.

300 Attend Installation Of Rev. J. J. Roekle At Emanuel Church Sunday

Rev. J. J. Roekle was installed last Sunday afternoon as pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church of this city. Rev. Kenneth Vertz of Hale officiated. He was assisted by Rev. Ernest Ross of the local Zion Lutheran church. Present at the services was an estimated attendance of 300 persons.

At the close of the installation services the congregation repaired to the Lutheran school building where a dinner and reception were given in honor of the new pastor and his family. During the evening a program consisting of a group of sacred songs was presented by the church choir.

Noted Missionary Will Speak at East Tawas

Dr. Franklin W. Wilson, noted missionary to India, will give an illustrated address Thursday, November 19, at the East Tawas Methodist Episcopal church. The program will begin at 7:30 p. m. He will be assisted by Mrs. Wilson.

Dr. Wilson has served a great many years in India and has a wide knowledge of that interesting country. For a number of years he was in charge of a large district in the northwest provinces. He is a man of great ability and has an exceptionally fine personality.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Wilson will appear in native costumes. The lecture will be illustrated with colored slides. Everyone who plans to attend can safely look forward to an interesting evening. There will be no charge for admission but an offering will be taken.

Ben Ames Williams writes 'Deputy of the Devil'

Fiendish were his plans... cunning were his methods. But Dr. Greeding, the man whose strange powers held sway over friend and foe alike, could not combat the stronger power of love that was destined to ruin his plan!

You'll read with amazement how a series of foreshadowed incidents gave this deputy of the devil his supreme confidence... and later you'll read with satisfaction how that confidence was shattered by a force stronger than hate.

The deputy of the devil became a man again; his very soul at last rebelled against the tortuous path in which it was being driven!

Wm. Powell and Carole Lombard Co-Star at Family

Starring together for the first time in three years, William Powell and Carole Lombard will be seen on the screen of the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, November 15, 16 and 17, in Universal's "My Man Godfrey," which advance Hollywood reports declare to be excellent madcap romantic comedy.

The story deals with the exploits of a whimsical butler in the most rattle-brained family in Manhattan. The situations mount rapidly to a pitch of gay humor, which keeps climbing the scale until the contagious fun has reached an epidemic of laughter.

Powell is cast in the title role with Miss Lombard, portraying the daughter Irene, known as the "dumbest jobstante in New York." A strong supporting cast includes Alice Brady, Gail Patrick, Jean Dixon, Eugene Palette, Alan Mowbray, Mischa Auer and Robert Light.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Tremendous Victory of President Roosevelt Gives Him Electoral Vote of 523 to 8 for Landon—Congress More Strongly Democratic.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

"WE LIKE your New Deal policies and have complete confidence in your administration. Go as far as you like."

President Roosevelt

That in effect was the message sent to Franklin Delano Roosevelt by more than twenty-five million American men and women when they voted to continue him in the Presidency for another four years. It was the most tremendous victory ever scored by a Presidential candidate since the days of James Monroe, for Mr. Roosevelt captured the 523 electoral votes of 46 states. Only Maine and Vermont, with five and three electoral votes respectively, were won by Landon and Knox, the Republican candidates. Their popular vote, when all returns are in, and tabulated, may be fifteen and a half million.

The amazing New Deal landslide is looked upon by most unbiased observers not as a Democratic party victory, but a personal triumph for President Roosevelt, an expression of confidence in him and a recognition of the improvement in the country's business and industry. It was so overwhelming that the President may well consider he has been given carte blanche to do as he pleases in carrying his policies on to their logical ends. What he may please to do depends largely on pending decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States on New Deal legislation.

President Roosevelt, moreover, will have at his command a congress more heavily Democratic than were the last two, for the lingering hopes of the Republicans that they could capture enough seats to enable them, in conjunction with conservative Democrats, to put up effective resistance to New Deal measures, were not realized. The New Deal majority in the new senate will be about five to one, and in the house it will be almost four to one. The few Republicans will be permitted to take part in debate, but when it comes to a vote the congress will be virtually a one-party affair.

Governor Landon and Colonel Knox, his running mate, accepted their defeat gracefully and sent to Mr. Roosevelt congratulatory telegrams promising to support, as good Americans, his efforts for the welfare of the country. The President responded with wires expressing his confidence that "all us Americans will now pull together for the common good."

The Republican party, despite its terrific drubbing, is not dead. Its national organization is intact and it, and such organizations as the American Liberty league, the Sentinels of America and the Volunteers, will continue their efforts to keep the ship of state on an even keel and headed in the right direction.

William Lemke, candidate of the Union party, failed to carry a state and his popular vote was not impressive; but he was re-elected to congress from North Dakota on the Republican ticket.

Incidentally, John N. Garner, who was scarcely mentioned during the hectic campaign, was re-elected vice president and will preside over the senate again. He took no real part in the battle, just riding along with his chief.

Among the well-known Republican senators unseated by the upheaval are Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa, Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island and Robert D. Carey of Wyoming. The one gain by that party was the Massachusetts seat won by Henry Cabot Lodge II, grandson of the noted senator. He succeeded in defeating Gov. James M. Curley, Democratic boss of the state. The Michigan seat of the late James Couzens was won by Representative Prentiss M. Brown, who beat former Gov. W. M. Brucker. William E. Borah of Idaho, Arthur Capper of Kansas and Charles L. McNary of Oregon, all listed as Republicans, were re-elected; and so was George Norris of Nebraska who ran this year as an independent with the approval of Mr. Roosevelt. Minnesota Democrats meekly accepted the wrecking of their state ticket by New Deal orders and helped elect Ernest Lundeen, Farmer-Laborite, to the senate. New Hampshire, the only state in which the Presidential vote was at all close, sends a Republican to the senate in the person of Gov. H. Styles Bridges. Other governors who won in senate contests were Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, who defeated Senator Metcalf; Clyde L. Herring of Iowa, victor over Senator

John N. Garner

Dickinson, and Ed C. Johnson of Colorado, who defeated Raymond L. Sauter.

Among the many Republican members of the house of representatives who failed of re-election were Isaac Bacharach of New Jersey, Chester Bolton of Ohio and Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California. George H. Tinkham of Massachusetts and Bertrand H. Snell of New York, minority leader, retained their seats. The new house will have five woman members, one fewer than in the last session. Oregon elected its first woman representative, Nan Wood Honeyman, Democrat and close friend of the Roosevelt family.

AT LEAST 25 states elected Democratic governors, and the number may be 27. In only three were the Republican nominees winners. William Langer, independent, won the governorship of North Dakota, from which he was ousted some time ago. Elmer Benson, Farmer-Laborite, was victorious in Minnesota, and Philip F. LaFollette, Progressive, in Wisconsin. New York re-elected Gov. Herbert Lehman, but he ran far behind President Roosevelt. Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, Democrat, also won, but his vote, too, was far less than that for the head of the ticket.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, leaving Hyde Park for Washington to "try to balance the budget," as he said, authorized the announcement that on November 17 he would start on a cruise on the warship Indianapolis for a rest of about four weeks, and that it was possible he might go to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to open the Pan-American peace conference on December 1. He may also visit Rio de Janeiro.

JAMES A. FARLEY, manager of the triumphant Roosevelt campaign, resumed his office of postmaster general, attending the first post-election meeting of the cabinet. He said he would serve out his term but refused to comment on predictions that he would not be in the next cabinet. Mr. Farley is about to leave for a short vacation in Ireland.

The Democratic national chairman, commenting on the election, called attention to his exact forecast that Roosevelt would carry every state except Maine and Vermont, and added: "We would have carried Maine if we had put forth the same effort there as we did in the September election."

DEFENSE MINISTER EDOUARD DALADIER sees a possibility of a swift attack on France by Germany, so he urged upon the chamber of deputies army committee the immediate fortification of the Belgian and Swiss frontiers and the speeding up of manufacture of war materials. He asked the committee to recommend an appropriation of 500,000,000 francs to fortify the borders with another "Maginot line" of steel and concrete "pill boxes" and underground passages.

Edouard Daladier

Obligatory physical training for all Frenchmen, beginning at the age of eighteen, was proposed by Daladier as an aid to building up the French army.

The number of professional troops in the army, he asserted, has been increased in the last few months from 106,000 to 144,000.

KING EDWARD VIII, making his first parliamentary appearance since he succeeded to the throne of England, opened parliament with all the traditional ceremony. His throne stood alone in the house of lords and beside it rested the crown which has not yet been placed on his head. Robed in crimson and gold, the monarch read his address to the nation, beginning with his affirmation of the Protestant faith.

"My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly," he said. "The policy of the government continues to be based on membership in the League of Nations."

He took up in turn the points of his government's proposed program. It would, he promised, work with other nations through the league, for peace. It would "persist in efforts" to build a new Locarno treaty and to extend the naval armaments limitations treaty signed last March by Britain, France, and the United States.

