TAWAS CITY TAKES GAME FROM PRESCOTT

Local Team Will Cross Bats With Twining There Next Sunday

Tawas City got back into their winning ways again last Sunday when they journey to Prescott and defeated the Ogemaw boys 6 to 2.

A stiff cross-wind blew clouds of dust which interrupted the game repeatedly and handicapped the fielders to judge fly balls properly. However, the game was well played and Tawas City showed a complete reversal of form after their humiliating defeat of the week before.

Turner kept pace with Tawas City as they defeated Harrisville in a close game 2 to 1, and it may be possible that these two top teams will have to battle it out in another contest.

"Bill" Mallon, Tawas City's ace right hander, won his eighth consecutive game of the season against no defeats. Bill, troubled no less by the severe heat and dust storms, lacked his customary good control, but when the opponents threatened to stage a rally, he would bear down and retire the side without any great damage being done. He fanned nine men and walked six. Tawas City got to McPherson for a total of 12 hits including doubles by Davis and Quick, and a lusty triple by W. Mallon.

Henry Neumann's men took the lead in the first inning and never relinquished it. After two were out, Quick hit a line drive to deep center for a double. W. Mallon singled to the same sector scoring Quick and took second when B. Panigay let the ball get by him. Brother "Marv" promptly singled to right, scoring Bill with the second run of the inning.

The home team got back one of these runs in the second frame. Slosser beat out a slow bouncer to short and went to second when M. Mallon threw wild to first, and scored on two infield outs.

Tawas retaliated with a run in the third on Davis' double, a sacrifice by G. Laidlaw and a passed ball.

Tawas City put on their game clinching rally in the sixth. Bill Mallon started this scoring party with a line drive into deep center and easily could have had a home run had the (Turn to No. 1, back page)

CAN WE BRING BACK WHITEFISH INDUSTRY?

Continued restocking of the waters of Saginaw Bay over a period of years would bring our white fish industry back.

It has been done with the yellow pickerel or wall-eyed pike, through restocking operations carried on from the Bay City hatchery during the past ten years and it can be done with white fish if the proper methods are employed. This opinion is held by some fish experts and many commercial fishermen alike.

Taking the example of what has been done with pickerel propagation, Capt. Robt. E. Ellsworth, supervisor of fish culture for the Department of Conservation who is based at the Silver Creek trout rearing station told how the yellow pickerel fishing in Saginaw Bay has increased from 100,000 pounds yearly to more than a million pounds taken last year.

To bring about this result, the cooperation of commercial fishermen was necessary and they did cooperate splendidly, Capt. Ellsworth said. Last spring, he said, 123 fishing boats on Saginaw Bay took 841,000 pounds of pickerel out of the waters to sell during approximately 19 days of the spawning season.

At the same time, they secured more than 1,176,000,000 pickerel eggs which were enough to supply the Bay City hatchery and all other state hatcheries, and some were shipped out of the state in exchange for other eggs. Besides this, fishermen returned 2,366 quarts of eggs to Saginaw Bay waters to be propagated naturally.

The commercial fisherman are all interested in building up their own business and have shown their willingness to cooperate in restocking the waters with pickerel. Capt. Ellsworth related. And the Bay City hatchery has been a practical labor-

Ralph E. Crowell, supervisor of the Huron National Forest, announced this week that the forestry will purchase Norway pine cones in the open market, the price offered being $2 per bushel.

Parties interested are invited to write the Forest Supervisor at East Tawas, giving the approximate number of bushels possible to collect. Each collector will be allotted a definite number of bushels and instructions for collecting the cones will be furnished. Where amounts justify, the pine cones will be picked up by the Forest Service at central points; otherwise the cones are to be delivered to the Beal Nursery in East Tawas, Mr. Crowell said.

This energetic young pastor is intensely interested in the youth of today and will have a special message for both young and old. Rev. Elva broadcasts regularly over Radio Station WBCM in Bay City on the program, The Voice of Christian Youth.

HEAVY RAINFALL SETS NEW RECORD

The near "cloudburst" which the Tawas Bay area experienced last Tuesday afternoon established a new record for rainfall during the past 16 year period, according to Ralph E. Crowell, supervisor of the Huron National Forest.

During the 24 hour period between 5 p. m. Monday and 5 p. m. Tuesday, 3.68 inches of rain fell. Going back in the forestry records as far as 1922, the nearest approach to this figure was 2.26 inches for a 24 hour period in 1926.

Most of the rain Tuesday was concentrated in the hour and a half between 12:30 and 2 p. m. when 2.28 inches fell, flooding streets and yards in both Tawas City and East Tawas.

The average precipitation for the entire month of August in this area is 2.71 inches, Mr. Crowell said.

PRODUCERS TO VOTE ON AGREEMENT

County Potato Growers Will Consider New Marketing Plan

During the period August 19 to 24 inclusive, Iosco County Commercial potato producers will have the opportunity to approve or disapprove the proposed Marketing Agreement Program.

The agreement is similar to the one which was in effect during the last potato marketing year and is for the purpose of regulating the flow of potatoes to the market and at the same time regulate grade and quality of potatoes going into interstate trade.

The principal features of the program as recently presented by the State Agricultural Conservation Committee, are:

1. Cull potatoes are to be barred from shipment to out-of-state markets.
2. Federal-State inspection of out-of-State shipments would be continued.
3. If necessary it would permit further restrictions on other low grade or small size potatoes, but only upon recommendation of area committees.
4. It would permit modification of, or exception from, shipment restrictions to prevent hardship to any area, part of an area, or individual producer.

The agreement if selected by potato producers would of course place like restrictions upon shipments of potatoes from other states into Michigan and would thus stabilize to some extent, both price and quality of potatoes offered for consumption. Iosco Potato Producers are encouraged to consider this matter and then express their opinion by voting at the County Agricultural Conservation office next week.

Iosco Bank Receiver Issues Interest Checks

The Receiver of the Iosco State Bank of Tawas City last week distributed checks to the depositors of the bank, paying them the interest which their deposits would have drawn at five per cent per year for the three years following the closing of the bank by the Governor in 1933. The depositors already have received the full amount of their deposits.

This is a most unusual proceeding as very few closed banks in the history of the state have paid depositors the full amount of their deposits, and interest, too.

The third annual reunion of the Chris. Klink family was held at Bass Lake, Sunday, August 14. There were seventy-five in attendance, with members coming from Toledo and Harbor Beach, Ohio, Monroe, Detroit, Lansing and other Michigan points.

A basket dinner was served at one o'clock. Swimming, soft ball, races and games provided the afternoon's entertainment. A "horse race" that which would have made Seabiscuit turn green with envy, was won by Kenton Bissonette of Lansing, and caused much merriment, as did several of the other events. Prizes were awarded the winners of the different races. A business meeting was held at 4 o'clock by Otto Rahl, of Turner, President of the reunion. After a short session, gifts were presented to the three Klink sisters, namely: Mrs. Fred Lutz, of Samaria; Mrs. Mary Revard, of Monroe; and Mrs. William Rahl, of Hale, Mich. Gifts were also presented to Mrs. Fred Lutz for being the oldest member present and to Jimmie Danzejan for the youngest member present.

After some discussion it was decided to hold the fourth annual reunion the second Sunday in June at the State Park on Corunna Road. The members of the Chas. and Morris Klink (brothers of Chris. Klink) families were adopted as members of this reunion.

Lunch was served late in the evening. Warm hand clasps and lingered partings told of a day well spent. Chris Klink, deceased, is the father of Mrs. Wm. Rahl.

Mr. Thompson arrived Wednesday morning and will stay until Saturday interviewing various businessmen and citizens to get their views on possible locations for the new Federal structure, and looking over the proposed sites.

Various factors are taken into consideration in the selection of a Federal building site. Mr. Thompson said. These include: location; price; improvements such as pavement, sidewalks, sewer facilities; shade trees and possibilities for landscaping.

"A good location in relation to other public buildings is desirable, as most cities today tend to group their buildings in a civic center," Mr. Thompson said. "The Post Office also WBCM will broadcast the start of the final Regatta races tomorrow afternoon, and will also broadcast from the Queen's Ball. A loud speaker truck will keep spectators posted on progress of the races and Carnival events.

Strong winds which prevailed Sunday and Monday, and Tuesday's exceptionally heavy rain, caused several Regatta events to be called off. Monday afternoon, the strong north-west wind caused two racing craft to break their rudders and three to lose their masts. Sunday, four craft capsized with no casualties, however.

During the Point Lookout to Tawa Bay race last Saturday, Lloyd McKay Jr. capsized in the LenLad and he was picked up by H. J. Keiser in his speedboat.

