TAWAS CITY WINS OPENER LAST SUNDAY

Game Was Pitcher's Battle Between Shellenbarger and Nichols

Tawas City won their first tilt of the 1937 season by shutting out the Hemlock boys with a score of 3-0.

The game was a pitchers' battle throughout. Shellenbarger, working on the mound for the Tawas boys, allowed six hits while striking out nine and issued but one free trip to first base. Nichols, the Hemlock hurler, pitched seven-hit ball, striking out thirteen of the locals and also allowed but one walk.

The first inning started with a bang for the Tawas boys. Slosser beat out an infield hit. Mallon singled and Anderson smacked out a long triple on the first pitched ball sending Slosser and Mallon scampering over the plate with two tallies. The Hemlock gang then settled down and the Tawas boys had to be content with but four more hits for the rest of the game.

The third Tawas City run came in the eighth when Anderson walked, took second on a bad throw in an attempt to pick him off first, and scored on Shellenbarger's single to right.

Tawas City out-played Hemlock in the field, having but two errors charged against them, while their opponents made eight miscues.

Mattis, playing right field, turned in a faultless job of fielding despite a flurry of hard catches, also displaying a fine throwing arm by tossing the ball to first base after a catch to double a man off. Anderson also showed a flashy bit of fielding when he made a diving run to catch a line drive off Biggs' bat, robbing him of what was ticketed for a base hit.

Next Sunday, May 30 is an open date for Tawas City. The management is trying to schedule a game with an outside team. June 6, Tawas City plays their first home game, Turner furnishing the opposition and all the earmarks of a thriller are in evidence so don't miss it.

King-Leslie

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. King was the scene of a very pretty informal wedding Saturday, May 22, when their daughter, Isabelle, became the bride of Waldo R. Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Leslie of this city. Rev. S. A. Carey performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie, Wm. Leslie Jr., brother of the groom serving as best man.

The bride was dressed in a gray tailored suit with navy accessories and wore a corsage of Talisman roses and gardenias. Her attendant wore a dawn blue suit with navy accessories with a corsage of Joanna Hill roses and gardenias.

A wedding dinner was served at six o'clock to about thirty guests.

The young couple left Sunday afternoon for Sans Soucie, Michigan, where they will make their home.

A true saying, "A millionaire may be poor in spirit if his heart has not attached itself to his money and goods, he does not really possess them. On the other hand, a beggar may be the very opposite, when he puts his trust in the little money he has. The former is a blessed man, "the latter is not."

Goodrich Resigns As Genesee Undersheriff

Undersheriff Fred H. Goodrich will bid official leave to the Genesee County sheriff's department June 1 after almost four and a half years of service in the capacity of second in command to Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott. The announcement was made last night by the sheriff.

Goodrich resigned his post to take care of his resort business in East Tawas, Michigan. He has held the undersheriff's job since January 1, 1933.

Don Carmichael, chief deputy, will assume the post left vacant by Goodrich's resignation. Announcement of the appointee to the chief deputy's job is not immediately forthcoming, Wolcott said.

Goodrich will leave today, being granted a week's vacation for the last year's work. His official quitting time, however, will not be until June 1.

Wolcott praised his aid as "the best undersheriff Genesee county has ever had." He said he knew Goodrich had lost money during the past year by neglecting his own interests in order to handle the public duty—Flint Journal.

Miner's Grove kept their slate clean by defeating Baldwin 9-6 last Sunday in the only game scheduled for the day. The game was a heated affair with numerous arguments both players and fans threatening each other with promises of dire results for something or other. It was carried so far that the umpires found it difficult to keep the base paths clear.

Miner's Grove took the lead in the first inning and held it throughout the game.

3RD ANNUAL BAND FESTIVAL HELD SATURDAY

Tawas City and East Tawas High School Bands Sponsor Meet

The Tawas City and East Tawas High School bands were hosts last Saturday to the Northeastern Michigan Band Association at its third annual Spring Festival and the people of the two cities were treated to some excellent music and the stirring sight of the several organizations passing in parade.

The association consists of the Tawas City, East Tawas, Oscoda and Mio bands an 100 young musicians took part in the festival. Saturday morning was devoted to rehearsals at the Community Building. A noon a pot luck picnic was enjoyed at the State park.

Following the picnic the bands paraded at East Tawas and Tawas City as individual bands and in a massed formation. A concert was then given in the Tawas City park, playing as individual bands and in massed formation as a finale. The massed band was directed in turn by the director of each band.

The association held its festival at Mio last year. In speaking of the very successful festival held here last Saturday, Miss Helmie Huhtala, instructor in the music department of the Tawas City schools said, "I think that a non-competitive gathering of this kind creates good feeling between the several communities and the experience gained is valuable to each musician in attendance."

Van Devanter Quits Supreme Court and Robinson May Get Place—Cardinal Mundelein Enrages the Nazis—Windsor Marriage June 3.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE WILLIS VAN DEVANTER notified President Roosevelt that he would retire from the Supreme court bench immediately after the summer adjournment of the court on June 1, and there were rumors in Washington that his example would be followed by Chief Justice Hughes and associate Justices Sutherland and Brandeis when the contest over the President's court enlargement program is settled.

Senator Robinson

Speculation as to Justice Van Devanter's successor began at once and it was generally agreed that Joseph Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate, had the best chance for the appointment. It was believed he had been promised the place at the first opportunity some time ago, and his many friends in both parties were quick to extend their best wishes. Of course there was talk of his ineligibility because of the recently enacted statute permitting Supreme court justices to retire on full pay for life. The Constitution provides that "no senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time." But several authorities declared this would not apply in the present case. Some observers believed that Robinson was so useful to the administration in the senate that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to be relieved of his alleged promise to give him the appointment.

Senator Lewis of Illinois predicted that by mid-summer Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Cardozo and Brandeis would resign.

BY THE expected vote of 10 to 8 the senate judiciary committee rejected the President's Supreme court bill. The line-up of committee members had been certain for many days. Supporters of the measure then turned to compromise, some of them backing the proposal of Senator Logan of Kentucky permitting the appointment of "temporary" justices at the rate of one a year for every sitting member over seventy-five. The opponents of the bill, however, rejected this and all other compromises, which was the only consistent course they could pursue. So the bill was reported adversely to the senate, and the battle will continue in that body. It appeared that neither this setback nor the retirement of Justice Van Devanter had changed the determination of the President to insist upon the passage of his bill as originally submitted. Senator Wheeler said Mr. Roosevelt should now withdraw the measure. Senator Ashurst declared "everything that has happened since the bill was introduced has helped it" and predicted it certainly would be passed. Senator Borah asserted: "The Van Devanter retirement will have no effect on the court bill. The lines have already been drawn and will not change."

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN of Chicago, addressing five hundred priests of the archdiocese, hotly attacked the German government, its highest leaders and its propaganda methods which he said were directed against the Roman Catholic church and designed to "take the children away from us." He called Reichsfuehrer Hitler "an Austrian paper-hanger and a poor one at that," and charged the reich with breaking the concordat with the Holy See.

Cardinal Mundelein

He opened the speech by recalling that after the World war the German government complained of "atrocious propaganda" aimed at German troops by the allied nations. He continued:

"Now, the present German government is making use of this same kind of propaganda against the Catholic church."

"Through its crooked minister of propaganda it is giving out stories of wholesale immorality in religious institutions, in comparison to which the wartime propaganda is almost like bedtime stories for children."

"It will be not only unwise, but cowardly as well, if we take the thing lying down and do not fight back every time the subject is brought up outside."

The vials of Nazi wrath were immediately opened and its press called on the pope to rebuke the cardinal publicly. Dr. Angriff, personal organ of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, charged the cardinal "spoke in a tone heretofore reserved for the lowest brand of agitators."

The official news agency of the government alleged that "Mundelein defended the crimes of Catholic priests and laymen" on trial in German courts and called on Catholic bishops in Germany to make a reply.

In Vatican City prominent churchmen said Cardinal Mundelein had every right to speak his mind and that the Vatican would not concern itself with the speech, either to defend or to repudiate it. The cardinal's attack seemed to meet with general approval of Catholics, Protestants and Jews in the United States.

Under instructions from Berlin, the counselor of the German embassy in Washington lodged with the United States government an informal protest against Cardinal Mundelein's speech.

HITLER returned to Berlin from his summer house in Bavaria and heard from industrialists gathered in extraordinary meeting that many of them would be unable to continue production satisfactorily because of the shortage of raw materials and skilled labor and the general financial situation. The bad conditions affect especially factories working with rubber, metals and foreign textiles.

