On account of the inclement weather, the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was postponed to Monday, January 31, at 8 o'clock, at the billet. A full attendance is requested.

Miss Glada Parker of Flint spent the week-end at the Charles Kane home.

Dr. and Mrs. J. D. LeClair spent Wednesday in Bay City.

Miss Jeanette Brooks of Detroit is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schreiber, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Coyle visited relatives in Bay City a few days this week.

Late News Events

Lansing—Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, was in Washington this week attending congressional committee hearings on President Roosevelt's proposal for drastic cuts in Federal Aid highway appropriations to the states. The Commissioner's visit to the national capital followed his election last week as president of the American Road Builders' Association at the organization's annual convention at Cleveland.

Lansing—After completing a series of meetings that included interviews with nearly all the eighty three county treasurers in the state, Auditor General, George T. Gundry, today stated that he believed the tax sale next May would be in most instances cause little confusion.

Gundry pointed out that one difficulty remained unsolved was the publication of some descriptions as delinquent when payment of taxes had been made. This situation is unavoidable it was explained, and has developed as a result of the law which demands publication of delinquent list five weeks prior to the last term of Circuit Court held prior to the tax sale.

As a result the lists in some counties are published months in advance of the sale and tax payers make payments while the lists are being compiled and published.

WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT

Fine Program and Banquet Much Enjoyed by Guests

Annual "Gentlemen's Night" of the Twentieth Century Club was held last Friday evening at the Masonic Temple, Tawas City. Gentlemen's night is one of the important events of the club year and a fine banquet and enjoyable program was given in honor of the guests. The dinner was served by the O. E. S. with Masons waiting on the tables.

Seventy-two members and guests marched into the dining hall which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. The tables presented a very pleasing appearance with their yellow and green accessories—yellow candles, acacia and green paper decorations.

The entertainment committee had previously prepared the following program:

Singing by all.
Greetings by Mrs. Grace Mark, club president.

Response by Rev. Frank Metcalf.
Short talk by L. H. Rhodes of West Branch, district 4-H Club leader. Mr. Rhodes told about the work of that organization in the county and urged parents to take an active interest in its affairs.

Selections on the trombone, Robert Mark. Mrs. Emmelie Mark, accompanist.

Singing, Mrs. Nyda Campbell Leslie. Mrs. A. E. Giddings, accompanist.

After the program the guests adjourned to the annex, some to visit and others to take part in games led by Mr. Rhodes. All reported a very pleasant evening.

The next meeting of the Club will be held Wednesday, February 2, with the following program:

Jury Panel—World events, their effect on the social, economic, educational and religious life of United States. Chairman—Mrs. A. E. Giddings; Speakers—Miss Margaret E. Worden, Eugene Bing, J. A. Campbell, A. E. Giddings, Rev. S. A. Carey.

Health Notes

The three gallons of oil furnished by the Red Cross for distribution among indigent children of Isosco county has been dispensed. This cod liver oil has been supplied to ten infants, thirty two pre-school children and twenty three school children, reaching 65 needy children all together.

During the months of October, November, and December, a total of 288 children of rural areas of the county received physical examinations through the District Health Department. Among the defects found in these children, he outstanding one was teeth, next poor eyesight, and next defective tonsils and glands. Many of the defects found need never have existed, since they are to a certain extent, preventable.

Many children contract defective vision while they are ill with measles. Drawing shades and allowing the child to remain in a dark room during this illness is one preventive measure. Signs of defective vision in a two or three year old are squinting and poor sense of direction. The pre-school child should also be watched for other eye defects, crusts and redness of the eye lids, watery discharge from the eyes, and crossed eyes are all abnormal and require medical care as soon as they are noticed.

Defective tonsils and glands cause much absence from school during winter months. The complaints are sore throat, cold, headache, rheumatism, chills, "flu," diarrhoea, pneumonia. Children ordinarily are care free and happy, and do not complain without cause. When any symptom of illness is present, such as a cold, chilliness, headache, etc., it should be sufficient reason for the parents to seek the expert advice of the family physician and heed the treatment he prescribes. Negligence and neglectful delay of removal of tonsils may cause loss of hearing, crippling arthritic conditions, heart trouble, or some other handicap and lifelong affliction to an individual.

Mrs. Irma Hartingh

Mrs. Irma Hartingh, wife of Nicholas C. Hartingh, Jr., of Pontiac, died suddenly last Friday night. Mrs. Hartingh had not been in good health for some time. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

The deceased is survived by the husband, one son, Allen A. Hartingh, one daughter, Mrs. Dora Goebel, her father, Allen Boomer, and sister, Mrs. John Armstrong, all of Pontiac.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartingh were residents of Tawas City previous to going to Pontiac in 1917. Mr. Hartingh is an employe at the Grand Trunk railroad shops in Pontiac. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas C. Hartingh, Sr., of this city.

The funeral services were held at two o'clock, Monday afternoon, at Pontiac. Those from here who were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hartingh, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Babcock, Mrs. Waldo Leslie, Mrs. John King, Mrs. Jessie Thornton and Arthur Bigelow.

Mrs. Delia Hatch

Mrs. Delia Hatch, age 74 years, passed away at her home last Thursday in Mt. Morris. She is survived by her daughter, Vivian and one brother, R. K. Malcolm of this city.

Funeral services were held Sunday from the Baptist church at 1:30 with Rev. Frank Metcalf officiating. Interment in the family lot in the East Tawas cemetery.

Mrs. Hatch was a former Tawas City business woman, having operated a "five and ten cent" and notion store in the building which has since been remodeled and occupied by the Moeller Brothers grocery.

The deceased was born at Kentville, Ontario, November 14, 1863. She was united in marriage to Albert Hatch 42 years ago at East Tawas. Mr. Hatch was a former Detroit and Mackinac baggage master. He was killed in a railroad accident.

Mrs. Hatch and family resided in Tawas City until 1917 when they moved to Flint later going to Mt. Morris.

County Receives Gas and Weight Tax Money

The last quarter of the weight tax and the second half of the gas tax has been received by County Treasurer, Grace Miller. The two allotments total 13,606.73.

District Safety Meet Held Here Wednesday

WPA foremen, engineers and time-keepers of Isosco and Alcona counties attended a safety meeting at the city hall, Tawas City, Wednesday evening.

Charles Vander Hull, state safety representative, and Robt. G. Lee, district safety inspector, were the speakers. Each talk was furnished by a general discussion of safety problems arising on the various projects.

Will Discuss Plans for Coming Perch Festival

Plans for the Annual Perch Festival will be discussed at the next Thursday evening meeting of the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce. E. D. Jacques, president of the Board of Commerce, urged everyone to attend the meeting. He said, "With the experience we have gained during the past two years, we should be able to make the coming festival bigger and more successful than ever."

During the past year many residents of the city have attended festivals in various parts of the state, some of nationwide scope. Ideas undoubtedly have been gained which will be of value in planning a program. These ideas should be presented for consideration at the next meeting and following meetings of the Board of Commerce. "Nearly every citizen of the city has at least one idea that could be profitably used in arranging for the festival," says Mr. Jacques. "Let's hear from you. Attend our meetings."

Urges Support of Paralysis Crusade

Dr. George C. Ruhland, Health Officer of the District of Columbia, and nationally known public health authority, sets forth the following reasons why every one should support the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis:

Many diseases are known which may, so quickly, sometimes completely, and often permanently destroy a useful life.

There is some evidence to indicate an increase in the prevalence of the disease in all parts of the civilized world.

Much dysticism still prevails among the laity concerning the cause, transmission and methods of controlling the disease.

Speaking as a health officer of Washington, D. C., and formerly of Syracuse and Milwaukee, I have often heard frantic mothers appeal, "How can I prevent my child from having infantile paralysis or how may I evade the danger of crippling?"

Infantile paralysis is a communicable disease. The case should, therefore, be isolated in the acute stage in much the same way as diphtheria. This is for the purpose of giving the

Rev. E. Kasischke Accepts Call To Bay City Church

Rev. Emil Kasischke, for over six years pastor of the Lutheran churches at Yale, Mayville and Silverwood, has accepted a call to serve Trinity Lutheran church, 1613 Broadway, Bay City, Michigan, according to word received here recently. Installation will be held on Sunday, February 6, with Rev. J. F. Zink officiating.

Rev. Kasischke is a graduate of the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Thiensville, Wisconsin, being a member of the class of 1931. He is a son of Mrs. Emil Kasischke of this city.

WJR REPORTER WILL CROWN SNOW QUEEN

Jimmy Stevenson Guest Next Saturday at Carnival

Jimmy Stevenson, star reporter for Radio Station WJR, Detroit, is coming to East Tawas, Saturday, February 5, to crown the Snow Queen at the Winter Sports Carnival Ball at the Community Building that evening.

Rambling Bill Hurley, former WJR entertainer, chairman of entertainment committee, extended the invitation to Jimmy Stevenson early this week and Jimmy accepted and will come to East Tawas for the coronation event.

With Jimmy Stevenson's party will be Mrs. Stevenson, Gordon Castle, WJR announcer who is heard daily on the Crowley-Milner hour with Mary Gray, and Mrs. Castle and their families.

Iosco County residents and others who attend the Winter Sports Carnival next week-end will have the opportunity to see and hear in person one of their favorites on the air when Jimmy Stevenson crowns the winning girl in the Snow Queen contest. Rambling Bill Hurley will serve as Master of ceremonies at the Carnival Ball. An escort of State Police will take the Stevenson and Castle party out to Silver Valley in Huron National Forest for skiing and tobogganing on Saturday afternoon, February 5, following their arrival from Detroit.