Leading craft and their skippers up to Wednesday evening in the point races for the various classes were: Class A—the Sauk, 18 points; Hubert Smith Jr., Bay City; Class B—the Neenyah, 5 points; Ted Tyler, Point Lookout; National One design—the Babe 10 points; Matt Haglund, East Tawas; Lark Class—the Senret, 10 points; Carl Babcock, Tawas City; Class C—the Bunny Duck, 17 points; Herbert Poppleton, Birmingham.

Girdler Storms Strike Quiz

Politics

In Idaho, Republicans were jubilant. In Ohio, they were hopeful. In Arkansas, where they never had a chance, Republicans went about their workaday tasks and forgot politics. But as the home-bound Franklin Roosevelt looked at rapidly mounting primary returns from his 48 states last week he must have wondered whether his next congress would be any more coherent than the last.

His "purge" had partially failed because Iowa's Gillette, Missouri's Clark and Nevada's McCarran were sure of re-election. But with a few exceptions his wheelhorses were sure to be back in Washington next winter. To most observers it looked like congress would again be a hodge-podge of multi-colored political thought without party lines.

Judiciously timed, the National Emergency council's report on conditions in the South was released

SENATOR POPE
Idaho had its own "purge."

just as the President marched through Georgia to crack down on Sen. Walter F. George, the bitter-tongued New Deal foe whom he hopes will be defeated by Lawrence Camp. But Franklin Roosevelt had to march around South Carolina on his way back to Washington, because Sen. "Cotton Ed" Smith was almost certain to be renominated regardless of Presidential wishes.

Severest blow to New Dealism last week came when Sen. James Pope, in-and-out administration supporter, was defeated for renomination by Rep. D. Worth Clark, conservative Democrat. But Idaho's Republican primary vote was small, indicating that many a G. O. P. had voted the Democratic ticket to out Pope. In Arkansas, New Dealer Hattie W. Caraway was renominated to the senate and will be elected next November. In Ohio, Franklin Roosevelt's classmate at Harvard—Sen. Robert J. Bulkley—was given the Democratic nomination over Gov. Martin L. Davey, arch foe of the C. I. O. Ohio's senatorial race will be interesting because Bulkley will face Robert A. Taft, a former President's son, in the final election.

Labor

Republic Steel corporation's Tom W. Girdler has never been soft-spoken. Last week he stormed Washington and in one fell swoop denounced (1) John L. Lewis' C. I. O. for "violence and intimidation"; (2) the National Labor Relations board for "abridging freedom of speech"; and (3) Sen. Robert M. LaFollette's civil liberties committee for keeping its work "one-sided."

Behind these blasts was last year's Little Steel strike. Ready for release was an N. L. R. B. decision finding Republic guilty of "unfair labor practices" in the Little Steel fiasco. Ready, too, were orders for Republic to reinstate 5,000 C. I. O. strikers, and to disestablish alleged company-dominated unions.

That Republic objected, is to state the case mildly. In its 136-page brief were 616 exceptions. What Little Steel most wanted was a chance to state its opinion of C. I. O., a chance the labor board seemed unwilling to offer. Thundered the report: "We contend the National Labor Relations act, as construed . . . in this connection, is unconstitutional as abridging freedom of speech."

Next day Tom Girdler carried his fight to the civil liberties committee, climaxing a three-week period of last summer's bitter labor strife. Flaring up before Senator LaFollette's quiet, relentless cross-examination, he proved no humble witness. Denied the right to read a statement criticizing the committee's work as "one-sided," and declaring it would be only fair to probe C. I. O.'s records to show what was being done with a $1,500,000 steel workers' fund.

Domestic

Last month a Saturday Evening Post article by Alva Johnson estimated Son James Roosevelt's annual insurance business at $250,000 to $2,000,000 a year, in itself not a very definite guess. Last week to rival Collier's magazine went Jimmy Roosevelt's income tax returns for the past five years, showing total annual income ranging from $21,714 to $49,167. The five-year total: $172,978.03.

Said Son James in comment: "I got into places I never would have if I wasn't the son of the President. But son or no son, I got tossed out a lot, too."

Countered Alva Johnson: "His figures show that his net income would have been more than $80,000 last year except that he split it . . . to avoid higher tax brackets."

Aviation

Last week at Floyd Bennett field ended the first non-stop Berlin to New York flight. Down from rain drenched skies dropped Germany's 24-passenger monoplane, Brandenburg, carrying a crew of four in record time of 24 hours, 57 minutes.

● Because tiny Canton and Enderbury islands are perfect mid-Pacific stopping-off places for transoceanic planes, the U. S. asserted its claim last march by planting colonists on each. Great Britain protested, anxious to guard her thus-far undeveloped Pacific air rights. Last week came as novel a settlement as diplomats have ever seen. Canton and Enderbury will be owned and developed jointly as U. S.-British aviation bases.

Crime

In the early 1930s, Chicago's gang warfare was so bad that many an out-of-town visitor wired ahead for police protection. But Scarface Al Capone finally went to Alcatraz and A Century of Progress exposition helped make the town decent. Last week peaceful Chicago wondered if it would again have gun trouble.

Checking their records, police found six underworld murders since Bookie Harry Minor was shot down June 29. Four others had been reported the previous 12 months. But while Al Capone and "Bugs" Moran fought a bootlegging war, Chicago's current massacre apparently has roots in labor warfare. Five victims have been union workers, two were aides of an alderman.

Foreign

"The Japanese say Changkufeng hill has fallen into their hands. They lie. I, Peter Mikilovich Klejm, lieutenant of infantry in the Soviet army, am now with my division in the trenches on the hill which is safe in our hands. I can see the Japanese trenches only 220 yards away. The yellow bandits are plastering our positions with machine gun fire."

Seated at their radios one night last week, the whole of Russia's Soviet Union heard machine gun and rifle fire along the distant Changkufeng front where Siberia, Manchukuo and Korea converge. Next day heavy Soviet artillery pounded the whole four-mile front.

MAXIM LITVINOFF
He crossed swords and won.

Japan and Russia were continuing their five-year "secret war" which broke into international headlines July 11.

Throughout the day cannons boomed fiercely. All doubt about Soviet artillery accuracy was dissipated. Only one or two sighting shots preceded each direct hit. If they had held Changkufeng hill the night before, Japan's soldiers now retreated under the heaviest bombardment since the World war. Still more disturbing were reports that Russia was building new defenses on nearby Possiet bay where hostilities were sure to break out.

Next night the fight continued, but at 11 o'clock in the morning bugles sounded from either trench and ominous silence filled the shell-torn air. Then it was apparent the war was over.

Thus, temporarily at least, ended a skirmish of diplomatic wits in far away Moscow. Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff had crossed verbal swords with Ambassador Mamora Shigemitsu for two solid weeks, finally besting him. Terms of truce: (1) Firing would stop and troops would remain at their present fronts; (2) All other points at issue would be negotiated between the two nations.

Japan had sued first for peace, had surrendered to Maxim Litvinoff's insistence that the redemarcation commission carry two Japanese and two Russians, rather than three men each from Japan, Russia and Japan-dominated Manchukuo.

People

When Sweden's eligible Prince Bertil visited New York last month, he wine-d one night at a fashionable Manhattan night club with friends. One friend was blonde and buxom Lesley Hyde Ripley; lauded in next morning's papers for drinking milk instead of champagne. If Lesley Ripley drank milk to save money, her father spent much more than her savings on his daughter's debut last week.

A seldom-fallible sign of U. S. business trend is the amount invested by socialite fathers on their daughters' "coming out" parties. When Franklyn Hutton staged Barbara's debut, money ran free throughout the U. S. Depression debutantes fared not so well. But when Henry B. H. Ripley spent at least $50,000 to launch Lesley in the social swim, it appeared that Recession must surely be over.

LESLEY HYDE RIPLEY
She was launched for $50,000.

One thousand guests bespotted themselves in a $25,000 ballroom added to the Ripley mansion. They washed down supper and breakfast with champagne for a total outlay of $10,000. They danced, and the pipers earned $7,500. Decorations nicked the family purse for $5,000. But unlike many such parties, the Ripley Roman Holiday was bought and paid for within 24 hours.

● Samuel Insull, once monarch of a $4,000,000 utilities empire, died in a Paris subway station July 17, clutching a five-cent commutation ticket. Last week his will was filed in Chicago's probate court. Samuel Insull's estate: "Not in excess of $1,000."

