

TAWAS CITY

TWO TAWAS PIONEERS DIE LAST WEEK

Joseph Brabant, Tuesday, Oct. 5 and James Barnes, Saturday, Oct. 9

Last week marked the passing of two Tawas township pioneers in the deaths of Joseph Brabant and James Barnes. Both came here in the early lumbering days and were actively engaged in that industry for many years.

Joseph Brabant

Joseph Brabant, Sr., age 90 years, former resident and prominent farmer of Tawas township, passed away at the home of his son, Joseph, at Ferndale on Tuesday, October 5, after a few days illness.

Joseph Brabant was born September 11, 1847, at Cottau Landing, Ontario. He came to Tawas from Detroit in 1874 and made his home here until 1925 when he moved to Ferndale to live with his children. In the early days, while a resident of Detroit, Mr. Brabant was employed in the street railway service. The cars were horse drawn at that time. For a number of years after he came to Iosco county he was employed in the extensive operations of the late Reuben Wade. He is survived by six children, two sons, Stephen Brabant of Detroit and Joseph Brabant of Ferndale; four daughters, Mrs. Paul Bouchard of Tawas township, Mrs. Joseph St. James of Bay City, Mrs. William Cullens of Flint and Miss May Brabant of Detroit, and one brother, Stephen Brabant of this city.

Funeral services were held Friday morning from St. Joseph church with Rev. E. A. Kirchoff officiating.

Out of town relatives and friends who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brabant of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brabant of Ferndale, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cullens and three sons of Flint, Miss May Brabant of Detroit, Mrs. Ariel and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Matthew of Port Huron and Mrs. Leida and Emma LeFebvre of Detroit.

James Barnes

James H. Barnes, 85 years, well known Tawas township farmer passed away at his home on the Townline on Saturday, October 9, after several months of illness.

James H. Barnes was born in Devonshire, England, April 2, 1852, and came to Tawas City in 1883 where he entered the employment of the Hale mills. He was united in marriage to Helen McDermid at Seaford, Canada, in May 1879. She passed away in 1897. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Alice Ulman, Mrs. Fred Ulman of Tawas township and Mrs. Richard Ulman of Detroit, 13 grand children and 15 great grand children.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Tawas City Baptist church with Rev. Frank Metcalf officiating. Burial was in the family lot in the Tawas City cemetery.

Services were held Saturday afternoon from the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the Greenwood cemetery.

Those from away who were here to attend the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McCann, Mrs. Kirk Ulman, Mrs. D. M. Quin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor and family, Leonard Ruel, all of Detroit, Mrs. Beatrice Killian, son and daughter of Spring Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Becker and son, Mrs. Mary Scott of Flint and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Droge of Bay City.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family who have lost a loving wife and mother.

If Columbus Should Come Back

Joseph A. Greene

Joseph A. Greene, of 9651 Mendota Ave., a member of Engine Co. No. 1, Detroit Fire Department, was dead Tuesday, the victim of a heart attack suffered late Monday night as he was dressing to answer an alarm at his station house.

Fellow firemen said that they had answered two alarms early in the evening and then had retired. At about 11:15 p. m. another alarm sounded and Greene jumped out of bed and collapsed as he was trying to put on his boots. Efforts of Rescue Squad No. 1, of which he was a former member, and a doctor failed to revive him.

He joined the department January 9, 1920, and has been a pipeman with Engine Co. No. 1 for the last five years. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Greene, former residents of Tawas City.—Detroit Free Press.

The funeral services were held Thursday morning at Detroit, Matt Pfeiffer and Arthur Wegner of this city were in attendance at the funeral.

Mrs. James Senecal

Mrs. Richie Schaaf Senecal was born in Wilber township thirty years ago and passed away at Mercy Hospital, Bay City, October 6. Death was due to pneumonia.

Left to mourn are a husband, James Senecal and three little children, Maxine, Freddie and Lillian, also her twin sister, Mrs. Roy Taylor of Detroit and father, Richard Schaaf of Wilber.

Services were held Saturday afternoon from the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the Greenwood cemetery.

Those from away who were here to attend the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McCann, Mrs. Kirk Ulman, Mrs. D. M. Quin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor and family, Leonard Ruel, all of Detroit, Mrs. Beatrice Killian, son and daughter of Spring Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Becker and son, Mrs. Mary Scott of Flint and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Droge of Bay City.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family who have lost a loving wife and mother.

L. D. S. Church

Elder M. A. Sommerfield, 10:00 A. M. Unified services. First period, Prayer and Testimony. 10:45 A. M. Church school and classes. 7:45 P. M. Song Service. 8:00 P. M. Preaching by the pastor.

Apostle D. T. Williams, the minister in charge of the Great Lakes Regional Territory, will speak for the local congregation Wednesday, October 20, 8:00 P. M., at the Latter Day Saint Church. "Babylon is Falling" will be the subject discussed by Mr. Williams.

The local pastor joins the guest speaker in an invitation to the whole community to hear this lecture. The speaker promises to discuss this matter from the viewpoint of changing world conditions.

"The economic, political and spiritual circumstances confronting the nations indicate changes of vast magnitude. These imply adjustments that must be made with such sacrifice and suffering to humanity," says Mr. Williams.

The lecture will deal with such adjustments and the means of their realization.

Deckett-Braddock

The wedding of Miss Mildred Deckett, daughter of William Deckett of East Tawas to Louis Tyler Braddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Braddock of Tawas City, was solemnized at Christ church, East Tawas, Friday, October 15, at seven o'clock in the evening. Rev. Charles E. Edinger officiated.

Miss Deckett asked her sister, Miss Genevieve Deckett to be her bridesmaid. Bard Priddy of Chicago acted as best man.

Mrs. Leon M. Abbey of Flint played the Wedding March from Lohengrin as professional and the Mendelssohn Wedding March as recessional. Miss Elsie Ahonen of East Tawas sang "Oh Promise Me" immediately preceding the ceremony. Seating the people were Clyde Evril and Ted Dimmick.

Miss Deckett is a graduate of East Tawas high school and Mr. Braddock of Tawas City high school and Alma college.

Out of town guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Braddock for the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Abbey and children, Gilbert, James and Virginia, Miss Patricia Braddock of Kalamazoo, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rea and children, David and Janet, of Port Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Bard Priddy of Chicago and Miss Anne M. Brown of Ithaca.

VanWormer-Bowron

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jewell of Clio was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, when Irah VanWormer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. VanWormer of Hale, became the bride of Raymond Bowron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowron of Linden.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Dibley of Lansing, uncle of the bride. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. VanWormer.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Upton of Port Arthur, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tetreau of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tetreau of Mt. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Evert Green and Mrs. Ethel Green of Bad Ax, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowron of Linden, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Bowron of Flint, Horace Thurston of Adrian college, Robinson and Virginia VanWormer, Norman Miller and Betty Huber of Toledo, Ohio, Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Dibley and daughter, Margaret of Lansing, Aaron VanWormer of Flint, Mrs. DeLois Allen, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. VanWormer and family of Hale. The young couple will reside in Flint.

IOSCO SHEEP GROWERS WILL MEET OCT. 20

Meeting Will be Held at Bentley Ranch, Reno Township

The ram truck, a project sponsored partly by the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders Association and Animal Husbandry Extension Division of Michigan State College, will be at the Bentley Ranch, five miles north of Whitmore, on M 65, Wednesday afternoon, October 20, from 2:30 until 4:30 P. M.

The ram meeting in Iosco County will be feature educational demonstrations and discussions in lamb grading, ram selection, and general flock management at this time of year.

Purebred rams of all of the more common Michigan breeds will be brought in on the truck and will range in age from one year up. All of these individuals have been previously selected at the breeders farms and are consigned by leading breeders throughout the state, who are members of the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders Association.

Considerable interest is being shown in this project in Iosco County and several sheepmen have already placed orders for rams. Individuals answering the description on the order are selected before hand and will be delivered on the truck. These advanced orders were delivered to the Extension Specialist Mr. LaVai through our own local County Agricultural Agents Office.

The quality of the rams will be as good as can be found in the state, although prices are a little higher this year. The general range for yearlings will run from $30.00 to $45.00. Aged individuals will sell as low as $15.00. All rams are sold with registration papers and are guaranteed to be breeders.

Another feature of the day which helps many sheep men is the ram exchange whereby breeders who have purebred rams may bring them to the meeting and either exchange with other owners in the county or for rams on the truck.

Arrangements have also been made with the Michigan Live Stock Exchange to assist those wishing time in financing their ram purchase. In this way it enables sheepmen to buy better rams and pay for them when they sell their lambs or wool.

More Iosco County sheepmen are using purebred rams each year this year producing lambs of a thicker type that are more uniform and fatten quicker thereby reaching a higher market earlier in the season.

