$1,600 NEEDED TO COMPLETE SEWER SYSTEM

City Has Constructed 19,151 Feet of Sewer During Past Three Years

The people of Tawas City will vote next Tuesday on the extension of the Sanitary Sewer System. The extensions and improvements will cost the city $12,600.00. This amount will be augmented by material and labor furnished by the government. The money will be expended in the first and third wards where the present system has only been partially laid. The second ward has a complete system of mains.

A complete sewer system and the water works will make Tawas City a modern town, comparable to any of its size in the state. These two things will make Tawas City a desirable place for those who wish modern homes and will encourage a betterment in our industrial conditions. It will help to bring in industries that will increase the employment of men.

Mayor John A. Brugger, in summing up what has been accomplished in constructing the sanitary sewer system during the past three years, said Thursday, "Since December, 1933, there has been constructed 19,151 lineal feet of sanitary sewers, together with a sewage pumping station and sewage disposal plant. The total cost was approximately $99,000.00, of which amount the city has supplied approximately $23,500.00, or about 24 per cent of the total cost.

"The $25,500.00 includes money derived from the sale of bonds amounting to $12,600.00 which was authorized in 1934 to be used for the purchase of materials and equipment for the pumping station and disposal plant.

"The cost of sewers to date, exclusive of the cost of the pumping station, disposal plant and force mains is approximately $65,000.00. The city's share has been about $13,000.00. It is estimated, assuming that we can continue with the WPA as we have during the past year and the city's share is not increased, that it will be possible to complete the contemplated sewer program. This includes that portion in the west section of the city and a lift station at the disposal plant for the same, and a system of mains in the first ward. I believe this proposal should receive the unqualified approval of the voters at the election next Tuesday."

Mrs. Della Huntley

Later they bought and occupied a home on the Plank road, where for many years they were among the most progressive farmers of the community. In 1908 they retired and purchased a home at Owosso where Mr. and Mrs. Case died in 1913 and 1918 respectively.

Road Men Hold Meet Monday at Standish

On Monday, the road commissioners and engineers of the ten counties comprising the 28th Senatorial District met at Standish at the Summer Trails Inn. The meeting was called through the co-operation of Senator Miles M. Callaghan and county officials for the purpose of presenting and studying the difficulties that these counties are encountering in highway improvement and snow removal that the public is demanding for which funds are not now available.

Road officials stated that the Holbeck-McNitt law made no provision and did not contemplate snow removal. Funds were provided only for maintenance comparable to what the townships had been doing.

In many cases the elimination of the little country schools has brought about a demand for bus route improvement and snow removal. In general the public expects service and improvement on the side roads comparable to the state trunk line service, with only a small fraction of the funds required for such service.

The main purpose of the meeting was to familiarize the senator and representatives of the district with the needs and demands of the people.

Robert Wilson

Robert Wilson was born at Bella Mania, Ireland, on August 14, 1862, and passed away at his residence on the Hemlock road, December 27, 1936, at the age of 74 years, four months and 16 days.

He was united in marriage June 2, 1900, to Margaretta Shellenbarger. To this union were born two children, Alfred Bird, who preceded him in death 16 years ago, and Augusta Rose, Mrs. Albert Gardner of Hale, who, with the widow, survive him. He is also survived by two grandchildren, other relatives and a host of friends.

We think he could say with Tenyson—

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me?
And may there be no moaning
of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep,
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark,
And may there be no sadness
Of farewell, when I embark;

For tho' from out our bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Will Hold Health Meet At Whittemore Jan. 12

The Child Health Committee will meet at the Whittemore school, Tuesday, January 12. All women of the county are invited. It has been arranged with the State Department of Health to have one of our state physicians speak to the group on communicable diseases. As this is a very fine opportunity for all of us to learn more about protection against such epidemic illnesses as whooping cough, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria, the mothers and teachers of the county are most urgently and cordially invited to this meeting.

The meeting held at East Tawas on December 8 was very enjoyable. It was decided that Mrs. McKay act as a committee of one to arrange with the Department of Health for a series of lectures to be given on medical and health subjects. This series consists of eight lectures and is to be given by a woman physician.

The lectures will be given at various places in the county, including Alabaster, Oscoda, Hale, Whittemore and Tawas City or East Tawas. There will be further discussion of this matter at the next meeting.

A talk by Dr. Sue Thompson on "The Pre-School Child" followed the business session. Children of the grade school entertained with several songs, after which tea and cakes were served by the East Tawas ladies. Suitable clothing for the pre-school child was displayed and discussed by Miss Klumb.

If you have not attended any of the child health meetings this year you are welcome to attend those in the future.

Mrs. Harriet Leslie, highly esteemed resident of this city, died suddenly Friday morning, December 31, at the home of her son, James Leslie, after a short illness. She was 74 years old.

Harriet Golding was born February 11, 1863, in Pennsylvania, and was married to Thomas G. Leslie, of Peter, Ontario, on September 21, 1881. They moved to Sanilac county, Michigan in 1884 and ten years later to Whittemore. Mr. Leslie passed away in 1907 at Whittemore.

Typhoid Inoculations Will be Given January 8

Dr. Sue Thompson, of the Health Department, will give inoculations against typhoid fever at the East Tawas public schools on Friday, January 8, from 10:30 to 12:00 a. m. Three treatments administered at weekly intervals, will protect an individual against typhoid fever for three years. Future clinic dates for the remaining inoculations will be announced during the first clinic. School children must have consent cards signed by parent or guardian before the inoculation will be given. These will be distributed in the schools January 5.

Those who are able to pay for inoculations are to see their family physician. Only indigent children and adults will be given inoculations at this clinic.

"A study of the history of typhoid offers one of the best arguments of the work of public health in the land," says Dr. Sue H. Thompson, acting director of District Health Unit No. 2. "Where would we be today in our large cities were it not for the constant efforts of the health officers and sanitarians to keep water and milk supplies free from the dreaded typhoid bacillus."

"In 1911 the epidemic of typhoid fever which occurred in Yakima county, Washington, was devastating indeed. When Dr. L. L. Lumsden of the United States Public Health Service studied this epidemic he recommended to the county authorities that the best method for prevention of repetition of such a disaster would be the organization of a county health department, supported by county funds, with a full time physician in charge. This recommendation was followed."

"Born to Dance" at Family Theatre, January 3, 4 and 5

"Born to Dance," the attraction at the Family Theatre on January 3, 4 and 5, is the season's most lavish potpourri of music and dancing. The new musical extravaganza presents the dynamic Eleanor Powell as a star and just about runs the entire gamut of rhythm.

Miss Powell, whose versatility and appealing personality won her stardom in a single picture, "Broadway Melody of 1936," introduces fourteen varieties of dance steps. In one number she does a medley of six different types of dancing in as many minutes. She even leads a 75-piece band with taps and makes her twinkling toes compete with the drummer's most expert rolls and beats.

A toposh song and dance supporting cast features James Stewart, Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, Frances Langford, Raymond Walburn, Alan Dinehart and Buddy Ebsen.

Cuban Congress Ousts President Gomez—Another Archbishop Attacks Edward, Duke of Windsor—Treasury Plan to Curb Credit Inflation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MIGUEL MARIANO GOMEZ, president of Cuba, was on his way out because he defied Col. Fulgencio Batista, the real ruler of the republic, by vetoing the sugar tax bill to raise funds for the building of schools that would be conducted by army officers. Despite plenty of warnings, Gomez persisted in his opposition to the measure which, he said, would lead to fascism. So the house of representatives, dominated by Batista, impeached him and he went to trial before the senate with the certainty that the decision would be against him. He was accused of attempting to coerce the congress unconstitutionally to defeat the tax bill, and of mal-administration. It was the first bill of impeachment ever voted in the history of the Cuban republic.

Gomez defended himself vigorously but was resigned to his fate. The prosecution was conducted by three members of the house—Carlos Palma, veteran Republican leader; Eduardo Martinez Fraga, Nationalist, and Felipe Jay, Democrat.

Vice President Federico Laredo Bru was ready to succeed Gomez automatically. He is a lawyer, sixty-one years old and was a colonel in the Cuban war of independence.

ARCHBISHOPS of the Church of England just can't let the duke of Windsor and his love affair alone. The Most Rev. Dr. William Temple, archbishop of York and second only to the archbishop of Canterbury, took his turn in lambasting the abdicated king, in a Christmas diocesan letter that displayed little of the Christian spirit. Said the archbishop:

"It has happened to many a man before now to find himself beginning to fall in love with another man's wife. That is a moment of critical decision and the right decision is that they should cease to meet because the passion is so developed as to create an agonizing conflict between love and duty.

"This decision often has been taken by men of honor. And when the power of personal attraction is reinforced by the glamor of the throne the moral obligation is the more urgent for that reason.

"Let us remember that any kind of love which can be in conflict with duty is not the love of which the gospel speaks."

The British press and a great many of the English people are disgusted with these repeated attacks on Edward by the prelates and there is a growing danger of a split in the Church of England.

Dispatches from Edward's haven in Enzesfeld, Austria, say that he is planning to make Mrs. Simpson the duchess of Windsor in May next, immediately after her divorce becomes absolute. Meanwhile he probably will remain at the castle of Baron Eugene de Rothschild without seeing Mrs. Simpson.

There were reports that the duke might take legal action against the archbishop of York, presumably for slander.

SIMEON D. FESS, former senator from Ohio and for years a leader in the "Old Guard" of the Republican party, died suddenly in the Carlton hotel, Washington. He had been in retirement from national politics since 1932 when he was defeated for re-election to the senate.

ACCORDING to a decision of the United States court of appeals in New Orleans, the national labor relations board has authority to compel employers to bargain collectively with their employees. The tribunal upheld the board's cease and desist orders against Agwilines, Inc., which operates the Clyde Mallory Steamship lines, in connection with the dismissal of seven employees for alleged union action.

