Industry Asks New Deal

A MERICAN industry demands a new deal for the new year. In its "platform for 1938" it asks the government to repeal "unfair" labor relations laws and "unduly burdensome" taxes which, it says, threaten to reverse "a century's trend of improved living stand-

The platform was submitted to the National Association of Manufacturers by Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill company and chairman of the N. A. M.'s resolutions committee, and was adopted by the more than 2,000 persons at the annual convention in New York.

Asserting that "the onward march of the American people can be resumed and continued only if American industry produces more so that all can have more," the platform declarations were grouped under these headings:

No employer should be penalized for failure to deal with any labor organization organizing, supporting or maintaining a strike for illegal purposes, or by illegal means among his employees;

Employment, promotion and retention of employees on the basis of merit with due regard for length

Legal and social responsibility of both employers and employees for their commitments and their acts.

The platform condemned child labor and urged the enactment of federal legislation to support state child labor laws. Enactment of state legislation against sweatshops also was urged.

To promote free domestic competition based on private initiative and energy, the platform proposed limitation of government regulation "to the prevention of abuses inimical to the public interest, freedom from federal control of prices, wages and hours," fair taxes and "constantly increasing research to produce new and wanted products and new jobs."

Encouragement of private initiative; maintenance and extension of sound industrial practices; equitable employment relations throughout industry; creation of new and broader markets; constructive efforts to alleviate depression effects; sound government policies; co-operation with agriculture; peace.

Japs Enter Nanking

J APAN'S invading armies reached Nanking and smashed their way through several gates of the city's wall. Their complete occupation of the capital was imminent. The Chinese put up a spirited defense in the suburbs and nearby towns but it was unavailing.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his wife were reported to have escaped in an airplane, which must have been a great disappointment to the Japanese, who are determined to capture Chiang.

-K Diplomatic Changes

SEVERAL major changes in the diplomatic service are scheduled for the near future. It was learned that William E. Dodd had resigned en the post in Berlin. Dodd has found his duties difficult because of his admitted dislike of the Nazi policies and W. E. Dodd for some time has been regarded as "persona non grata" by the German government. He was a professor of history in the University of Chicago when appointed, and says he intends to resume work on a history of the Old slashed the government's claim for Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, ambassador to Great Britain, also 000.

R ETURNING from his fishing trip in Florida waters with an infected gum, President Roosevelt was confronted with a situation that was decidedly disconcerting. What has been called the Rossevelt depression was becoming still more depressed and congress seemingly couldn't make up its mind what to do about it. The demand for tax revisions that would assist business out of the slump was insistent, and so was the necessity of balancing the budget. Passage of the four administration "must" measures appeared to be impossible during the extraordinary session. All of them were opposed by various blocs of the majority party as well as by the Republican minority.

Stormy Days in Capital

The senate's farm bill seemed to have the best chance to get through, but it differed so radically from the house measure that it was certain a conference committee would have to try to find a common ground.

Secretary Wallace was reported dissatisfied with both senate and house bills. One official close to him said Wallace might urge President Roosevelt to veto any bill finally enacted which approximated either the senate or house measure.

Democrats were so badly split over the wage-hour bill that hope of passing it before the regular session of congress was about abandoned. Labor, too, was divided concerning this measure, the A. F. of L. opposing it and the C. I. O. advocating its passage. The federation offered its own version, calling for a flat 40 cents an hour minimum wage and a 40 hour maximum work week. The house bill was finally rescued from the rules committee by petition. House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, went ahead with plans to whip administration support behind the house measure. He said that fewer than 100 votes would be cast against the bill in its present form but warned that amendments which would make its wage-hour provisions more rigid might shunt the measure back to the labor committee and delay a vote indefinitely.

Infantry Comes First

IN WAR operations on land the infantry is still the most important branch of the service, says Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the army, in his annual report. Lessons learned by skilled observers of the civil war in Spain and the Chino-Japanese war have modified the American defense program, but, says the general, it is still the infantry that renders the decision in the final analysis. Airplanes

General Malin Craig and tanks are valuuable auxiliaries to the infantry, but they cannot bring about a decision in land operations.

Inventories of armament, motorization, mechanization and equipment, in the light of the lessons abroad, show several vital needs of the first line forces, General Craig declared. These include better weapons to combat aircraft and tanks, as well as more efficient guns for the planes and tanks.

Lindberghs Come Back

FTER two years of selfimposed exile in England, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the United States. Presumably they came over to spend the holidays at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, in Englewood, N. J. Dispatches from London said the colonel also had some business to transact in America. He is associated in an advisory capacity with Pan-American Airways.

The landing of the Lindberghs at New York was accomplished with such secrecy that they almost escaped the notice of reporters and news photographers. One of the officers of the liner on which they came said they planned to return to England immediately after Christmas.

Edgerton Backs Water

CONFIRMATION of the appointment of Henry W. Edgerton of Cornell university as associate justice of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals was endangered because it was thought from his writings that he did not believe in judicial review. However, he appeared before the senate sub-committee, consisting of Senators Borah, Burke and Van Nuys and repudiated his previous utterances. Of the power of courts to declare legislative enactments unconstitutional he said:

"I regard it as not only thoroughly established as a legitimate part of our constitutional system, but which was intended by the great majority of the men who framed our Constitution. I think it was properly established by John Marshall and I haven't the least criticism of any court for any declaration of the validity of that part of our constitutional system.'

Leviathan to Be Junked

APAN made a bid for the Leviathan, huge liner seized from Germany in the World war, but the United States Lines rejected it and sold the vessel to Metal Industries, Ltd., of London for $800,000. It will go to England under its own power and will be junked.

The Leviathan cost ten millions to build and the American government spent more than eight millions to recondition it; and also paid Germany $16,688,000 for its seizure.

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Meet James B. Doyle, boys and girls, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who tells us a yarn today about a terrific adventure that happened to him while he was a member of a CCC camp in Long Island back in '34.

