Drive Against Cancer

Without guns, without uniforms, without poisen gas, a way is being launched. It is a war of education against one of the greatest menaces of life: marcer. The first extional drive against cancer is indeed a war o save human life

The women of America are snonsoring this drive on Cancer, Cancer kills 140,000 persons each year. One-half of these could be saved if they sought medical treatment when the cancer danger signals appeared. The spread of sound, conservative facts, approved by competent medical au-thorities, on cancer, plus action by the individual are the weapons in the Voting against recommital were 191 Democrats, 2 Progressives, and 3 Farmer-Laborites. Not one Republican voted to save the bill.

The bill, among other things, would have authorized the President, by executive order, to transfer, regroup, co-ordinate, consolidate, or abolish any of the 135 bureaus, agencies, and divisions of government. Certain independent boards and commissions were ex-

Closing pleas, delivered in dramatic fashion by Speaker William B. Bankhead and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, failed to swing enough votes to save the measure. The two leaders placed the issue squarely on the President. A vote against the bill was a vote of lack of confidence in the occupant of the White House, they said.

In opposition to all this organized effort were Representative John J. O'Connor, New York Democrat, chairman of the rules committee, a group of other Democratic leaders and the solid Republican minority.

They argued that the nation was fearful of the bill's implications. Victory for C.I.O.

INLAND STEEL corporation was ordered by the national labor re-lations board to deal with the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, an affiliate of the C. I. O., and to sign a wage and hour contract if an agreement is reached. The company is expected to test the order in court, but if it complies the C. I. O. union will have won by labor board action what it lost in a long and bitterly fought strike last summer.

The company at that time said it would deal with the Lewis union but would not sign a contract. It contended this was not required by the Wagner act and said it considered the S. W. O. C. and the C. I. O. "irresponsible."

"An employer is not privileged to deny collective bargaining to the representatives of his employees merely because he views the representatives as irresponsible," board held. "And the alleged irresponsibility is likewise irrelevant in determining whether he must embody understandings in a written agreement."

New Wage-Hour Bill

R EP. MARY NORTON of New Jersey, chairman of the house labor committee, promised some time ago to bring in a new wage-hour bill that she thought would get congress through and meet with the approval of the President. A subcommittee of her group formulated a measure and she called the full committee to consider it. Prolonged debate in the committee

Rep. Norton was predicted, and the bill then would require approval by a hostile rules committee where a small group of southerners killed the previous bill.

This new bill is a compromise. It ignores the demands of the South for wage differentials to offset lower living costs; and it is far from meeting the desires of the two great organized labor groups.

Outstanding features of the meas-

Bigger Dreadnaughts

UNITED STATES and Great Britain advised each other that they would invoke the escalator clause of the London naval treaty and would build dreadnaughts larger than 35,000 tons. The British also notified Germany and Soviet Russia of their decision. Both nations based their action on Japan's refusal to disclose her naval construction plans.

France, third signatory to the treaty, Senator Clark announced she would continue to adhere to the 35,000-ton limitation "so long as no continental power departs from that standard."

Opponents of the administration's "big navy" program are rather nu-merous in congress, though probably in the minority. One of the most consistent of them is Senator Clark of Missouri. Commenting on the invoking of the escalator clause concerning battleships, he said: "It is just the preliminary announcement of a world-wide naval build-

Loyalist Spain Split

SPANISH insurgents are, at this writing near the accomplishwriting, near the accomplishment of Franco's great objective, the splitting of the territory held by the loyalists in the eastern part of the country. They captured the ancient city of Lerida, known as the key to Catalonia.

Further south the rebels were almost to Tortosa and their vanguard was actually within sight of the Mediterranean sea.

All along the Catalonian front the government troops fought desperately, but it seemed their struggle was hopeless and observers believed the war was nearing its

Speaking of Sports

Lively Scrap Looms Ahead In American

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY T WILL be the New York

Yankees all the way in the 1938 American league season, just as it was in 1936 and 1937. Wishful-thinking opponents of Joe McCarthy's power house boys may delude themselves into believing that the magic of the world's champions is waning. But only a series of major catastrophes can stop this team. It has too much raw power. The only question is, how many games will the Yankees be ahead of the runner-up when the season ends?

But after accounting for the Yanks, the 1938 season promises to produce a spirited brawl for positions in the also-ran class. The scramble for the other three first division berths will be furious. Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago will furnish the performers for this battle. Boston, Washington, St. Louis and Philadelphia will fight it out for spots in the second division.

Watch Indians

Oscar Vitt has a very good chance of finishing second this year with the Cleveland Indians. There are a number of "ifs" involved, but his team could easily provide the key to the 1938 battle.

If such pitchers as Bob Feller Johnny Allen, Mel Harder and Willis Hudlin get into an early winning streak, other teams will have a tough assignment trying to keep the Indians out of second place. If Rollie Hemsley is really serious about his reform, the team will have Grade A catching.

The Indians are not an imposing club at the plate, but with a pitching need the power of other teams.

A while back it looked as if the Chicago White Sox would be the team the Yanks had to beat, but troubles have piled up on Jimmy Dykes and at present fourth place looks like the best he could expect. When Shortstop Luke Appling broke his leg in a preseason game the hopes of the Sox went glimmering. The team will be without the services of this offensive and defensive sparkplug for at least the first three months of the season.

There is plenty of power in the Detroit Tiger's batting order. Pitching will, of course, be the problem. Early performances of Schoolboy Rowe would not justify the hope that he has regained his once sensational pitching form. But Mickey Cochrane has the club steamed up.

Cronin Has Hopes

If Joe Cronin gets the kind of pitching he expects, the Boston Red Sox are going to give some bad moments to the first division teams. Some spark might set this team afire. Cronin believes he will have one of the best pitching staffs in the league. If so, the Red Sox may pull a few surprise numbers out of

Neither the Washington Senators nor the St. Louis Browns are given very serious consideration by observers. The acquisition of Zeke Bonura will increase the already hefty batting power of the Senators. If Bucky Harris should come up with a pitcher or two, the club might go places. The St. Louis Browns are still in ly upward.

