Metropolitan Casualty Co. vs. Hans Willie Boehme. Assumpsit.

John Michael vs. Roy Taylor.

C. M. Wall & Son vs. Edward B. Matthews. Assumpsit.

Phil G. Walker vs. The Gould Drug Co. Trespass on the premises.

W. A. Senay vs. Nick Papas. Appeal from justice court.

Chancery Causes
Adelbert R. Smith vs. Jennie Smith. Divorce.

Kenneth Salisbury vs. Leona Salisbury. Divorce.

Frances Hass vs. Paul Hass. Divorce.

George Mundy, receiver, vs. Chas. H. Ridgley.

Petition for naturalization: Mrs. Charlotte Kildal.

Heath Notes

The dental health talks and examinations for Oscoda, Ogemaw, Alcona and Iosco counties of Health District No. 2 will begin early next week.

With the aid of the resident dentists in each county, Dr. Arthur Bloesing, Children's Fund Dentist, hopes to reach every school child through the eighth grade and instruct both him and his parent in mouth hygiene.

Every parent who has a child in school should make every effort to attend the dental session for his school. Form letters have been sent out to every school teacher and director with the hope that they will urge the parents of the children in their school to be present at the dental health talks and examinations.

Appointments for each school telling the time and place of the session will be mailed to each teacher and she in turn should notify the children and parents.

The success of a dental educational program is to have parents present at the time of the talk and examination. In this way the dental defects of a child can be pointed out to his parent and both can be made to appreciate the need for early correction and better mouth hygiene.

Miss Klumb, the county nurse, has cod liver oil to give to Iosco County parents who are not able to purchase it for their children. This oil was purchased by the local Red Cross after the need for it had been emphasized.

All parents whose children need cod liver oil are asked to bring an empty bottle to Miss Klumb's office in the court house, Tawas City, any Saturday morning, and a supply will be given them.

Cod liver oil is especially beneficial during the winter months when children are denied exposure to sunshine. It supplies vitamins A and D which prevent certain eye diseases, susceptibility to colds, and rickets. Every infant and pre-school child, and many school children in this geographic location should have cod liver oil during the winter months.

Miss Mary Lahav R. N., a student in public health at the University of Michigan has been assigned to Miss Bernice Klumb, R. N. of Iosco county, for rural field observation and experience.

Miss Grace Myers, R. N., of the Michigan Department of Health, is continuing Child Care classes in the high schools of Ogemaw, Iosco, and Oscoda counties. A wonderful opportunity for girls!

Misses Campbell, Klumb and Yanachek, nurses of District Health Unit No. 2, will attend a course of three lectures on Maternal Hygiene at Bay City December 4, 11 and 18th. These lectures will be given by Miss Anita Jones, of Maternity Centre, New York City by University of Michigan, in conjunction with the State Nurse Associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Main of Harrisville, called on Tawas relatives on Tuesday.

Wonderful Christmas selection of merchandise. Hennigar's East Tawas.

Manuscript Writing For 1st and 2nd Grades

By A. E. Giddings, Superintendent Tawas City Public Schools

Historians say that our alphabet was perfected by the Phoenicians. The Phoenicians gave it to the Greeks, the Greeks in turn gave it to the Romans, and the Romans, in turn, spread it about the world. Modern handwriting is based upon the alphabet.

Two styles of writing have existed side by side through all this time. One is an informal style of writing used for everyday communication and the other is a more formal and careful style used for making books and permanent records. The former style is known today as "script," and the latter as "print."

Previous to the invention of the printing press by Gutenberg in 1456, both styles were necessarily done by hand. For many years previous to this invention, the monks laboriously copied books by using the style of writing which was then used for permanent records and which corresponds in use to our printing of the present day. The manuscript writing which is now used in some schools is a simplified form of that used by the monks as mentioned above.

The manuscript form of writing began to be used by some of the schools of England in about 1900, and had become generally adopted in that country by 1912. It was brought to United States from England between 1920 and 1922, and formed the basis of experiment in a number of private schools of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. After a few experiments at Teachers College, Columbia University, several of the public schools in the larger cities of the United States began using it.

Mrs. Fred Hurford

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Whittemore Methodist Episcopal church for Mrs. Fred Hurford, age 59 years, who died at the Traverse City State hospital Saturday after several years of illness. Rev. Pengally officiated. Burial took place in the L. D. S. cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, Fred Hurford, and one sister, Mrs. F. Murchison, of Florida.

Mrs. Hurford was loved by all who knew her and was a friend to every one. She was noted for her sterling character and was a strong believer in the Christian faith. She leaves a host of friends who unite in extending their sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Iosco Bowling League

The Frankenmuth team of Bay City will bowl a picked team of Iosco County bowlers on Sunday, December 5, at 8:00 P. M. at the East Tawas Recreation Hall. The Frankenmuth team is the best in northern Michigan. The Bay City American Legion team will bowl a picked team at 6:00 P. M. on the same evening.

P. T. A. Notes

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold their December meeting next Thursday evening, December 9 at the school house. Mrs. Edward Mier of Bay City, P. T. A. District Chairman, will be the speaker.

The Junior class will hold a harvest and bake sale at this meeting.

Richard Hartingh and son-in-law, Robert Gobel, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hartingh, Jr. of Pontiac were Thanksgiving guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hartingh, Sr.

School Notes

The annual Christmas Seal sale is now being conducted by the grade pupils of the local schools. The campaign began Thursday and will close next Tuesday. The returns from this year's sale is the only means of income for the Michigan Tuberculosis Association as there is no appropriation from the state. The above organization was founded in 1908 and has given continual battle to the "White Plague." This disease is responsible for the death of over 2000 persons in Michigan each year and of nearly 75000 in the United States.

The Tawas City team will meet the St. Louis team in the local high school auditorium on the evening of December 10 for the third preliminary debate of the season. The Tawas team will consist of Kenneth Smith, John King and Otto Ross, who will uphold the negative side of the question. "Resolved that the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislature."

Several of the graduates of Tawas City High School have wished for advancement in learning and thus have sought to better themselves in the following institutions of higher learning: George Tuttle, '36, is attending Citadel in South Carolina.

Clifford Boomer, '34, Vernon Davis, '35, and Thomas Metcalf, '37, are students at Michigan State Teachers College, Mt. Pleasant. Patricia Bradock, '36, is attending Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo. Jean Robinson, '36, and Effie Prescott, '37, are students at Cleary College, Ypsilanti.

Robert Hamilton, '33, is at Tri-State College, Angola, Indiana. Irvin Schlechte, '31, is a student in the medical school, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Isabelle Dease, '37, is enrolled at the Bay City Junior College.

"The Challenge of a Handicap" is a book recently written by Chas. F. Hamilton, M. A., who was formerly assistant superintendent of Bay City schools and principal of Central High school. Mr. Hamilton is now president of the Bay City Business College. The book is copyrighted in 1937. It is dedicated to the author's wife, Ruby Sterling Hamilton, who suffered a paralytic stroke in 1932, which was considered by medical authorities to be of the most severe type.

As the title indicates, the book concerns itself with the story of several Michigan people who have been compelled to face the world under severe handicaps. The story of the life of each is given, as told by his friends, and followed by the Success formula of each. The volume is being sold by the pupils of Michigan schools and will be handled in Tawas City by the seniors of the local high school.

A faculty meeting was held after school Wednesday afternoon. Miss Boone made a report concerning the trend in report cards and system of reports in Michigan. She had letters and sample cards from many sections of the State.

We are having a contest with the fifth and sixth grades in selling the Christmas seals, and so we are naturally urging everyone to buy from us.

Many of us are getting much exercise now. Dead Creek has flooded our stepping stones and 12 of us walk around by town to get home.

Our president gives a bit of something at each meeting. This week the topic was "Unusual Restaurants."

The program proper was given by Mrs. Ed Louks who gave an interesting paper entitled "Inspirational Women of the Bible," and Mrs. Schroyer sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Common at the piano.

Our visitors this week, were Mrs. Frank Dease of Bay City, Mrs. Dio Hunt and Mrs. Harrison Snyder of Flint.

Following the program a delightful lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Chase and Mrs. O'Farrell.

Our next meeting will be held December 11 and will be the Christmas party.

Will Organize Grange In Reno Township

The people of communities near Reno are looking forward to an open meeting at Reno Town hall on Friday evening, December 10th at 8:00 o'clock, when they hope to complete an organization of the Grange. The Grange is a farm organization which is always helpful to all who are interested in farm problems or actually engaged in agriculture. Mr. Hubbell, who is a member of the executive committee of the Michigan State Grange, has been in the community for a few days, working with the people who are interested in seeing this organization completed. Recreation will be conducted during the evening under the direction of Mr. Hubbell. This meeting will be open to the public.

Literary Alliance

An interesting meeting was held in the Literary Alliance Club rooms Saturday, November 27. The meeting was opened by our President, Mrs. Curtis. Mrs. Common led in the reading of the club collect.

Mrs. Barnum and Mrs. Burnett Smith were added to the list of members. Our drive for new members certainly show that the ladies of the club are go-getters.