The contest to determine the winner in the Snow Queen contest is developing into a close race, Ray Ross, finance chairman, said today. Each girl, entered in the contest, is working hard to bring in the most memberships in the East Tawas Winter Sports Club, which will win the honor of being named Snow Queen at the Carnival Ball at which Jimmy Stevenson will preside. Girls in the contest are: Estie Ahonen, Geraldine Williamson, Senia Loffman, Ernestine Larson, Rosemary Hickey, Ida Mae Nelem and Helen Kelleter. The four runners-up will serve as the Queen's Court.

The Snow Queen will lead the Grand March at the Ball and then will ascend the throne on the stage for the coronation ceremonies.

This Saturday night, January 29, the President's Ball will be one of the main features of the Carnival week-end. John St. James, general chairman, says that tickets are selling fast for this event. Ladies are free with tickets for men going at one dollar each. Music will be by Rambling Bill Hurley and his Gang, featuring modern and old time dancing. Proceeds from the President's Ball will go toward the national fight against infantile paralysis.

Decorations for the President's Ball will be in red, white and blue. The Ball will be strictly informal. Mr. St. James announced.

Again this week-end there will be skating at the new rink at the city athletic field. Ice is in fine condition from the recent freezing weather. Ice fishing on Tawas Bay and Tawas Lake, where both perch and pike were taken in large number last week-end, will be featured.

"Silver Valley" is the name given the winter sports area out near the Ranger Station in Huron National Forest where more than 500 persons, both participants and spectators, enjoyed skiing, tobogganing and snow-shoeing last week-end. Supervisor Ralph E. Crowell and John Franson, forest ranger, were more than pleased with the enthusiastic reception of their efforts to build toboggan and ski slides down into Silver Creek Valley for the benefit of winter sports followers. They said that this week they were completing a coasting slide for youngsters to use their sleds on. This coasting slide will be ready for use Saturday and Sunday.

The State Park is open to trailers during the Winter Sports Carnival.

BUSINESS WILL BE AIDED

President Approves Suggestions of the Advisory Council . . . C.I.O. Blamed for West Coast Losses

Drags Wolf and Foolish Bear, aged members of the ancient water-buster clan of North Dakota's Gros Ventre Indians, are shown being greeted by "The Great White Father," President Roosevelt, whom they visited on a trip which they hope will bring a merciful rain to end the long drought in their parched country.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Business at White House

FIFTY members of the business advisory council of the Department of Commerce, all of them leaders of the nation's business and industry, went to the White House for a long conference with the President, and told him what they believed to be responsible for the current "recession."

The business men specified that necessities to aid in the struggle were limitation to wage-hour legislation, a truce with public utilities, no general purge of holding companies and no further tinkering with the currency.

To these suggestions Mr. Roosevelt gave his approval. Others were heard by him without comment.

W. Averill, the council's chairman, issued a statement which embraced the views of his colleagues and which was read to Mr. Roosevelt.

The statement said re-employment in private industry is the critical problem now before the country and that uncertainties that exist in "the hearts of men" must be eradicated.

"We wish to record with you our faith in the efficacy of the principles of democracy, and yet our grave concern over the possible far-reaching effects of our present situation," the statement concluded.

At the conclusion of the conference the President announced that he will seek the formulation of a definite policy, designed to end the depression and create a framework for steady functioning of the nation's economic life through the appointment of a group representative of all the interests within the country.

The group would consist of as many as twenty-five or as few as five or six persons, who would be charged with the task of sifting over all proposals to aid business and unsnarling all conflicts existing among the various interests with a view toward perfecting an administrative and legislative policy for business.

Huge Loss Laid to C.I.O. FROM the lips of Mayor J. K. Carson of Portland, Ore., the senate's joint committee on commerce and labor learned that the activities of the C. I. O. and Harry Bridges, its leader in that region, have cost the people there more than a billion dollars in the last three years.

Bridges cannot even vote in this country," said Mayor Carson, "yet he exercises more power over the maritime industry of the Pacific coast than all the ship owners and all the seamen combined."

Bridges, who came from Australia, is not naturalized. He is a Communist and his deportation has been requested by the inspectors of the bureau of immigration and naturalization, but issuance of a warrant has been prevented by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Mayor Carson said the shipping and fruit industries of the West Coast had suffered not only because of maritime strikes but also because of tie-ups caused by the longshoremen's unions, which are controlled by Bridges.

"The fruit industry is endangered by the present attitude of maritime labor," Mayor Carson said. "The continued disruption of deliveries has resulted in a lack of confidence in our ability to fulfill orders, causing us to lose our European markets to Argentina and South Africa."

Choice of Reed Liked

NOMINATION of Stanley Forman Reed of Kentucky, solicitor general, as associate justice of the Supreme court met with general approval and it was predicted in Washington that he would be speedily confirmed by the senate with little or no opposition.

Republicans and Democrats alike were quick to praise the Kentuckian, who, while a defender of many New Deal measures, has acquired a reputation for being realistic and a liberal with "moderate" tendencies.

Senator Ashurst, chairman of the judiciary committee, named a subcommittee which approved the nomination after a public hearing.

Mr. Reed, who will fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice George Sutherland, is fifty-three years old and has never before been on the bench. In 1929 Herbert Hoover, then President, made him general counsel of the federal farm board. Later he was shifted to the same capacity in the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He retained his post at the outset of the present administration.

Then President Roosevelt picked him for solicitor general to defend the New Deal cases before the Supreme court. Of these he won 11 and lost 2.

Stalin Checks the Purge

NOT a single bit of legislative work was accomplished by the first session of the new parliament in Soviet Russia. But there was a lot of speech making, and external enemies, especially Japan, were denounced and defied.

Dictator Josef Stalin, through the central committee, ordered an end to the mass expulsion of Communist party members, which has usually been followed by death, banishment or loss of jobs.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, indicated satisfaction with the results of the purge, but assailed "rotten leaders" who played into the enemy's hands. "Under the mask of false vigilance agents of Fascism sought to break up and oust from the ranks our bolshevist personnel," Pravda said.

Egypt's King Weds

FAROUK, king of Egypt, was married in Cairo to Miss Farida Zulfikar as 100 cannon boomed a salute. The city was thronged with natives, but they had no glimpse of the bride, because the Moslem clergy were in control and would not permit her even to be present at the ceremony. They did, however, consent to a semi-public reception afterward in the Abdine palace at which the seventeen-year-old queen made an appearance.

Tragedy in Canada FIRE that destroyed the college of the Sacred Heart at St. Hyacinthe, not far from Quebec, resulted in the death of at least 47 persons and the injury of many others. The victims included members of the teaching staff as well as students.

Fourteen drums of gasoline housed in the four-story structure contributed to the speed with which the fire roared through the building.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Many times, I have written in these columns about the confused state of affairs in the federal government and the Roosevelt administration. I wish I were possessed of sufficient wisdom to undertake an analysis of them, as they exist now, for it probably would be helpful to all. But having no such vast wisdom, I shall have to content myself with the service of reporting on several circumstances of recent development and let it go at that.

For several weeks now, we have witnessed a steady stream of callers at the White House. There have been some labor leaders but mostly the list of callers whom the President invited were the greatest of American industrialists, the "economic royalists" whom Mr. Roosevelt has so roundly denounced from time to time, or whenever it served political purposes to attack them publicly. The purposes of having these men visit the President, as announced at the White House, were to consult and try to find ways and means of checking the current depression.

As I said, these White House visitors were the very "economic royalists" whom Mr. Roosevelt has attacked throughout the last five years. Indeed, among their number were some of the "sixty families" upon whom Secretary Ickes of the Interior department, and Robert H. Jackson, trust busting assistant attorney general, have been heaping abuse as the folks who "control" America. Anyone who will take the trouble to review the President's speeches and the more recent barrage of attacks by Messrs. Ickes and Jackson cannot help wondering if those men are crooks and if they crush the "common peep-ul," as charged, why their advice can be any good now.

Nextly, it is hard to understand why or how anything is to be gained by consulting with men of that type in a serious effort to solve the problems of the current depression and set off dynamite under them at the same time. That is what happened. Mr. Roosevelt announced with vehemence at a press interview that all holding companies "must go." They must be eliminated from American economic life and at once; there can be no toleration of corporations that are organized to hold the stock of other corporations, etc., etc. He has taken a definite position on that before as regards power companies and drove a bill through congress to eliminate them. This time, he wants to go much further. Which is proper, if that be his policy. But here is the peculiar thing. Two hours after he made his announcement, he had a dozen men in conference who represented the very thing he was denouncing and was seeking their advice. It seems paradoxical, to say the least.

On top of these conferences that have brought scores of prominent industrial captains to Washington at the President's invitation, there is to be noted an entire absence of any administration action looking to release of business to do its part in taking on unemployed workers. I have talked to men in congress of every shade of opinion and they are all awaiting some word as to the President's views. Their position is that the President wants to take the lead in mapping a program and most of them, I believe, will help him carry it out. They feel also that for them to start development of a program of their own makes them subject to White House criticism if the legislation fails to meet New Deal specifications. So they simply wait!

In the meantime, the depression has sunk deeper and deeper. I frankly believe that in some localities it is right now as bad as anything we saw in 1932. Business men are frightened to death and will not expand their businesses because of the danger that they will lose everything they have, and individuals are frightened and will not spend more money than is absolutely necessary. In other words, there is again a lack of confidence that is appalling. It seems to center on Mr. Roosevelt as it centered on Mr. Hoover in 1930 and 1931.

