N A little old stone church at Nahant, Mass., John Roosevelt, youngest son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and Anne Lindsay Clark were made man and wife. After the ceremony there was a reception in the old Nahant club, and the young couple then started on a honeymoon trip to Bermuda. There they were to stay at the estate of Vincent Astor.

Railway Aid Postponed

WHEN the leaders of the senate and house made up their minds to adjourn congress not later than June 15, they went to the White House and told the President the proposed legislation to expedite the reorganization of railroads would have to be postponed to the next session. They agreed, however, to put through two other railway measures. One permits RFC loans to railroads without interstate commerce commission certification. The other establishes a special unemployment insurance system for rail workers.

Healing Party Rifts

THOUGH it was believed Tommy Corcoran and his "eliminating committee" would continue the efa 40 hour maximum work week in forts to "purge" the Democratic danger. The American command will not change the color of its warships, which are painted white, to conform to any color scheme suggested by the Japanese.

The United States does not regard the warning of Japanese naval officials relative to the Yangtze as relieving the Japanese "in the slightest degree" of responsibility for damage or injury to United States warships.

HELLO EVERYBODY:
Now this is the story of an adventure that almost any one of us might have got into. Anyone who has ever ridden on a railroad train has taken a chance on finding himself in just such a terrifying situation. As luck would have it, it happened to Fenton Barrett of Shaker Hollow, South Salem, N. Y. And, boys and girls, I wish it to be distinctly understood that I am very glad it happened to Fent Barrett, and not to me.

Fent Barrett is an actor. He had just finished a run in a successful musical show on Broadway not long before he starred in the thriller he is going to tell us about now. When the show closed, he went south for a vacation, but he hadn't been there long when he got a wire telling him to come back to New York and start rehearsals in a new produc-

Fent left that night for Washington, and in Washington he got aboard the train for New York-the train that was to carry him right smack into the most thrilling moment of his life.

Fire Started in the Wash Room.

It was a hot day, the first of August, 1928. Fent decided to ride in the smoker where he could take his coat off and be comfortable. Usually the smoker is up front, next to the baggage car, but in this case it was the last car on the train.

The train bowled along over the countryside, without any interruption, and without any hint of the drama that was to come. It was getting near the Big City, and the train porter came in and began cleaning up the car. Fent was sitting in the third seat from the front, and was watching the porter idly as he moved about. The train was coming into

The Whole Wash Room Was Roaring With Flame.

Elizabeth, N. J., and the porter, with a large bundle of old newspapers, had just gone into the men's wash room.

"That porter," says Fent, "had been in the wash room only a few seconds when suddenly he came leaping out into the aisle. As he did, I saw the reflection of flames on the highly polished door. The porter made a desperate attempt to close the door, but by this time the whole wash room was roaring with flame, and he was beaten back."

Fent jumped to his feet. He was one of seven men in the car including the conductor and porter. Before he could get out of his seat, the flames were almost on him, and he had barely time to grab his coat and brief case and dash to the rear of the car.

Couldn't Stop the Blazing Train.

Meanwhile, with all the windows open, the blaze spread through the car like wild fire. As Fent reached the rear of the car he looked back, just in time to see the conductor reach for the signal rope to stop the train. The rope was blazing, even as he grabbed for it. As he pulled on it, it snapped in two. Their only way of communicating with the engineer—the only means of stopping that speeding train—was gone.

"We all crowded back to the rear platform," says Fent, "and divided three on each side. The porter had climbed over the iron gate and was hanging to the back end of the train for dear life. By this time half the car was on fire, and with us in the last car and the train doing sixty-five miles an hour it certainly looked had

"One of the passengers became hysterical and the conductor had a hard time trying to keep him from jumping off the back end of the train. We were all choking and almost overcome by smoke and the fumes of burning paint and varnish. I felt myself getting panicky and dropped to my knees and put my nose to the floor, trying to get a good breath of air." The fire was all through the car by this time-streaming right down the aisle and shooting out the door onto the rear platform. Fent felt something move beneath him. It was that iron lid which covers the steps. The porter had loosened it and was motioning the three men who were standing on it to step back so he could swing it open. They squirmed around until they could get it up, and then they crowded down onto the steps.

All Jumped at 30-Mile Speed.

Naval officials of The porter screamed to them not to jump. The flames crowded them Japan asked that all harder now, and Fent was kept busy dodging broken glass and tongues foreign warships leave the Yangtze of fire that licked back at him through the rear windows. The heat was so terrific that he made up his mind to jump soon, rather than be burned to death.

And then-the brakes went on. The train started to jerk and slow down. It slowed from sixty-five-to fifty-to forty. When it was going about thirty, Fent jumped, and the rest of them followed.

"I was thrown up against the bank," Fent says, "but I wasn't badly hurt. A few scratches and bruises-but I was too glad to be off that burning car to pay any attention to a little thing like that. The train went on for half a mile before it came to a stop, and we ran and caught up with it. By that time, the car we had been in was just a red-hot steel frame. Not a window or a seat left. And they were having quite a time trying to disconnect it from the rest of the train because the steel was so hot the brakeman couldn't touch the couplings. We got into another car, I fell into the seat exhausted, for it was then that I first realized what I had been through."

throughout the Relief country now is the use of relief funds Politics for political purposes. It is not only the most important news at this time, but has been the most important and will continue to be the most important for weeks to come. This is so because the amount of money involved is vast and the number of votes possible to be influenced by that money is so great. The stakes are high and the unscrupulous are going to play for them to the limit of their capacity. I think that perhaps the corruption of the Harding administration with its shameful oil scandal was more sensational, but surely no one condones the present situation any more than the scandals of the earlier malfeasance of office holders.

In the Harding oil affair, there was perhaps 5 per cent as much money involved. Few, if any, votes of private citizens were at stake; certainly, no votes of persons who through no fault of their own found themselves destitute.

It was the late Thomas Walsh, Montana Democratic senator, who conducted the earnest fight to purge the country of the crooks at that time. And now that the senate again has taken notice of the conditions, one cannot help but wonder whether there will be the same high-type of statesmanship displayed, the same courage shown by some Republican or Democratic senator. For the sake of the country, I hope that no stone will be left unturned by the senate investigation which, though ordered belatedly and after an irritable reaction from the country, nevertheless was ordered by the senate.

The senate deserves no credit for having moved to expose the condition which Senator Wheeler of Montana described as "playing politics with human misery." It had three chances to show its courage and its statesmanship before it would take hold of what many recognized as a political firebrand. It ran from those opportunities in the most cowardly fashion, under the lash of New Deal leaders in the senate. On three occasions, I repeat, the senate had a chance to assert control over the $5,000,000,000 borrowing-spendinglending bill and prevent, to some extent, the further use of taxpayers' money for electioneering purposes. And, I repeat, each time the vote was against inclusion of preventative clauses in that appropriation measure. So, none can say the credit should go to the senate even though now it promises to uncover facts which anyone, with an eye half open, knows exist.

