Literary Alliance

One of the most outstanding and interesting meetings of the year was held in the club rooms Saturday, November 13. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Curtis. Mrs. Chase led in the reading of the club collect.

Four names were added to our list of members and two more will be balloted upon at the next meeting.

The Social Committee reported that they were ready to start practicing the play which the club members will give the first week in December. Additional numbers will be secured to make up a full evening's entertainment. Mrs. Wayne Grimm will coach the play.

Mrs. E. Hasty, chairman of the special committee who was appointed to decide upon a Christmas project, said that the arrangements were made for the club to sponsor a community tree. There will be a beautiful tree with a possible 150 lights, Christmas carols will be sung by the various schools in this section of the county and Santa Claus is expected with a well loaded pack.

Social ethics was the Roll Call and thirty two members responded. Mrs. E. Stine quoted passages from Eileen Rancourt's book "Life can be Exciting" which pertained to how people are judged by their speech, she also gave the correct pronunciation of ten commonly mispronounced words. These word lessons are proving very popular. Mrs. Brookins has been appointed to conduct the class at the next meeting.

Our president, Mrs. Curtis gives a tidy bit of something interesting at each meeting. Today she spoke on the unusual happenings and customs in the world.

Mrs. A. Fix played two solos and two piano trios were rendered by Mrs. Grimm, Mrs. Common and Mrs. Danin.

Following the program a delectable lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. H. Bronson and Mrs. B. Brockenbrough.

No Trees in Petrified Forest

There never were live trees where the petrified forest lies in Arizona. Science says that the trees floated into the country on an ancient sea.

Deer Hunting Notes

Many Isoco County hunters have brought in their deer during the past few days, but none were more pleased with their kill than Marjorie Musolf, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musolf of the city. Marjorie shot her deer Tuesday noon a couple of miles from her father's hunting cabin near the Ausable river. She is receiving many congratulations from seasoned hunters and friends on getting a fine 7 point buck. Marjorie is a freshman at the Tawas City high school. She has been an ardent fisherman and small-game hunter for several years.

Mrs. Waldo Leslie (formerly Miss Isabelle King) of Sans Soucie is also a hunter who gets results. She bagged a coyote Tuesday and hopes to get a deer before the season closes.

Samuel Shelik of Port Huron had occasion to rub his eyes Wednesday morning, when after tagging his deer, he saw it take to its heels and nearly get away. A second shot definitely got him his buck. Shelik and George Wilson, also of Port Huron, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brooks of Tawas Point.

Mr. and Mrs. LaLonde of Pontiac are going home shy of one good (?) rifle. Mrs. LaLonde shot her buck. Having been cautioned by her husband not to approach a deer that was down until she was positive it was dead, she fired a second shot when she walked up to the buck. In her excitement she held the gun so close to the ground that the barrel was blown to a condition beyond all recognition. Mr. and Mrs. LaLonde are occupying one of the Charles Bigelow cabins.

Fred Rempert, one of local sportsmen who has not brought in his venison, said yesterday, "Oh, I have seen a lot of good shots during the past few days, but I am waiting for colder weather. No use of bothering John Brugger for space in his refrigerator."

Attorney H. Read Smith neglects his office practice sadly every year during deer season. This year is no exception, but he really expects to bag one this season. He says that practice should make perfect and he has been ten years practicing.

It is rumored that the farmers in the surrounding territory, upon hearing that Joe Pfeiffer, our local hunter, was going hunting, put labels on all their cattle so that Joe would be sure to know a cow from a buck.

Doak-Fairfield

Miss Rua Arlene Doak and Virgil Fairfield, both of East Tawas, were quietly married last Saturday at 6:30, November 13, by Rev. Sommerfield at his home in Tawas City.

The young couple were attended by Miss Ethelyn Allison and Edwin J. Doak, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony the party drove to Bay City for dinner at the Wenona Hotel.

They will make their home in Detroit where the groom has employment.

IN THE WAKE OF FLOOD

This scene was enacted many times in refugee centers established by the Red Cross during the Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood. Inevitably floods bring the danger of disease as drinking supplies become contaminated and large groups of people are thrown together. The medical-health service of the Red Cross serves thousands each year, and is maintained by membership funds contributed to the organization at the time of its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

The local school will sponsor the Christmas seal sale of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association for 1937 in Tawas City. The campaign opens on Thanksgiving and closes on Christmas.

The seals sell at one cent each and is the only means of income for the association in Michigan. More than forty countries have held, or are now holding Christmas Seal sales in order to finance tuberculosis programs. In the United States the annual seal sale is carried on by 2,000 state and local tuberculosis associations, and the National Tuberculosis Association. Each seal carries the double barred cross, world wide emblem of the fight against tuberculosis.

Junior League Club

The Junior League Club held their regular meeting November 11, at 8:00 P. M., at the home of Osman Ostrander. Twelve members answered to roll call and one visitor was present.

The program opened with reports from the committees. An interesting report on "Foreign Affairs" was given by Mrs. Howard Graham. The balance of the program was carried out by each one sewing garments that are to be given to the needy at Christmas time.

A very enjoyable social hour followed given by the hostesses, Mrs. Osman Ostrander and Margaret Hebling.

The next meeting will be held at the city hall, December 9.

COUNTY AGENT EXPLAINS NEW POTATO RULES

Do Not Affect Shipments Sold Within State

"Although Isoco county is not earmarked a potato producing center we annually produce some 100,000 bushels more potatoes than are needed to feed the 8,000 potato eaters who live here," states W. L. Finley, county agricultural agent.

"Because of this excess production which must be offered for consumption outside of Isoco county, and the same situation which occurs in many other counties of Michigan," he said, "we are termed a 'commercial potato producing state' and have fallen into the recently inaugurated potato marketing program.

"This marketing program is administered by a central committee which includes representatives of both growers and handlers of potatoes. The committee were men recommended by growers and handlers who were interested in the 1937 marketing situation and were appointed by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture.

"The purpose of these orders, or marketing agreements, are to curtail, as much as possible, shipments of low-grade potatoes from the states where they are produced to out-of-state markets, at times when there are available more potatoes than the markets can absorb. The 1937 potato crop, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture for October 1, is the fifth largest crop on record, amounting in the United States to about 403,000,000 bushels or some 30,000,000 bushels more than are needed for human consumption.

"Eliminating the low-grade potatoes from normal interstate market channels should generally improve potato prices for producers and will at the same time assure consumers of a better quality potato at comparatively little increase in price.

"Regulations prohibit the shipment to out-of-state markets of potatoes which do not at least meet the requirements for U. S. No. 2 grade, and that under no circumstances shall the size be less than 1 1/2 inches in diameter with a tolerance of 5% by weight. These potatoes must also be inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service who issues a certificate showing condition, size and grade of the potatoes in transit. Isoco county producers and dealers who are entering their potatoes in inter-state trade may have their loads inspected at 1113 Fairwell street in Saginaw, at Edward B. Miller's in Millington, at Richard Hickman's in Lapeer, or at the Market Terminal in Detroit. The potatoes must be graded by a licensed grader and placed in branded bags carrying the dealer's name, address and grade of potatoes.

Potatoes which can not be shipped in interstate commerce because of their grade may still be sold for consumption in charitable institutions and relief organizations, for livestock feed, or for the manufacture of starch, alcohol and flour. Potatoes produced for local sale within the state are not affected by the new marketing rulings, and seed potatoes entering into out of state trade may be exempt from the above rulings under certain conditions.

Observe National Education Week

To commemorate Education Week nationally observed during the week of November 7 to 13, the students of St. Joseph high school presented special programs Wednesday and Thursday, November 10 and 11.

In his opening remarks the chairman, Luke McMurray, stressed the importance of students taking their education seriously. "Education," he said, "must develop all man's faculties—his physical, mental, spiritual—otherwise it is not a complete education."

