School Notes

High School

The students in the English IV class have begun the writing of their orations. The first copies had to be in Friday, Dec. 4. This has caused a lot of the faces to have worried expressions as some of the students have not as yet received their material for their orations from the state library.

Also the students of the English II class have made their selection of the declamation they wish to give and are now beginning to learn them. The typing II class were reminded of their sophomore days when they were requested to type the declamations. Many of them, it seems, could have been typed from memory.

The freshmen need honorable mention as some of them are competing with the seniors in extemporaneous speaking for the first time. One of the suggested topics that was sent in is, "Franklin D. Roosevelt and the P. W. A."

We hope you will show your interest in the orations and declamations by attending the contests when they are held. The date of the contests will appear in a latter issue of this paper.

Friday evening, Dec. 4, the freshman class entertained the sophomore class with a bunco party at the school building. Miss Crosby, Mr. Forsten, and 34 students attended the party.

The party was started by singing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here" after which those attending played bunco.

To find partners for refreshments the boys were given slips of paper with the names of capitals of states. The girls were given slip of paper with the names of states. Each boy then proceeded to find the girl with

Oscoda High School Will Debate Here December 14

The second league debate will be held at the Tawas City High school Monday evening, Dec. 14.

The debate is with Oscoda. Last year Oscoda reached the eliminations so we are up against a stiff team. Tawas City will again uphold the affirmative which is the hardest side of the question.

The question is "Resolved that all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated." This question should be of interest to everyone.

The debate will start promptly at 8 and we urge your support. Special music will be furnished by Miss Huhtala. Robert Mark will act as chairman.

The debaters wish to thank the people who turned out for the last debate and hope to have a still larger crowd December 14.

Iosco County Normal News

The district meeting of the faculty members of the county normal schools held at the East Tawas High school last Saturday, Dec. 5, was very well attended. All the county normals were represented except Cheboygan. Four county school commissioners were present. John R. Emens, director of certification in the state Department of Public Instruction, acted as chairman. Group discussions of their many problems and a fine address by Mr. Emens filled the day.

The dinner, which was prepared by the Iosco County Normal students was a good dinner, well served—a credit to the class and serving the dinner, gained an invaluable experience. They also netted a nice little sum towards their travel fund.

The Normal class has made a series of dioramic views illustrating the recreation in Michigan. Come in and see the collection.

The training room children have completed a unit on "Dogs" and have modeled many species in clay, besides preparing booklets about the different classes of dogs. They, too, have made dioramic pictures representing the various means of communications down to the fast airmail.

Special showing of occasional and upholstered chairs. Barkman's.

King Edward Defies Cabinet, Clinging to Mrs. Simpson—Garner Mixes in House Leadership Battle—President's Buenos Aires Address.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

CONFRONTED with the opposition of his cabinet, the high clergy, the leaders of both the Conservative and the Labor parties and goodness knows how many of the ordinary people of his empire, King Edward VIII insists on continuing his intimacy with Mrs. Wally Simpson, presumably with the intention of marrying her. And he does not intend to abdicate in order to cling to the American divorcee. Defying the disapproval of his advisers, the bachelor monarch proposes to test his constitutional right to wed the woman of his choice—provided she consents.

Such, at this writing, is the status of what has become a genuine crisis for the British empire, highly interesting to all the world. The cabinet discussed the affair at length and sent Prime Minister Baldwin to mediate with the king, but the statesman got nowhere with the self-willed ruler, and next day told the house of commons he was not yet ready to make a statement. Edward called together his close friends, including his brother the duke of York who would succeed him if he abdicated, and considered the next move in the serious situation. This might be the resignation of the cabinet and the refusal of party leaders to form another government. Some of the English statesmen, like Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, or David Lloyd George or Winston Churchill, might undertake the task at the request of the king, but probably none of them could command the necessary majority in the house. It is suggested that Edward might attempt to follow the example of Charles I, who set up a government without a parliament.

The British press at last has abandoned the self-imposed silence concerning the king's course but most of them declared their opposition or their regret. Public opinion will probably have a great deal to do with solving the problem.

The Church of England will not have Mrs. Simpson as King Edward's wife at any price, the Church Times, its organ, declared, lining up militantly behind Baldwin and the cabinet. Mrs. Simpson and her two previous husbands have been divorced and upon that the church takes its stand, was the Church Times' position.

It is reported on good authority that King Edward is negotiating the sale of his Canadian "EP" ranch to Lincoln Ellsworth, the American explorer.

BRITAIN'S house of lords killed Lord Ponsonby's "mercy death" bill by a vote of 35 to 14. It would have allowed a doctor to end the life of a patient suffering from an incurable and painful disease. The measure fell before the attack of churchmen, who opposed it on religious and moral grounds, and of doctors, who felt that the responsibility was too great to be assumed by their profession.

The archbishop of Canterbury made no objection to the bill on religious grounds, but said: "It is better to leave this difficult and delicate matter in the hands of the medical profession rather than drag it into the open and regulate it by legal procedure."

CALLED back to Washington because he is acting President during the absence of Mr. Roosevelt, Vice President Garner promptly involved himself in the battle for the house leadership that is being waged by the supporters of John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the rules committee, and Sam Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the interstate commerce committee. Mr. Garner put himself behind his fellow Texan, declaring: "I am for Rayburn 200 per cent. He is the best equipped man for the job and I will do all I can to further his candidacy."

O'Connor's friends and other representatives who had been neutral were astounded and angered by what they considered an unwarranted intrusion by the vice president into a house contest. John D. Dingell of Michigan voiced this sentiment when he said: "The distinguished vice president has a big enough job on his hands as presiding officer of the senate without interfering with the organization of the house with which he has no connection whatsoever."

"The Democratic members of the house in the last congress were compelled to go through a campaign under the untrue accusations from the Republican enemy that they were mere 'rubber stamps' of the President. That accusation hurt the members' feelings sufficiently to bring them back to the duty of the duly elected Democratic members of the house are going to become the 'rubber stamps' of the vice president, so that the Lone Star state may run both ends of the capitol to the exclusion of any participation by any of the other 47 states."

ACCORDING to the New York Daily News, Former President Herbert Hoover may become an expatriate. The newspaper quoted Mr. Hoover "intimates here and in Washington" that he had virtually decided to take up indefinite residence in England as did Col. Charles Lindbergh more than a year ago.

Recalling that Mr. Hoover had seldom lived in the United States after his graduation from Stanford university until the war years, the Daily News said that some of the happiest years of his life had been spent in London, which was headquarters for his mining enterprises in all parts of the world.

AS THE cruiser Indianapolis and its convoy, the Chester, entered the harbor of Buenos Aires, a salute to President Roosevelt boomed from the guns of eleven warships, ten squadrons of airplanes wheeled overhead, and thousands of cheering citizens crowded the water front. Argentinians generally approve of Mr. Roosevelt's policies and he was welcomed to their capital as "a great benevolent dictator." They had planned to give him an elaborate reception, but it was toned down somewhat at his request. President Justo, who already had greeted the distinguished guest by wireless, met him at the dock and accompanied him to the American embassy. Then Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and members of the American delegation to the peace conference made a formal call at the government house.

Next day, after a ride about the city, President Roosevelt attended the extraordinary session in the legislative palace to open the Pan-American peace conference which he initiated. A formal dinner for him at the government house and a reception for all conference delegates followed. The event of the third day was a luncheon at the American embassy in honor of President and Mrs. Justo. Then Mr. Roosevelt embarked and started on the return trip, with a brief stop at Montevideo, capital of Uruguay.

In his eloquent address before the peace conference Mr. Roosevelt set forth his program for banishing war from the Americas and erecting economic barriers against war elsewhere in the world. The first task in achieving this, he said, is "making war in our midst impossible," and the second step is to insure the continuance of democracy in the western hemisphere as the best guarantee of peace. He warned the "war mad" nations bent on conquest that the American republics "stand shoulder to shoulder" in readiness to "consult together for our mutual safety and our mutual good."

GERMANY'S cabinet, with Hitler presiding, promulgated a number of startling edicts for the furtherance of the Goering four-year plan of rehabilitation of the reich. Most important of these is the "economic sabotage" law, decreeing death for Germans who "unscrupulously" hoard wealth abroad and "damage the German economy." This is directed against violators of recent injunctions which put within reach of the government between 1,500,000,000 and 2,000,000,000 marks ($600,000,000 to $800,000,000) which could be converted into foreign currencies should the necessity arise.

Another law orders the incorporation of every German boy and girl, without exception, in the Hitler youth movement, for physical, spiritual and moral training.