Mickey the experimental Cochrane stage. The trades Gabby Street made during the winter should strengthen a team which at best has only a fair punch. Connie Mack's Athletics may have their moments this season before they find the level of the cellar. The grand old man of baseball has some likely looking recruits on hand,

Hail vs. Farewell

THE pathetic collapse of Paul Dean's comeback effort is balanced by the optimistic tidings that Dizzy Dean has apparently regained his pitching wizardry. The St. Louis Cardinals have been worried about Dizzy's arm. He never recovered any real form after his performance in last year's All-Star formance in last year's All-Star game. So his showing this spring was a barometer of the team's pennant hopes. Now the boys say confidently, "The big fellow looks

The wise ones in the Cardinal management didn't permit themselves to be overoptimistic about Paul, for they reasoned that few arms that were as bad as his ever really recover. But Daffy had high hopes of making a triumphant return to stardom.

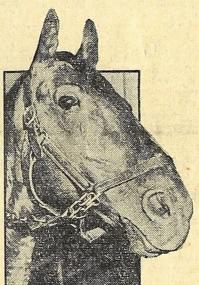

He went frantically from one specialist to another. Some days his arm would feel better, but the moment he tried to warm up, the old pain would afflict him. His tryout during the spring training season brought only gloom, culminating in the announcement by Branch Rickey that Paul would be waived down to one of the Cards' minor league farms.

With Paul Dean back in shape the Cardinals would have been a menace to the Giants and Cubs and would have to be considered a leading factor in the National league pennant race. Now Dizzy Dean and Lonnie Warneke will have to bear the principal pitching burden.

Blood Will Tell

HAT grand old master of the turf, Man O' War, would have a horse laugh if he could understand that the English stud book refuses to list him as a sire, particularly in view of the fact that his son Battleship beat the best nags the British isles could produce in the recent Grand National steeplechase.

There was a patriotic coincidence in Battleship's victory. The horse hails from the Montpelier, Va., estate of Mrs. Marian du Pont Scott. An American horse that came from the home of James Madison in the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary year of the ratification of the Constitution of the United States couldn't help but whip the British. Mrs. Scott's private track on which Battleship was trained, lies between the front lawn and garden which Madison himself planted and the little country graveyard where the father of the Constitution and the immortal Dolly sleep.

Incidentally, Battleship's famous daddy, Man O'War, celebrated his twenty-first birthday recently. Another of his sons, War Admiral, won an impressive victory at Hialeah, lately.

campaigns for Democratic nominations to the senate and house of rep-Dynamite resentatives a r e apparently going to be loaded with more than the usual amount of political dynamite. There are three or four reasons for this and, as viewed from the capital, any of them is worth watching for the color of the results.

First, I should say these Democratic campaigns are due to show just about how far President Roosevelt can go in dictating party nominations and to develop reprisals against those Democrats who prefer democracy to the New Deal. This phase of the political picture, of course, will have a bearing on the 1940 Democratic National convention. It may be the beginning, therefore, of a battle in which the Democrats will strive to recapture their party machinery from the Roosevelt-New Deal wing of the party.

Second, the campaign may possibly disclose to what extent there can be a coalition among those opposed to the New Deal. The coalition idea has been gaining some followers under the leadership of Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, but it must be said in truth that it has a long way to go. Southern Democrats never will vote for a Republican label and there are many sections of the north where the Democratic label is just as poisonous to the Republican voters.

Third, the bitterness that is bound to show up in some of the fights for the Democratic nomination should bring forth Republican spirit, if there be any Republican spirit, and thus it seems possible that factional strife among the Democrats might result in some sort of life being instilled into the opposition party. Carrying that thought a bit further, one might conjecture that this paradox of politics will reveal whether the Republicans have honest-togoodness leaders anywhere among

Primaries for the nomination of candidates for the house of repre-sentatives will be held in all states during the spring and summer, excepting only Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware and New Mexico. In those four states, the nominations are made in state conventions. Senatorial nominations will be made in primaries excepting the four states named above and in New York and Indiana. New York and Indiana will have state conventions, and in Indiana, particularly, I am informed that a rousing battle is in sight because of President Roosevelt's determination to get rid of Senator Van Nuys, who has sidled away from the New Deal and has dent's plan to add six new judges to the Supreme court and it has grown in heat constantly since. So, from now on we may expect to see more and more of the boys stand up and be counted, either as out-and-out New Dealers or as outand-out Democrats who stand with the New Deal only when they believe the New Deal policy to be sound. It has been interesting to note the fairness with which some if not all the Democrats treat the Man O' War has sired a lot of New Deal antagonism. I do not know whether it is bred of a fear them—War Admiral and Clyde Van that Mr. Roosevelt still has a tremendous personal following or whether the New Deal philosophy and the Democratic philosophy coincide at many places. Suffice it to say that in the various speeches and announcements that have been forthcoming, new candidates for the Democratic nomination for house or senate have uniformly stuck to the promise that when Mr. Roosevelt is right, they will support him; when they think him wrong, they are prepared to oppose him.

> One of the latest to announce a candidacy has been Rep. Worth Clark of Idaho. He is seeking the

As an

Illustration nomination from the Idaho Democrats for the senate seat now held by Sen. J. P. Pope. Those two men serve as an excellent illustration of the point I have tried to make. You can distinguish between them as a Democrat and a New Dealer, respectively. Senator Pope has backed up the President on everything and no questions asked; Mr. Clark takes the position and frequently has said so with a boldness and an independence worthy of Sen. Bill Borah of the same state, that he is "100 per cent for President Roosevelt when I believe the President's policies to be sound. When they are not sound, in my opinion, I shall oppose them just as vigorously as I would oppose mossbacked reactionary plans by Republicans.'

Mr. Clark is relegating to himself a considerable amount of authority -the statement that when he thinks the President's plans are sour, he will oppose them. I take an entirely contrary view. The people of a state send a man to the house

Washington.—The coming primary | of representatives or the senate to serve as their spokesman, their leader. They don't want somebody to follow somebody else, or at least they should not want that type of man. If Mr. Clark feels that he has a better understanding of what is needed in the state from which he comes than does the President of the United States, I think he is only exercising his capacity and his right of leadership. Further, it is a test in the primary. The people are going to decide it and that is what commends it to me.

