TAWAS FAMILY MEET DEATH NEAR DAVISON

Auto-Train Collision Fatal to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lange and Two Children

Icy roads and poor visibility on last Sunday afternoon caused an auto-train collision which was fatal to all of the members of the Lewis Lange family of this city. The accident occurred at the Grand Trunk crossing on Davison road. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lange, their four months old son and Bethel Rempert, 12 year old daughter of Mrs. Lange by a former marriage. Mrs. Lange was killed instantly. Mr. Lange and the baby lived only a few minutes after the accident. Bethel was taken to Hurley hospital, in Flint where she passed away Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Lange had been visiting relatives at Pontiac. When the accident occurred they were returning to Tawas City. The roads were very icy and they met with difficulties when their car turned over in the ditch about 27 miles from the scene of the fatal accident. The car was righted and they pushed onward. Mr. Lange, who was employed at the Huron National Forest, was anxious to get home to go on duty the next morning. When approaching the crossing, Mr. Lange followed another car. The oncoming train was not observed on account of the poor visibility until a collision was unavoidable on account of the ice on the road.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church in Millington, and burial was in the Millington cemetery. Many relatives and friends in this community were in attendance.

Lewis Lange was born May 31, 1909, in Tawas township. He was married to Mrs. Beulah Rempert, on January 13, 1934. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lange of Tawas township, two brothers, George Lange of Pontiac and Clarence Lange of Detroit, and two sisters, Mrs. James Styles of Wilber township and Mrs. George Wojahn of Tawas township.

Mrs. Beulah Lange was born December 24, 1906. She is survived by her parents, John Springer of Glenzie and Mrs. Grace Springer of Millington and one brother, Elmer Springer. Bethel Rempert is survived by her father, Albert Rempert, of Tawas township.

Practical Horsemanship Course Offered at MSC

A one week course in Horsemanship and Showmanship will be conducted at Michigan State College, March 8th to 12th, 1937. This is an intensive and practical course. The student will first be instructed in the art of shoeing and horsemanship. He will then be supervised in the actual performance.

Many farmers are forced to do their own horsemanship. This course is designed to give the amateur enough of the basic principles and sufficient practice during the week to enable him to trim a hoof properly and to shape and nail a shoe. In addition to this, some time will be devoted to the making of simple repairs on farm machinery, sharpening plow points and drag teeth, making clevises, whiffle trees, eveners, and neck yokes.

Instruction and practice during the week should enable owners of colts to learn the art sufficiently to do their own work in braiding and decorating manes and tails, training for the ring and safe-guarding the animals health through proper feeding both before and after the fair season. Those interested will register at 9:00 A. M. Monday, March 8, at the College Farm Blacksmith Shop. Clothes suitable for work in the blacksmith shop, or for work in handling horses should be worn. Rooms at the Barracks will be available at $1.00 for the four nights. Each student will need to bring his own sheets, blankets, pillow, towel and soap. Furnished rooms may be procured at $2.50 per week by calling at room 1, Wells Hall Monday night at 11:00 o'clock.

We have some boys in Isco Co. who could well afford to be present, and are worthy of being in attendance.

Isco 4-H Clubs Have 194 Members; 30 Clubs

The 4H club activities of Isco County have continued to progress until to date there are 194 boys and girls from thirty different clubs enrolled in winter club work. Of number 95 people are carrying handicraft projects, 90 are studying the art of proper seamstressy, while 9 are enrolled in hot lunch clubs.

One year ago now there were 162 club members enrolled in these projects. This represents an increased enrollment of about 20% or 32 members more this year than a year ago. Of the 194 members, 117 are first year people, 60 second year, 11 third year, 4 fourth year, 1 fifth year and 1 seventh year members.

The annual spring achievement day which concludes the winter program of work and at which each member exhibits the articles that he or she has completed during the winter months will be held at the Community Building in East Tawas on Wednesday, April 7th. The day's program will be under the supervision of the 4H Club leaders committee who are formulating plans for the day. The committee recently announced that the club members who complete their projects by April 7th will have the opportunity of seeing Will Rogers in "Dr. Bull" at the Family Theatre in East Tawas.

With achievement day being held one month earlier than that of previous years, club members are being encouraged by their local leaders to finish their work as soon as possible so that high quality of work will be one of the main features of all entries.

Community Observes World Day of Prayer

A community observance of the world day of prayer was held at the East Tawas M. E. church on Friday, February 12th.

Mrs. W. C. Davidson directed the interesting part of the program, including special prayers for the church universal.

The work of the Isco Council of Christian education was presented by Mrs. Helen N. Shattuck, and a generous offering was received for the council.

In a talk on the theme, "Thou art the Christ, the son of the Living God," Mrs. S. A. Carey emphasized the power of the minority, when that minority is linked with the living God. The disciples of Jesus were but a few humble followers, but their teaching and example have molded the course of the world.

Mrs. F. E. Kunze sang three beautiful sacred numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clyde Creaser.

RED CROSS THANKS PEOPLE OF COUNTY

To the Citizens of Isco County: I wish to thank each and every one for their loyal support in their contributions for the Red Cross Flood Relief. Our first quota called for $45.00, the next day we were asked to double this amount and then the following day we were asked to raise all that we possibly could.

We have raised up to the present time $889.70. I think that this is exceptionally fine for Isco County. Each locality, Oscoda, Whittemore, Hale, the Tawas and the surrounding townships have rallied to this cause in a wonderful way.

Some have wondered why we have not been interested in gathering used clothing. Our Chapter is working directly under the St. Louis office and the National Red Cross organization, with its years of experience going through these things year after year, is very careful in making requests for assistance. Anyone donating, regardless of how small an amount, can rest assured that every penny reaches the source for which it was intended.

At the start of this drive for flood relief funds, I was approached concerning the sending of used clothing to the refugees and sent the following telegram to the main office: "Do you need clothing, what kind and how should we send it."

And their reply was, "All clothing needs being met in affected areas and Red Cross concentrating on fund appeal effort."

Later a letter was received stating that any clothing taken in should be cleaned, repaired and renovated before sending it on to them. These were our reasons for not asking for clothing for the Red Cross.

A letter just received from the main office dated February 16th stated that a total of $20,946,000.00 had been paid in at this time.

I wish to thank those in each locality who have so willingly given their time in soliciting for this cause. I am sure that we are all glad that we have been able to help those who have been so much in trouble.

Sincerely,
W. A. Evans, chairman.
Isco Chapter, American Red Cross.

F. E. BERNARD FOUND DEAD LAST NIGHT

Throat Had Been Cut With Knife; Apparently Suicide

Frank E. Bernard, a prominent Isco County farmer, was found dead yesterday evening at one of his farms south of Hale. His throat had been cut and he was lying near a stack of hay. He had been in poor health and it is thought to have been suicide.

Mr. Bernard, who resides in Hale, had been at the farm for several hours and when he did not return at the anticipated time, members of the family went to search for him. He had been dead only a short time when found.

The deceased was about 68 years old and had been a resident of Plainfield township for more than 25 years. He is survived by his wife and one son, David Bernard, postmaster at Hale.

Convict Eludes Police In Hectic 4-County Chase

Bernard Helsel, escaped convict, slipped through the fingers of the law and affected an escape yesterday from capture near Hale, according to reports yesterday. Helsel secured a ride to Standish with an unsuspecting bread truck driver and then disappeared.

Helsel escaped from Jackson prison on last July. He had been convicted of robbery armed. Since escape he is thought to have been hiding much of the time in the vicinity of the Duval Lodge, five miles west of Hale. Last week in a flight from Flint, Helsel, with another escaped convict, Vernon Bowers, stole a Ford car at Bay City and went to a farm house near Gladwin. Helsel fled with the car when Sheriff Roy Cowell of Gladwin wished to question them about the car. Bowers was placed in the county jail. In the chase which followed, Helsel abandoned the car and disappeared. Sheriff Cowell then called for State Police aid.

Helsel apparently hitch-hiked to Bay City and stole a Buick sedan. From there he drove north to Rose City where he was spotted by State Police Sunday night. The latter gave chase and the fugitive left the car and took to the woods when almost caught. Trooper Merwyn Mitchell of West Branch fired at him but Helsel disappeared.

About 30 officers including State Police, Sheriff John Moran, Sheriff John Johannes of Arenac County and a number of deputies formed a dragnet and searched the entire north-west end of the county Monday and Tuesday. In the search it was discovered that he had eaten dinner on Monday at the Wheeler home west of Hale. This was his last appearance until picked up by the truck driver.

When questioned by the State Police, the truck driver described his passenger and the description tallied with that of Helsel.

VAN WAGONER SPOKE HERE YESTERDAY

Opens His Campaign With Address to Isco Voters

State Highway Commissioner, Murray D. VanWagoner, launched his campaign for re-election with a speech yesterday at the courtroom at Tawas City. The courtroom was filled to capacity and the audience, observers said, was about equally divided with Republicans and Democrats and he was well received.

Commissioner VanWagoner said, "The Highway Department under my administration has been keenly interested in stimulating the tourist business and much of its program has been planned along those lines. Before coming here I was told that Tawas City and Isco County appreciated this stimulant. If this appreciation is expressed in terms of votes on April 5th, then I may well hope in launching this campaign that as Tawas goes, so goes Michigan."

"This is the first of 64 cities of Michigan I expect to visit outside of Wayne County in my campaign for re-election. The campaign will carry me into every section of the state. This is enough to show that I plan a vigorous personal campaign for the support of the people."

"I do not mind confessing that I like my job. Oh, I might tell you you don't want to be kidded. The main reason why I am here today is that my work pleases me. It offers a fine opportunity for public service and permits an intimate contact with people in all walks of life. So I'm going to do everything I can do within the next six weeks to retain that job."

Comm. VanWagoner reviewed the accomplishments of the department during his administration. He said that 1,075 miles of highway had been hard surfaced during that time, that there had been 364 miles of gravel construction and 308 miles of concrete.

Consumers Power Plans Extensive 1937 Program

Details of a $13,500,000 construction and improvement program by the Consumers Power Company were announced yesterday by Dan E. Karn, vice president and general manager.

The immediate construction of a steam electric generating plant of 98,000 horse power on the outskirts of Bay City on Saginaw Bay is the largest single item on the program. It is expected that the first unit will be in operation June 1, 1938.

A total of $3,706,000 has been set aside for rural electrification, with estimates calling for more than 2,780 miles of rural line to connect nearly 16,000 new customers.