Jim was sleeping soundly, after a hard day's work, when he was awakened by the bright rays of a flashlight in his face. It was still pitch dark in the bunkhouse and, he knew, not time to get up.

"What's the matter?" he growled.

The light flashed off and Jim recognized the hushed voice of a buddy of his who occupied a bunk near him. The voice was shaking with suppressed emotion.

"Sh-h-h," it warned. "Don't make any noise. I want to tell you something-something important."

"Well, go ahead," Jim answered, "but I don't see why you wake a fellow up at this time of the night to tell stories." "I can't tell it to you here. Someone might be listening. Slip into your clothes and come to the washroom."

Told of Killing Infirmary Attendant.

The washroom was a separate building. It was raining outside and Jim didn't like getting wet. It was nice and warm in bed, too. But something in the voice of his excited buddy made him obey. He was sure something terrible had happened and dressed quietly. Silently both men made their way through the rain to the washcoom. The flashlight showed them the way through the darkness. "What's the big mystery?" he asked.

Jim's buddy looked about him carefully. He paced up and down the floor as though hesitating to tell what he had on his mind.

"I'm in trouble," he said finally, "a lot of trouble. I want your advice. But first I want your promise that you will never breathe a word of this to a living soul."

"I promise," Jim said wearily, "what's the trouble?" "I've just murdered a man!"

Jim's eyes nearly popped out of his head. Murder! He hadn't thought it would be as bad as that. He couldn't quite figure it out. He remembered seeing his buddy in bed earlier in the night and said so.

"I've Just Murdered a Man," He Said.

"I know it," the excited man went on, "but I got up in the night and went down to the infirmary. The attendant and I got into an argument and I shot him dead."

Jim understood now and recoiled in horror from the speaker. Face to face with a murderer he felt a feeling of revulsion. With a sickly smile he told the other he must be kidding.

"I wish I was kidding," was the answer; "if you don't believe me go down to the infirmary and see for yourself. He's lying on the floor in a pool of blood. I put two bullets in him."

Jim's Turn Was to Come Next.

Jim, still unable to associate his friend with such a cold-blooded killing, studied his twitching face carefully. In the dim light of the lantern it gleamed pale and set. The self-confessed killer stood-hands in his raincoat pockets-trying to read Jim's thoughts. Jim thought he detected a threatening gleam in his eyes.

"What did you do with the gun?" Jim asked casually.

Before he answered the other man suddenly stepped quickly before the door and stood, back to the door, facing Jim. His hands were still in his pockets; his eyes narrowed to two thin lines. Something in his expression sent the cold chills down Jim's spine. 'The gun is right here in my pocket," he sneered, "and I was just thinking you know too much. You're the only man who knows I did it and I know what's on your mind. You're going to tell the state troopers. I was a sucker to tell you I killed a guy, but I'm going to kill you now and play safe. One more won't matter."

And with that the self-confessed murderer came after Jim. Jim backed away, stalling for time. He talked fast and told the determined man that he was his friend. "Don't kill me," he pleaded. "I won't say a word. Run away now and they will never know who did it." Jim promised anything to get away from that menacing bulk in the raincoat pocket. But his words fell like water on a duck's back. He was backed, hands in air, into a corner of the washroom. There was no pity in those eyes that stared-cold as ice-into his. In another second Jim expected to hear the explosion that would send him hurtling into eternity. At the thought of this courage seemed to come to him.

All the Result of Shell Shock.

Wham! Jim braced himself and let fly a haymaker! It landed full on the other's jaw. Jim didn't stop to give him the count but tore out of the washroom into the night.

Well, sir, Jim wouldn't risk going back to the barracks. He hid all night, instead, in a pile of lumber. From his shelter he could see his erstwhile buddy slinking back and forth in the darkness, searching for his escaped victim. Not until daybreak did Jim make his way to the mess hall. The mess sergeant glanced at his haggard, pale face. Over a cup of hot coffee that shook in his hand Jim told the sergeant his story. The sergeant listened intently but at the finish broke out into a roar of laughter. As he laughed he pointed outside. And up the path-alive and smiling-came the murdered infirmary attendant and his arm was around the man who had confessed to his murder!

Jim heard the whole story then. It wasn't a joke. His poor buddy, he learned, was suffering from shell shock, and, although he often had wild hallucinations he was, in reality, harmless as a baby! And that, boys and girls, is what I call an adventure! Copyright.-WNU Service.

The Bronx

Formerly the Bronx was a district comprising several towns in Westchester county, New York. It received its name from an early Dutch settler named Jacob (or Jonas) Bronck. The old Dutch pronunciation of the name survives in some quarters and one often hears it pronounced as if it were spelled 'Bronk." In 1898 the district known as the Bronx became one of the five boroughs of New York city. In 1914 a county named Bronx was formed and since that date the borough of Bronx and the county of Bronx have been coextensive. The New York zoological park is in the Bronx and Makers' Bible, the Idle Bible, the for that reason it is popularly referred to as the Bronx zoo.

Errors in Bible Printing The Unrighteous Bible was an edition printed at Cambridge in 1653, containing the printers' error, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall inherit (for 'shall not inherit') the Kingdom of God?" The same edition, says Pearson's London Weekly, gave: "Neither yield ye your members as instruments of righteousness unto sin," in place of "unrighteousness." This is also sometimes known as the Wicked Bible, a title which is obvious in its allusion. Other curiously-named Bibles are the Treacle Bible, the Standing Fishes Bible, the Place-Ears to Ear Bible, all named because of errors of printing.

Washington. - Much has been written and much more has been said concerning Railroads the complexities Face Crisis of modern civilization and modern business. Many times have we heard how closely agriculture is related to other industry; how general commerce and industry is interwoven with every phase of our life. There can be no doubt of this condition. No proof is required. Nor is it necessary to argue that when one section or segment of business is on its sickbed, there is a resulting bad reaction upon every other phase of commerce and industry to a greater or less extent.