Using the Clark-Pope contest as further illustration, I think it ought to be said Mr. Clark must have discovered from keeping his ear to the Idaho political ground how the people of that state have been disturbed by some of the radical, professorial policies that have been "sold" to Mr. Roosevelt by his coterie of advisers. His record seems to indicate that such is the case. On the other hand, Senator Pope has never wavered. He has found out first what Mr. Roosevelt wanted and has stayed with that through thick and thin. It may be that a thick-and-thin stand is good politics; it may be that voters in many states prefer that. But the thought I am seeking to advance is the necessity for members of the house and senate to think sometimes of the welfare of their constituencies, the good of the country as a whole.

In the campaigns of 1934 and 1936, the bulk of the Democratic members of the house and senate went out and campaigned wholeheartedly for Roosevelt policies. There were fewer who sounded the tocsin in that way in 1936 than did in 1934. Which is to say, that some members found weaknesses in policies which they had supported and they admitted they were wrong. Well, the result has been fewer nit wit-

In addition to his other activities, and the President of the United States is probably President as busy as any Causes Furor man in the world, President Roosevelt is now in competition with the hundreds of men and women who make their living by writing. I refer, of course, to the publication in newspapers and magazines of his state papers and the Gerial story publication of his notes and comments and the questions asked in his regular semiweekly meetings with the newspaper correspondents.

The President's action in selling this material has created quite a furor. It has brought home to many writers a fact that has agitated me in a serious way. For the first time, many writers realized what has been happening to pritaken his position as a Democrat. vate business where the federal or The fight on Senator Van Nuys state governments, especially the started when he fought the Presi- former, have entered into fields of commercial endeavor that heretofore had been reserved for private effort. Of course, the President is not "the government" as one might say in the case of running electric light plants or building houses or serving as a banker, but the material he is syndicating and for which he receives money is of the same fabric. It is so because it represents a record of an official in office. I find difficulty, therefore, in distinguishing between the two types and I am rather glad that the lesson is so pointed.

I have no idea how many thousands of dollars the sale of press conference notes will yield. My objection to their sale rests on another reason than the monetary return. That is, another reason in addition to the belief I hold that government should not enter into competition with private individuals. Let me state my objection by a review. It has always been required of the newspaper correspondents that the President could say anything he desired in the pressconferences and it must be held in confidence and never printed unless the President gave permission for its use. Included in the records now being published, however, are many items never before published. They were held in confidence by the correspondents heretofore.

Another thing: a shorthand writer always sits at Mr. Roosevelt's left during the press conferences. He takes every question and every answer. The record is complete. But the correspondents always have been denied the privilege of reexamining those shorthand notes or, rather, the transcribed records. They were held as the President's personal property. Nevertheless, the syndicated newspaper stories and the magazine articles and the volumes of state papers now in process of publication use those very records in a most complete form. The President has added his comments to many of them. It makes a most interesting recordbut the three or four hundred Washington correspondents who make their living as professional writers have had no chance to increase their own emoluments or to make their own writings more important by writing the material which is now being disclosed for the first time.

There was something like consternation among British conservatives early in 1937, when Prime Minister Chamberlain named the incidentally Jewish Mr. Hore-Belisha for the war post. There was no hint of anti-Semitism in their attitude, but just then certain optimists among them were trying to tool Britain into the German orbit, and there were alarmed predictions that Hitler would be enraged and seek quick vengeance.

That didn't come off, and the new war secretary started a whirlwind army clean-up and all-around reconditioning campaign, to the satisfaction of all hands. Seventy-nine-year-old Sir Ian Hamilton, who had been in command at the Dardanelles, said, "Thank God we are under a proper soldier and will not be shot sitting down."

Their Friends May Weep But Courageous Cripples Overcome Handicaps and Carve Useful Careers in World of Business

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Next time you're down on your luck and your jaw sags like an overloaded clothesline, try swinging your legs and arms, or blinking your eyes. And be thankful you have arms, legs and eyes.

A lot of people haven't.

But the disasters that robbed them of these faculties have usually inspired them to make the best of it. More often than not they've achieved outstanding success.

Nineteen - year - old Jessie Simpson is an example. A few months back she was acclaimed Miss New Jersey, a personable young lady whose beauty and talent won admiration everywhere. Then one day she ran for a train, missed, and woke up in a hospital a few days later to find both her legs gone.

Gone, too, were tennis, golf, dancing and other sports, but Jessie Simpson didn't weep about it like her friends. Disaster brought her a new life, and today she's receptionist at the New York city telephone office. Moreover, she's building a career as a commercial photographer's model, for Jessie's hands are remarkaby beautiful.

Legless Swimmer.

Speaking of legless people, there's also the case of Charles (Zimmy) Zibelman of New York who lost his legs years ago in a Chicago trolley accident. Since then he has leverly, and romped in.

He was a dispatch carrier in the ocean"—in the swimming pool of the Queen Mary. His most not-able achievement is a 144-hour, 145mile swim down the Hudson river from Albany to New York last autumn. Last winter he planned a similar excursion from Miami to Havana, sharks permitting.

In Prove, Utah, a high school student named Wilkins Nuttall is a prize-winnnig lightweight wrestler even though he has but one leg! Nuttall used to stand on the sidelines until he said to himself one day, "What has any other wrestler got that I haven't got?" and proceeded to give more experienced matmen a run for their money. Of course he can't apply a "scissors" hold, but it is equally impossible for an opponent to apply the "split"

Success on "Stilts."

In the village of Bellflower, Calif., ives Ralph Veady, a leading business man and bicycle rider who nevertheless has no legs. Seven years ago Ralph was working his way through Whittier college by driving a tractor. One day the tractor overturned and he regained consciousness to find his legs gone. To-lay, seven years later, Veady con-ducts his jewelry business, drives his car and even dances, with the aid of artificial legs. A star performer in many amateur races, Veady is also an expert swimmer and a clever skater with or without his legs.

Only a few miles from Bellflower, In Huntington Park, lives Miss Clover Kerr, who lost both legs and one arm in a traffic accident last year. Like Jessie Simpson, she refused to be pitied, outlining a new career before she left her hospital bed. Today she has found the way to happiness and usefulness through service.

Miss Kerr is artist, counselor, philosopher and fairy godmother to hundreds of crippled youngsters in the Far West through her daily ler both had to learn the hard way, broadcast over station KFWB in Los Angeles. She writes her own program and answers countless letters which roll in every day. And early this year she complained because 1938 wouldn't have enough days, weeks and months to permit accomplishment of all she had planned! Blind, But Not to Color!