There can be no credit to the administration because President Roosevelt spoke not a word in behalf of use of funds for relief and for the removal of politics. Indeed, he praised his relief administrator, Harry Hopkins, for publicly backing Representative Wearin, the New Deal candidate for the senate nomination in Iowa. Mr. Wearin was well licked by Senator Gillette, an old line Democrat. Nor did the President tell the senate publicly that he favored a curb on the use of the money. Quite the contrary. Whether the President urged them to do so or not, his board of strategy (the new name for the brain trust) put the steam on and made enough senators vote against the amendments to curb politics to insure defeat. They even forced Senator Barkley of Kentucky to take the floor in favor of the use of money in any way the relief overseers want to use itand Senator Barkley is seeking renomination in his native Kentucky. So, no credit for the move to draw back the curtain can possibly be given to the White House or any of the President's advisors or strate-

No credit for bringing the situation to the attention of the country can go to the house of repre-Dodged in House sentatives. It did not even consider any restrictions on the use of the money when the bill was up for passage there. The leadership in the house is controlled by Mr. Roosevelt, but even then it was surprising to see such upstanding, square-shooting men like Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas sidle around the hot spot. Sam Rayburn is one of the really splendid men in the house of representatives, but he dodged on this thing and it is not com-

Then, where must credit be given? Why did the senate finally take the bit in its teeth and set machinery in motion for putting out the fire before adjournment? The answer is that the people "back home," and that means largely in smaller towns and in the country, finally caught up with the fact that they are being victimized. They let their feelings become known, and with them nearly every newspaper in the country criticized the senate until the sen-

WASHINGTON .- The most impor- | atorial ears must have burned to a ant news story in Washington and crisp. Anyway, it brought action and for that the country ought to be thankful.

> It might be well to review the senate action when it ran away from an honest job on the relief appropriation. First, there was the amendment by Senator Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico, which was to prevent use of relief funds for political purposes by the simple expedient of dismissal for the official who had control over such funds; second, there was the amendment by Senator Lodge, Massachusetts Republican, which would have required a distribution of the relief funds on the basis of the number of unemployed in each state and which, thereby, would have prevented use of vast sums in some states where the political battle might be going against the candidate with a New Deal blessing, whether the opponent be an old line Democrat or a Republican; third, there was the amendment by Senator Rush Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia, which merely proposed to make all federal relief officials responsive to civil service laws insofar as political activity was concerned, and fourth, there was the amendment by Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, which would have made it unlawful for any person whose compensation comes from relief funds to solicit, or authorize the solicitation of, funds as contributions to any political

Well, as I said, the senate ran away from them and it seems to me that any senator who voted against those amendments has a pretty difficult job to explain that vote. As much as I admire Senator Barkley, the basis of his argument was so sour that it smelled to high heaven. The Kentuckian told the senate that the amendments would destroy senators and give all of the political power into the hands of state political machines which could use that power against senators seeking reelection. Senator Barkley is being challenged for renomination in his state and, I suppose, the matter strikes right close home with him.

Whether senators who voted against those amendments so intended or not, what they have done, when the picture is examined in an unbiased fashion, is to put the whole Roosevelt administration in a ridiculous position. It was their action which makes the record show that the whole administration is willing to let politics run riot in relief; it is against a fair and equitable allocation of money among the states in accordance with the number of unemployed who must be fed.

As to the phase of conditions back home. the word seeps through to Wash-The Folks ington that a good

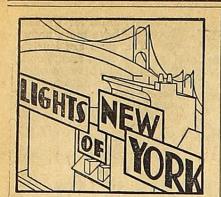

Back Home' many persons who are seeking house or senate nominations against New Deal aspirants are finding strong WPA organizations against them and in favor of the New Deal candidate. And the full import of that strength comes to mind quickly when one thinks what a hungry person will give up in order to have food.

Senator Tydings of Maryland is the sponsor of the move to clean up the mess in relief. Of course, Senator Tydings, while a staunch Democrat, seldom has done anything to cause the New Dealers happiness; on the contrary, he was marked for "liquidation" long, long ago. It is much better that an outstanding Democrat should have proposed the investigation than to have had the proposal come from a Republican. Had a Republican introduced the resolution, the thing would have been called political, purely. But it would have been a move calculated to demonstrate the genuineness of the New Deal if some Roosevelt 100 per center would have brought up the proposition.

There is a great opportunity for this new senate committee to serve the country well. It can, and should, go into every report its investigators obtain to learn to what extent taxpayers' money is being employed to influence elections. It has an outstanding piece upon which to work, at the very start. Did not Mr. Hopkins horn into the Iowa primary? And everywhere there was the guestion whether the WPA and other relief workers in Iowa would not construe the Hopkins announcement in behalf of Mr. Wearin as an "order" for them to support the same

But more important than Mr. Hopkins, this investigation-if it is seriously made-can point the tremendous fallacy and danger of relief being administered from Washington instead of from the states and the counties where the money is spent. If the country is made fully aware of true conditions, I believe there will be changes in the relief methods that will allow more than 60 or 70 cents out of each dollar expended to be used for food and clothing as is the case now. @ Western Newspaper Union.

RAGMAN SELLS ART GEMS FOR NICKEL

Finds Difficulty in Disposing of Van Goghs.

Amsterdam.—A rag-and-bone man named Couvreur from the town of Breda, in southern Holland, has revealed why so few canvases of Vincent van Gogh have been found. This Dutch painter, who ended his tragic life a lunatic, was a prolific producer during his younger years, although his fame is based on the genius he showed during the latter years of his short life.

Thirty-five years ago, Couvreur relates, on a cobble-stoned street of Breda he was loading his hand-cart with odds and ends he had bought from a carpenter who asked him as a favor to take away some rubbish. He explained it was cluttering up his loft, where he had stored it after it had been left behind by a painter who had lived there for some time.

Traded Some for Beer.

Couvreur obliged the carpenter and took away two cartloads of the "rubbish," chiefly paintings and drawings, all signed "Van Gogh" or "V. G.," or sometimes only with a "V." or a "G."

"I used to have a stand," Couvreur told newspaper men, "a couple of days each week in the local market. I tried to sell the paintings. Nobody wanted them, although I offered them as cheaply as ten Dutch cents apiece (about .05).

"I sometimes gave them to children to play with. It took me 30 years to get rid of the stuff. Sometimes I traded them at local pubs for a glass of beer, although the innkeepers were not all keen about

Got 35 Cents Apiece for Six.

"A couple of years ago somebody must have heard about my paintings, because a local art dealer sent around a man to buy all I had left at ten Dutch cents apiece. I had only six left. Somehow I sensed there was a demand for them and refused to sell them so cheaply. In the end I got 35 cents for each

"Now I realize I could have become a rich man had I known the meaning of the name Van Gogh. My son, however, has kept two of the paintings and probably he can make a little money out of them."

Girl Battles Icy Water to Save Sister and Dog

Plandome, N. Y .- Nancy Whitmore, twelve years old, was saved from drowning when her sister, Jane, twenty-one years old, rescued her after she broke through the ice on Manhasset bay in Lond Island sound. The girls are daughters of Carl Whitmore, a wealthy New York telephone company executive.