THE Supreme Court having upheld, in the Chaco arms embargo case, the neutrality powers of the President, Mr. Roosevelt let it be known that he would ask congress to revise the present neutrality law to give him broader discretion in his relations with foreign governments. In other words, the "teeth" which he and the State department have always thought the statute lacked. Just what the President would ask was not told to the press, but there were indications that he wants authority to:

1. Declare an arms embargo "upon the outbreak or during progress of" a war, and forbid the passage of American citizens or transport of American goods on belligerent ships, except at the traveler's or shipper's own risk.
2. Determine the actual volume to which commodity shipments would be limited and enumerate the items becoming contraband beyond those limits.

Government officials looked upon the Supreme Court's decision as the most sweeping approval of a New Deal law the tribunal has yet given. They read in it an inferential approval of the reciprocal trade treaty program, still untested, and a broader inference that the President should be given more latitude in negotiations of all kinds with foreign governments.

DELEGATES to the inter-American peace conference in Buenos Aires signed the 69 accords approved during the sessions and the conference came to an end. Farewell congratulatory speeches were made by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Argentine Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas and the head of the Peruvian delegation, Carlos Concha. They all urged that the peace efforts be continued in the next Pan-American conference, which will be held in Lima, Peru, in 1938.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MORGENTHAU and Chairman Marriner Eccles of the federal reserve board announced a new program for curbing credit inflation, and it is likely to involve $1,000,000,000 of borrowings in 1937.

About a billion dollars worth of gold is flowing into the country annually, and if this continues next year, it was said by officials, the treasury will take that amount out of the money market, to offset the effects of the gold influx on domestic credit.

The plan, which probably was devised by Mr. Eccles, is intended to hold the excess reserves, which are the reserves that member banks deposit with the federal reserve system in excess of legal requirements, on the same plateau where they are now. Previously gold flowing into the country was channeled up as excess reserves upon which an inflationary credit boom could be built.

THREE new indictments against major oil companies, oil trade publications and individuals were returned by a federal grand jury in Madison, Wis., in order to avoid delay in the trial of the anti-trust cases. With few changes the new true bills are similar to those returned previously by the 1935 grand jury and contested as invalid on grounds that the grand jury was illegally impeached.

It is understood that the government plans to bring the cases to trial in March.

UNDER the general leadership of John L. Lewis the war for unionizing the steel industry and destroying the company unions is now under way. Some 250 company union representatives from the Pittsburgh, the Cleveland - Youngstown and the eastern districts met in Pittsburgh and were told by Philip Murray, chief aide of Lewis and chairman of the committee for industrial union, that a strike in the $5,000,000,000 industry might result "if the industry continues to employ its dog-in-the-manger attitude," in dealing with trade unions.

Thereupon the delegates adopted resolutions unanimously condemning the company union plan as a "farce," and establishing a new organization called the "CIO representatives council," with this "declaration of principles":

1. All steel workers be organized into a national industrial union.
2. Employee representatives use their influence to enroll the steel workers into the steel workers organizing committee's campaign.
3. All steel workers be thoroughly informed by employee representatives who know from experience that the company union is a device of the management and totally unable to win any major concessions for the steel workers.
4. CIO employee representatives remain inside the company union for reasons obvious to all.

The wage demands are:
A $1.24 a day increase for all employees receiving over $5 a day.
A 30 hour, five day week.
Paid vacations of one week for employees of two years' service and two weeks for employees of five or more years' service.
Time and one-half pay for overtime within the regular working week.
Double time for Sundays and holidays.

HOPE for the recovery of Pope Pius dwindled day by day. He suffered a fainting spell and was reported to be exceedingly weak. His illness was complicated by high fever and there was danger of influenza. Senator Nicola Pandolfi of Rome, widely known as a specialist on the ills of old age, was summoned by Dr. Amanti Milani, and both agreed that the pontiff must have complete rest. His visitors were limited to the ten cardinals who are prefects of executive bodies of the church and they were permitted to enter the sick room only one each day to obtain the pope's authorization for their most important decisions. The customary Christmas eve audience for cardinals and diplomats was canceled, and the pope also had to abandon his plan to celebrate mass on the 57th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK not being released by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang within the specified time, the Nanking troops moved against the Sianfu rebels. Two of the mutinous battalions were captured and disarmed at Hui-shien. It appeared that Marshal Chang really was reduced to negotiating for his own life and safety, and there were reports that he was willing to surrender the dictator and quit the country, as has many a rebellious Chinese war lord before him. T. V. Soong, who is Chiang's brother-in-law, went to Sianfu to attempt to arrange for Chiang's release. American and British governments were concerned over the safety of their nationals in Sianfu if that city should be besieged by the National Army. There would certainly be a distressing shortage of food and fuel, and to this would be added the dangers of probable bombardment by artillery and airplanes. Discipline among the mutinous troops is known to be very poor and already there have been many instances of murder and looting.

Japanese military authorities charge that Marshal Chang's revolt was part of a deliberate plan to line up western powers, including soviet Russia, against Japan. The Chinese ambassador to Tokio was told by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita that the Chinese government would not be permitted to enter into any accord that would make it appear that it favored war against Japan. Arita made it plain that Japan would abandon its waiting policy if Nanking compromised with Marshal Chang.

BARON NUFFIELD, one of England's wealthiest industrialists and a generous contributor to philanthropic causes, has just donated $10,000,000 "to stimulate employment in Great Britain's poverty stricken depressed areas." Four trustees are given full discretion in use of the sum. Baron Nuffield, who is Sir William Morris, is head of a vast manufacturing organization including automobile plants, except those already wearing tags from tuberculosis and Bang's disease tests is to be given a tag bearing a number which will be recorded in the bureau of dairying in Washington.

EARTHQUAKE shocks accompanied by volcanic eruptions devastated large areas in central Salvador, killing more than a thousand persons and injuring about four hundred. San Vicente, a city of 26,000, was the center of the temblors, and it was reported to be practically destroyed. Several thousand persons there were participating in a religious procession when the first quake came, and many of them were crushed under falling walls. Other towns in the stricken region were wrecked. Roads from the capital were broken up and communications were destroyed, so that accurate information was slow in coming out.

All of the towns affected by the quake are in the vicinity of the San Vicente volcano. The area, important in manufacturing and agriculture, is in the rich tobacco and indigo-growing region.

PETER NORBECK, United States senator from South Dakota since 1920, died at his home in Redfield, S. D., at the age of sixty-six after a long illness from heart disease and cancer of the tongue and jaw. Norbeck, a Republican with radical tendencies, entered politics in 1908 as a member of the state senate. Later he was lieutenant governor and then was elected to the United States senate. In that body he was an insistent advocate of agricultural relief measures.

Norbeck's death reduced to 16 the number of Republicans in the senate, but if the selection of his successor is left to the Republican governor-elect, there would be again 17.

SENTIMENT in favor of legislation to lessen the powers of the Supreme court is growing weaker in Washington because the President seems to be opposed to it, at least for the present. But Senator Hugo Black of Alabama has announced that he will introduce a bill designed to strip the lower courts of their injunctive powers. The measure would prohibit lower courts from enjoining the operation of laws of congress and require them to forward all records and complete transcripts to the Supreme court within 30 days after an appeal.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Hastings—Barry County has accepted a 210-acre tract along the scenic Thornapple River, east of Hastings, as a public recreation grounds. The land includes the historic site known for 100 years as Indian Landing.

Mason—A gravel pit cavein killed Harold Shattuck, 32, of Mason and partly buried two of his fellow workers. A rescue crew saved the lives of the two other men, but failed to uncover Shattuck, whose head was buried under four feet of gravel, before he smothered.

Manistee—The local detachment of state troopers has moved the local post's equipment into its new $17,000 barracks on U. S. 31 near the northern city limits. From the spacious, steam heated garage to the individual rooms of the troopers the fireproof brick building is modern in every respect.

Lansing — Sale of Diesel motor horsepower in the nation jumped about 60 per cent in 1936 as compared with 1935, but Michigan's motor fuel tax collections showed a far greater increase, proportionately. The secretary of state points to the $10,542.66 collected in 1935 on Diesel motor fuel, as contrasted with $18,991.77 collected in the first 10 months of 1936.

Holland—Holland's finest mansion is occupied by a group of young men, many of whom are working their way through Hope College and who pay but $1.50 a week for rent. This fall the Beach mansion with its seven bathrooms, large sun parlor and many bedrooms was offered for rent with no takers. The 23 members of the Emersonian Fraternity heard of it and moved in.

Brown City—Baldy is the kind of a horse that is afraid to go to sleep with the light out. His owner, a farmer living near Brown City, noticed the lights go on in the barn one night, apparently with no one around. On the third night the mystified farmer discovered that Baldy, the sissy, pushed the switch on with his nose. Now Baldy is kept tied in the manger, and the barn stays dark.

Holland—Salvaging the cargo of the stranded Burlington is under way. The salvage workers are operating one steam tug, one tug and two scows. The workers also will endeavor to salvage the ship. A new winter record was established at the Holland State park when more than 10,000 persons visited the park to watch the salvaging of the pig iron cargo. The iron is taken from the hold with cranes and placed on scows.

East Lansing—Every cow in dairy herd improvement association work has an ear tag or soon will have one. It is just part of the United States bureau of dairy industry's program identifying superior blood lines of dairy cattle. Every animal in testing work, except those already wearing tags from tuberculosis and Bang's disease tests is to be given a tag bearing a number which will be recorded in the bureau of dairying in Washington.

Kalamazoo—A cash gift of $18,000 from a person interested in child welfare has been made to the Board of Education here. The money will provide the contribution from the city's schools necessary to make possible the proposed construction of a special education building at the Harding School. It will house the orthopedic department and other special education divisions including open-air, oral, deaf and sight conservation departments.

Harbor Springs—A project continuing the Harbor Springs water front development has been approved by the city council, which has allotted $7,500 to supplement a WPA grant of $8,500. The money is to be used in a general cleanup and improvement of all city-owned frontage, erection of tennis court backstops, improvement of the municipal dock, construction of three small yacht docks and building of a bulk head 50 feet beyond the present water line.