WALLIS WARFIELD will become the duchess of Windsor when she is married to Edward, the duke, on June 3 at the Chateau de Cande, near Monts, France. But whether she will be "her royal highness" is at this writing still a disputed question. Edward, through his American friend Herman L. Rogers, has virtually told the world that she will, the New Yorker saying to correspondents: "I think she automatically would be called that." It was taken for granted that Mr. Rogers would not have said that without the approval of the duke.

Mrs. Warfield

This widens the breach between Edward on one side and the British cabinet and Anglican churchmen on the other. The duke's friends assert that Prime Minister Baldwin and his associates have broken a pre-abdication promise concerning the marriage, and they and the duke are angry because, at the best of the government, no member of the royal family will be present at the ceremony. The announcement of the marriage, issued from the Chateau de Cande, said there would be only a few guests in addition to the witnesses and the servants.

Though the entire controversy seems rather foolish, it appears to mean a lot to the British and it is interesting reading. NEW YORK asked and obtained from congress an appropriation of $5,000,000 for its world's fair, with the provision that the money was to be spent by the fair commission. But President Roosevelt vetoed the measure; and in his message he rebuked congress for "an unconstitutional invasion of the province of the executive" in setting up a commission to direct the expenditure. When the message was read in the house the Republicans roared with laughter and the Democrats, or some of them, raged. Sam McReynolds of Tennessee and John J. O'Connor of New York especially voiced their resentment, and open threats were made to cut down the relief appropriation demanded by Mr. Roosevelt.

The house killed a $1,250,000 appropriation for a naval air base on the Columbia river in Oregon; and the appropriation of $5,000,000 for the construction of a national highway through the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia and North Carolina was attacked. But the latter was saved when Chairman Doughton of the ways and means committee said: "I have it on the highest authority that the President favors it." Incidentally, the highway will run near a large farm Mr. Doughton owns in North Carolina.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent to the senate a number of State department appointments. Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles was nominated for the post of undersecretary of state. Assistant Secretary R. Walton Moore, who vied with Welles for the post of undersecretary, was nominated for the newly created office of counsellor of the Department of State.

John Cudahy, former ambassador to Poland, was nominated as minister to the Irish Free State; Alvin Mansfield Owsley of Texas as minister to Norway, and Edwin L. Neville of Ohio as minister to Siam.

KING GEORGE and Queen Elizabeth went aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Portsmouth and reviewed a tremendous naval parade of 311 fighting and commercial ships of eighteen nations at Spithead. It was a coronation feature, so thousands of official guests and uncounted private citizens also watched the imposing procession of vessels. For these great commercial steamers formed a grandstand. Seventeen nations were represented by one warship each. The battleship New York was in line for the United States.

At night every vessel was brilliantly illuminated and their searchlights crisscrossed the sky as the guests dined and danced.

Before going to Portsmouth the king and queen attended the traditional luncheon at the guildhall in the city of London.

THE tenth anniversary of Charles A. Lindbergh's famous flight from New York to Paris was observed in both those cities, but the hero of the event paid no attention to it. To a questioning friend he said: "I did it. Why should I celebrate it?" The colonel spent the day with Mrs. Lindbergh and young Jon in seclusion at their country home in Kent. Even the telephone was disconnected.

GEORGE L. BERRY, the new senator from Tennessee, has undertaken a difficult job. He announced that he would try to restore peace between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, and that he would ask the President to support his endeavors. Mr. Berry wants an impartial arbitration body to reallocate organizing territory of the two groups, allotting certain mass producing industries to the C. I. O.

While the rival unions in the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation were voting to see which should be the sole bargaining agent, Philip Murray, chairman of the C. I. O. steel organizing committee, changed his tactics and told representatives of the Crucible Steel Company of America he would agree to a contract similar to that signed last March by steel producing units of the United States Steel corporation and adopted since that time by 120 companies independent of United States Steel. These contracts recognized the Lewis union as collective bargaining agent for its members only.

Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube announced their mills would be shut down if pickets surrounded them, and that they would not sign contracts.

Several thousand union workers halted operations of the Studebaker corporation in South Bend, Ind., demanding a closed shop. Three thousand employees of the Aluminum Company of America's plant at Alcoa, Tenn., struck for better pay.

J. HENRY RORABACK, public utilities magnate and for years the Republican leader in Connecticut, shot himself to death at his summer home in South Harwinton, Conn. He was sixty-seven years old and had been in ill health for some time.

As a vice chairman of the Republican national committee, Roraback took an active part in the national campaigns of both Herbert Hoover and Alfred M. Landon. He was the first conservative "old guard" to announce his support of Landon.

D. R. JUAN NEGRIN has succeeded Caballero as premier of Spain. He is forty-eight years old, a Socialist and is backed by the powerful Madrid general federation of labor. The key posts in his cabinet have been given to Socialists, and the Anarcho-Syndicalists are left out of the government.

Juan Negrin

Negrin promptly abolished the superior war council that had been conducting the defense against Franco's forces and turned over direct command of the Spanish government armies to his "win the war" cabinet. He announced his government would maintain "inflexible order" within loyalist Spain.

Gen. Emilio Mola continued his fierce attacks on Bilbao, threatening to destroy utterly the capital of the semi-autonomous Basque government unless it surrendered. He was so near to success that the British government warned British ships in the harbor to leave as soon as possible.

IT WAS officially announced in Russia that forty-four persons, convicted of carrying out espionage and sabotage plots "according to the orders of the Japanese secret service," were executed at Svobodny in the far east. The victims were alleged to be Trotskyists and to have wrecked railroads.

CHRISTIAN X, king of Denmark, and all his subjects celebrated the monarch's silver jubilee in Copenhagen and throughout the kingdom. The festivities were marked by characteristic simplicity but clearly demonstrated the affection the people have for the tall sixty-six-year-old ruler who has been on the throne for twenty-five years. In the gaily decorated capital there was a joint session of parliament, a reception at the palace, a procession through the streets, and a gala dinner and a torchlight parade.

FLOYD GIBBONS

ADVENTURERS CLUB

Hello Everybody

"Cherchez La Femme"
By FLOYD GIBBONS

THROW another log on the fire, Uncle Mike, call all the neighborhood adventurers in, light the old pipe, settle back and I'll tell you the story of the doggondest adventure I've heard in many a moon.

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the Malamute saloon when out of the darkness and into the light there stepped—a blond.

Oh! Oh! I'm getting ahead of myself. Allan J. McDonald now lives in Chicago. But a couple of years ago he was a reporter for a paper in El Paso, Tex. That's right across the Rio Grande from Juarez, Mexico.

Well, sir, it was Al's night off and he and a bunch of the boys went across the Rio Grande to Juarez. They went into a couple of bars, had a few drinks and along about midnight decided it was time to start back to El Paso.

Out Ran the Blond Girl.

As they stepped out of a bar onto the dimly lit street a tall blond American girl went running past them. Close at her heels and cursing in Spanish was a swarthy Mexican. The girl was screaming and it didn't take Al and his friends long to realize that the girl was in trouble. With a yell they were off in hot pursuit.

Up unpaired alleys they dashed, slid around dusty corners onto dark streets, shouted and yelled. No one paid any attention to them nor did anybody else join the chase. Suddenly they came to the banks of the Rio Grande and then the girl and the Mexican disappeared into thin air.

Al and his pals looked around a bit but couldn't find a trace of the girl or the Mexican. So the boys started back toward the center of the town. They hadn't gone half a block when from behind them came fifteen Mexicans on the run waving all kinds of weapons in the air and shouting at the top of their lungs.

Al tells me that in the glance he gave over his shoulder before he started to beat it he saw, lead pipes, old boards, knives and razors strapped to hammer handles.

Great Battle in the River.

Well, sir, Al and his two buddies started. They started right for the Rio Grande and the good old U. S. A. The river at that time of the year was practically dried up. There was only about twelve inches of water in it so it was possible to wade across. They hit the river a few feet in front of the Mexicans but the mud slowed them up and one of the party fell. The Mexicans were on top of them and the fun began.

Boy, oh boy, what a battle royal! Three against fifteen. Al and his friends had no arms. They were trapped properly.

It was darn tough to defend yourself in that slippery, muddy river bottom. Every time you took a swipe at a guy your foot would slip and five Mexicans would be on top of you. It was easy then to slice an ear or klunk you over the head with an iron pipe.

Al wrestled with one Mexican and succeeded in getting a lead pipe away from him. Then Al swung that lead pipe left and right. Every head he saw that didn't look like his own he brought that lead pipe down on it with gusto and then it was a case of cracko.

Pat Was Mortally Wounded.

