The Turner baseball team invaded Tawas City last Sunday and won over the local team by a score of seven to six. The local boys helped them along by booting the ball when it would do the most damage. Four errors were charged against the homesters to say nothing of the misjudged fly balls and wrong throws which could not be classed as errors on the score card. However, the Tawas City lads would not be counted out without a fight but fought back gamely. Coming to bat in the ninth inning with the score seven to two against them, they maneuvered around and scored four runs, and the fifth and tying run was thrown out at the plate on a very close play to end the rally and also the ball game. There are some who think that a reversed decision on the fatal play would have been a just decision judging from the catcher's position at the plate and where the runner was tagged. But the game is over and will have to stand as is. After the game the Tawas City team gathered at the GHQ restaurant where they were supper guests of Chas. Moeller, and in talking over the game, they said, "The season is young, don't count us out yet, we have pulled through harder scrapes than which seem to be ahead of us now. We get another chance at Turner and hope to profit by today's mistakes. So thanks Charlie for the treat, we will play our best and try to win the rest of the games." So what do you say fans? Let's stick by the boys and help them win the rest of the games.

Turner was held scoreless in the first inning. Tawas scored two runs in their turn at bat on a hit batsman a single, a double and an error.

Turner countered with four runs in the second on three singles, a double a base on balls, an error, a couple of misjudged fly balls which fell for hits and some wrong throws to the infield.

Three more runs were scored in the sixth in much the same manner as in the second. Three singles, a base on balls, an error and some more poor throwing gave Turner their final runs which proved sufficient to win the game.

As has been said, Tawas trailed by five runs when they took their turn at bat in the ninth inning. Moeller was safe on an error, E. Libka, batting for Richcreek, sent a sharp grounder to the third baseman which bounded off his glove. Zollweg batted for Kasischke and walked which filled the bases, Roach grounded out scoring Moeller, Davis walked, Laidlaw grounded out scoring Libka.

Sommerfield-Timreck

A wedding distinguished by simple appointments took place Sunday afternoon, May 29, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Michael Sommerfield at which their daughter, Myrna Lou, and Dr. Harold Arthur Timreck of Washington, D. C. spoke their vows; Rev. Sommerfield read the service in the presence of only the immediate families.

Baskets of spring flowers were used throughout the rooms harmonizing beautifully with the gowns of the bride and her attendant.

A graceful robe of dusty peach satin over which was draped a redingote of silk organza in the same shade was worn by Miss Sommerfield. The redingote was fashioned on princess lines, with fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and full circular skirt with short train. Tiny self covered buttons trimmed the front from neck to waistline where the skirt fell in folds to the waist in front and was held in place by a wreath of orange blossom Johanna Hill roses, showered with sweetpeas, formed the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. O. W. Mitton, an matron-of-honor was the bride's only attendant. Self-figured brocaded mousseline de soie, in a shade of pink, fashioned her frock, with it's full circular skirt, and long tunic, short sleeves, and tailored collar. Her sandals were pale blue, also her hat which was lace with a wide tulle brim. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and sweetpeas harmonizing with her frock.

Dr. Timreck was assisted by Dr. O. W. Mitton, of East Tawas, as best man.

Following the ceremony, dinner was served at Gifford's Restaurant. The table was centered with a beautifully decorated bride's cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Sweetpeas in low crystal bowls and ivory tapers in crystal holders completed the arrangement.

For her going away costume, the bride wore a sheer copper redingote dotted in ivory with matching fox collar and copper accessories.

Dr. and Mrs. Timreck left on a three weeks' trip to motor through Canada and the New England states. They plan to stop at Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa, then go to New York City and arrive in Washington, D. C., in time to attend the commencement exercises at Georgetown University.

The bride was graduated from Tawas City high school and later took a course in laboratory work at the University Hospital, Ann Arbor. For the past three years she has been a Technician and assistant in the office of Dr. O. W. Mitton. Dr. Timreck was graduated from East Tawas high school and from the University of Detroit with his Bachelor of Science degree in 1934. For the past four years he has been a student in the school of medicine at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. On their return, Dr. Timreck will go to Bay City where he will serve as an interne at Mercy Hospital for the next year.

And now the nostalgia of the afternoon was back again. Strange, Nora pondered, that Don, sleeping so peacefully beside her—Don, who understood people so well, so quickly, shouldn't have known by instinct that to go so far away while the black cloud of her father's anger lay between them, would hurt his wife. Yet she was glad, too, that he hadn't guessed, thought Nora, with all the inconsistency of woman. Why mar his happiness in the adventure? If she could keep a stiff upper lip till they were once away...

"Nora—are you awake, dear?" Don's voice was cautious, as if he feared to rouse her, and Nora turned. "I thought you were asleep yourself, Don." "I wasn't! I've been lying here thinking—trying to see the thing we ought to do. I know what's troubling you, dearest. I knew this afternoon, only I wanted time to think a little before I spoke. It's your father, isn't it? You hate to leave him?"

"Oh, Don!" breathed Nora, turning her face into the shadows. She must not cry. He mustn't know how much she wanted to.

He said, gently: "I understand, dear. It's only because he is still angry. You're afraid something might happen to him—that he might need you when you couldn't come. Isn't that it? If you were friends the parting would be so different. It's the terrible misunderstanding that makes it hard. I was a dumbbell not to see it sooner, Nora. Why didn't you tell me?"

"How could I?" Don managed a little laugh which broke the tension. "You couldn't—you being yourself—and I being I! But you should have, Nora. As I see it, marriage is a sort of compromise. We can't, either of us, expect to have our own way eternally. But until this afternoon I didn't imagine for one minute that you weren't crazy for an Italian winter. You're a better actress than I thought, my dear; and in the future I'll have to watch my step! But it's never too late to change our plans, you know. That's one of the reasons life's so thrilling. And I've been thinking about the West. There are places—"

Nora sat up suddenly, drawing his head down against her breast. "If you think that I'll let you change..." She was crying now. Somehow Don raised his head and got his arms about her. He said, with more unselfishness than truth: "But I won't mind changing—not a little bit! There's a lot to interest us in the Southwest, and you've never been there. If those tears will help you, Nora, why keep tight on, but they're almost killing me! As I was saying—"

Then Nora laughed. It was an hysterical laugh, perhaps, but it cleared the atmosphere.

"You can keep on saying things all night," she told him, "but we're sailing tomorrow. Once we really get away I shall feel better. Have you forgotten those articles you're going to write for that London editor? Have you forgotten you've a family to support? Of course we're going to Capri!" With every word she was getting back her courage. "And besides, I wrote Dad we were sailing. I thought perhaps he'd come to the boat, Don. Don't—don't you think he might come to the boat?"

"He might," Don echoed; and to himself: "How can he stay away? How can he hurt her so? How can he?" Yet somehow, he knew instinctively that Nora's father was not yet ready to forgive. They sailed next afternoon, a bright, clear, sparkling day that cheered Nora immeasurably, despite James Lambert's absence from the scene. Standing beside the rail, her eyes searching the thronged pier hungrily, hoping until the final whistle sounded that she would catch a glimpse of his familiar face, the girl's mind went back to her last sailing. She saw again the crowd of youthful friends waving farewell—Ned, moved by one of his rare impulses (those impulses which made him almost lovable) arriving breathless with a box of roses—kissing her like a real brother... And her father—dear Dad! trying so hard to put a cheerful face upon this parting she knew he hated—saying: "Don't stint yourself, Nora." (As if she ever had!) "Remember my London bankers if you need money." (As if she wouldn't!) "Be careful about the drinking water in those filthy places." (To Dad all Europe was unsanitary) "Be sure to cable as soon as the boat docks."

It all came back; and suddenly Nora was conscious of a great loneliness. Her careful girlhood seemed left far, far behind. Ahead lay motherhood—mystery—that ultimate struggle which she must face alone. The thought frightened her, as one is sometimes frightened at a stark glimpse of the inevitable.

She turned, seeking the reassurance of Don's presence; but he had discovered a friend among the passengers: a little woman who, Nora thought, looked like a missionary.

And then, almost weirdly in that last confusing moment—breaking through shouts of "All ashore" and shrieking sirens, the certainty that though she could not see him her father was somewhere amid that throng—too proud to speak, yet loving her too greatly to stay away, fell on the girl's bruised heart like balm.

The gangplank was up now—the boat moving. Nora pressed closer to the rail—raised her arm high—waved a white wisp of handkerchief and shouted with a hundred others: "Good-by... Good-by..."

"Who was it, dear?" The voice was Don's. His hand closed over her possessively. Such a strong hand! "Who was it, Nora? I saw you waving. Find someone you knew in all that jam?"

His wife looked up. Her eyes were wet, but with a deep sense of thankfulness Don saw that they were happy eyes.

"I—I was just—waving," said Nora simply.

CHAPTER VIII

On the evening of the day when Don and Leonora sailed for Italy, Ned Lambert looked up from a leisurely perusal of the evening paper, and exclaimed: "Of all things! Mr.

"The house is so still without Miss Nora."

and Mrs. Donald Mason on the passenger list of the Larino! They sailed today. Do you suppose Dad knew it?"

Corinne, painstakingly wading through the most talked of novel of the month and bored to death by it, laid down the book with a sense of momentary release.

"He must know. I dare say he's paying for the trip. How else could they manage it? Your father may pretend he doesn't help them, Ned; but can you see him denying Nora anything she may have set her heart on? Of course he knows."

"I'm not so sure," Ned arose, walked uneasily across the room and back again, pausing beside her chair. "I'm not so sure," he repeated. "Dad never speaks of Nora; and once, when I ventured to ask a question about Don, he shut me up in a way he hasn't done since I was twelve years old! That's straight, Corinne. I don't know that he ever hears from her; but if he happens to see this passenger list and discovers that she's left the country, it may upset him. Want to go 'round and see how the land lies?"

