The rock crusher plant, located The rock crusher plant, located near Whittemore and belonging to the Iosco County Highway Depart-ment, was badly damaged by fire Friday morning. It is estimated that the damage will amount to about $4,000. The fire is of unknown origin and started in the switch-board house. Watchmen on duty did not notice it until the building was a mass of flames. These were carried a mass of flames. These were carried by the wind to the crusher plant. The plant had been in operation for about 16 months and was equipped with the very latest in crushing machinery. The damage will dis-locate an extensive road building and improvement program planned by the Iosco County Road Commisson for this season.

Since the plant started more than 40,000 yards of road material have been produced from limestone. This material, after extensive tests under actual road conditions, has been proven superior to gravel in many ays.

Regional Forester Feted Here Tuesday

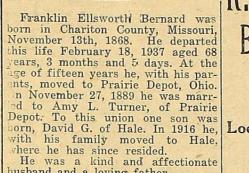

Regional Forester Lyle F. Watts as feted at a noon luncheon attendd by the entire personnell of the Huron National Forest at the Hotel Holland on February 23. The occas-ion was his first visit to the Huron since he took charge a year ago. In commenting on his impressions of the forest Mr. Watts stated, "The Pine plantations have survived well and it is doubtful if they can be equalled anywhere in the United States."

He also talked about the C. C. C. Safety program, emphasizing the prevention of "preventable accidents" and stating that every icrest in the region was cooperating to keep the accidents to an absolute minimun.

Mr. Watts left for Lansing in the afternoon to attend a conservation neeting in Lansing.

Bay City Builder's Show February 27 to March 7

This year the Bay City Builders show has fifty display booths and thirty-five different exhibits. It is not merely an exhibit of building materials, and it is not a salesroom, but it is a complete educational program from start to finish, showing gram. from start to finish, showing every conceivable modern item con-nected with building and completing a home. Every renter and home owner will profit by visiting these exhibits, showing built in bath rooms, different types of furnaces in operation, stokers, electric appli-ances, to compare all kinds of built in cabinets and lumber materials just as it would look in your own just as it would look in your own home. The visitor will also find ex-hibits on the latest advancements in insulation and refrigeration. Other booths will explain requirements for home loans etc. A few hours spent at the Builders Show will convince you that these statements are actual facts. During the 1936 Builders Show a record was kept of visitors and it was astonishing how far people had traveled to visit this exhibit.

SO FAR as the international non- $500,000,000 farm tenant bill now beintervention committee can do it, the war in Spain is now insulated. Representatives of 26 European nations agreed that no more volunteers for either side in the civil conflict should be permitted to enter the Iberian peninsula, effective at midnight February 20; and they laid plans for a complete blockade by land and sea that would prevent the importation of any more men or war munitions. Only Portugal dissented, objecting to establishment of frontier guards on her territory; Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Russia ignored the Portuguese protests and went ahead with the blockade plans, which are to be put into effect by

March 6. The decisions were reached after France delivered a virtual ultimatum to her fellow committee members to end their bickering and warned Italy she would not stand for "open invasion of Spain." The French were quick to place guards at all strategic points along the Franco-Spanish frontier.

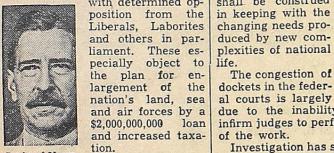

The international naval patrols presumably will not have authority to stop vessels suspected of carrying arms and men to Spain, but will report ship movements to the committee for action and will place observers on the vessels to check cargoes.

Supposing this blockade to be successful, it may well be that the Spanish civil war will die of inanition. Then may be brought about that which the international committee seeks-international mediation between the insurgents and the loyalist government.

For the present both sides are renewing their efforts for decisive victory. The fascists, still driving hard at the "life line" that connects Madrid and Valencia, also are attacking the capital itself again. Their airplanes made two night bombing assaults on the city and its environs, killing a number of persons; and their artillery constantly shells the highways to Valencia.

The loyalist government, at its temporary seat in Valencia, took a new mandate of absolute power from all Popular Front parties and mobilized all available man power to oppose the insurgent forces. All military classes of the last five years were drafted for imnediate war service.

R EPRESENTATIVES of the soft K coal operators met with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in New York to start negotiations for a new wage and hour agreement for 400,000 miners. Mr. Lewis said to the operators: "There is no friction in our industry. Peace dwells in the coal fields. I hope this conference will be successful in working out a new agreement without loss of time to a single worker."

