GLADWIN WINS APPEAL WITH DIRECTORS

Players List Closed For 1937 League Baseball Season

At a meeting of the North Eastern Michigan Baseball League directors held at the Summer Trails Inn at Standish Wednesday evening, final judgment was passed on the players lists. No changes can be made for the balance of the season.

The Gladwin-West Branch mix-up in their game June 27 at the West Branch field, was disposed of.

The game went into the last half of the ninth inning with Gladwin leading by a very close score of 2-1. The first batter for West Branch made first base on an error. He stole second and went to third on an infield out. The next batter hit one down the first base line and apparently ran out of line to interfere with the first baseman and keep him from making a play at the plate.

The base umpire called him out for running out of the base line. The umpire in chief overruled his decision and called the man safe. An argument started and heated words flew thick and fast. In the tangle some of the boys made it a bit more persuasive and let go with a few blows. After the teams were cooled off a bit, the West Branch umpire told the Gladwin manager to get his team on the field and play ball. He refused, claiming he considered it unsafe as the crowd had become rabid during the heated argument.

The West Branch umpire awarded the game to West Branch by a score of 9-0. Mr. Shell, the Gladwin manager, made an appeal to the directors for final settlement of the argument.

The directors voted unanimously to have the game replayed. They felt that it would be bad judgement to allow the umpire in chief to overrule any decision made by the base umpire as it would be apt to cause a lot more of these unnecessary arguments on the playing field.

The game is to be played at West Branch on a 40-60 basis of net gate receipts, winners taking 60%. The two teams are to pick a convenient date for the game.

The above occurrence is due to the fans being allowed to mingle with the players on the bench and along the side lines. An appeal is being made to the Tawas City fans not to get mixed up in any of the disputes which may come up during the course of a game. Let's not let it be said that play could not be resumed due to the fans threatening bodily injury to the opposing team. The opposing team are invited to our field and are expected to do the best they can to beat us. If an argument arises let it be remembered that the opposing team has as much right to their opinion as the Tawas fans.

Spends 5 Terrifying Hours Lost in Woods

Joyce Missler, age 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Missler of Tawas township, spent several frantic hours Tuesday afternoon while lost in the woods about three miles from her home.

She, with her father and brother, Robert, had been huckleberrying. They returned to the car at about three o'clock. Joyce decided to pick some more berries and walked away. She became confused in her sense of direction and hurried to find the car but in the wrong direction.

When the girl did not return to the car a search for her was started and at about six o'clock Sheriff John Moran was called. He, with about 40 CCC men and a number of neighbors gathered at the scene. At about eight the searching party was fully organized to make a systematic search when word came that she had appeared at the Richard Roemer home after what was to the young girl, a terrifying experience. She said that it would be a long time before she went huckleberrying again.

Lewis Bros. Circus at East Tawas, July 27

Paul M. Lewis, manager of Lewis Brothers big three-ring circus has a real treat in store this season for the patrons of that well-known circus that will exhibit at East Tawas Tuesday, July 27.

Mr. Lewis has added the most stupendous and magnificent spectacle ever produced with any circus at an enormous cost of silk, satin, velvet and jeweled costumes.

The title of this most gorgeous and spectacular pageant is: "The Olympic Ensemble of International Dancing and Circus Beauties," introducing darques from everywhere, with 100 girls and dancing beauties doing dancing as seen in all the big musical shows of today, playing in the larger cities like New York and Chicago.

Mr. Lewis has conceived the idea that as long as the big one night stand cities in the country do not get any more big musical comedies that he would give the public an opportunity to see several of the big dancing numbers with his circus the same as seen in the big cities at much higher prices.

Mr. Lewis has spared no expense in putting on this magnificent spectacle and score upon score of people gorgeously costumed, dancing beautifully, operatic singers and riders of desert elephants, lions, tigers, bears, bands and elaborate tableaux, making it one of the most interesting and stupendous spectacles ever seen with any circus.

Lewis Brothers Circus is one of the biggest and best equipped shows now on tour and well worth seeing, a circus of a thousand wonders, embracing a wealth of new foreign and American features never seen before with any circus in this country.

It is the standard circus; the all-satisfying circus. The public turns to it for its amusement. The newspapers of America devote many columns each year describing the marvels of it, for it is a circus that is truly different.

SUMMER WORK IMPROVED SAYS L. H. RHODES

District Leader Spends a Week With Isosco 4-H Clubs

The 4-H Club projects which are being carried out by eighty-five boys and girls of Isosco County not only shows an increase in the number of members but the quality of work is also much improved over the projects of previous years, according to Mr. L. H. Rhodes, district 4-H Club leader, who is spending this week with the club people of Isosco County.

The purpose of summer club work like that of winter work is designed to encourage young people in choosing a worthwhile practical goal in which ownership and proper care are always emphasized. The 4-H emblem portrays the story of the "head" for clearer thinking, the "heart" for greater loyalty, the "hands" for greater service and "health" for better living. This important goal is very well displayed according to Mr. Rhodes, by the summer club people of Isosco County who are found in the following 4-H groups:

STEEL GOES BACK TO WORK

Two-Thirds of Idle Have Returned . . . Riots Kill Two In Aluminum Strike . . . Siege of Madrid Gets Setback

C.I.O. Steel Grip Loosens

THE grip of the C. I. O. continued to loosen in the steel strike as three big independent steel corporations—Republic, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet & Tube—reported more than two-thirds of their idle mill hands had returned to work. This covered plants in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Inland, the fourth of the steel independents, announced that it was operating with its normal force of 13,000 in Indiana since it and the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee signed a compact with the state labor commission. Steel production in the Youngstown, Ohio, area, one of the principal scenes of strike violence, climbed to 76 per cent of capacity, 3 per cent above the operating figure before the start of the strike.

Meanwhile, the fall of Bilbao was expected to add 150,000 refugees to the constant stream pouring into loyalist Valencia. Although some of the refugees remained in France, where they were first taken, the vast majority preferred to go to Catalonia, where the government takes care of them at its own expense. Nearly 1,500,000 have arrived in Valencia since the start of the war and 300,000 have remained there.

Bingham's 4th of July

ROBERT WORTH BINGHAM, United States ambassador to London, became the third prominent American to bring down the fury of Nazi Germany's officialdom and press when, in an independence day speech before the American society in that city, he declared Uncle Sam had been forced by the dictator countries to join Britain in an armament race. Mayor LaGuardia of New York and Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago had been other recent Nazi targets.

The ambassador was quoted as saying: "There must be some (of the dictatorships) who realize that they have imposed upon the British commonwealth and the United States an armaments race.

"We did everything in our power to avert it, but it is a race, and the British and ourselves must inevitably win. I admit the strongest arguments that can be made for dictatorships—they offer a better method of preparing for war. But I am sure that democracies provide a better way to finish a war."

The Nazis charged that the ambassador had insulted Germany and Italy with his "arrogance and ignorance." Voelkischer Beobachter, the official newspaper, added: "If there is any talk of defense, then we should speak of defense against the arrogant and teacher-like attitude of the defenders of western ideals."

Navy Hunts for Amelia

FOUR ships of the United States navy, with attendant airplanes; two ships of the Japanese navy, and a British freighter scoured the vast wastes of the South Pacific in an effort to find and rescue Amelia Earhart Putnam, America's No. 1 woman flyer, and her navigator, Fred Noonan. The pair had been forced down before completing the 2,570-mile hop from New Guinea to Howland island, a "leg" of their 'round-the-world flight.

Signals received from the hapless flyers were so weak that it was impossible to tell whether they were afloat at sea or marooned on some tiny island, and as the days passed it became doubtful that many of the radio messages which served as clues for the searchers were from the two at all. Storms over the area of the sea in which they were believed lost hampered searchers and minimized possibilities of a rescue.

So alarmed was the world at the loss of Amelia and her companion, the United States even sent out the giant aircraft carrier Lexington with 98 planes aboard, which, it was said, could explore an area of 36,000 square miles in five or six hours.

Mae West Tells All

IT SEEMS Mae West, buxom blonde cinema menace DID marry Frank Wallace in Milwaukee on April 11, 1911, after all. After stoutly denying the marriage which aroused the whole nation when it was revealed in 1935, she did an about-face and confessed it, although denying she had ever lived with the vaudeville player as his wife. Her admission was necessitated when she answered Wallace's suit for declaratory relief in a Los Angeles court.

Nation Finds More Jobs

NEARLY 35,000,000 persons are now employed in non-agricultural pursuits, the federal reserve board has announced. This is only 1,000,000 or 1,500,000 shy of the average in 1929 and 8,500,000 to 9,000,000 more than in March, 1933.

Uncle Sam Checks Up

UNCLE SAM wound up the 1937 fiscal year with a net deficit of $2,707,347,110, or about $150,000,000 more than President Roosevelt estimated last April, according to the report of the United States Treasury.