Corinne glanced at the novel. "I really can't, Ned. This book is to be reviewed at the club tomorrow, and unless I'm willing to appear as a moron, I've got to finish it. And it's the dullest thing I ever tackled. Long, solid pages without a word of conversation. Run along by yourself. I'll try to get through it before bedtime."

Ned laughed. Though he kept it well throttled, he was not without a mild sense of humor, and his wife's struggle to do the proper thing sometimes amused him. "I'd rather be considered almost anything than to read a book which bored me to that extent," he told her frankly. "Sure you won't go? I sha'n't stay long; and we both need exercise. Mustn't get tubby as we get old, Corinne."

"Tubby!" Corinne, who was proud of her expensively corsetted figure, bristled with indignation. "You'd better compare me with other women of my age, not with those slinky stenographers in your office. But I can't go anyhow, even if I do need exercise. I must write to Junior. He may be homesick these first days at school."

"That's right," said Ned. "Give the kid my love, dear; but please don't send him any money. His allowance is ample; and it isn't good for a boy of his age to have too much."

Corinne smiled pleasantly; nodded good-by; and said to herself as the front door closed: "Well, I didn't promise, and it won't do a bit of harm to slip in something. A boy likes to make a good impression on his schoolmates; and considering our position in society Junior's allowance isn't what it should be. That's Father Lambert's doings. He's forever harping on the notion that too much spending money spoils a boy; yet when it came to Nora nothing was too much for her to throw away. I'll write the letter now, before Ned gets back."

Ned Lambert reached his father's house and, inserting a latch key, opened the door quietly, dropped his hat onto a chair, and went toward the living room. Nobody here! Perhaps his father was in the library. Ned moved down the hall. A fire blazed cheerily on the hearth in this smaller room, but the davenport with its gorgeous Bokhara covering on which James sometimes threw himself for an after-dinner nap, was now unoccupied.

Dad must be away, thought Ned. It was stupid not to have called up before walking over; but his father hadn't mentioned an engagement, and he seldom went out evenings these days. Perhaps one of the maids would know. Ah! here was Martha. Good old Martha, ever on the alert for burglars! She'd heard his prowling and...

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Ned! I thought it might be someone who didn't belong here."

Ned smiled. "You're a good watchman, Martha. Is Father out?" "He's upstairs, Mr. Ned." "Upstairs! Isn't he feeling well?" "He had John light the fire in Miss Nora's room. He's taken to sitting there quite often."

"He has?" Ned's eyes looked puzzled, and with a cautious glance toward the wide stairway, Martha closed the door. Corinne once said that Martha Berry was as much a part of James Lambert's fine old house as the front door was. She had lived there for half of her more than fifty years, keeping his house beautifully, a faithful servant of the old order, and a friend to all who bore the name of Lambert. She said, reading the question in Ned's eyes:

"It's this way, Mr. Ned: The house is so—so still, you see, without Miss Nora. It's like a tomb. Even my cook notices the difference." (To Martha Berry James Lambert's servants were her own.) "She would have given warning weeks ago if I hadn't scolded her. I said: 'Don't be a fool, Sally. There's no one else can make a black bean soup that sets well on Mr. Lambert's stomach, and he's very fond of it,' so she stayed on. But she says the stillness makes her nervous, Mr. Ned, and I think she's right."

"The coffee wasn't clear this morning. Your father likes old-fashioned coffee, made with an egg. There's none better, but it has to be made with care or the grounds won't settle. Sally's as good a cook as I ever had. She knows your father's ways, and she's good tempered; but she misses Miss Nora. Your father likes her cooking but he doesn't tell her so. Why should he? But Miss Nora was always running into the kitchen. She'd say: 'Oh, Sally, that cream pie was simply wonderful!' or, 'Don't you ever dare get married and leave us, Sally. I could die happy eating your potato puff. You know her way, Mr. Ned—don't dignified maybe, but my girls loved her and it kept them happy. My

Squash, Pumpkin, Cucumber, Melon, Gourd Found in Distinctive Class of Its Own

"All the pumpkin tribes are among the marvels of the vegetable world," writes Dr. H. L. Bailey, famous horticulturist. The point that he makes is the result of years of experiment with the various members of the pumpkin, squash, cucumber, melon and gourd family. For many years students of horticulture have attempted the crossing of pumpkins and squashes to produce hybrids only to prove that each of the species falls into a distinct class of its own. They have evolved into individual groups, just as man has evolved into the human being and cannot be crossed successfully with another species in the animal world.

The "marvel" to which Bailey refers is the vast variety of pumpkins, squashes, cucumbers, melons and gourds, all going back to an original form, called by botanists Cucurbitaceae, no longer reverting to the prehistoric type. Although the pumpkin and the squash are thought of as two of our most common garden vegetables, they should be regarded as amazing because of the countless number of forms.

Take the gourd for example, a housemaid cries now when she dusts the piano. She always left the door ajar when Miss Nora was playing, and many's the time Miss Nora asked her in to listen.

"You can see for yourself that it's not the same place without your sister; and Mr. Lambert feels it. That's why he sits there in her room so much. It makes her seem nearer. I know as well as if he'd told me, which he'd die rather than do, or my name's not Martha Berry. He's stubborn, your father, if you'll excuse my saying so. Not that he isn't the finest man that ever lived, as I've reason to know if ever anybody had."

"You were a boy at the time, but in my mother's long illness he paid all her bills. If she had been his own mother he couldn't have done more; and he sent my nieces to business college, too. But for all that he can be stubborn when he gets a notion into his head; and there've been times during the last 30 years when if I hadn't known my place, Mr. Ned, I would have thrown things at him."

Martha spoke so seriously, and looked so like the ideal servant she really was, that it was impossible for Ned Lambert to suppress entirely a laugh at the idea of her throwing teacups at his father. And being herself not utterly devoid of humor, the woman surmised his thought and smiled, a respectful little smile as she continued:

"Maybe you're thinking I don't know my place, after all. Maybe you think I'm an old meddler; but you were a little boy when I came here, Mr. Ned, and it was I opened the door for your poor father the day he came home carrying Miss Nora, and she looking like nobody at all—poor lamb!—in her outgrown coat. Never will I forget her thin little wrists coming out o' those coat sleeves; and her big, sad eyes, and the trustful way she looked up at Mr. Lambert when he set her down."

"You see, you're my family, all of you, Mr. Ned; and I can't bear that your father's stubbornness should break his own heart and Miss Nora's too."

"He should remember that this is the United States, not one of those foreign countries he hates to travel in where folks pick out husbands for their daughters and hands 'em over like they was bags of meal. And it's a good boy she's married. He gave me his seat in the subway one o' my days off when I was going out to my niece Clara's to have supper. It takes a gentleman to give up his seat to a woman he's seen wearing her cap and apron—an old woman too, and not good looking!"

"Now go up to your father, Mr. Ned; and if you can make him see that it's only a mule that'll bite off its nose to spite its face, it'll save him a heartache."

She opened the door, then as Ned remained silent, added stiffly, remembering "her place": "I beg pardon if I've offended, Mr. Ned."

It was then that Ned Lambert gave way to one of the impulses his wife deplored ("Oh, Ned! she's only a servant!")—an impulse that would have made Nora cheer. Perhaps he was remembering the times when in some childhood illness Martha had sat by his bed through the long, dark hours of night, "keeping him company." Or that it was Martha he went to for comfort on that terrible day when, a heart-broken lad of nine, he learned that his mother was never coming home. Whatever it was, Ned crossed the space between them and put his arm around those faithful shoulders in a boyish hug.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 5

SERVING BY PERSONAL DEVOTION TO CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:3-11, 27-31. GOLDEN TEXT—She hath done what she could. Mark 14:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Mary's Present to Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Mary's Love Gift. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Our Love to Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Heart of Christian Service.

"The love of Christ constraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14) was the all-sufficient moving force back of the greatest life of service rendered by any man. It is this personal devotion to the One whom we love "because he first loved us" (I John 4:19), which makes Christianity "different from all other religions. Christianity alone acts through this natural and deep hunger of mankind with a personalized religion which can be a satisfying joy and pleasure. Yet at this point Christians fail the most and make difficult the work of serving Jesus. They see religion as a job to be done, a form to be observed, a duty to be fulfilled" (W. R. King).

We need to renew that devotion to Christ which expresses itself in true worship. Prayer is too often asking for things; praise, thanking for things (unless we become so engrossed with them that we forget to return thanks); and worship, which is a coming to God in adoration and thanksgiving for what He is rather than what He can give, is forgotten. Our Heavenly father wants us to show love toward Him. The act of Mary was pure personal devotion and worship, and its fragrance lives to this day.

I. Wasted—But Eternally Saved (vv. 3-9).

The dark hours of betrayal and death were before our Lord. All around Him was hostility. Even in the inner circle of the disciples there was misunderstanding and bickering. Mary (to be distinguished from the sinful woman of Luke 7) with the quick intuition of an understanding woman's heart knew what He was passing through, and with a magnificent act of love stood by Him in the fellowship of His sufferings. Dr. Morgan points out that it was "an impulsive act... born of the prodigality of love daring not to calculate." In the words of verse 9, Jesus declared that the gospel and that which this woman had done were to "stand side by side with each other forever. That keen intuition of love, that uncalculating outpouring of love, was Godlike, and an act in fellowship with the act of God by which a world is redeemed."

Judas, who was a thief, said she had wasted money that should be used for the poor (John 12:6). The other disciples thought well of his argument and murmured against her. But Jesus commended her. To be thrifty and frugal is commendable, but there are times when the heart should speak without being silenced by the drawing of purse strings.

II. Saved—But Eternally Lost (vv. 10, 11).

Judas betrayed Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. He "made" some money. The fact that he did it by betraying the Son of God may be worse in degree but is not worse in kind than the betrayal of the youth of our land by those who make merchandise of their eternal souls. A recent news item from England declared that church organizations were making money out of properties publicly known as centers of prostitution. The leaders deplored the situation, but said they could not prevent it without losing the income of the property. Why not lose every cent rather than be party to the betrayal of any man or woman?

