

TAWAS CITY

The Tawas City fire siren was moved this week from the roof of the city hall to a new position on the water tower about 90 feet above ground. From the higher position, the sound of the siren will carry better to all parts of town, it is believed. Fred Luedtke and Frank Sands made the change of the siren to its new location.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brugger, Misses Madge Brugger and Laurie Frank motored to Coleman on Sunday to call on relatives.

Misses Pauline and Isabelle Davis, of Flint, were week-end guests of Miss Phyllis Bigelow. They are the daughters of Rev. L. Davis, former pastor of the Baptist Church in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bigelow and daughter, Beverly, will visit at Flint this week-end.

Alfred Boomer and son, Clifford, returned Friday from Harbor Beach, where they have just completed the erection of a seven-room residence for G. W. Brown.

Harvey Rempert, "Brad" Metcalf, Freddie Luedtke, and Kenny Smith motored to Detroit with Carl and Herbert Zollweg last Friday. They attended the double-header between Detroit and Philadelphia and returned Monday after spending the week-end in the city. We are wondering if some of the tall buildings, and other sights in the city, account for the boys getting the roofs of their mouths a bit sun-burned!

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacDonald, of Flint, were week-end visitors with the latter's mother, Mrs. Lulu Harris. Miss Anette Laidlaw, of Detroit, arrived Saturday to visit her sister, Mrs. Robert Murray and family. Mr. and Mrs. Murray went to Detroit after her on Friday.

The repair work on the Harold Moeller home, purchased from Mrs. Ray Smith, is nearly completed. The home has a new roof, and has been painted white with blue trim, and many other improvements.

Mrs. Jos. Watts is visiting her sons, George and Archie McCordell, and families in Detroit this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hagemann, son, Norman, daughter, Darlene, of Pekin, Illinois, and Ferd. Anschuetz, of this city, spent a day last week at the C. F. Hochbach home.

PROTESTED GAME GOES TO LOCAL TEAM

League Officials Render Decision on Disputed Turner Game

At a meeting held in Standish last Monday evening, officers and directors of the 14 teams in the North-eastern Michigan League (with the exception of Turner and Tawas City, the two teams involved) voted 10 to 2 to allow Turner's protest on the game played with Tawas City at Turner, Sunday, July 24. Tawas City won the game by a score of 9 to 8.

Each team in both circuits was represented at the Standish meeting to consider Turner's protest, which was registered because one of their players was called out while returning from third base to second base on a ground rule double over the fence.

A decision rendered by Jimmy Stevenson, WJR sports announcer, is believed to have been a big factor in deciding the protest. C. E. Moeller, of Tawas City, had written Mr. Stevenson as follows: "In a game played at Turner, the ground rules called for one base on an overthrow over first third and home, and two bases over left and right field fence, but the runner had to make that base. Also, if outfielder could get over the fence and make a catch of a fly ball, the batter was out."

"One of the batters hit a fly ball over the left field fence and the left fielder retrieved the ball and threw it to the infield. The runner, who had made the hit, rounded second base and was part way to third base. He was tagged out before he returned to second base. Was he out or safe? The fence is low and permits the fielder to get over easily and keep the ball in play at all times."

Mr. Stevenson's reply to Mr. Moeller's query was: "If batter must make second and fielder may make legal catch of fly ball over either fence, you have no ground rules. Ball is in play and runner who has hit over the fence runs over second base at his own risk. If ball is retrieved and he is tagged off the bag, he is out."

After a long discussion between representatives of all the teams Monday evening, the room was cleared except for the officers and directors of the 12 teams in the league, besides Turner and Tawas City. The vote was taken which disallowed the protest.

This Sunday's game with Whittemore here will be Tawas City's last home game of the league schedule. Whittemore has been playing a bang-up game of ball in their recent games, which have been won and lost by close margins. Tawas City is leading the division in team standings. Let's get out and help keep them there.

Culham Cousins Stage Reunion in Bay City

A reunion of the Culham cousins held last Sunday at Bay City brought together 53 members of this prominent Isoco County family. Those who attended from Tawas City report a very enjoyable gathering. A dinner, held in the Bay City State Park, was finished in a downpour of rain.

The group then adjourned to the Harry Graham cottage at Applin Beach to spend the afternoon visiting and recalling old times in the Tawas area. A supper at the Graham cottage ended the reunion.

At a business meeting, it was decided to hold the Culham reunion at Tawas City next year.

Those who attended the Culham gathering last Sunday, included: Mr. and Mrs. George McCordell and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie McCordell and family, of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Culham and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Culham and family, of Milford.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Culham and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Culham and family, of Lansing.

Coastguard Crew Races At Lake Michigan Meet

A coastguard crew from the Tawas Point station was to race for the district championship in a pulling surfboard race at Grand Haven this week. Two weeks ago, the local crew won the Lake Huron championship, in competition with six other stations in this area, which won them the right to compete for the district championship over on Lake Michigan this week. They were also to take part in other events at the Grand Haven meet.

EAST TAWAS READY FOR LEGIONNAIRES

Plan Reception for Legion Convention Honor Guest, Uncle Neal Tomy

East Tawas main street will be decked out in gala attire with flags and banners Saturday to welcome Legionnaires from 22 posts throughout northeastern Michigan who will attend the tenth district American Legion convention Saturday and Sunday.

The Audie Johnson Post No. 211, of East Tawas, with the Oscoda and Tawas City posts cooperating, will play host to the visiting Legionnaires.

Commander F. E. Kunze, of the local post, announced this week that a reception committee of Legion officers, prominent citizens and heads of various governmental departments, including the Forestry, Coastguard, Department of Conservation and State Police, will greet Neal Tomy, of Radio Saion WJR, Detroit, known to radio listeners as "Uncle Neal," upon his arrival at 3 p. m. Saturday. Uncle Neal will be the guest of honor at the convention.

The public is invited to attend this reception for Uncle Neal at the Holland Hotel.

During the brief reception, a local German Band will furnish some "extra special" music, Commander Kunze said. The American Legion German Band from Bay City was expected for Saturday afternoon but they are unable to come until Sunday, hence Commander Kunze has arranged for local talent to provide some real old-time German band music.

Following the reception, Uncle Neal will be escorted to Rambling Bill Hurley's camp where he will be a guest for the week-end, and then the Legion convention's guest of honor will be taken on a scenic tour to Huron National Forest, Lumberman's Monument, Foote Dam and Oscoda.

The American Legion Ball is scheduled for 9 p. m. Saturday in the Community building. Uncle Neal will act as Master of Ceremonies at the Ball, while Rambling Bill Hurley, chairman of the convention entertainment committee, and His Gang will provide music for both oldtime and modern dancing.

ELMER ODELL TRAVELS WITH SHOW IN WEST

Former Tawas City Midget Writes Aunt After Long Silence

Friends of Elmer Odell, circus midget, who has been with Ringling Brothers, 101 Ranch, and other large circuses during the past ten years, will be glad to learn that he is alive and well, and traveling with a circus on the West Coast this summer.

This information was revealed in a letter received by Elmer's "Aunt" Susan, Mrs. T. D. Kilbourne, of Whittemore, recently.

Several years ago, the midget, who is billed as "Prince Elmer" with the Joyland Shows, now traveling in California and Oregon, was injured from a severe blow on the head with a tent pole at Elmira, N. Y. At that time, it was rumored he had died from his injuries. Now, it is learned, that he recovered from his injuries; went to England with a show; then returned to this country where he married for a third time. He has one child by this third marriage.

Extracts from his letter to Mrs. Kilbourne, follow:
Bandon, Oregon,
July 14, 1938.

Dear Aunt Susan:
In looking over my personal mail, I ran across your letter which you wrote me at Oakland, California, way last winter. I thought I answered it at that time but in case I didn't, I will answer it now.

I am well and, at present, am traveling with a show through Oregon and California. The show is booked solid for the entire season which runs until late December, closing in California. Also have some good offers for work next winter and through next summer, if I decide to accept them.

I am enlarging my midget act with

CLARK DREAMS OF "COON HUNT"

Clark Tanner says he's going to do his coon hunting out in the woods after this. Clark is nursing bruised and strained shoulder ligaments this week as a result of falling out of bed during a wild dream about hunting coon.

"It's a funny thing", Clark related. "I was just about to poke that darned coon out of a tree when I woke up to find myself on the floor. I must have struck a small cabinet beside the bed because my shoulder was pretty lame. I guess it'll be safer for me to do my hunting out in the open after this."

Remodel Richards Building For New Gamble Hardware

Work of rebuilding and modernizing the front of the Richards building in East Tawas is under way in preparation for the opening of a Gamble hardware store there under the management of Erwin Krebs from Alpena.

Mr. Krebs plans to take possession of the building next week and start installing his stock, according to Miss Sarah Richards, owner of the building.

The present Richards building was constructed 45 years ago after the original building on that site burned Miss Richards said.

"My father operated a hardware business in East Tawas for more than 30 years until he died in 1908," Miss Richards said. "Then my brothers carried on the business until a few years ago. So there has always been a hardware store in our building up until the time we rented it, two years ago, to the Kraft Cheese Company for a cheese factory. They used the building until last winter. Now, it will seem more natural to have a hardware store in the building again."

RACING CRAFT WILL COMPETE ON TAWAS BAY

East Tawas Businessmen Plan Water Carnival and Shore Events

Next week-end the waters of Tawas Bay will be alive with sails of racing craft, here to compete in the annual Regatta events sponsored by the Tawas Bay Yacht Club. The Regatta dates are from August 13 to 20. Yacht Clubs of Alpena, Bay City, Saginaw and Detroit have assured officials of the local yacht club that they will have a representation of racing boats here to compete in the annual Regatta, Merrill Pollard, rear-commodore and general chairman, announced this week.

In conjunction with the gala Regatta week, East Tawas merchants will sponsor the annual Water Carnival and an extensive program of shore entertainment.

Regatta entries from Saginaw will include the Dale, skippered by Fred Kline; the Chinook, owned by William Charters; the Duster, a sloop owned by Adelaide Symon; two Westwinds belonging to Henry Page and Robert Zander; and several other boats.