Thereupon he presented the demands of the union, which were promptly dubbed "utterly impossible" and "quite amazing" by Charles O'Neill, president of the Eastern Coal Sales corporation. Chief demands made by Lewis are:

1. A six hour day and a five day week in place of the present work week of 35 hours. 2. An increase in daily wages from $5.50 to $6 in the north, and from $5.10 to $5.60 in the south. Time and a half for overtime

one of the fundamental foundation stones of demo-The People cratic government that where a civic Lose right or privilege is accorded, the persons who are granted those rights necessarily have some duty to perform under those rights. It is well established, for example, that workers may organize into unions; that those unions have the right to bargain collectively which means that a committee representing the members of that union may speak for it in dealing with the employers, and it is a right undoubtedly of unions to call its members away from work on strike. I think there can be no debate concerning these three premises. But since these rights have been granted to workers and accepted by them on the same inalienable basis as the right to vote, the obligations that go with these rights necessarily have been accepted by the workers. We have just seen a settlement of one of the great strikes of this decade and the return of more than one hundred thousand workers to the plants of the General Motors corporation. Immediately after Governor Murphy of Michigan, had announced that General Motors and John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization had reached an agreement, efforts surged and swelled in a movement on the part of each side to claim victory in the settlement. From all sources I have been able to tap, from every trustworthy observer of national affairs. I have obtained virtually the same story about the General Motors-C. I. O. strike settlement. As far as I can see after digesting all of the opinions within my reach, it seems to me that neither General Motors nor John L. Lewis won. What is much more important is that the American people lost by that strike and they are in a fair way to lose much more. The General Motors strike was one of the costliest in history. I am told that the workers alone lost something like one hundred million dollars in wages, and, of course, the stockholders of General Motors likewise lost because during all those days, forty-four of them, that the plants were closed, no new cars moved into trade. That means that all the thousands of dealers and salesmen of General Motors automobiles earned no income.

The truth about the settlement seems to be that each side was willing near the end Truth About to accept Gover-Settlement nor Murphys proposition for settlement as a face saving proposal. It is undoubtedly true that John L. Lewis would have been sunk without a trace and his movement to break up the American Federation of Labor and take control of labor for himself would have been utterly ruined had there not been some concessions by the General Motors officials. He apparently attempted to break up the A. F. of L. before he had sufficient union men weaned away from the parent organization and that is the reason why his position in the General Motors strike was so precarious from his personal standpoint. On the other hand, it is quite evident as well that General Motors was forced into a position where it had to make concessions or be charged by the federal government with responsibility for bloodshed and destruction of property in riots. Governor Murphy acted throughout the strike negotiations under the flag of President Roosevelt, saying his movements were at the wish of the President. General Motors did not dare attempt to run counter to the President's commands because it could not withstand public sentiment that could and probably would be built up against it should it be publicly criticized by the President. And to support my statement that the settlement is a face saving agreement and that neither side won in it, it is necessary only to consider that this agreement will run just six months. It contains no elements of permanency nor does it show any signs of a basic understanding which will swing public sentiment to the Lewis faction.

Washington .- It is undoubtedly | tors again will be the goat and the public will pay.

I have been wondering whether many people recognize how they are going to pay for the cost of this strike. I have mentioned ways in which they have lost by it and it seems equally clear that when the Lewis unions get through with the use of force, it is likely to bring about an increase in the cost of the automobiles they produce. It is likely to go further than just automobiles. There is a move on now to attempt something of the same sort of labor attack on the steel manufacturers. If that materializes, it is easy to see how widespread the increased costs will be and how consumers will pay in the end.

This may seem to be an argument against increased wages. It may seem to be a defense of steel boots that used to be worn by industrialists and with which they trod upon defenseless labor. But it resolves itself into a question of justice and a consideration of the problem as it concerns consumers as well as workers. If there is anything in the theory that labor is entitled to a fair wage, there must be likewise some merit in the contention that the public which consumes the product of labor is entitled to an equal amount of consideration. . . .

