TAWAS CITY

N. E. M. LEAGUE SEASON WILL OPEN SUNDAY

Tawas City at Tawasville; Alabaster at Prescott; Twining at Turner

Batter Up! Play Ball! again will send a certain thrill down the spines of all true baseball lovers next Sunday when the Northeastern Michigan Baseball League is officially opened. The league has been divided into two divisions of seven teams each for the 1937 season and a lot of excitement is expected among both players and fans. The winning team in each division will meet in a three-game "Little World Series" after the close of the season to determine the N. E. M. Champs.

Tawas City will be guests of the Hemlock boys on the Tawasville diamond for the opening struggle. Both teams are sporting a variety of new players on their roster and claim to be much stronger than last year. The past few years have seen these two teams in some fiercely fought battles and no less can be expected this season. So, Mr. and Mrs. Fan, be sure that you are on hand at 3:00 Sunday afternoon to lend your vocal and moral support to the local team. (All car horns are required by latest rulings to be tuned in "B-natural") There is an old superstition which states that the outcome of the opening determines the luck of the boys through the season, so let's see all baseball fans out helping the club swingers to get away to a good start in the race for the prize.

Robinson-Larson

Miss Clara Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Robinson of Midland Road, became the bride of Harlan G. Larson of Bad Axe in rites read at the Robinson home at 11:00 Saturday morning. The Rev. M. A. Sommerfield of Tawas City, grandfather of the bride, officiated in the ceremony. The bride's sister, Mrs. C. D. Yager of Detroit and William C. Blair of Bad Axe were attendants.

Boyne City Youth Charged With Assault

Arnold Tillison of Boyne City was brought before Justice W. C. Davidson Tuesday, charged with felonious assault.

Tillison, it was charged, had entered a car at Tawasville Sunday night and ordered the owner, Harry Smith, to drive him away. Smith's sister, Helen, and brother, Lee, were in the car. Tillison threatened them and forced Smith to drive him about the county until morning. Smith then got an opportunity to notify State Police.

Letter to Mayor

The following letter was received by Mayor J. A. Brugger from L. M. Lamont, M. S., sanitary inspector of the District Health Department.

Dear Sir: Analysis of the sample of water collected from the municipal supply of Tawas City on May 3, 1937 shows no evidence of dangerous contamination and we would consider the supply safe for drinking and domestic use.

Very truly yours,
L. M. Lamont.

Herbert Gates

Herbert E. Gates, for many years a resident of Tawas City and vicinity, died at his home at 213 North McLellan Street, Bay City on Thursday, May 13. He was born July 15, 1864 in London, Ontario and moved to Michigan with his parents at an early age. He came to this vicinity in 1890 and in 1893 he was married to Agnes Fitzgibbon in St. Joseph's Church, East Tawas. The family moved to Bay City in 1918. Surviving are a brother, Ernest E. Gates of Romeo, Michigan, two sons, Cleo V. Gates of Harbor Beach and James H. Gates at home; and one daughter, Mrs. Edna E. Garber of Flint. Funeral services were held from St. James Catholic Church in Bay City on May 15th with burial in St. Patrick's Cemetery.

Out of town relatives and friends in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kelly, Sr., Wm. Kelly Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Gates and Ray Gates of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Mack Gates of Mt. Clemens; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gates of Romeo; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gates, daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Garber and son of Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Cleo V. Gates and daughter, Mrs. William Ganley and Mr. and Mrs. George Durkay of Harbor Beach and Frank L. McGath of Lima, Ohio.

M. C. Grueber Will Give Travel Lecture Here

M. C. Grueber, who from 1909 to 1924 was teacher at Zion Lutheran Parochial School, returns to Tawas City on Friday, May 28 to give a slide and movie lecture on his visit last year to various European countries. The lecture is under the auspices of the Tawas Lutheran Men's Club. While in Europe, Mr. Grueber took many pictures which are now embodied in slides and films. His brother, Pastor Henry Grueber of Milwaukee, accompanied him on the journey, which took in Germany, France, Switzerland and England.

Many former scholars and old acquaintances of Mr. Grueber will have an opportunity to meet him at the lecture. The lecture is to be given at the Zion Lutheran Church on the evening of the above date at 8:00 P. M. A free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the Deaf-mute school in Detroit.

Civil Service Examination

A civil service examination for auxiliary postoffice clerk at East Tawas will be held within a short time. Application must be made not later than June 10th with the Seventh U. S. Civil Service District, Chicago, Ill. Blanks may be secured at the East Tawas postoffice.

RESTAURANT OPENED IN SAWYER BLDG.

John Pierson of Pinconning opened the restaurant in the Sawyer building Saturday morning. This fine Tawas City restaurant had been closed since last August. The interior has been redecorated and furnished with new equipment. Mr. and Mrs. Pierson plan to run a first class restaurant and confectionary. "Fish diners will be a specialty," states Mr. Pierson.

TAWAS BAY PERCH

Here is a photographic proof of the fish that did not get away, establishing the prowess of Eaton County nimrods of the reel. A quartet of business men, Frank Simpson, Roy E. Fisher and Marshall Field of Charlotte and Earl Kelly of Bellevue, went to East Tawas a week ago Thursday, and in seven hours fishing on Tawas Bay on Friday they hooked more than three bushels of perch, a total of 400 or more. All the fish were taken with minnow-baited hook and line. The photograph was taken on the rear lawn at the Marshall Field home on Prairie street. The men were told that they had brought in the largest catch of fish of the season at that place. None of the fish weighed less than one pound and most of them being 12 or 13 inches in length. School boys there reported making big money selling minnows for bait and catching perch for commercial fish dealers.—Charlotte Republican.

WILBER CHURCH OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Hold Two Day Celebration Program Saturday And Sunday

The Wilber Methodist Episcopal Church celebrated its 50th anniversary Saturday and Sunday completing a half century of service and Christian leadership.

Saturday evening a chicken supper was served in the basement of the church and a short program was given. The program had been arranged by Mrs. H. Phelps and Mrs. George Olson. Mildred Cholger and Leona Schoff sang "The Church in the Wilderness." This was an appropriate song as the church was known to many by that name. Many who had been among the first settlers or had been present at the dedication of the

Two Detroit Boys Steal Used Car at East Tawas

George Hunt, age 20, and John O'Malley, age 14, were brought before Justice C. F. Klump Wednesday charged with stealing a car from the McKay Sales Company's used car lot. The two boys were picked up early Tuesday morning near Standish by State Police.

When questioned Wednesday before Justice Klump by Prosecuting Attorney John Stewart, young Hunt accepted full responsibility for stealing the car and an attempt was made by Hunt to show that his young companion was not with him when the car was taken but that O'Malley was picked up later at Standish. Hunt said that his folks had enough trouble of their own and asked the State Police if they could withhold information of his trouble from them. Both boys were poorly dressed and claimed to be seeking employment as farm laborers.

Notice, Pickle Growers

Will be at Isosco Hotel, Tawas City on Saturday, May 22nd to contract pickles for Bessinger Pickle Company. We pay cash on delivery for pickles. Henry Bessinger.

STATE POLICE WILL FORMALLY TAKE BARRACKS

Occasion to be Marked By Banquet and Open House Next Thursday

The formal opening of the new State Police barracks at East Tawas will be held next Thursday when Louis Nims, state WPA administrator, will turn over the keys of the building to Oscar G. Olander, commissioner of Michigan State Police. The event will be commemorated with open house at the barracks, a State Police exhibit at the Community Building and a banquet at the Hotel Holland. The banquet will be given under the auspices of the Kapanin Club of East Tawas. Judge Herman Dehnke will be the principal speaker at the banquet. Representatives from various state and local public safety departments have also been secured as speakers and a formal invitation has been extended to Governor Frank Murphy. R. G. Schreck will act as chairman and C. A. Pinkerton as toastmaster. There will be a program of orchestra music and songs by the Oddfellows Trio. Reservations may be made at Leaf's store or at the Hennigar store.

An all day State Police exhibit will be shown Thursday at the Community Building. Everyone is invited to attend this interesting exhibit and become acquainted with the work of this important department of our state government.

Corporal Hiram Grimsom who is in charge of the local State Police, said yesterday, "We cordially invite everyone in the district to visit us next Thursday and inspect our new post. Troopers Merwyn H. Mitchell, Victor F. Beck and James K. McDonald and I look forward with the greatest pleasure to making your acquaintance next Thursday."

There will be band concerts in the afternoon by the Tawas City and East Tawas high school bands at the state park and in the evening the newly organized Tawas Band will furnish music.

Heath Notes

Pre-school clinics will be held in this district within the next month. These are of great benefit in seeing that the children get a healthy start to school in September. An examination at this time will allow time during the summer for correction of defect and for vaccination and diphtheria immunization if necessary.

1. Take your child to your family physician periodically for a health examination.
2. See that he is protected against smallpox and diphtheria.
3. Take him to a dentist twice a year.
4. Give him a well planned diet.
5. Be sure he has from 11 to 13 hours of sleep in a well ventilated room.
6. See that he has good habits of eating, sleeping, exercise, cleanliness and elimination.