Bay City craft, which will compete in the annual events on Tawas Bay during Regatta week, include Guy Mouthrop's "Y-Not"; Hubert Smith's "Sank"; and Eric Wilson's "Westwind."

Alpena will be represented by three or more boats. The Fletcher brothers, Phil and Harry, will bring their two Six Meter boats down from Alpena for the events with Phil skipping the "Jack" and Harry, the "Meteor." It is hoped that George Martin's "Goquette," sister ship of the Dale, may be present.

From Detroit will come John McNaughton's "P"; Hal Baker's Comet; and three Larks—Sludge, Secret, and Wet Pants, owned by Carl Acton, Howard Terres and Walter Gardner, respectively.

The three National-One design boats, owned by Oliver Alverson, Matt Haglund, and one owned jointly by Leonard M. Butrym and Lloyd McKay Jr., will vie for honors during the week's events. They will represent the local yacht club.

Seven classes of boats will start in the five races for points and two novelty races which will comprise the regatta program. The seven classes include the following: Six Meter; Class A, consisting of the Poulties; Class B, made up of the Coquette, Gamble, Dale, and other entries; National-One design; Westwinds, Larks; and Class C, taking those boats under 16 feet not in class competition.

Class A boats will compete for the East Tawas Merchants Trophy while Class B craft will race for the Mary I. Dwight Cup, and Class C boats for the John North Jr. Memorial Trophy. Trophies are being arranged for the other classes and a fine array of prizes will be presented to those skippers who place second and third in each of the classes.

Rural Patrons Cooperate In Improving Mail Boxes

Patrons on rural routes throughout the county have been cooperating with mail carriers and local postmasters this week by improving their rural mail boxes in connection with Clean Up Rural Mail Box Week sponsored nationally by the Post Office Department.

All patrons on rural routes were asked to join the movement as a matter of civic pride as well as convenience. The Post Office Department issued the following official order regarding the subject of rural mail boxes:

"Unserviceable and unsightly rural mail boxes both retard the delivery of mail and detract from the natural scenic beauty of the highway. Particularly to be deplored are the non-regulation, old type, top-opening boxes, as well as makeshift receptacles which expose mail to the elements."

"It is the desire of the Department not only to correct the above mentioned situation but to encourage all rural mail patrons generally to possess pride in their boxes, both in the manner of erection, neat stenciling, and tidy appearance."

Rural carriers report good results from the drive this week to have better and neater appearing boxes installed on their routes.

Senate Campaign Committee Uncovers Political Scandal in Berry-Stewart Primary Fight

David E. Lilienthal, TVA director, at left, trying to explain to the congressional investigating committee the methods by which TVA "yardstick" rates for power were established. Next to him is J. A. Kurg, chief power planning engineer; and at extreme right is Dr. A. E. Morgan, the deposed head of the authority.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Political Scandal

SENATOR SHEPPARD'S campaign expenditures committee, after hearing a report from an investigator, announced that the conduct of the Democratic senatorial primary campaign in Tennessee was scandalous and warned that the successful candidate was likely to face an election contest in the senate.

The shaking down of both federal and state employees, the buying of votes on a huge scale, the raising of funds by intimidation—all were being indulged in by the two rival candidates, according to the committee. Those who are seeking the nomination are Sen. George L. Berry, Tom Stewart, J. Ridley Mitchell, Dr. John R. Neal and C. L. Powell. Stewart is supported by E. H. Crump, political boss of Memphis. Berry is backed by the state machine and Gov. Gordon Browning.

"The committee is of the opinion," its statement said, "that the evidence already before it with respect to assessments of federal employees by one group participating in the Democratic primary contest for United States senator and of state employees by the other group, points sharply toward an election contest in the United States senate regardless of which group's candidate triumphs. "Regardless of action that may be taken in the courts to punish those practicing illegal election methods and those exercising political pressure, there are indications that the senate may be called upon to consider the probability of excessive money being used in behalf of the victorious candidates."

Besides its pronouncement on Tennessee, the committee asked Postmaster General Farley to investigate the distribution of a "political circular" by the Farm Security Administration in South Dakota. The circular, it was said, was sent out under government frank to "aid the senatorial candidacy of former Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota."

The committee also dispatched investigators to Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota and California. It heard reports from its investigators already at work in Pennsylvania and Kentucky and sent them back for additional information. It dismissed from consideration a charge that a recent statement by WPA Administrator Hopkins that 90 per cent of WPA workers would vote for the Roosevelt administration was coercive. The committee said the statement was in answer to a press question and was "in no way a dictation to workers."

Bar Hits Labor Act

COMMITTEE reports received by the house of delegates of the American Bar association in session in Cleveland denounced the national labor relations act as "intensifying class antagonisms"; and condemned "despotic tendencies" of governmental administrative tribunals. The committee on labor, employment and social security in its report said the labor act is "the deliberate embodiment of a new social policy" in which the government "has departed from the traditional role of mediator and arbiter."

The assault on governmental administrative agencies, such as the securities and exchange commission, N. L. R. B., and others, was contained in a report of the committee on administrative law, headed by former Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard university law school. This attack, listing 10 "absolutism tendencies" of the bureaus, was assailed bitterly by Jerome N. Frank, SEC commissioner, who charged that it was defamatory."

Utilities to Be Heard

PRIVATE utilities are to be given a chance to present to the TVA investigation committee their case against the "yardstick" for electric power of the authority.

The committee said it had invited the Edison Electric institute, representing the power industry in matters of policy and publicity, and the Electric Bond and Share company and Commonwealth and Southern corporation. The latter two are holding companies which have extensive holdings in the Southeast where the TVA is offering cheap power to municipalities and rural co-operatives.

Debt Payment Rumors

FROM a London correspondent comes the report that preliminary negotiations have begun for final settlement by Great Britain and France of their defaulted debts to the United States. It is asserted the discussions, started some weeks ago by Ambassador Kennedy and British Prime Minister Chamberlain, were carried forward in secret talks in Paris among Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Ambassador Bullitt, French Foreign Minister Bonnet and Finance Minister Marchandeau.

Both Britain and France, says the correspondent, have expressed willingness to conclude a final settlement on the basis of the principal and not the interest of the original debts, which aggregated $9,286,950,943—$5,185,730,763 contracted by Britain and $4,101,220,180 by France. But in the contemplated settlement Britain and France are asking for a reduction of the principal of the original debts, which, if granted, would serve as the foundation for arranging the payment.

Texas Picks a Yankee

TEXAS Democrats in their primary selected a Yankee to be the next governor of the state, W. Lee O'Daniel, born in Ohio and raised on a Kansas farm, received a clear majority over 11 other candidates for the nomination which is equivalent to election.

O'Daniel is a flour jobber. He campaigned with a hill-billy band and a platform that included the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, ridicule of professional politicians, promise of a business administration and more liberal pensions for the aged. More important nationally was the fact that Rep. Maury Maverick, leader of a considerable bloc in congress, was defeated for renomination by Paul Kilday, a San Antonio attorney. Maverick is an enthusiastic New Dealer. Kilday says he will not be a rubber stamp. Two other administration backers were defeated for renomination. They were Representatives W. D. MacFarlane and Morgan Sanders.

Disaster in Bogota

THIRTY-SEVEN persons were killed and 150 injured when a Colombian army plane crashed into a grandstand at Bogota and burst into flames. The stand was packed with spectators gathered to witness an aviation review and in the throng were the president and president-elect of Colombia and many foreign diplomats. These narrowly escaped death. The plane was heading an acrobatic parade, and after its wings struck the sides of the grandstand it nose-dived into the shrieking mass of men, women and children.

CLARE E. HOFFMAN, Republican congressman from Michigan, has challenged the National Labor Relations board in the matter of constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and of the press. He sent to the board a letter recalling that the body recently declared the circulation of a house speech by Hoffman constituted an unfair labor practice under the Wagner act. In the speech Hoffman declared that known communists were active in the Committee for Industrial Organization and denounced C. I. O. sit-down strikes as communistic methods.

"This speech," Hoffman's letter said, "was republished, with illustrations, by the Constitutional Educational league of New Haven, Conn. "I am now offering, and intend to continue to offer, to furnish to any and all interested persons, including employees, employers, or others, copies of this address for circulation at the actual cost of printing, and to recommend that employees might well read this address before joining the C. I. O."

Commenting on the letter, Representative Hoffman said that the board's ruling would preclude the distribution of newspapers containing news items or editorials critical of any organization or of activities of the labor board. The American Federation of Labor charged in its official organ, the American Federationist, that maladministration of the Wagner act is threatening American democracy. The publication printed an editorial bluntly accusing the National Labor Relations board of promoting the rival Committee for Industrial Organization "which seeks to set up a dual labor movement despite all the social and economic waste which dualism involves."

"Every agency of the government that gives status to the C. I. O. gives the same recognition," it continued. "Surely this is not freedom for workers to choose their own unions and representatives for collective bargaining, but union development under government patronage."

To Expand Business Loans

CHAIRMAN JESSE JONES of the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced a new policy for forcing the expansion of business loans, by which competitor banks will be pitted against each other. When a loan applicant approved by the RFC is turned down by his local bank an RFC agent will contact the bank and try to persuade it to participate in the loan. If it refuses the RFC agent then will contact a competitor bank.

In its most optimistic monthly business survey of the year, the federal reserve board said industrial production is on the increase and available data indicate that in July the index will show a considerable rise.

Chairman Jones put huge resources of the Reconstruction Finance corporation behind the public works program. He and Administrator Ickes agreed that wherever possible RFC would make loans for public construction and PWA would conserve its money exclusively for outright grants. Hitherto, PWA has been making both loans and grants. Under the new system it will be possible, officials said, to undertake more big projects, such as roads and bridges, than if PWA had to furnish all the money itself.

Blames G.O.P. for Debt

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE blames the Republican policies of the twenties for "the unusual increase in the federal debt in the last nine years." Addressing the Iowa Democratic convention, he said: "In the Democratic thirties we have been like sailors sobering up the morning after, with the federal government playing the part of nurse." The secretary said the federal debt of the "Democratic thirties is being carried with ease by a country restored to health." He took his audience through a set of figures which he said showed "total debts in the United States today" to be $6,000,000,000 less than in 1930. Private debts, for instance, he said, are $12,000,000,000 under the 1932 total and $28,000,000,000 less than in 1930.