Electric department estimates call for the expenditure of $1,820,000, while gas department improvements will cost approximately $1,107,000. About $27,000 will be required for the heating department and $600,000 will go for buildings, furniture, fixtures and other general items.

The company contemplates an increase of 21,200 electric consumers and 10,700 gas customers this year. This will bring the total number of electric customers to 385,600 and gas customers to 193,000.

Garbo-Taylor In Camille At Family, Feb. 23-24-25

The coupling of Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor for "Camille" proves to have been a stroke of screen genius.

Produced by MGM with George Cukor directing and a brilliant cast in support, the Dumas love story is an ideal vehicle for the two most glamorous stars of modern screen-play. The picture will be shown for three days, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, February 23, 24, 25 at the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

Garbo as Dumas' immortal "Lady of the Camellias," performs her finest role, perhaps because she is so essentially lovely and mysterious that her own personality blends with that of the exotic Parisian woman who sacrificed luxury and even life itself for love.

The brilliant cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Elizabeth Allan, Jessie Ralph, Henry Daniell, Lenore Urie, Laura Hope Crews, Rex O'Malley, Russell Hardie and E. E. Clive, all of whom give performances of stellar calibre.

General Motors Strike Ended, Both Sides Yielding—Opposition to President's Supreme Court Plan Increases—Great Plains Drouth Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

BOTH sides making concessions, the General Motors strike came to an end in what Governor Murphy of Michigan called "an enduring peace." Operations of the great corporation had been paralyzed for 43 days, and the losses to it in business and to workers in wages had been immense. Partly through the skillful efforts of James F. Dewey, veteran federal labor conciliator, John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., and other union leaders, and the officials of General Motors were persuaded to modify the defendant stands they had maintained through eight days of negotiations in Detroit, and the governor was enabled to announce the settlement.

Under the terms of the agreement: 1—The corporation recognized the union as the collective bargaining agency for those employees belonging to the union.

2—The corporation and the union agreed to commence collective bargaining negotiations on February 16.

3—The union agreed to end the strike and evacuate all plants occupied by strikers.

4—The corporation promised to resume operations in all strike-bound or idle plants "as rapidly as possible."

5—All employees are to return to work without discrimination against strikers.

6—The union agreed that pending negotiations there will be no other strikes or interference with production.

7—During existence of the collective bargaining agreement contemplated, all opportunities to negotiate shall be exhausted before any other strike or production interference is attempted by the union.

8—After evacuation of plants the corporation agreed to dismiss the injunction proceedings started by the corporation against the union or any members in Flint, Mich.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, whose own efforts to end the strike were futile, was highly gratified by the settlement. She gave out a statement praising the leaders on both sides for their give and take spirit and complimenting Governor Murphy on his success. Probably considerable credit should be given President Roosevelt, who kept constantly in close touch with the situation and talked with the conferees by telephone from the White House.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S proposals for legislation that would permit him to pack the Supreme court have met with such widespread and determined opposition, even from many members of his own party, that it was suggested to him that he accept certain modifications. These include appointment of Supreme court justices only when those over seventy-five do not retire, and limitation of the number a President could thus appoint during his term to two. His plan as submitted to congress would enable him to name six new members of the court if the present six justices who are over seventy do not retire voluntarily.

Mr. Roosevelt announced to the correspondents that he was quite aware of the controversy he was confronting but would not back down on his demand for the legislation as outlined in his message.

It is probable that the President can get his measure through the house without great trouble, but a hot fight against it is certain in the senate. So far the Republicans in congress haven't had much to say on the matter, for the Democratic opponents of the scheme are vociferous enough to suit the G. O. P. It is said there is a good chance that the senate judiciary committee, headed by Ashurst of Arizona, will report unfavorably on the measure in so far as the proposal for increasing the membership of the Supreme court is concerned. The other parts of the President's plan, designed to expedite the work of federal courts, do not meet with much opposition.

Probably the scheme will be separated into several bills; and indeed that already has been started, for Representative Summers of Texas, chairman of the house judiciary committee, introduced a bill providing for voluntary retirement for Supreme court justices with full pay at the age of seventy. This was passed quickly by a vote of 315 to 75.

CONCLUSIONS of the great plains drouth committee were laid before congress by President Roosevelt, the report being accompanied by a special message in which the President urged the development of a "new economy" in the vast area between the Alleghenies and the Rockies to save the region from the effects of future drouths. Views on President's Plan to Enlarge Supreme Court

Senator Byrnes—I'm for it. Senator Nye—I think the President has hit upon a most ingenious method of speeding up the work of our tribunals.

Senator Vandenberg—I am opposed to tampering with the Supreme court.

Senator McAdoo—The President's message receives my unreserved commendation.

Senator Capper—I am certainly opposed to increasing the number of Supreme court judges for the purpose of allowing the executive during any one administration to control the decisions of the Supreme court.

Senator Hale—Should his recommendations be followed, I can see no hope of an independent Supreme court.

Senator Gerry—I'm definitely opposed to the President's proposal in regard to the Supreme court.

Senator Thomas—I think it is a timely and happy solution of a perplexing problem.

Representative Snell—This is pretty near the beginning of the end of everything.

Representative Fish—The message is political hypocrisy.

Speaker Bankhead—The plan for adding additional judges is a sound policy.

Senator King—I am unalterably opposed to it.

whole matter, said Mr. Roosevelt, dovetails into the proposed six year public works program.

The great plains committee suggested for the federal government:

1. A ten year program of additional investigations and surveys.

2. Continued acquisition of land in range areas with rehabilitation as the objective.

3. Measures to increase size of farms too small for efficient operation.

4. Development of water resources.

5. Resettlement within and without the region.

6. Compensation to local governments where federal land acquisition results in shrinkage of the local tax basis.

7. Control and eradication of insect pests.

8. Exploration of possibilities for developing other resources, such as vast lignite deposits to provide alternative occupation for some of the people in the area.

Similar action was suggested for states with the addition of suggestions for legislation to permit formation of county soil conservation districts, encouragement of co-operative grazing associations, revision of the taxing system to take account of land income and assistance to farmers in meeting water problems.

For local co-operation the committee suggested crop rotation, creation of feed and seed reserves against dry years, conservation of moisture, supplemental irrigation, fuller utilization of springs and wells, planting of trees and shrubs as windbreaks and flexible cropping plans to permit adaptation of each season's crop to the amount of moisture in the land.

BARCELONA, capital of the autonomous Spanish state of Catalonia, was bombed by a Fascist warship, and the Catalan council of state immediately decreed a new mobilization to meet the threat of an insurgent attack. It also ordered the strengthening of fortifications and set up a superior defense council.

Following the capture of the important Mediterranean coast city of Malaga by General Franco's Fascist troops, a general clean up of loyalists there was started. Gen. Gonzalo Quijedo de Llano, rebel commander in southern Spain, announced over the radio that more than 150 leaders and military officers of the government had been arrested and executed after trial. He said an attack would soon be made on Valencia, the loyalist temporary capital on the east coast.

France was vexed by the reported assistance given the Fascists by Italians in the taking of Malaga, and renewed her threats to intervene in behalf of the government unless Italy and Germany ceased their active support of Franco.

The long drawn out siege of Madrid continued, but there was some important development when the insurgents, attacking with infantry and tanks from the south, threatened to cut the highway to Valencia, the capital's only remaining line of communication with the outside.

ELIHU ROOT, one of America's most eminent lawyers and statesmen, died in New York at the age of ninety-two. Intensively active all his life, he did not cease his activities until he was attacked by pneumonia two weeks before his death.

By intellectual brilliancy Mr. Root became admittedly the leader of the American bar, and he was actively interested in many societies devoted to the arts and sciences, peace and education. During a half century of public service he held many high offices.

SEEMINGLY confident that his government is now safely established, President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico issued a decree granting amnesty to all political offenders, under arrest for or accused of rebellion, sedition or other subversive activities. Under special powers given him by congress he quashed 3,841 court proceedings against more than 10,000 persons accused of antigovernment plots or acts.

Former President Calles, who was exiled nearly a year ago, said in San Diego, Calif., that he did not consider himself included in the amnesty.

SOLUTION of the farm problem, as devised by agricultural leaders who have been in conference with Secretary Wallace, is based on Mr. Wallace's ever-normal granary plan. It would operate on these four stages:

1. Soil conservation payments would be continued until production balances demand.

2. When a surplus in any commodity is grown, the government would offer farmers loans at market prices for storage of the commodity in bins.

3. If the surplus continued, soil benefit payments for removal of acreage from cultivation would be increased.

4. Should surpluses increase to 10 or 15 per cent above demand the government would impose taxes on excess production to force acreage reduction.

Officials said no definite plan of taxation has been worked out.

DESCRIBING it as a flood control measure, Senators Albion W. Barkley of Kentucky and R. J. Bulkley of Ohio introduced a bill in the senate designed to create seven federal "authorities" with powers similar to those of the Tennessee Valley authority. Together with the TVA, these would cover the entire United States. The measure is in accordance with the President's suggestions for regional authorities to co-ordinate flood control, power, reclamation and rehabilitation work.

As for the current flood, the people in the stricken regions were turning to the task of rehabilitation. Self supporting residents of Cairo who had been evacuated were permitted to return to the city, and martial law was lifted from the southern counties of Ohio and Indiana. The levees along the lower Mississippi were standing up well under the strain.

Contributions to the American Red Cross flood relief fund were nearly up to $20,000,000, twice the sum originally asked.

DOMESTIC manufacturers persistently refuse to offer bids on the steel that the navy needs for its warship building program. President Roosevelt wants to know why this is, and so far he has found out that the Walsh-Healey government contract law is to blame. That act requires that all manufacturers filling government orders in excess of $10,000 shall comply with minimum wage and maximum hour standards.

Since the act became effective last year, the navy has advertised for bids on 25,000,000 pounds of steel but has been able to place orders for only 7,000,000 pounds.

Spokesmen for the Navy department indicated no further bids would be asked until the industry has recorded its position or unless the Labor department moves to relax the labor standard provisions of the law.

THE house passed and sent to the senate a resolution extending for three years the President's power to negotiate trade treaties with foreign nations irrespective of congressional approval. Some Democrats voted against the measure and were applauded by the little body of Republicans. The revolts were led by W. P. Connery of Massachusetts, who hails from a textile city, and J. Mark Wilcox of Florida, whose district is noted for its vegetables. Both said the opposition was based on complaints from their constituents.

OUT of San Francisco bay divers were dragging the bodies of victims of the latest aviation disaster. A transport plane of the United Airlines crashed into the water when only a short distance from the air field, and all its occupants, eight passengers, two pilots and a stewardess, perished.