Make it a point to attend the meeting, bring your ram along and exchange him to your neighbors who can no longer use his ram or select one of the Ram Truck individuals.

Last year eight rams were placed in Iosco County from the truck and four others were sold by local breeder at the meeting held in Tawas twp.

Twentieth Century Club

The members of the Twentieth Century Club held the first meeting of their club year at the cottage of Mrs. Ira Horton at Sand Lake, on Saturday, October 9, 1937, about twenty members and guests were present. After the business of the day was disposed of a very interesting and delightful program was enjoyed.

In answer to Roll Call each told how she had spent the vacation month, and many amusing facts were brought to light. One lady told of learning to keep house on a farm where she had even made some nice sweet butter, another had spent her spare moments on horseback, and still another had tried to find the largest trees in Michigan, one fact was noted, each lady had spent as much time out of doors as possible.

Mrs. Grace Mark, the new President, gave her address to the members and was answered by the past Presidents, four of whom were present, who told of the club activities and objectives in the years gone by.

Miss Edith Walker, a charter member of the club, was present and gave a few very timely remarks which were enjoyed by all.

After the program a sumptuous supper was served and the ladies left for home declaring Mrs. Horton an ideal hostess.

The next meeting will be held in the club rooms on Saturday, October 16, with the following program:

Roll call—Who's who in Michigan. What Makes Michigan Famous?—Mrs. McGuire.

Michigan Women in Politics and What They Have Done. Mrs. Stevens. What Women Should Know About Voting.—Mrs. Grace Davison.

School Notes

High School

Mr. Chester A. Parkin, representing the safety and traffic division of the Automobile Club of Michigan, showed some "safety films" Tuesday to the students of the Junior and Senior high schools. This was the first high school in northern Michigan to see the second film shown. The number of automobile accidents in the United States are increasing each year, and our own state seems to be among the leaders in this regard. As a result, an attempt is being made to educate the young generation to recognize the folly of the methods which bring such a loss of life.

Dr. M. D. Pirnie, Director of the W. K. Kellogg Bird Sanctuary near Battle Creek, gave an illustrated lecture Wednesday to the students of the seventh and eighth grades and high school. Dr. Pirnie is recognized as one of the leading authorities in the United States concerning bird life. We certainly should feel it a privilege to have him visit us.

JAPAN THE AGGRESSOR

Condemned by Roosevelt and The League, Tokio Is Defiant . . . England and France Prod Mussolini

Edward W. Pickard

SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

America Backs Up League

Denouncing Japan as the aggressor in the conflict in China and accusing Tokyo of violating both the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg-Briand pact, the United States government lined up with the League of Nations.

F. D. R. DENOUNCES JAPAN

President Roosevelt delivering the Chicago speech in which he branded Japan as a treaty violator and lined America up with the League of Nations.

Secretary of State Hull issued a statement to this effect, asserting that Japan's action in China was inconsistent with the principles that should govern the relationships between nations and was contrary to the provisions of the two treaties. It was indicated that the United States would participate in a conference of the powers signatory to the nine-power pact, which was called for by the league.

Fifty member nations of the league voted for the resolution branding Japan as an invader and treaty violator and warning of more drastic action if Tokyo does not mend its ways. China was assured of the moral support of these powers, which agreed to take no action that would weaken China's power of resistance. Poland and Siam refrained from voting.

The Aga Khan, Indian prince who is president of the league assembly, sent messages to the signers of the nine-power treaty and to Germany and Russia, asking them to convene immediately.

These events followed closely upon President Roosevelt's startling address at the dedication of a boulevard bridge in Chicago, which turned out to be perhaps the most important speech he ever has made. Reiterating his determination to keep America out of war, he said: "The peace, the freedom, and the security of 90 per cent of the population of the world is being jeopardized by the remaining 10 per cent who are threatening a breakdown of all international order and law."

He continued: "The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy from which there is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality. . . . We are determined to keep out of war, yet we cannot insure ourselves against the disastrous effects of war and the dangers of involvement."

Japan Still Defiant

In the face of these warnings and threats Japan was defiant. An emergency meeting of the cabinet was called, and spokesmen for the foreign office and the navy declared Tokyo's present "pacification" policy in China would be continued.

"We cannot stay our hands out of respect for a world opinion formed on the basis of dispatches rewritten by Chinese government officials," said a high naval official.

Great Britain's cabinet, studying President Roosevelt's speech, was anxious to learn just how far the United States would go in support of action taken against aggressor nations. The British statesmen remembered how they themselves left Secretary Stimson out on a limb when he tried to stop Japan's seizure of Manchuria; and they suspect that the American people are dead set against being drawn again into foreign intrigues and quarrels.

Germany and Italy both felt that Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were directed against them as well as Japan, and were rather resentful and skeptical. The Nazis recalled President Wilson's failure to pacify the world, and Mussolini's newspaper declared "We fully understand and justify Japanese efforts at expansion." France and loyalist Spain warmly approved Mr. Roosevelt's speech and Mr. Hull's announcement.

Chinese Check Invaders

Reports from neutral observers indicated that the stubborn resistance of the Chinese had brought the Japanese advance to a virtual standstill both in the Shanghai area and on the northern front. Where the Chinese troops have withdrawn they have occupied new and strong systems of defenses. The progress of the Japanese in North China has been rapid but is now slowed up, and the Chinese are ready to meet them on the Yellow river.

Japan's plan to set up an autonomous republic comprising the five northern provinces is revealed in the Tokyo press. The capital is to be Peiping under its old name of Peking.

Britain Prods Italy

Great Britain was determined that Italy should decide promptly whether it would meet with her and France to discuss the withdrawal of volunteers from the civil war in Spain. Mussolini was so informed after Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Eden had conferred with Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London. The Anglo-French attitude was stiffened by President Roosevelt's address and the league action in the case of Japan, and England

Favor for Anarchists

MERCER G. JOHNSTON, of the Rural Electrification administration, led a delegation that appeared before Secretary of Labor Perkins and received her promise to consider a petition to cancel the deportation warrant of two anarchists, Domenick Sallito and Vincent Ferrero of Oakland, Calif. Madame Perkins already has held up the deportation of more than 3,000 alien criminals and radicals on the ground that separation from their families would work undue hardships.

Blow to the C. I. O.

ENTRY of the C. I. O. into industry in the province of Ontario, Canada, was decidedly negative when the voters returned to power the administration of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, increasing its already decisive majority in the legislature. Hepburn, head of the Liberals, is determined to keep Lewis' organization and its organizers out of the province if he can do so legally. The defeated Conservatives, led by W. Earl Rowe, stood for free and open labor affiliation.

Rail Strike Averted

THERE will not be a nationwide strike of railway workers. Such a disaster was averted when the five operating railroad brotherhoods accepted an offer of the companies of a flat raise of 44 cents a day. They and the fifteen "non-operating" unions had demanded a 20 per cent wage increase. The latter already had agreed to a raise of 40 cents a day.

For five weeks Dr. William M. Leiserson, member of the national mediation board, had been holding daily conferences with representatives of both sides.

In announcing the terms of the agreement, Leiserson praised the co-operation of both parties, saying the manner in which they receded from their original positions was the biggest factor in the settlement.

H. A. Enochs of Philadelphia, chairman of the carriers' conference committee, estimated the increase would mean an average raise of 6.6 per cent for the 75,000 workers.

A. F. of L. May Expel C. I. O.

WHEN President William Green opened the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Denver, he was not able to present an optimistic picture of the future of unified labor. The battle with John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. continues unabated, and there are "dogfights" among the unions all over the country, generally concerning jurisdiction disputes or shifting of affiliation.

William Green

If the report of the federation's executive council is adopted, the C. I. O. unions will be finally ousted. The council said in part:

"For two years we have pursued a policy of toleration. . . . All of this has failed. . . . Now the executive council feels that the time has arrived when the American Federation of Labor must meet the issue in a clear-cut and positive way. . . . The issue which created the division in the ranks of labor must be made clear.

"In order to accomplish this purpose the executive council recommends that the convention confer upon the executive council authority and power to revoke the charters of the international unions holding membership in the Committee for Industrial Organization."

Windsor Coming to U. S.

HIS honeymoon being ended, the duke of Windsor intends to take up the really serious things of life, and before long he will come to the United States for the purpose of studying housing and working conditions in this country. This was announced in Paris by the duke's secretary, who said Edward and his duchess would first go to Germany for a similar survey there.

The duke's interest in such matters is no new development, for as Prince of Wales and during his brief reign as king-emperor Edward was notably concerned with the social welfare of his subjects. On many occasions he assailed housing conditions of British workers.

In London it was said the government had given reluctant permission for the duke's American trip in order to avoid an open rupture with him. He resented the close restrictions placed on his movements and, it was rumored, had threatened to return to England.