Hull Prods Cardenas

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL, out of patience with Mexico, sent to President Cardenas a sharp note protesting Mexico's failure to pay for American owned farm lands that the Mexican government has seized. Mr. Hull asked that the matter be submitted to arbitration. The secretary has in this the full approval of President Roosevelt, for the administration feels that Cardenas is endangering the "Good Neighbor" relations between the two countries.

Sen. Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee also backs up Mr. Hull, asserting that if Mexico refuses to arbitrate she will be subject to economic penalties. "Mexico," he said, "then would forfeit all the financial and other voluntary aid we have given her through our spirit of friendship and desire for peace, prosperity, and upbuilding of that country."

Main Street Boasts Many Golf Courses

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

NEXT time you drive one of the tee at the country club, remember you're helping provide a job for somebody. Maybe it will help you get a birdie. For golf has become a business as well as a game—a billion dollar business, in case you're interested in figures. Hard to believe? Well, not so hard, when you consider that there are more than 6,000 golf courses scattered all over America.

Uncle Sam has two-thirds of the world's golf courses, a large percent of which are located in rural communities. Scarcely a town anywhere is more than a few miles from a links. And nearly everybody, whether he lives on Main street or Riverside drive, has had a golf club in his hands at one time or another and knows who Bobby Jones and Ralph Guldahl are.

This business of golf gives employment regularly to nearly half a million men, including the people who work at making golf balls and clubs, building links, tending greens, playing professionally and selling golfing equipment. The nation's 6,000 links, including those in small towns as well as big cities and taking in public courses as well as private clubs represent an investment in excess of $1,000,000,000. So it's perfectly plain that every time you tee off, you're making a business contribution as well as an investment in good health.

This game which has influenced American habits, set new styles and taken millions of people out into the open, harks back about 50 years. The first golf links in the United States was established near Yonkers, N. Y., in 1888. The boys first played in a cow pasture. Then as now it was a game of trials and tribulations. Players were subjected to jibes and ridicule. Those who watched the game said it was a tame affair, and the players in ordinary garb fit for roughing it were not even picturesque.

In the early days the cost of upkeep was naturally low. Records kept by the first club show that only $58 was invested in 1888 in cutting the fairways, smoothing down the greens and giving them an occasional rolling. Dues amounted to $10 a year. Caddies could be hired for 30 cents a day or more likely, the player carried his own bag of clubs around the eighteen holes and thought it was no hardship.

Popularity Grows

But golf became a rich man's game in the early nineties. There was not a single public links and the upkeep of private ones had mounted enormously. Players at the swanky clubs began wearing knickers, gaiters and plaid hose. Golf didn't remain in the hands of the '400' for long, however. By the end of the nineties Americans had begun to get out into the open. By the turn of the century golf had really become popular. In 1900 there were about 1,000 clubs in the United States. There was at least one in every state and public links began to come in, where people could play the game for a small fee.

As the game grew in popularity changes in balls and clubs were natural developments. Probably the greatest of these was the substitution of the rubber-cored ball for the gutta-percha ball. This change made it possible for the average club player of that day to begin to drive with the best of the experts. And because the rubber-cored ball had little effect on the game of the top-fighters, it increased interest in the game all along the line.

By the time the World war started, America had 2,000 golf courses. Interest in the game was dimmed somewhat during the war, but immediately afterward, in the 1920s it began to come back with a vigor that has endured to this day and that has given it a place of universal interest among people of all ages and occupations. Golf has grown up. It is a great game and a great business. But perhaps its greatest appeal is that it is a sport in which the people themselves perform, instead of sitting in a grandstand or stadium watching a big-league baseball game or a prize fight.

History to Repeat?

THE baseball world is wondering whether the elevation of Gabby Hartnett to the managership of the Cubs will mean another National league pennant for Chicago. If it does, then an odd set of parallels will be completed. For Gabby came into possession of the job under almost the identical circumstances as his predecessor, Charley Grimm, who took it on in mid-season, 1932. At that time the club, under the management of Rogers Hornsby, was floundering five games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates. Grimm put new life in the faltering Cubs and won the pennant seven weeks after he took hold.

As Hartnett took command, recently, the Cubs were floundering once more. They were in third place, five games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates. So Gabby has a brilliant precedent to live up to if he would make history repeat itself.

Hartnett may or may not perform this magic. As the greatest catcher in the game, he has the genuine backing of the fans and the best wishes of everybody who knows baseball. But he will have to contend with some of the same factors which made Grimm's job untenable.

Unbiased baseball men will tell you frankly that an inadequate supply of playing talent—particularly in the outfield—was the principal cause of the Cubs' flop in the first half of the season. They will point out, too, that the failure of Dizzy Dean to pitch for ten straight weeks was an almost fatal handicap. And they will add, finally, that front-office dictation which hampered Grimm, might likewise stymie Hartnett.

Here and There

BECAUSE of his excellent control, Carl Hubbell is the Giants' favorite batting practice pitcher. . . . Statisticians have figured out that only 10 per cent of the 2,000,000 golfers in the United States break 90 consistently. . . . Concessionaires in major league ball parks say fans buy more peanuts when the home team is winning. . . . Irl Tubbs, Iowa football coach, is analyzing the play of each of his Hawkeye players this summer by watching motion pictures taken during the spring game. . . . He follows one player each day, making a thorough check on each of his movements in slow motion. . . . Mar. Mountain Dean has reduced 37 pounds and he now weighs only 240. . . . Cy Young, famous old-time pitcher, has left his farm at Paoli, Ohio, to become a greeter for a Boston hotel.

Aerial Baseball?

WHEN Howard Hughes circled the globe in 91 hours recently, he probably hastened the day when the Pacific coast will be represented in the major leagues. Talk of this is being revived. At the rate that Hughes flies long distances with complete safety, a major league club could be sent from the Middle

HOWARD HUGHES

West to San Francisco, Seattle, or Los Angeles in something like ten hours.

Big league ball would undeniably be a success on the Pacific coast. Los Angeles and San Francisco are not good minor league towns, but if big league baseball were given to them, they would be gold mines, according to those on the inside.

Pressure in at least two big league cities vainly trying to support two major league teams would be lifted, provided the National and American leagues moved some franchises westward. We refer to St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Significant Decision

failed to gain any publicity at all and yet, it seems to me, it was one of the most significant announcements to come from any government department in months. The statement, issued by the Agricultural Adjustment administration, said simply that a decision had been reached "against making effective a potato marketing agreement and order program covering interstate shipment of potatoes grown in 13 early and intermediate states."

The AAA announcement explained that the "overall vote" was sufficiently large to make the marketing agreement operative under the law, but it was the conviction of officials that it was "not feasible" to place the program in effect in the light of the character of the vote taken. In some areas of the 13 states and, indeed, in some of the states as a whole, there was actually a majority of the producers of potatoes who voted against the agreement.

Thus, for the first time, a marketing agreement sponsored by the Agricultural Adjustment administration is rejected. Perhaps, to be technically correct, I ought to say that, for the first time, there was such lack of public support that a marketing agreement has been abandoned before it was started. Certainly, if the folks charged with official responsibility deem a plan unlikely to succeed, there must be a quite evident lack of enthusiasm for it. The tendency heretofore has been to cram rules and regulations and marketing agreements and contracts and what have you right down the farmers' throats as a means of "educating" them to the benefits eventually accruing. Recognition of this lack of support, therefore, constitutes something of a change in the attitude of the AAA, but the significant thing as far as I am concerned continues to be the fact that the farmers again are asserting their independence. It amounts to a sign that agriculture has begun to desire less of Washington meddling in management of farms.

There are obviously two schools of thought about government's relations with agriculture in this country. There is the philosophy represented by Secretary Wallace and his followers who favor crop control. It was they who argued for the program of scarcity of supplies as a means to the more abundant life for the farmer, and it is the same Mr. Wallace who now is promoting what he is pleased to call the "ever-normal granary" idea. The other group of friends of agriculture take the position fundamentally that the farmer should have some form of government assistance, but they object strenuously to any program that contemplates regimentation—Washington control over how the farmer operates his farm and what he produces.

I suppose that the marketing agreement idea is a proper one to be carried out if the crop curtailment idea is to be paramount as a national policy. It is an historical fact, of course, that adoption of one type of regulation begets other regulations. No man ever lived who could conceive at one time, all of the necessary rules to control a set of circumstances in which natural laws figure. And natural laws figure in any question of production of farm crops. So when and if there is to be national crop control, there must be these subsidiary and district programs to carry out the broader aspects of a plan.

Rejected By Farmers

Since I never have been convinced that a national crop control program was sound, it was no surprise to me to learn of what amounts to a plain rejection of the theory by the farmers, or one segment of them. The wonder to me is that these same farmers waited so long to reassert themselves as bosses of their business. It may be an incident, however, that proves the statement of one farmer who wrote to me saying, "We may be slow in learning, but when we learn we usually are right."

One of the reasons given privately for the rejection of the potato agreement was that the "educational work" in advance of the vote by eligible producers "was not of a very high order." But why, I ask, is it necessary for our government to use propaganda at any time? There might be an emergency, such as came with the World war, when propaganda can be justified. Otherwise, I feel it is not a function of government, and one of the results is bound to be a government by men and not by law. The government is not anybody's salesroom. Our congress and the legislatures of states are elected by popular vote of the citizens. They are the fellows who create policy, not officials appointed to office.

There might be some interest in an examination of the states concerned in this proposed, and now abandoned, marketing agreement. They are: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia. The AAA announcement said there were 7,300 producers voting on the adoption of the agreement. My information is that this number is a pitifully small proportion of potato growers, even the growers of "early" and "intermediate" potatoes as distinguished from fall potatoes. Yet, there was not a sufficient number of these to warrant the AAA in making the program operative. What happened to the other growers? Well, I can make only one guess, namely, they just did not have any interest in it.