Business

In 1934, NRA Administrator Hugh Johnson organized a consumer goods industries committee to make periodic forecasts on U. S. trade winds. Last week came its most recent report. Trade winds are blowing well, said 20 major executives, will blow even better in the autumn. Excerpts from typical replies:

From Lammont duPont: "Since July 1 we have operated 5 per cent above standard. Business has improved about 15 per cent."

From General Foods' Clarence Francis: "We believe the last half of the year—particularly the last quarter—will give a fairly good account of itself."

Miscellany

A fortnight had passed since Howland Spencer sold to Father Divine his 500-acre estate across the Hudson from Neighbor Franklin Roosevelt. But not until last week did Father Divine's personal army of cherubim and seraphims make a tour of inspection. Led by the man they call "God," 2,500 black and white cultists plied up the river from Harlem in a sidewheel excursion boat, stopping first at a newly acquired "Heaven" near Milton, N. Y.

Over a table piled high with cold chicken and steaming corn, Harlem's self-appointed messiah told his rapt audience:

"As his close neighbors we are not going to disgrace the President. We aim to grace him by our presence. Peace, everybody."

"Peace!" answered a thousand throats.

Next day, as Father Divine made his personal inspection at Crum Elbow, Eleanor Roosevelt hopped in her car across the river, headed for nearby Poughkeepsie. If inquiring reporters thought she would talk about her new neighbors, the First Lady outfoxed them.

"Father Divine?" she parried. "What estate? Oh, you mean that place across the river that's been sold?"

Night Games Prove Value For Baseball

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

ONE hundred and fifty-three thousand baseball fans can't be wrong. That's the way President Will Harridge of the American league reasons when he announces that night baseball for all the clubs in the major leagues is coming to stay.

The 153,000 fans were Brooklyn Dodger followers who flocked to Ebbetts field on five occasions this season to watch games at night under the arc lights. Recognizing that after-dark baseball is profitable to his older and usually more conservative rival, the National league, Mr. Harridge sensibly predicts that it soon will be widely adopted by the American league. Up to now the American league has been a stubborn unit in opposing the playing after nightfall of a game that for practically a century has been the nation's greatest outdoor daytime sport.

Night baseball was pioneered in the majors by the Cincinnati Reds two years ago under the sponsorship of the energetic Larry McPhail, then general manager. When McPhail moved on to Brooklyn this year, he carried the night baseball idea with him. Here it proved an immediate financial boon. The first game played under lights drew 38,748 fans through the turnstiles. It would take half a dozen regular weekday crowds to match such a total.

"There is no question about it," Mr. Harridge declares. "Night baseball is coming into the majors. It's coming just as the radio came to the game. Not so many years ago major league owners thought radio would ruin baseball. They've changed their minds and I think they'll change their minds on the subject of night baseball."

Started in Minors

In opening their minds to night baseball, major league magnates will be following the example of successful minor league circuits. Smaller towns have known night baseball for the past eight or nine years. Games after dark, attracting more patrons than was possible during afternoon, were credited with keeping a number of the minor circuits alive during the worst years of the depression. Many ball players now eminent in the big time played under lights in the minors and should have an edge on their major league colleagues when the night game becomes universal.

The number of games played at night will, of course, be restricted. Harridge is of the opinion that 10 or 12 night games for each club per season would be good business.

"Night baseball, to me, is more of a spectacle than anything else," he declared, "and I don't think fans would care for night games every night in the week. But there isn't any question that it would greatly benefit certain clubs.

"A few years ago the American league owners were solidly opposed to night baseball and while I do not think they are completely night-minded yet, there has been a change of feeling toward the game. Two years ago they gave St. Louis permission to play seven games at night, but lights were never erected. In 1936 Philadelphia applied for permission and Cleveland made application in 1937. They were refused on the ground their cases were not of an emergency nature as was the case of St. Louis, where attendance was low and new owners were taking over. I believe that if a club needed night ball to increase its financial position, American league owners would now grant permission. We have the seven night game rule, the same as the National league, but clubs must be given permission from year to year.

"It took club owners years to realize that radio was a great thing for baseball, instead of something that would harm the sport and night baseball will grow on the league as radio did."

Harridge believes that night baseball would create interest in the sport among persons who find it impossible to see afternoon games during the week and prefer motoring with their families on Sundays.

Home Run Derby

EVER since Babe Ruth established his all-time record of 60 home runs back in 1927, aspiring fence-busters have been trying to better his achievement. Closest any rival slugger has yet come to the 11-year-old record was Jimmy Foss's mark of 58 homers in 1932.

Newest pretender to the Ruth home-run crown is Detroit's Hank Greenberg, who entered the month of August 15 games ahead of the Babe's 1927 average. Ruth drove out his thirty-fifth home run in his 105th game. Greenberg's thirty-fifth came in his ninetyth game.

HANK GREENBERG

Baseball men will tell you that September will tell the story, for in Ruth's record year he blasted 17 home runs in the 30 days of that month. They will add that the odds are against Greenberg's equalling or bettering the Ruth mark, reminding you that Hank is a right-handed batter and that American league parks are made to order for left-handed hitters. They will point out that the Detroit lineup offers opposing pitchers a chance to walk Greenberg rather than let him sock one of their fast ones out of the park.

Greenberg's own experience in 1935 might be cited as a hazard against him. He entered August of that year with 30 home runs to his credit and in the next two months made only six, four of which were in August.

Here and There

PLENTY of jobs for old men of experience seem to be open in the major leagues, as witness the action of the New York Giants in purchasing Bill Cissell from Baltimore, the Red Sox in acquiring Joe Eving and Bill Harris, the Chicago Cubs in buying Vance Page from Indianapolis and the Dodgers in taking Whitlow Wyatt for 1939 delivery. All these players range from thirty to thirty-five years in age. All have played in the majors before.

A Toledo golfer eliminated himself from a match play tournament recently by whacking himself on the toe while attempting an explosion shot. . . . Bill Terry was the first to discover Buddy Lewis, the Senators' third baseman, and thought he had the youngest lined up, but Lewis chose Chattanooga rather than the Giants when he finished college.

Football Pays

A NEW high for salaries paid professional football players was reached when Byron (Whizzer) White, sensational Colorado halfback, decided to postpone his Rhodes Scholarship career long enough to toss passes and score touchdowns for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National Football league this fall. The Whizzer will receive $15,000 for his season's work, or $1,363 per game in the team's eleven game schedule. White's stipend will top that of Sammy Baugh, ace professional player, who will be his principal rival in the league and who recently signed a three-year contract with the Washington Redskins at a salary reported to be $12,000. The Whizzer unexpectedly decided on a pro football career when he found a formula that would permit him to play and take advantage of the Rhodes scholarship, too. He had turned down an offer several months before on the grounds that the two careers he preferred to be a Rhodes scholar. Now he finds he can do both by waiting until January to enter Oxford.

Does F. D. R. Seek Third Term?
President Has Many Reasons

If Roosevelt Is Sure of Victory He'll Run; Meanwhile It's a Waiting Game with President Holding Cards, Says Observer

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Senator Burke, the Nebraska Democrat, has come forward with a proposition fixing the term of the President of the United States at six years and limiting the individual to one term. It is not a new proposition. It has been suggested before—as long ago as President Jackson's term—but it takes on a new significance now. Its new importance is not because of Senator Burke's declared intention to press the thing through to enactment so much as in the fact that "third term talk" is all over the place these days.

I do not profess to know what is in Mr. Roosevelt's mind about a third term. That is one subject upon which he has kept his own counsel quite severely. He is completely capable of keeping his own counsel

Effort to Restore Party To Old-Line Democrats

There is, beside all of these factors, the differences within the party of which Mr. Roosevelt is the titular head. I believe that the Democratic party machinery was completely taken over by the radical wing, and so now there is a definite effort under way to restore the party control to old and tried Democrats. That is to say, the effort is to unhorse the type of men like Ickes, Wallace, Corcoran, Minton of Indiana, and others of that stripe. Men like Senator Harrison and Vice President Garner, and even Jim Farley, do not like to see those other fellows in a position of responsibility. They believe in the Democratic party for Democrats.

So, it is quite apparent that the struggle for party control is a rough and tumble fight from now on, because there is a convention of the party to be held in 1940, and it is not too early to line up delegates. Were it not for the battle ahead and the desire of those surrounding Mr. Roosevelt to keep on with his reforms—and the jobs—Mr. Roosevelt would control the 1940 convention. His declarations of a "purge of the party" has made it impossible for him to control the convention without a fight. That is to say, he will be unable to pick the 1940 nominee (to carry out his plans) without a battle.

Precedent Maker

The third-term precedent will be no barrier to Franklin Roosevelt if he thinks four more years will help him to achieve history's rating as a great president, thinks William Bruckart. Two of Mr. Roosevelt's outstanding characteristics are his enjoyment of the power of the chief executive and his willingness to create new precedents.

