Drops "Parity Prices"

ONE of the administration's chief policies for agriculture has been abandoned, Secretary Wallace announced in Washington. "Parity prices" for farm products, he said,

could not be at-

will be to give "the average farmer the

the World war. "I don't think there is any way of getting enough money out of the Treas-Sec. Wallace ury," Wallace said. "to give farmers parity prices during the next ten years for cotton, wheat, corn, hogs, or any other product that is exported. You might be able to get enough for a year or two to do this. But the consumer would soon rise up in protest." Wallace also talked about the soil conservation program, under which farmers must hold acreage of major crops below the 1928-37 average in order to obtain benefit payments. He said the only fault with this was that normal yields would be too large in view of the prospective

The secretary still believes that national control over production of the major farm crops is necessary.

"In my opinion," he said, "the principle of co-operative crop adjustment is sound and will eventually be applied again."

Douglas Heads SEC

WALL STREET didn't like the idea of having William O. Douglas as chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, preferring the more conservative George C. Mathews. However, Douglas was elected to the post, succeeding James M. Landis; and to reassure the financiers he described himself as "a pretty conservative sort of fellow from the old school, a school too old for some to remember," who has in mind "no ruinous theories of social experimentation."

The commission, said the former Yale professor, is not interested in prices as such and will interfere with market trends only when the forces that shape them are artificial. "There will be direct and aggressive prosecution of any cases we discover of pools and manipulation of security prices. We are in favor of a free market, not a fixed one.

"The government cannot provide any substitute for investment judgment," he pointed out. "It can act to prevent manipulation and to prosecute fraud, but in the final analysis the investor's judgment must govern his actions. We cannot save a fool from his folly."

The President had nothing to say, before his departure, concerning Justice Black, who was on his way back across the Atlantic and was scheduled to take his seat on the Supreme court bench before Mr. Roosevelt's return to Washington. -*-

President on Constitution

A LL orators on the one hundred fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Constitution were loud in praise of that great document. President Roosevelt, speaking from the foot of the Washington monument, was emphatic in his expression of admiration for and loyalty to the basic law which his opponents have accused him of trying to undermine. But he called it a "layman's constitution, not a lawyer's contract." He reiterated his assertions that the Constitution was intended by its makers to be a statement of objectives and not a rigid document, and declared democratic government in this country can do all things which "commonsense people, seeing the picture as a whole, have the right to expect.'

"I believe that these things can be done under the Constitution without the surrender of a single one of the civil and religious liberties it was intended to safeguard," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "and I am determined that under the Constitution those things shall be done."

Green Slams Lewis

DENUNCIATIONS of William Green by John Lewis and of Lewis by Green come almost daily. but the attack on the C. I. O. leader by the president of the A. F. of L. in a speech in Washington was especially vigorous. He declared the beetle-browed Lewis was an opportunist who hopes to gain political power through the formation of a party combining labor and agriculture, and resterated the opposition of the federation to the organization of such a party.

Lewis, said Green, was to blame for the bloody strike in "little steel" plants and for its collapse which he attributed to C. I. O.'s disregard of the rule that the workers themselves should decide when to strike.

"Surely those who are to suffer and sacrifice in a strike ought to be accorded the right to say whether they are ready and willing to do so," Green asserted. "The issues involved in any impending industrial conflict ought to be made clear and thoroughly understood."

Vandenberg's Battle Cry

"WE HAVE just begun to fight" was the battle cry adopted by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan in a speech at Bay City that was taken as the opening of his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1940. He made it evident that he hopes to be the standard bearer for a coalition party, asserting that a realignment of political parties is inevitable. Indeed, he declared, this probably was the one thing that could save our national institutions. He was not so sure that the opposition to the Roosevelt policies would unite under a new party name. Said he:

"There may be a realistic realignment which will bring like-thinking patriots into common battle front, whether they live north or south of the Mason and Dixon line, whether they live east or west of the Mississippi.'

Biggers to Manage Census

UNCLE SAM is going to make a count of his unemployed nephews in the hope that this will help solve the re-employment and relief problem. Just how the census is to be managed is not yet determined, but John D. Biggers of Toledo, president of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company, has been named administrator of the undertaking and is formulating his plans. At the suggestion of the President, Mr. Biggers has established his headquarters in the Department of Commerce, and he hopes to complete the tabulation of the unemployed before December 1.

Mr. Biggers said he proposed to do the job without salary.

"White Prairie Death" By FLOYD GIBBONS

I ELLO EVERYBODY:

You know, boys and girls, this Adventurers' Club of ours shows signs of spreading all over the cockeyed world. Just a few weeks ago we enrolled a native boy from Java, and today here comes one from Sweetwater, way up in British Columbia. Bill Simpson is his name, and he is a homesteader in a country where farmhouses are few and far between. But in 1908 Bill was doing his homesteading in Saskatchewan, and up there, at that time you were lucky if you saw a farmhouse in ten miles of travel. That's the section Bill is going to tell us about today. He's going to tell us the story of the horse that knew more than a man. And Bill has the genuine eye-witness lowdown on that story, too. You see, Bill was the man.

It was just a few days before Christmas. Bill and his closest neighbor-a fellow named Barney-had driven into town, a distance of forty miles, to lay in a supply of groceries. It's hard to imagine a place that's forty miles away from the nearest grocery store. But it's a fact, nevertheless. And Bill and Barney drove that forty miles, not over roads, but on a rough trail over the virgin prairie—a winding route picked out by the horse himself, as he skirted around wet places and alkali spots, trying to find where the going was easiest.

Caught in a Prairie Blizzard.