The following report is released from the Children's Fund of Michigan and shows the extent of the services our four counties received. District Health Department No. 2 gave service to the counties of Alcona, Isosco, Ogemaw and Oscoda for the seventh consecutive year.

Dr. Sue Thompson, director of the unit, reports that the staff made 4,837 home visits during the year as well as 821 visits to the schools. 2,762 children were inspected for communicable disease or specific defects. 342 children were protected against diphtheria and 609 vaccinated against smallpox. 1,110 medical examinations were made. The sanitarian made 2,019 inspections during the year. Under nursing supervision were (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

Ambassador Dodd's Remarkable Warning of Fascist Plan for United States—Steel Workers' Strikes Started by the C. I. O.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

WILLIAM E. DODD, American ambassador to Germany, has stepped into the limelight and the result may be embarrassing to him and to the administration. In a long letter to Senators Bulkley of Ohio and Glass of Virginia he urges all Democrats to unite in support of the President and thus avert a dictatorship in the United States. It was assumed he meant the President's Supreme court enlargement bill should be supported, since that is the measure that split the party in congress. Dodd, former professor in the University of Chicago, said he had been told by certain friends, that a man American, not named, "who owns nearly a billion dollars," was prepared to set up a fascist regime which presumably he would control. There are not many American billionaires now, but no one has ventured to guess publicly the man Dodd has in mind.

"There are individuals of great wealth who wish a dictatorship and are ready to help a Huey Long," he wrote. "There are politicians, some in the senate, I have heard, who think they may come into power like that of the European dictators in Moscow, Berlin, and Rome."

Congressional leaders were quick to take up Dodd's assertion, Senator Borah of Idaho leading off with the declaration that the ambassador was an irresponsible scandal monger and a disgrace to his country. "I have an idea," said Borah, "that his supposed dictatorship is the figment of a diseased brain." Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, radical, introduced a resolution calling upon the State department to demand that Dodd name the billionaire in question.

In the house Representative Fish of New York denounced Dodd, and demanded that he be recalled and forced to give the name of the man who is ready to set up a dictatorship.

This reaction in Washington led Ambassador Dodd to amplify his warning by a prepared statement cautioning against perils which would result from defeat of President Roosevelt's recovery program and reiterating the assertion that Americans of great wealth are looking toward Fascist rule; but he still disclosed no identities.

THERE were persistent reports in Washington that the Supreme court controversy would soon be settled by the resignation of at least two of the justices, Brandeis and Van Devanter, and possibly McReynolds and Sutherland. It was said friends of these men had urged their retirement "for the good of the court itself."

It was claimed that the President would be compelled to withdraw his bill if as many as two of the associate justices should retire, or else face defeat. Proponents of the measure, pending the return of Mr. Roosevelt to the capital, said there would be no compromise.

Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborite, returning to his seat after a long illness, declared himself flatly against the Supreme court enlargement bill; and his colleague, Senator Ernest Lundeen, another Farmer-Laborite, said he would not support an increase of more than two in the membership of the court.

PHILIP MURRAY, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee of the C. I. O., called the first major strike in the campaign of Lewis and his associates to unionize the steel industry. On his order the employees of Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation plants in Pittsburgh and Aliquippa walked out after Murray had failed to get from the company a signed collective bargaining contract. The strike call affected 27,000 men. Thousands of pickets surrounded the Jones & Laughlin mills and kept non-union workers from entering.

The company announced its willingness to sign a contract if it might grant identical terms to non-union employees and declared its disposition to deal solely with any group that could poll a majority of its employees in an election supervised by the national labor board.

Next day the strike spread to the plants of the Pittsburgh Steel company at Monessen and Allenport, Pa., where 5,900 men went out. Murray said it was inevitable that the Republic, Youngstown, Bethlehem and Crucible steel concerns would be involved very soon.

There was considerable disorder at Aliquippa, and the police used tear gas bombs to disperse the pickets. Governor Earle hurried to the region to help settle the trouble, and he ordered the sale of liquor stopped in western Pennsylvania areas affected by the strike.

Employees of Fisher Body and Chevrolet in Detroit returned to work pending a conference with the management; but the plants of those concerns in Janesville, Wis., were closed by a dispute over the status of 14 non-union workers. Their plants in Flint and Saginaw also were shut down, as was the Fisher Body plant in Cleveland.

John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., apparently killed any chances for peace with the A. F. of L. when, addressing the Lady Garment Workers' union convention at Atlantic City, he called President Green a traitor to organized labor and declared neither he nor any of the workers unionized in the C. I. O. campaign wants peace with the federation. Lewis charged that Green tried to prevent Governor Murphy of Michigan from settling the General Motors and Chrysler strikes.

TECHNICAL workers in the movie industry at Hollywood were disappointed when the screen actors' guild, settling its own troubles with the producers, refused to support their strike. But the C. I. O. took up their cause, assured them of active support and promised to place 340,000 men on picket duty in important cities throughout the country. At least, that is the assertion of Charles E. Lessing, head of the striking unions.

Lessing said the film boycott would be directed at theaters in industrial areas where unions are strong. He selected New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis and St. Paul as key cities for picketing.

BRITISH royalty and the British government are at outs concerning the wedding of the duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

The duke wishes it to be public and officially supported by King George and Mary, the queen mother, with whom Edward discussed the affair by telephone. The cabinet insists the marriage should be strictly private and not attended by any member of the royal family except as a private person. Edward postponed the marriage until June at the request of his brother the king, and it is said he would yield to the demand of the government and have a private wedding; but Queen Mary and King George believe the ceremony should be public and recognized as a matter of "fair treatment" for the duke, and that his bride should be formally recognized as the duchess of Windsor.

"REMEMBER, this is the President's pet project. He wants the CCC made permanent, not extended for a two year period." So shouted Representative William P. Connery of Massachusetts at the members of the house. But the house would not heed the implied warning and voted, 224 to 34, in favor of giving the CCC two more years of life. This was in committee of the whole, and next day this action was confirmed.

The senate, forgetting all about economy, approved, 46 to 29, an amendment to the second deficiency appropriation bill which commits the government to the expenditure of 112 millions on a new Tennessee river dam at Gilbertsville, Ky.

REPRESENTATIVE DIES of Texas has proposed to congress that President Roosevelt call an international monetary conference for the purpose of seeking an equitable distribution of the world's supply of gold and silver. Specifically, he would have the conference:

1. Stabilize currencies on some permanent basis that would prevent wild fluctuations in their purchasing power.
2. Establish a bimetallic—gold and silver—base for the currencies.
3. Distribute the world's gold and silver supply more equitably so as to give each nation proper support for its currency and an adequate medium of international exchange.
4. Make available to the countries involved the raw materials they need.

TO SETTLE the long pension controversy between railroad operators and their employees, a compromise bill was introduced by Senator Wagner and Representative Crosser amending the railway retirement act. Fundamental concessions to workers include eligibility for pensions for employees absent on account of sickness, increases in death benefits, and authority to include prior service in calculating length of service upon which annuities are based.

IN RESPONSE to the recent request of a foreign government, reported to be France, the administration has taken the position that it will not permit the export of helium for military purposes abroad.

The request was for a very large amount of the gas, presumably for a large airship, and investigation convinced officials in Washington that the nation asking it was planning no such commercial service as was performed by the German government with the ill-fated Hindenburg.

CLAD in a cloth of gold robe embroidered with colored emblems and lined with white satin, King George VI of Great Britain knelt before the archbishop of Canterbury in Westminster abbey and the primate placed on the monarch's head the crown which Edward never wore. Then the queen's crown was placed on the head of Elizabeth, and the two took their places on their thrones. At the same time all the assembled peers and peeresses donned their coronets, drums and trumpets sounded and the guns at the Tower of London boomed. This was the climax of the grand spectacle that had attracted many thousands of persons to London and that held the attention of the world for a few hours.

First of the day's events was the procession to the abbey, which was observed by vast throngs in the streets, windows and stands. It was two miles long. The lord mayor of London, gorgeously clad and carrying the city mace, arrived first at the annex built at the abbey entrance, and was followed closely by the speaker of the house of commons, representatives of foreign governments, the prime ministers of the dominions and the princes and princesses of royal blood. Next came Queen Mary, and then King George and Queen Elizabeth.

When all the fortunate ones entitled to places in the abbey had taken their seats, the ceremony began with the ancient "recognition" ritual; the archbishop of Canterbury presented the king to the people, and four times the throng responded with "God Save King George." After the rite of coronation and the actual enthronement of the monarchs the doors of the abbey were thrown open, George and Elizabeth, wearing their crowns and carrying their scepters, stepped into their coach, and the second grand procession made its slow way to Buckingham palace.

Every detail of the spectacle and ceremony had been rehearsed until all were perfect in their parts and nothing marred the performance upon which the British government spent about $2,000,000. It really was a gorgeous show and no one begrudged the money it cost, especially as visitors to London spent probably the London ten times as much. Though in general ancient routine was followed, there were some notable concessions to modernity. For instance, the abbey was equipped with telephones and loud speakers. Another innovation, on the days before the coronation, was the stationing of companies of soldiers from the various dominions as sentries at Buckingham and St. James' palaces. Never before had this duty been entrusted to other than the British guards.