Of course, it may be different with growers of other crops. It must be recalled, however, that there has been a multiplicity of evidence that the corn farmers are dissatisfied, and there have been howls from the cotton growers and from the tobacco growers, and the wheat sections are the source of other complaints. I have no way of knowing what proportion of the growers of these crops are represented in the opposition already voiced. There can be no doubt on one point, however. The independence of the farmer is bound to be shown and if he is becoming disgusted with bureaucratic direction of his affairs, it is a condition that is more likely to spread than to decline in scope.

And speaking of regulation, I heard a conversation the other day

Case of Corrigan

It took place at my favorite table in the National Press club, a large table at which men gather for lunch. Usually, all 12 places are filled, and the types of work and means of livelihood represented are interesting of themselves—some lawyers, some government officials, some trade representatives, some writers. On this particular day, Douglas Corrigan, flying "west" from New York to California, had landed in Ireland—without a permit from the department of commerce. The question: what could or should the department of commerce do about the violation of its sacred rules? "Of course," said former Sen. C. C. Dill of Washington, "the department must take away his license. It has to do it. If it doesn't, there will be any number of foolhardy lads trying the same thing."

"Well, now," observed H. O. Bishop, famed student of George Washington, "I just wonder whether that's right. Here we have a government department telling one and all of us that we must not fly across the ocean unless we get their permission. What are we coming to in this country? Presently, we will have to have a permit to walk across the Potomac river bridge. It may come to the end that we have to have a permit to buy food—as they do in Russia."

Senator Dill: "Oh, but that's not the point. There is a question of safety involved, human lives."

Mr. Bishop: "The railroad engineer isn't licensed. He is responsible for hundreds of human lives. This whole thing of the government getting tangled up in everything we do is silly. We don't have a democracy, any liberty, any more. It was the spirit of adventure that made this country great."

Senator Dill: "True. Take the Corrigan incident, however, and think what the government would spend looking for him if his $900 crate had fallen in the Atlantic. I've an idea that the cost of looking for Amelia Earhart mounted to several hundred thousand dollars. If the government hadn't made an effort to look for her, or for Corrigan if he had fallen, the newspapers of the country would have 'burned up' the officials responsible."

Mr. Bishop: "Where's it going to stop? Year after year, we see rattle brains get into congress and immediately promote some new regulation or create another political bureau or commission."

And so it went, on and on. Some finished their lunches and left; others came, and the argument was continued. A few days later, the National Press club entertained Howard Hughes and his "round-the-world flyers" at a luncheon. Mr. Hughes was praised and his aides commended. They had made all preparations for their flight in accordance with department of commerce requirements. They were successful in their effort. And what do you think—the success of the Hughes trip subsequently was used by the same two men as a means of renewing their argument.

The moral? If any, it proves why a democracy is a good form of government. If you have an opinion, express it.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—The British lion has been taking kicks from all comers lately, but it stiffened up and began looking a lot more heraldic when the ancient bill of rights seemed to be infringed. It was no rubber-stamp parliament which reacted angrily to the army's summary action against young Duncan Sandys, conservative member, who had revealed undue knowledge of air defense secrets. The government was embarrassed and backed up considerably.

The swift parliamentary kick-back was an instance of the latent staying power of the British democratic tradition, as the representative body rattled the bones of its late and great libertarians in telling the executive where it got off.

The row overflows into important political by-ways, as the tall, handsome, loose-gaited Mr. Sandys is both a son-in-law and political ally of Winston Churchill who is pot-shooting the government just now in a political no-man's land.

There is a threat of conservative defection to the side of the still ambitious and powerful Mr. Churchill, with labor and liberal recruits, and, according to close observers of British politics, some important new alignments may result.

Mr. Sandys, thirty years old, is still just a rookie in this league, and, like Mrs. O'Leary's cow may not have intended to start anything in particular. He is, however, an energetic and capable young politician and there are those who say he may be another Anthony Eden in a few years. Running for parliament in 1935, he was assailed by the comely young Mrs. John Bailey who was leading the fight for the opposition. She is a daughter of Winston Churchill.

He won the election in a rock-and-sock battle and then, in the chivalrous Eton and Oxford tradition which is his background, he married Mrs. Bailey. She, incidentally, is a granddaughter of the Jennie Jerome of New York who became Mrs. Randolph Churchill and the mother of Winston Churchill. Jennie Jerome's father was one of the fighting editors of the New York Times in the 1860s.

Mr. Sandys, studious and somewhat ministerial, was with the diplomatic service until 1933. He is a second lieutenant in the London anti-aircraft force, a son of the late Capt. George Sandys.

GREECE never had any luck in trying to get the Elgin marbles back from England. Judging from this precedent, American aviators have a long fight ahead in trying to bring back from the Kensington Science museum in London the Wright brothers' airplane of the historical Kitty Hawk crowd-hop of December 17, 1903. Such will be the endeavor of the newly formed association of men with wings.

They will appeal to Orville Wright, who let the plane go to England in 1928, after the Smithsonian institution had tagged the Samuel P. Langley plane as "the first machine capable of flight carrying a man." There is as yet no word from Mr. Wright, who lives and works somewhat aloofly in his office and laboratory at Dayton, Ohio.

That twelve-second flight put him in the history books, brought him a string of honorary degrees and gathered more medals than his plane could lift, but all this was marred by the misunderstanding about who flew first.

He had been trained in science at Earlham college when he and his brother made their plane in a bicycle shop. He continued his studies in aerodynamics and his later contribution was the stabilizing system which has made modern aviation possible. Wilbur Wright died of typhoid fever in 1912.

STIFF-NECKED, hard-boiled General Alexander von Falkenhausen, German sparring partner and coach for the Chinese generals until recently, stirs excitement in Shanghai by predicting Chinese victory. He says, "I feel sure that China is gaining a final victory and that Japan will fail in both war and peace."

The general and all others of the German military mission to China are homeward bound, suddenly recalled by their government, although their contract, with $12,000 a year for General von Falkenhausen, was to have run until 1940.

● If you think birling is an easy game, if you think it's child's play to stand on a half-submerged pine log, churning in the water, then think again. You're going to slip, stumble, trip and fall, landing face down in an icy pond while some wisecracking spectator yells—

YOU'RE ALL WET!

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

Chips aren't flying so fast these days from the axes of north woods lumberjacks. Between strokes you'll find them talking about a sport called birling (log-rolling to you) and the world championship birling contest to be held at Escanaba, Mich., August 12 to 14.

Nothing is easier than falling off a log. Nor is anything harder than standing on one, especially when it's half submerged in a pond of water and somebody else is on the other end, trying to push you off.

Here's a nimble-footed art that makes toe dancing look like an old man's game. It's strange, surely, that log rollers can be seasoned lumberjacks, big-boned men with heavy shoes who should be more at home on dry land than tripping the light fantastic on a slippery log.

Part of the Job.

But they aren't birlers by choice. Lumberjacks discovered long ago that to keep your job in the north woods you've got to have a knack for this apparently senseless business.

In the days when legendary Paul Bunyan was a youngster in knee trousers, lumberjacks first rolled their logs into the river and nursed them downstream to the sawmill. Usually the drive went smoothly, the churning waters carrying millions of feet of timber down to the doorway of civilization. But now and then some obstruction would cause the logs to pile up and it was the birler's job to skip out under the face of this menacing jam, find the key log, jerk it loose and get back to dry land before he was crushed to death.

With a roar like the collapse of a 10-story building, the jam would loosen itself and go thundering downstream. If the birler was skilled—and lucky—he would skip over the swaying carpet and get out of danger; if luck or skill failed, he might meet a horrible death between crushing, splintering logs.

Smart lumberjacks soon discovered that it was pretty good life insurance to practice log rolling in their spare time. When the day's labors were finished or the logs had been delivered to the mill, they found a postman's holiday in competing with one another to determine who was "the best man on the log."

Annual Summer Event.

That was the start of competitive birling, a sport that is at once toe-tripping and red-blooded. In a land where the heyday of lumbering has long since disappeared, a few enthusiasts have kept birling alive, gathering annually from the far-flung outposts of their primitive north woods to vie for the championship. There are veterans who remember the invincible Tom Fleming and Al Hubbard who reached their peak in 1898. They remember Big Joe Madwayosh, the husky Indian woodsman who won the title in 1924. They still watch Wilbur Marx, the child prodigy of yesteryears who tossed "Big Joe" into the pond when a boy of 14 summers.

But they cannot believe that birling has become a college boys' sport. So they'll converge at Escanaba from every north woods settlement this year to watch some real lumberjack defeat Joe Connor, the twenty-six-year-old University of Minnesota student who won the crown last year.

Considering its barrel-chested heritage, birling should not be a college boys' sport. But the modern birling match finds veteran rivermen struggling to retain their laurels against lads who never worked on a log drive, who never pulled the key log from a jam. The practical side of birling is foreign to younger rollers but they know the rules of the game which is all that concerns the judges.

The Battle Begins.

And modern birling does have definite rules. A round, smooth and perfectly turned white pine log, 13½ feet long, and measuring all the way from 16 to 18 inches in diameter, is put in the water. Two men wearing light calked shoes mount the log, one at each end.

Then comes the battle, a tempestuous warfare of churning pine in which each man, by spinning and snubbing the tricky log, tries to throw the other into the water. With bewildering speed the timber whirls and stops, then starts the other way. From the river bank spectators see an exhibition of perfect balance, timing and muscular co-ordination. But eventually one man topples and splashes into the creek. As in wrestling, two falls out of three constitute a match.

Birling has flourished since the nineties without the aid of a promoter. But it was not until the lumbermen's exposition at Omaha in 1898 that it became organized as an annual national event. That was the year Tom Fleming defeated Al Hubbard in the final match. In 1900, 1901 and 1902 the tourney was held at Ashland, Wis., after which it was abandoned. In 1914 William P. Hart, Wisconsin sportsman, revived it at Eau Claire.

Birling's Child Prodigy.

Big Joe Madwayosh won his first crown in 1924 and on the sidelines that year was thirteen-year-old Wilbur Marx who decided birling looked easy. He came back the next year to provide the tournament sensation by almost defeating "Big Joe," racing him off the log after 21½ minutes of breathless birling in the second round.