III. Bold Words—But Weak Actions (vv. 27-31).

Verses 12-26 tell of the gathering of the Lord and His disciples for their last passover and for the establishment of the Lord's supper. As they left the sacred meeting and went out into the Mount of Olives Jesus foretold His betrayal and His coming denial by the disciples.

Peter, quick with his tongue, and bold in spirit, spake swelling words of devotion and assurance. Sadly the Lord foretold his threefold denial of that very night. Again Peter and all the disciples declared their willingness to die with Him. They undoubtedly meant what they said, but reckoning without the weakness of the flesh they failed Him.

The lesson that is written large in this story for you and for me is, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (I Cor. 10:12).

Complaining

We have no more right to put our discordant states of mind into the lives of those around us and rob them of their sunshine and brightness than we have to enter their houses and steal their silverware.—Julia Seton.

Fortitude and Duty

True fortitude I take to be the quiet possession of a man's self, and an undisturbed doing his duty, whatever evil besets or danger lies in his way.—Locke.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

One of the town's most persistent practical jokers is Phillips H. Lord. He doesn't follow such conventional lines as the hot foot or the electric chair but branches off into novel paths. Anniversaries of friends give him opportunity to exercise his peculiar talents. For instance, the seventh wedding anniversary of John Ives, a close friend. Knowing that Ives had no piano in his apartment, Lord sent him one. That was quite all right and thoughtful, too. Only when Lord placed the order, it was with the stipulation that delivery was to be made at 3 o'clock in the morning. It is easy to imagine the amazement, not to say consternation, of dwellers in a swank East Side neighborhood when a gang of husky men arrived at that hour and proceeded to hoist a piano to the Ives apartment, which incidentally is on the thirteenth floor.

Another of Lord's merry pranks was to send an advertising executive a Chinese houseboy as his personal servant. The executive found that he had not only acquired a servant but a shadow. Wherever he went, the boy followed, and when he arose in the morning, he found the young Chinese sleeping outside his door. All attempts to get rid of him, from orders to leave to offers of bribes, failed. Just before the executive went completely batty, Lord called the boy off. Recently when Wil Yolen, Lord's publicity representative, was working so hard his wife was left alone the greater part of the time, Lord rented a Ted Peckham escort to bring Mrs. Yolen to the office in time to eat dinner with her husband—on his desk.

Every other week, a sewing circle meets at the Hotel McAlpin. Though the members are all residents of the metropolis, the organization is exactly the same as those in villages scattered over the country. There is sewing—the members work on a "project" which takes about six months—then tea and talk. The membership is composed mostly of women whose husbands have come from small towns to New York to further their business careers. They like the city but they also like to keep up contacts with other women who started their married life in small places. However, there is a sprinkling of the theater in the group, Alice Frost of the Mercury players, and Blanche Gladstone, seen in a number of hits, being frequent attendants.

As I was finishing the preceding paragraph, a friend stopped in to tell me of a happening the night before. His wife was crossing a Brooklyn street with their small daughter and a maid. They were crossing with the light but a huge moving truck dashed up and before they could get away, all three were knocked down. Fortunately, their injuries were slight but thoughts of what might have happened somehow makes the sunshine less bright. Nor is there any greater cheer because of the fact that the truck driver was drunk.

Edna Ferber is now a Connecticut farm owner. Recently, she acquired 116 acres at Eason. It's an old place, so old that it first changed hands away back in 1793. Looking one way, the author has a view of the Berkshire hills, and looking another, she sees Long Island sound. There are woods, a brook and a little lake on the place and reports have it that Miss Ferber will build a home there.

A small jewel box, which was used by Queen Isabella of Spain in the time of Columbus, was recently placed on exhibition in the Museum of Science and Industry in Rockefeller Center. The box, which is made of iron with likenesses of Isabella, King Ferdinand, Columbus and various princes of the court engraved on the cover and sides, was kept at the palace of Madrid until the beginning of the present war in Spain. It is now owned by Charles Courtney, well-known collector of locks, who obtained it in Biarritz.

Scientist Sees Radium Energy Put in Harness
Rochester, Minn.—Dr. R. E. Fricke of the Mayo clinic sees the possibility of some day driving an automobile for 26 years on a single teaspoonful of radium.

"We can readily calculate the energy of coal, oil and other power-producing products we use today," he said, "but outside of knowing that radium is approximately a million times more powerful than a given amount of coal, it would be difficult to estimate the innumerable uses of this versatile substance when scientists harness its energy."

Deposits are found in various countries, with rich mines uncovered in Austria, England, Belgian Congo, and in Utah in the United States. Explaining that it is a most stable element, Dr. Fricke said a given amount of radium would disintegrate only 50 per cent in nearly 1,700 years. Altogether there are about 700 grams of the precious product in the world. Two hundred and fifty grams of the total are in the United States, and the Mayo clinic has about two grams. It costs about $2,500 a gram, or teaspoonful, he said.

LAZIEST ON EARTH THRIVING IN MAINE

Logging Camp Keepers Begin Exile Lasting Till Fall.

Bangor, Maine.—As the last of the logs swirl down the swollen streams of Maine, the laziest and yet the loneliest men in the world will start six months of forest exile as keepers of logging camps deserted by their crews until the leaves turn in the fall.

Few men, only those who are natural hermits, want this job of doing nothing for fair pay and a good living. Sometimes one of the crew is willing to stay behind when the others set out with a whoop for Bangor, but more often the logging operators hire one of the strange sons of the forest, for the most part French Canadians, who were born in the woods and know nothing of towns.

From their boyhood these "Canucks" have worked occasionally to get money for rifles, ammunition, traps, tobacco and whisky, but they have spent most of their time fishing, hunting, trapping and, most of all, doing nothing in particular. The camp keeper's job provides them with a home, plenty to eat and smoke and, at the end of the off-season, when they need hunting and trapping outfits, a handful of money—not much, but enough.

Ruler of Untenanted Realm.
Throughout his sojourn in the log cabin domain bereft of its lumberjack denizens, the camp keeper is monarch of all he surveys. He has his pick of a variety of provisions left over from the winter stores and dropping a line in a brook will bring him trout for breakfast.

He falls heir to all the lively literature, pipes and other odds and ends left by the departed crew and he has his choice of a hundred bunks for sleeping. But his only chance of seeing another human being is the rare passing of a timber cruiser or a far-wandering fisherman.

While protecting the camp against fire, he must also guard the axes, cantdogs, sleds, harness, blankets, kitchen outfits and provisions, such as pork, flour, molasses, beans and canned goods. He needs his rifle. For nothing edible is safe from the most expert of all burglars, the bear.

The skill of the bear at breaking and entering, larceny and general destruction is amazing.

Mystified by Mathematics.
So, always mindful of bears, the camp keeper eats, smokes, sleeps and, if he can read, peruses his literary legacy. More than likely he is illiterate and most of his tribe are blissfully ignorant. They are especially untutored in arithmetic, keeping time and accounts by notches on a stick or on the brim of a hat.

One Canuck, employed by a Bangor lumberman known for sharp practice, let two seasons go by without a settlement. When he asked for his money, the bookkeeper began reading "offset" items, such as "three pairs of gum boots, $24." To his protest that he had had only one pair the bookkeeper replied:

"Why, there it is in black and white, the pair you had, the pair you didn't have and the pair you ought to have had."

The dazed Canuck finally admitted that the book must be right.

There are men like him who stay buried in the woods so long that, as Con Murphy, boss logger, used to say, "the world could come to an end without their knowing it."

Beauty Is Secondary, Say University Men in Survey

New Concord, Ohio.—A recent survey of men students at Muskingum college revealed they believe beauty is more than "skin-deep."

The men were asked to answer the following questions:

"Do you have your own beauty ideals?"

"And is it the type of loveliness as personified by co-eds?"

"Does the man-about-the-campus favor collegiate pulchritude?"

Muskingum men believe mere facial features are not the yardstick to measure co-ed beauty.

The "stronger sex" insisted their ideal girls have naturalness, poise, charm, sense of humor, average facial beauty, intelligence, cleverness and be religiously inclined.

Dress, according to the survey, didn't seem to impress the collegians, but they said they did notice good taste.

Monkey Solves Poser for Airport Manager

Tulsa, Okla.—A pet Rhesus monkey solved a knotty problem for the Tulsa municipal airport manager, Charles W. Short, Jr., and assured herself a home for life.

Bureau of air commerce regulations require that no birds' nests be allowed to remain in airport hangars because of danger of fire. Officials had attempted for months to comply with regulations, without success until the monkey came to Short as a gift.

Rhesus, a confirmed egg eater, made short work of the nests. The sparrows gave up, seeking other nesting spots.

Lovely New Sheer Swiss Cottons

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

you to the charming fashions pictured.

FINE sheer cottons are outstanding in the season's smartest fabrics. It is not only that our prettiest evening clothes are being fashioned of most intriguing washable sheers, but the highly significant style message is that our daytime suits and ensembles with jacket or cape, whether strictly tailored or softly styled, are subscribing wholeheartedly to the vogue for handsome, flattering sheers.

Current displays of fine Swiss cottons are making a marvelous showing of beautiful and versatile weaves that have an elegance and tone you never would dream could be in simple wash fabrics. The new thin voiles, both monochromes and embroidered, are lovely enough to attend any garden party, any mid-summer night dance, any commencement day exercises, any wedding reception, for the bride herself to wear for that matter, and her attendants. There are also sheer cotton nets and laces and diaphanous weaves so versatile you will want them all well represented in your summer wardrobe.

The biggest appeal of all, however, that tugs at your heart, your mind and, we were going to say your pocketbook, but the latter would not be true of these lovely Swiss organdies, is that as beautiful as these crisp, cool sheers are, they come within a price that even a modest budget can afford.