Political leaders have been quick at all times in recent years to sit astride the neck Federal of business, especially big busi-Charters ness. Corporations were held up as something to be despised, especially if they were large corporations. Lately there has been quite a definite movement for egislation in congress that would force corporations to have federal charters; that is, charters issued by the government at Washington which, therefore, could control such corporations with whatever regulations were deemed necessary. This legislation, it is true, has not approached the stage where a prediction of its passage can be made. The point is, however, that it represents the thoughts of a certain percentage of the people. The question of legality of such a statute obviously remains to be determined but it is to be noted that this proposition is simply another step in the movement to cast a stigma upon business, a move to make business appear immoral or criminal or generally infamous. Business has found it advantageous to incorporate. It removes certain responsibilities from the individuals joining in a corporation and adds certain commitments at the same time. Here again are the rights and counter obligations arising with those rights and I think no one can dispute the fact that our nation has moved forward more rapidly because of the use of the corporation as a business entity. But I have been unable to find an answer to the question why the federal government should take control by law of business corporations without at the same time taking control of labor organizations. Now, it is to be noted that labor unions have steadfastly avoided taking the step of incorporation. It is not true abroad where many labor organizations hold corporate charters just as would a business enterprise. The fact that labor unions have not incorporated leads one to the presumption that the unions have felt such a step would hamper their activities. And, indeed, it might. For example, there have been scores of instances where labor unions, through their authorized officials or bargaining committees, have signed wage contracts with their employers-only to ditch that contract subsequently without regard for its binding force. As labor unions are now organized, they are very loosely knit associations and there is nothing by which the individual members are bound except their own will to perform. In the case of a business corporation, for example, the stockholders have invested money and obviously when the corporation is sued in court or accumulates any kind of liability the stockholders' money in the corporation is available to pay whatever obligations develop. Hence, the lack of a corporate organization on the part of a union removes all responsibility insofar as law is concerned from the unit into which the workers have organized themselves. The point is, after all, that the General Motors strike has demonstrated beyond the peradventure of a doubt that the national labor policies are utterly ineffectual and con-Wiltain no consideration for the consuming public. Labor, as represented by the John L. Lewis faction, has shown its willingness to back its demands with force in disregard of law and it has failed to answer the responsibilities which it seems to me accomplish the rights and privileges the nation accords it. Sec'y of Navy Swanson

the British naval construction program, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations of the American navy, served notice that any foreign nations expanding their navies beyond the standards of recent treaties might expect that the United States would match their construction. He said it was his understanding that this nation was definitely committed to the maintenance of a "navy second to none." To maintain that principle, he declared, it would become necessary for the United States to build new ships if other powers did.

Commenting on

The present United States building program calls for start of construction this year on two new capital ships. Great Britain already has laid the keels of two new craft and the program announced in London calls for the start, after April 1, of construction of a third new vessel. When Britain lays a third keel, then this government is likely to start similar construction.

I N A special message to congress President Roosevelt urged legislation to "improve the present intolerable condition" of 3,000,000 farm tenants, presenting this fourpoint program:

1. Action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience. 2. Modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy.

3. The retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming and assistance to the families living thereon in finding homes on good land.

4. Cooperation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system. Yet, because they in turn have cut in on allied ventures, he must be worth at least $200,000 today.

Even in this land of surprises there scarcely is any precedent for the amazing triumph of this giant. There may, though, be a very good and modern precedent for what has been happening to the youngster recently. I refer to the sad case of Max Baer.

Both Max and Joe arrived quickly. They were fortunate in their early connections and did not have to come up the hard way as did Jack Dempsey.

Each of them was well possessed of the purely physical virtues which make for a great Lessons Are Recalled.

Lessons learned in the early days of Salt Lake City were recalled in the building depression preceding the panic of 1893. Largely to give employment, the local government started construction on a $1,000,000 city hall and county building-an ambitious undertaking for the times -which still stands as one of the proudest edifices in the city. Hundreds of building mechanics who faced unemployment were thus retained as wage-earners while the indirect effects of their labor were experienced in mines and quarries and mills supplying the materials for the project.

Under the Public Works Administration's program for Utah, scores of water and sewer systems, schools, roads, and public buildings have been built or are under construction. The sum allocated by PWA-nearly $20,000, J00 in loans and grants for useful improvementswould astound old President Young. Most imposing of these improve-

Workers Make Effort to Save Tree of Antiquity

Brisbane .- Dr. A. D. Herbert, with 200 volunteer workers has undertaken the rejuvenation of the oldest known living thing. It is the famous Marcozima palm on the Tambourine mountain, Queensland, which had been pronounced as 15,000 years old. Recently it was found that vandals had chopped the palm down. Although the desecration had taken place at least three months previously, the ancient palm still was alive and Dr. Herbert organized his crew for an expedition to the mountain in an effort to save it.

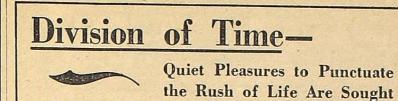

A large hole was dug in the red volcanic soil close to the stump and then the trunk of the tree, possessing three upright sections, was placed in the hole. Before planting the tree, Dr. Herbert coated the cut end with malachite green as a preventative to underground decay. Even should the 15,000 year old palm fail to sprout new roots he estimates that the trunk still contains sufficient sago starch to sustain it and keep it alive for 10 or 12 years yet. But Dr. Herbert is convinced that the palm still has a chance to survive.

"BITSY," GIANT KILLER

'HE rush of life that leaves per- | sons no time for deliberation, nor the pursuit of happiness in their own special ways, has seemed to reach its apex. Already there is a trend toward leisurely living, the sort that claims the right to dispose of hours not occupied in business or housekeeping, in ways of personal choice rather than of group determining.