It was over that sort of a road that Bill and Barney started back for home. They planned to drive twenty miles, spend the night at the homestead of a man they knew along the way, and drive the other twenty miles on the following day. They had covered sixteen of those first twenty miles when a blizzard broke over their heads.

A prairie blizzard is a thing you can't fight. The snow comes pelting down with such force that it is impossible to face and travel against it. You've just got to travel in the direction in which the wind is blowing. The snow comes down so thick that you can hardly see two feet ahead And that's the sort of storm that Bill and Barney were up against. "The temperature dropped," says Bill, "until the sleigh runners screamed as they passed over the cold snow. The wind rose, driving snow particles at us with stinging force. The cold penetrated our bodies, and before we had gone half a mile we were performing the craziest-looking acrobatics you ever saw in an effort to keep warm.

"For a mile or so after the storm broke we were able to keep the horse headed along the trail. But every vestige of the trail was soon obliterated and we had to trust to luck as we headed for our destination. It began to dawn on us then that, though it was only a few more miles to the homestead of our friend, we would probably never find it in that blizzardthat we would drive on and on until we froze to death.

"Even then we were not far from freezing. Barney, who was superstitious, kept crying over and over again, 'Oh, me poor mother. I'll never see her again. The storm devils will get me,' and many times in the next couple hours I felt myself becoming numb and drowsy. I just wanted to take a short nap—just a short nap. That's what I was telling myself. But I knew in my heart that if I ever lay down I would never wake up again."

Beat Barney to Save His Life.

So Bill forced himself to beat his arms about and rub his face with snow to keep himself awake. After one of those sleepy attacks of his he turned to speak to Barney-and found him peacefully asleep in the bottom of the sleigh box. He had to beat him unmercifully with a blacksnake whip before he could get him awake again. "And as I beat him," he says, "the exertion brought with it a feeling of warmth that may have saved my own life."

By that time Bill had lost his bearings and even his sense of direction. He gave the horse a free rein, trusting in his instinct instead. On they went. The snow, by that time, was falling in such a dense curtain that it was impossible to see even as far as the horse's head. There isn't a man in the world who wouldn't have been lost in such a storm. But the horse showed no hesitancy. He plodded on.

Then, all at once he began to slow down. A few paces farther on he came to a stop before what looked like a huge mound of snow. Had he, too, lost his sense of direction? Bill shouted, "Get up" at him. The horse didn't budge. Bill was about to take the ship when the thought came to him to investigate that mound of snow.

Luckily the Horse Kept His Bearings.

He climbed down from the wagon. The mound was round and strangely shaped—for a snow-pile. Bill thrust his hand into it—and then realized that the horse knew things that he didn't. That mound was a snow-covered pile of straw that had been left there by threshers in

"I pulled the wagon up into the shelter of the pile," says Bill, "and was preparing to pull out some of the straw to make a fire, when I saw what looked like a star off toward the horizon. But I knew there was no possibility of seeing a star through such a storm and realized to my unbounded joy that it must be a light gleaming in the house of our friend with whom we planned to spend the night."

Bill headed the horse toward that light and drove him on. It was the house all right, but they were coming up to it from the opposite direction from which they should have approached it. "We had almost passed it," says Bill, "and if we had, we would have gone on to our deaths in the howling wind and deepening snow. The only thing that saved us from doing so was-the horse."

Bill and Barney spent the night at that homestead, and went on home the next morning after the storm was over. In later years, Bill never passed that place without remembering his battle with the elementsand the horse that kept his bearings when Bill and Barney had both lost theirs.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.-Wall Street and the securities market generally have been undergoing a Bad Case of bad case of the Jitters jitters. It has been several years since those dealing in money and shares of stock have been so uncertain as to the future and this uncertainty obviously is the cause of the jitters among all people who dabble in the stock market, whether the dabbling be small or large, on margin or for cash. It seems a proper time, therefore, to examine the picture and try to see what lies beneath. And, let me hasten to say at the very outset that anyone who makes a positive statement about the securities market these days must be either a fool or a superman-and thus far the supermen who have lived on this earth number only one.

But that fact does not destroy the value of an examination of a condition which exists as a fact. Indeed, I think a review of the various factors and influences at work now can provide a clarification of general conditions even though it may fail utterly to show why men and women act as they do with respect to stock market investments.

First, it should be said that Wall Street, as the term is commonly used, is not unanimous within itself. The violent fluctuation of market securities in the last several weeks might easily be said to be due to the war crises in Europe and in the Far East. Only, those fluctuations are not traceable to war conditions. Rather, the war conditions are used by some individuals as an excuse—an alibi to themselves because they fail to fathom the various influences and factors now at

I said that Wall Street lacked unanimity within itself. That is true because within Wall Street there are all kinds of selfish groups operating. For example, an influence like inflation is highly pleasing to the brokers and dealers in shares while the same influence frightens bankers and likewise gives a sickening feeling to those who must buy raw products. Bankers and sound investors as well as tax payers generally would be quite happy to see the Federal Treasury's budget balanced because if that were done there would be a much greater sense of security, of safety for those investments.

