nominate Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, for 39 years curator of mammals and reptiles at the Bronx zoo, almost any year. He has just left for Trinidad to catch some parasol ants, which he has been craving for a long time. It has been generally supposed that the ants pack leaves and petals for shade. Dr. Ditmars puts us right on that. They gather them only for food. The curator has exploded many myths, but usually substitutes something even more interesting. Rep-tiles haven't the slightest interest in sweet music and aren't soothed by it, monkeys will return to cleared jungle if it grows again; the mother snake does not swallow the little ones in times of danger.

But, being thus disillusioned, we learn from Dr. Ditmars that there are sea serpents, great schools of them, in the Indian ocean and the western tropical Pacific. They are as gaudy as an Elks' parade. with cold, beady eyes, and emit a dread-ful venom. Dr. Ditmars carries them on the books as hydrophinae.

There are flying snakes, fish that climb trees, fish that shoot down bugs out of the air by ex-pelling pellets of water like an air gun, frogs that can swallow rats, frogs with vocal power 1,000 times that of a man, insects which are carried by jungle people for flashlamps, ani-mals which can travel 60 miles an hour and animals which never lie down.

Dr. Ditmars is 62 years old. At the age of 15, he began gathering insects for the Museum of Natural History. He had a year of newspaper work before joining the staff of the zoo, which may account for his being a friendly Santa Claus to reporters. . . .

But even while Europe began breathing easier, new troubles were brewing, mostly caused by the hopeless conglomeration of nationalities from which the Czech nation was carved 20 years ago. (See Map.) In Prague itself, democracy gave way to semi-dictatorship as Premier Milan Hodza's cabinet resigned, replaced by that of Gen. Jan Syrovy, one-eyed army chief. Meanwhile, blood splattered throughout Sudetia as Czech troops quelled Nazi riots.

In Warsaw was heard a growing cry for "liberation" of 82,000 Poles in the Silesian Teschen belt which Poland lost to Czechoslovakia in 1920. In Budapest, Hungarians demand-

Foremost among American indus-try's problem children are the rail-roads, who jointly fell $180,000,000 short of earning fixed charges dur-ing 1938's first six months, whose proposed 15 per cent pay cut ($250,-000,000 a year) is met by labor's allegation of financial mismanagement and overcapitalization. Last spring, almost simultaneous with the wage cut announcement, congress received rail legislation but tabled it on the insistence of Wisconsin's Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, who argued that pay cuts and government aid do not go together. Called for October 1 was a general railroad strike which, under federal legislation, can be averted 30 days while a presidential factfinding committee deliberates 30 more days after its report is submitted. Though President Roosevelt plans to follow this procedure, he began thinking early in September in broader terms than a strike. To the White House were summoned three experts of rail management

(Union Pacific's Carl Gray, Pennsyl-vania's M. W. Clement, Southern Pacific's E. C. Norris) and three experts of rail labor (Railway Employees' B. M. Jewell, Firemen-Enginemen Brotherhood's D. B. Robertson, Railway Labor Executives' George M. Harrison). Their job: To draft for next winter's congress a long-range rehabilitation plan for the $26,000,000,000 industry, one-third of which is now bankrupt. Though the President obviously hoped to avert a rail strike by promising legislation, though steadily increasing carloadings plus the prospect of business recovery gave promise of obviating a wage cut, labor remained adamant. At the committee's first session, its three experts told management's three experts that no legislation could be talked until wage cut demands were dropped.

To Washington for this year's congress came 2,000 executives and management experts. But a fortnight ago, after the first day's session, it was plain that the weight of American' delegates would change an impersonal discussion of business ills into a field day for protests against what U. S. industry considers its No. 1 foe, the New Deal.

From France's Alex Brule came the simple analysis that most of management's problems are reducible to human problems. Germany's Dr. Gorg Seebauer was interested

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Sugar, Sirup and Molasses; Describes Correct Use of Sweets, Peerless Body Fuel By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

HERE is an old saying that good things come in small packages. That is particularly apt when we pause to consider the nutritive value of sugar in its various forms. For two scant tablespoons of sugar supply as much caloric value as does three-fourths cup of cooked farina, or one and one-third eggs, or the lean meat of one lamb chop. Sugar is a highly concen-@- trated fuel food which burns quickly and completely in the body furnace.