The "youth leader of the German reich," Baldur von Schirach, was made responsible directly to Hitler and given the rank of a supreme Nazi authority.

REPORTS to the senate campaign funds committee show that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave $70,000 to Republican campaign funds, while Democratic organizations received $50,000 from Mrs. James R. H. Cromwell, formerly Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress.

The committee said it hoped to trace the source of most of the $13,000,000 spent by scores of political organizations in the last campaign, as a basis for legislative recommendations to the President and congress.

SPAIN'S government appealed to the council of the League of Nations to deal with the menace to "peace and good will among nations" allegedly created by Italo-German recognition of the fascist rebel junta. Secretary J. A. C. Avelar thereupon convoked the council, though at this writing the date for the meeting is unsettled. It was believed Italy would refuse to attend the session; Germany is no longer a member of the league. French statesmen didn't approve the Spanish action, feeling that it complicated an already serious situation and could do no good.

There were no decisive developments in the long siege of Madrid, but the loyalist defenders seemed to have gained renewed strength and made fierce counterattacks on the Fascists in the University city area. The rebel airplanes repeatedly bombed the city and hundreds of men, women and children were reported killed by their projectiles.

SENATOR BORAH of Idaho returned to Washington, and one of the few topics he was willing to talk about was the proposition of some French deputies that France settle her war debt to the United States by a payment of 10 cents on the dollar, in order to clear the way for further borrowing of American money.

Mr. Borah was quick to declare his opposition to such a scheme, calling it downright insolence on the part of the French, and as he is the ranking Republican on the foreign relations committee his words mean something. Said the senator:

"We settled once at 51 cents on the dollar and that was just about what they owed us at the close of the war. We have no reason to believe that they will keep their word this time any more than they did before. This is no cash proposition. It is another installment scheme. Remember this money belongs to the American taxpayers. If we continue to loan this money and then take it back at 10 cents on the dollar we cannot do any more to promote armaments."

In the French chamber Jean Mistler, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, requested the deputies to drop discussion of the debts question in order that the government "may have a free hand in its present negotiations with the United States." Details of the "negotiations" were not disclosed.

Some Paris observers thought there was an attempt to fix up an Anglo-French-American security pact and that France was ready to reconsider the debt question in order to facilitate the execution of that project.

WILLIAM GREEN was re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor before the closing of the convention in Tampa. Secretary Frank Morrison and the 14 vice presidents also were chosen for another term. In his speech of acceptance Mr. Green made a renewed plea to John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. associates to "come back to our home and fight the common foe."

The insurgents show no sign of doing. The 1937 convention was awarded to Denver. The convention refused to concur in four resolutions attacking the Supreme court. It instructed the executive council to have a bill for the six hour day and five day week introduced in congress and declared the 30 hour week to be the "paramount objective" of the A. F. of L.

THE cause of world peace should be the gainer by the death of Sir Basil Zaharoff in Monte Carlo. Known as the "mystery man of Europe," he was for many years the master salesman of armaments and amassed an immense fortune in that and other business enterprises. Born in Odessa, Russia, of Greek parents, Zaharoff had all of Europe for his field of operations. He was knighted in England, became a citizen of France and married a Spanish duchess. He gave valuable aid to the Allies during the World war, founding chairs of aviation at Paris and Petrograd and presenting 25,000 pounds sterling to the British government for a similar purpose.

LABOR department statistics reported a jump of 14 per cent in wholesale prices in the approximately three years in which the Roosevelt administration has sought to raise the general price level. The widest gain was registered for farm products, which rose from an index figure of 58.7 three years ago to 85.5. Foods increased from 65.4 to 83.5. All commodities other than farm products and food increased from 77.5 to 80.8.

As figured into living costs, the department's statistics covering purchases by wage earners and lower salaried workers showed an increase for all items, from 77.2 at the close of 1933 to 82.1 in September, this year. The increases were: Food, 69.4 to 84.3; clothing, 76.2 to 78.6; rent, 63.9 to 64.6; house furnishing goods, 73.5 to 78.2. Fuel and light costs fell from 90.3 to 87.4.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Gaylord—Ford lake, one of the pot-hole lakes in the Pigeon River state forest area northwest of Gaylord, has been selected by fisheries men for an experimental planting of Montana grayling.

Howard City—Oil men watched with interest the development of the first oil well in this vicinity recently. The well was brought in at a depth of 3,311 feet and 1,000 feet of oil had risen in the pipe during a 24 hour period.

Lansing—At least $6,703,264, and in all probability $8,513,600, will be asked of the state legislature in January by the state emergency relief commission. Present funds will last until about Feb. 10, according to the state commission.

Baldwin—Michigan's first recorded case of a deer shooting a hunter to death came this season. Walter Draminski, 43 years old, a farmer, was leaning over a doe wounded by another hunter. The doe kicked the trigger of his shotgun, the bullet fatally injuring him.

East Lansing—Michigan State College has set the five-day period from Feb. 1 to 5, inclusive, for its annual Farmers Week observance—a short course in practical farming. The Michigan Crop Improvement Association and State Grange would meet in connection with the program.

Lansing—The State Highway Department has announced the opening to traffic of a three-lane superhighway on US-12 between Ann Arbor and Jackson. The opening marked the completion of a two-year building program which cost the State and Federal Governments $1,473,650.

Lansing—Farmers and lawyers dominate all other groups in potential voting strength in the 1937 legislature. A survey of the vocations of the 100 house members showed 30 farmers and 10 attorneys elected to serve for the next biennium. In the senate for the next two years there will be nine lawyers but only one farmer.

Lansing—New millions for highway purposes will be asked of the 1937 Legislature, the Highway Commissioner has revealed. The Legislature will be asked to earmark for highway purposes the money collected as sales tax on automobiles and on automobile fuel, lubricants and accessories. It is estimated at $7,000,000 a year.

Ann Arbor—Michigan's Legislature will find a State unemployment insurance act prepared to tie in with the National Social Security Law when it convenes in January, according to Dr. William D. Haber. The State law, he promised, will insure to Michigan the full 90 per cent return of payroll taxes provided for under the Federal measure.

Lansing—The AAA has reported total expenditures of $10,528,915 in rental and benefit payments to Michigan farmers from May 12, 1933, to Sept. 30, 1936. The report showed expenditures of $4,690,698 in corn-hog payments in Michigan; $3,211,065 for the sugar program; and $2,627,151 for the wheat program. Michigan's total of $10,528,915 ranked thirty-first among the states.

East Lansing—The State Board of Agriculture has voted to employ an expert to help Michigan potato growers advertise their own crop in Michigan. He will serve until Feb. 14, assisting the growers in staging exhibits for the annual buy-Michigan-potatoes campaign. The program is carried out jointly by the college, the State Department of Agriculture, and the Michigan Quality Potato Growers Association.

Lakeview—Fifteen families in Hinton township are to have free natural gas in their homes as soon as construction of a pipeline is completed, thanks to the "Hinton pool" formed in 1934 when 34 landowners leased their property as one piece. To date 15 gas wells have been drilled on the land, 14 of them being producers. One of the provisions of each lease is that the landowners are to be provided with gas without payment.

Lansing—State Emergency Relief Administration civil service examinations were held in 23 cities recently to create a list of persons eligible for appointment in counties as social workers. The examinations marked the first time that State-wide merit system principles have been applied in Michigan to create a list of persons eligible for employment in a State-wide agency. The SERA last summer adopted the merit system and conducted qualifying tests for employees.

Alpena—Deo Wilson, Alpena grocer, believes he is the state's luckiest hunter. He came on a large bear and four cubs and fired one shot. One cub fell mortally wounded and the others fled. While Wilson was examining his prize he heard thrashing in a thicket and found a second cub there. While dragging his double kill to camp, he came upon a large buck breathing its last of a bullet wound, apparently having escaped after being wounded by another hunter. Wilson tagged it and called it a day.

New Lothrop—So many pupils desired to go deer hunting this year that the village school here was closed for the hunting season.

East Lansing—Michigan State College authorities have announced that they would conduct a three-week course of study of Diesel engines in February, intended especially for the benefit of garage and service men.

Lansing—Byron L. Ballard, treasurer of the Democratic state campaign committee, filed a statement with the Ingham County clerk showing it had expended $28,087.10 in the victorious November election campaign. The statement of expenditures is required by law.

Ann Arbor—A committee, appointed by the University of Michigan Student council, is conducting an investigation of charges that private employers were "exploiting" self-supporting undergraduates. It was said that wage scales in the campus district were as low as 15 cents an hour.