A dozen other illustrations could be given to thus illustrate the point and show why Black Case Wall Street cannot agree. They Involved do not show, however, why there is so much uncertainty and why the bulls or the bears have been unable to adjust ticular section. The number of inthemselves to the future probabili- dividuals who see the picture I have ties. The reasons, therefore, must attempted to outline in the above lie deeper. It is possible that the paragraph is increasing. As that appointment of Hugo Black of Alabama as an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States has had more effect on the business world than any of us realize. I have heard a number of corporation executives say that they hope they will never be involved in litigation which will carry their corporations before the court on which Mr. Black sits. If they entertained that fear before, undoubtedly the fear is deeper-seated and more widespread now that Mr. Justice Black has been publicly accused of holding a life membership in the Ku Klux Klan. Certainly the expose of the typhoon that is swirling around the head of the new associate justice cannot have any soothing effect upon the minds of those business men who, as corporation executives, are trustees of vast sums of the people's money. Undoubtedly, unless Mr. Black can prove that he is not affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan, few litigants will feel safe before the Supreme court.

Then, there comes the resignation of James M. Landis as chairman of the securities and exchange commission which regulates operations of the great stock exchanges. Mr. Landis has been regarded as rather fair, rather just, in his dealings relating to stock market operations. His retirement to return to a professorship in Harvard, of course, opens up the question as to his successor. This is to say that most of the financial world is hoping and praying that the new chairman will not go off at a tangent; that he will avoid extreme radicalism and that he will not blame the whole financial structure for the crookedness of a part of it.

Thus, it becomes easy to see how this minor factor may have weight with some individuals dealing in corporate shares and bonds. liam O. Douglas, a member of the commission, has been slated to become chairman but developments in recent weeks give considerable doubt over that result. Mr. Douglas is recorded as being a radical. Bankers and investors in many parts of the country fear that if he is made chairman he will become not unlike the famous bull in a china cabinet. But, according to the undercurrent of gossip around Washington Mr. Douglas has done something to offend Postmaster General Farley, and no man can draw an appointment as important as the chairmanship of a great commission without Mr. Farley's approval.

Aside from personalities, various phases of President Roosevelt's monetary policies continue to be disturbing and in addition to these there is the certainty that new taxes must be levied. That is, new taxes must be levied if we are ever going to balance the federal budget and begin paying off the gigantic national debt which now amounts to more than 38 billion. With a debt at the highest point our United States ever has known, a great many people, including bankers, have become fearful of what they might get for United States bonds that they now hold. It is obvious that this influence adds to the general uncertainty. although it is difficult to measure the exact influence of this condition, or to see whether it is a major or a minor factor.

Having enumerated a few of the nfluences known to be at work, we come now to that Business condition which Conditions heretofore always has been basic. I efer to general business conditions. New Deal press agents have tried valiantly to make it appear that business is booming; that prosperity is here instead of around the corner; and that the country has nothing to fear. Careful examination of official figures, however, show the prosperity statements to be true only in parts. The official statistics disclose very definitely how some lines of business are enjoying a volume of trade or production higher even than 1929. They show on the other hand a vast number of failures, an increasing number of big businesses which are barely getting by-which can continue providing their present volume of business is maintained. If the volume of business slips, however, that category of business is going into a tailspin as sure as the sun shines. If a part of the business of the country begins to sink—well, a part of it began to sink in August, 1929, and within two years the whole structure had fallen like a house of cards.

I am not saying that we are confronted with another depression. I do say, however, that we are facing a condition that is not at all satisfactory-a condition that can lead to a depression as easily as it can lead to sound prosperity in commerce and industry.

Astute observers and business men in the larger centers decide their courses upon the outlook for the whole country, not for any particular line of business or any parnumber increases obviously the wave of uncertainty expands.

So, if one is compelled to make a guess why Wall Street is so concerned or so jittery, it would seem that the explanation must lie in the combination of circumstances. No one of them, except possibly the adverse business outlook, could accomplish as much doubt about the future.

Anyone talking with a hundred different individuals will hear these various factors and influences mentioned. He will hear different weight given by each individual to each factor.

We have been dealing with causes. Let us look at possible effects. It will be remembered how Presi-

to Effects dent Hoover was blamed for the depression. He and the Republican party were punished on that account and badly licked in the elections. It ought to be said in Mr. Hoover's behalf that the conditions which led to the depression had their beginning long before he was elected President. Indeed, they had their real beginning in the World war.

President Roosevelt came into office as a result. He started doing things and gaining the confidence of the country to such an extent that he was re-elected last year. Probably he was re-elected largely because of the bulk of the voters feeling he was restoring prosperity. I doubt, however, that Mr. Roosevelt was any more responsible for the return of a superficial prosperity than Mr. Hoover was responsible for the depression.

But we are coming to another election. If conditions should become worse and business should decline perceptibly again, Mr. Roosevelt will be held responsible just as definitely as was Mr. Hoover. He will be charged with having made a mess of government and any attempt on his part to prove the condition was natural will be regarded as an alibi. The whole thing seems to be in the lap of the gods and no amount of political strategy or attempts to amend the law of supply and demand will alter events.

Our National Bird.

TAS VEGAS, NEV. - Those folks back East who're agitating to make the turkey our national bird are late. Benjamin Franklin had the same notion 150 years ago.

Old Ben pointed out that the eagle was a robber and a tyrant and was the emblem of various European monarchies, whereas the turkey was not only our largest and gamest wild bird, but a native of America.

To be sure, young turkeys aren't so smart. They love to get their feet wet so they may die from it. In dry sections, Irvin S. Cobb young turkeys have been known to jump down an arte-sian well 90 feet deep in order to get their feet wet. But the adult turkey is wise and wily, a noble spectacle in the woods and popular in a cooked state, owing to his magnificent bust development and his capacity for holding stuffing or insertion, and his superiority when worked over into turkey hash.

But if we are going to make a change in emblems, why not choose the worm-the humble, dumb, unresisting worm-as typical of most of the present populace? It could be a one-sided worm, too, which would save costs in modeling, because so many of us are the kinds of worms that never turn.

