AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION TO OPEN

TAWAS CITY

LOCALS TAKE FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE

Large Crowd Witnesses Game as Tawas City Beats Turner

Tawas City went into undisputed possession of first place in the American division of the Northeastern Michigan league when they defeated Turner by a 9 to 8 score.

The largest crowd of the season, some estimated there were 1500, saw one of the wildest and most exciting ball games played in Northern Michigan in years. Three hours and fifteen minutes were consumed to argue and play the nine innings.

Spectacular plays followed by hits, passed balls and wild pitches. Every thing that could happen in a ball game happened with several arguments added for the same price of admission.

Tawas City took a one run lead in the second inning when M. Mallon doubled to deep center, W. Laidlaw was hit by a pitched ball, C. Libka sacrificed, Mueller's single scored Mallon, W. Laidlaw being tagged out at the plate on a perfect throw by Newton.

Turner scored a brace of runs in their turn at bat when M. Mallon fumbled L. Gardner's grounder, Healy walked, Webster and Lefty Gardner singled.

Tawas City combined a couple of misplays with a hit to score two runs in the third. Roach ran two bases on Gingerich's high throw and Lefty Gardner fumbled G. Laidlaw's easy tap to the mound. Quick bunted a single over third base Roach scoring and G. Laidlaw tallied as Webster tossed out W. Mallon.

The local lads went into a four run lead when they denoted home plate three more times in the fourth. W. Laidlaw started this rally with a double to left, C. Libka was safe when Webster dropped his pop fly. Both runners advanced on a passed ball. W. Laidlaw scored on another passed ball and C. Libka scored on Kasichke's bunt down the third base line. Kasichke stole second and moved to third on G. Laidlaw's single and scored as Dixen threw into left field in an attempt to trap him off third.

Turner put on a three run rally in the sixth. After Dixon fanned, Whitehouse doubled, Rahl batted for L. Gardner and singled, Whitehouse scoring. Healy and Webster both singled to fill the bases. Rahl scored on Lefty Gardner's single, Healy being out at the plate. Webster scored when G. Laidlaw laid Reid's grounder go through his legs.

Turner moved out in front in the seventh. Kasichke fumbling Newton's grounder, a fielders choice, a (Turn to No. 1, back page)

RAILROAD BUILDS FLASHER SIGNALS

D. and M. also Re-ballasting Prescott Branch

Alternating flashlight traffic signals are being installed at six trunk-line crossings along the Detroit and Mackinac railway, C. A. Pinkerton, vice-president and general manager of the railway, announced.

The new warning signals, which will be in operation early this Fall, are being installed through the co-operation of the Michigan Highway Department and the Detroit and Mackinac railway through funds provided by the Federal government under an appropriation made for a nation-wide crossing protection and grade separation program.

One of the new type flasher signals will be erected at the Holland Hotel corner in East Tawas. The other five signals will be located as follows: at the Omer crossing of US 25; at the new Greenbush crossing of US 23; one north of Alpena where the new route of US 23 is under construction; one where US 23 crosses the Rogers City branch at Liske; and one just north of the Oscoda depot.

J. F. Mark, in charge of the engineering department of the D. & M., is supervising construction work on the new signals.

For the past six weeks, the carpenter crew of the D. & M. has been renewing all roofs on mechanical department buildings here. Last Monday, a crew of eight men started work on car repair in the car yard.

Mr. Pinkerton also announced that, as a result of the increased movement of shipments from the Prescott area, the D. & M. is ballasting and re-tieing the Prescott branch of the railway.

Traffic on the D. & M. this summer will also include the movement of an anticipated 100,000 tons of limestone from Rogers City to sugar factories in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, Mr. Pinkerton said. The limestone is used in the purifying and settling process of the sugar syrup.

At Au Gres, where one of the largest crops of sugar beets is anticipated this season, the Monitor Sugar Co., is planning to install a mechanical loading machine for loading shipments of sugar beets on railway cars.

WPA Crew Constructs Tawas City Sidewalks

With nearly 1,000 feet of new walks already completed, a total of between 2,000 and 2,500 feet of new sidewalks will be laid on various streets in Tawas City this summer, George Myles, superintendent of public works, said this week.

The work is being carried on through a WPA project with a crew of ten men working under the supervision of B. C. Bowen.

The project originally was set up to cover construction of 1,000 feet of new walks but the work has been carried out more economically than the original estimates, Mr. Myles said, and the labor money available will be extended to cover as much additional walk construction as possible.

Plans call for the construction of new sidewalks on sections of the following streets: Matthew street, 200 feet, Second avenue, 400 feet; First street, 495 feet; Fourth street, two stretches, 175 feet and 75 feet; Sixth street, 195 feet; and Sherman street, 60 feet. Part of this projected construction has already been completed, Mr. Myles said.

Mr. Myles also revealed that NYA boys are working on street signs at the city hall. When the painting and stenciling are completed on the signs, they will be placed at street intersections in Tawas City sometime next month.

State Police Recover Stolen Saginaw Car

Within a few minutes after the State Police radio station, WRDS, broadcast a description of a stolen car taken from a Saginaw street last Sunday evening, Troopers Merwyn Mitchell and Lorenz Ahlgrim, of the East Tawas post patrolling on US 23 between Tawas City and Standish, spotted the car traveling north.

Overtaking the car, the troopers arrested Edward Petraffa, 20, of Saginaw, and returned the man and car to the Saginaw police.

Return Stolen Sheep Before They Are Missed

Five stolen sheep were recovered by Sheriff John Moran and State Police Trooper Conrad Konetsky last week and returned to their owner before he was aware that the sheep were missing from his flock.

The five sheep were taken from the farm of Everett Erb, three miles south of Hale, by Gerald McMurray and Joseph Harger, both of Clio, who tried to dispose of the stolen animals in Flint. A dealer became suspicious when the sheep were offered to him at an extremely low price and notified authorities. The two men confessed their theft and Sheriff Moran and Trooper Konetsky brought the men and five sheep back to Tawas City.

When the officers visited Mr. Erb's farm to have him identify the sheep through their brand marks, he scratched his head and said: "Yes, they're my sheep all right. But I didn't even know they were missing. I surely appreciate your finding and returning them."

Justice C. F. Klump sentenced McMurray to 40 days and Harger to 45 days in the Detroit House of Correction for stealing the sheep.

COMMITTEES CHOSEN FOR REGATTA

Dates For Fifth Annual Tawas Bay Event Set For Aug. 13 to 20

With the dates of the fifth annual Regatta and Water Carnival on Tawas Bay set for August 13 to 20 inclusive, plans are being drawn up by members of the Tawas Bay Yacht Club for the racing events which will draw sailing enthusiasts here from various parts of Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay.

The Tawas Bay Yacht Club, with members from both Tawas City and East Tawas, will sponsor the Regatta events, while businessmen of East Tawas will stage the Water Carnival and shore entertainment part of the week's festivities.

Merle Pollard, rear-commander of the Yacht Club, is general chairman of the Regatta events, while Lloyd G. McKay Jr., vice-commander of the club, is entertainment chairman. Other officers of the club, who are assisting with arrangements for the Regatta, are: Gerald Mallon, commander, and L. M. Butrym, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Butrym is the new executive assistant to Ralph E. Crowell, supervisor of the Huron National Forest.