Mrs. Brookins, chairman of the social committee, reported the play "Sally Perkin's Hat Shop" would be given at the Roll Inn Hall, December 8, at 8:00 P. M. She also reported the Christmas party will be given at the next meeting and urges all members to be present.

The special committee reported that all plans were complete for the Community Christmas Tree and same will be held, December 22. Many beautiful posters with receptacles for free will offerings were to be placed in a conspicuous place, so that all may help with the Christmas tree.

A Bible verse which represented a flower was the roll call and 30 members responded. Mrs. Brookins conducted the class in the correct pronunciation of ten commonly mispronounced words.

Our president gives a bit of something at each meeting. This week the topic was "Unusual Restaurants."

The program proper was given by Mrs. Ed Louks who gave an interesting paper entitled "Inspirational Women of the Bible," and Mrs. Schroyer sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Common at the piano.

Our visitors this week, were Mrs. Frank Dease of Bay City, Mrs. Dio Hunt and Mrs. Harrison Snyder of Flint.

Following the program a delightful lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Chase and Mrs. O'Farrell.

Our next meeting will be held December 11 and will be the Christmas party.

Bronson-Durand

Mrs. Alma Bronson and Durand Cataline of Whittemore were united in marriage on Thanksgiving day by Rev. Thatcher. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goupil. A wedding dinner was served to the immediate family at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson. Congratulations.

Notice to Taxpayers

The tax rolls of the city will be in my hands for the collection of taxes beginning Saturday, December 4th. Will be in the city hall every Friday and Saturday afternoon. Chas. Duffy Treasurer.

WILL HOLD SOIL CONSERVATION MEETS IN IOSCO

480 Farmers Co-Operated In Federal Soil Program

The Iosco County Agricultural Conservation Association is holding a series of meetings, throughout the county during the next few days to elect the community committeemen who will hold the reins for this association in Iosco County during the year 1938. Following the community elections the new chairmen will meet at the Court House, Friday, December 17th, to choose their new County officers. The County committee who are in a large part responsible for the successful operation of this better land use and better balanced farming program in 1937 are Harold Black of Reno Township, Harvey W. Cross of Wilber Township, Victor Anderson of Alabaster Township and County Agent Wilton L. Finley.

Of the 882 farm operators in Iosco County, 480 cooperated in the farm program in 1936. Upon the tillable land of these farms, 18,739 acres were devoted to the production of soil conserving crops, while 9,664 acres were used in the production of cultivated and small grain crops. Upon these same acres the farm operators carried out sufficient approved farming practices, such as, the seeding of legumes, plowing under of green manure, applying commercial fertilizers, and ground limestone and the planting of forest trees upon acres that were not suited to profitable farming, received reimbursements for their efforts amounting to $23,729.40.

The county committee are now receiving applications for the diversion of potatoes into livestock feed. Because of the unusually large crop of potatoes in the United States this year, Federal funds have been made available to help producers receive a reasonable price for their crop and to assure the consuming public of potatoes of better quality at little increase in price. Farmers who make applications at the Agricultural Conservation office this week may receive 15 cents per bushel for their potatoes and yet use them for livestock feeding. The potatoes must be at least one and one-half inches in diameter and grade U. S. No. 2 or better.

The committee announced this morning that the 1938 farm program would be quite the same this year as it was in both 1936 and 1937, with goals being established for each farm rather than basis. Financial encouragement to meet the goals would depend upon the farmer carrying out certain approved farming practices which go to conserve the soil and to at least maintain the soil reserves which are now present. This will in time make for better living conditions and a happier home surrounding through greater farm income.

In establishing the individual farm goals the new committee will consider such points as, the tillable acreage on the farm, the type of soil and the crop-rotation system in use, the previous production history, and the acreage of food and feed crops needed, topography, the production facilities, and for consumption upon the farm.

Vandenberg's Program

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan didn't wait for the leaders of the Republican party to formulate a program on which to battle the Democrats. He broke out with a ten-point program designed to "give honest business a chance to create stable prosperity."

His ten points were:
1. An end to governmental "hymns of hate" and bitter attacks on business men.

2. Progress as rapidly as possible toward a balanced budget.

3. Amendment or repeal of the surplus and capital gains taxes and substitution of "incentive taxation" for "punitive taxation."

4. Amendment of the social security act to eliminate the "needless drain upon the resources of commerce and labor."

5. Revision of the Wagner labor law to make for greater certainty in "long range industrial planning."

6. Abandonment of the so-called wage-hour bill and substitution of legislation to protect states from the importation of goods produced by substandard labor.

7. Repeal of many of the President's emergency powers in order to free business from "executive despotism which is at war with every tenet of the American system."

8. Reasonable and practical farm relief, without bureaucratic controls, processing taxes, or price pegging, but with benefits for soil conservation practices, financing of exportable surpluses, and return of the domestic market to the producer.

9. Foreign policies that will keep America out of war through pursuing "an insulating neutrality" rather than sanctions.

10. "Frank abandonment of all anti-constitutional activities and intrigues which shatter democratic faith."

Peace Talk with Utilities

RESTRICTION of the construction and expansion activities of the privately owned public utilities being recognized as an important factor in the current business recession, President Roosevelt began a series of conferences with the heads of these concerns. He seemed to be in a conciliatory frame of mind and sought to lessen the utilities' fear of the effect of government policies, but without making any concessions. His first caller was Wendell Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern corporation, and next day he talked with Floyd Carlisle of the Niagara Hudson Power corporation.

Though he appeared amiable, the President at the same time was sending to various congressional committees and federal agencies a report by the New York state power authority, whacking friends and agents of the private utilities for "propaganda" against public power development. It presented figures to show the government could produce water power at a much lower cost than private utilities could produce power by steam plants.

It was understood Mr. Wilkie submitted these points:
That there is a general fear throughout the country of government competition and interference with private utilities which can be subdued only by concrete reassurance from the administration.

That money for private expansion purposes and refinancing to obtain lower interest rates, which in turn would be reflected in lower power rates, is hard to obtain.

That the government had a right to sell power from its dams, but a basis for marketing it could be found without frightening the whole industry.

After Labor Racketeers

FOR four months Eliot Ness, the young safety director of Cleveland, Ohio, has been investigating labor racketeering in Cleveland, especially in the building trades, and then he made a report of his findings that resulted in a special session of the Cuyahoga county grand jury to hear the stories of scores of business men who allegedly have been terrorized by labor union officials. Ness said these men were prompted to volunteer their information because of the security offered them and the knowledge that many others were prepared to testify.

Eliot Ness

In addition to protests from business men that they were being shaken down, Ness also had numerous complaints from rank and file union men that their leaders had obtained dictatorial control of the unions and had used it for racketeering purposes.

This resulted in hundreds of men being thrown out of work, impeding legitimate business, and kept hundreds of thousands of dollars in new industries out of the city, the Ness report was said to have stated.

Governors Ask Tax Repeal

GOVERNORS of the six New England states, in conference in Boston, adopted resolutions severely criticizing the tax and tariff policies of the administration. They demanded repeal of the capital gains tax and the tax on undistributed corporate profits, and denounced the pending reciprocal trade agreement with Czechoslovakia as imperiling the jobs of thousands of American citizens.

The governors who took this action were Lewis O. Barrows, Republican, Maine; F. P. Murphy, Republican, New Hampshire; George D. Aiken, Republican, Vermont; Charles F. Hurley, Democrat, Massachusetts; Wilbur L. Cross, Democrat, Connecticut; and Robert E. Quinn, Democrat, Rhode Island.

Trade Treaty with Britain

IN WASHINGTON and London it was officially announced that the United States and Great Britain had agreed to negotiate a reciprocal trade treaty, which has been sought by Secretary of State Hull ever since he started his reciprocal program in 1934.

The negotiations are expected to begin before the close of the year. American administration officials believe such a pact may lead to a commercial union of all English-speaking peoples and will be a powerful influence in preserving world peace.

London looks upon it as an instrument to form a front which all nations may enter later on conditions of most-favored-nations reciprocity, and therefore as an indirect reply to the new German-Italian-Japanese alliance.

Principles said to be already agreed upon provide that Great Britain would receive reduced American tariffs on textiles and coal.

In return she would grant the United States lower tariffs on foodstuffs, certain raw materials, iron and steel and other essentials of a rearmament program.

Immediate opposition to the proposed pact developed among the statesmen in Washington. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, protested against any British accord until the English pay off their defaulted war debt to the United States. He called the proposed pact "trade treason."

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts Republican, served notice he would sponsor a resolution halting negotiation of all new trade treaties until congress can determine whether they are responsible for the current business recession.

Representative Allen Treadway, Massachusetts Republican, denounced the proposed treaty as certain to prove disastrous to American business. He warned it would throw "more Americans out of their jobs."

Rand Is Acquitted

JAMES H. RAND, JR., president of Remington Rand, Inc., and Pearl L. Bergoff of New York were found not guilty of violation of the Byrnes act by a jury in the United States District court in New Haven, Conn.

The verdict was a blow at the government's first attempt to enforce the act, which forbids the transportation of strikebreakers across state lines with the intent of interfering with peaceful picketing.