The Sucker Crop.

We've tried it and it doesn't work. As Barnum stated, a sucker is born every minute - and sometimes twins. But the crooks who prey on the sucker crop, like the Dionne quintuplets, come along in batches. That breed spawn close to shore and the young all survive.

Thus is the rule of supply and demand balanced. In good times, there are just enough suckers to go around. In hard times, the suckers grow scarce, but, when one comes along, the crooks raffle him off and the winner takes all.

Anyhow, legislation won't save a sucker from himself-at least not in this country. He'll break through the law in order to prove he's a sucker in good standing in the suckers' lodge.

By the way, brother-member, how many degrees have you taken?

Restrained Statements.

A WAYFARER in Oklahoma, who claimed to have starved himself for forty-one days, on being asked how he felt, replied that he felt sort of hungry. Investigation showed the stranger had been cheating now and then to the extent of a clandestine beef stew or a surreptitious stack of wheats, but wasn't it a magnificently restrained statement?

For underemphasis, I can think of but a single instance to match it. In my youth, we had a policeman in our town with a nervous mannerism of killing folks.

One night, I was passing Uncle Tom Emery's saloon and snackstand for colored only. A group of subdued-looking customers fetched out the limp remains of a dark person who had been bored thrice through the heart.

"Uncle Tom," I inquired of the proprietor, "isn't that Monkey John?"

"Sho' is suh."

"How did it happen?" I asked.

"Well, suh," said Uncle Tom, "It seem like he musta antagonized Mr. Buck Evitts."

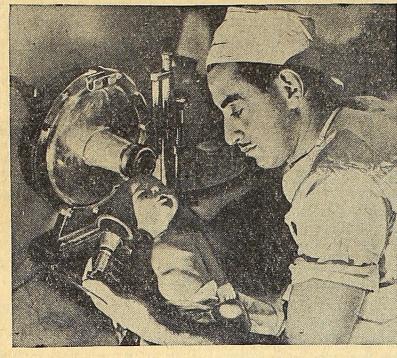

Smoked Glasses for Snakes.

ON THE way here, I attended this year's snake dance. The snake dance has become indeed a strange sight-for the snakes. If the tourists don't modify their wardrobes by next year, I expect to see the snakes wearing smoked glasses. Veteran snakes that have taken part during past seasons are showing signs of the strain. The bull snakes still hiss—as who could blame them?-but the rattlers no longer rattle freely, evidently fear-ing it might be mistaken for applause. The commissioner of Indian affairs wants the Navajoes to grow fewer goats. The Navajoes are balking. Goat hair is a profitable crop; goat meat makes good eating-for an aborigine stomach, anyhow-and goat smell is agreeable for Navajo noses. It seems to neutralize some of the other perfumes noticed during shopping hour in a reservation trading post.

Colony Disappears.

On August 27, 1587, Gov. John White, who headed the expedition, bade farewell to his companions and to his nine-day-old granddaughter, Virginia Dare, and sailed to England for supplies. Upon his return four years later the colony turn four years later, the colony had completely disappeared, the only traces left being a few broken pieces of armor and the word "Croatoan" carved on a tree. What happened to Sir Walter Raleigh's 'lost colony" is a mystery which for centuries has baffled historians. Many explanations and legends have risen.

Did the colonists intermarry with the Indians and are their descendants living in North Carolina today? Was the colony exterminated by the Spaniards? Were the settlers massacred by the Indians? No one knows for sure.

Governor White himself told the story of his return to the island in 1591. Upon this story are based all accounts of what happened.

"We returned," he said, "round about the north point of the island until we came to the place where I left our colony.

"In all this way, we saw in the sand the print of the savage's feet of two or three sorts trodden in the night, and as we entered upon the sandy banks, upon a tree, the very brow thereof, were curiously carved

"And having well considered of this, we passed toward the place where they were left in sundry houses, but we found the houses taken down and the place very strongly enclosed, with a high palisade of great trees, with curtains and flankers and very fortlike, and one of the chief trees or posts at the right side of the entrance had the bark taken off and five feet from the ground in fair capital letters was graven 'Croatoan,' without any cross or sign of distress."

A growth of weeds indicated that two seasons had passed since the departure of the colonists.

Sir Walter Raleigh dispatched five rescue expeditions, but none was successful.

Most interesting of the miniature logging operations carried on in Kedrowicz's "camp" is the sawmill itself. It is operated by a home-made steam engine which drives the saw along a two-foot carriage.

The camp railroad was built entirely out of scrap steel except for freight engine's four drive wheels, which were cast of babbit. The engine is thirty-two inches long, is operated by steam and will run for three hours unattended. A blow torch generates the steam in the miniature boiler.

VERY morning, before you begin your work, hold in your mind the picture and register the vow of masterfulness. Let that one ideal remain in your mind all through the day. Think masterfulness, radiate masterfulness, do everything to a complete finish.

Will to Succeed

Do not allow yourself to dawdle, to waver in your decision, or permit yourself to do fool things, during the day. Use levelheadedness, good judgment in every act. Go about your work with the con-sciousness of your masterfulness, holding the ideal of your superiority, your efficiency, your ability to reach the heights of excellence.

Resolve every morning that you will make a red-letter day of that day, for if you are going to make your whole life a masterpiece each day must be a masterpiece.

"Was Mrs. Cayne at home?" "Yes, sir, she was; I recall that because Mr. Holbrook asked me was she in her room and I told him yes."

