ALABASTER at TAWAS CITY, HARRISVILLE at PRESCOTT, TURNER at TWINING, Sunday

MAYOR COYLE WILL PITCH FIRST BALL

Tawas City and Alabaster Will Play Opener Here Sunday

Next Sunday, May 15, the North-eastern Michigan league will raise the curtain for the 1938 baseball season with 12 of the 14 teams in action. Three games in each, the American and National division. One team in each circuit having an open date.

Harrisville, a new comer into the league, will journey to Prescott with intentions of tripping up the Ogemaw county boys and proving to the rest of the circuit that they are as tough as they have the reputation of being.

Turner will cross bats with the Twining boys, which should be a thriller, as these two teams have always been rivals and from all reports, this year's contests will be no exception.

Tawas City will be hosts to the White City boys. There is a bit of rivalry between these two teams, as it is to be remembered that Alabaster knocked Tawas City out of their last chance of getting into the playoffs last season. Tawas is out for revenge and Alabaster claims it was "no accident" and can be repeated. Anyone interested can see this decided by being at the Athletic Field Sunday afternoon. Mayor John Coyle will lend his moral support to the team by throwing the first ball toward the plate where ex-mayor John A. Brugger will be waiting to make an attempt to catch it should it happen to come within reach. So all in all it should be a gala day and a game worth seeing.

Whittemore, the seventh team in the American division and also a newcomer, drew an open date for Sunday but will be all set to go on the following Sunday, May 22. They have a nice collection of players and (Turn to No. 1, back page)

Iosco County League

The Iosco County league opened its season last Sunday with Hemlock winning over East Tawas, last year's champs, by the score of 11 to 8, and Wilber winning from Tawas City 18 to 3. Meadow Road was idle due to a last minute decision of Town Line not to enter a team in the league. It is not known whether or not a sixth team will be secured. If not, there will be a team idle each Sunday.

The East Tawas-Hemlock game was a seesaw battle with lead changing from one team to the other, but in the final innings Hemlock regained the lead and held it the remainder of the game. C. Jordan was on the mound for Hemlock with Kohn receiving. The East Tawas battery was Ray Ross pitching and J. Ferrette catching.

East Tawas School Will Present Music Program

The department of music of the East Tawas schools will present an evening of music at the Community house, Thursday, May 12, at eight o'clock. Approximately 120 students will take part in the program. There will be a band of 30 pieces, and the junior high girls glee club of 25 voices, a chorus of 40 voices, orchestra of 15 pieces and the rhythmic band of 30 pieces. The program to be presented has been well chosen. It will be directed by Albert Trestrail, teacher of music. The accompanists will be Mrs. Trestrail and Mrs. Roberta Schreck. A small collection of ten cents will be asked to help pay for expenses.

Mrs. Mary Sims

Mrs. Mary Sims, resident of Wilber township for the past 49 years, passed away Sunday morning. She had been in ill health for the past six months. Paralysis was the cause of death. The deceased was 78 years old.

Mary Copeland was born June 15, 1860, at Caledonia, Ontario. She came to Iosco county when a young woman. In 1880 she was married to George Sims at Tawas City. To this marriage seven children were born, five of whom survive her. The surviving children are: Wesley Sims of Wisconsin, Mrs. Laura Guffin of Tawas City, Nelson Sims of Tawas City, Roy Sims of Wilber and Mrs. Mae Spring of Onondaga, Michigan. She also is survived by one brother, John Copeland of Bay City, a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy of Detroit, eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Wilber Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. S. A. Carey officiated. Among those from out of the county who attended the funeral were Mrs. Mae Sims of Onondaga, John Copeland and son, Arnold of Bay City and Rev. and Mrs. McManus of Pontiac.

WHITTEMORE MOTHERS FETE DAUGHTERS

75 Attend Banquet Held Last Friday Evening

About 75 mothers and daughters attended the Mother and Daughter banquet held Friday night at the O. E. S. dining room, Whittemore.

Mrs. Henry Fike was toastmaster and introduced Mrs. S. A. Carey of East Tawas as guest speaker. She spoke on "What Are We Doing With Our Leisure Time?" Mrs. Howard Switzer gave the address of welcome and Mrs. Ruth Fierst gave the response. A girls' trio sang two beautiful numbers.

Mrs. Fred Mills who is 82 years old, was honored with a beautiful plant, being the oldest mother present.

The following out-of-town people were present: Mrs. Hal Busch of Detroit, Mrs. Harrison Snyder of Pleasant, and Mrs. C. Houtaling of Mt. Pleasant, besides a number from Tawas City and East Tawas.

Rev. J. C. Pengally

Rev. J. C. Pengally, 68, pastor of the Whittemore M. E. church, died at his home at 3:30 Thursday afternoon, May 5, following a two weeks' illness, of heart trouble. Funeral services were held at 10 a. m. Monday, with Rev. W. C. S. Pellows, superintendent of the Saginaw-Bay City district, officiating. The body was taken to Dryden for burial. He leaves his widow, one son, Joseph, of Flint, two daughters, Mrs. C. Hilliker, of Flint, and Rose Mary at home.

Rev. Pengally was born in Cornwall county, England. He had served at various M. E. churches in north-east Michigan, including Gaylord. He came here from the church in Turner, where he served four years, in July of last year.

Ministers from outside who took part in the funeral were Rev. Ethan Bray of P'conning, Rev. H. Davis of Cassville, Rev. Brown of Harrisville, Rev. Sias of Oscoda, Rev. S. A. Carey of East Tawas, Rev. Dingle Turner and Rev. Ostrander of Prescott.

The large number of friends who came from a distance to attend the funeral indicated the high esteem in which he was held in the many charges he had served as pastor.

3RD ANNUAL PERCH FESTIVAL PROVE SUCCESS

Estimated 10,000 Attended During Three-Day Event

The Perch Festival which closed late Sunday afternoon brought from eight to ten thousand guests to our city during the three days. The weather was cold Friday and Saturday but the weatherman was more lenient Sunday and gave us a fine day. The outstanding events in this year's festival were the exceptional interest taken in the Queen's contest, the Coronation ball, the banquet and the parade. The Tawas Herald congratulates Chairman E. D. Jacques and the members of the various committees for the success of the event.

The Festival came to a climax Sunday afternoon with the big parade. Several thousand people lined Lake street from the Tawas river bridge to East Tawas. The parade was headed by the massed colors of the American Legion, Jesse C. Hodder Post, Tawas City, and Audie Johnson Post, East Tawas, and the Drum and Bugle Corps. In addition to the beautiful Queen's float, with Queen Ardis Callahan and her court, there were fine floats from Whittemore, West Branch, Port Austin, Saginaw, Bay City, East Tawas, and the Tawas City businessmen's float, Oscoda, West Branch, East Tawas and Tawas City high school bands added much interest and color to the parade. A touch of humor was given to the event by the "Model T" and its passengers dressed in the fashion of a generation ago. At the conclusion of the parade a band concert was given in the Tawas City park.

The successful contestant for Perch Queen, Miss Ardis Callahan of East Tawas, was announced Friday evening at a party at the Masonic Temple. Miss Alma Bronson of Tawas City, was her maid of honor. The Coronation Ball held Saturday evening at the Community building had a record attendance. The building was jammed to capacity. One hour of the program, with Rambling Bill Hurley acting as master of ceremonies, was broadcast over WBCM. Miss Mary Gray of WJR, Detroit formally crowned Queen Ardis.

A banquet in honor of Miss Mary Gray and her party and Queen Ardis and her court was held Sunday afternoon at the Masonic Temple, Tawas City. More than 100 people were in attendance.

Chairman Jacques said today that he wished to thank the many who co-operated in making the Perch Festival a success. He said that the Coronation Ball, with more than 900 people attending emphasized Tawas City's need of a community house. If a new school building is contemplated, an auditorium should be included in the plans.

St. Joseph School Will Give Music Recital

On Wednesday evening, May 25, at eight o'clock, the junior students of the Music Department of St. Joseph school will be presented in a recital at the Community Building in East Tawas.

Piano solos will be offered by Shirley Lixey, Barbara Kienholz, Alice Small, Buddie Sheldon, Ruth Olson, Eloise Anderson, Kathleen Houston, Karl Kienholz, Donald May, William Robey, George Rowley and Bobby Benson.

Guitar numbers will be given by Margaret Wozeck, Leroy Anderson, Charles Brown, Elmer Roiter and Robert Proulx.

A reading will be given by Karl Kienholz, a playlet will be presented by Jack and James MacMurray and Buddie Sheldon will give a novelty piano number. The Junior Glee Club will sing the Gondoliers by Nevin, and the World is Waiting for the Sunrise. The Primary Department will sing Tiny Town, by Hollander, and the high school orchestra will open the program with a selection, "Master Joe" by Bennett.

Hitler and Il Duce Meet

ITALY will not interfere with Nazi Germany's plans to help the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia and perhaps to annex the territory they inhabit. In return, Germany will do nothing to check Italy's plans in the Mediterranean, especially in northern Africa.

But Italy is averse to forming a military alliance with Germany and will not permit itself to become involved in a decision of war or peace over the Czechoslovakian question, and is rather in favor of the British plan for a four-power agreement among Britain, Italy, Germany and France for European peace.

That is briefly what is believed at this writing to have developed in the first momentous conference between Hitler and Mussolini in Rome. No official statement was given out immediately.

Hitler, according to reports, opened up with a long statement concerning British rearmament, seeking to wean Mussolini away from his tie-up with England. And he asked Italy's support in his demands for return of Germany's lost colonies.

