N EW YORK. - Barring world champion prizefighters, Thomas E. Dewey probably has received more publicity than any other Dewey Lulled American of his years. He is only Bossy With 36, but almost everything about him is old news. 'Il Traviata'

However, as the New York Republicans nominated him for governor, the whole country seems hungry for information about the cock of his eyebrow, his gold fillings, if any, the set of his suspenders and whether he runs down the heels of his shoes. Friends from the West and Far West have told me, and some have written, that there is more talk about Thomas E. Dewey for President than about all the other possibilities put together. These informants say the talk is not partisan - that New York's young racket-buster is becoming the national symbol of a "happy issue out of all our afflictions."

This reporter hereby hands him the agrarian vote: on the banks of the Shiawasse, near Owosso, in the state of Michigan, he was a demon cow milker. People would come for miles to see and hear him milk a cow. Musically gifted, he could make the powerful milk stream ring a tune in the pail as he sang "La Boheme," or "Il Traviata." His father ran a country newspaper.

As to the industrial East, he is a cagey bridge player who never takes his partner out of a business double. He is a squash player in winter, and a tennis player in summer. He sings baritone, a safe vocal as well as political range, and was trained as an opera singer, first in New York on a musical scholarship. There's nothing showy about him and he never makes a play to the press coop.

He appears to be, to this observer, the answer to Stuart Chase's plea for a new kind of politician. In a magazine article printed about a year ago, Mr. Chase tore all political dogmas to tatters and said we would get nowhere until we began to isolate and attack given problems and settle them according to their immediate requirements, without regard to their political or philosophical context. Big town racketeering is one of those "given problems" and then some. It is interesting to note that, in his acceptance speech, Mr. Dewey renounced "political dogma."

On most of the specific political Issues of the day, Mr. Dewey's opin-ion has not been revealed. He has ago the U. S. was similarly strong in China. Reason: European and Asiatic nations have always been busy at home, not daring to risk invasion of the Western hemisphere. But since Japan became supreme in the Far East, the U.S. has been forced to expand her Pacific fleet. If this was cause for worry, a much greater cause is the Munich pact which sheared friendly France and Britain of their power. can now be regarded as a serious threat to U. S. commerce. Of the two, Germany will be a greater threat because she has adopted an aggressive foreign expansion program, moreover because her new Sudeten territorial acquisitions bring glassware, leather and textiles into the Reich for export sale. Focal point of German expansion will be Latin America, which last year gave the Reich 14 per cent of its trade, compared with 34.7 per cent to the U.S. In this trade war, it has become apparent the U.S. will attempt to sell South Americans on democracy, while Germany sells them Naziism. Today, as the war gets under way, the U. S. appears to hold an upper hand.

Long favored in South America through her Monroe doctrine, the U. S. has just helped preserve Western hemisphere peace by joining in settlement of the 100-year-old Chaco dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia. Indirectly, the U. S. could place another feather in her cap when Brazil called home its ambas-Berlin, apparently breaking off diplomatic relations with the Reich. This is President Getulio Vargas' answer to Chancellor Hitler's efforts for Brazilian Nazification.

issimo Chiang Kai-shek, she will be disappointed. Though 70 per cent of China's war materials have come through Canton, General Chiang has foreseen that city's fall and developed four alternative lines of entry. Two railroads enter from Indo-China and highways can carry supplies from both Burma and Russia. Moreover, Chinese are resigned to a 10-year struggle if necessary. Far more likely than Chinese capitulation is a breach between Great Britain and Japan. Not since the siege of Japan has the British lion been so imperiled. Canton lies a scant 75 miles from the crown colony of Hong Kong, whose prosperity depends largely on trade with Canton. The maddening air of righteousness surrounding Japan's invasion of South China, coupled with warnings to Britain, France and the United States, shows clearly that Japan now considers herself the Far East's No. 1 power.

Races

During the World war Great Britain helped liberate Palestine's Arabs from the Turks, thereby winning Arabic support against Turkey. Although Arabs expected they would be rewarded with complete domination over Palestine, England's Lord Balfour led a successful campaign to establish part of the Holy Land as a haven for the wandering Jew.

Since then world Jewry has sent 400,000 persecuted Hebrews to Palestine, investing $385,000,000 to build a national home. But disgruntled Arabs have protested with warfare, keeping harried Britain busy policing the land over which she was given a mandate in 1923. While blood ran freely through the streets of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Jaffa, Colonial Secretary of State Malcolm MacDonald has led a commission in search of amicable settlement. Meanwhile, Jew-hating Germany and Italy have given restrained cheers for the Arabic cause, cheers that need no longer be restrained since the Munich peace treaty has placed Great Britain on the defensive. Faced with threats of Italo-German intervention unless Arabs were given a square deal, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has been reported ready to "sell out" the Holy Land's Jews.

Thoroughly miserable, Prime Minister Chamberlain and Secretary MacDonald (son of the late Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald) were bombarded with protests the minute their weakened position was rucently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is?