High points in the program were the history of education and especially its development in America. Horace Mann and his contribution were given due prominence. Methods in modern education were discussed from the view point of the radio and movie factors in education, stressing the great possibilities of these mediums as helps to education, and deploring the fewness of truly educational programs and films.

Balance Budget: Morgenthau

BUSINESS men of America received a cheering message, presumably direct from the administration, delivered by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Secretary Morgenthau

Encouragement for industry and business was stated thus: "The laws should be so written and administered that the taxpayer can continue to make a reasonable profit with a minimum of interference from his federal government."

Moreover, the treasury head went on record as opposed to a continuance of the era of unlimited government spending.

While he urged against tax increases, Mr. Morgenthau suggested that a broader base for income taxes, increasing the number of taxpayers above the present 3,000,000, would be a more equitable substitute for the present federal taxes on consumers—the so-called nuisance taxes.

President's Building Plan

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in a conference with several business leaders, told of his new plan for checking the threatening depression by stimulating private home building by private capital.

One suggestion is that the social security reserve be used for loans for home construction.

The recent decline in residential building is generally held responsible to a large extent for the slump in steel mill activity from 90 per cent of capacity to 40 per cent.

Farm Measure Ready

VOLUNTARY crop control for wheat, corn, rice and cotton; and compulsory limitation of tobacco production, are provided for in the new farm measure drafted by the house committee on agriculture for action in the extraordinary session of congress.

Secretary Wallace's "ever normal granary" plan is included in the bill. The measure also provides for "tariff equalizing taxes" which would be actually a revival of the processing taxes which the Supreme court declared unconstitutional.

For the protection of consumers the bill provides that when prices of the respective commodities exceed parity by 10 per cent the secretary of agriculture shall call outstanding commodity loans, thus releasing stored commodities and in this way preventing excessive prices.

Corn Crop Estimates

PRODUCTION of corn in the United States this year will total 2,651,393,000 bushels, the Department of Agriculture estimated on the basis of November 1 conditions.

Private estimates of the current crop ranged between 2,613,000,000 and 2,710,000,000 bushels, with the average about 2,636,000,000 bushels.

France Buys Our Gold

TWO big shipments of gold abroad were made by the government within the week. The first was $10,250,000 sent to France on the Normandie.

The gold shipments were handled by the stabilization fund and were regarded as an operation under the tri-partite agreement, which binds Great Britain, France and the United States in a "gentlemen's pact" to maintain currency stability.

Ye Council Eats Right Well After Ye Slick Barter

Deer Is Thanksgiving Meal and Indian Is Goat

IF AMERICANS this Thanksgiving are well able to appease both their consciences and their appetites, their moral dexterity is no better than that of their forebears on the town council at Danvers, Mass., in the year 1714.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Supporters of the New Deal, as well as its opponents, are watching a new experiment by President Roosevelt with more than passing interest.

Chiefly because it is something entirely new and not because any one yet can tell what is going to happen, I want to report this week on the President's plan to have his eldest son, James, his No. 1 secretary, serve as a clearing house between the Chief Executive and some eighteen or more government agencies.

It is a big order. But Jimmy, as he is known around here, is a big man, at least physically, because he stands something like six feet, one inch. He is twenty-nine years old.

Undoubtedly, President Roosevelt has started a plan of action that has much to be said in its favor. It has, of course, many possibilities of trouble, and there surely is argument against having the White House secretariat determine policy when the President has been elected to that job.

First, let us recognize that the office of President of the United States is a man-killing job. There is nothing like it anywhere else in the world.

Thus, if there is any way that can be devised to lift some of the burden, it ought to be done. No way has been found heretofore, however, and the millstone continues around the President's neck.

On the other hand, this is a democracy. In the opinion of many persons, there already is too much power lodged in the hands of individuals who were not elected, but were appointed, to office.

All of that is by way of saying that by implementing the relationship between the President and men and women whom he has appointed to office through the insertion of an added wheel of authority, there lie potential changes in all of these governmental policies.

What of the personal side—the feelings of the officials who have to deal with a young man who can speak, to some extent at least, for his father, the President? As I said earlier, thus far none of the conferences have given any indication of disturbed feelings. They may never have any thoughts along this line. Yet, I venture this observation: if they don't resent having the President's son tell them what to do, or not to do, at some time or other, the officials concerned will be unlike most other human beings.

The Department of Agriculture is quite pessimistic about the business outlook for next year.

Business Outlook In a series of reports, analyzing general conditions, which the department issued the other day, it made no effort to conceal its belief that there is something wrong in the business situation far beyond the recent violent decline in the quotations of the stock markets.

These reports and conclusions take on considerably more weight when it is recalled that several other agencies of the government, notably Secretary Roper of the Department of Commerce, have sought vainly to make it appear that business is "good."

Recently, I wrote in these columns how business was as spotted as a leopard; that some firms were making more money than ever before, and how some others were getting by only because the volume was large and faced difficulties if the volume declined.

For example, the agriculture statement predicts that there will be "a less favorable demand for farm products" in 1938 than in 1937.

But from the standpoint of the farmer, the picture is made worse by the department's statement.

Picture Made Worse There has been a rise in production costs of crops and livestock and how, staring the farmer in the face, are more of these increases, adding:

"Along with the higher wage rates, farmers apparently will have to pay somewhat higher prices for farm machinery, automobiles, building materials, equipment and supplies.

The department did not go into detail in explaining these increases in production costs and increases in prices for things the farmer buys. It should have given facts and figures on these for they are basic and the picture is incomplete without them.

The truth of the matter is that federal taxes which have been conceived by the President's brain trust professors and applied without stint or limit to industry are upsetting the whole agricultural as well as the whole business structure of the country.

CADILLAC SQUARE AND BATES STREET

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Growing Cannon Fodder.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—To produce this crop takes time and planning.

First your veterans must grow past fighting age because those who survive the horrors of one war never willingly enlist for another. Meanwhile be sure the women have been bearing children, since children are the seed corn of your future sowing.

As the newer generation grows up dose it on the old reliable P. P. P. formula — parades, pomp, propaganda. Bands and guns and flag-wavings, murderous preachments and manufactured patriotism; they all help to fertilize against the ultimate harvesting.

Befuddle the first-born on dreams of drunken glory. Teach him the neighbor over the way is an enemy who must some day be crushed without mercy. Make him believe his country's destiny demands revenge for old hurts, reprisals for old losses, widened boundaries writ in blood.

And then, in about 20 years, you have a nation ripened for ruin, a race of mothers ready to offer their sons to the slaughter. It's a slow crop, but a sure one, and highly gratifying to professional sword-rattlers and power-mad dictators, to profiteers and financial hijackers.

Let's see, come 1938, it'll be just about 20 years since the last time the world cut its own throat.

Two-Faced Politicians.
SOMEbody says the type of politician who swaps worthless promises before election for the public's confidence—and its votes—reminds him of Janus. Janus was a god with two faces, and the ancients finally got so they couldn't trust either one of them. But it took them a long time to catch on.

Might I be pardoned for thinking of a homelier simile? I'm thinking of the pack-rat of this western country. The thrifty pack-rat slips with stealthy tread into your camp whilst you slumber and carries off something of value. But he doesn't steal it—nothing like that. He merely exchanges with you, you being asleep at the time. He leaves a dry twig behind and totes off a side of meat. He confiscates one of your boots, but, in return, confers on you a couple of dead cactus stalks. His intentions may be honest, but there is no record showing where a pack-rat ever got the worst of a trade. I figure he's part Scotch.

And the profits resulting from his professional dealings certainly may be likened to the career of many a chronic officeholder now flourishing in our midst.

This Man Dewey.
WHEN the Republicans get out the hound-dawgs to run down their 1940 nominee, they might search in the tall timbers of Manhattan island.

There's a young fellow there, the name being Dewey, and he being kin to the great admiral whose deeds crackled at Manila one May day morning like the lightnings on Mount Sinai. He comes of old Yankee stock. He hails from a debatable state, Michigan; lives in a pivotal state, New York. Still in his mid-thirties, he smashed the foulest, sequestered nests of labor racketeers and vice racketeers in America.