With these fundamentals in mind, it becomes obvious that probably the most important development of a national character in the last few weeks is the appeal of the country's railroads for the right to increase their rates by 15 per cent. The details of their condition, as presented in hearings before the interstate commerce commission, show they are confronted with a crisis. Since they are under the rigid supervision of the federal government, the federal government is the doctor in the case. They will live or die by the command of the interstate commerce commission.

The case they have presented shows, for example, that they have had to cut thousands upon thousands of workers off of the payroll; that they have been unable to buy more than one third of the customary annual purchases from other businesses, and that more than one fourth of all the railroad mileage in the nation is now being operated as bankrupt property-that is, the property is in the hands of court receivers.

So, adverting to the observations of the first paragraph of this discussion: a gigantic industry can not run at a loss without resulting in a bad heart or partial paralysis in other industry. Higher rates are always opposed for the very human reason that none of us enjoys taking any more money out of our pocket than we must. Many lines of business oppose rate increases on the railroads because of the fear that it will reduce their volume of sales. But it occurs to me that in consideration of a question of freight rates and charges which the railroads make, we ought to think of their situation as we do of other lines of business. Our retail grocer is not going to sell at a loss; the druggist can not subsist unless he makes a profit however small it may be, nor is the farmer going to continue to produce unless he gets a reasonable return from his work. The only difference between these and the railroads is that the railroads can not raise their rates unless the interstate commerce commission, a government agency, says they can do Further, there is a tendency on the part of a goodly number of persons throughout the land to question the accuracy of statements made by business. No doubt you have heard, as I have, the remark that "you can't tell whether so-and-so's business is bad off or not. Big corporations can cover up and make black look like white." Indeed, while I was listening to one of the I. C. C. hearings in this case, a man in a neighboring seat made something of the same observation as I have quoted. My answer to him was in substance that none of the railroad officials would dare lie to the commission, even if they were so inclined, because the commission has access to every item of expense and income, even all actions of the management, of the carriers.

It might be added in this connection that officials of the interstate commerce commission understand there is to be a request by the interstate truck operators for an increase in rates if and when the rail lines are allowed higher rates. The trucks are represented as slowly starving to death-but they can't and won't boost rates until their competitors, the railroads, charge more for their services.

I believe there is no better way to set forth the plight of the railroads, as presented to Plight the commission, of Carriers than to include here some excerpts of the statement made officially in the case by Dr. J. H. Parmelee. He is director of the bureau of economics of the Association of American Railroads and, as such, knows the details.

"Today," Dr. Parmelee said, "the carriers are reducing forces and are curtailing their purchases of equipment, materials and supplies. They are forced to do this because of the financial condition in which they find themselves. This retrenchment has a serious economic effect on employment, on the manufacturers of railway supplies and their employees and on all business activity. Such a policy with its unwholesome economic consequences only partially offsets the rising tide of costs.

"The railroads in 1927 to 1930 installed more than twelve times as many locomotives each year, nearly five times as many freight cars, laid nearly three times as many tons of rails and laid nearly twice as many cross ties as they averaged in the depression years from 1931 to 1936.

"Capital expenditures for 1929 and 1930 averaged $863,164,000 a year. During the depression years from 1931 to 1936, the average of capital expenditures was only $206,813,000.

"Similarly, the trend of railway purchases (of things they must use in operation), of fuel, material and supplies declined sharply during the depression years and never has returned to anything like normal. Railway purchases in 1929 and 1930 amounted to $1,184,017,000 in each of the two years. In the five years from 1931 to 1935, the average per year was about $559,000,000. In 1936, the expenditures in this direction were up to $803,421,000. (Figures for 1937 are incomplete but there has been another decline because of necessary curtailment of buying.)"

Dr. Parmelee turned to the question of railroad receipts for their services. He told the commission that the depression years had left the railroads without any reserves. For seven years, he said, the railroads have been barely getting by, and pointed out that at no time between 1931 and 1937 had they earned more than 2.57 per cent on their investment as it is appraised by the commission. In three of those seven years, the records show, the railroads' receipts did not amount to as much as their fixed charges, a term which includes interest on their debts, taxes and required amounts for paying off parts of their debts. In other words, all they earned in those years was just enough to pay the people who work for them and buy the necessary fuel and operating supplies.

The argument to the commission is predicated, therefore, upon rising costs, general ex-Rising penses, and the Costs dozen or so railway presidents who testified before the commission stressed the fact that these expenses are out of control by the railroad authorities. Dr. Parmelee figured that these higher costs of fuel, supplies, wages and taxes had laid a burden on the railroads that is greater this year by $664,789,000 than it was in 1933. The companies hope to get $567,287,000 of this sum from the 15 per cent increase in freight rates, and the railroads of the East are asking that passenger fares be increased from 2 cents to 21/2 cents a mile, which they think will bring in an additional $47,500,-000. From this it is seen that the carriers still will fall short of the full amount needed, but their argument, as I understand it, proceeds on the theory that they should not seek more of an increase than is sufficient to keep them from going broke. If the new depression conditions subside, there will be a larger volume of freight next year. That will enable them to make a profit. That is, a greater volume of business with the new rates will provide a profit unless there are new government taxes and other burdens laid upon them. In this connection, I looked up the effect of the social security and carriers' taxing act. Commission records show the rail lines are paying $111,-000,000 in taxes annually under these two levies alone, a burden the companies did not have two or three years ago.

So it is evident that the rail lines are in a bad fix. They are confronted on the one hand with mounting costs of operation and on the other by declining receipts from the smaller volume of business. At the same time, it seems to me, the country has more than a passing interest in their plight. This is so because during the last two months. for example, close to 60,000 railroad employees have been laid off-out of work, in the rail industry alone. With the decline of purchasing of supplies by the rail lines, other industry has suffered, has laid off

Looking at the thing another way, one might call attention to federal appropriations for relief which have been in excess of three billions a year during the last several years. The figures given above show that the railway purchases-just one industry-have fallen off more than 500 millions, or about one-sixth of the relief appropriations. If the appropriations to aid all unemployed are only six times as large as the drop in railway expenditures, it is easy to see what an influence is wielded and why I have taken the position that it is necessary to consider the railways' petition from the standpoint of the country as a whole. We, as citizens, have a burden to carry whether it is done through the railways or through some other avenue. None of those rail workers wants to be without a

I wonder if the authorities would pardon a suggestion from a poor ignoramus whose acquaintance with geology is largely limited to two of its surface phases, namely: Regular paved roads and those derned detours. When we consider most of the humorous illustrations and the bulk of the humorous text printed in the average smart magazine of today, and the even spicier lines in smart modern plays, wouldn't it be more fitting to call it, not the Holocene, but the Obscene period?