I can judge the whole situation only by attempting to compose the observations that I gather from countless conversations. If this consensus be accurate, then it would appear that current fears result from an inability of anyone to know what Mr. Roosevelt will do next. That is to say, the expressions stressed statements that his policies "lack continuity," that he changes "overnight," that he "attacks business with one hand and kicks it in the pants with one foot and asks it to take the load off of the government at the same time;" that he takes advice "of a lot of nincompoops on finances who can't even balance their own household budgets;" that he "won't let private initiative do anything without having a flock of government spies on our trails," and so on. I could supply fifty more from my notes, but they would be of the same tenor. And mind you! a large percentage of these came from representatives and senators in congress, Democrats and Republicans alike.

Another phase of the general situation: There has been a tremendous drive against monopoly. This was lead largely by Assistant Attorney General Jackson, but Mr. Ickes and lesser lights have helped carry the ball. The attacks have been general. There has been no distinction between good business and bad business. The result has been that every man who has some money tied up in business is wondering whether he is going to have to defend himself in some way, however careful he has been about complying with the federal laws.

The fact was called to my attention also that many of the businesses charged with monopoly are doing just what the government forced them to do. The unlamented NRA can be recalled without effort. Under the NRA, every unit or every line of business was told what to do and how to do it. Codes of business practice were laid down for them, bearing the approval of the President. Since NRA was relegated to the ashcan, we find a dozen suits being prosecuted against businesses for continuing to do the things they were forced to do when NRA was the law of the land.

Then, I would like to ask what is wrong that real trusts are not being broken up. The Department of Justice has some able lawyers who have been assisting Attorney General Cummings since the inception of the New Deal. It appears to a layman like me that five years ought to be ample time in which to make some headway against trusts and monopolies. I am moved to ask, therefore, can this new outburst against monopoly be a bit of politics?

But the turning of the New Deal wheel has brought one magnificent appointment to the Supreme court of the United States. I refer to the nomination of Stanley Reed to succeed the retiring Justice Sutherland. Mr. Reed has been solicitor general of the United States and as such has directed the nation's legal affairs under Attorney General Cummings. His service there, and before that with the reconstruction finance corporation, has been meritorious. There has been nothing but praise of his ability and of his character. He stands out as a great lawyer and fine personality.

The appointment is worthy of considering from two standpoints. Justice Sutherland's resignation and the subsequent appointment gives the present President control of the court. That is to say, the known division of the court between conservative and liberal thought has been switched from the conservative side to the liberal side by the appointment of two men. Actually, it accomplishes for Mr. Roosevelt the very purpose he sought to accomplish by demanding of congress that it pass the so-called court reform bill a year ago, a piece of legislation on which the President received the worst licking of his political career.

The second important consideration in the appointment is the high type of man named by the President. Mr. Reed is progressive in thought. The New Dealers always have counted him as one of their number, but I find many people who contend that Stanley Reed believes first in the law of the land and in obeying it, rather than indulge in wishful thinking on a lot of silly, untried schemes. The country is fortunate, indeed, to have a man like Mr. Reed on the court.

And, continuing the theme of unusual circumstances, I think reference ought to be made to the terrific beating that is being handed the southern Democratic members of the senate. They have been making a brave fight against passage of a piece of utterly assinine legislation—the so-called anti-lynching bill. Men like Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of South Carolina, Connally of Texas, and others, have been holding the fort against this vicious legislation. They ought to win, but they probably won't.

I have seen something of the race problem in the South, and I can understand what the basis of southern objection is. On the other hand, there is only one basis for the pressure which Senator Wagner, New York Democrat, is putting on the bill and the reason why the senate was tied up in a deadlock of the filibuster type for days. That reason is that Senator Wagner is trying to get control of the negro votes in New York city's Harlem area.

CALL RECRUITS IN SYPHILIS WAR

Call for "recruits" in the "War Against Syphilis" by Gen. John J. Pershing and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur will be heard throughout the country. General Pershing is chair-broader interest in the fight on syphilis and the conditions which favor its spread with a war fund of $500,000 contributed by volunteers," says Doctor Wilbur, who is also president of the association.

Several Colleges Join War to Check Syphilis

Stimulated by the national campaign to control venereal disease, a few colleges and universities are making syphilis tests a part of the routine examinations required of incoming students. Judging from a survey made by the Chicago Tribune, serological diagnosis for syphilis is not a common regulation among student health services, however.

Instruction on the sexual and social hazards of the disease is far more common. Many universities, in fact, require their freshman men and women to take courses in health or hygiene revealing the character of the disease. Others confine this instruction to medical and sociological courses beyond the reach of most students.

University presidents, deans, and health directors questioned were unanimous in declaring that syphilis does not constitute a major health problem on American campuses.

Most of them agreed that students found to have syphilis and gonorrhea should be kept in school where they could have adequate treatment. Prep school leaders, dealing with younger boys, were just as certain that all syphilitics should be barred.

The University of Chicago, University of Iowa, and Dartmouth college are schools which have elected to give Wasserman or Kahn tests to all newcomers. New York university offers free tests to all students, but does not require them.

Testing began on the Midway with the winter quarter this month, taking advantage of the Chicago board of health's program of free and secret examinations, since the university health service lacked funds for this purpose.

Dartmouth college began routine Wassermans last fall and found one case of congenital syphilis among 650 incoming students.

The University of Iowa started serological testing of freshmen in 1924 and continued until 1930, reported Dr. M. E. Barnes, head of the department of hygiene. It ceased, he said, because of many objections. The university then confined its testing to food handlers, employees, and others.

"Fid. Def." on British Coins

The title "Fidei Defensor" (Defender of the Faith) was conferred on the English King Henry VIII by Pope Leo X, in 1521. It was his recognition of Henry's reply to Martin Luther. When Henry quarreled with Rome, in 1538, the Pope then in power, Paul III, deprived him of this title. But in 1544 it was conferred by the English parliament, and has ever since been borne by all British sovereigns. Now it refers to the Protestant faith, and not, as at first, to the Catholic religion.

"While the Creek Rose"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Well, sir, what are we going to do with this guy—a bird with a story that nobody will believe? His name is George Kincel of Weehawken, N. J., and he writes as follows: "When I told this story to my friends a few years ago, all I got was snickers and laughs behind the hand, so this is only the second time it has ever been related. I can furnish plenty of proofs of its authenticity, but if you don't believe it, don't publish it. I'd rather take a sock in the jaw than have you doubt it."

George has got me in a spot there. I've either got to believe his tale or pop him one on the buttock. Well, fortunately for the peace of Weehawken, I do believe George's yarn. It's a straight story, and it checks. What more could I ask for? Don't worry, George. If I didn't believe it I WOULDN'T publish it. But here it comes—and that's my answer to those birds who gave you the horse laugh.

Storm on Bald Mountain.

It all came about on a camping trip. George and a pal were tenting it on the summit of Bald mountain, near Scranton, Pa. The time was June, 1933, and just in case anybody wants to check up on George's story, his pal's name is Tom Coyne, of Scranton, Pa.

Darkness was coming on—and so was a storm. It occurred to George that they didn't have enough firewood to last the night through, so he told Tom to get things in readiness for the storm while he went to get the wood.

George left the camp and headed for a pile of logs that some woodsman had left nearby. He picked up four—two on each shoulder—and started back. He was about fifty yards away from camp and crossing a tiny stream by stepping from stone to stone when the heavens opened up above him and the rain began to fall in one solid sheet.

Lightning began to play across the sky, and George had hardly taken two more steps when a terrific crash of thunder made him jump.

Rain Began to Fall in One Solid Sheet.

He slipped and went over backwards. The logs on his shoulder fell on top of him. One of them landed on his head and knocked him out.

Wedged Fast Between Two Rocks.

Says George: "The rain soon revived me, but when I came to, I was unable to move. I was wedged in between two rocks about four feet high, and the logs were right on top of me, lodged in such a manner that I couldn't budge them. My arms were pinned to my sides, and my feet were the only parts of my body I could move. But they didn't quite touch the ground. My head was on the ground, in about half an inch of water. I could only raise it about an inch."

Well, sir, George lay still for a minute, trying to think of some way to wriggle himself free. Then, suddenly, he noticed something that made him gasp. The water in which his head lay was beginning to rise.

That's when George began to yell for Tom. But by that time the rain was falling with a steady roar that drowned out his cries the minute they left his lips. The booming of the thunder added to the din. George yelled again and again, but Tom didn't hear him.

"The rain," he says, "was falling faster now. The creek was rising. The water had reached my ears. Then I fell into a panic and began to scream. The water rose slowly—giving me plenty of time to realize the helplessness of the situation. It came up to my cheek-bones—covered my face and neck. Finally, nothing but my nose was above it, and I had to keep my head raised to keep it there."

His Final Yell Brought Rescue.

The muscles of George's neck were tired from holding up his head. He tried to lower it, but immediately the water began flooding into his nose. The rain slackened, and hope sprang into his breast. But it quickly died again. The rain might be slackening—but the creek was still rising.

George began to say a prayer then—a silent prayer, for he couldn't speak. The rain had long since covered his mouth. Now it was creeping into his nostrils. He wouldn't last much longer. Just another fraction of an inch and the water would cut off his breath.

