

WELCOME VISITORS!

TAWAS CITY

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR TO CROWN QUEEN

Big Three-Day Event Will Open With Amateur Night Program

Friday morning—Sunshine!

The Perch Festival opened auspiciously early this morning—not waiting for the official hour, seven o'clock this evening. It started on the banks of the Tawas River where fishermen were trying their wiles to catch the succulent perch. The floodwaters from the long days of rain have partly subsided and the perch are again attempting to make their annual pilgrimage up the Tawas river.

Down town has a gala appearance. Bunting and flags are fluttering in the breeze. Shop windows are appropriately decorated and everything is in readiness to entertain the several thousand expected guests. Many of them are in the city now.

Tonight has a very attractive program—Amateur night, Major Bowes style. A. W. Coiby, chairman of the program committee, stated this morning that a large number of acts had been entered. After a preliminary audition today, the best will be selected and a program of real high class entertainment is assured. In addition to local talent, many acts have been entered from Bay City, Alpena and the neighboring towns. From early morning fishing until the late hours of the night, Saturday will be filled with activity. Band concerts, street events, firefighting demonstration by foresters from the Huron National Forest, boxing, the crowning of the Festival Queen and the Queen's Ball. Lieutenant Governor Leo J. Nowicki will preside at the crowning of Queen Mildred.

Sunday the Michigan Archery Association will give an exhibition of straight and fancy shooting with bows and arrows in the park. This will be followed by the parade. Included in the parade will be floats from West Branch, Mio, Bay City and other neighboring towns, commercial floats and several drum and bugle corps and bands. After the parade a band concert will be held in the park with all bands participating. The day's festivities will be ended with the Perch King's Ball.

Gates-Simonsen

At the "Shrine of the Little Flower," Royal Oak, Michigan on Saturday morning, April 24th occurred the wedding of Miss Helen Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gates of this city, to Borge Simonsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Soren Simonsen. Rev. A. M. Hutting officiated.

The bride was gowned in a print and thistle redingote with navy accessories and wore a corsage of assorted sweet peas, pink roses and lilies of the valley. Her attendant, Miss Lucille Gates, wore a print and navy redingote with navy accessories and wore a corsage of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Clarence Gates, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

After the wedding, a breakfast was served at the "Willow Tea Room." A dinner was served in honor of the bride and groom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gates of this city. The bride was a graduate of St. Joseph High School, class of 1928, and of the Iosco County Normal, class of 1929.

I wish to thank my friends in Iosco County for the letters and cards I received during my recent illness. It was impossible to answer them all and I am taking this method of expressing my appreciation. I wish each could know the comfort and consolation their cards and letters brought to me.
Mrs. Robert Watts

Former Tawas City Woman Dies at Detroit

Funeral services for Mrs. Francis Sermaclois of Detroit were held on Wednesday from the home of Chas. Nelem on the Hemlock road. Rev. S. A. Carey officiated.

Mrs. Sermaclois was formerly Mrs. John Brabon and had been a resident of this city until about twenty-five years ago when the family moved to Newberry. Mr. Brabon passed away about nine years ago. The deceased had many friends here who regret her passing.

Besides her husband she leaves three children, Earl of California, Mrs. T. Mattson of Elk Rapids and Mrs. Austin Beckley of Chicago; her mother, Mrs. John Goddard of Clio; her sister, Mrs. Samuel Teasley of Manistiquie, and four brothers, John Goddard of Port Huron, Earl Goddard of Detroit, Robert Goddard of Clio and Harold Goddard of Panama. All attended the funeral except the brother in Panama.

County Scholastic Contest Will be Held Here Next Friday

About thirty-five enrollments have been received for the Tawas City Public Scholastic Contest which will take place at the school building on Friday, May 7.

These contestants are the seventh and eighth graders of the surrounding rural schools who have enrolled and of the local parochial school. The tests will be given to both seventh and eighth graders in reading arithmetic, history, hygiene and spelling. The seventh graders only will be given tests in civics and geography, while the eighth graders will be given tests in civics and agriculture. Objective tests will be used. The contests will begin at nine o'clock in the morning and extend into the afternoon. An evening session will be held beginning at eight o'clock. A short program will be rendered at this time, including the high school band and a chorus from the seventh and eighth grade room. All prizes will be awarded at this time.

A hot drink will be served in the school building during the noon hour and a full dinner at 5:30.

A scholarship pin will be awarded each eighth grader and each seventh grader who wins high score in any subject and a prize will be given the school that secured the most points. To determine the number of points each second place will count one point, and each third place will count one point.

Members of the faculty of the Tawas City Schools will conduct the contest. Other teachers are welcome to attend. We especially urge the attendance of all teachers, parents, board members and friends at the evening session.

SHRECK MOVES TO NEW PLANT THIS WEEK

Invites Inspection of New Warehouses and Salesroom

The R. G. Schreck Lumber Company moved this week into its new buildings on Lakeside Drive, near the Detroit and Mackinac railroad yards. This lumber yard is said to be one of the best in northern Michigan. Appearance in addition to convenience and efficient arrangement, was included in the plans while constructing the buildings.

"We can serve our customers much better in our centrally located new lumber yard," said Mr. Schreck today. "In our warehouses and salesrooms we shall carry a very complete line of building material and builders hardware,—everything to construct a building from basement to roof."

"While in our cities during the Perch Festival we invite you to visit us. We wish you luck in getting a fine catch of perch."

Iosco Teachers Will Go To West Branch

The AuSable District of the Michigan Education Association, consisting of teachers of this district will meet next Wednesday afternoon at West Branch. The following is a program of the meeting:
Selections—West Branch High School Orchestra.
Greetings—President A. E. Giddings, superintendent of Tawas City Schools.
Address—"Bridging the Gap Between High School and College" by Professor Charles M. Davis, counselor to freshman students, University of Michigan.
Selections—St. Joseph High School Glee Club.
Address—"Modern Trends in Elementary Education" Dr. H. L. Turner, head of rural education department, Michigan State Teacher's College.
Selections—West Branch High School Glee Club.
Business Meeting.

FOR SALE—Seed potatoes or eating potatoes. Charles F. Brown.

RIVOLA OPENS UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Herbert E. Ives of Detroit Leases Theatre From Miles Main

The Rivola Theatre, closed since December, will reopen this evening with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea in "Internes Can't Take Money." This fine picture house has been leased from Miles Main by Herbert E. Ives of Detroit. Mr. Ives has had twenty-two years experience in the moving picture business in Detroit. Previous to coming here he had just disposed of the Monarch Motion Picture Exchange which he had operated for a number of years.

Mr. Ives said yesterday, "We are installing new R. C. A. sound equipment and the latest in motion picture projectors. We plan to give our patrons the very best programs and have already booked some of those pictures you had planned to see, such as our opening number, "Internes Can't Take Money" now being shown in Detroit.

A young doctor's dilemma whether to accept a fee from a patient, forbidden by his oath, or lose the woman he loves, is the story of "Internes Can't Take Money," the drama (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Health Notes

The Women's health classes given by Dr. Vida Gordon of the State Department of Health have been well attended by Iosco County women. If you have not been attending them, it is not too late to begin this week. The high school girls have been invited to some of the classes and there were many girls to hear Dr. Gordon last week. The next lecture will be held in the Tawas City Women's Club rooms at 3:30 Thursday afternoon, in the Osceola Auditorium, Thursday at 9:30 A. M.; Alabaster School at 1:30 P. M.; Hale Town Hall, Wednesday at 1:30 P. M.; Whittemore City Hall at 3:30 on Wednesday. This week's class will be an instructive movie relative to "Hygiene of Pregnancy and what Constitutes Prenatal Care."

The local Children's Fund Health unit have asked for a series of instruction for our high school girls in "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick." Miss Esther Nash, R. N. of the State Department of Health was here last week to arrange these classes with our school superintendents who will include them in the school program next fall. All schools in the towns of Iosco County will have these classes. They will be taught by a nurse of the State Department of Health.

May day is child health day. It was decided at a meeting of the rural teachers and school superintendents of Iosco County at the court house on April 19, that May day be an institution in the county. It will be celebrated with an all day out door activities program for the school children. The programs will be held in Hale, Whittemore, Osceola and East Tawas. Each program will include all rural schools in the surrounding district. The children will participate in parades, races of all kinds, base ball games, may pole dance, community singing, exhibits relative to school health activities. Parents are invited as this is an all day picnic day for the family as well as the school children.

Methodist Episcopal Church

10:00 A. M.—Morning Worship.
Sermon subject: The story of the Great Fish or "Can a Man Run Away from God?"
We hope that all who can do so will attend the church service. The fishing may be great but we cannot afford to neglect worship for anything.
11:15 A. M.—The Sunday School.
Mrs. Wm. Davidson, superintendent. Friendly classes for all who come.
The Ladies' Aid Society will meet this week on Friday evening with Rev. and Mrs. Carey at the parsonage in East Tawas. Ladies please note the change of day.

EAST TAWAS

Mrs. L. Bowman is visiting in Port Huron with relatives.

Mrs. J. J. Montgomery, who has been in Mercy Hospital, returned home much improved in health.

Ed. Musolf and daughters of Genoa, Ohio spent the week end at the Anschutz home.

Mrs. Wm. Hall, who was called here owing to the death of her brother, returned to her home in Grand Rapids Sunday. Her husband returned with her after spending the week end here.

Mrs. Chas. Pinkerton spent Wednesday in Bay City.

Special for May. Six horse back rides for three dollars. At Prescott Stable, Tawas City.

Plans were made at the regular meeting of the Junior Girls Club on Monday evening for their annual banquet and election of officers to be held at the Trading Post, Osceola, on May 10th. Miss Bernice Klumb, county nurse, also gave a very interesting Tournament will start next week. Entries are being filed at this time for individual, two-man teams and five-man teams.

About one hundred members of the Ladies' Literary Society and Junior Girls' Club and their guests attended the annual mother and daughter banquet given at the M. E. Church parlors on Wednesday evening. A pot-luck dinner was served. Mrs. W. A. Evans, president of the Ladies' Literary Club welcomed the guests.

Mrs. W. F. Tribe gave a toast to the daughters to which Miss Phyllis Greaser responded. Miss Ellen Turnbull also gave several readings which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. F. E. Kunze, accompanied by Mrs. Jess Edwards, presented an Indian program of songs and music, giving the history of the Indians and the interpretation of their music. This program was very interesting and unique and climaxed the evening's entertainment.