Helen Keller is not America's only accomplished blind person. Her remarkable career is almost equalled by that of Miss Nettie Timonds, sixty-three-year-old farm manager of Bladensburg, Iowa. When she was three years old Miss Timonds was stricken with diphtheria and was left unable to talk. Two years later speech returned, but then came deafness. Nor was this the end of her bad luck, for in 1883 Miss Timonds fell on her head and went blind . . . on Thanksgiving day.

Undaunted, she has become a successful farmer, aided by her trusty hired man, Perry Wilson. He will tell you that Miss Timonds is a crank about her peonies; she insists that the different varieties and colors be grouped and blended just so. And old rose is her favorite color, used freely to decorate the home which she designed personal-

In Evanston, Ill., five-year-old Joan Higgins cannot see or hear but is learning with the aid of a "phonotactor," devised by Dr. Robert H. Gault of Northwestern university. Whereas Helen Keller learned to "hear" by placing her fingers on the speaker's lips, Joan Higgins' phonotactor translates voices into vibrations. She places her fingers on sensitive reeds which vibrate from 64 to 8,000 times a second as the instructor speaks into a telephone

Few joys can compare to that of the blind person who regains his sight through surgery. In Asbury Park, N. J., Mrs. Ella Reynolds was taken home from the hospital to see the three children whose faces she had often caressed, but whom she had never seen. After 15 years of total blindness she was again made happy by surgeons who removed cataracts from her

In El Paso, Texas, twelve-year-old Julian Galindo could only exclaim, "It's wonderful!—beautiful!" when he saw the world for the first time in his life. And a grandmother in Denver, whose sight was restored after 20 years, could see her three grandchildren after years of wondering what they looked like.

Infantile paralysis, one of mankind's most feared assailants, has left in its wake many a crippled victim but most of them have found new hope in the joy of living. The most publicized case is that of Frederick Snite, Jr., whose millionaire father willingly spends $2,000 a day to keep his son alive in the "iron lung" which may be his home for the next 10 years. Stricken in China during a round-the-world cruise, young Snite has lived in the lung almost two years but has never lost courage. He jokes with his nurses and his parents, keeps up an interest in world news and plays chess by calling his moves.

From Cripple to Athlete.

It's an accomplishment for a cripple to regain average health and become normally active, but it's amazing when they become outstanding athletes! Glenn Cunning-ham, the world's "fastest human," was trapped in a fire when he was eight years old. What had once been a pair of legs were grim, blackened fragments. Few people thought he would ever walk again but Cunning-ham fooled them. Today if you see him running around the track a full hour before his race starts, don't think Cunningham is "strut-ting" for the public. He has to ex-ercise those rebuilt legs, to work up circulation by sustained effort. Bobby Jones, the world's greatest golfer, was so skinny as a youngster that a good sneeze would have toppled him in the dust. Modern society is taking a much more humane attitude toward the cripple than did our forefathers. Scientists and the public alike are realizing that physically handicapped people can become useful citizens if given help and encouragement. Pioneers like Helen Keller have opened new fields of activity for the blind. They have been taught useful trades and have gained inde-pendence by using "seeing eye" dogs, highly intelligent animals who guide their masters through every traffic hazard without danger.

But it takes grit to face the world when the lights go out and you've no legs to stand on. Ask Nettie Timonds or Jessie Simpson! @ Western Newspaper Union

Lesson for April 17 THE VICTORIOUS SERVANT (Easter)

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:22-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.—

Acts 2:32.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter's First Sermon.
Peter's Greatest Sermon. JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter's First Sermon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter's Greatest Sermon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Winning with the Victorious Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
The Risen Christ Our Hope of Victory.

"Up from the grave He arose
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes;
He arose a Victor from the dark domain,
And He lives forever with His saints to reign;

He arose! He arose!
Hallelujah! Christ arose!"
Let the glad chorus swell the good tidings that the One who humbled Himself to become the servant of all is the "Victorious Servant"-yes, the Victorious Lord!

Easter is the great holiday-a real holy day of the Christian church. We rejoice in the incarnation, for only as the Son of God identified Himself with the human race could He bear our sins on Calvary's tree. We keep the cross before us, for only as He died did He make atonement for our sin, but above all we observe the ressurection, for had He not risen for our justification we would indeed have been without any hope. Ours is a resurrection faith: let us live it in resurrection power.

Life is so serious in its responsibilities and burdens, so often disappointing in its trials and sorrows. that we need to sound the note of victory. But it must be real victory and it must be assured at the crucial point where all the hopes of man find defeat-at death. Only the Christian has the assurance of victory there, but, thank God, he does really have it in our Lord Jesus Christ.

Turning aside from our studies in the Gospel of Mark for today we consider together the sermon of Peter on the day of Pentecost. He declares Jesus to be:

I. Approved by Mighty Works

Theories may have validity only to the man who accepts the authority of the one who proclaims them, but facts are stubborn things, the reality of which no man can deny. There are those who speak about the Lord Jesus as though we asked them to accept Him on the basis of our claims for Him as the Son of God. They forget the facts of history-from the hundreds of years before His incarnation when the prophets spoke of His coming, down through the account of His earthly life, death, and resurrection to which we may well add the inescapable argument of Christianity as it stands in the world today-all speak of Him as the Son of God.

II. Delivered Up to Die (v. 23). The cross was not an accident. Jesus did not die as a martyr to a noble but hopeless cause. He came into the world "to give his life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28). He said, "I lay down my life No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10:17, 18). But the fact that the cross was in the eternal plan of God in no way justifies those who slew Him. Though they were fulfilling the divine purpose, they were acting as free moral agents fully responsible for their wicked deeds.

III. Raised Up by God (vv. 24-32). "It was not possible that he should be holden" of death (v. 24)—what a beautifully final and positive statement. It was an impossibility that Christ should remain in the grave, and it is the absolute assurance of Scripture that we who "be dead with him shall also live with him" (II Tim. 2:11). To the believer, the one who is in Christ, the resurrection of the Saviour is the guarantee that we shall be raised. Christ is the first-fruits of them that sleep in the grave. (I Cor. 15:20.)