American friends of the Windsors think they may make their temporary home at "Wakefield manor," near Front Royal, Va., possibly arriving there in November. The manor is the estate of Mrs. George Barnett, cousin of the duchess.

Ed Howe Dies

WITH the passing of Ed Howe of Atchison, Kan., the country loses one of its best-known and best-liked philosophical commentators on current events. He was eighty-four years old and died as he had wished, in his sleep after a day's work. The "Sage of Potato Hill" founded the Atchison Globe in 1887 and retired 37 years later. Thereafter he busied himself with the publication of "Howe's Monthly," which he called a "Journal of Indignation and Education."

"Leap for Life"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Well, sir, we all know that firemen run into lots of adventures. That's all part of a fireman's job. When the gong starts tapping out a signal—well—there's darned well likely to be an adventure at the end of the trip—for somebody. And ten chances to one that adventure falls to the lot of some smoke-eater who goes in with a hose and stays there long after everyone else is out. But today I'm telling you a fireman's story of an adventure that didn't happen at a fire.

William McQueen, of Valley Stream, Long Island, is the lad this adventure happened to. Up to a certain point, this story is just like any other fireman's adventure yarn. It started in with the usual alarm, and the truck rolling out to respond to it. But as a rule the truck gets to the fire before the adventure starts. In Bill McQueen's case, Old Lady Adventure swung her haymaker a few minutes earlier than is her custom, and Bill had his adventure on the way to the blaze.

Bill is a member of the volunteer fire department out in Valley Stream. His dad is also a member of the same outfit—and the way things turned out, that is a lucky break for Bill. They are both attached to the Engine Company Number 2, and the date of Bill's adventure is one he doesn't think he'll ever forget. It was December 29, 1931.

The alarm came from somewhere out on the north side of the town. The men of Company 2 began a scramble for the fire house. In no time at all, twenty men had gathered, and the truck rolled out of the engine house with all of them aboard.

It Happened on a Busy Highway.

The truck ran down the street and made a turn. It was necessary for them to go through a side street in order to reach the neighborhood of the fire. And half way down the side street, they had to cross Merrick road, a main traffic artery that ran through the town, and one of the busiest highways on Long Island.

The truck plunged on down that street, with its siren screaming. The driver was trying to beat the whole doggone world to that fire. But no matter how hard a fellow tries, there always comes a time when he has to fail, and this was one of those times. Truck Number 2 didn't beat anybody to that fire on that December day. As a matter of fact, it didn't get there at all.

The truck was approaching Merrick road and the driver began slowing down. He had to make a left hand turn on Merrick and he began throttling down his motor so he could make it on all four wheels. The engine came to the intersection. "And it was at this point," says Bill McQueen, "that I got my first glimpse of the thing that was likely to be the cause of my death!"

Down Merrick road, about a hundred feet to the left, was a railroad crossing, and beyond that was a speeding car, hurtling along toward the fire truck at a speed of forty or fifty miles an hour.

Bill got a quick glance at that car, and it didn't take him any time at all to figure out that that car couldn't possibly stop in time to avoid hitting the truck. It was just a question of where it hit the truck—and Bill had his qualms about that, too.

How Bill Figured His Jump.

Bill was standing on the running board, on the left side of the truck. Next to him was a large battery box, and behind him, between the battery box and the large rubber suction hose that is carried on all fire engines, stood Bill's dad. Bill gauged the speed with which the two vehicles were going with another lightning glance, and as he did, he came to another terrifying conclusion. As near as he could figure out, that oncoming car was going to hit the truck just about at the spot where he was standing!

The human mind works with the speed of lightning, and it didn't take Bill more than a couple of seconds at most to come to that conclusion, but that speeding car was moving almost as fast as a man's mind can think, and a hundred feet or so is no great distance. The car was almost on top of him now, and there was neither the time nor the opportunity to get off that running board and out of the way. And it was then that Bill's mind did some more fast and furious thinking.

"There I was," he says, "directly in the path of certain death. I could jump off the truck and take my chances on being able to dodge that car, or stay where I was and trust to luck that I might come out alive. Either way, I couldn't see myself having much of a chance. But there was a third course of action I could take. It was more daring than the other two, but I decided to try it.

Dad's Shoe Helped a Lot.

"As the car roared onward, I braced myself on the running board and began timing the speed of its approach. When it was about three feet away, I leaped for my life!"

Straight ahead, Bill jumped—right over the top of the car. As he took off into the air he felt a violent shove. His dad had reached out with his hand to give him a little extra impetus. Head first over the top of that car he went, and Bill had reason then to thank his lucky star that cars, in this day, are built low and close to the ground. For he just did clear it.

Behind him he heard the crash, as he tumbled over the car and landed in the road on the other side. He picked himself up dazed, and with a bruised knee, but otherwise unharmed, and looked back at the ruins of the fire truck. The part where he had been standing was smashed to bits!

"When I looked at that mass of twisted and bent metal," Bill says, "I couldn't help thinking what would have happened to me if I'd remained there."

Spiders Invented Hinges

Before the Time of Man

In making a home or nest, the trapdoor spider digs into the earth, biting the soil and forcing bits of it upward with her legs. The hole is dug to a depth of several inches, and then it is lined all around with silk which the spider spins.

The lid is made of layers of soil (often sand) and layers of spider silk. It is firmly made, and is of circular shape. One-third or one-fourth of it is fastened to an edge of the hole.

Closing the trapdoor, the spider has a snug home for herself and her young. The top of the trapdoor is covered in such a way that it matches the ground above. Sometimes it is covered with moss.

The trapdoor can be lifted a little bit, so the spider can "peep out" and see whether any insects are close by. If one is in reach, the spider runs out, catches it, and drags it in.

No outside web is spun by the trapdoor spiders, for no web is needed. Enough "game" is obtained by laying in wait.

Trapdoor spiders have enemies of their own, declares a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and must be on their guard against them. We are told that if an enemy tries to lift the lid, the spider clings to it on the side opposite to the hinge. If the enemy is strong enough to lift it anyway, the spider still may be able to escape. Often there is a tunnel from the nest to another trapdoor, and this can be used as a means of getting away.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building

Washington, D. C.

Washington.—It may be, as I have frequently been told, that the average person—Mr. John Q. Public—has very little interest in the doings of the federal reserve system. It may be true that the average citizen accepts the federal reserve banks as a thing apart and of little or no concern to him because they are so far removed and, further, because they indulge in what the demagogues used to call "high finance."

Federal Reserve

Whether my information is correct and regardless of the public concept of the federal reserve system, I am devoting some space this week to a discussion of certain developments in the federal reserve banking structure in an attempt to show the trend of money conditions in this country at the moment. Lately, the federal reserve board of governors announced a revision of its regulations governing discounts and advances by federal reserve banks. Now, it may be said that these regulations affect only the banks that are members of the reserve system. That is true but it is not the whole truth because everything that the federal reserve board of governors and the federal reserve banks do affects you and me and everyone else whether we are little fellows and, therefore, unimportant individually, or whether we are trustees of great sums of money such as is the case with corporation presidents.

The board of governors, in the revision of its regulations, has made it possible—if not obligatory—for the reserve banks to take almost any kind of paper that is an evidence of debt. That is, the reserve banks are now empowered to receive from the member banks that paper upon which you and I borrow, any paper that shows that a citizen owes the bank money, and to give that bank money in exchange for the evidence of that debt. Everyone, of course, is familiar with a note or a mortgage on a piece of real estate. Most people understand about installment paper which is simply a note providing for payment of the amount due over a period of months. But there are many other kinds of evidence of debt that is in frequent use among business men from the smallest storekeeper in a rural village to the greatest banker in the world. Under the regulations now operative in the federal reserve system there seems to be almost no paper which the local banker cannot send to the federal reserve bank and receive cash in exchange. Of course, that obligation must be paid off some time and the arrangement simply permits the federal reserve banks to carry the debt until its maturity.

All of this obviously sounds as though the federal reserve system is at last to be helpful to us little fellows. That is true. It is going to be helpful in increasing the number of us little fellows who get ourselves in debt. It is going to do that because it makes getting into debt easier.

I think no one should object to the reserve board regulations in all details. There must be credit given where credit is needed; that is to say when you prohibit borrowing money you choke off eighty-five per cent of all of the business done in the United States. Yet, credit is dangerous, a double-edged sword and must be handled with extreme caution by the borrowers as well as by the lenders. As we have seen from the inglorious debacle of 1929, there can be too much credit extended, and when I say that, I refer not only to loans by banks but the sale of goods, wares and merchandise that enter into everyday life. And, going a bit further on that line, there can be too much credit extended by the manufacturer and jobber to retail merchandising establishments just as easily as there can be too much credit extended by the retail merchants to you or to me. One can get into debt over his head just as easily by purchasing at retail or wholesale as by buying more land than we can afford to own or a home larger than we need.