In a minute it did. But George fought literally to the last gasp. "I summoned all my strength," he says, "and put it into one final, screaming yell. Not only my strength, but also all my hope went into that shout. Then, the tired muscles of my neck gave way. My head fell back under the water.

"I held my breath for what seemed an eternity. At last I was forced to expel it. Then I felt myself choking and lost consciousness."

The next thing George knew, he was lying on the bank of the creek, and Tom was bending over him giving him artificial respiration. As soon as George was strong enough to get to his feet again, Tom told him what had happened. When George didn't come back after fifteen or twenty minutes, Tom became alarmed and went out looking for him. He was prowling around about ten feet away from him when George gave that last yell. Then he went down between those rocks and pried him loose.

Selecting White House Site

President Washington and Major Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who laid out the national capital, selected the site for the White House in 1791. A competition was held for plans for an executive mansion, and the winning architect was James Hoban of Dublin. The corner stone was laid October 13, 1792. The building was not ready for occupancy until November, 1800, when President and Mrs. John Adams moved in. When the British captured Washington in 1804, they burned the White House. Hoban superintended its restoration.

Storms Toss Up Amber

Residents along the Baltic shore of East Prussia are always glad to see a storm coming up because these oceanic disturbances often cast up chunks of precious amber along the beaches. Most of the amber mining is done with powerful dredges and the substance, once valued more highly than gold, is worked into many kinds of jewelry. History relates that the Emperor Nero once sent an expedition across Europe to the amber mines along the Baltic sea.

Forgiving One Another

Forgiveness of injuries is a God-given grace. It is the most reluctant act that human nature ever performs. In the deepest condition of moral degradation there is no such thing as forgiveness of injuries thought about. So destitute is mankind of the spirit of forgiveness that heathen religions taught the right of revenging an injury, but not of forgiving one. In view of this, we say, the spirit of forgiving injuries is God-given. The Bible is the one book which from beginning to end advocates forgiveness.

Monks Incarcerate Themselves

Near Gyantse, Tibet, stands a lamasery whose lamas, or monks, incarcerate themselves in small mud huts, without doors or windows, for periods from a year to a lifetime, in order to earn a first-class reincarnation. As no mortal eye may look upon them during these years of seclusion, says Collier's Weekly, they wear a glove on the hand used to take their food from a brother lama when he passes it to them through a small curtained aperture.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—It seems possible that Rockefeller Center was trying for a delicate cultural balance in getting three alien artists to do its murals.

There was an inevitable clash, and now, after five years, a compromise. Lenin's head, by the hard-boiled, hard-bitten Mexican Rivera, blocked out in 1934, has been replaced by a conventional mural by the Spanish Sr. Sert, with the orthodox theme of America's continuing development along the old lines. The compromise appears in Sr. Sert's restrained sepia monochrome, instead of his usual lavish outpouring of gold and scarlet, verdant green and ecstatic blue.

Sr. Sert is the most millionairish of all living painters. Here he pipes down. If we didn't go left with Lenin, our new era isn't going to be as gaudy as the last one.

It will be a sober, industrious, thrifty, monochrome age, with no more high kicking and low thinking. That seems to be what Sr. Sert and the Rockefeller Center people are saying.

When the big, booming, sixty-one-year-old Spanish painter is going strong, he makes Veronese just a wet wash with a touch of bluing. He was a regular stand-by and emergency painter for his friend, King Alfonso. "Con mucho gusto," he can swing the whole spectrum, with bold, regal effects which are the delight of kings.

He has done many magnificent rooms in Europe, including the Madrid chapel of the duke of Alba, now Franco's commercial envoy to England, and Sir Phillip Sassoon's resplendent ballrooms. His first exhibition in this country was in 1924, when he received prolonged critical salvos.

He was born in Barcelona of the ancient Spanish gentry, and studied in Paris in his early youth. From the first, he developed boldness and exuberance, both in color and technique. Briffault's pre-war Europe—which was to have gone on forever, but didn't—knew him for its very own. His new monochrome fits an age "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought."

In the current argument between government and business, it is interesting to note that the temple of business gets back to the Muses and the classical symbols of work and labor, after its brief leftward deviation in 1933. In Washington, such bold innovators as Henry Varum Poor and George Biddle still state tortuous new themes in the government murals. But there's not so much splash in those Rockefeller Center murals as there might have been in, say, 1928.

YOUNG BURGESS MEREDITH, at the age of twenty-eight, is picked to run Actors Equity association, for a time at least. A star on Broadway, a country squire, a Hollywood success, he has had more tossing around than a roller-coaster addict, with the up-grade all in the depression years.

In Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, his father was a doctor and his grandfather an evangelist. His Uncle Joe, whom he greatly admired, was in vaudeville.

He washed dishes and tended furnaces during one sad and lonely year at Amherst, ran a haberdashery shop with his brother in Cleveland, went bankrupt, was a reporter on the Stamford Advocate, until they caught him at it, sold roofing, vacuum cleaners and cosmetics, worked in Macy's department store, sang in church choirs for $4 a Sunday, lived a week on breakfast food samples, and was for a time one of the migrant army of jobless youth.

The depression brought him luck. In 1929, he got a letter of introduction to Eva le Gallienne and a payless job as an apprentice actor. His climb was slow.

He first attained high visibility in "She Loves Me Not," in 1933. He clinched his gains in his three Maxwell Anderson plays, "Winterset," "High Tor," and "Star Wagon."

His estate is near that of Mr. Anderson in Rockland county, New York, where he is very busy with house-building, dogs, and books. He has an eager, avid mind, buzzing with new ideas.

He is a faithful intellectual under-study of the older Mr. Anderson and his genius chimes in perfectly with Mr. Anderson's exalted blank verse dramaturgy.

Many Changes Registered in Map of World in 1937

Effected by Ballots, Edicts, Treaties and Armies.

Washington, D. C.—Outstanding changes registered during 1937 on the map of the world and in the relationships of nations, owing to ballots, edicts, treaties and force of arms, are outlined in a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Rise of the first corporative type of state in the Western Hemisphere, by the edict of the president of Brazil; passing of large areas of China under control of the Japanese army; and the setting up of a new democratized form of government for India's 350 million inhabitants were the most far-reaching changes of the year," says the bulletin.

"In Spain the war between the insurgents and the government has continued through the year with a steady loss of ground by the government. Malaga in the southeast fell in April. In the northeast Bilbao fell in June, Santander in August, and Gijon (last of the government strongholds in the region) in October. As the end of year approached, the capital of Spain had been moved from Valencia to Barcelona, and headquarters of the insurgents, from Burgos to Salamanca. Considerably more than half of Spain was in the hands of the insurgents.

"Two kings were formally placed on their thrones during the year. In May, George VI was crowned and anointed as king of Great Britain and the Dominions, Emperor of India. In July, Farouk was 'invested' as king of Egypt but was not crowned.

"Plans for the division of Palestine into a Jewish state and an Arab state, with Great Britain retaining direct control of Jerusalem and other strategic places, were brought forward during the year by a British commission, and even received the approval of the League of Nations mandates commission. But the announcement of the scheme caused such an outburst of criticism and rioting in Palestine that further steps have been delayed.

New Irish Constitution. "A new constitution, adopted for Ireland by a general vote of the citizens, July 1, created the 'Republic of Eire,' headed by a president elected for seven years. The constitution is concerned only with internal affairs.

"Final agreement on the boundary between Colombia and Panama, parts of which had been in dispute for more than 30 years, was reached by an exchange of notes between the two countries early in December.

European Beauties Spy Out Military Secrets

London.—Beautiful, alluring, modern Mata Haris today are being used to an almost unprecedented scale to obtain the military secrets of Europe's armed powers.

Never before in the peacetime history of Europe have so many beautiful young women been known to be engaged in espionage.

German, French, Swiss, Polish, Italian and Russian girls are known to be operating.

The identity of some of these women is known to the British intelligence service; others are under suspicion, but most of them are merely known to exist, their identities remaining a mystery.

A case in point is Countess Wielopolska, beautiful Polish woman who now languishes in Moabit prison, Berlin, awaiting trial on charges of espionage against Germany.

Although the penalty for spying against Nazi Germany is death it is believed that the Polish countess will be exchanged for a valuable German agent now behind the bars in Warsaw.

Countess Wielopolska was arrested by the German secret police aboard the Warsaw-Berlin-Paris express just 15 minutes after the train pulled out of the Berlin station.

In a French military prison, attractive twenty-nine-year-old Elsa Turch, a German girl, is serving two years for attempting to induce French men and women to act as espionage agents.

Before being caught and convicted, she was a familiar figure at Ystres, one of France's most important military aviation centers.

Women Forbidden to See Musical Instrument Made

London.—A West African musical instrument made in the dead of night by a secret process that no woman may witness on pain of death was played before a London audience by an American woman—Mrs. Laura Boulton, lecturer on anthropology at the University of Chicago.

The forbidden instrument is the ochisanji, which has metal keys made by a smith working at night. Mrs. Boulton said: "For the last 250 years our European musicians have been experimenting in the field of melody but we never have more than scratched the surface in the field of rhythm.

"Maybe just as certain forms of our present music, such as symphony and sonata, evolved from the court dance, our future music may have negro dances for its ancestor."

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A Slip Cover With Welt Seams.

IN THE sketch at the upper left you see the pieces of a davenport slipcover fitted with seam lines pinned. The material is wrong side out as the welt or corded seams must be stitched from the inside of the cover.

Before the seams around the front of the arms are pinned as at A the arm cover edge of the seam must be gathered as at B. It is important to allow just enough material so the arm cover fits easily.