The Sugar Bowl Is a Dynamo It has been said that our present day civilization could not have reached its present heights without the driving force that sugar gives to men and women. And it is a fact that until comparatively recent times, only the very wealthy could afford this quick energy food which we now consume at the rate of more than 4,000,000 tons a year, or more than 100 pounds annually for every man, woman and child.

This peerless fuel food was once regarded almost as a medicine because of its ability to relieve fatigue and sustain vitality. And no wonder! For sugar is transformed into heat and power in less time and with less effort than any other foodstuff.

A Real Stimulant

While starchy foods require an average of from three to four hours for digestion, the body begins to burn a ration of sugar from 10 to 30 minutes after it is eaten.

It reaches the blood and muscles in a few minutes-as rapidly in fact as alcohol! That is why concentrated sweets, which are largely sugar, are so effective in combating fatigue.

Athletic coaches are well aware of the unique power of sugar as a stimulant and restorative of energy. That is why school and college youths are so frequently given highly sweetened beverages and other concentrated sweets before engaging in athletic competition.

Military leaders also appreciate how it increases endurance, and sweets are an important part of the soldier's ration. During the World war civilians were urged to reduce their consumption of sugar in order to make larger amounts available for the army, and most people found it difficult indeed to forego this agreeable

Indispensable for Most People

Most fruits contain easily di-gestible sugars, the percentage in dried fruits ranging from 50 to 75 per cent. Milk sugar is also easily digested. Honey, molasses, corn sirup and the popular blended sirups are usually eaten in com-bination with other foods and are therefore unlikely to be consumed in too large amounts.

Corn sirup is often added to milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, breads and desserts. It helps to make these foods more palatable and adds 60 calories with every tablespoon. It is so easily digested that it is often used in infant feeding.

Molasses provides significant amounts of both calcium and iron and is a good sweet for growing children. One and one-half tablespoons of molasses supplies as much calcium as one and one-half cups of diced carrots. It is a wise mother, therefore, who uses it in making the cookies that children like so well.

The mixed or blended sirups that are so popular with griddle cakes and french toast on cool fall days, also add palate appeal and energy values to the diet.

As the prime minister boarded his plane for Godesberg, Germany, and his second conference with Adolf Hitler in a week's time, there were some indications that Der Fuehrer might eventually reject the Sudeten settlement, might demand complete division of Czechoslovakia among

New England had already weathered three days of rain when tropical storm warnings were posted on Florida's east coast. By midnight the hurricane was safely past Florida, far at sea. Next morning Jacksonville warned North Carolina's capes, but high tides and wind had already spread the word. By noon the weather bureau at Washington ordered storm warnings posted from

Atlantic City to Eastport, Me. By late afternoon the storm hit Long Island's fashionable Westhampton with a 90-mile wind, a 40foot tidal wave. Luxurious homes on the sand dunes were blown to sea and bodies were scattered for miles along the beach. The storm's full force had struck the island from Montauk down to Queens and Brook-

Roaring across Long Island sound, it brought flood, wind and fire to Connecticut in a night of horror that cost $30,000,000. At Providence, R. I., waves that broke 1,000 feet into the city left 25 feet of water in some streets. By the time it reached Massachusetts, four days of rain had already swollen rivers to flood stage. As only a hurricane can, it ripped northward into New Hampshire and Vermont, thence across to Montreal where it took two more lives before playing out. Behind was a picture of amazing desolation that stretched across six states.

NEW YORK'S O'CONNOR Biggest fish in a summer's angling.

jor success had been against New York's Rep. John J. O'Connor, defeated by administration-blessed James H. Fay, one-legged war veteran. Though Representative O'Connor won Republican nomination (he entered both tickets), Candidate Fay is a safe bet next November since he carries both American Labor party and Democratic endorsement. Since little John O'Connor was the biggest fish Franklin Roosevelt has been able to hook in a summer's angling, at best his so-called "purge" was only 25 per cent successful. This means the President's program will not be completed by 1940, also that his tremendous personal popularity would bog down if he attempted to choose his successor. Though he can win votes for himself, he cannot do it for others. Apparently two choices remain open. Either Franklin Roosevelt will run for Democratic renomination or he will head a new third party, a step not considered unlikely in view of his recent promise to support liberals, whether Democratic or Republican.