Races for boats in five different classes will be staged during the Regatta with entries anticipated from Alpena, Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, and other points. Between 30 and 35 racing yachts are expected to participate in the week's races.

The local yacht club is pushing the use of a new type of racing yacht design known as the National One class boat. Of the 150 National One class yachts registered in the United States three are in use on Tawas Bay and will be entered in racing events for vessels of this type during the Regatta. These local National-One yachts are owned by Matt Haglund, Oliver Alverson, and one (Turn to No. 3, back page)

See Increased Activity In Summer Building

Considerable building is going on in Tawas City this summer with construction work underway on several new residences, a new abstract office, an implement warehouse, and two new coal storage sheds.

Across from the Court-House on the bay shore next to the Tawas City park, N. C. Harting is building a new office building, 18 by 30 feet, to house the Isosco County Abstract Office. The new building is under construction on a site adjacent to the old abstract office, which was built 52 years ago. Years ago, Mr. Harting recalled, he used to row a boat up alongside the building as it was constructed on build-up land on the bay side of the highway. Now the shore is some distance back of the building.

Carl Babcock, who is associated with his grandfather, Mr. Harting, in the abstract business, said that the new office structure is being built with cement blocks manufactured by the Taw Muller Cement Products Co., of Tawas City, the first produced by the new concern, and that the masons report they are being very satisfactory. The abstract office will be one storey with a brick front and will have a full basement. It will be completed by early this Fall.

'The Particular Thief'

HELLO EVERYBODY: And who's the guest speaker at our Adventure banquet today? Well, sir, it's Mrs. Anna Robinson of Bronx, N. Y.

That thief certainly made things complicated for Anna. If he had wanted money, it would have been simple. Anna could have given it to him, and he'd have been satisfied.

This Caller Just Wanted 'Coke.'

The man pushed his way past her and hurried into the office. 'Is the doctor in?' he wanted to know.

That's where Anna gave the wrong answer. The man was obviously in a hurry. The doctor wouldn't be back for several hours.

It was just what the stranger wanted to know. A change came over his face, and a crafty look gleamed in his eyes.

'I was taken aback,' says Anna. 'I said, 'Yes, I'm alone,' but the minute I said it I could have bitten off my tongue.'

Where's the coke?

'Where's the coke?' he cried angrily.

to oppose him. Let him take what money there is and get out.' But the stranger didn't seem to be interested in money.

He stared a long time while his forehead knitted in a puzzled frown. Evidently he couldn't understand the labels. At length he turned angrily on Anna and cried: 'Where's the coke?'

Ready to Kill for the Drug.

That explained things—and at the same time it threw Anna into a panic. This man was no petty thief who would be satisfied with money.

'We have no cocaine,' she stammered. The man turned on her in a rage, his eyes blazing, his hands clenching and unclenching at his sides.

Says Anna: 'I was terribly frightened. My thoughts ran in circles. He stood between me and the telephone, madness and murder in his eyes.'

With fear clutching at her heart, Anna began to talk quietly to the stranger. She explained that few doctors kept pure cocaine—that they used derivatives like novocaine instead, and that novocaine wouldn't give him the effect he wanted.

Then Anna switched to another tack. She began talking against the use of drugs, painting a terrible picture of what they would do to him if he kept on using them.

All that was quite a few years ago, and Anna has been away from Jeffersonville a long time. She's married now, she tells me, to a New York policeman, but I doubt if that cop husband of hers ever did a finer bit of police work than Anna did with her tongue when she talked that drug-crazed maniac right into the hands of the law.

Rookie Stars Pace Majors In 1938 Race

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

FRESHMAN ball players are ruling the roost in the major leagues this year. A crop of brilliant rookies unprecedented in the history of the game have achieved stardom right off the bat and clinched key jobs on seven of the sixteen teams in the American and National leagues.

These boy wonders are no morning glories, mind you, who are likely to fold when the going gets tough. They've demonstrated their right to their jobs by sheer merit. For instance, up to the half-way mark of the season, six of the freshmen outfielders and infielders playing regular positions had knocked in 249 runs and compiled a composite batting average of .322. And four of the rookie pitchers taking their regular turn on the slab had won 28 out of 42 games for an average of .700.

Standout among the first year men, of course, is Cincinnati's sensational Johnny Vander Meer with two no-hit, no-run games in succession to his credit. His teammate, Frank McCormick, a husky, slugging first baseman, has also made good in a big way.

Classy Talent

Another scintillating recruit is Joe (Flash) Gordon, second baseman of the New York Yankees and regarded as about the classiest infielder in the junior circuit. The Cleveland Indians have Ken Keltner on third base, who specializes in home runs between hair-raising plays.

In the outfield there are such young stalwarts as Sammy Chapman, the Philadelphia Athletics' star rookie from the University of California, Enos Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Hank Steinbacher, who has been batting around .350 for the Chicago White Sox.

Ranking next to Vander Meer among the young pitchers is Bob Klinger, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has had an earned-run average of about two per nine-inning game up to date. Bob is a cousin of Charlie Holocher, one-time Chicago Cubs shortstop and one of the most amazing fielders in the history of the game.

Then there's Jim Bagby Jr., of the Boston Red Sox, who has shown enough stuff to become a dependable regular starter. Jim is the son of famous old Sergeant Jim Bagby who was a 30-game-a-year winner for the Cleveland Indians a couple of decades ago. Tot Presnell has helped the Brooklyn Dodgers make things uncomfortable for other National league teams this year and has become about the most dependable starter on the club.

Behind the plate, Cincinnati scores again with Willard Hershberger, who came from Newark, the wonder team of the International league last year. There are several other classy young catchers, including Johnny Riddle of the Boston Bees, Cap Clark of the Phillies, Herb Bremer of the Cardinals and Tom Heath of the St. Louis Browns.

Put all these rookies together on a ball diamond and with the exception of shortstop you would have an all-star aggregation that would give a first-rate account of itself in any ball game. And even so, that shortstop position could be acceptably filled by Justin Stein of the Reds.

Baseball Sloths

A RACE of slow-footed, dull-witted ball players will soon dominate the national game if the present emphasis on slugging continues, according to Bill Lange, who 42 years ago stole 100 bases for the Chicago Cubs and speeded his way into diamond immortality.

"Modern ball players think too much in terms of home runs and not enough about base stealing," Lange declared. "The slugger has supplanted the thinker in baseball. Base stealing makes a player more alert mentally. He has to try to outguess the pitcher and the rest of the opposition, instead of trying to knock the ball out of the lot by brute force."

"As a rule the superior base stealer is also the brainier player. One of your illustrations is Ty Cobb, the greatest we ever had. He was worth more to a team than a dozen Babe Ruths."

It is an interesting coincidence that Lange, in his day regarded as the outstanding player of the game and the immortal Ty Cobb now are neighboring country squires near San Francisco, Calif. Lange, now a prosperous real estate operator was a star for seven years, from 1893 to 1899. He quit the game in his prime. Lange was the last man to steal as many as 100 bases. - He reached that peak in 1896, leading the National league that year and in 1897.

Two men preceded and bettered him in stolen bases. They were John M. Ward of the New York Giants with 111 in 1887 and Billy Hamilton of Philadelphia with 102 in 1890 and the major league record number of 115 in 1891.