When the next year's tournament opened Marx was again present, merely fifteen years old, but now a well-muscled, seasoned athlete instead of an awkward boy. Losing a third round elimination match in the northwest titular tourney steadied him and he won the Wisconsin state title without difficulty. Twenty-six of the most accomplished log cuffers in the game were entered for the world's title and young Marx defeated four of them in swift succession, winning his way through the first, second and third rounds of elimination and the semi-finals.

Then he faced little Billy Girard of Gladstone, Mich., in the final match. Too eager, too confident, he made the mistake of thinking himself speedier than Girard and "Little Billy" raced him off the log for straight falls in the fastest match that has ever been rolled. Feet trod so fast they could hardly be seen; spiked shoes chewed the logs to slivers; "white water" splashed the contestants' legs and both birlers were almost continually on the verge of a wetting.

On to Victory.

But Marx was a staid birler the next year and he could not be stopped. At sixteen he won the world's championship against a score of veteran log rollers. He held it 10 years.

But last year the college boy from Minnesota came along and Marx, whom the old time lumberjacks had at last taken to their hearts, lost his title. To what depths has this sport fallen!

This year Marx says he'll regain the championship and the bearded birlers from the northwoods are wishing a real jam-breaking logger would appear to teach all these young upstarts a lesson. But Joe Connor, the college boy, has been spending the summer at a CCC camp making his legs tough and preparing to take on all comers.

Maybe Joe Connor will be defeated, but even then the plaid-shirted lumberjacks won't be completely happy. At last year's Escanaba tournament they rubbed their eyes with amazement and chagrin to see four girl birlers engage in a contest of their own. A few old timers admitted the women showed a speed and style that equalled or surpassed the skill shown by a lot of the semi-finalists in the men's tourney.

Their only consolation, it appeared, was in the memory of Paul Bunyan, patron saint of all log rollers. Paul's wife, the story goes, was the only one able to wet him in a birling match!

"Mad Week-End"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Talk about being in a tough spot. Here's just about the toughest one I ever heard of. Suzanne Mathias of New York City contributes this tale to the column and becomes a Distinguished Adventurer on the strength of it.

As far as Suzanne is concerned, the only redeeming feature of this experience is that a number of other people shared it with her. It was down in Miami in December, 1929. A crowd of Suzanne's friends had clubbed together and chartered a boat for a week-end fishing trip. It was an old boat of the cabin cruiser type with plenty of bunks in it, and the party sailed at midnight on the captain's assurance that, by morning, he'd have them at a spot where there'd be plenty of good fishing.

When they awoke next morning they were out of sight of land. The only thing that showed on the horizon was a small island that looked as if it might be one of the Florida Keys. Suzanne asked the captain where they were, and he told her they were about 90 miles from Miami, but he didn't say in what direction.

Their Captain Was Crazy.

And shortly after that, things began to happen. "The first inkling we had that anything was wrong," Suzanne says, "came from my mother who was chaperoning the trip. She came up and asked us what we knew about the captain. She had been talking to him, she said, when suddenly he began raving—saying that his son was 'The High Priest of the Temple,' and that his father was the right hand man to the King of Sweden. A couple of us decided to investigate, and started a casual conversation with the captain. After talking with him a few minutes we were left in no doubt. He was CRAZY AS A LOON!"

That didn't look so good. Ninety miles out at sea—out of sight of land—and totally at the mercy of a crazy boat captain. The whole crowd agreed that the best thing to do was to put back in to Miami. But the captain didn't agree with them. He flatly refused to move the boat, and said a few things more, too. He told them that not one of them knew a thing about navigation and couldn't run the boat by themselves—they didn't even know where they were—and what was more, he was an absolute authority while at sea and not even the President could tell him what to do with his ship.

They tried to cajole him, but that didn't work. The men started to threaten him, but he walked away, and five minutes later appeared in the companionway with a gun in his hand. After that, nobody cared to argue with the skipper.

Planned to Kill All of Them.

The day wore on slowly. No one fished, for every one was too scared to fish. The captain's raving didn't make them feel any better, either. He had suddenly got the idea in his head that the whole crowd was just a bunch of sinners and that he'd be taken straight to heaven if he killed them all then and there.

The night was even worse. None of the crowd could sleep. They huddled together in one of the cabins while the captain prowled about the boat. Early in the evening they found he had let out the fresh water supply—that they had nothing to drink. There was a little ice in the refrigerator and they melted that. What they were going to do when it was gone, they didn't know.

Still the mad captain prowled restlessly about the boat. Late that night one of the men saw him slinking along the deck, a flashlight in one hand and a heavy wrench in the other. He followed him below. The skipper crept into a dark cabin, walked noiselessly to one of the bunks, raising the wrench high in the air and brought it down with crushing force on the pillow. Then he turned on the light, looked at the bed, and grunted his disappointment when he saw there was no one in it.

The man who had followed him went back to the main cabin and told what he had seen. By that time, half of the company were ill. One girl was having hysterics, another had developed a nervous hicough, and Suzanne, who had acquired a bad case of sunburn during the day, was down with chills and fever. Toward dawn, the hysterical girl quieted down, and they sat in silence to await the rising of the sun.

Lord Told Him to Go Back to Miami.

Daylight made them feel a little better—but what would the day bring? About eight o'clock the engine started chugging. What did that mean? Were they going back to Miami? Or was the mad captain taking them still farther out to sea? One of the men ran up to the bridge to find out. He came back with good news. "The Lord told me not to bother with you," the captain had said. "He'll take care of you himself. We're going back to Miami."

They reached port early that evening, and reported what had happened to officials at the dock. The officials weren't especially surprised, for another boatman had already noticed the skipper acting queerly and had told them about it. If the boat hadn't come in that night, they said, they were going to send a coast guard cutter out to look for it.

Outside a little hysterical reaction, Suzanne says, everyone in the crowd was all right. Suzanne hadn't been out in a boat since, she claims, although she might be induced to ride on a ferry boat sometime, if she could have the captain examined by an alienist before she started.

Slim-Waisted Frocks For Midsummer Days

THESE last few hot weeks will be a whole lot easier to bear if you have some fresh new dresses to wear around the house—cool, slim-waisted styles that are finished enough for shopping and porch wear too. We've picked out two that we know you'll like, one for slim figures and one for large. Both are very, very easy to make, for of course nobody wants to undertake laborious sewing these days. And both are easy to wash and iron. A detailed sew chart comes with each pattern.

Day Frocks for Slim Figures.

This little dress is right at the top of new fashions, with its gored skirt and shaped square neckline. Notice that the skirt seams are extended above the waistline, to give a little bosom fullness, which makes the dress more becoming. Very short kimono sleeves, just covering the shoulders, give a much prettier line than sleeveless frocks do, and they're just as cool. The skirt has a charming flare. Make this in linen, dotted Swiss, dimity or organdie in a pretty flower print, and you'll love it.

Day Frocks for Large Figures.

You'll find this straight, well-cut dress one of the most becoming, most slenderizing, you ever put on. It has a deep v-neck and short pleated sleeves for coolness and comfort. It's very easy and unhampering in line, so that you can work in it comfortably. Darts on the shoulders and at the waistline give it an unusually trim, slimming fit. A touch of prettiness is added by ricrac braid and the pointed closing. This is a diagram design that you can make in a few hours, and you'll want several dresses made just like this—in dimity, calico, percale and seersucker.

1558 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4¼ yards of 35-inch material; 9 yards of ribbon or braid to trim. 1533 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch material. 1½ yards of ricrac braid to trim.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Third Largest Island

The third largest island in the world is Baffin island, bowing only to Australia and Greenland. On it are four lakes, one as big as Lake Ontario. In winter, Eskimos build igloos on these lakes, fish for dinner through holes cut in their "parlor floors!" Baffin bay, hardly ever free of ice, is navigable only between June and September. Hence the bay and island are a refuge for, and abound in whales, seals, polar bears, wolves, white and blue foxes.

Though it was discovered in 1576, little more is known of the region than William Baffin recorded when he named it in 1616

Fly Fishing in Third Century
Martian, Latin author, mentioned the use of the trout fly in fishing as early as the Third century A. D.

There was a desk by the south window, a desk that any antique dealer who knew his business would give much for. It looked to James' discerning eyes like something brought over from England ages ago. A beautiful antique. And sure enough, here was the photograph! No wonder his small namesake hadn't recognized him. This picture was taken when Nora went to college. Here was her husband, too—an enlargement made from a snap shot. Don was just starting for a climb, his rucksack slung over one shoulder.

Recalling the wheel-chair, James Lambert winced, and laying the picture down as if it hurt him, lifted another. The children, of course. His grandchildren! A thrill of pride stirred in the old man's heart. Here was his namesake; an older boy; and baby Iris. A flower indeed! She seemed to resemble faintly that other Iris whom James had loved so dearly that he could forgive the unforgivable, and still think of her with tenderness after all these years. He was glad that Nora had not forgotten her mother. When Ned's first daughter had arrived and he ventured to suggest the name of Iris, Corinne had been appalled. What! call her baby after a woman who had deserted one child and had another by her lover! James smiled tolerantly at this old memory. Best not go back to it. After all, Corinne was a good woman, a good housekeeper, and always invited him to Sunday dinner! If she were inclined to be uncharitable to the erring, well, time was already fixing that—and time and a boy she had spoiled with too much money and too little work.

He wondered, mildly amused at the idea, what Corinne would think of this big room. She would undoubtedly spot the packing boxes and the shabby chair. No such detail ever escaped her. And the family photographs! Her father-in-law could hear her say: "Photographs! Is it possible that Nora's not aware that photographs of that sort are taboo, save in a bedroom? Why, Father Lambert, it simply isn't done!"

The old man laughed softly at this vivid picture. Often enough he had felt annoyed at Corinne; but now she didn't seem to matter, not in the least. He believed there was something soothing about this room. It was so friendly, as if it bid you to be comfortable. One felt instinctively that those who lived here loved one another and were happy together. The shabby upholstery of the old chair—the worn hangings at the windows, were of no consequence. A healing sense of peace pervaded everything. This was a home. Ah! That was the explanation, James reflected. Stable or palace, this was a real home.

