SUPPLEMENT ROAD FUND WITH $2,500

Supervisors Vote To Build New Garage At Court House

At Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Supervisors, now in session, a resolution was adopted to supplement county road funds with $2,500 from the county. The large number of miles of county roads now under control of the county road commission makes maintenance impossible if needed roads are constructed with the funds now available. It is maintained by many that further supplementary funds must be advanced if we wish to keep our present roads in good condition and make the necessary new construction.

In conformance with an act of the 1937 legislature the per diem of supervisors was increased to $5.00. Supervisors have received $4.00 per day for their services during the past few years. It had previously been $5.00.

An appropriation of $200.00 was made to the East Michigan Tourist association. A like sum voted for the Children's Aid society. Appropriations of $50.00 each were made to the Salvation Army and Starr Commonwealth for boys.

The board has voted to replace the old horse barn and wagon shed at the court house with a five car garage. The old buildings required extensive repairs and it was decided that a new building would be more economical.

John Burt of Grant township was elected a member of the county poor commission to succeed Alex Elliott of Oscoda.

The finance and apportionment committee set up the following budget for the coming year which totals $60,000.00:

Circuit court expenses $1,500
Justice court expenses 400
Probate court expenses 650
Mileage and per diem supervisors 2,000

Capt. Anthony Fahselt Given Military Honors

Members of the Flint police department said farewell to a beloved associate and executive Saturday afternoon.

They accorded Capt. Anthony Fahselt, who was head of the traffic bureau, full military honors as they laid him to rest in Sunset Hills.

As the lengthening shadows of the setting sun filtered through the trees shading his final resting place the military band of William G. Haan Red Arrow post, American Legion, played "Abide With Me."

A firing squad of six fellow officers and buglers who sounded taps gave military rites.

Before an audience that filled every seat in St. Paul's Lutheran church, the Rev. Otto E. Sohn, pastor, lauded the Christian qualities in the life of Capt. Fahselt.

"Christianity did not hinder him from advancing in his position," said the pastor. "Christianity made him faithful in his duties and aided him in performing his tasks as he was rising from the ranks to a high position during his 16 years if service to his city."

"Christianity means that a man should be kind and courteous toward all and have malice toward none and charity for all. Anthony Fahselt tried to put that into practice."

He told how Anthony Fahselt as a boy knelt at the altar of Zion Lutheran church in his home city of Tawas and pledged his faith in Christianity, receiving a confirmation certificate on which appeared the memory verse: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

"He kept his faith through his life in this Christianity," said the speaker. "Only recently when he was ill for several weeks he renewed his pledge of his faith. While the end came too suddenly for him to receive the last rites of the church, I am sure those he leaves behind may be comforted by feeling that in his last moments his thoughts went to his God."

During the services Mrs. Dewey Klee sang "Rock of Ages" and "Asleep in Jesus." At the organ was Prof. Albert Wunderlich, who played for the singing and an arrangement of hymns before and after the service.

Massed across the alter rail behind the flag-draped casket were huge banks of floral tributes from his associates, city officials, and various organizations and individuals.

Before the church service at the family home, 1229 Bennet avenue, a brief prayer service was conducted with relatives and a few close friends attending.

A police escort of motorcycle riders conducted the cortege from the house to the church at Mary and Saginaw streets and from there along a route to fifth avenue, Mason street, Sixth avenue and out Flushing road to the cemetery.

At the entrance to Sunset Hills the military formation for the march to the grave was arranged. The colors, followed by the band, the honorary bearers and members of the department formed the escort for

DUCK HUNTING ACCIDENT FATAL TO YALE BOY

Accidental Discharge of Own Gun Causes Death of Charles Drenberg

The people of Tawas were shocked Sunday morning by the accidental shooting and death of Charles Drenberg, seventeen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Drenberg. The accident occurred while the boy was hunting ducks.

Charles, with two companions, were hunting on Dease lake and had just shot a duck. While trying to pull the duck toward him with the stock of his gun, the gun was accidentally discharged. The full charge of the two barrels passed through his right shoulder. The injured boy was taken to Smith hospital at Omer where he died two hours later from a loss of blood. He is survived by the sorrowing parents four brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were held Wednesday from the home of his parents and interment was in the Plainfield cemetery.

The community extends its deep sympathy to the bereaved family.

Fishing Industry Damaged $75,000

High Wind Tuesday Night Creates Havoc In Herring Nets

Wind last Tuesday night and Wednesday, said by old time fishermen to be the most havoc playing on Saginaw bay since 1915, caused more than $75,000.00 damages to the commercial fishing business in the area between Point Lookout and White Fish point.

Fishermen suffering the loss were those who are at this season of the year operating for herring. After several weeks of preparation in driving stakes and setting nets, herring fishing commenced about two weeks ago and the season's output promised to be the best in years.

The season extends into late November, but it was cut short with this week's blow. Nets ready to be lifted with an excellent catch, were filled with moss and torn to shreds. Weeks of work would be required to set new nets and the season would be over before fish production could be started again so extensive herring fishing is ended for the season in this portion of Saginaw bay.

There are nine large operators in this area, employing a large number of men, who were affected, and the curtailed production will be a tremendous loss in addition to that sustained through damaged equipment.

There was a discussion of changing the club day from Saturday to day in the middle of the week. All club members are urged to think about this and be ready to give their decision to the committee when they call on them.

After the business session two splendid papers were read, one by Mrs. McGuire on "What Makes Michigan Famous," and the other by Mrs. Grace Davison on "What Women Should Know About Voting." Mrs. Stevens gave a talk on "Women in Politics." This was educational and proved very interesting and was enjoyed by everyone. It was greatly regretted that so many members were absent, as they missed a splendid program.

The next regular club day will be Saturday, October 30. At this meeting Rev. Anne Pearce Bond of Jackson will give an address entitled "Cathedrals of the Heart." Mrs. Bond gave this address at the state convention last fall and those who heard it thought it was so worth while that it was arranged to have Mrs. Bond give it here. Every member is urged to be present to hear this inspiring message. There will be special music and refreshments.

President Calls for Crop Control Measure and the Regulation of Labor's Wages and Hours

Hull, Davis and Welles Going to Confer With President.

Special Session Called

CONGRESS was called in extraordinary session to start November 15, and immediately afterward President Roosevelt explained in a "fireside chat" over the radio the necessity for this as he sees it. Reporting cheerfully on his western trip, he outlined the legislative program which he declared the American people need to promote prosperity.

These are the five measures he said should be passed without delay:

Crop production control to "build an all-weather farm program so that in the long run prices will be more stable."

Wage and hour standards to "make millions of our lowest paid workers actual buyers of billions of dollars of industrial and farm products."

Regional planning to conserve natural resources, prevent floods and produce electric power for general use.

Government reorganization to provide "twentieth century machinery" to make the "democratic process work more efficiently."

Stronger antitrust laws in furtherance of "a low price policy which encourages the widest possible consumption."

Chairman O'Connor of the house rules committee predicted the house would pass a farm bill in the first week of the session and then take up the wage and hour measure.

Some Democratic leaders said the labor bill, which was passed by the senate in the last session but held up in the house rules committee, would probably be the only one of the five measures to get through congress in the special session.

Even that is strongly opposed by southern Democrats and has been condemned by the American Federation of Labor.

C.I.O. Upholds Contracts

IN A tumultuous session at Atlantic City 150 leaders of the C. I. O. routed a "left wing" movement and went on record in favor of a policy condemning "quickie" strikes, supporting the sanctity of collective bargaining contracts and pledging co-operation in safeguarding the operation of these agreements.

The delegates also condemned recent decisions by the national labor board as being contrary to the provisions of the Wagner-Connelly act by which the board was created and approved a four-point federal legislative program. This program called for a wages-and-hours bill, licensing of all industries operating in interstate commerce, appropriation of sufficient WPA and PWA funds to provide jobs for every American worker, and expansion of the social security act.

No Peace for Labor

WAR between the rival factions in American organized labor is not going to cease in the near future. The C. I. O. leaders gathered in Atlantic City for their first "war council," and John L. Lewis, their chief, revealed plans for setting up a permanent dual organization. He condemned the suspension of the C. I. O. unions from the American Federation of Labor as "cowardly and contemptible" and said those unions considered themselves now out of the federation and awaited any further action by the federation with complete indifference.

May Meet in Brussels

HOW far President Roosevelt is willing to go in the effort to stop Japan in China is what other powers, especially Great Britain, are eager to know. The people of the United States also would like to be informed in that matter. The British statesmen wish America to take the lead, and also they would like the suggested conference of the nine-power treaty signatories to be held in Washington. This latter suggestion is definitely opposed in our capital, and so it was believed Brussels might be selected as the meeting place.

Mr. Roosevelt, who conferred with Secretary of State Hull, Undersecretary Sumner Welles and Norman Davis, his roving ambassador, was represented as being strongly averse to taking a solitary lead in the action to check the Japanese. Apparently he preferred that the "quarantining" of nations guilty of "international lawlessness" which he proposed in his Chicago speech should be limited to a united international moral stand.