Il Duce, it was said, told the Fuehrer that German help in defeating loyalist Spain was vital, but Hitler was noncommittal on this point. Hitler was given a wonderful reception in Rome. He was lodged in the Quirinal palace, being officially the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. The city was lavishly decorated and elaborate demonstrations and reviews were staged to impress him with the power and discipline of Fascist Italy.

After several preliminary conferences in which Foreign Ministers Von Ribbentrop and Ciano participated, Hitler went to Naples and witnessed a naval review that was a startling revelation of Italy's sea power.

One Italian who didn't cheer the Nazi chieftain was Pope Pius. In an address at his summer home, Castel Gandolfo, to which he had conveniently retired, he deplored as a "sad thing" the raising of the Nazi swastika in Rome on Holy Cross day, the day of Hitler's arrival.

Labor Act Denounced

WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN, president of General Motors, speaking before the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared the Wagner labor relations act is the "largest drawback to good industrial relations."

Discussing the strikes that have tied up his company's plants at various times in recent months, Knudsen said in a prepared address:

"The national labor relations board set up to administer the act makes no pretense even of paying any attention to the employer's side of the case.

"He can only be heard when he is summoned, and he knows before he goes that there is no record of a single decision where he has had a ghost of a show. So what!"

The Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution strongly urging the repeal of the labor relations act, and asked that "management and labor work together without recourse to the federal government."

Other resolutions were substantially as follows: Demand for relief from present tax burdens, the fight transferring itself from the undistributed corporate profits tax and the capital gains tax to the broader field of an

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—In the midst of all the politics and planning in the national capital, there has lately come to the surface one of the deepest and most bitter rows that has developed incident to the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is the controversy, long smoldering, between the President and the newspapers of the country. It is out in the open now, and the struggle is a desperate one.

To go back a few years, it will be remembered how Mr. Roosevelt was described as having a very friendly press when he entered the White House. He continued to maintain the most pleasant relations between his office and the newspapers of the country, and especially with the Washington correspondents, until doubt began to develop in the minds of some editors as to the soundness of New Deal policies in 1935. The number of opposition editors increased and in 1936 it was generally said that the President had only about one half of the newspapers supporting him. But even then, Mr. Roosevelt continued to have exceedingly cordial relations with the corps of correspondents who report on national affairs under a Washington date line.

The Washington correspondents and columnists who found little or no fault with the New Deal began to dwindle in numbers eventually. Now, as a guess, I would say that probably only about one-fourth of the five or six hundred writers believe heart-and-soul with New Deal policies. This does not mean that those who observe weaknesses or vulnerable points in the New Deal do not write their commendation when they believe it is due. The difference is that they are no longer completely "sold" on New Deal statements or propaganda without digging further into every situation. As a result, obviously, attention is directed daily to those weaknesses, as well as the strong points, of the New Deal; the news is no longer all ballyhoo for the New Deal.

Another result is that White House press conferences no longer are the jovial, carefree meetings filled with laughter, good-natured jibes and exchanges, friendly shots back and forth between the President and the correspondents. On a number of occasions, quite the contrary has been true. The President has spoken some very harsh words now and then about news dispatches from Washington by certain writers. He has not minced words when some Republican writer, like Mark Sullivan of the New York Herald Tribune syndicate, for instance, wrote his observations of a critical nature. Altogether, I believe it can be said that the newspaper criticism at times has got under the President's skin and has made him quite irascible and squeamish. I do not mean to say that this condition obtains every time the President meets with the press, but it has happened with greater and greater frequency of late that Mr. Roosevelt has found fault with what the correspondents were writing.

Such things, generally, are not written. Newspaper men usually do not inject themselves into rows, nor do they consider that they are more than the eyes and ears for their readers. That is to say, they consider their work impersonal and for the reason that it is impersonal seldom take the public into their confidences on matters that seem to them to be purely personal in nature.

In the last two weeks, however, the differences between the President and his advisors, on the one hand, and the editors throughout the country and their Washington correspondents, on the other hand, at last have been brought into the open. That is, and I believe this is a fair statement, Mr. Roosevelt has brought the row into the open.

The match seems to have been touched to the dynamite by Mr. Roosevelt at a recent "off the record" session which he held with the members of the Managing Editors' society. The society meets annually in Washington and always during their stay, they are invited to a White House meeting. In the past, such meetings have promoted a better understanding between the editors and the administration, but the last session appears to have done exactly the opposite.

It is not permissible to disclose what goes on in those meetings and, not having been present, I cannot vouch for details of the recent meeting. I know, however, that heretofore the editors came away always feeling that benefits of the meeting had been important. At the last meeting, according to common understanding around Washington, the discussion was heated. The President's remarks to the editors must have been vicious. In any event, there were few of the editors came away in a good humor. Indeed, at a breakfast of the society the next morning, one managing editor challenged his colleagues with the question: "Are we mice or are we men?"

Again asserting my inability to vouch for all of the statements that have deluged Washington since the meeting, I know that many of the editors were "red headed" or "hot under the collar" or whatever your favorite expression may be. And well they may have been if it is true that the President told them they had no genuine knowledge of public sentiment in their several communities, nor did they have any real influence. But the crowning shot, according to report, was a pointed inference that the President better understood what the country needed than the editors.

Immediately thereafter the American Newspaper Publishers association, at its New York meeting, had before it a report calling for the elimination of politics and politicians from control of the radio or the press. The report cited Mr. Roosevelt's frequent use of the airplanes for his "fireside chats," and it added:

"The inescapable task of the American press is to guard against any encroachment upon American democracy by the federal government with radio as the instrument of political power."

That incident, of course, was not ignored in Washington. While there was no word from the White House, the newspapers were the target for an intemperate speech by Sen. Sherman Minton of Indiana. Senator Minton has been a New Deal mouthpiece through the last year and only a few persons believed that he was speaking his own views. Most observers thought he was doing a "Charley McCarthy" for those in the New Deal who needed a ventriloquist and a forum then and there to get their views printed.

Mr. Minton jumped all over the newspapers. None of them would print the New Deal side, he asserted; none would be fair. They simply are awful things, these newspapers. The report of the newspaper publishers, mentioned above, was described by the senator as "an exhibition of unmitigated gall." Some newspapers were accused of "spewing out their propaganda" against the New Deal and he charged that the New Deal "simply can not get its side of the story printed."

The senator certainly got his side of the case printed for the metropolitan dailies reaching Washington gave him vast space—and also they subsequently gave him editorial attention. Senators on the floor listened to Senator Minton, too, but only Senator Norris of Nebraska and Schwellenbach of Washington took any notice. Senator Schwellenbach felt impelled to make a few well-chosen remarks about the way the press has treated the New Dealers, including himself.

And, I almost forgot about it! Senator Minton introduced a bill that would send an editor or reporter to jail if they printed any information which they knew to be incorrect. The guilty persons could be fined many thousands of dollars, too, under the Minton bill. I guess the reason I almost forgot about the Minton bill to punish editors was because nobody took it seriously, least of all the colleagues of Senator Minton in the senate. It will go into a committee pigeonhole and will never be heard of again.

Involvement of radio and its control by the federal government in the "freedom of speech" battle calls to mind that there has been much complaint lately concerning the federal communications commission. That agency has supreme authority over the radio stations of the country. They cannot operate without a license. The law which set up the commission gave authority to license stations for three years, but as a matter of practice the commission never has issued a license to any station for a period longer than six months. In consequence, every station owner and operator has to come into the commission twice a year and file an application for renewal of its right to operate.

The complaint is that the broadcasting industry is running on a six-months' basis, uncertain at all times about its future status. Twice a year, therefore, any station owner has to make a guess whether his investment is worth anything. One of the charges against this practice, a charge hurled by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, was that the short-period licensing practice "leaves the door open for indirect and insidious censorship." The charge, of course, considers the possibilities of underhanded activity that always are available to an individual in public office.

Afternoon Dresses for You and Your Daughter

THESE two patterns bring you outstanding fashions of the season, the woman's dress very slenderizing and flattering, the little girl's frock as saucy, bright and perky as a daffodil. Each pattern includes a detailed and complete sew chart, with step-by-step, easy-to-follow directions.

Bolero Frock for Little Girl.
This dress has no less than four of the most becoming details in the world—a crisply flaring skirt, sleeves puffed out like little balloons, a brief bolero, and a round collar! Make it up in printed percale (a light, flowery design), paper taffeta, gingham, linen or dimity. Use ricrac or Irish edging to trim the collar and bolero.

Soft Detailing for Large Women.
Notice the soft gather on the shoulders and sleeve tops, creating just enough fullness where it's needed, the lengthening revers, the slim lines of the skirt—all extremely becoming to women who want to minimize their weight. This dress will be lovely in georgette, chiffon or voile.

1505 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 requires ¾ yard of 35-inch material for the bolero; 2¼ yards for the dress. Contrasting collar (if desired) requires ¼ yard. 2½ yards of braid for trimming.

"Tropic Hurricane"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

We have had a lot of stories, boys and girls, about people who have had close shaves and gotten out of them by some fast action, or some quick thinking, or by some herculean feat of strength. They were great stories, every doggone one of them. But sometimes I think that men in action don't get half the scare that people do who have to sit quietly and watch death creep up on them while they are powerless to do anything about it.

That is the sort of yarn we have today, fellow adventurers—the story of Tom Brady of New York city—the story of how he sat, helpless, in a strange land, among strange people, while chaos gripped the world and threatened to tumble it in ruins upon his head.