Throughout the British empire coronation day was celebrated with parades and banquets, and wherever on earth as many as two Britishers came together, George VI was toasted.

In a chateau near Tours, France, Edward, duke of Windsor, sat before a radio listening to a broadcast of the coronation ceremonies; and by his side was Wallis Warfield, his fiancée, for whom he surrendered his throne.

It was announced that Wallis had formally dropped the name Simpson and would be known as Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

GEORGE LEONARD BERRY, veteran labor leader who has been serving as President Roosevelt's "co-ordinator for industrial co-operation," whatever that may mean, is now United States senator from Tennessee, having been appointed by Governor Browning to fill out the term of the late Senator Nathan L. Bachman. He will serve until the regular election in November, 1938.

Mr. Berry, who is fifty-three years old, is one of the largest landholders in the South. He owns a weekly newspaper at Rogersville, Tenn., and the International Playing Card and Label company. He has been president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America since he was twenty years old.

The new senator has been one of President Roosevelt's most ardent supporters, and was himself considered for nomination for the vice presidency in 1924.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—President Roosevelt, from the time he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson administration, has always been regarded as a friend of the military forces of the United States. He has never been a fanatic about his position but has held consistently to the view that the military services must be protected against continuing political attack which would destroy their usefulness. Likewise, Mr. Roosevelt has constantly argued for a policy of building up the army, navy and marine corps.

Since he has been in the White House, Mr. Roosevelt has taken care always to see that sound policies of development were invoked as regards the military services and his interest in the navy in this direction has been marked. In consequence, the President has brought about a program of building in the navy that, examined from any angle, must be considered as having established a splendid first line of defense for our country. Whether one favors a big navy or a small navy, I think it must be admitted that the navy is the first line of defense and so the President, being fully acquainted with developments throughout the world, has seen to it that our navy shall be in a strong position as our first line of defense.

It may be, as some critics of the President contend, that the hundreds of millions expended under Mr. Roosevelt's policies constituted too much of a fund in this direction; that we have no need for a navy as large as that now contemplated, and that the creation of a large navy indicated a policy of aggression by the United States. My own feeling is that these objections are not well founded. The turbulent situation in international relations, both in Europe and in Asia, seems to warrant a definite move on the part of the United States to be equipped. In other words, who is there that would wish our nation again to be caught without any worthwhile fighting units ready for action as we were in 1917? Further, although we are a peaceful nation, we must avoid a repetition of the 1917 conditions because we can not afford the waste of money that characterized the building up of our armed forces at that time.

One reason for the comments that I have just made on the navy and President Roosevelt's policies is the fact that we have a new neutrality law. It was passed just a day ahead of the expiration of the temporary neutrality law that was operative during the past year or so.

This new law probably is as good as any neutrality law that can be written. It represents the work of men in congress who are very serious in their desires to create machinery that will keep us out of war, or at least will slow down our entry into international conflict.

It lays down prohibitions against the sale of hundreds of items by American citizens or American corporations to any nation which the President may hold to be a "belligerent" nation, which is the way diplomats describe a nation at war.

The law has a further important and interesting provision. It requires that if any belligerent wants to buy products in this country, commodities that are not prohibited by the neutrality law, it must come to our shores and get them and must pay for them before the boat leaves. Thus, it has come about that the new law is called the "cash and carry" neutrality act.

That title sounds very satisfying. It sounds as though we will never make loans again as we did during the World War—loans never to be repaid except in some minor instances—and that none of our ships will become the targets of foreign gunboats because we are transporting munitions of war to any belligerent. Surely, this phase of the law will in a measure retard our entrance into any war and it will at the same time reduce the excitement in this country incident to the manufacture and sale of munitions of war because of the profits accruing under such circumstances.

But, it strikes me that, after all, this neutrality law is likely to be a rather futile gesture. Having observed governmental action over an extended period of years, I refuse to kid myself. I will not say that the new neutrality act will keep us out of war because, very definitely, it will not.

Let us see why. There are a thousand and one acts that a foreign nation can do to insult our national honor or damage our citizens and their commerce. These are called "overt" acts. When an overt act is committed, it is so easy to forget about the high principles stated in the present neutrality law. It can be repealed and a declaration of war substituted for it almost within twenty-four hours.

There have been a good many millions of citizens of the United States come onto this earth since the armistice of 1918. Among these are undoubtedly many who will learn of the present neutrality law with a feeling of safety; who will think that nothing now can happen and their mothers, wives and sweethearts will feel they need not worry about the time when these younger generations of men will have to march away, with drums beating and flags flying, never to return. For their peace of mind, the present neutrality law certainly is helpful. My suggestion is, however, that they look the facts in the face. When one of these overt acts is committed, in we will go regardless of the neutrality law.

I might advert to some of the things that happened between 1914 and April 6, 1917. President Wilson, a sincere advocate of peace, did the best he could to prevent our participation in the World War. It was a matter that actually brought about his re-election in 1916 because his campaign leaders used the slogan, "He kept us out of war." Events came through with such startling speed, however, that a month after he was inaugurated for his second term, he was standing on the rostrum before a joint session of congress asking for immediate passage of a resolution placing our country in the war on the side of the Allies and against Germany and the Central Powers. Two days later we were formally in the fight and then, once we were made a belligerent by the decision of our government, it became "a war to make the world safe for democracy."

Look at the Facts

I think I need not review all of the various slogans that were employed in the national propaganda to solidify our nation behind its military forces. There were many of them. The nation was ninety-five per cent behind the government in a war to end all wars. Hundreds upon hundreds of millions of dollars were borrowed from our citizens who bought, first, liberty bonds and later, victory bonds. For the first time in later history of our nation we had a tremendous national debt, more than ten billions of which were loaned to those nations with which we were associated in the war. The remainder of these funds was spent like money in the hands of a drunk sailor, ashore for the first time in the year. Nor is there criticism to be made of that spending because we were not prepared for war.

So, while I do not now foresee our participation in any conflict within the next few years, I am quite convinced that Mr. Roosevelt has pursued an absolutely sound program in advocating a strong navy and a strong army. It will serve us well and will cost us very much less than if this building up process had to be accomplished overnight as it was in 1917. It may be surprising to a good many people to know that our army at present ranks as number 17 in the list of armies of nations even though our country is one of the largest and one of the richest in the family of nations.

My belief is that if our navy is made to rank with the greatest and plans are worked out as Mr. Roosevelt is trying to work them out so that our army will be possible of expansion, taxpayers' money will be much better spent than through boondoggling or wasted through useless development of theoretical schemes.

As the battle over President Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme court of the United States with six new judges grows in heat, it becomes increasingly evident that members of congress are looking to the political aspects of the situation to a greater extent than obtained in the early stages of the fight. This circumstance certainly is working to the advantage of those who oppose the President's scheme and it is interesting to look at the picture from that angle.

My observation of congressional activities in the past leads me to believe that every President must expect in his second term a certain amount of defection, a certain amount of running away, among the supporters who stood by him unflinchingly during his first term. Of course, most of his stalwarts will stick by him through thick and thin but it always has happened that a rather deep fringe of his party will begin to balk or duck when they reach the second lap and know that the head of their party will not seek election to a third term. The reason must be quite obvious. All members of the house and one-third of the senate membership have to seek votes in their home districts every two years. With a President in his second term, the interest of these candidates for office must turn to what their voters think rather than what the President thinks.

Hello Everybody!

"On the Runaway Freight"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S a tale of the early days of railroading, laid in the Far West in the year 1890—before most of you were born. Percy Fortesque Hubbard of New York city, who wins the coveted D. A. with today's adventure, has supplied me with a few more details than I can print here, but none of the thrills are omitted in the yarn you read below.

Number eighteen freight, with her two heavy engines, had just emerged from the three-mile tunnel outside of Martin, Washington, the train stopping at the depot to await orders. The conductor, Walter Bruce, and the rear brakeman, Jem Nagel, entered the operator's office.

Perce Hubbard, whose yarn this is, was front brakeman. He hastily ran ahead and coupled the air into the big Decapod engine in front, calling out, "I have coupled you in, Foster," and getting the O. K. signal from the conductor in the caboose, the engines slowly pulled the heavy train loaded with huge balks of lumber and started dropping down the grade.

Perce, meanwhile, hopped lightly onto the rear platform of the caboose as it passed him.

Too Fast, Said the Conductor.

The heavy train gathered speed. After a while the conductor, Walt Bruce, called out from where he was sitting in the cupola, "Say, Perce, are you sure you coupled the helper engine into the air?"

"Sure," Perce told him.

"Funny," the conductor growled. "We're going around these curves at far too much speed. Why doesn't that fool engineer set his brakes and pull her up a bit?"

Perce said nothing. The train plunged dizzily ahead. In a few more minutes Bruce called out, "Perce, you and Jem had better set a few brakes. We're going around these curves much too fast. And Perce, run over and ask that fool engineer why he isn't operating his air. The cursed idiot will ditch the train!"

By this time the heavy train had gathered frightful speed, and the caboose was rocking and jumping in an alarming manner.

It Seemed Death Was Certain.

Perce and Jem came into the caboose and called out: "We have done all we could. It's as much as our lives are worth to stay out there. The stanchions are creaking and snapping with the strain at every curve." No sooner were the words out of his mouth than, CRASH... the train lurched violently and several big balks of lumber crashed down the mountain side, cutting a wide swath in the tall spruce trees that grew there.