Wonder Woman

HELEN WILLS MOODY'S recent victory over Helen Jacobs at Wimbledon, England, confirmed her as the greatest woman player in the history of tennis. Whether you like poker-faced Helen or not, you must agree that her championship comeback feat after a layoff of three years was unparalleled.

This latest comeback was the second in her career. In 1935 after being inactive for the two previous years because of a back injury, she triumphed at Wimbledon. Now, three years later, she has repeated. She dropped out of tennis so far as major competition was concerned after her 1935 triumph and stayed out until she hit the comeback trail this year in England.

Helen has been a dominant figure in the world of tennis for 15 years, ever since she won her first United States championship in 1923. Before that for two years she was the girls' national titleholder. She took the national singles crown seven times, between 1923 and 1931. Since 1927 she has won the Wimbledon singles title eight times, including her recent victory.

Just for good measure, Mrs. Moody has won four French women's championships and a respectable number of doubles and mixed doubles championships.

Here and There—

WHEN Bob Feller was pitching for Van Meter there were only 200 high schools in Iowa playing baseball. There were 570 high schools entered in an Iowa tournament this spring which climaxed in a three day competition at Manson in Calhoun county. . . . Lefty Grove takes a nap on a rubbing table before each game he pitches. . . . Rudy York needs only one more home run with the bases full to tie the season record of four, held jointly by Frank Schulte of the west side Cubs, Babe Ruth, and Lou Gehrig. . . . Jack Beynon, former Illinois and All-Star quarterback, is prepared to demonstrate his new movable goal posts. The posts, which can be set on the end lines and wheeled up to the goal line when a team attempts a field goal, are designed to eliminate injury, which was the main reason the colleges moved them back to the end line several years ago. . . . Nine Southern California football players, Granville Lansdell, Oliver Day, Phil Duboski, Bob Peoples, Jack Banta, Roy Engle, Howard Stoeker, Beans Russell, and Glen Galvin, are doing extra work in motion pictures during the summer. . . . Pittsburgh hasn't made an important mid-season trade since 1923. . . . Hughie Critz, who played second base for the Giants for a number of years, never has been inside a New York night club.

FOR THOSE DOG-DAY DOLDRUMS

For both men and women the style experts recommend outfits like this. He wears Palm Beach slacks, brown and white shoes, open-throated sports shirt and soft turned down hat. She wears the popular slack suit and Mexican huaraches. Speaking of men's fashions, Frederick H. Rahr, noted color expert, says: "To be well turned out means more than a clean handkerchief and shined shoes. It means studied simplicity and harmony of every detail." A little breath-taking, but Mr. Rahr knows his clothes. The smart male can achieve remarkable sartorial effect with little expense if he buys clothes intelligently, with an eye to good taste.

IT'S no longer "sissified" for men to be style conscious, and this summer male fashions are colorful as well as stylish. But most important, it's smart to be comfortable in hot weather. Here's a few suggestions for air-conditioning your wardrobe against the miseries of dog-day doldrums. Below, for beach wear, a robe of the popular terry cloth and Hawaiian bathing trunks. You can take 'em either with or without that flowered design, depending on whether you like to be seen—and heard!

Grandmother's Prize Silk Patchwork Quilt

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS a great day on an upstate New York farm more than a half century ago. The biggest pumpkins, the finest apples and the sleekest live stock were being loaded to take to the Fair. Grandmother announced that she was taking her silk crazy patch work quilt.

All that winter the red ribbons and blue ribbons, won by prize

BEDTIME STORY Joe Otter's Peace Offering Is Accepted by Buster Bear

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who makes an enemy a friend To fear and worry puts an end.

LITTLE JOE OTTER found this out when he took Grandfather Frog's advice. He wouldn't have admitted that he was afraid of Buster Bear. No one ever likes to admit being afraid, least of all Little Joe Otter. And, really, Little Joe has a great deal of courage. There are very few of the little people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows who would willingly quarrel with Little Joe Otter.

Now, having your own way too much is a bad thing. It is apt to make one selfish, thoughtless of other people, and very hard to get along with. Little Joe Otter had his way too much. Grandfather Frog knew it, and shook his head very soberly when Little Joe had been disrespectful to him.

So, though he didn't let on that it was so, Grandfather Frog really was delighted when he heard how Buster Bear had been too smart for Little Joe Otter. It tickled him so that he had hard work to keep a straight face. But he did, and was as grave and solemn as you please as he advised Little Joe always to make friends with any one who was bigger and stronger and smarter than he. That was good common sense advice, but Little Joe just sniffed, and went off, declaring that he would get even with Buster Bear yet. Now, Little Joe is good natured and full of fun, as a rule, and after he had reached home and his temper had cooled off a little, he began to see the joke on himself—how, when he had worked so hard to frighten the fish in the little pools of the Laughing Brook so that Buster Bear should not catch any, he had all the time been driving them right into Buster's paws. By and by he grinned. It was a little sheepish grin at first, but at last it grew into a laugh. "I believe," said Little Joe, as he wiped the tears of laughter from his eyes, "that Grandfather Frog is right, and that the best thing I can do is to make friends with Buster Bear."

So, very early the next morning, Little Joe Otter went to the best fishing pool he knew of on the Laughing Brook, and there he caught the biggest trout he could find. It was so big and fat that it made Little Joe's mouth water, for you know fat trout are his favorite food. But he didn't take so much as one bite. Instead, he carefully laid it on an old log where Buster Bear would be sure to see it if he should come along that way. Then he hid near by where he could watch. Buster was late that morning. It seemed to Little Joe that he never would come. Once he nearly lost the fish. He had turned his head for just a minute, and when he looked back again the trout was nowhere to be seen. Buster couldn't have stolen up and taken it, because such a big fellow couldn't possibly have gotten out of sight again.

Little Joe darted over to the log and looked on the other side. There was the fat trout, and there also was Little Joe's smallest cousin, Shadow the Weasel, who is a great thief and altogether bad. Little Joe sprang at him angrily, but Shadow was too quick, and darted away. Little Joe put the fish back on the log and waited. This time he didn't take his eyes off it. At last, when he was almost ready to give up, he saw Buster Bear shuffling along toward the Laughing Brook. Suddenly Buster stopped and sniffed. One of the Merry Little Breezes had carried the scent of that fat trout.

It was so big and so fat that it made Little Joe's mouth water.

"Now I wonder who was so thoughtful as to leave this fine breakfast ready for me?" said he out loud.

"Me," said Little Joe Otter, in a rather faint voice. "I caught it especially for you."

"Thank you," replied Buster, and his eyes twinkled more than ever. "I think we are going to be friends."

"I—hope so," replied Little Joe, "and that you will forget the tricks I played on you."

15 MINUTES OF BEAUTY

1 Virginia Grey, M-G-M player, recommends this lunch-hour relaxation to remain lovely. Your implements: Cleansing tissue, cleansing cream, astringent and cosmetics. First apply cream to remove makeup. Remove cream with tissue.

2 You're feeling better already. After removing the cleansing cream, pat astringent over the entire facial surface and allow it to dry before applying the powder. This is step two in the 15-minute beauty treatment for beautiful young things who would stay that way.

3 After the astringent, make a quick application of face powder, following it up with cheek rouge. Be careful you don't daub on too much; the natural appearance is preferable and a small application will last much longer.