The gross national public debt climbed to a total of $36,424,613,732 as of June 30, it was shown.

Receipts for the period just closed were the largest in 16 years, amounting to $5,293,840,236, compared with $4,115,956,615 for the 1936-37 year and about $70,000,000 in excess of estimates. Expenditures were $8,105,158,547, including $103,933,250 for debt retirement originally planned for that period but carried over into the current year.

Completion of the debt retirement program as previously contemplated would have called for the expenditure of $404,525,000, which would have placed the gross deficit above the $3,000,000,000 mark.

In the 1936-37 period, recovery and relief costs were more than $400,000,000 below the total for the year before, amounting to $2,846,462,932 against $3,290,927,869.

Reliable authorities around the capitol said that as soon as all appropriation bills for the 1938 fiscal year were cleared, the President would direct the heads of all government departments to impound 10 per cent of their appropriations, exclusive of fixed charges, in an attempt to balance the budget. Experts said that a maximum of $400,000,000 could be saved in that way. The prospective net deficit for 1938 was estimated at $400,000,000.

Ford Tests Labor Board

THE national labor relations board is receiving its most exacting test in the hearings at Detroit on the United Automobile Workers' union complaint that the Ford Motor company is guilty of unfair labor practices. The U. A. W. U. is a C. I. O. affiliate; Ford is opposed to the unions.

It was expected that the hearings might take a long time and may eventually reach the United States Supreme court. After the hearings in Detroit a board examiner will draw up "intermediate findings" and send them to the NLRB in Washington, accompanied by a transcript of the evidence and briefs of both sides. The board will then either order the Ford Motor company to "cease and desist" its unfair practices or dismiss the union's charges. Appeal may be taken to the United States circuit court of appeals, which has the power of enforcement which NLRB lacks.

The case may reach the Supreme court if the Constitution is involved. One of the allegedly unfair practices to which the U. A. W. A. objects is distribution of anti-union literature by the Ford company to its employees. The company charges that a denial of this would violate constitutional guarantees of free speech and a free press.

Mediators Blame Steel

THE federal mediation board named by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, which reached a deadlock and gave up in its efforts to help the C. I. O.-affiliated Steel Workers Organizing Committee and the independent steel corporations solve their difficulties, laid the blame for its failure at the door of the steel concerns.

"We cannot but believe that the bitterness and suspicion which separate the two sides would be allayed by a man-to-man discussion around the conference table between the heads of the four companies and the union representatives, and that the only present possible hope of settlement lies in such a meeting," the board's report said.

On the board were Charles P. Taft, chairman; Lloyd K. Garrison and Edward F. McGrady.

Isolates Paralysis Germ

WHAT the medical profession considers a major step in the conquest of infantile paralysis was taken when Dr. Edward Carl Rosenow announced to 100 physicians, surgeons and medical research workers in Glendale, Calif., that he had isolated the germ which causes it. Dr. Rosenow is professor of experimental bacteriology at the Mayo foundation in Rochester, Minn.

Work with spinal fluid taken from nurses who had contracted the disease at the Los Angeles general hospital in 1934 enabled him to isolate the micro-organism.

Dr. Rosenow said that now the germ has been isolated steps must be taken to develop a serum similar to the serums used in fighting other ravaging contagious diseases.

Triple Split for Palestine

PALESTINE would be split into three parts and British mandate over the whole country ended, according to suggestions made by the royal commission on Palestine and delivered to the British government. The commission was formed a year ago to find some way of putting an end to Arab-Jewish riots.

Under the new plan, about two-thirds of Palestine would be converted into an Arab state and about one-third into a Jewish state. A small territory, including the holy cities of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth, and a corridor to the sea, would be given to Great Britain as a permanent mandate. It is claimed that the plan would remove the Arabs from Jewish domination, give the Jews a home and protect Christian shrines.

"Another Molly Pitcher"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, everybody.—This soul-stirring tale of a brave little mother who was deathly afraid of guns, but afraid of nothing at all when corporation hirelings tried to grab a piece of her home, is the Battle of Monmouth all over again.

You remember, or do you, how in that important engagement at Freehold, N. J., away back on June 28, 1778, Molly Pitcher took the place of her husband, John C. Hays, an artilleryman, after he was wounded, and served his gun, thus preventing its capture by the British. That's a yarn that every red-blooded American gets a kick out of every time he reads it!

It is mighty comforting, I want to tell you, to know there are Molly Pitchers in every generation, stepping forward fearlessly to take the places of their men when necessary. Just such a woman is this distinguished adventurer.

Meet Mrs. John Doolin, of Lemont, Ill. They call women the weaker sex. O yeah? Just put their backs to the wall. If you want the proof, read how Mrs. Doolin, single-handed, whipped a rather high-minded corporation that seemed to be trying to put over a fast one.

The Doolins Didn't Need Courts.

Not long after a railroad came through the village of Lemont, where the Doolins had their home, there were a number of accidents on a sharp curve close to the Doolin property. The company wanted to straighten the line by putting it across the Doolin yard. Surveyors staked out the new right of way; workers appeared and began digging. John Doolin ordered them off. Then he took the first train to Chicago and there consulted his good friend, Attorney Alexander Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan told him the company had no right to put its line on Doolin property without permission. But, he continued (and here's the catch), if the company succeeded in erecting the poles and stringing the power wire, the only thing Doolin could do would be to go to court. John Doolin didn't have any money to pay for long years of litigation so he beat it for home, resolved to keep the company off his premises.

There, sticking up in the lawn, was a nice new pole that had been put up while he was in the city.

John sawed the pole half way through. Then he borrowed a rifle and ammunition from a neighbor.

A few days later, on a bright June morning in 1903, a policeman appeared with a warrant charging John Doolin with destroying public property. John marched away with the law, leaving three children crying, a wife on the verge of it.

Mrs. Doolin and Shotgun Command the Scene.

No sooner was John Doolin out of sight than a crew of workmen swarmed on the place and began digging so furiously you would think they were being paid a dollar a shovelfull. Was little Mrs. Doolin going to let them get away with it? Up to the attic she hurried. There, forgetting she shivered at the very sight of a firearm, she took from the wall a shotgun that had hung undisturbed for many years.

With her children clinging to her and crying again, she opened the window shutters and rested the ancient fowling piece on the sill. Then, in a cold fury, she called down to the working men:

"Throw down your tools or I'll shoot!" They stopped working and then began to kid her. Then one bully, who appeared to be the foreman, ordered: "Come on, guys, let's go up and take it away from her." Mrs. Doolin leaned a little further out of the window and lifted the rusty shotgun.

"The first man who takes a step toward my house gets shot," she called. "Now all of you drop your tools, or I'll start shooting."

Our Lady Tells the Boys Where to Get Off.

And, boys and girls, Mrs. Doolin meant exactly what she said. She was a determined mother, protecting her home and babies in the absence of her husband. Of course, she thought the gun wasn't loaded, but her finger was on the trigger and she was all set to pull it if any one of those men made a move in the direction of the house. But their tools went down.

The workmen sensed this was real drama, not a comedy, and they became sober. One spoke up to say the company had sent them there to rush up a couple of poles. Plucky Mrs. Doolin then explained to them that they were on her property, that the company had not asked permission to use it nor offered to pay for it.

Well sir, when those men got the low down on the proposition they took off their hats and cheered. "You win, lady, you're a game guy," they told her. "We ain't doing any more digging until you get a square deal."

With that they picked up their tools and went to town. Mrs. Doolin had won her battle, but would the men be back tomorrow? Would the company have her arrested for threatening its workmen? And what had become of her husband?

Another Gun That "Wasn't Loaded."

Pondering these questions, Mrs. Doolin went to the door and was overjoyed to see her husband coming up the walk. He hadn't been in jail at all. The policeman had taken him before a justice of the peace, but no one in the courtroom was willing to prosecute him. He thought he understood why he had been taken away on a charge no one would press when Mrs. Doolin told him the men had been back. But when she told him how she had pointed the shotgun at them and really intended to pull the trigger, he felt a little faint. For that old gun was loaded!

Well, there was one thing about the old-fashioned corporation, it always knew when it was licked. The very next morning the worries of the Doolin family were over. Right after breakfast two suave lawyers called to say how sorry they were it had happened. There had been a mistake. The company was willing to pay a good price for the land. And they paid, right on the line, thanks to the little woman who didn't know when she was licked.

This month the Doolins will be celebrating their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary in Lemont. Around the festal board will be the children who wept at their mother's skirts while she repelled the raid on the home. They have children of their own now.

Witchball Used by Indians

If an Indian wanted to be rid of a person without resorting to murder, he had a witch doctor prepare an extra-special witchball which could be thrown at the undesirable person. While believing this was supposed to result in a fellow Indian's death, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the redskins were convinced this had no effect on white men and women because of the comparatively large amount of salt they consumed in their diet.