Today, in the modern ways of living, time is divided into two to pursuing some hobby or doing units, one of which is work, the other diversion rather than play. As soon as work is over, or can be interrupted, the time is given over to diversion. Some persons work most of the time and some per-sons spend most of their time in diversions. The division of hours between these two things is uneven, but however divided, no waking time is left.

Spare Time.

While each of us should work part of our time, it is the matter of how we spend the rest of our time that is now coming under special consideration. There is a growing discontent that seems to bode good. Why should any of us be bound to do in time which is our own, what this or that group is doing because at the moment it is the popular thing? Can we have no evenings to ourselves? Must we fall in line with the wishes of friends? Must we do exactly as others are doing whether this means being with them, or simply doing such things as they do?

Home Diversions.

Shall the rare pleasures of home be invaded? Or shall we decide to spend some quiet evenings in reading favorite books or delving into those new ones we realize would be liked? Shall we have time to devote to needlecraft, to music, to studying some language, anything to enrich ourselves or to make something beautiful?

YOUR

Enriching Diversions.

All these things are diversions from necessary work, but they are the sort that repay us by making life more worth living, and not the kinds that merely absorb attention for the time being, and leave us depleted rather than replenished.

initiated by their church just as today thousands of construction workers share in the benefits of the PWA program.

In Salt Lake City the visitor may see evidences of the first works initiated by Young, of the program instituted to meet the panic of 1893, and of new undertakings under way or completed with the aid of PWA's current works program, designed to combat the recent economic crisis. Spanning State street at East South Temple is Salt Lake City's most historic public work-the Eagle gate. From beneath its arch the visitor looks up the hill to the state capitol- a comparative newcomer to the city.

Historic Eagle Gate.

Brigham Young ordered the construction of the Eagle gate in 1859 to provide for the jobless Mormons of that period. The eagle, a huge bronze bird, is mounted on an arch spanning the road and supported by stone pillars. It formed part of a cobblestone wall 500 rods long, also built as a public work, which surrounded the Young home and provided a protection against Indians. The great pioneer expressed his belief in the works ideal as an unemployment remedy in no uncertain terms. He said:

"My experience has taught me, and it has become a principle with me, that it is never any benefit to give out and out, to man or woman, money, food, clothing, or anything else, if they are able-bodied and can work and earn what they need, when there is anything on earth for them to do. This is my principle and I try to act upon it. To pursue any other course would ruin any community in the world and make them itlers.'

Many of the men who were destined to become leaders of the Deseret state got their start as employees on public works. Old records show that mechanics received but | hours and thirty-one minutes.

cilities by making the state of Utah an allotment of $1,206,000. Since PWA projects must be permanent, necessary improvements of definite social value, few objections have been raised against the program. Brigham Young, answering opponents of his theory of public works, said:

"Some have wished me to explain why we built an adobe wall Gables, Fla., recently. around the city . . . O slow of heart to understand and to believe. I build build walls, dig ditches, make bridges and do a great amount and variety of labor that is but of little consequence only to provide ways and means for sustaining and preserving the destitute."

Currency Inflation

Currency inflation is disproportionate and relatively sharp and sudden increase in the quantity of money or credit or both, relative to the amount of exchange business, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News. Such increase may come as a result of unexpected addition to the supply of precious metals; or in times of business activity by expansion of credit through the banks. It may come in times of financial difficulty by gov-ernment issues of paper money without adequate metallic reserve and without provision for conversion into standard metallic money on demand.

day in the Rivermont handlcap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penthouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Lowe Hammle, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd ex-presses concern over Swift's queer actions. CHAPTER II-Continued _3_ At this moment we heard the sound of light footsteps coming up the hall, and in the archway, which constituted the entrance from the hall into the drawing-room, appeared a slight, pallid young man of perhaps thirty, his head drawn into his slightly hunched shoulders, and a melancholy, resentful look on his sensitive, sallow face. Thicklensed pince-nez glasses emphasized the impression he gave of physical weakness. Garden waved his hand cheerily to the newcomer. "Greetings, Woody. Just in time for a spot before lunch. You know Vance, the eminent sleuth; and this is Mr. Van Dine, his patient and retiring chronicler." Woode Swift acknowledged our presence in a strained but pleasant manner, and listlessly shook hands with his cousin. Then he picked up a bottle of Bourbon and poured himself a double portion, which he drank at one gulp.

"Good Heavens!" Garden exclaimed good-humoredly. "How you have changed, Woody! . . . Who's the lady now?"

The muscles of Swift's face twitched. "Oh, pipe down, Floyd," he pleaded irritably.