Tails, Legs, Ears Grow Shorter in Cool Climes

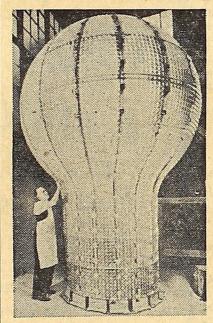

Interesting Data.

New York .- Races of mammals inhabiting cooler regions have relatively shorter tails, legs, and ears than races of the same species from warmer regions, according to a study of genetics and the origin of species issued by the Columbia University press.

Among birds the same is true for the relative lengths of beak, legs, and wings. Races of mammals and birds and some invertebrates living in cooler climates are larger in body size than races of the same species in warmer climates. In mountain countries races from higher elevations are larger than those from the lower ones. Races of mammals from warmer countries have shorter but relatively coarser hair and less down than races from cooler countries.

The fact that the races of mammals inhabiting cold countries usually have longer hair and more down than races of the same species from hot countries is consequently evidence for and not against the effectiveness of natural selection.

"The rule of large body size in the cool, and small size in the warm climates is concerned with the temperature regulation of the animal. A large body size is correlated with a relatively smaller body surface, and consequently with a more limited loss of heat. The Birth of Our Saviour.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
God's Gift of a Saviour.

Few indeed are the stories that will bear retelling or the books that are worth re-reading. Rare is the song that we care to hear more than once. How significant then that we come to the observance of Christmas each year with hearts full of delight in the story of the birth of Jesus, eager again to hear the account from God's Word, and to listen with attentive souls for the sound of the angel's song in the Christmas music.

The birth of our Lord as the incarnate Saviour of men is still front page, headline news, even in 1937. The glad tidings of his coming still color the thinking and living of a world that has gone far from him, that lives today in hatred and enmity, even while outwardly recalling the coming of the One who was to bring peace on earth. We have even gone so far that men feel that the way to promote peace is to use the sword. Until the Prince of Peace himself shall reign there may be no other way. But let us be certain at this Christmas time that the tender baby hand from the cradle at Bethlehem has reached our hearts and lives, bringing us peace with God and good will toward

The first seven verses of our chap-ter relate the coming of Mary with Joseph to God's appointed place at his appointed time, for the entrance into this world of the Son of God as the "Word" that "was made flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14). Our lesson opens with the proclamation of the blessed good news to the shepherds in the field.

I. "Unto You Is Born . . . a Saviour" (vv. 8-14).

Christ was a great teacher, one whom the common people heard gladly, "for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes" (Mark 1:22). He was a leader among men, and lived a life which was an example beyond that of any man. But mark it well, this was not the central and essential purpose of his coming. He came as a Saviour. His mother was told before his birth that she should "call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Matt.

It is not enough to be among the countless thousands who superficially observe Christmas with greetings "Sky Pilot of Rails" Tells of more in the young boys who wander and gifts. If you He tries to rehabilitate them and have not met the Lord Jesus as your own personal Saviour do it now Being a "box car bishop" is not | if you know him, make this a Christan easy job, Bell pointed out. He mas in which Christ is supreme.

II. "Let Us Now Go . . . and See" (vv. 15, 16).

Their fear changed to assurance The system he uses is simple and by the words of the angel, the shepeffective. He has little trouble makherds at once "go" and "see." ing friends with the men. One of Would that all those who heard tohis first questions to the hobo is: "If day did likewise. The shepherds might well have found all manner you had a ten-year-old son and you of excuses for not going. They knew he was down in these jungles, had sheep to care for, they were not prepared for a journey. No, the urge was upon them "and they Invariably the answer, phrased in came with haste . . . and found" Jesus.

III. "When They Had Seen . . They Made Known" (vv. 17-20).

Mary the mother of Jesus had special reason to ponder these things in her heart. But the shepherds "returned, glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen."

"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so" (Ps. 107:2). When we have found the Lord Jesus we must not simply rejoice in the satisfaction and peace that has come to our own souls. We are saved to serve. The normal expression of the new life in Christ is the proclamation of the gospel to the ends of the earth. Only in that spirit do we truly keep Christmas!

To every one that sees these lines -whether editor, typesetter, or proofreader-whether a reader in the midst of the clamor of the great city or in the quiet of a distant countryside, whether old or young, whether well or on a sickbed, whether alone, far from family and friends, or in the bosom of your family, the writer of these lines extends in the name of Christ a most hearty good wish for a blessed Christmas.

Ripples from Guiley Creek

By Eddie Parker
Another deer season has gone by, and, as far as this neck of the woods is concerned, there were more deer than in any of the 14 seasons we have lived on the bank of the Guiley.

1000 lived on the bank of the Gulley.

Among those who were with us, were Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Moore, Harry Burge, and Eric Howlet, of WJR, Detroit, Colman Richardson, Mr. Blackwood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rummel, also of Detroit. Mr. Weidley of Loveing with F. G. Stopened of of Lansing, with E. G. Stensreed, of Saginaw. Mr. and Mrs. Remi Cramer, and Mrs. Marie Leach of Williamston, with Charles Kirby of Vantown. 1228.11 Those who took back their bucks were Remi Cramer: Charles Kirby, Mr. Blackwood and Duncan Moore.

Vernon Anderson, and this writer, spent a few days in Detroit last week.
Alll members of this househild have been complaining of bad colds, lately.

