2nd ANNUAL PERCH FESTIVAL APRIL 30 - MAY 2

TAWAS CITY

AMATEUR NIGHT BIG FEATURE OF PROGRAM PLANS

Contest Will Be Conducted
Major Bowes Style
First Night

Following the weekly Perch Festival meeting held Monday night, H. J. Keiser, chairman of the executive committee, stated that arrangements were nearly complete for the coming Perch Festival which will be held April 30 to May 2. A program has been planned which will furnish excellent entertainment for the visitors.

The program committee, headed by A. W. Colby and consisting of Don Anderson, Roy DePotty, A. A. Bigelow, Arthur Nelson, M. J. Coyle, Edward Libka and Orville Leslie has arranged the following program:

Friday Night

Amateur contest conducted in the Major Bowes style. Anyone who wishes to put on an act is invited to compete. Apply to the president or secretary of the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce. A preliminary audition from each applicant is required.

Saturday Morning

Street events and athletic contests. Prizes will be awarded. Watch the newspaper for further announcements.

Saturday Afternoon

Fire fighting demonstration by men from the Huron National Forest. A very interesting and dramatic event, showing the equipment and work of modern fire fighters in our national forests.

Saturday Night

Crowning of Perch Queen and the Queen's Ball.

Sunday Morning

Attending Church. Visitors have been cordially invited to attend our various church services.

Sunday Afternoon

Archery contest. Further details will be announced later. Parade, which will include many beautiful floats and several bands.

Sunday Evening

Band concert in the Tawas City Park.

People who have friends whom they would like to invite here to fish for perch or attend the Perch Festival should give their list of names to John Forsten, secretary at once.

Mrs. Flora McKnight

Mrs. Flora McKnight, aged resident of East Tawas, died Sunday noon at her home. She had been in ill health for several months. The deceased had been a resident of Iosco County for fifty years.

Funeral services were held from the Moffatt Funeral Home Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Samuel A. Carey officiated.

To Our Patrons

We wish to take this opportunity to thank our many friends for their loyalty and support during Mr. Leslie's absence, at which time he was away for a much needed rest.

This loyalty made it possible for us to enjoy the best month's business since we started in the automobile business twenty-five years ago. During March we are pleased to announce that we sold and delivered sixty-seven units.

Having moved to our new building we are able to give our customers complete service at all times.

We are donating the use of our new building to the city for entertainment purposes during the Perch Festival which will be held April 30 and May 1 and 2.

May 1st will be our opening at which time we cordially invite you to call and inspect our new place of business, and let us personally thank you for your friendly patronage.

Our new building was built with the purpose in mind of serving our friends and patrons in the future in an up to date and efficient manner. Make this your regular stopping place for all of your car service.

FINE CATCHES of perch like this one, is what attracts thousands of fishermen to the annual perch run at Tawas City. Miss Isabelle Dease, attractive queen of last year's festival, is holding the perch and inviting everyone to the gala affair, to take place April 30 and May 1 and 2. The perch run is expected to precede the festival by a week or two. Fishermen will be notified by newspapers when the run starts.—Log Office.

LAKE HURON YACHTSMEN ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION

Sailing on the northern waters of Lake Huron became an organized sport this week with the formation of the Lake Huron Yachting Association.

The organization is composed of the Alpena Yacht Club, Tawas Bay Yacht Club and Saginaw Bay Yacht Club.

P. K. Fletcher of Alpena, who for many years has been actively identified with sailing in this region, was named Commodore of the organization with Hubert Sfish, Saginaw Bay Yacht Club, Vice Commodore and Carl Babcock, Tawas Bay Yacht Club, Secretary-Treasurer.

At the same time the dates of four Northern Lake Huron Regattas and sailing events were set. They are:
Alpena Yacht Club Regatta, July 27, 28 and 29
Alpena to Tawas Bay Long Distance Race, July 30
Tawas Bay Regatta, July 31 to August 7, inclusive.
Saginaw Bay Regatta, September 11 and 12.

The formation of the racing association marks the first successful attempt of the yacht club of this region to organize. As an outcome of the meeting an official measurer, Gerald Mallon, East Tawas was appointed by the group to record measurements of all northern Lake Huron craft this season.

The Tawas Bay and Saginaw Bay Regattas are established events. The Alpena Races will be staged for the first time this season.

Alpena is the home of the only two six-meter boats on the northern end of the lakes. They are the "Jack" U. S. 62 owned by P. K. Fletcher and the "Meteor" U. S. 49 owned by Harry Fletcher, both of Alpena Yacht Club.

The 1937 racing dates have been established with an eye on the Detroit to Mackinac Race, which immediately precedes the Alpena event. The new association expects to develop interest in the small boat classes of the kind that can be transported by trailers from place to place, as well as the larger boats.

EAST TAWAS

Ralph E. Crowell of the Superior National Forest, Duluth, Minnesota, succeeds Warren T. Murphy as supervisor of the Huron National Forest here. Mr. Murphy goes this week to Rhineland, Wisconsin, where he is to be supervisor of the Nicolett National Forest. A luncheon was given Wednesday noon at the Hotel Holland in honor of Mr. Murphy by the business men of East Tawas. Wednesday evening fifty members of the personnel of the forest service met at the Hotel Holland to bid him farewell. Mrs. Murphy is now at Rhineland.

Charles Bonney returned Monday to East Lansing, after spending the Easter vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bonney.

Mrs. C. C. Bright, Misses Betty Jackson, Muriel Smith and Ethlyn Allison spent Saturday in Saginaw. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Jewell, Beulah, Michigan, arrived Saturday to spend a few weeks in the city with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jewell.

W. T. Murphy and Ralph Crowell, newly appointed Forest Supervisor to succeed Mr. Murphy, spent Thursday in Lansing on business.

Lieutenant and Mr. Alfred Dowling left Monday for the Upper Peninsula where he has been transferred.

Mrs. Clarence Blaisdell and daughter left Saturday for Detroit and Mt. Clemens for a week.

Mrs. John Thompson and children, who have been visiting in the city with the Misses Cora and Edith Davey, returned to their home in Flint on Saturday.

Miss Denesge LaBerge who spent a month in Detroit, returned home Saturday.

Mrs. R. Klenow and Mrs. Henry Klenow spent Saturday in Bay City. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sheldon and son, Buddy spent Sunday in Millsburg.

Nathan Barkman spent a couple days in Bay City.

Box social and dance at the Red Hall in Wilber on Wednesday, April 14. Starting at 9:00. Sponsored by the Baldwin Baseball Club. 25 cents per couple. Music by Jos. Pfeiffer's orchestra. adv.

Mrs. Rose Anker is visiting in Detroit for a short time.

Madames Raoul LaBerge, Chas. Wesendorf, Annabelle Perry and D. Bergvinn spent Saturday in Bay City.

Wallace Grant, James McGuire, and Alfred Johnson of Detroit and Arthur Dillon of Saginaw spent the week end at their homes.

Miss Muriel Evans and mother of Detroit spent the week end in the city.

Miss Ruby Evans, who spent a week in the city with her parents, has returned to Albion where she is attending college.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Soule and children will leave this week for Cadillac where Mr. Soule has a position.

Fred Grabow, who has been ill for a number of years, will leave on Monday for Mayo Brothers for medical treatment. Mr. Grabow is a war veteran.

Mrs. George Homestead and son, Ray, who spent a few days in the city on business returned to their home in Lincoln.

Mrs. Beatrice Killian and son, Edward, who spent a few days in the city have returned to their home at Spring Lake.

Dr. Gordon's lecture will include a discussion of the various systems and organs of the body and their functions in relation to health. Outlines are provided for those attending and a popular discussion period will follow the regular lecture.

EAST TAWAS BOY KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Steps in Path of Oncoming
Car While Crossing Street

Allen Johnroe, seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Johnroe of East Tawas, was almost instantly killed Wednesday evening when he walked into the path of an oncoming car while crossing the street near the Family Theatre. The injured boy died while being taken to Dr. O. W. Mitton's office. Sheriff John Moran and Coroner E. D. Jacques were immediately called to the scene of the accident. Coroner Jacques stated that death was due to a fracture skull.

The car was driven by Harold Staudacher. His mother, was with him. Frank Ebert and Marion Davis, two CCC men, who were waiting to cross the street at the time, were eye witnesses.

Funeral services will be held at one o'clock Saturday afternoon from the residence.

Supervisors Will Meet Next Tuesday

The supervisors of the county of Iosco will meet next Tuesday announced County Clerk Russell H. McKenzie. The principal business of this session will be the organization of the board for the coming year.

Health Notes

Modern medicine has shown much interest in the possible effect of the endocrine gland system upon our bodily functions. Dr. Vida H. Gordon from the Michigan Department of Health will discuss some of the theories next Thursday at 3:30 at the Woman's Club Rooms in Tawas City, when she lectures upon "Our Body and How it Functions." This will be the second of the free weekly health classes for women which are being sponsored here by the East Tawas Literary Society and the Twentieth Century Club of Tawas City.

Music Honor Roll

The following students of the music department of St. Joseph School, East Tawas have earned places on the senior honor roll:

Junior Heber, Oscoda; Arlene Proulx, Alabaster; Doris Roiter, Alabaster; Phyllis Michalski, Tawas City; Gladys Lewitzki, East Tawas; Frances Danin, Whittemore; Robert Proulx, Alabaster; Clara Jean Benson, Alabaster.

The following have earned places on the Junior Music Honor Roll: Buddie Sheldon, East Tawas; Shirley Lixey, East Tawas; Bobby Benson, Alabaster; George Rowley, East Tawas; Kathleen Houston, Tawas City; Alice Small, East Tawas.

Correction

In the financial statement for Tawas City published last week entries should read: "Licour license fees, $361.25" instead of "dog license fees" and "Sewer bonds paid, $700" instead of $100.

REPUBLICANS LEAD IN IOSCO VOTE MONDAY

Ziegler Leads Van Wagoner By Small Margin In County

Iosco County remained in the Republican column last Monday although the number of votes holding them there, in some cases was very scanty. Ziegler defeated Van Wagoner for state highway commissioner by only 23 votes, the vote being 1175 to 1152. The Democrats showed considerable strength here in the races for other state offices. The Republican majorities being around 300 votes.

The following is a table of the votes cast in Iosco County for state offices:

Justices of Supreme Court	McAllister (D)	887
	McKenzie (D)	978
	North (R)	1305
	Feard (R)	1284

Twentieth Century Club

Seventeen members and four visitors attended the meeting of the Twentieth Century Club held April 8 at the Club Rooms.

Two additional members were put on the housing committee for the Perch Festival, making five as follows: Mrs. Helen Ferguson, Mrs. Grace Mark, Mrs. Mae Dease, Mrs. Lydia Bing and Mrs. Mabel Bigelow.

The health talks by Dr. Vida H. Gordon were discussed. The second meeting for our group will be held Thursday, April 15 at 3:30 P. M. in the Club Rooms in Tawas City.

Mrs. Braddock played two piano solos after which Dr. Thompson of West Branch, a member of the staff of the health unit in which Iosco County is represented, gave us a short history of the organization of health units and medical progress from 1200 B. C. to the present day. It proved to be a very interesting talk.