Battle Creek—Camp Custer, historic war cantonment, will become the model training camp for the Sixth Corps Area, according to present plans. Repairing and modernizing the hastily constructed mobilization center is in progress. It was understood that the War Department would erect structures not included in the original plan, under which a large part of the 8,304-acre tract will be improved. Kalamazoo and Calhoun County Relief laborers will carry out the work.

Mason—A hog contributed a bladder and the local grocer two cigar boxes to bring the first telephone to Mason, if not to the state, in the spring of 1878. J. C. Squires and C. G. Huntington read of telephones and decided to experiment. The cigar boxes, one in each home about 15 rods apart, were covered with skin from the bladder. Waxed threads were then stretched between the houses to the skin diaphragms. Conversations were carried on easily until the low-hanging telephone line was broken.

Utica—The Village of Utica has decided to become a city. By the narrow margin of eight votes, 180 to 172, residents favored incorporation as a city. According to the 1930 Federal census, Utica had a population of 873.

Buchanan—Richard Schwartz, of Buchanan, one of Michigan's two breeders of Dutch Belted cattle, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Dutch Belted Cattle Association of America at the annual convention held in Chicago, following the International Livestock show.

Muskegon — Dorothy Smith, of Muskegon, recently suffered her fourteenth fracture in her 12 years of life. Under treatment for a fractured arm, she fell and her leg was broken. She is believed to be suffering from a rare disease which makes her bones especially brittle.

Grand Rapids—A course in hospital visits may be added to the curricula of the Police Traffic Training School. A local police judge is considering the advisability of having all traffic violators who are sentenced to attend the school, visit the hospitals and view traffic victims.

Caro—Eleven years without missing a single meeting of the Sunday School of the Caro Methodist Episcopal Church is the unusual record of Virginia, fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gekeler. For the last several years, because of her unusual record, Virginia has been presented with an annual gift from the Sunday School.

Lansing — At least $150,000 will be added to the fund set aside for the purchase, maintenance and development of game refuge lands and public hunting grounds from the sale of 1936 deer-hunting licenses, conservation authorities here believe. The game law requires that $1.50 from the sale of each deer license be made available for the above purposes.

Lansing—Black walnut wainscoting and railings in the State Capitol may make its interior dark and gloomy but it represents a good investment by the State. When installed in the '70s, the black walnut cost but a few thousand dollars. Today the wood is so rare that furniture companies gladly buy the smallest scraps, and the 200,000 board feet in the Capitol are probably worth from $40,000 to $60,000.

Lansing—More than 12,000 acres of state-owned land, including 150 platted lots, will be offered for sale to the public at a series of auctions to be conducted by the department of conservation in northern Michigan beginning this month. Involved in this series of sales are lands in 41 counties with acreage totaling 12,571. Most of it is desirable for pasture or wood-lots in conjunction with established farms or as private hunting land.

Marion—Where once was an unsightly depression in the ground off Marion's Main street, half filled with trash and overgrown weeds, a municipal amphitheater gradually is taking form. The change is due to the vision of Dr. J. F. Carrow who interested the Chamber of Commerce, the Village Council and Marion residents, they in turn buying the necessary lots. The village sponsored a request for a WPA grant, which was obtained.

Grand Rapids—Five nuns fleeing religious persecution for the second time in 20 years will find sanctuary at the Carmelite Convent at Grand Rapids. The nuns are refugees from war torn Spain, where their convent in the Province of Castila, had been burned by the Loyalist forces. When they arrived in New York, the sisters were still dressed in the makeshift civilian clothing they wore to escape into France. Twenty years ago the five fled Mexico to escape religious persecution.

Cadillac—William Reynolds, music instructor at the McKinley School here, started something when he assigned to his class members the problem of making an instrument that would produce music. Earl Ellis, Jr., 14 years old, was the only one in the class to complete the experiment. He constructed what he calls a "bottle-telephone," a collection of bottles filled with varying amounts of water to complete the notes in the chromatic scale. The bottles hang on a wooden frame.

Hastings—Primary and equalization funds for Barry county schools totaling $21,870 have been received by the county treasurer to be distributed to the city and townships as follows: Hastings city, $10,536; Asyria township, $352; Baltimore, $917; Barry, $822; Carlton, $365; Castile, $3,758; Hastings, $257; Hope, $823; Irving, $1,339; Johns-town, $673; Maple Grove, $382; Orangeville, $532; Prairieville, $365; Rutland, $599; Thornapple, $6,964; Woodland, $2,849, and Yankee Springs, $317.

An Arbor—Washtenaw County was snowed under last winter, but this year it is prepared for the annual battle with winter roads. Standing in the Road Commission's yards is a snorting twenty-ton monster resembling a baby battleship, created by a union of the largest tractor available and probably the largest V-type snow plow to be had. The tractor is Diesel operated and weighs 17 tons. The snow plow, specially built in Ann Arbor, weighs two and one-half tons and has an overall length of 27 1/2 feet.

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington—On the eve of the opening of a new congress, the seventy-fifth, there is great hullabaloo and clamor about social and economic legislation and particularly about the alleged necessity for constitutional amendments giving congress more power to deal with these problems. Much of the noise emanates from minorities, highly organized pressure groups, and it is difficult, therefore, to tell exactly what the attitude of the country, as a whole, may be.

There are those both in congress and out who contend that the overwhelming vote for President Roosevelt's re-election constituted a mandate for immediate action on a number of these highly delicate and difficult questions. There are others whose contention is that the great vote given President Roosevelt was, in fact, a tribute to his personal popularity and that it was in no way connected with the various problems that are now before the country in individual capacity. Whatever the answer to these contending forces, the fact remains that we are due to hear something of them on the floors of the house and senate in the next few months.

One of the things about which we are hearing many, many words at the moment is a proposal for an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting child labor. It is the argument that such an amendment should be annexed to the Constitution and that it should give congress additional authority to enact legislation setting forth the details of this new type of prohibition.

Yet, while all of this raving and raging is going on, how many people are there who are aware of the fact that a constitutional amendment doing this very thing has been pending before the states for a little more than twelve years? How many people are there who recall that this amendment has been ratified by twenty-four states? Whatever their recollection is, it is a fact and it remains a fact that to all intents and purposes, enough states have refused to ratify the amendment to kill it off.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, being alive to what he considers the meaning of the recent huge vote for President Roosevelt, has attempted to revive the fight for ratification of that child labor amendment above mentioned. He has written to the heads of the various state and local labor groups urging them to work for favorable action on the amendment in the states that have heretofore rejected it.

This brings up a new legal question. Stated succinctly, the question is whether a state legislature that has once rejected a proposition to amend the Constitution can reverse itself and approve the resolution after having once killed it. Mr. Green contends that this is possible. The American Bar association takes a contrary view.

So, we are confronted with a problem within a problem and one that is likely to be distorted and twisted and misrepresented by those interests that have sought for a long time to make the Constitution appear outmoded. To become attached to the Constitution, an amendment must be ratified under the terms of the Constitution itself, by three-fourths of the states. That is thirty-six. Since twelve more states must ratify, there is likely to be a hard drive to gain some of the remaining states and to bring about reversal of positions already taken. It nearly always happens in "drives" that there is much loose mouthings and many unwarranted and unjustified statements. It probably will be so in this instance and the country must be on guard to sift the truth from the propaganda and must be prepared to make up its mind whether it desires to place in the Constitution a hard and fast rule that no child under eighteen years of age may be allowed to work gainfully.

For the sake of the record, here-with is the language of the proposed amendment that is now pending: "The congress shall have power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age. The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article except that the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by the congress."

From these words, it will be seen that an attempt is made to give congress greater power over the rights of states to legislate for themselves. Such a purport brings up in my mind the old question of whether a state or the federal government shall be supreme. There certainly are times, there are circumstances and there are conditions in which the federal government alone can deal with problems better than states can deal with them individually. But after all, conditions are not the same in any two states of the Union and it seems to me that the states ought to give careful thought to any proposition that takes away from them forever whatever rights are left to them under the Constitution. They ought to be free as far as they may be to handle their own problems on the basis of local requirements. And this is written, let me emphasize, not in opposition to any proposal that would abolish child labor.

The country cannot know definitely until President Roosevelt delivers his message to the new congress, dealing with the state of the Union, exactly what his position is going to be on the so-called social welfare problems of the country. This is a general category and involves such things as the so-called social security legislation and legislation giving the federal government greater control over private business. The two phases go hand in hand and as far as I have been able to discover, it will be impossible to deal with one without in some manner dealing with the other.

For example, the present social security statutes have a direct effect upon business through their taxation provisions. While basically they are designed to protect against the sufferings of unemployment and the destitution of the aged who are without resources, it can be readily seen that somebody must pay the bill. The Roosevelt administration's theory is that private employers, meaning business as a whole, shall be the logical source from which to draw the financial protection that is conceived to be necessary.

But in this theory there is involved very definitely the right of the federal government to enter into the fields that are now occupied or may be occupied by the states. It is largely a taxing proposition that the federal government must use if it is going to reach those classes able to pay. But the Constitution, federal laws and traditional practices of our people have built up certain lines of demarcation between federal and state rights. The question therefore becomes simply one that requires determination by the people whether they are going to allow the federal government to encroach further upon the fields that hitherto have been reserved for the states.

We hear much talk about a revival of NRA; a revival of it on a basis that will make it constitutional and one with provisions that will reach a greater percentage of business than was reached by the original NRA. Organized labor seems to be in favor of this proposition and naturally will exert considerable power in congress, but some lawyers among the representatives and senators tell me that they do not see how the purpose can be accomplished without a constitutional amendment.

On the basis of all of the information and opinion that I have been able to gather, my guess would be that before this session of congress is over something tangible in the way of a new constitutional amendment will be offered. It would seem, on the basis of the present trends, that it will be possible for the different schools of thought on this subject to get together only upon a constitutional resolution. My guess is, further, that it is utterly impossible for all of the groups and blocs to reach an understanding on legislation along these lines. Few of them are willing to compromise and without the attitude of compromise on highly controversial legislation, nothing except stalemates results. Some observers even now hold the belief that it will be impossible for any agreement to be reached within congress on any of these social welfare propositions simply because the range of views as to what is good for the country is so wide.