Hunters who were staying at Ira the Wade property, near Dry Lake.
We wonder if the county highway commission is ever going to remove the tangle of brush on the State Road, in Fileld's Swamp, placed there two months ago, when machiner from the oil well was being moved, the road has been impassible most of the time,

Favorite Recipe of the Week

Cranberry Jelly With Waldorf Salad.

ONE of the most refreshful tasting, and attractive looking salads is that of cranberry jelly and waldorf salad. It is effective to use for a buffet supper and blends well with any meat, fowl or casserole dish that is to accompany it.

Select a good size chop platter and place the well seasoned salad in the center of the dish and around it arrange pieces of cranberry jelly. Canned cranberry jelly is convenient to use because it always jellies, is firm and easy to cut, and is available in most markets. The slices may be left round, cut into halves, quarters or into fancy shapes by using a special cutter. The following ingredients will be needed.

1 can cranberry 1 cup sliced celery Mayonnaise you may prefer to leave it on: otherwise, peel the apple and cut into pieces. Combine the apple with the celery and blend with mayonnaise. You may like some salt added to the apples. Arrange the salad as directed.

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—lifo itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Sewell, on the eve of her twentieth birthday, rebels at her lot, dependent on her detested stepmother, Irma, and full of tragic memories of her mother's murder twelve years before and her father's death six months ago. Irma calls in Helm Blackadder, the bels her persuada lovce to years before and her father's death six months ago. Irma calls in Helm Blackadder, an admirer, to help her persuade Joyce to marry rich, young Michael Kirkpafrick. Mike, sent up to Joyce by Irma and Blackadder, demands a showdown on his proposal and is rejected. Reading her father's papers, Joyce realizes that La Barranca, a Mexican hacienda which her father had owned, legally belongs to her. Later, she receives a letter enclosing a warrant on the United States Treasury for $10,000 compensation for her mother's murder at La Barranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley, a banker and only remaining friend of her father's. She confides that she wants to make a secret journey to Mexico. Bradley arranges all details for her. She departs by plane undetected. Dirk Van Suttart, second secretary of the American embassy in Mexico City, gives Joyce a chilly reception and she loses her temper. She finds a Mexican woman lawyer, Margarida Fonseca, who takes her to General Onelia, right-hand man to the Mexican minister of war. Margarida reminds Onelia that the usurper of La Barranca is his dangerous enemy, General Dorado. The two make plans to send reminds Onelia that the usurper of La Barranca is his dangerous enemy, General Dorado. The two make plans to send Joyce with a few picked men under Pancho Buenaventura to drive Dorado out. Adan Arnaldo, a young man who runs El Tenebroso, a night club, knows Dorado's present whereabouts, so they take Joyce there that night, where she notices Dirk. General Dorado arrives.

Arnaldo's strong hands darted out to seize the barrel of the gun and hold it pointed upward. The last of the lights were extinguished and with darkness came uproar. Five shots rang out in a steady spurt, tables were overturned, dishes crashed, women screamed, men groaned and grunted. Joyce sat quite still, pressing back as if to push herself through the wall. Soon she reached out her right hand tentatively; General Onelia was gone. She pushed her left along the seat. It was empty-Margarida was gone.

At that instant a fumbling hand found her shoulder, shot down along her arm and seized her wrist. She felt herself being hauled along the wall by someone who seemed sure of his way. Who was it and why? Was it Onelia, Van Suttart or—or Dorado? What did it matter if only she could get out? Something struck her in the face, enveloping her head. For a moment she thought she would suffocate, then realized it had been merely a plunge through heavy curtains. The next thing she knew she was dragging the sharp sweet air of the night into her lungs as her escort half lifted, half hurled her into the tonneau of a

The chauffeur started so suddenly her head was thrown against the back of the seat. Then the cold cut into her; she shivered from head to toe and her teeth began to chatter with a steady rattle. Promptly If the apple has lovely red skin the man took her in his arms, snatched the rug from its bracket and drew it over them both. She tried to calm herself-she must calm herself or she couldn't think. What did he intend? Where was he taking her? Then he did something which steadied her nerves at once: he tried to light a cigarette without disturbing her. At the flash of the match she looked up into Adan Arnaldo's pensive face.

A great many thoughts struck Joyce all at once, making her dizzy. She had escaped the scene of pandemonium to fall into what?

"If you'll put me in a taxi," she said, drawing away from him, "I'll be all right. Then you can go back."

"To help the scrubwomen?" asked Arnaldo. "There wasn't anything unusual about our closing tonight. I've seen eight people shot and killed in the last two years."

"Oh!" gasped Joyce. "That's why I was wondering,"

he stated. "About what?" she asked.

"You-a girl like you! I don't get it yet. Coming into a dump like that between two buzzards. What did they want?"

She decided at once to put Arnaldo off and in the same flash wondered if she dared try to draw him.

"How should I know?" she replied, almost without a pause. "I never saw either of them before today."

"You're not lying?"

"I came to Mexico only yesterday," said Joyce. "It's the truth. I wanted to see what was going on so I got Margarida Fonseca to take

"How did you come to go to her? Has she had herself listed as a guide?"

"No," said Joyce. "She's my lawyer."

"You've got me guessing," he declared. "When I saw you with those two zopilotes I had a feeling you'd need help pretty soon and need it bad, but you don't seem to think so and I'm beginning to change my mind. Every man living has to be fooled by a woman ever so often and perhaps this is my night. Perhaps I'm a bonehead, blind in both eyes, and you're a bad egg."

"I'm not," said Joyce simply; "I'm exactly what you thought. Please take me home."

"Where?" She told him. He hesi-

the address to the driver. The car slowed, swung around the next circle and started back in the opposite direction.

"All right. I'll believe you. Since you say you're what I thought you were I'll take you straight to your hotel on one condition."

"What is it?" "That you never come into my place again."

"Don't worry!" said Joyce fervently. "I wouldn't anyway. I've never been so frightened before, and it wasn't the row that did it." "No?" said Arnaldo curiously. "If that rumpus didn't scare you, what did?