In Massachusetts, ex-Gov. James M. Curley staged a comeback, won Democratic gubernatorial nomination over the incumbent, Gov. Charles F. Hurley. Opposing him next November will be 46-year-old Leverett Saltonstall, liberal Republican, who scored three times the vote of his three opponents combined. ● In Wisconsin, where popular Gov. Phillip F. LaFollette could be beaten only by a Democratic-Republican fusion ticket against the powerful Progressive party, November's gubernatorial race will again find three candidates: Governor LaFollette, Democratic Robert Henry, Republican Julius P. Heil. Most interest will center in the senatorial campaign, where Democratic Sen. F. Ryan Duffy must face Republican Alexander Wiley and Progres-

Sugar is such an indispensable matter of line, you can use colingredient in cakes, cookies, pies, ors as gay as you please, now that puddings and ice creams, it is so necessary in beverages, on breakfast cereals and with fruits that it never done much sewing, here's a seems a great hardship to do without it even for one meal.

We are extremely fortunate, most people will agree, to live in an age when sugar is so high in quality and so reasonable in price. In the Thirteenth century when sugar was introduced to England through India, it cost the equivalent of ten dollars a pound in the monetary terms of today.

Refined sugar is now priced at a few cents a pound and one pound supplies over 1,800 calories! Moreover, when you buy a branded product, backed by a well-known name, you have the assurance that quality and purity are of the highest.

Moderate Use Desirable Like all sources of great power, however, sugar must be handled with care. Too much sugar may prove as disastrous as too little. Possibly because of this, several false notions have grown up regarding this splendid food. It is often charged that sweets cause indigestion, and it is true that when consumed in excess, they may ferment and result in irritation. Therefore, moderation should be the watchword.

But that is an excellent rule to follow in regard to all kinds of foods. For when consumed to excess, any food ceases to be beneficial.

Zasu Pitts "But you just haven't been mak-ing any pictures, Miss Pitts," they said to her.

There's a good reason why Miss Pitts hasn't been making pictures, these last months. A number of other actors, also big ones, haven't been making pictures either. Not that she hasn't been offered roles that she really wanted to play. But the companies who sent for her wanted to cut her salary to the bone. These days the big money is likely, it seems, to go to new-comers to the screen-foreign importations, cute girls who are being built up. Some of the big players have to swallow their pride, and do, and take the cut; others stay off the screen. Maybe that's why you've been missing some of your favorites

Miss Pitts has two opportunities to make her debut in New York as an actress; one in a musical show that, because of its authors, is practically sure to be a hit, the other in a play. Third Largest Island

The third largest island in the world is Baffin island, bowing only to Australia and Greenland. On it are four lakes, one as big as Lake Ontario. In winter, Eskimos build igloos on these lakes, fish for dinner through holes cut in their "parlor floors!" Baffin bay, hardly ever free of ice, is navigable only between June and September. Hence the bay and island are a refuge for, and abound in whales, seals, polar bears, wolves, white and blue foxes. Though it was discovered in 1576, little more is known of the regionthan William Baffin recorded when he named it in 1616.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary em-ployee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story; and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry cal on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, re-ceives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry is arrested and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her cooms for three days during August. Ha goes home to help. Sentry is arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher ex-plains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her tion.

He added, "Ex officio, you might say." No one spoke, and he added, "I regret to say that Inspector Irons has booked Mr. Sentry on a charge of murder." He hesitated, explained, "The Inspector tried to find me beforehand; but I was out, and he thought it best to act without delay." "Didn't he-exceed his authority?" Mrs. Sentry asked in dull tones.

"No," he admitted. "And-I'm bound to say that I should have acted as he did, in his place."

"You mean you would have ar-rested Arthur?" She seemed to choke, then added coldly, "You imply he-is guilty?"

"I'm afraid there's enough evidence to hold him." "That's outrageous! Have decent citizens no rights?" His color rose at her tone. "You

Mrs. Sentry closed her eyes and let her head rest against the back of the chair; and he added, more genemerald, on her birthday three or tly: "But of course, I want to dofour weeks before, he had signed everything possible to protect you, the enclosed card "Your Husband," to see that you are-annoyed as litand she had felt a sense of strangetle as possible. CHAPTER IV

Mrs. Sentry slept not at all till a little before dawn; she woke to face a naked sun just rising in a raw and aching glare above the eastern horizon, leering at her through the trees whose foliage had thinned even during the night and now would soon be gone. Her eyes opened, but not to full consciousness; she lay for a while, turning her head sidewise to avoid the glare, watching small shadows shift and change on the rough plastered wall. Then she turned to look toward Arthur's bed, and saw the spread and pillow cover rumpled as though someone had lain there; and she remembered that Mary had come in to her last night, weeping in furious and passionate revolt, in hurt, tormented pride.