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

Cause of Other Eye Disorders

Night blindness is not the only eye disease caused by an improper diet. Xerophthalmia or conjunctivitis, characterized by excessive dryness of the eyeball, has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

S.-British trade pact, a sentiment resulting from the rebirth of isolationism which followed Mu-nich's peace treaty. The greatest stumbling block is that isolationism calls for strengthened trade relations with Canada, a plan blocked by Great Britain's renewed efforts to tighten her dominion bonds. A U. S.-Canadian trade treaty is bound to hurt American agriculture; a U. S.-British treaty will hurt American manufacture. Therefore economists are betting the "most favored nation" agreements now pending with Canada and Britain will never be consummated.

Meanwhile, Germany is cocksure of her position. Busily flitting from one European capital to another, Economics Minister Walter Funk has completed bilateral accords based on barter of goods with several Balkan states. In this way the Reich hopes to increase its economic orbit. But when Minister Funk optimistically announced he would next attempt a barter treaty with the U. S., state department officials made it clear that optimism is unfounded.

A large part of China's war supplies for defending Hankow have come up the railroad from rich, southerly Canton. Moreover, Cantonese troops have shown remarkable bravery, reportedly wiping out 10,000 Japs near Tehan early this month. Although Canton has therefore been a thorn in Japan's side, Tokyo feared to move into South China lest Great Britain might object. But since Britain capitulated in the Czech crisis, Japan has become bolder. Result is the landing of 35,000 troops near Canton for any or all of three purposes: (1) to force frightened Cantonese to with-

Jewry to such an extent that President Roosevelt has been deluged with pleas to intervene. Thus Great Britain risks losing a measure of badly needed U.S. sentiment if she capitulates to Arabic demands.

As Prime Minister Chamberlain prepared to act, the least harmful settlement Hebrews could expect was a heavy restriction on Jewish immigration to the Holy Land. Even this, commented Jews, would almost make Great Britain an accessory to the Italo-German race persecution program.

To Infection One of the strange occurrences in medicine is to see an individual with a number of decayed teeth and also with infection at the roots of his teeth, yet he is free from rheumatism or arthritis, while another individual, crippled with rheumatism, becomes free of pain and stiffness by the removal of a single tooth with just one of its roots infected. The explanation is that the individual with the decayed teeth and infected roots is either immune or proof against arthritis-his tissues just refuse to become infected-or the organisms, despite their number, are not very virulent. Should this individual with the infected teeth (or tonsils, or sinuses) have a severe cold, an attack of influenza or any other infection that requires some of the body's fighting forces to overcome it then with much of his power of resistance being used to fight this cold, he may be stricken with rheumatism from the infected teeth, tonsils or sinuses.

May Enter Blood Stream.

Professor Myer Solis-Cohen, Philadelphia, in Medical World, says: 'Focal infection (where the infection starts at one focus or point and causes trouble throughout the body) may exist for several or many years in a latent (quiet or harmless) form. Although this infection has caused trouble at its starting point (teeth, tonsils, sinuses) by overcoming the body's tissues at this point, the general resistance of the body is still maintained, so that the organisms escaping from this one starting place-teeth, tonsils, sinuses-into the blood are destroyed before they can do any harm. Eventually, however, particularly after an acute illness or some special strain, the patient's general resistance fails. The organisms then not only infect the nearby tissues but they and the poisons they manufacture may be carried by a part of the blood system (lymphatics) to still other tissues. Now when these organisms and their poison products enter the blood stream they may survive long enough to reach distant tissues and organs - heart, knee joint, gall bladder - whose local resistance happens to be lowered from any cause. The organisms multiply at this point and create toxins. "It is in this manner that most is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

That is the condition known as "night blindness." And it accounts for the fact that a large proportion of serious motor accidents oc cur at night. Victims of this deficiency disease are first blinded by approaching headlights, then cannot quickly readjust themselves after the oncoming car has passed. Their ability to drive safely is subsequently impaired for they cannot clearly see the road ahead, and they may miss dangerous curves, pedestrians or other vehicles.

A Common Complaint Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that ocular disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 26 to 79 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness.

The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild

Fishermen's Memorial Day

An annual memorial service for fishermen who have been lost at sea is a traditional ceremony of Gloucester, Mass. Every year in August at the memorial service the names of those who have been drowned that year are read and relatives of loved ones of the deceased throw flowers in the sea. After the service fishermen gather and after tossing their flowers on the waters repeat in unison: "In memory of all the seamen, who through all the years have found a last vesting place in the waters that wash every shore, we lovingly strew these flowers."

City Life: Each evening at twi-light, two gray-haired women come out of one of those old-law tene-ments away down on the lower East Side and sit on the shabby stoop with their backs turned to each other. Both widows and living across the hall from each other on the third the nam from each other on the third floor, for years they were the clos-est friends, sharing everything from a batch of cookies to gossip picked up on the sidewalks, the grocer's or the butcher's. But in the house was a young man who was a practical joker. He would go to one with tales the other supposedly had told and then go back to the other with more stories. At first, neither would believe the slanders. But the poison took effect and they stopped speaking. That was five years ago. The joker has long since moved away. But the two former friends still sit silently on the stoop evening after evening.