A German military plane fell in a busy street in Berlin and five persons were killed.

The bureau of air commerce in Washington recommended 11 new safety measures to be taken by air lines in an effort to prevent future air crashes. The recommendations were based on findings made by the recent conference on air safety which was attended by pilots, airline representatives, and members of the bureau.

SEEMINGLY confident that his government is now safely established, President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico issued a decree granting amnesty to all political offenders, under arrest for or accused of rebellion, sedition or other subversive activities. Under special powers given him by congress he quashed 3,841 court proceedings against more than 10,000 persons accused of antigovernment plots or acts.

Former President Calles, who was exiled nearly a year ago, said in San Diego, Calif., that he did not consider himself included in the amnesty.

ELIHU ROOT, one of America's most eminent lawyers and statesmen, died in New York at the age of ninety-two. Intensively active all his life, he did not cease his activities until he was attacked by pneumonia two weeks before his death.

By intellectual brilliancy Mr. Root became admittedly the leader of the American bar, and he was actively interested in many societies devoted to the arts and sciences, peace and education. During a half century of public service he held many high offices.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Lansing—Contrary to public opinion, the Emergency Relief Commission indicated recently that the automobile strikes had caused but a slight increase in Michigan's welfare burden.

Newberry—With raw fur prices at the highest level in seven years, trappers are again on the trail of Michigan's fast disappearing fur bearers. Fox, mink and other are fast reaching extinction and the closing of many areas by the Conservation Department is seen as inevitable.

Pontiac—Fuzzy, a Persian cat owned by Mrs. John Simon, disdains fish, scorns meat, but does on raw potatoes, tomatoes, sweet pickles and bran flakes. The feline vegetarian refuses to touch milk or any other pussy diet when he can spot a raw vegetable. His mistress claims that Fuzzy several times has ripped open a sack of potatoes in quest of a toothsome meal.

East Lansing—Farmers learned of the arts and wiles of the beauty parlor recently, when Edwin Smiley, Michigan State College herdsman, roped the wildest bull in the college herd and tossed it to the ground for a manicure. He explained that many valuable herd sires, sacrificed prematurely because their hoofs became flattened, could be saved by a hoof trimming.

Clio—Dinah, 100-pound Great Dane who guards the cream station and poultry farm of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hardman here, is chicken hearted. A tender guardian, Dinah will overtake a fowl with the wanderlust, pick it up gently in her jaws and bring it back to home territory. Dinah has never yet harmed one of the dozens of chickens who have strayed from the farm.

Bath—A gasoline engine here recently completed a thirty-year grind and still functions perfectly. Victims of an old-fashioned horseless carriage may be dismissed, as this engine of ancient vintage is used to turn the machinery in the Bath Farmers Elevator. In operation since 1906, it has ground 42,000,000 pounds of grain and has turned the machinery which has cleaned 92,000,000 more pounds.

Jackson—Successful tests were made recently of the first 4,000 feet of a concrete conduit through which the Grand River will course in this City's business section. WPA workmen are now constructing a second section. The tube is 10 feet high, and the river now has plenty of space for expansion. In the event of a flood, the water will flow over the top of the conduit and down the rip-rapped sides of the old river bed.

Pontiac—The Biblical admonition that the sins of the father are visited upon the son has no legal standing, according to a court ruling here. A Canadian sought American citizenship. During the proceedings, a relative brought out the fact that the would-be citizen's great grandfather had committed some prank against the law. However, the judge ignored the alleged sins of the applicant's ancestor and granted naturalization.

Ann Arbor—The University of Michigan, seat of many notable advances in learning, has a new wrinkle in feminine styles. Fad-setting co-eds are wearing shoes to match the shoes to be low-heeled white summer oxfords. Further sleuthing brought out the fact that mild winter weather has made crossing of the campus a nautical problem, and the lower-heeled, heavier shoes furnish the needed protection.

Buchanan—One of the few remaining Michigan orchards of Sheep's Nose or Black Gillyflower apple trees has been chopped down for firewood. The orchard, covering 22 acres, was planted 75 years ago on what is now the F. A. Harrington farm. The Black Gillyflower is a stranger on today's apple market. The fruit has a purple hue and is conical in shape. A protuberance like a lip on the end of the blossom, gave the fruit its odd name, the Sheep's Nose.

Flint—Recent strike disorders here was old stuff to Sandy, on duty with the Third Squadron, 106th Cavalry, of the Michigan National Guard, a chestnut-colored horse with a wise look in his eyes, was born in 1910 and his military record states that he saw active service overseas. In 1920, Sandy was transferred to the National Guard, and has been on duty since. He is afraid of only one thing, thunder, a fear created by the heavy artillery during the World War.

Croswell—Does arbutus have an odor? Facing that dilemma, the botany class of Croswell High School set out on a mid-winter expedition to find the answer. A little animal with a white stripe was spied. One daring student heaved a rock at it. Maybe zoological students would understand, but how could students of botany know anything about species Mephitis mephitica (more popularly known as skunk)? At any rate, due to the pervasion of a more pungent fragrance, the arbutus hunt was postponed.

East Lansing—Michigan State College officials place attendance as high as 50,000 at the recent "Farmer's Week." The affair was generally described as the most successful week in history.

Battle Creek—Calhoun County will likely hold first place per capita in national flood contributions to the Red Cross. With a set quota of $785, contributions passed the $36,000 mark, aided greatly by a check for $25,000 from the W. K. Kellogg Company.

Elkton—Tacked over the door of the stable on the Albert W. Bailey farm is a horse shoe worn by Bold Venture last year when he won the Kentucky Derby. Farmer-Publicist Bailey does not say whether this is a subtle suggestion to his herd of purebred Herefords to win more first prizes, or just an overture to Lady Luck.

Lansing—A flour mill, relic of Michigan's earliest settlers, located at the North Lansing Dam, is to be razed this spring. The structure has been in constant use for more than 100 years and was originally one of the largest mills in Michigan. Its framework is made of massive cork pine timbers and the walls of the same material.

Laingsburg—A problem that should be solved by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis is troubling the Ray Merrill Scott family. It seems that nine sons have been born in succession, making a complete lineup for a baseball team. The boys are known locally as the "Scott nine" and a ruling is sought as to what to do should there ever be a girl in the family.

Lansing—On the subject of predatory animals, the Michigan Conservation Department recently gave the opinion that the timber wolf will never become numerous in the state, and that their range is confined to the Upper Peninsula. It was pointed out that the timber wolf is more difficult to trap than the coyote, as it will often cover from 20 to 30 miles in a single night.

Jasper—Michigan's latest museum piece is the half-ton, horse-drawn hearse which Lewis A. White used in his undertaking business for more than 40 years. Replaced by a modern motorized vehicle, its sole use now is by political parties, who delight in using it in an election night burial ceremony for their opponents. The hearse is seven feet high, was used in more than 1,000 funerals between 1878 and 1922.

East Lansing—Michigan State College soil experts have announced the development of a new strain of beets which is high in sugar content, despite the fact that it is grown in muck soil. In the past, beet sugar companies have been reluctant to purchase muck-grown beets because they were generally deficient in sugar. The new beet, however, has shown 15 to 16 per cent of sugar, a content considered satisfactory.

Traverse City—Like a modern Horatio Alger hero, William Gillam, in less than two years, rose from a store clerk to world singer. Gillam, one-time music instructor and organist, attracted attention from Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., officials, by his singing ability. Enrolling as a student, he soon became a member of the Asbury Ambassador Quartet, which toured the United States last year and now is on a world tour.

Pontiac—Spikehorn Meyer, spry 84-year-old bear and elk fancier, while en route to Detroit, recently enlightened an appreciative audience on how to find one's way about a large city. Spike parked his coupe in front of the police station, dug out 300 pounds of live bear meat from the rear of the car. After detectives had treated the animals to chocolate peanuts, Spike revealed that while in the city, if you'll travel by compass bearings, you'll never be lost.

Croswell—Once one of the most popular spots in the community, a haven for picknickers and music lovers who came to hear band concerts, the civic park on the banks of the Black River has become a virtual "No Man's Land." A page from flood areas was written when spring freshets inundated the flats and the park became infested with mosquitos. Soon the area was abandoned and now is used only as a short cut by children on their way to the school across the river.

Mt. Clemens—William Fink, 37, has driven automobiles, trucks and busses from coast to coast and border to border for 23 years without an accident. During this period, Fink has developed definite ideas on traffic accident prevention and the proper operation of an automobile. He believes that rigid enforcement of laws, severe tests of all entrusted to drive a car, and the use of common sense on the part of the driver would cut the accident toll greatly.

Mt. Clemens—Automatic stokers may be a boon to the householder, but they have become a bane to the City Fathers here. The City is in the throes of a shortage in clinkers, which are used by the street department for filling in mud holes. In the good old-fashioned days, every furnace had its clinkers and the City was able to buy them by the ton for practically nil. Now, the new modern appliances grind the ashes to a dust, useless for street repairs, and the City has had to pay a high price for cinders.

The President and the Court

Washington.—More perhaps than ever before in our country's history, the courts of the nation, federal and state, are in a jam. They are being subjected to a greater strain than ever before and, I think, the strain is too great for them long to continue to bear it.

That sentence sounds sensational. It is meant to be. In the opinion of many sound thinkers, men and women of vision, there has never been a time when a wave or surge has attacked the courts or any other American institution with such ferocity.

One of the reasons the situation is to be regarded with so much concern is President Roosevelt's latest request of congress for a reorganization of the judiciary system. He is asking for more judges everywhere which, of itself, seems entirely proper, but the message astounded observers by proposing an increase in the membership of the Supreme court of the United States to fifteen. That is to say that if it were enacted into law, Mr. Roosevelt's own proposal would give him authority to select six additional justices of the highest tribunal. Inasmuch as the present membership of the court has refused a number of times to hold New Deal legislation valid under the Constitution, it takes no stretch of the imagination at all to figure out that Mr. Roosevelt's proposal would give him authority to select a sufficient number of new justices so that the New Deal would hold the balance of power in the highest court of the judiciary of the country.

There may be and probably is merit in the President's proposal that judges should retire at seventy years of age. It happens that the present membership of the court includes six men who are above that age and a statute compelling retirement at seventy would make six added vacancies in the court unless the present court should find that this law itself is unconstitutional in one regard. The judges are appointed for life and they cannot be removed without cause—which means they must be impeached by congress and tried.