Suddenly his head lifted. His heart quickened. A door had opened—closed again softly. Light footsteps sounded—were coming nearer. He wanted to turn—must turn to face the door, but found he could not. And then a dear remembered voice broke in upon him:

"You wished to see me? I am Mrs. Mason. Jimsy says you are a friend of—Why, Father!"

It was then James turned—stretched out his arms . . .

He was holding her close, his little Nora. It took him back to that long-gone, tragic day when he had first held her, comforted her, and all unknown comforted himself. A sense of that same comfort flowed through him now, healing the wound of those ten years without her. And though she wept, as she had wept that other time, all that her father found to say was: "Nora . . . Nora . . ."

"You've been a long time coming, Daddy," she told him when at last she could find words; and looking down into her upturned face, James saw, a quick pang of regret stabbing his heart, all that those years had done to Leonora. Something he'd loved and hoped to see again was gone; yet meeting her tear-wet eyes the old man knew that his daughter's girlhood beauty had not vanished. It had only changed—changed into something more to be desired—more beautiful . . .

"You've been a long time coming," she said again; and James responded:

"I've been a stubborn old idiot, my darling. When you stopped writing I told myself that you'd ceased to care—grown tired of a father who had failed you. And yet I worried, Nora—watched for your letters—hoped . . ."

She drew him to the old pew by the fire. Her hands, those hard, brown hands James scarcely recognized, trembled a little.

"How could I write?" she asked as they sat down together. "We needed help too badly—don't you see? You told me, Father—"

He stopped her with an impatient gesture that she remembered.

"Oh, you needn't repeat it! Were you really foolish enough to think I meant that threat? And how was I to know you needed help, dear, when you did not tell me? I didn't dream how things had gone with you, not for a minute."

"But the papers, Father!" Nora's eyes widened with surprise. "The story was there for all the world to read. I thought you'd come when you knew how Don was injured. I thought you'd forgive us. I lay in bed after our little girl was born—so frightfully worried about Don—too weak to go to him, and every time a bell would ring I'd think: 'Perhaps that's Father! He wouldn't leave me to face all this alone. He'll come. He'll see that Don has everything he needs. He will take care of us.' And—and you didn't come, Father. Not that it matters now you're here at last, but—"

"Listen," James interrupted, his voice shaking. "I was sick, dear child, down with pneumonia at the time of that catastrophe. I never read those papers, not one of them. It was no longer front-page stuff when I recovered. To be sure, Ned saw something that made him suspicious; but the name was misprinted and he didn't want to worry me about it then."

"You must forgive him, Nora. The boy was going through troubles of his own at that time, serious troubles. I dare say he forgot everything else. Don't blame him any more than you can help, dear. We all do the wrong thing at times. And once in a great while—thank God—we're given the opportunity to make amends. Last night, you see, Ned realized that I was troubled. I'd been talking with Martha. She had been crying when I went up to see her birthday gifts, crying because of you. For the first time in all these years, Nora, we talked about you; and in her own, kind, carefully respectful way, she showed me myself—told me the truth that I had long suspected.

"Remembering what I had to face alone, he kept on fighting."

"I went down at last, and sat on the old davenport where you and I so often threshed things out together, trying to think how I could find you, dear. And I should have found you, Nora, if you'd been at the North Pole! Then Ned came in. He had heard news of you—it doesn't matter how. He wanted to come himself but I refused to let him, I was so hungry for a sight of you! For you are my little girl, darling. Nothing has altered that, nor ever can. When I think what you've been through—Tell me," he broke off abruptly, "how did you manage? What kept you going? Who helped you when you needed help so desperately?"

Said Nora, a far-away look creeping into her eyes: "A woman in South Africa, Father. The sort of woman we're supposed to 'pass by on the other side.' It's too long a story to go into now, but she gave me a diamond. It was very beautiful—so beautiful that, though it was saving us, I wept a little when I gave it up!"

Nora paused thoughtfully a moment; then went on: "You see, Father, things were very bad indeed. All we had saved had gone into this home. There were only a few hundred dollars in the bank when we started West, but we weren't worrying. There was plenty to see me through my confinement, and more was promised. We had never felt so sure about the future—so light-hearted."

"And then—the avalanche! For weeks the doctors thought Don would not live. For months he could not leave the hospital. He lay on one of a long, long row of narrow beds—nothing to hear but sounds of sickness and clamor of city streets—nothing to see but four bare walls; and he so loves beauty! Only to think about it tore my heart in two. And the pain—grinding, unceasing, wearing away his splendid strength as water wears away the stones upon a beach. I think all that he wanted then was to die, Father, to end the struggle; but remembering what I had to face alone, he kept on fighting."

"It was very terrible. I couldn't even run in to cheer him at odd times, for he was in a ward. I couldn't buy him a single flower. For the money was going—melting away so fast it frightened me; yet how could I leave the babies to earn more even if I had known some way to do it? Constance Venable, who would have shared her last crust with us, was far away. I had no one to turn to. I sold some of the trinkets you'd given me; but could not get half their real value and what they brought only staved off the inevitable for a little while."

"And then one night when I was counting the endless hours, it came to me like an inspiration that my diamond was worth money—real money. It saw us through, Dad—kept us going—brought us back home when Don was able to be moved. Such a joy to be where he can watch the sea and feel the wind on his face! Almost from the first minute he started gaining. He's writing again now—a book—but the work goes slowly. You see, there is still much pain; and his nerves aren't steady. But he tries so hard to get the better of them, Dad. He's so courageous . . ."

Her voice died down as if tears threatened again; and James said, his own voice husky with emotion: "See here, Nora. I realize that you can forgive me a great deal because you understand. You know that though I was too stubborn to admit it, I have always loved you—missed you unspeakably. But how will your husband regard me now? In his eyes I have betrayed a trust—let you bear burdens too heavy for your shoulders. Can he forgive me too, or—"

"In just a moment," broke in

Nora softly, one hand thrown out in an expressive gesture, "I—I think we'll know."

James raised his eyes. The curtains at the door had parted, and standing before them, his hair blown back in the familiar way, stood Don, his boys beside him, his baby daughter clinging to one hand.

Even that first quick glance told much to Nora's father. He saw that the once straight shoulders sagged a little, as if the effort to stand erect was now too great. He saw that the wind-blown hair was white above the temples—the eyes seemed deeper set—the cheekbones higher. But he saw also that the lines on Don's thin, tanned face were born of suffering, not self-pity; and that his head still lifted buoyantly as of old.

Unconquered! The word, so singularly fitting, sprang into James Lambert's mind as he arose. Unconquered! That was Don Mason. Never again could office walls imprison him. He had got beyond them . . .

There was a silence; then Don said gently: "Well, sir?"

Only two words, but to the old man they were a challenge, and he met it generously. Though his eyes smiled, his voice was wholly serious.

"I lay down my sword. The enemy surrenders to the better man."

And then Don laughed, a laugh that seemed to bring the clean, gay spirit of adventure into the room. Impulsively he started forward, but stopped, remembering; while James saw with quick compassion that one foot dragged.

"The enemy?" Don echoed. "I think not, sir." He glanced down, meeting the puzzled young face that were lifted to him. "Children," he said, "attention! Salute your grandsire. The Old King has come home!"

(THE END.)

Kissing Ladies' Hands Still One of the Customs of Many European Countries

Kissing ladies on the hand is still one of the customs of many European countries. But ladies' hands to be kissed abroad do not all follow the same rule. In some places it is customary to do that to the married and not to the unmarried or vice versa; it is hard to remember which, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In Austria and Rumania you do it to all, old and young. In Austria it is most important to kiss the hand at the end of a dance. Indeed in that hand-kissing land you hand-kiss when you are introduced to a lady and also when you leave and on many other occasions. On the street, however, in Bukharest, the salute is a raising of the hat to all men and women, not a mere English "tipping of the topper," but a wide flourish of the hat.

Hand-kissing, it has been said, deters some of our rough and ready he-men from visiting Europe, as its fine graciousness does not harmonize with our pioneer individualism and wives might misunderstand. But when a European gentleman confers this gracious act on an American woman she usually is delighted. Customs strange, beautiful and old certainly are one of the strongest attractions of Europe. To meet people whose education and environment has been so different from our own is part of the joy of living.

Americans find titles in Europe equally amusing. In several countries, notably Germany and Scandinavian lands, plain "Mr." seems to have disappeared. Instead the natives attach a high-sounding word to one's name suggestive of what he does for a livelihood. In Austria the waiter in cafe after cafe may address you as "Herr Doktor" or as "Herr Baron."

First Color of French Flag

While it is not usual to associate red with the French monarchy, it was really the first color of the king's flag, called the oriflamme. It is only because red was also adopted by the English king that the French gave it up for blue. It was under the blue flag that Huguenots came to America first as loyal subjects of the king of France. However, the red flag was preserved on the galleys of the Mediterranean fleet where terrible suffering was endured by the unhappy men who could not understand the injustice of the king.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Interprets the Modern Conception of Meat

Nationally Known Food Authority. Explains Why It Rates As a Top-Notch Food.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City

AMERICANS spend from one-fourth to one-third of their total food budget for meat. In order to discover whether this expenditure is justified, let us examine the nutritive value of meat, and consider its contribution to the diet.

Almost everybody likes the flavor of meat, from the man who considers that no meal is complete without it, to the child who instinctively eats the meat on his plate before he touches the other foods. The desire for meat is one of the strongest human appetites.

For centuries, man accepted this craving for meat as an indication that it was essential to his well being. But with the advance in civilization, there was an increase in many diseases, and for a period of years, meat was blamed as being a contributing cause to kidney trouble, rheumatism, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and gout.

In recent years, there has been a careful investigation of the possible association between meat and disease. In the light of our newer knowledge, the old notions have been discarded. And in many cases, meat now has a place in the treatment of the diseases that it was once believed to cause!

Composition of Meat

Meat is a protein food of the highest type. It is useful both for repairing the millions of cells that are worn out daily and for building the new tissues that are necessary for growth in childhood. The proportion of protein varies with the kind of meat, and the cut. In beef, lamb and veal, it comprises between 14 and 26 per cent of the edible portion.