Garden shrugged indifferently. "Sorry. What's worrying you to-day besides Equanimity?" "That's enough worry for one day." Swift managed a sheepish grin; then he added aggressively: "I can't possibly lose." And he poured himself another drink. "How's Aunt Martha?" Garden narrowed his ev

"He won't stay there." There was authority and assurance in the woman's tone and manner. "And I'll get eight or ten to one on Grand Score.

"Right you are," grinned Garden. "You're on the dog for a century win and place." The butler brought the creme de menthe, and Mrs. Garden sipped it and stood up. "And now I'm going," she announced pleasantly. She patted her nephew on the shoulder. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next set-up as usual." I glanced at the electric clock on the mantel: It was exactly ten minutes after one. "Fixing the set-up" was a comparatively simple procedure, but a more or less mysterious operation for anyone unfamiliar with the purpose it was to serve. From a small closet in the hall Sneed first wheeled out a sturdy wooden stand about two feet square. On this he placed a telephone connected to a loud speaker which resembled a midget radio set. As I learned later, it was a specially constructed amplifier to enable every one in the room to hear distinctly whatever came over the telephone. On one side of the amplifier was attached a black metal switch box with a two-way key. In its upright position this key would cut off the

Swift rose with alacrity. "Damned glad of the chance," he returned surlily. "Your manner to-day rather annoys me, Floyd." And he led the way down the hall and up the stairs to the roof-garden,

Vance and I following. The stairway was narrow and semicircular, and led upward from the hallway near the front entrance. In glancing back up the hall, toward the drawing-room, I noticed that no section of that room was visible from the stair end of the hall. I made this mental note idly at the time, but I mention it here because the fact played a very definite part in the tragic events which were to follow.

At the head of this narrow stairway we turned left into a corridor, barely four feet wide, at the end of which was a door leading into a large room-the only room on the roof. This spacious and beautifully appointed study, with high windows, on all four sides, was used by Professor Garden, Swift informed us, as a library and private experimental laboratory. Near the door to this room, on the left wall of the corridor, was another door, of calamine, which, I learned later, led into a small storeroom built to hold the professor's valuable papers and data.

Half-way down the corridor, on the right, was another large calamine weather door which led out to the roof. This door had been propped open, for the sun was bright and the day mild. Swift preceded us into one of the loveliest skyscraper gardens I have ever seen.

We walked leisurely about the garden, smoking. Swift was a difficult man to talk to, and as the minutes went by he became more and more distrait. After a while he glanced apprehensively at his wristwatch.

"We'd better be going down," he aid. "They'll be coming out for said. the first race before long. Vance gave him an appraising look and rose.

"What about that sanctum sanctorum of yours which your cousin mentioned?" he asked lightly.

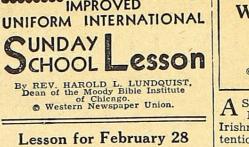

"Oh, that . . . " Swift forced an embarrassed smile. "It's that red chair over there against the wall, next to the small table . But I don't see why Floyd should spoof about it. The crowd downstairs always rags me when I lose, and it irritates me. I'd much rather be alone when I get the results." "Quite understandable," nodded Vance with sympathy.

"You see," the man went on rather pathetically, "I frankly play the ponies for the money-the others downstairs can afford to take heavy losses, but I happen to need the cash just now.

Vance had stepped over to the little table on which stood a desk telephone which had, instead of the ordinary receiver, what is known as a head receiver-that is, a flat disk ear-phone attached to a curved metal band to go over the head.

"Your retreat is well equipped," commented Vance.

"Oh, yes. This is an extension of the news-service phone downstairs; and there's also a plug-in for a radio, and another for an electric plate."

THE NEW COMMANDMENT

LESSON TEXT — John 12: 20-33; 13:34,35. GOLDEN TEXT — A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. John 13:34. PRIMARY TOPIC — A New Command-ment

JUNIOR TOPIC — A Great Man's Way. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC-What the New Commandment Means. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC-The Measure of Christian Love.

In the last week of our Lord's ministry on earth many important events took place, but we pass most of them in our present series of studies. The incident related in our lesson of today is of interest in and of itself, but it is of peculiar significance because it introduces a marvelously instructive discourse of our Lord.

Whatever had prompted their inquiry, we are delighted to note that the Greeks came with an earnest desire to see Jesus.

I. Seeking Jesus (12:20-22).

A man has progressed far on the road to blessing when he makes known his desire to see Jesus. Coming to him means coming to the One who has the words of eternal life.

Note that the disciples were wise enough to bring the men to Jesus. The true function of every Christian worker is to bring men to him. On the back of the pulpit in one of America's greatest churches, directly where the preacher can see them as he arises to preach, are the words of our lesson, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Little wonder that a strong and true gospel is preached n that church.