The World's Oldest Race

The world's oldest race, the bushmen of the Kalahari desert, nomadic tribesmen, described as "living fossils," are dying out. The bushmen claim a history of 25,000 years, and they once inhabited the south of Europe as well as Africa. They have never abandoned their primitive methods, and they hunt with bows and arrows. They cannot live unless they kill game for food. When forced to live a "civilized" existence they die out, says Pearson's London Weekly.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—It appears that another session of congress will go by without the congress and the administration doing anything serious

Spending Will Go On

In the way of cutting down government expenses. There is nothing that can be done now toward carrying out the expressions made by President Roosevelt in his message last January when he told congress that he wanted to cut federal expenses and take important steps toward balancing the federal budget. The reason that federal spending is due to go on for another year at the extraordinary rate of the last four or five years is because a majority in congress, under the lash of the White House, refused to require states and local governments to bear a percentage of the relief costs. In other words, federal spending will go on because congress and the President have lacked the courage to start taking the federal government out of the relief work and gradually restore it to the care of those folks in the various communities who know where relief is needed.

There had been a very determined movement in congress to compel the states to share in the gigantic relief burden. It took on various forms and had various sponsors. But the end and aim of all of them was to divide the cost in equitable fashion.

The proposal that had the best chance of getting through was one offered by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader in the senate. He offered an amendment to the relief bill which would have required the states to contribute one-fourth of the amount expended in each state, with the federal Treasury supplying the remainder. When that amount was offered, it was something in the nature of a compromise between proposals that the states should bear 40 per cent and that they should bear none of the cost. With the White House operating through the President's lobbyist, Charles West, and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the administration was able to force defeat of the Robinson amendment.

Now, Senator Barkley is assistant Democratic leader of the senate and so we had the spectacle of one of Mr. Roosevelt's spokesmen being on one side and a second one on the other side. The one who was spurred on by the President was victorious.

I am not sure that the Robinson proposal would have resulted in an appreciable reduction in the federal outlay for relief. Of course, it would have cut the total somewhat but not by the full one-fourth that appeared on its face. It was valuable as a piece of legislation, however, because it would have required the states again to assume some of the burden which only a few years ago they carried in its entirety. It was a principle for which Senator Robinson fought and it was a principle upon which he was defeated because Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, objected and still objects to returning any part of the relief obligation to the local authorities.

I suspect that Senator Robinson's activities on the relief proposition will not help his relations with the White House but I think it ought to be said that Senator Robinson demonstrated again his capacity as a statesman. He demonstrated as well that he recognizes the dangers confronting the United States Treasury which at the end of the current fiscal year—June 30—had an outstanding debt in excess of $36,000,000,000.

From among some of the senators I gained the impression that there is considerable worry about the government's spending and they wanted to see the Robinson amendment prevail because they recognized it as a move that would eventually bring federal government spending within control. Also, senators of that school of thought maintained that if states were called upon to bear some of the burden of relief, it would bring home forcefully the fact that all of this spending must sometime be made up out of taxes. People do not like to pay taxes and they cannot be blamed for their attitude. Unless they realize, however, that borrowed money is being spent and they and their children and children's children are to be taxed to pay off the loans, they will not be in favor of reducing national, state or local expenses.

City Mayors Are Active

The debate in the senate on the proposition to send some of the relief burden back to the states showed rather plainly that most of the senators are disgusted with talk that hunger and distress will haunt the land if states are required again to take over some of this charity work. The impression I gained from this debate was that a powerful lobby of mayors from some of the largest cities was turning on all of the large cities could muster. Mayor LaGuardia of New York was the boldest of these as he has been bold constantly in forcing the federal government to pay the relief rolls in New York city and save his own New York city budget.

Another phase of the debate should be noticed. It was the reluctance of congress to reassume its right to direct and control the spending of federal funds. The above-mentioned Mr. Hopkins wants to be free and unfettered in his spending and those policies were the ones he recommended to Mr. Roosevelt. Consequently, with administration pressure on many senators, the Hopkins idea prevailed and so for another year congress must sit back and watch the Hopkins organization spend money virtually any way it desires.

I think there ought to be a lesson in this whole situation upon which the country can look back rather regretfully. The experience gained by making lump sum appropriations certainly shows how a bad habit can be contracted and how difficult it is to cure that habit. Seldom in history until this depression would congress ever vote lump sum appropriations for executive departments to spend as they will. Having contracted the habit, however, it is going to be difficult hereafter to deny any President lump sum appropriations, provided only that he has a substantial majority in the house and senate.

No doubt many persons will wonder why this sort of thing constitutes an important issue. The answer is simple. Governments are wasteful and the federal government, being larger than state or local governments, is just that much more wasteful and unable to handle money carefully. If states and local communities have to bear expenses of this sort out of their own treasuries, they see to it that only those entitled to relief obtain it. Unhappily, the national relief system is caring for thousands upon thousands of men who could get jobs and who could support their families but who will not do so long as money is given them from Washington.

Since the national debt is at the highest point in the history of our nation, there is a growing conviction at the Capitol that a halt must be called sometime. The present trouble is that there are not yet enough courageous representatives and senators to force a stoppage in such spending.

Baker Takes Labor Job

While the steel strike blazed forth with battle after battle, blood was shed and property was damaged, little attention was paid to a development here in the nation's capital—in the government itself.

While all of the sensational things were happening on the steel front, one Jacob Baker was resigning his job as assistant relief administrator and was accepting the job of chief of a new labor unit to be associated with John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization. Mr. Baker's unit is to be made up of government workers themselves, a labor union in the government of the United States.

For some years, there have been minor labor units among government employees. They were affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Generally speaking, they were impotent and did little more than create a dozen jobs for the officials of the organization.

Now, however, the government workers are to have a "militant, fighting labor union which will get things done for them." Such at least is the press agent word that has been spread under Mr. Baker's direction.

Mr. Baker is familiar with the problems of government service. Undoubtedly he recognizes that he cannot use the same methods in organizing government workers that are used in private industry. If, for example, he would attempt a strike, I think probably it would be the end of labor organizations in the government of the "militant, fighting" type.

The advance notices concerning Mr. Baker's plans seem to indicate that he is seeking members below the grades of official rank. In other words, if the Baker plans are carried out, the new union will be made up of the so-called rank and file. This would seem to be an advantageous arrangement because it eliminates some of the dangers that always develop where bureaucrats and division heads assume too much authority.

Rebels Fall from Madrid

SPANISH rebel forces which took Bilbao after the city's first successful siege are still finding Madrid a tough nut to crack. In a two-day battle the loyalist forces broke through the siege lines about the city, captured the villages of Villaneuva de la Canada and Brunette, and threatened to cut the besieging rebels off from their main forces. So nearly successful was the attempt to rout the rebel forces that the latter were forced to admit new troops might have to be withdrawn what Irvin Cobb thinks about:

Seeking Contentment.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF. — Out in the desert country I met kindly, hospitable folk bravely making the best of things on remote, small homesteads.

On little far-away ranches, on reservation trading posts, they are educating their children by resolute self-sacrifice; keeping in touch with the world through radio, through books and magazines and newspapers; and almost invariably content with their lives and proud of their struggles and living comfortably — yes, and happily — within their means, however meager.

Irvin S. Cobb ever meager.

Then I come back to crowded cities where wealth seems only to make the inmates dissatisfied because somebody with greater wealth puts on a gaudier show of ostentation and extravagance. And I see the man who feverishly is striving after riches so that when he breaks down he may afford the most expensive nerve specialist. And the spoiled woman who was born with a silver spoon in her mouth, but judging by her expression the spoon must have been full of castor oil — and the flavor lasts. And the poor little rich children who have everything now and so will have nothing — except maybe dollars — when they grow up.

Curious, isn't it, that so little buys such a lot for some people and such a lot buys so little for the others?

The Return of Prosperity. I CAN'T help gloating over what appeared in this space when I predicted that the temperamental and fickle bird of passage known as prosperity was winging its way back. Because the Better Business bureau reports that sellers of no-good stocks are showing increased activity.

Moreover, I hear that for the first time in years practically all the veteran bunco-steers are off relief. The lean times when the locusts of depression gnawed away our substance must indeed be over if the customers begin to nibble more freely at the same dependable old baits. So, as he thumbs his copy of the sucker list against the morrow's campaign, I seem to hear Mr. Henry J. Slickguy (late of Leavenworth but now opening offices in the Wall street district) murmuring to himself:

"Happy days are here again! Drouth may kill the corn, Rust rots the wheat. Boll weevils destroy the cotton. But, thanks be, there's one crop in America which never fails!" Have you a little gold brick in your home, dear reader? Well, don't worry, nobody's going to be slighted. Ere long you'll get your chance to invest in one.

Making Mental Slips.