In his radio talk the President alluded to the conflict in China rather vaguely, reiterating that "America hates war" and stating that the United States is going to co-operate with the other signatories to the nine-power treaty in an effort to find a "solution of the present situation in China." He did not tell just what he proposes to do, but assured his listeners that he could be trusted to do the right thing.

The National Council for Prevention of War, representing a part of the extreme peace sentiment in the United States, announced that its annual meeting had declared for immediate invocation of the neutrality law which the President has not seen fit to put in operation.

Italy Supports Japanese

THERE was considerable doubt whether Italy would take part in the Pacific treaty conference, but it was assumed that if it did, it would defend the course pursued by Japan in China and would do what it could to frustrate the designs of the other conferees.

This was assured by the message conveyed to the Tokyo government by Giacinto Auriti, Italian ambassador to Japan. According to a Japanese news agency, Auriti promised Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese vice foreign minister, that "Italy will never spare general support to Japan."

Japan Denies Violations

IN A formal reply to the charges of treaty violation the Tokyo foreign office flatly denied responsibility for the Sino-Japanese conflict and asserted that China, not Japan, had violated the treaties. The anti-Japanese attitude and the mobilizing of Chinese troops, said the statement, forced Japan to take military action, entirely in self-defense. Japan disclaimed any desire to annex parts of Chinese territory, and declared the accusing nations misunderstand the situation.

Court Upholds Black

FOR the present, at any rate, Hugo L. Black's seat on the Supreme court bench is secure. The court refused to permit Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, and Patrick Henry Kelly of Boston to contest the legality of Black's appointment. The ruling was announced by Chief Justice Hughes, who said the two men did not have sufficient interest in the litigation.

Ogden Mills Dies

OGDEN L. MILLS, who succeeded Andrew Mellon as secretary of the treasury and for years was a leader in the Republican party, died of heart disease at his home in New York. Besides being a financier, Mr. Mills was an able lawyer and business man and had a fine record as a member of congress. He served in the army through the World war.

Divorce Rule Stands

CHURCH laws against remarriage of divorced persons by Episcopal clergymen stand unchanged for at least three years. Proposed liberalization of the rule was defeated by the house of deputies of the church at the general convention in Cincinnati. The deputies voted to continue for another three years the commission on marriage and divorce, but the question probably will not come up again for a long time.

Brady Gang Wiped Out

LAST of the big "mobs" of bank robbers and murderers, the Brady gang was wiped out in a gun battle with federal agents at Bangor, Maine. Al Brady, the leader, and Clarence Shaffer, Jr., his lieutenant, were killed; and James Dalhovey was wounded and captured. The outlaws were recognized by a clerk in a sporting goods store and the G-men were summoned. Dalhovey was taken to Indiana to stand trial for the murder of a state policeman, one of four killings attributed to the gang. He made a full confession, and search began for persons who had been aiding them.

U. S. Consul Murdered

J. THEODORE MARRINER, American consul general at Beirut, Syria, was assassinated by an Armenian who had been refused a visa for travel to the United States. The murderer was arrested and the police said he admitted having acted for personal vengeance only.

Marriner, who was forty-five years old and a bachelor, was considered one of the most valuable men in our diplomatic service, which he entered as third secretary of the American legation at Stockholm. At one time he was chief of the western Europe section of the State department.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Through a Tropic Holocaust"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Well, sir, fellow adventurers, people have all kinds of troubles in this bothersome old world of ours. You have your troubles and I have mine. Maybe the old spinning ball would be just TOO nice a place to live on if we didn't have our share of adversity to make the sweet seem sweeter and the bright seem brighter still. Anyhow, I have a letter here from Alberta L. Hitchens of New York City, who has had her troubles—plenty of 'em—but who doesn't let them bother her very much. No, sir. Because every time she begins to think her troubles are too much for her, she looks back on that horrible day in Kingston, Jamaica, in January, 1907, and realizes that what looks like troubles to her now don't really deserve the name of trouble at all.

On that fateful day Mrs. Hitchens was sitting in the office of J. Eustace Burke & Brothers, the firm for which she worked. She wasn't Mrs. Hitchens then—just Alberta, the assistant cashier. With her in the office was her boss, her sister—one or two other women who worked there, too. Outside, it was a clear, tropical, sunny day. From overhead came the rumble of machinery in a bottling plant on the floor above.

When the Earthquake Struck.

At 3:30 in the afternoon, a distant, ominous, rumbling sound startled all Kingston. In the office where Alberta worked, however, nobody paid any attention to these sounds. The bottling plant on the floor above was always noisy. Rumbly, rumblings were nothing new to the employees of Burke & Brothers. The first intimation that Alberta had that anything was wrong was when she happened to look up from her work and saw that the wall in front of her desk SEEMED TO BE BENDING OVER!

At the same time, she felt herself suddenly—inexplicably—slipping from her chair. She jumped to her feet. From overhead a shower of plaster fell, littering her desk. All at once, things seemed to be flying in all directions. Then, in a moment, all was quiet again.

In the office, there was a moment of tense silence. Then Alberta heard the voice of her boss saying: "My God! An earthquake! San Francisco all over again!" Alberta took a quick look around the of-

A Tottering Wall Fell With a Crash.

There were five people in it. Miraculously, not one of them was injured. Alberta heaved a sigh of relief—too soon. At that moment the trembling started all over again.

From outside came the sound of a piercing shriek. A woman in the next building! Alberta started toward the door—felt someone grab her by the arm. It was her sister. "Don't go out there," her sister cried. A tottering wall fell with a crash. The woman's voice was stifled.

Terrible Scenes in the Streets.

The boss started to gather up the company's books and put them in the safe. The girls turned to and helped. When that was finished, Alberta and her sister made their way out to the street and started to head for home, down by the waterfront.

The town was a shambles. Buildings were down everywhere. Walls were down—streets a mass of wreckage—debris strewn everywhere. Men, women, children—even animals—were stretched out on the pavement, dead or frightfully injured. Everywhere, cries for help. People pinned under falling buildings—half buried in the wreckage—shouted pathetic appeals for aid that almost drove Alberta and her sister mad with pity.

And to add to the horror, fire broke out—everywhere—and many who could otherwise have been saved had to be abandoned by the rescuers to a living death in the flames.

It was the most harrowing sight two girls had ever seen. They struggled home to find their mother and younger sister alive, but frightfully injured. They had just been dug out from under the wreckage of what had been their home.

Earthquake shocks were still coming at intervals. Alberta and her sister cast about for medical aid for their mother and the little girl. The hospital was miles away—and in ruins. The only safe place left was the sea. They took them aboard a vessel anchored in the harbor and put them in care of the ship's doctor.

There were hundreds of other people on that boat—hundreds of refugees from the stricken city. All afternoon they struggled aboard. Doctors—volunteer nurses came from the town. They turned that boat into a hospital ship for the care of the injured.

Tragedies in a Night of Horrors.

Night came—a night that transformed the city into a red inferno rimmed by the cosmic blackness. Fire flamed up anew in a hundred different quarters. Buildings tottered. Walls crumbled. The shrieks of the victims continued all through the night. Dogs howled in the streets. Fanatics sang wildly. People went insane for no other reason than that which they had seen—and heard.

Terrible scenes were enacted in those grim hours. A father and son were trapped between two walls of a fallen building. Rescuers were striving to get to them. They were almost free, when flame shot through the building, driving the rescuers back. The trapped man's business partner had just time to pass his hand through a hole in the wall—give his friend a last handshake before the flames were upon him and he had to dash back, the cries of his associate and the boy still ringing in his ears.

In the heartrending scenes that went on through that terrible night, Alberta almost lost her mind. Long before it was over, she was a woman moving in a daze. Somehow she lived through it—somehow kept her sanity. And now—

Now Alberta is married. As the mother of three children she has responsibilities—sometimes troubles. But when she has troubles, she looks back at that awful January day in Kingston and wonders what the people who bled and died in that holocaust would think of her feeble little woes.

Monument to the Sea Gull

In Salt Lake City a granite column about sixteen feet high stands on a granite pedestal in a basin thirty feet in diameter. The column supports a granite ball upon which two bronze-gilt gulls are represented as alighting gently. The monument commemorates the saving by gulls of the pioneers of Utah, in 1848, from hordes of grasshoppers that threatened to devour every leaf and blade of their fields. The monument bears the inscription: "Sea Gull Monument. Erected in Grateful Remembrance of the Mercy of God to the Mormon Pioneers."

Why It Is a "Bridewell"

Long ago a hospital was built in London on the site of a former royal palace over a medicinal spring known as St. Bride's Water. This was contracted to Bridewell. After the Reformation, according to London Answers Magazine, King Edward VI chartered the London hospitals to different work. Christ's hospital was devoted to the education of the young, St. Thomas' to the cure of the sick, and Bridewell was turned into a penitentiary for unruly apprentices and vagrants. Thus "Bridewell" gradually slipped into use as a general name for prisons.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—I doubt that there is any phase or function of government that is less understood by the people at large than questions or actions relating to foreign policy. It is easy to understand why this is so. American foreign policy, like the foreign policy of every other nation, is closely akin to patchwork. It cannot be otherwise because of the very nature of the matters to be dealt with officially. Foreign policy, indeed, is one thing to which President Roosevelt's oft-quoted statement about his decisions resembling those of a football quarterback can be most properly applied. It is a day-to-day treatment with new decisions as changes come in the international play.