The story, in short, of a tropical hurricane.

Tom Had Never Seen a Hurricane.

For years, in his role as traveling man, Tom Brady had been journeying through the tropical islands of the Caribbean sea, selling goods and looking over the country. He had heard plenty about the hurricanes they have down there. He had seen wrecked houses, uprooted trees—plenty of the evidences a tropical tornado leaves in its destructive wake. He had seen the natives kneeling in the churches, praying for divine protection against the dread wind storms they had learned to fear. But up to the time this story opens—September 11, 1928—Tom had never been caught in a hurricane.

Tom was in the city of Roseau, on the little British island of Dominica on September 11, 1928. He had been there for about ten days, and was just about ready to move on. He had his sample trunks all packed and in the Custom house, and was waiting for a steamer due that day which was to take him to St. Lucia, another small island in the Windward group. Then, what happened?

Storm warnings! Barometer falling! No steamer that day—nor for a few days to come. Tom was going to see that hurricane now. He couldn't get out of it.

The hotel Tom was stopping at was a frame structure. They said it was safe—said it had stood up under other storms—but Tom had his doubts. Nevertheless, it was the safest place to be found in Roseau, so it was Hobson's choice for Tom.

Along about sundown, rain and wind began coming in short, fitful gusts. At 8 o'clock, the cannon at the fort—the only means the police had of advising the natives that the storm was headed their way—boomed out its ominous warning! Get ready. Board up your windows. Take shelter. Then the wind began rising slowly—steadily—relentlessly.

Havoc Wreaked by the Fierce Storm.

All through the night lightning flashes ripped the black skies while the wind rose and the rain increased. The colored natives were screaming now, and chanting prayers in the streets. Everywhere people were scrambling about, boarding up their houses as best they could. No one slept that night. No one wanted to.

At 5 a. m. the cannon on the fort boomed again, this time with a message of far more evil portent than the first. "It's upon us!" And on its heels, the fury of the storm, lashing and tearing—carving its path of havoc and destruction from the seawall to the farthest limits of the town.

The seawall was the first to go. Its solid concrete bulk, running the length of the town, crumbled like ashes under the force of the sea that battered against it. The Custom house jetty—the Belle jetty—the Fish market by the seawall were wrecked by the fury of the wind and carried away on the reeling, lashing tide that was momentarily getting higher and higher. Roofs went flying off houses. Sheets of tin went sailing through the air—went scraping and clattering down the streets. The tops of palm trees snapped off as if they had been match stems. Coconuts went winging and bounding in all directions, like a barrage of cannon balls.

In his hotel, a block and a half from the seawall, Tom Brady watched the waterfront "coming up the street." The gallery on the side of the hotel he was in was ripped off and carried away. Shutters were torn from their fastenings. The rain was coming in. The wind blew all the furniture against the opposite wall.

He Found Out What Fear Was.

Downstairs, they were lifting a huge wooden trap door and putting the women and the servants in the cellar. They were expecting the roof to go next. And in those moments, Tom Brady found out what it was to be afraid.

They say a drowning man sees his whole life pass before him before he dies. Tom saw just that. There, all alone, a thousand miles away from home, on a strange island, among strange people, he thought out his own obituary. He prayed, and he isn't ashamed of it. He promised the Lord he'd be a better man if he was spared this time—and he meant it—every doggone word of it—at the time.

Still the tempest raged. A church steeple came crashing down. Death, ruin, destruction were all about him. Tom himself was literally thrown about the room by the sickening impact of the blow. From time to time the wind would shift—strike the hotel from another angle. Then the men in that room would board up the windows again and be safe—for a time. In all, Tom was boarded up for 23 hours—the worst 23 hours he ever spent in his life. And it wasn't the danger that bothered him so much as the inactivity—the uncertainty. The terrible nerve-racking sensation of waiting—waiting to be washed away by the ocean, or buried alive under a falling roof.

It was the next morning—at 4 a. m., when the storm finally passed over. The town was a shambles—the streets full of debris—the houses in ruins. Tom took some pictures and thanked God he was alive. He says: "I went to church religiously for about four or five Sundays after that, and then, like a good many more of us, not being scared any more, I started to miss again."

Like a good many more of us is right!

CAN WE CHEAT DEATH?

No, Science Admits, But Life Expectancy Can Be Raised

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Since the world began man has sought to cheat death. Some have looked for the Fountain of Youth; others, more scientific, admit earthly immortality is impossible but cling to the chance that man's visit here below may be lengthened.

Foremost pioneers in this work are America's insurance companies who currently celebrate Life Insurance week. The combined mass of statistics gathered by these firms during the past century has given America an amazingly accurate picture of how long the average man can expect to live, and what he can do to live longer.

These figures, linked with reports of sensational medical developments, today give John Public good reason to believe he will live longer than his great-grandfather. He may even dream of the day when science can give him new mechanism to replace his decaying vital organs.

But artificial hearts are flimsy and intangible. A more startling fact is that science has given the United States more than 4,000,000,000 years of life since the American Revolution. A child born 150 years ago could expect to live from 30 to 35 years, while seven years ago the newborn infant had a life expectancy of 59 to 63 years—a girl baby four years longer than a boy.

Thus, in 150 years, the average span of life has been boosted 25 years!

Joint Fight on Death.

No single factor is responsible. Man, though selfish in his instinct for self preservation, has co-operated with other men whom he knew could help cope with the problem of premature death. Scientific workers looked to the insurance companies for figures showing what causes death. Little known mortality facts were excavated from the mire of superstitious centuries, and erased. Cities, states and the federal government co-operated in eliminating hazards.

Figures from the United States public health service reveal that a good way to live longer is to be born in North or South Dakota, Kansas or Oklahoma—and to stay there. Statistics compiled through the years prove that expectation of life in those states is almost 10 per cent greater than for the nation as a whole. As a second choice the seeker after a long life might pick Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Alabama or Mississippi.

100-Year Goal.

The term "span of life" is confusing. Science points out that it has not changed through the centuries. Probably as many persons lived to be 90 in ancient Rome as in New York city today. The span, or maximum average life, is about 100 years. Although the 1930 census showed 3,964 persons who claimed to be 100 or older, the figure is open to question because nearly 2,500 of these were colored people who simply "guessed" their ages.

This chart, prepared by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, shows how America's death causes have varied since 1901. Degenerative diseases, including heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage and cancer are rising. So are accidents and suicides. Communicable diseases include smallpox, typhoid, yellow fever, leprosy, malaria and cholera.

If 100 years is the maximum average, it offers a far-away goal for scientists who have thus far increased life expectancy to 59 years. To increase the average only 10 years is a monumental task that would necessitate almost complete removal of the diseases now responsible for juvenile mortality. Ailments causing infant deaths must be strangled. Tuberculosis among young people, communicable diseases—and especially venereal diseases—would be stamped out, and advances in psychiatry would eliminate the menace of suicide. All this, and our life expectancy would be raised a scant 10 years!

2,000 Years of Progress.

No forward stride can be expected overnight. Expectation of life has been increasing slowly for almost 2,000 years, and we are now much more fortunate than Roman infants in Caesar's day who could look forward to only 20 or 25 years on earth.

Insurance companies are both selfish and benevolent in their campaigns to increase longevity. The fact remains that every firm nowadays takes a deep interest in its policy holders' personal health. Many companies offer yearly examinations and distribute literature to help its customers get healthy and stay healthy.

No definite set of health rules can be applied to all men. But physicians agree that a long life is encouraged by following certain general laws. They may be placed under five headings. Each is well known but will bear repetition:

Fresh Air and Exercise—Fresh air is the largest single element in the preservation of health. Windows of the sleeping room should always be opened to admit it freely. Business and professional men and women should take special care to get sufficient outdoor exercise daily.

Food and Diet—Drink plenty of water so there may be an abundant excess to wash out the waste products through lungs, skin and kidneys. Eat fruits, green vegetables, whole wheat bread and milk. Vary the diet and avoid an excess of meat, especially at ages over 40.

Sleep—Some people require more sleep than others, but few can keep in the best of health with less than seven or eight hours.

Mental Attitude—Everyone who wishes to keep well and live to old age should persist in a cheerful view of life and prohibit worry so far as possible.

Temperance—Excess use of alcohol definitely increases susceptibility to disease.

General scientific advances in the battle for longevity have been made without fanfare. But occasionally has come a discovery whose potentialities startle mankind. One of these is the testimony given by Dr. Alexander Cannon, distinguished British physician and psychiatrist who went to the Far East investigating supernatural phenomena. He gained an audience with the supposedly unapproachable Grand Lama of Tibet who staged for him one of the weirdest demonstrations of occultism the eye of a white man ever beheld.

Tibetan Black Magic.

He reported a coffin containing the body of a man seven years buried was brought before the Lama. At word of command the "dead" man opened his eyes, advanced to the throne, bowed, and retreated to his coffin where he apparently became lifeless again. Dr. Cannon reported he made all the usual medical tests and pronounced the man dead. But the Lama assured him that in another seven years the body would again be resurrected!

That was black magic, but there is a truly scientific foundation behind the "artificial heart" recently developed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in collaboration with Dr. Alexis Carrel. Briefly, the heart is known as a "perfusion" pump made entirely of glass in which the only moving parts are the valves and the gas and the fluid which sustain life in the organ under observation.