The other constituents of meat are fats, water, minerals, extractives, enzymes and pigments.

The amount of fat present is an important factor in determining the fuel value of meat. And the more fat it contains, the less protein will be found in a given unit of weight. The different cuts of pork contain less protein than corresponding cuts of beef and lamb, with the exception of lean ham, lean pork chops and tenderloin.

Meat as a Blood Builder

Both glandular and muscle meats are rich in the blood-building mineral, iron, and meat also contains copper. The glandular organs, particularly liver, have great value in the prevention and treatment of anemia. Pernicious anemia baffled physicians for many years until, in 1926, two noted American scientists discovered that liver contains a principle which stimulates red blood cell formation. This discovery has been ranked with the discovery of insulin as one of the greatest in our times.

Meat also contains a high percentage of phosphorus. It is poor in calcium, however, and this necessary substance must be obtained in adequate amounts from milk, cheese and green leafy vegetables.

tables and fruits should be eaten at the same time.

There has been considerable discussion regarding the place of meat in the child's diet.

Meat in the Child's Diet

There are the same good reasons for using meat in the diet of the child as in the diet of the grown-up. Moreover, the child's protein requirement is greater than that of the adult, in proportion to his body weight.

At the beginning of the second year, many authorities advise that small servings of tender and finely minced beef, chicken, lamb or liver may be given about three times a week. As the child becomes older, he may have meat more often and as his ability to chew increases, he may be given larger pieces.

Some Fallacies Regarding Meat

Many people believe that veal is less completely digested than other meats. But it has been demonstrated that even very young veal digests as rapidly and as completely as beef. It has also been held that red meats are less digestible and, therefore, less desirable than white meats. There is no evidence to support this point of view.

Someone with a gift for concise expression once remarked: "No meat—no man!" His point was well taken. For considering its delicious flavor, essential food values, and ease of preparation, it is easy to agree that THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT.

Questions Answered

Mrs. J. M. R.—Yes, it is true that vitamin G is practically always associated with vitamin B. The only food in which vitamin G is known to occur without vitamin B is white of egg.

Mrs. C. L. R.—It is not advisable to force the child to eat spinach, especially as he consumes other green vegetables. It is a fallacy to assume that spinach is in a class by itself as a source of iron. Beet tops, parsley, water-cress, turnip tops, dandelion and mustard greens all contain more of this mineral than spinach.

Door Pockets Have Multitude of Uses

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HAVE you door space going to waste? There is always the inside of a closet door—even in the tiniest apartment. A pocket like the one shown here gives a place for shoes, whisk broom, hat brush, shoe brush and even a dust cloth to have within easy reach when tidying up the bedroom. A large pocket at the bottom takes care of small pieces of laundry. This door pocket may be made from 2 1/4 yards of 35-inch-wide cotton material. All the dimensions as well as suggestions for making are given here in the diagram.

There are other doors in every house where pockets of various types and sizes may be used to good advantage. The broom closet door offers a place for cleaning brushes and bottles of furniture polish. Two large pockets on the pantry door—one for clean dish towels and one for soiled ones, have been in use in my kitchen for years. A large pocket of heavy ticking on the inside of the door leading to the basement makes a place for old newspapers that are so useful for many purposes. NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of directions for making slip-covers and curtains; dressing tables, lampshades and many other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid. Ask for Book 1, and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

Humble Work

It is a great mistake to suppose that the best work of the world is done by people of great strength and great opportunities. It is unquestionably an advantage to have both these things, but neither of them is a necessity to the man who has the spirit and the pluck to achieve great results. Some of the greatest work of our time has been done by men of physical feebleness.

For Romantic Midsummer Nights

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BEGUILING, yes, beguiling is the word that best describes the romantic formal designed for dancing these lovely midsummer nights. Yards and yards around do these summer idylls of billowy tulle and nets, chiffons and laces measure and bodices are so quaintly picturesque it would seem as if it were ladies of the past come to life, for the styling is quite like we see in prints and portrait paintings of ladies in the days when "knighthood was in flower" and the very air breathed romance.

Perhaps the biggest news out of Paris at present is in regard to the high fashion of combining Chantilly lace with other fabrics. Typical of the best couture trends is the charming dress of sheerest marquisette pictured in the foreground of the accompanying illustration. Its deep bands and bordering of matching Chantilly of most exquisite type are applied in latest approved manner. Most gowns have a complementary bolero this summer and this very beautiful model is no exception to the rule! The bolero is of lace with short puffed sleeves which are applied with lace as in the skirt. Color of this adorable creation? It is carried out in a brilliant turquoise blue.

That pastel and bright-hued laces combined with sheers identical in color are a foremost mode there is no doubt, but there is also a tremendous vogue for the frock of diaphanous white that is lavished with black Chantilly appliques, insets and borderings. The white sheer frock worn with a black lace jacket or bolero is a leading fashion. Likewise the black chiffon or marquisette frock or sheerest-of-sheer black net is frequently topped with a white lace jacket. Charming also is the combination of pink lace with black lace. A high built skirt with wide corselet effect of the black lace, that has a bodice top of delicately sheer pink lace cut with extremely low décolletage over which is worn a bolero of matching pink lace, makes a most gracious gown. It is practical to provide also a black lace bolero for less formal occasions.

In this season of flowing skirts and glamorous lines for evening dresses the gown shown to the left of lace and net combined fits right into the picture. It comes in delectable shades using cable net for the full skirt and an Alençon-type lace in matching color for the semi-long bodice. Below-the-hip jacket effects on this order of lace are the rage. If you have a sleeveless chiffon dress or net and wish to give it a new look buy ready-made or have made a lace jacket to wear with it. These often button primly up the front with buttons covered with self-lace.

Maybe you are an enthusiast in regard to gay prints. If you should be possessed also with an awareness of the importance of simple wash fabrics for dancing and dining, you will be simply charmed with the quaint new flowered muslins brought out this summer. They are the sort that will stay crisp and fresh after every washing—never need a bit of starch no matter how often you whisk them through soap and water. We are picturing a dress made of just such flowered muslin as described. It is a type frock that will make you look just "too sweet for words" and you do not have to be endowed with a millionaire allowance to own it. A flowered muslin such as this that will not shrink, having been scientifically pre-shrunk and guaranteed to that effect, is new. Note its charming neck and puff-sleeve styling. Its fitted bodice is cut to give you that "long" look that will mark you as definitely in the mode this season.

SUSPENDER DRESS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

There's news for the sub-deb in that the suspender dress is regarded as smart fashion this season. It is proving a favorite at seashore and for town wear. The print silk suspender pleated skirt with monotone blouse is an especially outstanding type. The model pictured is of a neat print silk in gold and lighter yellowish tones. A peacock blue silk shirt is worn with the skirt shown. Note that the skirt suspenders are slit at the shoulders and the pleated skirt has a wide band. Other models feature suspenders that are peasant embroidered.

Oddities for Summer Pumpkin seeds and gilded snail shells are used for beach jewelry.

DRAPED TECHNIQUE USED IN NEW GOWNS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS Most significant is the sentiment expressed in employing a draped technique in fashioning the latest gowns. The material that yields most admirably to this treatment is the very smart rayon jersey. Wonderfully slenderizing are these draped effects and needless to say the fashion is making widespread appeal. Often the draping is aided and abetted with intricate shirring in clusters that tend to produce form-fitting lines.

The favorite for day wear is the black sleek jersey or satin that is draped to perfection. For evening wear no more beautiful gown can be conceived than a snow white draped jersey classic.

Candle-Wicked Clothes for Beach and Sports Doings

Quite new this season are the play clothes fashioned of candle-wicked unbleached muslin. The opportunity for designful decoration is vast. The grand part about the new candle-wicked muslin play outfits is that they wash out so easily, need no ironing and taking it from every viewpoint are about as practical a dress as can be suggested for beach and sports wear.

Mesh Oxford Shoes Offer Maximum of Cool Comfort

A striking summer shoe which avoids the commonplace features of open toe and heel but offers a maximum of cool comfort is a mesh oxford. The mesh effect covers the entire shoe except for a strip at the instep and a wide binding. You can get this unusual model in white, beige, black or navy but its original design isn't to be picked up for a paltry sum.

Lesson for August 7

RUTH: ADVENTUROUS FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Girl Named Ruth. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of Ruth. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth's Wise Choice. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—An Adventurous Faith.

Out of the dark fastnesses of an underground dungeon into the brightness and warmth of God's sunshine—such is the transition we make when we turn from the moral and spiritual failures of Samson to consider the lovely story of Ruth. She lived in the midst of the travails and the sorrows of life, in fact we find her at the beginning of the book which bears her name, a widow who has lost all that the world would hold dear. Yet she, because of her purity of life and devotion to God rises higher and higher, while the one of whom she spoke last week, starting with every advantage, slipped lower and lower because of his sin.

Ruth was the great-grandmother of King David, and thus this Gentle woman became one of the ancestors of Jesus. (See Ruth 4:22 with Luke 3:22.) Many folk are greatly concerned about their ancestry—one could wish that more were concerned about living such lives and developing such characters as will make them good ancestors.

Teachers and classes will do well to read and study the entire book of Ruth—only about three pages long in most Bibles—and give attention to the full story of her life, especially the picture of the kinsman-redeemer, to be later fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ. We must confine our comments largely to the printed portion which reveals Ruth first as a loyal and thoughtful daughter-in-law, then as one whose love was not to be denied by sorrow or circumstance, and finally as one so bound to her mother-in-law in unity of spirit that she became one with her and her people.

I. Commendable Loyalty (vv. 6-10).

Tragic misfortune had visited Naomi, who with her husband and two sons had gone from Bethlehem to Moab in a time of famine. Not only had her husband died but also her two sons, who had married Gentle women, leaving three widows in one family to mourn together. Naomi craved the fellowship of her own people in her hour of trial and arose to return to her own land.