II. Finding the Cross (vv. 23-33). The reply of our Lord to the Greeks and to the disciples who brought them to him, seems a bit singular at first glance. Did he not wish to receive them? They had probably come to see the great religious leader, the King of the Jews -why does he talk about deathwhy is his soul troubled?

The words of our Lord are clear. Men do not need an example, a leader, a teacher, they need a Saviour. It is as a sacrifice for sin that Christ will draw all men unto himself (v. 32).

We need to relearn that lesson. Leaders of the church are earnestly seeking the explanation of the rapid decline in the influence of the Christian church. It is a good sign that some are beginning to realize that the difficulty is in the realm of the spiritual. The barrenness of socalled modern theology has become apparent to its leaders and they have begun to talk about a "spirit-ual revival." But unfortunately we soon find that they use the expression to stand for something entirely different from a real scriptural revival.. "The voice is Jacob's voice but the hands are the hands of

Esau'' (Gen. 27:22). Let us make no mistake about it,

When a Man Talks to a Cop

By SCOTT W. RYALL Clure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

A SIDE from the cop, Casey, the Ninth ward boasted one other Irishman particularly worthy of attention. He had rust-red hair, inlaid and overlaid freckles, the voice of a young bull and the crust of a politician.

While Casey, in his rotund, brassbuttoned manner, looked after the ward's morals, his compatriot did something for the intellect in his stentorian blaring of headlines to tempt those that could buy and enlighten the others.

He is, will be, or was fourteen and has built himself quite a stand on the corner by the bank and quite a stand-in with the cosmopolitan population of the Ninth ward.

"That little Mick," said Casey patriotically to Aunt Joe, the old lady who sells pencils, "Is gonna be a pride to the ward. Mind my predication, Aunt Joe. A pride he'll be. Why he studies arithmetic at night!"

With which devastating observation he went back to his post on the little platform in the middle of the crossing.

He of the freckles was tersely retailing Balkan politics. Dion O'Shea-Dan, to you-was as pretty a product of Erin as ever doubled a fist in an alley.

"Hi, Jim," he roared across the traffic and his chest swelled visibly at Casey's grin and the knowledge that bystanders had heard him call a cop by his first name.

But in summer time, when dust, orange peels and kids littered the Ninth ward sidewalks, Dan took a vacation from his studies. Personal economics forbade his attending school.

With his self-chosen vacation at hand, he worked a little later in the evenings at his papers, gulped a hasty supper and was on the street. At first he found things becoming dull around nine o'clock and was in bed by ten. Then he discovered that things were only dull because he didn't know where to look for something to happen.

With joyful fear, he was invested with all the somber dignity of membership in the Night Riders. Around a dim lantern in the back room of a warehouse, belonging to the president's father, they told thrilling lies about Indians, cowboys and ghosts, smoked butts and cursed.

One afternoon Casey left his post and came over to the stand.

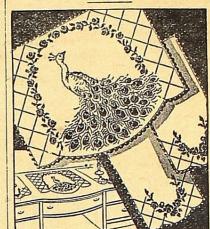

"Dan," he said softly, "does yer paper hold the news of the robbery last night?" The young red-head looked up and he forced his eyes to be very hard as the boys had taught him. That was the way to treat cops. Even if Casey was different, he was still a cop.

"What robbery's that, Jim?" he

He did not know that the approved manner of treating cops was also a marker. Casey looked at him very keenly, did not reply but gave a soft sigh and went back to his post. The big man appeared very, very thoughtful all afternoon. After the evening rush, he pulled the platform over to the curb and came back to the newsboy.

At this point Lowe Hammle arrived. He was a heavy-set, short man of fifty or thereabouts. He was wearing a black-and-white checked suit, a gray shirt, a brilliant green four-in-hald, a chocolate-colored waistcoat with leather buttons, and tan blucher shoes the soles of which were inordinately thick.

"The Marster of 'Ounds, b'Gad!" Garden greeted him jovially. "Here's your scotch-and-soda; and here also are Mr. Philo Vance and Mr. Van Dine."

"Delighted-delighted!" Hammle exclaimed heartily, coming forward.

In a few minutes the butler announced lunch. The conversation was almost entirely devoted to horses, the history of racing, the Grand National, and the possibilities of the various entrants in the afternoon's Rivermont Handicap.

Vance contented himself mainly with listening and studying the others at the table.

We were nearing the end of the luncheon when a tall, well-built and apparently vigorous woman, who looked no more than forty (though I later learned that she was well past fifty), entered the room. She wore a tailored suit, a silver-fox scarf and a black felt toque.

"Why, mater!" exclaimed Garden. "I thought you were an invalid. Why this spurt of health and energy?"