The younger girl broke through the ice 150 feet from the shore when she went to the aid of her spaniel, Piny. Jane, an expert swimmer, who was on the beach of the Whitmore estate, ran on the ice until it began to crack, then crawled to the hole where Nancy was struggling.

The ice broke when Jane tried to pull her sister out. Treading water, Jane lifted her sister upon the ice and then rescued the dog. Almost exhausted, she was barely able to pull herself back on the ice.

Robot Saves Time for Kansas School Teacher

Wichita, Kan.-When the school day is over and the pupils at Cen-tral Intermediate school go home for the day, Carroll Joachim, vocational electricity teacher, goes home, too.

Joachim isn't bogged down by the tedium of grading examination papers. He used his electrical talents to perfect a robot which grades the papers for him, thus saving him about eight hours of work each week.

The machine is used in checking answers of true and false or yes and no tests. Joachim places ten questions on a sheet and draws circles containing two answers adjacent to the questions. The pupil merely punches a hole in the answers he thinks is correct.

The pupil is satisfied, because the machine plays no favorites.

Grain Belt Prepares For 'Hopper Attack

Poison Bait Offensive Awaits Insects as Federal, State Farm Leaders Seek Means of Protecting This Year's Bumper Crop

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Kids enjoy devilish pranks. Remember how we used to catch grasshoppers, pull their legs and watch them "spit tobacco"?

Innocent fun, perhaps, but today the lowly grasshopper takes his revenge. In Biblical days there were locust plagues, but no worse than the year-after-year grasshopper menace that has damaged America's most verdant crops every summer since the early 1930s. Preventative measures have met with minor success; this year the United States department of agriculture warns of an even worse invasion.

'Hoppers swarm like a horde of angry bees from one field to the next, ripping their way through ripening grain and leaving a path of desolation. They cut away fence posts, destroy shrubbery and finally splatter their gorged bodies against the windshield of a passing car. Sometimes they blacken the air and make men fear the millenium has arrived.

But when fall comes the grasshoppers disappear and farmers breathe easier, hoping the plague is gone forever. Then comes winter and with it come entomologists from state and federal departments of agriculture. They dig in the resting soil and shake their heads. Last year's grasshop- merly. But the worst grasshopper pers have deposited millions outbreaks in American history ocof eggs which will hatch under favorable conditions and bring more trouble next This routine has been repeated for several years but farm men have not been idle. They've discovered the most effective method of combating 'hoppers is poison bait, a mixture of bran, sawdust, blackstrap molasses, crude arsenic and water. Innumerable tons of this delectable diet have been offered the grasshoppers since 1930; this year an estimated 178,000 tons will be needed and much of it will be supplied by the federal government.

Summer Morning's Pastime.

Poison bait is spread in the fields during late spring or early summer, before the 'hoppers get started. Any morning this month you can drive through a midwestern farm area and watch it being spread from a wagon or truck.

Unlike humans, grasshoppers are particular when they eat and the bait spreaders must be patient. In ordinary summer weather the feeding time is from 8 a. m. until noon. They figuratively stay in bed if the temperature is less than 65 degrees; moreover they can't be bothered with food if it's warmer than

The grasshopper's private life is an interesting chapter in the study of entomology. He hatches from an egg which is buried in the soil by his mother the previous autumn. As many as 441 eggs are known to have been deposited in one tunnel. In contrast to many other injurious insects, the grasshopper when newly hatched closely resembles his parents except that he lacks wings. Almost immediately upon emerging from the egg he is able to hop about quite actively, beginning his life of destruction. Forty to sixty days later he has grown into maturity.

During the growth period he sheds his skin five or six times. Cast-off skins are often mistaken for dead grasshoppers and are frequently the basis for mistaken reports that grasshoppers are "dying by the millions."

Fight for Existence.

Man is not the grasshopper's only enemy. Throughout its brief life the insect is plagued by parasitic twowinged flies which deposit maggots on the 'hopper. These maggots devour the internal portions of the grasshopper's body and soon cause ts death.

But one of the most important factors in grasshopper control is the bird. Except for those living solely on vegetable matter, birds numbers of them. The assertion has birds are less numerous than for- the winter in the soil.

curred in the great plains region 50 to 60 years ago when game birds were far more plentiful than now.

For years it has been believed that when grasshoppers come they remain seven years, destroying crops annually. After this period has elapsed they allegedly return to normalcy and are only a minor crop hazard until the next outbreak occurs. No definite proof of this theory has ever been offered.

It has been established, however, that dry, warm weather is favorable for grasshoppers and that the most severe outbreaks occur either during or following periods of drouth. Perhaps most drouth cycles are about seven years long, which would explain the 'hopper tra-

Rains Haven't Helped.

But wet weather is unfavorable and great numbers of grasshoppers often die during wet springs from disease. Such is not the case this year, however, when the department of agriculture is planning the most active anti-grasshopper cam-paign in its history. The current spring has been wet in the Middle West and great plains area but grasshoppers will be bad anyway. Says the bureau of entomology:

"Recent rains over a wide belt in the Middle West and great plains area have much delayed the hatching of grasshoppers and have held those which have hatched in the edges of fields. But the reported mortality because of weather has been low. Not enough have been killed to permit any letting down in the control campaign. The delayed development of the grasshoppers and growth of vegetation have kept grasshoppers out of the crops, but it is too early to indicate that control will not be needed over this wide area.

"The delayed hatch may make it necessary to make several applications of poison bait, rather than one or two, which would be sufficient if all the 'hoppers hatched at about the same time."

Widespread outbreaks are expected this year in South Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. The greatest trouble is expected in North and South Dakota, which together will require 65,000 tons of hopper bait. Total requirements this year for the entire nation are expected to be 178,-000 tons; two states will need onethird of it!

Extra Generations.

The situation is made more acute by an unprecedented happening last fall. Whereas grasshoppers are known to hatch only once a year, feed on 'hoppers and destroy large last fall an extra generation appeared which ruined considerable often been made that grasshoppers fall sown grain and added greatly are now so abundant because game to the number of eggs which passed

Recognizing that successful control measures depend on co-operation, well-organized campaigns are already under way in many states headed by a trained entomologist who generally works with county agents. In turn come township and community leaders, mixing stations and bait-spreading crews. County financing has supported a large part of the campaign.

Last year 79,291 tons of poison bait were supplied at an approximate cost to the federal government of $1,104,000. This made possible a harvest, in many sections where without control the crops would have been a complete loss. State co-operators estimated that crops worth more than $100,000,000 were saved in the north central and great plains area. But despite these savings, the losses to crops where hoppers were not controlled reached nearly $66,000,000.

Such is the picture of America's current agricultural pain-in-theneck, a perennial nuisance that has driven more than one farmer to near insanity. Adding to the discomfort is the fact that these plagues have descended with greatest wrath upon those states which have suffered most harshly from drouth and dust storms during the past eight years.