With a hoarse shout Bruce swung himself down from the cupola. "We might as well say our prayers, boys. This train will jump the track at this speed, and we shall all be killed without a doubt."

As he spoke, the caboose gave a violent lurch and swung Bruce against the stove, upsetting it and throwing the hot burning coals in all directions and pitching him violently into a corner.

Instantly the caboose was filled with smoke and flames. Jem hastily tore the ice-water tank loose and swamped the floor. The fire fizzled, steam rose in gusts, but the flames went out.

Brake Beams Were Afire.

All hands, Perce says, then rushed to the rear platform of the caboose, which was swinging and jumping for all the world like a bucking cayuse. There were clouds of dust and smoke. "We were going so fast," Perce continues, "that the landscape looked like a blur."

Again came the ominous cracks and explosions. Crashes of heavy lumber followed.

"Look," Bruce cried. "The brake beams on the caboose are all afire and the brakes are white hot. The next thing we know, the caboose will be on fire. I think the last three flat cars are now empty of lumber. You two boys had best take clubs and set up what brakes you can. That may halt our speed a little."

"But what with the rolling and pitching of the flat cars, it was very difficult and dangerous work," says Perce. Meanwhile two more loads of lumber crashed down the mountainside. Gradually other lumber broke away as they violently hit the curves. The men managed to set up other brakes, and to their great relief the train began to slacken speed. Finally they got on level track and crawled slowly to the depot. They didn't have a single stick of lumber left on the train.

Engine Men All Dead Drunk.

As soon as the train stopped, they all ran immediately ahead to the front engine to see what had happened. Foster, the engineer, was lying on his seat in a drunken stupor, and his two firemen were in a similar condition on the floor of the cab, and it was evident that not a brake had been set for the entire trip.

The engineer and fireman of the second engine were as white as ghosts, and trembling. Bruce and the rear brakeman went into the operator's office, and the operator wired through to know what should be done in the matter. The dispatcher's answer was to fire the entire crew of the helper on the spot, and to have the sheriff arrest them. Perce and the others detached the engine and the ostler took charge of it, driving it away. The sheriff took the engineer and two firemen to the clink.

The engineer of the second engine was helpless, as he had no means of getting at the helper, and all he could do was to set his steam and vacuum brakes and whistle for brakemen. Perce was likewise helpless till the flat cars were emptied of their loads.

Blarney Legend's Antiquity

When the legend of the Blarney Stone began is not historically dated, though the expression "blarney" is said to date to the Elizabethan days. It is supposed to derive a peculiar form of wheedling Irish eloquence, originally ascribed to Lord Clancarty in his communications with the English queen, in which he showed a knack of making wordy excuses. Elizabeth received one of his communications with a sigh of resignation and the comment: "This is more than blarney." This exclamation has been regarded as the source of origin for the stone. The contact of the mouth and lips with the stone is supposed to communicate the "blarney," a form of infection.

Put End to Piracy

America, in the year 1815, was the first among the world's nations to put an end to the piracy of the Barbary powers on the northern coast of Africa after centuries of tribute-paying on the part of Europe. Ever after American ships of war made it a point to pay ceremonial visits there, thinly-veiled hints of America's power at sea, and on one of these visits, in 1835, the sultan sent back a grown lion as present to the President, then Andrew Jackson. Congress had to give permission to receive the present, after which the problem was what to do with the lion, as we had no national zoo yet. The President gave it to an orphanage, which sold it to a circus.

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Heart

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rids you of gas and cleans your bowels out of GUTS, upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not gripe—it is a habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Curing Stuttering.

CHIN LEE, ARIZ.—Away up here in the Indian country comes a newspaper, saying some expert at correcting human utterance has turned up with a cure for stuttering.

But why? By his own admission, nearly all stutters can sing and most of them can swear fluently, thus providing superior emotional outlets in two directions. One of the smartest criminal lawyers I know deliberately cultivated a natural impediment in his speech. In courtroom debates it gave him more time to think up either the right questions or to figure out the right answers.

Irvin S. Cobb

And one of the most charming voices I ever heard belonged to a Louisiana girl whose soft southern accents were fascinatingly interrupted at intervals by a sudden stammer—like unexpected ripples in a gently flowing brook.

How to Relax.

BEFORE I started out here, feeling somewhat jumpy after wrestling a radio program for six months, Jimmy Swinnerton, the artist, who's one of the most devoted friends these high mesas ever had, advised me to try stretching out on the desert sands as a measure for health and complete relaxation and a general toning up.

"Just lie down perfectly flat," he said. Then he took another look at my figure. "Anyway, lie down," he said.

So today I tried it. Another friend, John Kirk, the famous Indian trader, helped me pick out a suitable spot on the Navajo reservation that was forty miles from the nearest habitation.

But the site I chose was already pre-empted by a scorpion with a fretful stinger and an irritable disposition that seemed to resent being crowded. So I got right up again. In fact, I got up so swiftly that Kirk said it was impossible to follow the movement with the human eye. It was like magic, he said.

Speed Crazy Drivers.

WHY the hurry, Sonny Boy? I see you almost daily. You're roaring through populous streets or skidding on hairpin turns or whirling at sixty perilous miles an hour around the kinked and snaky twists of mountain roads like some demonic bug racing along the spine of a coiled rattler.

If I am one to say, you probably have primed yourself for this senseless speeding on that most dangerous of all mixed tipples—the fear-some combination of alcohol and gasoline. Or perhaps, like the blind mule of the folklore tale, you just naturally don't care a dern. One thing is plain: Despite the high percentage of mortality your breed is on the increase.

So, again, echoing the question which the coroner must frequently ask at the inquest, why the hurry, Sonny Boy?

It can't be that anybody wants you back at the place where you've been or that anybody else will be glad to see you at the place where you're going.

Really now, Sonny Boy, what is all the hurry about?

Civilization's Predicament.

FEEL it my duty to call attention to the following warning, recently published:

"The earth is degenerating in these latter days. . . bribery and corruption abound. . . the children no longer obey their parents. . . it is evident that the end of the world is approaching!"

However, it should be added that this prediction is not, as might be assumed from its familiar ring, the utterance of some inspired observer of the present moment. It is a translation from an Assyrian tablet, dated 2800 B. C.

So, if the fulfillment of the doleful prophecy has been delayed for 4,737 years it seems reasonable to assume that it may be some months yet before civilization flies all to pieces.

Waning States' Rights.

AS I watch commonwealth after commonwealth below the Mason and Dixon line tumbling over one another to embrace centralized authority in exchange for federal funds for local projects, I'm reminded of a trip which a friend of mine out here just made.

He's a descendant of the Lees and he decided to pay a pious pilgrimage to the last remaining stronghold of the late Southern Confederacy. So he went to the only two states that voted last fall for states' rights, making his headquarters in the ghost city of Passamaquoddy.

He reports that, in both Maine and Vermont, the secession sentiment is getting stronger all the time and that there's a growing tendency to name boys for Jeff Davis rather than Ethan Allen or Neal B. Dow.

Lesson for May 23

THE WEAKNESS OF ESAU

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:27-34; 27:41-45. GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. I Corinthians 9:25. PRIMARY TOPIC—Twin Brothers. JUNIOR TOPIC—Twin Brothers Trading. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Winning by Self-Control. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conquering Appetite and Greed.

One of the difficult and at the same time challenging things about teaching the Word of God is that its divine precepts are diametrically opposed to the current philosophy of men. In our lesson of last week we saw that meekness and forbearance are strong and commendable qualities in a world which magnifies brute force. Today we are to study a portion of Scripture which shows the folly of living for the flesh, and we are living in a world where the flesh and its appetites are given full sway.

Professors in many colleges are openly advocating the free exercise of every fleshly appetite as a normal expression of life. Morality is cast off; the flesh rules. Many of the nations of the earth look upon boys and girls as merely so many physical units useful in a future war. Motherhood has been degraded into an animal-like function, solely for the breeding of more manpower. One nation recently advocated as great an increase as possible in the birth of illegitimate children to be cared for by the state as a measure of national security. One shudders to mention such unspeakable wickedness, but even so we have only touched the surface.

Is it true that man is but a beast? Is there no spirit in man capable of fellowship with God? Has the moral law of God been abrogated? The story of Esau and Jacob is most pointed and instructive in its answer to such questions. Two New Testament quotations have been chosen to express the truth of an Old Testament lesson; namely, Galatians 5:17, and 6:7.

I. "The Flesh Lusteth Against the Spirit" (Gen. 25:27-34).

Esau is a type of the man of the flesh. He was "a cunning hunter, a man of the field." Evidently he was an athletic, outdoor man of attractive personality, of free and easy-going spirit. He was a hail-fellow-well-met. Had he lived in our day he would have been featured in the rotogravure, would probably have been in the movies, would possibly have been a great athlete, and the good-looking boy who set hearts a-flutter at the country club dance.