There are certain bits of evidence now to be seen that indicate a more determined position on the part of business itself. I think it could be said without equivocation that the business interests have been the target for political demagoguery in the last few years to a greater extent than ever in history. Of course, business has not come forth with clean hands. Yet, it is made to appear now that business has taken about all of the maltreatment to which it is entitled and it would seem, therefore, that the time has arrived for it to be given some consideration by the government which has supervision over it as well as us as individuals.

Baseball's Pages
Turn Back at Port of Aching Dogs

THEY have been moored for long hours in the Port of Aching Dogs—this haven high above Forty-second street where baseball men gather when worn down by the official futility of their annual meetings.

There is gossip about Kelley of Yale. Paul Krichell, the scout who watched over him all last spring, reveals that the youngster is a tidy first baseman with fair hitting ability. There is a leaning forward at this but then the gathering settles back. Krichell relates sadly that professional sports have no lure for the best ballyhooed athlete of the year and that he likes baseball least of all. If the Yankees cannot make him see reason the others know they have no chance.

The conversation switches. A minor manager, somewhat perturbed over the decision which gave Cleveland full rights to Bob Feller, wonders how England might have made out if it had a Judge Landis instead of a Baldwin as arbiter of the niceties. He gets the floor for a moment, but then Gene McCann, the veteran scout, comes in, fully arrayed in white lawn tie, red stick-pin and gray checked suit. After the applause has subsided they resume playing over games of 25 years ago, debating each called strike of that bygone era, arguing frantically over the events leading up to each base hit and error.

A heavy set man, tanned face scarcely more lined now than it was those many seasons ago when he was the game's first and greatest pinch hitter, enters the room. This is a Yankee party but National leaguers are welcome, especially welcome when they have done so much for the sport as the present insurance broker whose name is Moose McCormack.

Moose, as is befitting a man who hit so well and so often, starts talking about pitchers. He tells about attending the Chicago World's fair along with Ty Cobb and meeting Mordecai Brown. Years ago some of baseball's most thrilling duels were waged between these two great hitters and the three-fingered hurler who still is remembered as one of the best of all time. McCormack chuckles as he mentions that Brown remembered their faces but was far wide of the plate when it came to names, thought Cobb was Fred Snodgrass, that Moose was Red Murray.

Recalling Bitter Feuds
Between Giants and Cubs

He tells about Chicago of another day. That was when the Cubs and the Giants were mortal enemies and two great cities rallied to the causes. It was in those days that the Chicago Board of Trade used to hold meetings in the heart of the Loop. There would be fiery speeches about the necessity of repelling this invasion of hated Easterners. Then a huge bonfire would be lighted and McGraw would be burned in effigy.

This brings other tales of the days when the Giants would be returning from spring training and little Mac would be inciting small town citizens to buy tickets in huge numbers for the mere privilege of booing him in person. Of that afternoon when the fighter in him rebelled against what the showman had done, when he took off his coat and challenged the 5,000 jeering customers who packed the old park in Birmingham. Of Arthur Fletcher and Fred Snodgrass, whose sheer desire to win forthwith increased by 25 per cent the chances of any ball club which signed them.

About days in Austin, Houston and other Texas towns when bush league teams fought tooth and nail to beat their big time colleagues.

About free for all fights between opposing players and fans in Atlanta. About how Arthur Devlin pleaded with a badly battered opponent to stop and about how this sorely bruised opponent (I think he was a minor leaguer named O'Dell) refused to holler "nuf." About the next day the home towners sought something softer and challenged little Bridwell. How Bridwell, probably the best boxer in baseball of that day, won with such ease that even Atlantans were charmed.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

HUN school coaches say Bob Sandbach, eighteen-year-old brother of Ken, will be even better than the current Princeton football star. . . Sylvanus Apps of Canada, one of the Toronto Maple Leafs star hockey rookies, took sixth place in the pole vaulting at Berlin last summer. . . Smart baseball men say the best prospect for the coming season is Bobby Doer, the second baseman the Red Sox are bringing up from San Diego. . . They also hint that Joe Marty, the outfielder purchased from San Francisco by the Cubs, may turn out to be a bit of a lemon.

The Yankees, who control the territory through their Newark farm, won't permit Joe Cambria to shift his Albany franchise to Jersey City. They insist that Mayor Hague's town, a very good baseball spot, should be represented by a club more substantially backed and conducted with more of an eye to the future. . . Harvard should be plenty tough in football next fall in spite of a woeful Frosh eleven. In addition to the returning regulars, Emile Dubiel and several other stars who were declared ineligible this year now have caught up with their studies. . . Sydney A. Syme, who succeeds Judge Bleakley on the New York Supreme court bench, was a noted local athlete in his younger days. . . It will cost $85,000 to build twenty-eight alleys and otherwise equip the 212th Coast Artillery Armory for the American Bowling Congress in New York next spring.

All the heavyweight champions of England since Jem Mace's time are still alive. Bombardier Wells is an innkeeper at Brighton. The twenty-four-year-old Jack Petersen has retired to live on the $100,000 he made in the ring. Gunner Moir, who fought Tommy Burns, is in the movies. . . Other items of London chat include the news that Ben Foord, the present champion, is a rough, mauling type of fighter. . . Phil Scott's tea room in Devonshire has folded but, even though broke, the horizontal heavyweight has a second wife. . . Charley Rose, his undersized manager, has the same umbrella, bowler and coat he wore when Phil was reclining in American rings. . . Joe Beckett lives in the provinces.

Grimes Was Tough Guy
as a Member of Cards

When he was with the Cards, Burleigh Grimes once chased a newspaper man in a newspaper for two days trying to put the slug on him. . . Benny Bengough is doing more than all right as manager of the Yankees' Joplin farm. So also is Joe Becker, who was made president of the club after being rescued from a Brooklyn scouting job. . . Although sports writers labor over Ray Impellitteri's name, his Cold Spring hometown folks have no such difficulty. There the American Giant and his family are hailed simply as "Impel." . . Fred Ritter, who has been absent from the court for two seasons because he wished to devote his best attention to football and studies, will improve Princeton's basketball team.

Grimes

National league umpires Magerkurth and Klem, two of the very best, by the way, can seldom be persuaded to perform in the same game. Just don't like one another. . . Joe Shannon of the brothers Shannon who used to play such high class baseball, now is in charge of Jersey City's Stadium. . . Business managers, Giants Brannick and Dodgers Gorman, no longer are kidding, when they wave fists at one another. . . The very able Brannick, incidentally, eliminated a party crashing pest with one punch during the recent Montreal baseball meeting. . . That was even neater than the job done by Al Schacht, who pulled another nuisance's racoon coat over his head while landing a solid base hit in his center field. . . Nick Palmer, former National Guard middleweight and heavyweight champion (N. Y. variety), will turn wrestler.

Clients who paid heed to sage advice given here must have been gratified when Jockey Palumbo won those races at Charlestown. . . Two millionaire sportsmen are convinced that the National Hockey League was more anxious to get rid of Bill Dwyer during that recent mess than it was in new money or owners. They say they made a bonafide offer in writing, delivered it at the league office in Montreal and never even received an answer. . . Are Colgate and Tulane going to have to schedule their Northern football meetings in Buffalo or some such upstate city henceforth? . . . And could the reason be that local universities, angry because outsiders were cutting in on their subway sinecure, refused to let the Giants and Yankees rent their ball parks to such aliens?

Did any one ever investigate the report that a game between a team, billing itself as "Fordham" something or other, and a pro eleven was hastily canceled in Buffalo recently. . . Blood Horse, the very good racing paper, reveals how uncertain the sport is. It takes three mares to produce two foals in one year. It takes four foals to furnish one two-year-old winner. The stallion is exceptional whose get are 50 per cent winners.

FATHER TIME
By PHILANDER JOHNSON
In Washington Star

WE ALL know a fellow called Old Father Time. He has taught us in prose; he has frolicked in rhyme. One day he will give us a song or a laugh And the next he is writing a short epiphany. The way he jogs on is so quietly queer We seldom remember his presence so near. But he measures our steps as we falter or climb. He keeps tab on us all, does this Old Father Time. But his hand is so gentle, although it is strong. That he helps us a lot as he leads us along. And the ruins that rise on the hills of the past He covers with ivy and roses at last. He teaches the smiles of the present to glow. While the sorrows are left to the long, long ago. And the knell turns to joy in its merriest chime— He's a pretty good fellow, is Old Father Time.

"WINTER," said Dora gayly, "is very becoming to your good looks." The man beside her looked down with pleased amusement. They were skiing, these two, over snowy surfaces, and the man with his bright wide woolen sash and knitted cap to match, made a striking figure on the snow. "This was a grand idea skiing to the New Year's party," cried Paul. "Otherwise we would not have made it."

"Andy thinks we're crazy. Says we're sure to get stuck, and maybe freeze to death on the way. He's so optimistic." Dora laughed. "He would! Never saw such a darned cautious guy as Andy. He'll never get anywhere or do anything or have any fun."

"He is pretty solemn at times," admitted Dora a little soberly. They went on, easily, lightly; curved slopes slid under them; dark leafless trees slipped by. "A New Year's dance does not grow on every bush," remarked Paul. "Better take them in our stride."

The girl's cheeks glowed. Her fair hair tucked under her cap flew out behind in small ringlets. If the distance still seemed a long way, she did not speak of it. She was a little tired, too, but that would pass. Soon they would pause for rest, and for bites of hard chocolate.

"It takes a little imagination, sometimes," said Paul, "to think out ways of doing things. Andy is good, solid dependable stuff, but slightly," he smiled, "dull."

"I like him, though," said Dora stoutly, "and it usually happens he's right. . . worse luck!"

"Not sorry you came with me?" "Heavens, no!"