Lansing—The Federal Soil Conservation Act, under which it is estimated that 100,000 Michigan farmers will receive about $5,000,000 this year, contemplates transfer of the soil conservation program to the State governments by 1938. Participating states are expected to adopt suitable legislation in 1937.

Saginaw—Payment of nearly $2,000,000 to sugar beet growers of this district was announced by the Michigan Sugar Co. The payment is double that of 1935 and is the largest made by the company in the last four years. Additional payments, amounting to about $275,000, will be made Jan. 15 to cover beets not received before Dec. 1.

Lansing—Gun-toting gangsters now face a new law enforcement weapon. Submitted by the 1935 Legislature and enacted into basic law by voters in the recent election, the new weapon is a constitutional amendment. It provides that juries in criminal courts may be told of dangerous weapons seized, legally or illegally, from criminals outside their own homes.

Pontiac—James Stewart, 24, is glad he has a loud horn on his automobile. Stewart went into his garage, started his motor and was attempting to fix his heater when he was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes. He pitched forward from the front seat, his chin striking the horn button. Passersby, attracted to the garage by the noise, dragged Stewart from the garage and physicians revived him.

Battle Creek—Miss Margaret Warswick, of Albion College, and Paul Wyckoff, of Wayne University, won the women's and men's divisions in the Michigan Interscholastic Speech League's extemporaneous speaking contest. Second among the men was Donald O'Hara, of Michigan State College. The second place women's winner was Mary Joen Purcell, of Michigan Normal College at Ypsilanti.

Albion—Charles W. Howard, farmer and toymaker, is planning to start a "Santa Claus school" here next summer. Howard, who plays Santa Claus annually for church and civic functions, says he is pretty much disgusted with the Santas he sees on street corners and in department stores in the cities because they do not measure up to childhood expectations. "I could place 20 or 30 Santas right now," he said, "if I had men trained."

Sandusky—A price of $6.30 a hundred pounds paid to the farmer who raises beans is something to talk about. The price-boosting factor was drouth. Bean plantings were normal. Early in the year expectation was good. Then came the drouth and estimates began to fall. The late rains didn't help fields that were planted early. Many crops remained unharvested but there was a goodly percentage of late plantings and these have done well.

East Lansing—The State Board of Agriculture recently voted to place Michigan State College under the terms of an act of the 1933 Legislature, granting free tuition to children of World War soldiers, sailors and marines who lost their lives in service or as a result of their service. The Attorney General ruled recently that the college was not subject to the act's terms. The privilege is extended only to children of veterans who died prior to 1921.

Lansing—The State Health Department reported 66 more persons were killed in automobile accidents in the first nine months of 1936, than in the same period of 1935. Fatalities totaled 1,254 against 1,188 in the corresponding period last year. The total of all automobile fatalities in 1935 was 1,667. In 1934 it was 1,502. The report showed fatalities for nearly every month this year were greater in number than that for the corresponding month in 1935.

Lansing—State Conservation authorities are seriously considering asking the 1937 Legislature to establish a system of reciprocal hunting and fishing licenses in Michigan. It is thought that the proposal would receive support from sportsmen interested in preserving Michigan game for Michigan hunters and who do not profit from the money spent by non-residents. Michigan charges non-resident hunters $5 each for small game licenses and $25 each for deer hunting licenses. Illinois, Indiana and Ontario charge $15.50.

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington. — In proposing a peace pact for the western hemisphere, President Roosevelt in his speech at Buenos Aires has directed attention to two important positions that the United States has taken in its foreign relations. Whether Mr. Roosevelt so intended or whether it is by the very nature of the circumstance, he nevertheless has set up before the American people the necessity for re-examination of the age-old Monroe doctrine and has brought up for fresh scrutiny the policies of President Woodrow Wilson that were designed to establish eventually world peace by collectivist action.

Wilson Policies Fail

I think that it must be admitted that the Wilson policies for international peace have not worked. Anyone who examines them squarely and frankly must recognize one outstanding inescapable fact: they have proved to be the illusions of an idealist.

They constitute a landmark, however, and in so doing it seems to me they should serve as a guide on what not to do. Candidly, the Wilson policies, beautiful in theory that they were, have been shown to be futile because they did not consider the perfidy nor the chicanery of European statesmen. They were predicated upon a belief that the world leaders were sincere in their desire for peace—and it is sad but true that such is not the case. In other words, the Wilson theories that were built up into a supergovernment to be called the League of Nations overlooked the element of human fallibility.

It requires only a brief review of the history of the League of Nations to reveal the definite conclusion that there is an absolute lack of sincerity on the part of the European statesmen. Each one has been concerned only with gains and advantages accruing to his own nation. His actions have been permeated to the core with selfishness, sometimes aggravated with desires for personal distinction. The league fell down in dealing with Russia's Stalin and Germany's Hitler. It took a mighty flop in the movement to check Italy's Mussolini in Ethiopia. Having flattened out, none of the three above mentioned has any respect for the league authority. When you add to this the absolute dismissal of the league as a world influence as was done by Japan, you have less than nothing left.

Mussolini said the other day that in order to straighten out the European tangle it would be necessary to wipe out all of the "Wilsonian illusions." He could have referred only to the Wilsonian slogan upon which we entered the World war, namely, the "war to make the world safe for democracy." Later, it will be remembered, the World war was "the war to end war." Neither of these slogans bore fruit. Each was an illusion, a dream of world peace held by a great man whose only weakness in assuming world leadership was that he trusted the American people, to arrive at a sound conclusion and stick to it.

Wilsonian Illusions

I am not prepared to say that the Wilson policies led us in a wrong direction. The fact remains, however, that the war that was to make the world safe for democracy led directly into destruction of democracy and the establishment of fascism and communism in various parts of the world as an important factor in the government of peoples.

All of this, of course, was not visible nor predictable at the time the policies were initiated. It is all too plain now, however, and that is why President Roosevelt can very well be governed in his new move with the Pan-Americans. He can proceed upon a Pan-American basis with at least a hope of success because it is quite apparent that the Americas, North and South, can protect themselves if arrangements for prevention of war relate only to the western hemisphere. International affairs will have to be considered, obviously. But among those authorities with whom I have talked about this problem, there seems to be little doubt that if the idea of collectivist action, first enunciated in the Wilson policies—is to avail anything, it must be applied not to the world but to a section of the world.

I noted in the official agenda, the program outline of the Buenos Aires conference, that no reference at all was made to the Monroe doctrine. Apparently, that course had to be followed. The Monroe doctrine is a ticklish matter among our neighbors to the south. Frankly, they do not like it. Considering all of the factors involved in the Monroe doctrine, there seems no conclusion ahead but eventual abandonment of that pronouncement. When I say that, I do not mean that the principles of the Monroe doctrine need be thrown into the ocean. Yet, the name has been the focal point around which much antagonism has been built up and the romantic Latin blood of South America can hardly be expected ever again to subscribe to the Monroe doctrine by that name. What, then, is the course?

The Monroe doctrine, whether it was ever so intended, has placed the United States in a position where it is made to appear as a boss. No nation of people enjoys being bossed. So, if the Buenos Aires conference is to result in a definite understanding by which the peoples of the western hemisphere are welded together in an effective group, some understanding must be evolved which will replace the ill will engendered by the Monroe doctrine. Possibly, that understanding lies in the direction being followed by President Roosevelt. Apparently, he is willing to subordinate the Monroe doctrine and concede to those other peoples on behalf of the United States the end of our overlordship.

Undoubtedly, it will be a slow process. Present generations throughout the South American nations will be suspicious for a time and will move with caution but there are many who believe in eventual agreement among the western nations on a general policy that will keep us all out of European and Far Eastern entanglements to a greater extent than ever before.

The thing that may break down the apparent Roosevelt plan is the circumstance of drawn swords and cocked rifles in Europe at the moment. It is entirely possible that before concrete adhesion among the North and South American peoples can be accomplished, explosions in Europe may take place. If they do, propaganda agents of the conflicting powers will be abroad instanter. Attempts will be made to alienate various nations in the western hemisphere, to align them with one side or the other in the European controversy. It may well be that this condition will ruin the Roosevelt program before it gets under way but a start has been made and succeeding generations will profit if the peoples of North and South America can come to regard themselves as an individual group that is willing to make sacrifices necessary to cut off European connections when the European statesmen insist on fighting.