THE most incredible thing has come to pass. Here I go along, year after year, building up a reputation for invariably being right, the same as George Bernard Shaw and Mme. Secretary Perkins. Then — bang! — I make one little slip and the trusting reader is shocked from pit to dome.

The other day I suggested taxing salaries of governmental employees. Now from all sides I'm told federal employees are subject to income taxes; only the vast majority of them, and probably the hardest-worked ones, draw such small wages that they owe Uncle Sam nothing when March 15 rolls around.

So far as I recall, this is the second time in my life I've been wrong. I can't cite what the other instance was — some very trifling matter, no doubt — but it must have occurred because I remember the nation-wide excitement which ensued, with people going around in a daze muttering: "Can it be possible?"

I now admit that early error and the recent one, too, and humbly beg pardon of my devoted public — all eight of them. It'll never happen again.

Conquered Champions.

IT HAS been brought to the attention of Mr. James J. Braddock that something happened to him a while back. Probably, by now, he has quit wondering whether many others were caught in the earthquake, but is reported to be still saying "Ouch!" at intervals.

And now, as is customary, his backers will insist he demand a return engagement — or disaster — with the Brown Bomber. But if I were Mr. Braddock — game though he be — I think I'd pattern my reply on the example of the gentleman who was knocked galley-west by a hit-and-run motorist.

As the dazed pedestrian was trying feebly to ascertain whether he was all in one piece, a kind-hearted citizen hurried up.

"Have an accident?" he inquired, brightly.

"No, thank you," said the victim; "just had one."

Mechanical Reveille Supplants Bugler

Private Frank Kaufhold, of the Second air base at Mitchell field, N. Y., seems amazed as he hears Mitchell field's new mechanical bugle blow the familiar strains of "Reveille." His own bugle is now outmoded with the new contraption that has been adopted here. Although it takes some of the romance from army life, bugle calls, mechanical ones we mean, now have exceptional clarity and perfection.

California Forest Fires Cost $3,173,305; Record

Sacramento, Calif. — The worst forest fire season in history, attributable principally to careless smokers, incendiaries and debris burners, devastated 946,350 acres in California during 1936, according to a compilation by Merritt B. Pratt, state forester.

Pratt's survey estimated financial loss from the conflagrations, some of which ate into the state's most beautiful redwood forests, was $3,173,305. During the year, 6,113 fires were reported, with a majority believed to have started from cigarette butts or matches thrown carelessly aside. Such thoughtlessness of the Indians that from such places their ancestors had sprung. In fact, one legend has it that the first Inca, Manco Ceapac, made figurines of clay representing the different natives he desired to gather into his empire; that he painted them with the clothes they were to wear, and told them the localities in which the various natives they represented were to spring up. Then he sent them down below and they later sprang into the world — some from waterfalls, others from caves and trees, thus endowing such objects with the qualities of a god.

IN WAR DEPARTMENT

Col. Louis A. Johnson of West Virginia, who has been nominated by President Roosevelt as assistant secretary of war, Johnson, a former national commander of the American Legion, will take over the place made vacant when Harry H. Woodring moved up to the secretaryship.

was responsible for 1,364 of the 3,805 fires which swept over lands directly under the protection of the state division of forestry, Pratt said. More than half a million acres of brush and grasslands were blackened, while 111,292 acres of lumber timber, valued at $1,083,149, were razed. Losses from blazes which burned over 40,000 acres of timber stands were estimated at $137,977.

Agricultural lands were damaged to the extent of $1,041,462. Watershed losses totaled $610,091, with range damage amounting to $301,026.

While nature was starting only 139 fires, arsonists touched off 724 blazes. Lightning kindled 111 in forest areas and twenty-eight at valley points.

Comparison of the 1936 record with that of 1935 evidenced the extent of the fire damage. Although 5,478 fires were reported during the previous year, only 242,349 acres were burned for losses estimated at $819,751, Pratt said.

Worship of All Nature Once Prevailed in Peru

Religion of the Indians in the highlands of Peru is a strange mixture of Christian teachings and the weird superstitions handed down through uncounted generations, states a writer in the New York World-Telegram. In the days before the Inca Empire was established the gods were almost unlimited in number — even the family had its god. Among popular objects worshipped were trees, stones, rivers, mountains, flowers and animals. The animals were selected for certain outstanding characteristics — the condor, largest of all flying birds and one indigenous to the Andes, was revered because of its size; the fox, for its cunning; the jaguar, for its strength.

Rocks, caves and lakes also were worshipped because it was the belief walked to their places of concealment.

When they looked back the diamonds were gone. It is believed that one of the gang was watching to see whether there was a trap and crawled away with the diamonds when the police turned their backs.

The committee decided to blame no particular person, but said the loss was due to "gross stupidity."

South Dakotans Yearn to Recover Deadwood Coach

Fort Pierre, S. D. — Gone, but not forgotten, is the old stage coach that jolted passengers over the rough and rutted Deadwood trail in the days of the Indian and the buffalo.

Residents of Fort Pierre have not abandoned hope of finding the old "prairie cart" which, when last heard of, was in Hollywood. Making regular trips west from Pierre until completion of the first South Dakota railroad in 1907, the coach was taken to Philip, S. D., by Gus Stoermer, its former driver. He opened a livery stable and retired the stage as a curio.

A few years later the coach was sold to be used in a wild west show. Finally it was shipped to Hollywood, where it was used in films featuring Bill Hart, Tom Mix and other western heroes. Whether it still is being used is not known here.

Armed Bandit Foiled by Sleight of Hand Trick

Detroit. — For the benefit of an armed bandit, Charles Bolsbe of the Roosevelt hotel showed that the hand is quicker than the eye and saved himself $300.

With his wife, Bolsbe entered a jewelry store shortly after 1 p. m. just as a thug, rejecting a dollar bill offered by Leslie Hunter, watch repair man, had scooped up a handful of diamond rings.

"Give me your money," the bandit demanded.

"I haven't any," Bolsbe replied. While the bandit searched his left pocket Bolsbe deftly palmed $300 in bills in his right hand. Then he switched the roll to his left hand as the robber frisked the right pockets.

Apparently satisfied with his loot of diamond rings, the man fled without molesting the proprietor, Julius P. Phillips.

Middle Age and Weight

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WHEN a middle-aged individual is found to be losing weight there is always the possibility of tuberculosis, but the physician usually has in mind diabetes or even cancer. When neither of these conditions is present then the cause of the loss of weight is sought from other or less serious standpoints.

If it were a youngster the physician would find that there was not enough outdoor play perhaps to create an appetite or so much outdoor play that the youngster was not getting enough rest or perhaps the youngster is being allowed to stay up too late at night. Thus more nourishing food and more rest or sleep is generally all that is necessary to increase the child's weight in such cases.

To some extent the same treatment is applied to adults — more sleep, more fresh air, more nourishing food.

Effects of Infection.

Often, however, the physician finds the blood thin, the blood pressure low and a feeling of weakness present. As these are often the effects of some infection in the system, a close examination is made of nose and throat and sinuses, the teeth are checked up by the dentist, including an X-ray examination of all the teeth. If there is indigestion perhaps an X-ray examination of stomach, intestines and gall bladder is made.

If after this complete examination — nose, throat, sinuses, gall bladder, stomach and intestines, examination of blood, blood pressure, heart, lungs, urine, no infection can be found, then the physician believes, as he may have believed before he started the examination, that the patient has "something on his mind," some worry, some anxiety or fear, that is disturbing rest, appetite, and digestion, thus causing loss of weight.

Seeks Cause of Worry.

If he is the family doctor he may know something of the conditions which are upsetting the patient's mind and through the mind the whole digestive system. Having made the thorough examination he is now in a position to tell the patient that after this "complete" examination in which no organic condition has been found, there must be something disturbing his mind and that he would be glad to talk it over if the patient thought he could be of help.

Once the cause of the emotional disturbance — worry, anxiety, fear — is discovered, discussed openly and freely with the patient, and the patient sees a possible way out of, or an effective way of meeting, the trouble, then he can get his rest and sleep, will be able to go out and about and meet his friends (or foes) without too much disturbance of mind.

With his mind "settled" he will become his normal self; he will be able to eat and to sleep and regain his weight.

Prolonging Life in Heart Disease.

NOW that heart disease stands first as a cause of death, physicians everywhere are advising their patients that despite leaking valves, irregularity in the beat, enlargement, high blood pressure and other disturbances, life can be prolonged if the individual can prevent further infections, eat small easily digested meals, and not do much work or take much exercise.

The heart does a great deal of work, pumping about four quarts or one gallon of blood per minute from each ventricle, one ventricle pumping blood to the lungs to be purified and the other pumping blood to all parts of the body.

It will carry on this regular work day and night and the rate and amount of blood will not be increased much if light digestible meals are eaten and little or no exercise taken.