The message respecting reorganization of the judiciary system was by far the most sensational to come from Mr. Roosevelt as President. He pointed out in it that he had proposed reorganization of the executive branch of the government so that it might function more efficiently. The next step, he said, was to reorganize the judiciary so that it could administer justice more speedily. But there are many minds throughout the country which find it difficult to believe that the necessity for speedy justice is the fundamental reason for the new proposal.

It is too early to tell, of course, how congress will act on the President's suggestion, but the more astute observers here are quite convinced that such legislation cannot go through without a bitter debate. The political implications are many. If a real struggle develops in the house or the senate, it is not outside the range of a good guess to predict that it could split the tremendous Democratic majority asunder in either house. If it did that once, undoubtedly enemies and factions would be created that would continue through the remainder of the President's new term and only the passage of time can disclose how far reaching such a thing might be.

But let us review for a moment some of the background of the conditions that have preceded the President's sensational proposal. There have been sniping and bushwhacking at the judiciary for a number of years and this was thrown into high speed by the President himself when the Supreme court threw out the NRA. On that occasion, Mr. Roosevelt made the well remembered remark that the decision had taken us back to "the horse and buggy days."

There followed an uproar by a vocal minority of radicals and persons who claimed to be liberal. They attacked the Supreme court for throwing out New Deal measures, ridiculed the justices as "the nine old men" and proceeded in general to spread poison to all and sundry about the country's judicial system. On top of that came Mr. Roosevelt's speech to congress last month in which he made a virtual demand upon the Supreme court for "a more enlightened interpretation of the Constitution." That was an unprecedented thing but it was not nearly so sensational as the present proposal.

Much of the problem that is swirling around the courts of the land results from the position which congress has chosen to take. There are a goodly number of representatives and senators who, swayed by the vocal minority mentioned earlier, have voiced bitter criticisms of the judiciary and have even proposed that its freedom be curbed. They are doing this because they see the Supreme court deciding every now and then that some ill-thought-out piece of legislation should be tossed out of the window. A good many of these congressional shouters have only a slight understanding of the bubble that they put out on the floors of the house and senate, but the fact remains they are a part of the congress and hence their words are received with some consideration among those who want to believe the same way.

On the other hand, there are men like Senator Borah of Idaho, who foresee real trouble for all of us if the powers of the courts are curbed. Senator Borah thinks the question of the freedom of the judiciary is a paramount issue and lately has made a powerful appeal that if the people want to make changes in their government, the people ought to do it and not the President and the congress.

The Idaho senator makes the point that only through a judiciary unfettered by politics, free to operate as it sees the law, can the people of the country retain their freedom. If judicial independence goes, liberty goes. So, it seems to me that congress, which just now is the spearhead of the movement to change the power of the courts, ought to recognize its own responsibility.

I said earlier that the courts could not continue long to bear the present burden of attack. That burden which they carry now results largely—and this is especially true of the Supreme court of the United States—from the fact that congress has ceased to be a deliberative body. It has tossed great chunks of undigested legislation at the courts and when the courts have held these laws unconstitutional, a bunch of nitwits each time has unleashed a great howl. It would seem then that the proper conclusion is that the nine old men are not older nor any less enlightened than the members of congress or the executive branches of the government but that especially congress is failing to do its job. It is attempting to read election returns into the judiciary. It seems to me it ought to be remembered by members of congress and officials of the executive branch of the government that each and every one of them has taken an oath as an official of this government to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution and in so doing they must defend the courts.

In any discussion of congress and its activities, I find time to do a little laughing.

Laughs Are Loud Today Through the last several weeks, a period when floods were raging and people were dying, when thousands upon thousands walked the streets without jobs, when other thousands walked the streets because a militant labor leader had called a strike and had permitted his strikers to violate laws of the land by seizure of property—while all of these things were happening, our congress was giving thought to a picayune proposition. It was discussing a bill providing for alterations of the Capitol building, itself.

The tragedy of this particular thing is that it has a very good chance of being enacted into law before the end of this session. It is proposed to spend four or five million dollars to extend and reconstruct the central portion of the Capitol along lines that would make the three east wings extend the same distance from the main building. It would enlarge the central portion and provide more office space when, as far as any observers can see, there is ample space for all of the offices required now or for the next half century.

I said the tragedy of the thing was that this proposal stands a fair chance of passing through congress. Sponsors of the plan declare it will improve the appearance of the central portion of the old building. It may do that but I have found more architects who disagree than agree with that thought.

As for the office space argument, it would appear that somebody in congress is quite determined simply to spend some more money. It is to be remembered that only two years ago, the house of representatives built a second office building at a cost of $9,000,000 for its members. About the same time, the senate added a wing to the senate office building so that each senator could have three rooms whereas heretofore the average senator had only two rooms in his suite. Committee chairmen always have had three or more rooms. In addition, there are several hundred offices in the Capitol building itself and a goodly number of senators and representatives have private offices in the Capitol as well as in the office buildings. So altogether, I think there is just ground for saying, as one hears said frequently, that the congresses of the last few years much resemble boys who have received too many toys in one delivery. They don't know what to do with themselves.

Over Mt. Everest

Aviators have succeeded in flying over the top of Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world. Rear Admiral P. F. M. Fellowes, D. S. O., rose to a height of 34,000 feet in a temperature ranging down to -76 degrees Fahrenheit in 1934. In his flight over the mountain he cleared the peak by a bare 100 feet. The Houston Mount Everest flight cleared the peak on April 3 and 19, 1933.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists."

Holdout Technique of Cards, Yankees Provides Contrast

There probably are other ways in which the business heads of baseball's two most efficient firms perform their daily chores. At this season, though, it is the manner in which they manipulate their holdouts that provides the most enlightening contrast.

Branch Rickey of the Cards is a prime exponent of the "let's raise hell before we sign the papers" school. Even when not blessed with such a gifted debating opponent as Dizzy Dean he is a firm believer in the benefits to be obtained from airing salary squabbles in press, news reels and any other available public forums.

Ed Barrow of the Yankees long has been convinced that unballooned negotiations provide the best results. Now and then—as during the later years of Ruth—Cousin Ed yields to the temptation of a fine fanfare of publicity during the weeks immediately preceding the signing of a contract. But the blather surrounding such yieldings only serves to convince him the more that regular methods are the best. Immediately thereafter he returns to the policy of offering a fair price.

But the fact that such high-salaried notables as Ruth and Dean usually are pretty close to a meeting of minds with the management before all parties start yelling in the papers—probably is the reason why few business managers take the winter furor seriously. Several big-time clubs are notorious for paying pitiful wages, but, in general, the average is high. So, because an Eddie Roush comes along very seldom, the magnates are happily fortified.

Roush never could have proved his point as easily as a Hubbell, who might give evidence that the added customers at one Sunday game are sufficient to pay his annual salary. But Eddie knew he was worth $100,000.

Once he held out most of the summer before Cincinnati met his terms. At other times he may have remained away from spring training merely because the shifting sands of Texas and Florida did not agree with his aging dogs. But all the while he knew he was worth $100,000 and since the days of the lamented Chris von der Ahe no club-owner has been willing to sacrifice a sum merely to humor a stubborn whim. So Eddie got his way.

Apart from the Dean-Rickey advertisement and one or two other carryings-on of similar nature this winter's show of holdouts seems considerably below the usual ballyhoo par. Most of the boys—although as one who likes to see greedy and mismanaging owners clipped for extra dough now and then I make this statement sadly—seem to have a little heart in their demands as Hank Leiber did twelve months ago.

Public prints reported the big outfielder as threatening to coach baseball at Arizona university rather than sign the contract offered by the Giants. Hank is a valuable young player and, even though the Giants' terms seemed very decent, this is a world which favors a guy getting all he can.

In the midst of his most violent protestations he made one mistake, though. He kept writing to friends in New York asking how the Giants were reacting to his demands. This definitely revealed a chink in his armor. So, having heard the gossip which may or may not have reached Horace Stoneham's ears, I was not surprised to see Hank walk into a Pensacola hotel only a few days late.

Rocky Mountain basketball teams usually travel long distances in autos for their league games. Panhandle A. & M. recently finished a 450-mile auto trip and won a one-point victory. Last winter the Utah Aggies left for a 135-mile auto trip at 8 a. m. and didn't arrive until 9 p. m. because of snowdrifts, slides and cold weather. Then they climbed out of the cars, put on their uniforms and won by a big score to clinch the championship. The pioneer spirit still prevails. . . Only three members of the Hershey hockey team remain in the town during the off-season. Lloyd Blinco works as an assistant golf pro, while Audley K. (Tut) is an accountant with a college degree and Russ Russell keeps in trim in the lumber yard.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

EARLY baseball odds make the Browns, Phillies and A's 200 to 1. . . Helen Jacobs, Peggy Scriven, Dorothy Round, Jesse Owens and most of the basketball stars bear out physicians' claims that most good athletes have flat feet. . . Pedro Montanez, the Puerto Rican lightweight, wears bright red shoes while working out in the gym. . . Women played basketball almost as early as men. In fact, they started one month after Dr. James Naismith invented the game in 1891. . . Mort Lindsay, captain of the Jack Dempsey team in the coming national ten-pin championships, has participated in 27 of the A. B. C. tournaments. . . The U. S. G. A., always whining about being mistreated in the papers, has a publicity department that is tops in nuisance value.

Gents who persist in saying that Joe Louis needs extra tape and bandages for his oversize paws, should take a look at the Bomber some time. Actually he has very small mitts for a heavyweight. . . One reason for Minnesota's gridiron success is that 9,000 candidates turned out for the university's intercollegiate and intramural athletic teams during 1936. Of these 400 were candidates for the frosh football team and 233 for the varsity. . . Rev. Reginald Ferrier is president of the American Mouse Fanciers' association, a new organization. . . Umpire Bill Dineen was surprised, and elated, to discover a big increase in his American league contract. . . Fourteen members of the 1936 Columbia varsity and junior varsity crews will be available again this year.

Hockey gossips say that the poor showing of the amateur Rovers is due to jealousy among the players. The boys remember inter-town and inter-sectional feuds in their native Canada and so team play is sacrificed in one of those "every man for his own self" scrambles. Russ Russell, Hershey wing, has not missed one of the more than 140 games played since he joined the B's. . . Lucien Gagnon, the Hershey goalie and a protege of the famed Georges Vezina, stopped 99 out of 100 shots while helping the Quebec Beavers win the Allan Cup in 1932. . . Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers, is one of the nation's best story tellers and can sing a bit, too.