The government, he announced, will call an imperial conference in London next May, and that after his coronation he would go to India to be crowned emperor.

Mrs. Wallis Simpson, the king's American friend, had a choice seat in the diplomats' gallery, being accompanied by two other women.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Mt. Pleasant—Federal drain projects in Clare and Isabella counties were halted to permit WPA workers to join in the sugar beet harvest.

Lansing—"Father Lansing," in addition to his many other duties, is a landlord. The city owns 15 houses and a factory and collects $4,974 annually in rent.

Mt. Pleasant—An oil strike 15 miles northwest of here in Sherman township, Isabella county, caused wild excitement, as oil spewed out of the casing before it could be shut in. Oil men saw the strike as a forerunner to a new pool.

Ionia—An employee at Michigan reformatory "got" a pheasant perched on a fence post as he was taking a crew of prisoners to one of the reformatory farms by throwing a cabbage at it. The missile stunned the cock and before it could recover, the cabbage-heaver had killed it.

Jackson—A proposal has been made here for using space over the Grand river bed as a parking lot for automobiles. The plan calls for a reinforced concrete covering over the sides of the river bed where a project now is under way to inclose the stream in a 10-foot concrete channel.

Alma—The State highway department has discontinued the use of salt well brine on trunk line gravel roads, as a dust layer, following protest by citizens. It was found that the high content of sodium chloride in the brine was causing damage to vegetation and to the finish of automobiles.

Watersmeet—An unforgettable lesson in natural history nearly startled the pupils of Watersmeet school "out of their wits" recently. While they were concentrating on an assignment, a ruffed grouse roared through an open window, over their heads and crashed squarely against a blackboard.

Clare—Clare County may be open to deer hunters, but the Board of Supervisors is encouraging hunters to seek other fields. The board has ordered 22,000 no-hunting signs printed for free distribution to land owners, explaining that it wanted the Clare County deer herds conserved and that it believed it was dangerous to allow hunters to roam the county with high-powered rifles.

Fenton—Fenton, the neat little Genesee town with a genius for advertising itself, has a new gag. A couple of years ago it pointed to itself on its centennial by circulating wooden nickels. And now it claims to have Michigan's biggest hot dogs. A local dealer is selling them. They are 10 inches long, which is close enough to 12 inches to permit advertising "Hot dogs, 10 cents a foot."

Lansing—A list of 15 projects involving the expenditure of more than $1,600,000 was reported completed recently by the state highway department. The projects involve 69.4 miles of road work, two grade separations and one bridge. The road work consists of 26.9 miles of concrete pavement, 15.5 miles of oil aggregate surface, 16.5 miles of grading and drainage and 10.5 miles of gravel surfacing.

West Branch—The West Branch blue gill rearing pond, only one of its kind north of Grand Rapids, has been completed by the CCC enrollees of Camp Ogema. Work on the project, which is sponsored by the fish division of the department of conservation, was started nearly a year ago. Approximately 1,000,000 blue gill fry will be planted in the pond late next spring, to be fed, and finally to be planted in lakes of Michigan a year from now.

Marlette—Charles Cuthbert, 77 years old, who was partially blind, was burned to death recently after saving his crippled son and his housekeeper from their burning home. Cuthbert, who was on the first floor, was awakened by smoke. He went upstairs and roused his son, Ray, 40, and the housekeeper, and went outdoors with them. Then he reentered the house in an attempt to extinguish the flames and was trapped. The home was destroyed.

Lansing—Motorists may soon gratify their longing for low license numbers, according to a recent announcement from the office of the secretary of state. A new series of numbers in the 1937 line will be limited to two numerals followed by a single letter such as 1A, 1B, etc. All letters of the alphabet except I, Q and O will be used, but the numbers will run no higher than 12. The regular series will be continued as will the very special series made of a letter followed by two ciphers, such as M00, H00 and P00.

Bay City—Residents in widely distant parts of the state, from Grand Rapids, Lansing, Bay City and Grant reported seeing a bluish-green light, marking the course of what is thought was a meteor, which flashed across the skies on the morning of October 29th. The meteor was said to have fallen in the vicinity of Grant but no trace could be found. Astronomers at the University of Michigan stated that meteors are not usually visible in daylight and generally cannot be seen for more than 50 miles.

Okemos—Page Mr. Ripley! August Dickman has a razor which has seen real service. He has used it constantly for 53 years and has never had it honed.

Ionia—Twenty-three tons of apples were scattered along US-16, when a big semi-truck and trailer went off the road and turned on its side. No one was injured.

Reed City—Alfred Baar, of Reed City, won the plowman championship at the fifth annual Horse Day and Plowing Contest. John Lucas, of Tustin, exhibited the champion colt. Louis Gabel & Son and Ward Fradenberg owned the light and heavyweight teams in the pulling events.

Bay City—Condemnation of 1,129 acres of land in Iosco County for forestry purposes is asked in a suit filed in Federal Court here by the National Forest Conservation Commission. Two similar actions seeking condemnation of land in Crawford and Oscoda Counties were filed recently.

Coldwater—Edwin Swain, a farmer, and his son John, 7 years old, went hunting. The father was armed with a double barreled shot gun and the boy with a sling shot. Edwin let go both barrels at a rabbit and missed. The boy let go with the sling shot and scored a hit between the rabbit's eyes.

Mt. Pleasant—The new $73,000 McArthur - Strange hospital and clinic, located here, is now open. The 33-bed hospital has the most modern equipment available. The personnel includes 25 employees, including three doctors, a dentist, a laboratory technician, a physiotherapist, and a staff of 10 nurses.

Portland—James Storey, Sebewa farmer, found a large rat in his yard. In an effort to stomp the rat to death Storey lost control of his car, which went through a ditch, broke down a fence and came to stop in a field. The car was damaged, but the driver escaped injury—and killed the rat as well.

Lansing—The Michigan Sanatorium association has called for a revision of the laws governing the care of persons afflicted with tuberculosis. Sanatorium executives suggested that the state take over the financing of hospitalization for indigent tuberculous and assess the costs back to the counties on the basis of their assessed valuations.

Lansing—After rising last year, Michigan's birth rate has once more resumed its downward trend, according to a report received from the state health commissioner. It seems the high mark for total births was 1927, when the figure was 99,940. And the low was 1933. The business graph and the birth graph followed each other down then, the rate dropping to 16.6 as compared with the 1927 rate of 22.26.

Grand Rapids—Western Michigan's great snowstorms of last winter were recently echoed in the courts here. A justice court jury awarded Mrs. Ada M. Traxler Glover, wife of a gospel mission minister, damages of $389.95 for the improper impounding of the Glover automobile. Police contended the car blocked snow plows. The jury found that two police tickets placed on the car before it was impounded were improperly made out.

Lansing—Michigan's income in 1933 was $1,641,000,000 or $325 per capita, as compared with a per capita income of $748 in 1929. The decline between the two years was 54 per cent for the state, while for the nation it was but 44 per cent. Ranking seventh in size of population, Michigan ranked sixth among the states in total income in 1929 but dropped to ninth place in total income in 1933. Of the total national income, the state received 4.4 per cent in 1929 and 3.7 per cent in 1933.

Traverse City—Neil Morrison, farmer in Acme township, harvested 1,220 bushels of Russet Rural potatoes from a measured field of 4.4 acres. The crop graded only 4 per cent No. 2 tubers and yielded 277 bushels per acre. Morrison also grew 10 acres of Katahdins, which produced at the rate of 200 bushels per acre. The latter field has been certified by the Michigan Crop Improvement association. There were even fewer seconds in this field than in the Russet Rurals, Morrison said.

Sault Ste. Marie—Anyone who wants to know how the preferences of men and women voters differed in the election should study the returns from two Sault Ste. Marie precincts. In one of this city's 10 precincts there are 475 women and no men. In another, there are 450 men and no women. For convenience in balloting, the over-size fifth precinct was divided several years ago, not by changing boundaries, but by segregating the men and the women. The precincts are known as the fifth men and fifth women.

Glen Haven—Many shoals and points about the Great Lakes are referred to as "graveyards" of ships, but South Manitou Island is the "graveyard" of sailors, according to old residents. Between 30 and 100 unknown sailors have been buried through the years on the island when their bodies were washed ashore from wreckage. Wind currents at this point in Lake Michigan made it difficult for the old type of windjammer ship to weather a storm and avoid the unfriendly stretch of barren coast.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington—It is only a few short weeks until the Seventy-fifth congress convenes and so naturally the preliminary grinding of legislative wheels is now being heard. Of course, there has been no legislative program formulated. Little of a specific character can be done in this direction until the fog and the smoke of a campaign drifts away. Nevertheless, beneath it all there are definite signs to guide us, to show some of the important questions that will naturally force their way to the front rank of consideration by congress as soon as it is formally organized January 3.