There was one Irishman with Al of the name of Pat Stacy. Pat knocked three of them that gents down before somebody shoved an old-fashioned hat pin clean through him. Pat died three weeks later from lobar pneumonia.

The other friend of Al was knocked off early in the fight and fell into the water. Why he didn't drown Al doesn't know.

For twenty minutes they fought in the Rio Grande that night before help came. But to Al, those twenty minutes felt more like twenty years. The border patrol finally heard the commotion and broke up the affair. Al was minus part of an ear, his head and chin were slashed up and both his lapels were cut completely off.

The fellow that was knocked out and fell in the river didn't have a scratch on him. Was he lucky? And were you lucky, Al? Believe me, I've been in Juarez and I know they used to get pretty rough over there.

All right, Uncle Mike, I'll tell you about the blond. She was the come-on for the Mexicans. They pulled the same stunt often and it is said that it was a profitable business, although Al never could figure out how it could be so good when the take had to be split fifteen ways.

Judge Extols Dog From Bench in Damage Suit

In rendering an opinion in a damage suit in which a man lost his life trying to rescue a drowning dog, a Georgia supreme justice devoted a half hour to extolling the virtues of dogs and two or three sentences to his decision, states a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Part of the justice's remarks were as follows:

"From the dawn of primal history the dog has loomed large in the art and literature of the world. In metal and in stone his noble image has been perpetuated, but the dog's chief monument is in the heart of his friend, man. As a house pet, a watchdog, a herder of sheep and cattle, in the field of sport, and as the motive power of transportation, especially in the ice fields of the far north, the dog has ever been a faithful companion and helper of man. In the trackless forests of the new world he was on the firing line of civilization in the task of subduing all enemies, whether savage man or wild beast.

"Literature is enriched by the story of Ulysses' dog, Argos. After twenty years of war and wandering, this king of Ithaca returned, unrecognized in his beggar rags, but as he entered the courtyard his hound raised up his head and pricked his ears.

"Among many of the most beautiful of nature's plants and trees we have the dogwood, dog daisy, dog laurel, dog rose, dog violet, and the like.

"Baron Cuvier considered the dog 'the most complete, the most singular, and the most useful conquest man has gained in the animal world.'

"Alexander H. Stephens wrote for his sagacious poodle, Rio: 'Here rest the remains of what in life was a satire on the human race and an honor to his own—a faithful dog.'

"Tributes might be multiplied almost without number. Like man, not all dogs are good dogs. They have left behind them records showing every degree of good and bad."

Best Seller 400 Years Ago

Four hundred years ago the most popular book of the age was the "Colloquies" of Erasmus, the great Dutch scholar, who endeavored to make men familiar with the wisdom of the ancients by a collection of 1,451 adages selected from their works. Written in Latin, the universal language of the educated of Europe, the book sold 24,000 copies.

Washington Digest
National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—The nation is continuing to witness labor disturbances of an exceedingly serious character. Many persons thought when the big sit-down strikes in the automobile industry were settled without serious bloodshed that we were on the way out of labor trouble in this country. The feeling in this regard had some confirmation when the great United States Steel corporation reached an agreement by which John L. Lewis and his faction of organized labor was recognized as the sole bargaining agency on wages for the greatest single unit of steel.

Unhappily, those circumstances were not indicative of an end. They did not presage peace between labor and employers. The conflict is continuing and, I believe, holds the elements of much more danger than we have yet experienced. Because of the conditions that are now apparent and those which happen to lie ahead, the recent speech by Edward McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, becomes both interesting and significant. Mr. McGrady, it will be remembered, made a speech at Atlantic City, New Jersey, in which he said boldly to the members of the garment workers union that if labor and capital both are to survive, there must be a sincere effort on the part of each group to understand the problems of the other. He reduced the differences between employer and employee to the simple formula, namely, that representatives of each side, if they expect to do justice by their own people, must sit down at a table and talk things over honestly.

Now, the Assistant Secretary's interest in labor cannot be questioned. He is a former official of organized labor. During his term as Assistant Secretary he has been exceedingly active and earnest in his attempts to solve labor problems and bring about industrial peace. His efforts at conciliation cover the range from the bitter maritime strike on the west coast to the more or less inconsequential sit-down strike of a hundred employees in a hotel here in Washington. So, it seems thoroughly fair to assume that any advice given by Mr. McGrady must include absolute justice for the workers.

Mr. McGrady believes that the irresponsible practices which lead employers to treat labor representatives as agitators are due to ignorance. On the other hand, you cannot help reading between the lines of his recent speech an inference at least that he regards some labor representatives as quite as irresponsible as some employers. His view in this regard is indicated by the stress, the emphasis, which he laid upon the importance of discipline among union members together with his assertion that labor must recognize the sanctity of its contract with the employers just as much as the employers must recognize the validity of their contract with labor.

Mr. McGrady pointed out what losses result from shut downs or strikes and declared that the efficiency in production, which the country has a right to expect from industry, cannot be achieved unless labor and capital work together.

Further, the Assistant Secretary observed that "responsible labor leadership" must place efficiency and elimination of waste and loss among its objectives if organized labor is to achieve a worthwhile goal.

Mr. McGrady's exposition of his conception of relations between employer and employee comes as something of a ray of hope to the great masses of American citizens who are neither employers of labor nor members of labor unions. I have said in these columns before and I repeat that the tragedy of conflict between employer and employee, organized capital versus organized labor, lies in the fact that there are millions of people in the role of innocent bystanders. They are the individuals who suffer most. It is inevitable that they must suffer because in a nation whose commerce and industry is as complex as ours, every time capital or labor abuses the powers entrusted into its hands, those who are not members of either group pay a penalty which is not possible of measurement.

This characteristic of life obtains not alone in the United States. It exists in every civilized country to the extent that that country is industrialized.

There is no better evidence of the truth of the statements I have just made than an incident which occurred a few days ago in the house of commons in London. Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of England, and one of the most powerful men among foreign statesmen today, called attention to "a dark cloud" which he saw on the economic horizon of time.

Mr. Baldwin was speaking to his colleagues in the house of commons something in the nature of a valedictory because he is soon to retire from public office after three decades of service to his government. I happened to have had the privilege of close contact with Mr. Baldwin when he headed his country's debt refunding commission to the United States more than fifteen years ago. From that association I learned to respect his mental capacity and his ability to foresee coming events. When he says, therefore, that labor and capital must be honest with each other, I cannot help feeling that Mr. Baldwin foresees the possibility of bloody clashes and unsound results in the offing, conditions that will flow from the abuse of power.

Mr. Baldwin told the house of commons that: "You will find in our modern civilization, that just as war has changed from being a struggle between professional armies with civilians comparatively uninterested in it, so the weapons of industrial warfare have changed from arms that affected comparatively small localized business into weapons that affected directly those who have no concern whatever with the issue except perhaps natural sympathy with their own class."

The British prime minister added that, under such circumstances, "the one thing we must pray for, not only in our statements, but also in trade union leaders and masters, is wisdom." It seems to me that Mr. Baldwin's admonition can be uttered from high places in our American government with a value just as important as he gave to his words. The fact that Assistant Secretary McGrady has been the only public official to speak so frankly and so honestly is comforting, but it is to be deplored that he alone has spoken.

Since there are ominous signs in a class struggle that unfortunately has been promoted in this country, it seems to me the attention of the people ought to be directed somewhat more to conditions in congress. Some months ago I wrote in these columns my fear that the current session of congress was going to leave a rather dull record for having done nothing. Thus far, my fears have been justified to the fullest.

Congress went into session in the first week of January. To date, therefore, it has been in session five months. Its record of accomplishments includes passage of four appropriation bills, providing money for federal government departments; the Guffey-Vinson bill NRA coal law and the cash and carry neutrality law. I do not see how anybody can be enthusiastic about those accomplishments. Passage of appropriation bills is mere routine usually because in most cases they involve no controversial question at all. Passage of the neutrality act likewise was an action about which there could be little dispute even though there may have been plenty of grounds for disagreement over the type of law enacted. That leaves, therefore, only the Guffey-Vinson coal bill over which there could have been much delay in house or senate debate. All of this makes the picture look even worse for congressional leadership.

There is talk already about adjournment of congress as soon as hot weather strikes Washington—and the temperatures can get very high and unpleasant. While this undercurrent of talk is not yet in an important volume, it emphasizes the fact that there is a growing body of legislators who see no possibility of accomplishing anything worthwhile in the current session.