Another Judge Wanted

SENATOR MINTURN of Indiana introduced a bill authorizing the President to appoint an additional judge to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago. That court has jurisdiction over the seventh circuit, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana, and has had one vacancy since the retirement of Judge Samuel A. Alschuler last year.

Both Senators Lewis and Dieterich of Illinois said they had no candidate for the place.

"One Brand New Suit"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Take it from me, boys and girls, you can't take it from Bob Kaiser. That is, you may take it from him, but you won't keep it. It's been tried before and it just didn't work.

It all sounds mysterious but it's as simple as A B C. As a matter of fact, it's the subject of today's adventure story—the stirring tale of how Bob Kaiser of New York city got mad about having a brand new suit ruined and fixed the guy that ruined it with both hands tied behind his back.

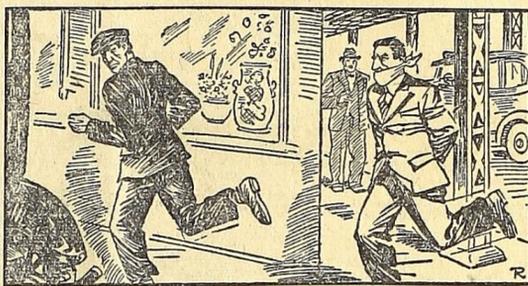

Today Bob works for the New York Steam company, but on June 7, 1925, he was a sales manager for the United Cigar Stores, running a shop located at Broadway and Thirty-first street, New York. It was on a Sunday, and things were quiet along that section of Broadway. There weren't half a dozen people in sight on the street, and there hadn't been a customer in the store for half an hour.

These Customers Were Bandits.

Then, about noon, a customer came in. He asked for a package of cigarettes and Bob turned to get them from the rack. And as he turned he heard a low, grating voice say: "Don't move—or I'll blow your brains out!"

Bob didn't move, but out of the corner of his eye he could see the man—holding a thirty-eight caliber revolver on him. "It was a hot day," says Bob, "but the sweat that broke out on my forehead just then was cold—ice cold."

The man came behind the counter and ordered Bob to sit down on the floor. That's where Bob began to get mad. He had on a nice, new suit that day and the floor had been freshly oiled. The porter had oiled it the day before, and he had given it an extra heavy dose. If Bob sat down on that greasy floor—well—his suit wasn't going to look so new any more.

Bob got mad about it, but he didn't lose his head. He took another look at that thirty-eight and decided that maybe the gangster was right. He sat down on the floor. And about that time, a second gangster, who had been watching outside, came in to help the first.

Ruined Suit Made Bob Angry.

They told Bob to open the safe, and he opened it. The company's instructions, in case of a hold-up, were to give the bandits the money without any argument. The gangsters took four hundred dollars of the company's money and it made Bob mad to see them get it that easily. Likewise, he was still mad about his ruined suit.

When the bandits had the money they tied Bob's hands behind his back, put a gag in his mouth and pushed him down to the floor. A friend of Bob's came into the store and bought some tobacco. The bandits waited on him. When he asked where Bob was they told him he was out to lunch. After Bob's friend had gone the bandits told Bob not to move for five minutes, and left, themselves.

But Bob didn't wait even five seconds after those thugs went out the door. With his hands tied behind his back and a gag in his mouth, he leaped up and ran in pursuit of the bandits.

When he got to the street he saw the thugs walking toward Sixth avenue. He tried to yell, but the gag in his mouth was so tight that he couldn't utter a sound. So he started across Thirty-first street after those crooks.

He followed those birds to Sixth avenue and Thirty-second street and there the two bandits split up and went in different directions. Bob lost sight of one man but he continued to follow the other. He trailed him to Thirty-second street and Seventh avenue, and there the fellow turned around and caught sight of Bob, gag still in his mouth, hands tied behind him, trailing along in his wake. At that the thug turned and bolted.

He Literally Fell on the Thug.

The thug ran across the street toward Pennsylvania station, dashed into the Thirty-second street entrance and bolted down the stairs toward the concourse. Bob lit out after him.

Running as fast as he could with his hands tied, Bob dashed down through the main corridor and down the slippery marble stairs. At the bottom of the stairs, right in front of the ticket windows, he caught up with the thug and there a strange battle took place—probably the strangest scrap in all history. Bob fell on the crook, and when I say "fell," I mean that literally. With his hands tied behind his back, there just wasn't anything else Bob could do.

He gave a leap and landed on the crook. And the crook went down. Bob, gagged as he was, couldn't yell to attract attention but the spectacle of a bound and gagged man, legs flailing in the air, rolling on the floor and all over the top of another man attracted plenty of attention as it was. People began to yell and run to the spot. Tom Eagan of the station police came running up with the crowd and grabbed the bandit. That bandit was out of breath and pretty badly frightened by his strange experience. He was still wondering what landed on him as they led him away to the calaboose.

Bob got his hands untied then, took the gag out of his mouth, and went back to his store. He had left the door open and a big crowd had gathered about the place. He did a record business that day, selling stuff to people who wanted to hear his story of the hold-up.

The bird Bob caught squealed on his partner, and both of them got seven-year sentences. And the company gave Bob a $550 bonus, a raise and a vacation.

Bobcat and Lynx

Closely related to the Canadian lynx, which it has largely supplanted in northern United States, the bobcat has the lynx's short temper, exceptional sight, fatal claws. It lacks the lynx's distinguishing tufts of hair on the ears, is slightly smaller and is spotted. It roams eastern America from Maine to Florida, is an excellent swimmer, takes to water when hotly pursued. It preys on all small game, yet has been known to tackle an alligator when cornered.

Killer Whale a Mammal

A true whale, the killer whale, is a mammal. Twenty to thirty feet long, streamlined to perfection, his black back surmounted by a slender, sickle-shaped dorsal fin that causes him to be confused with sharks, the orca roves the oceans in absolute outlawry. His slender flukes propel him at unbelievable speed, and his cavernous sharp-toothed mouth enables him to rend and tear his prey.

English Spoken by Millions

English, spoken by 200 million people, takes second place to Chinese—spoken by 400 million Celestials. Russian, German, Hindu, French and Spanish come next in that order. Apart from these mother tongues there are countless dialects and patois. Guarani, the Indian language generally used throughout Paraguay, has a vocabulary of well under 1,000 words.

Washington Digest
National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—"The best laid plans of mice and men" will go off at a tangent, it seems, even when one political party is numerically in supreme control of the national government. President Roosevelt called congress into extra session with very definite objectives outlined, and he repeated them in his regular message on the state of the Union. He wanted crop control legislation for relief of agriculture and he wanted wages and hours controlled by federal statute for the relief of labor. But congress, or a part of it, has turned out to be a balky mule. It has one foot out of the traces already and the driver is having a lot of trouble to keep the animal hitched.

The above is by way of saying that scores of Democratic members of the house and many senators with seats on the majority side have come back from a summer on the hustings quite convinced that it is not popular with the voters to be a rubber stamp. I do not mean by that statement that the President has lost control of his party machinery, or that he can not crack the whip and get things done; I mean that instead of having a few recalcitrants within his own party to deal with, he now has many, and members of congress are about like coyotes—their courage increases as their number increases.

It might be mentioned in passing that at least half a dozen Democratic members of the house have come back from home with plans to run for their party's nomination to the senate next year. The reason given by those with whom I have talked is almost the same in each instance. The incumbent senator who is up for re-election has been too much of a New Dealer. "Our people are calling for something besides rubber stamps." These potential senatorial candidates have records showing opposition to the President in some vitally important New Deal policies while supporting him wholeheartedly in other phases of his program.

No one can say how far this movement will get, but anyone who has observed congresses perform in other cases where the President was in his second term can not dismiss the circumstance as without significance. It is the usual practice for sitting members of the house and senate to stick close to the President, as party leader, in his first term—because they must seek re-election with his support. But now many of them regard President Roosevelt as through and they are starting early to make their record look good to the voters whom they will canvass next year.

These few paragraphs above must serve to introduce evidence of a much deeper fact. In many important places and among many powerful or influential men in congress one hears frequent references and observations to this effect: If Mr. Roosevelt is going to retain his control of the party and carry through on the propositions which he will make from time to time, he must cast aside a part, at least, of his radical advisers and the schemes they concoct.

As I related, the President outlined his objectives for the special session. Two or three years ago, they would have been received by the representatives and senators with loud acclaim, with ballyhoo. But in the first few weeks of the extra session, there has been just as much condemnation as there has been approval.

Nor can we overlook another phase of the situation. Not only have many of the men at the capitol declined to affirm the President's propositions; they have gone in the other direction. They have offered programs of their own. They are prepared to battle for them. In politics, that sort of a thing often has proved fatal to the plans of the man who then occupied the White House. It may not turn out that way this time but there are many observers are sure the President is going to be forced into accepting some things he did not want or does not want just now.

Take the question of taxes, for instance. Rightly or wrongly, the President is being blamed for the current business depression and criticism of this sort is rolling up like a snowball going down hill. It is being said that two tax levies which were forced through congress are largely responsible. The tax on undivided profits of corporations and the capital gains tax are used as horrible examples of these unsound policies fostered by Mr. Roosevelt. Well, the President is responsible to the extent that he approved of them. They were the product, however, of some of the dozen or so peek-a-boo artists to whom the President frequently has listened as advisors.