Mr. Cayne gave Rachel a signifi-cant look. "There, you see, if Eli-nor was in her room the boys couldn't have got at the safe . but maybe she wasn't there all the time," he said, after he had dismissed Towers.

"I'll call up Mr. Terriss right away," said Rachel. "He could have the Buckham boy investigat-

"I know what sort he is. He's one of these half-baked artists and lives in Greenwich Village. I don't doubt he'd take anything he could get.

"But he couldn't get at the safe with Mrs. Cayne in her room," Ra-chel reminded him. "As soon as she comes in you can find out about

He gave her a stern stubborn "Mrs. Cayne's not to be bothlook.

"Don't you intend to tell her that her bracelet's been stolen?" exclaimed Rachel.

"No. It would only make her nervous and excited. She might even get sick. She did get sick the first things were taken when and I had to quit telling her about it. I was afraid of the effect it might have on her general health."

"Really," stammered Rachel, "I

—I wouldn't have thought—"

"You see, Miss Vincent, my wife -my wife is very unhappy just now. She's always been beautiful, you can see that, and very young-looking. She's as tickled as can be when people take her for Holbrook's sister, and they do sometimes. But age comes right along, no matter what a woman does, and she's beginning to see gray in her hair and lines under her chin and it-well, it worries her out of all proportion. She takes up all these beauty fads; why, she works at it harder than most men work for a living, and it disturbs her mind so that she's liable to take a wrong slant on anything. Look at all the mirrors in her room! And you've been here long enough to see that the first thing she does whenever she comes in the house is pick up her handglass and give her face a good hard inspection. And there's nothing, nothing I can do to help her."

There was such grief, such pity and such tenderness in his voice that Rachel did not know how to answer him. In a moment he went "If women could only understand that beauty's only a loan and never a gift! If they'd only believe that it doesn't matter to a man's affection, no, nor to how the world values them! I've thought a lot about all this, I can tell you."

"I can see you have," said Rachel, humbly . . . "The poor old dear," she thought, "he really is sweet." Aloud she suggested: "But, Mr. Cayne, you can find out indirectly about the two boys-whether Mrs. Cayne saw them, I mean?" "Yes, I suppose so. Look here. Miss Vincent-you don't think it's the servants, do you? I somehow can't stomach suspicioning them, they've been with me so long and they've always come through no matter what I wanted." "No, I don't think it's the servants, Mr. Cayne."

"That Terriss, he's always harping on them. But now this Buckham boy-I shouldn't wonder a bit if we'd got the right track at last. He's hung around more or less for quite a while."

"Then," said Rachel, "I'll tell Mr. Terriss to look up the Buckham boy. And I'll go out and telephone right away; if I use the phone here, Mrs. Cayne might come in." Mr. Cayne stopped her for a last "You can understand now why I don't take Holbrook and put him in the kind of school he ought to go to. It's because it would worry Mrs. Cayne so, she has a lot of pleasure going around with him and he knows how to divert her mind. talks to her about how good-looking she is and praises her clothes. He's devoted to his mother, Holbrook. If I could only get that art bug out of his head—he's a pretty good boy except for that."

Rachel stopped at the kitchen. "I've got to do an errand for Mr. Cayne.

"For goodness sake, give me that curry," said Lena. "Curry takes time to cook, that's what spoils it generally. What's up in there?" "Tell you when I get back," promised Rachel.

The public phone that Rachel used was in a drugstore halfway down the block. It seemed to take an age to get there, another age to get the connection, but at last she heard Terriss' dry voice. "I thought it was about time something else went," he said, when Rachel had told him about the brace-"Haven't you got any lead at all?" His tone implied that he merely asked the question as a matter oi

She told him about Roy Buck-

ham, and then, "But there's something more."

'What more?" "Mr. Terriss, maybe I'm crazy, maybe I oughtn't even to think of this, but Holbrook tried to borrow money from me a few days ago and Lena tells me he's borrowed money from both her and Towers until they wouldn't lend him anything more.

The answer that came back was so amazing she could scarcely believe her ears.

"Well, at last! I'd been waiting and wondering to see if you'd never catch on! I've been dead certain it was the boy all along. Now we're going places! Come on, give me the whole story, how much did you slip him?"

"I didn't give him anything!" Quickly she described the whole incident, ending with "Why didn't you let me know you suspected the son, I'd have watched him lots more closely.'

"On account of Mr. Cayne's attitude-if I'd told you to keep an eye on the kid and you'd spilled it to the old man, then you and I both would have been in a spot. Don't tell me you haven't seen how unreasonable Cayne is about his family!"

"Yes-I've seen. Mr. Terriss, what am I to do? I can't tell him that it might be Holbrook, I can't

"Jeez, no! Don't you peep one word nor bat an eye unless you catch the kid with the goods, and even then, don't you do it. You call me up and I'll get right over there and we'll see the old man together. You've got to have the evidence, evidence he can't go back of, or he'll never believe it.

"But what short of evidence, what. do you mean?"

"Three minutes are up, deposit another nickel, please," warned the operator.

"The kid most likely is hocking that stuff with some crooked pawnbroker. I've watched the police reports on all pawnbrokers and nothing's been turned in, so that proves that whoever's got it is crooked, one of the kind who breaks up jewelry, melts the metal and sells the stones, see? Or else maybe the kid has stolen the stuff to give to a girl, but the operator I've had on him says no.

"You've been having Holbrook followed?"

"Of course I have, ever since the last piece of jewelry was taken, I mean the spoons, just before you went into the house there. Mr. Cayne don't know about it, though.'