Peter in his sermon turns to the Scriptures to prove the resurrection referring to the prophet Joel as well as to the Psalms of David. It would be well for us to do likewise on this Easter Sunday of 1938, for we have infinitely richer resources, for in our hands is the New Testament with the story of the resurrection and all the references of the epistles to this glorious truth.

IV. Ascended and Exalted (v. 33). "Look, ye saints! The sight is glorious:
See the Man of Sorrows now;
From the fight returned victorious,
Every knee to Him shall bow:
Crown Him! Crown Him!
Crowns become the Victor's brow."
"He humbled himself . . Wherestitches from a silk patchwork new embroidery stitch combinaquilt. She writes, "I inherited this tions is just about the most exquilt from a great aunt and it is citing of all the new revivals of the final touch of luxury in my guest room. It never occurred to NOTE: Mrs. Spears me that I could make one like it on SEWING-Gifts and Embroiduntil I saw your article about patchwork stitches in the paper. broidery stitches are illustrated; I am following your advice about using an old wool blanket as a broidery designing; fabric repairfoundation-only I am using the ing; novelty gifts and dress acbest parts of several worn blan- cessories. Forty-eight pages of kets. I plan to join the blanket sections with whipped seams and to readers who will send name then arrange my final patches along the joinings."

Depend upon a modern homemaker to figure out efficiency methods! And here are the stitches she sends. The manyhued silk, satin, and velvet pieces are first pinned or basted to the foundation with lapped edges turned as shown here. If you would like to know how to make more of the fascinating stitches used to sew the pieces in place, you will find them in the new book offered herewith. Be among the first of your friends to make one of these gay quilts. It is the smart thing to use one anywhere that you would use an afghan.

One After Another

"Oh, what a time we had! I just don't know how I ever came through! First I got an angina pectoris, and then pneumonia, followed by arterio sclerosis and phthisis, after which they gave me hypodermics. Then I had barely recovered from these when I got tuberculosis, with appendicitis, followed by tonsillotomy. Yes, indeed, it was the hardest spelling test I've ever had."-Pathfinder

IT is generally conceded that America leads the world in the quality and extent of telephone service.

Important factors in this supremacy are the efforts of the Bell Telephone Laboratories "to find a better thing or a better way," and the experience and skill of the Western Electric Company, the manufacturing department of the Bell System.

Because of our association in the Bell System, every improvement so produced is made available promptly for us in Michigan . . a continuing assurance of high-quality telephone service at reasonable cost. That is why Michigan's telephone service is as fine as any telephone service in the world.

And that is why your telephone . . although it can connect you with any of 35,000,000 other telephones all over the civilized globe . . retains such simplicity that even a child finds it easy to use.

Do you want to SAVE MONEY?

The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horsepower engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money.

300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why?

Because it is priced low-includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in

SYNOPSIS

James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade his beautiful foster-daughter Leonora from marrying Don Mason, young "rolling stone," whom he likes but of whom he disapproves according to his conventional business-man standards. He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the deathbed of her mother, abandoned by her Italian baritone lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story, of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the return trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's showdown. When Nora suggests the possibility of running away with Don, Lambert threatens disinheritance. Don agrees to the job. James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade agrees to the job.

CHAPTER II—Continued

By the end of the first month Don's nerves were taut and he had lost his appetite. At the end of three he had lost ten pounds. Later still, when a strained expression gathered about his eyes, Nora began to worry, though, scorning himself for this reaction to "a steady job," Don had not complained. Then came an evening when he telephoned that he was too tired to come out, and heard her quick-drawn breath of disappointment.

"But, Don, it's the night of the Careys' dance and I'm all dressed!"

"It is!" Dismayed surprise showed in his tired voice. "My dear, I forgot completely; but if you don't mind being a bit late I'll—"

She broke in then with sudden understanding: "Of course we won't go if you're used up, Don."

"But you wanted to go, Nora!"
He spoke in genuine distress. "You've been looking forward to it -a lot. See here, would you go without me? Tag along with Corinne and Ned? Honestly, darling, I'm all in. Too tired to eat."

Said Nora, very quietly: "Are you keeping something back, Don? Are

A reassuring laugh came over the

"Of course not! But I haven't been sleeping well for weeks, if you want the truth; and last night was rather the worst on record. I didn't close my eyes till daylight. I'll be O. K. tomorrow; but-don't think me a piker, will you?"

"Crazy!" "And you'll go to the dance with Ned? Promise?"

She laughed and told him to sleep the clock around; but she didn't go to the dance.

Next evening the girl said out of a silence: "Don-it's appalling." Watching her lover closely she had observed, with something of a shock how those months of confine ment had changed his whole appearance. It had been a gradual change, of course, and seeing him daily Nora had not realized the growing hollows below his cheek bones, or that the tan born of years in the open was quite gone, leaving his face with an unnatural pallor. Even his sea-blue eyes that made her think of sun-lit, dancing water, were more opaque, more lifeless; and his feet which always seemed to

"What's appalling, beloved?" "You," said Nora. "I-" (her voice trembled) "I'm not worth the price, Don." He kissed her, not pretending to misunderstand.

"I'm the best judge of that, dear Play to me, won't you-something that'll make me believe there are things in the world like brooks, and birds, and wind on the prairie? I'm stifled.'

It was the first admission of the sort that he'd allowed himself to

Nora played for an hour, lilting Gypsy strains at first that led Don's troubled spirit far away to the "green pastures and still waters" for which it hungered.

The music grew quieter . . . Old things . . . things one remembered . . . Rubinstein . . . Mendelssohn . . Ah! Beethoven! The Moonlight Sonata, played as only Nora played it . . . So quiet; so sure; so firm and yet so tranquil . . .

When the last note of that matchless lullaby had died away, Don was asleep, his head pillowed on one arm, his face more peaceful than it had been for many weeks.

CHAPTER III

Nora grew noticeably thoughtful after that evening. Don had slept for a long time while she sat beside him gazing into the fire, as if its slowly fading glow might light it's like whipping a tired horse to her way. It was all so futile-this whole experiment, she mused. The time-worn simile of the round peg in the square hole came back to her. That was Don, poor boy! She knew full well that the year's sentence James Lambert had imposed on him would make no difference in their future; yet unless he stuck it | you, my dear?"

out the older man would look upon him as a failure—a ne'er-do-well.