They went on and on and on. Roads were blocked. No cars could get through. A horse team would take one day and part of another. Skiing across country was the only solution of reaching Dorset and the dance. "You'll have trouble," Andy predicted, "mark my words." And it looked as if his prophecy were about to come true as they attempted the next hill. The wind grew colder. Dora was not as rested as she hoped she might be; not as quick or sure of balance. She struck a snag, tripped and fell. . . not merely in the snow, but down and down into a surprise gully. A sharp pain shot up from one ankle to knee, and a cold and dreadful faintness crept over her. "Andy," she whispered involuntarily, as one speaks of a safe harbor in time of storm.

Paul came after her. Somehow his picturesque good looks did not count for much now, though he tried valiantly to help her. "I've twisted my ankle, I'm afraid," gasped Dora. "What shall we do? Can you put your imagination to work?" she added.

Just then, cold, truly fearful for what lay ahead, they heard a dim halloo in the distance. They waited and soon Andy's bulky and solid figure stood above the gully. He plunged down quickly and gave not a word of rebuke save "Thought you might have trouble, so I trailed you."

It was Andy who took Dora back to her home. He carried her all the way, first over one shoulder, then another. Paul feeling uncomfortable said he guessed he'd go on to the dance. "Happy New Year" was all Andy said.

An arduous, silent and painful experience. Dora could hear the breathing of the man who so bravely bore her over the weary miles. "Why don't you scold me?" she demanded.

She could not see his face, but she felt him smiling.

At last Andrew deposited her on her own couch in her own home and her plaster cast as midnight struck. "You know, Andy," remarked Dora slowly, "I'd honestly rather be here with you and a broken ankle, than at the New Year's dance at Dorset. Quaint of me, isn't it?"

Big, solid, unpicturesque Andy stooped over and kissed her. "Happy New Year, dear! I'm afraid it will be a long time till you dance again."

"And Paul's colorful ideas aren't so much. . . after all. He looks well on a winter landscape. And you look well in a rescue act. I think I prefer the latter." "Which," grinned Andy, "is just as it should be."

THE New Year's party at Southwood Country club was in full swing, with Fred Gordon, directing the dance orchestra of college boys, putting out sweet music. He was especially anxious to show off his particular variety of syncopated rhythms this evening, as there would be some men there who could, if they wanted to, "do him some good."

He watched Beatrice, his girl, dance by in the arms of a handsome stranger. With a mustache, too! Darn it, he'd grow one!

He brought the rhythm to a crashing climax, and signaled for an intermission. Then his eyes hunted out Beatrice, and he started toward her.

He was delayed by an older man, who wanted to talk to him.

It was a better offer than Fred had dreamed of. What a New Year's opportunity! Pater would be sore, of course—

He nodded his acceptance, shook hands heartily, and dashed off toward the conservatory. Beatrice and her companion were just coming back to the dance floor.

"Say, Bee—I've just got to see you a minute. Excuse her, won't you?"

"Bee," he asked suddenly, "will you marry me?"

"Why, Fred!" she exclaimed, amazed at his outburst. "I suppose so—some day, maybe."

"I mean now, right away."

"How could we? You know we have to wait until you finish school and get your start."

"I've got my start. I'm going to lead a dance orchestra and be broadcast. We'll have plenty to live on and a good chance for more."

Lesson for January 3
THE SON OF GOD BECOMES MAN

LESSON TEXT—John 1:1-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us. John 1:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Home.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Boyhood of Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—God Coming to Us in Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fact and Purpose of the Incarnation.

The opening of a new year always brings with it a sense of solemn responsibility for one's life and service, and at the same time a thrilling expectancy. No better way can be found to begin this year of our Lord, 1937, than in the study of God's Word, not only by ourselves, but in the fellowship of others in the church and Sunday school.

The series of lessons outlined for the year gives us the eagerly apprehended opportunity of studying during the first three months the Gospel of John. Space does not permit of a suitable introduction to that study here, but we trust that no one will fail to read John 20:31, which states the purpose of the apostle in writing.

Three great and fundamental questions are answered in chapter 1:1-18, namely, (1) Was Jesus Christ God or man? (2) Does it matter how we regard him and relate our lives to him? (3) Is there suitable evidence upon which we may rest our faith in him?

I. Jesus Christ Is God (John 1: 1-5).

"In the beginning" of Genesis 1:1, Jesus Christ already "was" not only "with God," but he "was God." He is the living "Word," the complete and final revelation of God. He is infinite, eternal, divine, both the Creator and Redeemer. He is both the Life and the Light of men. That Light shines in the darkness but the darkness does not comprehend it.

II. Men Are Either Believers or Unbelievers (vv. 6-13).

There are only two classes of people who will read these lines—the saved and the unsaved. What a solemn thought! To which class do I belong?

The Lord of Glory, the Creator of all things, came to his own world and it "knew him not" (v. 10). How tragic is that fact, but how much deeper is the stab of the next verse, his own people "received him not."

The Light still shines in the world, and it is still all too true that men love "darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil" (John 3:19). Such men are lost, "dead in trespasses and sin" (Eph. 2:1).

But, thank God, there are those who "receive him" (v. 12), and to them he gives the power or authority, to be the sons of God. This change is expressly declared to be a. Not by reason of family, or heredity, "not of blood";

b. Not by natural instinct or development, not "of the will of the flesh"; and

c. Not by human volition or will power, not "of the will of man, but of God."

These are important matters and some one may well ask, "What evidence is there for these things?" Faith is not a venture into the dark. We have the strongest of all foundations in the sure Word of God. The evidences of Christianity are many, thoroughly full, and satisfying to any honest inquirer. We refer to but one.

III. Our Faith Rests on the Testimony of Eye Witnesses (vv. 14-18).

John the Baptist and John the Apostle both beheld the "glory as of the only begotten of the Father" in the One who as the "Word was made flesh and dwelt among" them.

The law was "given by Moses" (v. 17), that is, God sent the law through a human messenger. "But grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." No messenger, no matter how great or worthy, would do to bring the gospel of the grace of God. His only begotten Son brought it; it came by him.

Casting Precious Metals

In casting gold and silver, temperatures running about 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit are used. These temperatures create a considerable problem in materials for the mold boxes, as most metals oxidize at such great heats. Recently an alloy of nickel and chromium has been chosen as the material for these boxes because it resists destructive oxidation until a thermometer reading of 1950 degrees is reached.

Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and gas tablets. Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the contracted bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria. If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED. Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rids you of gas and cleanses four poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. ### Council Proceedings

Regular meeting of the common council of the city of Tawas City, held December 7, 1936. Present—Mayor Brugger, Aldermen Burtzloff, Coyle, Leslie, Moore and Rouiller. Quorum present.

Moved by Coyle and seconded by Burtzloff that, Whereas, the city clerk has received bids for the city's proposed Contract No. 4 of its PWA Project known as Docket 8264-R, Michigan, Therefore be it resolved that he be instructed to open the same and read them aloud and thereafter that the bids be referred to the council as a committee of the whole and its consulting engineers for tabulation and recommendation.

Roll call—Yeas, Burtzloff, Coyle, Leslie, Moore and Rouiller. Nays, none. Carried.

Bids opened and read.
Moved by Coyle and seconded by Moore that the council adjourn for one hour. Carried.

Council called to order. Committee reported.

The Honorable Mayor and Council, City of Tawas City, Michigan. Gentlemen:

Your committee, consisting of the council as a whole and their consulting engineers, to whom bids received on Contract No. 4, PWA Docket 8264-R, Michigan, were referred for tabulation, study and recommendation beg to report as follows:

A careful study of all bids and a tabulation of the same has been made. It is found that the bid submitted over the name of Johnson Pump Company, 2324 East 49th Street, Los Angeles, California, by M. E. Purcell, 429 Wayne Street, Detroit, Michigan, is exceedingly irregular and for the following reasons:

(1) Three of the questions relative to equipment are unanswered, and in one instance in a way which is meaningless.

(2) The bidder did not evaluate his bid on pump efficiency.

(3) The bidder did not fill out matters pertaining to certified check on page 12 of the proposal.

(4) The bidder has guaranteed a "water to water" efficiency of his pump of 73.5% which it would be impossible to meet and which is evidently the "water to water" efficiency. There is no way in the proposal to establish a true guaranteed efficiency and thus evaluate and compare the bid with other bidders.

(5) The bid is made out in the name of the Johnson Pump Company, signed by M. E. Purcell without any authority being shown whereby M. E. Purcell can sign for the Johnson Pump Company. The Johnson Pump Company could not have signed the bid due to the fact that the blank bidding documents were obtained on December 7, 1936, by M. E. Purcell.

(6) The only interested party to the bid is given as the Johnson Pump Company, who actually never signed the proposal.

(7) The bid is not notarized.

(8) The entire questionnaire and affidavit is blank.

It is recommended that the bid of the Johnson Pump Company be declared irregular and that it be not considered, and that the council decline to use their legal rights in waiving the foregoing irregularities with reference to the same.

After declaring the afore mentioned bid irregular and discarded, it is found that the bid of William DaLee, Inc., of Detroit is the low bidder, but this bid is in slight irregularity due to the fact that two gasoline engines were bid upon in item No. 3. The first engine bid, while a 25 h. p. engine, is at continuous duty 18.75 (yet able to drive the pump.) The second choice, in this regard, offered a 6-cylinder engine at 25 h. p., continuous duty for an additional $76.50.

It is recommended that William DaLee be recommended to the PWA to receive the award of this contract omitting item 3 which is an alternate item provided the council will have the right to order such a gas engine as they may desire, installed by the contractor as an extra, and at a price not to exceed $345.50. It is further recommended that in the event PWA would not approve of this arrangement that the award be made including item 3 upon paying $76.50 additional and obtaining a 6-cylinder engine, and in the event PWA would not approve of this second choice, that item 3 be included just as bid in the first instance, calling for an 18.75 h. p. continuous duty engine at $269.00 and an award made based upon total contract of $4045.00.

It is further recommended that the council go on record as using their legal right to waive all irregularities in connection with receiving on item 3 of the DaLee bid, two prices on engine, both slightly different than specified.