Mrs. Giddings gave her Michigan State Federation report. The Federation was held in Flint in March and our delegate covered the meetings in fine style. We enjoyed it but also wonder when she slept.

The April 17 meeting, Music and Drama presented by the Music Committee will include music by Mrs. Nyda Campbell Leslie and a play by the dramatic class of Bay City Central High School.

April

WEDDED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Watts were pleasantly surprised on Sunday, April 4th, when the following children came home to help them celebrate their 25th Wedding Anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. George McCordell and son, George Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Johnson and Harold Watts of Detroit, Mrs. Stella Campbell and daughters, Jean and Marion, of Pontiac, and Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Gackstetter and children of Tawas City.

The table was beautifully decorated with a white and silver table cover with napkins to match. The center of the table held a bowl of sweet peas and ferns and a large wedding cake.

After dinner, little Miss Rosalin Gackstetter presented Mr. and Mrs. Watts in behalf of all the children, with a beautiful service of silver.

In the evening the children returned to their respective homes, wishing their parents many more happy years of wedded life.

The smelt are running in Tawas River! Many fine catches have been made during the past few nights.

Miss Bernice Klumb spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. John Klumb and sisters at West Bend, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Amelia Strauer is in Flint this week visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Russell and son, Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Johnson all of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Barker of Flint spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Orville McDonald.

Box social at Upper Townline School, Wednesday, April 14.

A. W. Lamy and Gleason Amboy of Flint were week end guests of the former's wife and family here.

Box social and dance at the Red Hall in Wilber on Wednesday, April 14. Starting at 9:00. Sponsored by the Baldwin Baseball Club. 25 cents per couple. Music by Jos. Pfeiffer's orchestra. adv.

Tawas City Perch Festival is holding a benefit Fish Supper at Hiram's Tuesday, April 20 starting at 5:30 P. M. and lasting until everyone is served. All you can eat for 75 cents per plate. Everyone welcome. adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Rossi Kitchen and daughters of Sterling spent Friday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Horton.

Miss Velma Kitchen of Sterling was the week end guest of Miss Jean Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lamy of Twining were Tawas City callers on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stevens spent a few days in Detroit this week.

Miss Helen Sieradzki of Detroit is visiting her sister, Mr. E. D. Jacques, for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John St. James and father, Fred Neuman left Thursday for Lansing where they were called owing to the death of Mrs. Augusta Grabow.

Franco Combating Revolt in Spanish Fascist Army— Developments in Labor Situation—President's Farm Purchase Plan Opposed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

GENERAL FRANCO'S revolution in Spain, already checked by serious defeats on both the northern and the southern fronts, was further embarrassed by spreading revolt among the Fascist troops. His agents uncovered the plot and numerous arrests were speedily followed by numerous executions by firing squads. The mutiny first broke out in Spanish Morocco, and Franco himself hurried there by plane. There were persistent reports that 1,000 Italian soldiers had been landed at Ceuta and were being used to crush the mutiny. This was denied by the Fascist high commissioner of Morocco.

More than 100 high-ranking officers, most of them belonging to the air force, were said to have been implicated in the plot which was seemingly well laid in all parts of Spanish Morocco and the southern tip of European Spain.

Government troops were said to be pushing back toward Cordoba the Fascist forces which were trying to break through for capture of the rich coal and mineral territory about Pozoblanco. The insurgent army there, alleged to include 10,000 Italians and Germans, was in danger of being surrounded and annihilated.

Great Britain and France officially warned Franco that they would no longer tolerate the stopping and searching of British and French merchant vessels by his warships.

DEADLOCK over a new wage agreement brought about a walkout of soft coal miners in the Pennsylvania and West Virginia fields and its spread to other fields was certain unless the controversy were settled. The mine operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America have been long in negotiation, with John L. Lewis dictating the stand taken by the latter. Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, was trying hard to help bring about a settlement and kept the White House informed of developments. Maintenance men were ordered to stand by in the mines, but about 400,000 men quit work.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT discussed the labor situation with Secretary Perkins and Sidney Hillman, chief organizer of the C. I. O. Hillman told him he was hopeful of the problems of the textile industry could be settled by co-operation and arbitration, and it was reported that he promised the textile workers would not attempt to use the sit-down strike.

Senator Wagner of New York delivered an address in the senate on the sit-down strike situation, charging that the blame of it rested on a few giant corporations which, he said, have "hamstrung" the labor relations board by invoking injunctions in the courts and "who have openly banded together to defy" the labor relations law.

Deriding the call for new federal legislation to meet the crisis, Senator Wagner declared that "the lack of power in the federal government to enforce the labor relations act and not any weakness in existing law is the root cause for the present economic warfare."

Representative Martin Dies of Texas appeared before the house rules committee and urged action on his resolution for a congressional investigation of the strike situation. He again called upon the President to intervene and pointed to section 5209 of the revised United States statutes as giving the chief executive authority to take action in the event of such an occurrence as the Chrysler strike.

The continued silence of the President on the issue is "ominous," Representative Charles L. Gifford of Massachusetts told the house. He warned the President against the rise to power of John L. Lewis.

Negotiations for settlement of the General Motors strike were progressing slowly, and officials of the corporation said that 10,100 employees were idle in four plants because of strikes in Pontiac and Flint, Mich.

UNDER pressure from his advisers to take a public stand concerning the sit-down strike, President Roosevelt immediately after his return from Warm Springs held a conference with Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Joe Robinson, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn. At its close Senator Robinson, presumably voicing Mr. Roosevelt's views, said:

"The government cannot initiate action under the circumstances thus far presented. It is felt that the sit-down strike situation in a general sense is improving.

Gen. Franco

"There are two conditions under which federal action may be invoked in case of acute strike conditions; namely where federal laws have been violated or where federal property, including the mails, is interfered with.

"Unless one of these conditions exists, federal intervention or action, under the Constitution and decision of the courts, is not warranted.

"The second condition is cases where state authorities, under the federal law, ask the services of federal agencies in the preservation of law and order and in the prevention of violence.

"Neither condition has so far arisen. Except in instances where interstate commerce is interfered with, where a federal law is disregarded, the federal government does not, and cannot under the Constitution, initiate action."

SEVEN Democrats joined the six Republicans on the house agriculture committee and disapproved the President's proposal to allot $50,000,000 to assist farm tenants to buy farms on easy credit terms.

This majority of the committee objected to the program because it would put the government into the real estate business. The proposition is contained in one section of the farm tenant bill and would authorize the secretary of agriculture to buy farms for resale to tenants on terms that would give them as long as 45 years to pay. The interest rate would be 3 per cent. Sponsors of the measure probably will try to get it through the senate, and after house refusal to agree it would then go to conference.

Only the day before the President had given out his farm tenancy program as follows:

1. Continuation of rehabilitation loans, most of which would go to people living on land which the government believes can be made to pay.

2. Purchase of submarginal land so that it can be taken out of cultivation and put into timber or grasses.

3. Federal purchase of land for resettlement of families taken off submarginal land and purchase of tenant farms to give tenants a chance to own the land they are tilling.

SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS

Nebraska is intent on his plan for the creation of a national power authority similar to the Tennessee Valley authority, and he intends to introduce a bill for this during the present session of congress. This he announced after conferring with the President, and he intimated the idea was approved by Mr. Roosevelt. He has experts at work investigating its feasibility and mapping out the details.

Sen. Norris

"All rivers of the United States should be controlled by the nation if their nature is subject to it by national flood control policy," the senator said. "Whenever the river will develop power, we should take advantage of it. I've always regarded power as a subsidiary or by-product of flood control."

A LINK with a past era was broken by the death in Washington of Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln at the age of ninety years. She was the daughter-in-law of President Lincoln and the mother and grandmother of his only living descendants, Mrs. Charles Isham, Mrs. Jessie Randolph and their three children. Mrs. Lincoln was the daughter of James Harlan, who was a senator from Iowa and later secretary of the interior. In 1868 she married Robert Todd Lincoln, the martyred President's son. In the administrations of Presidents Garfield and Arthur her husband served as secretary of war, and under President Benjamin Harrison, he served as minister to England. Afterward he was general counsel and then president of the Pullman company.

DICTATOR JOSEPH STALIN of Russia, in his official capacity as secretary of the central committee of the Communist party, demands a new purge of the party, so we probably will read soon of another mass execution of hundreds under arrest. "I think it is clear," said Stalin, "that the present wreckers and diversionists—no matter whether they have masked themselves under the flag of Trotskyism or Bukharinism—have lost their influence in the worker's movement and have become simply an unprincipled and idealless band of professional wreckers, diversionists, spies and murderers.

"It is quite clear these gentlemen should be destroyed, exterminated mercilessly as enemies of the working class and enemies of our country."

ACCORDING to a survey made for the Corn Belt Farm Dailies, an increasing share of domestic meat requirements is coming from European countries and Canada, at the expense of American live stock producers.

Imports of pork from Poland early in March were running at record high levels, while increased shipments were unloaded at New York from Denmark, Lithuania, Italy, Hungary, Holland, Germany, Estonia, Czechoslovakia, Canada, and Argentina. The United States in normal times supplies Europe with meat, the farm papers pointed out.

"It must be obvious that through restricted production and reciprocal tariff agreements we have adopted policies in this country that have opened our doors to the importation of meats in substantial volume," the survey commented.

THREE famous Americans, with their aides, will represent the United States at the coronation of King George VI of Great Britain in Westminster Abbey May 12. They were selected by President Roosevelt and are: James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, special ambassador; Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F. in the war, and Admiral Hugh Rodman, U. S. N. retired, special representatives.

Gen. Pershing

Curtis Bok of Philadelphia will be secretary of mission. Col. James L. Collins will be aid to Gen. Pershing, and Commander Frank E. Beatty will be aid to Admiral Rodman. The battleship New York, flagship of the Sixth battle squadron with the grand fleet in British waters during the World War, will participate in the international naval review off Spithead on May 20.

THREE New Deal acts of legislation were upheld by the Supreme court in decisions that indicated that tribunal was becoming almost liberal enough to suit the administration. Two of them were unanimous. The third and most significant was rendered by five of the justices, with four dissenting. This last opinion was given in the case of the Washington state law establishing a minimum wage for women and the court reversed its position taken a year ago in upsetting similar legislation passed by the New York legislature. Justice Owen J. Roberts had swung over to the other side, but Justices Sutherland, Butler, McReynolds and Van Devanter dissented from the present judgment, declaring that "the meaning of the Constitution does not change with the ebb and flow of economic events." This was a slap at the majority opinion, which was read by Chief Justice Hughes.

The court unanimously upheld the provisions of the railway labor act requiring railroads to engage in collective bargaining with their employees for the purpose of settling labor disputes. The opinion was read by Justice Stone and was closely studied by leaders of the administration who hoped to glean from it an indication of what the court might decide concerning the Wagner labor relations act, now in litigation. The Wagner act does not apply to railway workers. The decision was handed down in the case of the Virginian Railway company and upheld a ruling by the Fourth circuit court of appeals directing the company to engage in collective bargaining. The Supreme court also upheld the constitutionality of the new Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act. The decision, read by Justice Louis D. Brandeis, whose opinion condemned the earlier Frazier-Lemke act, was unanimous.