4 The final step of our salesgirl's noonday rejuvenation is an application of lipstick. Make it thorough, but not pasty. Improper use of cosmetics is worse than no cosmetics at all, say the specialists, and they should know!

"N," Middle Initial

In America "N" is probably more widely used than any other letter as a meaningless middle initial in personal names. Many having it are World war veterans. Their enlistment papers, says Collier's Weekly, had a space for a middle name and, they had none, "None" was inserted. Afterward None was contracted to N.

The ocean was not visible from here, but the salt of it was in the air, and James heard the roar of waves breaking against rocks. As the sun disappeared behind a cloud the old man stopped, laid down his bag and buttoned his coat higher about the throat, shivering a little. In summer this road would be alive with tourists, he supposed. It was deserted now—a man-made strip of macadam that seemed curiously out of place between the rocky pastures which bordered it on either side.

Strange, James Lambert mused as he started on again, that 24 hours ago he hadn't dreamed of being here. Strange, too, that despite the uneasiness he felt at seeing Nora, he was happier than he'd been for years and years. After a time he found himself hurrying a little. That "short half mile" which the conductor promised, seemed very long. Yet he couldn't have missed the place. This was a lonely stretch of road with no lanes leading seaward. He stopped again, drew Nora's postcard from his pocket and was studying it minutely when a voice startled him.

"Say, Mister, have you seen the R. F. D. man?"

Moving a step or two forward James saw that the voice belonged to a small boy who had, apparently, been swinging on a rustic gate, half hidden from view by a clump of fir trees. There was a mail box too. This must be the place! The old man's heart-beats quickened as he responded: "I haven't seen anybody since I left the trolley. Are you—"

Then, all because a sudden breeze had blown the boy's hair away from his forehead, the question died on James' lips. Where had he seen a forehead and hair like that? he asked himself, some half-forgotten memory stirring to life. Ah! now he recalled it! The door to his own library—a tall young man standing upon the threshold, youth incarnate.

"You're kind of out of breath, aren't you?" the boy was saying. "I guess you've been hurrying. If you're tired why don't you sit down on that rock? It's a good smooth one. Mother sits there when she's waiting for the postman. I hope he'll bring the money this afternoon. She'll be pretty discouraged if he doesn't, b'lieve me."

James asked, as he availed himself of the proffered resting place: "So your mother expects the postman to bring some money?"

The youngster nodded, his blue eyes very serious.

"She's been expecting it for more'n a month, and she's pretty 'sturbed about it. A lady that lives in the biggest house at the Port summertimes, owes it to her for 'teaching her little girl to play. Mother's a swell piano player; and she's a swell cook, too. Are you going to Norton's, Mister? It's quite a walk."

"I'm not going to Norton's," replied James. "How old are you, sonny?"

"I'll be six and three quarters before very long," was the prompt answer. "What's your name, please?"

James, doing a hasty sum in mental arithmetic, failed to respond. He said: "Then you must be—" "I'm James Lambert Mason," put in the boy. "I'm named for my grandpa, but I've never seen him. It's sort of funny not to know your own grandfather, isn't it? But I've heard a lot about him and seen his picture. It's on Mother's desk. Do you know, if you weren't so old and didn't have so many wrinkles, you'd look something like him. That's queer, isn't it? Gee! here comes the postman! I hope he's bringing Mother's check!"

Eyes on the eager face, James echoed this hope; but the mail carrier merely tossed out a paper; and the old man saw with consternation that his grandson was fighting tears of disappointment as he picked it up.

"Was it a big check?" The question was a kindly effort to make conversation.

"It was—e-normous," replied the boy, and swallowed. "It would buy two tons of coal, and coal's expensive. Last winter we burned wood and Mother got pretty tired tending the fires. Daddy said he couldn't stand seeing her do it. Besides, now he can't move fast any more he's awfully cold. Days when the wind blows off the ocean he doesn't get warmed up at all. I've got to go now, Mister; but you can sit there as long as you want to. It's our rock."

"Thanks, sonny; but I think I'll make a little call on your mother." The child's face lighted.

"Goody! We don't have much company. If you'll put your bag on this side I'll help you carry it." "It's not heavy," James told him. "Why—why can't your father move fast any more?"

"Because he's a hero!" The boy lifted his head proudly, and again James seemed to behold a tall young man standing in his own doorway.

"Mother's told us about it heaps of times. It's one of our best favorite stories. You see, Mother and Daddy were at a movie and the roof sort of caved in and lots of folks were hurt and killed, children, and their fathers and mothers too. That's sad, isn't it? Well Daddy grabbed Mother and got her out all safe; and then he went right back to help the others. Mother says he went where no one else would go. He saved a life."

"I see," said James. "And—and where was your mother while he saved it?"

"She was out on the sidewalk near as they'd let her get. There was deep snow everywhere, and pretty soon it began to snow some more and the wind blew dreadfully and she thought he'd never come. And when he did come two real kind firemen were carrying him; but he was hurt so hard he couldn't answer when she called. I was a little boy

"But she couldn't wait for him."

then so I don't remember very much about it; but I remember one thing!"

"What was that?" James asked as the child looked up in expectation of the question.

"It was next morning. A lady came and told us boys that Mother wanted us. We jumped right up and ran into her and Daddy's room and Mother hadn't got up yet and what do you s'pose was there beside her?"

"I can't imagine." "A baby! We thought Santa Claus was going to bring her, but she couldn't wait for him. It was my little sister Iris!"

"Iris!"

"At something in the old man's voice his grandson glanced up, puzzled.

"Yep. It was my grandma's name. It's the name of a flower too; and Daddy says my little sister's more like a flower than anything he ever saw, 'cept Mother. But we boys don't think Mother's one bit like a flower. She's too useful."

"Well!" said James. The Nora he remembered might have been likened to a flower, but she surely wasn't useful.

"Don't you think Iris is a pretty name?" queried the little boy.

"Yes, yes," James murmured, but hardly knew what he was saying. A vision had come to him, a picture of his sheltered, luxury-loving little Nora standing for hours, perhaps, at that scene of tragedy . . . snow driving against her face . . . waiting . . . waiting . . . Dread in her heart and her babe about to be born . . .

He had to force himself back to the present as the boy said happily: "That's our house! See the roof over beyond those pine trees? You wouldn't think it was a barn once, would you? It's a swell house now. Mother calls it our shining palace."

"I see." The old man's heart was thudding unaccountably. "Is—is she at home now?"

"Nope. I mean no, sir. She's way down the beach with Daddy, and Donald, and my little sister. You see, Mr. Perkins the 'spressman gave us an old wheel-chair that belonged to his grandma, so now Daddy can go 'most anywhere. We push him down to the water when the tide goes out, and he walks back, going real slowly. Last year he couldn't walk hardly at all."

James stood for a moment regarding the exterior. So this was Nora's "palace," this weather-beaten old stable, a relic of more leisurely days when people drove horses instead of automobiles. And it wasn't, he mused, even an attractive stable! To be sure, the casement windows gave it a pleasing look, and the front door possessed a certain dignity; but there was one of those abominations known as a cupola on top! Indeed, his namesake, seeing that this unexpected caller was pausing for a view of the "swell house," came back to point out the cupola with pride.

"That's our watch tower! We can see the enemy approaching for miles and miles. Did you notice the windows? Daddy and us boys are crazy about the colors. Come on in." And as James followed him: "This is a gorgeous room, isn't it? Mr. Littlefield says it's miles too big; but we don't think so. You see, it's the ball room."