But what are the reasons? Having gone rather thoroughly into this situation, I think there are two factors to be considered. One is the lack of capacity of the leadership among both Democrats and Republicans and the other is traceable to the White House. President Roosevelt for four years has told congress what to do and to that extent has destroyed the initiative of the legislators as a body and now that some members want to reassert the power of congress, the President's organized spokesmen appear not to know what to do.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Gable of Tourists.
GRAND CANYON, ARIZ.—
It gets on your nerves to stand on the rim of this scenic wonder and hear each successive tourist say, "Well, if any artist painted it just as it is nobody would believe it!"

After I heard 174 separate and distinct tourists repeat the above it got on my nerves and I sought surcease far from the maddening round-tripper, hoping to escape the commonplace babbling of eastern sight-seers and revel in the salty humor of the unspoiled West. And I ran into a native who said, with the cute air of having just thought it up, "Yes, sir, I never felt better or had less."

Irvin S. Cobb

And I encountered a gentleman who in parting called out, "Say, kid, don't take in any wooden nickels." And then, speaking of someone else, remarked, "If I never see that guy again it'll be too soon."

Renaming Hors d'Oeuvres.
THE controversy over giving a more American name to hors d'oeuvres—which some cannot pronounce and none can digest—rages up and down the land. What Sam Blythe, that sterling eater, calls these alleged appetizers you couldn't print in a family newspaper, Sam's idea of a before-dinner nicknack being a baked him. A sturdy Texas congressman calls them doo-dabs.

But if I were living abroad again, I know what I'd call them. When you behold the array of this and that, as served at the beginning of luncheon in the average table d'hotel restaurant over there, and especially in France, you are gazing upon what discriminating customers left on their plates at supper the night before.

Scrambled Cooking.
DOWN below Flagstaff, Ariz., but somewhat to the eastward, in a picturesque city which saddles the international boundary, I found a unique condition.

The best American food available is across the Mexican line at a restaurant owned by a Greek gentleman with a Chinese cook in the kitchen. But the best Mexican cookery is done well over on the American side by a German woman whose husband is an Italian.

So our own native-born citizens, when hungry for the typical dishes of New England or Dixie, journey beyond the border patrols, passing on their way many of their Spanish-speaking neighbors bound four miles northward for a bit of superior tamales and the more inflammatory brands of chili.

Dueling a la Europe.
UNTIL Dr. Franz Sarga, the dueling husband of Budapest, really serves one of his enemies en brochette, as it were, instead of just trimming off hangnails and side whiskers, I decline to get worked up. You remember the Doc? He set out to carve everybody in Hungary who'd snooted his lady wife and found himself booked to take on quite a large club membership. But so far he hasn't done much more damage than a careless chiropodist could.

Once, in Paris, I was invited to a duel. I couldn't go, having a prior engagement to attend the World war, so I sent a substitute.

He reported that after the principals exchanged shots without peril, except to some sparrows passing overhead, all hands rushed together, entwining in a sort of true-love knot.

The Forgotten Man.
THOSE whose memories stretch that far back into political antiquity may recall the ancient days that seem so whimsically old-fashioned now, when our present President was running the first time on a platform which, by general consent, was laughed off immediately following election. He promised them to do something for the forgotten man. Remarks were also passed about balancing the budget right away. We needn't go into that.

But the forgotten man figured extensively in the campaign. Then, for awhile, popular interest in him seemed to languish. So many new issues came up suddenly, some, like dyspepsia symptoms, being but temporary annoyances, and some which lingered on and abide with us yet, including Mr. John L. Lewis, the well-known settler.

And now, after these five changeful, crowded years, we have solved the mystery—we know who the forgotten man is. The name is Tugwell, spelled as spoken, but you can pronounce it "Landon" and get practically the same general results.

Girl Served Three Years With Continental Army

DEBORAH SAMPSON was born in Plympton, Mass., 18 years before she cut off her hair, put on men's clothes, took the name of Robert Shurtleff and succeeded in enlisting in the Continental army as a common soldier. A sabre cut in the forehead and a shot in the shoulder did not take her out of action and it was three years before an attack of brain fever, while she was serving with Washington gave her a discharge and his thanks. Congress voted her a grant of lands and a pension. She married Benjamin Gannett, a farmer, near Sharon, Mass., and settled down to being a good wife and mother.

Now in this early stage of overweight there is no question but that the use of simple, suitable exercises, properly and regularly performed, will not only prevent the protruding abdomen or middle-aged spread, but will give erectness to the carriage thus preventing further spreading.

For many years I have prescribed definite exercises for definite conditions; exercises to correct or prevent the protruding abdomen have been prescribed in at least three of every four cases treated. To have the individual place his hand on his abdomen as he lies on his back and raises his legs (knees straight) or sit up, or standing with knees straight and rocking from side to side, gives him the feeling that the exercise is catching the right spot—the muscles of the abdomen.

No One Notices This.
Now although taking these exercises at home and also at the gymnasium is practically always possible, it must be admitted that many fat individuals are not at home or where these exercises can be conveniently done; others live where there is no gymnasium; others may not have time or opportunity. For these a rather unique system of exercising the abdominal muscles is that of contracting and relaxing these muscles at will, even during working hours, and entirely unnoticed by others. It is just the same idea as tightening the thigh or calf muscles without really straightening the leg or extending the toe.

First the patient should be taught to pull his abdominal wall in and out while standing or sitting. This exercises the straight or up and down muscles in the front of the abdomen. These form the "wash-board" seen on those who are well developed. Secondly, he should learn to exercise the "oblique" muscles that run obliquely across abdomen instead of straight up and down. This is done by standing and drawing the hips and lower ribs together, first on one side and then on the other.

Thirdly, the back must not be forgotten. All fat people eventually develop a bad stance (posture), and a healthy abdominal wall cannot be achieved if its main point of attachment is weak and warped. Insistence should thus be placed on the importance of carrying the head and body erect—standing and sitting tall.

Thyroid and Angina Pectoris.
A number of surgeons have lately been removing the thyroid gland in severe cases of angina pectoris where the blood vessels supplying the muscular walls of the heart have become partly blocked. The walls of the heart have not been getting enough blood to maintain their strength and attacks of angina and heart failure occur.

Dr. T. C. Davison, Atlanta, Ga., in Southern Surgeon, states that the removal of the whole thyroid gland gives immediate and prolonged relief in the majority of cases of angina pectoris, apparently because the lower or slower rate at which the body processes work (with no thyroid juice to speed them up) has decreased the amount of work the heart has to do.

Sometimes when the thyroid gland is removed and the processes work at a slower rate, the fat tissue in the food or in the body doesn't get completely burned and the individual puts on fat. In these cases small doses of thyroid extract may be given which will remove the fat and yet not stimulate the heart too much.

Of 54 cases reported there were only 2 deaths, the majority of the patients were relieved entirely of angina attacks and the others reported only mild attacks.

Unobserved Exercise

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

THE accumulation of excess fat, in that it tends to reduce physical efficiency and not uncommonly to imperil life, should be regarded far more gravely than is the case. Now although there are a considerable number of different causes of overweight, yet in practice the majority of cases result from excessive food intake and deserve, therefore, our chief attention. Thus most people over the age of forty are too fat, although at first glance they might be passed as normal. Fat creeps secretly or unnoticed into the abdominal wall, and the abdominal organs, producing the middle-aged spread as its first sign. At this stage treatment is a simple matter and unassociated with danger. It may consist of either exercises or reduced food intake, or both.

I am quoting Dr. A. H. Douthwaite in a recent issue of the British Medical Journal.

June Bridal Party in Summer Velvet

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUMMER velvet is important fashion news for the bride-to-be who is seeking a radiantly beautiful and out of the ordinary material for the making of her own gown as well as those for her attendants.

No word picturing can do justice to this enchanting fabric, for the loveliness of summer velvet cannot be visualized by the mere telling. Unless you have seen summer velvet you are due for a surprise for it is not all-velvet by any means. Imagine, if you can, a sheer filmy mousseline de soie or chiffon or dainty organza background strewn with exquisitely delicate interwoven velvet designs or motifs, well that's summer velvet.

The idea of costuming the bride and her attendants in summer velvet becomes the more intriguing in that a most fascinating play on color is made possible for the velvet motifs can be any color you choose.

The scheme is worked out in this manner for the gowns pictured. White mousseline de soie patterned with tiny winged motifs of white velvet is used for the youthful wedding gown as here shown. The bride wears pearls and a diamond clip at the low V-shape décolletage. Her bouquet is the new idea—pale lavender orchids carried in a handle of carved crystal, forming a fan effect.