East Tawas School Will Hold Carnival

The senior class of East Tawas High School will present their annual Spring Carnival on the evening of May 7 beginning at 5:30 P. M. and lasting until 12:00 at the school.

From five-thirty to seven a roast beef supper will be served in the lower school hall. The prices will be 25c and 35c. A charge of 25c per person will be made for family groups. Immediately after the supper the events of the evening will begin. Most of the shows will be presented twice during the evening so that everyone will be able to see them. One of the most interesting shows will be that of "Professor Quiz" who will question two groups of contestants during the evening. The winner in each group will receive a worthwhile prize, and the questions are sure to be interesting to everyone. A play "Follow The Blond" will be given by the senior class. Other big shows will be the Kute Kiddie shows presented by the lower grades. Major Jewell's Amateur Hour, and "Rhyme, Not Reason" a short musical comedy. Throughout the evening the Fishpond, food-stands, candy and ice cream stands and the games in the basement will be operating. A dance will be held from ten o'clock until midnight.

Man May Bite Dog, But Love is News

When the proverbial man bites the ditto dog, "news" is born, but when Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Thore Amehce step out as a thrilling threesome in a streamline, springtime romance, it is love that crashes all headlines and sells extra editions—the hilarious theme of the Twentieth Century-Fox hit, "Love Is News" opening May 4 at the Family Theatre.
Slim Summerville, Dudley Digres, Walter Catlett, George Sanders, Jane Darwell, Stepin Fetchit and Pauline Moore are featured in the supporting cast.

President Demands Economy, Predicting Deficit of $418,000,000, but Asks Billion and Half for Relief— Franco Creates Authoritarian State.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

REVISING his budget estimates for the fiscal year 1938, President Roosevelt told congress in a special message that the deficit probably would amount to $418,000,000 exclusive of debt retirement payments of $400,000,000, instead of the "layman's" balanced budget he predicted in January. He recommended the appropriation of $1,500,000,000 for relief; and he demanded rigid economy to combat an anticipated drop in federal revenues amounting to $600,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt also said there must be a careful survey of the nation's tax structure, and intimated that a new tax bill would be introduced at the next session of congress.

In correcting the over-estimation of revenue and the under-estimation of expenditures, the President indicated that the national debt will rise over the 36 billion dollar mark. Though he made no specific recommendations as to economy, the President spoke sharply about "special groups" who are exerting pressure to bring about increases in government expenditures. It was understood he referred especially to the farm tenancy program, proposing an annual expenditure of $135,000,000; the Wagner housing bill, calling for an expenditure of $50,000,000 a year, and the Harrison-Black education bill, calling for allocations among the states beginning at $100,000,000 for the first year and reaching a maximum of $300,000,000 a year.

Mr. Roosevelt had rejected these measures at a White House conference and his attitude provoked various prominent senators and representatives so much that they declared they would favor cutting down the relief appropriation he asked to one billion dollars. Among the Democratic leaders taking this stand were Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, representing the appropriations committee. "I think the President's estimate of one and a half billion dollars for work relief is too high. It would make possible a monthly expenditure of $125,000,000. Each month it will be possible for Mr. Hopkins to further reduce the number on the relief rolls and consequently reduce the expenditures.

"It is my purpose not only to urge that the work relief appropriation be limited to one billion dollars, but that the law require larger contributions from the sponsors of projects. If the sponsors could be required to put up 50 per cent of the cost of the projects, we would not have applications for a billion dollars during the next fiscal year."

Senator Joe Robinson, majority leader, made an earnest plea for economy in all directions; and Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican leader, assured Senator Robinson that the Republicans would co-operate in every way possible with the Democrats in their "be-lated" efforts to balance expenditures with income.

In the house the economy program lost a point when Representative Vinson of Kentucky succeeded in getting through his $1,000,000 stream pollution bill.

TWO cabinet members were quick to comment on the President's economy orders. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace forecast an immediate curtailment of the administration's farm activities. Federal aid to farm tenants, production control and the ever-normal granary are among the projects to feel the economic ax, Mr. Wallace said. He is still hopeful that the crop insurance program, to be applied to the 1938 wheat yield, may be salvaged.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and his first assistant, Ernest Draper, joined in predicting that business recovery will not be retarded by the apparent inability of the administration to balance the budget in the 1938 fiscal year, as the President anticipated in January. They said they regarded lagging treasury revenues as a temporary condition and added:

"The present headway of business is so strong that it will offset the effect of a probable deficit."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT announced his plans for another fishing trip, to begin April 23 and last two weeks or longer. This time he is going to angle in the Gulf of Mexico while congress struggles with his latest recommendations. After leaving Washington his first stop will be at Biloxi, Miss. From there he will go by motor to New Orleans, pausing en route at Beauvoir, the old home of Jefferson Davis that is now a home for Confederate veterans. At New Orleans Mr. Roosevelt will board the Presidential yacht Potomac and cruise out into the gulf after tarpon. A navy cruiser will accompany the yacht. The fishing trip will end at Galveston and Mr. Roosevelt will go from there to Fort Worth to visit his son Elliott.

President Roosevelt

While the Potomac is at sea Secretary McIntyre will maintain headquarters at Galveston with a small staff.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, British chancellor of the exchequer, introduced in parliament the biggest budget since World War times, and gave warning that national finances for several years to come would be dominated by expenditures on armaments. He said that the government will require an outlay of $62,848,000 pounds (about $4,314,240,000) to carry out its plans and pay its expenses during the next year. Revenue obtainable he estimated at $47,950,000 pounds (about $4,239,750,000), leaving a prospective deficit of 14,898,000 pounds (about $74,490,000).

Chamberlain said the taxpayers would have to pay 3 pence more on each taxable pound of income, bringing the tax up to 5 shillings, or 25 per cent. He also announced a new tax on business profits, and this especially was bitterly attacked by the Conservatives, led by Sir Robert Horne. They argued that it would demoralize industry.

FRANCISCO FRANCO is well on the way to becoming a real dictator of the part of Spain his insurgent forces control, and of the entire country if they win the war. By decree the general has merged the two chief rightist factions under his leadership and has outlawed all other parties, thus creating a one-party authoritarian state. His decree left open the way to restoration of the monarchy in Spain "if the nation needs it" and the monarchists of the king shall be Prince Juan, youngest son of Alfonso XIII. He is known as prince of the Asturias and is twenty-three years old.

"The new Spain needs a new king," said a Carlist leader. "We traditionalists prefer the prince of the Asturias, who is a known sympathizer with the ideals of the new Spain."

GOV. LEWIS O. BARROWS of Maine has lined up with other state executives who will not stand for riotous and illegal tactics by strikers. When an unruly mob of 1,000 men tried to storm two of nineteen factories in Auburn involved in a general shoe strike and the local authorities were unable to handle the situation, Governor Barrows ordered out eight companies of the National Guard.

"I'll order out the entire military forces of Maine, if necessary to preserve constitutional authority," the executive said. "When there is open defiance to the orders of our courts and our officers of the law, there is little difference from anarchy. We shall not tolerate this situation for a moment."

The trouble followed a state Supreme court injunction, issued by Judge Harry Manser, outlawing the shoe strike which affects about 6,500 workers. The mob had been aroused by speeches by Powers Haggood, New England secretary for the C. I. O., and other organizers.

W FORBES MORGAN, who was the able treasurer of the Democratic national committee during the 1936 campaign and who resigned to take the presidency of the Distilled Spirits Institute, died suddenly in a committee room of the Ohio state capitol in Columbus. Mr. Morgan, a relative of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt by marriage, was a major in the World War.

BY UNANIMOUS vote, nearly 4,000 Daughters of the American Revolution, in their forty-sixth annual congress in Washington, adopted a resolution opposing the President's Supreme court enlargement bill. It declared against "unbalancing" the federal tripartite system of government and favored submission of the issues raised by the President to the people through a constitutional amendment.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent to the senate the nomination of Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman of Washington as minister to Norway. She is the widow of J. Borden Harriman, New York banker, and has been active in politics for a number of years. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., who now holds the Norway post, was nominated to be ambassador to Poland.

OPEN hearings on the President's Supreme court bill were ended by the senate judiciary committee, which is now engaged in considering the measure in executive sessions. It was believed the committee would debate the bill for several weeks.

Boxes full of petitions against the measure were presented to the committee. Senator Hiram Johnson of California handed in a volume signed by 75,000 voters of his state, and a series numbering 25,000 came from the Women's National Committee for Hands Off the Supreme Court and Women Investors of America, Inc.

One witness heard in support of the bill was Smith Wildman Brookhart, radical former senator from Iowa. He said the President's proposal was an issue in the campaign because the opposition declared what he would do to the Supreme court.

"It was specifically made an issue in the campaign," said Mr. Brookhart. "The President himself did not so urge it because he probably had not fully made up his mind, but former Senator James A. Reed, the ablest, most brilliant and most forceful opponent the President had in the whole campaign, did present in detail the President's plan upon accurate information. He dared the President to deny his statement."

"There was no denial because Senator Reed was telling the truth and the President was content to submit the issue upon the violent arguments against it alone."

Judge William Denman of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco, an appointee of President Roosevelt, argued against Chief Justice Hughes' contention that a Supreme court working in two or more separate panels would be unconstitutional.

IN THE last five months strikes in the automotive industry have cost the workers between $65,000,000 and $70,000,000 in wages. And still, at the behest of John L. Lewis and his C. I. O., they are planning further strikes. What they gain, beyond recognition of their union which probably could be obtained by negotiation wherever it is deserved, is problematical. The figures are from Ward's Reports, Inc., which says of losses to companies affected that the net volume of business "delayed" by the strikes would approximate $200,000,000, but what proportion of this actually is lost cannot be calculated.

Of the picture, the representatives of General Motors of Canada and of the workers at Oshawa, Ontario, reached a settlement of the strike in that plant. The company agreed to raise wages and shorten work hours, but does not recognize the United Automobile Workers of America. J. L. Cohen, Toronto attorney who represented the strikers, said the settlement was "eminently satisfactory."

"Let me tell Lewis here and now that he and his gang will never get their greedy paws on Ontario as long as I'm prime minister," said Premier Hepburn.

He thereupon let it be known that he was prepared to push through legislation that would exclude the C. I. O. from Ontario if this becomes necessary to save the pulpwood and mining industries from C. I. O. control.