"Indeed?" responded James. "No, it's not too big, and as you say, sonny, it's—gorgeous."

It was; yet looking about him curiously, James Lambert pondered on what made it so. The place was shabby enough in a way. The builders' paper with which the walls were covered, was stained in places. A big chair needed upholstery. But on the wall opposite was a rug that would have done honor to a Rajah's palace! James went forward, touching the beautiful thing with reverent fingers.

"We picked that up in Persia," said the little boy.

His grandfather smiled at the oddly old remark.

"You did?"

"Well, I didn't, 'zactly. I've never been there. It was Daddy found it; and it's a magic carpet. That's why Mother wouldn't sell it to the rug man from Boston. You see, Daddy can lie here and look up at it, and then he remembers things—like the queer place he found it in and, oh, you know—'periences he's had in foreign countries. It makes him happier. No one would sell a magic carpet, would they?"

"I suppose not," said James; and thought: "What was it Nora told me about memories?"

"It's very old," went on his namesake. "Older than I am; and so was Mother's di'mund that came way from South Africa. She and Daddy were on their way home with it when I was born. Did you know I was born on the high seas?"

"You were!" Nora had never written about that.

"Yep. Mother was sort of expecting me, but she thought I wouldn't come till they got to England. Daddy says I'm the only fellow he ever knew per—personally, who was born on the high seas."

The small boy stopped to struggle into a scarlet sweater.

"When I get back," he promised, "I'll show you the watch tower if—if you're young enough to climb a ladder. I've got to run now and find Mother. . . Oh, I forgot!" He turned at the door, evidently remembering his manners. "Just make yourself at home."

"Thanks," smiled his grandfather. "I believe I will."

CHAPTER XIV

So Nora's father was left alone in her "shining palace." He stood by the fire, letting his eyes roam slowly around the "ball room." It was an unusual room, a room of extraordinary beauty; yet James had never seen anything just like its curious blending of poverty and riches.

In one corner stood a baby-grand piano. He was glad that Nora had kept up her music, but—a baby-

Eskimos Are Susceptible to Ailments; Medical Services Now Check Disease

Although a healthy and organically sound race, Eskimos are seriously susceptible to ailments which ordinarily cause white people only minor discomfort. Before the coming of the white man, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, they knew nothing of such ills as colds, influenza, and other kindred ailments, and there had been no need for their bodies to build up a resistance to the attack of these diseases. Consequently the arrival of the first whaling and trading vessels each season was followed by widespread outbreaks among the natives, often with disastrous effects.

Today the medical services in the Far North take particular care upon the arrival of vessels to check the spread of these diseases. Modern hygiene has been a contributing factor to the physical well-being of the natives, and by instructions about proper diets doctors have reduced considerably the number of deaths from dietary causes. A most striking success has been made in the correction of methods of feeding infants and older children, with the result that happy-faced, vigorous children now form a considerable portion of the population.

grand, when the stuffing was coming out of that old chair! Incongruous. Evidently this provident couple believed in spending when there was anything to spend. That rug now—that bit of cloisonne—the Russian candelabra on the mantel. Only real money could procure such things.

The old man moved forward, passing his hand over the lacquered chair, its mother-of-pearl inlay shining dimly. Leonora had written him about that chair at the very first. Something her husband had picked up during his wanderings. Japanese, of course. No one surpassed the Japanese when it came to lacquer. His own Chinese cabinet (of which James was rather proud) couldn't for one minute compete with work like this, he admitted honestly. And here was a nest of tables to match it. Beautiful! Those tables belonged in a museum; yet on the smallest stood a set of tiny dishes, put out, evidently, in anticipation of a doll's tea party! Did Nora's children play with things like this? Extraordinary!

James turned again, his eyes caught by a painting of a clipper ship above the fireplace. That was a ship! One could almost feel the wind filling its sails. A Venable, of course. One would recognize it anywhere. Well, Carl Venable had been a friend of Don's, he understood. The picture may have cost them nothing. Too bad the artist had been cut off in his prime—a man with a gift like that. It was a marvelous painting—worth a great deal of money; yet here it was in a room where the bookshelves were nothing but boxes, packing boxes piled one upon another and stained to match the woodwork.

Books, books, and still more books. A pretty penny they must have spent on books, those two; and yet, Nora's father admitted almost with reluctance, the books furnished this big room as nothing else could—gave it atmosphere. Their varied bindings made him think of a camel's hair shawl his mother used to wear. How softly they blended with the fine old rug that hung above them!

Well, he must sit down for a while. That walk from the car had tired him unaccountably. Despite its worn upholstery the big chair by the table looked inviting; but he must get nearer the fire—stretch out on the davenport a moment.

James paused, staring down at what he had taken for a divan. Why, it was nothing in the world but a pew out of some old church! Whoever heard of putting such a thing into a living room? And yet—by George!—it seemed to fit the place—along here! What beautiful carving on those old posts. One seldom saw such work in these days. Well, this was certainly the strangest yet. A pew out of some old New England meeting house! But it looked surprisingly attractive with its thick crimson cushion and pillows of the same warm hue. And it looked comfortable. "A great deal more comfortable," James told the empty ball room. "Than those modern, overstuffed affairs one can't get up from without a helping hand."

For a tired moment the old man sat down and closed his eyes, wondering wearily if this strange home of Nora's possessed a guest room. His sense of humor, grown rusty since she went away, lifted its head as he soliloquized:

"Perhaps they'll allow me to curl up in the watch tower!" James chuckled. "The enemy in the watch tower would be something new!" Then remembering that the boy had said his picture was on Nora's desk, he forgot his weariness and arose briskly.

More of Lace This Summer Than Ever

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AN UNPRECEDENTED vogue for lace is recorded this summer. No longer is lace considered from the luxury and esthetic viewpoint only. Lace has become a tremendously practical factor in the realm of apparel wearable for all occasions. Lace has come into its own in a big way, so much so that designers are thinking in terms of lace as they never thought before.

So lace-conscious have we become, women of keen judgment are acquiring entire wardrobes that are for the most part fashioned of lace. This is especially true with those who travel, for, put to the test, lace stands up under the stress and strain of packing and unpacking, in fact of serving for general wear as well as any other fabric. Of course, there are laces and laces and it behooves the woman who would be well-dressed to choose the right lace for the right occasion.

You can get laces that you can scarcely identify as lace, so fabric-like is their mesh. They tailor as perfectly as cloth and carry a sophisticated air about them. As for service, you'll be delighted with their practical wearableness. Then there are the handsome, washable cotton and linen laces that tailor so smartly in simple daytime dresses you will be wanting above all else at least one of these practical gowns. Perhaps we would be better expressing the idea to insist that you invest in several. They will carry you through most any social crisis.

So far we have been talking of lace from the practical standpoint. When it comes to reviewing the triumphs of lace from the esthetic side of the question we think the lovely evening ensemble to the right in the illustration tells the story more eloquently than any word-picture could do. This exquisite creation is of bottle green Chantilly lace, so delicately meshed it is like filmiest cobweb structure. A water green foundation with bands of crepe in rainbow colorings at the hem and bodice top of this slip reflect the spirit of joyous summer. The evening veil which has become a favorite headdress for formal occasion is of bottle green net with appliqued motifs of the lace.