He married a sweet Texas girl, as southern as they make 'em. Her grand-uncle was Jeff Davis. My daddy was Jeff Davis' relative, too.

And this young Dewey trained for grand opera. Speaking of this charm thing, think of a President who'd wind up his fireside radio chats singing "Home on the Range."

Yes, sir, the G. O. P. might go farther and fare worse.

Nordic Supremacy.
RECENT events bring to mind a little story of some years back when night-riding patriots in an Arkansas county felt called on, as a sacred duty imposed upon all true Caucasians, to put the Black brother in his place; said place, in at least one instance, being a colored cemetery.

Also, there had been a flood of notices to vacate sent through the mail to members of the African race, followed by unpleasant surprise parties did the recipients fail to heed the gentle warning.

So the community was getting more Nordic by the hour and the sound of the Anglo-saxophone was heard off in the stilly night. That's the scene and the plot. Now for the sketch:

Pelagia Perkins meets Hookworm Hostetter on Main street: "Hooky," says Pelagia, "effen you wuz to git a letter from dese here w'ite shirts, whut would you do?"

"Me!" says Hookworm. "Boy, I'd finish readin' it on the train."

Coast-to-Coast Travel by Airplane Progresses

Service Completely Revolutionized in Decade.

Chicago.—With the recent completion of ten years of commercial coast-to-coast air mail-passenger transportation, the remarkable progress of long distance scheduled air transportation in this country can be realized by contrasting San Francisco-New York mail-passenger plane flights of 1927 with those of today. Ten years ago, the first mail and passengers were flown across the country on a 33 hour coast-to-coast schedule with fourteen stops. Today a three-stop transcontinental trip is flown in 15 hours and 20 minutes.

A decade ago the single-engined Boeings refueled every 250 miles and flew at fairly low elevations where rough air was common, as engines were not supercharged for service. This experiment proved popular.

Service Revolutionized.
In 1933 two hours were slashed from the Chicago-New York time of the obsolete tri-motored planes. Constant speed propellers, automatic mixture control, automatic pilots, additional radio facilities, more powerful and supercharged engines for higher altitudes, instrument flying, and other marked changes in operating practices were in evidence on the airway.

How tremendously long distance travel has been speeded up is evidenced by the schedules during the first decade of transcontinental mail-passenger operations.

In 1927 the flight from California to New York required 33 hours; in 1930 it was 30 hours. Twin-engined planes cut 10 hours off in 1933. This year with Douglas DC-3s and only three stops the time from the higher altitudes and planes were without present-day radio and other instrument aids. The pilots did only "contact" flying—that is, "sight-of-ground" operation or when they could see beacon lights.

These pictures show the remarkable transformation in airplane equipment in the ten years of coast-to-coast commercial air service. Pictures top to bottom with year and coast-to-coast flying time: 1927, 33 hours, single-engined Boeing; 1930, 30 hours, tri-motored Boeing; 1933, 20 hours, twin-engined Boeing; 1937, 15 1/4 hours, twin-engined Douglas.

The 1927 plane weighed three tons. It was a biplane with 40-foot span, cruising 105 miles an hour. The begoggled, flying suited pilot rode in an open cockpit behind. Powered with a 425 horsepower Wasp, later with a more powerful Hornet, these 40's flew with remarkable efficiency for pioneering days. This was the first commercial use of large horsepower air cooled motors, now standard in transport operation around the world.

First Fare Was $400.

The first coast-to-coast air passengers ten years ago paid $400. Passengers rode in a two-passenger cabin between California and Chicago and on the Chicago-New York leg they rode in the mail-pit of a single-engined Douglas and wore a parachute. Today the coast-to-coast fare is less than half—$149.50 for a flight more than twice as fast, with marked difference in comfort and plane performance.

The California-New York route became the longest distance overland flying laboratory in the world. Soon began technical progress that made this nation a leader in airplane design, construction and advanced operating practices. First came the plane-ground voice radio to fill a great need. The directive radio beam supplemented voice-radio to increase efficiency in navigation.

Only a few hundred persons flew from coast to coast in 1927. The following year several hundred more made the single-engined plane crossing, despite relative discomfort of pioneering days and high fares. In 1930 the tri-motored Boeing 80-A was developed to provide more comfortable accommodations for fourteen passengers, the largest most powerful airliner of its day.

This tri-motored fleet pioneered flying of passengers on long distance night schedules. An innovation was the introduction of the stewardess

7-Foot Flowers Are Found in Tropics

St. Louis.—Flowers taller than a man were reported encountered by Paul Allen, manager of the tropical station of the Missouri Botanical gardens at Balboa, Canal Zone, on his return from an expedition into the interior.

The specimen was an Aristolochi, which Allen described as the largest he had ever seen. "In all truth," he said, "this plant had a flower measuring 7 feet 8 inches from the top of the flower to the tail."

DISTANT LANDS TO EXHIBIT AT SHOW

Heavy Entries Seen for International Exposition.

Chicago.—Entries from many states have already been received for the 1937 International Live Stock exposition, which will celebrate its thirty-eighth anniversary as the country's premier agricultural show November 27 to December 4. It will be held in the new International amphitheater at the Chicago Stockyards.

According to Secretary-Manager B. H. Heide, the early entry is the heaviest in the history of the show, which leads him to predict the 1937 event will be a record one in all departments. There were 14,623 head of livestock exhibited at the 1936 exposition.

Prizes will total over $100,000. The competitions will feature all breeds of beef cattle, draft and light horses and ponies, sheep and swine.

The world's largest crops exhibit, the International Grain and Hay show, is held annually in connection with the exposition. Exhibits for this year's exposition have thus far been listed from as far distant points as Australia, South Africa, and South America as well as by growers from many states and Canadian provinces.

Spectacular horse shows will take place every evening. The finest riding and driving horses and ponies in the country will be seen in contest for prize ribbons in these events.

Farm boys and girls from nearly every state in the Union will travel to Chicago to take part in the contests and conclaves of the sixteenth annual 4-H Club congress to be held in association with the exposition. Delegates to the Club congress are given free all-expense trips to Chicago by reason of their winnings in competitions held earlier in the season at their home state fairs.

Jail Romance Flowers in Wedding Behind Bars
Tulsa, Okla.—Love has found a way, so Patricia Gamble, eighteen, and Mack E. Funkhouse, twenty-five, have been married in Tulsa city jail.

Their entire romance occurred in jail, via notes and smiles, since Patricia was locked up on a vagrancy charge, and Mack was sentenced for driving while drunk.

"I loved him the first time I saw him—when he served me lunch in the jail dining room," Patricia says. "I've loved her since she first winked at me and pressed a note into my left hand while I served potatoes with my right," Mack admits.

Permission for the jail wedding was granted by the judge, and the jailer and police served as attendants.

Two Skulls Keep Watch on Village's Fathers

Saugatuck, Mich.—Meetings of Saugatuck's city fathers gain added solemnity from two grinning skulls which watch the proceedings.

The skulls are parts of 27 skeletons unearthed beneath the Saugatuck village hall in 1929 when excavation was made for a furnace room. All but the skulls, arrowheads and similar Indian relics, were reburied in a near-by park.

They're Telling Tall Fish Stories

When Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, and Fin Petrie, winner of the Country Home Magazine's annual award for the best rural newspaper correspondence, met recently, they discovered a mutual interest in fishing. Fin, who comes from Opal, Wyo., has just asked Jack to join him on an expedition through the Jackson Hole country. The ex-champ is saying, "Okay."

The Newest in Miniature

The collar in contrast and the saw tooth edging piped to match, make that difference between this dress and run-of-the-mill. Of course, it's easy to run-up and practically no trouble at all to launder. Better make two!

Three Kings in a Year

In 1936 England had three kings, George V, Edward VIII and George VI. England has had three sovereigns during two other calendar years. In 1483 King Edward IV died and his son Edward V was murdered by his uncle, Richard III. In 1553 Edward VI died and his cousin Jane was allowed to reign only a few days. She was imprisoned by the supporters of Edward's sister, Queen Mary I, and beheaded the next year.