The cable cord that is covered with bias material and fitted into the seams to make the welt may be purchased at any notion counter. The material to cover it must be cut on a true bias and stitched in place as shown here at C.

The cording foot attachment for your machine must be used for this stitching so the sewing will come close to the cord. The next step is to either baste or stitch the covered cord to one edge of the right side of the seam as shown here at D. Then, using the cording foot again, stitch the seam as shown. Clip the seam edges around curves so they will not draw.

It will be necessary to leave an opening in the back to be fastened with snaps. Openings must be arranged on the underside of the seam cushions as shown here at E.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers, dressing tables and curtains for all types of rooms. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Leaflet of patchwork stitches now included if requested.

Readers wishing a copy should send name and address enclosing 25 cents (coins preferred) to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Wine Temperamental Beverage

Wine is a temperamental beverage. Some kinds improve on long ocean voyages. Other kinds become "sick" on trains and ships and require months of rest to recover their tranquility. Others sometimes have temporary "sick spells," the cause of which baffles even expert wine doctors.—Collier's Weekly.

Queer Traits of Birds

The bush-tit is a plasterer of talent and skill in nest construction. But even more remarkable is the California wood-pecker, which drives acorns into the trunks of trees with its bill, so firmly that a man needs a screwdriver to pry them out again.

Trick the Monkeys

As the killing of monkeys is forbidden in the colonies of France, Kabyle farmers use a unique way to rid their fields of them. When a monkey is caught, he is sewed in a red flannel suit, covered with little bells, and then turned loose. In a minute or two, says Collier's Weekly, he is home and, in another minute or two, his troop, terror-stricken by his appearance and noise, are on the other side of the mountain.

Carrying the "Coals"

Newcastle is a center of the British coal trade, and a great port for the shipping of it. To "carry coals to Newcastle" is a waste of labor, a futile, or unnecessary effort, an effort to supply a need already well supplied. The phrase is of Seventeenth century origin, or perhaps older. But similar proverbs exist in many languages. There is one in French about "carrying water to the river." Ancient Greece has one about taking owls to Athens—Athenian coins being stamped with the owl; and an Oriental poet speaks of "importing paper to Hindustan." — Cleveland Dispatch

U. S. Debt to France in 1790

Hamilton's report to congress showed that the public debt in 1790 amounted to some $54,000,000, of which about $12,000,000 was owed to foreign creditors, chiefly in France. There was also an aggregate of $21,000,000 of the state debts. Hamilton proposed to add this to the national debt, making $75,000,000 in all, and recommended that the national government assume the state debts. The national debt was paid during the first part of the Nineteenth century.

In the Circuit Court for the County of Iosco, in Chancery.

Earl William McKelvey, and Lillian C. McKelvey, plaintiffs, vs Joseph N. Marquis, also known as Joseph L. Marquis, or his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, and assigns, and Charles Curley, or his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, defendants.

Order of publication on bill to quiet title under statute.

At a session of said court held at the Courthouse in the city of Tawas City, Iosco County, Michigan on the 18th day of December, 1937.

Present: The Honorable Herman Dehnke, Circuit Judge.

On reading and filing the Bill of Complaint in said cause the affidavit of William McKelvey and Lillian C. McKelvey his wife, for which it satisfactorily appears to the court that the defendants Joseph N. Marquis, also known as Joseph L. Marquis and his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, and Charles Curley or his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, are proper and necessary parties defendant in the above cause and

It further appearing that after a diligent search and inquiry it cannot be ascertained, and it is not known, whether or not the said defendant Joseph N. Marquis also known as Joseph L. Marquis is living or dead, or where he may reside if living, and if dead whether he has any personal representatives or heirs living, or where they, or any of them, may reside, and further that the present whereabouts of said defendant is unknown and the names of the persons who are included therein without being named but who are embraced therein under the title of "unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, and assigns" of the said Joseph N. Marquis, also known as Joseph L. Marquis cannot be ascertained after diligent search and inquiry, and

It further appearing that the said defendant Charles Curley is dead, but that after diligent search and inquiry it cannot be ascertained, and it is not known, whether he has personal representatives or heirs living, or if living, where they, or any of them, may reside, and that the names of the persons who are included therein without being named but who are embraced under the title of "unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns" of said Charles Curley cannot be ascertained after diligent search and inquiry.

Now, therefore, on motion of John A. Stewart, Attorney for the plaintiffs,

It is ordered that the said defendants Joseph N. Marquis also known as Joseph L. Marquis or his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns cause their respective appearance to be entered in this cause within three (3) months from the date of this order and in default thereof, the said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by the defendants, or their respective unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, and

It is further ordered that within twenty (20) days the plaintiffs cause a copy of this order to be published in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in the county of Iosco, such publication to be continued therein once each week for six (6) successive weeks.

HERMAN DEHNKE
Circuit Judge.

To whom it may concern: Please take notice that this suit which the foregoing order was duly made, involves and is brought to quiet title to the following described piece or parcel of land situate and being in the Township of Oscoda, County of Iosco, State of Michigan, described as follows, to-wit:

The South two thirds (2-3) of lot No. two (2) of block No. seven (7) of the original plat of the village of Oscoda, Oscoda Township, Iosco County, Michigan.

ADVENTURE IS COMING

IN THE AMERICAN BOY

Readers who like adventure and the lure of the far places will find plenty to please them in coming issues of THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. They'll read, for instance, of seamen and saboteurs and San Francisco water-front trouble; of daring adventure in the world of pseudoscience, and of a feud aboard a plunging, rolling battleship.

They'll read, too, of excitement aboard a transport plane blaring over jungled Mexican mountains, and of stranger planes that are not bound to earth but swing through the noiselessness of space. Readers can follow a young ex-Mountie as he searches for clues in the wild northlands, and Tierney, the pie-eating detective, on the trail of city criminals.

A new feature in THE AMERICAN BOY is picture pages that tell stories. Pictures, for instance, that vividly show a day in the life of a coast guard's man, and how an Eskimo husky sled dog does his work. They transmit the thrill of battling a hundred pound, water-churning tarpon. Tips on how it's done are also given pictorially—ranging from how to run a broken field to how to be correct in a ball.

NOTE: Subscription prices of THE AMERICAN BOY are $1.50 for one year or $3.00 for three years, foreign subscriptions 50c a year extra. Send your name, address and remittance to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. On newsstands, 15c a copy. adv.

"Where now, master?" Arnaldo set off, picking his way along the dry bed of the arroyo until he struck the fresh trail Juanito had failed to take.

Two hours later they came upon Van Sartt's damaged car and examined it with interest; soon afterward they arrived at the rope bridge, crossed it successfully and headed for the hacienda's nearest gate.

Not until the two strangers were within a stone's throw of the outer wall did Joyce recognize the taller of them and utter a cry.

Accompanied by Dirk she dashed down to the great court and with his help opened the zaguan and then the outer gate. She held out both hands, her eyes shining with welcome.

"How on earth did you get here? You haven't walked all the way, have you?"

Arnaldo had raised his hat. He dropped it on the ground, took her hands, gave her a gleaming smile, nodded at Van Sartt, shrugged his shoulders and pointed backward with his chin. It was as though he had spoken, told them in so many words where, how and when his car had been ditched.

"So you changed your mind," said Dirk.

"Yes," said Arnaldo. "Something happened to make me change my mind."

"What do you mean?" asked Joyce. "What are you two talking about?"

"I asked Arnaldo to come with me," explained Dirk, "but he refused to take part in a sentimental gesture."

"Quite true," admitted Adan, "but that was before I knew Miss Sewell, scolding the role of victim, had shot up Dorado." He looked around curiously. "Where are your 18 gringos?"

"What gringos?" asked Joyce, bewildered.

Taking out his wallet Arnaldo extracted the clipping the minister of war had handed him and passed it to Joyce. "Read it. I'm here on a semi-official mission to investigate."

She glanced through the inspired account of the taking of La Barranca and the further she read the more did her eyes and cheeks blaze. She crushed the paper in her fist, started to throw it away, then changed her mind, smoothed it out and slipped it inside her pullover.

"It's an outrageous lie," she said, "based on a grain of truth. You seem to have come prepared to stay. I'm glad, because this fantastic fabrication will need some talking over." She led the way into the inner patio and no sooner had she crossed its threshold than the air of a chateleine enveloped her. At ease and competent she gave directions to Luz, then turned to Arnaldo.

"You're tired and you must be hungry. As soon as you've had a wash there'll be food ready in the small dining room. Perhaps Mr. Van Sartt will show you where it is."

"He won't need to," said Adan. "I've been here before."

She cast him a curious and startled glance, but the placidity of his expression reassured her. Nevertheless a certain uneasiness persisted, causing her to put off anything in the nature of a show-down. During the afternoon she attended to her many duties and took another horseback lesson, still omitting to tell Dirk she had ridden as a child. Adan appeared, refreshed by a nap, and encouraged her. The same superficiality marked the dinner hour. Don Jorge alone scorning to utter polite nothings.

"Wheels within wheels," said Don Jorge quite suddenly, "and a young girl sets them all to turning. Margarida Fonseca who would never have moved save for her hatred of the Manifest Destiny. Onelia, out to get with a single stone Dorado, his ancient enemy, and the minister of war. The American ambassador trying desperately to save his face and perhaps his job. Adan Arnaldo—"

"Yes?" prompted Arnaldo coolly. "What about me?"