Our Foreign Policy

This brings us to the President's Chicago speech and the announcement by the State department of American conclusions that Japan is the aggressor in China. Of course, all persons who have read anything about the Sino-Japanese war knew long ago that the Japs were conducting a raid on China. Officials of the government knew it also, but there is a difference and must be a difference in the methods employed by individuals as distinct from those employed by a nation which represents all of its individual citizens. Time had to elapse, therefore, before our government or any other could say definitely and publicly that Japan was seeking to acquire new territory by theft and seizure.

Many observers and many individuals have indicated their surprise at the President's speech which, by the way, was the most distinct pronouncement of any that he has ever made. There was likewise surprise when the secretary of state, Mr. Hull, gave the press his statement condemning Japanese aggression even though the statement should have been anticipated after Mr. Roosevelt's Chicago speech and after word had come from Geneva that the League of Nations appeared unanimous in the same conclusion.

The reason that I say there should have been no surprise concerning the final position which our government has taken traces back to the administration of President Hoover and Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of state. It was at that time that a fundamental change took place in our foreign policy but it was not a change that appeared to be sensational at the moment. In other words, the position which Mr. Hoover and Mr. Stimson took at that time was overlooked because there was no real crisis to attract attention to American policy.

What that change in policy did is plain now. It was the beginning of the end of the isolationist program which followed the bitter controversy over President Wilson's proposal that the United States affiliate with the League of Nations and adhere to all phases of the program embodied in the league covenant. The reaction against Mr. Wilson's plan was violent and carried us to the other extreme—so much so that for a number of years we were a lone wolf among nations in fact as well as in name.

The one thing that really represents an important change of policy that Mr. Roosevelt enunciated at Chicago is his view of neutrality. Without making any particular reference to the neutrality statute enacted last winter under the sponsorship of Senator Pittman of Nevada, Mr. Roosevelt announced without equivocation that the United States will do everything it can, short of military force, to curb the Japanese course in China. That is to say, and I believe it is accurate, we will not invoke the neutrality laws if such a course will do harm to the Chinese. Rather, the American policy for the time being at least involves working hand in hand with other nations that may be striving to maintain international order and morality in matters in which we are directly concerned.

I have been asked several times recently concerning the possibility that the United States may engage in actual war in the Far East. I think that eventually it is very far removed. Possibilities always exist for a nation to get tangled up internationally under conditions such as obtain throughout the world today, yet I do not believe that the United States ever will do more in the Far East than exert moral pressure upon the Japs. It must not be overlooked, however, that the bulk of American sympathy is with the Chinese. One cannot tell how far that may lead us as a nation. Nor is it possible to forecast the weight of this sympathy in an economic way. I mean by that, no one can forecast what such a thing as a boycott of Japanese goods may mean eventually.

Keep Out of Far East War

From all of this it must be plain that our national course in the next few months will have to be determined largely by the other fellow. Or, to state the proposition in another way, the lengths to which the United States will go in punitive action against Japan is likely to be determined, first, by the reaction of our own citizens to Japanese barbarism and, second, the moves by other dominant nations of the world.

Mr. Roosevelt was returning from an 8,000-mile trip when he delivered his Chicago speech. That trip was announced in advance as being for the purpose of an inspection—to see how the country was taking the New Deal. That, however, was not the whole truth. Mr. Roosevelt wanted to feel the public pulse politically on the Supreme court packing proposition and its related questions; he wanted to find out how the country felt concerning those Democrats who had opposed the court packing; he needed information about the demand for an extra session of congress to enact crop control legislation and, in addition, he wanted to see what the general feeling was about the Sino-Japanese war.

The trip was timed admirably. It took Mr. Roosevelt away from Washington and, further, away from the red-hot cauldron resulting from the fact that Associate Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

The information that filters back from observers aboard the President's train presents something of a paradox. Almost unanimously, the observers found that Mr. Roosevelt was still immensely popular personally. Concerning his various programs, including crop control legislation, the observers report that they found conditions ranging from violent opposition to plain apathy or complete lack of interest.

It is a most confusing situation from a political standpoint. I have found few individuals able or willing to attempt an analysis of it. Generally speaking, lack of enthusiasm for a program sooner or later will kill off politically the individual who sponsors the program. Yet, no one will say at this time at least that such a result can be expected in Mr. Roosevelt's case.

But the political effect of his Chicago speech must not be minimized. Whether Mr. Roosevelt so intended or not, his speech demanding that Japan respect treaties and observe the rights of other nations and his pointed criticism of policies such as those employed by Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin, have the effect of rallying the people behind him.

Black Klan Affair

Some persons who are opposed to the New Deal have been mean enough to say that Mr. Roosevelt took his trip West in order to get away from Washington until the incident involving Associate Justice Black had blown over. I do not know whether the exposure that Mr. Justice Black had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan alone prompted Mr. Roosevelt to leave. I repeat only what is being said.

Mr. Justice Black has now taken his seat as a member of the court. He told the country in a radio speech before assuming the robes of office that he had resigned from the Klan and that, as far as he was concerned, the incident was closed. He stooped somewhat, I think, when he tried to dodge the issue by charging that those who had exposed his Klan connections were trying to discredit Mr. Roosevelt. But, Mr. Black is now a member of the court and I do not see what anybody can do in the way of unseating him.

The reason for advertising again to the Black Klan affair is to make a prediction. That prediction is: as long as Mr. Black sits as a member of the Supreme court of the United States, he will receive repercussions of the case. I will wager now that regardless of what position Mr. Black takes in deciding any future litigation, there will be those who will point to him and remark that "he was once a member of the Ku Klux Klan." Likewise, regardless of the views or arguments he advances in any decisions rendered by the court, Mr. Black will be referred to continuously as "the Klan member" or as "the Roosevelt liberal."

Take it any way you like—the appointment and the confirmation of Hugo Black as a member of the Supreme court under the circumstances now known and affirmed by Mr. Black himself constitutes one of the worst situations yet recorded on the appointive power of the President and the power of the senate to approve presidential nominations.

But laying aside all of these things, there is a real tragedy resulting from the circumstance. If there is one branch or agency of our government in which it is necessary for the people as a whole to have faith, it is in the judiciary. I think I can foresee that the Black appointment and its attendant features will shake the faith of many individuals in courts.

The Place of Radio.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF. — "Deke" Aylesworth says radio can never displace newspapers. "Deke" is with Roy Howard's newspapers now and naturally wouldn't care to have his job shot out from under him by a loudspeaker. Most of us feel that way about our jobs, unless we happen to be working in some state institution, such as a penitentiary.

Radio never can displace newspapers any more than milk-tickets can displace milk. The newspaper reader chooses what he pleases from the day's coverage—gratifying obituary notices of people he didn't like; convincing statements from financial wizards explaining why his investments turned sour after he'd bought them on advice of aforesaid wizards; and, about once in so often, exciting special articles about the Hope diamond or the William Desmond Taylor case or the lure of Mr. Robert Taylor. But, the listener in on radio must accept what somebody else already has predigested, which puts him in the same class with tapeworms.

So long as you can't wrap up a picnic lunch in a radio or use short wave sets to line pantry shelves with, we'll have newspapers.

Thanks, "Deke," I'm working for a string of newspapers myself.

The League's New Head.

I TAKE back all I ever said about the League of Nations being as futile as a fly swatter in a saloon brawl. The league has a new president—the Aga Khan, who has the largest private income on earth because 40,000,000 Mohammedans regard him as divine and pay for the privilege, often going hungry in order to do so. And he certainly is qualified to head a society dedicated to peace—he never parted from any of his wives except with the utmost harmony.

Well, to celebrate his election, the Aga Khan gave the most gorgeous banquet ever staged in Geneva—1,500 bottles of champagne and 300 pounds of caviar.

Thus did the league justify its right to existence. There were but few flies in the ointment. Ethiopia's delegates were either deceased or missing, the league having drawn the color line, so to speak, which was more than Mussolini did when he wiped out their country last year. Spain's delegates likewise were absent, being mostly dead or else fighting one another.

Sick Calls De Luxe.

PAT O'BRIEN, the actor, tells this one about an Irish cop at the crossing who waved a car containing three priests to proceed after the stop signal had gone up and then, with harsh words, checked another driver who sought to follow along, too.

"But you let that other car with those three clergymen in it go through," protested the halted one. "They was on their way to a sick call," stated the officer.

"Now wait a minute," said the citizen. "I happen to be a Catholic myself and I know about those things. Who ever heard of three priests going on one sick call?"

For a moment only the policeman hesitated. Then he snapped: "Say, young feller, tell me this, you that knows so much—did you never hear of a solemn high sick call?"

French Slickers.

POLICE are still trying to round up the slickers who, in one day, raided twenty-nine banks scattered all over France. This reminds a fellow of 1931, when the bank examiners were coroners simultaneously sitting on the mortal remains of an even larger number of American banks, the main difference being that these French banks were looted by outside parties.