Lobo Wolf
The name lobo wolf is applied to the gray wolf or timber wolf. It is really a formidable animal, but in its dealings with men it has learned to fear the deadly rifle, the poison pot and the trap. Storms, cold and fatigue affect it but little and its powerful teeth, strong jaws and wide gape enable it to bite with great cutting power. In fighting with dogs, every well timed snap means either a deep wound or a piece of flesh bitten out.

An Expletive
An expletive is a word, often profane, added for emphasis or rhetorical effect.

Location of Garden of Eden
This is a controversial question. Some scripture students have suggested the Island of Ceylon, others Arabia, and more recently the claim was made that Mesopotamia was the original site.

Mongoose, Snake Killer

The mongoose is India's snake killer. It destroys not only the eggs and young but kills venomous adult reptiles as well. However, the mongoose, if bitten, dies like any other animal. Its secret lies in its agility and quickness of eye. First it gets the snake to strike, dodges swiftly and, before the reptile can recover, sinks its own fangs into its opponent's neck.

Strawberries as a Dentifrice

Children as Guests

Of a certain reformer, it has been beautifully said: "He regarded little children as little guests in the world, to be welcomed with gentle courtesy and tenderness, to be offered knowledge and love, and charmed with song and flowers, so that they might be glad and proud to have come into a world which gives them happiness and only asks of them goodness."

Red Cross Replaces Farm Family Losses

The Red Cross gave agricultural rehabilitation to 10,116 farm families following the severe eastern floods of last winter. Types of aid included feed, seed, livestock, farm tools and machinery and other items essential to agricultural productivity. More than $599,000 was expended by the organization to meet these requirements.

In addition to occupational assistance, rural families hard hit by the flood waters were rescued, clothed, fed and sheltered by the Red Cross. Where it was necessary the Red Cross repaired and rebuilt out-buildings, barns and other structures. Medical and nursing care were provided and homes returned.

Red Cross agricultural rehabilitation benefited nearly three times as many families as received all other types of Red Cross occupational rehabilitation combined.

Donkeys Seldom Shy
It is explained that the reason horses shy at unexpected sounds or at sight of strange objects while their relative, the donkey, doesn't is chiefly hereditary, says Pathfinder Magazine. Horses are descended from ancestors that roamed the plains where clumps of grass or bushes perhaps concealed janger. On the other hand, donkeys are descendants of hill animals to whom surefootedness and slowness were a necessity in traveling steep paths and precipices. Natural enemies were fewer and a sudden start of alarm might have been fatal.

Today's Freight Trains

AMERICA has always been a great user of railroad freight service. Ours has been a major dependence on that service.

Have America's railroads speeded up their freight service to keep abreast of this faster era?

America has the fastest freight trains in the world.

Many of them travel on schedules as rigid as passenger schedules.

Many of them are speedier than passenger trains were 15 years ago. Many of them have cut from 5 to 20 to 30 hours off of their 1930 schedules.

Basically, America's freight trains have been speeded up 55% in the past six years. Freight trains with average speeds above 45 miles per hour are becoming the rule.

In 1922 the average freight train carried 676 tons of freight; consisted of 38 cars; maintained an average speed (including all stops) of 11.1 miles per hour, performed in the average hour a service equivalent to carrying 7,479 tons of freight a mile, with payments for loss and damage to freight amounting to $1.11 per car loaded with revenue freight.

Today the average freight train carries 731 tons; averages 46 cars per train; has an average speed of 16.0 miles per hour; had an hour-performance equivalent of 11,718 ton-miles; and claims for loss and damage have dropped to 50 cents per loaded car.

A fast-moving world requires fast and efficient freight service. America's railroads are providing it.

I FEEL certain you'll find the following daily schedule for taking care of your furnace fire will simplify its operation and give you the utmost fuel satisfaction.

MORNING—To get quick heat, open the Ashpit Damper wide and close the Check Damper. Add fresh fuel only when fire is burning briskly, leaving an exposed spot of live coals directly in front of the fire-door. If you find it necessary, essary, gently shake the grates, if they weren't shaken the night before.

DURING DAY—Control fire with Check and Ashpit Dampers. Don't use Turn Damper to regulate fire daily. Keep it closed as nearly as possible without hampering the free burning of the fire.

NIGHT—Shake grates gently until the first red glow shows in ashpit before banking fire. This cone, wet ashes down and clean ashpit. Always open the Check Damper and close the Ashpit Damper when banking fire. Keep them that way until gases burn from fresh fuel. Then close them. Never leave the fire-door open after fire is banked.

Follow this daily schedule and you'll get the best results.

CHAPTER I

Joyce sat on a leather puff beside her small-paned window looking out and down at the turning maple leaves. She was nineteen—tomorrow she would be twenty. Nobody living knew it but herself—nobody. She had lied about her true birthday since she was eight and owing to a single overwhelming catastrophe it had been easy enough to confuse her father. Twelve years—twelve years in Elsinboro, six of them without him, terribly alone with her stepmother. Yes, you could be alone with somebody else—far lonelier than if you were by yourself. She was alive—tremendously alive inside. That was the trouble; it had to stay inside. She palpitated with dreams of what might be—the secret dreams of a young girl who longs to believe in life as something warm, something you can hold in your arms. But when she looked outside herself she stared at a wall.

Elsinboro has its counterpart in Olean or Elmira but not in Wilkes-Barre, Scranton or Pottsville. Forty thousand strong, it has known no overpowering foreign infiltration and presents a cross-section of the American scene, old style, from a miniature Tammany to an elite who read French, talk liberalism and discriminate between one dollar and another. There are plenty of dollars, gathered by adventurous sons from the four corners of the earth, but there were no fabulous fortunes until Bolivar Smith got an idea 15 years ago. Six roughnecks believed in it and became multi-millionaires almost overnight. They took over the section now known as Platinum Hill and built their incongruous chateaux in a huge circle.

But Joyce Sewell was not of them; in fact she had no part or parcel of Elsinboro, new or old. She was pure North Shore, descended from generations of the Sewells who christened more clipper ships when the American merchant marine overtopped the fleets of the world than any other tribe. Her presence in the town was an accident—one of those tragic accidents that leave their mark for the whole of life. The scene—so far away, so long ago—lived in her eyes, shut or open. She would listen too, her ears trembling lest they hear. But memory is silent, part of its terror lies in silence.

No crash of guns reached her now, only the remembered flash. No thud of bullets on stone, wood and flesh, no choking scream—only the indelible, the unforgettable scene. Her mother unspeakably murdered. A pause—the eternal pause that had lasted but a second. Her father snatching her up under one arm, a petaca under the other, to rush along interminable corridors, followed by shots and the derisive jeers of the marauders who believed he could not possibly escape. Stairs—wooden stairs, stone steps, the secret door and the garden, black beneath towering cypress and spreading ash. Hurry! Hurry! The postern, unlocked, then locked. The starlit open night, immersion in the icy lake, a dugout and finally refuge in a humble peon hut. No—not finally. Followed days in a pannier on the back of a mule, hours in a crowded train, a week on a refugee ship bound for New Orleans and on that ship Mrs. Irma Thorne, of Elsinboro, New York.

Irma Thorne, then three years a widow, believed it was her mission to do people good whether they liked it or not. She was not a refugee but a returning traveler with a well-filled pocketbook. She had soft bacco-colored eyes, but there the softness ended; though the truth would have surprised and wounded her, her chin, her stocky body, her will and her conscience were as tough as rawhide. The mere sight of Cutler Sewell's lackluster eyes, gone dead in his head, staring at his little daughter but eternally seeing something else, was a supreme challenge to her peculiar aptitude for service and abnegation. She took charge. She gave Joyce her first bath in ten days and made her a frock out of her own best skirt. She rushed father and daughter to her home in Elsinboro. She was undoubtedly a good woman and by every rule in the copybook Joyce should have loved her. Gently admonished by her father she tried pitifully to do so and failed. It was no use. She was too young to think things out; all she knew was that a barrier of ice stood between her heart and her benefactor.