Bill Terry's Son Won't Follow Dad's Footsteps

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, has a son at the University of Virginia, who doesn't participate in athletics. . . Fred Frick, son of the National league president, confines his DePauw university sporting attention to golf.

Joe Falcaro, former match game bowling champion, has a sixteen-year-old son whose footwork and other actions on the alleys are ringers for those of his old man. . . Hungary, England, Bohemia, Germany and Norway provided the ancestors for the members of Marquette's varsity basketball five. . . Al Barabas, who scored Columbia's Rose Bowl touchdown against Stanford, has given up the notion of being a lawyer. Instead he is selling accident insurance along with Ivan VanBree, former Colgate track captain.

A new combine from the West has joined Jack Pfeffer in an effort to oust Jack Curly from local wrestling, proving that some people never learn. . . Dr. Bier examined a fighter at Pompton Lakes the other day and asked him if he was suffering from amnesia. "I never touch it," declared the pug. . . Gunboat Smith is head runner for a Wall Street house. . . Doctors keep telling Tony Canzoneri it will be a boy. . . Johnny Dundee never misses a local fight and thinks he can still beat most of the local scrappers. . . Aldo Spoldi is a regular Metropolitan Opera patron when not belting over lightweights. . . After delivering two knockouts in a row, Indian Quintana feels so much better that he will demand another chance at the bantamweight titleholder. . . One reason why Promoter Bill Johnston is topping all the 35-year-old records at St. Nicholas Palace is a very good press agent.

Members of the Kokomo high school basketball team became so indignant after losing five straight games that they demanded Coach Al Campbell change his methods. The coach merely told the boys not to come out to practice any more and awarded their uniforms to new candidates. . . Paul Mishler, Bloomington H. S. center, and Jim Butler, Decatur Central H. S. (both of Indiana), wear No. "00" on their basketball jerseys. But in spite of having plenty of nothing, they're both high scorers.

Jimmy Johnston, Jr., who took plenty of short-end dough on the Pastor-Louis battle, provides the following list of historic encounters where long-price layers walked the plank: Dave Shade vs. Jimmy Slattery, Willie Jackson vs. Johnny Dundee, Ace Hudkins vs. Ruby Goldstein, Billy Petrolle vs. Jimmy McLarnin, Jimmy McLarnin vs. Sid Terris, Tony Canzoneri vs. Jimmy McLarnin, Jim Braddock vs. Tuffy Griffiths, Jim Braddock vs. Baer, and Schmeling vs. Louis.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Washington's Colonial Home

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S colonial home, Mount Vernon, has not been a residence for many years, nor has it been owned by a member of the Washington family for three quarters of a century, says the Washington Star.

Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, daughter of John Augustine Washington, the illustrious Washington's great-grandnephew, was the last private owner of the estate. She first saw the world from the most historic home in America in 1856.

Though General Washington's slaves, numbering more than 150, were freed by his will, his nephew, Bushrod Washington, who inherited Mount Vernon, John Augustine Washington Bushrod's nephew, and his son, John Augustine Washington, Jr., who in turn fell heirs to the estate, were slave owners.

Today, survivors of the last generation of negro folk born in the slave quarters of the old manor are proud that their slave parents served in the ancestral home of the Washingtons. Somehow, they give realism to the farm which George Washington owned and which they helped to care for, as young men. These white-haired men declare there never was any depression at the old farm where the nights were festivals with the singing of "Roll, Jordan, Roll," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "Steal Away to Jesus."

George Washington, who is said to have been worth several hundred thousand dollars in today's values, had a salary of $25,000 a year during his presidency and added resources brought to him by his marriage with the rich Martha Custis. With such wealth he was able to keep his estate of 8,000 acres in fine condition. This was despite the fact that he was constantly entertaining visitors.

By the time the property was inherited by John Augustine Washington, his nephew, in 1829, the plantation had been reduced to 1,225 acres, only about 100 acres of which were suitable for farming. When his son, John Augustine Washington Jr., came into possession of the estate in 1860, after his mother's death, he realized that such wealth as his great-uncle George had possessed was required to restore Mount Vernon and maintain it in its former splendor.

According to tradition a Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina, who was a Potomac boat passenger about the time when John A. Washington wished to sell Mount Vernon, became so impressed with the tolling of the bell and the historical importance of George Washington's home that she became active in working for the purchase of the estate.

In 1858 the organization she had formed as the Mount Vernon Ladies' association of the Union contracted to buy the mansion and the patriotic appeal of the women and the efforts of Senator Edward Everett of Massachusetts, who toured the country and raised $68,294.59, Mount Vernon was actually purchased in 1860 for a shrine. Then the Washington family left the estate.

With breaking out of the Civil war, Miss Cunningham appealed to the commanders of both armies to preserve Mount Vernon. As both General Scott and General Lee gave orders that no armed man should enter the estate, the shrine was self-protected, the only neutral spot in the United States.

For several years members of at least four families of the Mt. Vernon slaves remained to care for the place, in the employ of the association. Some of the children grew up there and a few of the adults stayed long enough to gain the title of "aunt" or "uncle," which was a typical Southern respect for an aged negro.

For a while after the war visitors to Mount Vernon are said to have practiced such vandalism that they wrote their names over its walls and ceilings. Plaster was removed by those who cut pieces of laths as souvenirs, and even glass was broken in the cupola by those who wished to take away pieces of the famous home.

Today Mount Vernon, a national shrine, is a perfectly preserved plantation with mansion, greenhouse, kitchen, servant's quarters, coach house, smoke house, dairy, spinning house, carpenter's house, gardener's house and plantation office.

Perhaps the estate's closest touch with Washington are the beautiful trees in the grounds near the mansion which were planted either by General Washington or by his direction.

If the ancient ashes, beeches, buckeyes, hemlocks, coffee beans, elms, lindens, mulberry and the many venerable holly trees could speak, they would tell much about George Washington's life as a country gentleman.

America's most famous home, Mount Vernon, underwent not one but two major enlargements during the ownership of the First American who believed apparently, that the first duty of an American citizen to his family was to provide a comfortable home, according to a writer in the Washington Post.

When first built, about 1743, the Virginia home was an unpretentious plantation house of one and one-half stories, comprising the central section of the present mansion.

FIFTY YEARS AGO the telephone in Michigan was a laboratory curiosity. Today it is the instrument of a tremendously valuable, widespread public service. This development represents the practical working out of the vision of the telephone pioneers. Their avowed goal was — the best possible service at the lowest cost — consistent with financial safety. For half a century that policy has guided the telephone's destiny. It motivated every improvement and expansion; it was behind all the many reductions in rates. And that far-sighted policy applies just as strictly today as it did two generations ago.

Water Must Be Distilled

Naming Wall Street
Wall street owes its name to Peter Stuyvesant, who in 1652 as governor of the little Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam ordered a palisade built on the site to protect the town from invasion of the English. The last of the wall was removed in 1699 and both sides of the street were quickly built up.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment" advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and counseling that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son Floyd and his pony cousin, Woodie Swift, are addicted to horse-racing.

"You know this Floyd Garden well?"

Vance nodded. "Fairly well. He's a member of the Far Meadows club and I've often played polo with him. He's a five-goaler and owns a couple of the best ponies in the country. I tried to buy one of them from him once—but that's beside the point. The fact is, young Garden has invited me on several occasions to join him and his little group at the apartment when the out-of-town races were on. It seems he has a direct loud-speaker service from all the tracks, like many of the horse fanatics. The professor disapproves, in a mild way, but he raises no serious objections because Mrs. Garden is rather inclined to sit in and take her chances on a horse now and then."

"Have you ever accepted his invitation?" asked Markham.

"No," Vance told him. Then he glanced up with a far-away look in his eyes. "But I think it might be an excellent idea."

"Come, come, Vance!" protested Markham. "Even if you see some cryptic relationship between the disconnected items of this message you've just received, how, in the name of Heaven, can you take it seriously?"

Vance drew deeply on his cigarette and waited a moment before answering.

"You have overlooked one phrase in the message: 'Equanimity is essential,' he said at length. 'One of the great race-horses of today happens to be named Equanimity. He belongs in the company of such immortals of the turf as Man o' War, Exterminator, Gallant Fox, and Reigh Count. Furthermore, Equanimity is running in the Rivermont Handicap tomorrow.'

"Still I see no reason to take the matter seriously," Markham objected.

Vance ignored the comment and added: "Moreover, Doctor Miles Siefert told me at the club the other day that Mrs. Garden had been quite ill for some time with a mysterious malady."

Markham shifted in his chair and broke the ashes from his cigar.

"The affair gets more muddled by the minute," he remarked irritably. "What's the connection between all these commonplace data and that precious phone message of yours?" He waved his hand contemptuously toward the paper which Vance still held.

"I happen to know," Vance answered slowly, "who sent me this message."

"Ah, yes?" Markham was obviously skeptical.

"Quite. It was Doctor Siefert."

Markham showed a sudden interest.

"Would you care to enlighten me as to how you arrived at this conclusion?" he asked in a satirical voice.

"It was not difficult," Vance answered, rising and standing before the empty hearth, with one arm resting on the mantel. "To begin with, I was not called to the telephone personally. Why? Because it was some one I know. To continue, the language of the message bears the earmarks of the medical profession. 'Psychological tension' and 'resists diagnosis' are not phrases ordinarily used by the layman, although they consist of commonplace enough words. To go another step, the message obviously assumes that I am more or less acquainted with the Garden household and the race-track passion of young Garden. Therefore, we get the results that the sender of the message is a doctor whom I know and one who is aware of my acquaintance with the Gardens. The only doctor who fulfills these conditions, and who, incidentally, is middle-aged and cultured and highly judicial—Currie's description, y'know—is Miles Siefert. And, added to this simple deduction, I happen to know that Siefert is a Latin scholar—I once encountered him at the Latin society club-rooms. Another point in my favor is the fact that he is the family physician of the Gardens and would have ample opportunity to know about the galloping horses—and perhaps about Equanimity in particular—in connection with the Garden household."

"That being the case," Markham protested, "why don't you phone him and find out exactly what's back of his cryptology?"

"My dear Markham—oh, my dear Markham! Siefert would not only indignantly repudiate any knowledge of the message, but would automatically become the first obstacle in any bit of prying I might decide to do. The ethics of the medical profession are most fantastic; and Siefert, as becomes his unique position, is a fanatic on the subject. From the fact that he communicated with me in this roundabout way I rather suspect that some grotesque point of honor is involved. Perhaps his conscience overcame him for the moment, and he temporarily relaxed his adherence to what he considers his code of honor. . . . No, no, that course wouldn't do at all. I must ferret out the matter for myself—as he undoubtedly wishes me to do."