According to dispatches, this job was accomplished through fraudulent credentials for strangers presenting forged drafts. But I beg leave to doubt that part, remembering when I turned up at various outlying points over there with proper identifications and a perfectly good letter of credit. What excitement then on the part of the cashier (spade beard) and what deep distress for the president (trellis whiskers) and what stifled moans from the board of directors (assorted beavers) when, finally, they had to fork over. Why you can wreck a perfectly good bank here in less time than it takes to get a certified check for $9.75, less exchange, cashed in a French provincial bank.

But should it develop that any of these recently stolen francs were earmarked for payment to us on account of that war debt—brethren, that would indeed be news.

Large Cotton Crops Now
Are Raised in California

Long Staple Variety Grown in San Joaquin Valley.

Fresno, Calif.—Just as rich Imperial valley was "discovered" with the development of irrigation, so is the extensive San Joaquin valley of California becoming the garden spot of the West with an abundance of new crops and lots of water.

Three crops—cotton, flax and sugar beets—are currently being boomed in the valley, already known for its rich harvest of grapes, peaches, figs, plums and citrus fruits.

Long Staple Variety.

Cotton planting has increased so rapidly in recent years that there are hardly enough ginning facilities to take care of the bumper crops. Four years ago, the total acreage devoted to this crop in the valley the acre, which gives a large amount of linseed oil for paints, ink and linoleum. Planting will be doubled or tripled next year.

Sugar Beets Thrive.

Sugar beets grow so well here that large sugar interests are sponsoring heavy planting of beets. The industry has blossomed from practically no planting two years ago to more than 12,000 acres this year. The west side plains, particularly in the area of Coalinga, have proved ideal for beets. This new producing area is one reason why national acreage has jumped to an extent where some of the beets can be used for seed. Formerly all seed was imported from central Europe.

An all-year diversification of crops and ability to use equipment and labor nearly the year-round is bringing prosperity to the San Joaquin valley. In addition to the planting of cotton, flax and sugar beets, total acreages on other crops this year are 375,000 for grapes, 69,000 for peaches, 50,000 for citrus, 35,000 for figs, 20,000 for apricots and 8,500 for plums.

was 195,600 acres. This figure jumped to 203,750 in 1935, 348,500 last year and an all-time high of 600,000 acres this fall.

The chief value of California cotton is its extraordinary whiteness and long staple. The national average length of the staple is seven-eighths of an inch, while cotton grown here averages one and three thirty-seconds of an inch. Only a limited amount of Mississippi delta cotton exceeds it in length.

Virgin soil that has been turned over to cotton is producing heavy yields. Western cotton produces an average of 591 pounds to the acre while the national average is only 200 pounds. This tremendous yield will bring more than $40,000,000 to cotton growers of the valley this year, most of which will be expended in wages, taxes and new planting.

Vast plains that formerly were barren deserts are being plowed up with giant tractors. Deep water wells provide abundant irrigation for the fertile soil. This has produced not only the big increase in cotton but a new development in flax in two short years.

Only a few experimental patches of flax were here in 1935, chiefly on the west side of the valley. More than 8,000 acres were planted in Fresno county alone this year and growers find it more profitable than grain or wheat. Flax yields between twenty and twenty-one bushels to

Sworn To in Court

New York.—The clerk in Darwin, Australia, Supreme court, uses this form of oath, according to a report received:

"Now listen. Want you talka true feller and tella big feller boss on top (the judge). Talk loud altogether men in court want to hear you. Talk true all-a-time, not what other black boy bin tellum you. Talk what you savvy clear alonga your own eye, not what you been hear alonga your own ear."

Because it seems to be binding on the conscience of aboriginals, this oath has come into general use, the report said.

"Wrestling Fish" Spurn

Hooks, but Like to Tussle

Ranger, Tex.—A river of "wrestling fish" is described by W. N. McGlothlin, of Ranger, Texas.

McGlothlin said while he was on a trip to the Big Bend section of Texas and to Old Mexico he saw a group of men and boys one morning fashion a seine from gunny sacks and begin dragging the Rio Grande river. The Ranger man previously had fished the same place with hook and line without success.

The seiners, however, caught more than 400 pounds of edible catfish in a few minutes—a remarkable catch for the Rio Grande.

"The natives told us," said McGlothlin, "that these fish will not bite hooks. They are called 'wrestling fish' and just love a good hand-to-hand fight. They bite, kick and butt, and a recuperative power enables them to live several hours buried in the ground."

Corps Trained in the Art of Cracking Safes

But It's All Part of a Plan to Outwit Yeggs.

Chicago.—There is a building here where men pass their days cracking safes, blazing away with revolvers at window glass, practicing bank holdups and topping things off with sessions in a tear-gas chamber to see how much of it they can take.

Their seemingly criminal occupation is strictly legitimate. They are the staff of the Underwriters' laboratories, a nonprofit organization engaged in protecting law-abiding citizens from criminals and in promoting safety.

Go into the basement. You may see a couple of men hammering a bright new safe all to pieces. The strong box has been sent to them by its manufacturer so they can prove it is all they assert it to be.

The testers know all the tricks a yegg can muster, and probably more. With hammer, chisel, acetylene torch and even nitroglycerin they go at it. If the safe stands then off for a prescribed length of time, it's a pretty sure bet no burglar will be able to open it.

Tests in these laboratories have made automobile construction safer; building materials have been made stronger; fire and burglar alarm systems improved and holdups made more risky.

One of the most trying jobs laboratory assistants have to undertake is the testing of tear gas. And it is one of the most dangerous.

Lowly Hackberry Wins Value as a Timber Tree

Greenville, Miss.—Years ago when the swamps were full of cypress and the hills were covered with pines, lumbermen ignored the lowly hackberry tree.

"Now there's very little left except the hackberry," said Superintendent W. L. Bond of the Greenville State company. "We want all the hackberry timber we can get. We are using the timber in our stove plant, and find it very satisfactory."

The rise of the lowly hackberry to a place of prominence in the cooperative industry came through a new steam-treating process which makes the pithy wood suitable for use.

Ha-Ha! That's a (Bow) Wow!

North Cambridge, Mass.—It must have been a screamingly funny story, if one is to believe the look on this pup's face, as he opens his mouth in a wide guffaw. Nothing he likes better than a good, hearty laugh, says his owner, Mrs. Mabel C. O'Keefe, of this city.

Three Types of Overweight

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WHILE about nine of every ten overweights acquire their excess fat from overeating and underexercising, there is the one in ten that is entitled to the care and treatment that will, to some degree, rid him or her of much of their surplus fat. This one is known as the gland type and the overweight is due to lack of activity of the thyroid gland in the neck, the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull, or, in a few cases, the sex glands—gonads and ovaries. Sometimes there is a lack of activity in two or more of these different glands.

Thus when the thyroid gland in the neck is not manufacturing enough juice there is usually a certain amount or degree of what is called "myxoedema," the name given to a condition where the skin is thickened, dry and rough to the touch, and the perspiration is almost entirely absent. The mind and the senses are blunted, memory is poor, and there are obscure pains in the legs; and all the movements of the body are slow and languid.

"As a result of this lack of juice there follows an increase in the bulk of the body, with a firm, non-elastic swelling of the skin which does not pit when pressed with the end of the finger. The face loses some of its expression. The temperature and pulse are below normal, and there is a tendency toward constipation."

The above description is, of course, for severe cases, but you may see some little part of the above symptoms in all cases where the thyroid gland is not making enough thyroid juice. And in these cases due to lack of thyroid juice, the extra fat is deposited all over the outside and inside of the body.

The Pituitary Type.

The type of overweight when the pituitary gland on the floor of the skull is not manufacturing enough juice is found as often in men as in women and the excess fat is distributed over the shoulders, chest, abdomen, upper arms and upper legs, but not over the forearms and lower legs. The neat, small wrists, ankles, hands and feet are in great contrast to the heavy body, shoulders and hips.

This pituitary type of overweight begins just before puberty (twelve years of age in girls and fourteen in boys) and commonly attracts attention because of the great amount of starch foods—sugar, candy, bread, potatoes, pastry—that the youngsters are able to eat.

Even in this type of overweight the food intake should be reduced, but in addition to cutting down on the food intake, there is another or extra method of reducing and that is by the use of thyroid extract in the thyroid type, pituitary extract in the pituitary type, and the use of both extracts when both glands in the body are not manufacturing enough juice.

Flatulence in Children.

A few years ago when an infant had an attack of gas (flatulence) and colic very little was thought or done about it, except perhaps to give a little "peppermint water," and sometimes, unfortunately, some paregoric or laudanum. Today the mother visits or consults her physician—usually a child's specialist—and asks what change she must make in the diet to prevent the gas symptoms. The modern mother knows that when there is vomiting, pain, belching of gas, constipation or diarrhoea there is something "wrong" with the diet.

These symptoms of indigestion are usually due to excess fermentation in the stomach and intestine which is made worse by food containing too much sugar or too much fat; so the treatment first given is to cut down on sugar and fat.

"Most of the gas in the stomach and bowel is air which has been swallowed. Air is swallowed not only when food is taken but by many infants suffering from indigestion at other times."