Rachel was thinking hard. "Mr. Terriss, if Holbrook did it, couldn't you-couldn't you talk to the boyand warn him-and get him to stop it? And not let Mr. and Mrs. Cayne know? They're so-so fond of himhe's the only child-"

"No, Miss Vincent, that's bad dope. I can't say anything about the mother, because the old man keeps her wrapped in cotton wool, but his father'd have to know it. It's up to him then to take the boy in hand, see? And he can tell his wife or not. But if the boy's the thief, as I've thought all along, better his old man should learn it now before the boy starts lifting somebody else's stuff."

"But the boy may not be the

"Don't give me an argument, just search his room like you were hunting for chinches, Miss Vincent, and report to me soon's you've fin-Rachel rushed back to the apartment, her head whirling. Mrs. Cayne had come in and was waiting impatiently, so there was no chance to speak to Mr. Cayne, but Rachel took time to write on a piece of paper, "Have notified Terriss," and slipped it under his door as she ran to answer the imperative bell.

"I'm sorry, madame," she excused herself, "I had a stain on my uniform and was changing." She thought grimly, "I'll never believe a servant again on oath after hearing myself tell such slick lies." as she addressed herself to the ritual of getting Mrs. Cayne ready for dinner. This minor drama did not proceed well, Mrs. Cayne was nervous and jerky and waspish and Rachel was absorbed in her own thoughts. She managed to run the bath and perfume it and to lay out the lingerie and slippers without mistake, but at the dress closet she stopped, she could not remember which of the 30 or more gowns had been chosen. Rachel looked at the slippers, they were dark blue satin strapped with gold kid. "Probably that dark blue mousseline," thought Rachel, and arranged it carefully on the bed.

Elinor Cayne came in, warm, rosy, perfumed, pulling about her one of the loose robes of wash velvet she used as bathrobe. She flung it down and Rachel advanced with girdle and slip, then dropped on one knee to slip the thinnest of stockings over the brightest of redenameled toes. Over Rachel's head Elinor noticed the dress and the storm broke.

"I never saw a girl so inattentive and stupid in my life, I tell you over and over again, you simply don't listen-'

Rachel looked up and lightning flashed between the two women. For a moment Rachel thought her mother was going to slap her across the face and she made an involuntary movement to catch and hold that slender little hand, then remembered and drew back. But it was her expression that stopped Elinor. They stared at each other, there was revelation, held immobile for a long shocking instant.
"What is the matter?" asked Rachel, at last, rising.

"That dress isn't the one—I told you the blue and gold brocade with the velvet flowers.'

"I'm sorry, madame," said Rachel. She picked up the mousseline and hung it in the closet, laid out the brocade in its place. Still under the spell of that venomous gesture which had been so near, she turned and went out of the room. Dazedly she went back to her own room, closed the door and sat down in the darkness. "She was going to strike me," she thought, over and over, "she was going to strike me.

she's my mother. My own mother.' It required all her will to re-enter that room and to her relief Elinor was concentrated on her make-up and took no notice of her. The silence was ominous, but Rachel preferred it. Rachel put the bathroom in order and returned to lift the brocade and hold it while Elinor stepped into it. The two women avoided looking at one another, but at the last moment, powdered and tinted and resplendent in the rich gown, Elinor flashed a resentful glance at Rachel and said, "I'm going to speak to Mr. Cayne about this," and went out so quickly that Rachel could have smiled. "She's afraid of me," she thought, "she feels something different. And she isn't allowed any freedom with the servants. I suppose," she granted with unwilling justice, "that's enough to make any woman peevish. I oughtn't to blame her too much. Mr. Cayne's sweet, but he's an old tyrant, too. Oh dear, I wish they would be definitely one thing or another, all these shades and varieties are too hard to deal with." She had a moment of revolt. "I'm getting old too fast, I shouldn't be so reasonable about these people, I'm as tolerant as Anne, it's not like me!" And then, thankfully, soberly, "If I only could be like Anne! If I needn't be a bit like this-this mother I wanted so much!" More soberly still, "I must stop wallowing in these hysterical ideas and make up my mind what I ought to and got no ticket.

This was not easy, she found herself pulled in too many directions. To follow Terriss' instructions and search Holbrook's room, and then, if the boy was guilty, to reveal itshe didn't want to do it, she had too profound a conviction that Holbrook was guilty. When his father knew, how it would beat down his pride and affection! Yet perhaps Terriss was right, to know it now might save knowing worse later. But she didn't want to stick her unpracticed hand into human lives with a chance of marring them. It was too much responsibility. Better, perhaps, to walk out of the house and never come back, she could take a boat and go to Anne, she could cut the whole tangled miserable business away from herself. Yet that would be shirking, too. And then the thought of Curt Elton came to her, there was the one person who might be told and who would understand and advise. Tomorrow was Thursday, her day out. She would tell Terriss she had had no opportunity to search Holbrook's room until after she had talked to Look at it from the other end-if you can prove Holbrook didn't do it, then you've freed Mr. Cayne forever from the danger of having a criminal child. What you tell me about the boy sounds as if he was spoiled and silly and effeminate, but he doesn't sound exactly like a

I must say I don't like his trying to get money out of you, but there again, he's spoiled and he may have wanted to buy something his father wouldn't approve of, or throw a party unbeknownst to his family. Boys at that age often do things like that, they want to appear grand and lavish to their friends. What sort are his friends?"

"They look like any other boys to me, weedy and pimply and know-itall; not terribly common, but I wouldn't say any of them would ever be intellectual giants."

Curt laughed unreservedly. "Nothing sinister in that picture. Don't you think you're overplaying your imagination about Holbrook? If I were you I'd simply give his room a thorough search—"

"It seems so sneaky and underhanded."