"But what is this matter that you feel called upon to ferret out?" persisted Markham. "Granting all you say, I still don't see how you can regard the situation as in any way serious."

"One never knows, does one?" drawled Vance. "Still, I'm rather fond of the horses myself, don't y'know."

Markham seemed to relax and fitted his manner to Vance's change of mood.

"And what do you propose to do?" he asked good naturedly.

Vance looked up whimsically.

"The public prosecutor of New York—that noble defender of the rights of the common people—to wit: the Honorable John F. X. Markham—must grant me immunity and protection before I'll consent to answer."

Markham's eyelids drooped a little as he studied Vance. He was familiar with the serious import that often lay beneath the other's most frivolous remarks.

"Are you planning to break the law?" he asked.

"Oh, yes—quite," he admitted nonchalantly. "Jailable offense, I believe."

Markham studied him for another moment.

"All right," he said, without the slightest trace of lightness. "I'll do what I can for you. What's it to be?"

Vance took another sip of the Napoleon.

"Well, Markham old dear," he announced with a half smile, "I'm going to the Gardens' penthouse tomorrow afternoon and play the horses with the younger set."

As soon as Markham had left it that night, Vance's mood changed. A troubled look came into his eyes, and he walked up and down the room pensively.

"I don't like it, Van," he murmured, as if talking to himself. "I don't at all like it. Siefert isn't the type to make a mysterious phone call like that, unless he has a very good reason for doing so. It's quite out of character, don't y'know. He's a dashed conservative chap, and no end ethical. There must be something worrying him deeply. But why the Gardens' apartment? The domestic atmosphere there has always struck me as at least superficially normal—and now a man as dependable as Siefert gets jittery about it to the extent of indulging in shillin'-shocker technique. It's deuced queer."

He stopped pacing the floor and looked at the clock.

"I think I'll make the arrangements. A bit of snoopin' is highly indicated."

He went into the anteroom, and a moment later I heard him dialing a number on the telephone. When he returned to the library he seemed to have thrown off his depression. His manner was almost flippant.

"We're in for an abominable lunch tomorrow, Van," he announced, pouring himself another pony of cognac. "And we must torture ourselves with the viands at a most ungodly hour—noon. What a time to ingest even good food!" He sighed. "We're lunching with young Garden at his home. Woodie Swift will be there and also an insufferable creature named Lowe Hamble, a hony gentleman from some obscure estate on Long Island. Later we'll be joined by various members of the sporting set, and together we'll indulge in that ancient and fascinating pastime of laying wagers on the thoroughbreds."

He rang for Currie and sent him out to fetch a copy of the Morning Telegraph.

"One should be prepared. Oh, quite. It's been years since I handicapped the horses."

Although I was well aware that Vance had some serious object in lurching with young Garden the following day and in participating in the gambling on the races, I had not the slightest suspicion, at the time, of the horrors that were to follow. On the afternoon of April 14 occurred the first grim act of one of the most atrocious multiple crimes of this generation. And to Doctor Siefert must go, in a large measure, the credit for the identification of the criminal, for had he not sent his cryptic and would-be anonymous message to Vance, the truth would probably never have been known.

I shall never forget that fatal Saturday afternoon. And aside from the brutal Garden murder, that afternoon will always remain memorable for me because it marked the first mature sentimental episode, so far as I had ever observed, in Vance's life. For once, the cold impersonal attitude of his analytical mind melted before the appeal of an attractive woman.

CHAPTER II

Shortly before noon the next day we arrived at Professor Garden's beautiful skyscraper apartment, and were cordially, and a little exuberantly, greeted by young Garden.

Floyd Garden was a man in his early thirties, erect and athletically built. He was about six feet tall, with powerful shoulders and a slender waist. His hair was almost black, and his complexion swarthy. His manner, while easy and casual, and with a suggestion of swagger, was in no way offensive. He was not a handsome man: his features were too rugged, his eyes set too close together, his ears protruded too much, and his lips were too thin. But he had an undeniable charm, and there was a quiet submerged competency in the way he moved and in the rapidity of his mental reactions.

"There are only five of us for lunch, Vance," he remarked breezily. "The old gentleman is fussing with his test-tubes and Bunsen burners at the university; the mater is having a grand time playing sick. But Pop Hamble is coming—and we'll old bird, but a good sport; and we'll also be burdened with beloved cousins in Woodie. You know Swift, I believe, Vance. Queer crab, Woody."

He pondered a moment with a wry face.

"Can't figure out just how he fits into this household. Dad and the mater seem inordinately fond of him—sorry for him, perhaps; or maybe he's the kind of serious, sensitive guy they wish I'd turned out to be. I don't dislike Woodie, but we have little in common except the horses. Only, he takes his betting too seriously to suit me—he hasn't much money, and his wins or losses mean a lot to him. Of course, he'll go broke in the end."

Vance had been watching Garden covertly during this rambling recital of domestic intimacies.

"I know you hate mysteries, and there's apt to be some funny things happening here this afternoon," Garden continued. "Woodie has been acting queer for the past couple of weeks, as if some secret sorrow was gnawing at his mind."

"Any specific psychopathic symptoms?" Vance asked lightly.

"No-o." Garden pursed his lips and frowned thoughtfully. "But he's developed a curious habit of going upstairs to the roof-garden as soon as he's placed a large bet, and he remains there alone until the result of the race has come through."

"Nothing very unusual about that," Vance made a deprecatory motion with his hand. "Many gamblers, d'ye see, are like that."

"You're probably right," Garden admitted reluctantly. "But I wish he'd bet moderately, instead of plunging like a fool whenever he's hot for a horse."

"By the by," asked Vance, "why do you particularly look for strange occurrences this afternoon?"

Garden shrugged.

"The fact is," he replied, after a short pause, "Woody's been losing heavily of late, and today's the day of the big Rivermont Handicap. I have a feeling he's going to put every dollar he's got on Equanimity, who I undoubtedly bet the favorite. . . . Equanimity! He snorted with undisguised contempt. "That rail-lugger! Probably the second greatest horse of modern times—but what's the use?"

He looked up solemnly.

"And that, Vance, means trouble if Equanimity doesn't come in. It means a blow-up of some kind. I've felt it coming for over a week. It's got me worried. To tell you the truth, I'm glad you picked this day to sit in with us."

"Very interestin' situation," commented Vance. "I agree in the main with what you say regarding Equanimity. But I think you're too harsh, and I'm not convinced that he's a rail-lugger because of an innate passion for wood. . . . But as you were sayin', the psychological situation hereabout has you worried. I gather there's a super-charged atmosphere round this charmin'erie."

"That's it, exactly," Garden answered almost eagerly. "Super-charged is right. Nearly every day the mater asks, 'How's Woody?' And when the old gentleman comes home from his lab at night he greets me with a left-handed 'Well, my boy, have you seen Woody today?'"

Vance made no comment on these remarks. Instead he asked in a peculiarly flat voice: "Do you consider this recent hyper-tension in the household due entirely to your cousin's financial predicament and his determination to risk all he has on the horses?"

Garden started slightly and then settled back in his chair.

"No, damn it!" he answered a little vehemently. "And that's another thing that bothers me. A lot of the golliwogs we're harboring are due to Woodie's cuckoo state of mind, but there are other queer invisible animals springing up and down the corridors. I can't figure it out. The mater's illness doesn't make sense either. And there's a funny business of some kind going on among the gang that drifts in here nearly every afternoon to play the races."

Hell Everybody

"Hurting Death" By FLOYD GIBBONS

ERNE SMITH claims he's the only man that has ever done it. Way back in 1895 Ernie took a ride and he doesn't think it has ever been duplicated. Since that day people have learned to cruise around in automobiles, and airplanes, and submarines and whatnot, but Ernie professes to be the only man in the world who ever took a ride on—a rock!

Ernie lives in Waltham. He's reached the age of discretion now, and he doesn't go whooping around in the country on rocks anymore, but when he was sixteen years old—well—it seems he didn't much care what he traveled on.

In those days he lived in the little town of Vinalhaven, Maine, and had a job working for a fellow named Coombs who ran a small boat building establishment down by the water front.

Blasting Solid Rock to Make a Cellar.

Coombs was just building his shop at the time this all happened. He had the foundation laid and was nailing down the floor. Just across the street, a fellow named Carnes was conducting some building operations too.

Carnes was digging a cellar—blasting it out of solid rock. And Ernie and Coombs, plugging away on their own carpenter job, worked to the tune of intermittent thunder as Carnes set off one blast after another.

Carnes set off several blasts without giving them a word of forewarning, but one fine summer day he yelled across the street: "Hey, you boys better get out of the way. I've got a little more powder in here this time." So Ernie and Coombs lay down their tools and began looking around for a place where they would be under cover.

The water front at Vinalhaven started with a high sandbank. Below that was a narrow beach, and beyond the beach, mud flats stretched far out into the water.

Took Shelter in a Little Shack.

It was low tide and the mud flats were almost bare. At the edge of the bank was a fish house—a flimsy little shack ten feet long by eight feet wide—and a few feet away from that was a big, solid wood pile 20 or 30 feet long and well over six feet high.

Coombs and Ernie elected to stand in the shelter of the fish house. There, they thought, they would be out of the way of flying stones and bits of rubble that Carnes' blast might kick up. They gave Carnes the signal that they were under cover.

Coombs was sitting behind the little shed, but Ernie, who wanted to see the fireworks, was standing at the corner, where he could get a full view of the explosion. Carnes lit the fuse and ducked for cover himself. For a minute they waited. Then, suddenly, the air was shattered with a terrific roar!

"I was watching it with both eyes," says Ernie, "and I thought the heavens had fallen in. The very air itself seemed to rock back and forth. The sky was filled with stones—millions of them, of all sizes and shapes. But what struck terror into my heart was a great boulder that had shot up out of that pit and was coming straight for our shelter!"

Carried on a Huge Boulder.

That rock was a monster. When they measured it later they found it was four feet long two feet wide and more than two feet thick. But Ernie didn't need any measurements to see it was big—didn't need anyone to tell him that if it ever struck that flimsy shed behind which he and Coombs were standing it would splinter it to matchwood and knock the very tar out of the man and the boy behind it.

Ernie let out a cry and started to move. A few steps away was the woodpile, high and solid, and he started to run for that.

"But I never made it," he says. "Instead, the rock made me. It landed on a stone ledge beside our half completed boat shop, bounced off at an angle and came rocketing straight at me."