"Daddy, let's go away."
"We can't, Joyce; not just now. At present I haven't a cent."
"Please, papacito. I don't like her."

"You mustn't say that. She's a good woman—a very good woman."
"I know," quavered Joyce, bewildered by her own detestation but face to face with a fact. "Oh, please, papacito, please!"

He compromised, yielding to the enduring pet diminutive that had never yet failed her. On the excuse she ought to keep up her Spanish as a possible asset for the future he took her into his study for an hour every afternoon. That hour had been sacred, proof against any form of interruption from the day when a knock on the door had thrown Joyce into a paroxysm of screams followed by prolonged sobbing. Yet she was no cry-baby; that one convulsive protest was her last, but it had been enough. She and her father talked Spanish in peace, not always for the full hour. Sometimes, quite content to be at his side, she watched him write letters—long painstaking letters—always to one of two addresses.

"What's the Matter With Joyce?"

this box and contents became the property of Joyce Sewell, my daughter and sole heir." With each addition to the dossier he weakened, became less the man of property and more the chastened sacrificial goat. The day came when Irma Thorne married what was left of him for appearances' sake and for his and for Joyce's—not for her own. Perhaps he knew the surrender would kill him, but at least his orphaned child would have a roof over her head. She was sixteen when he died.

Helm Blackadder was a rock of a man, forty-nine and virile, with bushy brows, steely eyes and crisp gray hair. He was a native son, a product of Elsinboro so interwoven in the town's pattern it had never occurred to him to consider any other place as a base. Yet in his capacity as an excellent engineer and a daring promoter he had burrowed in South Africa, combed Korea and lived in Chile with varying degrees of profit. In the intervals he had known Irma Bostwick, Irma Thorne and finally Irma Sewell. Part of him frankly admired part of her; she had a bulldog quality and so had he. Now she had sent for him and as he entered her very comfortable living room he wondered why.

"Well, Irma, what's on your mind?"
"It's Joyce, Helm; but do sit down. Take that big chair. It looks as if it had been made for you."
"What's the matter with Joyce?"
Mrs. Sewell frowned and then substituted a look of patient resignation. "You know all I've done for her. Don't think I mean I begrudge it since it was my duty and there's no greater satisfaction in life than seeing one's duty and doing it. But can you believe in spite of everything she actually dislikes me? She does, though; I think she always has." She waited, but since Blackadder refrained from comment she continued. "But that's not the worst of it; she's harming herself, deliberately destroying her great chance."

"How?" he asked bluntly.

"Oh, all this extra-curriculum studying she's been doing. She's kept up her Spanish so you'd think she could teach it anywhere but now she wants to take a business course."
"Secretarial?"
"No; she doesn't give it any fancy name—just plain stenography and typing."

"What's wrong with that?" demanded Blackadder. "It's the way several of the highest paid women in the world got their start and I can name half a dozen cases where it's been a royal road to marriage. So I don't see how it could hurt Joyce."
"You don't?" said Mrs. Sewell. She edged forward on her chair. "Listen, Helm; I wouldn't tell this to anybody but you. Howard Sempster, Emil Schaaf and Michael Kirkpatrick have all proposed to her over and over again."
"Half of Platinum Hill!" said Blackadder, scowling. "Well, she's no business woman and never will be."

"Why? Why do you say that?"
"Because if she were she'd marry them all, one after the other, and retire."
"Oh!" gasped Mrs. Sewell, truly shocked.
"Which one of the three do you think she'd find it easiest to fall for and to handle?"
"That's what I wanted to ask you. It's got to be one pretty soon or none."
"Why? What's the hurry?"
"Can't you think it out for yourself? If Platinum Hill goes after a girl with no money it's largely because she isn't a stenographer."

Blackadder's scowl deepened. "I hate to agree with you but I guess you're right. It's a shame one town should be saddled with three of that brand of snob, but if she's so attractive, what about a boy or two of the good old stock? Aren't any of them hanging around?"
"They would if they could afford it, but they know they can't. The nice boys she knows are all in college with years to go before they'll begin looking for a job. They're too young. I have enough income to manage on and wait, but I know Joyce—she won't stay with me much longer and she hasn't a penny."

"She's never once called me mother," whispered Mrs. Sewell to Blackadder, a hurt and bewildered look in her liquid brown eyes. Then she raised her voice. "Come here, dear; we want to talk to you."
Blackadder disliked being rushed and felt he was being drafted without his consent, but immediately Joyce entered he was conscious of an odd reaction as though all his gears had gone suddenly into reverse. The girl was more than handsome. There was ardor in her bearing, her eyes and her half-parted lips that not only aroused his combative nature, but promptly convinced him that Irma was right—the sooner this potential dynamo was married off, the better for all concerned.

She nodded to him and turned to her stepmother. "Well?"
"Oh, do sit down, Joyce. Can't you sit down and talk reasonably for once in your life?"

French Nobleman's Will Provided Body Be Seated in Room to Face Angry Sea

The Marquis d'Urre d'Aubais was a curious man when alive, but when his will was read after his death the court was astounded. It was surprising enough for a marquis to leave $60,000 to the French postoffice, but the conditions accompanying this gift were a little too much for the court, writes a Paris United Press correspondent.

First the marquis demanded that his body be embalmed. That was simple enough and the undertakers had done so before the will was unsealed.

Then the marquis demanded that a small house be constructed on the shore of the Mediterranean, placed on a high point, with the walls of glass facing toward the sea. The body should be placed in this room with a radio set and family portraits to keep him company.
Authorities decided that the marquis must have liked the sea. They constructed the little house at the little port of Carro and equipped it with a special radio set which gives signals to passing ships to avoid the dangerous rocks that endangered the coast at this point.

The lifeboat at the Rogues de Carro was named after the marquis. But the final request was too much for officials, for the marquis asked that his body be placed seated in the room from where it could look out on the angry sea. Perhaps the men who executed this will were suspicious and feared the baleful effects of the dead man's eyes.

Anyway, the marquis' body reclines now, with only a glass window in the coffin above his face. Seamen in the tiny port are thankful for the marquis' gift to them, but they feel better knowing he is asleep and not sitting watching them.

"What about her father? I remember hearing he owned one of the show places in Mexico. Do you know what that means? A hacienda that doesn't run over 20,000 acres would be at the foot of the class."
"He lost it—everything—he had. He wasn't even compensated for the murder of his wife though his lawyer assured him he would be. Cutler used to speak of it as blood money and wouldn't have thought of taking it except for Joyce. And it's she that matters now. She's got to be saved from herself and you must help."
"I? Why me?"
"Because you're real, Helm, and the only man I know well enough to turn to. There's something in her frightens me. Sometimes she's a burning bush and the next instant she's quicksilver. Please, Helm. This child was put in my charge by a direct act of God. Whether she loves me or not it's my duty to guide her life along the lines of common sense. Which do you want her to do—go around looking for a job at $15 a week or be the first to bring a little culture to Platinum Hill? Which gives her the best chance for a full life?"
"A missionary, eh?" said Blackadder, his lips quirked oddly. He lifted his heavy shoulders and let them fall. "Well, Mike oughtn't to be so bad. I remember his father as a ditch-gang foreman with a laugh and plenty of punch besides."

Mrs. Sewell sighed resignedly. "I would have chosen Howard Sempster, but trust a man to pick a man is a good rule though we women seldom follow it. So it's to be Mrs. Michael—not Mike—Kirkpatrick. Anyway it sounds a lot better than Mrs. Schaaf." At that moment there was a sound of somebody entering the hall. "Joyce, is that you?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"She's never once called me mother," whispered Mrs. Sewell to Blackadder, a hurt and bewildered look in her liquid brown eyes. Then she raised her voice. "Come here, dear; we want to talk to you."