Call it charm, allure, or glamor, it's yours and no mistake, when you wear a daytime dress or costume ensemble or an evening gown of exquisitely sheer, crisp and colorful organdie. To justify our enthusiasm and to prove our point we refer

The ensemble shown to the left makes a costume ideal to wear now and throughout the summer wherever daytime activities may take you. Lustrous, transparent black Swiss organdie makes a tiny separate bolero and over skirt that buttons at a wide waistband over a softly draped frock of Swiss voile, embroidered in a trailing vine pattern in bright red to complete a charming costume of tailored but feminine charm. You could wear the black bolero and skirt over other light dresses.

A most unusual print design adds to the interest of the party frock for a young girl, as you see centered in the picture. The Swiss organdie that fashions it has large white flowers imprinted against a background of tiny flowers in brilliant shades of rose against a navy blue background. The crush sash is of deep rose taffeta, tying in a youthful bow at the back. The shoulder corsage is a single huge pink and rose shaded taffeta flower.

A dainty frock for a dainty miss is the fitted and flared party dress to the right. It is of clear white Swiss organdie with pin dots of deep blue. The grosgrain ribbon bows at the puffed sleeves and down the front repeat the deep blue accent.

The wide range of organdie types brought out this season will both amaze and delight you. Many new print ideas give fresh appeal to organdies. Mentioning only a few, there is a print design of little white plumes scattered over a pink ground you'll love. A small spaced paisley motif in deep rich colors on white is very attractive. Perhaps the most notable of all are the chiffon organdies in pastel color shadow printed in white, navy or black in a very exquisite and realistic lace patterning with floral motifs scattered over the background.

A COAT CLASSIC

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here you have illustrated the coat classic that is a favorite type this season. White smooth wool velour is the handsome cloaking that fashions it. You will find that it slips over sports or dressy frocks with equal charm. This style is ever so good-looking in the new beige, wheat-tone, copper or mustard wools, to wear over black or navy dresses. Of course you know by this time that no wardrobe is complete this season that does not include a separate coat that makes high-quality wool weave and classic simplicity its fashion highspots.

NEW CLOTHES FEEL GRECIAN INFLUENCE

The new afternoon and evening clothes show the graceful influence of Greek and Brahmin drapery. Shirring, gathering, tier-like effects on skirts, subtly accent hip and bosom lines. Scarves float like wings from the shoulders, drape over the head, or swathe the shoulders and neck of an evening decollete.

Prints are plentiful—dots and stripes lead the field, and the newest thing is to use them in combination. The flower prints range from tiny conventional sprigs to huge exotic blooms a foot across in size.

Embroidery, Applique Trim Frocks for Early Summer

Important for early summer dresses are embroidered or applique trims in dull or vibrant colors. Tiny red, turquoise and green stitching form stripes on Paquin's latest crepe dress from yoke to hem. The sleeves are trimmed with the same smart detail. Two drapes from the shoulders disappear into slots and reappear at the yoke where the stitching begins.

Minute pearls and gold thread form a geometric pattern on Nina Ricci's afternoon frock around the collarless neck and on the border of the wide sash which ties at the waist, Spanish style.

Bows Give Feminine Touch to Simple Daytime Frocks

Designers have taken to trimming even the simplest daytime frocks with tiny bows of velvet or grosgrain ribbon. Sometimes the bows are posed on horizontal bands of the ribbon that extend to each side in military precision.

Tiny lover bowknots made of narrow ribbon frequently are scattered over frocks made of net or other sheer.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Place of Fats in the Diet

Nationally Known Food Authority Compares the Different Cooking Fats and Shortenings

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

THERE are, perhaps, more false notions concerning fats than any other class of foods.

Some homemakers, considering them as "fattening" only, try to eliminate them entirely from the diet. Others have the impression that foods containing fat are difficult to digest, and for this reason deprive their families of many delicious and healthful foods. Both points of view arise from ignorance of dietary facts.

Fats Are Necessary to Health

Fats have a number of important functions to perform. They are a concentrated fuel food, having more than twice the energy value of an equal weight of protein or carbohydrate.

One-half ounce of fat, that is one tablespoon, yields 100 calories, and were he able to eat it, a man could obtain an entire day's fuel from three-fourths of a pound of fat. It is interesting to note that it would require nearly eight pounds of cooked rice to give the same number of calories.

In Oriental countries, where large populations live in great poverty, fat is usually scarce and it is necessary to consume huge quantities of food in order to meet the daily fuel requirements. As a result, most of the people develop distended abdomens.

Children Must Have Fat

Because fat is such a compact food, nutritionists agree that for growing boys and girls, and men engaged in strenuous physical exercise, fat is almost essential, if they are to get enough total calories.

There is also experimental evidence that at least a small amount of one or more of the unsaturated fatty acids must be supplied by the food if normal nutrition is to be maintained. And two competent investigators found, experimentally, that the presence of fat in the diet tends to conserve vitamin B in the body.

Some fats, especially those from animal sources, are rich in vitamins A and D, and fats made from vegetable oils may contain vitamin E.

Fat and Hunger

Perhaps the greatest service performed by fat is its ability to give "staying power" to the diet—to satisfy hunger. In this respect, it directly affects the disposition and may influence the ability to enjoy life.

The shortage of fats in European countries during the World War graphically demonstrated how a deficiency of this class of foods can destroy the morale of entire nations.

With supplies cut off or very greatly curtailed, the warring countries found it necessary to ration fats closely. As a result, their people were always hungry and dissatisfied, even when their actual needs were satisfied. In this connection, it is interesting to note that a slice of bread and butter or margarine will delay the onset of hunger longer than a slice of bread and jam, even though the number of calories may be the same.

Different Fats Compared

As sources of energy, the different food fats are very similar. Thus, the homemaker's choice may be determined by preference, convenience, economy, and the

Get This Free Bulletin Offered by C. Houston Goudiss

READERS of this newspaper are invited to write to C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th Street, New York City, for a free copy of his bulletin, "Helpful Hints on Planning a Laxative Diet."

The bulletin gives concrete suggestions for combating faulty elimination through correct eating and proper habits of hygiene. It gives a list of laxative foods and contains a full week's sample menus. A postcard is sufficient to carry your request.

use to which the product is to be put.

The various forms of edible fats and oils are derived from both animal and vegetable sources. They include butter, margarine, lard, compounds, which are a mixture of animal fats and vegetable oils, hydrogenated fats, and the liquid vegetable oils.

Butter and margarine are used chiefly as a spread, and it is interesting to note that the annual per capita consumption of margarine is steadily increasing, as homemakers have discovered that the use of this less expensive product releases more money for milk, fruits and vegetables. Margarine is interchangeable with butter for dressing vegetables and in doughs containing spices, fruits and chocolate. Its shortening power and keeping qualities are similar to those of butter.

Lards, compounds and other shortening fats are useful not only as a means of increasing palatability and food value, but to add flakiness to baked foods and to produce a crisp coating which seals in the minerals and vitamins of fried foods.

Lard is used chiefly as a shortening for pastry, and a good grade will be found to be white and free from objectionable odors. The highest grade, called leaf lard, is produced from the leaves of fat in the sides of the hog.

When made by a reputable manufacturer, the compounds prepared especially for cake making, for shortening pastry and for deep-frying, are wholesome, highly nutritious and give most satisfactory results. They are a most economical form of shortening.

Digestibility of Fats

Because of their ability to retard digestion somewhat and thus give satiety value to a meal, the impression has grown up that fats are "difficult" to digest. This results from confusing the length of time required for digestion and the completeness with which a food is digested.

When "digestibility" is regarded in the popular sense of the ease, comfort and speed with which the digestive organs carry on their work, it is conceded that fats in general retard the secretion of the gastric juice and thus cause food to remain longer in the stomach.

On the other hand, most fats have such a high coefficient of digestibility, that under normal conditions only about one-twentieth of the fat eaten escapes digestion. Experiments indicate, for example, that the coefficient of digestibility of oleomargarine is 97.55 per cent.

It is sometimes erroneously stated that pastry is indigestible. This statement is without foundation, provided the pastry is made from a high grade shortening and is properly baked. Similarly, fried foods come in for a great deal of criticism that should not be charged to the use of fat, but to incorrect methods of cooking. If food is properly cooked in fat that has a high smoking point, there will be no opportunity for decomposition products to develop.

How Much Fat?

Nutritionists have ample evidence that health is best served when 30 to 35 per cent of the total energy value foods is provided in the form of fat. This will include the fat of meat and the fat used in cooking the many delicious fried and baked foods which make eating a pleasure.

Questions Answered

Mrs. M. L., Jr.—Dandelion greens make an excellent food. They contain more phosphorus than any other common leafy vegetable, and supply vitamins A, B, C and G.

Miss C. B. R.—It is difficult to compare the iron content of meats because of variations in the amount of fat. It has been established, however, that organ meats, as liver and kidneys, contain more iron than muscle meats, and that pork and lamb contain much less iron than beef.

Mr. F. K. C.—Answering your query as to whether pineapple juice possesses special properties as a laxative—all fruit juices contain fruit acids, which tend to have a stimulating effect upon the entire digestive tract. However, the pulp of any fruit is far more effective than the juice in providing normal elimination.

Mrs. N. H. R.—As to whether a tendency to overweight is inherited; the body build is inherited. That is, some individuals tend to be short and stocky; others are tall and slender. However, there is no reason why the stocky individual should allow himself to become obese. Frequently, a condition that is blamed on inheritance can be traced to faulty habits of diet, exercise and sleep, passed from one generation to another.