"A face. It was horrible. I'll never forget it."

"What face?" "That man in uniform-the one who started the trouble."

"Dorado," said Arnaldo slowly, 'Pepe Dorado. So that's it. What do you want to know about Dorado?

"Only-only that I'll never see him again."

"You won't; nobody will for a long while," said Arnaldo grimly. "Why?" asked Joyce quickly.

"Did something happen to him?"
"Not yet, but I promise you it's going to. I give him until daylight. I won't see him out of town in person but I have a couple of partners nobody knows about who will. When they tell him to beat it he'll go and stay gone."

As the car drew up in the light from the hotel entrance she laid her hand on his arm and looked straight into his eyes. "Why have you been so good to me? Why?"

the United States, but not me. They were good to me up there, a lot better than I've been to you. We're different. It's like two worlds. There's one way to live in your country and another to live in mine, but let me give you a tip. It takes a strong head to stand mixed drinks. I have a strong head."

"So have I," said Joyce. He studied her thoughtfully. "Either you're right about your head or you're a fool.'

"Think it out for yourself. You don't know danger when you see it. You start out with the boner of coming to Mexico. You tie in with a couple of gringo-haters who wouldn't leave a lamb his bleat. You butt into El Tenebroso and when you're out riding with a buzzsaw you think you're playing with a paper pin-wheel. To top the list you decide to mix it with whatwith whom? Pepe Dorado! No; there's only one way to make everything fit-you're a fool and I'm another.

"Perhaps I am," said Joyce soberly, "but I hope not." She pushed down the rug, stepped to the curb and gave him her hand. "I'll never forget you or what you've done; please don't forget me.'

"I won't!" he assured her. "Get along in before you freeze.'

At ten o'clock at night of the third day Joyce and her baggage were transferred by taxi to the railway station and then as a further precaution by another hired conveyance to Margarida's apartment. Onelia was there. He glanced at his watch and spoke in a tender voice which seemed to drip with regret at parting.

"It is time, my child. I shall stay here. Go down by yourself and slip into my car. The chauffeur already has your bags and I've given him the necessary instructions. Don't worry if he drives fast; it's only to make sure nobody can follow."

Joyce hesitated whether to kiss Margarida, chilled by the peculiar tated for a moment, then called out look in her eyes. Too impatient to puzzle it out for what it was-a look of eternal farewell-she compromised by touching cheeks in the Latin manner, one cheek and then the other. That done she hurried down two flights of stairs to the street and within five minutes was being driven at vertiginous speed along the Paseo de la Reforma, through the umbrageous Bosque de Chapultepec, around Dolores cemetery and into a blind lane. There, blotted out against a clump of bushes, stood a dilapidated touring car with its tattered curtains in place. Sergeant Pancho Buenaventura, in uniform, stepped out to help with the luggage and motioned. to her to get into the tonneau, but she knew better. Resigning that space to her bags she climbed into the front seat beside him. A moment later they were off and presently swung left into the Toluca

CHAPTER V

Back in Elsinboro Mrs. Sewell was pacing distractedly up and down her living room awaiting the arrival of Helm Blackadder. Why had he shouted at her over the telephone? Why had he said such things? It was she who had grounds for anger, she who had a right to feel hurt. Was it her fault he had been away-gone to New York witout saying a word? Her soft brown eyes watered and then blazed. Everything she had done had been right; she had sacrificed herself to the limit, but she had done what was right. Abruptly Blackadder appeared before her, not having bothered to ring or knock. She hurled herself into his arms.

"Helm! Oh, Helm!" she sobbed.
It was one of the cleverest moves of her entire career. Perforce he held her, patting her back, and the harder she clung to him the less could he find it in his heart to pour out the scathing words which a moment ago had been trembling on the tip of his tongue.

"Irma, how on earth could you stir up such a mess for yourself? Why didn't you find out where I was and call me up? Why couldn't you wait till I came back?"

She threw herself into a chair and covered her eyes. "Please don't, Helm. Please listen to me first. That child-that poor child! When she didn't come back after the week-end I telephoned Frances Holder and found she hadn't been there at all! Then I tried to telephone you; I did, Helm. I notified the police; then I thought of the

"I'll say you did!" groaned Blackadder. "Hasn't it occurred to you Joyce isn't lost at all? That nobody sidnaped her? That nothing has happened to her except what she intended to have happen?"

"No, it hasn't. Do you remember what she said to us? Do you? Well, I do; the words are burned into my brain. This is what she said: 'You want to be rid of me-both of you. All right. I promise. If it isn't that way it will be another."

"Bunk," said Blackadder. "That girl? Never. How much money do you think she had?"

"Hardly any." Blackadder frowned. He went to the telephone and called up the station master. "Jim, this is Helm Blackadder. Did Joyce Sewell leave Elsinboro on a train?" Promptly came the answer: "No, Helm, she didn't. Naturally as soon as I seen about the reward I wasn't satisfied with only checking up around here. I telephoned every crew from Buffalo to New York. You can take it from me she didn't get away on no train.'

"Thanks, Jim," said Blackadder. He hung up and faced around toward Irma. "So there's a reward now, is there? How much?" "Five thousand dollars."

"Holy pickerel!"

Blackadder started pacing the floor. Suddenly he halted. His brow cleared as if by magic and he made a leap for the telephone.

"Airport!" he shouted. "Get me the airport!" A moment later he was talking again. "Airport? I don't know you and you don't know me, but this is Helm Blackadder. Get it? Helm Blackadder. Have you reported to the police what day, what hour and where you took your last woman passenger?"

"No. Why should we?" "You know why. You see the papers, don't you?" "Sure, we read 'em-me and the pilot both-and that's why." "I see," said Blackadder softly. 'Now listen, you. I'm Miss Joyce Sewell's guardian. Quit worrying about that reward, if it's ever paid to anybody, which it won't be, I'll guarantee you'll get your share. You and your buddy don't want to be put behind bars for compounding a felony, do you?" "Aw, say now, Mister, we ain't done nothing."