I think it has been generally demonstrated that the two taxes in question have been ruinous, especially to the small business. It is equally true, I believe, that business must be given some consideration if it ever is to get on a sound basis again and that it ought to share attention of legislators with labor leaders even though business has fewer votes. In any event, the burdens which the New Deal admittedly has placed on business are serving as the springboard for a part of the Democratic majority. They can properly fight for these things—and easily be too busy to push the President's program through.

So the President's plans have gone astray. They may remain that way, or they may go even further, depending upon how long the backward slide of business continues. Of one thing, you may be sure. Partly through his own fault and partly through the fault of the type of advisors with which he has surrounded himself, Mr. Roosevelt does not have the confidence of as many members of the legislative branch as he formerly held.

It is a little early to attempt a report on prospects for the regular session of congress that convenes in January. Yet, since it is quite evident there will be nothing in the current extra session beyond crop control legislation—if even that—I believe we might look forward a bit. One of the things now evident is the position congress will take on relief for destitute and unemployed. I believe I see a battle coming in that direction.

It has been apparent during the last two years that congress was dissatisfied with the relief system built up by Secretary Ickes and the professional reliever, Harry Hopkins, works progress administrator. The requirements, especially for the Hopkins machine, have been met with what has come to be called "blank check" appropriations. That is, congress has passed a bill appropriating two billions or three billions or whatever was thought necessary by Mr. Hopkins. It was just as simple as that. Congress had no strings on the money, seldom was told a great deal of the details. It was money to feed and clothe the destitute.

Now, however, some observers think they detect a change. They believe they see signs that congress will put an end to the "blank check" method of handling relief. As far as anyone knows now, the President again will ask for a huge sum to be distributed for relief through Mr. Hopkins—and that is when the battle lines will form.

Congress, therefore, will be faced again with appropriation demands to provide food and clothing and likely the request for the funds will come from Mr. Roosevelt as heretofore—for a lump sum. If the number favoring the dole grows to any considerable extent, there may be a reversal of policy whether the President wants it that way or not. You see, in an election year (and all house members and 30-odd senators face election canvasses again next year) it is nice to be able to say to the voters that they are receiving something at the hands of their representative or their senator. The candidates can justify a break with the President easily, and with business sliding backward as is the case now, there will be plenty of relief needed for unemployed again. The voters can be told that they are being given charge of these relief expenditures and that they no longer will have to watch Washington bureaucrats waste the taxpayers money. On the horizon, therefore, it is possible to see the line of cleavage between the New Deal and the old line Democrats leading to elimination of the dangerous lump-sum appropriation and a restoration of relief ministrations into the hands of local authorities.

There is one further consideration in the general relief situation that attracts attention. I think it is reasonable to assume that the far-flung relief machine which Mr. Hopkins has built up is permeated to the core with political appointments. It is only the usual political procedure and is not confined to the present national administration. Assuming, therefore, that there is such a political machine, it is hardly open to question that it is a Roosevelt machine. The picture then becomes clear: since numerous members of the house and senate want to control their own political destinies, they want control of the organizations for relief in their own jurisdictions. Further, if Mr. Roosevelt should want to seek a third term nomination, those Democrats who want to oppose him would be quite powerless if they had to sit idly by and witness Roosevelt delegates picked from their own stronghold.

Wednesday, October 20
The Board of Supervisors for the County of Iosco met at the Court house in the City of Tawas City, Michigan on Wednesday, the twentieth day of October, A. D. 1937, in continued Annual Session.

Board called to order at 9:30 A. M. by Edgar Louks, Chairman, who ordered Roll Call. Present, Supervisors Anderson, Bellville, Black, Brayman, Burgeson, Cross, Curry, Hatton, Hennigar, Herriman, Klenow, Leaf, MacGillivray, Louks, Nunn, Schneider Schmalz, Sommerfeld. Quorum present.

The minutes of the preceding Session (10-29-37) were read and approved.

The Clerk of the Board read the following communication:
October 19, 1937. To Whom it may Concern: This is to certify that Mr. Edw. Seifert is authorized to act on the Board of Supervisors in the absence of Mr. Harry Pelton.

Yours Very Truly, F. B. Lomas, City Clerk.

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Sommerfeld that Mr. Edw. Seifert be given a seat on the Board. Motion prevailed.

Mr. Seifert then took a seat on the Board.

Supervisor MacGillivray read the report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges as follows.

Tawas City, Michigan
October 20, 1937
Report of Roads and Bridges Committee

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board: Your committee on Roads and Bridges spent two days in September, the 27th and 28th, inspecting roads and bridges in south and west Iosco. It completed the routine of inspection, traversing roads in the north end of the county on October 13.

While crippled for lack of operating funds, it appears to your committee that in no past year has the travelling facilities of so many County roads been maintained in such good condition as they have been kept this year by your Commission.

We find that while the use of brine has made splendid surfaced highways in dry weather that roads impregnated heavily are transformed to sloppy thoroughfares in rainy weather, and we doubt the advisability of using brine in heavy quantities even in dusty, dry weather.

Your committee recommends that investigation be made of the uses of oil surfacing and that if it is found that the cost is not prohibitive that oil spread roads be adopted on your Commission's program.

Your committee particularly recommends completion of the Alabaster-Sherman Road. It will traverse good farming land, and has 2 1/2 miles of construction completed. It requires 3 1/2 miles of new construction.

On Monday, September 27th, we visited an excellent grade constructed on the mile by the old Laidlaw Farm, in Tawas Township. A new (Continued on next page) concrete bridge has been built across Cold Creek.

HERALD WANT ADVS GET RESULTS

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS

Two new concrete and steel bridges have been completed on the mile between Sections 34 and 35 in the same township. These two new structures, built so that they should last many years replace three old wooden structures, that had been condemned.

In Plainfield a 25 foot fill has been put in under WPA on the Glass Ranch Road. This fill needs guard rail or guard post. In this township a mile of new grade has been built on the Ora Lake Road and a mile west of Londo school has been put in shape to receive stone. Two other half mile stretches have been built into nice grades.

Grading and draining structures have been completed on 1 1/2 miles in Wilber township, and limestone is now being placed on bad sections of these grades.

September 28—
The stone plant is now in operation. In Burleigh township the Paul Siegrist and Eulie Colvin Roads have been graded and drainage structures put in place, and the two miles between sections 23 and 24 and 25 and 26 are now being improved.

In Sherman grade construction is being completed on the Cottrell Road. In Reno some excellent grade improvement has been completed on the Tower line as well as on the north town line and the mile between sections 11 and 14 and the cemetery road.

October 13—
In Tawas we inspected a bridge on the mile between sections 3 and 4. This is an old concrete structure, 25ft. span, that is in bad shape and should be replaced or repaired at once. A new concrete and steel, 15ft. span, structure is being placed on the 1/4 mile road section 3, Tawas Township to replace an old wooden structure.

We found all the north end roads in splendid condition, except for a mile connecting West AuSable with US-23 pavement and a portion of West AuSable school bus road. We were given assurance that these stretches would be surfaced this month. Material is on hand for a WPA Bridge project beginning about October 25 on the AuSable depot road.

Respectfully Submitted,
Signed: James MacGillivray, Chairman, Edward Burgeson, Henry Kleinow.

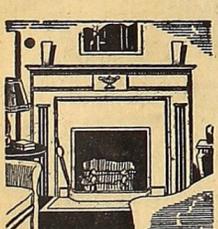

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Burgeson that the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee be accepted and adopted as read. Motion prevailed.

Report of Judiciary Committee on matter of appointment of a special dog warden.

Your Judiciary Committee met at the Courthouse by rearrangement with Mr. Osborn, a suggested candidate for the office of County Dog Warden, and after discussing the matter, ascertained that the suggested candidate had no desire to assume the onerous activities that acceptance of such an office would entail. Having no knowledge of any other person that your committee deemed qualified and in receptive mood, your committee respectfully returns consideration of appointment of a Dog Warden to the committee of the whole.

Respectfully,
Signed: James MacGillivray, Ed. Burgeson.

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Sommerfield that the report of the Judiciary Committee be accepted and adopted as read. Motion prevailed.

Supervisor MacGillivray read the following report of the Judiciary Committee:

Tawas City, Michigan
October 20, 1937
Honorable Chairman and members of the Board of Supervisors:

Your committee on Judiciary begs to report that it has carefully considered the proposal of the Detroit House of Correction for maintenance of Isosco County Prisoners, the rate being set at $1.25 for male prisoners and $1.35 for female prisoners and recommends that said proposal be approved by this board and signed by the Clerk and Chairman of this Board.

Signed: Edward Burgeson, James MacGillivray.

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Burgeson that the report of the Judiciary Committee be accepted and adopted as read. Motion prevailed.

Supervisor MacGillivray read a resolution of this Board. Roll Call: Yes: Anderson, Bellville, Black, Brayman, Burgeson, Cross, Curry, Hatton, Hennigar, Herriman, Klenow, Leaf, MacGillivray, Nunn, Pelton, Schneider, Sommerfield, 17, No, 0, Absent, 1. Motion prevailed.