Work for Congress
While I do not take much stock in many of the ideas or schemes that are receiving consideration, or to which sponsors are trying to direct attention, it is perfectly evident that one of the major questions to receive congressional attention this year is the plight of business. I mean that there are countless governmental policies that directly affect business and the debate of the recent presidential campaign has awakened such widespread interest in general business that congress cannot avoid debate on the subject.

There are many members of the house and senate, including a goodly number of those lately elected or re-elected, who feel that the Washington government has been messing too much into the affairs of private business. They feel, and I believe with justification, that unless many of the government handicaps are withdrawn, unless many of the restrictions and the superfluous rules and regulations are removed, business cannot go ahead as it apparently would like to do.

It is said that many corporations would like to engage in plant expansion and increase their pay rolls by many thousands of workers but they are afraid to do so under present laws and policies. They cannot feel a sense of safety and corporate funds, after all, are just like many belonging to an individual. Those who manage it or own it will not invest it unless they can be assured of policies by the government at Washington that give them an equal chance, at least, to obtain a return on the money they invest. In other words, corporations are just like individuals who will not risk their money unless they have confidence that the odds are favorable to them.

Word came to me the other day through official channels to the effect that a gigantic and well-known corporation was ready to expand its whole productive capacity if it could be certain that federal tax laws were going to be revised so that they consisted of tax laws rather than tax penalties on business chances. The word was that this corporation expected to spend about one hundred forty-two millions; that the authorization for the work had been approved by the corporation's board of directors and that blue prints of the plans had been drawn. But all of this had been done upon a contingent basis.

You will say that this is an isolated case, and it is. But it is isolated only to the extent that I am not able to name names and identify directly hundreds of other corporations that are exactly in the same boat. To an extent, information that other corporations are following the same policy is hearsay; yet, I have every faith in the reports concerning general plans along these lines and I am firmly convinced of the sincerity of business managements generally to go ahead if the Washington government permits them to have confidence that they will not be destroyed by taxation later.

It seems to me there are three phases of federal government policies and laws that serve to retard business recovery. I mentioned taxation and government regulation or bureaucracy. There is a third. It is the spending policies that have been followed and that have resulted in the enormous federal debt with a budget still unbalanced.

I do not know which of the three is held to be the most important among business generally. Regimentation and bureaucracy breed a fear in the minds of so many business leaders that as long as bureaucracy in Washington continues to be as widespread as it is, this segment of the business structure is going to remain quiescent. Another segment will do nothing in the way of expanding operations when the tax laws are taking such a tremendous toll and actually serve as an impelling force against the desires of business to increase its own revenue.

The third factor of influence, that of government spending, throws a fear into the hearts of every business man. As long as the budget is unbalanced and spending, even wasting of money continues, there is an unsettling influence at work which keeps business interests from making new plans. The reason is that an unbalanced budget and wasteful expenditures constitute a continual threat of inflation. Especially is this true when the Chief Executive has the power to change the value of money.

The business men, as far as my information goes, take the position that it is worse than useless for them to attempt to increase their production or mold plans regarding their business as long as they cannot feel sure that the value of the money they use will be the same tomorrow that it is today.

Frequently I have heard evidence substantiating the observations I have made above. These business interests provide the outlet for tremendous amounts of money now lying idle in banks. In other words, these business interests are the potential borrowers of billions of dollars that are not now being used and the fact that they are not borrowing this money simply cuts off the use of a very important force in our economic life.

Further, the fact that business is not borrowing money and engaging in expansion of production has the very vital result of preventing employment of labor. The American Federation of Labor announces that there are something like eleven millions of workers still unemployed. Yet, the question must be asked how or why business would want to do a better job in behalf of itself and help labor by employing additional workers at the same time when its own government continually harasses it in one way or another. No amount of criticism by those responsible in the government can force business to take a chance with its money. It must have a reasonable guarantee that its government will allow it to have at least a reasonable profit or else the money will continue to remain idle.

Undoubtedly, we will see a very great many bills popping around the capitol, bills designed to relieve business of this or the other handicap now believed to be hanging over it. The bulk of them will receive no consideration because the bulk of those bills will be loosely drawn and will be representative only of the desires of a particular segment of commerce or industry. But as the situation now appears we can expect to see something done about the tax laws in the forthcoming congress. It appears fairly certain to me, for example, that the ridiculous surplus earnings tax enacted by the last congress must be rewritten. Because the bulk of our business is handled by corporations, it ought to be important to give corporations consideration as a class. They had specific attention from the New Dealers and this despised corporation tax on surplus earnings was the vehicle upon which many of the nitwits among the New Dealers attempted to ride. Business, generally speaking, opposed enactment of the statute but business was not able to overcome the Roosevelt control in congress. Hence, the tax law was enacted and corporations are paying the penalty.

But it might be asked whether anything better can be expected in this session of congress. The answer is that there are more members of the house and senate now who recognize that the competitive system of doing business always in operation in the United States heretofore should not be destroyed. It can be expected, therefore, that something will be done about that tax law and just as certainly, something will be done in a legislative way about the numerous rules and regulations that constantly interfere with the free transaction of business. These rules and regulations, of course, were drafted under authority given by congress but my conversations among house and senate leaders convince me that these men see the error of their previous enactments. They are willing to be somewhat more bold, coming as they do fresh from the elections. And they are rather likely to insist upon legislation which will help rather than hinder.

It may be, of course, that organized labor will be powerful enough to force consideration of legislation shortening all hours of labor. I do not know how it can be done because there is every evidence that such legislation would be unconstitutional. It probably can be done by the state legislative bodies but not by the federal government. While, as I said, organized labor may force consideration of this sort of thing, there is little doubt in my mind that congress will stand out against enactments of this type, first, because of the apparent lack of constitutional support and, second, because it would constitute a further harassment of business during a period when everyone who is sane wants to see business get going again.

Ugly Soot

DO NOT let us lie at all. Do not think of one falsity as harmless, and another as slight, and another as unintended. Cast them all aside; they may be light and accidental, but they are ugly soot from the smoke of the pit, and it is better that our hearts should be swept clean of them, without one care as to which is largest or blackest.—Ruskin.

Bicameral Legislatures

All the states have a lower and upper house in their state legislatures. All the states are bicameral (two branches to the assembly or legislature), although it is curious to note that Pennsylvania, Georgia and Vermont were at first constructed on the unicameral, or one-house system of legislature.

All the states designate the upper house of the legislature as the senate and in most of the states the lower branch of the state legislature is known as the house of representatives, although a few style it the assembly. In three it is known as the house of delegates.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

To Quickly Ease Pains of Rheumatism

Bayer Tablets Dissolve Almost Instantly

In 2 seconds by stop watch a Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass happens in your stomach.

Ask Your Doctor About Genuine BAYER Aspirin

Any person who suffers from pains of rheumatism should know this: Two genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets, taken with a full glass of water, will usually ease even severe rheumatic pains in a remarkably short time.

Ask your doctor about this. He will probably tell you there is nothing better. For real Bayer Aspirin tablets, not only offer a potent analgesic (pain reliever), but start going to work almost instantly you take them. Note illustration of glass.

Try this simple way. You'll be surprised at how quickly pain eases. Get real Bayer Aspirin by asking for it by its full name, "Bayer Aspirin" at any drug store. Now virtually one cent a tablet.

Talks About

The Heart and Overweight.
"MANY persons nowadays are overweight. If one gets reliable advice and is advised to reduce one should do so. It is not a simple matter but weight reduction can be carried out successfully by anyone who will take it seriously. Fat people usually claim to be small eaters. This is sometimes true; more often it is not although they may be honest in thinking so.

In any case as long as a healthy person is putting on weight he is eating more than he needs; and an excess weight of 20, 40, 60 or more pounds simply means that the heart has to put forth much more energy than would otherwise be necessary. This is all waste energy and a fat person puts a burden on the heart which in the course of years is bound to have an undesirable effect.

"Moderate overweight before the age of forty is not of serious consequence if the heart is normal, but after that age continued overweight does lessen one's expectation of life. Life insurance companies realize this and consider persons who are overweight as undesirable risks. An individual who is overweight and becomes breathless on effort will usually find after reducing his weight 10 to 20 pounds that breathlessness will disappear."

There is nothing in the above quotation that overweights have not already read, but when it comes from an outstanding heart specialist, Dr. Frank T. Fulton of Fordham university, in an article "Budgeting the Reserve Strength of the Heart" in Hygeia, it is very much worth our consideration.

Exercise May Do Harm.
One of the natural mistakes some fat individuals make is their effort to reduce weight by violent exercise. Notwithstanding the fact that they have taken no regular exercise for ten years and have in that time put on 30 to 40 pounds of excess fat, they seek out some very strenuous exercise or game such as tennis, basketball, or badminton in the worthy effort to rid themselves of this fat. And they try to get it off in a few days or a few weeks.