Dr. George L. Walker, Griffen, Ga., in the Journal of the Medical Association of Georgia says, "A heavy meal increases the output of blood from the heart by 50 per cent. In anger, resentment, and apprehension an increase of 25 per cent or more is frequent, accompanied by a rise in blood pressure. Exercise often increases the output of the heart to 25 quarts per minute, which is very much more than when the individual is at rest.

"The normal and even the diseased heart (unless it has reached an advanced stage of disease) will deliver exactly the amount of blood required by all the tissues of the body."

Leaking valves, irregularities, and increased blood pressure may all increase the work of the heart, interfere with or undermine the heart muscle itself and yet for a long time the heart continues to do its full or complete amount of work. When the heart muscle completely loses its power or reserve strength then the heart stops and not before.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them! Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living — life itself — is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes — feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Flogging in England

In England flogging probably reached its heyday after the monasteries, where the poor had been sure of free meals, were abolished. This led to a great increase in vagrancy. The punishment was whipping. In many places the law provided that a vagrant be carried to some market town "and there tied to the end of a cart, naked, and beaten with whips throughout such market town till the body shall be bloody." Queen Elizabeth changed the law so offenders were stripped only to the waist. She also substituted the whipping post for the cart.

Christ of the Andes

Although there is no trace of the inscription on the monument known as the Christ of the Andes, says a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, there is a tradition that the following inscription was originally carved in the stone: "Sooner shall these mountains crumble to dust than Argentines and Chileans break the peace which at the feet of Christ the Redeemer they have sworn to maintain." The statue was erected on the boundary line between Chile and Argentina, in Upsallata Pass, to commemorate the peaceful settlement of a boundary dispute in 1902. The dedication ceremonies took place March 13, 1904.

"N," Middle Initial
In America "N" is probably more widely used than any other letter as a meaningless middle initial in personal names. Many having it are World war veterans. Their enlistment papers, says Collier's Weekly, had a space for a middle name and, they had none, "None" was inserted. Afterward None was contracted to N.

SYNOPSIS

Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adopted daughter Rachel, twenty and pretty, that she tell about her real mother. Anne, an unselfish, understanding soul, finds the task difficult, since she feels Rachel is putting a barrier between them. Rachel learns that her real mother was beautiful eighteen-year-old Elinor Malloy, deserted by her young husband, before Rachel's birth. He was killed in the World War.

"Who wasn't wanted," put in Rachel.

"—who couldn't be cared for, he, I mean Dr. Ayres, talked to Harry—and then one day they brought you in and put you in my arms and you—you went into my heart, too, my darling, you were my own. You've been my own ever since. Harry loved you, too, in the same way. We asked about adopting you, there wasn't any great difficulty, and so we did it, legally of course, and in the other way too—I mean we adopted you into our thoughts and—oh hopes and plans and, most of all, into our love.

"Now one more thing, Rachel. I've never brought you to the attention of your mother in any way, I've never even seen her except for our one talk when I left the hospital. I know that she married Peter Cayne, I saw that in the papers, and I know her mother, Mrs. Rhodes, died a little later. Dr. Ayres told me when we were arranging the adoption that Mrs. Rhodes was incurably sick and couldn't live long. So there was one reason why she was so insistent that Elinor give up the child."

"But, mother, didn't Elinor herself mind? Didn't she want to keep me?"

"Rachel, you seem to have a sentimental streak I never noticed before. Darling, physical motherhood is a normal process of nature but it doesn't inevitably carry affection and solicitude with it. Elinor married when she was nothing but a child, her mother drilled and hammered into her all the disadvantages of her marriage and had made you seem a frightful care and handicap. Don't you see? Under other circumstances she might have clung to you through everything."

"How soon did she marry again?"

"That same year, in September."

"Has she any children by that marriage?"

"I believe there's a son."

"She's never asked to see me or tried to—to get in touch with you—to know about me, mother? Never once?"

There was a shake of fear in Anne's voice though she tried to keep it calm and even. "No, Rachel. I think she must have accepted the adoption as final, just as Harry and I did. She may have seen you secretly, I don't know. But once you were mine, you were mine, and I no more would have brought you to her attention than I would if you had been born to me. Our ways don't cross. Mr. Cayne has a great deal of money and they figure more or less in the kind of society that newspapers feature, I mean she's always a patroness for some of the big balls and they go to the Riviera or Egypt or Palm Beach in winter, and have a country place in Connecticut, they're not the top, as you young ones call it, but I'd call them fairly prominent. Mr. Cayne's in some sort of machinery business."

Anne suppressed a tremulous sigh, it had been so different, so much harder than she had ever imagined. The way Rachel had listened, the questions she had asked and their implications—all these stirred Anne with apprehension. What was behind all this? What was going on in Rachel's mind? How far away and strange the girl seemed. It wasn't much more than a week ago that Rachel had suddenly begun to inquire about her parents, the people of her own blood, and had insisted on knowing the truth about them, not much more than a week, and at the very time when their usual easy summer round had been broken into by preparations for leaving the cottage and for Anne's journey to France and the separation it entailed from her daughter.

"It seems to me I've told you all I know, Rachel," she said, dully. "I've tried not to impute motives or make guesses appear as facts."

"I wish you'd tell me again how she looked when you saw her. And I'd like to know what she said, and what you said—exactly."

"I don't know if I can remember exactly what we said, but I'll try. They put me in a wheeled chair because I was still weak, and the nurse wheeled me into the ward. She was sitting up in bed, she had on the high-necked common hospital gown and a blue dressing gown over it, cheap woolly stuff but a lovely color, like her eyes. Her hair was loose, very dark against the pillow. She—she looked at me with a good bit of curiosity and she smiled. She looked like a child! But what we said was so trivial—"

"Can't you recall any of it?"

Anne hesitated, because she must tell Rachel a lie. "I believe she said you were healthy and I—well—I said something about wanting you very much and that I'd take care of you. I told her that I wanted to leave the hospital within the week and hoped that everything could be arranged before I went, and she said her mother would know about that. All the time I was there I was thinking of her beauty, it was so arresting and so—complete. We shook hands when I left and her hand was soft and delicate, yet very alive."

Rachel was gazing down at her own hands, long and strong and brown. "I don't want to know anything more right now," she said. "Mother darling, you were sweet to be so patient. I didn't realize it would be so hard for you."

"She knows more of what's going on in me than I do about her," thought Anne. Then, aloud: "It wasn't so very hard, Rachel. You had to hear it some day, I suppose." She rose and brushed the sand from her skirt. "I'm going back and finish up the bills and tell Mr. Kreef he can use the radio this winter. Coming along?"

"Not right yet. If Bob comes back we might go out and fish a little before dinnertime."

Anne walked back alone over the dunes remembering what Rachel's mother had said that she would not tell Rachel. The little creature had been self-possessed and callous. "It's odd," she had said, "that your baby died and mine didn't. It ought to have been the other way round." Even now Anne could not recall that cool smiling speech without a stab of angry loathing.

CHAPTER II

Rachel sat still after Anne had left her, she was stirred and excited, she hoped that Anne did not know how much nor how strangely.

A faraway hail brought her back to the day and the hour. A little one-lunged boat was put-putting into the bay and Bob Eddis's red sweater identified it. "Hey," he called, "hey, Rache, over here—" waving his arm toward the side of the beach where landing was easiest. Rachel leaped up and ran to meet him, her white scarf flying behind her like a banner, then, as he steered in close, she snatched off her shoes, waded barelegged through the shoal water and climbed expertly over the side.

"You looked comic running along," said Bob, swinging the boat around. "Your legs are as brown as the sand so your white shoes seemed to be going all by themselves."

"And so what? You need a shave and your sweater's foul and your pants are a disgrace to the whole pant world. Are we going fishing?"

"If you want. I've got bait and tackle."

"How's the engine doing?"

"Terrible, but I guess she'll last the trip."

"Don't let's go out too far. Mother and I have to finish packing this evening."

Bob frowned at this. "Wish you weren't going."

"Wish you'd show some sense and give up your idea of wintering here, like a woodchuck. You could get a job in New York."

"I've got a job here. New York's jammed to the gunnels with bright young men hunting for jobs. I did three months of that last winter and never again, so help me. Set the lines out, we can troll right off the lighthouse and if the engine goes dead they'll see us."

With Rachel intent on the lines and bait Bob could watch her openly and his too-thin, too-old face took on a young and telltale softness. "She's gorgeous like that," he thought, "one long curving line as clear and clean as marble." Aloud he asked, "What's on your alleged mind?"

"Nothing," said Rachel, twitching at a hook.

"Go on, I know better. What's it all about?"

"Mother and I were talking."

"Your mother's swell, she's grand, plus ultra. If she was bawling you out I'm with her, a hundred per cent."