Disaster's Bedfellow.

Perhaps it is logical that grasshoppers, dust and drouth should go hand in hand and that one of these pestilences should lead to another. Lack of moisture encourages grasshoppers. The 'hoppers, in turn, destroy foliage and loosen the earth to be swept about at the mercy of a strong wind.

More than one visitor from the industrial East has looked upon this desolation and turned his eyes away, swearing that drouth, dust and 'hoppers will never be conquered. But there's always another year and each spring the 'hopper belt farmer faces life confidently, imbued with an undying faith that his luck must eventually change.

So it follows that again this year he thinks it will change. Probably it will, because never since 1929 has the great plains area been so plentifully showered with spring rains. Maybe the rain will kill these grasshoppers; maybe the weather will become freakish and keep them from doing great damage; maybe the poison bait will work better than

Maybe. At least we'll hope so!

NEW YORK .- France is beginning to think she has another Clemenceau in Premier Daladier, and she still has Marshal Philippe Petain, one of the How Petain few survivors of Keeps Fit the great generals of the World war.

Two or three years ago, General Petain was counseling peace and conciliation with Germany. Now he warns the French people of their "serious situation in Europe," and urges them to consider realities.

It is quite possible that rope-skipping is mainly accountable for General Petain being alive, trim, fit and active at eighty-two. He is an inveterate rope-skipper, ejected from his apartment in 1914, because he jarred the plaster from the walls. This writer's record as to that goes only to 1934, but, in that year, he was still skipping diligently. Joffre, Foch and Maginot, among the French, Von Mackensen, Ludendorff and Hindenburg among the Germans — non-skippers all— have passed, but Marshal Petain lives on, venerated by his country-

It was he who said, "They shall not pass"—on February 5, 1916, to be exact. He was the savior of Verdun, and, in this connection, a deft historian might discover that rope-skipping saved France. The general spent a solid week in an Automitralleuse without sleep, and the London Daily News commented at the time that no man who was not in perfect physical condition could have survived such ordeals. It was suggested that his energy and endurance had turned the tide of war.

He was born Henri Philippe Benoni Omer Joseph Petain, the son of a baker in Couchy a la Tour.

Born Frank Leavitt, in New York, known as the "Hell's Kitchen Hillbilly," he did a hitch in the army and thereafter engaged in some desultory wrestling and mauling as a Soldier Leavitt. Nothing much came of it, and he began placidly taking on weight as traffic cop in Miami, Fla. Doris Dean married him and began prodding his lagging

He started grappling again, in Boston in 1933, with fame still eluding his half-nelson, Doubled for when a German Film Star promoter took him as Henry VIII on a tour of the Rhineland. This was more successful, and brought him to the attention of Alexandre Korda, who needed a double for Charles Laughton as Henry VIII in the wrestling scene. Thus came the famous whiskers, an important detail of his wife's clever showmanship in the build-up of the Man Mountain. It was she who persuaded him to take the name Dean and who managed the histrionics which made him a fabulous creature. He was born in West Forty-third street in 1891, weighing 16½ pounds.

It was as United States attorney that he deftly enmeshed Capone in a silken spider-web of evidence, laboriously gathered and spun. The next year, Herbert Hoover made him a federal judge, but he stayed on the bench only a year and then went back to his law practice.

He broke the gangs in Chicago. His story of how he snared Capone, told before the senate judiciary committee, with its tales of trap-doors and secret panels, was Grade A melodrama, but he didn't make it sound that way. He is a modest man, with no instincts of showmenship.

Doilies Soon Done In Jiffy Crochet

Pattern 1669.

You'll find yourself so fascinated by this jiffy crochet pattern that you'll turn these doilies out by the dozen in all three sizes. Use heavy perle cotton or four strands of mercerized string to achieve that heavy richness that you usually find only in rare old lace. Use as luncheon set or just as centerpieces. Pattern 1669 contains directions for making these doilies; illustrations of them and of all stitches used; material requirements; a photograph of a doily.

A "Frankenstein" In a popular book, Frankenstein was the name of the young student in chemistry and anatomy who created the monster. Frankenstein is a synonym for a man whose own works bring him to disaster or_destruction. The monster of the ro-mance bears no name, but the name of his creator has often been transferred to him, so that a "Frankenstein" has come also to signify, in popular usage, a being of the most appalling ugliness and brutality, having no trace of the mora sense whatever. First Great School Survey

Play Safe July Fourth

Hundreds will be killed or maimed on Independence Day, the National Safety Council predicts. A few of the causes are listed below. Enjoy the Fourth . . . but play safe!

July Fourth is a day of picnics . . and of picnic accidents. If the gen-tleman isn't careful, he'll split an artery instead of opening the bottle.

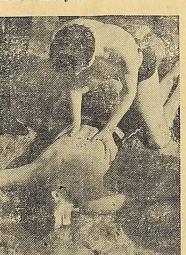

This picnicking couple filled their water bucket at a nearby brook, never thinking it might be contaminated. But it is, and two cases of typhoid will probably result.

Here's one for the books . . . filling a gasoline stove while smoking a cigarette. It looks foolish, and is, but many Independence Day picnickers will try it.

Nowski to George Sase and that said once, be and is hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims and demands against said deceased.

DAVID DAVISON, Probate Judge nickers will try it.

Fourth of July is a favorite day for swimming . . . and drowning. If you're not an excellent swimmer, don't be independent just because it's Independence Day. Don't go in the water right after eating.

If the youngsters MUST have fire crackers, make sure they're small size. You'd better be around to supervise the celebration, too. Children can be awfully foolish with firecrackers. So can some adults for that matter.

The dwelling house and brooder house containing 50 young turkeys, on the farm owned by Mr. Lackeye, of Birmingham, and occupied by Merle Cross, was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. Fire broke out in the brooder house at three o'clock in the morning and spread to the house but was extinguished and the danger of further damage was considered to be over. Apparently a spark had gotten into the attic, for at seven o'clock, smoke was seen coming through the roof, and before the fire department could be notified, the house was too far gone to do anything but protect other buildings. All household goods were saved. To add to the excitement, the fire truck upset, and Arnold Bronson, Dale Johnson and Walter Buck were badly burned by chemical. Mr. and Mrs. Cross will occupy the cabin on the farm until a new house is built.

Austin Rahl, of Turner, spent the week-end at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rahl, and is spending the remainder of the week at the 4-H camp at Loon Lake. CHAPTER X-Continued -13-

After a while she drew the manuscript from its envelope. For weeks Nora had been too worn and tired to peruse the articles her husband was sending out. Now, reading critically, her heart sank still lower. The editor was right. This wasn't on of Don's joyous narratives. It was the work of a harassed, half sick man, driving himself on because the need of money was imperative.

Part of the thousand dollars James Lambert had tucked into her gold mesh bag had paid the charges at the nursing home in London. The rest (long saved for an emergency), melted away during the months of sickness in South Africa. Dreading to run up bills, Nora had paid the Cape Town doctor at every visit, not realizing that if the man possessed a conscience he would doubtless have deducted something from the sum total. There had been medicines, too, expensive medicines; and nourishing food that cost real money. And now Don, burning the candle at both ends in a desperate effort to provide for his loved ones, was failing to make good. She would not show him that letter. She could not.