There is yet one more thought concerning the South American sessions. There are students of international affairs who already are saying that history has repeated itself and that the United States has lost, as usual, in its diplomatic dealings. They are saying that the revision of the Monroe doctrine and the rebirth of that policy under a new name represents a gift by the United States. It may well be that such has occurred. But among saner minds, I believe the conviction is that the Monroe doctrine already has undergone so many alterations and revisions that a major operation on its structure will clarify the picture. The Monroe doctrine was designed originally, of course, to prevent European nations from gaining a foothold in either of the Americas. That danger is definitely past. Why, then, is it necessary to perpetuate an antiquated policy that has no purpose any longer? Thus, it seems to me that if a revision, even a casting out of the Monroe doctrine can eliminate suspicion of our government's purposes among those peoples inhabiting the same hemisphere, it is not too much to pay.

There was a great banquet held at one of the hotels in Washington a few days ago. It is not unusual for great banquets to be held in the capital city but most of them are just banquets. The one to which I refer, however, had a significance that is quite unusual. It commemorated the establishment of the United States patent office and celebrated its one hundredth birthday. Something like eleven hundred inventors, research scientists, representatives of industry and patent office officials entered the great dining room by candlelight. Then, the toastmaster waved a wand over one of the greatest inventions of modern times and the room was bathed in an electric brilliance the like of which has never been seen. The action typified, told the story of, scientific development in the United States and elsewhere.

FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER

"A Twenty Dollar Bill"

BY FLOYD GIBBONS

THERE are some things that money can't buy, but there are lots more things that you can't buy without money. This is the story of the money a man didn't have and how the lack of it almost cost him his life. And it's the story of a twenty dollar bill and how it came to the rescue of Ignatius Craig of Bronx, N. Y.

And when I tell you that Brother Craig produced that twenty smack-note at a time when he didn't have twenty bucks to his name—well—that just makes it all the more puzzling. As a matter of fact, it sounds just plain impossible. But here's the story and you can judge for yourself.

For six years, Ignatius Craig owned and operated a grocery store. And in that grocery store, on a bitter cold night in November, 1932, he had the adventure and the twenty bucks he didn't have.

In Came the Two Hold-up Men.

It was late in the evening. The last customer had left the store, and he was getting ready to close up. He stepped out from behind the counter to lock the door, but before he could reach it, two young men walked in.

One of them stuck a gun in his side and hissed, "Get into the back room—and if you want to live, don't try any funny stuff." And he did as he was told. Then, while one of them held the gun on him, the other took the money out of the cash register.

There was only thirty dollars in the register. The second bandit looked at it and cursed. Says Ignatius Craig: "As a rule during the day I would take the money out of the register and hide it in some part of the store, just in case there was a hold-up. That day I had paid a sixty-dollar grocery bill, so the cash in the register was every cent I had. But the bandits must have known of, or suspected my trick of hiding money.

Gave Him Ten Seconds to Produce.

"The fellow outside now came into the back room. He walked over to me, stuck his gun in my side and said: 'Where is the rest of the dough? The other fellow pushed his gun in my stomach. 'We'll give you ten seconds to make up your mind,' he snarled. Then if you don't tell us where the rest of the money is, we'll shoot you like a dog.

"You Won't Be the First Rat We've Shot"

"I shall never forget the looks on those thugs' faces. I knew they would make good their threat if I didn't produce more money. But there was no more money in the store. Five seconds ticked by while I stood like a statue, terror-stricken and afraid even to breathe.

"Then the first crook said: 'You won't be the first rat we've shot either. And don't make any false moves or one of these guns might go off before your time is up.' The clock ticked off a few more precious seconds. Still I held my breath. I was in the worst predicament of my life."

Yes—Ignatius Craig was in a spot—and well he knew it. If he could only gain a little time! His voice shook so badly that he could hardly get a word out of his mouth, but he tried as best he could to explain why he had so little money in the store. He even offered to show them the receipted grocery bill he had paid earlier in the day. But all the answer he got was another poke in the ribs from the muzzle of a revolver.

Useless Plea for Mercy.

The terror in his heart was too much for him then, and he broke down completely. "I'm a married man with a wife and kid," he cried. "Please—for God's sake—don't shoot me. I'm telling the truth." And the first bandit growled, "We're not interested in your wife and kid, see. We know you've got money here, and you can produce it or it'll be just too bad."

That sounded like a death knell to the helpless captive. How he prayed that a customer would walk in! These men had murdered in their hearts, and if he didn't produce money he was done for. Yet he knew there wasn't a dollar in the place.

One of the men said, "I'll count up to three. Then if you don't talk, you'll get plugged. The other one said, "Never mind the counting, Jack. Let's give it to him right now!" And then, suddenly, Ignatius Craig had an idea!

Understand, he knew there was no money in the store. And I know there was no money in that store. Both of us will swear it on a stack of bibles as high as an undertaker's hat. But nevertheless he said, "Wait a minute, I have money. There's a twenty dollar bill hidden under a can of tomatoes on the shelf right back of the cash register."

The Bill Satisfied Them—Then.

One fellow nodded to the other. They marched their captive out of the back room and made him point out the can. One of the men lifted the can, picked up the bill beneath it, glanced at it and put it in his pocket. The thugs pushed him into the back room again, and one of them said: "We ought to shoot him anyway." But the other said, "We've wasted too much time already. Leave him alone and let's get going."

Then they pocketed their guns and walked calmly out of the store, apparently satisfied at getting that extra twenty dollars that Ignatius Craig swears to you—and I swear to you—that he didn't have!

A call to the police brought no results. The two men were never caught. Ignatius Craig sold his business a short while later, because he was afraid those fellows would come back. You see, all those bandits got was the thirty dollars in the register. Craig told the truth when he said he had no more money. The twenty dollar bill under the tomato can was a counterfeit—one that he'd been stuck with and wanted to keep separate from the real money in the cash drawer.

"Bad money," he says, "is usually hard luck to the one that gets it—but not always. I'll swear to this day that my life was saved by a counterfeit twenty dollar bill."

Giving Happiness

Be cheerful! Which will you do—smile, and make others happy, or be crabbed, and make everyone miserable? The amount of happiness you can produce is incalculable if you show a smiling face and speak pleasant words. There is no joy like that which springs from a kind act or pleasant deed, and you may feel it at night when you rest, and at morning when you rise, and through all the day when about your business.

Underpaid Writers

Oliver Goldsmith wrote the "Vicar of Wakefield," his only novel, to pay his landlady who had threatened his arrest. The novel was sold for $300 to a bookseller by Dr. Samuel Johnson. Then Goldsmith paid his rent and scolded his landlady. For writing one of the world's best sellers "Black Beauty," the Englishwoman, Anna Sewall, received only $100. On a straight royalty basis, it would have returned her upward of $300,000.

Spinach Cup Cake

Take four cups of flour and put them in one cup * * * and add three spoons. Then stir until stiff, and when you're too stiff to stir, then you know you're stiff. Then, of course, it won't make the cake taste any better. Get some burnt almonds, but don't use them. Use eggs. Take six eggs * * * and if you haven't got any eggs, then only use five. Then separate the yellows from the yolks, then get your spinach and separate the sand from the spinach, but save the sand. Then you roll it into little balls. When it's finished, it looks like hamburger * * * it tastes like spinach, but when you open it up it's cup cake.

FORD

advances into 1937 with the LOWEST PRICE IN YEARS
and new operating economy

THE ADDITION of a new 60-horsepower engine to the Ford line for 1937 brings you a new, low price and gives you a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines. 85 horsepower for maximum performance, 60 horsepower for maximum economy.

The 60-horsepower V-8 engine was originally developed for use in England and France, where fuel costs are high. It has been proven there for two years with brilliant success. Now, brought to America, it creates an entirely new standard of modern motoring economy!

The "60" engine, available in five body types, is built in exactly the same body size and wheelbase — to the same advanced design — with the same comfort and convenience as the "85." And it delivers V-8 smoothness at speeds up to 70 miles an hour.

Two engine sizes—but only one car and one purpose—to give you more miles and more satisfaction for your money in 1937.

Seeing Happiness
Happiness is the gift of seeing the good things of life in such high relief that the rest is unimportant. When a man with an air as if it were natural to him to give orders is found, it isn't long before the meek put him in a position to do it.

Nature doesn't eliminate foolishness. Civilized man has to learn how, some day.

Foibles arise from exaggerated personal pride and generally among people who have not a great deal to be proud of.

There is nothing thrilling about contentment; nothing dangerous, either.

A long answer turneth away anybody else who was going to ask a question.

Using Abilities
The art of being able to make good use of moderate abilities wins esteem, and confers more reputation than real merit.

If you have savage opinions, people will be hypocritical to you to keep on good terms.

Discuss your troubles with many and they will discuss them with the whole community.

The well-bred man keeps his beliefs out of his conversation.

When a boy gets up to his ears in love he is more careful about washing them.