Where no exercise has been taken for a long time this violent effort may rid the body of a few pounds but it may have lessened or eaten up some of the reserve power of the heart, which may mean weeks of resting in bed to get this reserve back. Practically every physician has met one or more of these cases.

The first thought in all cases of overweight should be an examination by the family physician with special care regarding heart and blood pressure. Thus the effort of 50 steps or less of a stationary run shows the effect upon the heart beat and the length of time it takes the heart to get back to its normal rate after the exercise. If the heart doesn't get back to its normal rate in the usual or normal time—for the weight of the individual and the speed at which he runs—and there is more breathlessness than there should be for this amount of exercise, then the physician will suggest that nothing in the way of exercise should be taken for a few weeks and that the weight be reduced entirely by eating less food.

A practical and simple method of treating overweights whose hearts are beginning to show some loss of power is to have them cut down by 25 per cent on the two fat storing foods—starches and fats—and cut down by about 50 per cent on liquids because of the tendency of fat tissue to hold extra water thus producing extra weight. When there is any tendency to kidney stones, plenty of liquids must be taken.

Gland Extracts.
When Drs. Minot and Murphy of Boston were able to prove that eating calf's liver would cure and prevent pernicious anaemia it marked another great step in medicine because before this pernicious anaemia was considered incurable.

Then came the discovery that extract of liver taken by mouth or injected into the veins was just as effective, and this was certainly a great boon to those who disliked the taste of liver. Another discovery quickly followed this, and that was that extract of hog's stomach acted just as well as liver in pernicious anaemia—that is, increasing the number of red corpuscles and the amount of iron in these red corpuscles.

And now a Berlin research physician, Dr. W. Schemensky, has discovered that the lining of the large intestine in hogs has this same power of enriching the blood and curing pernicious anaemia. He pulverized or made into a powder the lining of the large intestine and tried it in 20 cases of pernicious anaemia and while the results came a little more slowly, the final results were as good as with liver and hog's stomach. However the patients felt the improvement in their general health just as early as with liver and hog's stomach.

Household Questions

If you want to modernize an old paper parchment shade make slashes in the top about an inch deep and run grosgrain ribbon through them, tying in a small bow with long ends at one side. Brown, dark blue or black ribbon is very smart on a white or cream shade. You could do this with inexpensive paper shades.

Place straws in lunch boxes when cocoa or milk are included. The children will delight in using them during the lunch period.

Powdered borax added to the water when washing fine white flannels helps to keep them soft.

When cooking a bird in the oven roast it in the usual way until it is nicely browned, then turn the back upward and let it remain so until done. This causes the gravy to run into the breast, making it soft and tender.

Use scissors for cutting up leftover fish, meat or fowl. This also applies to leftover vegetables.

Sometimes when the gravy from roasts is not quite as dark as you want it to be, try adding a little kitchen bouquet. Just enough to color it.

studying an Eclipse

Astronomers go to the ends of the earth to study the sun during an eclipse because two layers of the sun can be studied only at that time. At other times these two layers, called the chromosphere and the corona, are hidden by the fierce flood of light from the radiating surface of the sun.
Just outside the sun's surface is the chromosphere, a boiling ocean of red hydrogen flames, which sometimes shoot to a height of 100,000 miles. Outside of the chro-mosphere is the corona, a wide circle of beautiful, pearly light, composed mostly of helium and hydrogen, the two gases used on earth to inflate airships.

Riches of Croesus

Although the riches of Croesus are proverbial, no exact figures or comparisons of his wealth with that of present-day wealthy men are available.
His riches were obtained chiefly from mines and the gold dust of the River Pactolus, and were greater than those of any king before him. He carried his love of splendor to extravagance.

ORDINANCE NO. 57

An Ordinance Creating a Superintendent of Public Works, Providing for Salary, Terms and Duties of Said Office; Also Providing for the Method of Employing Said Superintendent.

The City of Tawas City Ordains:

Section 1. That the office of Superintendent of Public Works for the City of Tawas City is hereby created.

Section 2. The Mayor shall nominate for the said office any male citizen, resident of Tawas City, who shall have the following qualifications, to-wit: Age—not less than 25 years old and not more than 55 years old (age limit for renomaination hereby waived); Education—not less than a high school education or equal; the nomination must be approved by a majority vote of the Common Council, the Mayor to have no vote on the appointment.

Section 3. The Mayor shall upon the acceptance of the Common Council of his appointment of Superintendent of Public Works, enter-into contract with said Superintendent (said contract to be approved by a majority vote of the Council) hiring said Superintendent for a term of years to carry out the duties of his office, said term of years not to exceed FIVE years.

Section 4. The contract for the employment of said Superintendent of Public Works may be canceled
by a two-thirds vote of the Aldermen elected, upon proof of malfeasance, misfeasance or incompetency in office. In the event that such action is deemed necessary by the Council, charges must be filed in writing, by any member of the Council, the Mayor or any other city official. A copy of said charges must be served on the said Superintendent at least ten days before the hearing is to be held before the Common Council, and the said Superintendent shall be allowed to submit testimony in his defense.

Balance in Ear

The sense of balance has its seat in the ear.

Section 5. The Common Council shall fix the salary of said Superintendent, at the time of his appointment, and no reduction shall be made on said salary during the term of his contract.

Section 6. All ordinances, resolutions or orders, or parts thereof, in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance are to the extent thereof hereby repealed.

Section 7. This ordinance shall be published in the Tawas Herald once, and shall take immediate effect after said publication.

Ben Ames Williams
Writes New Serial
For Our Readers

Ben Ames Williams, one of America's foremost fiction writers, is the author of "Deputy of the Devil," this paper's new serial story. It deals with a famous physician, Dr. Greeding, who imagined himself endowed with strange supernatural power. He used it selfishly to gain his own desires at the expense of others, forgetting the old axiom that "he who eats with the devil must use a long spoon." Like the famous Dr. Faustus, this man was finally rebuffed by his own fiendish tactics.

Intermingled with this unique plot is a fascinating love story in which the doctor's daughter and a young college professor whom Dr. Greeding dislikes are the principals.

"Deputy of the Devil" follows a series of remarkable stories by Ben Ames Williams, including "Hostile Valley," "Honeyflow," "All the Brothers Were Valiant" and "Great Oaks." He has also written innumerable short stories for magazines.

Williams started his career as a newspaper reporter in Boston, following his graduation from Dartmouth college in 1910.

He now lives in Massachusetts, spending his summers in Maine indulging in his favorite sports of trout and bass fishing, tennis, golf and swimming.

We urge our readers to follow "Deputy of the Devil" from issue to issue as it unfolds serially in these columns. You'll receive a pleasant treat from this unique tale... a treat seldom made available to newspaper reader.

Sleep Called Drug

"Sleep," said John Wesley, who could do with very little, "is a drug." Napoleon, Edison, Dumas, and other famous men, concurred. What they meant was that sleep is measured by quality, not by quantity. They themselves had the facility of sleeping in "waves"—ten-minute naps that were as beneficial to them as an hour or two to other people.

SIGNIFICANCE OF INSCRIPTION ON OUR DOLLAR BILLS

A Treasury department circular states that the design on the back of the new one dollar silver certificates presents for the first time on any money issued by the United States, a representation of both the obverse and reverse of the Great Seal of the United States, first adopted in 1782, prior to the adoption of the Constitution.

The reverse of the Great Seal shows an unfinished pyramid, surmounted by an eye in a triangular glory. The pyramid bears in Roman numerals the year of the Declaration of Independence, 1776. Above the eye is the Latin motto "Annuit Cœptis," rendered as "He (God) favored our undertakings." The motto at the bottom, "Novus Ordo Seclorum," is translated as "A new order of the ages."

The eye and triangular glory symbolizes an all-seeing Deity. The pyramid is the symbol of strength and its unfinished condition denotes the belief of the designers of the Great Seal that there was still work to be done. Both the mottoes on the reverse of the seal are condensations of excerpts from Virgil's Aeneid.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

People came and the house was full. Lucy and her family from Pattern Landing, Jenny and her family from Horsepen Branch, all came bearing baskets of food for the wedding. Cynthia gave them welcome, trying as usual to convince herself that these were her sisters, born of Sparrel and Julia in this house, and married here as she herself was about to be. But they with their silent men remained strange to her, even though they took possession of the house and acted as if it were their own wedding. The children were irrepressible, climbing about the barn and sheds, watching the sheep and the newborn lambs, feeding the horses and mules; they were her nephews and nieces more than her sisters were sisters. She liked them around her. "They will grow up in their turn, I reckon, to carry on the place. Unless they're like Abral and Jesse. What, I wonder, will my children grow up to be like, not born on Wolfpen but down at the mouth of Sandy?"