What was her duty? the girl pondered. It was useless to expect a product of the metropolis like her father, to understand or even make allowances. His whole world was the well-ordered world of the successful business man. His horizon was bounded by city streets. What more should one ask of life than a steady job and a salary which supported in comfort those one loved? was his sole argument. He saw no other. He could not comprehend what such an existence meant to Don, nor dimly vision that call of the Gypsy trail which tugged at the young man's heart, leading him onward, making of life a glorious

So the girl grew more thoughtful, more quiet in the days that followed. Don said: "You've lost your pep, darling. What's happened?" and Nora laughed at him. But when her father questioned her one evening, a night when Don, pleading a dull head, had gone home early, she child?"

"Life," said Nora.

James smiled. "What's wrong with life, dear?"
"What's right?" countered the girl, shrugging.

Her father's eyes grew puzzled as ne regarded her. "Have you and Don been quarreling?" he asked. Nora laughed softly.

"It would be hard work to pick a fight with Don," she answered. "No, we haven't quarreled; but-I'm worried about him, Dad."

"There's nothing to worry about, my dear. Things are not going badly. I'll make a business man of Don Mason yet, Nora, if you'll give me time."

"You'll make a corpse of him more likely," the girl retorted with so much bitterness in her voice that James raised his head, looking at her in blank amazement.

"What do you mean?" "I mean that all his nerves are aw-on edge, Dad."

"Nerves!" The contempt in her ather's exclamation cut Leonora to the quick.

James said, after a tense silence: 'See here, Nora, it's absurd to think that a year in a well ventilated, modern office can cause a breakdown such as you hint at. That young man is, was anyway, the picture of health. If there's anything bothering him now it must be, as you say, a case of nerves, which seems, to my mind, almost nonsensical. If he'ls make an attempt to pull himself together-get the best of the trouble instead of dwelling on it-"

"Dwelling on it!" broke in Nora always understandmentioned it! But I'm not blind, Dad, and the signs are there for anyone to read. I think you ought to call 'time up,' don't you?" "Time up?"

"I mean it, Father. This simply can't go on. Don's lived in the open since he was eighteen. Office life stifles him; and Ned . .

She paused, while her father observed gravely: "We'll leave Ned touch earth lightly, dragged now out of this discussion, if you don't as he crossed the room to sit be-"How can we?" the girl demanded with intrinsic honesty. "Ned's half the trouble. He makes Don frantic, pouncing on him unexpectedly-watching everything he does -snooping-'

"That's both insulting and unjust," James interrupted angrily. 'Ned means to be helpful. If his methods are upsetting to this young man it's not your brother's fault, Nora, but his own. And considering that-that-"

"That Ned would welcome an excuse to throw Don out the door?" finished Leonora. Then, as her father snorted, she went on: "Now don't explode, Dad. It gets us nowhere, besides being bad for you. Perhaps I have no right to ask a favor anyway, but I'm asking one now: If you've any love at all for me, darling, and I know you have, I ask you to show it by putting an end to this experiment.

But James was obdurate. He was also angry.

like a quitter." Two red spots flamed like twin banners on Nora's cheeks. "That's not just, Father. Don's never suggested giving up. But there's something in him that you and Ned can't understand, I suppose. He's not impatient, Dad. I think he scorns himself a little for chafing at things which other men accept so naturally. And that's bad for him too. Don't you see, Father, keep a man of Don's sort tied to a ledger. It stifles him. And I warn you now that rather than see his spirit-the thing I love about him, crushed and broken unnecessarily, I'll go away with him."

The man's lips tightened. "And forfeit all I mean to do for

"How should you know, who've never been without it?" he retorted. "Ned's right. I've spoiled you, I suppose; and now I must pay the penalty." Then, because he was hurt and angry James said something he regretted later. "Well, take your choice; but if the fellow quits, and you quit with him, I'm through with you, Nora. And when the cupboard is bare-when the lack of silk stockings and silver slippers becomes hateful and you're tired of your bargain, don't come to me for help. Remember that."

Had he struck the girl, he could not have hurt her more.

Never before had her father felt such anger at Leonora. That she should even contemplate the idea of eloping with Don Mason, after what he considered his forbearance in giving the young man a place in his own office, was utterly beyond

"I don't wonder your father hates to give you up."

James Lambert's unimaginative comprehension. Since that longgone, tragic day when the girl discovered their real relationship, her foster-father had felt that she was grateful for everything he had tried to be to her. Now he wondered; and, wondering, grew bitter. Yet in a pathetic, lonely way James could not bear to be at odds with Leonora, his wife's last gift to him. Tossing restlessly on his bed that night, he longed to go to this dearly loved daughter whom he could not with indignation. "Why he's never peace and ask her to forget his harshness; but because of a stubborn streak deep in his nature, the man could not do it; and this illumined moment which would have brought them infinitely closer, passed and was gone. It was, however, no small measure of comfort that the girl's morning greeting was unchanged. If Nora's night had been as restless as her father's, nothing revealed the fact. She kissed him as usual; poured his coffee and chatted am ably of nothing in particular. But that evening James, who had been thinking, invaded the room where Leonora was playing to her lover, and sat for a half hour watching the young man closely.

Nora was right, he admitted. The fellow had changed deplorably. Queer that he hadn't observed it sooner. Don looked what James called "peaked." And he was very

"Money's not everything, Fa- | pale; not paler than Ned, perhaps, but shockingly paler than he had been six months ago.

Still, was there any reason for alarm? James thought not. Don's pallor was merely the result of an indoor existence. Absurd for Nora to worry about his health. In another month or so he would become acclimated-get used to it-stop champing at the bit as he did now. And there was no doubt that Don Mason needed discipline. He'd been his own master since he was eighteen. It was high time he learned to meet responsibilities, or how was he to take care of a girl like Leonora? And they were both young enough. It wouldn't hurt them to wait a little longer. He'd give them a trip abroad as a wedding gift if Don would agree to settle down after they got back.

James smiled to himself, pleased at this new idea. It should be a trip de luxe, by George! A trip such as that young vagabond had never dreamed of. Trust Nora for that! She appreciated the luxuries of travel. Only a few months to wait; and unless Don proved himself a quitter . . . He arose, roused by the cessation of Nora's music. She said: "Want something, Daddy?"