Philosopher's Task
It is the work of a philosopher to be every day subduing passions and laying aside prejudices.

If you encounter a man who knows several secrets of his friends and doesn't tell them, that's the man to tie up to.

What men say when they are angry is either the blazing truth or very unreliable.

MUSCLES FELT STIFF AND SORE

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

HEARTBURN?
It's surprising how many have heart burn. Hurried eating, overeating, heavy smoking, excessive drinking all lead to heartburn. When it comes, heed the warning. Your stomach is on a strike.

TAKE MILNESIAS
Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, taken after indulgence, relieves heartburn. Crunchy and tasty. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls milk of magnesia. 20c, 35c & 60c packages.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room, he finds a marble statue which he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "racketing, mischievous spirit."

He said quizzically: "That's not the same Judith Plank with whom you played tennis this afternoon."
"Judith?" she repeated in astonishment, forgetting her mendacity; and then suddenly she remembered, and her cheeks were crimson. She retreated from him, white and startled; turned and ran up the stairs. He had only meant to tease her; but by her flight his almost-forgotten anger was a little revived.

"Nancy!" he called. She stopped, half turning. "You mustn't ever lie to me, Nancy," he said sternly. She hesitated, facing him doubtfully; but after a moment she descended to meet him ascending. On the step above him, she said appealingly:

"I'm sorry, Father. I—a girl—"
She laughed in confused dismay. "Well, a girl instinctively wants to keep some things secret," she confessed happily.

And before he could speak, she added: "You're right. It wasn't Judith, this afternoon. It was Dan Carlisle. When you asked me who was here, we'd only just found out that we love each other! That was why I—fibbed to you!"

Doctor Greeding touched her shoulder affectionately, guarding his tones. "No reason why you shouldn't tell me and your mother, is there?" he asked quietly.

"I was afraid you wouldn't—"
"Never be afraid of me, Nancy," he urged. "You'll always find me on your side."
"Then you don't mind my—loving Dan!"

"I mind your being afraid of me." He kissed her again, and he added judicially: "As for Dan, I hardly know him, Nancy. Bring him around more often. Let your mother and me get acquainted with that young man." And he suggested: "After all, there's no hurry. You and he will want to treasure this new happiness in secret for a while."

Then, before she could either assent or demur, he said: "Good night. It's late, my dear."
She hugged him warmly. "You're sweet!" she whispered. "Good night, Father!" And ran up the stairs.

He followed more slowly; and in his own room, the door closed behind him, he stood fixed and rigid, frowning. But in the end he dismissed Nancy for the present from his mind, and opened the volume he had brought upstairs.

CHAPTER III

Next day Doctor Greeding was not his usual self while in the operating-room. Ordinarily he worked without conscious effort, smoothly and swiftly; but today each procedure required a conscious concentration.

Doctor Mayhew, his assistant, observed this; and Miss Rimes, the surgical nurse, likewise felt it, and reacted to Doctor Greeding's tension by a definite failure in her usual efficiency. Once when without looking toward her he reached for dissecting scissors, she offered him the knife instead, and the point punctured his glove, so that he had to change.

Such accidents had occurred before; but today Doctor Greeding was in no case to meet the incident equably and calmly. Fortunately the skin was not even pricked; yet many a surgeon had lost a finger, or a hand or an arm as easily as this; and he told Miss Rimes so, in dry, cutting tones.

Even while he spoke, he realized suddenly that he disliked Miss Rimes intensely. She was an efficient nurse; but he recognized now that she was a dark, unlovely woman. He had never before thought of her except as an automaton; and his physical distaste for her lent an unintended heat to his rebuke.

She made no defense; but afterward in the corridor he saw her talking with Doctor Mayhew; and there was a hint of tears, of hysteria, in her manner. So Doctor Greeding belatedly repented his heat; and back in his office, he summoned Doctor Mayhew and by way of amends bade him grant Miss Rimes a month's full-pay vacation.

Doctor Mayhew suggested doubtfully: "I'm afraid, after her mistake this morning, she may feel this is a reproach!"
"Not at all," Doctor Greeding insisted. "It is simply that I think she is overworked, tired."

But the other man persisted in his view; and Doctor Greeding reluctantly summoned Miss Rimes and in Doctor Mayhew's presence made amends.

"I owe you an apology, Miss Rimes," he confessed. "I was tired this morning, nervous; and I blew off steam at your expense. I'm sorry."

She assured him, eagerly: "I was clumsy!" But when he spoke of the vacation he proposed that she should take, she protested: "Oh, I can't just now! With Miss Johnson ill, there's no one to handle the work; and I'm not tired, really."
"Nonsense!" he said in fraternal kindness. "We'll manage!"

After she had left the office, Dr. Mayhew asked: "Who will you use in her place? Miss Ryan?"

Doctor Greeding hesitated. He had not considered this problem; but now he smiled in swift appreciation of the fact that luck once more had played his game. But he only said guardedly:

"I have some one in mind. Let it rest for now."

But when Doctor Mayhew was gone, he rang for his secretary. "Will you phone Miss Mary Ann Carlisle," he directed, and gave Professor Carlisle's name and address. "Ask her to come in and see me, if she can; say I may have some work for her."

An hour later, Miss Carlisle was announced. "Our meeting last night may have been fortunate for us both, Miss Carlisle," he said to her. "I don't know if my secretary told you why I wished to see you?" She shook her head, and he explained: "My surgical nurse, Miss Rimes, has been working too hard. I've given her a vacation, and that leaves us short-handed. Naturally, I thought of you. I believe you said you've had some experience in assisting?"

"Yes," she agreed. "I worked with Doctor Homans."
"His specialty was the brain, of course," Doctor Greeding commented, in no hurry, content to watch her, to go slowly. "My work is more general." He added: "However, a few days will give you the routine, I'm sure." And he smiled. "I'm proposing, you understand, that you come in and work with me."

She said: "I've been doing special nursing; but—I should be glad of a more steady income." She smiled faintly. "As you may imagine, with two rather improvident professors in the family—"

He chuckled. "Naturally." They discussed finances. "Then suppose we try it," he suggested. "If we are both satisfied, there is no reason why you should not stay on indefinitely. Even after Miss Rimes returns. You can alternate with her, and there are a lot of details outside the operating-room which you can divide between you."

She asked calmly: "Shall I start now? Or report in the morning?"
And thus swiftly the matter was arranged. Doctor Greeding drove home that afternoon in his usual easy mind. The tragedy of the day before, he began to dismiss as the coincidence it had appeared to be; he could ignore the formless, terrifying shapes that floated in the background of his thoughts.

So soon as he came home, he asked for Nancy.
"She's gone into the country with Dan," Mrs. Greeding explained. "To some little inn for dinner." She watched her husband doubtfully; but he said, in a disarming tone:

"I saw her for a moment last night when she came home. We had a little talk, Myra. Probably I was wrong to be—dogmatic, yesterday, to play the angry parent. Dan's all right, I expect." He hesitated, conscious of a faint confusion. "As a matter of fact," he said, smiling at his own thoughts, "I think better of the Carlises than I did yesterday. I even engaged Miss Carlisle to take Miss Rimes' place, this afternoon."

She stared at him, frank doubt in her eyes. "Ned, was that wise?" she wondered. "After all, while she may be a charming dinner partner—"

"Oh, I sha'n't keep her on unless she does her work," he said casually.
"She's entirely too attractive to be a nurse," Mrs. Greeding insisted.

"Mary Ann is one of these independent young women, perfectly sure of herself and of everything else; resentful of—conventions."

"You make her sound dangerously fascinating," he said, amused, and touched her arm affectionately. "You've always had the notion some siren would carry me away, Myra. In spite of the fact that none has ever even tried!"

She smiled at him. "Nonsense, Ned. You know I never worry about you, my dear!"
"You never need to," he assured her gently.

So Mrs. Greeding was silenced; but there was not long any doubt in Doctor Greeding's mind that Mary Ann was competent. She was like a second pair of hands. At the operating-table she anticipated his desires before they took shape in his mind. She watched his fingers and the progress of the operation; and when he was ready for knife, scissors, snaps, retractors, he found the desired implement in her hand, awaiting his grasp. He found the morning's work left him fresh and free from fatigue; he thought his own technique improved, and told her so.

"Miss Rimes was excellent," he said. "But—I shall be tempted to overwork you, even after her return. You must protect yourself against my impositions."
She smiled and said: "I never saw anyone whose work was at much of Nancy, for Dan had gone to Newfoundland to fish for salmon, and Nancy's time was free . . . Doctor and Mrs. Greeding kept open house every Sunday afternoon and evening; and any number of people were apt to drop in, casually, without forewarning. Jerrell took advantage of one of these occasions; and after supper he and Nancy disappeared together. When later they returned, Jerrell joined Doctor Greeding in the library.