The executive board of the union at a meeting in Washington decided to postpone until November the drive to unionize the Ford company plants.

TEST flights by the army air corps' new big bombing plane were being made at Seattle, Wash., where it was built by the Boeing Aircraft company. This machine is the largest military airplane in the world, with an all metal fuselage 100 feet long, a wingspread of 105 feet, and a cruising range of 6,000 miles. It weighs about 40,000 pounds unloaded and 75,000 pounds when carrying a full complement of fuel and armament. It has four twin row engines of a new type which will deliver 1,400 horse power each for takeoff. The speed is about 250 miles an hour. There are five streamlined blisters on the new machine which are emplacements for small, quick firing cannon, instead of machine guns. These cannon will outshoot any guns mounted on any other military airplane in the world and make the great machine virtually impregnable.

PATROL of the coasts and borders of Spain by the navy's land observers of Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany, as arranged some time ago by the international non-intervention committee, is now in effect.

Under the command of British Vice Admiral Geoffrey Blake, aboard the battle cruiser Hood, the British fleet patrols the northern coast on the bay of Biscay. German patrols the southwestern coast while France guards Spanish Morocco and the Balearic islands and Italy the eastern Mediterranean coast.

Merchant vessels of the committee's 27 members entering Spanish territorial waters must first call at specified ports and take aboard non-intervention committee supervisors who will have the right to examine the cargo.

Bowling Official as Guest Columnist Praises 1937 Event

(Elmer H. Baumgarten occupies this space this week as guest columnist for Hugh Bradley. He is secretary of the American Bowling Congress held this year in New York for the first time in history and like all bowlers, thinks there's no other sport like it.)

BY ELMER H. BAUMGARTEN
IT SEEMS that Charlie Ebbets, while in attendance at the 1906 A. B. C. tournament at Louisville, Ky., was so impressed with the tournament that it was his intention to have the event awarded to New York City. He said at the time that if it was ever taken east of the Allegheny mountains, it would never be returned to the Mid-Western states.

This display of enthusiasm was misinterpreted by the bowlers of the Western and Mid-Western states and, as a result, the tournament was permitted to go east of Buffalo until the 1935 event was held at Syracuse.

The Eastern bowlers made a remarkable showing in organization work, in patronizing the Syracuse tournament, and living up to their promise to return the tournament to the West the next year many of the leaders from the Western cities supported New York City in its campaign to obtain the tournament for this year.

The entry of 4,017 teams in this year's tournament must prove conclusively to all skeptics that the Eastern seaboard is capable of enlisting such an entry as to make any future tournaments in the East attractive to the bowlers of the United States and Canada.

We entered in this year's tournament approximately 22,000 individual bowlers some coming from the great mass of 3,200 miles away, accompanied by their wives, many by their entire families. The average stay was four or five days, but some remained in the city for two weeks or more and, as a result, we have been told that the American Bowling Congress tournament and convention is the most valuable of all conventions and gatherings inasmuch as there was a consistent flow of business into the tournament city over a period of weeks.

A. B. C. Makes "Hot Shot" Just Another Bowler

The A. B. C. tournament alleys level off all participants. One who might have a very fine average on his home alleys becomes just another bowler. There are only a small number of the country's outstanding bowlers who continue to maintain an average nearly approximating their averages at their home alleys. Quite a number of the so-called exhibition bowlers must have a particular alley finish upon which to do their stuff. When these individuals are permitted to practice a certain number of games in order to find the particular spot on which to start their ball on each alley, they can then make a creditable showing, but in an A. B. C. tournament they must begin to count immediately after a game starts, no practice being allowed except one ball on each alley without pins being set up.

Quite a number of the so-called "hot-shots" are practically scared to death when they appear at the A. B. C. tournament each year simply because they realize that they have no advantage. They do not know the "run" of the alleys, but must go in cold and proceed to knock down the brand new ten pins which are spotted for each team.

Although alleys are resurfaced each twelve months and all alleys on which sanctioned league and tournament games are bowled are certified as to being strictly regulation so far as the specifications are concerned, some bowling alley proprietors, alley mechanics, resurfacers and so-called sharpshooters insist upon having alleys finished in such a manner as to enable them to bowl a hook ball that has terrific power, and brings about excessive or unnatural high scores that in the end cause these particular individuals to look ridiculous when they bowl on alleys that are strictly flat; carry the proper amount of shellac and are correctly polished in accordance with the written rules and intent thereof.

This practice can be compared with a golfer who has been playing on a so-called croquet course, and then attempts to display his proficiency on a championship golf course.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

AT LEAST ten ballplayers who performed on Cuban teams last winter could make good in such leagues as the International or the American Association. Two or three others would have excellent chances of holding jobs in the majors. They do not get a chance because organized baseball is almost as prudish, as unenlightened and as selfish as Joe Louis in the matter of drawing color lines. . . . Horsemen who wintered in California say that Santa Anita has the country's best-conducted race meeting and that next winter the minimum purse will be $1,200. . . . Lou Chiozza's worst fielding trouble is that he tries to straighten up and aim before throwing. When he gets the ball away quickly from any old stance, his control is better and he looks more like a Giant third baseman.

When the indoor season ends boxing will have grossed more than $1,000,000 in the New York metropolitan area. The Garden naturally heads the list in gross revenue with St. Nick's and the Hippodrome running neck and neck for second position. This is the biggest season since the depression and promoters are so enthusiastic that they plant twelve outdoor clubs in addition to those operating in the Garden Bowl and the ball parks. . . . The Bomar Stable, a Maryland-trained outfit owned by Detroiters, is a combination of the names of Charles Bohn and Peter Markey—thus, the Bo-Mar. . . . "Fall Guys," a new book of revelations due from the pen of the sports writing Marcus Griffin, already has wrestling, eminentissimos in an expectant dither.

That feud between Burleigh Grimes and Charley Dressen is strictly on the level. Players whisper that, late last summer, the Cincinnati manager, who was none too secure in his own job, was offered the Brooklyn berth but refused to carry on negotiations behind Casey Stengel's back. . . . The reason why Tony Cuccinello, whose legs were supposed to be worn out several seasons ago, still can star for the Bees is simple. The Boston infield is the deadeast in the league. That is, the ground is so surfaced that balls do not take the fast and erratic hops they take in Chicago and other spots.

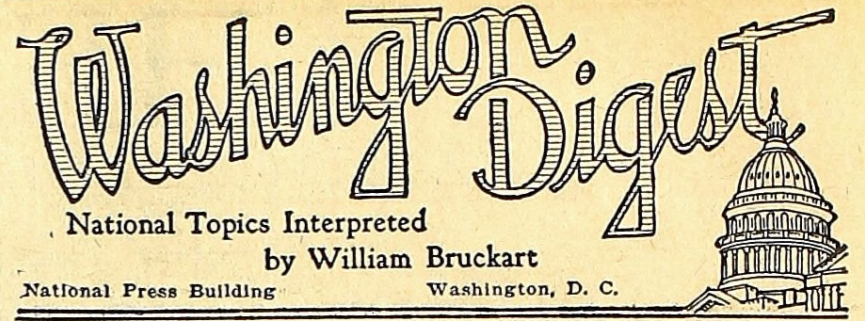

Dick Shikat, former world heavyweight wrestling champion, is in New York trying to buck the Trust. . . . Indian Quintana is very anxious for Champion Sixto Escobar to know that he'd like to fight him for money. . . . Bowles, the track that opens and closes the Maryland racing season, once was a rabbit hunting ground. . . . Bill Johnston will promote boxing at the Coney Island Velodrome this summer. Also, not at all awed by the task of filling the 18,000 seats in the Velodrome, he is dicker for a show or two at the local ball park. . . . Johnny Neun, the former Tiger who now manages Norfolk in the Piedmont league, also is a Baltimore sports writer.

Although he is doing well enough, it is Jack Dempsey's ambition to promote a big heavyweight championship fight. . . . An American league club could make a smart move by picking up Babe Herman. The former Dodger still has a year or two of big-time baseball left in him and a change of surroundings would give him a chance to bring it out. . . . Furists can take the word of one of the nation's most celebrated gambling house proprietors as to why roulette wheels—which never fail to provide the house with a better than 5 per cent profit—still remain in action. He says, "We gotta keep 'em going. The men got wise long ago. But we gotta lotta lady customers and they squawk like hell whenever we try to remove the wheels. . . . Incidentally, another eminent proprietor of such devices of the devil provides the information that 45 per cent of the money gambled in Florida during the past winter was gambled by the gals."

The main thing holding up the sale of the Dodgers is Judge Steve McKeever. The Ebbets heirs, who own 50 per cent of the stock, are more than willing to peddle their end. So are the Ed McKeever heirs, who own 25 per cent. But even though his 25 per cent of the stock is in his daughter's name and she would like to get rid of the headaches it causes her, the Judge has been holding out.

Harry F. Sinclair, once a mighty turf force, has only one horse left on his expansive farm in Jobstown, N. J. That's the old, and once truly great, Grey Lag. . . . Jimmy Fox is playing first base for the Cambridge, Mass., Latin school baseball team while Lou Gehrig is a candidate for second base. They are not related to the major leaguers.

Sam Leslie, the Giants' first baseman, wanted to be a prize fighter. . . . Herb Stegman, who virtually junked a Harvard education and an architectural profession to become a wrestling referee in Los Angeles, is writing a piece for a magazine on the life of a referee and is calling it: "Boo for the Referee." . . . Bob O'Farrell, the Waukegan boy who made good before Jack Benny ever owned a violin, says Carl Hubbell is the greatest pitcher he ever caught.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington. — Although it has been three weeks since the Supreme court of the United States upheld the Wagner Act decisions, I doubt that there is more than a mere handful of people in this nation who are able to comprehend the full significance of those decisions of the highest court. The chances are, if our present form of government remains and we continue to adhere to our Constitution, the full import of the so-called Wagner act decisions (there were five of them) will not be discovered within a quarter of a century.

No decision of the Supreme court in several decades contains the wide range of potentialities found in the decisions of April 12 and it may well be that the findings of the court at that time will constitute a turning point in United States history.

There are so many potentialities to be found in the Wagner act decisions that one may reasonably express a doubt whether states have any rights left. Likewise, one may express a doubt whether labor and the friends of labor have won or lost in the determination by the high court that the National Labor Relations board has power to compel an employer to deal with a majority of his workers, organized into union form. Above and beyond these phases lies another, namely, the question whether the United States congress does not have power to legislate strikes out of existence.