A lace dinner and evening dress, such as is centered in the group, is almost indispensable in any woman's wardrobe. The short rounded bolero of matching lace, the full short sleeves as well as the easy fullness of the skirt are all features that make this dress distinctive and correct for both dinner and dancing. It comes in delectable colors in a new pattern of angel skirt lace.

You will be wanting an afternoon dress of lace. A very apt model is shown to the left. Pale blue Chantilly lace fashions it. Its styling gives a particularly interesting interpretation of the draped bodice treatment that terminates in a wide molded corselet-girdle line. The hat is a Toya straw.

'ON THE SQUARE'

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Decidedly on the square is the formula that newer bags follow, and as to size many of them are enormous. Pictured is a bien-en-davis bag on the tab of which are monogrammed miniature initials. Wide, flat handles and zipper top opening are added features to this bag which comes in tones of black, navy, rust, tan and black patent leather.

Suit of Hopsacking

A suit of yellow hopsacking is a flattering costume for a summer day. Its jacket may be fitted and belted or swing straight and free, but it must be short-sleeved. Add a blouse of white organdie or a veste of printed lawn.

FASHION DECLARES FOR WHITE SUMMER

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

We grant that white is always a summer favorite, but this summer fashion is playing it up in a highly dramatic manner. Costumes are described in the fashion story as "white as snow" or of icy whiteness or white as fleecy summer clouds and so on. You appreciate the stupendous accent on white in fashionable gatherings where "white as a swan" capes and jackets; and boleros of marabou, fur or ostrich are the favored wraps, and where evening gowns float about in billowy masses of white net or chiffon or that which is late style—the pencil-slim draped dress of snow-white rayon jersey draped sculpture-like. Then there are the new white taffeta frocks, "beauties," that they are.

For day there are numberless man-tailored suits of sharkskin and other fascinating wash whites, while the afternoon dresses of white rayon jersey compete in endless parade.

White lingerie has come in and is the wanted kind at present. And as for accessory whites, footwear, gloves, bags and details too numerous to mention make their bow on the fashion stage in pure white.

Top a Print Frock With Silk Coat in Monotone

Well-dressed women find appeal in the new summer costumes that top the print frock with a silk coat in monotone that repeats the leading color of the print. For instance wear with a brown beige and rose print dress, either a jacket or full-length coat of brown silk crepe. Or a red-on-white silk print dress adds a bolero of red silk and there are red ribbon bow trims on the frock.

What's Your HOBBY?

Everybody's Doing It: The Banker Has a Toy Railroad, the Butcher is a Camera Fan, and the Baker Collects Stamps!

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

How do you spend your spare time? Or do you waste it?

There's a difference, you see. It's easy to stand on a street corner and watch the world go by, but you're apt to crawl into bed that night feeling like a fifth wheel on the buggy that makes this world go 'round.

How to utilize spare time is a problem that vexed mankind long before bored monarchs snapped their pudgy fingers to make the pipers play.

Today, in a world of shorter working hours and increased social consciousness, intelligent use of our "loafing" hours is a serious matter. But don't take it seriously; instead, why not find a hobby?

In every walk of life these days you're apt to meet stamp collectors, candid camera fans and miniature railroad builders. The garage mechanic who tunes up your motor probably tinkers with short-wave radio between the evening meal and bedtime. A United States Supreme court justice may surreptitiously read detective stories when nobody's looking, and your doctor might collect rare old books.

"Cream on Your Porridge."

It's reached a stage where the curious thing to look for is not people who have hobbies, but those who don't. Someone has called it a way to "put cream on your porridge," which means that a not-too-serious hobby will add zest to the most humdrum life. Nor need your work-a-day job be humdrum; Henry Ford, one of America's busiest industrial magnates, devotes his spare time to building the famous Greenfield village at Dearborn, Mich. Albert Einstein, the scientist, relaxes by sawing away at his violin. Andre Kostelanetz, the orchestra leader, is an expert wood carver.

Pick up the paper almost any day and you'll find an item about your next door neighbor's hobby. In Chicago one evening last year, M. J. Smit, a retired gas company superintendent, was visiting a friend's home. The friend remarked that he was going to build a model of the Italian liner, Rex. That set Mr. Smit thinking and a few days later he started building his own steamship, a three-foot model of the gigantic Normandie.

Mr. Smit, who is sixty-eight years old, suddenly discovered a new meaning in life. "I found I'd been missing something," he says. "It's great fun making model steamships and I'm going to keep doing it that rest of my life."

Ace in the Hole.

A few blocks away Arthur Laederach, an electrical engineer, goes down to his whitewashed basement each evening and works at the hobby of years' standing—marquetry. This is the science of making landscapes, still life pictures and abstract designs with veneer woods, inlaid to give the proper appearance. It's a hobby that demands use of the jigsaw and a lot of patience. In the end he develops a unique skill that may serve him in good stead should the electrical engineering profession fail him.

That, incidentally, is an important feature of hobbies. More than one amateur tinker has turned his avocation into a money-making business. In Massachusetts a woman who grew up with a liking for tinkering over old, broken-down bicycles has now made that her business. And a good many years ago the Wright brothers spent their spare time playing with gliders in a deserted spot called Kitty Hawk, N. C. Look what happened to them!

More than one stamp collector has had similar good fortune, turning his hobby into a professional stamp business that netted a living income. And in California the newest avo-

A Chicago woman attorney spent 50 years of her spare time collecting figurines like those shown above. Each figurine represents some outstanding figure in history. Costumes, hair dress, jewelry and other accessories are absolutely authentic. Outstanding in the above group is Joan d'Arc.

Old Bill Morris of the Blue Ridge mountain district in North Carolina tends this ancient frontier fire as his hobby. The flame was started by his ancestors 148 years ago and has been kept alive ever since.

cation is "hobby mining," in which amateur prospectors take to the hills each week-end in search of gold. This has resulted in a rush for claims, reminiscent of last century's gold stampede. These modern prospectors aren't finding much gold, but they have hopes and meanwhile it's a lot of fun. Some of them will probably strike it rich.

Career Hobbies.

Then there's also the hobby which can be joined with your professional career. An example is Mildred Dilling, internationally known harpist who began her rise to fame with a second-hand harp. When she retires from the concert stage, many years hence, she'll have something more tangible than memories, because she spends her spare time collecting old, rare, curious and historic harps.

Some hobbies can make you feel like a kid again, which isn't a bad idea. Several years ago some youthful minded father bought his youngster an electric toy train for Christmas and had so much fun with it himself that he bought another. That hobby, model railroading, has grown overnight until now many a hard-headed business man spends his evenings playing with a miniature train.

It isn't child's play, however. The serious model railroader builds his own "rolling stock" to exact scale size and has from 200 to 1,000 feet of track on which to run it. Today you can buy disassembled miniature railroad parts and build your own system, consisting of engines, Pullmans, coaches and innumerable types of freight cars. Train hobbyists prefer freights because of the variety they offer.

Or, You Might Try—

There's a humorous side to hobbying, too. Out in Halfway, Ore., Walter W. Evans collects—of all things—official positions! Evans is vice president and cashier of the First National bank, city treasurer, high school clerk, secretary-treasurer of the telephone company, key banker for his county banking association, public education committee-man for the same organization, and president of the Northwest Oregon Bankers association. Recently he decided to run for justice of the peace.