They spoke at first of casual things; Jerrell said presently: "By the way, Nancy tells me she knows Dan Carlisle."

Doctor Greeding was instantly on guard. "You know him?" he asked.
"Only through his book," Jerrell said. "That is an able piece of work. A textbook not only for college classes, but for business men, and investors too."
The doctor smiled. "I haven't read it," he confessed, and turned the conversation into safer channels. "I suppose you're as busy as usual?"

"Just now, yes," Jerrell assented; and after a moment's hesitation, he explained: "I'm taking an interest in a new outfit, Associated Cottons. We're proposing to cover the field from plantation to retailer, in one way or another. Of course I'm not personally connected with the technical end; only with the financing. We issued the stock privately at ten, and then had it listed. It's around eighteen now."

He looked at the ash on the end of his cigar. "It's apt to sell off a bit this month and next," he said. "But we expect it to hit fifty by the first of October."

"Your profession has always interested me," Greeding assented in an indifferent tone, but he was not indifferent. If Jerrell said Cottons would hit fifty, it was likely to do so. He filed the information in his mind. "I never speculate, myself," he added, unnecessarily.

But despite his disclaimer, he telephoned next day an order to Paul Master, who handled his investments, to buy a block of Cottons . . .

Jerrell continued to see Nancy frequently; and Doctor Greeding, watching his daughter without seeming so to do, thought that she was faintly ill at ease in the older man's company. When Dan came back from Newfoundland and brought a fourteen-pound salmon to Nancy, Doctor Greeding proposed to Mrs. Greeding:

"Why not invite the Carlises over for dinner? We'll have the salmon!"
Mrs. Greeding said sensibly: "I expect Dan would rather have steak. After all, he must have eaten salmon in Newfoundland till he feels like one himself."

The doctor chuckled. "He won't care what he eats, as long as he can be with Nancy," he pointed out.
Mrs. Greeding suggested: "Mr. Jerrell has been here so much while Dan was away. I think Nancy has—enjoyed seeing him."

"Give Dan a chance to repair his fences then," Doctor Greeding retorted. He saw her surprise, and said with a chuckle: "I'm not taking sides, Myra. I'm for a fair fight and let the best man win. Dan's probably all right. If he's anything like his sister, he's an able young man. Mary Ann has done very well with me. She's much the best nurse I ever had."

"You mean that we should invite Mary Ann too?" she asked doubtfully.
"Of course," he assured her. "And Professor Carlisle. Make it a family party!"

Mrs. Greeding in the end, although with a clear reluctance, agreed. Professor Carlisle and Dan and Mary Ann would come to dinner on Tuesday night.

Doctor Greeding had heretofore, save on the occasion of their first meeting, seen Mary Ann only in street clothes, or in her nurse's uniform; but tonight he thought he saw her for the first time. Her gown itself he could not have described, knew only that it was a harmonious part of her. Yet she seemed to him so radiant that it required a conscious effort on his part to control his tones and make them no more than casual.

He took refuge in jocosity. "Dan," he announced, "we've a special treat for you tonight. A friend of ours sent Nancy a salmon, and we're having it for dinner!"
It requires not much encouragement to lead a fisherman to talk about fishing, and Dan was full of reminiscences of his trip. The dinner-table conversation was almost a monologue. When Mrs. Greeding rose at last, she said:

"Ned, I expect Professor Carlisle and Dan would like a liqueur, and to smoke their cigars here."

She and Mary Ann and Nancy went into the other room; but Doctor Greeding saw Dan's eyes follow them, and he said amiably:

"No need of you staying with us, Dan. I think Nancy has some design on you. Go along and see."

She and Mary Ann and Nancy went into the other room; but Doctor Greeding saw Dan's eyes follow them, and he said amiably:

"No need of you staying with us, Dan. I think Nancy has some design on you. Go along and see."

So Dan grinned, and he too disappeared. Doctor Greeding sat at one end of the table, the Professor at the other; for Professor Carlisle had filled the pipe which he preferred to a cigar, and the Doctor had no desire to come near the source of that scent so offensive to his nostrils.

For a little, nothing was said. Then Doctor Greeding remembered certain matters almost forgotten; and he said, making his tone casual:

"Professor, Mrs. Greeding tells me that you gave her, that evening at the Jordans', quite a lecture on poltergeists. She had so much to say about it that I came home and read up on the subject myself. Do you seriously think there is any truth in these tales?"

Professor Carlisle smiled faintly. "I should hardly expect you to accept them," he confessed.
Doctor Greeding chuckled. "But I'm not completely incredulous," he protested. "I had a friend once who confessed to some personal experiences of the sort."

Professor Carlisle looked at him with a new interest. He said, at hazard: "It has often seemed to me that an open-minded physician must observe in his practice many things not easily explained by any medical formula."

Doctor Greeding nodded. "That is true," he said. "I do remember occasions when things seemed to go unusually well, in the course of an operation; when my fingers were successful without my mind's being fully conscious of the sources of that success. For instance, there was a man with a crushed and lacerated arm, necessitating amputation; it was during my days at the City, on relief work. An artery tore loose and retracted into the upper arm. Ordinarily, this means a swift and extensive dissection in order to catch the end of the vessel and check the hemorrhage. I did it in a matter of seconds; and even now, I don't know just how it was done. The artery seemed almost to thrust itself into my reach."

He continued: "But I wasn't referring to any experience of my own. This friend of mine—" He hesitated guardedly. "Well, you know the old belief, Professor, that to be born under a caul was lucky. This chap was born under a caul; and I think he was always secretly a little proud of the fact, feeling that he was set apart from other men by that circumstance."

The Professor smiled. "He wasn't also, by any chance, the seventh son of a seventh son?" he suggested in ironic amusement.
Doctor Greeding chuckled. "No. An only child," he admitted; and he went on:

"We grew up on adjoining farms, and if there are poltergeists, I suspect that he was one. I remember that when he was a boy, if he was left alone in a room, something was apt to fall and break. Of course, he was always blamed, and punished. His father used to say he whipped this youngster not for breaking the thing in question, but for lying about it afterward."

Professor Carlisle commented: "Boys have lied before, and will again."

"I know," Doctor Greeding admitted stubbornly. "But this boy always denied, even to me, that he had done the things for which he was blamed. I remember once we were having, on a hot day in July; and they put us in the mow to stow the hay, and the hay caught fire. The barn, in fact, burned to the ground. Fortunately, it was a small hay-barn, across the road from the house, used only for storage, and the loss was not serious. But there again, he was blamed. They insisted that he had lighted a match, or done some other folly." He chuckled. "He bore the welts of that affair for days," he said; and he asked: "Isn't this the stuff poltergeists are made of?"

Pronghorn Not Antelope; Mixture of Three Others

The pronghorn is not a true antelope; rather a cross between a deer, a goat and a giraffe, with a few characteristics of each. Zoologists say the Rocky Mountain goat is more nearly a true antelope.

The pronghorn is one of the swiftest animals on foot, declares a writer in the Washington Star. He clears prodigious lengths at a bound, but is a better broad jumper than high jumper. It is said that a 4-foot fence will retain him.

On their native plains pronghorns rely upon fleetness and alertness to protect them from enemies. The warning signal for a pronghorn stampede is the flash of some wary leader's white tail.

The pronghorn shares this warning signal with the cotton-tail rabbit. Curiosity has cost the lives of many a pronghorn. The timid beasts will pause in full flight to examine an unexplained object.

Hunters often lure their within range by waving a rag on a stick while lying concealed in the grass.

Globe Trotter Buck Comes Home With Lots of Chit-Chat

WHAT you get for chit-chatting with that celebrated boxing writer and recently returned globe trotter, Axford Cleveland Buck:

Andy Niederriter and Lou Burston now in Europe, are attempting to interest Jeff Dickson in promoting boxing next summer at Ebbets Field. . . Dickson, rumor to the contrary, still hangs on at the Palais des Sports, Paris, where his next big fistic attraction will be the Marcel Thil-Lou Brouillard battle in January for the European version of the world's middleweight championship. . . Cleto Locatelli, the Italian welterweight, is now in Paris.

Andre Routs, former featherweight champion, has a cafe in Paris, not unlike Mickey Walker's, on a corner opposite the Palais des Sports. . . Georges Carpentier, the old Orchard Man, owns and operates a cocktail bar in the French capital. . . Boxing in Paris, as elsewhere, is suffering from a lack of talent.