So, a discussion of what the board of governors of the federal reserve system has done can lead in this instance only to a conclusion that danger flags are waving. I do not want to exaggerate present conditions or signs as I see them. This is no time to become excited. There are, however, boundaries beyond which we cannot go in the matter of credit without facing another tailspin of the type of 1929. That is the thing I fear may result from an accumulation of federal policies of which the late action by the federal reserve board is only one. It is perfectly human and natural for each one of us to aspire to better things, to have more of this world's goods for our enjoyment and to equip ourselves by way of greater resources for the future. We will do those things sometimes when we ought not to do them simply because the instruments are available and we do not stop to count the ultimate cost. To the extent, then, that the federal reserve board probably has made borrowing easier it has tempted a certain percentage of citizens, or will tempt them in the future.

The condition of easier debt that is now presented is, as I have said, only one of many temptations and inducements for getting into debt that has been offered by the Roosevelt policies. It is unnecessary to recount here how many pieces of legislation, how many executive and administrative rules have been made to permit citizens to use money that is not their own. They are almost numberless. The result has been, is, and will continue to be the creation of a lot of debt that will hang over us all for years to come.

The federal government itself has taken the lead in getting into debt. The latest Treasury statement shows that the United States government owes more than thirty-seven billion dollars. That amounts to $281.63 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Compare that with the national debt as of 1932 when it stood at $19,500,000,000 or a debt of $155.93 for every living person in the United States.

I do not know when, if ever, this gigantic national debt will be paid off.

Pay Off Sometime

Probably the American people with traditional tenacity will stick by the job and get it done some time, but I must refer to the job as a very slow process. It required twelve years after the World War debt reached its peak of twenty-six billion to reduce it by ten millions. That reduction was more rapid than had ever been known before in any nation and it was made possible because of the prosperity which we enjoyed during those twelve years.

It would seem, therefore, that we must consider not only a slowing down of individual debt making, but a sharp curtailment of national debt making as well. If we do not, a yawning cavern of unsounded depths awaits us.

Some weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt sent instructions to the various agencies of the government to save ten per cent out of the operations for the current fiscal year to help in balancing the budget. There were no ifs, nor ands, nor buts about President Roosevelt's instructions. The spending agencies were told simply to lay aside that ten per cent which, in the aggregate, would amount to around four hundred million dollars. The President said during a speech at the great Columbia river dam the other day that he hoped to balance the budget in the next fiscal year. Most other people hope that the President's hope is realized because Mr. Roosevelt has stated several times that the budget will be balanced "next year" and some of us are beginning to wonder whether his budget balancing statements are not like the statements which President Hoover made at the beginning of the depression. He said, you will remember, a number of times that "prosperity is just around the corner," a corner that still seems to be next year.

Budget Balancing

But Mr. Roosevelt must be commended and criticized at the same time for his budget balancing ideas. Mind you, no criticism can possibly be attached to the objective—a balanced budget. But commendation must give way to criticism on some of the things that are happening under the flat order for a reduction in spending.

Take this case for example: The National Park service, like other agencies, laid away ten per cent of its operations. This impounding of money happened to coincide with the greatest flock of visitors ever to enter the gates of the country's national playgrounds. It costs money to police and protect the parks; it requires funds to provide for the comfort of the throngs of visitors to national parks. The result, in the case of several parks, was that they were forced to close their gates to visitors from a week to a month earlier than they usually do in the fall. Their money had run out.

Well, say you, what harm does that do? Simply this: Visitors to national parks, such as Yellowstone, for example, pay much more for entrance fees and the things they must buy while in the parks than it costs the government to maintain the parks.

But that is the crux in this situation. The National Park service does not keep the money that is paid in by park visitors. Those funds are turned directly into the treasury as general revenue. The books of the National Park service, therefore, show only outgo.

The condition is one, therefore, it seems to me, that almost warrants a statement that the policy is "penury wise and pound foolish."

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Minding Your Business.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—A society is forming in England for the defense of the former Edward VIII, now the duke of Windsor and honorary citizen of all places in this country named for the Simpson family.

This society does not hope to restore the duke to the throne. That would not only annoy the archbishop of Canterbury, he already having things to annoy him, such as Americans, but would seriously upset Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who upsets so easily that it seems strange the British never have thought of calling him Reversible Stan. Besides, the throne would be quite crowded if the duke tried to snuggle in there along with the present occupants.

What some of us over here think—and that goes for many Canadians, too—is that England has a crying need for a society dedicated to the broad general principle of minding its own business and suffering the duke and his wife to mind theirs. We have a rough idea that both of them can better endure long-distance snubs than officious meddling in their private affairs. Just being an ex-king is a hard enough job—even if you can get it to do.

Political Afterthoughts.

MASTER ROLLO, aged seven, and city raised, was visiting relatives in the country. On his first morning he came in wearing a worried cast of countenance.

"Mother," he said, "I've been out under the mulberry trees."
"Yes."
"Mother, do mulberries have hard backs and six legs and crawl around on the ground?"

"Why, certainly not."
"Then, Mother," said Rollo in stricken tones, "I feel I have made a dreadful mistake."
What's the point? Oh nothing, only I got to imagining what the brooding regrets of some members of the administration and a majority of the members of the senate must be when they recall the alacrity with which they moved to fill a certain recent vacancy in a certain very high court—in fact, the highest one we've got.

Hirsute Virility.

PARISIAN boulevardiers believe a dense arboreal effect of whiskers is proof that the wearer is indeed a man, without, in all cases, being absolutely convincing about it. We haven't gone that far yet, but I would like to know whence comes this notion of appraising masculine vigor by the amount of hair along the breast-bone? Morbid, I call it. Two distinguished authors battle when one intimates the other is scantily adorned in that regard, forgetting that, in the immature summer petage of his kind, an author has but a scanty growth as compared with the richer winter coat. And then prying reporters ask the new glamor prince of the movies whether he has any fleece at all upon his chest, their tone indicating they rather expected to find trailing arbutus there, or at least some shy anemone.

Years ago in the hospital, when I was being shorn for an operation I remember remarking to myself that here was the only barber who'd ever worked on me without trying to sell me a bottle of hair tonic.

Miss America—1937.

AT LAST some rational excuse—in moral values, anyhow—has been found for a so-called national beauty contest.

The seventeen-year-old New Jersey girl chosen as "Miss America of 1937" is not going into vaudeville, is not going to make any personal appearances, is not coming to Hollywood for a screen test, is not going to accept a radio contract, is not even going to write her life story for publication. She will return to school and to the normal home life of a well-raised normal girl—that is, unless she changes her mind about it all.

If she shouldn't change her mind, she stands out as probably the sanest young person of her age at present residing on this continent, or should we say, this planet.

If she should change her mind—well, the American populace has been fooled many a time and oft before. Our grandfathers didn't believe human beings ever could fly. Our fathers didn't believe anybody would ever lick John L. Sullivan. Only the other day our United States senators didn't believe their fellow-statesman, Mr. Black of Alabama, could be a Klansman. They thought that low but persistent sound of "Ku-Klux, Ku-Klux" was but the voice of a modest hen.

Fight to Death on Goats Is Being Waged on Hawaii

Ruminants Become Serious Menace to Vegetation.

Honolulu.—A leaf has been taken from the practices of the late Martin Johnson by agriculturalists and United States government officials in the Territory of Hawaii. They have pressed airplanes into service to wage a war to the death against wild goats.

Until recent years the limber-limbed creatures of the high peaks had not been any particular menace in the islands. In fact, to a certain extent, they were considered an asset. They offered a fascinating sport to hunters who found in Hawaii no other game of quite that caliber, unless they trailed the jungles for pigs or went to the island of Molokai for the small species of deer found there. The goats, familiar on every island of the territorial group, were easy to reach but taxed every hunting skill to bring them down.

HERO SWIMS 25 HOURS

Mobile, Ala.—Addley Baker, twenty-five-year-old seaman pictured here, swam a raging sea for more than 25 hours to secure rescue for the crew of the sinking freighter Tarpon, off Panama City, Fla. His heroic work made it possible for a coast guard cutter to save eleven men and recover the body of Capt. W. G. Barrow, who went down with the ship. The crew had life preservers and clung to wreckage, awaiting Baker's return.

It is that wariness which has forced authorities to advance their battle lines into the air.

Normally ranging in the higher elevations, frequently beyond the barriers of almost impassable lava flows, they have in recent years with greater frequency made forays into the lowlands where considerable areas, above the sugar cane plantations, are given over to grazing.

The first encroachment was harmless enough. Paniolas—the island term for cowboys—would see them in scattering groups here and there. Vegetation was lush. There seemed no probable danger of any number of flighty goats stripping the fields on which valuable stock depended for their living.