The law was passed to replace a similar statute which the court held unconstitutional in the spring of 1935. SENATORS, some fifteen in number, who have not committed themselves on the President's bill to enlarge the Supreme court, are earnestly trying to bring about a compromise that would enable them to go along with Mr. Roosevelt without laying themselves open to charges of supporting a plan to pack the court. Several compromise measures have been devised, one of which is that of Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico, a Democrat and a member of the judiciary committee that is holding hearings on the administration bill.

Senator Hatch

Mr. Hatch proposes to modify the President's bill so that no more than two additional justices could be appointed in any one year. Furthermore, it would provide for a flexible court with a membership varying between fifteen and nine judges. The additional appointments, made upon the failure of justices past 70 to retire, would not become permanent increases. They would be offset by failure to fill an equal number of vacancies caused by subsequent retirements.

Further witnesses for the opposition, appearing before the judiciary committee, included Dr. Irving Griswold, professor of constitutional law at Harvard; Dorothy Thompson, prominent journalist; Walter F. Dodd of Chicago, constitutional authority, and Dean Henry M. Bates of the Michigan university law school.

NEWS from MICHIGAN

Hudsonville—Known to students throughout the state, the Congregational church here was destroyed recently by fire. An historic landmark, the church was one of this community's oldest structures.

Ann Arbor—Production of an opera "The Bartered Bride," by Bedrich Smetana, and a mass campus song fest are included as features in the centennial celebration of the University of Michigan. June 14 to 19 has been set aside as a jubilee week and the entire program is to be handled by the students themselves.

Lansing—State inspectors have begun a campaign to trap operators of short-measure gasoline pumps. A motor car, equipped with a false tank and several sets of license plates, will tour the state. A two-man crew of the detective car will order five gallons of gasoline from a suspect, then summon another machine containing a measure, and check the sale then before the vendor.

Ann Arbor—Figures released recently show that one out of every eight University of Michigan graduates residing in the state is engaged in teaching. Of approximately 35,000 alumni in the state, 1,662 are on college or university faculties, while 2,913 are high school teachers or school superintendents. The alumni are scattered through 74 of Michigan's 83 counties, virtually state-wide coverage.

Bad Axe—Tradition was shattered here recently by Mrs. H. W. Pfaff, wife of a pioneer dentist. While the date of Carrie Nation's visit to this community has been lost to history, Mrs. Pfaff is the sole living resident who attended the lecture. She recalls that the villagers only laughed at the widely-known prohibitionist, and that the hatchet that saloon keepers feared was not used at Bad Axe, in the way that history has recorded its use in other parts of the country.

Port Huron—A new page was added to the unusual history of railroading recently, and the engineer of a Pere Marquette freight train joined the ranks of unsung heroes. It seems that the engineer spied an automobile stuck in the mud close to the tracks. The engineer stopped the train in short order, avoiding a collision, then threw a chain to the distressed driver. A pull, and the engine had lifted the car to the road again, and train and car both went on their respective ways.

Lansing—The moose crisis is over, reports Paul Hickie, chief mammalogist of the state conservation department. Hickie recently returned from Isle Royale, where he spent the winter "nursing" the island moose herd. In recent years the moose had increased to such numbers that food became scarce and famine stalked the island. Conservation men have trapped large numbers of the animals, shipped them over to more green and fertile pastures on the mainland, reducing the island herd to 200.

Pontiac—Mayor Victor E. Nelson, bronzed from a four-week southern vacation, found city affairs going smoothly on his return and so took time out to discuss 1937 baseball. Part of his vacation was spent at Lakeland, Florida, where the Detroit Tigers are training. Says Mayor Nelson, "That boy Auker, I've got a hunch he's going to have a good season. And if he does—well, I pick the Tigers, with Jake Wade, Bridges and Rowe rounding out the pitching staff. Right now, pitching is the only question mark."

Boyer City—The eighth annual smelt run got under way recently, with over 2000 sportsmen rewarded with heavy catches, many of them getting two to four bushels of smelt. With visitors from nearly all of the mid-western states, grinding news reel cameras and radio "mikes" the affair was pronounced the most successful in the history of the famous runs. An interesting fact was that morning dips showed a marked decrease in catches. Apparently the smelt are devotees of night life and are not early risers.

Kalamazoo—Latest air tragedy when a TWA plane crashed near Pittsburgh killing the 13 persons aboard, recently, brings forth the obituary of a local-born man. Lawrence Bohnet, pilot of the ill-fated ship, was born here 31 years ago. He graduated from the Western State Teachers College and the University of Michigan Engineering school before entering aviation at the naval air station at San Diego. Bohnet served with the United States battle fleet for a year, later joining the TWA staff.

Lansing—Substantial increases characterized appropriation bills for state prisons and correctional institutions, introduced in the state legislature recently. With schedules pointing to heavily increased expenditures, probably the highest in Michigan's history, attention is being directed to new revenue sources. Rep. John F. Hamilton, as a partial solution at least, introduced a bill to boost the 3 per cent sales tax to 4 per cent for the period of one year, from June 30, 1937, to July 1, 1938.

Camden—Local Easter phenomena was told by Glen Robinson, recently. It seems that one of Robinson's flock of hens presented him with an egg on which was embossed a perfect letter "E." Robinson gave the egg to a friend to be eaten at Easter breakfast.

Jackson—More than 15,000 Michigan farms will be given electric power service in 1937, by the extension of power lines farther into the rural sections of the state, through the Consumers Power Company program. Last year, 2000 miles of rural lines were built, giving service to 10,800 additional customers.

Battle Creek—A relic of the true Cross, brought from Rome by Bishop Hoban of the Western Conference, and given to his friend, Rev. Maurice Walsh, pastor of St. Philip's Catholic Church, was used Good Friday at the blessing of the congregation following mass. The relic is kept in a special, carved container.

Port Huron—Despite a heavy storm, a new navigation opening record was set for the St. Clair River recently, when two steamers unloaded cargoes more than three weeks ahead of the usual opening date. The Fontana discharged 4,500 tons of coal, while the John R. Emory went up Black River with 1,000 tons of sand.

Muskegon—"Belle of the timberland" is Miss Dorothy Paulson, seventeen year old high school senior. Recently elected to that honor, she will preside over the greater Muskegon centennial celebration and lumberjack carnival July 17 to 31. One of 21 candidates, she polled more than 400,000 votes in a popularity contest here.

Lansing—For the first time since repeal, the state liquor commission granted a short-term license permitting liquor to be sold aboard a Michigan ship. The steamer C. & B. was granted the license to permit it to carry liquor to be sold by the glass during the period of the state Shrine convention, which will be held aboard the boat June 21 to 24.

Lansing—A total of 62,764 persons is employed currently on state WPA projects, according to a recent announcement by the state administrator. The report stated that while the March total was virtually the same as that of February, a decrease was expected during April with the transfer of many cases to private farm employment.

Montrose—Another of nature's oddities was brought forth here recently, in the shape of a Damon and Pythias friendship between Trix, a horse, and Tramp, a collie, on the William Stevens farm. Inseparable companions, the two animals sleep and play together. If the dog becomes weary, or just wants a joy ride, he jumps on the horse's back for a trip around the farm.

Camden—Weatherman and calendar failed the official coming of spring on March 20th, but Mrs. S. A. Woodring sets the date two weeks earlier. At that time she received her first order for a sunbonnet and that's when spring arrives for her. Mrs. Woodring, known here as the "sunbonnet lady," recently completed her 200th chapeau. Proceeds go to her church. Blue, she says, continues to be the most popular color.

Lansing—A nickel saved is a nickel earned, according to an old proverb. By this token, coins should be plentiful throughout the state. A report by the state labor and industry department showed that the average Michigan family paid five cents less for its food during February than it did in January. Theodore M. Jacka, department statistician, said food costs averaged $7.63 weekly in February as compared with $7.68 in January.

Milford—What with claims of century-old buildings springing up about the state, local residents of Milford township decided it was high time to seek a place under the sun, as far as historic buildings go. The township has five farms, each of which has remained in the ownership of one family for 100 years or more. On the Bigelow homestead, Mrs. Job Bigelow started the first school in the township, using a log cabin which was without doors, floors and windows.

Ithaca—For those who have schemed in vain for ways and means to discourage and stop snoring, local residents have dug up an anecdote of colonial Michigan which might be one answer to the problem today. Snorers were penalized at the Comstock Hotel, the first public house in Ithaca. Often the hotel was filled so completely that the floors were covered with sleeping men. When a snore broke the silence, those who were awakened forced he who snored to stay up and tend the fire.

Ishpeming—The a d a g e about honoring among thieves is true, according to George Neumann, who recovered some stolen property because he and a thief had faith in each other. A traveling bag was taken from Neumann's car at Iron Mountain. Police told him that the thief would probably keep the contents and throw away the bag, so he advertised in a newspaper, asking the thief to throw the bag in a friend's yard, and promised him immunity from arrest. The bag turned up at the requested place.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington—Throughout history, unwise economic policies have had a way of demonstrating their unsoundness by the results that eventually become understandable to the rank and file of the people. Likewise, throughout history the rank and file of the people have learned their lesson each time and have avoided burning their fingers a second time. That is, fingers were not burned a second time until a new generation came along and refused to examine and take into account the lessons of experience.

Lately, we have seen another such demonstration. We have seen both the results and the refusal of current leaders to profit by experiences of the past.

I refer particularly to conditions involving United States bonds. Those who have followed market quotations must recognize that United States bonds and other securities issued by the treasury have suffered from fluctuations in prices that portend, if, indeed, they do not prove that federal financial policies of the last four years were unsound. There was propaganda from official quarters during one of the periods of sagging prices that the condition resulted from market manipulations and the activities of "tipsters." Stories to this effect came directly out of the treasury although they did not carry the identity of the official who made the statements.

The whole circumstance must be considered together, however, if one is to arrive at any sort of a conclusion concerning the true state of affairs. One must think of the total amount of government securities outstanding—something like thirty-four billions—and one must recognize as well what is going on in commerce and industry. In addition to these factors, attention must be given to conditions of the last several years when the Roosevelt administration was engaged—and still is engaged—in the greatest orgy of spending that our nation ever has known. When you add up these various factors, you get an answer which seems to me to be irrefutable.

In the first place, no nation nor any of its individuals can go on indefinitely spending money when it does not have that money. That is, it cannot spend more than its income over any extended period without suffering bad results. Our nation did that. It made up the difference between its income and its spending by borrowing. It gave government bonds to those from whom it borrowed, evidence of its debt. The immediate result of this was that there are millions upon millions of government bonds held by banks, corporations and individuals. These bonds bear an exceedingly low rate of interest.

It is only natural that anyone with money to lend will look for the highest interest rate they can get. If they happen to hold government bonds, those bonds will be dumped in favor of securities paying higher returns. That has happened to some extent already.