These gas attacks and colic, in addition to upsetting the youngster's digestion and causing him to lose weight, also disturb his sleep, thus further reducing his vitality by lessening the number of hours of rest.

While many remedies will give considerable relief in these cases—baking soda, magnesium, peppermint water, tincture of ginger—the best treatment, as mentioned above, is to use a diet that will not cause gas or colic.

Often the youngster is able to expel the gas readily and no treatment or change of diet seems necessary; but, if not, some distension of the bowel takes place and this pressure is what is known as colic.

YOU RELIEF
IN MINUTES

THE REASON
BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.
By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.
This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

YOU can pay as high as you want for remedies claimed to relieve the pain of Headache, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, etc. But the medicine so many doctors generally approve—the one used by thousands of families daily—is Bayer Aspirin—15¢ a dozen tablets—about 1¢ apiece. Simply take 2 Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions.

Usually this will ease such pain in a remarkably short time. For quick relief from such pain which exhausts you and keeps you awake at night—ask for genuine Bayer Aspirin.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness, under the eyes—feet swell, nervous, all played out.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Cause of Hail

Hail, differing from sleet, is not an exclusive by-product of winter. It results when an upward gust of wind carries raindrops high enough to freeze. They fall, pick up more water, are again lifted, frozen. A little more of that and the stones are heavy enough to fall straight to earth.

The most severe hailstorms have occurred in tropical countries. South Africa probably has the most dangerous. Stones weighing more than 1. pounds have bombarded Natal.—Washington Post.

CARRY YOUR ALKALIZER WITH YOU

—HERE'S THE SENSIBLE THING TO DO

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkaliizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. Acid headaches, "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

The Early Bird Gets the Worm
...If he knows where to look!
WATCH a robin on the lawn some sunny morning. A few hops, then a pause. A few more hops, and he listens again. Then, triumphantly, he pulls out a fat, wriggling worm. A silly bird, you would say, if he merely pecked at and there, hoping to strike his lucky.

Reading the advertisements is for you what cocking his head is for the robin. Advertisers tell you just where are the juiciest buys. Cock your eyes on the advertisements in this newspaper. They may have pecking on barren ground.

She thought Rachel was afraid and she went on to childish threats: "I shouldn't think you could. But you're going to hear this and much worse. I'll make it my only object in life to see that you're paid out for this. I'll do as much to you as you have to me, more if I can."

"You've done that already," said Rachel slowly, "just by letting me know what sort you are. I would have given anything to find you different."

"What do you mean?" demanded Elinor. "How dare you talk like that!"

Rachel opened her lips to say it. "But you're my mother!"—she held the four words waiting, unspoken, running them over in her mind, thinking what they might mean to both of them.

"If I tell her . . . how I came here, wanting her, loving her, hoping she would . . . no, I can't do it. I can't. She is not my mother. I was born to her, but that doesn't make her my mother, not really. Anne's my real mother. This woman doesn't want me, she hates me, she'd hate me more if she knew I was her child."

She rose to her feet and looked down at Elinor, putting her away forever, putting her out of her mind, her heart, her poor romantic hopes. "I'm sorry you feel this way, Mrs. Cayne," she said, "but you mustn't threaten me. I'm going." She closed the lid of her suitcase and lifted it from the bed. "I am sorry," she repeated. Again there passed between the two women an obscure message of forces and reasons beyond their words, beyond their knowledge. Elinor felt it and went out without any more bluster and Rachel followed her to the door and watched the little exquisite figure disappear out of her life. She knew she must let her go. And she found in herself a complete willingness that it should be so. As Elinor had let her child go, so now her child let Elinor go, rejected her, denied her.

It was difficult to say good-by quickly to Towers and Lena, they hung on to Rachel with questions and cautions and a genuine wish to help her, their friendliness was embarrassing. "If she won't give you the right kind of a reference, I'll speak to Mr. Cayne," said Towers, "and we'll both go to any registry office and tell the lady in charge of it about you, Rachel. A girl just starting out has a bad time if the mistress is spiteful."

"You don't need to do that," Rachel assured them. "I have a job, Mrs. Cayne can't take it away from me. I'll never forget how kind you two have been, never."

At last she was free to go out into the cold early evening. The only thing she wanted was to be alone. She didn't want to go back to Pink and the apartment right away, she couldn't start in at Vimco's in the morning as if nothing had happened. She must be quiet, she must wait until this stunned and bereft feeling had grown less painful. She must put her world into proper perspective, she must reshape this whole episode in her mind, she was shaken and dazed with its violence. If there was some place she could go—and then she thought, "But of course, the house at Rockboro. Mr. Kreeel's kept it open, I can camp out there a day or two and get hold of myself, nobody'll talk to me, nobody'll bother me. If there's only a train—"

There must be a train, there were always trains to Boston, and if she couldn't find one that stopped at the Junction, she could stay in the city all night and go out in the morning. Or she'd take a bus, there was sure to be some way. She had her suitcase, her shabby warm coat, yes, and enough money. She looked in her purse and hailed a cruising taxi.

Yes, there was a train . . . in about 20 minutes . . . yes, it stopped at Rockboro Junction. "And if I can get that far," thought Rachel, "I'll be all right."

There was a thin surface part of herself that went on with this arrangement of practical matters, she even remembered to send a telegram to Pink, telling where she was going, promising to be back in a few days. Beneath these mechanical impulses she began to feel a dreadful weeping and grief which could not be denied forever.

"If I give way and bawl I'll make a frightful show of myself," she thought, "I must wait, I must hold out." But she could never remember any detail of that trip. Like someone who stilled in a frightful accident who still continues to speak, to move though covered with blood, she went on with the normal behavior of a belated traveler until she had finished the way, getting off the train, walking fearlessly through the cold dark town—it was after midnight—thinking of the last morning when she had gone down that street with Anne, until she reached the house on the dunes. It was dark, unlighted, the door locked, but Rachel knew there was a kitchen window latch which would not hold.

She pushed it up and climbed in. She knew her way up the stairs and then, not to her own room, but Anne's. There she threw off her hat, pulled the dust cover from the bed and lay down on the bare mattress in all her clothes, with her coat for cover. And then at last she could cry. She did not know when her tears stopped and she fell into a deep, dreamless, healing sleep.

Bright chilly sunshine woke her, the room was full of it coming through the shutterless uncurtained windows across the ocean, the reflection from the water giving it a restless white brilliancy, the waves' movement translated into the medium of light. Cold, stiff and cramped, Rachel sat up blinking, hardly knowing at first where she was. Her principal feeling was one of ravenous hunger and there was nothing to eat in the house, she was sure. There wasn't even any water turned on, she couldn't so much as wash her face, and it was very dirty.

Her face in the mirror, streaked with last night's tears over the dust and grime of her journey, was so comical that Rachel laughed aloud. "I am a sight!" she said. "Simply foul! I've got to clean up before I can go downtown and get my breakfast." She had not remembered to wind her watch, so she didn't know what time it was, but she glanced through the side window at the Kreeel house which offered no sign of life so she concluded that it must be very early. No use standing and shivering! She opened her suitcase and found cold cream, scrubbed her face with it, combed her hair, shook her disheveled clothes into better shape and felt infinitely better.

Downstairs it was warmer, there was a tiny banked fire in the living room fireplace and a chair drawn up by the radio indicated the recent presence of Mr. Kreeel. He had left his pad and pencil on another chair, he must have been there the night before, possibly until just before she came. The sun filled this room, too. Mr. Kreeel had kept it clean, though the furniture was still covered with dust sheets and newspapers. And there was the desk where Anne had sat while Rachel had begged to know about her real mother! Rachel walked about the room, remembering.

As she remembered she was conscious that she missed something in herself, she missed the unrest, the foolish feverish purpose that had seized her that very day and driven her into her search for Elinor Cayne and all that had come with it. She knew she had been wise to come here. This house was Anne and Anne was her mother, not the poor vain little creature she had sought.

She couldn't go on thinking about all this, she was much too hungry. Downtown at the drugstore she could at least get coffee, but first, "Well, I am dumb!" she thought, "I can turn on the radio and find the time."

A trickle of music—those thin early morning programs of small hard-working orchestras—and then four warning notes and "Eight o'clock." Eight o'clock! Why, the Kreeels ought to be up and about, but she supposed all Rockboro slept late in winter to rest from the vagaries and exactions of summer people. She smiled at that, it was easy to feel amused this morning.

As she walked down into the town she thought vaguely of what she ought to do, but she would make no plans further than eating an enormous breakfast. It was wonderful to be like this, free and idle and happy! "Nothing on my mind but my hat," she thought, gaily, giving that battered object a more rakish tilt. Every familiar house was a friend. "I never thought I'd be so glad to see Rockboro all by myself!" When she came to Bob Ed-dis' little house she stopped short, she had left him out of her calculations. She turned and gave him door a resounding knock.

"Hello," she said, as the door opened, "could you give a poor but worthy girl a bite to eat?"

"Rachel! What are you doing here?" He drew her in and held her hands in amazement and delight.

"Asking for my breakfast. Mayn't I come in?"