According to Dickson, his old love, Sonja Henie will skate back to him in January. . . The two hockey teams, representing the Palais des Sports, have been transferred to London. . . Dickson was paying for the Canadian players in American dollars and the devaluation of the franc made it too expensive. . . Still they call it amateur hockey. . . His next venture will be in dog racing, a sport popular at both Wembley and Earl's Court, London.

Dickson quit promoting boxing in Albert Hall, London, because of the 1,800 free seat holders, who though earls and dukes, frequently let their tickets get in the hands of speculators. . . The specs, picking the free ducaus up for a song, then undersell the box office. Born in Mississippi, Dickson remains the most colorful promoter on the other side of the Atlantic. . . At the moment, Arthur J. Elvin of Wembley Pool is the most successful. . . Elvin is now negotiating for a world's flyweight championship battle between Benny Lynch, the English claimant, and Small Montana, the Filipino.

You can dine while watching the International Hockey League teams play at Wembley. . . The same is true when the dogs run, or when boxing is the attraction. . . Wrestling is popular now, both in London and Paris.

Schmeling to Visit U. S. After Christmas Holidays

According to Fred Kirsch boxing will boom in Germany. . . Max Schmeling leaves after the Christmas holidays for the United States. . . Arthur Rothenburg, promoter of the Schmeling - Steve Hamas bout at Hamburg, now controls Deutschland Hall in Berlin. . . It has a seating capacity of 18,000. Arthur Buelow, Schmeling's former manager, has another heavyweight in Leo Marohn and still another in Heinz Sendel, an eighteen-year-old youth. . . Runge, the Olympic heavyweight champion, will soon turn professional. . . Another likely looking heavyweight prospect in the Fatherland is Josht, winner of his first two professional starts by knockouts.

Max Schmeling

Gustav Eder may make a second invasion of the United States in the near future. . . Hans Katter, a welterweight, is regarded as the most promising fighter in Germany. . . Now that the Olympic games are over Herr Hitler is permitting German amateurs to turn professional. London has the coronation next summer and Paris is building for the World Fair, to be held in '37. . . England learns of Mrs. Simpson from America, via the short wave. . . British papers carry nothing on King Edward's romance.

Paul Gallico, now residing in Devonshire, is writing a book entitled, "Farewell to Sports." . . He will visit the United States before Christmas. . . The first four bouts staged at a Sunday afternoon show at the Ring Arena, London, resulted in claims of foul. . . Two of the four claims were allowed.

When Lou Burston returns he will bring over an English middleweight named Frank Hough. . . Sid Hulls, promoting at Earl's Court, has Max Baer signed, but isn't sure the former heavyweight champion will appear in London as per agreement.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

Jimmy Johnston, the Garden boxing promoter who returned from abroad, brought along an English bulldog for Jimmy Walker. . . Maybe it's because he has the most time, but John Sloan seems the most enthusiastic of all racing commissioners. He's giving Bowie his very best personal attention right now. . . Gossip persists that Buck O'Neill, the very wealthy insurance man, will again take over Syracuse's football troubles with Jack McBride, the pro star, doing the heavy coaching. . . Vic Hanson, the rumor-mongers say, will succeed Wilder Tasker at Rutgers. . . Claire Shillington and Eddie O'Keefe, members of last year's hockey Rovers, were left on the dock when the English team they had planned to join canceled transportation because of faulty amateur registration.

Chick Meehan has done such a grand football coaching job that Manhattan, with a small student body and only 1,600 living alumni, now draws crowds of 20,000 on Saturdays. . . Jockey Sammy Renick is an accomplished singer. The reason you do not hear him more often is that when band leaders try to hook him up as a guest star he counters with the suggestion that they lay some velvet on the line.

Sidat Singh, New York-reared Hindu now a soph at Syracuse, will be one of the stars of the great basketball team which will perform at the university this season. . . Cappy Wells, who made West Point one of the nation's most popular football teams, is assisting the Sixteenth Infantry and the First Engineers in letting the public know about the game they will play at Ebbets Field on November 29. This means the game will be a high class one and deserves to be a sellout.

McLarnin Gave Ambers a Lesson in Boxing

Lou Ambers, the current king of the 135-pounders, went the way of most of his class recently. Over-matched and conceding McLarnin eight pounds in weight as well as years of experience and a tremendous punching advantage the game little fighter from Herkimer, N. Y., took as decisive a beating in the Madison Square Garden ring as the former lightweight champion, Tony Canzoneri, did a few months ago. Boxing Commissioner Brown is quoted as boasting that he engineered that fine-feathered bit of Hitlerianism which forced the well-beaten Jannazzo into a bout with Barney Ross. He is also quoted as demanding "and so, what about it?" One answer is that Mr. Brown should consider his own case and then fire himself on the grounds of incompetence.

Jimmy McLarnin

One reason why Boston College is returning to the high football estate of the days of Major Cavanaugh is that Gil Dobie is one of the nation's five best coaches. Another reason is that 25 B. C. alumni are coaching New England prep and high schools. . . Brooklyn apparently does better with the ponies than with its baseball palookas. In proof look at the eminent trainers, Hirsch Jacobs and Fred Kraft, and then recall Walter Miller, who still holds the record for the most winners booted home in a season. . . Joe Taylor, who once trained Jack Dempsey, now has taken up with another winner, having joined the circulation department of a New York paper. . . Emile Diot, who should be one of the best lap stealers in the six-day bike races, probably distresses his male parent every time he nabs one. The elder Diot is Paris Chief of Detectives.

National Hockey League directors, for the most part, were willing to be patient with Bill Dwyer. But he wanted the league to put another pot of money into his Americans and thus caused the big blowoff. Or, at least, that is what the N. H. L. directors are saying now that their untidy tempest has subsided. . . It is estimated that a cool two million skins (Francis Albertanti, the A. B. C. publicist, probably means dollars) will be spent during the American Bowling Congress to be held in New York from March 11 to April 19. . . Preston and Selby Burch, the Washington horsemen who wind up winning half of the races at Bowie each year, are the most famous of the turf's brother acts. Both of them, incidentally, are international figures, having trained abroad during the dark, reform-wave years when New York outlawed racing and the sport was dead in Maryland and Kentucky.

Treasurer Jack Mackie of the Professional Golfers association has no worries about funds with which to send the 1937 Ryder cup team to England next June, since $9,123 has been allocated for this purpose. . . The P. G. A. has $130,000 in banks in various funds. . . Pitcher Charles Gale Wolfe, purchased by the White Sox from Omaha, is a nephew of Clarence Mitchell, former National league spitballer. . . Wolfe, whose home is in Cowles, Neb., has had only one season of professional experience. . . Coe college of Cedar Rapids, Ia., has had only five coaches in forty-five years of football. . . Dr. George W. Bryant, now executive vice president of the college, and Moray L. Eby, present gridiron chief, account for thirty-three years of coaching.

Time for Christmas Dollies

Christmas Eve in the Market Place

By Louise Abney in Christian Advocate

Southern smilax, holly wreaths, Sprigs of mistletoe . . . Everywhere the falling flakes Of starry Christmas snow; Throngs of harried shoppers, Children's eyes aglow, Reminiscent of a Light That shone—long ago.

Vendors in the market place Bid you come and buy . . . There was once a Gift that came, Priceless, from the sky!

A Manly Christmas Husband

By Gertrude H. Walton

"A BORESOME holiday! If only I had invited Fred to come here with me," Manly jerked his hat from a rack when Julia, his sister, rushed into the hall.

"Manly, please come with me tonight to the dinner party at Judge Thompson's. Horace has just telephoned he can not get here until too late. Roads blocked with snow and cars because of the blizzard yesterday. Our first big spread in this burg. We're so new and this is our first opportunity to meet many prominent citizens of Palas City. Judge Thompson's dinners are annual affairs and he gives special invitations to newcomers of the city."

"I don't care much about the party. But so much in the papers about the Willis Graham's family who will be at the Judge's. Graham is the big shot who made millions from his washing machine patents. He's sort of a god in these parts. He has no son—but some daughters. Maybe, when I'm through college old Graham might remember a Manly boy, for an engineer or in his office." Manly, after assuring his sister, Mrs. Horace Linn, that he would accompany her, mused on his way down to the city.

Manly's parents had gone South for the winter and Julia had urged her brother to spend the holidays with them because she and Horace would be a bit lonely since recently settling in the thriving factory municipality of Palas City. At first Manly reasoned that Horace and Julia wouldn't enjoy his peddling around, since they were newly-weds, and thought to decline the urgent invitation. But remembering the loneliness of a home, without parents, he found himself in his sister's comfortable home, for at least two weeks "en-duration" as he thought.