Respectfully submitted,
J. A. Brugger, Mayor
E. A. Burtzloff
M. A. Coyle
William Leslie
Frank Moore
William Rouiller

G. W. Francis, Consulting Engineer
Will C. Davidson, Clerk.

Moved by Leslie and seconded by Coyle that the committee's report be accepted and the mayor, clerk and consulting engineers be instructed to carry out its recommendations. Roll call—Yeas, Burtzloff, Coyle, Leslie, Moore and Rouiller. Nays, none.

Moved and seconded that the meeting adjourn to Wednesday, December 9th, at 7:30 p. m. Carried.

Will C. Davidson, Clerk.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan the afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room his eye falls on a marble statuette which she had hidden in her room. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in the very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "racketing, mischievous spirit." Greeding pretends to Nancy that he has no objection to Dan. More interested in Mary Ann, Dr. Greeding induces her to take a vacation in his office. Eventually he finds he loves her. Jerrell continues to see Nancy, whose love for Dan is unchanged. The Greedings invite the Carlises to dinner. Dr. Greeding discusses with Prof. Carlisle the subject of "poltergeists," the doctor telling of some of his own experiences, but attributing them to a friend. Prof. Carlisle comments: "He who eats with the Devil will need a long spoon." The dinner party is interrupted by a call for Dr. Greeding from a neighboring town. He asks Mary Ann to accompany him. On the ride to see the patient, Greeding is extremely happy. He invites Mary Ann to visit their summer home. It is late when they finish the call. Nancy is disquieted when she kisses her hand on parting. Mrs. Greeding upbraids him when he returns home. Mary Ann seeks to leave Greeding's employment. He masks his real interest in her and persuades her to stay. Mrs. Greeding and Nancy go to the lake to open the summer house. Jerrell mentions Nancy's interest in Dan to Dr. Greeding, but he assures him it is only superficial and he invites Jerrell to visit their summer place for a weekend. Dr. Greeding is annoyed to find Dan there. When Dan leaves, Dr. Greeding invites Nancy and Jerrell to do some pistol shooting. Jerrell proves extremely inept. Back in the city, Greeding maneuvers to be invited to dinner by Mary Ann.

So they rose; yet he said as a reminder: "Thursday night, then. It's settled?"

"Of course," she agreed, and they went out to the car.

Doctor Greeding found himself, during the days that intervened, full of a lively anticipation. When at about seven o'clock on Thursday evening he rang her bell. Mary Ann herself opened the door; but she did not at once bid him enter. He saw that she was flushed and warm, and he said, smiling:

"I can see you've been standing over a hot stove!"

She said in a confused hesitation: "As a matter of fact, it isn't just that I'm—hot, Doctor Greeding. I'm a little embarrassed, too. Hence these blushes." And she explained: "You see, I expected Father to be at home tonight; but there's some distinguished foreigner or other, visiting Professor Middleton, and he called Father half an hour ago, and asked him over to dinner. And Father went."

She added honestly: "He told me to telephone you and put off our spaghetti till some other time."

He said, shrewdly amused and pleased: "But you didn't!" And he stepped past her into the hall.

She confessed, slowly closing the door: "Why, I had it started already and it seemed a shame to waste it!"

"Of course," he agreed. "And now that I'm here, I've no notion of not staying. It's a long time since I've been considered—dangerous."

She could not well send him away. To do so would only serve to lend importance to the unimportant. So she laughed and said: "Spaghetti isn't very romantic, I'm afraid! Come on out to the kitchen, and I'll put an apron on you, and you can help."

The preparation of supper amused them both; they laughed together and were gay. While they sat at table, they talked at random, and afterward he helped her with the dishes; but when the kitchen was all put to rights, they stood at loose ends, not quite certain what next to do.

"Now if I were a policeman, and you were a cook, or even a second maid," he suggested, "we might walk out together, or go to the movies, or find a place to dance! I feel that something of the sort is almost required of us."

"I think it would be much more comfortable to just sit on the side porch," she decided. "It's dark enough now so you needn't be afraid of being compromised!"

"I don't feel in the least reprehensible, or dangerous," he said reassuringly. "I'm too well fed. Just sitting will suit me perfectly."

They did in fact stay an hour on the veranda together, speaking of commonplace things, but softly; and sometimes silences enfolded them. There were times when words came tumbling to his lips and remained unspoken. They might, despite his effort at self-control, have found utterance in the end; but interruption came, a footstep on the walk in front of the house.

"There's Father," said Mary Ann, and rose to go toward the door.

Doctor Greeding followed her. "I'll say good night," he decided hurriedly. "Time to get along home."

"Not afraid of Father, are you?" she asked, amused; but when they came to the door together, it was Jerrell, not Professor Carlisle, who appeared.

Jerrell's eyes met those of Doctor Greeding, and the two men stared at one another for a moment, equally startled.

Why was Jerrell here? Something like jealousy awoke in Greeding.

Then Jerrell was saying awkwardly: "Good evening, Miss Carlisle. Hello, Ned." And he asked: "Is Dan at home?"

She shook her head. "No. No, he's in New Hampshire; won't be back till Sunday." And then, quickly, to Doctor Greeding: "I'm sorry our phone didn't ring, Doctor. It must be out of order. Too bad you had to come way over here; but I'll be ready at six in the morning."

Doctor Greeding, perceiving that she was protecting him, felt a quick delight. They were thus brought in alliance to deceive Jerrell, and he said readily:

"It's quite all right. I needed the walk. And I'll have Thomas pick you up at six."

Greeding nodded, waiting, but Jerrell made no movement to leave—and Doctor Greeding was by Mary Ann's deception left with no pretext to stay.

His tone was calm as he bid the two good night, but he walked away from the house in a deep turmoil of conflicting emotions. There was a storm of passion in the man—of anger at Mary Ann, for permitting Jerrell to stay thus alone with her, in the empty house. He thought, absurdly, of chiding her next day, of uttering some admonition.

But she might remind him that if his own presence there involved no indiscretion, certainly she could receive Jerrell. This thought, that Jerrell might freely pay Mary Ann whatever attention he chose, swept through Doctor Greeding like a storm; Mrs. Greeding, from that moment became in his thoughts like an iron chain that fettered him and held him bound.

CHAPTER VI

Doctor Greeding did not sleep that night at all. He was shaken and trembling and perspiring; yet he felt cold, and he pressed his teeth together to prevent their chattering...

Man's character is built of many reticences, of an infinite number of self-restraints. He is molded and determined not so much by the things he does as by the things he refrains from doing. Doctor Greeding had so long held himself under discipline that it had become automatic to do so; he had molded himself into a proficient surgeon, into a devoted husband, into a wise and indulgent father. He had come to think of this individual whom he had created as himself, his essential self.

But tonight he recognized the fact that this conventional and respectable individual was not himself, but a mask which he presented to the world. Behind this counterfeit presentment there lived another man, bold and ruthless and passionate, driven by appetite, drunk with desires so long restrained.

He lay sleepless all that night, twitching on his bed like one racked by pain; and at work next day he was somber-eyed and frowning. Even Mary Ann remarked this; she said to him when they were alone: "I'm afraid my spaghetti didn't agree with you?"

"Oh, yes," he assured her shortly. She watched him. "I persuaded Mr. Jerrell to stay and eat the rest of it," she explained.

"Ah," he assented in a grim tone. The girl was disturbed. "I hope you didn't mind my—pretending you were there on business," she said. "I thought you might prefer it so."

He said shortly: "I wasn't in the least ashamed of having dined with you, Mary Ann."

"I was afraid Mr. Jerrell wouldn't understand."

"Was it for my sake alone that you—feared his ill opinion?" he asked, in almost angry challenge.

She looked at him in quick surprise at his tone, on guard, yet also amused. "Oh, of course I've my own reputation to consider, too," she said—and turned quickly away.

He found no further opportunity for speech alone with her that afternoon; and when he left the office, the man was ready to risk any folly in order to see her again, to amend the damage his last word might have caused. Thomas, without orders, took the road to the Lake; and the Doctor ordered him just to stop at the Carlises'.

Mary Ann was not at home, however. Professor Carlisle himself came to the door; and Doctor Greeding asked for her, his thoughts swift to seek a pretext for this call. Professor Carlisle said: "I'm sorry; she's dining with Mr. Jerrell. Shall I give her some message?"

Dining with Jerrell? Doctor Greeding shook at that word as though a strong wind blew upon him; but he managed to speak easily. "It's not important," he said. "I was just starting for the Lake, and stopped by on the way; but this can wait till Monday."

Mary Ann could dine tonight with Jerrell, without provoking criticism; and he and Jerrell were of a like age, of an equal stature, both men! The only difference between them lay in the fact that—Jerrell's wife was dead, while Myra was alive!

While Myra was alive... His dark thoughts focused there.

At the last village before reaching the lake, he bade Thomas telephone the island so that a boat would meet them at the landing. The chauffeur pulled up opposite the lights of a drug-store; and Doctor Greeding also alighted, as much because he could not bear inaction as for any other reason. While Thomas was at the phone, he bought a box of candies. Myra liked candy.

"Mrs. Greeding will come to the landing, sir," the man reported. Doctor Greeding nodded. "All right," he said, holding his tones under control.

The car turned into a gravel road, tortuous and winding, and Thomas drove more slowly now. There were, a hundred yards short of the landing, some public garages, one of which Doctor Greeding kept under rental for the season. At this point he said:

"Let me out here, Thomas. I'll walk down to the wharf. You can put up the car, and we'll wait for you."

So the chauffeur pulled up, and Doctor Greeding alighted. With the box of candy under his arm, he went on down to the lake shore.

The boat approached, its bow light shining red and green; Mrs. Greeding swung it in to the landing.

"Hot in town?" she asked. "Rotten," he said harshly. "Where's Nancy?"

"At the Frisbies'," she said. "Dan turned up this afternoon, on his way back to Boston, and they've all gone to picnic down the lake, cook supper on the beach."

At this mention of Dan's name, Doctor Greeding thrust the clutch lever viciously forward, and the boat leaped ahead. "Tired?" she asked. "You seem tired."