"Bob, listen. I wouldn't tell anybody else in the world about this, but I know you won't spill it around. Mother was telling me about my real mother. She's always said she would when I was twenty-one, but a little while ago I got thinking about her going over to France and if anything happened to her I might never know. So I've been trying to get her to tell me and finally she gave in. I can't tell you how it makes me feel, I'm not quite sure myself. I seem to be someone else. Maybe it'll wear off, but right now—

—you see I keep on puzzling about them, my real father and mother in relation to myself. What did they give me that was in their natures, what did they have to give? How much am I theirs and how much am I—"

"Why do you think about it at all? You've known all the time you were adopted, everyone's known it. You used to brag about it disgustingly the first summers you came here and make all of us kids feel as jealous as the devil because we'd merely been born. What's all the sudden uproar about? She hasn't written to you or anything, has she, your real mother?"

"No. She's never shown the slightest interest in me, apparently doesn't care whether I'm dead or alive."

"That's what's burning you up, you always did hate being ignored." Rachel tilted her head cockily. "I never am ignored," she said.

"You rose to that one like a bluefish. Go on, get those lines over and stop beeping. How do you get this way? Look out, that one's twisted."

Rachel applied herself to paying out the lines with perfect calm. "What's burning you up is that we're talking about me and not about you," she said amiably. It had eased her tension to tell Bob, some of the strange bitterness she'd felt was gone. Proportion was coming back to her life.

They stayed silent, absorbed in their catch. At the tenth fish Bob dropped the lines. "That's enough; two for you and one for me and two for the Kreefs and five for Mrs. Duffy's boarding-house. Look, Rache, you steer around the lighthouse into the lower bay and I'll get out my trough and clean these fish right now. How's about it, wench?"

"All right. You can come along up and eat with mother and me; there won't be much, for Ada's brother is sick and she hadn't been working for us for three days, just when we needed her most, of course, with all the packing. But there'll be enough, with the fish."

"I'll have to stop in my house and wash and put on clean clothes. Your mother would throw me out if I showed up in these stinking rags."

"Bob, I do think it's dumb of you to stay on here running a town library and doing carpentry and woodwork on the side," said Rachel after a pause.

"That's your theme song, isn't it? Nevertheless I'm going to stay. There's only one bad spot in the program, Rachel, you won't be here. I wish you'd stay with me."

"Oh, Bob, are you going to begin on that again?"

"I certainly am and I shall keep right on till you give in. You think it's dumb for me to stay here in this perfectly grand place and keep on with my work and be independent and not worry about money, but you're the dumb one, going back to New York and racketing round with that crazy crowd, gin and hot jazz measure the daily precipitation, the wind gauge to determine the rate at which the wind is blowing, the duff hygrometer to determine the inflammability of the surface fuel, the hazard indicator stick to determine the same thing on the heavy slashings, dead trees and large branches; the hazard indicator scale will tell the per cent of moisture content in the slashings by weight, the wind vane the direction of the wind and the psychrometer determines the relative humidity. "The relative humidity," says the foresters, "is one of the most important factors in the control of forest fires."

This new technique will be employed in all national forests throughout the Lake states beginning this year.

As He Sees Us
As we come to know ourselves through and through, we come to see ourselves more as God sees us.

The Counters of Wise Men
Words are the counters of wise men, and the money of fools.—Hobbes.

Methods employed in determining when high forest fire hazards exist, the detection of fires when they start and their control after breaking out have shown great changes for the better in recent years.

No longer is it necessary to rely on the fire warden's judgment as to high or low hazards, for science has created instruments that do this detecting with a far greater degree of accuracy.

According to the national forest service, the equipment to be used in determining the degree of fire danger will consist of a rain gauge, wind velocity gauge, duff hygrometer, hazard indicator sticks, hazard indicator scale, wind vane and psychrometer.

The rain gauge will be used to and wisecracks and a lot of cheap foolishness."

"My heavens, you're full of purity and virtue all of a jump. Don't be one of those tiresome people who find something odd to do and then try to convert everybody else to doing it. It only shows they know it's no good and want to bolster themselves up."

"That's not fair."

Rachel smiled. They had almost reached the pier, first of a row of half a dozen that made the mooring place of Rockboro's fleet. "It's as fair as saying my friends are gin and jazz babies. They're not and you know it. Anyway, I'm going to get a job. And mother thinks it's all right." The boat slid alongside the pier and Rachel climbed out.

"Going to tie up?"

"Yes, catch." He threw the rope and turned to put a tarpaulin over the engine, then set the basket of cleaned fish on the pier and leaped out beside Rachel. "Six o'clock," he said. "Heaps of time."

They sauntered the length of the pier and up from the water front through a short street of small houses and stores to Rockboro's main thoroughfare.

At length they came to a shabby mansard house. "Here's Duffy's. Take out the fish you want to give her and I'll go on with the rest."

"Come into the shed a minute and look at my drawing for a mantel swag. I've got some new wood, too, best pine I've had this year. I'll go through the kitchen and meet you round there." He picked out five fish and disappeared down the side path.

Just beyond Mrs. Duffy's and set well back in her yard was a building which had once been a woodshed and was now Bob Eddis's living quarters and workshop. He had put in windows and painted the outside white with a red roof and red trim, but its original purpose was still obvious. Rachel always felt a tingle of curiosity when she entered the place, it made her see a man who was not in the least like the one who ragged and joked with her, fished with her, danced with her and took her to the movies. This was an austere and ascetic man with his ideas and philosophy organized to his satisfaction. The living room was as bare as a room could be, with white walls and a black floor, two splint chairs, a black oak table and chest and small bed, this last covered with an exquisite white quilt, the plumed design and fine stitching a marvel of ancient taste and skill. One entire wall was a cupboard in part of which he hung his clothes; in the other the cooking stove and sink, his few pans and dishes were kept compact and hidden. As Rachel looked round it she had an instant's vision of herself living there with Bob, serene, contented, a life without stress, leisurely, thoughtful, tender. "No," she thought, "it's too—adult for me. This isn't any place for youth."

Bob came bursting in from the outside door. "Now look!" he said and pulled down a long elaborately drawn design of a swag in fruit and leaves. "How's that?"

"It's grand. But it'll be awfully hard to carve."

"That was the idea. Anybody can do easy bits." He smiled at her. "You think I'm just a nut, don't you, Rache? You don't see how I can get such a kick out of a piece of wood and a bunch of tools?"

"If you want to hear it again I'm pleased to oblige: I think you're practically everything. Now I'm going home and you skin into clean clothes and come right along."

She saw Anne sitting on the terrace and waved her hand and called to her from the road: "Bob's coming up for dinner and I've brought some fish. I'm going to take a couple over to the Kreefs."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for July 18

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 3:13-16; 4:10-16; 5:1.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord will give strength unto his people.—Psalm 29:11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Moses Was Afraid.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Moses Made Ambassador.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—God Stands by His Workers.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Strong in the Strength of God.

Never in a hurry! Who? God. He needed a human leader to bring his chosen people up out of the bondage of Egypt and he spent 80 years getting him ready—40 years learning all the wisdom of Egypt, and 40 years learning the lessons of God, patience and humility, on the back side of the desert.

Infinite and omnipotent is God, and he may move with faster-than-lightning speed. But usually we find him working out his blessed purposes, normally, quietly, but always "on time."

Our lesson brings before us the meeting with God which preceded the appearance of Moses as the head of the nation of Israel in its mighty conflict with Pharaoh. We find him first proceeding with commendable care but then going on in unfortunate humility which amounted almost to unbelief and which resulted in the substitution of his brother Aaron as his spokesman, but eventually we do see him going about his difficult task with resolution and courage.

I. Justifiable Caution (Exod. 3:13-16).

Neither God nor man dare entrust a high and difficult commission to a foolish man who brusquely "rushes in where angels fear to tread." The fact that one feels fully and unhesitatingly qualified to take over such a responsibility is almost a certain indication that he is not the man to assume it.

The ambassador must have credentials. God's representative has them. When "they shall say"—what an important and difficult situation that creates. The one who speaks for God must expect not only the scornful bitterness of God's enemies, but also the unbelieving questions of those he seeks to serve.

"What shall I say?" asks Moses, and God answers that he may say that "I AM" had sent him. This name of God reveals him as the eternal, independent, self-sufficient, self-existent, immutable, personal being. Consider, Christian brethren, whose we are and whom we serve. Here indeed is "inspiration in excess of duty," real equipment for Christian life and service.

But Moses seems to be unable to see beyond his own human infirmity even in the light of such a glorious revelation, supplemented as it was by miraculous powers, and we find him showing an

II. Unjustified Humility (Exod. 4:10-12).

When God calls a man he knows his limitations—why then should one plead them as an excuse for not serving? The excuse of Moses that he was not a fluent speaker has been the stand-by of unwilling workers all through the ages. When asked to lead a prayer meeting, teach a Sunday School class, conduct a young people's meeting, thousands have lamely thus excused themselves and missed a blessing.