Then, in Akron, Ohio, we find Walter Thompson, a gasoline station attendant who in the past two years has dissuaded 10 persons from suicide. That, says Thompson, is his hobby. His station is located at the end of a bridge. At nearby Cleveland a strange fellow who jumped through the trees at Brookside park, clad in a tiger skin breech clout, turned out to be nothing more than a Tarzan hobbyist. But police warned him to practice elsewhere. Maybe the suicide stopper and the amateur Tarzan aren't true hobbyists, but to discover how important this business has become, you need only look at one of the exhibitions staged by people who have found a happy pastime and are willing to tell the world about it.

Famous People, Quaint Hobbies.

Famous people sometimes have unique hobbies. Jane Pickens, the songstress, weaves rugs and makes bobbin lace because it gives her time to think. Chester Morris, the movie star, is an amateur magician and Dr. Frank Black, musical director for a broadcasting network, plays with chemistry during his spare time. Right now he is experimenting with liquid rubber to use in making sculpture molds.

Perhaps you already have a hobby. If not, take a little sage advice from the experts before developing one.

The best way, they say, is to fall into something you really enjoy. Don't deliberately look for a hobby; simply drift into a stimulating avocation that brings you real enjoyment.

Another thing, don't be too strict about your hobby, because if you tie yourself up with a lot of restrictions the whole thing will suddenly become very irksome.

If you're not careful, your hobby is apt to take too much time at first. You may get so enthusiastic that life becomes one continual mental tussle between your hobby and your better self. But eventually you'll emerge from this stage with a balanced viewpoint, having learned to live with this new companion.

You'll discover that moderation in all things is an excellent idea, but what's more important, you'll not be alone with a pair of twiddling thumbs the next rainy afternoon!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
© Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for July 31

SAMSON: STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

LESSON TEXT—Judges 14:5, 6; 15:11-14; 16:15-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.—Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Shows His Strength.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Strong Was Samson?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Who Is Strong?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Physical Strength and Moral Weakness.

There is no more tragic individual among the sons of men than the one who entered upon life with every promise of success, who has lived for a time in favor with God and with man, and then because of moral failure is set aside by God, shunned by man, and ends life as a disappointment and a failure. "And yet such disastrous climaxes of what should have been great and victorious careers lie all about us, and nowhere with such frequency and inexcusableness as among those whom God has called to preach, evangelize, and teach His Word. The saddest tragedy in all the world is a man who once knew the power of the Holy Spirit and who now walks the streets of some great city or is buried in the cottage of an unknown countryside, without power, without work, without joy, without the leading of the Lord. He knows a weariness that labor never gives, for he wakens every morning more tired and weary than when he went to sleep the night before" (Wilbur M. Smith).

The life story of Samson brings us the picture of God's patient and gracious dealing with such a failure, reveals the inexorable law of cause and effect in the moral realm as well as the certainty that the wages of sin are not repented of and forsaken is death.

I. Physical Strength and Favor With God (15:5, 6).

Samson had the distinction (given to only one other Old Testament character) of having his birth announced beforehand. He was to be a Nazirite and was to "begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistine"—a commission which sin kept him from ever finishing. God gave him the marvelous heritage of a strong and healthy body as well as His own blessing upon him for carrying out the Lord's work. The fact that he is named among the heroes of faith in Hebrews indicates that he did have faith in God. Yet his life was a failure.

Samson would have been a great favorite in this athletic age. Let those who worship the body and glorify physical prowess take note that such strength is not sufficient to guarantee success in life, and may indeed be a source of temptation which may lead to spiritual and moral downfall. Those who live for the flesh "shall of the flesh reap corruption" (Gal. 6:8).

II. Moral Weakness and Spiritual Decay (15:11-14).

The portion of the lesson selected for our consideration from Judges 15 gives only an act of prowess on the part of Samson, but the reader will recognize it as one of the many deeds of Samson done as an expression of his uncontrolled sensual nature. Read the entire chapter and it will be evident that here is a man who, while occasionally responding to God's leading, is on the downward path of moral and spiritual decay.

Scripture is absolutely honest in relating the facts as they are—and here it is not at all an attractive picture. It never is, although the world tries to make it appear to be. A learned audience of university people laughed with evident appreciation at the statement of a professor that "vice is always more interesting than virtue," little realizing that they thus bore testimony to their own attitude toward sin. If the liquor advertisements were honest enough to picture the agony of a drunkard dying of delirium tremens they would present the real truth, but they would sell no "booze."

III. Failure, Darkness, and Death (16:15-21).

Delilah finally betrayed the foolish Samson who apparently had become so sure of himself that he dared to venture anything. The man who was to be strong for God is now in prison, shorn of his strength, blinded by his enemies, and finally he kills himself even as he slays his enemies (16:23-31). Thus he threw away the life that had become to him but a burden and a disgrace.

"Thus he who began never completed his work. The column was broken in the middle. The story ends with a comma and a dash, blighted by a tear. For the light is turned into darkness, and how great is the darkness" (J. M. Lang).

Now Power Can Defeat God
Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken.—Prov. 3:25, 26.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Cheese—Prince of Proteins

Noted Food Authority Tells Why You Should Eat More of the Food That Is So Rich in Protective Elements.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th St., New York City.

FOR many years, men with an inventive turn of mind have dreamed of creating a product that would concentrate all the important food elements in a small tablet or capsule. They have been inspired by a desire to simplify meal preparation without sacrificing nutritive values.

No one has ever succeeded in making a synthetic food that would both satisfy hunger and properly nourish the body. But all the while, the researchers have overlooked the magnificent possibilities of cheese, one of the most concentrated, nourishing, satisfying and versatile of foods.

Cheese—The Body Builder

Cheese is the most concentrated source of protein known. Moreover, the protein is of such high type that if it were the only body-building food in the diet, given in sufficient quantities, it would be adequate not only to maintain life, but to support normal growth.

One-half pound of American Cheddar cheese will supply all the protein required by an adult for an entire day.

Cheese—The Energy Food

In addition to its rich store of protein, cheese is also a fine source of energy.

A cube of Cheddar cheese one-and-one-eighth inches square provides 100 calories or the equivalent in energy value of the lean meat of one lamb chop or one medium-sized potato. One-half pound of Cheddar cheese furnishes 1,000 calories, about half the daily requirement of an adult leading a sedentary life.

Cheese for Mineral Salts

Because milk is rich in minerals, it follows that cheese, which is made from milk, contains these precious substances in highly concentrated form. It is an excellent source of calcium, the mineral which is responsible for building strong bones and sound teeth, and for keeping the heart beating normally. A one-and-one-fourth inch cube of American Cheddar cheese contains as much calcium as an 8-ounce glass of milk.

The individual who does not care for milk as a beverage can easily obtain the necessary calcium from cheese. But it is practically impossible to get adequate amounts of this mineral without either milk or cheese.

In rennet cheese, phosphorus, as well as calcium, is present in the same proportions as in milk, but is much more highly concentrated. As in milk, these minerals are in a form that is most nearly perfect for easy assimilation. Rennet-curd cheese is always high in sulphur and fairly high in iron. Furthermore, the iron is in the most readily assimilated form.