Don Jorge, scowling, avoided a direct answer. "Gentlemen," he continued, "we are here either as guests or servants of the senorita Joyce Sewell, lawful mistress of La Barranca. This is a world—her world. We have plenty of room for defenders, none for neutrals, tourists or spies. I'll ask you first, Mr. Van Sartt. Are you friend or foe?"

"Friend," said Dirk promptly.

"Now you, Adan," said Don Jorge, "and don't speak too hastily. You and I have met before, though you sat at Dorado's table while I ate with servants. Do you come as friend or foe?"

Arnaldo flicked the ash from his cigarette and sat staring at the brightened tip. "Here is my answer: how far I'll go for the senorita is her business and mine and nobody else's."

"Leonardo!" Don Jorge shouted, "a spy is among us!"

"You, a Mexican!" cried Joyce,

"and you're not ashamed to say that!"

Luz thrust her head in at the door. "Do I send for Leonardo?"

"No!" commanded Joyce. She turned toward Don Jorge. "Maxie, if you and Mr. Van Sartt don't mind, I'd like to talk to Adan Arnaldo alone."

Promptly Don Jorge turned ceremonious. He rose, bowed, faced toward his own room, stumped straight to the door, stood back to force Dirk to pass, then entered and closed it with emphasis.

"Let's get out of here," said Adan. "I remember a big shabby room with a huge fireplace."

"That's where I meant to go when we'd finished talking," said Joyce.

The life of a hacienda is not that of a house but of a village, sometimes almost of a town. Articles and values are easily destroyed or lost, but certain ingrained fundamentals take years to die. The hereditary blacksmith, the itinerant piano-tuner, a teacher of sorts for the crowded school and a horse and cattle foreman to carry on the banner of scorn for the equally important chief of the muleteers are threads not lightly torn from a social fabric however raveled. The drawing room gave evidence of this truth. The furniture had been maltreated, but the curtains had been recently patched by an expert nee-

"You! Your House of Drones."

de. A square had been cut from the corner of a lovely Persian rug to make a saddle blanket for Mi General, but the elements of comfort remained. Witness a well-tended fire on the hearth and the piano in tune. Adan walked to it as if drawn by a lodestone. He struck a chord, then sat down and rippled the keys in melodious undertone to his words.

"We can be honorable with foreigners," he repeated, looking up at Joyce across the corner of the closed sounding board. "I am authorized to offer you $50,000 for La Barranca if you'll agree to leave the country at once. Think it over. Fifty thousand to get out, nothing but trouble if you try to stay."

"La Barranca isn't something you can sell," she stated. "My father bought it—that's true—but not from people with their roots still in the soil. They were gone, uprooted by their own folly, and he bought it from a bank. I was born here. The fibers of my being are tied to stone, vine and tree. I owe lip service to two governments, but not allegiance. Allegiance from the heart strikes deep. It has to stand on a foundation of faith and love. Where will I find them if not here? How can I sell La Barranca without selling my people and myself?"

Adan stopped playing, his fingers hovering over an unstruck chord.

"Then what course do you intend to pursue," he murmured, his eyes on the keys, "and just where do you think it will lead you?"

"There's one word that covers it all," said Joyce. "Fight. That's what we do wherever we are—you in El Tenebroso, I here or in Elsinboro. Every woman, every man, wherever we are, we fight to live though we fight and go down."

Adan's hands crashed out the chord as he rose and faced her. He stared at her out of a daze. "Courage always wears a glorious face," he said as if he were explaining some mystery to himself. "Fight and go down. You, alone—yes. But—" His hands went out gropingly, touched her arms and passed down to her wrists. A voice within him, long stilled, was striving for utterance through fingers and eyes because lips are so prone to lie. She thrilled not to him but to his ardor. Since fire is a stranger to no man, warming friend and foe, she yielded, moved forward, not from any reasoning but by the simple law that sparks fly upward. Then he was holding her, kissing her, and she was kissing him. Yet, somehow, he was far away and she was with him, as though she dreamed. His voice, continuing, broke the spell. "But you and I together is another story. I have the power and you the land and no government—past, present or to come—will fool too much with Adan Arnaldo. It's practical, logical; it will be a cinch."

Cheeks burning, she rushed from the room and along the balcony of the patio. As she turned its angle she saw Dirk coming from Don Jorge's study and it was all she could do to keep from running to cast herself in his arms. Instead she stopped short and asked herself if she were crazy.

He came to a halt a few paces away. "Senor Maximiliano asked me to make the rounds," he explained and hesitated. "I don't suppose you'd care to be bothered."

"That's where I was going myself," said Joyce. "Do you want to come along?"

Together they turned down the passage giving access to the stair leading to the esplanade of the roof.

Under the blaze of moon and stars Joyce, followed by Dirk, visited the four bastions. "Awake, Leonardo?" she murmured. "Awake, Senorita." "Is everything quiet?" "All is quiet, Senorita." The rounds finished she started toward the spiral stair by which they had ascended, walking slowly at first, then with a sudden acceleration in her pace.

She moved toward the parapet and they sat down, he beside her, their shoulders barely touching. They sat in silence, their senses drenched in beauty. Her heart swelled until she knew she must speak or choke.

"It's beautiful and terrible. I wonder if anywhere else in the world beauty and terror walk hand in hand."

"Me, I'm wondering who I am," said Dirk. "You're real. You're part of the night, part of this amazing place. You had a name that meant nothing—nothing at all. But now you've shaken it and become real. If I should never see you again, yet live for a thousand years, I couldn't forget you. I'm not being fresh, I'm not making love, but something belongs to me from now on—something you haven't given that I didn't try to take. You're real but what about me? I've turned into nothing. These words I'm speaking—are they a dream, or can you hear them too? Can you?"

"I've heard them all," said Joyce, "but I can't be sure you said them aloud or whether my own lips spoke them. Because as I seem real to you, so are you to me. I'm not afraid of you. I wasn't afraid of you before, but I disliked the person you were. You wore a Joseph's coat made up of the things I most despise. Now you've thrown it away—or perhaps you've only taken it off and presently will slip it on again."

"Perhaps," he admitted mournfully, "and you too."

She shivered. He took off his jacket and put it around her shoulders. Nothing was said; he had not asked her if she were cold nor did she protest he would need the coat himself.

"Name the things you despise," he said at last, staring straight ahead.

"Your false front," answered Joyce after an imperceptible pause, "your air of We-the-elect-are-holy-and-all-others-are-vile."

"Is that really the way it struck you?" asked Dirk, but did not wait for an answer. "Yes, I'm beginning to see it."

"But you mustn't think it's just you I meant. It's a lot bigger than any single one of you and it can't be covered by five minutes or five years. The air you wore was the air of the whole place—chancellery, garden and the embassy itself. Then cry out, 'Look at us! our skins are safe wherever we go; if you want to keep yours, stay home.' It's so silly not to see the other half of that doctrine."

"What other half?" asked Dirk, puzzled.

"Stay at home yourselves," said Joyce with intensity, "do away with the House of Drones and take your consults with you, guardians of the dollar and nothing else! Then we'd know where we stand."

"Easy now," said Dirk soothingly. "You! Your House of Drones. What if one of the bullets that hit your car had killed you? From being a parasite, a silkworm living on the pulp of the taxpayer safe at home, you would suddenly have acquired importance—such importance that you would certainly have destroyed me and possibly plunged your country in the very war you're supposed to wave back with a lily hand!" She rose, letting his coat fall from her shoulders.

"You're great," said Dirk, electrified against his will and judgment. "Whether you're right or not, you're great."

"Pick up your coat and come with me," said Joyce. "I want to show you something."

He followed her down the spiral stair and back to the patio. She led him to her former playroom, pushed open the door and turned. "This was the day nursery where I was playing when they came in—a hundred of them riding their horses over the flower beds, trampling the rose bushes and shooting at anything that moved. No force against a weaker nation" was responsible for their coming; don't forget it." She pointed. "That's the door where my mother ran out, looking for me. She took three steps before they shot her. I didn't see what happened then—only the crowding men. The next thing I knew my father, carrying a funny little trunk under one arm, lifted me with the other and rushed up those steps to the balcony. They turned and saw him in time to laugh and jeer but hardly to shoot. Come; I'll show you where the bullets struck and how we escaped."

She preceded him to the balcony, then through passage after passage until, doubling back, they arrived at steep stone steps leading down into a cavernous pit behind the vast kitchens and thence to a narrow postern. With a strong pull Dirk opened the door and they stepped out into such an umbrageous paradise as only the old-time haciendas of the semi-tropics can boast.

"This is the lake," said Joyce. "Lake?" laughed Dirk. "Where's the water?"

"You can't see it for the hyacinths," explained Joyce. "If it weren't for them we couldn't be here."

"Why not?"

"It wouldn't be safe. This mass of hyacinths, too thick for a boat to pass or a man to swim, mean a lot more to my safety than all the American embassies in the world put together."

"Let up," said Dirk, "please let up. I'm licked."

She turned toward him with an impulsive movement; her fingers barely touched his shoulder. He took her in his arms so naturally she had no thought to draw back, then realization swept over her that resentment would have been silly before so spontaneous and unthinking an action. This was different from Arnaldo—so different she was another person standing in another world and awake, wide awake.

U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Charts Show How the Sea Rearranges Its Bed

The seas do not like their living quarters. So they build up, tear down, and rearrange their beds, writes Elliott Roberts in Nature magazine. All of which adds to the labor of man, self-appointed recorder of the changing movements of the sea and their effect on the contour of the land.