"It's what you hired out for, my dear girl. You may find nothing. Even if the boy did steal the bracelet, he may have eaten the ticket or thrown it down a sewer. Or he may have dealt with a smart fence

Adding Minerals to Soil Is Found to Improve Food, Research Worker Asserts

The average person's life can be engthened about a dozen years through the scientific addition of minerals to the soil, believes Dr. Charles Northen, who is an Alabama physician and a research worker in the field of mineral col-

"Crops grown in poor soil produce poor food products, lacking in minerals and vitamins," Dr. Northen explained. "Our problem was to discover a means of adding this mineral content to the soil."

Dr. Northen set down several concrete results of his experiments. In Florida, orange groves infested with scale became clean and bore fruit with a greatly increased vitamin content after mineral colloids were

A dairy used the process on grazing land for cows with the result that a glass of milk contained all the minerals needed for an adult during a day.

"With soil depleted of natural minerals after years of usage, people cannot eat a sufficient quantity of food to supply these necessary items," Dr. Northen declared. "Farm experts have recognized the problem and have urged rotation of crops allowing the land to lie idle every third or fourth year, and similar methods.

"But land would have to lie idle for many years to regain the minerals which have been taken from it. The discovery of mineral colloids will mean better crops and a healthier and longer-living nation.

CHRISTIAN SONSHIP

The Medwicks and Di Maggios Cross Swords

THIS all started when a customer with an Italian monicker took his pen in hand to say that probably he would have to look out for M. Finns in his spaghetti from now on. Nevertheless, he could not help it. He had to tell the world that Jersey Joe Medwick was a better ball player than Jolting Joe Di Maggio.

Since then things have been happening. Each hour new regiments of Jim Farley's fin-and Washington bridge have become clogged with New Jersey neighbors bound for Manhattan and the Bronx so as to indulge in face-to-face combat with belittlers of their Joe.

So, in the interests of peace-as well as to give the Japs and Chinese some chance to attract popular attention with their own brawlings -this reporter undertook to do a Mr. Secretary Hull.

Personally, if he were choosing up sides and had the first two picks with pitchers excluded, he would take Charley Gehringer and Lou Gehrig ahead of the two Joes. But he did not offer this plan. Instead, he decided that if anything could cause the warring parties to compose their differences it would be the mature opinion of other big-

So he invited various baseball celebrities to take down their hair and answer one question-"Who is the better player, Di Maggio or Medwick?" Their answers are appended

Gus Mancuso Lauds 'Jolting Joe's' Prowess

GUS MANCUSO - "Medwick is the better hitter, but Di Maggio hits the longer ball. Di Maggio is the better all-around ball player."

DICK BARTELL - "Medwick leads in more departments of hitting -total bases, hits, runs batted inso he must be the better hitter. Di Maggio gets more walks because it is almost impossible to walk Med-

CARL HUBBELL-"We see so little of Di Maggio over here it's hard to say, but he must be great. Both are tough on pitchers.' BILL TERRY-"Why can't we come up with a Di Maggio?" BILL McKECHNIE-"If I were given my choice right now I'd take Di Maggio. Medwick is great, but Di Maggio is a wonder."

TOM WINSETT - "Everybody knows Di Maggio has a better arm. He's a different type of hitter, too -a smooth swinger who generates more power.'

Even Connie Mack Speaks His Mind!

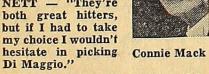

COOKIE LAVAGETTO-"Both of 'em can do everything. I'd say Di Maggio has a shade more powert As a National league player, however, I'd pick Medwick. But as an Italian I'll string along with the other Joe."

JOE CRONIN-"I haven't seen much of Medwick, but Di Maggio is by far the better fielder.'

CONNIE MACK-"I don't see how any player, particularly one in the National league, can be compared to Di Maggio. He's wonderful, simply wonderful. I'd rank him with the greatest outfielders of all time." GABBY HART-NETT - "They're both great hitters, but if I had to take my choice I wouldn't

There you have it, gents-and ladies. The celebrities quoted here were picked at random. The majority of them favor Di Maggio. What is more, players from the opposition circuit have kicked over the traces of league loyalty to render him proper acclaim. Since Babe Ruth is the only other player to have had similar tribute paid to him in recent years, that should set-

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THE Dodgers and the St. Louis clubs definitely will play night baseball next year . . . As usual the Dodgers will not be worth losing sleep over but it will provide the boys with a gag when the usual runners are left stranded. "Afraid to go home in the dark," you know . . . Bob Olin, who had Tommy Farr on the floor several times during their fight, is challenging all heavy-weights within sight . . . Fritz Maisel, Jr., enters Western Maryland college this fall and the boys say he is due to be as good a third sacker as was his daddy when he starred for the Yankees and Orioles . Horton Smith is terribly tired, he says, and plans to take a long rest after the Belmont Open.

Minnesota may have an even better football team this season than the Gopher elevens which have lost only one game in three years . Four good men are gone but the best frosh club ever to come out of the Minnesota prairies will plug those gaps, and ten sturdy lads, ineligible last fall, also are r'aring to go . . . Northwestern, with Don Heap back to lead the charge, will be dangerous but will lack reserves sufficient to repeat last fall's brilliant showing . . . Illinois is a dark horse with very little known about the Zuppke prospects . . . Chicago, which faces Princeton on its home field October 16, should be easy for the Tigers . . . Indiana, coming fast under Bo McMillan, should show improvement over 1936.