The perfect answer of God in v. 11 merits attention. God made your mouth and mine. He gives us the power of speech. He asks not the eloquence of polished rhetorical periods, or the flights of man's imagination. He wants but the incomparable eloquence of his own words on our lips. Dr. Richard Ellsworth Day in "Bush Aglow" rightly points out that this was the secret of the power of D. L. Moody.

III. Unnecessary Substitution (Exod. 4:13-16).

Loving and patient is our God, but there is a boundary line to that patience. Moses went too far in his humility and reflected on the ability of God, who promptly substituted Aaron as the spokesman.

Gracious was He in thus providing a helper for Moses. But one wonders what Moses missed of blessing and power because of his slowness of heart.

IV. "And Afterward" (Exod. 5:1).

Commissioned, bearing credentials from the infinite and eternal "I AM," and with a strong and eloquent brother by his side, Moses stands before Pharaoh to say in God's name, "Let my people go."

Preparation and the holy privilege of fellowship with God are to make us ready for service. While it is folly to go unprepared, it is double folly to prepare and then fail to go when God commands.

Morning and Evening Prayer
It is well to let prayer be the first employment in the morning and the last in the evening.—M. Luther.

As He Sees Us
As we come to know ourselves through and through, we come to see ourselves more as God sees us.

The Counters of Wise Men
Words are the counters of wise men, and the money of fools.—Hobbes.

Fashions at Vacationland

HURRAY for dear old Johnnie Two-Weeks! He's recently given the nod to these three sweet young laborers and now they're off reaping the rewards. Yes, they're vacationing—and how! But, of course, Sew-Your-Own had them dressed right up to the hilt.

Miss M, picturesque blonde, above, left, knows what glamour is and how to have it. That's why she chose this softly feminine frock with its swirling skirt and delicately slim waist. You should see her of an evening in the outdoor terrace. She's a picture in black gossamer chiffon trimmed with white satin. And to think, she made it all herself!

Miss B, above, center, and center of attraction at the Surf club, has everything under perfect control as she strolls along the boardwalk. With not a care in her pretty head, and lots of streamlining in her natty little sports dress, she walks with confidence and pride. She has a clever way of achieving variety by switching scarfs and belts. In fact, she's so clever she made this little number, button holes and all, in one day without a hitch.

Miss Y, the sports enthusiast at the right, says that her three piece ensemble is so very, very and practical she wears it almost to the exclusion of her other frocks. Her idea is to soak up as much sunshine as possible, and dress. Take a tip from Miss Y. Make your version of this ensemble in duplicate for all summer wear. Have one in seersucker, the other in acetate.

Household Questions

Cooking Sour Fruit—Sour fruit will require much less sugar, and be more digestible, if a dessert-spoonful of syrup and a pinch of bicarbonate of soda are added after cooking.

Measuring Sugar—One pound of granulated sugar equals two cups. One pound of powdered or confectioner's sugar equals two and one-half cups.

Why Pans Warp—Aluminum cooking pans are frequently warped out of shape by repeatedly putting cold water in them while they are still hot.

To Freshen Coconut—Shredded coconut, which has become dry, can be freshened by soaking it in sweet milk a few minutes before using.

Dugan Claims Yanks Are in Third League but Picks 1928 Club

JOE DUGAN—Jumping Joe who now presides over a Gotham hot spot with the same zeal he once devoted to the Yankee Stadium hot corner—started this. Having returned from a Sabbath visit to his old playgrounds, having inspected the cash register and having set up a few on the house, he was talking about the third major league.

"Greatest team around nowadays," he was saying. "Sure, those Tigers are good but what happens when the checks are down? Those Yankees just romp home with the marbles, don't they? Sure they do and they'll continue doing it all season. They'll win all by themselves. There's nobody like them. They're tops. They're a whole league to themselves. There's no other organization even close to them."

A timid customer edged a pound note upon the mahogany. He obtained the same prompt service which it was Mr. Dugan's pleasure to provide ten years ago when the lower end of the batting order was up and a rally was needed in the ninth. Then Mr. Dugan continued.

"Yessir," he said. "They're that third major league folks gossip about now and then. Where they're going to get opposition from is more than I know."

"Maybe," offered another customer, tossing a $10 bill down the middle. "They could choose up sides and play games among themselves."

Mr. Dugan took care of the bill and the suggestion with the same aplomb that used to distinguish him when the bases were loaded and a line drive came whizzing over the third sack.

"Yeah, maybe," he agreed. "Or, maybe they could take the pick of the league and let them play the Yankees for a while. That might help for a couple of weeks anyhow. Some of those all-star outfits go pretty good."

The reporter had dropped into the Dugan emporium for some inspiration concerning a piece that is done by all baseball scribes every year.

This epic piece always starts out with the information that it is baseball custom for the team that is leading in July to continue in the same spot up to World Series time. Then, if the scribe is such a ceaseless searcher after innovations as is your present correspondent, he tries to find some iconoclast who can be quoted as saying the dope is the bunk during the current campaign.

Now, although he had once known Mr. Dugan as a very independent thinker, the reporter knew that he had come to the wrong spot. Such views as those expressed about the Yankees are merely those of a few million other discerning citizens. And, even if he would have liked to know what is due to happen in that entertaining feud being staged by the Giants, Cards, Cubs and Pirates, the reporter hesitated to intrude the name of a rival organization into the talk again. Then he had a happy thought.

"By the way," he asked. "You played on some pretty sweet Yankee teams yourself. What do you think would happen if time could be arranged so that Ruth, Meusel and the rest of you ancients could be stacked up against this present outfit of Yankee paragons?"

"Well," said Mr. Dugan. "That would have been power against power and good defense against good defense. The way I figure it is that pitching such as Hoyt and Penneck and those others used to give us would have enabled us to have an edge over this year's Yankees but—"

"Joseph," interrupted the reporter. "I see a picture of the 1928 Yankees in back of the bar there. Take a look at it yourself and quit stalling."

Mr. Dugan looked fondly at the Meusels, Ruths, Hoyts, younger Gehrigs and the rest.

"Why," he said then. "I guess you're right. These present Yankees may be a whole league to themselves, but we coulda licked 'em easy."

Freddie Lindstrom and Bill Terry will confer with the probable result being that the once great Giant soon will be playing the Jersey City outfield and assisting Travis Jackson with managerial problems.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

NOTRE DAME'S football team probably will be better next fall than in 1936. More experience and weight and just as much speed. . . . Lynn Waldorf says he needs a fullback, two tackles and a center at Northwestern, but smiles when he says it. . . . Purdue will have a swell first eleven but, as usual, will lack reserves. . . . Minnesota is likely to be close to tops again. . . . There will be no considerable improvement at Wisconsin. Friends say that is because Harry Stuhldreher spends too much time recruiting players from far-off parts and neglects the material around home. . . . There also is a rap in for Michigan, where another Notre Dame alumnus holds forth as Harry Kipke's chief assistant. The boys insist Hunk Anderson is great at teaching individual line play but is unable to impart the principles of teamwork.

Hype Igoe, the boxing writer, dotes upon using lead pencils instead of a typewriter and insists upon traveling in upper berths. . . . Jack Dempsey says a big heavyweight fight in New York is worth $40,000 extra money (ten G's a night for four nights) to his restaurant. . . . Now that Chicago has had its turn at handling a major sports event Philadelphia and Baltimore no longer can claim first place in the traffic mugging league. . . . Solly Seaman, the former lightweight, is one of the best judges of weight in the fight business. A week before the Braddock-Louis affair he guessed the ringside weight of each man within a half a pound. . . . Would anybody mind my calling attention to the fact that three months ago this space predicted the net gate for the Louis-Braddock fight would be less than $600,000? . . . Pacific Coast league writers are touting Sacramento's kid shortstop, Joe Orongo, as the best big-time prospect in their circuit. . . . Talk about crowds here—Minneapolis hotels already are sold out for the Notre Dame-Minnesota football game that won't be played until next fall.

Archie San Romani is sure he will crack that mile record before the summer is out. Glenn Cunningham agrees with him, as does Don Lash, who recently had his appendix sliced out. . . . Garry Le Van is achieving quick success as a Chicago business man. The once slumped quarterback must have gained at least 30 pounds since those 1935 days when he was leading Princeton's Tigers to an unbeaten football season. . . . George Moorhouse, who captained the U. S. F. A. eleven against Charlton Athletic at the Polo Grounds recently, performed for the famous Bootle St. James Team and was a schoolboy international star long before he decided to transfer his soccer talents to the United States.