President Is Playing Waiting Game

Now, there are many who believe that Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity will be the only thing sufficient to swing that party control. He will not be able to nominate his own pick, but he will be able to nominate himself, say these observers.

When we have reached that stage, therefore, we have reached the point of determination of the course which Mr. Roosevelt will follow. My own conclusion is definitely that Mr. Roosevelt is preparing for any eventuality. He is unlikely to say he will or will not run. He will wait. If the situation makes it appear that he can win, he will "accept" the nomination; if, however, he believes that he will get licked, he will try to pick the nominee. He will select a man who will do his bidding, if he has not lost control of the party convention. I am convinced Mr. Roosevelt would like to run, but he will not run if there is certain defeat staring him in the face.

And when we talk of third terms and precedents, etc., I must recall a certain vote in the senate on February 10, 1928. President Coolidge had said he did not "choose" to run, but there were many Democrats who thought that was a trick to invite the nomination. So the senate adopted a resolution, a precedent-making resolution, saying it was the sense of the senate that no President ought to have a third term or something to that effect.

How Will They Vote This Time?

It gave me quite a laugh when I looked up the vote on that resolution, because I can see some very delicate situations developing for some of the senators who voted for that resolution. It was good politics then, of course, but what, I wonder, are some of those men going to do if Mr. Roosevelt moves in on them with a third term campaign?

Of the present Democratic members of the senate, we find the following as having voted their expression that no President should have a third term: Ashurst of Arizona, Barkley of Kentucky, Gerry of Rhode Island, Glass of Virginia; Harrison of Mississippi, King of Utah, Thomas of Oklahoma, Wagner of New York, Wheeler of Montana, McKellar of Tennessee, Neely of West Virginia, Pittman of Nevada, Sheppard of Texas, Smith of South Carolina, and Tydings of Maryland. We find also that Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, the great Progressive leader, voted against a third term, and we also note Senator Norris, another Progressive, who said by his vote that no man should have a third term.

Well, it struck me as being funny. Take such men as Barkley, the New Deal leader in the senate; and Neely and McKellar, who continually have popped off in praise of Mr. Roosevelt and who have no complaint about any phase of the New Deal. Or consider the plight of Thomas, of Oklahoma, who probably will be re-elected and who, therefore, will be faced with a decision if Mr. Roosevelt decides to seek a third term. It will be easy for Pat Harrison, or Wheeler or Smith of South Carolina, to vote for a similar resolution in the next session; but it won't be so easy for the others to decide, because those who have opposed some of Mr. Roosevelt's program will be able to say they are being consistent.

"Playing With Dynamite"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

The old phrase, "Playing with dynamite" has come to mean about the same thing as doing something foolhardy. That's the figurative meaning of the expression. But literally speaking, the man who monkeys around with high explosives is usually one of the unsung heroes of our age.

Over in France, twenty years ago, millions of men were playing with dynamite, and T. N. T. and just about every other explosive known. We didn't call those fellows foolhardy. In those days, it was generally considered that they were doing a brave and noble thing. This is a story of another such lad who toyed with danger in a good cause.

Herman Beaver of Chicago wasn't juggling explosives in and out of some sort of firearms over in France. He was taking an even longer chance with the dangerous stuff. On a hot day in July, 1917, he was working in a munitions plant on the northern outskirts of Milwaukee, Wis., on the banks of the upper Milwaukee river.

Grinding Salvaged Powder.

Over in France, millions of men were crouching in trenches, avoiding the explosives that the enemy was hurling at them, but Herman Beaver had no way to avoid the explosive that he was dealing with. His job was to handle the stuff—and to handle it roughly, too. He was grinding salvaged powder that came in to him in chunks and long tubes that looked like spaghetti—grinding it in a machine that looked a lot like an old-fashioned, hand-operated coffee grinder. That powder, when it had been reduced to bits, would be used to load rifle grenades.

In only one way did that machine differ from a coffee grinder. Between the handle that he turned continuously and the hopper into which he fed the unground powder, was a steel plate fixed so as to shield his body in case anything happened while he was grinding. On this day, while Herman ground away, his eyes wandered out the window and down the row of a dozen or more wooden buildings where the work of loading the grenades was going on.

They were little better than shacks, about twenty-five by fifty feet, built about fifty feet apart, in among trees, so as to obscure the plant's position from the air. Even in those days they were concerned about airplanes. Those shacks were filled with men and women, and even boys and girls—all taking long chances, to supply our soldiers with ammunition.

Blast and Deadly Flames.

But Herman wasn't thinking about the chances. The view from the window was pleasant. The trees outside swayed in a gentle breeze. "I was at peace with the world," says Herman. And then—

Without warning, there was a deafening blast. Acrid choking smoke filled the air and fire bit into Herman's flesh. He felt the earth rock beneath his feet—felt a terrible concussion that threw him backward. It happened so fast that only when he was on the floor did he realize what had happened. The powder that he was grinding had exploded.

Behind him were benches covered with pans of powder. In rapid succession they were catching fire. Then Herman saw that his own clothing, heavily saturated with powder dust, was afire too. If they had been soaked with gasoline they couldn't have burned any more furiously. "The flames shot many feet above my head," he says. "I was a living torch."

He was stunned for a moment, but he managed to stagger to his feet. His whole body one mass of flame, he ran to the door—and out of it.

By that time people were pouring out of all the buildings in the group. Herman dashed out of the door and kept right on running. He had lost all power of reasoning. All that moved him now was a blind, gripping panic. He wanted to run, and keep right on running until he dropped. And in his terror he was headed for another building—a building that was filled with powder.

"Lie Down and Roll."

If he had run into that building, this story might never have been written. But suddenly, through his panic, he heard a voice. Out of all the shouts and yells of that mob of screaming humanity that was watching his plight, that one voice, and that alone, penetrated his consciousness. "Roll," it was shrieking. "Lie down and roll!"

Suddenly, Herman remembered. That was what he should be doing. That was the only way to save himself. He dropped to the ground and began rolling. The pain was unbearable, as burned, smarting flesh came in contact with the hard earth. He rolled over once—twice—and then he stopped. It was all he could stand. A workman ran over and tried to beat out the flames.

His apron caught fire and he stopped to tear it off. Then the superintendent ran up. He ordered the crowd back, and he himself began rolling Herman over and over. He burned his hands severely, but he stuck at the job until the fire stopped blazing.

When the flames were out, Herman's clothing—what was left of it—glowed and smoldered like one large, live coal. They rushed him into one of the shacks, sat him down on a box, and began tearing the charred cloth off his body.

"That shack was filled with powder," Herman says, "but in their excitement they never thought of that."

"There was powder in the very box I was sitting on. The Lord only knows why the whole place didn't blow up. I know I don't. And I have two large scars, one on my right hip and one on the front of my left leg, that remind me every once in a while of what a close call I had."

Nobody will ever know how that explosion started, but Herman thinks a percussion cap might have found its way into the powder he was grinding. "I was working with the lid of the grinder open," he says. "If it had been fastened down when the explosion occurred, the whole machine would have shattered to bits—and I don't believe I'd be here to tell the story."

Answer to What-to-Wear Problem

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DEAR, oh dear me, here's that tantalizing, baffling between-season "what-to-wear" question bobbing up again! Cheer up, for the problem is all nicely solved. Fashion gives the answer "just as easy as that" in two short words—dark sheer.

The four costumes pictured will smartly apparel a "best dressed" woman way into autumn and then it's a safe guess that you will be wearing these pretty frocks under winter coats now and then until blizzard weather sets in.

Should it be that your budget limits choice to just one of the costumes pictured we would recommend the dressy silk sheer tuxedo jacket dress shown at top to the right. For all-around about-town practical general wear you will find that it will prove very nearly perfect. The jacket with its smart, new bracelet-length sleeves will serve as a mid-season wrap and look as smart over your colorful silk print frock as it does with its own matching dress. As here ensembled the white lingerie touches give a flattering neckline. Pink doeskin gloves and a salad bowl hat trimmed in pink add eye-appealing contrast.

You will derive infinite satisfaction wearing an afternoon dress like the model worn by the stylish young matron seated to the right in the foreground. It is styled smartly of sheer black crepe. Lots and lots of tucks form a front plastron to the blouse. Tucks in profusion also embellish the sleeves and add hem interest to the skirt. A pink clip finishes off the low neckline. Gloves of matching pink and a bonnet that is faced with a mass of pretty pink posies carry out the color scheme most intriguingly.