What Nora did was to sit down at the kitchen table, spread out the rejected manuscript and proceed to imbue it with the missing charm. And because she knew her husband's style so well-because she had listened spellbound while he talked of his adventures, she did it superbly. Her tired eyes lighted as she read it over, knowing by instinct that her work would "get across." And then she made the wisest move of all: wrote simply and honestly to the London editor (she had to check herself from beginning the letter "Dear old lifepreserver"!), confessing what she had done to this Cape Town Letter -telling him something of the unforeseen troubles which had descended on them-agreeing to watch over her husband's work, speaking quite frankly of the reason why they must return to England at the time planned. And at the end: "You will understand, of course, why you must send no answer to this letter; but if in its present form you find the article available for publication, kindly forward a check to Mr. Mason as soon as possible . . .

"And never let anyone persuade you," she said months later when Don learned the truth, "that Englishmen, for all their cold exteriors, haven't the warmest hearts in the whole world!" For just when her husband was beginning to worry about the missing check, a letter arrived bearing the familiar heading. The editor, it seemed, had learned of his contributor's recent illness, regretted it deeply, and suggested not trying to write till he was quite himself. Enclosed was a check for the last article (an especially good one), as well as for the three to follow, "on which, my dear fellow, you are at liberty to take your time." And with kindest regards to Mrs. Mason, he remained very cordially

"But how in thunder," asked Don, lifting puzzled eyes from this welcome missive, "did the old boy learn that I've been sick? And why does he lug you in all of a sudden?"

"Well, don't ask me!" responded Nora, so guilelessly that for the time being Don hadn't a suspicion of her intrigue.

After that things really did improve. The tension lessened. Don did better work. The little son was growing rosy; and Nora, rested herself, admitted (although it went against the grain to do so!) the surpassing beauty of Cape Town harbor - the grandeur of Table

Thus a day arrived when she braved the eyes of a scandalized community, and stopped at the house of a woman who, like a ministering angel, had appeared one chill, gray dawn to offer help.

mountain rising majestically behind

"Whoever sees me will be horrified, I suppose," she said to Don, "but after all, why should that matter? I was at the breaking point when she helped me out, you know. It wouldn't be decent not to say good-by to her."

"Of course it wouldn't." Don turned from locking a steamer trunk to add: "I'll go with you,

But Fate had other plans. Because of some error about their stateroom Don was called away; and Nora went alone. "I just dropped in to say good-Her hostess, obviously astonished at the call, was leading her into a small, tidy living room. Nora had not expected its surprising neatness. Then she saw that the wom-

"You don't need to, lady." The voice sounded a shade breathless. "It wasn't — nothing. I —" The woman, seated across the little room, arose suddenly. "I heard you folks was pullin' out tomorrow and that had washed innumerable

I got somethin' for you—a—a sort o' good-by present, if you don't mind. I was goin' to carry it over after dark."

Touched, and a trifle puzzled, Nora watched her open a bureau drawer and take out a small box tied with a bit of scarlet ribbon.

"Will-will you promise me somethin'?" she asked, her voice still shaken.

"Why not?" said Nora. "Weren't you a real friend in time of need?" "Friend!" echoed the woman, a nervous, unsteady laugh escaping her. "Well, lady, it's this I want: Promise you won't open this box till you're out at sea; and-and that you won't never try to get it back to me, noways."

"That's easy," smiled Leonora, anxious to put the other at her ease. 'Why should I want to send it

"You'll know when you see it. Your man might not like to have you take it—from me, you know. But you tell him that if I was to kick off sudden some guy would steal it off me most likely. Andand I wanter give it to you-'most more'n I ever wanted anything. I-"

"Let's get back to the barn."

she hesitated, then broke out passionately: "Say! you're the first good woman that's spoken a kind word to me for 15 years! I'm dirt to 'em all; but if they knew how I got this way— Well," her voice dropped, dully—"that don't matter now. I'm used to it. But you keep that safe, lady. I come by it honest. A man give it to me oncethe only decent fella I ever

And next morning, a bright, clear morning as if Cape Town were doing its best to overcome an unfortunate impression, they set forth in a second-class cabin (Oh, shades of Leonora Lambert!) on what was to be a most momentous voyage. Safe in the depths of Nora's handbag lay a small white box tied with a scarlet ribbon. The English boy, reluctant to see them go, was on the wharf. His was the last face they saw in Cape Town. His the last voice they heard. Above the confusion of departure it reached them clearly: "Good-by and Good Hope!" South Africa's farewell to the departing voyager.

How near, and yet how infinitely far away that year seemed now! Thus mused Nora as she watched the rising tide encroach, slowly, but surely, on their resting place. What things one lived through and emerged from unbroken! And here they were where they started life together, she and Don, back at "the shack," a very crowded dwelling place, "because," said Don, regarding Carl Venable's last gift to Nora, because, my dear, with a babygrand and two grand babies, there's hardly room to come in out of the rain!"

Yet Leonora was so happy at being home again—so lost in ecstasy over the piano, that nothing else seemed of the least consequence. It was a long, long cry from that day six years before when she had regarded mere cobwebs and the lack of running water with such keen dismay. What inconveniences hadn't she put up with in those six years? Nora smiled at the thought, and observed abruptly:

"What a parlor ornament I once was, Don! Do you remember that until you brought me to the shack I'd never known the want of a kitchen apron?"

Don turned his head, and without disturbing their younger son, who sat astride him, reached out and lifted one of Nora's hands, her right hand. It was the delicately formed, sensitive hand of a musician-longfingered, slender. Nothing could mar its perfect contour; yet it was also the hard, brown hand of a woman who had labored at tasks that leave their scars. It was a hand darned; ironed; but on one finger blazed a thing of undying beauty: a matchless Kimberley diamond, the "good-by present" of a woman in far off Cape Town.

Don kissed the palm of that workworn hand, and said, addressing his small son: "She's a wonder, isn't "A perfec' wonner," agreed the baby; and they both laughed before Don questioned: "Where's brother vanished to?" Nora glanced down the beach to where a small boy in a scarlet bathing suit was beginning operations on a tunnel that was to reach 'Aunt Connie way over in Capri!" "He's constructing a subway to Italy, I believe. The U.S. A. agrees with the kiddies, doesn't it?" This question, innocent in itself, was, as developed later, merely an opening. "Even this single month has made a difference in them," Nora continued, choosing her words with care. "Jimsy has gained a pound, and Donald, two. I almost dread

Don moved to scan her face for a stealthy moment.
"I've been rather expecting that, my dear," he said. Nora laughed, touching his hand as if to reassure him. "Afraid I'll turn domestic?" she queried lightly.