Carl Snavely, Cornell football coach, is developing into a fine golf-sato, soph halfback, and that the kid will be a Columbia regular this fall. Charley Root leads the National league in control. The veteran Cub pitcher yields only one base on balls every six-and-a-half innings . . . Gene Tunney was by far the best looking of all the champions

When the Brazilian Davis Cup team was here to play the United States a few years ago, the U. S. L. T. A. threw a dinner party and had the dining room appropriately decorated. At least they thought they had it appropriately decorated. Manuel Alonzo, widely traveled in South America, arrived early, glanced around the room and then rushed up to the chairman of the committee.

"Those are Chilean flags," he blurted out excitedly. "And Chile has just declared war on Brazil!"

Germ Causes Tuberculosis

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS hard to convince the average man or woman that tuberculosis is not inherited. They look about them on every side and know that a parent, an uncle, a brother, or a sister of a patient with tuberculosis has died of tuberculosis.

Yet physicians, particularly those working close to tuberculosis, tell us that while tuberculosis may appear to "run in families," it is only "because children catch the disease from an older member of the household who has

Shortly after I graduated in medicine the superintendent of a large sanatorium told me that he believed that in at least half the adult population evidences of past or healed tuberculosis could be found. Today it is believed that if every part of the body could be examined some evidence of tuberculosis would be found in everybody, which, for the time being at least, was in a "quiet"

Caused by an Organism.

Why then, if tuberculosis can be found in practically everybody, do we not all suffer with the symptoms or at least show some signs of it? "The specific or definite cause of tuberculosis is a germ or organism. If a few tuberculosis germs get into a healthy body no harm is done because the body fights back. But if one lives daily with a careless person who has the disease the danger is great. Kissing, coughing and spitting may be the means of spreading tuberculosis germs. Anything which has touched the sick person's lips may have germs on

It would be well for all of us to remember also the first signs—the danger signals-pointing to tuberculosis. These signals may not mean tuberculosis in every case but should cause one to suspect tuberculosis. These signals are: (1) too easily tired; (2) loss of weight; (3) indigestion; (4) cough that hangs on.

Overweight and the Failing Heart.

One of the hard tasks for physician and patient is when there is a great amount of fat in and on the body and the patient has a weak or damaged heart.

The most effective method of reducing weight is cutting down on the food intake and increasing the exercise. Unfortunately the overweight patient with a heart condition needs food to maintain his exercise owing to the strain exercise puts upon the heart.

In addition to getting out of breath easily many of these patients begin to get a little swelling in the feet which means they must get off the feet more, and keep the feet on another chair when sitting. While this may mean less work for the heart it of course means less work or exercise for the body and more fat accumulates.

Therefore when the physician undertakes the treatment of the overweight heart patient he does so, not with fear and trembling as to what must be done, but with fear and trembling that his patient will not follow his suggestions faithfully; that he will continue to eat more than his body needs.

One of the laws that applies to all the organs or functioning processes of the body is briefly: overloaded with star material again organ performing its work with difthis year. You can see then how important it is to the overweight heart patient the work on the heart. I. God's Children-Who They Are (vv. 1-6).

1. They are "Born ones" (v. 1). The Revised Version correctly translates "sons" as "children." We are sons in our position, but we are children by the new birth. A man may attain the legal relationship of a son by adoption, but he can be a child only by birth.

2. They are separated ones (v. 1). The world, that is, unregenerate man, does not belong to this family of God. How hard it is for even church people to understand that fact. They do not appreciate and cannot understand God's children, because they themselves do not

3. They are glorified ones (v. 2). 'We shall be like him for we shall see him as he is." What a glorious hope, realized even now by faith in the hearts and lives of God's children. The present difference between God's children and the world is to become even greater, for in that day when Christ "shall appear" (for he is coming again!) God's children shall be like him. Spiritually and morally-yes, and even their bodies shall be transformed.

4. They are purified ones (vv. 3-6). The standard whereby the Christian measures his life is the purity of Christ. The question is not "How much purer am I than my friends and acquaintances?" No, the norm for the Christian life is far higher, we are to be purified as "he is

All sin is a disregard of God's law (v. 4). His children do not thus defy Him. He may fall into some act of sin, but in utter misery and repentance he turns from it to his Deliverer.

II. God's Children-How They Live (vv. 18-24).

Love is the supreme test of Christian profession. "We know we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brethren," says John in v. 14 (R. V.). How far should love go? "We ought to lay down our lives for the brethren"

Such a sacrifice is not often demanded of us, but the writer goes on to say that we may show that spirit in daily service to those in

1. In loving and sacrificial service (v. 18). Words may comfort and strengthen, especially when they are words of love. Love does not stop with words, however, but acts, reflecting the spirit of God, who not only is good, but does good.

2. In the assurance of faith (vv. 19-21). Assurance is the blessed privilege of the child of God. Well may we feel condemned when we measure our lives by his divine tests. But after all, even "if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart." Salvation does not depend on either our works or our feelings. It is of God. Does this condone sin? God forbid. We are rather so to walk that "our heart condemn us not."

3. In unquestioning obedience (vv. 22-24). The hallmark of character in a child is obedience. Scripture does not countenance the unfortunate standards of men on this point. The children of God "keep his commandments" which are beautifully summed up in v. 23 as believing in Christ and loving one another.

8. A split infinitive is one in which an adverb is introduced between the word "to," and the verb form, such as "to largely decrease." FIRESTONE builds a first-quality tire made of top grade materials and sells it for less money because Firestone passes savings along to you in the form of extra values. Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost. Because of these economies -

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING - because the tread is scientifically designed.