The "Dying Island."

First warning came from the island of Kahoolawe. Almost uninhabited and aloof from the rest of the group, it had been for years a landmark to residents, known locally as the "dying island," but the significance of that slow death of an island was not generally noticed. Passengers on inter-island steamers and planes had the pinnacled rock pointed out to them. Bare and brown, from its summit constantly drifted a red plume, dust of the disintegrating rock blowing down the trade winds. It was picturesque, a landmark, sufficiently unique to draw the attention of various writers who compared the dying isle to

Planes Carry Bugs to Fight Crop Pests

Chicago.—Bugs are getting free airplane rides now. Not just ordinary bugs, but "soldier bugs," known to the scientific world as Trichogramma. Thousands of them are flying the airlines in big transport ships each week in a war against crop destroying insects.

The "soldier bugs" are egg parasites which attack the eggs of other insects, particularly those of moths which appear on fruit trees, sugar cane and cotton, and exterminate them before they reach the harmful maturity stage.

Girl Born Three Months After Her Twin Brother

London.—The story of the birth of a girl almost three months after the arrival of her twin brother is recorded in "The British Medical Journal."

The mother, who had three times given birth to twins, none of whom had survived, gave birth to the first baby while motoring in the country. The baby was a normal boy just under six pounds, and both baby and mother did well.

Medical advice was sought about three months later, and the mother was told that she might expect another baby. Three days later a girl arrived just under seven pounds and normal in every respect.

1. There has never been a round-the-world airplane flight in that such a flight would require girdling the globe at its greatest circumference, either along the equator or along a single degree of longitude.
2. It takes about 10 minutes.
3. The earth is encircled with more than 300,000 miles of submarine cables, 100,000,000 miles of telephone wires and 5,000,000 miles of telegraph cables.
4. Lebanon, in Eastern Smith county, Kan., is the nearest.
5. It is a substance which appears in many vegetable tissues as a constituent of the sap or cell wall. In making jellies its presence causes fruit juice to solidify.
6. Red fruits and vegetables bleach in contact with tin plate and foods with sulphur content discolor the can just as a cooked egg discolors a silver spoon. The stain is harmless but uninviting.
7. There are about 2,000,000,000 people on the earth, according to the 1930 estimates of the International Statistical institute.

8. There are 6,189 registered hospitals in the United States. There are approximately 29,000 hotels.

9. In 1892 a fusion of industrial workers and farmers known as the Populist party, and roughly comparable to the Farmer-Labor party of today, mustered 1,027,000 popular votes and 22 electoral votes. The vote was about one-tenth of the total vote cast.

10. Yes. At the commencement of the Civil war, John J. Stockton of New Jersey was minister resident at the Vatican.

Mrs. Wm. Allen and daughter, Wilma, and Mrs. Irene Shellenberger attended the wedding of their niece, Miss Delma Ferris, oldest daughter of Mrs. and Mr. Wm. Harris of Bay City, which took place on October 2. Mrs. Allen and daughter returned home on Monday, and Mrs. Irene Shellenberger returning Wednesday. Harvey Shellenberger spent a few days in Flint last week.

Mrs. Alice Abbott is having some repair work done on her home. Bert Harris and Jack Thompson of East Tawas are doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood Streeter entertained Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson and daughter, also Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Yawger for supper Sunday evening.

Mrs. Fox has purchased the Frank Humphrey house on East Main St. She expects to move in soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buck were in Whittemore last Friday afternoon. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boles on the arrival of a little daughter, Patricia Ann. Mrs. Bowles is the former Goldie Shellenberger.

On Thursday evening the Misses Edna Greve and Alberta Dorsey entertained 30 guests at a shower honoring Miss Agnes Clayton. The guests enjoyed the mock wedding and old fashioned dance provided for their entertainment, and presented Miss Clayton with many pretty and useful gifts for her new home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. VanWormer and family attended the wedding of their daughter, Ila, to Ray Bowron, at Clio on Saturday.

Miss Esther Tottingham is in the West Branch Hospital for an operation for appendicitis, her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Slosser returned Sunday from a visit with the former sister at Bradford, Pa. They returned home via Niagara Falls and Canada.

Dale E. Johnson and Miss Agnes Clayton stole a march on their friends when they were quietly married Sunday, October 10, at the home the Rev. Wm. Byler at South Branch. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lentner of Flint. Following the wedding they went to their new home on DuPont St. in Flint. Their many friends extend best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Duell Pearsall, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Brown and Mrs. Clarence Peck are attending Grand Chapter at Grand Rapids.

Misses Hope and Faith Schofield motored to West Branch Wednesday to visit Esther Tottingham. The Misses Laura Johnson and Naoma Wheeler returned with them to spend the week end with Laura's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johnson.

Miss Eleanor Kocher of Bay City spent the week end with her brother, Chas. Kocher.

WILBER

Mr. and Mrs. A. Schreiber of Pontiac spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Schreiber and Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson.

Mrs. F. Baughton of Lansing returned to her home after spending a time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Goodale.

Howard and Charley Cross, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cross, have gone to Bay City where they have employment.

George Davidson of Bay City spent Sunday with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dawes spent Sunday afternoon in Oscoda visiting the latter's brother, who is in the hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Richard Goodale, who is teaching in Petosky, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goodale.

Currency Inflation

Currency inflation is disproportionate and relatively sharp and sudden increase in the quantity of money or credit or both, relative to the amount of exchange business, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News. Such increase may come as a result of unexpected addition to the supply of precious metals, or in times of business activity by expansion of credit through the banks. It may come in times of financial difficulty by government issues of paper money without adequate metallic reserve and without provision for conversion into standard metallic money on demand.

LEOPARDS
An old Indian legend says that plants and animals were made to stay awake for seven nights. The first night all the animals kept awake. The next night several dropped to sleep. The third night still more fell to sleep. At last on the seventh night, only the owl, the panther and a very few of the animals still were awake. Therefore these have the power to see and move about in the dark, even the trees went to sleep. Only the cedars, the pine, the spruce, the holly and laurel were awake all seven nights. For that reason they are always green.—The Earth.

A Good Education

A good education is generally considered as reflecting no small credit on its possessor, but in the majority of cases it reflects credit on the wise solicitude of his parents or guardians, rather than on himself.

A Way to Happiness

A healthy body and a contented mind, combined with a clean record and a consciousness of having done justice to others, as well as oneself, go far to make up the sum of true happiness.—Kansas City Star.

La Marseillaise Thrilling
The martial strains of "La Marseillaise" are always thrilling. It was composed by Capt. Rouget de Lisle, a young artillery officer, while quartered in Strasbourg in 1792. He wrote it one winter evening, and sang it the next morning to a group of friends at the home of Baron Dietrich, mayor of the city. It stirred the furor of patriotism whenever it was played or sung. The insurgents of the French revolution assembled at Marseilles marched on Paris to its strains, and chanted it during the attack on the Tuilleries.

"You'll be AHEAD with a CHEVROLET!" FOR 27 YEARS

A True Sentiment

That is a true sentiment which makes us feel that we do not love our country less, but more, because we have laid up in our minds the knowledge of other lands and other institutions, and other races, and have kindled afresh within us the instinct of a common humanity, and of the universal beneficence of the Creator.

IT'S GREAT TO BE BACK AT WORK

when you've found a way to ease the pains of RHEUMATISM and do it the inexpensive way, too.

You can pay as high as you want for remedies claimed to relieve the pain of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, etc. But the medicine so many doctors generally approve—the one used by thousands of families daily—is Bayer Aspirin.

Without Substitute There are three things which no substitute can be found: love, work and character.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

"That bracelet's worth five thousand!" said Cayne. "He sold it for two hundred and fifty!"

"To say nothing of the value of it!" exclaimed Terriss, with what he meant for sympathy. "Okay, Mr. Cayne, I'll go right down there. He's holding it till he hears from me."

"When you bring the bracelet bring me your account and I'll pay it." He sagged down into his chair and swung half round with his back toward them.

Terriss rose and went to the door, then turned and looked back. "And Miss Vincent, here, she's washed up too. Will it be all right for her to get her things and leave, or do you want to make some excuse to Mrs. Cayne and the servants about firing her? You don't want them to know why she was there, I guess."

With an effort Peter Cayne came back to them. "I promised you a bonus, didn't I, Miss Vincent, if you found the thief?"

"I won't take it," said Rachel. "I wouldn't think of taking it. I can't tell you how sorry I am, Mr. Cayne."

"You thought he was a good boy, didn't you? You didn't see any signs? I keep trying to find excuses for him, maybe he wanted to help out some of his friends and didn't want to tell me, he knew I didn't like 'em, they seemed a cheap crowd to me—did he ever say anything that made you suspect?"