And little by little she remembered all the rest, picking up this fact and that circumstance, and setting them in their proper relation to one another. I'm glad I'm alone, can be alone for a while, she thought; and she decided that if anyone came to wake her she would pretend to be asleep. Mary had seemed to blame her father, with a raging bitterness; had been filled with anger more than grief, like a mother robbed of her child, a girl of her lover. Thinking of Mary, Mrs. Sentry thought of Neil Ray. Mary had not mentioned him last night; yet there had been something like terror as an undercurrent to her wrath. Mrs.

Sentry wondered what Neil Ray would do or say to all this. Re-Arthur," he explained, "but the house was dark. I thought, if you membering his anxiety to escape from the house the other night, she thought there might be something of the prig in that young man, a

He said slowly, "Shocked and Deplore? The District Attorney, shaken, but-all right." He added, she remembered, had deplored something last night. "Deplored the necessity!" That was it. He had "I arranged about the telephone at once, after Phil called me, so you won't be bothered." He told her the new number. "You can give asked her to promise that the children would all remain available as it to your friends," he said, and witnesses if needed; and he had continued, "Then I went to him, to admitted that he could not require Arthur." "A cup of coffee, at least," Mrs. Sentry insisted. "And you may change your mind. Go on, Phil." Phil went toward the kitchen, and Mrs. Sentry said, in a lower tone, as soon as he was out of hearing: Yes, Arthur told me. He got home a little after eleven." Phil last night had heard Barbara tell the District Attorney that her father had come home just before one; he must not hear her say this now. Hare nodded. "Yes, he told me he came straight home; and that of course makes it impossible thathe could have done this. He couldn't have left the Club when he did, and -gome to the office, and still got home so soon."

"Nonsense! I'm no-timid girl! I shall see him today. Will you arrange it?"

Phil said, "I'll go with you, moth-'We are all going to have an uner."

"No, Phil. Not this time." What pleasant time for a while. Of course I shall not be surprised, or blame she had to say to Arthur none must any of you, if you wish to leave." hear.

But hers was a dupli-Mrs. Sentry greeted him almost with cate of Arthur's; and her key seemed pretty new, but Arthur's was older than the other two, more worn.

> "The Inspector went back to try the keys. They all worked in the lock. He asked Ike Tory why they were different. It turned out that when Ike put the new lock on, a year or so ago, only two keys came with it; so he took an old key that was something like these, and filed it down himself till it fitted the lock. Ike takes pride in saving money for the firm; did it to save having a new key made, to save 75 cents or whatever it was. And he gave Arthur the key he made, kept one of the originals himself, gave the other to Gus Loran."

He hesitated, and Mrs. Sentry said automatically, "I don't see anything in that."

Hare was uncomfortable. "Well, Irons believed," he told her, "that the dead girl's key must have been made from Arthur's, because they matched perfectly, while her key didn't match Loran's; so he had all the locksmiths canvassed, and late yesterday afternoon they found a man who remembered making the key. He remembered it, because he

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 20:2, 3; Isaiah 45:22: Mark 12:28:34: I Corinthians 8:4-6. GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.— Deuteronomy 6:5.

Today we begin a series of studies which should be of unusual value, a consideration of the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus and related New Testament passages. It is appropriate to point out that, far from being outmoded, the Ten Commandments are really the basis of all moral law. They need a diligent re-study and re-emphasis in our day of disregard of moral standards. As interpreted by the Lord Jesus and applied to our daily living, the truth of these commandments should be brought home to every boy and girl and man and woman in our Bible schools. The lessons begin at the right point, for the first commandment properly deals with our conception of God. What a man thinks about God determines his entire outlook on life. We begin right when we declare that there is but one God.

I. The Truth Stated-There Is One True God (Exod. 20:2, 3).

Jehovah means "I will be what I will be," or "I am that I am." (Exod. 3:14). His very name declares God to be the self-existent, eternal one. How infinitely gracious then is the use of the word "thy" in verse 2! He-the great I AM-is my God.