Can such an artificial pump be grafted to the human being, replacing a natural heart that will no longer function? If possible, it might postpone death for years, though medical men suggest that the broken down tissues of the body would often prove too much for any robot heart to overcome.

Many other experiments of this nature have been revealed recently. At the University of Minnesota heart and lungs are being kept alive 24 hours after removal, in a dry airtight vessel immersed in water to maintain an even temperature! University of Pennsylvania scientists are working on a glass stomach which would faithfully enact the performances of natural organs.

Such things are done in the name of health, but in the last analysis there can be no escaping the truth—man is working to increase his days on earth!

TESTING DISCIPLINE BY SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Come . . . and follow me.—Mark 10:21. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Young Man Jesus Loved. JUNIOR TOPIC—What a Rich Man Needed. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Proving Our Loyalty to Christ by Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of Discipleship.

"The almighty dollar"—how triumphantly it rules in the affairs of nations and of the men who make up nations. The world's measure of success is how much one can "make," and "no questions asked" as to how one made it, if he but avoid the legal pitfalls that may land him in jail. Even that is no longer a disgrace, for men who have defrauded others serve a term in jail to "pay their debt to society," and then return without shame to enjoy the use of their ill-gotten gains. Skill in the arts and sciences is rated according to its financial value. Brains and beauty are commodities of the market place. Liquor is permitted to destroy our people because it provides a profit.

The minds of men and women of decency and intelligence revolt at the whole situation. Let us encourage them as we improve the opportunity today to present God's moral and spiritual standards.

I. Self Before God (vv. 17-22).

The rich young ruler had many advantages and virtues. He was young, life was before him, vivid was his imagination, strong was his body. He was educated, and developed intelligence is an honor to any man. He had position, which can always be used for good. He had money, which when rightly gained and used, is a powerful and honorable possession. Above all, he had the priceless jewel of good character. Notice that he had kept the commandments, that he came before the Lord in humility seeking truth, and that Jesus "loved him" (v. 21).

Almost any father would be proud to own this young man as a son. Many churches would welcome him to membership and even to leadership. Jesus dealt with him honestly, however, and went to the root of his difficulty which was that he loved himself and his possessions more than he loved God. Therefore he must give them up before he could really follow Jesus. Sad indeed was his refusal. He came running (v. 17), but he went away sorrowful (v. 22).

What stands between you and a full surrender to Christ? Face it honestly. Be thankful if your pastor or a friend frankly points it out. Shun those who would "pat you on the back" and assure you that all is well. A cancer will kill unless it is cut out. The surgeon's knife may hurt, but it is an instrument of good.

Note that the statement of Jesus in verse 18 is not a denial of His deity, but a definite claim that He is God. He says in effect, "If you call me good you must recognize that I am God."

II. God Before Self (vv. 21-27).

The disciples, who evidently shared the common opinion that money could do almost anything, were surprised to hear that riches were really a hindrance to spirituality, because (v. 24) of the tendency of men to trust in their wealth and forget their need of God.

Jesus does not leave the rich man without hope, for he goes on to say that what is impossible for men and even for the rich man himself is entirely possible with God.

Two things need emphasis in this connection. First, let those of us who have little of this world's goods be thankful that we have, at least, been delivered from this temptation. It may well be an expression of God's love and grace toward us. Second, let us thank God for every man of wealth who has given himself and what he has into God's hands.

III. The Last Before the First (vv. 28-31).

The ways of God are confusing and humbling to the flesh. The way up in spiritual things is to go down (Mark 9:35). Those who are first in the eyes of men are often last in God's sight. Others whom men count as least stand highest in God's sight because they are faithful and true to Him. The world looks at the missionary of the cross and says, "He has sacrificed everything," and knows nothing of the "hundredfold" reward even in this life, "and in the world to come, eternal life" (v. 30).

Hail to Pilgrim Mothers

Bruce Barton, the nationally-known writer and advertising executive, tells of an incident that happened at a celebration in Boston in honor of the landing of the Pilgrim fathers. He says that after several laudatory speeches had been made by men, a woman got up and said: "I am tired of hearing so much praise of the Pilgrim fathers. I want to say a word about the Pilgrim mothers. They had to endure all that the Pilgrim fathers endured, and they had to endure the Pilgrim fathers besides."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

MANY New and Improved FEATURES ON THE NEW WORLD'S STANDARD De Laval SEPARATORS

THESE new De Laval Separators are the crowning achievement in the 60 years of De Laval's leadership. They have many new, important features and improvements, which we are certain will be of interest to every cream producer. They will separate more milk in less time; produce more cream of better quality; run easier; are easier to operate, clean and wash; and will last longer than any separators ever made. They are the most beautiful of all cream separators, and really must be seen in order to be appreciated.

This new De Laval is now on display at our place of business, and we shall be pleased to have you examine it.

Don't Let an Old Corn Planter Cheat You Out of Hybrid Corn Profits

McCormick-Deering "100 Series" Planters Handle Hybrid Seed with Unexcelled Accuracy

All around you farmers are cashing in on the advantages of hybrid corn. Men with soil no better than yours may be banking more corn profit than you are. You can do as well . . . but you'll need a planter that can handle hybrid seed and put the kernels where they will sprout and grow into healthy plants.

McCormick-Deering "100 Series" Planters are designed to meet this need. Your choice of flat, edge-, or hill-drop plates enables you to handle all varieties of corn. You may not be ready now to plant hybrid corn, but you surely want the planter you buy equipped to plant hybrid seed so you can make the change whenever you are ready.

The "100 Series" planters have many other features that combine to make them the full-value planters of the year. Ask us to quote you on a McCormick-Deering Planter for your use.

- Variable-drop
- Flat- or edge- or full hill-drop plates
- Built-in power hill-drop
- Plunger-type valve action
- Check-row or drill
- Improved long-wearing clutch
- Seed plate always in time
- Improved check-heads
- Runner, stub runner, or disk furrow openers
- Automatic markers
- Fertilizer and pea or bean attachments
- 23" to 44" rows—30" or 36" wheels

No tool takes the place of the McCormick-Deering Soil Pulverizer. There is no implement that will produce the same results on a seed bed, leaving it well compacted and ideal condition for the reception of seed.

Whittemore

Mr. Earl Harty returned from West Branch hospital Tuesday. Many friends are sorry to hear that their infant son has been very ill. He was taken to a Saginaw hospital for treatment.

Whittemore P. T. A. held their last regular meeting for this school term Tuesday night. Installation of officers took place. Mrs. Roy Charters acted as installing officer. The following were installed: President—Mrs. Cecil Ruckle; Vice-President—Mrs. Joseph Danin; Secretary—Orville Jagger; Treasurer—Wayne Grimm.

Friends were grieved when word came that Mrs. F. Ridley had passed away Thursday in Bay City at the age of 38 years. Mrs. Ridley will be remembered as Miss Phoebe Lail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy Lail. She spent her girlhood days here and attended the Whittemore school. Funeral services were held in Bay City on Saturday and the remains brought to the Whittemore cemetery for interment.

Mrs. Jesse Chase still continues in a serious condition. She is confined to her bed with a partial cast on her neck which she will wear for three weeks.

There will be an all day meeting at the Latter Day Saint church, Sunday, May 15, starting at nine o'clock.

Several outside speakers will be present. A basket dinner will be served at noon. Everyone cordially invited.

Rev. and Mrs. H. Davis of Cassville attended the funeral of Rev. J. C. Pengally here Monday.

SYNOPSIS

James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade his beautiful foster-daughter, Leonora, from marrying Don Mason, young "rolling stone." He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother, Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the deathbed of her mother, who was loved by her father's baritone lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the return trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's show-down. When Nora suggests Lambert threaten disinheritance, Don agrees to the job, but before a month is over, his nerves are jumpy, he cannot sleep at night, he is too tired to go out much with Nora. Nora soothes him with her music. Nora grows quieter, and broods over Don, complains to her father of Ned's spying on him, and decides to rather than see Don's father to put an end to the futile experiment. James Lambert is obdurate and angry. Lambert tells her that if Don quits she will quit with him; that he will be through with her. He adds that if she tires of her bargain it will be useless to come to him for help. Later Don and Nora discuss the situation. Don promises to buck up and take life more calmly. "We'll stick it out," he says. With the coming of spring, Don is full of unrest and wanderlust, and takes long walks at night. One evening a poor girl speaks to him, and in his pity for her, he gives her money. A car passes at that moment, flashes headlights, and moves on. A terrific heat wave ushers in the summer, and Nora refuses to go to the country with her father. Ned, meanwhile, insinuates to her father about Don's evenings away from Nora, but Lambert refuses to listen. Meanwhile, Don broods over the undermining of his morale. At the height of the heat wave, when Don is finding everything insupportable, Ned speaks of having the goods on him, having seen him give a girl money. When Ned scolds at the true story of the episode, Don knocks him down, and is through. He calls Nora.

Would her father leave it just as it was, she wondered—just as they'd furnished it together for her sixteenth birthday? James was fastidious about such things. It was the one point on which they never clashed. What a time they had had over her rose-tiled bathroom! Her father had fussed. Each fixture must be the finest—the most perfect. The antique bed they had picked up at an auction in the country. How he had glowed over the satin-smooth mahogany—dear Dad! As for the rug—they had hunted the city over for that rug. It must be Oriental, James insisted, yet it must blend with the soft rose hangings at the windows. They had found it at last: an exquisite Persian that might have been woven for a queen's boudoir. Even Nora, thoughtless about money, had blinked at the price; and her father had laughed at her. . . .