"Of course, but what on earth—"

"Listen, Bob, I'm hungry enough to eat raw fish—oh heavens, I smell bacon—and coffee—do give me some—but if you haven't a lot I'll go on to the inn. I mean, I must have a great deal of food, at once. Get the idea?"

She looked about the room—the bed wasn't made but Bob had bathed and shaved and was in the midst of getting breakfast. The cooking cupboard was open, the stove lit, bacon sizzled and a coffeepot steamed on it. On the table were rolls and butter and an orange. There was a fire on the hearth, too, fresh-made, and the room was deliciously warm.

Bob forked the bacon to one side, broke two eggs in the hot fat and covered the pan so they would cook slowly. Then he turned and deliberately began to make his bed. "I usually air the clothes, but I'll dispense with that this morning since I'm entertaining," he said. "Gee, Rachel, it's grand to see you!"

Rachel drank her coffee and stared about the bare white room and at Bob.

"You're fatter," she said, "or should I say you're not so skinny? You look awfully well."

"You're thinner," countered Bob, smoothing the quilted white coverlet over the bed, "or should I say you're skinnier? And you don't look so well. There, that's in order."

"And you're just as nasty-neat as ever. For heaven's sake, aren't those eggs done? Got any marmalade?"

Bob brought another plate and fork and cup. "Start on a roll if you're fainting away." He took up the eggs and the bacon and set the plate before her with a flourish. "Dig in, my good woman, and when the first wolfish pangs are appeased maybe you'll tell me why you have been brought to beggary and shame. I hope the story is fit for my refined ears."

"I dunno about that. However, you're the librarian and you keep a shelf marked 'For adults only' and I dare say you've read them all. How's the library doing, by the way?"

"We're pretty much in the public eye just at the moment because a group of our local matrons have just got round to demanding a ban on Anthony Adverse—a movement heartily opposed by the youth of the town. Me, I don't take sides, let 'em fight it out, gives them something to talk about in the long winter evenings. More coffee?"

"Lots more!" All very well, she thought, to sit and jape like this, but something was different with Bob. He sounded just the same, he was certainly glad to see her, but there was something lacking—and she couldn't define it. Last summer she had not hesitated to tell him of Anne's story of her real mother and it would have been natural enough to tell him the sequel, only she found that she wasn't going to. It was something in him that had changed. And what on earth could it be! For all he had asked her why she had appeared so suddenly and unexpectedly in Rockboro, she wasn't sure that he wanted to hear any outpouring of confidence from her. And it might be a great deal better to keep it to herself, anyway. She dumped more sugar in her coffee and began to talk.

"I'm sorry there isn't snow on the ground, I wanted to see snow against the sea."

"There's been plenty snow, around New Year's there were drifts so high I couldn't open my front door. We may have more, too."

"I came down," improvised Rachel, cautiously, "to get something out of the house we forgot to take, or rather Anne forgot. Some papers. I daresay it's just as well there isn't any snow. I got in on the late train and went out to the house and slept there last night and it wouldn't have been any fun walking through drifts that distance."

"Why on earth didn't you let me find the papers for you? Or wire me to meet you? I could have come down to the Junction."

"One lie always leads to another," thought Rachel. Then aloud: "I meant to wire you but I only had a minute to catch the train and I couldn't ask you to send me the things because I don't know where they are. I've got to hunt for them. They have," she concluded brightly, "something to do with insurance. Anne's trustee wants them right away."

To her great relief he accepted this tale with no further questions. "It was a fool thing to do, land here after midnight and go walking up that lonely road. I know damn well there weren't any taxis at the station. But you specialize in fool things, Rachel. You like to do them. It's a form of exhibitionism."

"How right you are! How about that marmalade, Mr. Freud?"

"Honestly, I never saw anybody eat such a lot. Disgusting!"

"It's swell. You've been digging into that marmalade yourself, you've left very little for me."

"There's plenty for you. Why are you looking at me that way?"

Rachel giggled. "I was doing a little Freudian stuff myself. You've changed somehow, Bob. It isn't just the fat. What is it? What've you been up to?"

To her astonishment he was embarrassed. "Don't be an utter nitwit," he said, and there was an undertone of real irritation.

"Ah me," she sighed, "I suppose it's not done, eat up a gent's marmalade and pry into his double life. Tell me, what do you think—would Mrs. Duffy admit me and let me take a bath? I'm stinking with dirt and the water's off at the house, likewise the heat. Mr. Kreeel's been going in and out for the radio and had a tiny fire in the living room—"

"Which reminds me that you did no friendly act when you loosed Mr. Kreeel on me. I've eaten 29 different kinds of cereal and been deluged with samples of shaving stuff, soap, perfume, cold cream, and laxatives, all because of Mr. Kreeel's passion for the radio. And now the poor old geezer thinks he's going to win an automobile."

"Maybe he'll give you that, too."

"I think his idea is to escape from the missis and Sister Susie in it and go to California."

"I hope he succeeds. I'm going over to Mrs. Duffy's, Bob. Thousands of thanks for a delicious breakfast. I'll be seeing you when I'm clean again."

"When are you going back to New York?"

"I don't know. This afternoon maybe." As she spoke she was surprised to find that she was ready to go. Last night had broken the spell of her chagrin and disappointment. She had no more great need of solitude, no more great need of reflection. Yet she wondered if she was perhaps more Elinor's daughter than she wished and if she had veered round too quickly to have felt as deeply as she had imagined. "I'll study that out after I've had a bath," she decided. "I don't want to be a flutterbrain. But oh, I'm glad the worst is over!" Aloud she said to Bob: "I'm going to roam around town a bit and say hello to everybody I know, then I'll go back to the house for a while and then I'll drop in at the library and maybe we can have lunch at the tea shop or the inn. Eh, what?"

Insects Popular in Fare of Balinese; Eat Anything That Walks, Swims, Crawls

Balinese food is difficult for the palate of a Westerner. Besides being served cold always food is considered uneatable unless it is violently flavored with a great variety of crushed pungent spices, aromatic roots and leaves, nuts, onions, garlic, fermented fish paste, lemon juice, grated coconut and burning red peppers. It was so hot that it made me, a Mexican raised on chili-peppers, cry and break out in beads of perspiration, writes Miguel Covarrubias, Mexican artist, in Asia Magazine.

Outside of certain religious prohibitions—"human flesh, tigers, monkeys, dogs, crocodiles, mice, reptiles, frogs, certain poisonous fish, leeches, stinging insects, crows, eagles, owls and in general all birds with mustaches!"—the common people of Bali eat everything that walks, swims, flies or crawls. Chicken, duck, pork and more rarely beef and buffalo are the meats most commonly eaten, but the people are also fond of stranger foods such as dragonflies, crickets, flying ants and the larvae of bees.

Dragon-flies were caught in a most amusing manner: Boys and girls wandered among the rice fields waving long poles, the ends of which were smeared with a sticky sap. The supposedly rank-conscious dragon-flies must always stand in the highest branches and all the boy had to do was hold the stick above the place where a fly stood; it flew on to the sticky end of the pole and was caught. Large numbers were obtained in this curious manner, their wings taken off and the bodies fried crisp in coconut oil with spices and vegetables.

Great delicacies are also the scaled anteater, the flying fox (a great fruit bat), the porcupine, large lizards, wild boar, squids, rice birds and all sorts of crayfish.

Household Questions

A Delight for the Children.—Next time your children want a party, cook a cornstarch custard and fill cones. Alternate every spoonful or so with currant jelly and finish with jelly on top.

Orange Fritters.—Separate two large navel oranges into sections. Dip sections in batter and fry in deep fat. Serve as accompaniment to roast lamb or braised pork chops.

Cauliflower and Eggs.—Butter a pie dish and break into it 4 eggs. Half cook a small cauliflower and break into neat pieces. Arrange these round the eggs and season with salt and pepper. Pour over 4 tablespoonfuls milk and place 1 ounce butter in small pieces on the top. Sprinkle 2 ounces grated cheese over, and bake 15-20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Two Buttons and a Hair Pin.—In most cases that's all you need to keep the loose pieces from falling out of a shattered window pane in your home or car. Put one button on each side of the hole in the glass, run the hair pin through the buttons and twist the end until it is tight.

Saves Time on Wash Day.—An old wood plane is just the thing to convert bar soap into shavings that dissolve quickly. Turn the plane upside down over a large jar or other container and work the soap back and forth across the sharp edge.

Good Airing.—When you have the windows open in the morning to air the beds before making, open the clothes closet doors wide and let the current of air run through them. It will prevent them from getting that close stuffy odor so undesired where our clothes are concerned.

To Wash Curtains.—Lace curtains before being washed for the first time should be soaked for an hour or two in cold water to which two tablespoonfuls of table salt have been added. This removes dressing in curtains and makes them much easier to launder.

Lattice-Topped Pies.—Fruit and berry pies with lattice-style tops require less baking time than the regular full-crust toppers.

Random Items Make This Gridiron Show Bit More Confusing

JUST TO MAKE THIS game of football more confusing:

Rio Grande junior college is in Ohio. Dixie college is in Utah. Virginia college is in Minnesota. Kansas has a Pittsburg Teachers' college.