First, I am convinced in reviewing the court's action that there has been a tremendous amount of misinformation spread about the findings of the court. Never in my period of service in Washington have I seen so many different constructions placed upon an official act. We have seen and heard unmeasured criticism of the court for turning business over to the labor unions; we have witnessed a renewal of attacks on the Supreme court because it did not go far enough to the radical side in granting power to congress and the President, and we have been deluged with talk of what can now be done in a legislative way to carry out Mr. Roosevelt's theme song, "The More Abundant Life." The truth is, however, that the Supreme court in deciding in a clarified manner a position the court took twelve years ago. It was in 1925 that the court decided the so-called second Coronado coal mining case. In that opinion, the court laid down the rule, although it was obscured, that obstacles to production constituted an interference with interstate commerce. In the cases this month, the court reaffirmed and restated that very theory of law and government, because it declared in the Jones and Laughlin Steel company case that failure of the employer to permit settlement of the strike through an official agency of the government constituted interference with interstate commerce. Hitherto, the conception of interstate commerce generally has been limited to transportation of goods or communication across state lines.

To show the similarity, it is necessary only to recall that striking miners attempted to close entrances to the Coronado mines in Colorado. The cases went to the Supreme court which held that illegal attempts to close the mines constituted an interference with shipment of the products into interstate commerce. So, I am quite convinced that the job the Supreme court did in this instance and as far as it relates to the orgy of New Deal theories consists only of clarifying the legal definition of interstate commerce. Laymen are not concerned with legal technicalities, nor do they understand them, but they do understand facts and it was facts in the Jones-Laughlin case upon which the court predicated its decision notwithstanding the wild acclaim by New Dealers for the "enlightened" construction of the Constitution in that opinion.

Any attempt to point out what the Wagner act decisions mean and how far they go is bound to lead into a maze of complicated discussion. I have no intention of getting myself so entangled despite the degrees in law that I hold. I am a firm believer in the declaration that human nature works out its problems after the manner of slow and orderly development. But there are certain circumstances connected with the present court rulings and conditions of this day that may probably be discussed without becoming involved in despised legal technicalities. I mentioned earlier that if the court, as it did, could find that obstruction of production constituted interference with interstate commerce, it seems quite obvious that interference may come from employees as well as employers. It is a fact, therefore, that when the steel company here concerned refused to obey the mandate of the

All of this may sound a bit fantastic; it may sound as an attempt to borrow trouble. It is neither. The situation is discussed for the reason that it is quite apparent there will be new attempts in congress now to write legislation controlling hours and wages. Representative Connerly of Massachusetts, speaking as chairman of the house labor committee, declared the other day that such legislation would be drafted and he entertained no doubt that it would pass the house. Conditions in the senate are different, but Mr. Connerly's opinion must be accepted as worthwhile in so far as the house is concerned. Thus, if congress undertakes such legislation it is confronted with the necessity of doing something by way of amendment of the Wagner act that will make union labor comply with federal regulation instead of leaving the Wagner act one-sided as it is. In other words, labor is entitled to its dues, to its fair share of profits, but it seems to me it is also entitled to be as subservient to law as those who pay the wages.

Shies at Discussion
I have no intention of getting myself so entangled despite the degrees in law that I hold. I am a firm believer in the declaration that human nature works out its problems after the manner of slow and orderly development. But there are certain circumstances connected with the present court rulings and conditions of this day that may probably be discussed without becoming involved in despised legal technicalities. I mentioned earlier that if the court, as it did, could find that obstruction of production constituted interference with interstate commerce, it seems quite obvious that interference may come from employees as well as employers. It is a fact, therefore, that when the steel company here concerned refused to obey the mandate of the National Labor Relations board it prevented a settlement of a strike. It must be a fact, therefore, that a strike of the sit-down type constitutes interference with production and consequently interferes with interstate commerce. The next conclusion, and it seems perfectly obvious, is that if congress can legislate against employer and prevent him from interfering with interstate commerce, it can legislate to prevent the workers from interfering with interstate commerce.

Now, we come to the point, mentioned earlier, of the danger inherent in any situation where congress starts legislating on the question of human rights. Congresses before this time have been fair and congresses hereafter may be fair in enacting legislation dealing with the delicate matter of human rights. But where is the assurance that they will do so? How can we tell but that at some future time a congress subservient to big business may decide to lay down ridiculous rules about employment. It is possible, for example, that some congress may say that employers may not hire workers above fifty years of age. They seem to have that power—if they can make it appear that age becomes important to the maintenance of constant production. I admit this sounds ridiculous. I intended that it should sound ridiculous. It has been mentioned as an extreme case to show what may be possible if these new powers are not wisely used. It exemplifies, moreover, what a factor uncertainty is when too much power has been granted any agency of the government, be it national or state or local.

Now, to touch up on some of the unsettled issues resulting from the court's pronouncement: All that has been obtained under the Wagner act decisions is complete recognition of the right of organized labor groups to bargain collectively free from employer domination. The principle of majority rule is laid down. An employer must deal with the representatives of a majority of his workers. The rights of the minority, whether that minority be a company union or an independent union, are rather much overshadowed although they can present their grievances to the National Labor Relations board.

It is in that situation that trouble is foreseen. Most of the recent strikes have resulted from disputes over union recognition. Largely this union recognition question resulted from the maneuverings and agitation by John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization. But it is not to be forgotten that the American Federation of Labor has several million members in its craft unions. Thus, it can easily be foreseen that the National Labor Relations board is going to be confronted many times with a fight between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. Each one of these organizations will claim that it represents a majority of the workers and, therefore, is entitled to be the spokesman for all of an employer's workers.

Most of us have seen how bitter internal labor rows can become. I am sure that most of my readers will recall cases within their own knowledge where carpenters and bricklayers have fought it out over the question of which one was to do certain work in construction. It has happened hundreds of times and each time bitter hatred has developed. When the right to speak for a whole body of employees becomes the question for determination, it seems to me perfectly obvious that the controversy will develop into one of white heat. And the labor board will have to decide which one should serve as the employees' representative. In the meantime, the employer can have nothing to say.

All of this may sound a bit fantastic; it may sound as an attempt to borrow trouble. It is neither. The situation is discussed for the reason that it is quite apparent there will be new attempts in congress now to write legislation controlling hours and wages. Representative Connerly of Massachusetts, speaking as chairman of the house labor committee, declared the other day that such legislation would be drafted and he entertained no doubt that it would pass the house. Hell o Everybody

"Executed!"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FRANK WHITTIE of New York city picked up a book about South American revolutions the other day, and it reminded him of the time he was wandering around Venezuela and ran right smack into one of those tough little two-acre revolutions himself.

It was up in the town of Coro on the north coast, in the year 1929. In the spring of that year Frank found himself out of a job and broke in Lagonillas, and wandered from there to Maracaibo looking for work. There he met up with a stranded Norwegian sailor, and the pair of them started hiking for Caracas.

But they never got to Caracas—and as far as Frank is concerned, he just hasn't any hankering to go there.

It was pretty tough going—that trip overland from Maracaibo. The way was through dense jungle, full of snakes and animals. They drank dirty swamp water—and were glad to get it. The towns were few and far between, and they were half starved on entering every one. They were about all in when they arrived at the outskirts of Coro.

Caught in Middle of a Revolution.

They were looking forward to a decent meal and something better than swamp water to drink. But as they approached the town they heard firing in the distance, and as they came closer they saw that Coro was virtually in a state of siege, surrounded by government soldiers. Another one of those South American revolutions had sprung up overnight, and Coro was no safe place to be in!

What to do? You know those little South American revolutions are sometimes more cruel and bloody—fought with less regard for human life—than the big wars of Europe. If they went on they'd be right in the thick of it. And if they turned back over that long jungle they might starve before they could cover the distance to the nearest town. While they were deliberating, the matter was decided for them. Half a dozen soldiers appeared suddenly on the road ahead and began firing.

Frank pulled the big Norwegian down on the ground. He whipped out a white handkerchief and waved it. The soldiers took them prisoners, marched them into town. They were searched and questioned. In vain did Frank and the Norwegian protest that they were not revolutionists—that they knew nothing about a revolution. They were thrown into a bare, dirty cell, fed some dirty, half-cooked beans, and left there.

Facing the Firing Squad.

The days rolled on. Frank wrote note after note to the American consul, but he found out later that they were never delivered. The cell faced a courtyard where recruits were being drilled all day long, and Frank, who knew a little Spanish, began talking to them. One recruit in particular took a liking to him, and told him there was an American, Senior King, living in town, who might help him. Frank's heart leaped when he heard that. King was an old boss of his in Lagonillas, and knew him well.

Frank wrote a note to King and sent it out by his friend the recruit. He wrote a half dozen more in the days that followed, but somehow, King never got any of them. And finally, on the ninth day of his incarceration, he heard that they were going to be taken out that morning to face a firing squad.

It was true. Soldiers came and unlocked their cell. Frank and the Norwegian were taken out and blindfolded. They stood with their backs to an adobe wall, and over at the other side of the court they could hear the Venezuelan soldiers loading their rifles. A native officer shouted an order to take aim. In another ten seconds both of them would be dead.

And then, suddenly, Frank's friend the recruit came dashing into the courtyard. Frank heard him crying excitedly that Senior King was outside getting a permit for a revolver, and knew the message was meant for him. If he could only reach King—or get his attention somehow!

Blindfold Dash to Get to King.

Says Frank: "I was blindfolded, but my arms and legs were free. I didn't have a second to lose, so I did the first thing that popped into my mind. I grabbed my friend the Norwegian by the arm and we made a dash for it."

Frank didn't get anywhere in his blindfolded dash. But he didn't get shot either. The native soldiers were so surprised that they held their fire. Straight across the court ran Frank and the Norwegian, bowling over the swarthy little men who tried to stop them, tugging at the cloths that bandaged their eyes and bumping into everything in the way. Frank doesn't know what or who he bumped into. He couldn't see. But he could hear well enough to realize that they were creating a commotion. The uproar could be heard for blocks.

Officers, judges, town officials came running to the court to see what was the matter. And with them came King. About that time Frank saw his bandage off. He saw King and yelled to him. King saw Frank and recognized him. "What are you doing here?" he wanted to know. And Frank told him what had happened.