People from Gannon Creek came all morning to be at the wedding of Cynthia Pattern. It was also their third journey within a year; "I'm sure glad to go there to a wedding, after all the trouble they've had in that house." The womenfolk took over the big kitchen, the men the barn, the yard and the barn-ot. They were impressed, as always, by the ingenuity of the Pattern men in inventing improvements around the house. They commended Jasper on the place he had to start out with, they asked Jesse about the law, and Reuben about the business boom in the Ohio Valley. Shellenberger, returning from Pittsburgh and the river towns, condescendingly joined them. The biggest business in history was sweeping to the west now. He might consider leasing and buying up Gannon Creek land in reach of the creek for lumbering.

Sheriff Hatler and his deputies came, pleased with the law. They thought they had captured the man who murdered Sparrel. They had him in jail over at Williamson. The sheriff was going over there in person after this wedding of Cynthia Pattern, the daughter of Sparrel. He talked a great deal: "A good match this is. That young Warren feller has a head on him. A fine surveyor, too, they say. Doing big things down the river. Getting the finest girl in this valley, if you ask my opinion. A fine couple they make. Yes, she give up Doug Mason long before he got smashed. Sparrel told me. Yes, sure, Doug's a good boy all right, but not the one for that girl, much less now. But I tell you, boys, I'd rather put a rope around the neck of the dirty devil that waylaid Sparrel Pattern than put an arm around the purest girl in these hills, pon my honor I would. Have a drink to it."

Amos Barnes came over with the Fergusons, having stopped with them the night before. He had set aside this day ever since he had married Jasper and Jane Burden at Pikeville. Cynthia almost grew to love Jane for they way she came into the house after her marriage to Jasper. Jane was radiant in her own happiness: It overflowed her heart and expanded to include the whole Pattern household. She maintained the most admirable poise between the new mistress of the house as Jasper's wife, and a guest of honor at Cynthia's wedding. There were no bristling or stuck-up city ways about her. She was helpful, unobtrusively managing the details of the kitchen and assigning guests to the bedrooms. The womenfolk spoke of it: "I reckon she can carry on a place right well—Jasper's wife is a mighty fine girl.—Yes, she takes right a-hold of things.—She'll be a good manager.—Jasper might have gone further and fared worse.—Julia always said she was a fine girl.—She comes from mighty good people, Jane Burden does.—Wolfpen's a good place and I don't reckon it'll suffer any with her in the house. . . ."

Jasper moved around as the head of the house. It amused Cynthia, when she had time to give it a thought, to see Jasper consciously trying to act the role of Sparrel, imitating his stride across the yard, his phrases of welcome to men and women, his infections, his courtesy and manner in the house. "There is nobody else in the world he could better pattern after, though, and I don't reckon anybody else besides me notices it. Maybe it'll come natural to him after a while."

Cynthia wanted to be married in her mother's wedding dress. "It will be like having her here herself," she thought. "Maybe she is. The way I used to talk about Grandfather Saul strolling around over the place. In her dress, enveloping me in her, that would be a good omen of happiness like hers." The dress had been long in the cedar-lined closet. It smelled of the trees and was scarcely faded. The shoulders and the waist were exact in their fit, but the skirt was an inch and a half too long. Jane and Lucy bent on their knees and pinned it up; then they ran a neat hem around its wide fullness. "If I had been only two inches taller, or an inch, say, Lucy and Jenny are tall. But I have better shoulders and a waist like Mother's and it's no real trouble to stitch in a hem."

She was beautiful in this gown, so daintily quaint; the heavy coil of black hair above the smooth soft skin of her forehead, her cheeks pink-flushed, and the look in her eyes as they turned up to Reuben's. People spoke of it. She stood with him on the porch by the door to the parlor so the people could see the ceremony. All Wolfpen was aglow with the day, the sense of new life throbbing through the hollow. There were sprays of wild honeysuckle in the stone jars in the doorway and on each side. The clove bush by the steps gave off its first smell of spice.

While they were standing there, Cynthia happened to look across the yard to the pear tree by the well. The buds had burst suddenly under the sun. "I'll be a pear tree by the well with pink-edged blossoms and gold in the heart. . . . better be standing there with a sprig of blossoms in your hand."

"And I was a sight and covered with corn-meal!"
"Oh, Reuben," she whispered, "the pear tree. Look!"

She held the skirt of her wedding gown above the grass and went to the tree. She reached for the long spray that hung over the well box, bending it down and looking back over her shoulder at Reuben who had followed her, watching her. She smiled at him across the blossoms.

"You're as pretty as a picture there," he said. Then he broke the branch for her and she carried it along her arm as she went back to the porch for the ceremony. She held it in her left hand across her breast when she said to Amos Barnes for Reuben, "I do." And when Reuben placed the ring on her finger she held the spray on her right arm, thinking, "The actual marrying itself is right simple. I guess it is the feel in a body's heart that makes it not simple. 'Do you take this man to be your wedded husband?' and for all that means are only two of the tiniest words in the whole world, 'I do.' But I do!"

The ceremony affected the Gannon Creek folks who had come to it, finding the emotion akin to that of a funeral. Then the dinner was laid on long tables on the porch and in the dining room and kitchen. The men were merry. The women were efficient in serving the food. It was almost as if no new thing had come into the hills; as if Cynthia were not marrying a man from down the river but a Gannon Creek boy. Then it was said that Reuben was one of the Pike County Warrens who went to Lawrence and Scioto Counties in Ohio at the time Julia Pattern's people went there, and that seemed to make the union complete.

Many of the women brought gifts to Cynthia of needle work and the loom. "It ain't much, Cynthia, and nothing you couldn't do yourself, but you can remember us by it."

"As if I needed anything to make me remember all you folks," Shellenberger brought gifts: a gray telescope with leather bound edges and brass corners and yellow straps around it, and a silk umbrella.

"You've been mighty good to me, you and your folks. Here's a little present for you. I wish you much happiness." That was all he ever said about the board money. The people thought the gifts princely. In keeping with Shellenberger and the fine words on a cultivated tongue, Cynthia at first hardly knew whether to take them or not. But the telescope was a beautiful piece of luggage for a young bride going away for the first time on a far journey, and she had never had an umbrella. "A body doesn't pay money for a place to sleep and a bite to eat in our country, anyway. I reckon it was right nice of him to think of it."

In the evening when the people were gone away, Hessie Mason remained, silently waiting a chance to say a word to Cynthia.

"Ma was a right smart worried she couldn't come."

"I wish she could have come. Hessie. You tell her." (Should I ask her about Doug? or just let it pass like it is? Ask, just as if nothing ever happened.) "And how is Doug?"

There was reproach in the sawtooth eyes as Hessie spoke. "He still frets a sight. He's been calming down some now. He's learning to do things all right now. He plowed the garden yesterday. If he turns his head to the off side, he can see the furrow. He stumbles a bit, and when he cuts too wide a swath he gets in a fit of temper. It makes a body right heart-sick to watch him. If some people had done the right by him it wouldn't never have happened. He won't give up. He's going to do all the plowing. I reckon he'll get along all right. All this she uttered in a slow even voice.

"I hope he does, Hessie."
"He's powerful proud. He knew he couldn't have you after it happened to him. He'd kill himself to try to do about the place just like nothing happened. He won't let anybody say anything about it."

This seemed to be the thing she wanted to say, more with her eyes full of reproach and the tone of her voice than with the words. Cynthia did not go on with it. It would be idle to try to explain it so Hessie could understand. She handed her a basketful of things from the table.

"You take these to your mother, Hessie, and to Doug."
Jasper got her mule and led it up to the horse-block. She gave Cynthia a last look from her hooded eyes and saw her face. "I guess I'll be going now. You leaving tomorrow?"

"Yes, tomorrow morning," Cynthia said, watching her ride stolidly through the gate.

Cynthia's shoulders trembled, and she ran to the porch where Reuben was standing. She slipped her arm through his for reassurance and looked up at him. He smiled at her and stroked her hand.

"I hope we're going to have the sun for our trip on the boat tomorrow."

"I am sure we will."
The evening was soft with spring and the pale moon. Cranenest was quiet under the stars. The Milky Way lay like a wisp of fog once more over Wolfpen as it had lain in the days of Saul Pattern, calm and immemorial above the affairs of this hollow.

Looking up the dark hillside to the night sky, Cynthia had the sensation that the year was a dream and the events that had befallen it no more substantial than this plume of white mist in the space above her.

They sat in the evening as a family on the old porch. Tivis and Sparrel had built: Lucy and her family, Jesse and Abral, Jenny and her family, Jasper and Jane, Cynthia and Reuben. The talk was of the life on Wolfpen through the years, of the incidents in their family life. Reuben sat very quiet holding Cynthia's hand, Cynthia going out to be one of the family for a sentence or two, then hurrying back to be lost in her world with Reuben. "Married. My name is not Pattern any more but Warren. Cynthia Warren, Mrs. Reuben Warren. His hand is hot. In a little while we will go to bed. Together. I always thought I would be plagued and bashful when. But I'm not. We've been married now, eleven to about eight, say nine or ten hours his wife. I am ready, Reuben. I love you."