The matron of honor to the right in the picture also wears summer velvet—white mousseline de soie with green velvet motifs posed over a matching green slip. The sash is of bands of matching green velvet and pale yellow. The hat, a new version of the poke bonnet, is in the same green shade with a huge bow and long streamers of wide green velvet ribbon. The matron of honor's bouquet is of palest yellow and white freesias. Her Aris gloves are white glace kid with delicate embroidery in gold thread. Emeralds are set in necklace and clip. White and yellow are worn by each of the other bridesmaids with jewelry tuned to correspond. These frocks can be worn all summer.

Completing the scheme for this summer wedding the bride's mother, pictured to the left, wears the same summer velvet fabric but in a patterning of delphinium blue bow-knots on a silk sheer with tiny flowers of delphinium, with a velvet sash of matching color. When the jacket is removed the dress has a low formal neckline. Her hat is a smart new tricorne of navy straw with tiny flowers of delphinium. The dainty corsage is of lilies of the valley in the center of which are a few delphinium blossoms.

For that "something different" look that brides covet for their wedding pageantry here are a few suggestions. If the bridesmaids have long streamers to their hats a clever touch is to snap one of the streamers about the right wrist under a bracelet bouquet. Then there is the idea of veils for the bridesmaids. These are of tulle in colors related to each costume. They are waist depth and fall gracefully about the shoulders.

SHORT DANCE FROCK

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

When the new short-length dance frock first made its appearance it created quite a sensation. However, it did not take long for it to become a general favorite. The dress pictured is of lovely printed silk chiffon. It accents the slender waistline such as fashion demands—a return to the silhouettes of the long ago. The gown was worn by a prominent society debutante at "The Silk Parade to Waltz Time," a benefit affair recently taking place in New York.

Lanvin Jackets Are Made of Silver or Gold Kid

Silver or gold kid is used over and over again for evening at Lanvin's where flowing robes are trimmed with oriental applications of leather. At the same house are separate jackets entirely of stitched kid which is so soft and fine that it looks like lacquered satin.

LACE FOR SUMMER BRIDE NEW STYLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The June bride will be fashionably attired this season when she chooses lace for her gowns. With the present vogue for lace for daytime wear, for evening gowns, and for the highly popular house coats and delicate negligees, the romantic appeal of this material makes it a favorite for wedding gowns and bridesmaids' dresses.

Cut on classic lines, the beautiful lace patterns of this season allow for exquisite details of workmanship for the bridal gown. One lovely gown seen recently is perfectly simple in line but has fine details of applied seamings at the point below the hips where the slight fullness starts. The very full train, and the skirt and neck edges likewise, have an applied scalloped edge of lace. This intricate treatment shows to advantage particularly as the veil is quite short and does not fall to the train. In general these lace wedding gowns have shorter veils so that their delicate patterns are not obscured.

Wedding Parties Dressed

All in Lace Is Fashion

Wedding parties dressed entirely in lace are in the fashion picture this year. One of the best we have seen is of all-white peau d'ange in a Chantilly pattern for the bride. There were no seams to the dress, avoiding any unnecessary line that might interfere with the beautiful pattern of the lace, and the edges throughout were entirely hand-applied. A matching mantilla head-dress was worn with this wedding gown.

The wedding party, all in lace, made a charming and appropriate setting for the bride. The bridesmaids' dresses were of novelty all-over lace, in pastel shades. The headresses, in contrast with the mantilla of the bride, were formed like a hood, from the collar at the back.

Hints on Tints

Capucine colors will be among the new color accents during the coming season. They have their origin in the various shades of the popular nasturtium.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. Jas. Miller.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shouts, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

Tawas City, Michigan
April 10, 1937
To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Iosco County:

Gentlemen:

The Chairman of this board appointed four members to attend a session of the State Association of Supervisors at Lansing on November 10, 1936, for the purpose of meeting with the Welfare Study Commission, appointed by Ex-Governor Fitzgerald. At this meeting various ideas were discussed in regard to a future bill which would be presented at the 1937 session of the State Legislature.

After much discussion it was generally agreed that said bill should be based on the Thatcher-Sauer Law, whereby a certain amount of money would be apportioned to each county on a population basis, and about twenty percent of any appropriation to be held as an equalization to be apportioned according to need in each county.

At the present time there are two bills in the legislature concerning Welfare legislation.

One is known as Senate Bill No. 112, and the other bill is known as House Bill No. 227.

A meeting of the State Association of Supervisors was held in Lansing on the first of April of this year to discuss the merits of these bills.

The following members of this board were in attendance at said meeting: Supervisors Schmalz, Nunn, Leaf and Black.

Stenographed copies of a summary of the said bills were distributed among those present and the various angles concerning these bills were discussed.

Senator Callaghan and several representatives spoke in favor of House Bill No. 227.

A resolution was presented at this meeting, whereby the association went on record as favoring House Bill No. 227, and was carried by a vote of fifty to one.

We, the undersigned members of said committee are of the opinion that House Bill No. 227 would be most satisfactory to the citizens of this county, therefore we recommend that this board go on record as favoring the aforesaid House Bill No. 227.

We would further recommend that Senator Callaghan and Representative MacKay be notified by the County Clerk of the action of this board.

Signed: H. F. Black, Ferdinand Schmalz, Lewis Nunn.

The clerk of the Board read the report of the County Road Commission on receipts and disbursements of McNitt, Weight and Gas Tax funds, 1936, as follows:

The 1935 cities portion of the Horton Fund includes $604.44 that was paid in the early part of 1936. This probably should have been left shown on the 1936 report. However, we thought at the time the full amount of the 1935 money to the cities should have been on the 1935 report.

The cities payment shown on the 1936 report which we are mailing you, totals $5765.15. Of this amount $160.71 is a back payment due the cities in 1934, and of this same amount $604.44 was the last payment made to the cities of the 1935 money due them and is also included in the 1935 report. Both of these amounts should be deducted from the cities totals shown leaving a total of $500.00 actually paid on the 1936 report due the cities during the year of 1936.

In February, 1937, we paid the cities additional $1161.35 making a total paid the cities for 1937 fund $6061.35.

In case you wish to show the actual amount paid to the cities for the year 1936 even though a portion of it was paid in 1937 you might return these forms to us and we will make corrections, however, thought this note might explain the situation.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright S. S. Van Dine WNU Service

Vance jumped down and turned to us.

"Frightfully sorry," he said. "Height does affect most people. I didn't realize." He looked at the girl. "Will you forgive me?"

As he spoke Floyd Garden stepped out on the roof through the passageway door.

"Sorry, Vance," he apologized, "but Doc Siefert wants Miss Beeton downstairs—if she feels able to it. The matter is putting on one of her acts."

The nurse hurried away immediately, and Garden strolled up to Vance. He was again fussing with his pipe.

"A beastly mess," he mumbled. "And you've certainly put the fear of God and destruction into the hearts of the pious boys and girls here this afternoon. They all got the jitters after you talked with them." He looked up. "The fact is, Vance, if you should want to see Kroon or Zalia Graem or Madge Weatherby for any reason this evening, they'll be here. They've all asked to come. Must return to the scene of the crime, or something of that kind. Need mutual support."

"Perfectly natural. Quite," Vance nodded. "I understand their feelings. . . . Beastly mess, as you say. . . . And now suppose we go down."

Doctor Siefert met us at the foot of the stairs.

"I was just coming up for you, Mr. Vance. Mrs. Garden insists on seeing you gentlemen." Then he added in a low tone: "She's in a tantrum. A bit hysterical. Don't take anything she may say too seriously."

We entered the bedroom. Mrs. Garden, in a salmon-pink silk dressing gown, was in bed, bolstered up by a collection of pillows. Her face was drawn and, in the slanting rays of the night-light, seemed flabby and unhealthy. Her eyes glared demoniacally as she looked at us, and her fingers clutched nervously at the quilt. Miss Beeton stood at the far side of the bed, looking down at her patient with calm concern; and Professor Garden leaned heavily against the window-sill opposite, his face a mask of troubled solitude.

"I have something to say, and I want you all to hear it," Mrs. Garden's voice was shrill and strident. "My nephew has been killed to-day—and I know who did it!" She glared venomously at Floyd Garden who stood near the foot of the bed, his pipe hanging limply from the corner of his mouth. "You did it!"

She pointed an accusing finger at her son. "You've always hated Woody. You've been jealous of him. No one else had any reason to do this despicable thing. I suppose I should lie for you and shield you. But to what end? So you could kill somebody else? You killed Woody, and I know you killed him. And I know why you did it. . . ."

Floyd Garden stood through this tirade without moving and without perceptible emotion.