You'll be wanting a dinner dress for special invitation affairs, and to our way of thinking the model to the left gives satisfactory answer. This gown of navy blue silk sheer is so conservatively styled it will "fit in" to most any niche—will prove wearable for afternoon as well as informal night occasions. A softly pleated bodice extends from a yoke. The fact that latest news from abroad places special emphasis on the importance of yokes in the advance styling program stamps this gown as of last-minute origin. A gay corsage of flowers and a slim skirt that has graceful pleats released below the hipline give to this costume definite style prestige.

Centered in the background we show an important afternoon dress of black suede-surfaced heavy silk sheer with the new vertically shirred front that achieves a flattering slenderized figure line. It ranks among the best examples of draping. It is this type of draping that characterizes the new and much heralded daytime dresses of sleek figure-reducing rayon or, better still, pure silk jersey. For a mid-season or fall fashion-first dress this is the sort that is selling at sight. The draped silk jersey turban worn with the model pictured is unusually good style.

New fall types just arriving stress fringe-trimmed black silk sheers. The fringe is so worked into the plan of things that it seems an integral part of the dress and it is manipulated to accent slenderness.

SILK DAY COATS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A fashion that is proving most welcome and timely for midseason wear is the long coat of handsome black silk, either crepe, faile or ottoman weave. The model pictured gives the new corseted waistline via vertical tucks. Note also the flared skirt, with the new full-at-front silhouette. The baroque patent leather belt and the white pique buttoniere add swank to this outfit. Worn over the midsummer favorite print frock you have a costume that "carries on" triumphantly through the between-season interval.

Short Tennis Dresses

The most popular tennis dress is that with the skirt two or three inches above the knees, store experience reveals.

Sheer Housecoats

The movies are responsible for a trend toward sheer housecoats worn over ruffled petticoats.

PEASANT FASHIONS CONTINUE POPULAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The spirit of "let's be gay" persists throughout sports attire that flashes bright peasant colorings and amusing silhouettes that are quaintly picturesque. Dirndls? Yes, they answer "present" in the fall collections. The newest and smartest versions are done in lively wool challis prints. Some are girdled with black velvet ribbon and flaunt metal buttons—enough to strike any style-aspiring schoolgirl's fancy.

The Swedish motifs, with their gay embroideries, are popular as ever, and tall crowned alpine hats flaunting gay feathers are the milliners' pride for fall. The fascination of the peasant outfits lies in the fact they are often exact replicas and the more young girls look like gaily attired peasants "just landed" the smarter they are attired according to fashion's verdict.

Street Length Clothes Go Picturesque for Fall Wear

Paris dressmakers are seeing to it that informal and street length clothes are every bit as glamorous and exciting as evening gowns. Bruyere answers the challenge with picturesqueness—a full skirted taffeta dress worn over a starched petticoat. White stockings and a poke bonnet complete the old-fashioned picture.

Paquin solves the problem with sophistication in a series of dressy afternoon suits with draped jackets and small but rippling collars of fox.

Purple and Plum Shades in Offing for Early Autumn

The injection of purple and plum shades into midsummer costumes is merely a hint of an important fashion that will be featured by early autumn.

Everywhere in fashion circles there is talk of purple tones for daytime dresses, for sports costumes and for accessories. In addition to the general interest in the shade for informal daytime occasions, many velvet afternoon dresses and evening gowns are to flaunt this royal hue.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Food Value of Ice Cream

Nationally Known Food Authority Describes Its Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City.

ONE of the most significant contributions of modern nutritional science was the discovery of the importance of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. These foods abound in the minerals and vitamins that help to insure normal growth and health, and safeguard us against the deficiency diseases.

In this group, milk and dairy products made from it assume a commanding position because milk is the best and most practical source of calcium and vitamins A and G. These substances should be consumed in much greater proportions than at present if we are to increase health and efficiency and improve our chances for longevity.

The first rule in providing adequate amounts of the protective foods is to allow daily a quart of milk for every child and at least a pint for each adult. This amount of milk need not always be consumed as a beverage, however. It may be used in cooked dishes or eaten in the form of cheese and ice cream.

Composition of Ice Cream

Ice cream is often regarded as a confection, but it deserves to be classed among our most nutritious foods. It is composed of varying proportions of cream, milk, sugar, flavoring and frequently a binder or stabilizer such as gelatin. The composition varies somewhat between the home-made and the commercial product, and the commercial product differs in various states. That is because standards governing the butter fat content differ widely so that the requirement ranges from 8 to 14 per cent. Most large commercial companies produce an ice cream with about 12 per cent fat.

Guard Against Contamination

Some states require the pasteurization of the milk or cream used in manufacturing ice cream; others stipulate that the entire mix must be pasteurized before freezing. These measures are desirable, as ice cream requires the same scrupulous care that should be given to milk and cream.

Because of the possibilities for contamination, several precautions should be observed in buying ice cream. Choose cream manufactured by a reputable concern. Be sure to buy from a dealer who keeps it well frozen, for ice cream that has been melted and frozen again may be dangerous, owing to the opportunity for the multiplication of bacteria while it was melted. See to it, also, that the dealer uses sanitary methods in dispensing.

Home-Made Ice Cream

An easy way to make certain of the purity of the ice cream you serve is to make this delicious dessert at home. Motor-driven freezers are available, as well as those that are manually operated. And the homemaker with an automatic refrigerator finds it easier to make ice cream than to prepare many less interesting and nutritious desserts.

Ice cream powders which simplify the preparation of home-made ice cream, can be obtained unflavored, or in a variety of flavors, including lemon and maple, in addition to the popular vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. The ice cream powders may be used with milk or a combination of milk and cream to produce a healthful dessert suitable for every member of the family. They also may be used for less rich but equally refreshing milk or buttermilk sherbets.

A canned freezing mix is likewise available and is especially nice in a fruit flavor as it contains pieces of the whole fruit.

A Comparison With Milk

If we regard one-sixth of a quart of ice cream as an average serving, and compare it with one cup of milk, we make the interesting discovery that there is a close relation between the two. The ice cream provides about 24 more calories and only a trifle less protein, calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamin A. There is considerably less vitamin G, but ice cream is nevertheless considered an excellent source of this important vitamin.

A Healthful Food

It then becomes apparent why ice cream is considered as an excellent food, not only for adults but for children and convalescents, and why one outstanding authority urges the liberal use of ice cream as a means of increasing the vitamin A content of the diet.

Plain ice cream may be used interchangeably with simple milk puddings. Rich mixtures, such as those filled with nuts and crystallized fruits, rank with the heartier desserts and should follow a lighter meal.

Ice cream is so rich in nourishment that it should not be consumed indiscriminately between meals, but should always be considered as part of the day's ration. When that is done, one nutrition authority states that its beneficial effects can hardly be overestimated.

Effect on Digestion

One frequently hears the question, "Doesn't the eating of ice cream retard the digestion of other foods consumed at the same time?" The answer is that it does slow up slightly the emptying time of the stomach but this delay is without significance and is more than compensated for by the important nutrients it provides.

Many people believe that it is injurious to follow ice cream with hot coffee. But it has been demonstrated that just the opposite is true. The coffee raises the temperature of the food in the stomach and thus modifies the cooling effect of the ice cream.

Another common question concerns the effect of cake or pie a la mode. Experiments indicate that eating ice cream with cake or pie produces a more satisfactory gastric juice than when either of these foods is eaten alone. One must take into consideration, however, that cake or pie a la mode is a rich combination and plan the remainder of the meal accordingly.

Use More Ice Cream

It has been estimated that five billion pounds of milk are used each year in the production of commercial ice cream, which provides about three gallons of ice cream per capita. The amounts of ice cream made at home will raise this figure somewhat. But the amount consumed may well be further increased, because when properly made from pure ingredients, ice cream deserves to rank with other dairy products among our most wholesome and nourishing foods.

Old Custom

Some sweethearts in Rio de Janeiro follow the old custom that the man in the case must not enter his sweetheart's house until they are engaged. Up to that happy time they must conduct their courtship at a suitable distance from each other, usually talking over the garden hedge, he three feet from it on one side, she three feet away on the other.

Tawas City, Michigan,
June 21, 1938

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors, Isosco County:

Your committee on Roads and Bridges reports that the River Road Bridge, which spans the AuSable river, Sec. 3, 24N, 9E, connecting the communities of AuSable and Oscoda, and a part of the highway which circles from East Tawas, via the Lumbermen's Memorial, to rejoin the Huron on Shore Highway, US 23, and except for that main highway, the most heavily travelled in Isosco County, in a deplorable and dangerous condition as the result of weakening by pressure from former ice jams. Your committee considers the condition of this bridge makes it a potential menace to life and limb and financial risk to Isosco County should casualties occur because of neglect to correct its faulty condition. Your committee cites the fact that his $70,000 structure can be revamped and made a dependable part of the highway for the nominal sum of $800,000 according to our own Road Commission Engineer J. A. Sloan, and other competent engineers who have been assigned to pass on the condition of the bridge.