Terriss interposed before Rachel could answer. "It was his trying to borrow money of Miss Vincent that gave her the hot tip. And he's borrowed off your servants till they won't lend him any more."

"Mr. Terriss—you shouldn't—" "Oh God!" groaned Peter Cayne. "He tried to borrow from you, Miss Vincent? Did you lend him anything?"

"No—and I wouldn't have told you—" "Better I should know it. I don't want to be shielded by outsiders from what's going on in my own family. This'll kill my mother if she finds it out, she's so wrapped up in him."

"Mr. Cayne," said Rachel, "I'll go up and get my clothes and tell Mrs. Cayne that I've found another job, or that I've been called away by sickness in my family, I'll make some excuse and I'll leave at once, if you don't mind. And please forget about the bonus. I couldn't take it."

"That's very irregular, Miss Vincent," snapped Terriss. "You can't afford to be sympathetic. You're earning your living."

"I'll never earn it in this way again," said Rachel, fervently. She rose, eager to end the miserable interview.

"Don't take it that way, Miss Vincent," said Peter Cayne, dully. "It's better for me to know the whole thing. You did what I wanted, you found the thief. Just don't let Mrs. Cayne suspect anything queer, will you? I'll take care of the rest of it."

"I'll take care," promised Rachel. "Mr. Cayne, please—I don't want to be impertinent, but don't be too hard with Holbrook. Many young people—get strange ideas—and don't consider their parents. I know—I've done it myself."

He did not answer, but made a slight movement of the hand in acknowledgment. Outside the door Terriss spoke severely. "You'd ought to have taken that bonus, Miss Vincent, that's a foolish way to act. He offered it and you earned it. It's not your fault he's got a bad egg for a son."

ive and that means I'm through. I'll go back to posing thankfully." "Well, Louis Vinco'll be thankful, too, I expect. He's been giving me an awful razz about taking you off his work. But look at the profit you might've made. That bonus—"

"They had reached the street. "Good-by, Mr. Terriss," said Rachel, shaking hands with him. "You've been awfully nice. I'm sorry to be such a disappointment, but nothing will change my mind."

"Never speak too final," said Terriss. "Circumstances alter cases, I always say. You got my phone number and if you should reconsider, give me a buzz, that's all."

"Not to ask for a job, Mr. Terriss." As she went on Rachel felt unhappy, yet relieved in spirit. At least this was over. Now there was nothing left to do but get out of the house and forget the whole wretched affair. "I shall have to forget a great deal," she thought, "but most of all I want to forget about her. I don't want to think of her again, I shall try not to remember how she looks or how she acts. I shan't

"I Know About You Now," Said Elinor Cayne.

even remember her name if I can help it. If I ever see her again I'll avoid her. It serves me right for doing this behind Anne's back, and for wanting someone different from Anne. I'll just get away as quickly as I can."

She began to wonder what she could tell Lena and Towers, who had been so good. It might be best to say that she had another place, if she said anything else they would be oversolicitous and perhaps overcurious as well. She devised a possible announcement but she had no chance even to begin it for Towers met her at the servants' entrance fairly wringing his hands, Lena with him in tears.

"Rachel, Rachel, where've you been? The madame's been carrying on like a wildcat. Something's happened. I don't know what, the boy's mixed up in it, too. Something about your cleaning his room, they asked me who'd been in there and I told 'em. But look—Lena and I'll stand by you, don't you let the little brat scare you. We know you're all right. Go on in."

As she started down the hall Lena caught her arm. "You better put on your uniform. She'll be madder yet if she sees you dressed up."

"It doesn't matter," Rachel told them, "I was out looking for another place and I've found one. It doesn't matter how she sees me or what she says."

She went on to the drawing room where she had seen Elinor Cayne and Holbrook for the first time, but today they were not sitting at the tea table. The whole room as she came in seemed filled with their suspense and terror and anger, they themselves were so wrenched and driven by these furies. They pounced at her.

"Did you clean my son's room?" said Elinor. "Did you clean his closet? I know you did. Don't lie to me."

"Yes," said Rachel, slowly, "I cleaned the room and the closet." "You took a paper out of my overcoat pocket!" shrieked Holbrook. "Where is it? Give it back to me this minute!"

Elinor Cayne came close to the girl, she was haggard and desperate. "I'll pay you for it, I'll give you anything you want, I can get money, or I'll give you some of my jewelry. This is very important, Rachel, it may make a lot of trouble for Holbrook—be still, let me handle it, son. Quick, we've got to get this settled before Mr. Cayne comes home, he may be in any moment—quick, Rachel—you must have taken the paper. Give it to me at once—"

"It was a little slip of white paper with some penciled figures on it, in my inside pocket!" wailed Holbrook. Rachel put her hands up to her head, trying to think what to do, what to say. "Why—why do you think—I took anything?" she gasped. "Maybe you lost the paper."

"Towers says you cleaned my room, he saw you in the closet, he told us so. And the paper was there when I went out, I'd just looked at it and the only reason I didn't take it with me is because there isn't any good inside pocket in my camel-hair coat." Holbrook was sobbing now. "I came in and put on my other coat and then the paper was gone. Mother, make her tell us!"

Elinor flung her arms protectively around the boy. "Don't, don't, darling," she begged. "It'll be all right. This girl's got to tell or else I'll have her arrested."

"You'll have me arrested?" said Rachel. "You will have me arrested?" "Nobody heard the door open behind them, but they heard Peter Cayne's voice booming over them. "What's going on here? What's all this?"

Elinor Cayne pushed Holbrook behind her and stood up defiantly. "Peter," she cried, "I want you to send for a policeman. Rachel has stolen my bracelet, the one you gave me a long time ago, the big gold one with the four square sapphires." Her voice faltered, changed into fear. "Peter—what's the matter with you?"

For he had never seen her before. He repeated her words, almost whispered them: "Rachel has stolen your bracelet, the big gold one. Oh Elinor, my poor darling—"

"But she stole it," persisted Elinor. "I don't know what she's done with it, she won't tell me. You ought to send for a policeman—at once."

"No," said Peter Cayne, "we—can't do that. Rachel didn't steal your bracelet, my dear."

"But she did, she did! She's been prying into things ever since she came, she's a horrible person, Peter, she's been impertinent—and—and lazy—and now—she's stolen my bracelet."

"No," said Peter Cayne again, "Rachel didn't take your bracelet. Don't bother about Rachel, she's leaving. And don't bother about the bracelet, my dear, I know where it is, you're going to get it back. I know all about it."

He had spoken very gently, very tenderly, but his words threw Elinor into utter panic. She turned and caught Holbrook in her arms, her lovely face was all hatred and despair, she screamed out her own betrayal: "I don't care—I don't care—it's all your fault—you're to blame—you make me tell about every cent I spend—you're so cruel—so mean—if you bring the bracelet back I'll sell it again—I'll sell every piece of jewelry I've got if I want to—you can't stop me—I'll tell everyone what an old miser you are—I hate you—I loathe you—Holbrook's the only person in the world who loves me and understands me."

"Elinor!" cried Peter Cayne, "stop—you don't know what you're saying! Don't try to shield the boy, I know he did it, I didn't want you to know it—"

"Don't be an old idiot—listen to me! I took the bracelet, I took ever so many more things, rings and old spoons and pins, anything I thought you wouldn't miss, and I sold them to have a little money of my own that I didn't have to tell you about—something to make my life endurable—parties with young people—people I loved being with—I am so sick—so sick of being shut up with an old man like you—his not fair to me—"

"Let me get this straight," said Peter Cayne. "You and Holbrook got together and decided that I was a miser because I wouldn't let you spend my money on parties for Holbrook's friends. Every time you've gone out without telling me, his friends were giving a party, you were paying for it. Is that it? You looked around and took what wasn't likely to be missed and then he sold it to a disreputable fence and you had a good time on the money. My wife and my son!"

His voice was cold now, his eyes hard, but Rachel knew that something within him was dying. "Don't make it sound so dreadful, Mr. Cayne," she begged, shakily. "They didn't realize—"

But Elinor Cayne cut across the plea for pity. "What's this girl got to do with it? What's she doing here anyway? You've banded the servants to spy on us, they all hate me, Towers and Lena and Yates and now this girl."

Cayne went on as if he had heard neither woman. "I wouldn't have believed this unless I'd heard you say so. I—I can't believe it yet. I think you're shielding Holbrook. It was bad enough when I thought he was to blame, but you—Elinor, I don't know, I don't know! You must be crazy."

"It's a wonder I'm not crazy! I'm like a prisoner, everything must be your way, wherever we go and whatever we see it's because you want it! Holbrook, too—never any freedom, never any rights of his own, you force him to do the things he loathes—"

"Well," said Peter Cayne, "if he feels like that and has any guts, why don't he get out and dig for himself? I'd never have put up with being bossed as you say he is when I was his age. But of course you've babied him and spoiled him. He's more like a girl than a boy. I never thought I'd have a sissy for a son."