"And why did I do it, mater?" "Because you were jealous of him. Because you knew that I had divided my estate equally between you two—and you want it all for yourself. You always resented the fact that I loved Woody as well as you. And now you think that by having got Woody out of the way, you'll get everything when I die. But you're mistaken. You'll get nothing! Do you hear me? Nothing! Tomorrow I'm going to change my will. Woody's share will go to your father, with the stipulation that you will never get or inherit a dollar of it. And your share will go to charity." She laughed hysterically and beat the bed with her clenched fists.

Doctor Siefert had been watching the woman closely. He now moved a little nearer the bed.

"An ice-pack, immediately," he said to the nurse; and she went quickly from the room. Then he busied himself with his medicine case and deftly prepared a hypodermic injection.

The woman relaxed under his patient dictatorial scrutiny and permitted him to give her the injection. She lay back on the pillows, staring blankly at her son. The nurse returned to the room and arranged the ice-bag for her patient.

Doctor Siefert then quickly made out a prescription and turned to Miss Beeton.

"Have this filled at once. A teaspoonful every two hours until Mrs. Garden falls asleep."

Floyd Garden stepped forward and took the prescription.

"I'll phone the pharmacy," he said. "I'll take them only a few minutes to send it over." And he went out of the room.

As we passed the den door, we could hear Floyd Garden telephoning.

"I think Mrs. Garden will quiet down now," Doctor Siefert remarked to Vance when we reached the drawing-room. "As I told you, you mustn't take her remarks seriously when she's in this condition. She will probably have forgotten about it by tomorrow."

"Her bitterness, however, did not seem entirely devoid of rationality," Vance returned.

Siefert frowned but made no comment on Vance's statement. Instead he said in his quiet well-modulated voice, as he sat down leisurely in the nearest chair: "This whole affair is very shocking. Floyd Garden gave me but a few details when I arrived. Would you care to enlighten me further?"

Vance readily complied. He briefly went over the entire case, beginning with the anonymous telephone message he had received the night before. (Not by the slightest sign did the doctor indicate any previous knowledge of that telephone call. He sat looking at Vance with serene attentiveness, like a specialist listening to the case history of a patient.) Vance withheld no important detail from him.

"And the rest," Vance concluded, "you yourself have witnessed."

Siefert nodded very slowly two or three times.

"A very serious situation," he commented gravely, as if making a diagnosis. "Some of the things you have told me seem highly significant. A shrewdly conceived murder—and a vicious one. Especially the hiding of the revolver in Miss Beeton's coat and the attempt on her life with the bromin gas in the vault."

"I seriously doubt," said Vance, "that the revolver was put in Miss Beeton's coat pocket with any intention of incriminating her. I imagine it was to have been taken out of the house at the first opportunity. But I agree with you that the bromin episode is highly mysterious." Vance, without appearing to den was in the bedroom, leaning over his mother.

"Your solicitude won't do you any good, Floyd," Mrs. Garden cried. "Being kind to me now, are you? Telephoning for the prescription—all attention and loving kindness. But don't think you're pulling the wool over my eyes. It won't make any difference. Tomorrow I change my will! Tomorrow . . ."

We continued on our way out, and heard no more.

Shortly after nine o'clock the next morning there was a telephone call from Doctor Siefert. Vance was still abed when the telephone rang, and I answered it. The doctor's voice was urgent and troubled when he asked that I summon Vance immediately. Vance slipped into his Chinese robe and sandals and went into the anteroom.

It was nearly ten minutes before he came out again.

"Mrs. Garden was found dead in her bed this morning," he drawled. "Poison of some kind. I've phoned Markham, and we'll be going to the Garden apartment as soon as he comes. A bad business, Van—very bad."

Markham arrived within half an hour. In the meantime Vance had dressed and was finishing his second cup of coffee.

"What's the trouble now?" Markham demanded irritably, as he came into the library. "Perhaps now that I'm here, you'll be good enough to forego your cryptic air."

Vance looked up and sighed. "Do sit down and have a cup of coffee while I enjoy this cigarette. Really, y'know, it's deuced hard to be lucid on the telephone." He poured a cup of coffee, and Markham reluctantly sat down. "And please don't sweeten the coffee," Vance went on. "It has a delightfully subtle bouquet, and it would be a pity to spoil it with saccharine."

Markham, frowning defiantly, put three lumps of sugar in the cup.

"Why am I here?" he growled. "Vance drew deeply on his cigarette and settled back lazily in his chair. "Siefert phoned me this morning, just before I called you. Explained he didn't know your private number at home and asked me to apologize to you for not notifying you direct."

"Notifying me?" Markham set down his cup.

"About Mrs. Garden. She's dead. Found so this morning in bed. Probably murdered."

"Good God!"

"Yes, quite. Not a nice situation. No. The lady died some time during the night—exact hour unknown as yet. Siefert says it might have been caused by an overdose of the sleeping medicine he prescribed for her. It's all gone. And he says there was enough of it to do the trick. On the other hand, he admits it might have been something else."

CHAPTER XII

Markham pushed his cup aside with a clatter and lighted a cigar. "Where's Siefert now?" he asked.

"At the Gardens. Very correct. Standing by, and all that. The nurse phoned him shortly after eight this morning—it was she who made the discovery when she took Mrs. Garden's breakfast. Siefert hastened over and after viewing the remains and probing round a bit called me. Said that, in view of yesterday's events, he didn't wish to go ahead until we got there."

"Well, why don't we get along?" snapped Markham, standing up.

Vance sighed and rose slowly from his chair.

"There's really no rush. The lady can't elude us. And Siefert won't desert the ship."

"Hadh't we better notify Heath?" suggested Markham.

"Yes—quite," returned Vance, as we went out. "I called the sergeant just after I phoned you. He's been up half the night working on the usual police routine. Stout fella, Heath. Amazin' industry. But quite futile."

Miss Beeton admitted us to the Garden apartment. She looked drawn and worried, but she gave Vance a faint smile of greeting which he returned.

"I'm beginning to think this nightmare will never end, Mr. Vance," she said.

Vance nodded soberly, and we went on into the drawing-room where Doctor Siefert, Professor Garden, and his son were awaiting us.

"I'm glad you've come, gentlemen," Siefert greeted us, coming forward.

Professor Garden sat at one end of the long davenport, his elbows resting on his knees, his face in his hands. He barely acknowledged our presence. Floyd Garden got to his feet and nodded abstractedly in our direction. A terrible change seemed to have come over him. He looked years older than when we had left him the night before.

"What a hell of a situation!" he mumbled, focusing watery eyes on Vance. "The mater accuses me last night of putting Woody out of the way, and then threatens to cut me off in her will. And now she's dead! And it was I who took charge of the prescription. The doc says it could have been the medicine that killed her."

Vance looked at the man sharply. "Yes, yes," he said in a low, sympathetic tone. "I thought of all that, too, don't you know. But it certainly won't help you to be morbid about it."

Won't at a good price, too, Red even considering the field of twenty was one of the best ever to start in Kentucky. Maybe $5.40 winners seem like long shots to you with your record, but 8 to 5's not peanuts.

den was in the bedroom, leaning over his mother.

"Mrs. Garden was found dead in her bed this morning," he drawled. "Poison of some kind. I've phoned Markham, and we'll be going to the Garden apartment as soon as he comes. A bad business, Van—very bad."

Markham arrived within half an hour. In the meantime Vance had dressed and was finishing his second cup of coffee.

"What's the trouble now?" Markham demanded irritably, as he came into the library. "Perhaps now that I'm here, you'll be good enough to forego your cryptic air."

Vance looked up and sighed. "Do sit down and have a cup of coffee while I enjoy this cigarette. Really, y'know, it's deuced hard to be lucid on the telephone." He poured a cup of coffee, and Markham reluctantly sat down. "And please don't sweeten the coffee," Vance went on. "It has a delightfully subtle bouquet, and it would be a pity to spoil it with saccharine."

Markham, frowning defiantly, put three lumps of sugar in the cup.

"Why am I here?" he growled. "Vance drew deeply on his cigarette and settled back lazily in his chair. "Siefert phoned me this morning, just before I called you. Explained he didn't know your private number at home and asked me to apologize to you for not notifying you direct."

"Notifying me?" Markham set down his cup.

"About Mrs. Garden. She's dead. Found so this morning in bed. Probably murdered."

"Good God!"

"Yes, quite. Not a nice situation. No. The lady died some time during the night—exact hour unknown as yet. Siefert says it might have been caused by an overdose of the sleeping medicine he prescribed for her. It's all gone. And he says there was enough of it to do the trick. On the other hand, he admits it might have been something else."

CHAPTER XII

Markham pushed his cup aside with a clatter and lighted a cigar. "Where's Siefert now?" he asked.