Well, that was over! The girl took one long look and turned away. It was so dreadful to go without farewells. Even dear Martha Berry, James Lambert's housekeeper, who, Nora believed, loved her as devotedly as any mother, had left that morning to oversee the opening of the country house. How still everything seemed as she went downstairs! "As still," she murmured, "as if someone had just died here." Nora paused then, hand on the latch and said: "Good-by, dear, darling home. Good-by. I will come back—some day. . . ."

Her eyes were wet with tears when, a moment later, she told the chauffeur to drive her to James Lambert's office.

Don never heard the story of that interview, but, knowing his girl, he understood that she could not talk about it. For James in his anger had been unjust, the first time in all their years together. At the last Nora had said, her face curiously colorless as she stood with her back against the door:

"You are mistaken, Father. I am not ungrateful. I have been thoughtless sometimes, but I have never been ungrateful. Please believe that. I love you—terribly, perhaps more than I ever did before. It kills something in me to go like this—leaving you angry. But you have Ned, who is almost your whole world, Father; and Don has no one but me. Try after I'm gone, won't you, to see my side of it? Between us all we have done something to Don—hurt him unspcakably. He's lost faith in himself, and I've got to help him get it back. Without my help he might never get it back, Father. And I love him as you once loved my mother. Can't you remember that, Dad, and—and understand?"

Silence. A broad back turned to her.

"I—I am going now, Father. . . . Won't—won't you say good-by?"

And still only that dreadful silence, a silence which seemed, somehow, alive with tears. . . . A closing door. . . .

It was ten years before James heard her voice again.

CHAPTER VI

They went to Maine.

"It's the first time I can remember," Don told his bride, "when I haven't been crazy to get aboard a boat and see things—new things—places I've dreamed of. I don't understand myself, Nora. Is it only because I'm so let down? All I want now is to escape from this heat and turmoil—to lie on my back in the cool woods and look up at the sky, or watch big waves roll in on a hard beach. I've got to do something like that, dear, until this fiendish alarm clock stops ringing in my ears. I'll admit it scares me. Let's go to Maine."

"But your hard-saved thousand will melt away so fast at a hotel, Don," objected Nora with new-born caution.

Don glanced at her, so sweet, so young, so infinitely precious, and for the first time in his twenty-seven care-free years, a sense of responsibility crept over him—responsibility for Nora's happiness.

"It's more than a thousand now," he answered gravely. "Have you forgotten that I've been holding down a steady job? And a hotel isn't necessary, is it—even on one's honeymoon? You see, there's a place I can take you—a studio belonging to a New York artist. You've heard me speak of Ven, Nora. He's abroad just now; but I'm always at liberty to go there. Besides—" (a smile sprang into his expressive eyes) "it happens to hold the 'worldly goods' with which I've recently endowed washed away in winter; yet it's far enough from the beach where the summer people bathe to give us privacy. You'll love it, Nora, once you get the hang of things; and I'll do the cooking. Cooking is one of my real accomplishments, as you'll soon find out."

"Which sounds," she laughed, "as if you doubted that it's one of mine!"

Nora never forgot their arrival at "the shack" next afternoon. It had been raining all day; and though rain was needed to cool the air, it added neither cheer nor comfort to the atmosphere of that one-time fish house, long unoccupied, covered with dust and cobwebs, stifling now with the accumulated heat of weeks.

If James Lambert's pampered daughter needed discipline, she got it in the moment when her new husband unlocked the door and thrust her hurriedly inside out of a driving rain; and it is to Nora's everlasting credit that Don did not suspect the consternation that surged through her loyal heart. The charm of the place which she was to know later, was wholly lost amid the gloom and darkness of that stormy day.

Don having seen the room with sunlight dancing across its worn old floor, never realized just how it looked to Leonora. In that first moment she wanted to cry out: "Oh, Don, we can't stay here! Not now, now!" To one reared in the soft lap of luxury, such a proceeding seemed well nigh impossible. Indeed, the words of protest were on her lips, when, glancing up quickly in dismay, she saw her husband's face.

And it was a transfused face. It was the face of a tired small boy who has reached home. It brought a lump into Nora's throat. It brought swift tears into her eyes.

Said Don, throwing open a casement window at the back: "Isn't this wonderful, Nora? The view on a clear day is simply marvelous. Isn't that fireplace a corker? It takes in a four-foot log—not that one wants to consider fires just now! But we'll cool off soon as the air blows through here. Lucky the rain's not coming from all directions as I've seen it do. We'll have things snug long before bedtime, and—"

He turned, caught her close, hungrily. "Oh, Nora, tell me I'm not dreaming! It's so heavenly to be away from all that clamor—to be where it's quiet—to be back here, dearest, with you—with you!"

And what could a loving woman say to that?

No hardships or inconveniences are ever so hard and inconvenient to man, as they are to woman. In that moment Nora grasped this first lesson she was to learn of marriage, and was forever thankful that no word of hers had cast a shadow on Don's happiness.

For things were not so bad as she had feared. Slipping into a paint-stained smock discovered in a closet, Don declared cheerfully that when all else failed he could always earn their living as a houseman. It was amazing how rapidly he did away with all that dust. And what seemed stranger still to the bewildered bride, he appeared to derive pleasure from the performance! The revolting cobwebs vanished as if by magic while Nora was hunting through her luggage for some costume suited to the task in hand.

"But I didn't realize the crying need of aprons in the life of a married woman," she admitted with chagrin. "Where are the towels, Don? Perhaps I can do my share if I pin one 'round me. I mustn't my wife, and perhaps she'd like the chance to look 'em over!"

"Oh! Nora, tell me I'm not dreaming."

Nora laughed at the idea; but questioned, not without curiosity: "What sort of worldly goods, Don?"

"Just wait and see, young lady!" he responded. "Honestly, Nora, I couldn't get along without that shack. When I'm 'over the hills and far away' and happen to stumble on something too beautiful to resist, I simply ship it to Maine (provided I have sufficient cash to buy the thing!) and the er—retired fisherman who looks after the place for Ven, stores it away."

"I never heard of a retired fisherman before, my dear. I thought those salty specimens kept right on fishing until they drowned! And this studio you mention sounds like a storage warehouse. Have you left a space where your friend the artist can set up his easel?"

Don smiled.

"He doesn't need it. Three years ago he bought an island farther up the coast, and has a bully place there. If I'd let him, Nora, Ven would give me the shack outright."

"Why should he, Don? Is the man indebted to you?"

"He seems to think so; though it's utter nonsense, of course. I had the luck to save his oldest girl from drowning; but it was all in the day's work and his gratitude was the only reward I wanted. You've seen Ven's work, Nora. He did those marvelous murals in—"

"Not Carl Venable?" gasped Leonora. "Don't tell me the Ven you've talked about so casually is he?"

"The very same, lady," Don grinned at her surprise. "I was coast guard down there one summer. Didn't you know it?"

Nora sighed helplessly.

"Some day, my dear, I'll ask for a list of the things you haven't been. It would be considerably shorter than one of those you have. And does this shack you mention contain the creature comforts? The subject interests me."

Don closed his eyes a moment trying to see things with Nora's vision. Then he said dubiously: "I've always thought it a wonderful place, dear; but you—Well, I can't quite see how it will look to you. There's an oil stove for cooking, and water piped to the back door, if you call that comfort. Ven used it only for a studio. Originally it was an old fish house, I believe."

Though the girl's heart sank at this description, one wouldn't have guessed it from her instant: "Why that sounds fine, Don! Is it close to the ocean?"

His eyes brightened at this carefully simulated enthusiasm.

"As near as it can be and not get spoiled my wedding gown, you know."

"I'll say you mustn't!" Don swung down from a step-ladder to embrace his Nora with all the ardor of a brand new husband.

"When you say 'wedding gown,' woman, it sends a delicious shiver up my spine. And don't you worry about the lack of aprons. Jim Perkins' general store up at the Port supplies every need in the life of a modern housewife from bathing suits to vanity cases. The towels are, or were anyhow, in a bureau drawer; and this filthy job is mine!"

The sun broke through the clouds at last, and with its cheerful rays streaming in at the open casement, the oil stove seemed less dismaying—the lack of running water something that could be endured—for a time, at least! After all, nothing mattered except this chance to help Don back to his normal, sunny self, thought Nora—nothing, perhaps, save the parting with her father.

The sadness of that parting still hovered near, when after a supper of bread and milk ("The first bread and milk supper I've had since I was six years old!" admitted Nora) they tramped a half mile up the beach, and from a sand dune saw a full moon rise out of the sea. Sitting there quietly, watching that ever widening path of gold, hearing the soft, low murmur of breaking waves, Don felt that his cup of joy was running over. He said, drawing the girl closer: "Happy, beloved?"

"Happy," said Nora.

He turned to search her face in the growing brightness, conscious of a reservation in the answer; and, loving her greatly, Don understood.

"Try to forget your father for a little while," he told her. "For you to worry won't help him now, Nora; and—and it hurts you."

The fingers clasping his own tightened a little.

"But he's suffering, Don. It would be cruel if I forgot that altogether. I wonder—"

"Yes?" he urged after a silence.

"Would you mind if—I wrote to him once in a while, dear?"

"Why should I mind, Nora?"

"But he's unjust to you, Don. Terribly, terribly unjust. I couldn't have you feel that I wasn't loyal!"

"Oh, my dear! Haven't you given me proof of your loyalty? Write to your father of course, if it will make you happier. Who am I to deny him the comfort of your letters? He's got only the shadow—poor man!—while I have the substance! Yes, write, even if you receive no answers. He's angry now; but he'll treasure those letters just the same."