Abral broke the circle and everybody arose.

"I got some news for you, Cynthia. Mrs. Warren. Tomorrow I go down Gannon with a raft. And then I'm going up to Pittsburgh." He stamped a few jig steps in his excitement.

"Don't ram it into Hart's barn down on that bend."
"I go around all the curves. I'll be curving them before you're up, and I'm going to bed."

Cynthia had put on the walnut bed the lace-edged pillow case, the fine sheets Julia had hemstitched, and the choicest of the colored quilts wrought into intricate needlework patterns. She was poignantly aware of Reuben in the room. She did not light the lamp or candle. The glow from the moon filtered into the room. She stood for a moment by the window looking down the hollow. It was stirring with spring and there was a whispering among the trees on the hillside. She could hear Reuben in movement in the room behind her. Under the moon the pear tree by the well looked to be bursting into full bloom under the pent-up urge of its nature. Reuben's movements had ceased and the room was quiet. She turned from the window. Reuben was standing by the foot-post of the bed. She moved joyously toward him through the dim moonglow.

Abral had gone before daybreak; out into the great world at last. Jasper had taken one of the plow mules to Poplar Bottom to turn the ground. Jesse was getting ready the Finemare and the mules for the journey to the river and the boat. Jane and Lucy had the breakfast prepared.

"I'm not much used to having somebody wait on me like this," Cynthia said.

"You are starting on a wedding journey. That only happens about once," Jane said.

ping the small trunk and the new telescope on the pack-mule, Cynthia made a last visit about the house. She went through each room. She took down the Boone powder-horn and Sparrel's pioneer clothing and looked at them. She went into the medicine-room to smell the herbs her father had left there. She charged Jane to watch over the things her father had left in the desk by the mantel. She went into the weaving room for the last time and sat by the loom, feeling the tears form, lifting in her hands a ball of yarn, the last one Julia had dyed. "It isn't so easy to leave everything. Maybe Jade will learn to use it. She takes hold of things. Bu, it isn't so easy." Then she took the two volumes of the history worn yellow by Sparrel's thumbs through the years when he read to her, and a few packets of the flower-seeds Sparrel had gathered from Julia's garden, and packed them to carry away with her.

She heard through her tears the voice of Reuben speaking to Jesse and there was laughter in it. She thought of the cottage in the orchard above the rivers. The cherry trees would be in bloom when they got there. That would be her place, as Wolfpen had been Julia's and now was Jane's. "It isn't so hard to leave everything, going with Reuben."

Jesse rode away with them. Jane stood at the kitchen door, as Julia used to do when Sparrel was riding over to town. She waved to Cynthia, and Reuben lifted his hat, returning the farewell. Lucy and Jenny and their children were in the yard. They found Jasper at work in Poplar Bottom and bade him good-by there. "Take care of yourself," he said, "and come up and see us now before long."

They took the more difficult trail around Cranenest because Cynthia did not want to pass the spot where her father was struck down. At the top of the mountain they stopped to look down for the last time into Wolfpen. The mill was silent and the pond was dark with the shadow of the hill behind it. The shelf of graves was hidden by Cranenest. The house and orchard were far away, tiny and quiet. Under them Poplar Bottom looked to be standing on edge. Jasper was plowing. The old iron plow blade flashing in the sun when he turned at the end of the row. He strode the furrows like his father, only it was not Sparrel. He called to Sparrel's mule in the cadence of Sparrel's voice; it lay poised in the hollow like a thin fog and then floated up to Cynthia's ears on the mountain-top. It was only an echo of Sparrel's call.

It was a moment of sentiment for Cynthia, and of vision. The turned earth lay brown and naked to the sun, fertile and ripe for seed. Death was now no more. Death was gone with the winter snow, buried in the earth to be reborn. Perhaps Sparrel lay with content by Saul and Barton and Tivis above his fields and those of his fathers, seeing Jasper in the long furrows. Perhaps Julia rests in peace by Sparrel's side, seeing Jane raking seed into her garden, knowing the secret swelling that would plump the new wife's womb before the roasting ears were ripe. Death had come to Wolfpen suddenly, violently. Then, reserved and silent once more, it had withdrawn into the dark places of the earth beyond the sight of men, yielding place for another season to the urgency and assertion of life under the sweet ache and thrust of the sun, and the moist nurture of the rain.

They rode on through the forest around the Cranenest Ridge, Reuben, Cynthia, the pack-mule, Jesse, in file. The sun shone on the budding trees. At the end of the ridge where the trail began to drop into the Big Sandy Valley, Cynthia stopped to look back. The top of the Pinnacle was just visible from this point when the trees were not in leaf. It was taking the sun on its yellow edge, enduring above the desolation in Dry Creek like the nobility in the human soul outstanding the schemes and exploitations of little and selfish men.

Cynthia turned from it to the road ahead. Stretched below her was the timeless circling of the river through the valley toward the sea.

"I reckon this is good-by to Wolfpen," she said, patting the neck of the Finemare and looking at Reuben.

"And welcome to an orchard at the other end of the river," Reuben smiled to her.

"And don't miss your boat, you two," Jesse said.

Poland Is Fifth Largest Country in Europe; Sixth in Population

Occupying an area of 150,000 square miles, Poland is the fifth largest country in Europe and, with more than 33,000,000 inhabitants, ranks sixth in population. Warsaw, the capital, is at the geographical center of the continent and therefore easily and quickly accessible to every other important city, writes Theodore Irwin in the Chicago Tribune.

Warsaw, on the Vistula, is the seventh largest city in Europe. Here the modern mingles with the medieval to produce a city of contrasts. A landmark is the Old Market place, which looks exactly as it did four centuries ago. It stands in the old part of the town, the Stare Miesto, interwoven by picturesque back streets and gaily painted sixteenth century houses. The Lazienki, built by the last Polish king; the renowned Fukier wine cellars which boast of vintages as far back as 1606; the National and Art museums. Cracow, in the Southwest, is Poland's most characteristic city, uniting and representing the nation's Old world culture and architecture. Cracow's chief pride is the Wawel, the ancient fortress-castle where for more than 600 years Polish kings and heroes were buried. At the Wawel there is a collection of Dutch tapestries valued at a million dollars each. In the courtyard knights of old held their tournaments. Museums offer not only the art of Polish genius, but masterpieces by Leonardo da Vinci, Titian, and Rembrandt. A few miles to the south of Cracow are the old salt mines of Wieliczka which contain an underground city, 1,000 feet beneath the surface, and carved from the salt rock. Here are two large chapels, long corridors, streets, a ballroom, post office—all carved out of salt crystals—a subterranean lake, and a "population" of 1,700 miners. Year after year, in their spare time, the miners have worked at their salt sculpture.

A Tough Life—That of a Forest Ranger

The life of a forest ranger is not all it's cracked up to be. Instead of spending the summer hunting, fishing and trapping, the ranger is busy protecting game and scenery from visitors and answering their questions.

In the winter, he and another ranger hole themselves up in a log cabin, patrol the boundary of their domain on skis and protect the wild life under their care from the attacks of predatory animals and the guns of men. At night their leisure time is spent in assembling food, wood and clothing to keep warm, and preparing for the next day's tasks.—Washington Post.

DISCOVERED Way to Relieve Coughs QUICKLY

IT'S BY relieving both the irritated tissues of the throat and bronchial tubes. One set of ingredients in FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR quickly relieves tickling, hacking, coughing, . . . coars and soothes irritated throat linings to keep you free from coughing. Another set actually enters the blood, reaches the affected bronchial tubes, loosens phlegm, helps break up cough and speeds recovery. Check a cough due to a cold before it gets worse, before others catch it. Check it with FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR. It gives quick relief and speeded-up recovery.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

High Score Doctors to Contrary, Sound Football Holds Mob

THE generation - old conflict of football doctors - those whose hopefuls fill the air with passes every Saturday afternoon and those who depend on old-time principles to gain yardage—is in full cry again. In general, the theory of the high-score doctors is simple. You pass and pray and then pass again. The only trouble is that there's a lack of sustenance in this field of endeavor when it is stacked up against fundamental practice.

By this I mean there is little attention paid to the Walter Camp commandment about the necessity of the pass-tossing gents remembering that they also dwell in goal-line bounded domiciles.

That the customers themselves are not committed to aerial combat is indicated by the fact that the whole Eastern and Mid-Western concept is in the other direction—and it is here that the best congregations are drawn by interpreters of the old-time tenets.