The next thing Ernie knew the rock was landing for its second bounce RIGHT AT HIS FEET. Ernie had presence of mind enough to jump, but the jump did him no good. Suddenly he felt the rock come up under him and he was being carried through the air.

After that, Ernie couldn't tell you exactly what happened. And small blame to Ernie for that. Coombs was standing behind the fish shed watching the whole business. He had his eyes glued on Ernie all the time, and he couldn't tell you exactly what happened either. All he knows is that he saw Ernie carried for THIRTY-TWO FEET out into the mud flats—they measured the distance afterward—and then the rock went on over the flats leaving Ernie behind flat on his back in the mud.

When Ernie got his bearings again he was in the mud. The rock was still rolling, twenty or thirty feet farther out. He saw it stop, and then he heard somebody on the bank cry out, "Carnes has killed the Smith boy!"

Not Dead "By a Darn Sight."

"But I lay there in the mud," says Ernie, "saying, 'Not by a darn sight he hasn't.' It took me a few moments to work my feet and hands clear of the mud, and then, to the surprise of a dozen people I got up and walked over the flats toward the sand bank."

"Not a man offered me a hand as I started to climb the bank. They just stood there petrified, looking as if a ghost was coming at them. But when I did get up they asked me what happened. No one seemed to know except Mr. Coombs, who had been watching me, and he wasn't any too sure himself."

Two doctors had just landed from a boat at a wharf close by, and they looked Ernie over. Except that his clothes were practically torn to ribbons and his right side had a few black and blue spots, they couldn't find anything the matter at all.

The next day Ernie went back to work again, and his first job was juggling ROCKS—clearing away about two tons of them that had come out of Carnes' excavation and showered all over Coombs' half-laid boat-shop floor.

Hands Reveal Character

Anyone who sits with hands loosely clasped in the lap is of a quiet, well-balanced mind, while the nervous person tries to control nervousness by tightly gripping the hands together, states a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. One who has a habit of clasping hands with fingers entwined is not keeping strictly to the truth, while one who partially covers the mouth with a hand while talking has certain knowledge, but is trying desperately not to reveal it. A person who remains seated while conversing with another who is standing finds it very difficult to tell an untruth and any attempt to do so is easily detected by the person standing.

Lavender Favorite Perfume

Lavender is one of the favorite perfumes the world over and enormous quantities of the dried flowers are used annually to make the perfume and other lavender products. The yield of oil varies from year to year depending on the weather and the age of the bushes. The plants are very tender to any frost. The oil has to be stored from three to five years before it is sufficiently matured for use in the perfumery and other trades.

Saint Bernard of Mastiff Family

Unlike many other breeds, the origin of the Saint Bernard is a bit hazy, but early historians have agreed this type of dog belongs to the Mastiff family. The ancient records produce evidence that Mastiff dogs were brought from Asia, and used by the Romans as herders of sheep, besides being kept as watch dogs at army outposts. It has also been established that Roman soldiers used large dogs to guide sheep over the mountain passes, one of which was called the Saint Bernard Pass, no more than a pack mule path. A hostile tribe destroyed this path and cut off travel over the mountains around 950 A. D.

Fen Eagles

Fen eagles were famous in the Eighteenth century for the quantities of fish they devoured off the Norfolk coast. One of them, shot down in Suffolk in 1810, measured nine feet across the wings. The high rewards given for their capture played a great part in their extermination. One hundred years ago, says the Montreal Herald, anybody who destroyed an eagle in the Orkneys was entitled to the gift of a hen from every household in the nearest village.

Being Afraid of the Dark

By Audrey C. Hayden

AS FAR back as I can remember I never was afraid of the dark. When I became a mother, I believed that there was no reason why any child should be afraid, and that if fear were never suggested in connection with darkness, it wouldn't occur to the child to be afraid. Darkness is a natural phenomenon, I reasoned, and one of which babies are not afraid.

Applying this theory, all went well with my own little girl, until something unfortunate happened. Either someone complimented my little three-year-old on her bravery, shown in going up to bed alone, or someone told an alarming story, or someone—well, no matter I don't know how it happened. This I do know: Jane began to say she was afraid of the dark—that frogs would get her.

Believe Fear Is Expected.

Now I really believe that most cases of fear of the dark on the part of children have no deep-rooted reason. When there is such a reason, if it can be found, of course very careful consideration should be given to reconditioning. But most children fear the dark because they have somehow imbibed the idea that it is rather expected of them—that if they are not afraid they are very brave, but if they are afraid it is nothing to be wondered at. The child having acquired the fear, there are two popular methods for exercising it. One is to attempt to get back to the original cause and explain that away; the second to overcome it by setting up artificial bravery.

I tried to reason with Jane, and showed her pictures of frogs to let her see how small they are, and also made a lot of "brave talk" about "a great big girl like you." But my efforts had no effect. Jane just cried and clung to my dress, and pulled me along with her to bed or the bathroom. She wasn't brave and wasn't going to be talked into it.

It seemed best to accede quietly. I took her to the bathroom and to bed for two or three weeks, and I did it as a matter of course. I made it a point, also, to walk from room to room without a light as soon as she was in bed. After going downstairs I would come up on an imaginary errand, and walk about again in the darkness. On several occasions, a little before bedtime, we took walks together, and sometimes we went down cellar in the dark, but always without any mention of its being dark.

When she spoke of frogs I said yes, I could see them too—that it was fun to be able to imagine things, wasn't it? And the best part was that since they weren't real, you could stop imagining them whenever you wanted to. Darkness Is Ordinary Condition.

Then one day I felt very ill and spent the day lying on the couch. When night came and Jane wanted to go to the bathroom I called her over and said, "Now, Jane, Mother is sick, so you will have to go alone." And she said, "Yes." "It will be dark in there, do you understand? And I cannot come in if you call me to turn on the light," I explained. She thought a minute and then said, "All right." When bedtime came, I undressed her and sent her up to bed alone, and then casually sent another member of the family up on an errand. Jane had the idea, though, that I was sending her alone to bed, and that the company and the light were merely incidental.

The next night I went to the bathroom, ostensibly to get something, making it appear accidental that I went when Jane was there. Then I sent her off to bed alone, casually. The next night I sent her to the bathroom and to bed in the dark without comment, and it has been a regular occurrence ever since. Did we get at the root of the trouble? That's hard to say since I never found out the beginning of the fear, but—we made the dark into a very ordinary, matter-of-fact condition.—National Kindergarten Ass'n.

Youth Finally Seeing China From "Iron Lung"

Movies and a Mirror Do the Trick for American.

Peiping, China. —Frederick B. Snite, Jr., of Chicago, the "man in the iron lung", whose courageous fight for life has attracted wide attention, is finally seeing China despite the fact he has not left his room in a Peiping hospital since he entered it last March.

WISDOM ROOSTS

This wise owl has a lugubrious air about him and no wonder. The bird is deeply attached to Charles Korner, of New York city, who found him in Bronx park and made a pet of him. But Charles, unable to care for the bird, took it to the Bronx zoo, where he is pictured just before he said good-bye to his feathered pal.

almost completely below the neck, he has held his grip on life for the last nine months through the aid of an artificial respirator, says the Chicago Tribune.

The dramatic story of Snite's existence in the "iron lung", which is on countless tongues in the Far East, is appended by the devotion of a friend and classmate at Notre Dame, who, through the magic of modern home movies, is bringing "the mountain to Mohammed."

Clarence J. Dillon, who was with young Snite and the latter's parents and sister on the world tour, remained in Peiping to comfort his stricken friend. Roaming far and wide, Dillon faithfully recorded with his movie camera the varied scenes his friend has been missing.

Then came the problem of how to show the films in Snite's hospital room. He lies supine in a big, air-tight metal cylinder, with only his head protruding. He cannot see the wall in front of him, and he could not endure the necessity of cramping his neck if the pictures were projected on the side walls.

At first it was believed the pictures could be shown on the ceiling above him, but that wouldn't work. A home movie projector must stand level. Then some one thought of a mirror and it solved the problem. One was propped up in front of his face and the movies were shown on the wall back of him. With that device he sees them plainly, although in reverse, which doesn't matter.

ning chatter of incidents that occurred while he was taking the pictures.

Parents at His Side. Throughout his illness the patient has enjoyed the presence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Snite, and his younger sister, Mary Loretto. His father, who is president of the Local Loan company of Chicago, has a residence at 909 Ashland avenue, River Forest, Ill.

The group, including Dillon, who graduated from Notre Dame with Frederick in 1933, left Chicago a year ago on a world cruise preceding young Snite's entering his father's business. Their ship was diverted from the Mediterranean owing to the Ethiopian war. Circling Africa, the travelers came to China, via Singapore.

Snite fell ill at Shanghai as he and Dillon prepared to fly to Peiping, where he was to rejoin the Snite family who went by train. Headaches were followed by dizziness aboard the plane. After being treated for a supposed cold, physicians diagnosed his illness as infantile paralysis.

The young traveler was rushed to Peiping Union Medical college, Rockefeller Foundation, the most modern institution in the Far East. Within a day the stricken young man was almost wholly paralyzed. He was placed in the "iron lung," medical marvel of the age. The family settled down in Peiping for a prolonged stay and a grim battle.

Sandusky, O. — In full regalia, Willie Ashley Williams, "the wandering fireman," wears enough badges to outfit a convention. And he has more at home.

Williams, formerly a San Francisco fireman, collects police and fire department badges as a hobby. He is traveling over the entire country in his search for new models, displaying his collection at every stop.

After 69 months on the road Williams has collected more than 3,500 badges from 22,000 cities and towns. Part of them he carries with him; part he has sent home. He estimates that he will have completed his nation-wide hunt within 10 months.

The Town of Notown Lives Up to Name

Westminster, Mass. — Notown, a community bounded by Fitchburg, Leominster, Princeton and Westminster, as early as 1771 was fighting against the fate indicated by its name. It then was annexed to Princeton, but two years later broke from this union.

The isolated community failed to prosper, however.

All that remains now is the name—and a few abandoned farms and gaping cellar-holes.

Government Takes Action to Stop Dope Smuggling

Marshfield, Ore.—A move to throttle dope smuggling activities along the rugged coast of southern Oregon will be initiated by the United States Treasury department by an increase in patrol boats, cutters and narcotic agents.

Two full-time narcotic men are stationed here now. Six more are expected to take up their duties under the new plan.

A squadron of five coast guard cutters and a number of re-w 80-foot patrol boats already in use on the eastern coast are to be transferred to Pacific waters to battle the drug trade and participate in other coast guard work.