"You're right you haven't and you'll find there are cases where you can get in as bad for doing nothing as for pulling the trigger. They call it abetting, meaning to incite, to encourage.'

"What do you want to know?" "When did she leave?"

"A week ago today at four o'clock." "Where to?"

"We carried her to Newark." "How much did she pay for her ticket?" "How do I know? She didn't buy no tickets from us."

"Who did?" "Nobody. She had her tickets with her.'

"Did anybody meet her at Newark?" "No."

"Have you any idea where she went from there?" "Sure. She was a through passenger and would just have time to catch the plane south."

"Through? Through to where? Miami?"

"No. Balbuena." "Where's that?"

"It's the airport for Mexico City, Mister, and much good may it do you to know it." Blackadder turned to Irma. "Did you get it? Joyce is in Mexico City.

She's been there for about four days."

"Mexico City!" gasped Irma.
"Why, how can she be? You can't travel to Mexico City on five dollars. I know because-" "That's what's got me stumped," interrupted Blackadder.

Balkans Unable to End Old Custom of Vendetta and "Eye for Eye" Rule Holds

Vendetta continues to be practiced | ment of 50 gold pieces of "blood in the Balkan mountains despite severest measures taken by the various governments there to suppress this centuries-old custom, writes a Vienna United Press correspondent.

"Eye for eye, and tooth for tooth" is the supreme law among the mountaineers, who extend it not only to the second and third generations of the killer but also to his remote relatives and to his entire village.

Intervention by authorities counts for nothing in those regions. The thirst for revenge remains unquenched, even if the murderer has been executed under normal legal procedure in the meantime; it is considered a sacred rule that a kinsman of the slain must kill the slayer, or, if this man cannot be reached, because he has died a natural death or for some other reason, one of the latter's kin must be slain.

The only alternative is "bessa," a sort of "God's truce." It is seldom practiced because, aside from humiliating ceremonies on the part of the slayer's kin, it involves the pay- ture.

money," an enormous sum among the peasants and shepherds.

If, through friendly mediation by a third village, "bessa" has been agreed upon, an appointment is made between the warring parties to meet in a spot midway between the villages.

Unarmed and carrying a noose around his neck, the chief of the slayer's family enters the other party's camp, where he is met by the head of the rival tribe with the following formula:

"Thou werest our enemy, thy kin were our enemies, thy village with all its houses, with all its herds and fields and with all that lives and thrives there, were our enemies.'

WEARY OF ARCTIC, DOCTOR GOES SOUTH

Tells of Unusual Operations in Far North.

Quebec.-Two summers of doctoring in the Arctic are enough for Dr. Fernand Lizotte, who is going to swap his mittens and "woollies" for tropical whites and head for summer climes.

The thirty-three-year-old physician on the government icebreaker, N. B. McLean, soon will be sailing southward, where he can get something better than a plank for an operating table and is spared the necessity of diagnosing and prescribing by wireless.

The doctor from Levis, Que, patrolled the far-north shipping route to Churchill, Man., on Hudson bay. As the powerful icebreaker lay here, Dr. Lizotte told of treating a blood-poisoning case by wireless, with two seamen as nurses and treating an Eskimo cancer case. Treated Case by Wireless.

removing an appendix aboard ship

He instructed the staff of a wireless post in Hudson's straits how to dress their cook's blood-poisoned foot when the ship was 200 miles

When Alex O'Grady, a Nova Scotian cook, became ill aboard the ice-breaker, while being transferred from Resolution island to Nottingham island, Dr. Lizotte decided to remove the man's appendix. With the third officer and a steward as assistants, the physician performed a successful operation.

"We didn't have hospital equip-ment," he said, "but a piece of board made a good operating table, and I used my own instruments."

Last year he performed the first surgical work in the history of Hudson straits when he removed the appendix of a seaman on a Dreyfus line ship.

The vessel was more than two days away from the icebreaker when the wireless for medical assistance was received. Another Operation Successful.

The ships raced together, the patient was transferred, and Dr. Lizotte operated for "acute appendicitis with abscess." The operation was a success.

Dr. Lizotte had one case of cancer this year and one last year. A thirty-two-year-old Eskimo woman he examined at Port Burwell was in an advanced stage and beyond assistance, as was his last patient, also an Eskimo woman.

During his two seasons in the Arctic Dr. Lizotte learned to speak Eskimo and became proficient as a and a dart-making tool, believed to be from 100,000 to 200,000 years old, have been discovered near here by Earl McConnell, a rancher.

The prehistoric tools, which scientists said apparently dated from the fourth glacial period, were perfectly shaped. Both were of gray flint. The dart is similar to an Indian arrowhead except that it is heavier in the center.

Curved to a point on one cutting side, the dart-making tool was about four inches long by two inches wide.

flare up again. Nothing could be further from the fact. A shallow, half-burnedout fire cannot be revived by shaking most of the remaining coals into the ashpit. The simple way to revive it is to add a sprinkling of fresh coal, giving it time to ignite. When it is burning well, shake the grates gently, stopping when the first red glow shows in the ashpit. Then refuel the fire, remembering to fill the firebox to the level of the bottom of the fire door. This will provide a deep fire. which is considerably more economical than a shallow one, for it burns less coal and lasts a longer period of time. Also, it minimizes the attention you have to give a shallow fire in trying to revive it.

Death of H. J. (Derby Dick) Thompson recently, who saddled four Kentucky Derby winners for Col. Edward Riley Bradley, brings to mind the fact that even a trainer sometimes doesn't know the best horse in his barn. Thompson pinned his hopes on Black Servant in the 1921 race, but it was another Bradley color-bearer, Behave Yourself, which won. Thompson figured Bubbling Over was his best bet in 1926, and he was right. But he was wrong again in 1932. Bradley's two derby candidates that year were Burgoo King and Brother Joe. The latter was liked by Thompson, Bradley and the rest of the stable connections. Burgoo King won while Brother Joe broke down after half a mile. RS. GREENE sighed as she rummaged through the old trunk for the Christmas decorations. Sighed, and also felt ashamed. For why should she be lonely, with two fine grown sons, successful enough to satisfy any mother?