King then turned to one of the city officials. Angrily he told him just what the American consul would do when he heard that an American had been imprisoned without reason and sentenced to death without a trial. Then he turned around and walked off in a rage, vowing that he'd have the United States navy down there if Frank wasn't turned loose by the following day. The Venezuelans hustled Frank and the Norwegian back into their cell on the courtyard.

But early the next morning an armed guard let them out, put them aboard a special train and took them down to the seacoast town of La Vela. There they were put aboard a schooner and told they were free.

Tobacco Cultivated for Ages

Though harassed by many ills and insects, tobacco has been cultivated for centuries. It was used in America when the Spaniards arrived. Long before, however, Cuban aborigines rolled the large leaves cigar fashion and smoked them. These they called tobaccos. Later the term became tobacco. Tobacco seeds are first planted in hotbeds or nurseries. In about six weeks the infant shrubs are moved to fields. An unbranched stem often grows six feet high. Leaves sometimes are two feet long. When the foliage begins to turn the plants are cut, usually near the base.

William Hogarth, Artist

William Hogarth, painter, engraver and pictorial satirist, was born in London in 1697. He served an apprenticeship to a silversmith and about 1720 began business for himself, engraving coats of arms and designing plates for booksellers. In 1724 he entered the art school of Sir James Thornhill. He illustrated Gray's edition of Butler's "Hudibras," and in 1730 began the painting of the satirical pictures that made him famous. Among them are "The Harlot's Progress," "A Midnight Modern Conversation," "The Distressed Poet" and "Marriage à la Mode." He died in 1764.

Glacier in Alaska Now Smashes Speed Records

Moves Mile a Month Instead of 10 to 20 Yards.

Washington, D. C.—A new "galloping" glacier is breaking all speed limits. The Black Rapids glacier, about 125 miles south of Fairbanks, Alaska, has been reported moving almost a mile a month instead of the more usual 10 to 20 yards.

"Just such a spurt of speed frightened mankind into a systematic study of glaciers, which was instituted only a century ago on the Aar glacier in Switzerland," says the National Geographic society. "The task of counting glacier 'noses' is not yet complete, but they are known to be going their slug-of glaciers elsewhere, most of which have a fraction of a mile as the largest dimension.

"Many are so small that they can be distinguished from glorified snowdrifts only by their motion. For glaciers, although composed of brittle ice weighing tons per square yard and rocklike with a crystalline structure similar to marble, actually move with a mysterious flow and not with a slide like an avalanche of snow. Markers on the surface reveal that the ice rivers 'flow' more rapidly in the center than on the sides, faster on top than beneath. But rapid movement for a glacier is usually slower than slow motion, for the rate is measured in inches per day. Some runaways may cover 30 feet in a day, like Childs glacier in Alaska, but most of them would keep pace with the hour hand of a watch.

Melting Rapidly.

"The majority of glaciers are melting more rapidly than the glacier rate of advanced six miles in 25 years. Illecillewaet in Canada retreats more reluctantly—a tenth of a mile in 14 years.

"Glaciers flourish virtually on the Equator, wherever peaks are high enough. The very tip-top of Africa, Mount Kilimanjaro (19,710 feet) in Tanganyika, is girdled with no less than ten glaciers, although it is volcanic. Indeed, South American glaciers are frequently tucked into the pockets of quiet volcanic peaks in the Andes; and at Cerro Alto, in Ecuador, a glacier has taken possession of a second-hand crater.

"A roll call of glacial giants would bring up the names of Pamir glacier, in the Himalayas, possibly 100 gish way down the higher mountain peaks of every continent except Australia. In the Alps alone, 2,000 have been tabulated.

"Specimens of these Ice age souvenirs survive in six of the United States: Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, and California. Samples have been corraled in ten national parks, with the most spectacular exhibits in Mt. Rainier National park, where 27 glaciers extend their pale tentacles down the single peak; and in Glacier National park, where 60 small glaciers lie. Sequoia National park, more famous for its trees, has a couple of glaciers for that authentic primeval touch in the background. Yosemite valley, a perfect example of glacial action, still has glacier specimens to show how such valley-carving is done.

Alaska in Lead.

McKinley National park, with the continent's highest peak, and the Glacier Bay National monument, where eleven glaciers reach the sea, have some spectacular types.

"The United States also claims possession, by virtue of recent explorations by Byrd and Ellsworth, of slices of the very largest glacier still in existence—the continental glacier doming Antarctica with an ice cap of great thickness. Here an area exceeding that of the United States is iced over, with such giant ice tongues licking into the ocean as Beardmore glacier, 10 to 20 miles wide and 125 miles long. The glacial superiority of Antarctica is appreciated in contrast with the size

British Query on H. C. L. Will Enter Into Homes

London.—Twenty thousand housewives throughout Great Britain are to be asked to reveal the secret of how they make "ends meet."

They will be asked how much they spend on housekeeping, how much on food alone, what foodstuffs they buy, and how much food they waste.

This will be the third great government inquiry this century designed to find out how people live and what are the minimum food costs to keep a person in health. The previous inquiries were made in 1904 and 1918. On these official "cost of living" index figures have been based.

Domestic scales and standard waste thus will be provided for a selected percentage of the 20,000. The housewives chosen for this more detailed investigation will be asked to weigh their food carefully and to keep the waste and weigh it, so that exact calculations can be made of average food eaten in families of different wage levels.

There will be no compulsion on any one to give the required information, which will be treated confidentially. The collection of the details will be carried out by local authorities and the cost defrayed by the treasury.

The result of the survey will be studied by the advisory committee on nutrition.

miles long; Hubbard glacier in Alaska, 90 miles long and in places 10 miles wide; and the ice cap of Svalbard (Spitzbergen).

"The method of a glacier's growth is more spectacular than the mighty-oak-from-little-acorn contrast. For the huge ice-rivers are merely overgrown colonies of snowflakes, which have become compact granular ice. For this reason, glacial ice and icebergs are not salty, as are the ice floes of frozen sea water."

Airplane Travel Shows Steady Increase

Passenger Lists Are Soaring Despite Crashes.

Washington. — Fatal airplane crashes costing lives of more than two score persons during the last six months have failed to affect commercial air travel, a bureau of air commerce report sets out.

In fact, figures show that during January, within a month of five major accidents, the number of passengers carried on the nation's airways was 46,012, compared with 44,061 for the same month last year.

The scheduled air lines of the United States flew 1,420,741 miles per accident and 15,118,023 passenger miles per passenger fatality during the last half of 1936, Director Fred D. Fagg pointed out. There were 5 fatal accidents in which 19 passengers, 5 pilots, 5 co-pilots and 3 crew members lost their lives.

These statistics cover operations of all airlines operated by companies in the United States, including domestic air lines and extensions to foreign nations.

The domestic air lines, in this period, had twenty-six accidents, flying 1,334,570 miles per accident.

Foreign air lines had two accidents, in which one pilot was fatally injured, and flew 2,540,969 miles per accident.

Causes of accidents on the domestic and foreign extension air lines according to the report were as follows:

Personnel errors, 37.50 per cent; power plant failures, 3.57 per cent; airplane failures, 25 per cent; weather, 10.71 per cent; airport and terrain, 14.29 per cent; other causes, 3.57 per cent; undetermined and doubtful, 5.36 per cent.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—If, as, and when the President puts over his scheme for reconstructing the Supreme court nearer to his heart's desire, the question arises—in fact, has already arisen—as to where he's going to find members who will keep step with the New Deal's march of triumph.

Might this earnest well-wisher make a suggestion? Let the President look Hollywood over before making his selections, for this is yes-man's land. Some of the studios out here are so crowded with yes-men that big yes-men have to tote little yes-men in their arms.

There's only one or two drawbacks to this plan, as I see it. It's going to be hard to wean the local appointees from wearing polo shirts along with those long silken robes. And they'll insist in a preview for each decision.

Domestic Pets.

A BROOKLYN judge has decided that for a couple to keep eighty-two various animal pets in one apartment is too many—maybe not for the couple, but for the neighbors—yes!

That reminds me that once, in a hotel in the Middle West—not such a large hotel either—I found fully that many pets in my bed. They weren't assorted enough; they all belonged to one standard variety. I shall not name the hotel, but it was the worst hotel in the world, as of that year. If bad hotels go where bad folks do, it's now the worst hotel in Hades.

But the point I'm getting at is that, though eighty-two animals may make a surplus in a city flat, they couldn't possibly upset a home so much as one overstuffed husband who's puny and has had to go on a strict diet such as would be suitable for a canary—if the canary wasn't

Literary Legerdemain.

CULTURAL circles along sun-kissed coast of California are still all excited over the achievement of a local literary figure who, after years of concentrated effort, turned out a 500,000-word novel without once using a word containing the letter "E." If the fashion spreads to the point where the capital "I" also should be stricken out, it's going to leave a lot of actors and statesmen practically mute.

But that's not what I started out to say when I began this squib. What I started out to say was that I know of much longer novels which have been produced without a single idea in them. Sold pretty well, too, some of 'em did.

Holding World's Fairs.

IT'S customary, before launching a world's fair or an exposition or whatever they may call it, to hang the excuse for same on some great event in history and then promptly forget all about the thing that the show is supposed to commemorate in the excitement of flocking to see Sally Rand unveiled as the real main attraction.

For instance, the big celebration in New York in 1939 ostensibly will mark George Washington's inauguration as President 150 years before, and it may be, just as a matter of form, that Washington will be mentioned in the opening ceremonies. But the real interest will center in whether Billy Rose or Earl Carroll or the Minsky brothers succeed in thinking up some new form of peach-peeling art to entertain the customers, or have to fall back once more on such reliable standbys as fan dancers and strip-teasers.

Coronation Souvenirs.

SINCE previous engagements prevented me from going over to the coronation, I trust some friend will bring me back a specimen of that new variety of pygmy fish which some patriotic and enterprising Englishman has imported from Africa as an appropriate living souvenir of the occasion. It's a fish having a red tail, a white stomach, and a blue back, thus effectively combining the colors of the Union Jack. And it's selling like hot cakes, the dispatches say.

Now if only this engaging little creature could be trained to stand on its tail when the band plays "God Save the King" what an addition it would make for any household in the British domain! (Note—Households in the south of Ireland excepted.)