Blackadder disliked being rushed and felt he was being drafted without his consent, but immediately Joyce entered he was conscious of an odd reaction as though all his gears had gone suddenly into reverse. Cause and Cure of Rheumatism

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

THE oldest ailment known to man, and despite all the wonderful advances in medicine it is actually increasing instead of decreasing, is rheumatism or arthritis as it is perhaps more properly called. Arthritis means inflammation of the joint (and surrounding tissues).

And this great increase in rheumatism, particularly in Great Britain and Europe, has so interfered with the health, happiness and financial condition of the individuals and the nations that organizations to discover the cause or causes of rheumatism and how best to treat it are being formed everywhere.

Dr. Barton Usually when the cause of an ailment is discovered and that cause removed the part of the body affected and the patient himself are restored to health. However, rheumatism may remain so long in an individual that "permanent" damage is done to the joints and tissues and so methods of giving relief from the symptoms, even if there is no chance of repairing the part, now form a large part of the study of these organizations for prevention and treatment of rheumatism.

Factors That Aggravate It.
Thus while it is agreed that infection somewhere in the body has been, and may still be, the cause of the arthritis, there are other factors such as food, climate, heredity, gland conditions, occupation, and even the patient's disposition that aggravate the symptoms or interfere with the recovery of the patient. In Great Britain the damp climate is known to be a factor in aggravating the symptoms, and in America Dr. Ralph Pemberton, Philadelphia, and Dr. A. A. Fletcher, Toronto, have shown that an excess of starch foods may do likewise.

The first thought then should be the prevention of rheumatism now that it is known that it is caused by infection from teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, intestine and from the generative organs, both male and female.
If all sources of infection have been removed and there are still rheumatic symptoms, treatment is usually threefold: (a) heat in some form, (b) salicylates to relieve pain and tension; and (3) diet—cutting down on starch foods.

Reducing on Five Meals a Day.
A few years ago, whilst lunching, I noticed a lawyer whom I had examined physically during his university course. He had changed from a stripling to a huge individual of 250 pounds with the appearance of a middle-aged man. He was only thirty years of age.
Whilst I said nothing, he must have read my thoughts as he remarked, "I'm getting so heavy I'm only eating two meals a day—morning and evening. Of course I drop in here for a 'bite' at noon—just a couple of chocolate eclairs and a cup of coffee."

I suggested that as he was 250 pounds now, his chances of reaching 300 were very good but that if he were to eat three or four small meals a day instead of two large meals, with the extra "bite" thrown in, he would not only lose weight but feel brighter mentally.
It is large meals and not frequent meals that put a burden on digestion. The lassitude—sleepiness or tiredness—and the disinclination for thought or work that follow large meals show that the blood is being used to digest food and absorb this large amount of food.

Now this same amount of food, taken in four or five meals a day—instead of two or three—does not cause this heavy, sleepy feeling, and the individual is not only brighter mentally at his work, but does not feel too lazy or tired to take some exercise. Thus all advantages as far as digestion is concerned are with small meals taken often.
Thus with those who are overweight, if they would take or measure out the amount of food to be eaten in 24 hours, and eat it in five meals instead of three, they would not feel so "heavy" and would be more willing to be about on their feet or take exercise than when they ate just the same amount of food in three meals. This feeling of "lightness" with its desire to take exercise instead of sitting or lying down, would mean that with more exercise and less rest, more fat would come off the body.

Freshening Coconut.—Shredded coconut that becomes dry can be freshened by soaking it in milk for five minutes before using it in cookies, cakes, frostings and puddings.

To Roll Corn Flakes.—Lay a clean towel on the table and put the corn flakes in the center. Fold each side of the towel over the flakes, turn both ends over to the center and crush with a rolling pin.

To Raise the Pile on Velvet.—Cover a hot iron with a wet cloth, and hold the velvet over it. Brush it quickly while damp.

To Prevent Rugs From Slipping.—Jar rubbers securely fastened by sewing on the under side will prevent throw or scatter rugs from slipping on smooth floors.

Storing Summer Garments.—All garments in the summer wardrobe should be cleaned before storing. Soil and stains allowed to remain in such garments when put away may cause permanent discoloration.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Favorite Recipe of the Week

Glace Apple Tart
 3 cups sugar 1/2 peppercorn
 1 1/2 cups water Lemon and orange
 1 blade mace peel
 2-inch piece stick 1/4 cup lemon juice
 cinnamon 3 pie apples
 1 tsp. whole 4 tart shells cloves

MIX sugar and water in large skillet. Add spices and thin pieces of orange and lemon peel tied loosely in a bag. Bring to a rapid boil, skim carefully, add lemon juice. Peel, core, and cut apples into eighths. Simmer gently, turning apples frequently until tender and clear. Remove apples to plate. Remove spice bag, and boil syrup until it sheets from spoon. When apples are cold, arrange in tart shells. Spoon cool syrup over apples, serve with plain or whipped cream if desired.

Men Who Do

When I look at history I see it as man's attempt to solve the practical problem of living. The men who did most to solve it were not those who thought about it or talked about it or impressed their contemporaries, but those who silently and efficiently got on with their work.—J. B. S. Haldane.

Harvard Has Given Exceptionally Good Account of Itself

DEFINITELY that 34 to 6 score that Harvard rolled up against Princeton when the Crimson defeated the Tigers for the first time since 1923, by the biggest margin the Cambridge boys ever recorded over their New Jersey rivals, gives some indication as to the football trend for the next season or two.

How can the man write such things, you ask, when everybody knows years have elapsed since the nation permitted members of the erstwhile gridiron trinity to set its styles? Right you are, save that I am not claiming that Harvard and Yale, which have been operating on similar lines all season, have any exclusive formula. I merely am noting that two institutions, usually five seasons back of the latest developments, happen to be up in the forefront for once.

Football has overlung been decorated with quack nostrums. Wherever alumni suffered from too many defeats some long-haired medicine man was called in to prescribe a touchdown restorative. Naturally these panaceas, for all that they were ornamented with fine soothing words, were as useless as the average run of such things. Since they merely titivated the patient pleurably for a while without getting at the basic ailment, there invariably was a relapse.

That is where Harvard has benefited by the presence of Doc Harlow, a healer of the old school and a gentleman who previously had made the nation sit up and take notice of patients at Penn State, Colgate, Western Maryland and a few other clinics. Using the same common sense remedies which made John Harvard such a robust football fellow from 1903 to 1916, he has achieved results which might even have satisfied Percy Haughton.

Haughton, it may be recalled, was no fancy don of a football coach even though he may be listed as one of the five all-time greats. Aside from the unbalanced line, with which others were experimenting at the time, it is difficult to associate him with any contribution to the so-called science of the game.

He taught his Harvard and Pen-nocks to block and tackle. Wendells and Bradlees were taught how to slant off the tackles, sweep around the ends or smash through the center. When he had a triple threat such as Mahan so much the better. His teams then could kick opponents back to the goal line, make them struggle to gain on the ground what had been lost in the air.

Tigers Had No Defense for Crimson Attack

Harvard played that way against Princeton. There was no hocus pocus to the gaining of 307 yards and five touchdowns. Struck and MacDonald carried the ball most of the time. Struck took the ball and gave it to MacDonald on a reverse or Struck took the ball and went into the line on a spinner. It was as simple as that.

Most of the time Crisler and the Princeton boys knew what was coming. That Princeton could do very little about it is partly due to the fact the Tiger linemen stand up too straight and are not mobile. As such they were suckers for Crimson forwards who charged low and hard to lift them out of the way. Once through the line Struck and MacDonald, two sturdy lads who run well enough in their own right, continued to have ample assistance. Chief Boston, the blocking back, did as good a down-the-field job as even Knute Rockne could have demanded. When you have two or three others doing similarly capable jobs you must gain ground unless opponents have some marked physical superiority.