There are three Loyolas (Maryland, Louisiana, California). St. Marys exist in the same proportion (California, Texas and Michigan), not to forget Mount St. Mary's college of Maryland. There are Xaviers in New Orleans and Cincinnati. Iowa has Cornell college and Columbia college to rival the somewhat better-known institutions in New York state.

Purdue in its first seven games plays teams from seven states, meeting Indiana opponents only in its first and last contests. Princeton meets only one New Jersey foe in eight games with teams from eight states. Yale tops them all off, playing no teams from Connecticut, its home state.

Centenary college is playing teams from six states in twelve games, playing in three different states on three successive Saturdays against Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. Penn State plays five Pennsylvania opponents in eight games.

Woodrow Wilsons are becoming a fad. In 1934 the El Paso School of Mines had a W. W. as quarterback and captain. In 1936 Denton Teachers and Ohio U. had Woodrow Wilsons as players, while Army's presidential namesake will be in action again this year.

This indicates that about 1952 the gridiron rosters will be filled with names of "Franklin Delano Roosevelt," Ginsburgs, Schimmelpennings and Bradleys.

Pitt appears to have only five alumni in the head coaching ranks, Jock Sutherland at Pitt, Lloyd Jordan at Amherst, Bill Kern at Carnegie Tech, Harvey Harman at Penn and Jack Harding at Miami. Little Springfield of Massachusetts has at least ten graduates coaching college teams, including Carl A. Davis whose Cortland Teachers college (N. Y.) elevens have lost only two games in five years.

Little College Grads Coach Big Time Teams

Football powers having little college graduates for their coaches include:

Colgate, which has Andy Kerr from Dickinson college in Pennsylvania.

Cornell coached by Carl Snively from Lebanon Valley college.

Louisiana State, coached by Bernie Moore from Carson-Newman college in Tennessee.

Texas, coached by Dana X. Bible of Carson-Newman.

Indiana, coached by Bo McMillan of Centre college in Kentucky.

Southern Methodist, coached by Madison Matty Bell from Centre college.

California, coached by L. B. Allison of Carleton college, Minnesota. California Tech, coached by W. L. Stanton of Dickinson college, Pa.

Brown, coached by D. O. McLaughry of Westminster college, Pa.

California U. at Berkeley is playing 11 games this season and playing the same teams as last year. Bowdoin, Carnegie Tech, Grinnell college and Kansas U. also are playing the same opponents as in 1936.

George Washington has dropped five 1936 foes, including Emory and Henry, Elon, Rice, Davis and Elkins and Catawba. The 1937 Haskell schedule includes seven teams not played last year.

Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwest-ern has a junior college namesake, Waldorf J. C. of Iowa.

"E's" comprise one half of the Drake coach's name, Vee Green.

Colleges that seem to have sought manly names include: Alfred, New York; Alva, Oklahoma; Arnold, Connecticut; Austin, Texas; Edmond, Oklahoma; Hiram, Ohio; Luther, Iowa.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE: HENRY HAMMOND, Chicago Bears end, has had two noses made from his own ribs. He was born without any proboscis and recently the artificial one was broken so badly that another had to be constructed — Middleweight Solly Kreiger is busily seeking the 2,000 signatures which will enable him to enter the Kings County City Councilman race — Bert Nichols, home pro, held the competitive-course record of 69 for 14 years, yet failed to qualify in the Belmont Open — On Thompson street, a bit off Washington square, there is a Di Maggio block. The signs on three stores, side by side, read "Di Maggio, Meats; Di Maggio, Candies and Cigars; Di Maggio, Groceries."

A syndicate of Americans will try to persuade Cubans to go to the dogs next winter. They will operate a greyhound racing track in Havana — Dog men, by the way, marvel at the almost human intelligence shown by Court Jester, who already has won $20,000 in purses. Instead of running to his handler's blanket after races are over as other dogs do, Court Jester proudly parades in front of the grandstand. Receives his acclaim with obvious pleasure, too — Boston's Wonderland park is the busiest dog track in the country, with the average attendance being 16,000 and the average betting being $187,000 for 62 nights — The record dog-racing crowd was the 80,000 at London's White City derby this year.

Carnegie Tech, once a leader in football de-emphasis, has gone back on the big time with a bang. With proper sanction a group of alumni handed out $600 scholarships for outstanding athletic and scholastic ability, thereby giving young Coach Bill Kern some chance to compete in the tough Pittsburgh market. It is just as well that the alumni thought about it, too. The Carnegie schedule contains scarcely a breathing space for the performers.

When Waite Hoyt joined the Dodgers, he thought Hamburger, real name of the club's young road secretary, was a nickname. Hamburger was the clubhouse boy then and players used to send him across the street for hot dogs — Friends say Jackie Kid Berg, the English lightweight who made a fortune in the ring, has blown it all on the races — Matchmaker Johnny Attell hands out cards to boxing fans at Ridgewood Grove requesting them to suggest the matches they wish to be made.

In spite of lukewarm official denials Bostonians insist that Joe Cronin is none too certain of retaining his Red Sox managing job... Open Champion Ralph Guldahl is dicker for a movie contract in England which may keep him out of golf until next summer... Ed Walker, coach of the Mississippi eleven that is coming east to play Temple, starred under Pop Warner at Stanford and is a brother of the Temple frosh coach... Noble Kizer of Purdue, who has had to give up football coaching for a year because of ill health, is improving steadily and plans to visit Chicago before leaving for the South where he and his family will spend the winter.

Croy Celtic, Scottish junior (soccer) club, has a forward line consisting entirely of Quinns. Three of them are sons of the celebrated Jimmy Quinn, who played for Glasgow Celtic and Scotland 30 years or so ago. The other two are Jimmy's nephews — Pat Whelan, former American A. star who coached the celebrated Skiba brothers trio of Brookhatsans fame, is the man who interested Mike Griffin in getting that $85,000 soccer stadium for Bayonne — Philadelphians say that although Temple's Pop Warner looks as though he didn't have a dime he probably is football's wealthiest coach. They add that, although he hates to have it mentioned, he probably gives more money away in a week than the average guy does in a year, often to old Carlisle Indians.

Tony Canzoneri has become a dyed-in-the-wool racing fan... The new Hollywood, Fla., racetrack will ask for the same dates as Hialeah park next winter, and won't there be fun then... Joseph E. Widener, who spends so much time parading his pretty flamingoes at Hialeah that he can devote little courtesy to his paying or writing guests, wishes mean mens wouldn't call him Flamingo Joe... Give a boost to Connie Ballentine. At Princeton they're saying the fellow is another John Weller and may prove even better in the line this fall.

The first inter-sectional gridiron contest between teams from the North and South was in 1889, when Lehigh whipped Virginia, 24 to 12... Yale has had three perfect football seasons... Its 1888, 1892, and 1909 elevens went through the schedule without a defeat or a tie and without having a point scored against them.

Marshall Newell of Harvard, Truxton Hare of Pennsylvania, and Frank Hinkey and Gordon Brown of Yale made Walter Camp's All-American team four years in a row... Marquette tied Notre Dame three successive years—1909, 1910, and 1911—but was overwhelmed, 69 to 0, the following season... Harvard's football stadium is the oldest in the United States... It dates back to November 14, 1903.

Lesson for October 24 CHRISTIAN RENEWAL

LESSON TEXT—Titus 3:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the grace of God that brings salvation hath appeared to all men.—Titus 2:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Good Shepherd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In His Likeness.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A New Life in Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Renewed Life Through Christ.

The pastoral epistles, of which Titus is one, were written by Paul to his young brethren in the faith who had been called to the ministry of the gospel to instruct them concerning three important matters—(1) Church order and organization, (2) sound doctrine and (3) holy living.

The third chapter of Titus, our lesson for today, deals with the life of believers in Christ in their relation to unbelievers. The great underlying reason why Christians should conduct themselves in meekness and humility toward others is that except for God's grace we who bear the name of Christ would be, and indeed were before our regeneration, just like the unbeliever.

We shall best study our lesson, therefore, by considering first of all v. 3 which indicates the lost condition of man by nature, then follow him through the miracle of redeeming grace, vv. 4 to 7, and finally see him as a living testimony in vv. 1, 2, and 8 to 11.

I. Lost—by Nature (v. 3). It is not a pleasant picture that is painted in the graphic words of this verse, but, remember, it is God's picture of the unbeliever. He is said to be "foolish"—that is, irrational and senseless in his course of living. He is "disobedient" to the law of God. He is "deceived," literally "out of the way," misled by Satan. He thinks his pleasures and lusts are serving him, but alas, he is only a slave in bondage to and serving them. Such a life can only result in a man's becoming hateful to his fellowmen. They in turn are hateful to him, and so he hates them. Thus the whole world becomes a hateful place where men are "living in malice and envy."

How we thank God that we need not stop at this point. Man is by nature lost in sin—but he may be

II. Saved—by Grace (vv. 4-7). How sweet are these three words in the sinner's ears! Saved by grace, not works, and made heirs of eternal life.