"You are domestic," asserted Don. "That's one of the reasons why I love you. You can create a home in the barest of hotel rooms, darling. Haven't I seen you do it numberless times? Haven't I seen you take a tumble-down villa overlooking the Lake of Como, and with the aid of a couple of Italian blan-kets and a brass candlestick transform it into such a place of peace and beauty that even Mussolini (if he had the good luck to get inside), would cease to dictate for a moment and let himself relax? If we were to occupy an igloo in the Antarctic, I've no doubt you'd make it so attractive that the penguins would stand 'round begging to come in! You are a wonder, Nora, just as I observed a moment since. Why, I'll wager you could take that weather-beaten old barn back there of it!" "I could!" said Nora.

Two words. Two words spoken with such a triumphant ring that in a flash Don comprehended things that had been puzzling him: a recent preoccupation on the part of Nora; a day when he found her staring, dreamy-eyed, at the old barn; a trip to the Port that seemed unnecessary

beyond the dunes and make a home

He sat up suddenly; deposited his outraged baby on the sand, and exploded with undue violence: "Nora, you can't mean it! You're crazy! That hideous old stable!"

"It's a lovely stable," defended Leonora, "and we can buy it for almost nothing. The owners moved to Portland years ago when the house burned, Don. They're tired of paying taxes and waiting for a summer colony to spring up next door and boom land values. They'll take $300 for the whole place-an acre facing the broad Atlantic! Imagine that! And the barn's thrown in. They don't consider it worth mentioning."

"It's not," said Don. His face was just a bit forbidding. "And it strikes me, Madam, that you're rather astonishingly well informed."

Nora was forced to laugh at this merited attack.

"I've taken pains to be," she admitted honestly. "Not to deceive you, Don, or to put something over on you in an unguarded moment, but because I had to know just dishes; scrubbed floors; patched; | where we stood. I'm not asking you to settle down forever, dear (How could you earn a living in such a spot?), but I'm homesick for a place to call my own-a refuge in time of need-a nook to hold the lovely things we just can't help collecting -a haven when there's a baby to be born. It's no fun bringing a child into the world during a storm at sea, as—as I did Jimsy."

Don looked at her in silence for a moment. When he spoke there was a trace of anger in his voice.

"Are you implying that I don't know it? That I underestimate the horror of that experience-for you, my dear? Do you think I'd have risked waiting so long to sail (even though we thought there was time to spare) if we hadn't been so damnably hard up that I felt I must squeeze every possible shilling out of South Africa? Why, I even considered sending you on earlier, alone, Nora, and was afraid you couldn't stand the trip with the boy to look after! I wonder if you've the least conception of how I felt that night when you woke me to say that things were imminent and I found the ship rocking like a cradle and the only doctor on board too sick with fever to lift his head off the pillow. I-I was sick myself, Nora, sick with fear, I mean, remembering what you went through before. You don't know me if you think I'd let you take a chance like that again. You don't-"

"Oh, come!" broke in Nora, smiling a little. "One would think I'd accused you of neglect! And I didn't need a doctor with that marvelous Norwegian nurse you dug up from among the passengers and my capable husband, who took her orders like a soldier. It's you who's the wonder of the family, Don. You never let me see that you were nervous-not for a minute. I remember thinking: 'Don wouldn't be so calm if things weren't going right'; but I was frightened just the same, terribly frightened, especially when the storm was at its height and my vivid imagination pictured the ship just ready to go been normal this time-Well, let's forget that possibility. Let's get back to the barn."

"Pony?" questioned James Lambert Mason with what appeared to his admiring father as rare intelli-

"You hear that, Nora?" he asked grimly. "Why, even the kiddie understands that a barn's intended to shelter only cattle." Nora laughed.

"Since when have ponies been considered cattle, darling?"

"Oh, you may laugh," said Don, something hurt him, "but when I astonishing thing is that the hardremember all you gave up for-for me, Nora, the thought of your living in a stable-"

"The Christ Child was born in a stable, Daddy."

They both turned, startled, not having heard the approaching feet of their elder son. He stood behind them, his scarlet bathing suit a patch of gorgeous color against the dunes, his big, brown eyes regarding his parents soberly.

"So He was," said Don, and pulled the scarlet figure down on his knee. Across the child's dark head his eyes met Nora's. This serious first-born of theirs, whose five short years had been spent almost entirely among elders, possessed an uncanny way of getting at the heart of things. Sometimes it awed them, as it did now.

"Cows?" questioned the baby, and sat down again, this time on

for the chipmunks, bears, raccoons and others of the tribe which holes up in the winter time and goes to sleep. Best known of all the wintersleepers, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press, is the Michigan black bear, who crawls into a sheltered hole under the root of some fallen tree for the winter. When he first goes into his den, his sleep is natural and he is easily aroused. If he is left undisturbed, his sleep develops into a real stupor. When he is in the midst of the winter sleep he can be aroused only by many proddings of a sharp stick.

The woodchuck or ground-hog rivals the bear for popularity as a winter sleeper. Woodchuck dives underground late in September, and remains hidden until early in spring, when some bright day, he again begins to look around.

Unlike the woodchuck, who goes underground sharp on time, the chipmunk's disappearance prompted entirely by the frost. The chipmunk postpones his departure until some cold day, after which he passes the rest of the winter in a some bright warm day in spring. Ernest Thompson Seton, who en- tones of blue and green.

Cold weather holds little terror | courages many a popular belief about animals, lists a total of "seven sleepers" to include the skunk, raccoon, jumping mouse and bat. All of these except the bat hole up during part of the winter when the weather is severe. The bat merely hangs itself head down on a convenient peg in a barn or sheltered spot, and remains in this position until warm weather comes.

Gainsborough, Society Painter

Thomas Gainsborough (1727-1788), the first of the distinctly English school of painting, was the most celebrated society painter of all time. His procedure was to have his sitter patiently wait while he painted the most attractive woman he could imagine. After that he began to work down to a point that approached the appearance of the lady in question. When she began to see a resemblance, he quit. He confessed to George III that he preferred to paint landscapes, his works of which as art rank as high or higher than his portraits, but his wife's extravagant demands made him turn to the more lucrative pordeath-like sleep, to reappear again some bright warm day in spring. trait painting. SHARING SERVICE WITH THE LIVING CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-8, 14-16, 19, 20. GOLDEN TEXT—And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them. Mark 16:20.
PRIMARY TOPIC—At Work With Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Living Lord.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.

Easter again? No, the calendar does not say so, nor have we forgotten that we observed Easter ten weeks ago, but quite properly we study the resurrection story again today. Not only does it come in the sequence of our lessons as our final study in the Gospel of Mark, but the fact is that every Sunday is a reminder of Easter. The reason why we worship on the first day of the week is that it is the resurrection day. What life it would put into our Sunday worship if the glory of the risen Lord would shine forth (as it should) each Lord's Day in all of

It is difficult to think or write about the living Christ without using superlatives. Our lesson for today brings before us the most important truth that the world has ever heard-"He is risen"; it speaks of the worst thing in the world-"unbelief"; and it presents the world's greatest commission-'Go . . . and preach.'

our service and worship.