It is to be remembered as well that these bonds were issued in the currency of the devalued dollar, the fifty-nine cent dollar as measured by the value of gold.

Now, the law of supply and demand that has always operated and which always will operate places a basic value upon commodities, upon the services of labor. It is operating again and has brought about a greater demand for commodities, the things we need to eat or wear and the countless items of modern day living. The prices of these, measured in present currency, are higher because it takes almost two of the present day dollars to buy the same quantity as formerly could be purchased with the dollar that was good for one hundred cents in gold. The answer to this is that most of us can not help regarding gold as a commodity having a stable value. So, we see a result in this direction.

Labor, too, is demanding more of the fifty-nine cent dollars for its share of production. It has a right to do so. If you measure wages as you measure commodity values, and it seems to me there can be only one yardstick, then labor is justified in asking for higher pay. Again a result of tinkering with the currency becomes evident because labor is forced to pay more for what it buys as a result of the reduction in the dollar's gold value.

Then, finally, I am quite convinced that in addition to the factors I have discussed as having weight in causing fluctuation of government bond prices, no one can deny the influence that is being exerted by the radical labor element throughout the strikes that have been promoted.

These strikes have done more than just violate law by unjustified and unwarranted seizure of the property of other persons. They have developed among the strikers themselves a resentment against everyone who owns a farm or a home or a business.

The tragedy of this condition, to leave the subject of currency for a moment, is that the strikes show how little respect for law and order exists among a segment of our population. It is not only a tragedy. It is a dangerous sign and unless somewhere in our nation, government asserts its authority and protects rights, we may possibly be faced with a circumstance in which our nation will be held together again only by use of army guns.

To get back then to the bond market it seems to me there is a closely knit skein of conditions that prove where our government has gone into unsound ground. It can be pointed out how the tinkering with the currency has carried through to the ultimate consumer and the wage worker. It can be shown how the national government has disregarded the rights of part of the population and favored another part of the population and in doing so has created a class hatred which is liable to cause trouble in the nation for the next fifty years.

Notwithstanding the lessons to be learned from these experiences we observe how the same mistake is being made in another way. I refer now to the attitude of administration leaders who are supporting President Roosevelt's program to add six justices of his own choosing to the Supreme court of the United States. Throughout the argument that has come from proponents of the President's packing plan there runs a constant and recurring appeal that if we can only have six new justices in the Supreme court we can do all of the things that are necessary to bring about labor peace and complete business recovery.

Disregarding the merit or demerit of this argument, it seems to me one cannot help looking somewhat into the future and determining on the basis of experience of the past what may happen if the Supreme court is emasculated as the President proposes.

I said earlier in this article that there has grown up a tremendous disrespect for law. The continued prattle about the necessity for "new blood" in the Supreme court is simply and frankly another step in the direction of a government by men and not a government by law.

It is to be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt was given by his rubber stamp congress more power than any President of the United States ever has exercised before. I do not make the charge that the difficulties that I have attempted to analyze above resulted directly from according the Chief Executive so much power. But history surely teaches the lesson that where one man has so much power available he always makes more mistakes than where that power is exercised by the properly appointed or elected representatives of the masses of the people.

I recall a homely saying, often heard in my youth, that two heads are better than one even though one may be a cabbage head. I am quite convinced that the 435 members of the house of representatives and the 96 members of the senate have more wisdom collectively than one man.

Adverting again to the questions of currency and prices, we have only to look across the Atlantic ocean and see what happened in Italy, in Russia and in Germany where one man attempted to establish his own ideas on the currency. From what I have heard from official sources, it must be true that in those three countries I mentioned, there are billions of pieces of paper money that are worth altogether little more than the cash value of the paper on your walls. It always has worked out that way.

Some of the business interests of the country apparently are taking time by the forelock and adjusting themselves to conditions where the government is by men and not by law. A few days ago the distilled spirits institute announced that it had elected W. Forbes Morgan as its president. Mr. Morgan, an uncle by marriage of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, resigned as treasurer of the Democratic National committee to enter the employment of the liquor interests. While there was no official announcement concerning Mr. Morgan's salary, the gossip persists that he is to be paid something like five hundred thousand dollars for five years' work in his new job.

His election raises two questions: What can Mr. Morgan do for the liquor industry that is worth so much money and, secondly, whether the selection of Mr. Morgan does not show how stupid business interests can be.

Earle Meadows, as Guest Columnist, Cites A. A. U. Needs

Hugh Bradley has as his guest columnist today, Earle Meadows, the handsome twenty-one-year-old pole vaulter who won the Olympic crown last summer at Berlin and who came within a quarter of an inch of a new indoor world record this winter. He tells of the thrills, problems and disappointments of an athlete on the wing.

By EARLE MEADOWS MY INITIAL take-off into the realm of sports writing should, of course, concern the possibilities of a 15-foot vault. I think it is coming, and it's not so very far in the future, either. But the athlete who makes it—and there are many who have the potentiality—will need a good imagination and just a bit of "what it takes" to make that height.

I assume that the rabid track crowd is familiar with the forecast of George Varoff, the world champion, who has predicted a 15-foot leap within the next few years. That prophecy certainly is worthy of notice. But, even though George is one of my best friends, and even friends must disagree sometimes, I can hardly fall into line with his theory the vault will come as a result of combining two qualities, namely, his own push and the powerful pull of slim Suseo Ohe.

My contention is that it will not come by combining these two phases, for the simple reason that one asset would offset the other. It is quite impossible to combine such a marvelous pull as his with potent push that the Oriental possesses. The combination would ruin timing in the air. My credo is that the vault will result from the addition of a new technique—entirely from the standpoint of the actual mechanism.

After all, every vaulter will agree that working for form, rather than maneuvering through the air without a parachute, is his aim, especially at the above height. Varoff will agree, too, that when he made his world indoor record of 14 feet 4 1/2 inches at Boston last month, his off-balance in the air threw him down head first, proving that it makes the downward fall dangerous to the pole vaulter.

Earle Meadows

Get busy, coaches, the pole vault is not yet mastered as far as technique is concerned. Another point I would like to bring out is that with the present system of measurement—such as cost me a world record at the Garden in the New York A. C. games—a 15-foot vault is impossible. It would take all night or day to measure the bar and the athlete would lose his edge.

I'm not complaining or criticizing the officials. I'm only asking that they remember this point. An athlete trains for 13 years to achieve the honor of lifting his body to a height previously unachieved by man. To achieve this record, a tremendous amount of energy must be expended. It would seem, therefore, that the measurement should be checked carefully and announced before the record is attempted.

I thought that winning the Olympic vault in the rain at Berlin was the greatest thrill I had ever known, until that night at the Garden, when I cleared what I thought—and everybody else, too—was a record height. I can't express how I felt because it was such an unusual feeling to be so happy. And then . . . the letdown, when they told me it was one-quarter of an inch short.

And all because of inaccurate measuring instruments. I admit that I didn't want the officials to check with a steel tape before my attempt that night, because they would have been standing there gabbing yet, probably, figuring out the ways and means, talking this over and that—hot air that would thoroughly have warmed an unheated Garden. By the time they finished I would have lost my edge.

At the age of ten I measured the crossbar by my own stature, the most accurate means. I'll never forget how I started to vault with an old worn-out rug, cane and a clothes-line. And what a thrill I got out of it.

Finally, the old cane broke, and then came greater competitive desire to go higher than the other fellow. My first ambition to become an Olympic champion came when I was thirteen. It grew and grew within me. Then, like a dream, I was in Berlin, competing as one of three representing the Stars and Stripes.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE: WITH the close of the Florida season Jack Dempsey will make a flying tour of South America, refereeing boxing and wrestling matches. . . The best jockey at getting a horse away from the post at Miami is a kid named J. Barba. . . Freddy Lindstrom's best chance for a big league hookup is with the Giants. . . Bowling is such a popular sport with the people who come to Florida for the sun that the newspapers have to carry special signed columns about the ten-pin art.

Two pretty feuds have been simmering in Miami all winter. One is between the local bookies and the visiting bookies, mainly from New York, who have cut in on the cushy play. The other is between those two veteran Colonels—One-Two Bradley and Flamingo Joe Widener. Gossipers insist that when money and other substantial assistance was needed when Hialeah was reorganized several seasons ago Widener solicited Bradley as a partner. Now they aver that—with business being very good and a new governor making everybody behave—Flamingo Joe doesn't believe in partners.

Bicycle riding has become almost as popular in Florida as in Bermuda. You can rent the things out on the beach for $1 a day. . . Although the men do the most blabbing about big losses, clubhouse and grand stand messengers insist that fully 40 per cent of the racetrack wagering is done by women. Most of the girls, it is true, debate the matter for hours before splitting a $2 ticket but there are others, plenty of them, who send it in in C note lots. . . One of them devoted half an hour to standing in front of the gate the other day complaining about having to pay $1 tax on a clubhouse ducat when she had meant to bring along the 50 cent tax grand stand variety of pass.

Sarazen Has Ideas About Ryder Cup

Gene Sarazen, who, of late, has gone in for all kinds of reducing diets and exercises, is down to 152 pounds. He thinks this year's Ryder Cup team should be composed of Sarazen, Hagen, Manero Shute, Horton Smith, Ralph Guldahl and Picard. . . The Cards, by the way, have little fear of the Giants this year. They think Pittsburgh probably has the best team in the league but that the Cubs will provide the main opposition and that Rip Collins will star in the full 154 games.

Harry Voiler, the fight movie man has plans to win the light-heavyweight championship with Al Delaney. Delaney's injured hand, incidentally, has entirely healed and he will soon resume fighting. . . One of the prides of the Stevens Brothers, the racetrack and ball park restaurant men, is that they have more than 1,500 employees. But that no valued employee ever has left them except on account of death or extreme old age.

Millionaire John Hertz doesn't seem to care who knows how sore he is about rumors that the Illinois Racing commission will favor Washington Park over his Arlington Park in the assignment of dates this year. . . Wilcey Moore, former Yankee sinker ball pitcher, still has a span of mules called Babe and Ruth which he won from the home run king his first year on the club. . . Babe bet Moore that he wouldn't make three hits during the season. . . He made four. . . Moore is a gentleman farmer at Hollis, Okla., in the winter. . . He is with the Kansas City Blues this season. . . Stan Laurel, the movie comedian, interrupted a vacation cruise to stop in Cuba and watch the New York Giants work out. . . Benevolent citizens of Auburn, Wash., are caring for Amos Rusie, old New York Giant pitching star, and his wife, who were dispossessed recently when a mortgage was foreclosed on their farm.

Although his best friends tell him to forget it Jack Dempsey still dreams of promoting one big heavy-weight championship fight. . . Harry Hooper, regarded as one of the finest sun fielders in major league history, once was charged with three errors on two successive pitched balls when playing right field for the White Sox. . . He fumbled two flies and made a wild throw on one of them. . . Shoeless Joe Jackson now weighs 230 pounds and owns two automobiles. . . Joseph Widener has shipped four juveniles, Unbreakable, Entertain, Silver Spear, and Soda to England. . . Fred Perry shares Ellsworth Vines' enthusiasm for golf. . . Hans Steinke, former heavyweight wrestler, is a mat referee on the Pacific coast.