"No. I've left my book 'round somewhere; but it's not here." Don, too, had risen. He said, smiling: "Won't you stay for a while, sir? I haven't the exclusive right to Nora's evenings."

"Perhaps not," responded James, "but I haven't entirely forgotten my own youth! Besides, I want to turn in early. Lost sleep last night, and the music has made me drowsy. Good-night, daughter." He kissed her; nodded pleasantly to Don, and went upstairs. "I don't wonder your father hates to give you up," said Don. "If ever I have a daughter as sweet as you, Nora, I'll be forced to stifle murderous intentions toward any fellow who makes love to her."

"And yet," she answered, "Dad hurt me last night, frightfully." "How, dear?"

She told him, not all, but part of that momentous conversation. "It was cruel, Don. I-I almost left him. I came near going straight to you and begging you to run away with me." "I'm not the sort that runs, Nora," he said.

She considered that. "Not even if I asked you to, my Don shook his head.

"Never-unless things get more desperate than they are now." "But you're nearing the end of your rope, Don," she protested. "What good will it do us to stick it

The young man laughed, confessing: "I'm a lot more likely to lose my temper! Sometimes-"

He stopped abruptly, and Nora asked: "Has Ned been bothering?" "Oh, let's forget it!" Don said in an attempt to end the discussion. "I'm going home, Nora. I seem to sleep better when I turn in early. I don't see how you put up with mea girl like you. I never show you any sort of a good time. I even forget when I promise to take you to a dance! I-honestly, dear, I've wondered lately . . . "What have you wondered?" she questioned as he looked away. "I've wondered if it might not be better for us to-to part, Nora."

The girl caught her breath, then said, her voice unsteady: "Better for you, or-or me, Don?" Sensing her hurt he took her into his arms with tenderness.

More Combinations

CROP combination is useful with vegetables such as tomatoes, melons or corn, as well as with "small garden" crops like radishes, lettuce and carrots which require comparatively less space.

The following combinations are suggested by Harold Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Institute:

Sow dwarf peas early in rows four to six feet apart; plant radish between rows of peas, and plant one row of cucumbers between every two rows of peas.

Set cauliflower early in rows two feet apart; one foot on each side of each cauliflower row plant spinach; sow radishes between spinach rows. When radishes are used set tomato plants in the space thus vacated. Peppers or egg plant may be substituted for tomatoes.

Sow early turnips in rows three to four feet apart; later plant a row of corn between the turnip

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

> "The Doctor and the Killer" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

You know, boys and girls, a doctor's life is full of adventure. It's full of inconveniences too. They never know at what hour of the day or night the telephone might ring and send them rushing along on a sick call.

A doctor crashes the Adventurers' club today with the story of his most nerve wracking experience. Dr. John A. Mangieri of Brooklyn, N. Y., is his name.

Speaking about doctors, though, I want to tell you first a thing I saw in a theater one evening. The play was a melodrama. The packed house was silent at a particularly thrilling moment when suddenly a voice rang out from the audience.

"Is there a doctor in the house?"

Everybody looked around at the interruption. The actors stopped in the middle of their lines. A little man with a serious face was standing in the aisle. Then another man with a beard got up next to me. He called toward the man in the aisle. "Yes," he said, "I'm a doctor."

The little man looked the doctor over while we all watched with bated breath. Then he waved his hand:

"Hello, Doc!" he said. And sat down!

That's all there was to it. But there ought to be a law. Don't you Called Out at Two in the Morning.

Our Doc. Mangieri's call wasn't any joke. Doc had gone to bed, dog-tired after a busy day at the hospital when that blooming phone of his tore him out of the drowsy arms of Morpheus. Doc rubbed his sleepy eyes and glanced at the clock. Two o'-clock in the morning! Swell time for anybody to get sick, he thought, and answered the insistent ring. But it wasn't the phone. It was the doorbell. Worse luck! Probably an emergency accition section of Brooklyn. A stranger stood at the door. The stranger looked pretty tough and he seemed nervous.

"A pal of mine is sick," he said, and begged the doctor to come at once and visit him. Doc says he admits he didn't like the looks of the man, but a doctor's duty comes first, so he climbed into his clothes and

A taxi stood at the door and the stranger insisted that Doc ride with him. Doc noticed another shady looking gent sitting in the back seat of the cab, so he decided he'd take his own car and play safe.
"I'll follow you," Doc said and climbed into his coupe.

Evil Looking House in a Bad Street.

The cab shot away and turned so many streets as Doc followed that the good doctor didn't know where he was. Finally the cab stopped in an evil looking street and Doc drew up at the curb.

The house they had come to was even more evil looking. It was a forbidding looking frame house without any lights showing. As the cab drove away Doc was escorted up the rickety steps by

The second man, Doc says, was even tougher looking than the first. They opened the sagging door with a latch key and went inside. A dim gas light burned low in the hall.

Without a word one of the men led the way up the stairs while the other dropped in behind Doc. Doc says he just knew something was wrong and wondered if they were going to attack him. They turned into a half dark bedroom. On the bed fully dressed was a third hard boiled looking gent.

Ordered to Treat a Wounded Man.

And then Doc understood. The man on the bed had been shot. His hands as he gripped his stomach were red with blood. Doc was in a bad spot. There is a law that forbids doctors to treat bullet wounds without immediately reporting them to the police. The law is very strict. A doctor in the Dillinger case is in jail now for treating the wounded gunman.

Doc hesitated, but as he glanced around at the glowering faces he realized he'd have to do something OR ELSE! One of the men nudged him roughly.

"Get busy, Doc," he growled.

Doc did some quick thinking. The men he knew now were gang-sters. If he didn't treat their pal they might give him the same dose of lead. If he did, the police would have to be notified and the gangsters would come back at him for that. He stalled and told them he had left his stethoscope in the car. They let him go and Doc went out.

In the street he got a break. A policeman was passing. Doc didn't want to leave a wounded man die without medical attention, so he decided to go back. But he told the policeman that if he wasn't out in 20 minutes to come after him. Then Doc as he entered left the latch off the door.

Police Came at the Right Moment.

His patient, Doc found, had been shot in the stomach. His friends dropped their pretense and told him bluntly to extract the bullet and be fast about it. Doc told the truth that the operation was difficult without an X-ray. He suggested a hospital. The patience of the gunmen was now exhausted. Doc expected any minute to have his head bashed in. One of the thugs raised a clenched fist.