Cheese and Vitamins

Cheese is a splendid source of vitamin A, which promotes growth and increases resistance to disease. It is especially important for eye health and is necessary to prevent the affliction known as night blindness. The amount of vitamin A varies with the type of cheese, but both American Cheddar and Parmesan cheese are extremely rich in this substance, and cream cheese is an outstanding source. Vitamins B and G are also found in whole milk cheese.

With this wealth of food values, one would expect to find cheese appearing on the menu in some form every day. But though the annual production of cheese in the United States exceeds 700,000,000 pounds, it should be much greater. The annual per capita consumption is only 5½ pounds—a woefully small figure when we consider the wide benefits that would result from its greater use.

The failure of American homemakers to use cheese in the amounts that they should is, I believe, due to three factors: first, a lack of knowledge concerning its splendid food values; second, a belief in the old superstition that cheese is not easy to digest; and third, failure to take advantage of the many ways in which it can be served.

Digestibility of Cheese

The foregoing outline of its many food values should give a new conception of its place in the diet. As to its digestibility, studies by the United States Department of Agriculture have entirely disproved the fallacy that it is not completely digestible.

It was found that on an average about 95 per cent of the protein and over 95 per cent of the fat of cheese were digested and absorbed. The various kinds of cheese tested were found to compare favorably in digestibility with the food of an average mixed diet. It was also demonstrated experimentally "that there was practically no difference between cheese and meat with respect to ease of digestion, at least in such quantities as are commonly eaten."

There was also a notion that because it is so high in food value, cheese should only be eaten in small quantities. But scientific tests have proven that cheese may be eaten by normal individuals in large quantities, as the principal source of protein, with entirely beneficial effects upon health.

Place of Cheese in the Diet

There is a case on record of a young man who lived for two years on a daily diet consisting of one-half pound of cheese, a one-pound loaf of whole wheat bread and two pounds of fruit. While this limited diet might prove monotonous to some people, it is possible to utilize cheese as the easiest method of providing important food value, varying the diet, and simplifying meal preparation. For there are more than 200 distinctive varieties of cheese listed by the department of agriculture, ranging from the smooth, delicately flavored cream cheese, which may be given to very young children, to the sharp tangy cheese which is especially popular with men. Fortunately, almost every type can be purchased in packaged form, in sizes that are convenient for large and small families, making it possible to enjoy a wide variety.

Cheese can be used as a main dish; in salads or sandwiches; as a sauce for vegetables; as a dessert. It is desirable at the same time to serve bulky foods, such as fruits and vegetables. Cheese may also be combined advantageously with carbohydrate foods. This is because the balanced diet requires more carbohydrates than protein. And cheese is essentially a protein food, interchangeable with meats and fish.

The businessmen of East Tawas are purchasing a trophy which will be a perpetual trophy to be raced for by National-One yachts each annual Regatta here. One of the objectives of the Tawas Bay Yacht Club, as the National-One class of boats develops, is to have the state championships in this class held here.
Each Sunday afternoon, members of the local Yacht Club are staging
"tune-up" races on Tawas Bay, getting in readiness for the Regatta events.
The Regatta entertainment committee is planning a banquet at the Holland Hotel the evening of August 20 for racing participants and their friends and members of the local Yacht Club. Trophies and prizes will be awarded at the banquet.
In conjunction with the Regatta events, the businessmen of East Tawas will sponsor the annual Water Carnival and a program of shore entertainment. At a meeting held Monday evening, Rambling Bill Hurley was named general chairman of this year's week's program, with Herman N. Butler chosen as co-chairman, and Charles Bigelow as secretary. The finance committee includes Earl Adams, R. G. Schreck, and Fred
Goodrich. D. B. Moss and Thomas White will serve as the entertainment committee, while the sports committee comprises Scott Schuman, Joe Halligan, and Charles Bigelow.
The program of shore entertainment will include swimming meets, baseball games, boxing matches and other events. Over a loud-speaker system, progress of the yacht races out on the waters of Tawas Bay will be announced to spectators along the shore of the State Park.
To the Iosco County girl who brings in the most revenue from the sale of buttons will go the honor of reigning as Queen of the Water Carnival and presiding at the Queen's Ball in the Community building, Saturday evening, August 20. Prizes will also be awarded to the losing contenders in the Queen's contest. Any girl in Iosco County is eligible to enter the race. Entries should be filed immediately with Ted Dimmick or John Moffatt, members of the Queen's contest committee, who will supply Carnival buttons to the entrants.
Harry Wismer, sports announcer of Radio Station WJR, Detroit, will crown the winner at the Queen's Ball.
Arrangements have also been made by the general committee with Radio Station WBCN, of Bay City, to broadcast, by remote control, a half hour program during the progress of the Regatta racing events during Saturday afternoon, and an hour program the coronation ceremonies at the Queen's Ball Saturday evening.

Mr. Holbeck, however, withdrew his petition for the senatorial nomination and will run against Alexander McKay, of West Branch, for the Republican nomination for representative from this district.
The primary election will be held September 13. In previous years, if only one candidate filed for an office, he was certified as the nominee by the County Election Commission.
This year, whether there are one or more candidates filing, the names of all candidates must appear on the ballot, and be voted on, in order to receive the nomination for that office.

a new implement warehouse, 28 by 65 feet, at the G. H. G., to house a complete line of farm implements and used cars. For the summer, the new warehouse will have an open side and front but this Fall, Mr.
Leslie plans to build sections to enclose it for winter. At Oscoda, Mr.
Leslie is remodeling his gas station and building new living quarters for the attendant, William Stone.
On Seventh Street, Otto Kasischek is constructing a new modern home with four rooms and bath on the first floor, two rooms on the second floor, and a full basement.
"Of course, the first and second floors are going to be fine, too," Mr. Kasischek said, "but you should see our basement. It's going to be one of the finest in town. We'll have a laundry room, boiler and fuel room, and fruit room, with eight-inch walls of solid concrete. And the chimney is built of steel and concrete." Mr.
Kasischek plans to move into his new home early this Fall.

In the same block on Seventh Street, Mrs. Frank Lange is tearing down her old home and plans to have a four-room house constructed on her lot. Construction will start within the next few weeks, Mrs. Lange said.
Rapidly nearing completion is the new home of Ernest Dicaire, owner of the Huston block, which is being built on the bay side of US 23 just west of the G. H. Q. Mr. Dicaire's house is a modern five-room bungallow with full basement. Labor and materials for construction were secured in Tawas City. The building will be completed within the next 30 days, Mr. Dicaire said.

On Bay street, about a block west of the Ford garage, the new home of Dr. J. J. Austin is ready for occupancy within the next three weeks. This is an eight-room house of brick veneer construction, with insulated walls, and a full basement.
The new Austin home is about completed except for painting and decorating the interior.
On the old cereal company's site, across the railroad tracks from the Barkman store, Burley Wilson will have a new coal storage shed ready for use next week. Mr. Wilson's new shed is 60 feet long by 24 feet wide and is designed so that coal may be discharged directly from cars into trucks.
Ernest Burtzloff has a new coal shed under construction on his new railway siding just west of the Barkman Lumber Co. The coal shed will be 24 by 96 feet, with a concrete floor. It will be ready for storing coal within the next month, Mr.
Burtzloff said. Mr. Burtzloff also plans to build a small office at one end of his coal yard and will install scales.