Two sophomores with the Iowa baseball team on its southern trip are relatives of major league players. . . Harold Manders of Adel, Ia., right-handed pitcher, is a cousin of Bob Feller and Arthur Manush of Burlington is a nephew of Heinie Manush. . . Although Glenn Cunningham set them both in the same race, the American mile record is lower than the world's. . . Cunningham ran the distance in 4:06.7, but since the International federation does not recognize tenth of a second timing in races above a quarter of a mile the world mark is listed as 4:06.8.

To Watch Eclipse From Small Island in Pacific

Scientists Prepare for Important Event in June.

Washington, D. C.—One of the largest and most completely-equipped expeditions ever organized to study a total eclipse of the sun will be sent by the National Geographic society and the United States navy to observe the unusual solar eclipse of next June 8, from a tiny coral atoll in the Phoenix islands far out in the midst of the Pacific ocean.

There are only two tiny islands from which satisfactory observations of the eclipse can be made, in the entire path of the eclipse,

INTERNATIONAL BANKER

Sir Otto Niemeyer, a director of the Bank of England, whom the board of directors of the Bank for International Settlements elected to fill for three years the new post of chairman of the board that it is creating. Heretofore the executive head of the bank had been its president, whose duties will now be shared with the chairman of the board.

which extends for 5,000 miles across the Pacific ocean. The expedition will use one of these two islands. The eclipse will be visible from the mainland of Peru about sunset, but the sun then will be too low in the sky to permit satisfactory observations.

This will be the longest eclipse of the sun visible from the earth in 1,200 years, having a maximum duration of totality of 7 minutes and 4 seconds. This eclipse also will "end the day before it starts." Its path will cross the international date line in the mid-Pacific, so that it will begin on June 9, but end on June 8.

Participating with the National Geographic society in the expedition will be the United States navy, the national bureau of standards, and the astronomical observatories of several universities. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, has arranged for the navy mine sweeper "Avocet" to transport the party from Honolulu to the Phoenix islands early in May, and for the instruments to be sent to Honolulu aboard the navy's new cruiser "Quincy" via the Panama canal.

Dr. Briggs in Charge.

The scientific program has been initiated and is being directed by Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, chairman of the research committee of the National Geographic society. The scientific leader of the expedition will be Dr. S. A. Mitchell, director of Leander McCormick observatory, University of Virginia.

The expedition will establish itself on either Canton or Enderbury island, both of which are in the Phoenix islands, just south of the Equator, about 1,800 miles southwest of the Hawaiian islands and 3,000 miles northeast of Australia. The party will choose one of the two islands, which are about 30 miles apart after arriving in the locality and determining which island offers the best conditions for landing and establishing a camp.

There are eight islands altogether in the Phoenix group. They are all low, coral islands, surrounded by reefs, with no permanent inhabitants, and are under the protection of Great Britain.

Enderbury island is about two and one-half miles long and one mile wide, while Canton is approximately nine miles in length and four in width. Both have lagoons in the center, and extend not more than 30 feet above sea level. They are uninhabited. Landing on both islands is difficult.

Complete Program.

Duration of the eclipse will be 4 minutes and 8 seconds on Enderbury island and slightly less on Canton. The maximum duration, 7 minutes and 4 seconds, will occur at noon at a point in the open ocean about 1,500 miles from the nearest land.

The expedition's scientific program will be one of the most complete and comprehensive ever carried out by eclipse observers. Special attention will be devoted to observation of the sun's corona, visible only during a total eclipse, and the chromosphere, or outer lay-

Canyon Hermit Irked; Neighbors Too Close

Salt Lake City.—Julian Kucke, seventy-eight-year-old "hermit of the Wasatch," is disgusted with hermiting.

It all started early during the winter, when snow caved in the roof of Kucke's tiny cabin in lonely Little Cottonwood canyon, and Wasatch national forest rangers forced him to move nearer a highway so they wouldn't be compelled to organize searching parties every week to see how he was faring.

So Kucke moved a bit farther down the canyon.

And now his cabin is surrounded by ERA and CCC workers, busily chopping and digging and building, to make the location a resort.

ICE-LOCKED LAND AT LAST CONQUERED

Modern Inventions Open Up Tract in Alberta.

Goldfields, Alberta.—Millions of square miles of ice-blocked land, for centuries accessible only to Indians, Eskimos, trappers and traders, are slowly being conquered by man-made Twentieth century inventions.

Along the shores of Lake Athabaska and throughout the neighboring territory, towns and villages are springing up like mushrooms as the frontiers are forced back. Gradually the tremendous wealth of the area is being developed.

Where Samuel Hearne fought his way across the arctic coast and where Hendrik Hudson died, tiny settlements of miners, mining engineers and government officials are coming into being. Some of them have risen during the last two years. Most of them in the last six months. Gold and radium created them and will keep them alive until the resources of the country are fully exploited.

Outpost, Yellowknife, Gordon Lake and Fond du Lac are a few of the newborn villages. Goldfields is another, but is quickly developing into a modern town. Already it boasts a badminton club, hockey team, barber shop, liquor store and a bootlegger, too.

Ten years ago this barren northland was guarded by a then impregnable barrier of snow and ice. The gold and radium now being taken from the earth were immovable because it was impossible to ship the necessary machinery and equipment into the country.

And then aviation came into this ageless land and tossed back the frontier that time, distance and climate had held strong since the ice age. Daily now, men and thousands of pounds of material are flown in and the gold and radium flow out.

Airplanes in this country are the equivalent of buses in the civilized sections of the province. Their traffic is part of this industry that is swiftly becoming the greatest in the country.

er of the sun, by photographing the "flash spectrum," which permits the determination of the heights to which vapors rise from the surface of the sun.

There is believed to be an excellent expectation of clear weather in the Phoenix islands at the time of the eclipse. The eclipse will occur on Enderbury island at 8:04 a. m., and 22 seconds earlier on Canton. This corresponds to 2:15 p. m. eastern standard time.

WIFE SEEKS REDFERN

Mrs. Gertrude Redfern, of Pittsburgh, Pa., wife of Paul Redfern, long-lost aviator, who will accompany an expedition leaving New York for South America, to attempt to solve the mystery of her husband's disappearance. Five Generations of Family Meet

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Making a Footstool — Do you know that you can make unique footstools out of the single spring seats of an old automobile? Cover the old seat with upholstery and attach castors at the four corners. This will give you a comfortable seat or footstool for your summer cottage.

Cooking Vegetables — A small piece of butter added to the water in which vegetables are to be cooked will prevent them from boiling over.

Flavoring Gravy — Half milk and half water makes the best colored and best flavored gravy.

Cocoa Egg Cake Filling — White of one egg; one cup icing sugar; two teaspoons cocoa; half teaspoon vanilla. Beat white of egg until stiff and dry. Mix cocoa and sugar, add cold water. Add gradually to egg white until thick enough to spread.

Suede Shoes — Rain spots can be removed from suede shoes by rubbing with fine emery board.

Ironing Shirts — Soft collars attached to shirts should be ironed on the right side first, then on the wrong side. This prevents wrinkling the collar.

Washing Embroidery — Do not wring embroidery after washing. Press out as much moisture as possible.

Worn Socks — Children very often get enormous holes in the heels of their socks. This is often due to the lining of the shoe which has worn rough. If the ragged bits are cut off and the inside of the shoe covered with adhesive tape, many a large "hole" will be prevented.

Baking Potatoes — Before putting potatoes in the baking-tin, stand them in boiling water for a few minutes, then drain on a clean cloth. They will cook more quickly and taste better.

Sausage and Fried Apples — Pan broil the required number of small sausages or cakes of sausage meat and as soon as the fat collects, add as many halved, cored and unpeeled apples as required, first dipping them in flour to which a little sugar has been added. Sauté slowly until soft and browned. Place on a serving dish, with two small sausages on each half.

Boiling Cabbage — When you cook cabbage, put a small handful of breadcrumbs tied in muslin into the pan. The bread absorbs all the bitter juices and makes the vegetable more digestible.

A Star for You Some of the pleasantest remembrances are those when you didn't get even although you could. The normal mother is sure of one thing: Her children's affection.

Nearly all aliens judge America by New York, which it doesn't resemble in the least. Chesterton alone found that out by living at South Bend.

There never was an age that wasn't the age for young men with ability.

A woman writes a paper to read before her club and finds a lot of new reasons to believe in something she hadn't cared much about.

And So the World Can Read

Bad handwriting is generally due to a man being in too much of a hurry to say what he wants to. Go slow: the world can wait.

All revolutions that undertake to change everything at once become failures. It is the one-at-a-time changes that last.

The instability of our tastes is the occasion of the irregularity of our lives.

If a man has too many worries he may laugh and kick them all out the door. It is the one worry that persists and inflates itself.

In a country given to the Strong Man Rule there are usually enough Strong Men to keep it in a state of constant bloodshed.

And That Brings Regrets

It is not because it is cultivating his virtues that one should refrain from anger, as that one is almost certain to say something foolish.

Some men are more energetic about expressing their opinions than they are about collecting facts to support them.

You must not try to remember where you put things. Your mistake was in putting something in a new place.

Letters From Our Readers

To the Editor:

I was quite surprised to read the article on Iargo Springs in the last Herald as the writer of the article is entirely mistaken.

During the years Isoco County had a Pioneer Historical Society, I am sure you are aware of it. It was a study of the names of the rivers, lakes and townships in the county and their origin.

This is the information we gathered on Iargo Springs after careful research.

"Iargo" is an Indian name meaning "Many Waters." Long before the white man came here it was a favorite camping spot of the Indians.

When a survey of the county was made in 1840, these springs furnished drinking water for the tired and weary surveyors. Here they found Chippeva Indians who told them the name of the springs, and in a large Norway Pine that stood guard on the bank, they carved in deep letters the name, "Iargo" and below it the names of the surveyors.

This great Norway stood until 1867.

Old pioneers and lumbermen told how this tree was a guide to the springs below, and then in 1867 it was cut down and sacrificed to a lumberman's greed for pine.

The place was then unmarked and known only to the Wilber people and a few hunters who often told of its beauty. The people on the west side of the county did not know its location as there was never a sign there after the great pine was cut down. Finally the Isoco County Pioneer Society decided to place a marker there. A committee was appointed, consisting of Fred Jennings of Hale, E. F. Abbott of Wilber and W. H. Price of East Tawas.

This committee arranged for a picnic near this spot on July 4, 1918 and people brought stones and Mr. Price made a small marker with the name, "Iargo" placed on it. This was later destroyed by vandals. Later the Consumer's Power Company had the place marked and according to pioneers who know, these were the only markers or signs ever made there.

Sincerely,
Nellie M. Jennings
Hale, Michigan

To the Editor:

From what source, I wonder, does the information come relative to the origin of the name "Iargo" as described in your last paper?

You might be interested to know that it was through my father, the late E. F. Abbott of Wilber township, that the general public came to know about Iargo Springs. He first learned about them back in the early lumbering days on the Au-Sable, and that their Indian name, Iargo, meant "Many Waters."