Your committee reports that it has ascertained that the Isosco County Road Commission and its Engineer, J. A. Sloan, has checked the proffer of the F. Yeager Bridge and Culvert Works, of Port Huron, Michigan, and has approved its estimates of construction needs and costs of repair, and its stipulated contract price of $804,000 for the reconstruction of this River Road bridge. Your Committee, together with four other members of this Board, the Isosco County Road Commission, its engineer and the proffering firm's engineer, carefully re-examined this bridge June 20 and it now recommends and urges the immediate reconstruction of same and the approval by your Board of the contract as submitted by the F. Yeager Bridge and Culvert Works.

Signed: James MacGillivray, Chairman; Hobart Brayman; Ferdinand Schmalz.

Moved by MacGillivray, supported by Schmalz, that this Board approve the contract as submitted by F. Yeager Bridge and Culvert Works and that the Clerk and Chairman of this Board be instructed to complete the contract.

Weather at South, North Poles
Speaking generally, it is colder at the South Pole and near it than it is in the region around the North Pole. Both the average temperature and the extreme temperatures are lower at the South Pole. While the North Pole is at sea level, there is a great land mass, 10,000 feet high and over, at the other pole, and this elevation makes for lower temperatures.

Fred C. Holbeck
Candidate
State Legislature

A Special Session of the legislature is being called to put more taxes on the farmers and other hard working citizens of the State to raise funds to feed the Bums that have gathered in from every State of the Union, because it is easy picking. They won't work and they won't let any one else work.

The real issue in this legislative district at this time, is not one of 1st term, 2nd term, 3rd term, or 5th term. It is a question of action. Shall we sit and take it, or shall we stand up and fight? I certainly wish I were a member of the present legislature.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnny Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office.

"I'll have to admit," Brace said, "that you played the game! But if you're going to be so loyal, shouldn't you be specially careful in choosing your friends? Loyalty misplaced is pretty treacherous."

"Johnny always has behaved himself before. I don't care much for cocktails and wild parties; but there are certain things you do when you're on the deb list, you know. Mother wanted me to have one season of it," replied Barbara.

"Big dance at the Somerset, stag lines, all that sort of thing?" His tone was derisive.

"No, I just had a luncheon at home. Father's and mother's friends, and their families. Last March."

"Well, there's some sense to that."

She laughed faintly. "Oh, we're really a pretty sensible family," she assured him. "Perfectly respectable, honestly." There was amusement in her tones. "Of course we're in trade. Father and his father and grandfather before him. Fruit and things. Oranges from Florida and all that. I suppose you professors think business is a pity; but at least we're wholesome. That's something, isn't it?"

He chuckled. "Everything, I should say." And she exclaimed triumphantly. "There, I knew you could laugh if you tried!"

"But it seems such a waste of time for a girl to chase around to drunken parties—"

"Oh, don't be so worthy! Besides, it wasn't a drunken party. Johnny's foot slipped, that's all."

He said thoughtfully: "I know his kind; see them in class right along. But I don't know the girls they run around with. You're a—new breed to me." He looked at her directly. "I come from a small mid-Western town," he explained. "Folks were church people. We didn't drink, or—dance much, or play cards. Of course, I know the standards I learned as a youngster are old-fashioned now. But—what have you put in place of them? What are you like? Girls your age, I mean? Yourself, and the girls you know?"

"We're a pretty decent lot," she assured him. "The people ten years older than us did run wild; but the girls I know don't drink too much, and they're level-headed and responsible. My older sister works every day in the hospital. She's going to marry a doctor and be a medical missionary. Mother does a lot of club work, things like that. We're the sort of family that doesn't get into the society columns very much. We don't telephone the editor every time we have people to dinner. But we're all right. Doing our jobs, behaving ourselves."

She hesitated, laughed a little. "I don't know why I'm telling you the story of my life—except that I sort of want you to—well, to not be so sure I'm just a crazy kid."

He said: "I don't! I did at first, naturally; but I can see you're—not as bad as I thought." He smiled. "I suppose yours is what we think of as a 'fine old Boston family.' Your father's turning at the next corner. Shall I follow him?"

"Let him go," Barbara directed. "We'll take the next turn. Yes, I suppose we are. I never thought much about it. My sister and I do the usual things. Of course my brother's in Yale instead of Harvard, but the Sentries have been Yale for a good many generations. And mother and father—"

"By the way," the professor suggested, "why not tell your father about this scrape tonight? I expect he'd like to feel that he had your confidence."

"No, he'd just disapprove and be stern," she said. "He's always been pretty strict with himself, and with us too. He keeps telling me how girls behaved when he was young!"

"It wasn't a bad way to behave!" She laughed. "I'll bet as many girls were kissed in buggies then as in automobiles now. Turn here. Our house is two blocks ahead." And then she exclaimed: "That must be father just turning into our drive! He drove awfully slowly, didn't he? Switch off your lights. Stop in the street, and we'll wait till he has gone to bed."

They stopped in front of the house, hidden behind a high hedge, and Professor Brace stilled the engine. In the sudden silence they heard steps on gravel.

"He's coming back from the garage," she whispered; and a moment later: "There! He's opened the front door!" Light shone out, then was dark as the door closed again. "We'll wait till he's gone upstairs," she directed. "Do you mind?"

He did not mind. He asked where Johnny lived, how to get clothes to take him for his appearance in court in the morning. She gave him the number of Johnny's dormitory room. "But probably one of his room-mates will do it," she suggested. Then an upstairs light came on.

"There!" she said. "Father's undressing. He must have gone to the kitchen for something before he went upstairs." And when presently the light went out, "Now he's in bed!" She opened the car door. "You've really been awfully kind. Thanks a lot." She extended her hand.

He said: "See here, Miss Sentry. May I drop in, one of these days? I'd like to know you better."

Her eyes twinkled. "Then you don't think I'm hopeless?"

He chuckled. "Maybe I can reform you!"

"Do come. Sunday evening?"

"Thanks. Count on me. Good-night!"

Their hands clasped. He started the car and drove away; and Barbara, walking for silence's sake on tioned again between them. But the forgiveness, naturally was only on the surface. Yet they continued to preserve the outward forms, even to sleep in beds side by side, so that not even the servants ever knew . . . Mrs. Sentry thought this morning that her ancient tolerance had been repaid. Their lives had always been outwardly serene; were serene as they grew older now . . .

She rose, leaving Arthur abed; but while she was dressing, she heard him stirring, and called, "Thought you might want to sleep." He said, "No," rather curtly. "Do well last night? Have a good game?"

"Didn't hold any cards." The Thursday night bridge was in the nature of a tournament, four rubbers being played after dinner. He referred to this as he explained now: "They finished us off by half past ten. I hung around for a few minutes, and then came along home." He added: "And I forgot your package from Butler's, Ellen." They delivered it about four o'clock, but I left it on my desk at the office."

"It doesn't matter," she said. "Today will do." She repeated, "It doesn't matter at all," and she wondered why she went to such pains to reassure him, realized that there was something like apprehension in his tone, as though he were afraid that she would say. She asked hurriedly, "Who did you play with?"

"Dean Hare," he said. "Against Carl Bettel and Bob Flood."

She came into his dressing-room, herself ready for the day, and watched him knot his tie, brush his hair, trim his mustache. "What a time you have with that, don't you?" she said, amused at his intensity as he leaned close to the mirror, his jaw depressed to draw his upper lip taut, holding his mustache flat with one finger while with many grimaces he trimmed its ragged edges.

He nodded, and put on coat and vest, stowed odds and ends in his pockets, said, "Well, ready?"

She felt tautness in him, a need for reassurance. "You look about twenty-five," she told him dutifully. "Not a day older than Mary. You make me feel as though I had four children instead of three!" He smiled; and she thought she had succeeded in putting him in better humor for the day. She had always administered praise to him like a medicine, skillfully.

The house was old, of brick, four-square, with a French roof, the slopes broken by gables that admitted light to the servants' quarters and storage rooms on the upper floor. It had been built by Arthur's grandfather, in what was at that time open country; but now it was crowded among others, most of them of a later period, and retained only a narrow area of lawn and garden, with room for a tennis court beside the garage in the rear. A sluggish stream meandered behind the garage at an angle across the rear of the lot; and there was a pergola of brick and stone behind the tennis court, built by Arthur's father, on the bank above the water where ducks came to feed. Rhododendrons ten or twelve feet high screened the house from the street in front, and there were hedges along the lot line on either side. Outside, the house was as it had been built, save for the English ivy which cloaked the walls; but inside there were changes. Arthur's mother, when she was mistress here, had torn out walls, installed bathrooms, dressing-rooms, closets; redecorated again and again.