He came from the hunt, and he had found nothing. He was hungry. What a type this is of the folly of seeking satisfaction in the world. It never satisfies. For all its glitter and glamour, it is empty and shallow. He had a birthright—a valuable possession in any case, but doubly so as a son of Abraham. But he was hungry, he would simply die if he did not eat. His brother Jacob, inspired by his scheming mother who was not willing to abide God's time for the fulfillment of his promise, had the savory pottage ready to tempt him and he sold his birthright for "a gulp of that red stuff," for so might v. 30 be translated.

One is reminded of a clergyman who attended the Keswick Conference in England. He sent a request for prayer to the platform and asked this question: "I have a habit which is dishonoring to Christ. If I give it up I will die. What shall I do?" The wise and complete answer was one word—"Die." Rather should we lose our body and its desires than to lose our soul.

II. "Whoever a Man Soweth That Shall He Also Reap" (Gen. 27:41-45).

Jacob and his mother found that one lie called for another, and ultimately their deceit led (as deceit always does) to the place of reckoning. The law of sowing and reaping is inexorable. Jacob fled from his angry brother. Rebekah thought it would be for "a few days" (v. 44), but it proved to be twenty years, and she never saw her favorite son again.

Let us make no mistake about it. Our sins will always find us out. Even God's people must learn to walk uprightly before Him if they are to walk in peace.

The Season of Hope

Youth is the season of hope, enterprise, and energy, to a nation as well as an individual.—W. R. Williams.

Part of His Plan

I find most help in trying to look on all interruptions and hindrances to work that one has planned out for one's self as discipline, trials, sent by God to help one against getting selfish over one's work.—Annie Keary.

Bountiful Blessings

Forever from the hand that takes one blessing from us, others fall; and soon or late, our Father makes his perfect recompense to all.—Whittier.

HERE'S AN OIL COMPANY TELLING YOU HOW TO USE LESS GASOLINE!

GASOLINE MILEAGE FACTS RELEASED BY STANDARD OIL, SHOW YOU WAYS TO SAVE AS YOU DRIVE

Bundling into one pocket-size book all the dollar-saving facts about gasoline mileage gleaned from the World's Greatest Road Test last summer, the Standard Oil Company released today the results of millions of miles of test car driving by thousands of motorists like yourself.

Remarkable possibilities for increased economy in the public's consumption of gasoline are revealed in the statements of the test car drivers themselves.

Standard Oil Company has long felt, and the World's Greatest Road Test definitely proved, that many motorists are not enjoying the gasoline economy they might. Encouraged by the records of many drivers who were able to show savings ranging as high as one gallon in every ten, we are going to do everything possible this summer to help individual drivers help themselves to more miles per gallon.

More than 23,000 Standard Oil Dealers have just been provided with initial allotments of the book "How to Save as You Drive!" These, together with complete details of Standard's SAVE AS YOU DRIVE plan, will be distributed, starting today, to all interested drivers who request them. The books are free—while they last. Get yours now.

GET THIS BOOK USE IT DAILY and you may save 1 gallon in every 10!

No gasoline you can buy gives more miles per gallon than Standard Red Crown... Thousands say "it beats them all."

CHAPTER X—Continued

"Not now, No," Vance returned. "A little bromin gas a few minutes ago; but the air will be clear in a little while. No casualties. Every one doing well. . . . Did you want to see me?"

Garden looked round at the group on the roof with a puzzled air.

"Awfully sorry to interrupt you, Vance; but the fact is, I came for the doctor." His eyes rested on Siefert, and he smiled dryly. "It's the usual thing, doc," he said. "The mater seems almost in a state of collapse—she assured me that she hadn't an ounce of strength left."

A worried look came into Siefert's eyes.

"I'll come at once, of course," he said. He looked at the nurse and then lifted his gaze to Vance. "Will you excuse me?"

Vance bowed. "Certainly, doctor. But I think Miss Beeton had better remain here in the air for a while longer."

Vance watched them until they turned through the door of the passageway; then he spoke to the nurse.

"Please sit here a few minutes, Miss Beeton. But first I'd like a talk with you. Mr. Hammle's a minute or two with Mr. Hammle."

The nurse nodded her assent and sat down a little wearily on the settee.

Vance beckoned curtly to Hammle. "Suppose we go inside for a moment."

Hammle rose with alacrity. "I was wondering how much longer you gentlemen were going to keep me here."

Vance led the way into the study, and Markham and I followed behind Hammle.

"What were you doing on the roof, Mr. Hammle?" asked Vance. "I told you some time ago, after our brief interview, that you might go."

Hammle fidgeted. He was patently apprehensive and wary.

"There's no crime in going out into the garden for a while—is there?" he asked with unimpressive truculence.

"None whatever," Vance returned casually. "I was wondering why you preferred the gardens to going home. Devilish things have been happening in the garden this afternoon."

"As I told you, I wish I had gone. How did I know?"

"That's hardly the point, Mr. Hammle," Vance cut him short. "It doesn't answer my question."

"Well now, look here," Hammle explained fulsomely; "I had just missed a train to Long Island, and it was more than an hour until the next one. When I went out of here and started to go downstairs, I suddenly said to myself, 'It'll be pleasant waiting in the garden than in the Pennsylvania station.' So I went out on the roof and hung around. And here I am."

Vance regarded the man shrewdly and nodded his head.

"Yes, as you say. Here you are. More or less in evidence. By the way, Mr. Hammle, what did you see while you were waiting in the garden for the next train?"

"Not a thing—absolutely!" Hammle's tone was aggressive. "I walked along the boxwood hedges, smoking, and was leaning over the parapet by the gate, looking out at the city, when I heard you come out carrying the nurse."

Vance narrowed his eyes: it was obvious he was not satisfied with Hammle's explanation.

"And you saw no one else either in the garden or on the terrace?"

"Not a soul," the man assured him.

"And you heard nothing?"

"Not until you gentlemen came out."

Vance stood regarding Hammle for several moments. Then he turned and walked toward the garden window.

"That will be all for the moment," he said brusquely. "But we shall probably want to see you tomorrow."

"I'll be at home all day. Glad to be of any service," Hammle shot a covert look at Vance, made his adieux quickly, and went out down the passageway.

Vance returned at once to the garden. Miss Beeton drew herself up a little as he approached her.

"Do you feel equal to a few questions?" he asked her.

"Oh, yes," she smiled with more assurance now, and rose.

As we crossed the garden to the balustrade, Miss Beeton took a deep breath and shuddered slightly.

"You'd better have your coat," Vance suggested. He returned to the study and brought it out to her. When he had helped her into it she turned suddenly and looked at him inquiringly.

"Why was my coat brought to the study?" she asked.

to know if the key was in its place." The girl nodded.

"The shot we all heard," Vance went on, "was fired from another revolver after Swift's body had been carried from the vault and placed in the chair out here. We were naturally anxious to find that other weapon, and Sergeant Heath made a search for it. . . ."

"But—but—my coat?" Her hand went out and she clutched at Vance's sleeve as a look of understanding came into her frightened eyes.

"Yes," Vance said, "the Sergeant found the revolver in the pocket of your top-coat. Someone had put it there as a temporary hiding-place."

She recoiled with a sudden intake of breath.

"How dreadful!" Her words were barely audible.

Vance put his hand on her shoulder.

"But it's too terrible! . . . And then this—at this attempt on my life. I can't understand. I'm frightened."

"Come, come," Vance exhorted the girl. "It's over now, and we need your help."

She gazed directly into his eyes for several minutes. Then she gave him a faint smile of confidence.

"I'm very sorry," she said simply. "But this house—this family—they've been doing queer things to my nerves for the past month. I can't explain it, but there's something frightfully wrong here. . . . I was in charge of an operating room in a Montreal hospital for six months, attending as many as six and eight operations a day; but that never affected me the way this household does. There, at least, I could see what was going on—I could help and know that I was helping. But here everything goes on in dark corners, and nothing I do seems to be of any use. . . . But please don't think I am not ready to help—to do anything I can for you. You, too, always have to work in the dark, don't you?"

"Don't we all have to work in the dark?" Vance murmured, without taking his eyes from her. "Tell me who you think could have been guilty of the terrible things that have happened here."

All fear and doubt seemed to have left the girl. She moved toward the balustrade and stood looking over the river with an impressive calm and self-control.

"Vance! Come Down From There!"

"What were you doing on the roof, Mr. Hammle?" asked Vance. "I told you some time ago, after our brief interview, that you might go."

Hammle fidgeted. He was patently apprehensive and wary.

"Why was my coat brought to the study?" she asked.

Vance's tone was reassuring. We really owe you an explanation. You see, two revolvers figured in Swift's death. One of them we all saw on the roof here—that was the one with which the chap was killed. But no one downstairs heard the shot because the poor fellow met his end in Professor Garden's storeroom vault."

"Vance! Come Down From There!"

CHAPTER XI

"Woode Swift's death wasn't at all the sort of thing I would expect to happen here," the nurse said.

"I wouldn't have been surprised at some act of impulsive violence, but this premeditated murder, so subtle and so carefully planned, seems alien to the atmosphere here. Besides, it isn't a loving family, except on the surface. Floyd Garden is saner than the others. His interests are narrow, to be sure, but, on his own mental level. He's dependable, too, I think."

She paused and frowned.