Defensively Harvard also was alert, sticking to the fundamental principle of following the ball. The second touchdown was set up when Green picked up the ball after a punt had been blocked on Princeton's 40 and ran to the one-yard line. The third came when Struck ran 18 yards for the score after grabbing a partially blocked punt. The final one resulted in the last two minutes of play when MacDonald ran 40 yards after intercepting a pass.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THEY met at Baker field while Columbia was practicing. Naturally they talked about football and finally their subject became drop-kicking. Both of them agreed that there wasn't enough of it nowadays. Undoubtedly they knew what they were talking about, too. For although neither of them knew the other's name, one was Ralph Hewitt, probably the greatest kicker ever developed at Columbia. The other was Charley Brickley, who booted five field goals one afternoon while Harvard was beating Yale. . . . Hewitt, by the way, says that the greatest back he ever played against was Al Masters of Dartmouth. The best lineman was an unsung tackle from Virginia. "I never did know his name but the guy was in my hair all afternoon."

There's a lad named Ward—he extended Johnny Goodman in the semifinals of the amateur tryout year—who may become golf's best amateur since Bobby Jones. Anyhow that's a tip from pros who advise watching him through 1939. . . . If the editors of the Daily Pennsylvania don't mind, a mere reporter would like to congratulate Coach Herman and his Penn players on their sturdy comeback against Navy. . . . Chick Wergeles, who now publicizes wrestlers and boxers and doesn't care who knows it, was promoting fights when he was only eighteen years old. At the age of fifteen he was managing Young Fredericks, who fought four times for the flyweight title.

Less money was spent on cancer research in the United States last year than was expended on the yacht with which Harold Vanderbilt so diligently defended the America's cup. . . . Nomination for the best football official seen all year. . . . Austin Lake, the eminent Boston sports commentator. . . . Bobby, ten-year-old son of the celebrated boxing writer, Murray Lewis, is such an ardent stamp collector that he already has more than 125,000 of them. . . . Mrs. Jack Curley provided the money with which Jack Curley, Jr., is continuing in his late dad's place as a wrestling promoter. . . . And what has become of the boys who used to wear all those raccoon coats?

Because he pitched so well for Newark last summer Marius Russo, former L. I. U. star, has been awarded a bonus by Jake Ruppert. Pitt players say Duquesne's line, the seven regulars, is the best they have performed against all year. . . . Although Pitcher Harry Kelley of the A's lost 21 games last summer, he beat the Browns seven times.

Dodger Exile Glad to Be With Detroit

Harry Eisenstat, the former Madison High pitcher who escaped from the Dodgers last summer, is happy to be with Detroit. Friends report him as saying, "Mickey Cochrane's Tigers treat you as though you were a person. Over at Ebbets field you don't know whether you're coming or going. Grimes thinks nothing of slapping a $200 fine on a guy and, confidentially, most of the guys get just about that for a season's salary." . . . Benny Friedman, the authority in such matters, says that Columbia's Sid Luckman is not a first class forward passer because he slings, rather than throws, the ball. Says that a slung ball lands in the receiver's arms with a heavy impact and is difficult to hold. . . . George Conway, War Admiral's trainer, walked all around the Laurel track looking for holes before he decided to start the colt.

Mickey Cochrane

University of Maryland friends say that Keller, the Newark outfield ace, was paid a bonus of $10,000 when he left the campus to lead the International league in batting last summer. . . . Long before he became the New York Jockey club's racing secretary and handicapper, Jack Campbell was a cotton broker down in Louisiana. . . . People who should know insist that Yale's Clint Frank is just as good on the court as he is on the gridiron. Back home in Evanston he was one of the schoolboy basketball stars of the Middle West but, possibly because the football authorities do not wish to take a chance with their meal ticket, he has not mingled with the basketball boys at Yale. . . . While Man o' War is responsible for War Admiral, the leading money winner of the year, he is second on the list of those siring the most winners. The Porter heads that list for 1937.

Walt Kiesling, 250-pound guard who plays for Pittsburgh, is the oldest veteran in the National Football league. Although he is only thirty-two years old this is his twelfth season. . . . The fondest recollection of Clarence Tuffy Thompson, Pirates halfback, is those two kick-offs he ran back for Minnesota touchdowns against Michigan. . . . Dave Tobey, the basketball official, is in favor of the new rule eliminating the center jump but suggests that it can be modified to better please the customers. Instead of putting the ball into play immediately after a field goal Tobey recommends a five-second wait so that the fans can have opportunity to applaud a spectacular play or goal.

Lesson for November 21

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 3:10-15; Galatians 6:6-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.—Galatians 6:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—In Our Church.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Can I Do to Help?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Can I Do for Christ and the Church?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Need for Christian Workers.

"Laborers together with God"—such is the glorious and distinctive title of true Christians, according to the verse just preceding our assigned text. Unfortunately is the all too common error of regarding only pastors and missionaries as the workers in God's vineyard. While we recognize that there is a special calling for some men to leave their vocations and devote their entire time to the Lord's work, let us be sure properly to stress the importance of every Christian's being a worker for God.

The portions assigned for our study present the privilege and responsibility of Christians as fellow-workers with Christ, under the figures of builders and of seed sowers.

I. Builders of the House (I Cor. 3:10-15).

The first requisite of a building is a foundation and it must be strong and true. Builders for Christ have a sure foundation stone in Him.

1. The Foundation—Jesus Christ. There is only definite assurance in Paul's word concerning the foundation. It is perfectly clear to him that there can be no Christian faith without Jesus Christ. Such a statement sounds almost childish. One might well assume that no intelligent person would claim to be one of God's builders, and reject his foundation stone. But, alas, many are they who claim to be Christians, who profess to be raising a structure of Christian life and testimony, but who have set aside the only possible foundation on which to build.

2. The Master Builder—and his builders.

Paul was a pioneer. He declares his ambition and calling to be "to preach the gospel not where Christ was named, lest I should build on another man's foundation" (Rom. 10:25). Such a privilege does not come to all men, but let those who thus serve learn of this "wise master builder" that they may lay only one foundation—Jesus Christ.

"Let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." It is a serious matter to serve the Lord as a builder, for it is possible to go badly astray at this point as well as in laying the foundation.

3. The materials—good and bad.

Whether we apply Paul's words to the building of our personal spiritual life or to the work we do in the church they are equally serious and urgent. "The day"—when Christ returns, and we shall stand before him to give account of the deeds done in the flesh—will reveal by flaming fire whether we have been faithful, true and diligent in preaching God's Word, in prayer, in sacrificial service for Christ, or have sought to introduce into our lives and into the churches we serve the "wood, hay, and stubble" of uninspired schemes, neglect of God's Word, prayerlessness.

Saved? Yes, but entering into God's presence as a man who has escaped from his burning house with nothing but his life.

II. Sowers of the Seed (Gal. 6:6-10).

The figure changes. No longer are we builders—but rather sowers of seed. Would that it were all good seed that were sown—but we see the sowing to the flesh as well as to the Spirit. This is true

1. In our own lives. The inexorable law of sowing and reaping prevails in the moral realm as truly as it does in the physical. Men who would never expect wheat to grow where they have planted thistles, seem to expect that they may sow in their own lives the seeds of selfish indulgence, of careless neglect of the things of God, and still somehow reap the fruit of good character and noble living.

2. In the lives of others. We may be tempted to take attractive by-paths and short-cuts to win the interest and allegiance of men to ourselves and the church, but they will prove to bring but corruption and destruction. Spiritual seed will always produce spiritual life.

3. Waiting for the harvest. Harvest must be patiently awaited. We know it to be so in natural things; the same is true in the spiritual realm.

A Message of Love

One of the last slowly murmured sayings of the American poet Whit-tier, as he lay a-dying, was this: "Give—my love—to—the—world."

Worth-While Living

Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.—Isaiah 1:17.

Haste

Unreasonable haste is the direct road to error.—Molliere.

Famous Hymn

The recent sale of the original manuscript of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," recalls the manner in which that stirring religious hymn came into being.