Mary was at the table when Mr. and Mrs. Sentry entered the dining-room; rose punctiliously to greet them. She was a tall, lovely girl, her cheeks a little hollowed so that her cheekbones and the line of her jaw showed firmly; and her eyes were apt to be grave, even when she smiled. She wore this morning a suit of blue-gray homespun, and her father, seeing this, commented: "Looks as though you're dressed for business."

She nodded. "Yes," she agreed. "I'm going to the hospital." She spent part of every day there as a volunteer, tending convalescent patients, learning something of nursing and medicine in the process. The hospital was Mrs. Sentry's pet charity; but Neil Ray, rather than her mother, was responsible for the fact that Mary's interests were thus directed. Neil was studying medicine, planning to follow his father as a medical missionary in China; and he wanted Mary to marry him.

"I told him," she confessed to her mother the night he proposed to her, "that I was no kind of wife for any kind of missionary!" Yet she had thereafter plunged into this work, as though thus she might deserve him. That was months ago.

Mrs. Sentry had spoken her mind to Mary, with the frankness upon which she prided herself. "Ridiculous!" she said. "To go way off to China! And preposterous for him to let you humble yourself! You've lost your head over this young man."

But the only result of her advice had been to awaken in Mary a defensive and antagonistic attitude, make her increasingly critical toward them all. Thus she said to Mr. Sentry now:

"And speaking of hospitals, you look as though you ought to be in one, father. Been burning the candle at both ends?"

"Had a bad night," he explained. "Lay awake, fighting to get to sleep, for hours."

"You don't look sleepy," Mary commented, in a dry, professional tone. "You look as though—well, as though your nerves were all shot." She smiled. "Probably liverish," she suggested. "Stick out your tongue!"

Mrs. Sentry said in a dry tone, "Mary, I'm beginning to object to this clinical atmosphere in the home."

"You find so many objectionable things about me lately, mother!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

Lesson for August 21 HANNAH: GODLY MOTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5. GOLDEN TEXT—Her children arise up, and call her blessed. Proverbs 31:28.

"Godly Motherhood"—All the power and grace of the infinite God working in and through the most tender and at the same time most potent human relationship—motherhood! There indeed is the solution of many of our national and social problems. For we agree with the poet that man, who regards himself as being mighty, ruling over land and sea, must defer to a mightier power.

"For the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." Hannah was the mother of Samuel, who became one of Israel's outstanding leaders—a priest, a prophet, and "the maker of kings." God needed a great man, so He chose for him a great mother.

Our study for today will be typical rather than textual and extended to related portions in chapters 1 and 2. We consider Hannah as a mother who was spiritual and sacrificial, but at the same time practical in her daily life and service.

I. Spiritual. Many are the tributes offered to mothers, but none has deeper significance than the testimony of a boy or girl that their mother has led them both by precept and example to have faith in God. Though other advantages may be beyond the reach even of the most self-denying mother, this most important of all benefits she may bring her children, but only if she herself is an earnest and faithful follower of the Lord.

Hannah trusted God in her hour of trial and sorrow (1:10). Although her husband was a man of good qualities, he had followed the custom of his times and taken a second wife. Hannah, childless in the presence of Peninnah and her children, was in deep sorrow. But she knew where to take her burdens; she brought them to the Lord in prayer.

2. She prayed—fervently and effectively (1:17, 18, compare James 5:16b). Mother's prayers have followed many a wayward boy and girl and brought them back to God. When every other influence for good had been swept aside, they have been unable to forget mother's prayers. One wonders what will happen to boys and girls who go out to face a wicked and bewildering world, with the memory of a prayerless, worldly mother to blight rather than to bless them.

3. She recognized children as a gift of God (1:11). And surely they are. Christian men and women should protest by both word and deed against the vicious modern theory that children are a sort of biological accident to be avoided.

II. Sacrificial. The most precious possession a woman can have is a child of her own. It was, then, the deepest and finest sacrifice of a noble mother-heart when she

1. Dedicated her boy to God, even before his birth (1:11). Yet this act so fine and commendable was in reality only an intelligent recognition of the fact that children are a gift of God. Your children and mine belong to God. Let us not stand in His way (or their way) as He graciously leads them out into service for Him.

2. She kept her promise (1:24-28). Many parents have solemnly dedicated their children to God before their birth, and then later the prospect of separation from them has been too much for the parents, and the promise to God has been thrust aside. The writer has on many occasions seen young men and women weep with broken-hearted dismay because a mother or father has forbidden them to go to China, Africa, or elsewhere at God's call. Mother, have you kept your promise to God regarding your boy, your girl?

III. Practical. Hannah not only promised her boy to God; she made the completion of that promise certain.

1. By guiding her boy in the right way (1:24). As a matter of fact, she went with him to the temple. A mother who "sends" her boy to Sunday school or church will never help him like the mother of whom it may be said "she brought him unto the house of the Lord."

2. By providing for her boy (2:18, 19). There is no more tender and meaningful story in all literature than that of Hannah bringing her boy his "little coat." It is still true that the best "support" a missionary of the Cross can have is a home that "stands by."

The story is told of a missionary candidate who had no "board" back of her but the "washboard" of a godly mother, and who made a valiant and useful servant in the foreign field. Such an arrangement may not be the most desirable and it really should not be necessary if God's people would give, but it has its glorious advantages.

Two Pretty Frocks, Both Easy to Make

IF YOU'RE one of those women I who so often say "Dear me, I wish I could sew!", then by all means try your hand on these smart designs, and like many, many others, just as inexperienced as you are, you'll find that you can sew, and enjoy it! Our patterns include detailed sew charts that show you just what to do, step by step, and you'll get a real thrill out of seeing how easy it is.

The Woman's Dress. Here we have a diagram design, which means you can finish it successfully in a few hours. And you'll find it one of the most becoming and comfortable you ever wore round the house. It's made on easy, unhampering lines, with darts that make it slim, but not tight, at the waistline. The short sleeves are slashed, which makes them easier to work in, and prettier to look at. Sleeves, neckline and pointed closing are trimmed with ricrac. Make this dress of gingham, seersucker, percale or calico.

The Little Girl's Dress. This dress will make your small daughter look even more adorable, with its high, snug waist, square neck, puff sleeves and full skirt. You'll probably want to make her half a dozen dresses just like this! And she'll certainly beg for at least one little sweetheart apron, to wear when she is helping you—or thinking she is! For the dress, choose dimity, dotted Swiss, gingham or percale. For the apron, organdy, dimity or lawn.

The Patterns. No. 1559 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/4 yards of 35-inch material; 2 1/2 yards of ricrac to trim as pictured.

No. 1468 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch material for the dress; 3/4 yard for the apron. Six yards of ribbon or braid to trim dress; 1 yard for belt. Two and one-half yards of ruffling to trim apron.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The playing fields of Eton have been given due credit for Britain's power and durability. We seem to have overlooked the playing fields of West Point.

Army to Ape Strategy Of Football Of the army is news this week. It might not have come off had it not been for a certain incident on the West Point football field.

It was an instant of inspired open football, back in the juggernaut days of the guards back and the side-line buck, that saved young Malin Craig for the army and the current reordering of tactics and equipment.

Just before the game with Trinity college in 1897, the West Point scholastic command had decided to retire Cadet Craig.

Of an ancient army line, with many relatives in the service, he had been visiting around army posts. His marks had suffered. The ax was to fall just after the game.

Craig was a brilliant backfield player, but somewhat given to unplanned maneuvers. Carrying the ball at a critical turn of the game, he lost his interference in a broken field.

Ducking a hurtling body, scarcely checking his stride, he booted a perfect field goal—winning the game, with appropriate Frank Merriwell trimmings.

He was a baseball star, also, and old Pop Anson tried to sign him for the Chicago National team. Born in St. Joseph, Mo., he was the grandson of a Civil war general.

In the Spanish-American war, the Philippines, France and in minor mixups, he was a quick thinker and a self-starter, heavily garlanded from the first and known as a "progressive" tactician.

A FEW years ago, Richard Strauss was in trouble with the Nazis. The libretto of his opera, "The Silent Woman," had been written by Stefan Zweig, a "non-Aryan."

His librettist for his new opera, "Der Fridenstag," is a certified Aryan, Joseph Gregor, a Viennese poet, and its world premier at Munich is a brilliant success, with new garlands for the seventy-five-year-old composer.