Her departure brought out in the two daughters-in-law the expression of kindness and loyalty which should exist in every family, but which is all too often lacking. Her own testimony concerning these girls of Moab is that they had dealt "kindly" with her and with the dead. That word speaks volumes. There is so little genuine kindness in the world. Both Orpah and Ruth went with her on the way—protesting their loyal purpose to go with her all the way. Thus far the two sisters were not differentiated—but the next incident reveals Ruth as the one who had an

II. Undeniable Love (vv. 11-14).

No one could for a moment condemn Orpah for yielding to her mother-in-law's entreaty that she return to her own people. She affectionately kisses Naomi and in tears turns away. "But Ruth clave unto her." Such love cannot be denied. It is the most precious possession that a man can have, apart from his fellowship with God. The love of a devoted father or mother, of a noble helpmate, or of a little laddie or lassie, these are the things that really make life worth while, that stand out as an oasis in the desert of life, as a light in the darkness.

But Ruth takes one more step. Her kindness and loyalty, her unswerving love lead on to a confession of her faith in the true God, and the declaration of an

III. Inseparable Unity (vv. 15-18).

Literature knows no more beautiful gem than verses 16 and 17. It was the Great Commoner, Bryan, who said, "We cannot hope to contribute to literature a sentence so exquisite and thrilling as that into which Ruth poured the full measure of a noble heart, but we can imitate her devotion."

The story is told of a fine young Englishman who left his betrothed sweetheart to go to California during the great gold rush. He was going to make a fortune and then send for her. He sent her his first gold nugget. But alas, there were none to follow and soon he became not only poverty stricken, but ill. In noble sacrifice he decided to release her from her promise, and wrote to tell her so. She (and one could almost believe her name was Ruth) took the treasured nugget, had it made into a ring engraved as a gift from her to him, with the additional words "Ruth 1:16, 17." In due time it reached the young man with its tender and inspiring message—"Treat me not to leave thee," and the assurance of her devotion until death.

May this dizzy and bemuddled world have many more characters like Ruth.

SIX GUNS and CARPET TACKS A Gallos County Story © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

MOST times, here in Gallos county, a six gun's a-got just a leetle the best of the argument, but there was one time when the difference between two gun toters was a box of carpet tacks.

See that tree a-standin' out there, there at the bend in the road. Well, that's where they finally lynched Butch Manton.

Folks just heared that some of Butch's friends was a-plannin' to ride in to town and take him out o' jail. And Butch a-bein' a cow thief like he was, they just up and taken him out and strung him to that there tree. And Butch'd been livin' right, like as not, if it wasn't for them carpet tacks.

It was right here in the Happy Hour where things was a-beginnin'. Butch was at the bar when Johnnie Rucker comes in and was a leetle slow when he said somethin' 'bout Butch stealin' 50 head of steers from Johnnie, but Johnnie did nick Butch's right foot as the lead from Butch's gun went a-tearin' through his own heart. Course, Butch'd shot Johnnie without givin' him a chance, but Butch still had that gun in his hand when he backs out of the Happy Hour.

'Fore long after the shootin', Sheriff Tom rides into town and hears 'bout the shootin'. It kinda hits him hard on account of Johnnie bein' a pal of his'n, and he don't wait for reason why there ain't been no posse after Butch. He lights out for the Diablo canyon country down close to the border where Butch and his gang has holed up for years.

Butch oughta gone right on to the border, but he don't. He stops by the shack, sends them riders of his'n on with them steers he stole from Johnnie and waits back to see if he can't do somethin' 'bout that foot of his'n.

He's a doin' a leetle doctorin' of his own when Tom rides up. Tom ain't never been a fool 'fore, but a-thinkin' 'bout Johnnie musta got him off, 'cause Butch gits the drop on him and takes Tom's gun but Tom does manage to kick a table over and put out a candle,

You see, Tom, he's been out a-tackin' up signs when Johnnie was shot. Well he'd just bring them tacks long with him, and them tacks is how he caught Butch.

He just spread them on the floor quiet-like while he was movin' around there in the dark and a-fore long Butch steps on one with his foot that ain't got no boot on.

Butch's kinda surprised and lets out a hoop and Tom just grabs in the direction of that hoop.

First Petroleum in Ohio
Petroleum was first found in Ohio, and it is believed in the world, in what is Noble county, by Robert McKee, an early pioneer who struck a crevice containing oil while drilling for salt water. Because of the great trouble this oil gave him in the manufacture of salt, he abandoned this well to drill others so as to obtain salt water free of oil.

Apologue, a Story
An apologue is a story or relation of fictitious events intended to convey some useful truth. It differs from a parable in that the latter is drawn from events that pass among mankind, whereas the apologue may be founded on supposed actions of brutes or inanimate things. Aesop's Fables furnish excellent examples of apologues.

The road to the Tawas Light will be extended this Fall on out to the fog signal building at the tip of Tawas Point.

Improvements planned at the U. S. Coastguard Station on Tawas Point include the construction of a large boathouse to cost between $20,000 and $25,000, Capt David M. Small, commander of the station announced this week.

Bids for the construction of the new boathouse will be opened this week in Milwaukee at the construction and repair offices. It is expected that work on the new building will be started soon after the bids are accepted. The present Coast Guard dock is to be extended and the entire dock will be housed by the new boathouse which will be 50 feet square. The boathouse will be large enough to house the two large power boats, the pulling surfboat and various skiffs and other craft used at the local station.

"The new boathouse will keep our craft dry and ready for use in all types of weather," Capt. Small said. "As it is now, without proper shelter, the sleet and snow of late Fall and early winter storms render them almost unusable."

During the next three weeks, a skeleton crew will be maintained at the Coastguard station as half of the crew members will be away at a time attending target practice at Camp Grayling.

The Community building will be decorated in the gold and blue Legion colors and in red, white and blue. A member of the Women's Auxiliary and a member of the Audie Johnson Post will be assigned to the balcony to take care of children during the dance. Parents can bring their whole family to see Uncle Neal and enjoy the Legion Ball.

Sunday morning, Uncle Neal and Legion delegates will visit the Coastguard station and Tawas Lighthouse on Tawas Point, and will take motor trips through the surrounding country.

The American Legion parade is scheduled to start promptly at 2 p. m. Sunday from the high school athletic field. Commander Kunze, Uncle Neal, Rambling Bill Hurley, and two cow-girls in gala costume, will lead the parade on horse-back. In the procession will be visiting Legionnaires, drum and bugle corps from various posts, and floats from Tawas City, Oscoda, Whittemore and East Tawas. The Whittemore float will be five little Whittemore girls who look and dress alike and who will impersonate the famous Quintuplets.

The American Legion German Band from the Bay City Post will take part in the parade.

Another feature will be the carrying of a large flag by 20 or more children, under the supervision of the Women's Auxiliary, to receive donations to be used for the building fund for remodeling the permanent Legion hall here. Through the efforts of Commander Kunze and members of the local post, the Legion hall has been remodeled and redecorated throughout. In the assembly hall, a new ceiling of celotex panel board has been installed. The outside of the Legion hall and roof have been covered with asphalt cement shingles.

From the athletic field, the parade will proceed south through the business district; turning west at the Holland Hotel on Bay avenue; then west to the railroad crossing; then east on US 23 to the hotel; north on Newman street returning through the business district to the recreation field.

At the conclusion of the parade, dedication of district colors and public installation of district and local post officers will be held at the grandstand. These ceremonies will be heard by spectators over a loud speaker sound truck provided through the courtesy of Koppitz-Melchers Co., Detroit.

A special treat is in store for the kiddies following the dedication ceremonies at the athletic field.

Following this, the German Band from Bay City will furnish entertainment on the veranda of the Holland Hotel, where, at 6 p. m., the American Legion "baked trout" banquet will be held. The public is invited. Honor guests at the banquet will include: Uncle Neal Tom; Carl Schmidt, state commander of the American Legion; Raymond Starr, attorney-general for Michigan; and George Sternberg, assistant attorney-general. Rambling Bill Hurley will act as Master of Ceremonies and Carl Schmidt, as toastmaster.

Strawberries as a Dentifrice
The following information is taken from a book of prescriptions published more than 100 years ago: "The common strawberry is a natural dentifrice and its juice without any previous preparations whatever dissolves the tartareous encrustation on the teeth and makes the breath sweet and agreeable."

Of interest to "Land-lubbers," who will watch the Regatta events from shore, is the fact that a sound car dock each afternoon to provide facilities for giving them an accurate description of each race and the various classes represented.

Donald Phillips, of East Tawas, is assisting Chairman Pollard in the construction of buoys and the laying of the racing course out on the Bay. These men promise a course which will be laid out so that the public can follow the racers with interest.

Gerald Mallon, commodore, and Leonard Butrym, secretary-treasurer, of the Tawas Bay Yacht Club, are acting as business advisers on Regatta plans with Chairman Pollard, while Lloyd McKay Jr., vice-commodore, is chairman of the Regatta entertainment committee.

From the start of the Point Lookout to Tawas Bay race on Saturday, August 13, until the final point race on Saturday, August 20, a variety of interesting sailing events is assured skippers of racing craft and spectators who attend the annual Regatta. As a climax to the week's Regatta events, East Tawas businessmen are planning an elaborate program for the Water Carnival and shore entertainment to be staged Saturday afternoon, August 20, from 12 noon until after the Queen's Ball that evening.

Residents of Iosco County and neighboring communities, tourists and summer resorters throughout the area are all invited to attend the celebration which will be held near the State Park dock. The schedule of events will include: log rolling contests, swimming meets, water parade of decorated boats past the dock, tub races for children, boxing bouts, and baseball games.

From 1:30 to 2 p. m., Radio Station WBCM of Bay City, with Lester Mitchell, announcer, will broadcast by remote control a half hour program over its station, giving a description of the final Regatta race out on Tawas Bay, and of the Water Carnival activities. The half hour broadcast will also include musical selections by Rambling Bill Hurley and his Gang.

Water Carnival spectators will also be entertained by radio stars of WBCM during a half hour program over a loud speaker system in the State Park from 5 to 5:30 p. m. This program will include a group of cow-girls and cow-boys, heard daily over the Bay City station at 7:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Girl singers and other talent will be provided for this special program through the courtesy of WBCM.

Saturday evening, the Queen's Ball will be held in the Community building under the auspices of the Water