An Inlet, Not Outlet

The straight of Gibraltar, often considered the Mediterranean's chief outlet, is technically an inlet. Due to evaporation, the level of the Mediterranean is a little below that of the Atlantic ocean, so that fresher ocean water constantly flows in through the strait. This is true in spite of the large volume of water poured into the Mediterranean by such rivers as the Nile, the Rhone, the Ebro, the Po and through the Dardanelles. The Mediterranean extends over an area of more than a million square miles, equal to a third of the area of the United States. It washes the shores of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Remember?
The local 1938 commencement makes us old timers recall the days when we were young . . . and when we proudly participated in high school graduation ceremonies. Photos posed by NBC artists.

Remember the sweet young thing who read the Class Will, who bequeathed your gum-chewing technique to little Johnny Jones of the freshman class? Miss Betty Winkler impersonates her here, even to the hair ribbon.

Then came the class prophet who predicted that 20 years hence you'd be a famous explorer . . . or something. Betty Caine, dressed like yesterday's graduate, shows how the prophet looked as she glanced into the dim future and made her awesome prognostications.

Frances Allison impersonates the valedictorian. Remember? She was the brightest girl in the class, much favored by members of the faculty.

Then came the commencement speaker (played by Bill Thompson) who challenged you to face the world. Serious, purposeful, he might have been a rising young lawyer or a professor of economics from the university.

Then the climax, when the superintendent or the president of the school board gave you a diploma . . . and school days were over! Here is Sid Ellstrom in the official's role. School days! Grand old days, weren't they?

Side Rake and Tedder

THIS two-in-one hay tool combines the best in a side delivery rake and a tedder. It forms a quick-curing windrow—turning the leaves inward to prevent shattering and the stems outward to get the quickest action from the sun and air.

The shift of a lever converts the McCormick-Deering from a side rake to a tedder. Another lever sets the teeth at the right slant for either operation.

Roller bearings assure light draft. The strong frame is well braced by a large truss beam over the reel. Gears are extra heavy. Teeth are securely fastened by special clips and bolts. We have this and other McCormick-Deering hay tools ready for delivery.

WAGE BILL IS PASSED

Southern Democrats Lose Hot Fight in the House
... Secretary Ickes Is Married in Dublin

Here is an armored car detachment of Czechoslovakia's up-to-date army which was sent to the frontier to meet the threats of aggression by Fuehrer Hitler's troops that were massed on their side of the border.

Edward W. Pickard
SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

House Passes Wage-Hour Bill

REPRESENTATIVE MARY NORTON'S wage-hour bill finally got through the house by a vote of 314 to 97, despite fierce opposition of the southern Democrats. It was sent on to the senate, which has passed a widely differing measure and where opposition blocs were reported forming to carry on a filibuster. The Southerners fought for differentials favoring their industries, and were aided by a few Republicans who called the bill a "vote catcher" that would "throw millions out of work."

The measure establishes rigid wage-hour standards for certain classes of workers in all industries operating in interstate commerce, regardless of prevailing sectional scales. It fixes an initial wage of 25 cents an hour which steps up to 40 cents an hour in three years, and a 44-hour week graduating to 40 in two years.

A coalition of farm state representatives and the southern Democrats put over a drastic amendment offered by Mrs. Norton, exempting thousands of employees engaged in the processing of agricultural commodities from the provisions of the measure.

Other amendments exempt retail establishments in intrastate commerce; the entire fishing industry; and employees of rural weekly and semi-weekly newspapers with less than 3,000 circulation.

The shipment in commerce of goods produced with the aid of child labor is prohibited, but child acts are exempt from this provision.

When the fight ended, Mrs. Norton, chairman of the labor committee, was cheered and hugged by the victorious administration Democrats.

Morgan Charges Deceit

DR. ARTHUR E. MORGAN, ousted chief of TVA, was the first witness heard by the congressional committee inquiring into the affairs of the authority. In straightforward fashion he told his side of the story, charging his fellow directors with dishonest management. He explained he did not mean David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan took bribes or stole money, but that they deceived the President, congress, and the public; that they covered up important facts tending to throw doubt on the advisability of the government's huge social experiment; reported a false electric power yardstick, and were subservient to political and other special interests.

He accused Lilienthal flatly of deceit in leading the public to believe that the financial accounts of the communities buying power from the TVA include all the costs of the service they render to the public.

Dr. Morgan discussed in great detail the celebrated "Berry marble case," involving Sen. George L. Berry, Tennessee Democrat.

Boss Hines Arrested

JAMES J. HINES, most powerful leader of Tammany Hall and chief dispenser of federal patronage in New York, was arrested on charges arising from the 100-million-dollar-a-year policy game racket in that city. He surrendered in the office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, hard hitting young prosecutor of Manhattan's multitudinous rackets, and was released in bonds of $20,000.

Lewis Backs Barkley

JOHN L. LEWIS, C. I. O. chieftain, has asked labor to support Sen. Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky in the primaries August 6. In his capacity as chairman of Labor's Non-partisan league, Lewis said of Barkley: "He is recognized as one of the nation's leading statesmen, liberal in his viewpoint and co-operative in his attitude toward legislation in the interests of labor and the common people."

Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, found occasion to say a good word in favor of Rep. Otha Wearin of Iowa, who is seeking to take the Democratic senatorial nomination away from Senator Gillette.

For this Hopkins was denounced by senators who were demanding that the relief appropriations be earmarked so they cannot be used for political purposes.

Ickes Weds in Dublin

HAROLD L. ICKES, secretary of the interior and PWA administrator, put one over on all but his closest friends. He sailed secretly from New York to Ireland and in Dublin was quietly married to Miss Jane Dahlman of Milwaukee, twenty-five years old and a clerk in his department. Mr. Ickes, who is sixty-four years old, lost his first wife nearly three years ago in an automobile accident in the Southwest.

The new Mrs. Ickes, red haired and pretty, is a niece of John Cudahy, American minister to Ireland, and sister of Mrs. Wilmarth Ickes of Winnetka, Ill., widow of Mr. Ickes' step-son.

Minister Cudahy did not attend the wedding, but was represented by S. J. Shattuck, an attache of the legation. The couple left Dublin by automobile for a brief honeymoon trip. Mr. Ickes cabled friends in Washington that he would return there in a week and would be at home on his estate near Olney, Md.

Plane Crash Kills Ten

TEN persons died when a twin-motored plane of the United Air Lines, bound from New York for Chicago, crashed and burned south of Cleveland, Ohio. The victims included seven passengers, two pilots and the stewardess.

Officials of the air line said their information indicated the pilot was forced to make a landing because of engine trouble and that the ship did not catch fire until it struck.

Japan Demands Apology

NOW it is the turn of Japan to demand an apology — from Great Britain. The Tokyo government felt it was gravely insulted by a statement, attributed to R. A. Butler, parliamentary secretary of the British foreign office, that Japanese marines had shot many Chinese war prisoners and civilians when they captured the port of Amoy. Tokyo demanded that the British government "speedily give satisfaction" for this slur on Japan's honor.

The Japanese announced in Shanghai that they had at last gained complete control of the 800-mile Tientsin-Pukow railway, and expected to resume operations linking Peiping and Shanghai early in July.

Two Taxation Decisions

TWO far-reaching decisions the United States Supreme court further narrowed the field of reciprocal intergovernmental tax immunity. The rulings continued the trend in the direction of President Roosevelt's theory that the federal and state governments can tax the salaries of each other's employees and the income of each other's securities without a constitutional amendment.

In a decision delivered by Justice Stone, the court upheld levying of federal income taxes on employees of the Port of New York authority. In a decision delivered by Justice Roberts, the court upheld federal admission taxes on tickets to football games conducted by the university system of Georgia.

Must Re-Hire Sit Strikers

THE National Labor Relations board ordered the Kuehne Manufacturing company, Flora, Ill., to re-instate with back pay 164 American Federation of Labor sit-down strikers.

It was the NLRB's third major sit-down decision, but the first involving an A. F. of L. union.

The labor board refused to answer 74 questions put to it by the Ford Motor company in United States circuit court at Covington, Ky. The board particularly resented being asked whether Thomas Corcoran, Benjamin V. Cohen, John L. Lewis or Homer Martin were consulted in arriving at an order charging the Ford company with violating the Wagner labor act.

Too Late for Wheat Quotas

SECRETARY WALLACE said that under the new crop control law it is too late to invoke marketing quotas on this year's indicated bumper wheat crop. He explained that the law authorized quotas this year only in the event congress appropriated funds by May 15 for "parity payments" provided in the new legislation.

Martin Loses in Oregon

GOV. CHARLES H. MARTIN of Oregon, the veteran soldier who has been fighting against the C. I. O. and other radicals, was beaten for renomination in the Democratic primary by Henry Hess who had the backing of labor unions and of Secretary of the Interior Ickes. Charles A. Sprague was nominated for governor by the Republicans and they believe they have a good chance to win in the fall elections, for the Democrats, there as in Pennsylvania, were badly split.

War Narrowly Averted

GERMAN and Czech troops by the thousands were massed on the frontier between the two countries. President Benes of Czechoslovakia and his cabinet decided to call 70,000 reserves to the colors. Poland assembled armed forces close to the Slovakia border. Hungary was reported to be taking "certain military measures." France was ready to defend her ally, Czechoslovakia, against Nazi aggression, and there was assurance that Great Britain and Russia would come to the aid of France if she were attacked without provocation.

No wonder the governments of Europe were desperately worried by such a critical condition.

Hitler must have realized that the time was not ripe for aggressive action against the Czechs, for German authorities in Berlin solemnly assured Dr. Vojtech Mastny, Czech minister to Berlin, and the Czech military attache that Germany planned no military expedition against Czechoslovakia. This eased the situation somewhat, but the British cabinet continued to urge Benes and his government to make all possible concessions to Hitler concerning the demands of the Sudeten German minority. It was believed the Fuehrer would ultimately get about everything he wants from the Czechs without a fight.