So apparently all is forgiven, and the traditional rebel of the musical world is rebelling no longer. He had decided to save the world at any cost, but turning sixty, he concluded he was doing well enough by merely keeping out of jail.

When "Salome" was presented in 1905, puritanical New York was shocked, and the mere idea of its being given here caused a row. Its presentation in New York in 1921 was taken calmly.

Strauss' "Murky Psychographies," as the critics called them, didn't bring any riot calls. These muddy phantasmagorias of his earlier years got him into many battles, but he settled down to writing and—being a good business man—to money making.

He is no kin of the famous waltz family of Vienna. In melow and beery old Bavaria, his father was a horn-blower and his mother a brewer's daughter. He has prospered through his later years, the owner of a castle in Vienna and an estate in Bavaria.

In 1930, German cities were fighting for him as their leading citizen, with chambers of commerce competing and making offers. Then came the brief eclipse over the "non-Aryan" associations, and now the full effulgence of his restored career.

SEE THE PRETTY PACKAGE!

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

The little green package with the cellophane top, and the brightly colored label on a can of soup are daily becoming more important to the country's 31,800,000 farm population.

Initiated by a few foresighted food producers, the use of modern packaging methods to help move food crops has become one of the chief hopes for boosting farm income.

With more than $32,000,000,000 in farm lands at stake, the more alert farmers throughout the country are watching with keen interest the rate at which new packaging ideas are helping to move farm products off the grocer's shelves, making room for more.

These tomatoes, like all other farm products, sell better when attractively wrapped and properly merchandised. Both producer and consumer profit through the new "streamlined" idea to boost farmers' income.

Farmer observers, who are aware of Mr. Nicoll's success, are looking for a parallel, on a much larger scale, in the potato packaging campaign which, in the first full season just completed, widely extended the Maine potato market and returned the highest prices in the country to the growers.

Of considerable importance is the success of the campaign to the 2,500,000 farmers in the 21 states in which potatoes are a principal crop. The lowly spud provides nearly $200,000,000 a year in incomes from the more than 300,000,000 bushels produced each year.

Faced with a bumper crop and the need of developing a larger and better market for Maine potatoes, the Maine development commission a year ago agreed to aid in a solution of the problem.

The commission was aroused by the reports of a survey which showed that the per capita consumption of potatoes dropped from 4.2 bushels to 2.8 bushels between 1905 and 1935, due, in part, to "reducing diets."

Groups and individual growers appeared before the Maine legislature in the spring of 1937 and worked out a plan whereby they volunteered to pay a one-cent tax on every barrel of potatoes shipped.

AT EVENING TIME

By Madeline A. Chaffee, McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

The "Briny Toyshop" was closed for the day. Its tiny show window still displayed an enticing array of delightful playthings, but the latch was hard down on the door, and its little lady proprietress had retired to her favorite low rocker by a rear window facing the sea.

There seemed more than ordinary magic in the glowing spell cast by the sun at this close of day. The old-fashioned garden sloping to the rocky shore seemed a fairy place. The sea was many-hued, dusky, wondrous, and its melody came pleasantly to Miss Matilda. There were dreams in Miss Matilda's eyes as she watched; not the happy, hopeful dreams of youth, but the deeper, sadder dreams of one who has lived long.

Miss Matilda was so much a part of her surroundings that she had ceased to notice them in detail. Her mind had flown back nearly 50 years, to the time when she had not the faintest thought of ever being a little, elderly, sweet-faced lady sitting by herself in the twilight.

To the time when she was a young, adventurous girl pledging her troth to a dashing young naval officer. Even now her eyes grew dim as the memories came drifting in on the breeze. Dream pictures blotted out the garden, the rocks, the sea itself, and Miss Matilda felt herself in the arms of her young lover, so tender, so dear—

And he had sailed away, full of hope and happy anticipations of the day when he should return to make her his wife. Miss Matilda's eyes blurred. That day had never come. There had been a fire aboard the ship—and the young officer, who belonged heart and soul to Matilda Bell, had given his life for another.

Years had taken away that first tragic grief, but Miss Matilda had loved too deeply to forget. How she wished she had been with him! Sometimes he seemed to speak to her in the voice of the sea, and she would say that she was coming—some day soon, very soon—coming to be with him.

On the rocks below Miss Matilda's cottage two figures were silhouetted against the dull red sky. "But, dear girl!"—the man's voice was tender, serious—"you don't know what the life is. I do—and I wouldn't condemn any woman to it, least of all—you. It will be a torture without you—but it wouldn't be fair to take you."

The girl's straight, sweet gaze held his steadily. "But, Tom, don't you see I want to go? It may be years before you come back. Our marriage—that-is-to-be is going to be

Wise and Otherwise

"A child must have a chance to express its ideas," says a psychologist. Yes, but not on plain wallpaper!

"Girls were quicker in their movements eighty years ago," says a writer. They got a bustle on then.

true partnership, Tommy boy, and it must begin by my going to South America with you now. I can face anything—with you!" The two silhouettes suddenly converged into one as Tom said huskily:

"Bless you, sweetheart, you're coming with me. We'll play the game of life squarely—together."

And up in the little dusky window above the garden, with the sea still crooning a low love song, Miss Matilda had come into her own.

With the season rapidly drawing to a close, Meadow Road still clings to the top position in the league standings.

The Tawas City-Hemlock game of July 17, which was won by Tawas City and later forfeited to Hemlock because unlisted players were used by Tawas City, was found later that both teams were guilty of the same violation and the game was ordered to be replayed. This game will be played next Sunday at the Tawasville diamond as part of a double header.

As the scores of the games of August 7 were not reported in time for last week's edition, they were not printed. The scores were: Meadow Road 21, Wilber 12; Hemlock 25, Tawas City 19.

Last Sunday's Hemlock-Wilber game was not reported, so the game will not be figured in this week's standings.

Better Than Snow White

yearly take of white fish has steadily decreased.
We've got to start at the bottom in building up our white fish stock again. It can be done but we will need the same cooperation on white fish propagation from the fishermen that they have given on pickerel. Saginaw Bay is absolutely a perpetual fishing ground, if properly fished. But it is going to take some time and money to build the white fish back to where they were.

White fish can be brought back by establishing crating stations in safe harbors along the lakes and placing floating crates before the beginning of spawning season of the white fish. Specially trained men would be needed to take charge of these crating stations and remove the spawn from the fish when they were ready. These eggs could be cased and shipped to the Bay City hatchery, and other state hatcheries equipped with proper facilities for white fish eggs and propagated. The white fish spawn when water temperatures are low, late in the Fall.

The Bay City hatchery with a capacity of 160,000,000 eggs, is ideal for hatching white fish as the shoal waters have the proper low temperatures at the right time, insuring the eggs of a full period of incubation. White fish hatcheries could be established at other points for propagation, too.

With long enough closed seasons and the white fish left undisturbed on their shore spawning grounds, they will help re-establish themselves in time, but restocking from hatcheries will bring them back quicker aided by proper regulations on commercial fishing. The white fish should be just as prolific in Saginaw Bay waters as pickerel are.

As a contrast to conditions in our own waters in Saginaw Bay, good catches of white fish have been reported down in the Port Huron area. There, a Canadian hatchery at Sarnia has been planting white fish each year with good results. For several years, many commercial fishermen from this area have been fishing down that way due to better conditions.

In Canadian waters, fishermen are paid for spawn that they take to fish hatcheries established at certain intervals along the commercial fishing waters. These hatcheries are capable of hatching the spawn and restocking the waters in their particular areas.

It is estimated that in the Saginaw Bay area alone, commercial fishermen have about $1,025,000 invested in fishing equipment and gear. Many families from the Tawas Bay area to Bayport depend on commercial fishing for a livelihood. Some way should be found to provide funds to propagate and restock Michigan waters of the Great Lakes with white fish from state hatcheries to keep one of Michigan's important industries going.

5 REASONS

WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE TELEPHONE SERVICE:

- 1-CONVENIENCE You can order groceries in bad weather and run countless errands by telephone, without leaving the house.
- 2-PROFIT A telephone often is helpful in securing employment. And it helps save carfare and driving expense.
- 3-PLEASURE With a telephone, you can enjoy frequent chats with friends, and they can reach you easily when parties and "get-togethers" are planned.
- 4-PROTECTION In case of fire, sickness, burglary or other emergency, aid can be summoned instantly only by telephone.
- 5-PRESTIGE A telephone of your own is both a social and business asset. And it eliminates the embarrassment of asking to use a neighbor's telephone.