Supervisor MacGillivray read a report of the Judiciary Committee as follows.

Mr. Chairman:
Your Judiciary Committee begs leave to report that it approves the attitude of the Board of Supervisors of Ingham County in the matter of retaining County Normal Schools, as expressed in a resolution presented to his board by the School Commissioner of Ingham County, and ask that the Clerk of this Board be instructed to inform the Clerk of Ingham County of the favorable report of the Isosco Board's Judiciary Committee.

Signed: Ed. Burgeson, James MacGillivray.

Moved by MacGillivray, and seconded that the report of the Judiciary Committee be accepted and adopted as read. Motion prevailed.

Supervisor MacGillivray read the following report of the Judiciary Committee:

Tawas City, Michigan
October 20, 1937
Resolution—Submitted by Judiciary Committee, Isosco Board of Supervisors, as a report and by James MacGillivray, of said Committee as a Resolution. Subject Conservation of Cranberries.

Whereas the opening of new trunk highways through the berry region of northern Michigan has brought into said region great numbers of summer visitors unfamiliar with the nature of the wild marsh cranberry and whereas said highways have made the berry marshes easy of access to said visitors with the result that a large portion of the crop has been picked in August and September by said visitors, while the berries are still green, undeveloped and permanently bitter and unpalatable, thus depriving themselves and local residents of the privilege of securing the berries when they have reached a degree of ripeness that makes them a delicious food, of reputed medicinal value as a nerve tonic. Therefore, be it resolved, that this board herewith petitions the Department of Conservation of the State of Michigan to incorporate in its program for desired enactments by the legislature at its next regular session provisions that will make it a misdemeanor for anyone to pick in the wild marshes of the State any low bush cranberries before October 1, in any year, providing a penalty for such picking.

Signed: James MacGillivray, Edw. Burgeson.

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Brayman that the report of the Judiciary Committee be accepted and adopted as read. Motion prevailed.

Mr. E. O. Putnam addressed the Board at this time concerning gravelling a part of the Lake Road North and West of Hale.

Moved by MacGillivray, and supported that the Clerk of the Board instruct the County Road Commission to gravel immediately the 1/2 mile on the Lake Road in Plainfield Township beginning 2 1/2 miles west and 1/2 mile north of the Village of Hale. Motion prevailed.

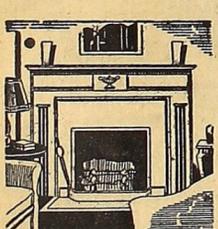

The committees were ordered to their respective duties by the Chairman, th balance of the Board to be at ease subject to the call of the Chair.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bethel of Saginaw spent Thanksgiving and the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Thornton.

Floyd Schneider and Bert Figley of Flint were here for a couple of days hunting.

Mrs. Susan Kilborn of Reno was a caller in town Tuesday.

Orville Ballard of Flint visited relatives here one day last week.

Bob Stoner was at Prescott Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peck Ross of Flint visited relatives here last week.

Kenneth Clark, who is working in Detroit, spent the week end at his home here.

The box social, given by Miss Warren at the Turtle school Tuesday evening, was well attended the sum of $15 was taken in for which she purchased a second hand piano for the school.

Hunting season for deer is closed for another year. About half of the hunters who had license from here were lucky to get their buck.

No fatal accidents occurred, although one man, Mr. Cole of Detroit, who was hunting with Calvin Billings, was shot through the shoulder and cut the skin on his throat by a stray bullet, we also know of many others who were about half shot before they started for the woods.

We hear many deer stories. One guy claims he was so close to a buck that he had to stand back to get a shot and missed him at that. Another tells, he had a fire where he was sitting and when he got up to get some dry wood for his fire he stood his gun up beside a tree and when he was coming back with the wood a big buck was standing by the gun looking it over, however the buck didn't care to make friends with the hunter and took off for the woods before he got a shot at him. We believe we have some good men with a rifle as one hunter reports he hit his buck five times in four shots. The women hunters don't report any good luck.

Mrs. Mildred McClure and children of Holt spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pringle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jordan were Sunday visitors at the latter's sister, Mrs. Herman Timereck.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goldsmith of Tawas City called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kohn Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crum and children of Flint spent the week end here visiting relatives and friends.

Emil Scharett of Detroit, was here Thursday calling on old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kleinert of Flint spent Thanksgiving visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pierson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schroeder entertained at Sunday dinner. Mrs. Wm. Schroeder, jr. and son, Billie, Mr. and Mrs. George Schroeder, Everett Gibbons, Mr. Hopper and son, all from Pontiac.

Fred Kohn made a business trip to Bay City on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller of Detroit visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Octava Miller.

A party was held for Fred Kohn Saturday night in honor of his forty-fifth birthday. A dainty lunch was served, he was presented with some beautiful gifts. The guests departed in the wee hours in the morning wishing him many more happy birthdays.

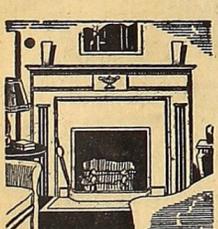

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Amboy and daughter, Mrs. Minnie Horton, all from Flint, were at Fred Kohn's on Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schroeder and son of Pontiac, were week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schroeder.

Ford offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments all around.

De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors—with a choice of engine sizes—85 or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost. With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA

Standard Ford V-8 (60 hp.)—Coupe, $599; Tudor, $644; Fordor, $689. Standard Ford V-8 (85 hp.)—Coupe, $629; Tudor, $669; Fordor, $714. De Luxe Ford V-8 (85 hp. only)—Coupe, $689; Tudor, $729; Fordor, $774; Convertible Coupe, $774; Club Coupe, $749; Convertible Club Coupe, $804; Phaeton, $824; Convertible Sedan, $904.

Standard and De Luxe cars equipped with bumpers, bumper guards, spare wheel, tire, tube, tire lock and band, cigar lighter, twin horns, and headlight beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge.

In addition, De Luxe cars are equipped with extra tail light, windshield wiper, sun visor; also de Luxe steering wheel, glove compartment lock, clock, and chrome wheel bands, at no extra charge.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Ripening Bananas.—Green bananas can be ripened by placing them in a paper bag and keeping them in a dark closet for a day or two.

Improving Vegetables.—Sugar, added in the proportion of a fourth of a teaspoon to two cups of vegetables, will improve the flavor of cooked corn, beets, peas and lima beans.

Concerning Mirrors.—Never hang a mirror where it faces a glare of light. The back of the mirror should be protected so that no light or water could possibly enter.

Cleaning Brassware.—Brass ornaments should be put into hot soapy water to which soda has been added and scrubbed with a soft brush to remove any polish that may have stuck in previous cleanings. Finish off by rinsing with clean hot water and dry with a soft cloth.

Were you ever alone in a strange city?

Only if you know the true value of this newspaper. Alone in a strange city. It is pretty dull. Even the newspapers don't seem to print many of the things that interest you. Headline stories are all right, but there is something lacking. That something is local news.

For—all good newspapers are edited especially for their local readers. News of your friends and neighbors is needed along with that of far off places. That is why a newspaper in a strange city is so uninteresting. And that is why this newspaper is so important to you.

NOW is a good time to get to . . .

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Sewell, on the eve of her twentieth birthday, rebels at her lot, dependent on her detested stepmother, Irma, and full of tragic memories of her mother's murder twelve years before and her father's death six months ago. Irma calls in Helen Blackadder, an admirer, to help her persuade Joyce to marry rich, young Michael Kirkpatrick. Mike, sent up to Joyce by Irma and Blackadder, demands a showdown on his proposal and is rejected. Reading her father's papers, Joyce realizes that La Barranca, a Mexican hacienda which her father had owned, legally belongs to her. Later, she receives a letter enclosing a warrant on the United States Treasury for $10,000 compensation for her mother's murder at La Barranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley, a banker and only remaining friend of her father's. She confides that she wants to make a secret journey to Mexico.

CHAPTER II—Continued

She sat staring at the floor, not answering at once. "I know what you mean," she said finally, "and I'll try to explain. I remember everything, but I've found out that being far away from a thing like that doesn't help you to forget—it makes it into a picture on the wall. Then there's something else. Places go by contrasts, don't they? I won't say anything about Elsinboro; all I can tell you is that when I've been unhappy, when I'm most miserable, I look back and dream of happiness and La Barranca." She swept her eyes to his face. "My mother isn't here, Mr. Bradley. I mean she couldn't possibly come to Elsinboro—not even in my thoughts. Does that sound foolish to you?"

"Not foolish, my dear," he murmured, "not at all foolish."

Touched by his understanding she reached out one hand impulsively and laid it on his arm. "Oh, Mr. Bradley, please be my friend. You can help me so much! My passport, a letter of credit, but that's not all. You know my stepmother. Father used to keep telling me she's a good woman. Well, she is, but if she finds out what I'm doing or where I am I'll have two fights on my hands instead of one."

"How are you going to work it? How will you get away?"