Not for years was Don to know how true a prophecy that was.

Nora wrote next day, wrote as she might have a year before, ignoring utterly their tragic parting.

"Dad dear, we're here on the coast of Maine, occupying a studio (it goes by the classy name of 'shack'!) that belongs to a friend of Don's, Carl Venable, whose work you think so wonderful. It's a darling place, right on the dunes with the broad Atlantic for a front yard, and a glimpse of pine covered hills behind us. I'm out on the tiny porch (just big enough to hold a bridal couple, Dad!) breathing in hope lungfuls of cool, salt air, and hoping you're not suffocating in the city. And from the delicious odor issuing from within, I judge that the fish chowder my husband (I) has promised me for dinner, is in the making. It's a relief to find him a good cook, Father. Otherwise we might suffer from starvation or indigestion or something. Why in the world didn't you send me to cooking school instead of college?"

Strange Pueblo Homes Found on Buttes of Utah May Have Been 1,000 Years Old

Discovery of old Indian dwellings of a type hitherto unreported has cast new light on the history of early inhabitants of Utah, according to Prof. John P. Gillin, University of Utah archeologist and anthropologist.

The dwellings found in Nine Mile canyon, fifty miles east of Price, Utah, were reported by a university archeological expedition headed by Gillin. The houses were located on low buttes from three to four hundred feet above the canyon floor. They were constructed with adobe brick foundations, slanting log beams and a flat log roof thatched with willows.

Rock-lined fireplaces found inside the houses were another previously unreported feature of dwellings of that age. The houses were built by Pueblo people about a thousand years ago, Gillin estimated, and the type of house indicates the builders were well advanced.

Simple rock "lookout" houses were found on almost inaccessible pinnacles 2,000 feet above the canyon floor.

Gillin advanced the theory that nomadic tribes, possibly Utes from Uintah Basin, forced the Pueblos from the canyon floor up to their butte homes and that the "lookout" houses on the pinnacles were built for sentries and as impregnable fortresses in case of attacks.

All the houses found had been burned, indicating, in Gillin's opinion, that the Pueblos had grown weary of the pressure exerted by their nomadic enemies and withdrew, burning their dwellings as they left. It is also possible that they were fired by attackers or destroyed by lightning, he said.

One of the unsolved mysteries in the archeological study of Utah is why the Pueblos disappeared after developing a fairly high state of civilization.

The Cottonmouth Moccasin

The cottonmouth moccasin is one of the most venomous of United States snakes. It gets its name from the cotton-white inner lining of its mouth. Found in southeastern states, it is a cannibal, eats other snakes. In captivity, it outlives all other snakes. Though its poison kills when injected by the snake, that same venom is used to combat a blood disease of humans called "haemophilia," which is uncontrolled bleeding.

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Describes the ACID- and ALKALINE-ASH FOODS and Explains Their Role in Maintaining the ACID-BASE BALANCE of the Body ★ ★ ★

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City.

ACIDITY is the topic of the hour. On every side we hear people complaining that they have too much acid in their systems, that they suffer from acid stomach, acid headaches, acid mouth, acidosis. In fact, most adults fancy themselves victims of a great battle between acid and alkaline forces, with the acid having the better of it.

They confuse gastric acidity—which is entirely normal, for the healthy stomach is always strongly acid—with the potential acidity of foods which leave an acid residue following digestion. And many of them are convinced that they should take drastic steps to overcome the danger of acidosis.

The Vogue of Acidosis

There are fashions in disease, just as in dress, home furnishings and automobiles.

Ten years ago, we heard much about the evils of auto-intoxication, and it was some time before people realized that they had been misled by the extreme claims of those who had some sort of remedy to sell. And now it is acidosis that is the most talked of complaint. Friends caution one another against this or that food, with the mistaken idea that it causes or aggravates an acid condition. Food faddists have frightened thousands by suggesting that acidosis is brought about by mixing various kinds of foods.

Health Endangered

Indeed, we have come to a point where the fear of a so-called acid condition is assuming proportions which indicate the possibility of real trouble unless the American people get the true facts and put aside these foolish delusions.

Physiologists believe that fear and worry have a detrimental effect on digestion, and, in turn, on the general health. Thus eating meals in constant fear of acidity may upset the digestion and bring about the very symptoms that you are trying to avoid. One well-known authority contends that perhaps 90 per cent of digestive distress, attributed to the kind or combinations of food eaten, is actually due to unfavorable mental or emotional states, and other causes such as over-eating, even when fatigued, or consuming at one meal too many foods that are difficult to digest. It, therefore, becomes apparent that thousands of people are contributing to their own discomfort as a result of fear, ignorance, or a blind belief in misleading claims which are opposed to scientific facts.

Acidosis Uncommon

The danger is not from acidosis, but from the fear of this bugbear, and from self-medication in the belief that certain remedies are required to overcome a fancied condition. For in spite of the large amount of acid produced in metabolism, the blood normally remains remarkably constant and slightly alkaline, due to a highly efficient buffer system.

Cannot Trust Your Tongue

The sense of taste cannot be relied upon as a guide in determining which foods are acid and which alkaline. For example, cereals, which are bland to the taste, have an acid reaction following digestion. Bread, likewise, is acid forming, although you would not suspect that fact from its taste. On the other hand, potatoes, though somewhat similar to bread in flavor and food value, are one of our most valuable alkaline foods, and dried lima beans are the most highly alkaline of any food known.

If it seems curious that such bland foods should have an acid ash, you may find it even harder to believe that oranges, lemons, grapefruit, peaches and tomatoes, which taste acid in the mouth, leave an alkaline ash following digestion. But the fact is that the body performs a clever bit of chemical engineering and the final effect on the blood is alkaline.

Homemaker's Responsibility

A balanced diet must include sufficient base-forming foods to neutralize and counter-balance the effects of the acids formed in metabolism.

That is one reason why it is so important for the homemaker to provide her family with plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, in addition to the necessary meat, fish, eggs and cereals.

tabolism, the blood normally remains remarkably constant and slightly alkaline, due to a highly efficient buffer system.

Perhaps you wonder, if this is so, why doctors and dietitians talk so much about the acid-base balance.

The Acid-Base Balance

To understand this phrase, you must know that every food leaves an ash when burned in the body, just as ashes remain when coal or wood is burned in a furnace. In the body, the ash consists of valuable minerals which are required in large amounts to maintain optimal health.

Some foods, such as meat, fish, eggs and cereals, leave an acid ash because the predominating minerals are phosphorus, chlorine and sulphur. Other foods, chiefly milk and most fruits and vegetables, leave an alkaline ash because the remaining minerals are principally calcium, magnesium, potassium and sodium. These are the base-forming foods.

Besides the alkaline ash and acid ash foods, there is a group of foods, including sugar, cornstarch and purified fats, which are so highly refined that no minerals remain after they are burned; and some other foods, such as butter and cream, leave a balance of the two types of ash. These are known as neutral foods.

predominate, at least slightly, in the diet over acid-forming foods. Some authorities believe that this may be due not so much to their effect on the acid-base balance as to the fact that they provide such splendid amounts of vitamins, minerals and fiber.

However, one must not make the mistake of becoming so enthusiastic over building a highly alkaline diet that one overlooks good foods necessary to round out a balanced diet.

To those homemakers who take seriously the important job of feeding a family, and wish to be correctly informed, I shall gladly send a chart showing which foods are alkaline and which acid. It can be used as a helpful guide in planning a balanced diet.

Send for this chart and increase your food knowledge. In the meantime, don't under any circumstances allow misguided individuals to frighten you into joining the vast army of acid-minded people who are so concerned over the possibilities of acidosis that they haven't time to enjoy life.

Questions Answered

Mrs. R. McK.—Generally speaking, the ideal weight for men and women over thirty is their normal weight at the age of thirty. From that time on, the scales should be watched, and the food intake reduced as soon as a gain is noticed. When maturity is reached, food is no longer required to support growth, and unless muscular activity is maintained at a high level, the total energy requirement will gradually decline.

Miss M. V.—Indeed I am not against the eating of fried foods, except in abnormal conditions where, for some reason, the fat intake must be restricted. The moderate use of fried foods, which have been properly cooked, makes the diet palatable and interesting.

Mrs. S. T. R.—No, egg whites most certainly are not toxic, except to people who have an allergy toward this food. For all normal individuals, they offer an excellent source of protein.

BEAUTY CONTEST for PLANTS!

Have you ever wondered why most of the finest gardens in your locality are grown from Ferry's Seeds? Here's why:

All Ferry's Seeds are the result of many years of careful breeding, selecting and improving. In developing a new strain, the seed experts of the Ferry-Morse Seed-Breeding Institute hold "plant beauty contests" to select the finest plants. Their seeds are planted for the next crop. Thus, year after year, weaknesses are eliminated and desirable qualities encouraged.

Select your flower and vegetable seeds from the Ferry's Seeds store display. All have been tested this year for germination and tested for true-ness to type. 5c a packet and up. Ferry-Morse Seed Co., Detroit, San Francisco.

Golf's Golden Jubilee Being Marked in U. S.

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

The next time you dub a drive or slice one into the rough, blame it on two fellows in Yonkers, N. Y. They're responsible, in a way, for if they hadn't started playing golf back in 1888 and organized the first club in the United States, you probably wouldn't be worrying about par.

All of which means that golf in America is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this year.