"Can that hospital stuff," he growled, "or we'll send you there." And just at that moment, like in a play, the policeman came with radio car reinforcements and took the gang off Doc's neck.

And the next day Doc read in the papers that his patient and his pals were held in jail for wholesale murder!

That was years ago, before the G-men made it safe for doctorsand Doc hasn't failed to treat a patient since.

Spring Brides in Lace, Moire or Satin

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

lenge greater to brides-to-be to look their most entrancing than in the joyous, rapturous spring of the year when all nature seems to conspire to stage a most glamorous setting for the wedding scene.

Yes, indeed, the picture must needs be one of super-enchantment and romance that tunes to skies sunny and blue, to birds trilling exultant notes in welcome to spring, to blossoms and verdure bursting into a very ecstasy of color reaching as far as eye can see. When you read the story or glimpse the new fashions as pictured here, you know that all things beautiful have been taken into account in creating wedding array for those who would make their nuptial vows in springtime, this year of 1938.

Lace ranks high in the list of fashion "firsts" for spring brides. In fact many wedding parties will use lace throughout for bride, maid of honor, bridesmaids and little flower One of the allures of lace is that it presents charming color possibilities, for the newer laces come in beguiling pastels for the attendants, with silver-threaded lace for the bride or embroidered lace, if you will; likewise fine Alencons, or Chantilly, priceless rose point or rich Spanish lace.

Can you imagine anything more "darling" than a wedding gown that is fashioned row after row of narrow Val lace just as you see pictured in the foreground of the illustration herewith? The little puff sleeves and youthful square neckline are outlined with baby ribbon run through a narrow lace beading and even the quaint mitts are of

Speaking of vogue for lace, a most gorgeous Spanish lace headdress and veil are being shown this season for the bride who would dress in period fashion. The picturesque mantilla of lace is draped to towering height on the head (just as you see in quaint wedding pictures of old Spain) from whence it sweeps out in voluptuous flowing lines in a grandiose train.

Turning from lace to fabric, there's much news to impart. First we would speak of the tendency this spring to use sheers such as mousseline de soie, tulles, marquisettes, dainty nets and also shadowprint swiss organdie (inexpensive but lovely) for the bride's gown. Contrasting these diaphanous weaves is a very new silk moirebrocade that bespeaks the stately and elegant. The handsome gown the lady in the center background of the illustration is wearing is a beautiful dress made of this high-style moire. Of course this stately silk must be styled with utmost simplicity the better to emphasize the magnificence of the material. Taffeta silk, white for the bride and colors for the bridesmaids, is also a favorite this spring.

A gown of the patrician moire just described demands that utmost simplicity prevail in way of headdress and veil. Note the monk's cap and veil as worn by the moireclad bride pictured. It is styled exquisitely but very simply, the close fitting tulle being finely allover-shirred with yards and yards of the tulle billowing over shoulders and as long as one cares for the veil to be.

As to the ever becoming tiara, you may be wanting to know if it still is in fashion. For answer see the charming bride to the right. The iara made of lattice-we is modish, as is also the tiara built high with orange blossoms. This bride clings to the wedding tradition of exquisite white satin for the nuptial gown.

YOUR NEW BLOUSE By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Your new spring blouse will be different, in that it will give the softly bloused silhouette so important this season. Owing to the emphasis placed on suits this spring you are supposed to start out not with just a single blouse or two but a collection of 'em, and the models here shown convey an idea of the newest trends in blouses that are made of gay silks, as so many of them are this season. The soft bloused effect is maintained in the model shown at the top, the gathered neckline being a special fea-The balloon blouse of circus stripe triple silk sheer pictured below has shirred sleeve tops and brilliant buttons. LAPEL GADGETS IN PLASTIC MATERIALS

The latest thing in lapel gadgets for spring suits are "good luck" insects—grasshoppers, locusts, flies and beetles—designed in plastic material, in dull white or bright colors, by Vera Borea, according to a report from the Paris office of the Du Pont Style News service. Plastic material in dull white, vivid green and gold makes the scattered arabesque motifs which trim a crepe dress by the same designer. Complementing a white evening gown is a bolero embroidered with scattered motifs in transparent, iridescent cellulose film, matched by a belt of woven cellulose film.

Chic Tailored Ensemble Tweed woven in the turquoise blue and strawberry red shades forms a severely tailored new ensemble worn with a man's soft felt turquoise hat trimmed with a band of red grosgrain ribbon. Very practical is the idea of buying a tailored suit of this tweed and another suit of solid color and making up a number of ensembles with the two jackets and skirts.

Quite a few of the suits seen are collarless and trimmed with three rows of buttons all the way down the front. Also unusually attractive are the tailored vestees in contrasting colors.

WE OFFER A New Food Department

* All the accumulated knowledge and experience of C. Houston Goudiss, the man who for 30 yea -- has exerted a wide influence on the food habits of this nation, are now available to homemakers through the series of articles now appearing in this newspaper. These discussions are as fascinating as fiction, as up to date as tomorrow, and, above all, authoritative. For no matter what aspect of food is under discussion, C. Houston Goudiss knows whereof he speaks.

* His work has been a devotion to the study of food, both from the productive and the manufactured standpoint. He believes that better food means a better nation. Sharing these views, we have secured him to assist in carrying out our aims -to be the best available guide in the most important of all matters that affect the homes of the readers of this newspaper-for health, happiness and prosperity depend first of all upon food.

Drink Water with Meals The question is often asked-"Is it wise to drink water with meals?" The answer is "Yes."

Have You a Question? Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has placed at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful atten-ion. Address C. Houston Goudiss at 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T. R .- Answering your question as to what is the most efficient time to begin reducing the proper time is when the weight first begins to climb above normal. Most people wait until they are 20 or 30 pounds overweight and then reducing becomes more difficult.

Miss T. P. G .- Yes, there is a stimulant in cocoa that closely resembles caffeine in coffee. But a cup of cocoa contains less of the stimulant than is found in a cup of tea or coffee.

Mrs. A. R. M.-No, milk is not fattening. Women especially fear that milk will increase their weight, but this fear is not justified, since a pint of milk, or two large glasses, only supplies 340