Let us examine the point for a moment. Recently while Yale's regular punters were averaging 40 yards and the gifted Larry Kelley was getting better than half that distance with one unintentional flick of his tootsie, 43,000 were watching the Elis perform against Navy in Baltimore. At the same time 60,000 were seeing Penn and Princeton in Philadelphia, Pitt and Duquesne were entertaining 20,000 of the home folks, Army was slapping over Harvard before 25,000 customers and 40,000 were gloating about Northwestern's triumph over Ohio State.

Crowd Pleasers Play Game of 20 Years Ago

I mention these games merely at random, but they serve the purpose very well. Except from the diehards and the rain haters there was very little complaint about the essential goodness of the afternoon's celebrations. Yet—aside possibly from Ohio State which now and then goes chasing false idols to the eternal and well-expressed sorrow of the town's taxi drivers and cigar clerks—all these teams play a game which is not vastly different from that of ten, or even twenty, years ago.

Yale's attack is as much a combination of outwardly, although not basically, different schools as is its coaching staff. Princeton adheres to the single wing, short punt style brought from its full Mid-Western flowering by Fritz Crisler and now widely used by the Meehans, Snaveys and other celebrated professors of this section.

So it is with the others. Army would rather come on the field without its mule than without that cut-back, which was achieving touchdowns when Charley Daley was a Plebe. Except for the refinements there is no essential difference between the efforts Harlow now makes at Harvard and the football he taught at Colgate 15 years back. In essence Lynn Waldorf's Northwestern triumphs are gained by the football he learned from Chick Meehan at Syracuse.

Pitt ranks close to the top year after year because Jock Sutherland believes in the perfection of a few plays and a team rather than in razzle dazzle. It was the return of a punt—a performance which was just as popular and as efficacious when the two last met in Philadelphia in 1893—that enabled Penn to beat Princeton.

Navy uses Notre Dame trappings—as indeed do most other teams, since this so-called system was old long before Rockne ever heard of South Bend.

Tulane came from the South—a section which for some reason is often written about as going in for hipper dipper stuff although the Alabamas, Mississippi States and Georgias almost consistently adhere to the orthodox when winning—and ruined Colgate. The job was done with a very fine line.

Colgate—popularly reported as the leading exponent of three-card monte football although the truth is Andy Kerr dons his Wizard of Chetango robes only when the necessity of adapting his material to the situation leaves him no other choice—just could not keep up. It but this started to be an examination of the changes heralded as coming over football.

THINGS you ought to know about this game called football:

In 1897 Vanderbilt U. won all her games; in 1898 she won but one.

Allegheny college lost three consecutive games by an 11-0 score in 1901.

Willie Heston, Michigan halfback, played in 44 consecutive games, scored over 100 touchdowns, and never tasted defeat.

In 1927 Loyola U. of New Orleans, La., defeated Loyola U. of Baltimore and Loyola U. of Chicago.

Ohio U. in 1933 played Franklin college and also Marshall college but has never played Franklin and Marshall college.

Centre college of Kentucky was the first Southern team to place two men on Walter Camp's All-America team in one year—the lucky winners being Red Weaver and Bo McMillin.

The "Whoa Back," a football play that has gained many a yard of ground in its original variations, was invented by Amos Alonzo Stagg, so that Chicago could beat a well-favored Michigan eleven 15 to 6 in 1900. It consisted mainly in having a pusher back of the fullback in plunges through center or off tackle. Stagg was the daddy of numerous other plays and formations that have been used successfully by Knute Rockne and others.

A. A. Stagg

In 1915 University of Tennessee twice won games by the insignificant score of 101—1, against Cumberland and Carson-Newman.

V. M. I. defeated Hampden Sydney 136—0 in 1920; the year before the score had been 3—0.

In 1882 J. T. Haxall of Princeton scored a 65-yard place kick against Yale.

In 1902 Douglas of Tennessee, standing eight yards behind his own goal line, booted the ball with such force that it next touched the ground exactly on the Clemson goal line.

In 1918 Denver U.'s entire schedule was played against teams with the name Colorado—Colorado Mines, Colorado Aggies, Colorado, Colorado college and Colorado Teachers.

Yale played 16 games in 1889; Princeton in 1892 played but two less.

Lafayette defeated West Virginia U. in 1896 on three successive Saturdays; they did not play again for 31 years.

In 1897 Georgetown college of Kentucky played her entire schedule against Kentucky U.—three games.

In 1893 Alabama Poly and Georgia Tech tied, 0—0; the next year the score was 96—0 in favor of Alabama.

In 1916 Georgia Tech defeated Cumberland U. 222—0; in the following game Georgia defeated little Davidson college but 9—0.

Pennsylvania U. defeated Rutgers 65—0 in 1886, but the next Saturday was herself defeated by Yale 75—0.

In 1899 Tulane U. went scoreless in seven games; the following year she was undefeated and untied.

Yale holds the all-time defensive record in football, having protected her goal against a score in 30 games, from 1891 to 1893.

Sewanee U. in 1899 achieved the distinction of defeating five opponents in six consecutive days—Texas, Texas A. and M., Tulane U., Louisiana U. and Mississippi U. That year Sewanee won all her 12 games.

Yale has had 43 coaches during 63 years of football, only 7 of whom stayed more than a year.

Coach Gilmour Dobie lost but two games in the first 15 years of coaching.

In 1928 Georgia Tech was national champion; in 1929 she won but three games out of nine.

Not in the Box Score: William Woodward, owner of Galant Fox, Omaha, and Granville, predicts his Perifox will win the 1937 Epsom Derby. . . . Jimmy Hines, prominent golfer, is recovering from a serious burn on his arm caused by over-exposure under a diathermy machine. . . . Bob Feller, the Indians' brilliant young pitcher, wanted to be an infidel, but took to the mound at his father's insistence.

The Boston Red Sox want Outfielder Joe Vosmik from the Cleveland Indians, but the latter club is asking for Rick Ferrell in the deal. . . . Pitcher Oral Hildebrand of the Indians also is on the block. . . . The Red Sox also have an eye on Pitcher Buck Newsom of the Senators.

Lesson for November 15

THE HEROISM OF CHRISTIAN FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:12, 13, 27-34; Romans 9:1-5. GOLDEN TEXT—Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. John 15:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—On the Castle Steps. JUNIOR TOPIC—On the Castle Steps. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking Risks for Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Risking All for Christ.

We now come to the close of the third missionary journey of Paul. As he came to Jerusalem for the last time in his eventful life he was warned by a prophet, Agabus at Caesarea, that if he went up to Jerusalem he would be bound and given over to the Gentiles.

Heroism of the highest and noblest type has characterized the followers of Christ in all times. Paul was not one to be deterred from what he believed to be God's will by the probability that he would suffer. Like all who follow the Lord Jesus Christ in truth he was I. Fearless, in Practice as Well as Theory (Acts 21:12, 13, 27-34).

Many there are who sing, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord, I'll be what you want me to be," or smoothly repeat consecration vows, who are frightened away at the slightest difficulty, and who feel that they must have been mistaken about the Lord's will for their life at the first indication that his guidance would interfere with their comfort or convenience. No such cowardice or vacillation was found in Paul.

In the first place, he did not intend to have a holy purpose weakened by disheartening talk. How many young men and women have left a place of sacred meeting with God aglow with the purpose of serving Him in the foreign mission field, and then permitted an uninterested friend or relative or employer to talk them out of it.

In the second place, we find Paul carrying through his purpose. When he came to Jerusalem he was counseled to enter the temple to take a Nazarite vow, and thus to satisfy his enemies. Some have commended Paul for thus pacifying those who withstood him, others strongly condemn him for yielding. His purpose was good, but his act led to unfortunate results. An infuriated Jewish mob saw him in the temple and wrongfully accused him of defiling the temple by bringing a Greek into this holy place.

A riot ensues, and Paul would have been killed had not the Roman captain and his band rescued him. Was Paul afraid? He immediately turned his arrest into an unsurpassed opportunity to give a testimony and to make a defense of his ministry (See Acts 21:40-22:22). He admonished others to "be instant in season and out of season" (II Tim. 4:2); he practiced what he preached. He constantly urged faith in God, steadfastness in the midst of trials; he gave full proof of these things in his own ministry.

In all this he did not seek his own glory, or any honor for his own name. The Christian hero knows nothing of heroism for publicity's sake; he does not serve with an eye on the "grandstand." Paul was actuated by a deep and a genuine

II. Concern for the Salvation of His People (Rom 9:1-5).

The Christian worker who knows nothing of "great sorrow and unceasing pain" in his heart over the plight of the unsaved does not follow in the Pauline succession, nor does he know the heart of the Man of Sorrows.

Paul surely did not wish himself separated from Christ, but was so deeply moved that he said he "could wish" it—if it were not wrong—in order to save his brethren. Do we need a revival of compassion in our churches, and in our own hearts, a yearning over the multitudes about us who are as sleep without a shepherd?