"As for Mrs. Garden, I feel that by nature she is shallow and is deliberately creating for herself a deeper and more complex mode of life, which she doesn't in the least understand. That, of course, makes her unreasonable and dangerous. I have never had a more unreasonable patient. She has no consideration whatever for others."

"And Professor Garden?"

"He's a researcher and scientist, of course, and, therefore, not altogether human, in the conventional sense. I have thought sometimes that he isn't wholly rational."

"What is your impression of the guests who were present today?" Vance said.

"I don't feel competent to pass judgment on them," the girl replied seriously. "I can't entirely understand them. But each one strikes me as dangerous in his own way. They are all playing a game—and it seems to be a game without rules. To them the outcome justifies the methods they use."

"Yes, quite. You have clear vision," Vance scrutinized the girl beside him. "And you took up nursing because you are able to face the realities. You are not afraid of life—or of death."

The girl looked embarrassed. "You're making too much of my profession. After all, I had to earn my living, and nursing appealed to me."

"Yes, of course. It would," Vance nodded. "But tell me, wouldn't you rather not have to work for your living?"

She looked up.

"Perhaps. But isn't it natural for every woman to prefer luxury and security to drudgery and uncertainty?"

"No doubt," said Vance. "And speakin' of nursing, just what do you think of Mrs. Garden's condition?"

Miss Beeton hesitated before she answered:

"Really, I don't know what to say. I can't understand it. And I rather suspect that Doctor Siefert himself is puzzled by it. Mrs. Garden is obviously a sick woman. She shows many of the symptoms of that nervous, erratic temperament exhibited by people suffering from cancer. Though she's much better some days than others, I know that she suffers a great deal. Doctor Siefert tells me she is really a neurological case; but I get the feeling, at times, that it goes much deeper—that an obscure physiological condition is producing the neurological symptoms she shows."

"That's most interesting," Doctor Siefert mentioned something of the kind to me only a few days ago," Vance moved nearer to the girl. "Would you mind telling me something of your contacts with the members of the household?"

"There's very little to tell. Professor Garden practically ignores me—half the time I doubt if he even knows I am there. Mrs. Garden alternates between periods of irritable admonition and intimate confidence. Floyd Garden has always been pleasant and considerate. I've rather liked him for his attitude."

"And what of Swift—did you see much of him?"

The girl seemed reluctant to answer.

"The truth is, Mr. Swift asked me several times to go to dinner and the theater with him. I got the impression that he was one of those unhappy men who feel their inferiority and seek to bolster themselves up with the affections of women. I think that he was really concerned with Miss Graem, and merely turned to me through pique."

Vance smoked for a few moments in silence. Then he said:

"What of the big race today? Had there been much discussion about it?"

"Oh, yes. For over a week I've heard little else here. A curious tension has been growing in the house. I heard Mr. Swift remark to Floyd Garden one evening that the Rivermont Handicap was his one remaining hope, and that he thought Equanimity would win."

"Was it generally known to the other members of the afternoon gatherings how Swift felt about this race and Equanimity?"

"Yes, the matter was freely discussed for days."

"By the way," asked Vance, "how did you come to bet on Azure Star?"

"Frankly," the girl confessed shyly, "I've been mildly interested in the horse—betting parties here, though I've never had any desire to make a wager myself. But I overheard you tell Mr. Garden that you had picked Azure Star, and the name was so appealing that I asked Mr. Garden to place that bet for me. It was the first time I ever bet on a horse."

"And Azure Star came in," Vance sighed. "Too bad. Actually you bet against Equanimity, you know—he was the favorite. A big gamble. Most unfortunate that you won. Beginner's luck, d'ye see, is always fatal."

The girl's face became suddenly sombre, and she looked steadily at Vance for several moments before she spoke again.

"Do you really think it will prove fatal?"

"Yes. Oh, yes. Inevitable. You won't be able to resist making other wagers. One doesn't stop with the first bet if one wins. And, invariably, one loses in the end."

Again the girl gave Vance a long and troubled look; then her gaze drifted to the darkening sky overhead.

"But Azure Star is a beautiful name, isn't it?" She pointed upward. "There's one now."

We all looked up. High above we saw a single bright star shining with blue luminosity in the cloudless sky. After a moment Vance moved toward the parapet and looked out over the waters of the river to the purpling hills and the still glowing sunset colors in the west.

"No city in the world," Vance said, "is as beautiful as New York seen from a vantage point like this in the early twilight." (I wondered at his sudden change of mood.)

He stepped up on the parapet and looked down into the great abyss of deep shadows and flickering lights far below. A curious chill of fear ran over me—the sort of fear I have always felt when I have seen acrobatic performers perilously balanced high above a circus arena.

Miss Beeton was standing close to Markham, and she, too, must have experienced something of the sensation I felt, for I saw her face go suddenly pale. Her eyes were fixed on Vance with a look of apprehensive horror.

"Vance!" It was Markham's stern voice that broke the silence. "Come down from there!"

Glamor Via Sheer White Accents

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ONE of the newest and most exciting style notes of the present season in this year of grace is the welcome return of femininity. We say "year of grace" for that's literally what it is—a year when gracious lines, glamorous sheer fabrics embellished with delicately wrought embroideries, laces and all such prettily feminine devices are the order of the day. Nowhere is this ladylike trend more charmingly symbolized than in the snowy lingerie touches which are bringing refreshing sprightliness to our new frocks and suits.

Swiss organdie, crisp and clear with a luminous transparency, is proving the idol of the hour for the new lingerie blouses so smart this season with your wool tailleur. It is also to be found in myriads of neckwear items and wrist wear touches which are this season glorifying every type of costume. Fine as a cobweb, this imported organdie is marvelously practical in spite of its lovely fragile look. This practicality comes in that the clever Swiss, using the pure icy waters of Alpine streams, have imparted to their sheer fabrics an absolutely permanent finish which holds smooth and crisp and new-looking after repeated tubbings. If your frivolous looking frills are of Swiss organdie they can be popped in and out of the tub as often as you wish with a minimum of effort, as no starching is required to restore the original fresh crispness to the fabric.

Handwork is appearing in utmost profusion on this year's lingerie fantasies. Allover embroidery, both cut-out and plain, embroidered edges and frills, applique lace and finest net are delicate and lovely on sheer organdie backgrounds. Tiny tucks and hand-forging are popular too, used not only on the plain organdie but also on the exciting new shadow-printed types. In these perfectly charming print organdies dainty floral motifs and vine patterns show up in clouded white on clear white or pastel-colored backgrounds.

In choosing your lingerie blouse to wear with your tailleur, and you really must have a sheer utterly feminine lingerie blouse to arrive at top fashion, take as your cue the smartness of shadow-print organdie. It should be simply styled after the manner of the model to the right in the accompanying illustration. A youthful turn-back collar and cascaded jabot distinguish this sheer Swiss organdie blouse which is so daintily shadow-printed in a tiny floral motif. Valenciennes lace edges the collar, bow and short puffed sleeves.

Snowy Swiss organdie in a dainty shadow print makes the very beautifully fashioned blouse to the left in the picture. And listen to this! Fine handtattling, so tremendously smart this season, as are many quaint trimmings revived from "way back when," edges collar, cuffs and crisp ruffly effect in front. So here's to get busy and tat, for fatting and hand crochet lace are as stylish at this very moment as they were during the gay nineties.

The fashion of snow white frilly neckwear is going at top speed this season. You can find types of Swiss organdie from prim little bobby collars to low-cut pointed bibs and frothy jabots. See the double ruffle of finely embroidered Swiss organdie that flares so youthfully below a prim little turn back collar shown below in the picture and note to the right the two-tiered jabot with high neckband and quaint ribbon bow imparting an attractive Gibson girl air to a gilet of finest Swiss organdie.

SMART MILLINERY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As to smart millinery, the revival of the ever practical and flattering sailor is notable. Flower trims on sailors abound. The newest way of using flowers is to border the brim with a row of tiny flowers as shown here. The tiny blossoms are set in between a double-edge brim in a most becoming manner. The new sailors encourage the wearing of veils. The latest fad is to tie veiling by the yard over the face in Gibson girl fashion bringing the ends to a big flattery bow at the back. The other hat pictured has the new and smart mushroom brim. Its flower trim emphasizes the use of a flower cluster placed at the front of the crown.

SHOES HAVE GONE STRICTLY FEMININE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Shoes have gone feminine. Fine stitching in new guises, pin tuckings, pipings, puffings and cordings ornament shoes in a soft manner. Nailhead and metal eyelets make an appearance. Buttons and buckles, often leather covered, are designed for utility or ornamentation. They're often on the side in this season of asymmetric lines.

The "Gone With the Wind" shoes cleverly modernize such Civil War shoe themes as rosettes, criss-cross, ballet lacings, side lace booties and Colonial tongues. Simplicity is the keynote for this season when the shoe for the activity is all-important. Soft feminine details and new silhouettes are in the limelight.

The pump, especially of patent leather, is growing in demand. Models with dramatic touches at the throat, off-sided versions and built-up styles are of equal importance. Colonial with unusual and classic lines are due for glory. Gray, beige and navy are important colors for shoes.

Dress-up sandals are back for this dress-up afternoon season.