But Mrs. Greene missed her tousled-headed lads, and as she fingered the battered drum, the outgrown mittens, the books and souvenirs, she felt a deep pang that no one needed her any longer.

She found the decorations and bustled down. Mary, the house-keeper the boys provided, had finished. There was really nothing left to be done. She thought of other tired Christmas eves, and could stand the oppression of memories no longer. "I'm going out," she said, and with no other explanation set out into the night.

It was crisp and starlit, and she walked far. The light and warmth of a cafe attracted her, and she stopped for tea. Over the her teacup her eyes met those of a small boy just outside the window. He drew back shyly, leaving a mo st spot where his nose had touched the pane. He looked very hungry, not just the healthy hunger which her sons had brought home from school, but as though he were really in need. Mrs. Greene smiled and beckoned. "Come in," she invited. The boy shook his head, started to go, but the temptation of warmth and food was too much.

"That's better," Mrs. Greene approved, when he was seated opposite her, with a great bowl of soup. 'I just needed someone to talk to. And before long she had heard the boy's whole story. Having no folks, he lived with an uncle, but he wanted to get out on his own. There

THERE are those to whom Christmas dinner would not be Christmas dinner without ending with plum pudding. Scald 21/2 cups stale breadcrumbs with 1 cup cream. Cream ½ pound beef suet and add to it ½ cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup corn syrup, 5 well-beaten eggs, ½ pound chopped citron, 1/2 pound currants, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1/2 cup brandy or rum. Turn into a buttered mold and steam for 24 hours, 12 hours one day and 12 hours the next. Turn into a tin and seal until ready for use, when it must be reheated for serving. Serve with a sauce of choice.

Sinusitis and Adenoids

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

T IS only natural that parents ■ who have undergone the suspense and expense of having their youngsters' tonsils and adenoids removed should expect immediate and complete relief of the usual symptomsfrequent colds, discharge of mucous (or pus) from the nose, mouth breathing, snoring, sore throat, tiredness, loss of interest in work or play. Fortunately in most cases the results are very gratifying; in some cases, however, the youngster still feels tired, has frequent colds, and may re-main or become ill tempered. What should prove of interest to par-symptoms, the cause of these symptoms may be some infection of the sinuses-the little hollows or caverns in the bones about the nose. Sinuses May Be to Blame.

Dr. James Crookes in "Archives of Disease in Childhood," published by the British Medical association, states that any or all of the sinuses may be affected but the large sinus in the upper jaw is very frequently affected and the infection very readily discovered. In a large series of routine operations for removal of tonsils and adenoids, about 15 per cent had chronic disease of the sinuses. This was shown by the fact that during the operation the wall of the sinus was punctured and the disease (pus formation) was found.

"This is a startling fact which may go far to explain the trying group of 'failures' after the removal of tonsils and adenoids, in which bronchial tube infection and other disorders occur again, despite the 'complete' removal of tonsils and adenoids."

Water and Salt.

In prescribing a diet to decrease weight most physicians advise that table salt and all liquids be reduced in amount. This is because every pound of fat tissue holds three pounds of water, and every grain of salt keeps 70 times its weight of water in the body tissues. Table salt is known as sodium chloride. Table salt and water are both necessary for the proper action of the different body processes.

"The actual need of additional salt in the diet of certain animals is recognized by the farmer who provides salt for his stock. Wild animals, too, sometimes seek salt licks but only when forage is scarce. Animals differ from human beings, however, in that they refuse to eat a quantity of salt in excess of that which the body really needs. Since a vegetable diet contains a large amount of potassium salts (and each mineral salt seems to need a certain definite proportion of the other mineral salts in order to do its work properly) man and those animals which are herbivorous (eat grasses and similar foods) require an addition of sodium chloride, table salt, to their regular diet. Without this extra salt they become uncomfortable and lose appetite. On the other hand, the carnivorous Eskimos, who eat their meat raw, do not require this sodium chloride since their supply of this salt is obtained from the blood of the prey, which is distinctly salty."

I am quoting from an article by Dr. Edwin A. Cameron in Hygeia, who shows that too much salt requires too much water for the tissues and organs (particularly the kidneys) to handle.

According to insurance companies, deaths from kidney disease between the ages of forty-five and fifty-five years, are three times more than those for the period of thirty-five to forty-five years.

In regard to preventing kidney disease, "restraint should be more specially directed against overindulgence in table salt (sodium chloride) and fluids of all kinds since the reduction in salt and water intake is often extremely necessary in the treatment of any condition affecting the kidneys.'

It is estimated that in every minute the blood flowing through the kidneys equals the weight of these organs. This quantity is from ten to twenty times greater than the flow through any other organ. Thus the popular belief that the forced drinking of water removes poisons by flushing the system is false.

ADVENTURE IS COMING IN THE AMERICAN BOY

Readers who like adventure and the lure of the far places will find plenty to please them in coming issues of THE AMERICAN BOY Magizine. They'll read, for instance, of seamen and sabotage and San Francisco wa-ter-front trouble; of daring adventure in the world of pseudo-science, and of a feud aboard a plunging, rolling battleship.

They'll read, too, of excitement aboard a transport plane blaring over the state of the state of jungled Mexican mountains, and of stranger planes that are not bound to earth but swing through the noiseessness of space. Readers can follow a young ex-Mountie as he searches for clues in the wild northlands, and Tierney, the pie-eating detective, on the trail of city criminals.

A new feature in THE AMERICAN BOY is picture pages that tell stories. Pictures, for instance, that vividly show a day in the life of a coast guardsman, and how an Eskimo husky sled dog does his work. They transmit the thrill of battling a hundred pound, water-churning tarpon. Tips on how it's done are also given pictory-ranging from how to run a broken ield to how to be correct in a ball-