The earliest explorers of our shores knew nothing of the deeps and shoals; they were blind men groping in a strange house. The situation is now remedied by charts of our oceans and coastal waters, so that great ships steam confidently where the first comers had to sound their cautious way. Still, we are forever confronted with the sea's restless changes—deepening here, shoaling there—and the advance or recession of the shoreline on many a mile of coast. The chart makers must be forever alert to the latest changes, to keep the charts accurate.

A surveyor, busy on the coast of South Carolina, stood by his instrument on the sandy beach, just out of reach of the breaking waves. He calculated the location of the station where he stood, and was about to put it down on the chart, when he blinked. What had he found? He checked his work, and it was correct. According to the old chart, his station lay in water many feet deep, half a mile from the nearest dry land.

The United States Coast and Geodetic survey, chart makers for the United States, maintains eternal vigilance to keep abreast of all the changes that occur, especially on the more unstable and shifting portions of our coast. In many of these thousands of miles of shore line even a few years will see enormous changes. The point of Rockaway beach, opposite New York harbor, grows westward some 250 feet yearly, a matter of several miles in a lifetime. Long Beach, Coney Island and Sandy Hook are all extending themselves toward the channel.

The approach to the harbor of Rio de Janeiro has been the scene of more diverse scenic description than almost any port city in the world.

MINISTERING TO SPIRITUAL NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Son, thy sins are forgiven—Mark 2:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When the House Was Crowded.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Who Can Forgive Sin?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Bringing People to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity's Concern for Spiritual Health.

Man is so constantly concerned with his physical nature, the needs and interests of his body, that he is prone to forget that there is within him a spiritual nature which is in fact his real self. The body which is the temporary dwelling place of the soul is most important—but relatively it is of but slight significance when considered alongside of the spiritual life of man.

Our lesson presents the Lord Jesus as being rightly concerned with the needs of the palsied man's body, but his act of healing was incidental to the infinitely more important act of forgiving his sins. Consider him, for his was indeed

I. A Hopeless Case (v. 3).
Incurably afflicted and helpless physically, but far more deeply afflicted spiritually was this poor man, for he was still in his sins. No man was able to heal his body, only God could heal his soul. He was indeed hopeless until he met Jesus. He knows no hopeless case. With God all things are possible, and Jesus Christ is God.

We are even as was this man, for without God we too are without hope (Eph. 2:12). Let us face the facts and admit that unless we are saved through Christ we are eternally and completely lost.

II. Impossible Conditions (vv. 1, 2, 4).

We say that the circumstances surrounding this man were such as to make it impossible for him to reach the Lord, for so they would have been apart from the spirit of divine urgency which impelled his helpers to cut through every excuse and brush aside every hindrance.

"Where there's a will there's a way." Had these men been controlled by convention they would never have put their friend at the feet of Jesus. But note that before taking up the roof they tried the door. They tried to use the proper entry, but it was blocked. It often is—sometimes by customs, sometimes by religious ceremony, often by vain philosophy.

III. Immediate Conversion (v. 5).

At once Jesus sees their faith and forgives the man his sins. God always welcomes and honors faith. Note that Jesus—who as God had the power to forgive sins—immediately cleansed him from all unrighteousness.

This man's affliction proved to be his greatest blessing. If he had not had the palsy he might never have met the Lord. Suffering properly borne may be a means of grace.

IV. Secret Criticism (vv. 6, 7).

What a serious thought it is that the unspoken word which we think we have hidden away in the heart or mind is known to God. "All things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13). "There is nothing hid that shall not be known" (Luke 12:2). What does the Lord see when he looks into your heart and mine?

Their theology was faultless—their reasoning was logical, but their premise was wrong. They were right in saying that only God could forgive sin. But they were wrong in assuming that Jesus was not God, and therefore a blasphemer.

V. Miraculous Confirmation (vv. 8-12).

Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that they missed that important truth. He meets the challenge of their unbelief by going into their own limited field of observation. They were not able to test the effectiveness of His forgiveness of sins. They did not believe in Him, hence they would not receive it by faith.

Let us remember that the incident took place in the early days of our Lord's ministry. While we do not condone their hostility to the tender and loving service of our Lord to humanity, we can understand their slowness to accept his claims to divine power. In our day we have no such excuse, for all gospel history is available to us. God help us that we may not sit in the seat of the scornful and "demand a sign" before we will believe.

Harmonies of Nature

There are but few souls who perceive how far the harmonies of Nature resound in accordance with ours, and how much the great whole is but one Aeolian harp with longer or shorter strings, slower and quicker movements, breathed upon by the Divine Being before Whom it rests.—Richter.

Making Winter Hours Count

SEW - YOUR - OWN means most at this season of the year when dark and long winter days make time hang heavy on your hands. You can get your Spring wardrobe well started by making these days count. This is the time to sew and sew—and then when the first crochuses show their heads, you will be all ready for Spring; your wardrobe in order and the right clothes to wear. With sew-your-own patterns and a few yards of material, you can make short work of this whole business of sewing.

Practical Slip.

This four-gore slip is the choice of every woman who likes comfort. The side panels prevent the slip from twisting and turning and keep it comfortably in place on the most strenuous day. The pattern includes built-up and strap shoulder—and you can make it for your own wardrobe in a few hours at a fraction of what you would usually spend. Keep the pattern, you will use it again and again once you see how really comfortable this dress is.

Cheery Morning Frock.

No matter how many of these informal dresses you have, you never have enough. So start right in to sew now and make two or three of them for Spring. This dress (the one in center) is designed on clever shirt-waist lines and buttons from neck to hem. Piping is used at edge of collar, cuffs and pockets. It's the neatest, trimmest little frock you have ever seen. You'll enjoy it all through the summer.

Sweet and Simple.

The figure at right is wearing an afternoon frock that is as fresh and new as a daisy. The gored skirt flares like a ballerina's and the bodice is smoothly fitted, closing with two wide scallops trimmed in smart ruffling. Wear this dress for bridge parties now—and wear it all through the Spring and Summer. It is one of the most popular silhouettes—nicely made up in silk or cotton.

Pattern 1437 is designed for sizes 14 to 46 (32 to 46 bust). Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material and 5/8 yard ribbon for shoulder straps.

Pattern 1440 is designed for sizes 12 to 40 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material and 2 yards of binding or braid to trim as pictured. For collar and cuffs in contrast 5/8 yard fabric is required.

Pattern 1341 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 or 39-inch material plus 2 1/2 yards of machine-made pleating to trim.

Are Women Better Shoppers than Men?

GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electrical refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroom tiling—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? Where does she discover those subtleties of dress and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?

Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a consistent, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that she can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of data continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.

Toughest Spot in Baseball Confronts Vitt

MAKING his big-time managerial debut in the major leagues this year, Oscar Vitt, new pilot of the Cleveland Indians, is probably faced with the toughest job in baseball.

Vitt has to make good with a club that has won the American league pennant just once in 35 years. This does not mean that Cleveland is or has been a bad ball club.

Besides Cleveland, three other major league teams will have new managers in 1933. Bill McKechnie, who has won pennants with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates, moves from the Boston Bees to the Cincinnati Reds.

Problems of Pilots

All of these pilots will have problems. But a pennant or a near pennant isn't expected of Messrs. McKechnie, Stengel or Street in the next couple of years.

Vitt has proved he can take it. He had a phenomenal year with the Newark Bears, a Yankee farm, in 1937. His club won the International league pennant by 2 1/2 games, then swept through the playoffs by taking four straight each from Syracuse and Baltimore.

Vitt, who had successful playing career with the Detroit Tigers some years ago, has one other outstanding gift. He has an uncanny ability to handle pitchers. At Newark, he developed the finest staff in the minors from inexperienced men.

Players Must Hustle

This forty-seven-year-old veteran says he will have only one ironclad rule: "My players must hustle all the time or they go. There will be no exceptions."

So, some of these days, Cleveland may recapture some of the glory that was its in 1920, when the Indians, led by Tris Speaker, swept through the American league to a pennant and then overwhelmed the Brooklyn Dodgers to capture the world's championship.

How about the other new managers? The job confronting Gabby Street with the St. Louis Browns is largely one of rebuilding. During his managerial career in the majors and minors—the Cardinals, Missions and St. Paul—Street has always improved the club he took over.

Casey Stengel will not have a world of material to inject some color into a rather drab team and pep it up. He can make a club hustle and the players all like him.

New Middleweight Boss

ANY doubt about who is the boss man among the middleweights of America, if not the world, was cleared up when Fred Apostoli of San Francisco knocked out champion Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., in the ninth round of a scheduled twelve round bout in New York City recently.

Luckily for Steele, the fight was above the middle weight class maximum weight of 160 pounds. Though the champion at 158 1/2 pounds was under the weight, Apostoli by agreement in the bout contracts weighed in at 161 1/2. In order to win a title, a challenger must be at or under the weight of a champion he is fighting.

Apostoli, therefore, is an uncrowned champion. Those at the ringside who saw him batter Steele into a state of helplessness are in no doubt about what will happen when the two meet in an official championship fight.

"Dead" Ball Is Tested

When the umpire barks "Play Ball!" on opening day, April 19, fans in the National league will have a first hand chance to draw their own conclusions about the new "dead" ball.

Recent midwinter tests at Baltimore, Md., of this new ball with sluggers Jimmy Foxx of the American league, Chuck Klein of the National and Charley Keller of the International league participating brought three conclusions from baseball men assembled:

1. The dead ball has a soggy "whoosh" sound when hit. 2. The livelier American and International league ball emits a socking "whack."