A Golden Link

A mother's love is indeed the golden link that binds youth to age, and he is still but a child, however time may have furrowed his cheek, or silvered his brow, who can yet recall with a softened heart, the fond devotion, or the gentle chidings, of the best friend that God ever gives us.

Love of Our Work

It is only those who do not know how to work that do not love it. To those who do it is better than play—it is religion.

Life

Life is not made up of great sacrifices of duties, but of little things of which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

Prejudices

Prejudices may be intense, but their lives are limited—to discover when they are dead and to bury them, is an important matter, and no unseemly tears should be shed at their funerals.

Freedom for Elders— The Ruling of Parents by Grown Children Often Amounts to Tyranny

RECENTLY, says a woman writer of note, I read a letter from a young married woman, who, having a house in which she evidently took pride, and large enough to accommodate her mother, was disturbed. She resented the fact that her mother refused to live there, although she had been invited to do so. She complained of her mother's travels, and her insistence in keeping her own home.

A Strange Plight.

It was impossible not to consider what were the reasons underlying the invitation. The young woman said her friends thought the situation strange, and she feared they blamed her for not having her mother with her. Such super-sensitiveness is certainly a mistake. It can scarcely be taken as the real reason for her annoyance.

Money Matters.

A reason of money might exist. That is, there is a lurking suggestion that the daughter disliked the mother being at the added expense of keeping up her home, and spending money in travels, which went as far as European trips. The letter said that the mother's health was good. Could it be that the money saved by the mother should she live with the daughter, would revert to the daughter? Or would the mother be expected to pay board, or make some contribution to the home, although of a less stipulated sum?

Freedom for Mother.

Whatever the fundamental reason for the daughter's dilemma, one cannot but sympathize with the mother. Here is a woman who cherishes her freedom, and is enjoying it evidently. Either she had been accustomed to traveling, and keeps it up, or she has Freedom for Elders.

A great deal has been said and written about letting children have their right of freedom of action and ideas. It is not they alone that must have this privilege. Parents, when they get older are often ruled with rods of iron by the children who were themselves granted freedom. This ruling of elders is often under the guises of affectionate care, and a patronizing kindness and it sometimes becomes a tyranny, especially over mothers. Such situations are indeed difficult.

Hawaii's Memorial Stone The memorial stone from Hawaii which is to be placed in the Washington monument is of coral sandstone and will bear the following inscription in Hawaiian: "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono." The translation of this is "The life of the land is preserved in righteousness" and it is the official motto of the island. The stone is 4 by 2 feet and 6 inches thick. It will be placed in the interior of the monument on the 360-foot level.

Harvey S. Firestone PUTS THE FARM ON RUBBER . . .

EVERY car owner who does much driving over unimproved roads and who has to use chains, can save the cost and bother of applying them by equipping the rear wheels of his car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires. This wonderful new tire was designed and developed by Harvey S. Firestone working with his engineers on his own farm in Columbiana County, Ohio. It was tested on all kinds of roads and found so efficient that it was also adopted for tractors and all wheeled farm implements.

The rubber lugs of the tread are so placed that they clean as they pull, and since the design is continuous, the tire does not bump when used on paved roads. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords are placed under the tread—a patented Firestone construction feature which welds the powerful super-traction tread to the patented Gum-Dipped cord body, making them one inseparable unit. Gum-Dipping is used only in Firestone tires.

Farmers, country doctors, school bus operators, rural mail carriers, in fact, all who do most of their driving off the paved roads cannot afford to be without Ground Grip Tires. Go to your nearest Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store today and equip your car or truck with Firestone Ground Grip Tires—the tire that makes its own road.

School Notes

High School

We had an Armistice Day program in assembly Wednesday afternoon. The program committee consisting of Madge Brugger, Phyllis Bigelow, and Laurine Frank prepared a very interesting program which consisted of a reading related to Armistice Day given by Madge Brugger; the numbers, "Over There," "Masterbilt Overture," and "Military Escort" by the high school band; "Until the Real Thing Comes Along" and a medley of war songs by the girls' trio which has been recently named "Betty, Lu, and Belle"; an inspiring talk by Reverend Carey; and a presentation of two flags to the school by H. Read Smith in behalf of the American Legion.

Those on the honor roll for the month of October are as follows: Phyllis Bigelow, Kathleen Davis, Isabelle Dease, Lucille DePotty, Hazel Herman, John Katterman, Walter Koepke, Evelyn Latham, Myrton Leslie, Norma Malcolm, Marguerite McLean, Norma Musolf, Erma Lou Pfahl, Harvey Rempert, and Ernest Ross.

The shorthand class has just finished its first book covering fundamentals. There is a rumor that a thorough examination is around the corner.

The European history class is editing a newspaper that tells of events that might have been published in Athens in 450 B. C. had there been newspapers in those days.

The first league debate on the question, "Resolved, that all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated," will be held in the high school assembly room in about two weeks. A definite date will be announced later. At that time our affirmative team will meet a negative team from Harrisville. Debaters participating from Tawas City will be Betty Holland, Otto Ross, and Isabelle Dease. We will appreciate the attendance of the townspeople.

The members of the debating club will go to Flint Saturday to participate in a debate tournament. This will give the members of the team experience in debating without adding or subtracting from their standing in the league.

The average percentage of attendance for the high school during the past month was 97.6. The average percentage for the whole school for the past month was 96.2, and for the year, 97.0.

Gerald Roekle, son of Reverend Roekle, has entered the eleventh grade. Gerald formerly attended high school at Allegan.

The American Legion has furnished each room of the school with the flag code as adopted by the National Flag Conference in 1924. While these rules have no legality, they do represent the opinion of the principal patriotic bodies of the United States.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
We are working hard to win the P.-T. A. membership contest.

The poem, "Four-Leaf Clovers," was memorized by the fifth grade reading class.

Leland Britting brought his moving picture machine to school and everyone has enjoyed the pictures. We are reading "The Sign of the Twisted Candles" by Carolyn Keene for opening.

Primary Room

Isabelle and Frank Toms, and Margaret Leitch are absent this week.

The second grade made a Pilgrim poster this week. The second grade has some new supplementary readers which are being used mainly for silent reading. On the honor roll for October are the following: First grade—Donald Britting, Martin Musolf, Paul Rutterbush, and Jack Werner; second grade—Betty Lue Brown, Darwin Groff, and Janet Musolf.

Miss Margaret and Clement Stepanki of Detroit were week end visitors at the parental home.

A surprise birthday party for Gilbert Shover was held at the American Legion billet on Wednesday evening with 26 present. The evening was spent playing games and cards. A fine lunch was enjoyed.

Arnold McLean, student at Mt. Pleasant, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. McLean.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schreiber of Jackson came Thursday to spend a couple of weeks with friends and relatives and enjoy the hunting.

Mrs. Amelia Streuer left Sunday for Flint, where she will visit relatives this week.

Dr. John LeClair of this city, Dr. E. A. Hasty, Bert Webster and Henry Jackson of Whittemore, Jean Boland of Coleman and F. W. Whitehouse of Turner left yesterday for Ontonagon county where they will hunt deer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray and Annette, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berzhinski and Joyce spent Sunday in Alpena.

Miss Margaret Jordan is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. DeLosh, for a few days.

Red Cross Potential Life Saver Number Nearly 2,000,000

First aid and life saving certificates issued by the American Red Cross since the start of the service 26 years ago now number 1,888,702. During the past year the Red Cross qualified 222,693 persons in first aid and taught water safety and rescue methods to 80,961.

This army of First Aiders and Life Savers is one of the great safety factors in the nation. They are trained to give immediate first aid at the scene of accident, thus saving many lives and preventing permanent injury. Red Cross training includes skill in treating for shock, splinting fractures, checking arterial bleeding, applying artificial respiration, towing drowning persons to safety and in the safe handling of boat and canoe.

Red Cross volunteers, framework of the organization, last year gave a total of 1,707,220 hours of service, producing 685,074 garments, 4,355,719 surgical dressings, 16,773 Christmas bags for soldiers, sailors and marines serving overseas. Perhaps the most important undertaking of these generous contributors to the public welfare is the making of braille books for the blind, with 342,000 pages printed during the past twelve months.

Of the 16,500,000 school children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross societies of 52 nations, more than half are members of the American Junior Red Cross representing 34,882 schools in this country.

Mammoth Cave

Mammoth cave in Kentucky, extends under an area only ten miles in diameter, but the main cave and accessible tributary passages with their domes and chambers on five different levels aggregate at least 150 miles.

The Caribbean Islands

Most of the Caribbean islands which paid such splendid dividends on Queen Isabella's original jewel investment sank into languorous poverty with the growth of the United States, the development of the machine age and the decline of the Spanish empire.

Catalina Island

Catalina Island is off the coast of southern California, near Los Angeles. The correct name is Santa Catalina. It is about 30 miles long and 20 miles wide and is a United States possession, part of the state of California.