I. The Transcendent Truth (vv.

"Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified; He is risen, He is not here" (v. 6).

The world anxiously awaits news, and, hoping almost against hope, it longs for good news. This is the good news-the Gospel-the all-important tidings that the Son of God who had taken upon Himself not only the form of man, but the sins of mankind as well, who had tasted the bitter death of Calvary's cross, could not be holden of death, but breaking its bands asunder had risen from the dead.

This truth becomes the chief burden of the messages of the disciples as they soon went everywhere proclaiming the Gospel. See the sermons recorded in the Book of Acts (2:24, 32; 3:14, 15; 4:10, 23; 10:40; down. And if everything hadn't 13:30). It was such preaching that was at the foundation of the Christian church. It may be that we should emphasize it more.

II. The Impassable Barrier (v.

"He upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not." Many are the sins that men commit, but at the root of them all we find the heart of all sin-unbelief.

The tragic consequence of unbelief is that it shuts the door, throws up a barrier to God's blessing that is virtually impassable until God and his wife knew instantly that himself gives grace to believe. The ness of heart and lack of faith here were on the part of those who had been the disciples of Jesus, to whom He had made known the fact that He was to die and to arise on the third day, and to whom there had now come the word of eye-witnesses that they had seen the Lord.

While we marvel at their shortsighted unbelief, shall we not ask ourselves what hindrances we have placed in God's way in our own lives?

III. The Supreme Commission (vv. 15, 16, 19, 20).

"Go ve into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation" (v. 15). "And they went . . . and preached, the Lord working with them and confirming the word" (v. 20).

The great commission of Christ is still the "marching orders of the church," but how slowly we have marched. The writer of these notes was recently startled by statistics revealing anew the fact that "Christian" America is rapidly returning to the status of a mission field. It is said that last year 60,000 churches in America had no converts, and 9,000 churches were closed during the year. There are 10,000 villages reported to be without church services, and 30,000 communities without a resident pastor.

The command of Christ is that we should go to these pagan communities in our own land with the gospel, and surely it is our double shame that there are still lands where Christ has never been preached, yes, tribes that do not even have a word in their language for the blessed name-Jesus!

If we will go He will indeed work with us (v. 20) and accompany the message and ministry with divine authority and power. Who will go?

Select Good Company When a man lingers in the neighborhood of sinners he may expect to be tempted. Our company has not a little to do with our conduct.

Sons of Italy Make Up Star Baseball Club

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

THERE are enough Italian boys in the big leagues to do a Verdi opera, with principals and chorus warbling in the mother tongue. Not that these fellows are singers. Ball playing is their business and their performance on the diamond is making the brilliance of these second and third generation sons of Italy a tradition in the national game.

Take a census of the Italian-Americans in the National and American leagues and you'll find there are 17 of them and if you add a coach there would be 18 in all.

Put them all together on a ball field and you'd have a team that with the exception of pitching would be able to hold its own with any club in the big leagues. Let's start behind the plate. Well, there's Ernie Lombardi of the Cincinnati Reds. He is a heavy hitter and a crafty receiver who would be a firststring catcher wherever he went. He'd have plenty of help from Gus Mancuso of the New York Giants.

Although Gus is beginning to show signs of wear and tear he is still good enough for a pennant winning team. For third string catcher, Angelo Giuliani of the St. Louis Browns would do nicely.

Star Infield

At first base you would have your choice of Dolph Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers or Zeke Bonura of the Washington Senators. Dolph would probably get the call for the job because of his greater speed and superior fielding ability, although Bonura would command respect because of his hitting.

Second base on this Italo-American team might be a problem. To begin with, there's Tony Lazzeri, now utility man with the Chicago Cubs. Tony was a big gun for years in the New York Yankees' offense and defense and that team seems to be feeling his absence this year. Age would probably keep Flag Insurance? Tony from playing regularly, so the call would probably go to Tony Cuccinello of the Boston Bees whose fighting heart and fielding skill have helped make the Bees a terror for other National league teams this spring. Then there would be Lou Chiozza of the New York Giants, who though crowded out of a regular job by the acquisition of Alex Kampouris by Bill Terry, still can give a good account of himself.

There would be no contest at third base. Cookie Lavagetto of the Brooklyn Dodgers who led the league in hitting this spring would nail down that job without half trying. Shortstop, of course, would go to Frank Crossetti of the New York Yankees, because of his superb fielding and his timely hitting. Frankie isn't as fast as he was a few years ago, but he's still good enough for the big time.

The incomparable Joe Di Maggio, centerfielder of the New York Yankees, would head up the outfield. He would probably be flanked on one side by his brother Vincent of the Boston Bees and by Johnny Rizzo who started the season so sensationally with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Phil Cavaretta of the Chicago Cubs would also be in the fight for an outfield job.

His best chance would be to nose out Rizzo, for Vince Di Maggio is recognized as one of the classiest fielders in the business and he is crowding his way toward the .300 mark. Melvin Mazzera of the St. Louis Browns and Tony Bongiovanni of the Reds would be utility out-

The pitching staff would present problems. There isn't a pitcher of Italian ancestry in the big show who compares in skill with the others. It seems that the sons of Italy have preferred positions where their speed and general all-around ability give them a chance to play regularly every day. So only Julio Bonnetti of the St. Louis Browns and Joe Cascarella of the Cincinnati Reds would be possibilities.

Oscar Mellilo, coach of the Browns, would draw the assignment of manager in view of his long experience and his splendid career as a player. Mellilo was one of the first of the American-Italians to demonstrate his race's proficiency on the diamond.

A Champ Passes

THE fight trade is looking to Lou Ambers to provide some stiff competition against Henry Armstrong when they fight for the lightweight championship July 26. Experts who saw Barney Ross bow to Armstrong in New York recently are of the opinion that Ambers will make a creditable showing, but that the tan-colored whirlwind will win.

As long as his speed holds out, Armstrong will probably prove too much for any fighter he meets. Ambers is not as far along the backward trail as is Ross, but he is not likely to prove a match for the swarming tactics of the Negro.

Ross' announced decision to retire is a wise one. "Barney's through," was on everybody's lips the night of his last fight, even though he gave championship exhibition of gameness. Barney, who had never been knocked out, stood the punishment for 15 rounds in spite of the referee's desire to stop the fight. And no champion, when he has come to the end of the trail, could feel a deeper satisfaction in his achievements than Ross.

Bred in the dingy poverty of New York's East Side and reared in the tough ghetto of Chicago, Ross rose to pugilistic eminence by sheer merit. When he won the Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight title in 1929, as an awkward kid, he attracted the attention of Sam Pian and Art Winch, who ever since have been his managers.