Dr. Milan Hodza, premier of Czechoslovakia, and Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German party, were brought together in peace talks in Prague. Henlein was reported to have said he didn't believe much progress in that line could be made until the government had recalled the reservists who had been mobilized.

The Czechs informed the French and British governments they are willing to become a central European Switzerland in which all races of the polyglot republic will have equal rights. However, they insist on further guarantees against German aggression to compensate for weakening their defense.

In Paris it was reported that the French government asked that the United States associate itself with France and Britain in their efforts to keep Hitler from attacking Czechoslovakia, and that Washington's reply, through Ambassador Bullitt, was a refusal to mix in the row. This was denied by Mr. Bullitt.

Italy Warns France

ITALY intimated it would keep out of the Nazi-Czech quarrel, but Mussolini broke off the friendship talks with France and warned that continued French acquiescence in the shipment of arms to government Spain would not be tolerated. The Duce declared that unless France ceases aiding transmission of Soviet and Czech arms to Barcelona, Italy and Germany may be forced to increase their assistance to the insurgents. This naturally would endanger the new Anglo-Italian agreement.

Predestination Is Out

GENERAL assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, in session at Meriden, Miss., voted 151 to 130 to omit from the confession of faith these two important sections:

"By the decree of God, for the manifestation of his glory, some men and angels are predestined unto everlasting life and others fore-ordained to everlasting death. "And their number is so certain and definite that it cannot be either increased or diminished."

Speaking of Sports

Schmeling vs. Louis Bout Is Sports Riddle

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

WHEN Joe Louis and Max Schmeling climb into the New York ring to fight it out for the heavyweight championship on June 22, you can be sure of one thing. The fight experts won't be out on a limb as they were two years ago when these battlers first met. In 1936 the prognosticators were unanimous in picking Louis. Columns were written about his superiority over the stolid Schmeling. Betting odds made Max a long shot. It was simply a matter of how few rounds it would take for the lethal Louis to do his stuff.

But you remember what happened. It was a pugilistic cinderella story. The underdog emerged as the lion. The crafty Schmeling got Louis off balance at the start, clubbed him repeatedly with his right, over-awed and out-foxed him and wound up by knocking him out.

Louis Explodes

Louis looked bad. A seven-day wonder had exploded. Some who had been loudest in their peans now solemnly insisted that Joe was all washed up. But he went on to lick a couple of set-ups, recovered his form and equilibrium and really showed championship caliber when he knocked out Jim Braddock a year ago and won the heavyweight crown.

So today there is an air of caution about predictions. It is an open and shut question. You can get "yes and no" answers, but few are willing to go unequivocally on record.

Everybody is agreed that Louis is physically more grown up than when he met Schmeling two years ago. Everybody is likewise agreed that Schmeling is physically a good deal older than he was. At his time of life athletically a year or two makes a tremendous amount of difference in the performance of his legs, his wind, his timing. He has looked good in his recent fights, but it is a question whether he is now hitting as hard as he did when they met before.

But there are some imponderables involved and they can determine the outcome as well as anything else. Has Louis recovered psychologically from the beating Schmeling gave him? Will he be as confident against the German as he was against Jim Braddock?

Schmeling is probably as smart a fighter as Gene Tunney was. He studies his opponents and depends on what he learns about them to crush them. He made several trans-Atlantic trips in order to get firsthand evidence about Louis' strength and weakness before their last fight.

Both Louis and Schmeling have demonstrated that they can be knocked out. It is a case of superior ringcraft, coolness and experience against youth and great natural ability. Gameness may be the determining factor.

But whoever wins, some interesting possibilities will be opened up in the way of future opponents. Three fighters stand out: Max Baer, who re-established his reputation as a big-time fighter by the way he polished off Tommy Farr; Tony Galento, the human punching bag; and Gunnar Barlund, the up-and-coming Swede.

Versatile Umps

WHEN it comes to being versatile, the umpiring staff of the National league can hold its own with anybody. Its members have been distinguished for a long time for their prominence in other fields of activity as well as baseball.

Take Bill Stewart, for instance. For years Bill was the ace referee in the National Hockey league during the winter. Then he became manager of the Chicago Blackhawks a year ago and really began to make the headlines in earnest. He reaped more fame than an umpire ever dreamed of, when the Hawks swept through all their opposition to win the world's championship in the hockey league's Stanley cup playoffs a while back.

Then there's Ernie Quigley, supervisor of umpires for the National league. For 25 years he has been one of the most noted officials in intercollegiate football and basketball. He was chairman of the committee to select Uncle Sam's representative basketball team in the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

And don't forget Charlie Moran. Charlie won fame as a football coach. He coached the team from Center college, in Kentucky when the Praying Colonels were famous from coast to coast, beating a great Harvard team and earning for Coach Moran the title of football's miracle man.

Kid Golfers

A "KID" golf team is representing Uncle Sam in the Walker cup events in Britain this month. The eight lads on the team captained by the non-playing veteran Francis Ouimet, average less than 25 years of age.

Oldest member of the squad is Johnny Goodman of Omaha, a doddering campaigner of twenty-eight, who is national amateur champion and former national open crownholder. Youngest is Fred Hass, Jr., of New Orleans, national collegiate title holder. In between come Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., runner-up to Goodman last year; Charley Yates of Atlanta; Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati; Chuck Kocsis, Detroit; Marvin Ward, Olympia, Wash.; and Reynolds Smith, Dallas, Texas. Two alternates, Tommy Tailer and Don Moe, figured they would be just wasting their time under any circumstances, so they did not accompany the team abroad.

Francis Ouimet is an oldest of forty-five years and has been a member of every Walker cup team since the competition began in 1922. He has been captain of the last three teams.

Here and There—

HAL TROSKY'S robust batting average is attributed to orders from the new manager of the Indians, Oscar Vitt, to forget that short right field fence in League park and try for singles and doubles. . . Boston has not defeated Carl Hubbell since 1935. . . Carl, however, pitched only one game against the Bees in 1936. . . Texas Christian football players gained weight in spring practice but lost an average of two pounds each during examination week.

There may be nothing to it, but Managers Burrell Grimes of the Dodgers and Gabby Street of the Browns insist on wearing uniforms No. 13. . . Boston baseball writers have presented Duffy Lewis, the old outfield star and now traveling secretary with the Bees, a wardrobe trunk. . . Roland Logan, University of Pittsburgh trainer, was Glenn Cunningham's first coach and Jim Potts, assistant coach of the Panthers, started the peerless miler in his first race when Glenn was thirteen years old. . . Max Baer never has been beaten in a return bout.

Six man football is the coming sport for smaller high schools, Iowa high school superintendents and coaches agreed at the first annual six man clinic held at Iowa State college recently.

Though only 19 Iowa high schools played six man football last fall several of its sponsors attending the clinic predicted that this number would be greatly augmented when the 1938 season rolls around. Several coaches from larger Iowa high schools also attended the clinic.

Washington Digest
National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—It is curious how trade winds blow in politics. We, here in Washington, have just witnessed what can well be called a phenomenon. It grows out of the primaries in two widely separated states, Florida and Pennsylvania.

The fact that it was a Democratic primary in each instance, however, makes possible this analysis and discussion of details.

Taking up the primaries in their order, there was the primary in Florida where Sen. Claude Pepper, 100 per cent New Dealer, indorse of Townsend old-age pensions, and himself indorsed by James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, licked the pants off of his challengers. He polled more votes than Rep. J. Mark Wilcox and former Gov. Dave Sholtz combined. It was, without doubt, a New Deal victory for which the President can claim justifiable credit.

The second primary was that in Pennsylvania where there were three candidates for the United States senatorial nomination among the Democrats and three for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. There were two candidates for the Republican nomination for each of these offices, as well, but that fact will be treated later.

Few party primaries in modern times developed the bitterness that flamed in the Democratic test in Pennsylvania. It was the first time that organized labor, as such, had come out into the open with avowed candidates and it was the first time Democratic National Chairman Farley has taken a hand in attempting to tell the voters of a state what to do. In addition, there was a state party committee which insisted upon selecting a slate of candidates in regulation boss fashion. So there were all of the elements of a rough fight, and it happened according to forecast.

Mr. Farley made an eleventh-hour public appeal to the Democrats of Pennsylvania "for harmony." He asked them to nominate Governor Earle for the United States senate. Governor Earle was the choice of the state committee faction. Mr. Farley also asked that the Pennsylvanians nominate Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, for the governorship. Mr. Kennedy was thrown overboard by the state committee but he had the open indorsement of John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O. labor union. He also had the backing of Sen. Joseph Guffey, who has constantly served as President Roosevelt's voice in the United States senate. The Farley recommendation thus cast out Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh, state committee selection for the governorship, and it threw Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia into the discard as far as the Democratic senatorial nomination was concerned. Mayor Wilson was a Lewis-C. I. O.-Guffey candidate.

The Farley announcement, made on the day before the primary, built up resentment even from the men he indorsed. Governor Earle barked loud and long; so did Lieutenant Governor Kennedy.

Mr. Earle won. Mr. Kennedy lost. Mr. Jones won, and shouted about it. Mayor Wilson lost and bellowed about the interference. And after the smoke cleared away, Mr. Farley said promptly, in effect, "Let's all get together and elect our Democratic candidates."

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, wrote a statement while the sun was coming up on the day following the primary. He bounced biting words right off of Mr. Farley's head. In substance, he said the Pennsylvania primary showed: 1. The voters of any state resent interference from the national headquarters as regards their party nominees. 2. The voters of Pennsylvania showed they will have nothing to do with John L. Lewis, despite the fact that probably that state is the most tightly organized for the C. I. O. of any state in the country. 3. The Democrats of Pennsylvania are tiring of the "crack-pot brains" of the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Hamilton, further, called attention to the fact that two present Democratic members of the house of representatives were defeated for renomination. Representative Stack, an admirer of Father Coughlin, radical radio priest, and Representative Crosby, author of Townsend plan bills in the house, were supplanted. The Republican chairman sought to connect their defeat with a trend away from radicalism which he says is inherent in the New Deal, because Mr. Stack sometimes went beyond New Deal ground.