My first recollection of visiting the Springs was as a child, some 26 years ago. If the sign mentioned in your article was their at that time, I do not recall it. Nature furnished our only guide—the pine tree which leaned out over the river at that point.

If you will turn back your files to July, 1925, I think you will find an account of a Pioneer Picnic on July 4th at which time a small monument was erected to mark the springs. The origin of the name is described in that article.
Sincerely,
Amy M. Buck

FARMALL FARMING Is Still 'Way Ahead of Any Other

McCORMICK-DEERING

THE FARMALL way of farming row crops is still the cheapest and best way. There isn't any other that can touch it. FARMALL owners have been able to cut production costs to the very bone—they are in a position to take advantage of any upturn in farm prices and profit by it. Make the FARMALL investment yourself and enjoy all the advantages that FARMALL power brings to its users. There is a size for every farm now with the addition of the FARMALL 12 for small farms. Other sizes are the FARMALL 20 which handles 2 plows, and the FARMALL 30 for 3-plow work. Remember there is only one true FARMALL—the McCormick-Deering.
Come in and let us tell you about it. Or better yet, call us for a demonstration of the FARMALL that is best suited for your farm.

La Marseillaise Thrilling
The martial strains of "La Marseillaise" are always thrilling. It was composed by Capt. Rouget de Lisle, a young artillery officer, while quartered in Strasbourg in 1792. He wrote it one winter evening, and sang it the next morning to a group of friends at the home of Baron Dietrich, mayor of the city. It stirred the furor of patriotism whenever it was played or sung. The insurgents of the French revolution marched on Paris to its strains, and chanted it during the attack on the Tuilleries.

Plant Odors
The odor of a plant may be found in the leaves, as in sage and mint; in the bark, as in cinnamon; in the wood, as in cedar and sandalwood; in the flower petals, as in the rose and violet; in the seeds, as in anise and caraway; in the roots, as in orris; in the fruit rind, as in the orange; or in the form of resinous gum, as camphor and myrrh.

The Freshman class held their annual party at the high school on Thursday night. One of the features of the evening's program was a scavenger hunt. It fell to some of these brave freshmen to get some dates from tombstones in our local cemetery. However, as Don Pringle was about to get the date allotted to him, a big white rabbit that had put up for the night beside his particular tombstone, jumped out. Don didn't wait to get the date. All he could remember was the white object jumping out at him. He made it back to the school house in less time than you could believe possible. It also fell to Betty Higgins to get some dates from tombstones. When she came to the right tombstone the spirits began to talk to her. With big tears running down her cheeks she also took refuge back to the school house. However, these voices happened to be Don O'Farrell, Bert Fortune and Frederick Mills who had concealed themselves behind the tombstone earlier in the evening. It was a good thing some of those Freshies had nerve. Don says he still doesn't think it was a rabbit, and Betty says those voices didn't sound a bit natural.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. THE GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright S. S. Van Dine WNU Service

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment" advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and counseling that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son Floyd and his puny cousin, Woode Swift, are addicted to horse-racing. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next day in the Rivermont handicap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penthouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Lowe Hammle, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd expresses concern over Swift's queer actions. Mrs. Garden, supposedly ill, comes downstairs and places a $100 bet on a horse. Gathered around an elaborate loud speaker service, listening to the racing, are Markham, the Weatherly and Zalia Graem, who bet varying amounts on the race. There is tension under the surface gaiety. Zalia and Swift are not on speaking terms. Kroon leaves to keep an appointment before the race starts. Miss Beeton, a nurse, and Vance bet on "Azure Star." Swift recklessly bets $10,000 on "Equanimity" and goes to the roof garden to hear the results. Floyd follows Swift, remaining away several minutes. Zalia Graem, a nurse, receives a phone call in the den. Soon after the announcement that "Azure Star" wins, the guests hear a shot. Vance finds Swift dead, shot through the head with a revolver nearby. He says Swift has been murdered. After calling the police, he finds the door of a vault ajar. Kroon returns and is sharply questioned by Vance, who finds he had not left the building. Vance orders Miss Beeton to guard the stairway and prevent the other guests from seeing Swift's body. Floyd Garden admits the revolver belongs to his father. Further questioning by Vance reveals that the revolver had been found recently by Zalia in the presence of the other guests. Floyd hints that Swift was so restless because of Zalia. Markham, Sergeant Heath and two detectives arrive. Markham and Sergeant Heath scorn the murder theory.

Markham meditated on this for several moments. "Still, Vance," he said at length, "reasonable objections could be raised to all the points you have brought up. They are based almost entirely on theory and not on demonstrable facts."

"From a legal point of view, you're right," Vance conceded. "And if these had been my only reasons for believing that a crime had been committed, I wouldn't have summoned you and the doctory sergeant. But, even so, Markham, I can assure you the few drops of blood you see on the chappie's temple could not have thickened to the extent they had when I first saw the body—they must have been exposed to the air for several minutes. And, as I say, I was up here approximately thirty seconds after we heard the shot."

"But that being the case," returned Markham in astonishment, "how can you possibly explain the fact?"

Vance straightened a little and looked at the district attorney with unwonted gravity.

"Swift," he said, "was not killed by the shot we heard."

"That don't make sense to me, Mr. Vance," Heath interposed, scowling.

"Just a moment, Sergeant." Vance nodded to him in friendly fashion. "When I realized that the shot that wiped out this johnnie's existence was not the shot that we had heard, I tried to figure out where the fatal shot could have been fired without our hearing it below. And I've found the place. It was in a vault-like store-room—practically sound-proof, I should say—on the other side of the passageway that leads to the study. I found the door unlocked and looked for evidence of some activity there."

Markham had risen and taken a few nervous steps around the pool in the center of the roof.

"Did you find any evidence," he asked, "to corroborate your theory?"

"Yes—unmistakable evidence." Vance walked over to the still figure in the chair and pointed to the thick-lensed glasses tipped forward on the nose.

"To begin with, Markham, you will notice that Swift's glasses are in a position far from normal, indicating that they were put on hurriedly and inaccurately by someone else—just as was the head-photograph."

Markham and Heath leaned over and peered at the glasses.

"Well, Mr. Vance," agreed the sergeant, "they certainly don't look as if he had put 'em on himself."

Markham straightened up, compressed his lips, and nodded slowly.

"All right," he said; "what else?"

"Perpend, Markham," Vance pointed with his cigarette. "The left lens of the glasses—the one furthest from the punctured temple—is cracked at the corner, and there's a very small V-shaped piece missing where the crack begins—an indication that the glasses have been dropped and nicked. I can assure you that the lens was neither cracked nor nicked when I last saw Swift alive."

"Couldn't he have dropped his glasses on the roof here?" asked Heath.

"Possible of course, Sergeant," Vance returned. "But he didn't. I carefully looked over the tiles round the chair, and the missing bit of glass was not there."

Markham looked at Vance shrewdly.

"And perhaps you know where it is."

"Yes—oh, yes," Vance nodded. "That's why I urged you to come here. That piece of glass is at present in my waistcoat pocket."

Markham showed a new interest. "Where did you find it?" he demanded brusquely.

"I found it," Vance told him, "on the tiled floor in the vault across the hall. And it was near some scattered papers which could easily have been knocked to the floor by some one falling against them."

Markham's eyes opened incredulously. "I'm beginning to see why you wanted me and the sergeant here," he said slowly. "But what I don't understand, Vance, is that second shot that you heard. How do you account for it?"

Vance drew deeply on his cigarette. "Markham," he answered, with quiet seriousness; "when we know how and by whom that second shot—which was obviously intended for us to hear—was fired, we will know who murdered Swift."

At this moment the nurse appeared in the doorway leading to the roof. With her was Doctor Doremus, and behind the medical examiner were Captain Dubois and Detective Bellamy, the finger-print men, and Peter Quackenbush, the official police photographer.

Miss Beeton indicated our presence on the roof and made her way back downstairs.

Doremus acknowledged our joint greetings with a breezy wave of the hand.

He made a cursory examination of the limp figure, scrutinized the bullet hole, tested the arms and legs for rigor mortis, and then swung about to face the rest of us.

"Well, what about it?" he asked, in his easy cynical manner. "He's dead; shot in the head with a small-caliber bullet; and the lead's probably lodged in the brain. No exit hole. Looks as if he'd decided to shoot himself. There's nothing here to contradict the assumption. The bullet went into the temple, and is at the correct angle. Furthermore, there are powder marks, showing that the gun was held at very close range—almost a contact wound, I should say. There's an indication of singeing around the orifice."

He Made a Cursory Examination of the Limp Figure.

Vance took the cigarette from his mouth and addressed Doremus.

"I say doctor; speakin' of the blood on the johnnie's temple, what would you say about the amount?"

"Two damned little, I'd say," Doremus returned promptly. "But bullet wounds have a queer way of acting sometimes. Anyway, there ought to be a lot more gore."

"Precisely," Vance nodded. "My theory is that he was shot elsewhere and brought to this chair."

Doremus made a wry face.

"Was shot? Then you don't think it was suicide?" He pondered a moment. "It could be, of course, if he decided finally. 'Find the rest of the blood and you'll probably know where his death occurred.'"

"Thanks awfully, doctor," Vance smiled faintly. "That did flash through my mind, don't y' know; but I believe the blood was wiped up. I was merely hopin' that your findings would substantiate my theory that he did not shoot himself while sitting in that chair, without any one else around."

Doremus shrugged indifferently. "That's reasonable enough assumption," he said. "There really ought to be more blood. He died instantly."

"Have you any other suggestions?" asked Vance.

"I may have when I've gone over the body more carefully after these babies"—he waved his hand toward the photographer and the finger-print men—"finish their hocus-pocus."

Captain Dubois and Detective Bellamy had already begun their routine, with the telephone table as the starting-point; and Quackenbush was adjusting his metal tripod.

Vance turned to Dubois. "I say,

Captain, give your special attention to the head-photograph, the revolver, and the glasses. Also the doorknob of the vault across the hall inside."

Quackenbush, his camera having been set up, took his pictures and then waited by the passageway door for further instructions from the finger-print officers.

When the three men had gone inside, Doremus drew in an exaggerated sigh and spoke to Heath impatiently.

"How about getting your corpus delicti over on the settee? Easier to examine him there."

"O K, Doc." Two detectives lifted Swift's limp body and placed it on the same wicker divan where Zalia Graem had lain when she collapsed at the sight of the dead man.

Doremus went to work in his usual swift and efficient fashion. When he had finished the task, he threw a steamer rug over the dead man, and made a brief report to Vance and Markham.

"There's nothing to indicate a violent struggle, if that's what you're hoping for. But there's a slight abrasion on the bridge of the nose, as if his glasses had been jerked off; and there's a slight bump on the left side of his head, over the ear, which may have been caused by a blow of some kind, though the skin hasn't been broken."

"How, doctor," asked Vance, "would the following theory square with your findings—that the man had been shot elsewhere, had fallen to a tiled floor, striking his head against it sharply, that his glasses had been torn off when the left lens came in contact with the floor, and that he was carried out here to the chair, and the glasses replaced on his nose?"