"I've thought it all out. I can say I'm going to Frances Holder's for a visit."

"H'm. But they'll trace you. Nowadays a deliberate disappearance is one of the hardest things on earth to stage."

"I've thought of that too." She gave him a look so composed it set his blood to tingling. "If I go by air, where will I be by the time they begin their tracing?"

He blinked at her admiringly. "Joyce, I've made up my mind. I'll do everything I can to help you and I promise I'll keep my mouth tight shut till you say the word."

On the same impulse they rose to their feet and stood with right hands half extended, not quite touching. "You're awfully young, Joyce, and most people would say I ought to be jailed for letting you go. But you've got heart as well as head, and as for youth—what's it for? To spend while it's strong."

He proved as good as his word and better, for he could see a lot further ahead than Joyce. Within ten days not only did he arrange that her passport for travel abroad should come direct from the State department rather than through the local county clerk, but he coached her on her department in the meantime toward her stepmother, provided her with a certified copy of her father's will, warned her about excessive baggage and bought her tickets by air in a fictitious name.

Later, without detection, she boarded a plane at Elsinboro's almost deserted airport that connected at Newark with a night plane south.

CHAPTER III

Dirk Van Suttart, second secretary of embassy, would have showed to greater advantage in any other setting. The traditions of an ancient name were behind him, he had more than his share of good looks, a reasonable amount of money and a merry eye. Away from his job he was as clean-cut a young American as ever drew breath, but he was on the way to being spoiled, poisoned by the bite of the diplomatic bee.

He was engaged in testing the spring of a polo mallet when the reception clerk entered, laid Joyce's slip on the desk and lingered to smoke a cigarette. Dirk read the paper over his shoulder.

"What does she want?"

"Same old thing. She'd like to walk in on the chief."

Dirk finished testing the stick, put it away in a clothes closet, went to his padded chair and rummaged for a dispatch. "All set. You can show her in." Presently Joyce stood before him. He perused the dispatch frowningly for a moment longer, then motioned her to a chair beside the desk.

"Won't you sit down, Miss Sewell?"

Joyce hesitated. "You're not the ambassador, are you?"

"Hardly. I'm the second secretary."

"I wanted to see the ambassador."

"Are you an American?"

"Yes; born of American parents residing abroad. I arrived from the States last night. Do you wish to see my passport?"

"That's not necessary at present. I suggest you state your business. If it's something I can't handle—or if it's important enough—an appointment will be made for you with his excellency."

Joyce sat down without taking her eyes off him. She was puzzled. Here was a young man, the very antithesis of Mike Kirkpatrick in looks, manner and breeding, yet all she felt was bitter disappointment. Why? Suddenly the answer swept over her. She was face to face with the man that had defeated her father—immature, perhaps, but his veneer not yet solidified, but the same unfeeling mask.

"What's your name?" she asked.

"Dirk Van Suttart," he replied, betrayed by the suddenness of the question. A glint lit in his eye and color rose to his cheeks, but he quickly controlled his anger and raised one eyebrow. "Really, Miss Sewell, while you requested a personal interview I didn't realize you were contemplating an exchange of confidences."

"I like to know to whom I am talking," said Joyce coolly. "I think you'll find my business is quite personal. I'm the daughter and sole heir of the late Cutler Sewell and there's a file in this office under his name. I wish to know my rights. Am I entitled to have copies of the dispatches, or to examine them, or to be given a resume, or—if all that is impossible—can I be informed of the last step in the negotiation?"

By this time both Van Suttart's eyebrows were raised to the limit. "No copy of any dispatch can be given to anybody," he declared, "except by specific direction of the Department of State, and the same restriction applies to the balance of your question. May I ask to what this file refers?"

"To my father's property in this country."

"I thought so. Miss Sewell, Americans abroad suffer from an unfortunate delusion which you seem to share that the foreign service is maintained for their individual convenience. It isn't. It was created for the benefit of the United States as a whole and of the taxpayers at home who foot the bills. Haven't you heard of the Mexican claims commission in Washington?"

"I have."

"That, my dear young lady, is where you should file your petition."

"I did, through my father, when I was eight years old. I'm not eight now, Mr. Van Suttart, though you seem to think so. The Mexican claims commission has been sitting for a great many years considering claims amounting to $250,000,000. Has it settled a single case?"

"I'm not at liberty to say."

"You mean you don't know? I'll tell you, it hasn't—not one."

"Miss Sewell, this conversation is getting us nowhere. May I say in conclusion that I've given you all the advice—the only advice—to which you are entitled? The embassy can do nothing to help you—nothing whatever."

"Help!" exclaimed Joyce. "I didn't come here for help; I asked for certain information. Are you sure you have the authority to refuse it?"

"Quite sure."

Joyce stood up to find her knees were trembling. She had been dismissed, told to leave! Anger surged in her veins—anger against some implacable force outside herself and Van Suttart. She became a flame and suddenly its beauty cut through to his inner consciousness. In a half daze he was telling himself that if he had met this girl at a cocktail party instead of in the course of official business he would have crashed through to her side and stayed there. But he was too late, the polished shell he wore had held out too long.

"Mr. Van Suttart," said Joyce, "your imagining I came to you for help has its funny side. Aren't you ever puzzled as to why you're alive—why you draw down pay? A canary in his gilded cage earns his keep with song, but a popinjay can't even sing."

She was gone before he could wipe the look of amazement from his face, much less answer.

She hurried to the hotel where she was living, paid her bill and asked that her baggage be brought down. At sight of the petaca there were supercilious glances from the tourists, the clerk and even the porter, but not from the taxi driver; again the little native trunk served her well. He did not bother to lie about the fare and even understood her quest for the best hotel unfrequented by foreigners. Unhesitatingly he drove her to an establishment in a back street but near the center of town. The proprietor greeted her in soft Castilian and took the trouble to accompany her himself to a top-floor room.

"Can you recommend a woman lawyer?" she asked.

"I know of one, but she's a Mexican."

"I prefer a Mexican," said Joyce.

"Will you give me her name and address?"

He took out his card, scribbled on it, and handed it to her. "She's a difficult person," he remarked, "but an excellent lawyer."

Joyce decided to waste no time in telephoning for an appointment, but she did stop long enough to unpack her bag and hang up her clothes. As her rage at Van Suttart began to cool she wondered at it and felt a little ashamed. Probably that manner of his had got him his job, perhaps he was paid to make people feel exactly as she had felt. She opened the petaca, sorted out the documents she thought she would need and made her way on foot to the lawyer's address. It was a strange, old-fashioned building with a long dark narrow hall which opened suddenly upon a big square well surrounded by balconies and roofed by the sky. There was an elevator but no attendant. Rather than attempt to work the mechanism herself she walked up two flights and located a door upon which was inscribed: Lic. Margarida Fonseca.

She knocked; there was no answer. She opened the door, stepped into an empty anteroom and coughed. The door into a room beyond was open. She passed through it and stopped short. On the farther side of a littered desk, leaning back and apparently absorbed in staring through the thick wall at some vision far away, sat a woman whose appearance could be described only as leonine. One glance was enough to make her speak in English.

"What do you want?"

"A lawyer," said Joyce.

"What for? What about?"

"May I sit down?"

"No! What about?"

"An estate."

"Whose?"

"Mine. I have the documents here proving absolute title if you'll only take the trouble to look at them."

"No use. You're wasting my time. Don't waste yours or your money by going to any other lawyer. I give you that advice for nothing."

"What is your time worth?" asked Joyce, switching into Spanish. "I like you. How much would you charge to let me sit and look at you for half an hour?"

Model Hayloft Is Placed in U. S. Farm Building; Seek to Standardize Crops

The most modern farm laboratory in the world has been opened by the Department of Agriculture in Washington in an effort to raise the standards of American farm products, writes a Washington United Press correspondent in the New York Herald Tribune.

In the new standardization building are located the bureaus directing regulatory and marketing agencies dealing with the principal farm products. Technological and economic research scientists also are housed in the air-cooled structure.

It also houses a modern hayloft—a combination standardization research laboratory and warehouse—with glass north front and scientific devices for analyzing quality and factors in hay.

Cotton experts prepare standards for use in domestic and foreign trade. The appeal board of review examiners, the final authority in the interpretation of standards, has its classing rooms in the building.

Along with cotton standardization and classical work, the physical

Margarida Fonseca swung around in her swivel chair, planted her elbows on the desk, her fists in her cheeks, and stared. "Cara! Hablas Castillano, gringuita! So, we talk Spanish! Who are you?"

"My name is Joyce Sewell. I'm the daughter of Cutler Sewell who owned—"

"Tst! Tst! Nobody owns anything. You possess, you don't own."

"Oh, but I do," protested Joyce, "I can prove it." She advanced, sat down on the edge of a chair and laid her documents on the desk.

"Please let me show you."

"It's no use, my child. I've told you the truth and the whole truth. Incidentally I don't like Americans, but let me give you something else for nothing. Get out. Go back to your own country before somebody makes one bite of your pretty head."

Joyce stood up and buried her grave blue eyes in Margarida's black ones. "I'll get out, but I won't go back. I was wrong about you. I may not find a lawyer with more brains, but I'll get one who isn't a coward." She snatched up her precious documents, turned quickly and started toward the door.