There are many things concerning which we do not speak dogmatically. There are even Christian doctrines about which spiritual and earnest men may honestly differ, but regarding God we say with absolute assurance and complete exclusiveness-there is but one true God. If He is what He claims to be, if God is not to be declared to be a liar, then it is beyond the realm of possibility that there could be any other God. Hear it, ye men and women of America who in an enlightened land and age bow down in heathenish worship "before the god of gold, the god of self, the god of wine, the god of success, the god of fame, the goddess of pleasure, the god of licentiousness." The one true God says, "I am Jehovah . thou shalt have no other gods before me.'

II. The Truth Explained.

1. God is our Deliverer (Exod. 20:2). He who brought Israel out of the bondage of Egypt is the one, and the only one who can deliver men from the bondage of sin. If you think that a sinner is not in bondage read Titus 3:3 and Romans 6:16 and then read the verses following in both passages, and not only see but follow the way of deliverance.

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS M. S. writes: "I followed the directions in Book 2 for a fabric hat and it was so satisfactory that I wonder if you could tell me how to use a piece of woolen material that I have to make a hat for my little girl who is just starting to school?"

Here is a cunning schoolgirl hat that's easy to make. You need two pieces of goods-one for the hat and one for the lining. They may either match or contrast. Each piece should be 1-inch longer than the measurement around the largest part of the child's head. The depth of the pieces should be half their length. The diagram at the upper right of this sketch shows how to make a paper pattern for the hat. Cut a square piece of paper 1/2-inch wider and deeper than half the head measurement. Mark point A on the right edge half way between the top and bottom as shown. Points B and C are marked at the center top and bottom of the paper. The dotted lines are guide lines to help shape the curved lines between A and B and C and D. Point D is the center front of the top of the try_" "No, no!" Barbara cried. "I don't mean that. I mean, I really do know he didn't. I just realized that he couldn't have. It said in the paper that she was killed a little after one oclock. A night watchman heard the shot. Don't you remem-ber, Mr. Flood?" "That was in the paper," he assented. "But-"

She interrupted him. "But father was home before then!" she cried triumphantly. "We saw him! Professor Brace and I came up from Essex through the East Boston Tunnel, and father passed us in his car right outside the entrance. We followed his car, stayed behind him all the way out here." She appealed to Professor Brace. "You remember, don't you?"

The District Attorney looked at the other man. He asked in a curiously quiet tone, "Is that right, Professor Brace?' Brace, after a moment, said: Yes. Yes, that's correct."

"And what time was that?" "That was before one o'clock!"

Barbara said eagerly. "I looked at my watch as I came in the house, and it was quarter of one. So father couldn't have, don't you see? He was already at home before she was killed!"

The girl's eyes were shining, her cheeks bright with triumph. But Mrs. Sentry, while Barbara spoke, felt all her muscles slowly contract. Her body was like an empty shell, and her ears rang.

She heard, as though at a great distance, District Attorney Flood tell Barbara in an even tone that this was very interesting and would be considered; but more real to her than Mr. Flood's words were other words, spoken that night when Arthur came home from his bridge game, and she half woke to greet him, and asked him, murmurning drowsily, "What time is it?" And-she remembered with a terrible and conclusive certainty-he had replied, "Quarter past eleven." But if Barbara told the truth, then | ly.

Her birthday in September! Miss Wines had worked for her husband's firm during the summer; and that mysterious absence of which the papers spoke, when the girl was supposed to have gone to New Hampshire, was in August; and then when they all came home from York Harbor for Mrs. Sentry's birthday, in September, Mr. Sentry gave her that beautiful emerald and signed himself "Your Husband." She understood now. He must have sought to ease his conscience so, and she thought with more tenderness than she had felt toward him for years how unhappy he must have been since then, playing a part, suffering through sleepless nights. Insomnia. I wonder, she thought, whether I'll have insomnia now. I slept last night, a little. I'm still half asleep. It doesn't hurt, so I must be. Why am I so sure Arthur did it? If I were a young girl, his bride, I should be loyally, blindly sure of his innocence; but I'm an old woman, old, old. Barbara is sure he is innocent. Does

Mary know, I wonder? And Phil? I wonder whether I shall see Arthur today. I can't help him. It's the children who need me now. I wonder if they're awake. What time is it? I ought to keep my traveling clock on the bedside table here, so that if Mr. Flood asks me how I knew it was quarter past eleven, when Arthur came home that night, I needn't say Arthur told me. needn't actually lie. I can say, "There was a clock on the table between our beds." I needn't say I looked at it.