Before 300 shivering fans and sports writers, sluggers in Oriole park indiscriminately "whacked" eighteen balls to oblivion over the fence.

Foxx noticed the Jimmy Foxx biggest difference in the way the balls sounded when hit. "The lively ball has a sharp crack when hit soundly," he said, "and the dead ball doesn't jump as much when hit, but it will ride just as far when you connect with a solid swing."

Klein could "feel" the difference rather than hear it. "You can feel a spring when you hit the American league ball," he said, "and the best way to describe it is the difference you'd feel in hitting a loose drum, then thumping a tight one."

"Hunk" Lights Once More
Nomad of the football gridiron, Heartley W. (Hunk) Anderson, former Notre Dame football star and until recently assistant coach at the University of Michigan, has moved again.

Much of whatever effectiveness the 1937 Michigan team possessed was credited to Anderson for his work with the line. But after Harry Kipke was given the gate, Hunk's number was up.

Anderson played guard on the Notre Dame teams of 1919, 1920 and 1921 and was a buddy of the late George Gyppe. He was made assistant coach of the Irish in 1922, a post he retained until 1927, when he left to serve as head coach at St. Louis university.

Oscar Vitt found 94 applications for coaching jobs on his desk when he reported to the Cleveland Indians as manager...

Tuberculosis May Follow Flu

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

WHEN a flu epidemic passes by we are all naturally grateful that, notwithstanding the great number of cases, there have not been as many deaths as in some previous epidemics, the one of 1918-19 being particularly in our minds.

And yet just what the flu leaves in the way of general ill-health, general fatigue, chronic cases of heart disease, chronic inflammation of the sinuses and other ailments cannot be estimated.

For instance, influenza may be followed by pneumonia or pleurisy. "One-fourth of the total non-fatal cases of tuberculosis date the onset of the disease during the year following an attack of influenza and more than one-half of the cases are thus associated with either influenza, pneumonia or pleurisy."

Watch for These Signs.
In fact any infection or ailment that causes a run-down condition, or if the individual is not careful about watching sleep, exercise, food and fresh air, he becomes predisposed to tuberculosis.

"A patient is likely to acquire, or having acquired, at least may develop an active tuberculosis when he is anemic (thin blood); when he is underweight; when he has a tendency to recurrent or frequent colds, especially recurrent bronchitis; when he does not quickly recover from any simple acute infection, whether it is flu, measles, or whooping cough; when he does not recover quickly from pneumonia or pleurisy."

To Increase Weight.
"There is likely something wrong with the health of one who is either too thin or too fat. What we call normal weight is associated with a store of fat sufficient to give the body that symmetry which we associate with a sense of well-being. Graceful contour can only exist when there is sufficient padding of fat beneath the skin to eradicate depressions and irregularities of surface.

However, just as too much fat is a menace to health, so also is a lack of "sufficient" quantity to supply the actual needs of the body from the standpoint of health and appearance.

While decreasing the food intake will definitely decrease weight in every case—which may be dangerous to life if food is cut down too much—the increasing of food will not definitely increase weight in a great many cases. This means then that in trying to increase weight other factors besides increasing food must be considered.

Many underweights are worriers, anxious about everything, afraid to eat certain foods, afraid of constipation and so unduly purge themselves. "They are the restless, active and overconscientious people who habitually work beyond their capacity because their strength is so limited."

It has long been known that rest is as good as food in building up weight, just as too much rest will put on weight in those who are trying to reduce weight by reducing the food only.

But in addition to physical rest, mental rest is necessary also in building up weight and so these thin individuals must learn to attain calmness of spirit also. This is why a holiday often increases weight in thin individuals, as they, for the time being, "leave their cares behind."

The thin individual in addition to making sure of mental and physical rest, should be examined by physician and dentist to make sure that there are no infected teeth or tonsils which may be sapping strength and preventing the normal increase in weight.

Strange Facts Cavalry Captured Dutch Fleet

A FEW men on horseback once conquered the Dutch fleet. The crews of the well-armed battleships were so surprised when they found their ships surrounded by a troop of cavalry that they surrendered without a fight.

This happened during the cold winter of 1794-95. In France there had been a revolution and the king, Louis XIV, was executed. The French, already at war with Austria, now found themselves forced to fight England, Holland and Spain.

Most of the fighting took place in what is now Belgium. The Dutch were protected until the winter of 1794-95. Then the French generals drove the Austrians across the Rhine, the English soldiers under the duke of York embarked for home. The army of the French general Pichegru crossed frozen rivers, a country bare of supplies, densely intersected with dykes to conquer Utrecht and finally Amsterdam.

North of Amsterdam is the long thumb-like peninsula of North Holland and that great inland sea, the Zuider zee. Between the islands and the tip of North Holland the Dutch fleet had anchored for the winter. The winter of 1794-95 the fleet was frozen in at Texel.

Shortly after Christmas 1794 a small troop of Pichegru's cavalry rode out across the frozen waters. A handful of hussars surrounded the battleships. The Dutch fleet, though well-armed, surrendered to a few Frenchmen on horseback.—© Britannica Junior.

Keeping Fish Firm and White.—Boiled fish will keep firm and white if a little vinegar is added to the water in which it is cooked.

Separating Yolks From Whites.—When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs, break them over a funnel. The whites will pass through, leaving the yolks in the funnel.

Fudge Cake.—One-half cup fat, one and one-quarter cups sugar, two eggs or three yolks, two squares melted chocolate, two cups cake flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, one cup milk, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream fat, add sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, add chocolate and then alternately add milk and sifted dry ingredients. Add vanilla and bake in two layers, or a rectangular pan for squares, or as cup cakes, in moderate oven. Ice with creamy chocolate icing.

For Griddle Cakes.—The texture of griddle cakes will be much finer if the white of egg in mixing is separated from the yolk and added last to batter.

Mistake-O-Graph Answers
1. Lettering on sign reads, "Candy shop."

2. Sign would read backward too: outside. 3. Sign reads, "Calves liver given away."

4. Butcher is calling a duck a chicken. 5. Gravy is not sold by the pound. 6. Eggs in basket are peeping. 7. Man is carrying a leg of lamb with shoe on it.

8. Lady has one shoe off. 9. White cat has black tail. 10. Goldfish do not sell by the pound. 11. Branch is growing from chopping block. 12. Scales read forty pounds for small bird.

13. Clerk's arithmetic is wrong. 14. Hot dogs are labeled sea food. 15. Bones are too large to be chicken bones.

School Notes

High School

Work in preparation for the public speaking contests will begin Monday. The work this year, as for the past two or three years, consists of declamations, orations, and extempore speaking. The declamations will be given by the members of the English

II class, the orations by members of the English III Class, and the extempore speaking will be handled by three freshmen and three senior ladies.

Examinations are being given this week in all grades above the fourth. Report cards will be given to the pupils Wednesday, and they will contain the marks obtained in the examinations, as well as the final marks for the first semester.

This week closes the first half of the school year.

The combined regional and state meeting of public school business officials met last Friday and Saturday at Battle Creek, Michigan. Representatives were present from several states of this country and provinces of Canada. It is expected that this meeting of the organization will be held next year at Windsor, Canada. Among those on the program were Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, Michigan Superintendent of Public Instruction, Russell W. Hibbert, President National Association of Public School Business Officials, Dr. Ralph L. Lee, Department of Public Relations General Motors Corporation, and Dr. B. Henry, Chicago University.

One of the requirements for first semester work in Typing II Class was to make a booklet displaying in some manner the use of the typewriter. The projects varied from collections of favorite songs and poems to wise sayings of smoky Stover. Janet Keiser, Elsie Woyahn, Gerald Roeckle, and Richard Ziehl displayed originality in cover design. Dorothy Nelson's recipe book surpassed the others in arrangement. The collection of poems and songs made by Lucille DePotty, contained an unusual preface showing her reason for choosing the numbers of her compilation.

There are nine students enrolled in the night classes being held at the high school each Monday and Thursday evening for a period of twelve weeks. The seven students taking shorthand expect to cover the work ordinarily completed in one term in business college.

5th and 6th Grades
Evelyn Colby, Richard Clark, Willard Musolf, John Smith, and Hugo Wegner were neither absent nor tardy during the first semester.

We have a new book entitled "Sky-ward" by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd. This book was an award for selling T. B. seals.

The fifth grade language class memorized the poem "In School-Days" by John Greenleaf Whittier. Leland Britting's name has been added to the dental honor roll.

MEADOW ROAD

Mrs. A. Bell spent Saturday at Twinning with her daughter, Mrs. William Sam Bamburger and Chas. Deming were business callers at Tawas.

Paul Brown was a business caller at Melvor Monday.

Henry Watts called at the home of Paul Bouchard Tuesday.

Billie Collins left Wednesday for a CCC camp.

Mrs. Mary Scarlet spent Sunday evening with Mrs. Giroux.

The sheep and poultry raisers of our community are very pleased to know that Harold Wagner has shot two red foxes within a mile of the Meadow Road. This will do much to divert suspicion from innocent dogs which have always been accused when sheep were injured.

Melvin McCormick spent Sunday at the home of Earl Herriman.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Watts were Sunday visitors at Turner.

John Scarlet and Phil Giroux made a business trip to Whitmore Friday.

Austin Allen and John Scarlett spent Friday evening at the home of Walter Anschuetz.