Bobby Jones, Golf's High Priest in the Fabulous 20's.

A treasured possession is a reproduction of Proctor Knott, winner of the Futurity at Sheephead Bay in 1888 and an equine favorite of Kentuckians of that day. Names certain to stir the memories of older horse fanciers include Ryskyk's Hambletonian; Billy D., the trotting gelding; Foxhall; Goldsmith Maid with her trainer and driver, Budd Doble; Sidney Dillon and Major Delmar in their long remembered Memphis match, and Luey, noted trotting mare of the seventies.

A front yard in Ipswich, Mass., gave up a reproduction of a completed steeplechase jump. "Lady Suffolk," a print of the famous mare by John Smith and dating back to 1852, was a contribution from a stable group and from an inn near Saratoga came two lithographs, "Disputed Heat" and "Ready for the Trot."

Old Racing Prints

A $150,000 collection of rare old racing prints, gathered during the last 30 years in a search through old barns, dingy basements, stables, attics, and curio shops has been placed on exhibit at the spa at French Lick Springs, Ind.

The lithographs featuring famous race horses, trotters and pacers of by-gone days, their owners and trainers represents a rare sports collection. Of the 100 prints already hung in the hotel's main corridor, about a third bear the signature of Currier and Ives. The collection was gathered through the years by Thomas D. Taggart, Jr., noted sportsman.

Out of a half-forgotten Indianapolis barn came "The Jockey's Prayer," printed in 1868 by Rae Smith of New York and such choice relics as Ben Herring's "Flying a Brook."

"Lady Suffolk," a print of the famous mare by John Smith and dating back to 1852, was a contribution from a stable group and from an inn near Saratoga came two lithographs, "Disputed Heat" and "Ready for the Trot."

Reid was elected president and John B. Upham, secretary-treasurer. The others—Harry O. Talmadge, Kingman M. Putnam and Harry Holbrook—made up the board of governors.

New members joined the club. Then the city of Yonkers decided to extend its street system into their course and they found refuge in an old apple orchard. Soon they were called the "Old Apple Tree Gang." Two more moves marked the club's progress, but by 1894 it was established and golf had found a definite place for itself in American life.

Steady advances have marked the game's history ever since. Today—50 years after its introduction—golf has become part of our language and golf balls and clubs are sold in the corner drug store.

By 1900 there were 1,000 golf clubs in America and the game was changing. The rubber-cored ball succeeded the gutta-percha ball and gave the average man an opportunity he had been praying for—the chance to drive with the best of them.

Take Britishers

National pride in the feats of our golfers was a natural development. Walter J. Travis made the headlines in 1904 when he won the British amateur championship and first major league game recently he outpitched Red Ruffing of the New York Yankees. He has been in organized baseball since his graduation from high school in 1935.

Another prominent major leaguer whose dad saw fast time is Myril Hoag, outfielder of the Yankees. He is the son of Tracy Hoag who, while he spent most of his career in the Coast league, saw some service in the majors. Then there's Dixie Walker, outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, son of Evert (Dixie) Walker, the old Washington pitcher; Billy Sullivan, Jr., whose father was a White Sox catcher of 30 years ago and a battery mate of the great Ed Walsh; Bobby Mattick, Jr., of the Cubs, son of "Chink" Mattick of the White Sox and Cards, and Karl Maggert, Jr., of the Boston Bees. His father was with Pittsburgh and the Athletics.

Three sets of brothers are drawing pay checks in the major leagues this year. They are the Waners, the Ferrells and the Di Maggio's. Lloyd and Paul Waner do outfield duty for the Pittsburgh Pirates; Wes and Rick Ferrell are pitcher and catcher, respectively, for the Washington Senators. Joe Di Maggio, of course, is the Yankees' ace outfielder. His brother, Vince, is centerfielder for the Boston Bees.

Remember When

The old Cubs won 116 games in a single season and set a record that even the modern New York Yankees haven't approached. . . . Big league ball players sat on a bench right out in the open, instead of in a dug-out and when club houses were on the field instead of back of the grandstand. . . . Jack Britton and Ted Kid Lewis fought each other 22 times and always drew packed houses because they gave a great fight each time. . . . It took three downs to gain five yards in football, the old flying wedge was used and a field goal counted four points. . . .

Lace Ranks High in Daytime Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LACE! There's magic in the word. It is enchanting to wear by night, it is charming and wearable in a practical way by day. Lace brings into the picture that feminine allure or glamour (if you are not tired of the word) that fashion tells us must be this season. According to latest style decree lace will carry you through sartorially triumphant wherever you go from sun-up to sun-down and on into the social swirl of the midnight hours.

As a matter of fact lace has come to be regarded as so all-important it enters into every phase of fashion. To state it even more definitely, be it daytime dress, evening gown, tailored suit, jacket, coat, cape or bolero, be it blouse, negligee, sports frock, be it hat, bag, gloves (showing lace mitts for summer) even the shoes you wear, be it frilly jabot, or any type of dainty neckwear, or be it accessories galore, if made of lace rest assured it is indisputably style correct.

Particularly intriguing are the daytime fashions that are being developed in lace for immediate as well as coming summer wear. Paris couturiers, in their recent collections, showed frock after frock with pleated lace skirt, just such as we are picturing centered in the group. It adheres to the lace-tailored idea yet because of its being lace it is dressy enough for bridge or any social afternoon occasion. By the way, you'll love the new lace-pleated skirts, for of all materials there's something about lace that makes it pleat up most effectively. Most of the lace afternoon dresses with pleated skirts give very simple tailored styling to the waist or blouse or bodice top (as you choose to express it). The dress pictured is no exception to the rule. Keep in mind, whether you make your own clothes or whether you buy ready-made, that the pleated skirt, the tailored collar and belt, as well as the pique bow as here shown are features that are new and distinctive in a lace of sheer pattern. Francevramant, who is noted for her tailored and street clothes, made the youthful dress of navy and white mixed wool lace shown to the right in the picture. It was featured at the lace ball given in Miami as a fashion future for spring and summer. The white pique which is used for the narrow yoke and collar is repeated as a decoration on the sash belt. A front bandeau of flowers tells you that Paris milliners are sponsoring flower-trimmed hats this season.

The popular two-piece dress is interpreted delightfully in lace and sheer crepe as illustrated to the left in the group. The jacket is made of sheer lace that is heavily corded and bound around all the edges with the matching crepe, such as makes the pleated skirt.

The idea of a bolero of lace with pleated crepe skirt is also going big. This twosome makes a most desirable number in one's wardrobe, for it invites the wearing with it of a dainty frilly lingerie blouse, perhaps an exquisitely hand-tucked bustle, such as is destined to play a stellar role in the current fashion picture.

As to lace in the evening mode the biggest news out of recent Paris openings points to the high fashion of Chantilly lace sheer to an exquisite degree, combined with other fabrics, notably marquisette, mouseline de soie or the new silk organdie which is so sheer and crisp and altogether lovely it seems almost unreal.

CORDED WASH WEAVE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Tailored simplicity and correctness marks this attractive sports outfit of fine ottoman cotton, with a sleeveless bolero jacket of knitted wool. Fine corded cotton is modern in every sense of the word since corded and ribbed fabrics are "tops" this season. The corded cotton used for this costume benefits in that it has been sanforized—shrunk—will not shrink no matter what provocation. Modernness of this outfit extends to every point of style, giving free swinging skirt, short slightly flaring sleeves, slim snug fitting waist and affording perfect freedom of action.

LOVELY LADY NOW LEADER OF FASHION

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

"Glamour and elegance, romance and sentiment are in fashion again!" according to Miss Thelma Roberts, nationally noted style authority, who is completing a coast to coast survey of American fashions.

"The American woman often thinks that she merely follows fashions," said Miss Roberts. "Actually, she sets these fashion trends herself. Her changing activities change the fashion trend the whole world follows."

Summarizing the recent Paris fashion openings, Miss Roberts said: "Put away your pet inhibitions, your shy reserve and negative personality! Be your own sweet self. For this year the lovely lady is the leader of fashion. The gracious woman whose charm and femininity once marked her as 'individual' has become today's smartest example of fashion."

"This summer we'll wear poetic crinolines and dance to moonlight waltzes. We'll wear trailing wisps of tulle wound round our shoulders, and masses of flowers in our hair. We'll look our loveliest in slim hanging chiffons that seem to smooth away those extra curves, and we'll wear frothy lace blouses and hand-embroidered sports frocks and dainty frills of organdie and lace on all our daytime frocks."

Detail on Shoes

Either still shoes or squared backs, heels and toes is the line of new spring shoes, which are designed with amusing detail to go with the new frocks.

My Friend Joseph

By Lillian Oakley
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

THOUGH a strong wind was blowing, driving sheets of rain across my front yard, I wasn't surprised to see Joseph, my little seven-year-old neighbor, making his way up the front walk. Yesterday was my birthday and he was here when the postman brought me a five-pound box of candy, and Joseph has a weakness for good chocolates.

He comes puffing in and while he sheds his waterproof coat he looks around for the candy. But all the candy spots are vacant. My bonbon resistance is below normal on bad days and I have put all the sweets away and resolved not to bring them out for a week. But now from past experience I know that without once asking me for any candy Joseph will soon have me bringing out my five-pound box and urging him to take all he wants. He has an indirect method all his own that never conflicts with any of the rules of etiquette and always gets him what he wants.

He pulls a low stool in front of mine, looks up at me and says, "Guess who I'd be if I could be anybody I wanted to be?"