They handled him shrewdly and four years later had him winning the lightweight championship from the veteran Tony Canzoneri. In 1934 Barney won the welterweight championship from Jimmy McLarnin. In a return bout with McLarnin, Ross was beaten, but came back in another year to regain that throne. He held it against all comers until he met the dusky little Armstrong, regarded by many as the greatest fighter of his weight since the famed

Here and There—

ONNIE MACK, seventy - five-year-old manager of the Phila-delphia Athletics, continues to sur-prise the fans. Adding a couple of ex-college boys to a team that was regarded as the laughing stock of the American league, he has made the Athletics a club to be reckoned with . . . Don Lambeau, 200-pound son of the Green Bay Packers' coach, will enter Fordham in the fall. He's a fullback . . . Wee Dickie Kerr, former White Sox pitcher who was the hero of the 1919 world series, has returned to organized baseball as an active member of a Mountain States league team. Kerr is forty-five years old . . .

Bunny McCormick, Notre Dame's right halfback the last two years, will spend the summer delivering ice at Livermore, Calif., before accepting a full time position with an oil company in California . . . All American league batting champions since 1931 have been infielders Ted Duay, young New York Giant catcher, turned down a scholarship at Rutgers to play professional baseball. "I'd rather catch Carl Hubbell than be president of Yale," he said.

WHEN Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, acquired Second Baseman Alex Kampouris of the Cincinnati Reds recently, he turned a neat deal that makes his team a real pennant-contender. The Giants were stumbling around until they got Alex. Various players try-ing to substitute for Burgess Whitehead, who is probably out for the season because of illness, gave poor performances at the keystone sack. Kampouris brought an end to Terry's worries.

Little Alex, who is the only Greek boy in the big leagues, is not a heavy hitter, but he does clout them occasionally for extra bases and break up ball games as a result. Alex, who batted only 249 last year, drove out 17 home runs. It is as a sure-fire fielder and a player with dash and fire that he will be of value to the Giants in the race.

Kampouris, who came originally from the Pacific Coast league, is a resident of Socramento, Calif. He attended the University of Southern California and was the youngest student ever to graduate from that in-that gadgets in the way of costume jewelry tuned to sea and sand and outdoor themes usually complete the "picture" of each costume.

Citing a few of the smartest materials employed, first and foremost comes lastex, which is a boon to womankind in that it conforms to 'lines" perfectly with a magic thisway, that-way stretching quality which solves the problem of clothes that fit, retain their shape and offer perfect comfort. The big sensation this season is the swim suit of black satin lastex with beach cape to match, completing the sense of luxury. Flower printed lastex ensembles also have their place in the style parade along water edge and

Other interesting materials employed for playtime clothes and wardrobes for water nymphs include celanese rayon moire, celanese rayon sharkskin, silk prints of fast color, linens in monotone or spectacular print and cottons so sturdy, so handsome, words fail of describing. Then there's wear-for-ever denim, and washable gabardine, so reliable when it comes to the wear and tear of riotous waves or strenuous mountain climbs.

Another feature that fashion spotlights is the use of striking color playing up print with plain or the modernistic gesture of making the costume one vivid solid color boldly contrasted by another startling color on a sort of fifty-fifty basis. The models pictured are typical of this season's swim suit and beach ensemble trends. Centered in the group you see a stunning outfit that tunes superbly to a statuesque figure. This comely young woman is wearing black trunks with printed 'bra" of celanese rayon sharkskin. A catalin fish pin on her hip answers the call for suitable costume jewel-

To the right, fashion offers a new bathing suit ensemble that strikingly combines white with bright oceanblue. The bodice top is blue with catalin fish pin by way of correct gadgetry. The blue beach coat with monk's hood of blue lined with white adds to eye-appeal. This very new and attractive ensemble is of celanese rayon jersey.

A very interesting costume, as shown to the left, uses blue and white cotton print for the beach cape lined with white terry cloth, worn over a loose-fitting white terry cloth suit. Accessory is white catalin Viennese stag horn bracelet with carved edelweiss. This costume won an award and is an adaptation of an Algerian man's costume from the Traphagen costume museum.

To supplement the list of materials smartly in use for beach dress and bathing suit, hopsacking should be mentioned. It is ranked along with sharkskin for shorts and slacks and shirts. Then there are the fascinating crinkle cottons that make such practical and attractive beach coats. Water, sun or sand dim not their beauty or colorfulness.

One of the cleverest ideas is the quilted floral cotton prints. A bolero of quilted print worn with matching printed broadcloth slacks together with a peasant kerchief of the same print is a happy suggestion. Try this ensemble, it's a winner this season.

ACCENT ON POCKETS By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The more decorative and useful the pockets that your dress, jacket, suit or blouse proudly boasts the better. Here you see a pretty lassie framed in a background of apple outfit in new celanese rayon suiting fabric. This attractive playtime costume is pocketed to a nicety, each pocket enhanced with hand-run vari-colored stitching. Just because amusing gadgets are essential in the scheme of things this season, Wally Berger, whom the Reds got this outdoor girl pins a novelty cat-

WONDERS ARE BEING DONE WITH RIBBONS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

After you have looked about at the new dress collections the thought stays with you that this is decidedly a ribbon season. Summer dresses are given a sprightly look with pert little bows here and there while ribbons galore, wide, narrow in one color or in mingled tones or tri-color gayety are swath and sashed about the waist with utmost artistry.

So utterly have designers yielded to the ribbon urge they are creating clever boleros entirely of ribbon and recently a leading Paris couturiere fashioned an entire dress of ribbon sewing it edge to edge for slender effect and for wide hemline letting the ribbon ends fly out loose over a silken foundation.

Lots of ribbons on hats this season, too, for bindings, bands and tailored bows and for floating streamers and bonnet ties are seen.

Frilly-Frilly Guimpes or Vestees Have Blouse Look

With the classic suit or the more softly tailored bolero-and-skirt costume you are expected to wear the daintiest, frilliest blouse or guimpe or vestee you can find. Of course, if you expect to remove the jacket, it's a blouse you must have. However, with the jacket on, a lacy, blossoms wearing a white culotte fluttery crisp and sheer false front is just the thing. They cost less than a blouse and they are showing such fascinating ones in neckwear departments you will yield to the impulse to buy another and another -which, when you stop to consider, is a fine gesture in real economy.

Eye examinations will be given all children upon request of parents, and indigent children will be given free glasses if their condition requires this corrective measure. Glasses for

McCormick-Deering Mowers Have Always Been Good No. 7 Enclosed Gear Mower

Is the Best Yet

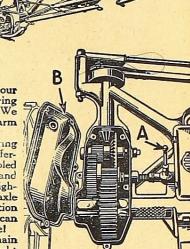

WE ARE anxious to have all our friends see the McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower. We think it is one of the finest pieces of farm equipment we have ever sold!

For example: The entire operating mechanism, including drive gears, differential, and countershafts, is assembled compactly in an oiltight gear housing and runs in a bath of oil. There are ten high-grade roller bearings, six on the main axle and four on the countershaft. Operation is so smooth and noiseless that you can scarcely hear the light hum of the sickle!

Special oil seals at the ends of the main axle and flywheel shaft, and the oiltight gear box prevent leakage and protect all working parts against the entrance of dirt and other abrasive materials. Floating action of cutter bar provides ample play without disturbing knife registration.