Chiffon Capes to Be Worn by Dancers This Summer

Chiffon capes on dance dresses this summer will be popular, as they give a floating quality to the dancer. These may be worn over prints or contrasting colors. Circular chiffon skirts also add to the airy effect on the dance floor. These are effective when held out at the sides by the dancers.

Double Duty Dresses

Double duty dresses that serve for street and cocktail wear are the latest innovation of the big Paris dressmakers.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Protecting Mirrors—Keep mirrors out of the sun—it will cause spots and other blemishes.

Milk Puddings—Orange peel shredded very finely makes an excellent flavoring for milk puddings. It is a pleasant change from nutmeg when added to rice pudding or baked custard.

Rust Remover—Onion juice will remove rust from tableware.

Fitting Your Hat—If you have a tight felt hat, hold it in the steam of a boiling kettle. When the felt is thoroughly damp it is easy to stretch it to the right size.

Save Stockings—If stockings persistently wear out at the toes, try buying them one-half size larger.

Cleaning Combs, Brushes—A teaspoon of ammonia in a quart of water will remove all grease and dirt from combs and brushes, after which they should be rinsed and dried in the sun.

Tough Pastry—Too much water will make pastry tough.

Keeping Cheese Moist—To prevent it from becoming dry, keep it wrapped in butter muslin, or in the glazed hygienic paper in which some bread is wrapped.

Stewed Macaroni—Boil one pound macaroni in milk and water for three-quarters of an hour, adding one-fourth ounce butter, salt, and an onion stuck with cloves. Afterwards, drain the macaroni, add three ounces grated cheese, a little nutmeg, peppers and a little milk or cream. Stew gently for five minutes and serve very hot.

Devilled Egg Lillies—Hard cook as many eggs as there are to be servings. Chill, then peel carefully. With a sharp knife cut strips from the large end to the center; remove yolks, mash and season with salt, pepper, mayonnaise and a little Worcestershire sauce. Carefully refill cavities having the white strips form the petals of the "lily." Lay each on a bed of curly endive. Accompany with cheese straws.

Making Cocoa—Cocoa loses that raw taste if made with half milk and half water, then boiled. More nutritious and digestible, too.

Old-Girl-With-a-Face Presented Proof Positive

"I'm afraid, madam," said the bank clerk to the not-so-young-or-pretty woman who presented a check for payment, "that I shall have to ask you for some proof of your identity."

"Certainly," she said with a sweet smile. Then, raising her voice a bit:

"I'm the 'old-girl-with-a-face' on the other side of your fence. Last night, when you came in, your wife said to you: 'If you don't turn up at a respectable hour tomorrow night I'll give you such a piece of my mind as you've never had yet, you unfeeling, selfish!'"

The cashier paid out quickly.

Mirror of Happiness

Happiness is reflective like the light of Heaven; and every countenance bright with smiles, and glowing with innocent enjoyment, is a mirror transmitting to others the rays of a supreme and ever shining benevolence.—Irving.

Lucky Lad Thinks Yankee Bench Is Best Ball School

(Tom Henrich, twenty-year-old Yankee rookie, qualifies as Hugh Bradley's guest columnist this week and as the luckiest lad in the world because Judge Landis ruled him a free agent and entitled to sell his services to the highest bidder. He tells a few of his experiences with the Yankees.)

By TOM HENRICH
THREE years in professional ball, declared a free agent by Judge Landis and selling myself to the World Champion Yankees for more money than I ever thought was in the world before—it's still all a little bewildering to a small-town boy.

I guess I couldn't understand any of it at first. First off, I belonged to Cleveland. Then I read in a Montreal paper during the winter meetings that Milwaukee had bought me direct from New Orleans. But Judge Landis cleared a whole lot up for me. He's the first real judge I'd ever met.

I just wanted my case clarified. I wanted to find out if everything was on the up-and-up, have the baseball law of it explained to me. If you can't get a square deal in this game, Tom, I told myself—and I meant it, too—there's no use going on playing it.

Judge Landis was fine about it. He didn't try to bulldoze me or trap me into any admissions. He simply wanted the truth, and make believe he didn't get it! Well, I was declared a free agent on the first of April, All Fools' Day. I was too excited to attach any significance to the date. And as it's turned out, the joke hasn't exactly been on me.

When I arrived home in Massillon there were a couple of telegrams awaiting me, and in three days I'd had eight major league offers, four from each league. Perhaps I'd better not say what they were. I weighed 'em all before accepting the Yankees' bid.

I had my reasons for doing that. If I'm ever going to be a major leaguer, I want to be with the best club in baseball. The rest of it is up to Mr. McCarthy.

I haven't been with the Yanks very long. But I never knew there was so much to baseball. Just sitting on the bench through one nine-inning game is a liberal education in itself. In the minors everything is sort of taken for granted. But on the Yanks every player on the squad is in every play. I feel like I've been playing for years from what I've learned already. I never knew they made 'em as wise as Tony Lazzeri.

"Always keep your head up, kid," Lou Gehrig warned me, and the rest of the gang have given me lots of other pointers. On this team if I can't learn how to be a big leaguer I must be pretty dumb.

I was really weaned on football. You've heard of the Massillon Tigers and the Canton Bulldogs. They were playing great pro football before I was born. I've had my dad sit down with me by the hour and tell me about Jim Thorpe, Bob Nash and the rest of those old-timers. Nash was a graduate of Rutgers, and he was the only end ever to stop Jim from running. But, of course, dad's favorite team was the Tigers.

Dad used to say to us kids that to bet on them was safer than putting your money in the First National bank. From what I've seen of 'em, that's about the way I feel about the Yankees, though neither of us is a betting man. Dad wouldn't let any of us—I've got three brothers—even play football. He's a great baseball fan himself. He wanted to make me over into a choke hitter. He said you never strike out if you shorten your bat—but you never get any home runs, either.

My brother Eddie is still a better ball player than I am and I think he was an awful chump to chuck the game and go into business. He's old now—twenty-five. But Charles is crazy about baseball. He's only seventeen years old and is going to try to catch on with Akron this summer and come up through the Yankee farms. Art is just a fifteen-year-old kid in high school, but he weighs 185 pounds already, ten more than I do.

I came up through the softball ranks. There was no hardball at home. But there's no chance to hit in that racket. The pitchers think they have a bad day when they don't fan 20 batters. I bet Nat Rupert has about 1,000 no-hitters to his credit. Hardball's more of a game. Softball isn't exactly a fad. It offers relaxation to thousands of boys.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

BILL KLEM, the Old Master, is one of the few umpires who like to work behind the plate when Bob Feller is pitching. The others say that the kid has so much stuff, even his fast ball takes a funny hop, that it is hard to call them right. . . . Carl Hubbell's perfect control makes working one of his games an umpire's pleasure, though. . . . Billy Johnston, youngest of the clan, turns fight promoter with a summer club at Rockaway soon. . . . That eminent sportsman, Tim Mara, is proudly displaying one of the seven honorary gold life membership Elk citations. . . . In addition to being treasurer of the New York Americans (soccer) club, John Kornbluth also is an executive in one of the town's leading department stores. Years ago he helped form the Maccabee Sport club of Chicago and starred for that organization on the soccer pitch.

Two members of the Cincinnati Reds lost minor league batting crowns by a single base hit last season. Phil Weintraub hit .371 for Rochester and was nosed out by Smead Jolley. Joe Dwyer batted .383 for Nashville only to be shaded by Fred Sington. . . . Kid Eberfeld, one of the roughest toughest of ballplayers when he performed for the Yankees and other big-time clubs, never wore socks. Draped his knobby knees in ladies' silk stockings instead.

Movies Will Finish Morris' Track Career

Olympic champ Glenn Morris is through so far as amateur track is concerned if he persists in his movie career, according to one of the most eminent A. A. U. officials. Glenn is said to have been ready to take a fling at boxing before he got that Tarzan contract. Incidentally, old-time pugns now doing bits in flickers include Jack Perry, Pittsburgh welterweight; Joe Glick, famed Brooklyn buttonhole maker; Bing Conley, middleweight; Georgie Levine, Brownsville welterweight; Frank Moran, old-time heavyweight, and too many more to be mentioned.

Ken Sanbach will not play pro football. The Princeton quarterback will join a Chicago business firm this summer. . . . Eleven of the twenty-two soccer players who competed for the English cup at Wembley stadium, are Scotchmen, four performing for Sunderland and seven for Preston North End. . . . The boyhood ambition of Jimmy Johnston, the Garden boxing gent who so often is tossed to the lions, was to be a lion tamer. . . . John Finn, whose dad has been a cop on Brooklyn's hard-bitten Sand street for thirty-one years, has signed to play first base for Altoona. . . . The best tip as to whether Lou Chiozza will do for the Giants may be had by watching him protect his foul line. Third basemen who can go to the right the way he does have little else to worry about. . . . Pitcher LaMaster, who was drafted by the Phillies could have been had by Brooklyn last summer. Casey Stengel pleaded with the directors to buy him for five G's less than the $15,000 Casey now gets for not managing a second-division outfit.