She rose at the thought and went to fetch the clock from her dressing-room and set it on the table here beside her bed, but she did not lie down again. The household, the servants, would be excited when they saw the morning papers. She must control the situation. She dressed, and rang, and when Nellie came, pale and shaking, she asked crisply, "Are the children down, Nellie?"

"Philip is." "Neither of the girls?" . "No."

Will you ask Oscar and Emma to come up here, please, and you come with them." Five minutes later they filed in and faced her. Oscar stood stolid-Nellie wrung her wretched She said, "You don't need to con-vince me, Dean!" But she was thinking: So Arthur has lied to Dean Hare as he lied to me. I suppose he thinks-hopes-no one saw him come home.

Then Phil returned to say breakdining-room, sat down. "I must see Arthur today," she said.

"In fact he told me to ask you to have stolen it." wait; that he wouldn't be there long, had been filed off later than other parts; so he knew it had been made out of a key originally meant for another lock. He asked the customer whether he wanted an exact duplicate; and the customer said Yes."

He hesitated; but no one spoke, and he concluded: "They brought this chap to Headquarters last night. He picked your father out of a lineup as the man who had the key made.'

Mrs. Sentry said nothing; but Phil cried, "Probably the police tipped him who to pick!" Mrs. Sentry thought: Phil is so young. Mr. Fisher told us all this. Phil must remember.

by "feelers" which guide the main bolt to its objective, according to Karl B. McEachron, high voltage ena in lightning conduction. electrical engineer, writes a Schenectady (N. Y.) United Press correspondent.

The lightning stroke which appears to be a single one-way discharge is met part way by a small flash originating from the earth, he said. This preliminary discharge attracts the main stroke and draws it to the ground.

In some cases the leader stroke shoots upward to a cloud, to be immediately followed by several successive flashes over its exact path from the sky downward, McEachron said.

The discoveries of lightning habits were made through a three-year observation of the Empire State building in New York city, the best and most frequently struck lightning conductor that could be found.

The study was conducted by the General Electric company to solve the problem of better protection to transmission lines and other electrical apparatus.

> "We learned that leader strokes which precede all lightning flashes move toward the ground in a series of hesitating steps of approximately 200 feet in length," McEachron explained. "The streamers progress this short distance, substantially die out, and after a wait of a few millionths of a second proceed in a second step, repeating until they reach the earth. Succeeding flashes move without hesitation at speeds of 10,000 miles per second or faster." Dr. B. F. J. Schonland in South Africa, using a camera similar to the one used in the New York experiments, also discovered that the usual lightning discharge consisted of a leader stroke, which was followed by a main stroke from the ground upward to cause the visible

It was for this reason that Jesus replied to the question of the scribe as He did, directing the whole life of man into love toward God and his fellow man.

It is worthy of careful note and emphasis in our teaching that the recognition and appreciation of this truth on the part of the scribe brought him near to the Kingdom of God, but not into it. He was "not far from," but he was not in it. It is terrifying to think how close men may come to entering

By L. L. STEVENSON

Original plans for Rockefeller Center included a new building for the Metropolitan Grand Opera company. The old structure on Broadway between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets, was admittedly inadequate to hold audiences who desired to listen to the tops of the musical world. It was out of date and out of repair. Traffic conditions were bad for occupants of the golden horseshoe who came to their music in limousines. The Rockefeller Center site had many advantages. Nevertheless, grand opera remained on Broadway and the site set aside for it in Rockefeller Center remained vacant. It hasn't been idle, however. Since the opening of the development on which more than $100,000,000 has been spent, it has served as a parking lot.

A recent announcement was that the costly site, lying between Fortyeighth and Forty-ninth streets and the Center theater and the Plaza, where tourists stop to look at the fountain popularly known as "the man on the flying trapeze," is to go to work in earnest. Instead of an opera house there is to be a garage, one 13 stories in height and in no way resembling usual storage houses for motor cars. Six stories will be devoted to that purpose, three of them underground. Around the storage space will be stores on the street level and above them business places and offices. The architecture is to be in keeping with the rest of the Center. The new garage will be different from all others in mid-Manhattan also. The estimated cost is $3,000,000. . . .

Another and vastly more important building project, which got under way recently, is over in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn. There one of the worst slums in the entire city is to be cleared away and in its place are to be erected modern homes for 6,000 families. They will be six stories in height and equipped with elevators. The construction will be in the form of L's, T's and crosses, thus affording a maximum of light and air. By the use of glazed tile, new pipe and cable in-stallations, arrangements of lighting fixtures and other construction economies, the builders hope to provide homes which will rent for $5.25 a room a month. The enterprise is a $33,000,000 project sponsored by the city and the federal government and the rentals are to be lower than the Williamsburg and Harlem houses, earlier low-cost housing CHARDON, OHIO.—Call for West-ern Reserve university scientific projects.