This is easy for he always wants to be Tarzan or Dizzy Dean. But I'm all wrong.

"Not today," he says with emphasis, "today I'd be 'Laddin An' His Lamp."

"And guess what's the first thing I'd tell that old genie to do after I rubbed my lamp?"

This isn't really meant to be a question so I simply sit still and look interested.

"I'd tell him to build my mother the finest house in town an' furnish it full of the finest furniture in town an' have a hot supper on the table ready for her when she got home from work. And I'd make him give me some money an' I'd go down town an' pay all of her bills an' put 'em on the table by her plate." He finishes exultantly.

Joseph has no father and the bills that have to be paid at the end of every month hang heavy over his head.

He clasps both little hands around one knee and rocks himself backwards and forwards on the stool and smiles over this happy surprise for his mother. Then he looks around at me as if afraid I am feeling neglected.

"Then," he says with enthusiasm, "I'd rub my lamp an' when that old genie came I'd tell him to bring me a motorcycle just like the road cops ride only littler. An' a police uniform an' a machine gun that could shoot forever an' a five-pound box of candy just like the one you got for your birthday yesterday. And," he adds with a smile that shows all of his dimples, "I'd bring you down about half of the candy."

The object of his visit has been attained. And he leaves with his pockets full of my birthday chocolates, the rain having let up somewhat.

"What Knows He of England Who Only England Knows?"

"Even after months in England my wife sometimes had to call upon the housemaid to translate some item in the laundry list, or to interpret between her and the grocery boy," declares Mr. Harry A. A child's underwaist is a 'bodice,' while rubber boots are 'Wellingtons.' The word 'sweater' still strikes many of the English as a trifle low-class and odiferous; they call it a 'jersey,' 'jumper,' 'pullover,' or 'cardigan.'

"In the draper's shop (which means drygoods store) unbleached muslin is 'calico' and calico is 'cottonprint.' Cheese cloth is 'butter muslin,' and instead of using cutting flannel for a

Money doesn't grow on trees. Just the same, it's the smart birds that get it.

Name Is Poetry

It seemed curious that any place should be named "Llanfairpwllgwynglgogochyryndrobwllllyandysiliogogoch." Yet a little Welsh village bears this 58-lettered name. It is a locality of charm and beauty. Llan is "church," Fair is "of Mary," Pwll Gwyngyll is "the pool of White hazels." Goger is "rather near," while Chwyrn Drobwll is "the swift whirlpool," and Tysilio gogo guch is "of Tysilio of the red cave." Is it not therefore suggestive of romance and beauty enough to visit the village of the Church of St. Mary by the Pool of White hazels near the swift whirlpool of St. Tysilio's Church of the Red Cave?—Detroit News.

child's pajamas one buys 'winceyette' and asks for a 'sleeping suit.' A spool of thread is a 'reel of cotton.' An American who asks for crackers will get firecrackers or a package of those Christmas paper bonbons that explode when pulled. In England a cracker is a 'biscuit,' and biscuit is a roll. A muffin is something else again, and cookies are as unknown as if the word were Persian.

"Our kind of bacon is 'streaky rashers'; a slice of ham is a 'gammon rasher,' and the best cut of beef is a 'piece of topside.' Gasoline is 'petrol,' kerosene is 'paraffin,' and paraffin is 'paraffin wax.' An English cook does not rinse the dishes, she 'swills' them. When my wife told the nursemaid to bathe the children, or to give them a bath, the maid proceeded to 'bath' them or give them a 'bathe.'"

Save 25% WITH The New Firestone CONVOY TIRE

Firestone Can Give You Such a High Quality Tire At Such a LOW PRICE

Because Firestone saves money by controlling and securing rubber and cotton at the source and by more efficient manufacturing and distribution. These savings make possible more extra values at low prices.

New High Quality—First choice rubber and cotton selected that conforms to Firestone's high standards and rigid specifications.

Long Mileage—Safe, silent tread design made of tough, slow wearing rubber that assures long mileage. Sturdy bars and rugged notches give protection against skidding.

Blowout Protection—Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone Patented Gum-Dipping process. Every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber which counteracts internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

Puncture Protection—Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread protects against punctures.

Let your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store put a set of these large sized, rugged, long wearing Firestone Convoy Tires on your car today, then your car will be ready for trouble-free summer driving.

We note by "The Crucible," the journal of the Bay City Junior College, that Isabelle Dease has been elected to Beta Gamma chapter of Pi Theta Kappa. The Phi Theta Kappa is the national honorary society of junior colleges. In order to secure this honor, it is necessary to be nominated by the Educational Policies Committee, and then to receive the affirmative vote of each member of the faculty. A total of fourteen new members were selected this year at Bay City.

A recent letter and certificate from the accrediting bureau of the University of Michigan inform us that our school has been placed upon the accredited list of the University for an indefinite period; that is, for as long as the necessary standards are maintained.

Music

The music department is presenting its Spring Concert, Thursday, May 19, at the school. The program consists of selections by the band, orchestra and glee club, as well as solo numbers by various members of these organizations. An admission fee will be charged, which will help pay for four additional band uniforms recently purchased. We extend an invitation to everyone, to attend.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Leona Monroe, who left school in the winter and has been attending the Vine school on M 55, has returned.
The eighth grade has been reading spring stories and poems and so in conjunction we have a short examination of and a few experiments with flowers each day.

During the fall we weighed and measured ourselves. During this week we repeated it and each one of us made a graph to show our gain or loss. All show a substantial gain in weight except two, who have lost three pounds during the winter.

One day last week the ball team from our room played the Vine and Greenwood schools. We won with a score of 15 to 10. Bob Rollin pitched the last three innings and was good. Roy DePitty pushed out a double, a triple and a home run.

Third and Fourth Grades
Allen Brown, Janet Musolf and Mary Ann Nelson had perfect spelling papers last week.

Mary Ann Nelson, of the fourth grade had the highest score in a Dearborn Arithmetic test which was given a short time ago and Jean Smith had the highest score in the third grade.

Mary Ann Nelson was the winner of a spell down Wednesday afternoon. Beverly Bigelow and Peter Cuniff were absent this week.

First and Second Grades
The "Brownies" have finished their "Red Deer, the Indian Boy" reading books and are re-reading the stories. They wish the books were much longer.

Our bird study is proving very interesting. "Burgess' Bird Book" is very helpful for bird descriptions. Everyone is enjoying the bird songs and calls which they are learning in music class.

We are sorry to report that too many people have been tardy this month for us to have our special party at Memorial Day time. However, those who do have perfect records will again receive treats of some kind.

Everyone seems to be enjoying the two lovely geraniums which we have in our room.

will make things plenty interesting for the rest of the teams in the circuit. They will be a team worth watching.

In the National division, West Branch will invade Standish and hope to start in again this year where they left off last season and cop top honors in their division, but Standish says they have just the team to nip them in the bud and jar any notion which they may have about top honors.

Bently will open at Beaverton. These two teams, from past performances, usually put on a good show when opposing one another and should have a real battle in Sunday's contest.

Sterling, another newcomer in the league, will make an attempt to knock off Gladwin, a team, who in the past has been tough for any opponent.

Wicklund is the seventh team in the National division. They are also a newcomer. They are a team of which little is known, but promise to place a bunch of players on the field who will give a good account of themselves. They drew the open date for Sunday.

Last Saturday's Festival game was won by Tawas City by the score of 8 to 3. Neither team was out in full force, but, regardless of the cold weather, which wasn't enjoyed by neither fans nor players, some good plays were made. Some of Henry Newman's new additions look like real prospects and if they continue to deliver as they did in Saturday's game, Tawas City fans can look forward to boasting of a good team.

So come on fans! Let's start the season right with the boys and help them duplicate this win. Let's come out Sunday and see if mayor John Coyle can get the "first pitch over." And should he get it over, can ex-mayor John A. Brugger catch it? These questions will be answered at the Athletic Field Sunday. We can make this a good season with your help.

Notice

The annual school census of all children and young people between the ages of five and twenty will be taken the last twenty days of May. When the enumerator comes to your home please have the correct dates of birth ready. At this time the census of all crippled children is taken from birth to twenty years of age, in order that they may receive medical attention as early as possible.
Margaret E. Worden,
County School Commissioner.

Health Notes

The number of cases of measles reported to the United States Public Health Service for the week ending March 5 was approximately one and a half times the number reported in the corresponding weeks of 1934 and 1935—the highest "measles years" of the past decade. In that week 41,011 cases were reported from 46 states and the District of Columbia as compared with 38,903 cases of the preceding week, and with 37,919 cases for the peak week of 1935 the next highest weekly incidence within the past 12 years. The highest annual incidence of measles reported since 1915 was for the year 1934, however, the highest weekly incidence of that year totaled 38,362 cases. The six states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin reported 60 per cent of the week's total cases of measles.

"Measles, smallpox and influenza rank as the nation's most contagious diseases, and for only one of the three—smallpox—is there a first class preventive," Surgeon General Parren pointed out in a news release dated March 9. "With measles, however, convalescent serum offers a real hope. If given within the first few days after exposure, it should prevent measles in about half the infants under one year of age who would otherwise get the disease from being in the same family in which a case of measles has developed. This is the most dangerous age in which to have measles.

"In older children a smaller number of the expected cases would be prevented by the serum. The whole blood of one of the parents of the child, though not as effective as the serum from some one freshly convalescent from the disease, is of value. Protection from either source is short-lived, however, and needs to be renewed if a fresh case develops in the family some weeks later."