Some Yorkshire (Eng.) Pupils, years ago, planned to make a Whitsuntide procession to a neighboring church. They asked their young curate, Rev. Sabine Baring Gould, to write them a marching song. He sat down, composed the hymn in a few minutes.

Originally sung to a tune by Joseph Haydn, its music now is that of Sir Arthur Sullivan. He composed the music as the result of a sudden inspiration.—Washington Post.

Didn't Impress Him
 A doctor said to his daughter: "Did you tell the young man that I think he's no good?"
 "Yes. He said it wasn't the first wrong diagnosis you had made."

 Rastus—Doan you start no fight with me, man. Ah was decorated for bravery in de World war.
 Sambo—Maybe yo wuz, but in mah 'pinion it's given yo sech a swell haid yo is 'bout ripe to be redecoreted.

HONORS EVEN

"Say, when you wrestle with that pipe, don't it ever get the best of you?"

"No, always results in a draw."

"Burglar arrested in bath." Apparently, he came clean.

"You Must Have!"

The portly man was trying to get to his seat at the circus. "Pardon me," he said to a woman, "did I step on your foot?"
 "I imagine so," she said after glancing at the ring, "all the elephants are still out there."

ALKALIZE

I'LL NEVER GO TO DINNER WITH A BOY AGAIN UNLESS I HAVE SOME PHILLIPS' TABLETS IN MY PURSE

Often "acid indigestion" is distressing to you—and offensive to others. But now there is no excuse for being guilty.

You simply carry your alkalinizer with you—and use it at the first sign of "upset" stomach. Simply take two tiny tablets of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia when out with others. Or—if at home—you can take two teaspoons of liquid Phillips'. Both act the same way.

Relief is usually a matter of seconds. "Gas," nausea, "heartburn," acid breath—all respond quickly. Just make sure you ask for "Phillips'."

Firestone GROUND GRIP TIRES

WIN First Honors AT TROY · BIG ROCK LILY LAKE · WHEATLAND PLOWING CONTESTS

Using Firestone Ground Grip Tires, Paul Stiefboldt made the highest score for any one meet, with 92½ points out of 100. He also had the largest number of points for the four contests, 356½ out of a possible 400.

Carl Sloger had the highest average score per contest with 90 out of 100 possible points, using Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

Clarence Sloger won first place in the Young Men's Class in each of the four contests on Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

FIRESTONE Ground Grip Tires won sweeping victories this year in the plowing contests at Troy, Lily Lake, Big Rock and Wheatland, Illinois. In the plowing contests, as on the farms, more tractors were equipped with Firestone Ground Grip Tires than all other makes of tires combined. And these all-purpose tractor tires scored 3500½ points out of a possible total of 4100 for the four contests.

Why do plowing champions choose Firestone Ground Grip Tires? The answer is:

GREATER TRACTION—Takes a deeper, broader bite into the soil. Has positive self-cleaning action.

GREATER STRENGTH—Resists the strain of heavy pulling because every fiber of every cord is saturated with liquid rubber by the patented Firestone Gum-Dipping process. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread bind the tread and cord body so solidly together that we guarantee they will not separate.

GREATER SAVINGS—Saves 25% in time and up to 50% in fuel over steel-lugged wheels.

GREATER DRAWBAR PULL enables this tire to do more work in a given time.

Specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires when buying a new tractor or any wheeled farm implement. And, for your present equipment, ask your nearest Firestone Implement Dealer, Tire Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply & Service Store about the economical Firestone Cut-Down Wheel Program.

High School

Marjorie Musolf of the ninth grade shot her best Tuesday. She has hunted other years, but this is the first time that she has secured the above results. The game was secured with a 32 rifle.

Mr. Ernest Nickel of California entertained the Junior and Senior high schools Wednesday by giving a whistling concert. Mr. Nickel certainly excels in this method of entertainment.

There will be no school on Thanksgiving and the Friday following. These two days being November 25 and 26.

The Seniors' Armistice supper, which was held at the Baptist church last Friday evening was a decided success. The class netted about thirty three dollars. They trust that the patrons obtained "value received." The class desires to express its appreciation to the church for the use of the basement, and especially to the mothers who managed the affair.

7th and 8th Grades
Today we had a whistling concert that was presented by a gentleman from California. It was perhaps the best we have ever heard.

We experimented with some essays in the eighth grade today and some good ones were produced, especially Donafay's "Butterflies."

The seventh and eighth grades have certainly generated a high state of competition in ticket selling. I presume that there isn't one in town who hasn't heard, "Buy a ticket for the Barrier?" Leona Monroe has turned in $4.50 so far but she and others have much money that they haven't turned in yet, so it is hard to tell who will be on top.

5th and 6th Grades
The fifth grade language class is writing letters to children who live in the cotton belt. We are studying about the cotton belt in the Southern States for geography.

Shirley Groff and Melvin Bessy visited our room this week.

A committee consisting of Evelyn Colby, Donna Moore and Maxine De Potty, is planning a Thanksgiving program.

Everyone in our room greatly enjoyed the whistling of Mr. Ernest Nickel.

3rd and 4th Grades
Beverly Bigelow sang two numbers, "Rub A Dub Dub" and "The Armistice Parade" at the last P. T. A. meeting. Our room won the P. T. A. award for the month of November.

Donald Lansky was a visitor one day last week.

The third graders emorized the poem "Thanksgiving Day" for their language lesson Wednesday.

We enjoyed the whistling by Mr. Nickel Wednesday afternoon.

We were weighed and measured Wednesday.

We have made Thanksgiving decorations for our room.

The Caribbean Islands
Most of the Caribbean islands which paid such splendid dividends on Queen Isabella's original jewel investment sank into languorous poverty with the growth of the United States, the development of the machine age and the decline of the Spanish empire.

No Ill Effects From Moon
The popular notion that the moon affects the mind, causing periodic insanity, has no foundation in fact. The term "lunatic" is derived from the Latin word "luna" (the moon), and corresponding words in French, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian are similarly derived. The derivation thus embodies the old belief that persons mentally afflicted were affected by moon changes.

An eight and one-half pound son is reported in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Price. He arrived November 14, and has been named Thomas Flagg.

Dr. Case has returned from Detroit where he went for medical treatment. His health is improved.

Word was received this week of the passing of John Chapel, supt. of East Tawas high school many years ago. Mr. Chapel passed away in Flint, death coming suddenly from a heart attack. Mr. Chapel had recently when he spent considerable time in the home of his niece, Mrs. Don Dutton who lived here until a few weeks ago. Continued ear trouble had caused Mr. Chapel to leave the teaching profession and enter into building and contracting, some of his work being done in the Tawas vicinity.

Mrs. Ambrose Schill and son, Alva of Detroit are visiting old friends in East Tawas.

Mary Lou Blaisdell entertained several little friends Wednesday afternoon after school, the event being in honor of her eighth birthday.

Mrs. Edwin Woods who was expected home from Samaritan hospital last Sunday, found it necessary to remain for another treatment. At present she seems to be gaining slowly.

The many friends of Dr. Weed will be pleased to learn that he has recovered sufficiently to be able to return home from Samaritan hospital, Bay City, where he has been for several weeks. The Dr. and Mrs. Weed came home Wednesday.

Mrs. Clara Barkman and daughter, Miss Regina, have returned from their trip to France and many other points of interest in Europe.

Mr. Nickel, famous whistler, who has appeared on programs with many famous people in this country and foreign countries, passed through East Tawas this week and gave our high school the benefit of his talents.

On Monday evening at the Tawas Bay Club, about 6 guests were present at a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Grace Merschel, bride elect of this month. The fore part of the evening was spent playing Keno, prizes going to Mesdames James Mielock, Edmer Lixey and Wm. O'Laughlin. At a later hour the guests marched to candlelit tables to the old familiar tune of the wedding march played by Mrs. Jess Edwards. A delicious lunch was served while Mrs. Edwards continued playing. Grace was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greene are visiting in Rogers City this week.

Miss Nina Schanbeck of Detroit is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Schanbeck.