"At the Gardens. Very correct. Standing by, and all that. The nurse phoned him shortly after eight this morning—it was she who made the discovery when she took Mrs. Garden's breakfast. Siefert hastened over and after viewing the remains and probing round a bit called me. Said that, in view of yesterday's events, he didn't wish to go ahead until we got there."

"Well, why don't we get along?" snapped Markham, standing up.

Vance sighed and rose slowly from his chair.

"There's really no rush. The lady can't elude us. And Siefert won't desert the ship."

"Hadh't we better notify Heath?" suggested Markham.

"Yes—quite," returned Vance, as we went out. "I called the sergeant just after I phoned you. He's been up half the night working on the usual police routine. Stout fella, Heath. Amazin' industry. But quite futile."

Miss Beeton admitted us to the Garden apartment. She looked drawn and worried, but she gave Vance a faint smile of greeting which he returned.

"I'm beginning to think this nightmare will never end, Mr. Vance," she said.

Vance nodded soberly, and we went on into the drawing-room where Doctor Siefert, Professor Garden, and his son were awaiting us.

"I'm glad you've come, gentlemen," Siefert greeted us, coming forward.

Professor Garden sat at one end of the long davenport, his elbows resting on his knees, his face in his hands. He barely acknowledged our presence. Floyd Garden got to his feet and nodded abstractedly in our direction. A terrible change seemed to have come over him. He looked years older than when we had left him the night before.

"What a hell of a situation!" he mumbled, focusing watery eyes on Vance. "The mater accuses me last night of putting Woody out of the way, and then threatens to cut me off in her will. And now she's dead! And it was I who took charge of the prescription. The doc says it could have been the medicine that killed her."

Vance looked at the man sharply. "Yes, yes," he said in a low, sympathetic tone. "I thought of all that, too, don't you know. But it certainly won't help you to be morbid about it."

Won't at a good price, too, Red even considering the field of twenty was one of the best ever to start in Kentucky. Maybe $5.40 winners seem like long shots to you with your record, but 8 to 5's not peanuts.

War Admiral, this kid of yours, has a nice easy stride, pretty close knit conformation and may be a trifle light in back. Carries his head like you but otherwise he takes after his mammy's family in looks. His mammy, you may have to be reminded, was a little mare named Brushup and her daddy was Sweep.

Once out on the track, though, you can't miss him as a Man o' War. Walks up to the barrier just like you did, kind of proud and disdainful and wondering at the nerve of those other gee gees even thinking they could run along with him for money, marbles or the next peck of oats.

Just like you he's full of pep and vinegar at the barrier, too, but I wouldn't take too seriously those stories you may read about him being a bad actor there. Actually what happened there was that your kid and Pop Kurtsinger's boy, Charley, were giving the first evidence of that perfect teamwork which won them the race in the second best time in Derby history.

What Charley and your kid really were doing at the post when everybody thought they were cutting up was thinking and acting. They were wheeling in and out of their stall because they wanted to be on their toes when the break came. If they'd stood there nice and flatfooted maybe it would have looked nice in a book of manners but where would they have been when the wire went up? Probably still standing there, eh Red? Or maybe piled up over the fence in the infield.

So Charley and your kid were putting on the act. They figured that if they were a little tough lining up the starter'd make his move as soon as he got them in line for once. That's what happened and from then on it was just like as if you were doing it yourself, Red. Heel-fly, who's always a mite impatient at the start, maybe had a head lead for the first hundred yards. After that your kid was never in trouble.

Maybe Kurtsinger did go to bat on him once, turning into the straightaway, but it wasn't even necessary. Pompon, who looked like a much better horse than he did in the Wood Memorial, was challenging then, but even if this son of Pompey hadn't been carried wide it wouldn't have made much difference. Your kid only won by two lengths but he won well in hand and he could have made it six.

War Admiral, Jock Worked Out Perfect Getaway at Barrier

JUST a note to one of the old folks at home:

Dear Red—Pop Kurtsinger's wildy thumping heart burst six buttons off his vest when his boy Charley came galloping down to the wire atop the winner. The beauty and chivalry of Kaintucky were so elated that they only jacked up prices 500 per cent for the firemen who missed the first train out, but—

Well, Red, that's why an admiring friend who hasn't seen you for a long while is writing this letter. It was a swell Derby, that one so easily won by War Admiral, but there was something missing. That was you, Pop. All the while that little brown colt—really he's little only as compared to such big red giants as yourself—was shaking those four feet to make every post a winning one I kept whispering to myself. What I was saying was, "Gee, but I wish his old man could see him now."

Lots of other folks were saying the same thing, too, Red. You needn't think because you're stuck off in a green pasture a couple of counties away that honest-to-goodness people have forgotten you. Ever since the race was run I've heard hundreds of them saying the same thing. "My, my," they've been saying, "he looked just like Man o' War, didn't he?"

Actually they're a little wrong on that, though, Red, if they're speaking of mere outward appearances while the kid's standing in his stall. Maybe—because of what I hear about the way you've been spending your last fifteen years you're sort of like the old woman in the shoe and get mixed up about the younger ones now and then—I'd better set you right about him.

Subways Great Help in Speeding Up Traffic

Type of Rapid Transit Used in Most Countries.

Washington, D. C.—"Discussions of a subway for the District of Columbia are reminders that this is the only major national capital of the world today without this type of rapid transit," says the National Geographic society.

"England, France, Germany, Japan, Argentina and Soviet Russia—all these world powers have underground railways. Italy, joining the countries with underground transportation this year, broke ground in February to plant four miles of sub-

"London blazed the subway trail, with an underground steam railway in the 1860's. Glasgow, Scotland, followed suit in 1896.

"Berlin, another pioneer, now has over 40 miles of subway. Instead of separate cars for different classes of passengers, as in part of London's underground system, it makes a distinction only between smokers and non-smokers, with red cars for the former and yellow coaches for the latter. Some of its subway stations, such as the Alexander-Platz, with its pictures in tile of old Berlin, are three stories high, and serve the elevated railway as well.

"Paris has an even larger system, spreading an underground spider-web beneath the city's foundation, with 296 stations. In contrast to New York's simple coin-in-the-slot entrances, the subways of Paris require tickets for first and second-class travel.

"The subway has even reached Asia, for Japan now uses this rapid transit solution for two of her rapidly growing cities, Tokyo and Osaka.

Moscow a Newcomer.

"A newcomer to the subway circuit is Moscow, with thirteen stations on three routes radiating from the Okhotny Ryad station in the center of the new business and hotel section. In their spare time volunteer workers joined in the labor of tunneling through marshy earth and quicksands. The marble stations are free of advertising, and mechanical ventilation and unusually lofty ceilings—15 to 20 feet high instead of the more usual 10—give an impression of airiness.

"Subways are an old story in the New World, for Boston has had one since the beginning of this century. Philadelphia's narrow streets made that city also dig deep for a solution to its traffic problem. The subway city par excellence, of course, is New York, where miles of sub-surface track are counted not by fives and tens but by the hundreds, and a nickel buys more underground travel than anywhere else in the world. In some spots, routes were blasted through solid rock without disturbing tall buildings on the surface.

"Farthest south subway is that of Buenos Aires. Three systems connect the central business district with the outlying suburbs of Belgrano, Palermo, and Saavedra. The tunnel of one is large enough for regular railroad trains."

way at the roots of ancient Rome itself.

"Even countries which do not have marked traffic congestion have provided their capitals with subways—Hungary, Spain, Scotland, and Greece. Chile has approved subway plans for Santiago, and Czechoslovakia has started on fifteen underground miles for Prague.

"London's 'tubes,' Paris' 'Metro,' Berlin's white 'U' on a blue ground, the broad flaming 'M' over Moscow's subway entrances, crowds funneling into the sidewalk hoods of New York's subways—all are the talk of tourists and the speedy escape from tangles of surface traffic.

Many Subway Systems.

"About seventeen cities in the world have subway systems, with underground tracks, stations, and appropriate cars or trains. Four others have underground sections in their street railways, where surface cars go undercover for several stations, then emerge farther on.

"A great many more street railway systems employ underground passages where track and train dip below the surface to avoid a hill or a congested area, as in Pittsburgh and in Los Angeles, and at the Kobe end of the line between Japan's metropolis of Osaka and its port Kobe. Chicago has a subway for freight but none for passengers.

"So far, the closest approximation to a subway in Washington is a mid-gate underground railway which has no schedule, no tickets, and only the most distinguished patrons. It shuttles back and forth beneath the Capitol and the senate office building, carrying senators from office to oratory without exposure to traffic or weather hazards.