In addition to modern conveniences, practically unknown in the Red Hook section in the past, the houses are to have clinics, isolation health centers, recreation noms. rooms for adults as well as nursery rooms and schools. And all that's a mighty far cry from the Red Hook of the past, my impressions of Peg Leg Lornegan and others long since gone to whatever rewards they may have had coming.

WASHINGTON. - Before high ranking army and navy officials and foreign military attaches a new and revolutionary method of constructing concrete fortresses, bombproof dugouts, and machine gun nests was demonstrated at the bureau of standards.

The audience witnessed the construction of a 50-ton pill box fort with a so-called "vacuum" concrete. The fort was ready for use four hours after the concrete was poured. Ordinarily it takes several days for concrete to harden.

Point to Unusual Speed.

The process was used in the demonstration for the first time for mili-tary purposes. Witnesses agreed that the fortress of the future, particularly in those nations more interested in defensive than in offensive warfare, will take advantage of the unusual speed and strength possible by means of this most recent development.

The process was invented by Karl P. Billner of New York city. It has already been used to advantage in the construction of concrete houses, in public highways, and for other purposes, but it is expected to be of special service in time of war. By means of "vacuum" concrete, bombproof shelters and fortresses could be built in one evening and harden and be ready for warding off attack at dawn on the following morning, Billner said. Not only does this new process save time in construction and otherwise, he added, but the resulting fortress is much stronger than those of other types and the cost of construction is less. Standard Mix Used.

In the demonstration standard cement, sand and broken stone, mixed with water, were poured into forms or molds at 9 a. m. These forms were of wood, although in standardized construction they probably will be of thin steel or aluminum sheets, with the proper bracing, so as to be very light and easily transportable, in sections.

After the concrete mixture was poured into the molds, the vacuum process was applied and at 1 p. m. the forms were removed.

Briefly, the vacuum process is a method of removing from concrete, after it has been placed in the forms, all excess mixing water-the water which has been added to make the concrete liquid enough to flow readily into the forms, Billner explained.

Entomologists Capture Insects With Beer Mix

WASKESIU, SASK .- Two enterprising entomologists, C. C. Shaw and Don. Milne, have hit upon a novel idea for picking up beetles, bugs and butterflies in this northern Saskatchewan summer resort.

They paint trunks of trees with a mixture of beer and brown sugar. Later in the evening, by flashlight, they gather a rich harvest of "drunken" insects.

Best Scholars Called Men Without Wealth

HALIFAX, N. S .- Poor men make better scholars than the rich, Prof. A. B. MacDonald, of St. Francis Xavier School associations, said at a meeting here. "Below the $2,500 income we find mental alertness, mental vig-or and alertness," he said. "Above $2,500 there is less receptiveness; there is sluggishness, a tendency to accept things as they are."

After the storm the tree becomes dry and remains so until ready for another forecast.

William Facey, who lives in the Timm home, and Timm discovered significant is the fact that the build- tired farmer and a neighbor of ings will occupy only 26 per cent of the land area. Then, too, house-long farm experience, he never had

The tree was struck by lightning several years ago, and the course of the lightning shows plainly. Whether this has anything to do with the tree's propensities is not known.

"Maybe some of these college and weather bureau scientists can figure it out," Tim said. "I can't and they're welcome to the problem."

Study of Malaria Goes Forward With Canaries

ATLANTA .- Beneath the golden feathers of the singing canary may lie the secret of new methods of treating malaria, according to the theory of Emory university medical students.

Officials of Emory have announced a $3,000 grant from the Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., to continue present research work on canaries. Dr. Elizabeth Gambrell, instructor in bacteriology, will direct the research, which was begun several months ago on a preliminary $1,000 award from the research organization.

Dr. Gambrell said that the research would be conducted on more than 50 canaries. The canary is the only animal known to be affected by malaria in the same way as human beings.

Shelter Belt Aids Quail

MANGUM, OKLA .- A 50 per cent increase in quail in this area can be attributed, believes Sam Byars, federal nurseryman, to the govern-ment's "shelter belt" program of tree planting. Quail are massing in the tree strips, Byars said.