The government recognized the seriousness of the dope smuggling trade along this coast last summer when six agents were assigned to various southern Oregon points.

With the co-operation of the Cutter Pulaski, the agents have discovered and broken up several contact points.

The drugs were being run by fast motor car to Portland, Seattle and San Francisco after being taken from Oriental ships and smuggled into isolated coves.

Treaties now permit Uncle Sam's coast guards to board foreign vessels 100 miles off shore to search for contraband.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 21 THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT — John 11:23-28, 32-44. GOLDEN TEXT — I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25. PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus' Friends Stopped Crying. JUNIOR TOPIC — With Jesus at Lazarus' Tomb. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — The Power of Jesus over Death.

Life, even to the follower of Jesus Christ, has its hours of sorrow, suffering, and bereavement. While the Christian is not "of the world," he is "in the world," and here he must meet the problems of life, including the evils to which the flesh is heir because of sin.

The fact that Jesus is our friend and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust Him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he does not come.

Why does he delay? Such is the heart-cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need but to trust him and abide his time. Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (11:7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part, he knows all. Let us trust him. Job in his darkest hour said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." (Job 13:15)

It is suggested that the lesson for today be studied and taught by considering three pairs of words giving cause and effect.

I. Death—Sorrow (vv. 32-35; also vv. 19-21).

Try as we may to temper its cruel blow, the fact remains that death is the enemy of man. It came into the world as the result of sin (Rom. 5:12), and only in Christ is it "swallowed up in victory" (I Cor. 15:54). Until the glorious day of Christ's returning when the redemption of the body will be complete (Rom. 8:23), death will still be the enemy which brings sorrow to the heart and tears to the eyes.

But let us not fail to notice that as the friends of Jesus we do not sorrow alone. He is with us. "Jesus wept" (v. 35) with Martha and Mary. He weeps with us in our trying hour. He is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

II. Faith—Hope (vv. 23-28).

Those who believe in Christ have more than the comfort of his sympathizing presence—they have a sure hope. Read I Thessalonians 4:14-18. Sorrow and unbelief would becloud our faith and thus rob us of our hope. Martha needed to have her faith stimulated by the gracious words of the Lord, and then she triumphantly put her hope in him as "the Christ of God." Once we recognize him as God, we have no hesitation in believing in his miraculous power.

III. Christ—Resurrection (vv. 25, 26, 38-44).

Majestic and authoritative are the words of Christ. "I am the resurrection and the life." He it was who gave life, for he was not "in the beginning with God"? And is it not said of him that "all things were made by him"? And Paul tells us that "by him all things consist." He is the only one who could say, "I lay down my life. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17, 18.) So it can rightly be said that if we have Christ we have everything—both in this world and in the world to come. But if we do not have Christ we have nothing. We are without God and without hope.

One can sense the urgency of the soul-winner's task, when this truth is known and realized.

Happiness and Love

Happiness is the legitimate fruitage of love and service. It never comes and never can come by making it an end, and it is because so many persons mistake here and seek for it directly, instead of loving and serving God, and thus obtaining it, that there is so much dissatisfaction and sorrow.

Life and Freedom

That life is only truly free which rules and suffices for itself.—Bulwer.

We've a Date to Sew!

OH GRACE, before you go—you're not in a hurry, are you—notice Mabel's slip.

Isn't that the one that you were telling the girls about at the Bid-Or-Bi club last week, Mabel?

Yes, it's my Sew-Your-Own and I'm real proud of it because it fits so smoothly. There's no bunchiness at the waistline or hips—it's fitted, you see—and yet there's lots of room around the bottom. And do you know how long it took me to make it—no self praise, but exactly two hours by the clock. I simply followed the pattern's instruction chart—as easy to do as to concoct a new dessert.

Tie, Buttons, Hat to Match.

It would be grand for a tailored dress like mine, wouldn't it, Mabel?

Just the thing! Are you off to the Civic League luncheon at the Hall? Your dress made up beautifully in that aquamarine, Grace. I'm crazy about it. The yoke-and-sleeves-in-one idea is swell and the black tie and buttons to match your hat make you look like Mrs. Merriweather herself.

Now, now, cut the rave. You know that neat-but-not-gaudy is my motto. Bye, I'll see you in print.

So long . . . Anne, since you like my slip so much, I'll be glad to help you make one like it, if you want me to.

That's lovely of you, Mabel, but would that sort of thing be right for a "Stylish Stout" like me? You should hear George when I call myself a "Stylish Stout." He says I flatter myself.

That Slenderizing Effect.

Leave it to the men! This slip would be especially good for you, Anne, because it's fitted and, George or no George, you look stylish in that dress you're wearing—but you DON'T look stout. The panel in front breaks the skirt line, and the jabot and collar do wonders for the "Buz-zum." It would be grand made up in a flowered print for Spring, Anne.

That very idea occurred to me. Why don't we get together tomorrow afternoon and sew—are you game? Come to my house. I baked a batch of oatmeal cookies today.

It's a date, Anne, I'll be over in the morning as soon as the kids are off to school.

School Notes

High School

Speech Contest

On Friday afternoon the sophomores will engage in a contest in declamation. Many of the selections are new, being given this year for the first time in our school. Some of the pupils have devoted so much time and effort to the preparation for this contest that the competition will be very keen.

On Tuesday afternoon twenty-two juniors and seniors will compete for honors in oratory, giving speeches they have written as a part of their composition work in English Four. The contest in extempore speaking will follow the delivery of orations. It is an interesting fact that four of the six contestants are participating in the contest for the benefit they may receive from the experience rather than for credit.

Through the courtesy of the National Forestry Service of the United States Department of Agriculture the high school was privileged to see three films, "Our Wild Life Resources," "Forest fire or Game," and "Pines from Seeds to Saw Logs," Wednesday afternoon. Herbert Zollweg of Class of 1934 was the operator who brought the pictures to the high school. Herbert has shown these films during the past two weeks before the Michigan State College of East Lansing, The Detroit Sportsman's Congress, The Rotary Club of Bay City and the Saginaw Valley Purchasing Agency. He believes that we are the first high school in Michigan to see these films.

7th and 8th Grades

Mary Sims has been absent this week. We enjoyed the pictures that were shown by the United States Conservation Department.

5th and 6th Grades

The pupils of our room were shocked to hear of the tragic death of Bethel Lang. She surely will be missed by everyone in our room. We have six new books. They are, "Indian Nights," "Little Tom," "Myths and Enchantment Tales" and "The Boy Who had no Birthday." Maxine DePotty is absent because of illness.

Lou Libka was the only fifth grader to receive a perfect score in a subtraction of fractions test Wednesday.

We enjoyed seeing the moving pictures on forestry Wednesday afternoon.

3rd and 4th Grades

We enjoyed our Valentine party Friday afternoon. Charles Curry, Wanda Wise, Henry Brown and Ardith Lake won prizes at games that were played. Thorald Curry, Nelson Ulman, Ernest Mueller and Jane Boomer were visitors. The third graders made Washington booklets this week.

Races Have Odor

It is quite possible that other races can detect the odor of the white race Denker, in his "The Races of Man," refers to the fact that certain travelers have asserted they could recognize a population by its odor. The author admits that some ethnic groups have their specific odor, which gets fainter with scrupulous cleanliness, but never disappears.

Wishing for the Moon

Have we any right to laugh at the child's wish for the moon? No wish could be more natural; and as for its incongruity—do not we, children of a larger growth, mostly nourish wishes quite as innocent—longings that if realized could work us only woe?—Lafcadie Stearn.

Chinese Jews

The only known Chinese Jews have lived in Kalfung, China, since 1163 A. D. For several hundred years, they kept their colony apart from the Chinese. Today, however, after numerous generations of intermarriage, the few who are left have almost entirely lost their original racial characteristics.—Collier's Weekly.

Syria

Syria is a former province of the old Turkish empire, which with Bulgaria, joined the central powers of Germany and Austria-Hungary. Syria was made an independent state by the Treaty of Sevres, August 10, 1920, and administered under the mandate given to France by the supreme council of the allied powers. The mandate went into force on September 29, 1923.

No. 1 Continued from the First Page

The state 4H club department is continually striving to aid local leaders in carrying out the social activities of club work. A committee of club leaders consisting of Miss Victoria Klisch, Miss Ella Ross and Miss Lulu Robinson will attend a district recreation meeting at Midland on Friday, February 26th, at which extension specialists from the Michigan State college and the United States Department of Agriculture will present recreational education that may be used in the 4H club groups of Iosco County, as well as in other social gatherings of non-club people.

grading and drainage structure. Included in this program $173,000 had been spent on highways in Iosco County.

Referring to the Huron Shore road he said, "I wish that I could stand before you today and say that the Huron Shore road is completed. It would be a noble achievement for any state highway administration.

"I can tell you, however, that you have no more sincere advocate of this highway than your state highway commissioner."

Great Dane Not Vicious

Despite the formidable appearance of the Great Dane it is one of the most gentle and trustworthy dogs in existence. Its size only inspires fear in certain people for there isn't a vicious trait in its entire make-up.

Lawyers on Witness Stand

The Code of Ethics of the American Bar association says that when a lawyer is a witness for his client, except merely as to formal matters such as the attestation or custody of an instrument and the like, he should leave the trial of the case to other counsel. Except when essential to the ends of justice, a lawyer avoids testifying in court in behalf of his client.

Not Two-Legged Kind

A mule detailed a passenger train near Sacramento. He was not the type of mule, however, who steps on the gas and clings stubbornly to the driving wheel.

Old Roman Hairpins

Ivory hairpins, found in London and dating from the Roman occupation, are snopped with the busts of Roman ladies of the empire. One in the British museum is adorned with a little statuette representing Venus wringing the water out of her hair after rising from the sea. Another is topped by an ivory hand holding a zone and encircled by a serpent.

Vieux Carre of New Orleans

The Vieux Carre of New Orleans is that section of the town whose limits correspond with those of the original city as laid out by La Tour and Panger in 1720. It was destroyed by fires in 1788 and 1794, and rebuilt mainly in the Spanish style.

Country Should Be Worthy

There ought to be a system of manners in every nation which a well-formed mind would be disposed to relish. To make us love our country, our country ought to be lovely.—Burke.

Fresh Air and Warmth

The public health service says that fresh warm air of a proper degree of moisture and free from appreciable draft is now recognized as essential to indoor workers. The old idea that a cold room necessarily contains fresh air and that comfortably warm rooms necessarily contain bad air has been discarded.