"Stop!" yelled Margarida. "Nobody can say that to me! Come back and sit down. Give me the papers." She took them, spread them out but kept her puzzled eyes fixed on Joyce. Abruptly she smiled. "I thought you were out to make a play on the tender female heart but I've changed my mind. Have you any money?"

"How much?"

"Ten thousand dollars."

"Really! You're loose in Mexico at your age with $10,000! We'll see the papers."

She glanced over them swiftly with odd jerks of her nose as if she were a parrot tearing the meat out of one nut after another.

"Why didn't you tell me it was La Barranca?" she asked of the blue sky.

"You didn't give me a chance," said Joyce.

Margarida turned. "I think I've found a way. It has nothing whatever to do with the courts. Come back in a week."

"That won't do," said Joyce, "it won't do at all!"

"Because a week is too long!"

"You have courage, little one. Since you don't do your fighting with tears we'll go hunting together. Fortunately I care nothing what happens to you—nothing at all. Is that clearly understood?"

"Don't worry," said Joyce. "Show me the road and I'll look out for myself."

Margarida scooped up the papers, crammed a hat on her head, showed the way out and slammed the door behind them. A moment later they were in a taxi which scurried along interminable back streets to draw up in exactly 15 minutes at the residence of Gen. Zacharias Onelia, right-hand man to the minister of war.

"General, it is very good of you to receive us," said Margarida. "Do you mind taking a look at this young lady before she goes out to walk around the patio while you and I have a talk? She has a peculiar value, General."

"To me?"

"Especially to you," said Margarida and turned to Joyce. "Suppose you go out, chica, and stay out till you're called!" As soon as Joyce had gone Margarida leaned toward Onelia and continued in a low voice. "General, this is a momentous business, far deeper than may appear at first glance. The young lady, Miss Joyce Sewell, is undoubtedly the lawful owner of hacienda La Barranca."

STAR DUST
Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

IT IS a toss up whether Madeleine Carroll or Loretta Young will be the most-exquisitely dressed screen star this winter. Miss Carroll writes from Paris that she is having the time of her life selecting costumes for "The River Is Blue" which she will start making for Walter Wanger when she returns to Hollywood.

Loretta Young was in New York recently buying fur coats, hats, and dresses by the score, just as if she hadn't had any new clothes in ages. Hollywood designers have just about run out of ideas for Loretta for in her last four pictures she has had altogether some 80 changes of costume, and each one was supposed to be a knockout. The more extreme and bizarre clothes are, the better she likes them—so she keeps designers working overtime.

You will be hearing a lot from now on about Iona Massey, who makes her American screen debut in M-G-M's "Rosalie." Officials of the company are so delighted with her performance in a minor role that they are going to give her the title role in "Pompador," one of the most alluring beauties in history or drama.

There is one popular radio player who will have to mend her ways if she ever goes into motion pictures—and most of them do sooner or later. Alice Frost of the "Big Sister" cast comes out of rehearsals with her forehead all smudged. She holds a pencil in her hand, and in a moment of dramatic tension invariably draws the point across her forehead.

The jinx that has dogged the footsteps of all Hollywood players who appeared on the Broadway stage this season has at last been knocked out. Frances Farmer broke the spell. She opened recently in "Golden Boy," a play about a prize fighter, and the critics went into rhapsodies over her deft playing of romantic scenes.

Radio performers develop some of the strangest hobbies, but for the present Tony Wons, the C. B. S. philosopher, is leading them all. He makes violins. He makes violins with the utmost care out of any old thing he finds lying around the home. Inspired, possibly by Bob Burns and his far famed bazooka, he has made one out of a piece of tin stovepipe and the tone to his surprise is excellent.

The battle of the two great glamorous stars of the screen, Garbo and Deitrich, turns out to be no battle at all when you see their new pictures, "Conquest" and "Angel." Garbo is so far in the lead that there is just no competition at all. "Conquest" is a lavishly-produced, historically-faithful romance of the time of Napoleon, and Garbo as the lovely Countess Walewska has never been more appealing. "Angel," on the other hand, is just an inconsequential modern triangle story in which the camera lingers on Miss Deitrich to the exclusion of any action.

Because of her good work in the new Fred Astaire picture, "Damsel in Distress," Joan Fontaine is going to get a strange reward. She is going to be starred in "Curtain Call," which Katherine Hepburn turned down. Don't think she minds taking this hand-me-down, though. It is a grand story.

Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy will be in the cast of a new comedy that will feature Irene Dunne and as a result she is the envy of all Hollywood as well as the public at large. Her outstanding success as a comedienne in "The Awful Truth" influenced Universal to postpone her biography of Madame Curie and instead of that story to cast her in a comedy. Thus she has established herself as a double threat actress, at home in heavy drama as well as light farce.

ODDS AND ENDS—Constance Bennett is the envy of all the pampered stars, because Alfalfa Sweeter of "Our Gang" comedies serenades her in his hilariously-uncertain tenor. Ken Murray and Edgar Bergen have evidently decided they are in pictures to stay because they have both bought ranches out near Al Johnson's. . . . Ann Sothorn's sister, Bonnie Lake, has composed a song and sold it for "Girl of the Golden West" Kate Smith is toying with the idea of trying motion pictures again.

Clint Frank, Rams Leading Performers in Football World

SOME day I am going to learn to say "No" in the manner of those big personality boys whose square chins adorn the success ads. Meanwhile it looks as though I am hooked again. On the desk there is the regular weekly assortment of invitations to serve (gratis) on various committees to name the sports greats of the last eleven months.

Obviously, such a task should only be undertaken by those supremely confident that they are divinely guided. With millions of boys and girls straining muscles daily for the sake of Alma Maters, or merely for the fun of it, a lone mortal's a sucker for thinking he has a chance to guess right.

Nevertheless, having always been a pushover for guessing games, I have been devoting the last two and three-quarter minutes to the requests. Herewith are the answers: Best football player of the year—Clint Frank of Yale.

Best Eastern football team—Fordham.

Best football team—Fordham. Best amateur athlete—Johnny Goodman.

Five greatest athletes of the year—Henry Armstrong, Clint Frank, Don Budge, Charley Gehringer, Johnny Goodman.

UNTIL 600 millionaire stockholders were overcome by their own ineptitude, Madison Square Garden was the biggest name in the prize-fight business. Watching the show at the St. Nicks the other night and listening to the oldtimers' gossip, I was reminded, though, of something. It is that boxing never could have prospered in New York save through the diligent efforts of the small-club promoters.

St. Nicholas Palace Rich in Memories

In recognition of these men, the ambitious kids willing to chance beatings and small purses for the sake of future fame, and the fans who long have supported them so loyally, I am starting a new series. Other fragmentary sketches, written in the attempt to catch the spirit of these Bulwarks of Boxing, will follow from time to time.

St. Nicholas Palace (this year renamed the Royal Windsor)—It was here that Diamond Jim Brady, a regular ringside patron, jumped up from his seat to present Ted Kid Lewis with a diamond pin from his tie after one of Lewis's swell brawls.

A boisterous place it was soon after it came into being 36 years ago. Jim Buckley heaved a cop out of the window one night when boxing was banned in New York and the law tried to stop one of Buckley's membership shows. An injunction, granted by the late Mayor Gaynor, permitted Buckley to run his shows, and he refused to let anything prevent him from doing so.

Many a pickpocket was loose in those unhallowed days, too. It was here that Joe Humphries jumped into the ring one night when two battlers were heaving leather. "Better keep your hands in your pockets, boys. You, too, Al Smith," Joe roared. "A couple of boys from downtown just walked in."

When Willie Jackson Fought Johnny Dundee

Of course, there were more dignified proceedings upstairs, just as there were down in the basement, where Princeton's great Hobey Baker started his hockey career.

Jimmy Johnston brought Jem Driscoll and Owen Moran here first to assault local fight fans with their skill and speed. Gunboat Smith, in his debut at St. Nicks, hit his opponent so hard that the fellow's left shoe went flying through the air.

Abel Attell used to come here. Stand with the gambling gentry in the back and wager all the bobs he could on himself. After a hasty visit to the dressing room, rush into the ring and give one of his greatest exhibitions.

JACK and Ellen Dyson couldn't find a thing for which they could be thankful and merry this Christmas—Jack out of work and Ellen with so little in the house left for meals. But to make matters worse, shortly after Jack left, Ellen missed the emerald setting out of her ring. She hadn't worn it for a long time but it had been her greatest consolation—if the "worst case to worst"—it could be sold. And with it gone!

"Five presents here and they aren't from the five and ten, either, Jack! I know, you took my emerald to buy these, didn't you?" Ellen cried out, something she wouldn't have said had her nerves and patience not been frayed to the thin edge.

"You honestly think that of me, Ellen? If that's the way you feel, all right, think what you please!" Neither of them realized that they were hardly accountable for their mutual lack of understanding. Tears fairly blinded Ellen as she went out to bring in the little red hen, the last member of their little flock. She kept thinking that at least this, her last offering to the holiday dinner, was honest.