Doremus pursed his lips and inclined his head thoughtfully.

"That would be a very reasonable explanation of the lump on his head and the abrasion on the bridge of his nose. . . . So this is another of your cock-eyed murders, is it? Well, it's all right with me. But I'll tell you right now, you won't get an autopsy report tonight. I'm bored and need excitement; and I'm going to Madison Square Garden."

He made out an order for the removal of the body, readjusted his hat, waved a friendly good-by which included all of us, and disappeared swiftly through the door into the passageway.

Vance led the way into the study, and the rest of us followed him. We were barely seated when Captain Dubois came in and reported that there were no finger-prints on any of the objects Vance had enumerated.

"Handled with gloves," he finished laconically, "or wiped clean."

Vance thanked him. "I'm not in the least surprised," he added.

Dubois rejoined Bellamy and Quackenbush in the hall, and the three made their way down the stairs.

"Well, Vance, are you satisfied?" Markham asked.

Vance nodded. "I hadn't expected any fingerprints. Cleverly thought-out crime. And what Doremus found fills some vacant spots in my own theory. Stout fella, Doremus, understands his business. He knows what is wanted and looks for it. There can be no question that Swift was in the vault when he was shot; that he fell to the floor, brushing down some of the papers; that he struck his head on the tiled floor, and broke the left lens of his glasses—you noted, of course, that the lump on his head is also on the left side—and that he was dragged into the garden and placed in the chair. Swift was a small, slender man; probably didn't weigh over a hundred and twenty pounds; and it would have been no great feat of strength for someone to have thus transported him after death."

There were footsteps in the corridor and, as our eyes involuntarily turned toward the door, we saw the dignified elderly figure of Professor Ephraim Garden. I recognized him immediately from pictures I had seen.

He was a tall man, despite his stooped shoulders; and, though he was very thin, he possessed a firmness of bearing which made one feel that he had retained a great measure of the physical power that had obviously been his in youth. There was benevolence in the somewhat haggard face, but there was also shrewdness in his gaze; and the contour of his mouth indicated a latent hardness.

He bowed to us with an old-fashioned graciousness and took a few steps into the study.

"My son has just informed me," he said in a slightly querulous voice, "of the tragedy that has occurred here this afternoon. I'm sorry that I did not return home earlier, as is my wont on Saturdays, for in that event the tragedy might have been averted. I myself would have probably been in the study here and would probably have kept an eye on my nephew. In any event, no one could then have got possession of my revolver."

"I am not at all sure, Doctor Garden," Vance returned grimly, "that your presence here this afternoon would have averted the tragedy. It is not nearly so simple a matter as it appears at first glance."

Professor Garden sat down in a chair of antique workmanship near the door and, clasping his hands tightly, leaned forward.

Hello Everybody!

"The Thin Edge of Doom"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

FREDERICK PRESNOLE of New York city walks away with the blue ribbon today, with a yarn that will curdle your blood, make your hair stand up, and bring you up out of bed in the middle of the night in a cold sweat. And Fred's adventure is another one of those yarns that goes to show how the real hot adventures don't come to the birds you'd expect them to come to.

Fred served as a soldier with the British army in France and Belgium. He got himself into many a tight spot during the war. But the big adventure of his career came to him while he was working at the comparatively peaceful job of medical technician.

It was on September 9, 1932, that Fred received a call from a prominent physician summoning him to a case in an apartment building on Park avenue. When Fred got there he was met by a woman, the widow of a wealthy New York merchant, who told him that her son had been suffering from a mental disorder and needed to be taken care of.

Patient Had Homicidal Tendencies.

The woman took Fred to her son's room. He was sitting by a window, looking out at the street. He paid no attention to Fred, and when Fred spoke to him he got no reply but a vague mumble and a furtive look.

Fred pretended to be interested in things around the room. He sort of hoped the young fellow might respond to that sort of treatment. But the lad just sat in his chair and sulked, and paid no attention to Fred at all.

About six-thirty that evening the doctor arrived. He looked over his patient, and then he warned Fred to watch him closely. "He's developing homicidal tendencies," the Doc said, "and it's hard to tell what he'll do. But he may become dangerous at any minute." So Fred decided he'd have to watch his step that night.

The evening wore on—and still the young fellow sulked. About midnight Fred persuaded him to go to bed. A cot had been set up in the room for Fred, but before he lay down on it he locked the door from the inside and put the key in his pocket. He waited until he was sure his patient was asleep, and then he lay down himself.

That Doze Was Almost Fatal.

Says Fred: "I was very tired, having just finished a strenuous case that same morning, and I must have dozed off. That doze nearly cost me my life. I awoke suddenly with a nameless feeling that all was not well, and there, not two feet from the foot of my cot, creeping toward me, was my patient."

Fred says no words that he knows could describe the demoniacal fury of the young lad's distorted features. "And," he says, "in his right hand was an OPEN RAZOR. To say that I went cold with horror wouldn't be telling the half of it. But that feeling only lasted a second or two. Then I managed to pull myself together again.

"The young fellow must have sensed that I was awake, for with a bound he was at my side. His arm went up and started to come down again. He meant to decapitate me with that razor. But my left hand shot out and seized his right, and I got a death grip on his wrist to stop the murderous swing."

But now the madman's left hand was reaching for Fred's throat, and there in that locked room began a terrible battle. The young fellow fought with all of a maniac's superhuman strength. He was armed with a razor, and Fred thought that sure enough this was going to be his finish. Still he struggled, and still the maniac fought on.

Nearly Split by the Razor.

"He made no sound," Fred says, "but kept spitting in my face as though to blind me. Finally, with a furious heave, he flung me to the floor and tore loose his right arm—the one with the razor in it. The arm went up, and I could see the razor gleam in the light that filtered in through the window. Emitting a grunting sound like a woodchopper swinging an axe on a block of wood he brought that razor down to split me in two."

And then, something else happened.

Fred says it's a strange thing, the way a man's mind and body will co-ordinate in a moment of stress. He put every ounce of strength he had into one great effort of pitching himself away—out from under that descending razor. He rolled violently to one side, and as he did, his right hand landed on one of his shoes.

Fred doesn't even remember thinking his next move out. He thinks he must have acted almost entirely by instinct. But he clutched at the shoe as a drowning man would a straw, sprang to his feet, whirled around and swung the heel at the mad young fellow's temple.

He did that all in one motion—and did it so swiftly that it was all over before his mind half caught up with what he was doing. The heel of the shoe landed—right where Fred wanted it to land. The young fellow slumped to the floor, and lay still.

Fred struck him again with that shoe. He looked as though the first blow had knocked him unconscious, but he might have been playing possum, and Fred wasn't taking any chances. And then the fight was over:

Fred stripped the sheets from the young fellow's bed and tied him hand and foot. He unlocked the door, and there, outside were the young lad's mother and the maid, both of them almost frantic. They had heard the sounds of the struggle but couldn't get through the locked door.

They took the young fellow to a sanitarium the next day. Fred never found out how he managed to get hold of that razor. Fred grabbed that razor, by the way, and kept it for a souvenir of a ghastly night's experience.

But I'll bet a lot of money he doesn't shave with it.

Early Pueblo People Had Their Balanced Rations

At a time when our own Nordic ancestors were living chiefly on half-cooked or raw meat, ignoring the necessity of eating plenty of spinach and fresh fruit to make them red-blooded and strong, the Pueblo people knew all about balanced rations and were thriving on a variety of delicious foods, declares a writer in the New York Times.

Yellow corn was the staple diet; yucca fruit was utilized, wild honey and sweet saps were excellent substitutes for sugar, and beans were so important as a ration that the Spanish name for bean, "frijoles," persists today in the name given to one of the most famous cliff-dweller ruins of New Mexico—Frijoles Canyon, in Banderilla National Monument, some seventy miles beyond Santa Fe. There were also squashes, edible gourds, bulbs of the Mariposa lily, and other roots; berries, pison nuts, and the seeds of certain grasses which were ground into meal in the stone metates, or grinding basins of hollowed stone, pounded with a stone pestle or manos.

For salt, to be sure, the Pueblo dweller had to travel long distances, securing it through mining or barter. Even today the scarcity of salt in some of these remote Pueblo villages is the occasion for seasonal trips to distant points for supplies of the mineral.

Ideals of a Nation

The strength and greatness of a nation do not lie in the sinews of its people, nor in the money bags of its traders, nor in the gibbness of its orators, but in the devotion of its citizens to a lofty ideal of public and private duty, in the love for all that is true and good and beautiful, and the hatred of all that is false, evil, mean and ugly; in their strenuous pursuit of knowledge, and their readiness to apply it to the making of life larger, fuller and happier for all.

All Gloversville Makes Gloves

In Gloversville, New York, the art of making gloves is a community proposition. In one factory, where handmade gloves are manufactured exactly as they were a hundred years ago, three of the best sewers of gloves are the wife of the mayor of the town, and the captain of police and his wife. The making of one glove involves no less than 74 different steps.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. Jas. Miller.
Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

Twin Worries

From the bedroom of the twin boys came the mingled sounds of loud weeping and hearty laughter, so father went upstairs to investigate.

"What's the matter up here?" he inquired.

The joyous twin indicated his weeping brother.

"Nothing," he chuckled. "Only nurse has given Alexander two baths and hasn't given me one."

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Inherit 1 Overweight.
WHEN a patient consults a physician regarding a reduction in his or her weight one of the first questions the physician will ask is about the parents, grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins. If there is a "tendency" to overweight on the side of either of the parents, the physician knows that the weight reduction is likely to take some time.

Dr. R. Gurney, Buffalo, in Archives of Internal Medicine, Chicago, studied seventy-five stout women in the outpatient department of the Buffalo General hospital, with three points in mind: (1) the factors associated with the onset of overweight as compared to the same factors or circumstances occurring in a non-stout group of women; (2) the incidence or occurrence of overweight in the parents of the stout group as opposed to that in the parents of a non-stout group; (3) the body build of the progeny or children of different matings with especial reference to inheritance of build.

Fifty-five women who were definitely not stout were chosen at random as "controls" (that is, for comparison because they were of normal weight and build). These "controls" were of the same age group as the stout women and had practically the same number of operations and the same number of children - operations and childbirth were named by both groups of women as the time at which they noticed the great increase in weight. Others reported that the great increase in weight came on at puberty (14 to 16 years of age) and others that it came on at the change of life (45 to 50 years of age).

When the "build" of the parents of the stout group and of the control group is investigated a difference in the occurrence of overweight is noticed.

Many Had Stout Parents.
Of sixty-one stout women whose family history was easily investigated, twenty-six had a stout mother, nine had a stout father, and fifteen had both a stout mother and a stout father. In contrast to all this stoutness in the family history, of the forty-seven non-stout patients whose family history was also easily investigated, fourteen had a stout mother, one had a stout father, and three had both a stout mother and a stout father.

Thus in the non-stout group there was a total of 38 per cent with either one or both parents stout as opposed to 82 per cent in the stout group.