In evening clothes Manly was nearest satisfied with himself as being "well groomed," than in any other attire. Somehow, the black dinner coat, light vest, brilliant studs in the spotless shirt front, illuminated the sparkle of his brown eyes and enhanced the manliness of his form. Upon arriving at the ancestral estate of Judge Thompson, Manly was bewildered when the Judge, with unusual ceremony, introduced them as "Mr. and Mrs. Horace Linn, new residents of Palas City!"

"Sh! They think you are my husband. Don't make them any wiser. Horace and I are strangers, you know, here," Julia motioned.

Not knowing whether Julia had planned to pass her brother off as her husband, or whether it was a surprise to Julia, as well as to himself, Manly played "husbandly faithful" beside Julia. But it seemed that every place Manly stood or sat, Patricia, one of the Graham daughters, was near, kindly gracious, but aloof. When he asked her to dance she quickly assented, as though she feared he might never ask for another dance. "She thinks I am married. Huh! A Manly Christmas husband, indeed! Dum it all! Why did Julia get me into this jam? She will have to un-jam me," he snorted to himself.

Julia seemed satisfied with the evening's pleasures. But Manly felt for the first time, that his sister was selfish.

"Of course," he reasoned, "sister doesn't suspect that I wanted more dances with Patricia, and a chat on the mezzanine in one of those brilliantly Christmas decorated booths up there. If Julia suspected such a thing, she is clever at hiding it."

The next morning's mail brought Manly an invitation to a party at Willis Graham's for the Graham daughters!

"How do they know my name is not Horace Linn and that I am not the husband of my sister?" Manly asked, almost provoked at the smile on the face of his sister who was at that moment darning her brother's hose.

"Of course, you'll go. A secret! No, not a secret any longer because the secret has been long enough," she teased. "I whispered to Patricia, at the party, that you were my brother and to introduce you to others of the younger groups, and to Mr. Graham. She, however, promised secrecy to all but Mr. Graham. Since she did not introduce you to others, not even to her father, I believe she enjoyed the brother-husband affair and planned a party to reveal the secret to her father and guests. No, her interest in you began before I told her you were not my husband. She was raving about my husband's eyes, and hair, and form, and clothes and—"

"Huh, jealousy, more than kindness for your brother prompted you to tell the truth," Manly teased. "You made a Manly Christmas husband, anyway. I'm sure Patricia would agree with me," Julia answered.

After the party at Patricia's, the Christmas holiday failed to be bothersome. For with Patricia's pep, and promises, Manly looked forward to the days after college, of becoming a Manly husband, in truth.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for December 13 JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:4-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not; I am the first and the last; . . . behold, I am alive for evermore. Revelation 1:17, 18. PRIMARY TOPIC—When John Saw Jesus Again. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jerusalem, the Golden. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Listening to the Ever-Living Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Living Christ Among the Churches.

The first chapter of the Revelation, while it is an introduction to the entire book, is worthy of study by itself as a glorious revealing of Jesus Christ, his person and work. Some will wish to use the chapter as a preface to the study of the solemn and instructive messages to the seven churches of Asia which are found in chapters 2 and 3; but for most schools it will be better to concentrate on the messages of the chapter itself.

I. His Person.

While many of the characteristics of the Son of God are here presented, two are particularly emphasized. 1. His eternity (vv. 8, 11, 17). In a world which understands but little of the meaning of its past, which lives in a badly befuddled present, and admittedly knows nothing of the future, it is a source of the deepest satisfaction and peace of heart to know and serve the One who "is and was and which is to come, the Almighty." He already "was in the beginning," and is to be through all eternity.

2. His glory (vv. 5, 13-16). Jesus Christ is presented in verse 5 as "the faithful witness and first begotten of the dead," who is the ruler "over all the kings of the earth." The followers of Christ have a glorious captain and leader. The kingdoms of all the earth are his by right. Some day he will rule in fact and in person.

The infinitely beautiful description of our Lord in verses 13 to 16 is almost beyond interpretation. Have you seen him in his majesty and glory? The one who is "in the Spirit on the Lord's Day" can still see "him who is invisible" (Heb. 11:27).

II. His Work.

1. His victory (v. 18). He died for our sins but "was raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). We have not a dead, but a living Saviour. He has "the keys of death and hell." The one who follows a human leader parts with him at the grave. But he who follows Christ does not lose him when he passes over into the next world, for he is there, and he has the keys of all authority, not only in this world but also in that which is to come.

2. His love (v. 5). How deep and rich was his love toward us. It sent him to the cross.

3. His redemption (v. 5). He "washed us from our sins in his own blood." We read in Hebrews 9:22 that "without the shedding of blood there is no remission." The cults and creeds which deny or ignore the need of cleansing in the blood of Jesus Christ may be religious but they are not Christian.

4. His fellowship (v. 13). The candlesticks are churches and the stars are God's messengers. They are not alone in the world; he is "in the midst." Do we recognize his presence?

5. His return (v. 7). "Behold, he cometh with clouds." How can anyone read the New Testament and fail to see, and to teach and to preach the Lord's return?

He is coming again. What is our duty in the light of his coming? a. To live lives of purity and Christian nobility. (Read I John 3:3, and compare vv. 1 and 2.) b. To be diligent in sacrificial service. "Occupy till I come" (Luke 19:13) is the command of the one who "went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return" (Luke 19:11).

Love of Nature

The presence of the love of Nature is an invariable sign of goodness of heart and justness of moral perception, though by no means of moral practice. When it is originally absent from any mind, that mind is in many respects hard, worldly, and degraded.—Ruskin.

A Wife

There is one name which I can never utter without a reverence due to the religion which binds earth to heaven—a name cheered, beautiful, exalted and hallowed—and that is the name of wife.—Bulwer.

Pride and Humility

Pride is not the heritage of man; humility should dwell with frailty, and atone for ignorance, error, and imperfection.—Sydney Smith.

Great Duties

Great trials seem to be a necessary preparation for great duties.—E. Thomson.

Ability and Opportunity

Where there exists honest ability there exists also real opportunity.—G. C. Golden.

Several Standby Designs

SEWING CIRCLE fans will get a "lift" out of this week's selection of dapper designs for home sewing. It's not a bit too early to be anticipating your first-of-the-year requirements and each frock here presented is a veritable winner in its individual class.

The cleverly cut slip, Pattern 1909, consists of just six simple pieces including the shoulder strap and offers a choice of straps or a built up shoulder. With a combination of best ease and a fitted waist, this number will prove a popular favorite in silk crepe, crepe de chine, pongee, or taffeta. Available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 16 requires 2 3/4 yards of 39 inch material.

The slick princess frock, Pattern 1993, has everything it takes for success and requires just seven pieces for the pattern. Princess frocks are always tops for home sewing. Sleeves are gay and youthful, the pockets trig and tricky. Your selection of fabrics is almost as long as the counter!—wool crepe, flannel, broadcloth, velveteen, silk crepe, satin, taffeta, linen, rough weaves, or cotton. Send today for Pattern 1993 designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42. Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yds. of 54 inch or 5 1/2 yds. of 39 inch fabric.

The charming morning frock for matrons, Pattern 1841, speaks for itself. A one-piece model, five pieces to the pattern, it too offers a choice of long or short sleeves and slides through your machine in a jiffy. This delightful pattern is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 36, with short sleeves, requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material—percale, rayon, poplin, gingham, tub silk, or seersucker.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"Our Nicest Gift!"

Aladdin Light
Prolongs Christmas Spirit
As a gift for or within the farm family, nothing could be more helpful or healthful than an Aladdin. It will please every member of the family: Mother, because it's beautiful, cheerful, and comfortable—makes her work easier. Sons and Daughters, because it makes their school work easier—better grades. And Dad, because of reading comfort to himself and the joy it brings to others. It's one of few gifts all can share, all can enjoy to the fullest.
And you city folks—if you have farm folks—farm friends—Aladdin is a gift they'll appreciate for years.
Aladdin Gives You All This!
Aladdin Mantle Lamps use common kerosene (coal-oil). Burn 50 hours on a single gallon. Because it uses 94% air and only 6% oil, it is vastly more economical than old-fashioned yellow-flame lamps. Pays for itself quickly on oil saved. Safe—a child can operate it. No pressure—no noise—no odor—no smoke.

Yoga's Presumed Power
The meaning of the word yoga, in Sanskrit, is concentration. The essence of this school of philosophy is meditation. Theoretically, at least, its devotees can acquire even in this world entire command over elementary matter by certain ascetic practices.