"I had a hard week," he agreed. Then they cleared the point of the high terrace built out into the lake in front of the house, and saw the boathouse lights.

He eased the throttle shut; the boat slowed, the broad bow settled down into the water, checking their way. They drifted easily into the slip. He turned off the ignition and the engine died, and he stepped out on the wharf. Thomas was making the boat fast at bow and stern. He said: "Good night, Thomas."

Mrs. Greeding climbed out of the boat, and they went up the winding path toward the house together. Doctor Greeding and Mrs. Greeding came to the big empty house. The living-room was lighted, and the billiard-room. Their steps echoed hollowly. She kissed him.

"Would you like some supper—crackers and milk or something, Ned?"

He shook his head. "I'll swim," he said. "I'm still hot from town. How about you?" She never swam at night, and he expected her refusal. She shook her head.

He went upstairs alone, while she stayed below. Then: "Myra, will you bring me my trunks?"

She said, amused: "You're the most helpless thing! He heard her coming up the stairs, heard her go out on the balcony and so return. She appeared in the open doorway, his swimming-trunks in her hand. He took them.

"I brought you a box of candy," he said curtly. "There on the table."

She was fond of sweets. She loosed the wrappings, opened the box. "Bless you," she said. "You never forget, do you Ned? I know I shouldn't eat them, but—"

She chose a caramel. He buttoned the trunks. She put the piece of candy in her mouth; and mumbling the words, she asked casually: "Who did you see, this week?"

This trick of hers speaking when her mouth was full, always exasperated him; it acted now like a detonator on his bottled anger.

"I had dinner with Mary Ann last night," he said, willing to annoy her.

She protested: "Ned, was that wise? It takes so little to start talk."

"Talk! Talk! Talk!" he exploded, his eyes red and wrathful. "I'm sick to death of your talk! I wish you'd—"

She seemed suddenly to choke, as though on the candy in her mouth. The Doctor stared at her in swift dawning understanding. He took one step toward her; then, his face pale, his lips white, while she coughed, strangling, he went abruptly out of the room, down to the little beach where they were accustomed to swim.

He burst into the water with a sort of violence, like a man breaking chains which bound him. He dived and swam under water, far out from the shore.

When he came to the surface, he heard a motorboat approaching. It rounded the point of the island, its exhaust suddenly loud and near at hand. Doctor Greeding swam back toward the beach, to be clear of its course; and a moment later the boat slid past him into the empty slip, and the engine died. As he reached the beach, Nancy, a white shadow in the darkness, came up the path with Dan at her shoulder.

Doctor Greeding's voice was calm and steady as he called: "Hullo, Nancy."

She had not seen him. "Oh, you, Father!" she cried, startled at this apparition.

"Yes," he kissed her, at arm's length, careful not to wet her. "Hello, Dan," he said, and grasped the young man's hand.

"Where's Mother?" Nancy asked. "She was just starting to devour a box of candy when I came down to swim," he explained, and they went up to the house together.

At once Doctor Greeding went upstairs.

And an instant later he called, from the door of their room up there, in tones of terror and despair:

"Nancy! Nancy! Quick! Come here!"

In the first shock of that desperate alarm, Nancy and Dan stood an instant motionless. Then Nancy ran through the billiard-room toward the stairs, and Dan came running.

The door into the big south bedroom which Doctor and Mrs. Greeding shared was open; Nancy came to the door and saw him bending over her mother, who lay across the bed.

The girl, in her terror, cried meaningless words. Then Doctor Greeding, even while he made automatic efforts at resuscitation, said harshly:

"She's dead, Nancy!" "Dead?" Her voice was a hollow whisper.

"She must have choked on a piece of candy," he panted. "Open the windows, quick!"

"They're open, Doctor," Dan told him.

Nancy brought whisky in a glass, and Doctor Greeding forced it between Mrs. Greeding's set teeth; it spilled as though out of an overflowing cup. When he saw this, he stopped his efforts, and stood erect looking down at his wife's body and then at his daughter. He put his arms around the girl.

"Nancy, she's gone," he said brokenly, and held her close. "You'll have to be the steady one. Nancy. You're all I've got left, now."

She stood erect in his arms, no wavering in her; but after a moment, releasing herself, she turned to the bed. Her mother's garments were disordered. She straightened them. Her father helping, they laid Mrs. Greeding's body decently. Then Doctor Greeding drew Nancy away.

She saw that he was snaking, and flushed and hot. There was whisky remaining in the glass, and she gave it to him. "Here," she said, and managed a wry smile. "You need this, yourself."

He drank the liquor, gagging over the fiery draught. "She was all right not twenty minutes ago," he protested, as though dazed. Nancy thought dispassionately that he must be cold, in wet trunks and no other garment.

"Dry yourself, Father," she urged. "Get into some clothes."

She went out of the room, and Dan followed her, took her in his arms. The door behind them closed. She stood in his arms, rigid and unyielding; and he said whisperingly:

"Sweet, sweet, I'm so sorry for you!"

"It doesn't seem real. So—quickly—!" She cried: "It can't be! There must be something we can do."

"If there was, your father—" He tried to lead her away. "Come downstairs, sweet. Out of doors!"

His arm through hers, he compelled her gently toward the stairs; but then her father's door opened, and Doctor Greeding appeared, already dressed save for his coat and tie. He said: "I can't seem to think what to do."

Nancy went toward him; and Dan said gravely: "I'll wake the servants—Thomas and the others." He left them together, went down the stairs and along the path.

Nancy made her father come downstairs. They stood before the hearth where—though the night was warm enough—a small fire burned. She came beside him, and his arm encircled her. They stood thus for a long time silent, side by side.

She felt herself outside a wall, felt a harsh barrier between them, felt a harsh barrier across her shoulders.

Suddenly he said: "I'm going out, Nancy. Alone. I can't stay here. Ask Dan to do—whatever is necessary."

He freed himself almost roughly, and departed. This departure was like flight. Doctor Greeding fled like a man pursued, out of the house and along the tortuous path through the dark woods. He barked his shins against boulders without knowing it, blundered into trees, still stumbled on.

He went half around the island thus, heedless of anything except the desire to be alone, to hide. Then he came to where the path crossed an open ledge, and paused there, panting, peering furtively all about. Shadows surrounded him on three sides; the dark water slumbered at his feet. The very shadows, and the black water, seemed to his terror-ridden fancy to hide ominous shapes; yet he could brave them.

But when he looked up, he saw the unwinking stars, and could not support their steady scrutiny. He shrank back into the covert of the dark wood and crouched there, his head in his arms, trembling and alone, waiting the stroke that must even now be preparing his destruction.

But by and by, since the human soul can by use accustom itself to any agony, he became calm again; reason, stifled at first by fear, lifted its head. He began to contemplate in the clear light of normal minds his situation—and to take hope therefrom.

For none need ever know the truth—since to any sober sense, truth it could not be! He pounced exultantly upon this thought. Truth it could not be! Coincidence, certainly; a black and terrifying coincidence. But nothing more. It would be madness to think otherwise. His wife was dead; and grief must be his portion. But not fear!

And suddenly—his fears thus assuaged—he grieved because Myra was dead, and wept for her, and tears were his easement.

Natural Icebox in New Mexico's Lava Deposits

A lava bed whose surface is unpleasantly warm to the touch does not seem a likely setting for a deposit of perpetual ice. Yet in just such a locality, where the brazen New Mexican sun beats down upon a surface which once was molten stone, a deposit of perpetual ice does exist, says Natural History.

Signboards lead the traveler to a volcanic sink, an abrupt depression of an estimated depth of seventy-five feet. This was produced when a natural tunnel in the lava bed caved in. The tunnel was caused by the flowing away of molten lava from the upper surface had cooled and hardened.

Its presence so near the hot surface of the ground depends primarily upon the fact that lava is among Nature's most efficient temperature insulators. The lava contains an infinite number of minute pores and cavities, and the dead air in them hinders the transmission of heat through the stone from the sun.

Here's a Smart Rug That's Easy to Make

Pattern 5699

Just a simple square, repeated and joined together forms this smart rug. You'll love doing the colorful squares in varied colors, and, in no time at all, you'll have enough completed to make this stunning rug. Here's one way to turn useless rags into something worthwhile, though rug wool or candlewicking may also be used.

Done in Germantown, the square would make a handsome cushion or chair set. In pattern 5699 you will find complete instructions and charts for making the square shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y.

Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Household Questions

Add chopped pickles, pimientos and olives to regular cabbage salad and you will concoct a tasty relish suitable to serve with fish, fowl or meat.

Parchment shades, if they are shellacked and varnished, may be washed with white soap and water. A little furniture polish applied after washing helps to brighten them.

Moisten the pastry bag with cold water before adding cake or frosting mixture and the bag will be more easily cleaned and there will be less waste of the product.

To clean the railing of bannisters, wash off all the dirt with soap and water, and when dry rub with two parts of linseed oil and one part turpentine. A good rubbing will bring up the polish as if the rails had been repolished.

A cracked egg can be boiled if the shell is first rubbed with lemon juice. The acid coagulates the albumin and prevents it from cooking out of the crack.

When making pastry, roll in one direction only if you want it to be light. Rolling first in one direction and then in another is almost sure to make it tough.

Adventurers' Club

Hello Everybody!

"Asleep at the Wheel"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S Fred Bock, whose address is Brooklyn, but whose home is Route 34, or Route 63, or maybe some other route altogether. Fred, you see, drives one of those big transportation trucks that move between one city and another. Those lads might get back to their houses once in a while, but a good part of the time they do their sleeping on the big front seat of a truck parked at the side of the road. That's the sort of lad you have to catch on the fly. But I've nabbed Fred, and here's his story.

On a Thursday morning in November, Fred and his partner Charlie were delivering furniture at various houses in Brooklyn. They went out with a load, delivered it, and finished up about one o'clock in the afternoon. They had some lunch and pulled into the office at two, hoping they were through for the day. But no such luck for Fred. He still had a man-sized job to do that day—and besides that there was a little adventuring to be taken care of. At that stage of the game, though, he didn't know anything about adventuring.