Caviar Canape
1 can of caviar
1 egg
1 tablespoonful of lemon juice
1 tablespoonful of onion juice

Bread for toast according to the number to be served.

Spread the caviar on round piece of toast. Then spread on this the yolk of the egg which has been hard-boiled and run through a sieve. Season with the lemon and onion juice, although the latter is a matter of personal taste and should be used at the discretion of the individual. Trim the edges with the grated white of the egg and garnish with small piece of tomato.

GAS PRESSURE MAY CAUSE DISCOMFORT. RIGHT SIDE BEST.

If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adlerika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you sleep soundly. Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Mrs. Jas. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. The first dose of Adlerika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

WATTS SCHOOL NOTES
Will wonders never cease! We suppose you will say, "What now?" It is exactly this, Miss Ross is married! We must now call her Mrs. Popp.
Monday during recesses and noon we decorated Mrs. Popp's car with red and white streamers and we also put signs on it.
Friday afternoon we had one of our Achievement tests but it was not very hard.
There were ten pupils absent on Monday on account of the storms which made the roads very soft and hard to walk on.
Taft school has nothing over on us now because Monday Mrs. Popp treated us to "Baby Ruth" Candy bars.
The seventh grade are starting to review their history books for the yearly tests.
Tuesday morning Mrs. Popp read part of the story in the Rural School Bulletin.

Mrs. Robert Watts returned home from the hospital last week. We hope she is much improved.
Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McIvor of Detroit spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Miller and called on Paul Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Binder.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown entertained on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McIvor of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Herriman and daughter, Joann, of Pontiac and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Binder and son, Charles.
Herbert Herriman, who spent the winter months in Philadelphia with his wife, came Saturday for the summer.
James Chambers Jr. and Howard Herriman of Detroit spent the week end here.
The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. James Chambers on Thursday evening. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Louise McArdle in two weeks.
We are very sorry to learn that Mrs. Harry Van Patten has broken her arm.
Mrs. Stanley Van Sickle spent Monday with Mrs. Van Patten.
Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kummerville entertained guests over the week end.

Chinook Winds

Chinook winds usually occur in mountain regions and are the result of the downward movement of the atmosphere by which its heat is greatly increased, due to increase in pressure. They may occur on any side of the mountain region, therefore blow from any direction of the compass.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

"By George! I did hear something, now that you put it that way. I thought nothing of it at the time, since Woody was already dead. But just as I re-entered the stairway there was an explosion of some kind outside. I thought it was a car back-firing down in the street, and paid no attention to it."

"That's very interesting" . . . Vance's eyes drifted off into space. "I wonder . . . But to continue your tale. You say you left the roof immediately and came downstairs. But there were at least ten minutes from the time you left the garden to the time I encountered you entering the apartment at the front door. How and where did you spend these ten intervening minutes?"

"I stayed on the landing of the stairs and smoked a couple of cigarettes. I was trying to pull myself together."

Heath stood up quickly, one hand in his outside coat pocket, and thrust out his jaw belligerently toward the agitated Kroon.

"What kind of cigarettes do you smoke?" he barked.

The man looked at the Sergeant in bewilderment, and then said: "I smoke gold-tipped Turkish cigarettes. What about it?"

Heath drew his hand from his pocket and looked at something which he held in his palm.

"All right," he muttered. Then he addressed Vance. "I got the stubs here. Picked 'em up on the landing when I came up from the dame's apartment."

"Well, well," sneered Kroon. "So the police actually found something! . . . What more do you want?" he demanded of Vance.

"Nothing for the moment, thank you," Vance returned with exaggerated courtesy. "You have done very well by yourself this afternoon, Mr. Kroon. We won't need you any more."

Kroon went to the door without a word.

"A good story," Markham commented dryly when Kroon had gone.

"Yes, yes. Good. But reluctant," Vance appeared disturbed.

"Do you believe it?"

"My dear Markham, I keep an open mind, neither believe nor disbelieve. . . . Prayin' for facts. But no facts yet. Drama everywhere, but no substance."

There was a rustle in the passage-way, and Madge Weatherby came rushing into the study, with Heath following and protesting vigorously. It was obvious that Miss Weatherby had dashed up the stairs before anyone could interfere with her.

"What's the meaning of this?" she demanded imperiously. "You're letting Cecil Kroon go, after what I've told you? And I"—she indicated herself with a dramatic gesture—"I am being held here, a prisoner."

"The fact is, Miss Weatherby," said Vance, returning to his chair, "Mr. Kroon explained his brief absence this afternoon lucidly and with impelling logic. It seems that he was doing nothing more reprehensible than conferring with Miss Stella Fruemon and a brace of attorneys."

"Ah!" The woman's eyes glared with venom.

"Quite so. He was breaking off with the lady for ever and ever."

"Is that the truth?" Miss Weatherby straightened in her chair.

"Yes, yes. No subterfuge. Kroon said you were jealous of Stella. Thought I'd relieve your mind."

"Why didn't he tell me, then?"

"There's always the possibility you didn't give him a chance."

The woman nodded vigorously.

"Yes, that's right. I wouldn't speak to him when he returned here this afternoon."

"Care to revamp your original theory?" asked Vance. "Or do you still think that Kroon is the culprit?"

"I—I really don't know now," the woman answered hesitantly. "When I last spoke to you I was terribly upset. . . . Maybe it was all my imagination."

Vance looked at the woman quizzically. "Since you're not so sure that Kroon did the deed, have you any other suggestions?"

There was a tense silence. Miss Weatherby's face seemed to contract. She drew in her lips.

"Yes!" she exploded, leaning toward Vance with a new enthusiasm. "It was Zalia Graem who killed Woody! She had the motive, as you call it. She's capable of such things, too. There was something between her and Woody. Then she checked him over. He didn't have enough money to suit her. You saw the way they acted toward each other today."

"Have you any idea as to how she managed the crime?" Vance asked quietly.

"She was out of the drawing-room long enough, wasn't she?"

"Poignant question. Situation very mysterious," Vance rose slowly and bowed to the woman. "Thanks awfully—we're most grateful. And we shall not hold you prisoner any longer."

When she had gone Markham grinned sourly.

"The lady is well equipped with suspects. What do you make of this new accusation?"

Vance was frowning.

"Animosity shunted from Monsieur Kroon to La Graem. Yes. Queer situation. Logically speaking, this new accusation is more reasonable than her first. It has its points . . . If only I could get that disconnected buzzer out of my mind. It must fit somewhere . . . And that second shot—the one we all heard."

Vance again moved to the buzzer and inspected it with care. "No indications of a mechanism."

"It could have been removed before the repair man arrived," theorized Markham without enthusiasm.

"Yes, another possibility. I had thought of that too. But the opportunity was lacking. I came in here immediately after I had found the cigarette from his lips and straightened up. 'By Jove! Someone might have slipped in here when we all dashed upstairs after the shot. Remote chance, though.'"

"Does the buzzer connect with any other room besides the den?" asked Markham.

Vance shook his head.

"No. That's the only connection."

"Didn't you say there was someone in the den at the time you heard this shot?"

Vance's gaze swept past Markham.

"Yes. Zalia Graem was there. Ostensibly telephoning." His voice, I thought, was a little bitter.

"We might get more information from the young woman herself," Markham put in sarcastically.

"Oh, yes. Quite. Obvious procedure. But I have a few queries to put to Garden first. Pavin' the way, as it were. I say, Sergeant, collect Floyd Garden and bring him here."

Garden came into the room un- easily and looking slightly haggard.

"What a mess!" he sighed, sinking dismally into a chair. "Any light on the case?"

"A few fitful illuminations," Vance told him. "By the by, it seems that your guests walk in and out the front door without the formality of ringing or being announced."

"Oh, yes. But only when we're playing the races. Much more convenient. Saves annoyance and interruptions."

"And another thing: when Miss Graem was phoning in the den and you suggested that she tell the gentleman to call back later, did you actually know that it was a man she was talking to?"

Garden opened his eyes in mild surprise.

"Why, no. I was merely ragging her. Hadn't the faintest idea. But, if it makes any difference, I'm sure Sneed could give you the information, if Miss Graem won't. Sneed answered the phone, you know."

"It's of no importance," Vance brushed the matter aside. "It might interest you to know, however, that the buzzer in this room failed to function because someone had carefully disconnected the wires."

"The devil you say!"

"Oh, yes. Quite." Vance fixed Garden with a significant look. "This buzzer, if I understand it correctly, is operated only from the den, and when we heard the shot, Miss Graem was in the den. Incidentally, the shot we all heard was not the shot that killed Swift. The fatal shot had been fired at least five minutes before that. Swift never even knew whether he had won or lost his bet."

Garden's gaze was focused on Vance with wide-eyed awe.

"God God, man!" He shook his head despondently. "This thing is getting hellish."

"By the by," said Vance, "Miss Weatherby tried to convince us that Miss Graem shot Swift."

"Has she any grounds for such an accusation?"

"Only that Miss Graem had a grudge of some kind against Swift and detested him thoroughly, and that, at the supposed time of his demise, Miss Graem was absent from the drawing-room. Doubts that she was in the den phoning all the time. Thinks she was up here, busily engaged in murder."

Garden drew rapidly on his pipe and seemed to be thinking.

"Do you yourself regard Miss Graem as capable of a cold-blooded, skillfully planned murder?"

Garden pursed his lips and frowned.

"Damn it, Vance! I can't answer that question. Frankly, I don't know who is and who isn't capable of murder. The younger set today are all bored to death, intolerant of every restraint, living beyond their means, digging up scandal, seeking sensations of every type. Zalia is little different from the rest, as far as I can see. She always seems to be stepping on the gas and exceeding the speed limits. How far she would actually go, I'm not prepared to say. Who is, for that matter? It may be merely a big circus parade with her, or it may be fundamental—a violent reaction from respectability."

"A vivid, though not a sweet, character sketch," murmured Vance. "One might say offhand that you are rather fond of her but don't approve."

Garden laughed awkwardly.

"I can't say that I dislike Zalia. Most men do like her—though I don't think any of them understand her. I know I don't. There's some impenetrable wall around her. She's either damned superficial or deep as hell—I can't make up my mind which. As to her status in this present situation . . . well, I don't know. It wouldn't surprise me in the least if Madge was right about her. Zalia has staggered me a couple of times—can't exactly explain it. You remember, when you asked me about father's revolver, I told you Zalia had discovered it in that desk and staged a scene with it in this very room. Well, Vance, my blood went cold at the time. There was something in the way she did it, and in the tone of her voice, that made me actually fear that she was fully capable of shooting up the party. I was relieved when she put the gun back and shut the drawer . . . All I can say," he added, "is that I don't wholly understand her."