He then presented me to his mother: both Vance and Hammle had met her on previous occasions.

"I'm tired of being kept in bed," she told her son querulously, after nodding graciously to the others. "Now you boys sit right down-I'm going shopping, and just dropped in to see if everything was going all right . . . I think I'll have a creme de menthe frappe while I'm here.'

The butler drew up a chair for her beside Swift, and went to the pantry. Mrs. Garden put her hand lightly on her nephew's arm.

"How goes it with you, Woody?" she asked in a spirit of camaraderie. Without waiting for his answer, she turned to Garden again. "Floyd, I want you to place a bet where you listen in to your fate.

voice at the other end of the line without interfering with the connection; and throwing the key forward would bring the voice on again. The butler then brought in a wellbuilt folding card-table and opened it beside the stand. On this table he placed another telephone of the conventional French, or hand, type. This telephone, which was gray, was plugged into an additional jack in the baseboard. The gray telephone was not connected with the one equipped with the amplifier, but was on an independent line. When the two instruments and the amplifier had been stationed and tested, Sneed brought in four more card-tables and placed them about the drawing-room. At each table he opened up two folding chairs. Then, from a small drawer in the stand, he took out a long manila envelope which had evidently come through the mail, and, slitting the top, drew forth a number of large printed sheets approximately nine by sixteen inches. There were 15 of these sheets-called "cards" in racing parlance-and after sorting them he spread out three on each of the card-tables.

When the butler had gone Garden lifted the receiver from the hook of the telephone and dialed a number. After a pause he spoke into the transmitter:

"Hello, Lex. B-2-9-8. Waiting for the dope." And, laying the receiver down on the stand, he threw the switch key forward.

A clear-cut, staccato voice came through the amplifier: "O. K., B-2-Then there was a click, fol-9-8." lowed by several minutes of silence. Finally the same voice began speaking: "Everybody get ready. The exact time now is one-thirty and a quarter .- Three tracks today. The order will be Rivermont, Texas, and Cold Springs. Just as you have them on the cards. Here we go.

Rivermont: weather clear and track fast. Clear and fast. First post, 2:30. And now down the line-' Garden leaned over and threw the amplifier switch up, and there was silence in the room. He turned to his cousin. "Why don't you take Vance and Mr. Van Dine upstairs, and show them around the garden? . . . They might," he added with good-natured sarcasm, "be interested in your lonely retreat on the roof,

He took the ear-phone from the hook and, adjusting the band over his head, listened for a moment.

"Nothing new yet at Rivermont," he mumbled. He removed the earphone with nervous impatience and we had come out in the garden,

When we reached the drawingroom we found two newcomers-a man and a woman-seated at one of the tables, poring over the racing cards and making notations. Vance and I were casually in roduced to them by Garden.

The man was Cecil Kroon, about thirty-five, immaculately attired and sleek, with smooth, regular features and a very narrow waxed mustache. He was quite blond, and his eyes were a cold steely blue. The woman, whose name was Madge Weatherby; was about the same age as Kroon, tall and slender, and with a marked tendency toward theatricalism in both her attire and her make-up. Her cheeks were heavily rouged and her lips crimson. Her eyelids were shaded with green, and her eyebrows had two erroneous extremes to be avoidbeen plucked and replaced with fine penciled lines.

Garden looked up and motioned to us-he was holding the receiver of the black telephone to his ear.

Kroon went to the small bar and before Miss Weatherby.

"I say, Floyd," he called out to arden, "Zalia coming today?" "Absolutely," Garden told him. Garden, phoned this morning. Full of sure things."

"Well, what about it?" came a vivacious feminine voice from dowp the hall; and the next moment a swaggering, pretty girl was standing in the archway, her hands on her muscular boyish hips. "I've concluded I can't pick any winners myself, so why not let the other guy pick 'em for me? . . Hello, everybody," she threw in parenthet-ically . . . "But Floyd, old thing, I really have a humdinger in the first at Rivermont today. This tip didn't come from a stable-boy, either. It came from one of the stewards-a friend of dad's. > III. Loving One Another (John 13: 34, 35).

When these words were uttered our Lord was two days further in the last week before he was crucified. He was alone with his disciples in the upper room. What message does he have for them in that solemn hour? That they should love one another. That is a message that needs renewed emphasis in our day. The strife which fills the world has almost engulfed the church, and there is bitterness and strife where love should reign. Let us observe carefully that it is as his disciples that we are able to love one another. There are ed. First, we have the out and out conservative, who proclaims his belief in the Bible as God's Word, who is anxious that he be absolutely correct in doctrine, a really saved man, and who then becomes the mixed two drinks which he took back to his table, setting one down who dismally fails God in the testimony referred to in these verses. On the other hand we have the liberal who has abandoned the scriptural basis of discipleship and who 'She was all stirred up when she then boasts of his great love for his brethren. Love is no substitute for regeneration, and regeneration is no excuse for lack of love.