Now, as to the Republican battle: James J. Davis, present senator, was renominated over G. Mason Owlett, backed by the Republican state committee, and Judge Arthur H. James was nominated for the governorship over former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who, like Mr. Kennedy, was approved by John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. as acceptable. So again, the voters took things into their own hands and their state committee selections were taken on where the voters liked the man.

But, to get back to the premise upon which I started, it has been most interesting to note the veering of the political winds. Shortly after the Florida primary, there was a hurrying for cover by dozens of Democrats in the house of representatives. They thought they saw in those results a swing again to the New Deal, a restoration of the President's popularity. New Deal spokesmen around Washington did not let any grass grow under their feet. They used the Florida results to advantage. In good political fashion, they whispered and hinted and sometimes said out loud that the boys who went against the New Deal would get their spanking.

And to their credit, it must be said they did a good job. For example, I am convinced the vicious wages and hours bill that was locked so securely in a house committee would never have been brought out except for the reaction from the Florida primary. Seldom, if ever, has there been so much haste in signing a petition for report of a bill as was observed in the case of that legislation. Generally speaking, I believe it is a fact that New Deal backbones were stiffened all along the line by Senator Pepper's renomination—which assures election in Florida.

Came then the Pennsylvania primary, a vote that was preceded by charges of graft, bribery, bossism, etc., and the Farley "harmony attempt" in the day before the polls were taken. And came then a sudden revival of the fight that anti-New Deal Democrats were making prior to Florida's vote. Maybe the Florida vote did not involve clear-cut New Deal issues; maybe it was Pepper's machine, maybe it was this and maybe it was that—anyway, their thoughts were running: Maybe Pennsylvania is a better barometer. And each one is analyzing that vote in an effort to apply the result to his own district.

Whatever their conclusions are, there is one thing definitely established. Organized labor's most ambitious political effort flopped. It was washed out of the road. The Pennsylvania rout of organized labor of the John Lewis brand is made the more significant because of the link with the White House disclosed through Mr. Farley's indorsement of Mr. Kennedy. It may be, of course, that President Roosevelt did keep hands off, but it is quite another matter to convince the average person that the White House was not involved. For one thing, the Pennsylvania results seem to show that the John Lewis claims of political strength can be discarded as so much hooey.

Another thing to remember about the Democratic primary results in Pennsylvania projects itself into the future—to 1940, to be exact. The victory by Mr. Jones in the fight for the gubernatorial nomination destroys the control of Pennsylvania Democrats so long exercised by Senator Guffey. He cannot be called the boss again under any stretch of the imagination. And when it is time for election of a successor to Mr. Guffey, the best political judgment available predicts Mr. Guffey's disappearance as an entrant. As to the 1940 projection, attention ought to be directed to the fact that probably Mr. Jones, and not Mr. Guffey, will determine what Democratic presidential aspirant shall have the great block of 72 votes in the national convention. This seems certain whether Mr. Jones wins or loses the race for governor. He is established as head of the party. All of the indications now perceptible promise an alignment of the Jones faction, now controlling, with the more conservative group nationally, including Sen. Pat Harrison, Vice President Garner and men of that type. So, it is seen that the Pennsylvania primary can, and is almost certain to, have an important reaction on national Democratic strategy.

In addition to these circumstances, there is talk going around now that the anti-New Deal faction in Kentucky is determined to do business. In that state, of course, Senator Barkley, the Roosevelt majority leader in the senate whose selection to the job was made in the famous "Dear Alben" letter, has a tremendous bulge. Cold analysis of the situation does not afford much comfort for the forces of A. B. "Happy" Chandler, who seeks the Barkley scalp. The point is, however, that anti-New Dealers among the Democrats think the Pennsylvania situation may possibly be reproduced in Kentucky.

MESSIAH from WISCONSIN?

House of La Follette Again Sponsors a Third Party

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Since 1930 American politics has seen Messiahs by the carload. In Minnesota the Floyd B. Olsons attempted to project their Farmer-Labor party into the national picture; in Detroit the Father Coughlins came forward with a platform that was anti-Democratic and anti-Republican; Townsendism had its day, and dynamic Huey P. Long raised his voice from the bayous of Louisiana.

These are the malcontents, "radicals" if you please, many of whom argue that it's safer to build a new balloon than patch the old. In an era featured by change, they want more change. Individually they are powerless, but if a new Leader should emerge—

In Wisconsin a few weeks ago that potential Leader did emerge, but he was not an unknown Messiah. His father was the fire-eating Progressivist who kept the United States senate worried until his death in 1925. His brother is today a member of that same senate and very much respected. He himself is governor of Wisconsin. The name is Phil LaFollette.

If America's anti-Republicans and anti-Democrats had searched a generation they might not have found an able Leader than the man who popped up in the quiet college town of Madison. Like his brother, Senator Bob, Phil LaFollette has been doggedly fighting for the ideals of Progressivism more than a decade. He's never shouted; only the false Messiahs shout. But he has applied his ideals to state government and has made them work.

A Brotherly Combine.

Together the brothers LaFollette form a unique combination to win support from labor, the farmer and the small business men.

They are not socialists but the LaFollettes want to "harness the profit motive for social ends." They are not capitalistic but they think organized labor is foolish to bargain for fixed wages instead of an annual income based on a share of the company's profits. Nor are these farm state boys opposed to agriculture but they do censure the farmer for haggling with purchasers of their crops for a set price level. Instead, say the LaFollettes, farmers should bargain collectively for a share of the ultimate price.

These proposals come under the heading of making new balloons instead of patching old ones. Phil LaFollette built a new balloon in his state unemployment insurance law, a piece of legislation that reflects the LaFollette fetish for justice. Under this act a separate set of books is kept for each business organization in the state. The corporation with the smallest labor turnover pays the least.

What Phil LaFollette doesn't say, Senator Bob supplies. In Washington he rants about the "hodge-podge" of taxation that has grown up these past hundred years. He'd like to junk it all and develop a sane, thoroughgoing program.

Brother Bob's Opinions.

Senator Bob has also voiced a family opinion concerning the New Deal and its efforts to cure depres-

Governor Phil LaFollette of Wisconsin, charming and unassuming, will be the "public appeal" factor in the National Progressive party's campaign. He's presidential timber.

Old Bob LaFollette, dead since 1925, is still the moving spirit in Wisconsin's progressive politics.

perimenting and in Washington Senator Bob has listened carefully to each successive crop of reform proposals.

Comes the Announcement.

In 1938, at a strategic moment when the New Deal shows signs of bogging down, when the Republican party still lacks leadership and the country cries with discontent, Phil LaFollette has launched the National Progressive party with an eye to pushing himself to the White House by 1948. Perhaps it will be sooner. On the surface Bob LaFollette, well versed with official Washington, is the logical National Progressive candidate. But the brothers recognize that Bob is the politician and legislator while Phil is an executive.

Throughout the past decade's topsy-turvy experimentation in social and economic reform, the LaFollettes have remained pretty much in the background. In Wisconsin, Governor Phil has done his own ex-

Wisconsin's Wonder Boy. The next year his father died and Phil's ambitions were nipped in the bud when young Bob ascended to the senate. It looked like a political fade-out but Phil won the Republican nomination for governor in 1930 and has been at Madison for three terms since.

Wisconsin's allegiance to the LaFollette tradition is a thing of wonder. In November, 1928, young Bob came up for election the first time and was sent back to the senate with a plurality of 400,000. Yet Wisconsin gave its electoral vote that year to Herbert Hoover, for whom the LaFollettes had said not a single good word.

Governor Phil is by no means an idol with his constituents. The past two years have seen many scraps from which he has emerged victorious but badly scratched. In most of these he has shown a judgment for diplomacy that would credit any President. One of his accomplishments was legislative enactment of a governmental reorganization bill, the same stumbling block over which President Roosevelt tripped last winter.

"Trigger" La Follette.

The governor's private life and hobbies account for much of his popular appeal. He is a devotee of Americana of the Sam Houston period and is also a student of Napoleon. His quick-on-the-trigger aptitude in speech-making wins him many converts. Never caught short, he faced a momentary crisis when addressing a crowd of Farmer-Laborites in Iowa a few weeks ago. A bench collapsed noisily, spilling its occupants to the ground. "That," cracked Phil, "must have been the Democratic or Republican platform."

The next few months may see Governor Phil and Senator Bob carrying their National Progressive party to the nation. The two brothers never disagree on major points, so America's farmers, laboring men and small business men are apt to be offered two Messiahs instead of one, each preaching the same political doctrine.

To them may fall the task of cementing our growing crop of malcontents into a unified political group, of soothing Labor's quarrels with the farmer and the corner grocery man. To their flag may rally a strange mixture of men and women, disillusioned followers of defeated third party movements.

But Phil will be the dominant LaFollette, a dynamic crusader in whom more than one aging Progressive will see a carbon copy of old Fighting Bob LaFollette, the man who wanted his son to be a minister.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy has been an effective social and political ally of both her father, former mayor of Boston, and her husband, ambassador to the Court of St. James. But the news that, in accordance with her husband's decision, she presented only seven American women at court is one of her rare appearances in the headlines.

The 11 engaging Kennedys have been viewed more or less en bloc in the news and Mrs. Kennedy has never been in a very sharp lens focus.

She was one of the prettiest of Boston debutantes, 30 years ago, a rollicking girl with black hair and eyes of Irish blue. Back home from her convent training, she taught her father "Sweet Adeline."

He was John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, and in his campaigns he sang his way to memorable political fame—riding like a surfboard the long, lingering "swipes" of the song taught him by his daughter—"the flower of his heart."