"No. Of course not. No one can wholly understand another person. If anyone could he'd understand everything. Not a comfortin' thought . . . Thanks awfully for the recital of your fears and impressions. You'll look after matters downstairs for a while, won't you?"

Garden seemed to breathe more freely on being dismissed, and with a mumbled acquiescence, moved toward the door.

"Oh, by the by," Vance called after him. "One other little point I wish to ask you about."

Garden waited politely.

"Why," asked Vance, blowing a ribbon of smoke toward the ceiling, "didn't you place Swift's bet on Equanimity?"

CHAPTER IX

The man gave a start, and his jaw dropped. He barely rescued his pipe from falling to the floor.

"You didn't place it, did you?" Vance went on dulcetly.

"Rather interestin' point, in view of the fact that your cousin was not destined to live long enough to collect the wager, even if Equanimity had won. And in the circumstances, had you placed it, you would now be saddled with a $10,000 debt—since Swift is no longer able to settle."

"God Almighty, stop it, Vance!" Garden exploded. He sank limply into a chair. "How do you know I didn't place Woodie's bet?"

Vance regarded the man with searching eyes.

"No bookie would take a bet of that size five minutes before post time. He couldn't absorb it."

"But Hannix—"

"Don't make a Wall-Street financier of Hannix for my benefit," Vance admonished quietly. "And another thing: I happened to be sitting in a strategic position near your table when you pretended to place Swift's bet. You very deftly pulled the cord taut over the plunger of the telephone when you picked up the receiver. You were talking in to a dead phone."

Garden capitulated.

"All right, Vance," he said. "I didn't place the bet. But if you think, for one moment, that I had any suspicion that Woody was going to be shot his afternoon, you're wrong."

"My dear fellow!" Vance sighed with annoyance. "I'm not thinkin'. Higher intelligence not at work at the moment. Mind a blank. Only tryin' to add up a few figures. Ten thousand dollars is a big item. It changes our total—eh, what? . . . But you haven't told me why you didn't place the bet."

Garden rose angrily.

"I didn't want him to lose the money," he asserted aggressively. "I knew what it would mean to him."

"Yes, yes. The Good Samaritan. Very touchin'. But suppose Equanimity had won, and your cousin had survived—what about the payoff?"

Is Overweight a Disease?

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

JUST as yellow fever, malaria, diabetes, pernicious anaemia and other "incurable" diseases have been conquered in recent years by our scientific research physicians, so also will obesity—overweight—be conquered within the next few years.

For, after all, obesity is really a disease—some deficiency somewhere in the body—just as with diabetes and pernicious anaemia.

Time after time metabolism tests have been made of overweights (that is the rate at which the body processes work) and except in a very few thyroid or gland cases—perhaps 2 or 3 in every 100—the body processes in overweights were not working any slower than in those of normal weight.

Dr. G. Hetenyi, in German Archives of Clinical Medicine, thinks that there is something wrong with the collection and distribution of fat in the bodies of those who are overweight. He investigated the mobilization or gathering together of the fat at the depots or storage places in overweights and in normal individuals, when both types were eating insufficient food for their needs. He found that there was something wrong or different with the way fat was gathered and stored in the bodies of overweights.

Then he studied the way the fat and the normal individuals handled the blood rich in fat from food, and observed that the tissues of overweights have a great avidity—eagerness or desire—for fats that enter the blood stream. In other words as the blood rich in fat passed through the tissues of fat individuals, these tissues were "hungry" for fat and so a great amount of the fat in the blood was taken from the blood and stored in the fat tissues. On the other hand in those of normal weight, their tissues did not seem so hungry for fat and so the fat laden blood passed through without leaving much if any fat.

What an Investigator Learned.

Dr. Hetenyi also studied the relation between fever and fat mobilization from the deposits of fat, the action of dehydration (cutting down on liquids) on the fat in the blood, and finally the resorption into the blood of fat put under the skin by a hypodermic needle or syringe.

He found out that the increase in the blood fat (fat taken from the fat depots) was slight in overweights, was less than in those of normal weight. This means then that during an illness when there is an increase in the temperature of the body, the tissues of overweights did not give up as much as did those of normal weight.

And finally the blood in overweights did not take into itself as much of the fat that was placed in the body by the hypodermic needle as did the blood in those of normal weight. It practically left this extra fat stay where it was.

The conclusions drawn from the above experiments are that the mobilization or collection of fat from its storage depots—the skin, the liver, in and about the abdominal organs—is reduced in overweights, whereas their absorption of fat from the blood passing through their tissues is greatly increased.

In other words, fat individuals take more fat from the blood when fat is being eaten, and less from their depots when no fat is being eaten than do the tissues of those of normal weight.

Overweight—obesity—is therefore a disease of fat mobilization—the way fat is gathered and distributed.

Now while this knowledge that their tissues are "different" in the way fat is handled in the body—whether the fat is due to eating starch or fat foods—may make overweights feel a little less responsible for their increased bulk, nevertheless there is no reason why they should not reduce their weight.

Gall Bladder Disorders.

It has been definitely proven that two of every three individuals have more or less disturbance in the gall bladder and yet the number of cases that actually require draining or removal of the gall bladder is very small.

Dr. R. F. Carter, New York City, in Annals of Surgery, says that during a period of four years in studying patients having disease of the gall bladder the medical and surgical clinic of the New York Post Graduate Hospital has gradually come to realize the importance of changes in the size and shape of the gall bladder. In patients with definite gall bladder symptoms—pain in the upper right abdomen, gas on the stomach, nausea, tenderness in abdomen—even when the X-ray showed no stones present and the gall bladder filled and emptied normally, real disease was found at operation.

Lesson for May 2

ABRAHAM A MAN OF FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-9; 13:14-18. GOLDEN TEXT—By faith, Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed. Hebrews 11:8. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Friend of God. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hebrew Pioneer. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Adventurous Faith. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Creative Faith.

One of the greatest characters in all human history comes before us today in the person of Abraham. He is venerated by Christian, Jew, and Mohammedan alike. His personal history is replete with interest and instruction. But his claim to an outstanding place in history is broader than any of these things, for he was the one by whom God called out a nation for himself and began his dealings in sovereign grace which continue to our day.

In choosing Abraham God began the history of the Jewish people, his chosen nation. They were called by him to be not only a national witness to the one true God, but also to be the repository for his truth (the Holy Scriptures) in the earth, and, above all, to be the channel for the coming of the Redeemer to the earth.

Our lesson, however, centers on the faith of Abraham. As the Golden Text (Heb. 11:8) indicates, it was by faith that Abraham responded to the call of God. That call came to him in his father's house in Mesopotamia (Acts 7:2, 3). His partial obedience brought delay at Haran (Gen. 11:31), and wasted years, but in Genesis 12 we find his complete obedience and resultant blessing.

The study of faith is always fascinating. Faith is the thing in man that pleases God. He is quick to honor our trust in Him. Unbelief shuts the door not only to blessing, but also to usefulness.

I. Faith Calls for Separation, Obedience, and Worship.

1. Separation (Gen. 12:1). "Get thee out" was God's command to Abraham. It is his command to his followers today. "Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (II Cor. 6:17). This is the crying need of the church in our day. Instead of the church's being in the world seeking to win it for Christ, the world has come into the church and destroyed much of its vital testimony.

2. Obedience (Gen. 12:4, 5). "So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken." Faith obeys God, without question, without hesitation, and without reservation. We need a revival of obedience in the home, in society, and in our relation to God.

3. Worship (Gen. 12:7, 13-18). "There builded he an altar unto the Lord." Faith in God is far more than the psychologist's preaching of self-confidence. It results in fellowship with God, reliance upon him, not on one's own strength of personality. Faith worships God.

II. Faith Results in Blessing, Protection, and Liberty.

1. Blessing (12:2, 3). "I will bless," said God. "The Lord's commands are rarely accompanied with reasons, but they are always accompanied with promises, either expressed or understood."

In the case of Abraham the promise was not only to him, and to the nation of which he was the father, but to "all families of the earth." That promise was fulfilled in the coming of Christ to earth to be our Redeemer (Matt. 1:1).

2. Protection (12:3). "I will . . . curse him that curseth thee." That promise to the seed of Abraham is still true. The nations have forgotten it in their hatred of the Jew, but God has not forgotten. The promise is equally true in the case of those who follow Christ, "the son of Abraham." His protecting hand is over us even in the dark hour when it looks as though the hosts of Satan had conquered.

3. Liberty (13:14-17). "All the land . . . will I give." After many and varied experiences in which Abraham proves God's grace and power, he comes out into a place of unlimited liberty.

The man who boasts of his "personal liberty," who feels that he is free from the "bondage of religion," is in fact a slave to the enemy of his soul. And the man who becomes "the bondsman of Jesus Christ," he alone is free. None is more fettered than he who shouts "I am the captain of my soul." And none is so free as he who can say, "Christ is the Captain of my fate, the Master of my soul."

Lesson for May 2

ABRAHAM A MAN OF FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-9; 13:14-18. GOLDEN TEXT—By faith, Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed. Hebrews 11:8. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Friend of God. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hebrew Pioneer. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Adventurous Faith. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Creative Faith.

One of the greatest characters in all human history comes before us today in the person of Abraham. He is venerated by Christian, Jew, and Mohammedan alike. His personal history is replete with interest and instruction. But his claim to an outstanding place in history is broader than any of these things, for he was the one by whom God called out a nation for himself and began his dealings in sovereign grace which continue to our day.

In choosing Abraham God began the history of the Jewish people, his chosen nation. They were called by him to be not only a national witness to the one true God, but also to be the repository for his truth (the Holy Scriptures) in the earth, and, above all, to be the channel for the coming of the Redeemer to the earth.

Our lesson, however, centers on the faith of Abraham. As the Golden Text (Heb. 11:8) indicates, it was by faith that Abraham responded to the call of God. That call came to him in his father's house in Mesopotamia (Acts 7:2, 3). His partial obedience brought delay at Haran (Gen. 11:31), and wasted years, but in Genesis 12 we find his complete obedience and resultant blessing.