The favorite sport of Ralph Guldahl, National Open golf champion, is football. . . . Sylvia Annenberg, the very pretty lady golfer, is preparing for her third new name. . . . Titanic Thompson, the eminent Northwestern plunger, started Ky Laffoon on the way to golfing glory. Titanic, who used to astound Broadway with his own golf feats before he decided to remain away from the hot spots more or less permanently, staked Ky to expense money for his early tournament travels. . . . The first golf ball ever owned by Walter Hagen was given to him by a Rochester pro. Walter promptly knocked the thing through a window of his father's farmhouse. Just as promptly the elder Hagen retired him from the game for a year.

Walter Hagen's favorite beverage now, according to Joe Kirkwood, who is touring the world with him, is barley water. Once before Hagen departed from his traditional liquid diet. That was when he drank milk as a press agent stunt. . . . Henry Picard once was the victim of a nervous breakdown, something rare in pro golf ranks. . . . Walter Hagen came because the serious minded lad spent thirteen hours a day on the lesson tea at Charleston. . . . Gene Sarazen plans a trip to the Orient late this year and hopes to enter the Japanese Open.

There are more actual competitors in dog shows than in any other sport. A large show such as the Morris and Essex may have as many as 3,000 competitors; small shows seldom drop below 100, the average is 350 and there are more large shows than small ones. . . . Although he thought he had retired from public life years ago when he served as a member of the state assembly his friends are insisting that Sol Strauss, the eminent 20th Century Sporting Club attorney, should let his name be presented the next time there is a vacant judgeship.

Tazio Nuvolari, the little Italian, once won a race while driving with his thigh in a plaster cast. Nuvolari, generally rated as the greatest daredevil of them all, now chides his younger teammates for taking unnecessary chances. "You are young and have a long time to live," he told Achilles Varzi recently. "You should not be reckless. I have lived a long time. I can take chances." Nuvolari is in his early forties. He used to carry a copy of his will in his pocket whenever he raced.

Chic Swim Suits and Deck Fashions

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FICKLE fashion? Maybe so, but decidedly practical and dependable when occasion demands. Be assured when it comes to proper clothes for outdoor activities modern fashion is displaying an efficiency that is equal to every demand for practicality and wearability plus all that can be desired in the way of smart style. It is really amazing and most gratifying to see how skillfully the esthetic and the utilitarian combine in present day apparel.

Speaking of fashion from the practical viewpoint, have you noted the clever use being made of denim in the sportswear realm, just plain ordinary denim such as is used for workmen's overalls? Designers are making the swankiest tailored jacket suits of it. Goodlooking? Yes, indeed, and as to withstanding strenuous wear and tear, we leave that for you to figure out for yourself. Slacks and shorts of denim too, are on the sportswear style program.

And there's bed ticking, the simple "homey" blue and white stripe sort, or giddier stripes if you prefer. It's fun to see what fashion is doing with this sturdy material, making separate skirts of it, jackets, beach robes and simple one-piece frocks and like denim there's "no wear out to it."

On board ship and at all smart resorts many women are wearing shorts and tailored shirts (see illustrated to left) made of serviceable chambray, the kind workmen have always depended upon to give good wear. This reliable fabric now enters the high-style sportswear picture, and being completely shrunken beforehand, workmen's chambray becomes the perfect fabric for strenuous play clothes for fashionable women.

Aye, aye sir, the sailor's life is the life for any girl who owns such a timely costume as the venturesome young woman is wearing, making the hazardous climb among the ship's rigging as pictured in the group. This suit is beautifully tailored out of sanforized-shrunk cotton. Yes, this swanky slacks and shirt outfit is genuinely amphibian—takes to water like a duck and when it comes to setting a fashion pace on dry land it is all that it should be.

If you want to show up colorfully in fashion's swim and beach parade by all means choose a flamboyant print. Designers land print this season for the entire outfit, swim suit, matching beach coat, accessories in everything, even to the very sandals one wears. Printed silk crepe that washes to perfection makes the one-piece bathing suit with halter top shown to center-left in the picture. The matching long beach coat has a shirred yoke and full push-up sleeves.

To fashionables who go in for aquatic sports here is a message to delight the imagination. It's concerning the wide use of costume jewelry being made this season by those who go forth to brave the surf. Things that walk or swim or fly is the theme for the pins and clips to adorn bathing suits and such. The idea is to wear pinned here and there on your swim suit frogs, turtles, or decorative fish hand-carved from rich white catalin. See the cunning little lady to the right in the picture. Her clever play-suit is of Congo cloth with gray, white and red striped halter and gray shorts trimmed with same striping. A hand-carved frog of handsome white catalin blinks at you from the edge of her amusing coconut husk hat, another frog is pinned to her halter bodice while a third pins casually to one side near her wasteline. Clever idea these beach jewelry novelties, and the fad is being taken up with enthusiasm.

GAY SILK PRINT

NEW SUMMER SUITS FAVOR EMBROIDERY

Heim has gone in for embroidered details on spring and summer suits.

One black tailored suit in black wool has a straight little skirt and a tailored and fitted jacket that fastens high at the neck with a cut-out and embroidered design of a bird in a cage. The round cage is banded by gold embroidery which matches the gold braid that trims the neckline. Inside the round cage is a natural linen foundation upon which is embroidered a little silk bird.

A more summery suit is grege (between gray and beige) shantung. The skirt is made with front pleats that are stitched down to the knees and then pressed into place. The jacket fastens high at the neck but is cut away in a center V to make small revers and to reveal a blouse of black linen embroidered all over in a conventional design of colored birds.

Skirts Shorter and Fuller

in Late Paris Collection

Shorter, fuller skirts are shown in the new Chanel collection and waistlines are slightly dropped to give a more youthful silhouette.

Series of small pockets trim the tailored clothes, and there are many touches of bright red throughout the entire collection. Tulles, laces and sheer organdies are shown in white and in pastel shades for summery evening gowns that are fashioned with full, bouffant skirts to stress the youthful and girlish trend.

Nassau Hats for Beach

Those picturesque colorful hats worn by dusky market women of Nassau and Havana have influenced beach hat fashions. Made of reeds, they are gay as summer and flattering as moonlight.

Justice, Obedience

Justice is the insurance which we have on our lives and property; to which may be added, and obedience is the premium which we pay for it.—William Penn.

Uncle Phil Says:

A Murderer at Heart

An impulsive man swears when he gets mad; many a self-controlled one holds his tongue and commits murder in his heart. Married couples who don't expect too much of marriage, save themselves a great deal of pain. People who raise their children to "express their personality" on all occasions are likely to be a nuisance and so are their children. No one really wants leisure; he only desires time enough to do the things he really wants to do.

Ignorance Disappears

WHEN skin irritations annoy us, we smooth our favorite ointment on our grateful skin. Like the other trusted friends in our medicine cabinets, this one is taken for granted. Not many of us realize that we should be grateful to the advertising which first brought these comforts to our attention. The best that modern science can produce avails us nothing if we have no knowledge of it. Advertising brings us this necessary knowledge. . . . and creates business for the local merchant, thus enabling him to provide modern scientifically prepared products.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 35,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

Plant Experiment
Gregor Johann Mendel died in 1884, aged sixty-two, in a monastery, years before anyone realized that he left a notable contribution to natural knowledge. Within the monastery, by laborious experimentation with plants, the Augustinian abbot discovered that the hereditary constitution of a living organism is determined by a group of units which have a permanent nature and can pass through parent to offspring unchanged for many generations. He had been found to be unfitted to be a parish priest, because he could not bear the sight of human suffering.

No Ill Effects From Moon
The popular notion that the moon affects the mind, causing periodic insanity, has no foundation in fact. The term "lunatic" is derived from the Latin word "luna" (the moon), and corresponding words in French, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian are similarly derived. The derivation thus embodies the old belief that persons mentally afflicted were affected by moon changes.

Chances of Change
There is in the worst of fortune the best of chances for a happy change.

home team. We want to make Tawas City a town of good sportsmanship among both players and fans. It all leads to a greater enjoyment of the game and makes it a sport—not a display of fiery tempers and fist swinging ability.

The Tawas City-Hemlock game scheduled for last Sunday was called off on account of wet grounds. The down-pour of rain in the early morning left the field resembling a young lake and by game time it was a paradise for ducks but completely out of consideration for a ball game. The game is to be played at a later date. This is the second rained out game to be made up for the locals this year. The other is with Alabaster.

Sunday will be an off-day for the locals, no league game being on the schedule that date. A game was originally scheduled for with Mikado but it was called off and no other team was open for a game on such short notice.

The locals have been setting a fast pace for the league, having been victorious in all five of their contests. Their next league game will be at Turner on Sunday, July 25. Next week we will try to have a complete summary of all games played so far this year.

Trick the Monkeys

As the killing of monkeys is forbidden in the colonies of France, Kabyle farmers use a unique way to rid their fields of them. When a monkey is caught, he is sewed in a red flannel suit, covered with little bells, and then turned loose. In a minute or two, says Collier's Weekly, he is home and, in another minute or two, his troop, terror-stricken by his appearance and noise, are on the other side of the mountain.