"Dan," he said slowly, "I've me day off tomorrow. I'd like for ye to come on a spree."

"Jeez, Jim, do you mean it?" "Sure," said the other, laughing, 'but if ye use that word 'Jeez' again I'll slap yer konk with me billy. And as we'll be startin' at six to make a whoopin' day of it ye must stay at my place the night."

The next day was all that Dan hoped, with embellishments. Casey told jokes about everything; funny ones. He even made Dan buy a paper for the fun of the thing. Then the officer gravely asked if his companion would mind tagging along while he made a business call.

Dan readily agreed and was left in the lobby of a cold, gray building while Casey went into an office with two uniformed officers.

When Casey came out he was very cheerful and insisted on showing Dan through the precinct headquarters, "for the fun of the thing," and chuckled heartily as he softly told of the many, many years the men in the cells would be looking through those bars.

The boy was quiet as they strode along the streets, homeward bound. Casey was rattling at his best. They stopped before the steps of the gaunt house where Dan O'Shea's mother took dressmaking.

"Dan," Casey said quietly, "there was one part of the precinct I didn't show ye. I thought it'd be better to tell ye. A bunch of the Ninth ward's boys was down there. Barbital Drugs.

It would seem that almost every week a new drug to ease pain or to cause sleep appears on the market, all of which are spoken of as "safe" because they contain no morphine or other drug containing opium. One of the most helpful drugs to ease pain, quiet restlessness, and induce or bring on sleep is what is known as barbital. It is used a great deal in mental institutions; and as a means of preventing epilepsy it is the greatest boon yet discovered for this distressing ailment. However, like other powerful drugs it may be obtained by anybody, anytime, anywhere, and the results in many cases have been disastrous. Just as morphine and other dangerous drugs must be obtained by a physician's prescription, so also should the barbital drugs be obtained. Mental institutions, public and private, now have barbital addicts to treat. Sir William Willcox, in the Journal of the American Medical Association taken from the British Lancet, repeats his warning that the 'barbiturates'' have a powerful action on the nervous system and that care is required in their daily use. Even in the usual doses symptoms such as mental depression, drowsi-ness, "visions", dizziness, unsteady gait, indistinct speech, squint, sideways movements of the eyes, and paralysis of the limbs are common results. Some idea of the way the barbital "habit" is increasing is shown by the figures of the hospitals in Budapest. From 1909 to 1914, 35 cases of barbital poisoning were admitted, while in 1932 one hospital alone admitted 87 cases of barbital poisoning and in addition 80 cases of poisoning from pheno barbital. To prevent the overuse of barbital tablets some physicians have powders made up containing ipecac and sugar of milk in addition to the barbital. The ipecac produces vomiting if too much be taken. The juniors are reviewing plays with the prospects of presenting a class play. Whether or not the class decide to present a play depends on the willingness of every member to cooperate in producing and advertis-ing it and also, on the availability of a suitable auditorium. We all feel that people who are interested in dramatic activities should have an opportunity to develop the talent they have along that line. How the juniors would appreciate a new auditorium right now. The juniors appreciate the patron-age of all students and faculty at heir weekly candy sale.

The debating team thoroughly en-joyed their last meeting Monday evening when Miss Boone served a chop-suey dinner at her apartment. The evening was spent in playing progressive "cootie" and Monopoly. The citizenship class spent a por-tion of the class period Wednesday testing the eyes of some of the mem-berd who volunteered as subjects. Poor eyesight is one of the causes of automobile accidents.

7th and 8th Grades Mrs. Bigelow read us some inter-esting stories about George Wash-ington Monday, February 22.

The eighth grade grammar class had an interesting time writing stories and reading them in class. Several pupils showed clever imagination.

We are sory to hear about Irene Cunniff's misfortune. We hope she will soon return from the hospital where she was taken Wednesday for observation. 3rd and 4th Grades Mazatian Mazatlan, the Pacific port of Mexica. is set on a silvery beach shaded by coconut palms. Peaceful piazas and friendly natives help to make it one Mexico's intriguing little cities. Back of it lies volcanoes and mountains, with strangely shaped contours, towering thousands of feet above green valleys studded with crystal lakes; vast fields of cartus, acres of corn and wheat and sugar cane; great groves of coconut palms; giant cypress trees, wide as streets, that were 6,000 years in making, and cacti stretching 20-foot talons toward the city.

Have No State Universities The office of education says that cer main states in the Union have very large private institutions of higher eaacation and adopted the policy early In their history not to establish state universities. Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Pepusylvania and Rhode Island have no state universitles.