Then suddenly she caught sight of the familiar emerald—there in the little red hen's insides was hidden the gem she had thought poor Jack had taken. It took but a moment or two to wash up, snatch up the emerald and dash into the workroom where she went to her knees before her husband.

"Forgive? Why, Ellen dear, it certainly did look bad for me, no wonder. If I'd not been a stubborn fool I'd have gone on and explained myself. You see, darling, on the street today I found a packet of bonds and when I returned them to their owner, he gave me twenty dollars as a reward and after he found out I was unemployed, he offered me a beginner's job in his office!"

Even an old grudge would have had to grin had he seen Jack and Ellen then join hands and dance about in their joy for a merry, lucky Christmas!

Custom of Burning Yule Log From Scandinavians

THE Christmas custom of burning the Yule log originated among the ancient Scandinavians. During the period of winter solstice, they kindled great bonfires honoring the god Thor. This was at the feast of Juul. The Saxons and the Goths also celebrated a winter festival which they called Jul, and so we derive our expression of "Yuletide," for the Christmas season.

In the time of the feudal lords, the cutting down and bringing in of the huge Yule log, or "clog" as it was then called, was a ceremony of great importance. One old writer tells us that the Yule clog "was to be lighted with a brand of the last year's log, which had been carefully laid aside for the purpose, and music was to be played during the ceremony of lighting."

Lesson for December 5 CHRISTIAN REST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:28-30: He bows 4:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.—Matthew 11:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When We Are Tired JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Great Invitation. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Christ Gives Us Rest. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Rest.

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream, bears all its sons away," so sang Isaac Watts in 1719. One wonders what he might say today! The mad rush of modern life—its relentless drawing of us all into its terrific tempo—leaves us distraught, nervous, overanxious. Nervous disorders are on a rapid increase, even among children. The condition prevails in the country as well as in the city, although it is aggravated in metropolitan centers.

Let us lay down the burdens of the universe for a bit and counsel quietly about that almost forgotten Christian virtue, rest. Nowhere can the troubled spirit find calm of soul as surely and as quickly as in God's Word—and in the One revealed there, for true rest is

I. Found in Christ (Matt. 11:28-30).

Rest for our souls is found not in the cessation of activity, but rather in joining with Christ as our yoke-fellow and in going on with him in meekness and lowliness of heart. Most of life's restlessness is the result of pride, of driving ambition to be somebody or to attain something. True humility removes all such disturbing factors.

But we do have a yoke and a burden to bear. Yes, it is true that not all is easy in the Christian life. But as someone has suggested, the burdens are like the burden of feathers on a bird. They may seem to be too heavy for his little body, but as a matter of fact they are the thing he flies with! Such are the "burdens" of Christ.

II. Received by Faith (Heb. 4:3).

Those who believe enter into rest. Faith in God through Jesus Christ brings a man into an abiding place that the storms of life may beat upon but can never move. Fair weather followers of Jesus who fall into a frenzy of fear and worry when sorrow or loss comes upon them need to learn to walk by faith. "Be not dismayed whate'er betide, God will take care of you," is more than the pious expression of a hymn writer, it is a statement of fact.

III. Rejected by Unbelief (Heb. 4:1, 6-11).

"The worst thing in the world" is unbelief—because it effectually closes the door to God's blessing. Jesus could not do "many mighty works" in his home town of Nazareth "because of their unbelief" (Matt. 13:58). Unbelief will keep us from the rest that God has prepared for his people, for it not only hinders men from coming to the Saviour, but keeps them from resting in him after they are saved.

IV. Necessary to Useful Living (v. 11).

Only when the follower of Christ appropriates that rest of soul which results from turning from his own efforts and trusting himself fully to Christ will there be that absolute surrender of every detail and problem of life to him which will bring out in daily living the glorious beauty and power of a life at rest with God.

A poem by Fay Inchfawn which has blessed the writer's soul is here passed on, with the prayer that it may help you who read these notes:

"Well, I am done. My nerves were on the rack. I've laid them down today; It was the last straw broke the camel's back. I've laid that down today. No, I'll not fume, nor fuss, nor fight; I'll walk by faith a bit and not by sight, I think the universe will work all right, I've laid it down today.

"So, here and now, the overweight, the worry. I'll lay it down today; The all-too-anxious heart; The tearing hurry; I'll lay these down today. O eager hands, O feet so prone to run, I think that He who made the stars and sun Can mind the things you've had to leave undone. Do lay them down today."

How true it is that we are prone to bear all the burdens of the universe when God's Word has told us to cast all our care upon Him, for He careth for us (1 Pet. 5:7). It is a powerful testimony for Christ when distraught and worry-ridden non-Christians see God's children walking steady and true in the midst of disappointments, trials, and sorrows. And the opposite is also true, that failure to trust God is a practical denial of our professed faith.

A Good Patriot

To be a good patriot, a man must consider his countrymen as God's creatures, and himself as accountable for his acting towards them.—Bishop Berkeley.

Duty

Duty—the command of Heaven, the eldest voice of God.—Charles Kingsley.

Service

All service ranks the same with God.—Robert Browning.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Thumbtack Your Draperies to a Board.

TO GIVE draperies the smartly tailored effect obtained by the professional decorator, a valance board must be used. A straight one by two inch board will be needed. A small finishing nail in the top of the window casing near each end and screw eyes placed near the top of the back of the valance board will hold it in place as shown at A. Both side drapes and valance may be thumbtacked to the board and then be quickly hung all at once by hooking the screw eyes over the finishing nails. Think of the advantage on cleaning day! Just lift board and all off the nails and take outside for dusting.

Tack the side drapes to the board first as at B, arranging fullness in flat pleats. In making the valance, allow enough material to fold around the ends of the board as at C; then tack it along the top, stretching it just enough so that it is perfectly smooth.

The valance shown here is made of glazed chintz and matches the glazed chintz border that faces the edges of the side drapes. The glass curtains may be hung just inside the window frame or to the bottom of the valance board. Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs; every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

On the Heels of Effort

The great high-road of human welfare lies along the old highway of steadfast well-doing; and they who are the most persistent, and work in the truest spirit, will invariably be the most successful; success treads on the heels of every right effort.—S. Smiles.

Good Deed Is Never Lost

He who sows courtesy, reaps friendship; and he who plants kindness, gathers love.

The man whose faults are the kind everyone can talk openly about—and does—is generally beloved.

Nothing much comes of a man preserving his old love letters, but when a woman does, look out.

Despite Better Judgment

There is nothing in knowing what not to do, if you bullheadedly go ahead and do it, anyway.

If one hasn't much to lose, one can contemplate his misfortune with quite complacent philosophy.

The kind of charity that appeals to your heart is the kind that can be bestowed without hurting the feelings of the recipient.

Rockefeller had the genius for making money, but he could not impart the secret to anyone else, though he tried to in maxim and precept.

Of Her Own Making

Sometimes when a woman recklessly debunks her husband to his face, she breaks his spirit and finds she is linked to a worthless man.

He who goes with wolves learns to howl.

Everybody deserves some compliments. See that he gets them.

Ring as Love Token
The ring as a love token commenced its recorded history when the ancient Greeks sent rings of iron to their betrothed as evidence of an agreement. The ring being placed on the third finger of the left hand during the marriage service, for it was believed that a nerve led from this finger directly to the heart. But most of the men wore their rings upon the right hand as a mark of power and independence.

in the above cities were very contradictory during the early years of the use of manuscript writing. Some school systems were enthusiastic for its use, putting forth data tending to prove its superiority over the usual script, while other systems put forth data tending to show the superiority of the script over manuscript form.
It is now known, however, that this disagreement had the same fundamental cause as the characters in the famous story, "The Three Blind Men and the Elephant." That is, the different schools were not reporting concerning the same factors. It is now generally conceded that manuscript writing is superior for older children and adults. One study for example, gives the results of testing 9,264 girls who have used manuscript writing for two years or more. It finds that the younger children obtain more speed by using the manuscript form, while the older children obtain more speed by using the script form.

Studies now quite generally point out that manuscript is superior for children in the following ways. (1) helps in early reading because of similarity of written and printed forms; (2) helps in spelling; (3) enables children much sooner to use writing as a form of expression; (4) and pupils like it and take pride in it. It also generally conceded that the change for manuscript to script would not come before the children have acquired some fluency, and that yet the change should be made before the transition becomes too difficult because of habit. Studies tend to indicate that the change should be made in the latter part of the second grade or the first part of the third grade.

Because of the above conclusions, the local schools have introduced the use of manuscript writing into the first and second grades this year. The change to script writing is at the beginning of the third grade. It will be noted that this follows the modern idea of the teaching of penmanship.

Not only is the visnaga cactus of the American southwest a source of sweetish sap, which serves as water, to the thirsty traveler, but a profitable industry has developed around the use of its pulp in the manufacture of candy.

Suez Route Through Lakes
The route chosen for the Suez canal was largely determined by the presence of a chain of lakes. Otherwise it could have been built for a distance of 72 miles only instead of the 101.

Liberality Towards the Weak
The growing liberality towards the weak, in social life, corresponds to that respect for the minority, in political life, which is the essence of freedom.