"Don't dare talk like that!" shrieked Elinor. "Holbrook's a genius, he's like me, he's sensitive, he must have understanding and sympathy and care! What do you know about anything except your hard old business? You ought to be proud of Holbrook—"

Rachel looked at the disheveled Holbrook, clutching his mother's hands, covering before his father. She trembled with something worse than fear. It was the realization that this was her mother, this was her brother and that she innocently had brought them to this pass. "I am watching death," she thought, appalled. "Everything that seemed decent in them is dying and everything Peter Cayne lived for is dying too. And there's nothing I can do, nothing." She went out of the room and down the hall blind with tears she could not hold back.

Elinor's voice was shrilling on, higher and higher, bitter, venomous, mad!

Towers and Lena were down the hall trying to hear what was going on. They wanted to question her but she waved them away. "I can't tell you, it wouldn't be right," she said. "It's all between them now."

Rachel went into her own room, shut the door. She wanted to get away quickly, quickly. Her suitcase was under the bed, she pulled it out and began throwing her clothes into it, but even her hat to escape failed her and she sat down on the one chair and rested her head on the dresser, sobbing.

Someone opened the door and came in and she roused herself to face Elinor Cayne, her face twisted from its beauty, her fair skin blotched with angry red, her blue eyes sharp with fury. Rachel saw these ravages in an agony of pity. "Oh, I am sorry," she said.

"I know about you now," said Elinor Cayne. "I thought there was something queer about you from the first day. I never trusted you and I never liked you. And now I know you were sent in here just to trap me and ruin my life and Holbrook's. I wasn't going to let you leave without telling you how rotten and vile I think you are!"

"Don't," said Rachel, "don't say such things. I can't bear it." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Great Mogul Diamond Kept in Moscow Treasury Building; Is on Exhibition

In an unpretentious room in the Moscow Treasury building there is on permanent exhibition a simple glass case that contains the famous Great Mogul diamond, one of the largest in the world. This priceless stone, formerly called the Orlov in honor of the count who ran many risks to procure it for Catherine II's collection, has a long and colorful history.

tion consists of several thousand precious stones. Massed together now as the property of the U. S. S. R., they embody a history that is so varied and colorful that it seems almost fantastic. Afghanistan rubies bought secretly in China to grace the crown of Empress Catherine, chrysolites gathered from the Red sea by Crusaders, rare emeralds and rubies, diamonds famous throughout Indian and Persian history, all having curious legends of their own, are now set simply in black velvet casings in the treasury museum.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay Heating Expert

Proper Size Coal for Furnace Keeps Fuel Costs Down and Avoids "Ashpit Waste"

HOME-OWNERS can't possibly get maximum economy and efficiency from their heating plants unless they burn the proper size coal. While different sizes can be burned in most furnaces, don't underestimate the importance of using the size—or combination of sizes—best suited to your heater to produce the most heat for the least money.

The size of the firepot in your furnace will, under ordinary circumstances, indicate the most efficient size to use. With a firepot or interior—24 inches in diameter and 16 inches deep, egg size is usually recommended; 18 to 23 inches diameter and 12 to 18 inches deep, stove or chestnut size; less than 16-inch diameter, chestnut size.

Local climate, position of furnace, size of chimney and house sometimes make it advisable to vary these sizes. To be sure of what size coal you use, I would suggest you have your dealer call and advise you which size, or sizes, will give you the greatest heat value at the most economical cost.

Keep Normal Amount of Fat

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

AN OVERWEIGHT woman in her early thirties said nothing to her friends but quietly "dieted"; she practically starved herself for about six weeks. She refused invitations out on the plea that she had a "cold that was hanging on."

Dr. Barton

After her weight had decreased from 170 pounds to 130 pounds she purchased a couple of new "outfits" and accepted the next invitation for an afternoon bridge party.

Naturally she created the sensation she expected to create. The conversation at each table at which she played was about the "return" of her youthful figure and numerous were the inquiries as to how she did it.

"I just didn't eat," was her reply. "I drank a little water, ate an egg once in a while, and remained in bed most of the time because I felt weak after the first few days. But I was bound I'd lose that 40 pounds if it killed me."

And, as a matter of fact, it nearly did kill her. Everything seemed to go wrong; the stomach, intestines, uterus and kidneys dropped downwards and forwards. She spent the next three months in bed and in undergoing two operations. Her fat all came back and she is now "unwieldy" in appearance.

It was just one brief moment of triumph—showing her friends her youthful figure—but she will pay for it always.

Now why did all this occur? Wasn't she better physically to be rid of all this fat which would raise her blood pressure and be a tax on her heart?

Normal Fat Is Needed. Every overweight would be better physically if they were to rid themselves of their excess or "surplus" fat, but every individual—fat, thin or average—needs a certain amount, or a "normal" amount of fat in and on the body.

The normal amount of fatty tissue is very useful in the body not only as a "reserve" food or fuel but as padding about the nerve endings and to buoy up the abdominal organs and keep them in place. Accordingly the very thin person is almost sure to be high strung and nervous, and unless special care is taken to prevent it, the organs are apt to sag out of normal position.

In addition the poorly nourished muscle tissues become flabby and relaxed, including the muscles of the walls of the abdomen and the muscle coats of the intestine.

There is no disease in any particular organ, but the organs are not in their right positions and there is a lack of tone or elasticity in the muscle tissues of the organs; they just do not do their work properly and cause these symptoms of indigestion, constipation and general weakness.

Daily Range of Temperature. One of the mistakes often made by intelligent individuals is to take their temperature from time to time during the day, and count the rate at which the heart is beating. In fact, instruments are now seen showing the blood pressure of any one who wants to spend a dime or twenty-five cents in this manner.

Your temperature, the rate at which your heart beats, and your blood pressure all vary throughout the day, all three being at their lowest or slowest on awaking in the morning. Any little excitement, eating food, taking exercise, will all increase the temperature, pulse rate, and blood pressure. Even the hour of the day and night has its effect upon these measurements, the temperature particularly being at its highest point at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock at night.

We should all remember also that the daily range of temperature in the average individual is about two degrees; thus the temperature may be 97 degrees in the early morning and 99 at 4 p. m. or 8 p. m. and be considered normal. Changes in the pulse rate and blood pressure also are found according to the time of day or the habits of the individual.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for October 17 CHRISTIAN SPEECH AND CONDUCT

LESSON TEXT—James, Chapter 3. GOLDEN TEXT—Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth...

Christian speech and conduct may well be studied in the book of James, for he stresses the importance of works as demonstrating faith. There are two common errors—one is to attempt to be justified by good works apart from faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—the other is to talk about believing in him and then fail to live in accordance with one's profession.

As he enters upon his searching and convicting discussion of the tongue and its misuse the writer distinguishes between 1. Two kinds of talkers (vv. 1, 2). a. "Teachers" (v. 1) who have a peculiar responsibility because they stand as the representatives of God at the sacred desk. It is not a place to be sought after, and the man who fills it at God's call needs divine grace and direction that he may speak the truth.

b. "We all" (v. 2). The speech of every one of us counts either for or against God, even though we may not fill the teacher's chair or stand in the pulpit.

2. A single danger (vv. 3-12). All of us have the one danger—lack of "tongue-control." Developing that thought the text first points out that a. Powerful things need control (vv. 3-5). The horse is a wild and useless animal without the directing and restraining bit. A ship without a rudder will be lost. A tongue needs direction and control, for while a little thing, it is tremendously powerful.

b. An uncontrolled tongue is dangerous (vv. 6-8). How vivid is the imagery of the words before us. A fire spreading and destroying, an untamed animal running wild in all its fury, a deadly poison eating away the life—such is the uncontrolled tongue.

We recognize the truth of these things. We see how vile and careless speech debases man, how words chosen for their power to destroy pour forth from the press, over the footlights, from man to man and literally "set on fire the course of nature" (v. 6).

c. An uncontrolled tongue is inconsistent (vv. 9-12). Again the figure is striking. The fountain which pours forth fresh pure water to sustain life does not at the same time bring forth the bitter brackish water. Fig trees do not bear olives, vines do not bear figs. Nature is consistent and dependable.

But the tongue—ah, that is another matter! How sadly do we confess our failure, for here do we "offend all" (v. 2). We bless God, and defile and destroy man, with the same lips. "These things ought not so to be" (v. 10).

II. Christian Walk (vv. 13-18). The word "conversation" in v. 13 is an English word which now means "talk" but which formerly meant "manner of living."

1. Words and works must agree (vv. 13, 14). It is only right that those who speak of following Christ should prove it in their manner of living. Talk may be smooth and broad in its claims, but the demonstration of its reality and honesty is in the daily walk. This calls for wisdom which is divine—earthly wisdom will not suffice.