"In Liverpool, Newark, Rochester, and Athens the street railways lead a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde existence, going underground for only part of their career.

HOOVER DAM POWER GREATLY INCREASED

Scouring of River Bed Adds to Earning Capacity.

Washington, D. C.—Hoover dam's great power plant has been increased in value by $1,500,000 because waters from the dam are carrying away from the stream bed below it each day enough silt to fill three freight trains or eighty cars each.

The scouring of the bed was cited by John C. Page, reclamation commissioner, as an interesting illustration of the changes wrought in the character of the Colorado river by construction of Hoover dam on the Nevada-Arizona line.

The regulated flow has carried away in the last two years 9,100,000 tons of silt deposited in past ages by the overburdened stream, with the result that the stream is clear to a point forty-three miles below the dam. It no longer looks like the Colorado river. New rapids have been formed where the removal of silt has exposed ancient and long-buried boulders.

The scouring, Page reported to Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, has added about four feet to the effective head of the turbines in the dam. Each foot thus added increases the annual earning power from current, when the power plant is fully equipped, approximately $50,000.

When the turbines were installed allowance was made for use of an additional twenty feet of head from scouring in the river bed.

Muddy water still pours from the Grand canyon into Lake Mead above the dam, but the silt settles in the bottom of the lake for 115 miles. Clear water thus rushes through the dam's outlets and, because of its regular flow, scours the stream bed below.

The flow is now regular the year around, whereas before construction of the dam the Colorado river fluctuated between floods as great as 300,000 cubic feet per second to 300 feet in the dry season.

Flood and drought thus have been eliminated as threats to farmers in the lower valley of the Colorado.

Lesson for May 30

THE REMAKING OF JACOB

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 28:16-22, 32:24-30. GOLDEN TEXT—And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. Romans 12:2. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jacob's Great Discovery.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Changed Jacob. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding One's Better Self. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Face to Face With God.

Front Page News! "Well-Known Crook Converted!" After years of deception, thievery, and all kinds of wickedness, Jacob, "the supplanter," had a transforming experience of the grace and power of God and became Israel—"a prince of God." That is indeed front-page news and the marvel of it all is that we may today proclaim the grace of God in Christ Jesus for the redemption of every one that believeth.

Memorial day is a most appropriate one for our lesson, for the first portion tells us of a memorial stone, and the last section tells of a great victory. We do well on this day to remember the days that are gone, to recall the heroic deeds of our valiant dead. It is right that we should honor them for victories rightly won and for a noble cause. But let us not fail to recognize that the great battles of life are those fought in the realm of the spirit and that the victories won there endure for all eternity. Every teacher of a class in the Bible school should with God's help endeavor to make this a day of blessed memory and victory in Christ for the boys and girls, or men and women of the class.

We consider today two experiences in the life of Jacob, both of which have their counterpart in the lives of many of God's children in our day.

I. A Vision and a Vow (Gen. 28:16-22).

Jacob met God. Have you met Him face to face? Have you had "such a revolutionary experience in some unexpected spot"? What a sacred place it has become in your life. Perhaps it was at mother's knee, or in a little crossroad's church, or on a busy city street. God was there—you dealt with him—he blessed your soul—life was changed. Such may be the experience of each one of us. The place where Jacob had this experience had been known only as Luz. Now it became Bethel—"the house of God."

Spiritual experiences are not simply for our pleasure; they carry a real responsibility. Jacob recognized this and set up a memorial and made a vow. The depth of his purpose is revealed by the fact that it touched his earthly possessions.

The pledge of one-tenth to God is in accord with the Old Testament principle of the tithe. Many earnest believers regard the tithe as equally obligatory in our day. Others contend that it is an Old Testament principle only. Well, there is no need to differ too sharply on that point, for is it not clear that as children of God all that we have belongs to Him? Surely then we would not wish shamefacedly to admit that we give less than the Old Testament tithe. All that we have comes from His bountiful hand. He it is that gives "bread to eat and raiment to put on." Let us be cheerful (hilarious) givers of what he has entrusted to us, that his work on earth may be put forward.

II. A Struggle and a Victory (Gen. 32:24-30).

After varied experiences of both victory and defeat Jacob turns back to his own land. He hears of the approach of his brother Esau with 400 men. Before he meets him he spends a night alone. Whether it was in fear or in trust that he approached God on that night, we do not know. But we do read of the great struggle. It was more than a physical battle—real as that was—for here we have God wrestling with a weak and defeated, but proud man, seeking to bring him to the place where he will once for all "let go and let God" have his way with his life.

Into the night of struggle at Peniel have gone God's people in all the centuries, and lo, those who have submitted themselves to the mighty hand of God have come out as those that have "power with God and with men" (v. 28). Such an experience is the key to successful living and fruitful service for God. It is still true that "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble." (Jas. 4:6).

A Strong Arm

Give me the pure heart, O Lord, to feel Thy presence near me. Give me the clear mind that understands. Give me the stainless soul that shall return to Thee fearless when my time shall come. And give me the strong arm to defend, with all my heart, with all my mind, with all my soul, the glory of Thy kingdom.

Doing Right

Do right and God's recompense to you will be the power to do more right.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Ladders in the Hosiery—Place your silk stocking over a glass tumbler when repairing a ladder. The light shows up the cross-threads, which can then be picked up easily with a fine steel crochet hook.

Soft-Boiled Eggs—When soft-boiling eggs, put them in boiling water, boil for one minute and turn off flame, leaving eggs in the water for another four minutes. This prevents them from hardening and saves fuel.

Maple Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups fine oatmeal, one cup maple syrup, one quarter cup water, two and a half cups flour, one cup shortening, one teaspoon soda. Boil water and syrup together, add soda, then shortening. Cool slightly. Add to dry ingredients and allow the mixture to cool thoroughly before rolling out.

Making a Cushion—A useful flat cushion can be made from an old blanket. Fold it carefully to the size required, taking care that it is quite smooth and then secure the "layers" together with a few strong stitches. Slip it into a cover made from any pretty piece of material. These cushions are very useful when you want to make a chair higher, and are comfortable and firm to sit upon.

Better Bread — Home-made bread is lighter and keeps moist longer when mixed with skim-milk instead of water.

Bacon and Macaroni — Break two ounces of macaroni into small pieces and throw into quickly-boiling salted water. Simmer until tender. Fry two ounces of streaky bacon cut into small pieces, then drain the macaroni and add it to the bacon. Add seasoning, one-half ounce of butter, and a scrape of nutmeg, and stir over a low heat until the macaroni is brown. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with dry toast.

Cooking Cauliflower—To prevent it breaking while cooking, wrap loosely in muslin.

Economic Ironing—When ironing dispense with the ironing blanket and fold all the large things flat on the table, forming a "pad." On top of this I iron the small things, and when they are done, I find that the large things are quite nicely pressed. WNU Service.

Early Sheffield Plate

Early Sheffield is most valuable for reasons other than its age. The silver coating is much thicker and its style simpler, though occasionally a little clumsy. So lavish were the smiths with their silver in the early period that, more than a century and a half later, hardly any copper can be seen at all in the old pieces, while in those made later it sometimes is more evident than the remaining silver.

What SHE TOLD WORN-OUT HUSBAND

She could have reproached him for his fits of temper—his "all in" complaints. But wisely she saw in his frequent colds, his "fagged out," "on edge" condition the very trouble she herself had whipped. Constipation! The very morning after taking NR (Nature's Remedy), as she advised, he felt like himself again — keenly alert, peppy, cheerful. NR—the safe, dependable, all-vegetable laxative and corrective — works gently, thoroughly, naturally. Stimulates the eliminative tract to complete, regular functioning. Non-habit forming. Try a box tonight. 25c — at drugists.

THE GREATEST TIRE EVER MADE TO SELL AT THESE LOW PRICES

COME in, examine a cross section cut from a Firestone Standard Tire, then examine the deep-cut, non-skid tread and see how much extra value you get. You will quickly understand why more and more car owners are equipping their cars with these tires. You will agree that never before have you seen so much quality, so much built-in mileage and so much safety at so little cost. DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

Protect yourself and your family from the danger of driving on thin worn tires which may cause a serious accident.

DO YOU KNOW THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children? THAT a million more were injured? THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

Above is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, which shows the non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are more liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Above is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in today, see by actual demonstration.

Petroleum was first found in Ohio, and it is believed in the world, in what is Noble county, by Robert McKee, an early pioneer who struck a crevice containing oil while drilling for salt water. Because of the great trouble this oil gave him in the manufacture of salt, he abandoned this well to drill others so as to obtain salt water free of oil.