1. "Not by works" (v. 5). Someone has said that man is determined by one means or another to claim salvation by his good works. To do so may flatter the flesh, but it surely finds no support whatever in Scripture. We are to work for Christ because we are saved, and after we are saved, but no man can be saved by works.

2. "By his grace" (v. 7). God shows his unspeakable kindness and love toward man—saving him by grace, through Jesus Christ. Grace has well been defined as "unmerited favor." We deserve but the just condemnation of our sin, and God in His mercy saves us, through faith in His Son.

3. "Made heirs" (v. 7). Saved now? Yes, thank God! Satisfied? Yes, praise his name! But there is more yet to come. We who deserved only God's judgment are now made heirs of an eternal hope. 'Tis indeed no small thing to be a child of God.

Now—we are ready to approach in the right spirit the admonition to live out our salvation as a daily testimony to others.

III. Witnessing, by Holy Living (vv. 1, 2, 8-11).

The young preacher Titus is told to "put them in mind" to be

1. Subject to rulers (v. 1). True patriotism (and we did not spell it "pay-riotism") stands very close to godly living. National leaders would do well to recognize that the decay of our national life will follow the decadence of spiritual life. A man who is right with God will be right with his fellowmen, and a noble and useful citizen.

2. Meek and kind to all men (v. 2). Meekness is not weakness. Gentleness is the attribute of strong men and women.

3. Maintaining good, avoiding evil (vv. 8-11). It is the tendency of man to divorce morals from religion, to profess a faith which does not touch his daily life. Let us affirm "constantly" and "confidently" (as the R. V. has it) that those who believe in God should "be careful to maintain good works"—yes, and at the same time to "avoid" that which is "foolish," contentious, "unprofitable and vain."

Knowledge and Ignorance
The best part of our knowledge is that which teaches us where knowledge leaves off and ignorance begins.—O. W. Holmes.

Justice
Justice is the idea of God, the ideal of man, the rule of conduct writ in the nature of mankind.—Theodore Parker.

The Test of Truth
The truth makes free, brings joy, hope, encouragement.

Uncle Phil Says:

Laws Are a Retreat
It isn't laws that Americans need to enable them to get along together, but a decent regard for each other.
Truth IS stranger than fiction, but most of the facts about truth never come out.

You cannot often communicate the lesson you have learned by experience.

The hardy pioneer, rest his soul, cut down so many trees that his descendants, bless their souls, now have to restore them for their descendants.

One way to learn patriotism toward your country is to have to live in a foreign land.

A Very Salutory One

The best part of experience is the scares it puts into you. Display windows of a large city are a great expository delight, even if one can't afford many objects he sees or cares not to have them.

Be free with compliments. They cost you nothing, but the surrender of your stiff-necked ill will.

Boys who run away from home usually repent within a week and they have learned a valuable, lasting lesson: that imagination can't be trusted.

87 SPEED RECORDS BROKEN TO MAKE TIRES SAFER FOR YOU

Never Before Have Tires Been Put to Such Gruelling Torture

Ab Jenkins, World's Safest Driver, Establishes 87 New Records for Safety, Speed, Mileage and Endurance... He Drove 3,774 Miles in 24 Hours on the Sharp Granite-like Surface of the Bonneville Salt Beds at Average Speed of 157.27 Miles an Hour

AT SPEEDS as high as 180 miles an hour—with the hot, coarse, abrasive salt grinding, tearing, scorching his tires—Ab Jenkins' special racer, weighing nearly three tons, pounded over the Bonneville Salt Beds at such terrific speed that it caused the surface to break up. Before the end of the run the track was so pitted and rough that it was almost impossible to hold the car on its course. Yet Jenkins set 87 new World, International and American speed records on Firestone Tires.

Building tires capable of establishing such records is made possible by patented Firestone manufacturing processes. These exclusive features enable Firestone to provide car owners with extra safe tires.

For the greatest protection equip your car with Firestone TRIPLE-SAFE Tires. By TRIPLE-SAFE we mean—

1. PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING —The scientific tread design stops your car up to 25% quicker.
2. PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS —The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process contracts internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.
3. PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES —Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread give extra protection against punctures.

Make your car tire-safe for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by letting your Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a set of new FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE Tires—the safest tires that money can buy!

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DRIVE WITHOUT FIRESTONE TRIPLE-SAFE TIRES

Last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children and a million more were injured! More than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires!

Left is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

Right is a section cut from a Firestone Triple-Safe tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tire in this condition is liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

January Floods Reveal Strength of Red Cross

Aid Given 1,062,000 Persons Through Set-Up by Agency

The elasticity and scope of Red Cross disaster work is shown in a recent report on Red Cross relief measures during the unparalleled Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood of this year.

At the height of the emergency Red Cross relief offices were established in 182 inundated counties and in 146 counties where refugees were cared for, the report stated. Eight regional headquarters offices controlled the 328 county offices, and were in turn supervised by the National Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

A statistical summary of persons aided by the organization indicates that the floods constituted the greatest peace-time emergency ever faced by the nation. The Red Cross gave some form of assistance to 1,062,000 men, women and children from January to August hundred; of trained workers helped by thousands of volunteers administered to the sufferers.

A Red Cross rescue fleet of 5400 boats was organized, according to the report. Emergency hospitals established totaled 300 and 3600 nurses were assigned to flood duty. In more than 1,000 refugee centers the victims of the flood were sheltered, clothed and fed. Through the Red Cross medical health program and the work of public health agencies sickness was kept to normal for the time of year in all inundated areas.

Because of its disaster experience the Red Cross was directed by the President of the United States, who is also president of the Red Cross, to coordinate the effort of all federal food relief groups. Government and Red Cross officials met daily at the Red Cross headquarters building in Washington to plan relief measures and prevent duplication of effort.

"We were fortunate in having 56 years of disaster relief experience to call upon in meeting the emergency," Admiral Gary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross, said.

It was found that 97,000 families composed of 436,000 persons had to have their resources supplemented or an entirely new start provided by the Red Cross, the report stated. Red Cross emergency and rehabilitation assistance was as follows: rescue, transportation and shelter for 62,000 families; food, clothing and other maintenance for 193,000 families; building and repair for 27,000 families; household goods for 90,000 families; medical, nursing and sanitation help for 15,000 families; agricultural rehabilitation for 10,000 families; other occupational aid for 3,000 families and other types of relief for 4,000 families.

"Credit for this largest peace-time relief operation in the history of the nation must go to the American people who contributed a Red Cross relief fund of more than $25,000,000," Admiral Grayson said.

During the year the Red Cross gave aid to the victims of 105 other disasters in 36 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia. The Red Cross financed the majority of these relief operations from money contributed through memberships during the annual Roll Call last November, since it is only in case of large scale disasters that a national drive for relief funds is made.

This year the Roll Call is from November 11th to the 25th. The Red Cross seeks a greater membership to meet its disaster relief and other service obligations during 1938.

Last year Red Cross Chapters gave vital help to 120,000 needy families.

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,116 farm families following the severe eastern floods of last winter. Types of aid included feed, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural productivity. More than $599,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families hard hit by the flood waters were rescued, clothed, fed and sheltered by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt out-buildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care were provided and homes re-furnished.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Labor's advocacy of the Red Cross program is attested by recent statements from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"Red Cross aims and purposes are highly commendable and deserving of the support of all classes of people," said Mr. Green.

"The activities and service of the American Red Cross satisfy a great need of the people, and I strongly urge that it receive the unequalled support of all during its annual Roll Call for members," Mr. Lewis said.

School Notes

High School

The Juniors are planning to entertain the Seniors at a Halloween party to be given at the school house October 29. Details of the party have not been announced yet but from the rumors it ought to be a good one.

The debate which was to be held before the high school assembly, Wednesday afternoon was postponed until next week.

The Typing II class was given a new kind of test Wednesday. Results were very encouraging.

One of the best advertisements for our school is the respectful courtesy shown our visitors and persons who address our assembly. Maybe it would pay us to check up on our advertising.

The honor roll for the month of September contained the names of only twelve students. Four are Seniors, three are Juniors, three are Freshmen, and two Sophomores. Of the twelve, nine are girls and three are boys. There were several students who missed out by only one point and it is hoped that they will make the "grade" next month.

The students who had no mark lower than a "B" are: Kathleen Davis, Lucille DePotty, Hazel Herman, Myrton Leslie, Janet McLean, Marion Musolf, Marguerite McLean, Erma Lou Pfahl, Frieda Ross, Harold Ross and Otto Ross.

The Freshmen had the highest scholastic average for the month of September when they attained an average of 2.438. The Seniors had the next highest average with 2.164, followed by the Juniors with 2.113 and the Sophomores with 1.918. The average for the high school was 2.160.

The band will present a concert next Tuesday night, October 26, at 8:00 in the high school assembly room. Besides numbers by the band, there will be instrumental solos, duets, quartets, and a group of selections by the newly organized vocal trio. This is the first appearance of the band this year. Proceeds will go to pay up the balance on the band uniforms which were purchased last spring.

A group of students from the music department are rehearsing a patriotic musical play, "Memories of 1918," to be presented in the assembly room on Armistice Day, 5th and 6th Grades.