Joseph P. Kennedy, her childhood playmate, was twenty-five years old when they were married in 1914. He borrowed $2,000 for a down payment on a $6,500 house. Their fortunes grew as their family, with Mr. Kennedy president of a bank, in a year or two after their marriage.

Mrs. Kennedy once told a Boston drygoods clerk that she bought 200 suits and dresses a year. It takes a heap of shopping to make a home, like the Kennedys', and she became known among her friends as a paragon of household efficiency comparable to the one in Solomon's off-hand apostrophe to such skills and virtues.

Now she is mistress of the "castle" which was once J. Pierpont Morgan's home; also of a beautiful mansion in Bronxville, N. Y., a huge summer estate at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, and a villa at Palm Beach, built by one of the Wanamakers.

She is slender and girlish, comely and vivacious, weighs 115 pounds and takes size 14 in dresses. Violet net makes her gowns and she is envied by other women for her magnificent jewels—notable among them being a ruby and diamond bracelet which, it is said, is matched only by the one the Aga Khan gave his princess.

But she never lets the children run to unseemly display, holding them to restraint in regime and dress. Even without all these adventitious fixings, say her friends, she would be an admirable ambassador's wife, with her own quite adequate equipment of tact, charm and intelligence.

MAN and boy, this journeyman has helped process a lot of explorers' and adventurers' copy through the news mill. If it was ghost-written, it had only slick and synthetic excitement, like Ersatz pastry, and if it wasn't it was usually dull. Happily in contrast are the doubtlessly authentic and personally written yarns of W. H. Tilman, leader of the British Mount Everest expedition, now getting under way.

These stories from the Tibetan base camp have a professional ease and fluency, along with a ring of integrity which gives assurance that Mr. Tilman is really writing them. There is no ghost on the job here.

Mr. Tilman is thirty-nine years old, a keen-faced, hard-muscled Britisher of medium stature, who has been exploring ever since he left college.

He has climbed mountains in the Alps and in Africa, including Mount Kenya, Kilimanjaro and Ruwenzori. This is his fifth expedition to the Himalayas. The entrants in this high hurdle event are not youngsters. N. E. Odell is forty-seven, F. S. Smythe is thirty-seven and the others are all over thirty.

Bull Terrier, White Dog

When bull baiting was abolished by law in England, sporting men developed the bull terrier for dog fighting and badger baiting. About 1875, dalmatian and pointer blood were introduced in the strain, making them look less like bulldogs. The bull terrier is always white, has a long tapering head, wide, deep chest, stiff, glossy hair and tapering tail. He is gentle and good natured, but fears nothing and is a good watch dog.

"Death by Proxy"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

There's only one thing I know that's less profitable than being a burglar, and that's just posing as one. And Distinguished Adventurer Willard G. Stanton of Bloomfield, N. J., ought to agree with me there. Once upon a time, when Bill was a youngster of sixteen, he tried that little stunt, but personally, of course. Bill's intentions were perfectly O. K. But it doesn't make any difference what your intentions are. If you look like a burglar, or if you act like a burglar, first thing you know somebody is going to think you ARE a burglar and treat you accordingly.

Back in 1907, when this adventure happened to Bill, he lived in an old-fashioned apartment house in Brooklyn. At least it would look old-fashioned today. At that time it was probably the last word in apartment houses. It had a stairway running up the center of the building, and there were two apartments to the floor. The doors of the living rooms opened on the stair landing, and the outer doors were fitted with ground glass panels. The glass was opaque. You couldn't exactly see through it. But when you were on the inside looking out you could tell when someone was at the door, because you could see a shadow of a human figure against the glass.

Remember those panels. They've got a lot to do with the story.

Burglars Alarmed the Old Ladies.

Bill's family had an apartment on the fourth and top floor of that building. Across the hall lived two old ladies—retired school teachers—one of whom was slightly deaf. Remember that deaf old lady, too.

Bullets Whizzed Over Bill's Head.

Between her and the glass panels, Old Lady Adventure managed to cook up quite a thrill for Bill Stanton.

About three o'clock one November morning, Bill was awakened out of a sound sleep by a loud, insistent pounding. As he came out of a half-doze, he realized that the pounding came from the wall, on the other side of which the two old ladies slept. Something was wrong in their apartment! Bill jumped out of bed and went into his own living room. Then he saw what the trouble was.

On the ground glass panels of the door leading to the hall he could see two shadowy figures. They were over by the door of the old ladies' apartment and they seemed to be trying to jimmy the lock. So that was it! Burglars, trying to get in next door! The old ladies had heard them and pounded on the wall to attract Bill's attention.

Bill called out, "Who's there?" and began rattling the door knob. The two figures moved noiselessly to the stairs and began to descend. Bill was sixteen, and impetuous. He ran out of his apartment and started to follow the two men down the stairs. "Right there," he says, "is where my adventuring career started."

Bill Was in a Tight Place.

Bill followed the crooks down two flights of stairs, but they were too fast for him. He was in pajamas, and he couldn't very well dash out into the street after them anyway. Not on a cold night in November. He turned around and went slowly back up the stairs.

Bill got to the top and put his hand on the doorknob. The door was locked. In his haste to follow the two men he had slammed it behind himself. In his pajamas and without a key in his pocket, it looked as if he was going to have some trouble getting back in. He stood for a moment considering his plight, and then, suddenly he heard a voice coming from the next apartment.

It was one of the old ladies—the deaf one—and her tone was ominous. "If you don't go away," she yelled, "I'll shoot."

All at once Bill realized what a tight situation he was in. The old lady could see his shadow through the glass door and thought he was one of the departed burglars. He knew she kept a gun in her apartment and didn't have any doubt that she would do just what she threatened to do.

Shot At by a Deaf Woman.

"I thought I had a good pair of lungs," says Bill, "and I screamed back: 'Don't shoot. It's me.' But I didn't count on that old lady being deaf. Before I had a chance to get in another word I heard a loud report and a bullet came crashing through the door. It was followed by two more. Then I dropped flat on the floor, and while I lay there, three more shots imbedded themselves in the wall over my head."

The shots stopped then, but Bill lay right where he was, afraid to stir lest the slightest motion bring more of that hot lead his way. Then, inside his own apartment, he heard his mother open a window and start screaming for the police. Still Bill stayed where he was. Courage is one thing, but when a panic-stricken old lady starts blazing away right and left with a revolver, there isn't any sense in giving her a mark to shoot at.

Bill lay right where he was until the police came. Then he got up again. He looked himself over and was relieved to find that he hadn't been hit by any of those wild bullets, but he found an ominous little hole in the sleeve of his pajamas that showed just how close he had come to having a funeral instead of just an adventure. "And nowadays," says Bill, "when there is any burglar hunting to be done, I do it by telephone."

Use of the Oregon Boot

Once Oregon was famous for a contrivance that was held in pardonable distaste by prisoners who happened to find themselves confined within the cold gray walls of the state penitentiary. The Oregon boot, they called it, and it was used as an efficient but not altogether humane method of keeping prisoners from dashing off on their own.

The number was to be determined by each township board of trustees, and those who failed to fill their quota were subject to a fine.

The sausage tree (Kigelia pinnata) is a native of Africa. It has rough pinnate leaves and peculiar flowers which hang suspended by long peduncles. From each flower a large fruit develops which resembles a sausage.

School Notes

High School
About 40 people attended the high school dance held at the city hall, Friday evening, May 27. This was the last dance to be held this year except the Junior-Senior Banquet Dance to which all high school students are invited.

The scholastic averages for the month of May were lower for every class than the corresponding averages for April. The average of the entire school dropped from 2.114 to 2.097. The Juniors retained their position and are again leading the other classes. Their average is 2.184 for the current month. The Seniors are second with 2.155, followed by the Freshmen with 1.905. The Sophomores dropped to last place with an average of 1.813.

The number of students whose names appear on the May honor roll has increased to 17, making the largest number to appear on any honor roll this year. All the students who were listed in April "depeated" and are on the roll for the past school month. In addition one other student has made the "grade." The Seniors again have the largest number, placing six of their members; the Juniors have five; the Freshmen four, and the Sophomores two. Eleven are girls and six are boys. The honor roll lists the following names: Kathleen Davis, Lucille DePatty, Fidalis Groc, Hazel Herman, John Katterman, Myrton Leslie, Janet McLean, Marguerite McLean, Marion Musolf, Norma Musolf, Erna Lou Pfahl, Frieda Ross Harold Ross, Otto Ross, Harold Wegner, Frieda Wtzke and Richard Ziehl.

Commencement will be held in the Rivola Theatre instead of the Baptist church. This change is made in order to accommodate the expected guests and through the kindness of Mr. Ives.

No. 2 (Continued from the First Page)

Quick singled scoring Zollweg and sending Davis to third, Quick took second on the next pitch. W. Mallon hit one to third which bounced off the third baseman's glove scoring Davis. Quick rounded third and as he saw the ball on the ground between the pitcher and shortstop, he attempted to score, but was thrown out by what had to be a perfect peg to the plate. And so ended a hard fought game. After final check-up was taken, it was found that neither team had scored an earned run during the game.

Ferris Brown started on the mound for Tawas City and was taken out after pitching 1-2-3 innings. W. Mallon relieved him. Brown allowed five hits, issued one base on balls and four runs, Mallon allowed six hits, and three runs, walked one and struck out seven.

Late Sunday evening the Oscoda baseball team asked for a game to be played at Oscoda on Monday, Memorial Day. Henry Neuman found enough players to make the trip on Monday to accommodate the Resort town boys and staged nine innings of comedy in place of baseball. The scorekeeper had six errors charged against the local team, but he must have meant six errors each. The final score was 18 to 4 in favor of Oscoda.

Next Sunday, June 5, is an open date in the league schedule for Tawas City. Oscoda will play a return game on that date at the local field. The Tawas City team says they want to be so generous Sunday. The game is scheduled to start at three o'clock. The season tickets sold for the league games will not be good for an admission to this game.