A study of the progeny or children of different matings is of interest. There were 89 children from matings of stout persons, 65 of whom were stout; of the 170 children of matings of a stout and a not stout person, 70 were stout; of the 176 children of matings of persons who were not stout only 16 were stout.

This would show that while in stout individuals there are cell elements which tend to leanness, in thin or non-stout individuals there are apparently no cell elements that tend to stoutness.

It is in the cases with an "inherited" tendency to overweight that a physician is justified in using gland extracts. Where the excess weight is distributed all over the body, the thyroid extract may be of help. Where the excess weight is over abdomen, hips and shoulders, with forearms and lower legs slender, the use of extract of the anterior pituitary gland (the little gland lying on the floor of the skull) should give results.

Planning Health and Energy.
When the business man plans that his income will take care of expenses, he is said to budget his financial undertakings. A great many housewives work on or use a budget, putting aside so much for rent, for food, for fuel, for clothing, for medical and dental attention and a little for the savings bank.

It would seem then that it would be only good sense if each and every one of us were to budget our health, our energy, so that we could do all that was possible for our health or energy to do without robbing ourselves and so causing ill health and lack of energy.

Dr. George Crile, in his book "Diseases Peculiar to Civilized Man" shows how the insane desire for speed of all kinds which afflicts and sometimes seems like to ruin this rather mad generation, is the cause of such well recognized ailments as ulcer of the stomach and intestine, increase in the activity of the thyroid gland in the neck, so that all the processes of the body are driven at an increased rate of speed, weakness of the muscular and nervous system, and brought about the knowledge of how to cure these conditions by cutting the transmission between the brain and the overdriven organs.

The treatment is for the physician to show the patient that it is overspending of energy in work or play that is causing the symptoms.

Employing Character
A good character when established should not be rested in as an end, but only employed as a means of doing still further good.—Atterbury.

Punishment That Hardens
If punishment makes not the will supple, it hardens the offender.—Locke.

To Have Friendship
The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

GOLDEN TEXT—The soul that sinneth, it shall die. Ezek. 18:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—In the Garden of Eden.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Trying to Hide From God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Sin Is and Does.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Consequences of Sin.

"One of the curiosities of the British Museum is a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon which bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Long ages have passed; the king's superscription is visible but defaced; the footprint of the dog is clear and sharply defined.

"Human nature is like that brick. . . . Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the royal beauty of the Divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the Devil's imprint" (D. E. Hart-Davies).

Last Sunday we saw the heavens and earth, the animals, yes, the entire creation crowned by man himself, as it had come from the hand of God—"and behold it was very good" (1:31). But, sadly enough, it did not long remain so, for sin which had already entered the universe soon found its way into the world.

God created Adam in his own likeness and image, gave him "a helpmeet unto him," and placed him in perfect surroundings. He gave him congenial employment, and above all the inestimable privilege of fellowship with Him.

But because man was not a mere automaton—a toy in the hands of a superior being—God gave him the power of moral choice, the opportunity to exercise his God-given personality in making that choice. Obedience is the underlying moral principle of the universe.

Today we go with Eve and Adam into that cataclysmic experience which we call "the Fall of Man" for as we read in Romans 5:12, "by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

I. Temptation (vv. 1-5).
Satan is not a cloven-hoofed monster with a forked tail and a trident in his hand. No, indeed, he is more subtle than anything in creation. We read that he is "transformed into an angel of light" (II Cor. 11:14). His approach in our day is as smooth, and cultured as it was in the garden of Eden. An example is the insidious liquor advertising of our day. Another is his use of the man who stands before the pulpit or sits in the professor's chair and destroys the Christian faith of young men and women.

Note the five steps in the fall of man:

1. Listening to a slander against God (Satan lied about God).
2. Doubting God's Word and love (If we trust God we will obey him).
3. Looking at that which God has forbidden (The eye will betray us unless we guard it).
4. Lusting after what God had prohibited (Compare Genesis 3:6 with I John 2:6).
5. Disobedience to God's command.

II. Sin (v. 6).
Sin is deliberate transgression, not a natural weakness, nor a necessity. It showed itself in its true light when it at once reached out and dragged down another. We do not sin alone for very long.

III. Consequences (vv. 7-15, also 16-19).

1. The serpent is cursed.
2. Sin, death and condemnation enter the world.
3. Sorrow is linked with motherhood.
4. Responsibility and headship is given to man.
5. The ground is cursed and the burden of labor introduced.

IV. Redemption (v. 15).
Here we have the first promise of redemption, and the scarlet thread of redemptive truth thus runs from this point at the Bible's beginning to its very last chapter. Even in judging the first Adam for his sin God promises the coming of the second Adam who is to redeem the race. You are in the family of the first Adam by natural birth; have you entered the family of the second Adam by supernatural rebirth? (I Cor. 15:21, 22, 45.)

From Perfectly Cut Patterns

"I'M GLAD I'm not on the serving committee this week," muses Mrs. Smith of Walnut street, as she stacks stock of herself in the mirror preparatory to leaving for the church supper. "I look entirely too swell for me—why, I'm almost excited! I always knew surprise waits for me, but now becoming I never knew till now. That little deceptiveness is just what I need, and these sleeves are the most comfortable things! If about half our circle wore dresses like this it would be better for all concerned; so many of us have outgrown the tailored streamlined styles. Now, Mrs. White for instance—"

Enter an Admirer.
"Why Mother, you look de-lovely in that shade of blue! And you look real stylish, too—you ought to be going to a Coronation."
"Oh, I'd much prefer the church supper, dear. I'll be a somebody there in my new dress but at a Coronation I would be little potatoes. By the way, what did they say about your new jumper at school?"
"Mother, I meant to tell you. Mary Jane and Betty are both going to coax their mothers to make one just like it. I said maybe you would loan them the pattern, would you?"
"Why of course. Did you tell them it took me only two afternoons to make yours including two blouses?"
Enter "The Duchess."
"Sis, you're pretty young to be talking about clothes so intelligently. When you get a figure that clothes really count on—ahem, like Yours Truly's for instance; then it might be different—oh Mother, how nice! I'm crazy about it. Gee, such smart lines! Remember, you promised to help me with a new party frock next week if I did well with this shirt-waister. I wish all dresses were as easy to sew and as swell to wear as it is."

"Perfectly cut patterns spell success for any frock, Kay; your party dress is as good as made right now. But I must be on my way or I'll be more than fashionably late for the affair. Bye, bye—be good girls and see that Daddy gets something to eat."

The Patterns.
Pattern 1268 is for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 5¼ yards of 39 inch material.
Pattern 1996 is for sizes 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for the jumper and 1½ yards for the blouse. Armscye and neck edges of jumper require 2½ yards of 1½ inch bias facing.
Pattern 1226 is for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch material.

School Notes

The junior play, "The Three Pegs" has been postponed to May 6th. It is rapidly reaching the status of a perfect performance. You simply must not miss it. Much comedy is afforded by the schemings of the two Irish maids. You will also laugh at the whining and persistent ways of Aunt Euphelia. You'll have to guess about the identity of The Three Pegs. Besides the play, you will be favored by a band concert which will open the evening's program. There will also be other numbers by the music department of our high school. Get your ticket now!

The senior class will hold their commencement exercises Thursday evening, June 17. Isabelle Dease is the valedictorian, Ernest Ross the salutatorian, and the class has elected Madge Brugger class poet. Mr. Frank Robinson of the Central State Teacher's College will deliver the address. Mr. Robinson was here a few years ago and spoke to the P. T. A.

The school is giving a carnival on April 23rd, Bigger and Better Than Ever! Proceeds are to go toward a moving picture projector. Some of the features are, Parcel Post Sale, Picture Gallery, Play, Fun Room, Tea Room, etc. The students are very busy and hope to make this project a successful one.

The March Honor Roll contained the names of fourteen students or a gain of two over the honor roll of February. Of the fourteen, ten are girls while only four are boys. The seniors and sophomores placed five each while the juniors and freshmen had two for each class. All of the students on the February roll repeated and are on the March list. The following is the list of students who had no mark lower than a "B": Ruth Clark, Kathleen Davis, Lucille DePatty, Isabelle Dease, Hazel Herman, Betty Holland, John Katterman, Evelyn Latham, Marguerite McLean, Norma Musolf, Erma Lou Pfahl, Harvey Rempert, Ernest Ross and Otto Ross.

The attendance percentages for the year dropped in every class. The figures for the month of March show that every class but the freshmen had a lower percentage than in February. The seniors again had the best record for the month but the sophomores still lead in the records for the year. The following are the attendance records: Grade 12, for March, 95.9%; year, 96.9%. Grade 10, March, 94.5%, year, 97.8%. 9th grade, 92.2% for March, 93.9% for the year. Grade 11, March, 91.4% year, 97.8%.

The number of students who have been neither absent nor tardy during the school year is gradually getting smaller. There are only eleven students who have perfect attendance records this month while there were thirteen last month. The following students have been neither absent nor tardy so far this year: Ruth Clark, John Katterman, Walter Koepke, Grace Long, Arnold Rollin, Ernest Ross, Frieda Ross, Earl Shover and Isabelle Ulman. In addition to the above named the following have perfect records for this month: Violet Carroll, Otto Ross, Isabelle Dease, Lavene Koepke, Wm. Mallon, Robert Mark, Ervin Shover, Kenneth Smith and Richard Ziehl.

In general, the scholastic average for the month of February were lower than those of March. The high school average went up from 1.984 to 2.015. The only class average which did not improve was that of the juniors, which dropped from 1.792 to 1.676. The averages of the several classes were in the same order as those of last month, the sophomores again having the highest average, followed by the seniors, freshmen and juniors. The standings of the classes are as follows:

Tenth grade, February, 2.333, in March, 2.380. Twelfth grade, 2.067 and 2.259. Ninth grade, 1.833 and 1.893. Eleventh grade, 1.792 and 1.676. The average for the school as a whole was 1.984 for February and 2.015 for March.

Monday afternoon George Hedberg and Rev. Olson of the Saginaw Valley Gideon Society spoke to the high school. These men came through the auspices of the Iosco County Council of Religious Education to dedicate the five Bibles which were presented to this school by the Gideon Society.

We are very pleased to find that our band has become quite famous. Last Sunday there appeared in the Detroit Free Press a narticle entitled "Genesis of a Band" which praised Miss Huhala for her developing our twenty-eight piece organization.

7th and 8th Grades

The results of the second Schoring-Clark-Potter Arithmetic test, which was given March 29 by Mr. Giddings, have recently been given to us. With the exception of three pupils, everyone made noticeable advancement. Hazel Moran had high score in the seventh grade and Norma Burtzloff high in the eighth grade. Norma has had high both times in grade eight.

5th and 6th Grades

Harry Rollin Jr., Maxine DePatty, Clifford Groff, Hugo Wegner, Harlan Fowler, Willard Musolf, Lou Libka and Junior Ogden received perfect scores in a multiplication of fractions test Wednesday.

Agnes Toms and Willard Musolf were the champion spellers in a spell-down we had on Thursday.

Primary Room

Arthur Cadorette, who was absent last week, returned to school on Monday.

The "A" group of the first grade are enjoying their new Winston First Readers.