One of Hank Marino's first bowling pupils was Fritz Crisler. That was when the Princeton football coach was a crack end on Chicago's powerhouse outfit of 1921. . . . Roland Hulshart, a bit of a kid from Bel Air, Md. (your correspondent's own home grounds), may startle sprinting champions within a season or two. . . . Frankie Terranova, New York scrapper knee high to a grasshopper, clicked with Chicago fight fans and will return there. . . . Rogers Hornsby's early season batting was no surprise to the Brown's manager. Last summer he confided that American League pitching was so bad that he could hit .300 standing on one leg with one eye shut. . . . Now that they have local fans interested in their Jersey City and Newark farms the Yankees and Giants ought to put International League scores on the Polo grounds.

Additions to the "Like father like son" hall of fame—Eddie Collins Jr., blasting Ivy league pitchers to all corners for Yale; Coach Tuss McLaughry's boy, John, looking like the best prospect on his old man's Brown team; Ted Meredith's youngster running for Mercersburg; Lawson Robertson's kid doing the same for Lower Marion High. . . . Even though he'd make as good a man as any for the job, Jack Dempsey should quit yelling that the nation needs a boxing czar. The truth is they're always protecting special interests and—as any student of communism or one man sports control very well knows—the eventual sufferer is that age-old burden bearer, the average citizen.

Barney Ain, the basketball authority, refereed a game at Sing Sing last winter. One fan, in particular, did not like Mr. Ain's style of officiating. Every time a foul was called on a member of the Lawes university quintet this ardent rooster would yell "Robber!"

Later Mr. Ain, who delights in providing hard-working reporters with rare items, investigated the Sing Sing undergrad's status. Found he was in as a fourth offender. . . burglary,

Historic Parish Church in Mexico Is Restored

Edifice in Which Independence Was Cradled.

Washington, D. C.—The half-ruined building where Mexican independence was cradled over a century ago is being restored. It is the parish church of Chilpancingo, capital of the state of Guerrero, 95 miles inland from southern Mexico's Pacific coast.

"Hitherto motorists have been inclined to zip through the town of Chilpancingo without a second glance," says the National Geographic society. "It lies two-thirds of the way westward on the 'roller coaster' highway which swoops over six ridges and deep valleys between Mexico, D. F., and Acapulco, the nation's Pacific 'Atlantic City.' Most travelers do not stop, for speeding knowledge of the mountains around Chilpancingo for surprise attacks by the rebel followers, and equally as surprising escapes. Traveling secret trails, he found ways of furthering and financing the revolution cause. Once he took the bronze church bells of a mountain village to be melted into cannon, paying for them only with a note of thanks. Admiring Indian followers would not exchange the note for fuller payment. His birthplace at Tixtla, near-by, gives Chilpancingo a further claim to the attention of Mexican patriots.

"The most important area which this second leader frequented was named for him, the state of Guerrero, with Chilpancingo as its capital. The town's central location gave it a claim for this honor, although its size still is around 10,000. Its full name is Chilpancingo de los Bravos, or Ciudad Bravos, in honor of the revolutionary heroes.

"As state capital, and as modern community profiting by older mistakes which the earthquakes wiped out, Chilpancingo is cleaner and less crowded than many of its neighbors. A spacious plaza, hotels with shaded patios, and new buildings are in keeping with its official position. Not far away, Indian boys are taught the ways of present-day life in a federal school.

"The town lies in a small valley scooped out of the last high range of the Sierra Madre del Sur on the Pacific side. Almost a mile above sea level, this lofty valley is comfortable and fertile. Indians on muleback amble to town on market days, each bringing his small stock of gourds, beans, Indian corn, potatoes, or green and red peppers. Little piles of fruits and vegetables, neatly and sometimes geometrically laid out on mats in the market place, are supervised by women in the universal dark blue woolen shawl, or rebozo.

"Chilpancingo's little valley, although it figures not at all in the nation's export trade, produces a wealth of fruits and excellent cotton, cocoa, and coffee. Mineral wealth, too, is hinted of, and legends of Montezuma's gold still survive.

"The town blossoms with native color during its annual Indian festival in December. Primitive music, monotonous beating on the tall, upright hollow-log drums, and ritual dances with masks erase any impression that Chilpancingo is altogether a modern town. The Dance of the Tiger, so old that no one remembers its original meaning, is performed in ferocious-looking masks of yellow with protruding tusks and green eyes."

SHE USES 3,800 WORDS

Mary Christine Dunn, twenty-eight-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence T. Dunn, of Bonne Terre, Mo., who, according to scientists of Washington university, has an intelligence quotient of 185. This is 45 points higher than the I. Q. normally attributed to genius. Mary's parents say she has a vocabulary of more than 3,800 words, and discusses current events in a manner becoming a student of affairs.

through will permit them to accomplish the trip in one long day. Moreover, Chilpancingo lacks the lure of intriguing quaintness, for it appears quite modern. Two earthquakes within the present century made necessary rebuilding operations which produced a town with a rather modern air.

"A historic landmark, however, will hereafter bait Chilpancingo's hook for passing travelers. The church, in course of restoration, has the double attraction of having housed the first democratic congress of Mexico and having been the scene of framing its declaration of independence.

Two Heroes Recalled.
"At the invitation of Morelos—a mule-driver turned priest, then rebel general—Mexican provinces which had thrown off Spanish rule sent elected delegates to Chilpancingo's church, and for unliberated provinces Morelos appointed other representatives. Their first congress convened on September 14, 1813. Almost two months later, on November 6, their declaration of independence was ready. New laws abolished slavery, caste distinctions, and the tribute demanded from Indians as subject tribes.

"Chilpancingo marked the turning point in the success of Morelos' share in the revolution. From there he marched away into a series of defeats. Finally, while holding back a royalist army at a narrow defile in the mountains to allow his men to escape, he was captured and shot. "His revolutionary mantle fell figuratively on the shoulders of Vicente Guerrero, who used his

Duke Fined for Chasing Stag on Neighbor's Land

Avallon, France.—Despite an attempt by the French foreign office to influence a provincial court to quash the charge, the duke of Westminster, a British peer and one of the biggest landholders in France, was fined for chasing a stag into a neighbor's property.

The fine was 100 francs—actually 700 francs or more under the French system of multiplication of the franc for penal purposes, equivalent to prewar value, and also including the costs—plus one franc damages. The duke's neighbor, Maitre Brichat at Joux-la-Ville, received the one franc damages. (A franc is currently quoted at 4.46 cents.)

The pursued stag jumped a hedge into Brichat's country estate with a pack of hounds at his heels, followed by the duke and his party.

Brichat brought suit. The foreign office tried to quash the case because of the duke's high station and his friendliness toward France. The duke of Westminster recently entertained the duke and duchess of Kent, brother and sister-in-law of King George VI., of Great Britain, in Montmartre night clubs during their visit in Paris.

First Paternity Ward to Be Ready in July

San Francisco.—Expectant fathers are promised a paternity ward where they may pace the floor in comfort and with every convenience. It is a city health department project and America's first paternity ward will be ready in July.

The paternity ward will consist of a room fitted with deeply cushioned chairs to lure the fathers off the floor. There will be reading lamps, literature on the care and feeding of babies, ash trays and police attendants to bring frequent bulletins on the condition of wife and child.

700 New Planes to Be Built for Army Forces

Riverside, Calif.—How the nation's flying force will be increased by 700 planes before 1938 was disclosed by officials of the first wing headquarters of the United States army air corps. Most of the aircraft will be built in southern California by the Northrop, Douglas, and North American companies. Others will be constructed by Seversky, Boeing, Curtiss, and Sikorsky plants.

Pity the Man at the End!

Imagine the feelings of the man at the end of this recumbent line of members of the Royal Signal corps if the trick motorcyclist underestimates the length of the jump. It's the end man that's ridden over roughshod. Everything turned out all right, however, in this test made near London.

For Dress and Utility

"WHY Mollie R., are you going out again? My own mother has become a gadabout and all because she made herself such a pretty new dress. Really, Ma, those soft graceful lines make you look lots slimmer. I think the long rippling collar has a good deal to do with it. Or maybe it's because the skirt fits where it should and has plenty of room at the bottom."

"Yes, My Darling Daughter." "Daughter, dear, how you do run on! Imitate Sis; put your apron on and have the dusting done when I get back from the Civic Improvement League meeting. And speaking of aprons, that is the cleverest one Sis ever had. I love the way it crosses in the back."

"So do I, Mom, and see how it covers up my dress all over. Good-by, Mom, have a good time." "Sisterly Chit Chat."

"Sis, run upstairs for my apron, won't you? I wouldn't have a spot on this, my beloved model, for all the world. It's my idea of smooth: all these buttons; no belt; these here new puffed sleeves; and this flare that's a flare."

"Just you wait, Miss, till I grow up! Your clothes won't have a look in because I've already begun to Sew-My-Own. All right. I'm going."

And so on well into the afternoon!

Most Successful Author

Mark Twain probably is the highest-paid American author of all time. Harper's became his sole publishers in 1896. Early figures are lacking, but since the author's death, in 1910, the publishers have paid into the estate more than $1,250,000 in royalties. These figures do not include huge royalties from stage and screen nor do they account for the enormous earnings of Mark Twain as his own publisher.

Since 1896 Harper's have sold more than 6,500,000 volumes of the humorist's work.