The study of faith is always fascinating. Faith is the thing in man that pleases God. He is quick to honor our trust in Him. Unbelief shuts the door not only to blessing, but also to usefulness.

I. Faith Calls for Separation, Obedience, and Worship.

1. Separation (Gen. 12:1). "Get thee out" was God's command to Abraham. It is his command to his followers today. "Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (II Cor. 6:17). This is the crying need of the church in our day. Instead of the church's being in the world seeking to win it for Christ, the world has come into the church and destroyed much of its vital testimony.

2. Obedience (Gen. 12:4, 5). "So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken." Faith obeys God, without question, without hesitation, and without reservation. We need a revival of obedience in the home, in society, and in our relation to God.

3. Worship (Gen. 12:7, 13-18). "There builded he an altar unto the Lord." Faith in God is far more than the psychologist's preaching of self-confidence. It results in fellowship with God, reliance upon him, not on one's own strength of personality. Faith worships God.

II. Faith Results in Blessing, Protection, and Liberty.

1. Blessing (12:2, 3). "I will bless," said God. "The Lord's commands are rarely accompanied with reasons, but they are always accompanied with promises, either expressed or understood."

In the case of Abraham the promise was not only to him, and to the nation of which he was the father, but to "all families of the earth." That promise was fulfilled in the coming of Christ to earth to be our Redeemer (Matt. 1:1).

2. Protection (12:3). "I will . . . curse him that curseth thee." That promise to the seed of Abraham is still true. The nations have forgotten it in their hatred of the Jew, but God has not forgotten. The promise is equally true in the case of those who follow Christ, "the son of Abraham." His protecting hand is over us even in the dark hour when it looks as though the hosts of Satan had conquered.

3. Liberty (13:14-17). "All the land . . . will I give." After many and varied experiences in which Abraham proves God's grace and power, he comes out into a place of unlimited liberty.

The man who boasts of his "personal liberty," who feels that he is free from the "bondage of religion," is in fact a slave to the enemy of his soul. And the man who becomes "the bondsman of Jesus Christ," he alone is free. None is more fettered than he who shouts "I am the captain of my soul." And none is so free as he who can say, "Christ is the Captain of my fate, the Master of my soul."

A Winsome Quartette

THERE was a lull in the mid-morning activities of the Chic Twins (in aprons this time) and their week-end guests when the candid camera caught this gay quartette.

The guests are wearing—let's have a close-up—sports dresses because they are so all purpose: tennis frocks go shopping just as often as not. The spectator model to the right with its unusual use of buttons is demure enough to wear when calling on one's Sunday school teacher and yet would have sufficient swing to "belong" in the gallery at the golf tournament. Summer days offer so many unexpected opportunities that these dresses are chosen as equal to any informal occasion.

A Two-in-One Idea.

The aprons on the charming hostesses to the left are both cut from one pattern. The clever miss will never overlook a pattern package that offers two such charming numbers for the price of one. The exhibit is over now; feature in one yourself in the very near future by ordering these patterns today.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1276 is designed in sizes small (34 to 36), medium (38 to 40), large (42 to 44). Medium size requires 1 3/4 yards of 39-inch material. Pattern 1915 is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42). Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35-inch material.

Pattern 1224 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40). Size 14 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39-inch material. With long sleeves size 14 requires 4 7/8 yards of 35 inch material.

Silk Prints Lead the Style Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

JUST one dazzling, color-gloried silk print after another is what's happening in the fabric realm this season. The new prints are more fascinating than ever, and try to resist them and do you? You do not. The urge for another and another in your wardrobe ever keeps on keeping on.

To add to the excitement, couturier and dressmaker are devising ways of making up these silks that are so artful and fraught with such high-pressure novelty the world of fashion is being cast into new throes of enthusiasm every time a style parade of last-minute costumes is staged.

A favorite treatment is pleating and when you pleat printed silk you multiply the beauty and intensity of its coloring to a thrilling degree. The all-around pleated skirt is a favorite topic with designers who are styling the new gowns of silk print. Even if you are making your dress yourself it is a good idea to have the skirt pleated, and it is almost a certainty that you will be pleased with results. The charming dinner dress to the left in the picture is fashioned of a water color print silk crepe with separate jacket and pleated skirt.

Another dressmaker treatment adding untold interest to print ensembles is the self-print lining. To achieve a maximum of practicality and wearability these coats with linings matched to the print of the frock are made reversible. You turn them inside out and vice versa. See the idea nicely worked out in the model centered in the group. The silk print is highly colorful and the monotone cloth of the coat repeats the background tone of the print.

Then there is this reigning vogue of the bolero. Dressmakers and designers are turning out the bolero frock of silk print in vast numbers. You'll love a print silk bolero frock. Flattering it will prove to be and practical. See the model to the right in this group. Here is a bolero frock of feather silk print. The dark grounds such as this with wide-spaced motif are especially smart and attractive and wearable. The bolero buttons to a high neckline. The bolero has peaked shoulders and elbow sleeves. Note the red silk chiffon handkerchief in the buttoned pocket of the bolero. The circular skirt of the dress has emphasized creases. The straw bonnet has flowers massed at the front. Which calls to mind another feature designers are emphasizing, that of having flowers somewhere in the picture that are related in color to the print of the silk. This may be a corsage, a gay posy cluster at the new low of a neckline or it may be a bouquet played up in conjunction with a vivid gypsy sash tied at the front.

One of the outstanding innovations in the realm of print silk costumes is the redingote fashioned of matching print, the small figured being smartest for day wear. This redingote, while it tops off the dress of self print to a dramatic climax, will prove one of your happiest possessions to be worn as a separate coat or wrap over the monotone crepe dress on cool spring days and later on serving admirably as a summer wrap worn with dainty lingerie frocks.

It is good style, too, to wear over your navy or crepe afternoon dress either a bolero of eye-impelling silk print or a hip-length jacket if you prefer. The latter should be slightly fitted to be up to the mode and they are especially smart when buttoned down the front.

The silk print idea enters into every phase of fashion this season. You are encouraged to wear gay print from the fingertip of your head down to your feet.

To Remove Threads—When basting sewing material, try placing the knots of the thread on the right side. They will be easier to pull out when the garment is finished.

Melting Chocolate—Chocolate is easy to burn, and for that reason should never be melted directly over a fire. Melt it in the oven or over a pan of hot water.

Stuffed Orange Salad—Allow one orange for each person to be served. Cut through the skin three-quarters of the way down in inch strips, being careful not to break the strips apart. Remove orange pulp and cut in neat dice. Combine with pineapple and grapefruit dice and fill orange shell with mixture. Drop a spoonful of heavy mayonnaise on top of each salad and garnish with a maraschino cherry. Another good mixture for stuffing the orange shells is a combination of orange sections, dates stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats. Mask with mayonnaise.

Cleaning Wood-Work—To clean badly soiled wood, use a mixture consisting of one quart of hot water, three tablespoons of boiled linseed oil and one tablespoon of turpentine. Warm this and use while warm.

Jelly Sauce—One glass jelly (crab-apple, red currant, grape, etc.), quarter cup hot water, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour. Add hot water to jelly and let melt on stove. Heat butter in saucepan, add flour and gradually hot jelly liquid. Cook until smooth and serve hot over almost any pudding.

MAYBE HE'S WISE

One Thing He Couldn't Do

In the smoke-room of a hotel, a guest had been boring everyone with tales of the wonderful things he had done in all parts of the world. The other guests were all fed up with his remarks.
"Well," said one of his listeners, "suppose for a change you tell us something you can't do, and I'll undertake to do it myself."
"That's fine," replied the bore. "I can't pay my bill."—Stray Stories Magazine.

BLUE TAFFETA

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fancy turns to the southern-belle type of dress for evening wear. Here is a charming specimen of the quaint and picturesque type that is proving such a general favorite. It is made of silk taffeta in a delectable soft-toned medium blue. Young girls are showing a preference for sprightly taffeta and they love the way the little puff sleeves stand up in lively taffeta manner. Square necklines are much in evidence this season. This one is accented with rhinestone and enamel flower pins and there is a matching bracelet.

GLOVES TO MATCH YOUR SPRING SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Cloth gloves to match spring suits are the latest news from Paris. An extra piece of material, ordered when the suit is bought, can be made up in any size or style, short or with deep gauntlet cuffs. Square fingertips are another innovation. The finger may be stitched at sides and straight across the top, giving a casual, out-of-doors look, especially popular in gloves of doeskin or chamois.

Half-finger gloves, which made their appearance last winter in the guise of lace mitts to go with gowns of the southern belle type, are now an established vogue. They are shown in pigskin and chamois for sports wear, and in suede for dress. The gloves extend as far as the finger-joint, revealing brightly polished nails. Very convenient when it comes to picking up a dropped coin, fitting a key or writing out a check. Polish in cardinal or burgundy may be worn to match or contrast with the gloves.

Further independence in glove fashions is exhibited in the unconventional treatment of seams along the back of the hand. These vary from two or three seams running across instead of up and down, to one crosswise seam with two short ones in the usual direction.

Tiny Watches Are Fitted to the Latest in Gloves

Small jeweled watches are being worn everywhere but on the wrist these days. Some of the new tailored suits with heavy cuffs have a small detachable watch encased over the left wrist.
Many of the new cigarette cases have small watches fitted on the outside, while purses and gloves that are fitted with watches have been shown for several months.

Red Coral Always Prized It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person.

As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McRea which shows Friday and Saturday evenings at the Rivola as the opening picture under the new management.

McRea, an interne, is offered money by a grateful patient. With it McRea would be able to marry Miss Stanwyck, whom he loves, and she would be able to find her child by a previous marriage which had been taken from her. Miss Stanwyck is unable to reconcile McRea's apparent love for her and the fact that he refuses to help her, and they part.

Their destinies are worked out by Lloyd Nolan, a gangleader, who applies underworld tactics to the ironing out of a difficult social problem and does it most effectively.

"Internes Can't Take Money" is the third film in which Miss Stanwyck and McRea appear as the romantic couple. The others were "Gambling Lady" and "Banjo on my Knee." Nolan is best remembered for his portrayal of the "heavy" roll in "The Texas Rangers." The cast also includes Stanley Ridges, Lee Bowman, Barry Macolm, Irving Bacon, Anthony Nace, Fay Holden and many others. The picture was directed by Alfred Santell.