2. Earthly wisdom is false (vv. 15, 16). There is a wisdom apart from God. Men of the world are brilliant and able, but scrutinize their wisdom and you will find that it is "sensual"—that is, of the senses—or natural as distinguished from spiritual. All too often it is downright "devilish" (v. 16).

3. True wisdom is from above (vv. 17, 18). Undeified, unselfish, uncompromising, but not quarrelsome or stubborn, impartial and sincere—and "full of mercy and good fruits"—such is God's wisdom for the Christian's life.

Strength Unto Strength The strength of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way too.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Physical and Spiritual Growth We develop physically by acquiring for ourselves; but spiritually we develop by giving to others.—Rutledge.

Opportunities A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.—Bacon.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

For That Nutty Flavor.—Try dropping a teaspoonful of peanut butter into each muffin pan before pouring in the batter. This gives the muffins a delicious nutty flavor.

Storing Linens.—In storing linens for a long period, it is better to roll them, as the material may be weakened by continued creasing.

Bananas as a Garnish.—Bananas make an attractive garnish when they are fluted. Peel bananas, score lengthwise with a fork, then slice crosswise.

Homemade Peanut Butter.—To make peanut butter at home, shell the peanuts, remove the red inner skins and grind the nut meats through a meat chopper, using a fine knife. Return to chopper and repeat until of the desired consistency. Salt slightly to taste.

Cleaning Woolen Clothes.—Dark woolen clothes which pick up lint easily are quickly cleaned by wetting a rubber sponge, then wringing it dry and sponging the garment.

Cleaning Brickwork.—Brickwork around the fireplace can be cleaned by scrubbing with any scouring powder with only enough water to form a thin paste. Follow by thorough rinsing.

Knit Those Patches.—Instead of darning large holes in men's or children's woolen underwear, knit a square large enough to cover the hole in stocking-stitch, using thin steel needles and fine wool, and sew it over the hole. It is neater than a darn and wears better.

Onion Fritters.—Boil 4 large onions until they will mash easily. Cook 2 ounces of rice, drain off the water, and allow to cool. Add 3 ounces of breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoonful sage, salt and pepper to taste, and 2 well-beaten eggs to the onions and rice. Divide into several portions, coat with egg and breadcrumbs, and cook in boiling fat until a light brown.

Egg Savories.—Boil some eggs hard. Halve them and mix the yolks with grated cheese, anchovy paste, or sardines. Add a little butter and seasoning. Fill the halves with the mixture and place on rounds of toast or fried bread. Put a slice of tomato between the egg and the toast.

To Freshen Salt Meat.—Put it into cold water, quickly bring to a boil, then let simmer.

Swank or Modesty of Kipling Undecided

John Shirley-Fox, the well-known British portrait painter, makes this contribution to the vast store of Kipling anecdotes: "In the early nineties, when Kipling's name was a household word wherever the English language went, some one took him to the British embassy in Paris. On being presented to the ambassador he remarked: 'You may know my name, Lord Dufferin; I am the son of Mr. Lockwood Kipling of Lahore.' Lord Dufferin told my father at the time he thought this reply either the biggest bit of swank or the most modest thing he had ever heard."

"Quotations"

A basis for wonder is the orderliness of nature.—Sir J. Arthur Thomson. Thinking is one of the most unimportant amusements of the human race.—Nicholas Murray Butler. A human being is a priceless thing—even when encrusted with mire and sin as to be almost unrecognizable.—Rev. Edu. E. Pothier, S. J. Every day is a new year's day to persons of strong character.—Kathleen Norris.

Great Dane, Boarhound
 The fact that the Great Dane was called the boarhound gives a clue to its early use in Europe. It is generally conceded that this big dog was at one time employed to hunt wild boars, wolves, and bears. The breed survived the longest in Germany because there wild game was preserved after it had disappeared from the forests of England. And after the Danes were no longer used for hunting purposes German royalty kept Danes as companion dogs.

Saltiness of the Seas
 The Dead sea leads easily in saltiness with 25 per cent as its salt content. Next come the Adriatic sea, with a 4.06 per cent; the Red sea, with 3.98 per cent; the Mediterranean, with 3.64 per cent; the Atlantic Ocean, with 3.56 per cent and the Black sea, with 1.75 per cent.

Beavers Are Primers
 Beavers are equipped with oil glands on each side of the body and with toenail combs on their hind feet, and they are constantly preening and priming, when not sleeping, eating, playing or working.—Our Dumb Animals.

China's Climate
 The greater part of China belongs to the temperate zone, only a small portion of the south lying within the tropics. It has what is called an excessive climate, and has a far greater range of temperature than is usual within the same parallels of latitude.

No. 1 Continued from the First Page

Our base ball team played against the Alabaster High School team, Friday, October 8, at the Alabaster diamond and were defeated 8-7 in an eight inning game. Our team started out with good intentions and brought in two runs in the first inning and four in the third. Alabaster changed pitchers and our team did not get any more runs until the sixth inning when Blust came in making it seven all. Wegner held Alabaster to one hit until the sixth inning, when Alabaster got four runs and then two more in the seventh to tie the game. In the eighth inning Trainer brought Benson in to win the game.

Katterman and Cox seemed to be the heroes of the game, both bringing in two runs and Cox hitting a triple in the first of the third inning.

Myrton Leslie has joined the debate squad. Wednesday afternoon members of the debate squad met for their first real practice debate of the season. Kenneth Smith and Harold Ross opposed Bill Prescott, Betty Barre and Frieda Witzke debated against Myrton Leslie, Harold Shover and Gerald Roekle. October 20, two teams selected from the group will debate before the high school assembly. Charts are now being exhibited in the commercial room so that each person in Typing II can watch his efficiency develop. The ninth grade citizenship class decided that one act of poor school citizenship was the throwing of paper around the school grounds. As a result, Junior Musolf was elected by the class to write an article concerning this matter to be placed in the "Highlite" and the "Tawas Herald". Here is the article.

Since the beginning of the school year we have been witnesses to the scattering of paper and other waste materials about the school grounds. This does not improve the looks of our grounds by any means, and have you ever thought what visitors might think if they came here and found our lawn and play grounds scattered with waste paper.

Mr. Giddings' and Mr. Fahselt's combined efforts have failed to keep the grounds free of waste materials. Every school age should make himself responsible for keeping the grounds clean. A piece of paper lying on the lawn should induce a high school student to pick it up although a smaller child has put it there.

Treat the school as you would your home. Why let paper lie about the ground that might spoil its good name? Cooperation among the high school students to tell smaller children of the effort of keeping paper and waste materials off the school grounds will help a lot. Why not be witness herafter to a clean and orderly school ground?

7th and 8th Grades
 Betty Nelson is on the honor roll for the past month. Ruth Giddings and Charlotte Hughes are running a close second and third.

Everyone seems glad about Teachers Institute for some reason or other. At the present writing it is snowing hard. Some are planning on snow balling and some, we imagine, will have clean faces by night-fall.

5th and 6th Grades
 The sixth grade reading class are observing bird nests. At the present time quite a selection, including wren, sparrow, and robin nests, have been brought by the pupils.

In the fifth grade, threading class is collecting pictures to illustrate transportation and ways of sending messages.

Jack Smith has brought a globe to school, and it hoped it will help to improve his geography.

Muriel White has moved to Shingleton.

3rd and 4th Grades
 The following people had their penmanship papers placed on the bulletin board: Janet Musolf, James Roach, Lewis Mark, Billy Ogden, Dwayne Leslie, Willard Timreck, Beverly Bigelow and Ruth Ulman.

We enjoyed the Freshman parade last Friday.

We received our report cards Wednesday afternoon. The fourth grade reading class dramatized the story "Young Americans" Monday.

Primary
 Our report cards have come. Jack Werner is still absent, he is in Pontiac. Helpers and Fairies are reading from their new books. Donald Robers came to our school Monday, he is from East Tawas. Margaret Leitch has gone to Detroit.

Find Old Art in Coblenz
 Old mural paintings and a forgotten crypt under the altar were revealed by renovation of the ancient parish church of Moselweiss, near Coblenz, Germany. The crypt dates from the Twelfth century when the church was built.

Languages of the World
 The languages of the world according to origin, history, and nationality, are placed in the following great groups: (1) Indo-European languages (including Teutonic, Slavonic, Celtic, Iranian, and Indian languages); (2) Chinese and Malay-Polynesian; (3) Caucasian languages; (4) Semitic languages; (5) the non-literate or isolated languages; (6) Japanese and Korean languages; (7) the Semitic languages of the interior of Africa; (8) Bantu languages; (9) languages of the interior of Africa; (10) Dravidian; (11) American Indian. There is another group called "unclassified languages."