Taking a Load to Washington.

After Fred had settled up his accounts, the manager called him into his office and told him the bad news. There was an immediate delivery to be made in Washington, D. C., and Fred had been elected to do the job.

They loaded the truck and were on their way. Route 1 was to be their home this time. They picked it up in Jersey City and rolled into Philadelphia along about nine o'clock in the evening. Fred and Charlie knew a good lunch wagon in Philly, and they went there for dinner. Back in the truck again, Fred suggested a nap. They had been up since early morning, and both of them were pretty tired.

They lay down on the seat and started to snooze, but not for long. After a brief interval they were awakened by a cop who told them that the main drag of the Quaker City was no lodging house and suggested that they take their big truck out of there. So they started to move.

Fred Was Getting Sleepy.

They threaded their way through the city, and once more they were bowling along the open road through a cold, bleak November night. The wind swept across the fields in fitful gusts and the road ahead seemed to darken. Fred drove on through the night. The hours rolled by and he was getting more and more sleepy. Along about midnight a filmy haze began to cloud his vision.

Says Fred: "The feeling was nothing new to me. It came from staring ahead over long periods, and had happened to me many times before. I knew that the best thing for me to do was pull over to the side of the road for a short rest. I began looking for a convenient parking space, but the minutes fled by without a sign of a place to stop. The road was getting narrower and more gloomy. My eyes seemed to be getting heavy as lead.

"We began to roll down hill. Flickering, fantastic shadows danced across the path of the headlights and the road ahead suddenly inclined in a long, steep, tortuous grade. I looked at Charlie and saw him curled up in the corner of the seat fast asleep. His peaceful repose seemed to tempt me. And then—"

Running Wild Toward a Wall.

And then, suddenly, Fred's eyes were shut and the truck was running wild!

Fred doesn't know how long his eyes were shut or how the truck managed to keep on the road. But something in the back of his brain—some drivers' instinct—brought him wide awake as suddenly as he had fallen asleep. As his eyes came open he saw in the beam of the headlights a sharp, narrow turn in the road and, just at the beginning of the bend, a white concrete wall.

The headlights brought that scene to his eyes with startling clearness. "It didn't take me long to realize what that meant," says Fred. "A narrow bridge spanning—spanning what—was the question. I didn't know, and for a minute it looked as if I never would know."

In the few seconds Fred had been asleep the speedometer had climbed to forty-five. A glance told him that—and then he jammed on the brakes. "But even as I did so," he says, "I knew it would be useless. The bend in the road was too narrow to permit a quick turn with a large truck. I couldn't save myself from crashing into the wall."

Steep Cliff Just Ahead of Them.

Fred took a lightning glance to right and left, searching for a way out. There was a clear space at the beginning of the wall. How long it was—what obstructions he might find in it—he didn't know, but he determined to take a chance and trust to luck that he didn't run into a tree and pile up. He turned his wheels and headed for the clear space. Then, just as his wheels left the road, the headlights showed him what was ahead. There were no trees in his way. There was nothing. The car was plunging toward a steep cliff, at the bottom of which ran the river!

Fred's hand tightened on the wheel. The top of the bank was a scant ten feet ahead, and he knew he would never be able to stop that car. With his whole body tense, he waited for the sickening plunge over the bank—and the end.

And then Fred got the surprise of his life. Suddenly, the truck slowed down as the wheels struck something soft and mushy. It moved another two or three feet and came to an abrupt stop. Fred climbed out of the cab and jumped to the ground, and heaved a sigh of relief and gratitude. The wheels had run into a pile of sand left by the highway patrol. And Fred says: "As I stood there listening to the swish of water far below it certainly seemed to me as if Providence were riding with us that night. For if that pile of sand had been six feet to right or left we would have shot over that clearing and dropped into the river below."

Most Remarkable Ruin

The most remarkable ruin in the West Indies is that of the Citadel La Ferriere at Cape Haitien. Built by King Henry Christophe to repel a threatened French invasion, it stands on the top of a mountain at 3,000 feet elevation. It has been estimated that nearly half a million tons of building material were used in its construction, every pound of which had to be carried up the precipitous side of the mountain. Ten thousand men were continuously employed in its construction and 20,000 more, it is said, died of exhaustion and hardship.

The Colosseum in Rome

The Colosseum in Rome was begun by Vespasian, on the site of part of Nero's Gold house, and inaugurated by Titus in A. D. 80. Originally it consisted of three arched stories of stone and an upper gallery of wood. Some time in the Third century this gallery was rebuilt of stone. The Colosseum probably seated between 40,000 and 50,000 persons. It is elliptical in plan, with its long axis 615 feet and its short axis 510 feet. Its arena is 281 feet long and 177 feet wide. The top of the stone screen wall is about 160 feet above ground.

Naming Old Point Comfort

The name Old Point Comfort dates back to 1607, when three shiploads of English colonists under command of Christopher Newport first sighted the point after a stormy passage from England. With the storm raging a channel was found just off shore, putting the colonists "in good comfort." The place was immediately named Point Comfort, and has remained so through its years as a resort.

Butterflies Cover Continent

Up from the South, where they pass the winter clinging in great masses to the trees, there fly each spring time enormous numbers of Monarch or Milkweed butterflies, laying their eggs as they go and populating the whole of North America as far as Hudson bay with their kind. In the autumn all still surviving collect in great bands and migrate South to begin the cycle anew.—Gas Logic.

Pattern 1812—Little Miss Two-To - Five can manage her own dressing with the aid of this frock that buttons down the front. She will be the picture of daintiness too, with such clever aids as princess lines, puff sleeves and an intriguing little collar. The one piece step-in is the essence of practicality—a great boon to the youngster's comfort. This ensemble is available in sizes 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 3 requires 2½ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

Pattern 1998—This new dress "belongs" in almost any company. Its great simplicity will endure it to homemakers, and business women alike. It is a combination of charm, good lines and youthfulness. You'll want two versions of this style—one with short sleeves, the other with long. Pique, silk crepe or velveteen will serve nicely as the material. It is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material, with long sleeves 4¾ yards.

Pattern 1938—Daytime distinction takes on a new meaning in this super - styled frock. This is a dress which is adequate for every occasion—save the strictly formal.

Available for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material. The collar, jabot and belt in contrast take ½ yard.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

SLEEP SOUNDLY

Lack of exercise and injudicious eating make stomachs acid. You must neutralize stomach acids if you would sleep soundly all night and wake up feeling refreshed and really fit.

DOLLARS & HEALTH

The successful person is a healthy person. Don't let yourself be handicapped by sick headaches, a sluggish condition, stomach "nerves" and other dangerous signs of over-acidity.

TAKE MILNESIAS

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acid. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls of milk of magnesia. Thin, crunchy, mint-flavor, tasty. 20c, 35c & 60c at drug stores.

HEARTBURN?

Its surprising how many have heart burn. Hurried eating, overeating, heavy smoking, excessive drinking all lead to heartburn. When it comes, heed the warning. Your stomach is on a strike.

MILNESIA FOR HEALTH

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acids, gives quick, pleasant elimination. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls milk of magnesia. Tasty, too. 20c, 35c & 60c everywhere.

ommendation resulted in the first county health unit in the United States. Today we have hundreds of health units and one of their major activities is the prevention of typhoid fever epidemics in a community. Our own district health unit, financed largely by the Children's Fund of Michigan, is actively interested in the prevention of typhoid especially in our own district, comprised of Iosco, Ogemaw, Oscoda and Alcona counties.

"Typhoid fever is preventable. No case develops except when it is carried from another case or by a carrier, and is acquired either by direct contact with such a person, or by the use of water, milk or some other food contaminated by his discharges. Therefore, how prevent it? By proper care of every case of carrier, to stop further spread of the organism that causes the disease; by strict supervision of the water, milk and other food supplies; by taking the utmost precautions in the sick room of a typhoid case; in scrupulous cleanliness and disinfection.

"The cause of the disease, the typhoid bacillus thrives in the human intestine, having gained entrance to the body through the mouth. It leaves the body in the discharges from the bladder and bowels. Persons who have recovered from typhoid fever sometimes harbor and give out typhoid fever bacillus for long periods of time. These so called "carriers" are always a possible source of infection.

"Protection against typhoid can be best secured by inoculation with typhoid vaccine. Three treatments given by a physician at weekly intervals will make a person immune to the disease for approximately three years. Ask your family physician about typhoid inoculation."

Donkeys Seldom Shy
It is explained that the reason horses shy at unexpected sounds or at sight of strange objects while their relative, the donkey, doesn't is chiefly hereditary, says Pathfinder Magazine. Horses are descended from ancestors that roamed the plains where clumps of grass or bushes perhaps concealed danger. On the other hand, donkeys are descendants of hill animals to whom surefootedness and slowness were a necessity in traveling steep paths and precipices. Natural enemies were fewer and a sudden start of alarm might have been fatal.

By the Trout Specialist
Old Man Winter must be trying to play an April Fool joke, for the weather of the past few days has been such that it seems the weatherman had his dates mixed. For us, Christmas Day turned out to be exactly as it was a year ago when we spent the holiday at the little bay at Lund, British Columbia, where such days are the rule, rather than the exception.

Sheep owners and all conservationists can be thankful that at last a movement is underway to really do something about coyotes, rather than put up with the damage they do every year. It is this writer's humble opinion that it would be cheaper to get rid of them in the next two years, regardless of the cost, than to attempt some halfway measure that would only reduce their numbers, and have to be continued year after year. British Columbia paid a $40 bounty on cougars and had them reduced to the extent that few bounties had to be paid. They thought it best to economize, however, so quit paying the bounty for five years. The beasts became numerous, so they put on a bounty of $20. This costs them more than when the bounty was $40, to say nothing of the annual damage done by the vicious cats. Michigan might learn something from British Columbia's mistake.

Some guys from the city seem to think that there is oil under this neck of the woods, and are going to dig a hole in the hope of finding it. We can't figure out whether they know their onions—or just think they do.

Paul and John Myers of Saginaw spent Christmas here.