Start: Frank Black, music direc-tor of the NBC, appeared with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra when he was only 10 years old. But not as an instrumentalist. Though he had never sung a note before, he applied for an audition as a boy so-prano with St. Clement's choir in Philadelphia. His enterprising disposition as well as his love for music won him a place and for the next two years he was a member of the organization which was often heard with the symphony orchestra. And while in a white surplice, little did he dream that some day he would stand on a podium and conduct a symphony orchestra as large as the one with which he was singing.

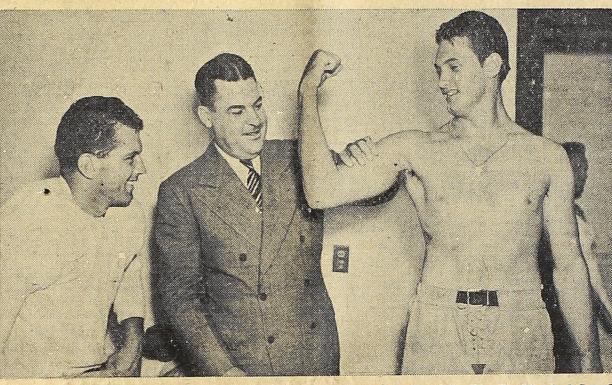

Slips: In one of Nadine Conner's scrapbooks is an account of her appearance at a church festival. The editor of the weekly paper wrote, "Miss Conner, in our opinion, today is one of the best singers." But when it came out in print, the "g" in singers had changed to an "n." Then there is one that Al Donahue prizes. He had entertained at a prison benefit and the notice was written, "He is one of radio's outstanding singers and players." But a typo made players, "slayers." Genevieve Ross keeps one which a reporter wrote: "Genevieve Ross stands out among Wooster folks who have made good Some say she is the best." Of course the "b" in best became "p." Alice Cornett's prize tells of an amateur contest which she reached late. One comment was, "The amateurs were swell but Judge Alice Cornett was missing for half an hour." And in some manner, "missing" became 'hissing.'

.... Noise: A New Yorker, who sought to get away from it all by buying a place up in Connecticut, is back in his midtown apartment. The few ocky acres at first seemed like the fulfillment of a dream. That was while he was still living in the city and a somewhat costly house was taking shape. But after he moved out to the quiet countryside he maintains that he found it anything but that. A swampy place not far away was the home of a large colony of frogs that kept him awake just about all night. Then when he final-ly did drop off, the birds started in and he popped up wide-eyed. One month was enough. So he sold out at a loss and came back to where there are only taxi collisions, night clubs turning out singing patrons early in the morning, fire sirens and other night sound to which his ears long since became dulled.

U.S. Subs to Be Air-Conditioned

New Equipment Expected to Keep Crew Fit; Extends Cruising Range.

WASHINGTON.-Air-conditioning for submarines will make America's undersea fighting force a much more potent weapon in any future war.

The efficiency of submarines depends primarily on the fitness of the men who man them and their comfort during long cruises at sea, says Lieut. Albert B. Behnke of the United States navy medical corps, explaining the latest submarine equipment.

Only the fittest officers and enlisted men are chosen for submarine duty, he adds in a report to the military surgeon, and only about half of the navy's personnel measures up to the stiff medical requirements. These requirements are as rigid as the qualifications for aviation duty. Air-Conditioning Vital.

Few persons realize the difficulties under which submarine crews work and the necessity for such advances as air-conditioning. The men must re-breathe the same air for periods of from 3 to 24 hours-perhaps longer under war conditions.

They must live in very cramped quarters, in which all that a sailor owns must be stored in a space about the size of his own body. A bath is something almost unheard of on a submarine at sea. When the vessel is submerged, particularly in tropical waters or during the summer, the temperature may rise to 100 or above and the humidity increase to the dewpoint, so that sweating (which cools the body) is impossible.

Unhygienic Conditions.

"Submarine duty exposes men to crowded, unhygienic conditions of make the waistline slim and neat, living, particularly to varying climatic factors, and to increased res- ample, the sleeves very short, and piratory tract infection resulting from rapid climatic changes and from re-breathed air," Dr. Behnke fullness at the hem. possible operation at sea for in- percale, calico, or gingham. creased periods of time, he adds. This will extend the crafts' range and, accordingly, their effectiveness in meeting an enemy vessel at a distance from American shores.

The use of cooling and dehumidifying equipment and the provision of oxygen from tanks to replace exhaled carbon dioxide will enable submarines to run submerged probably for periods of days, thus adding another factor to their effectiveness in attack or defense.

Even with these aids, the men who operate submarines must be trained and "conditioned" for a period of at least 10 days between cruises, says Dr. Behnke.

Soldier for 31 Years Now Becomes a Citizen

COVINGTON, KY .- For 31 years Frank Frank has served in the United States army, but only recently did he become an American citizen. Frank, a warrant officer and band leader at Fort Thomas, appeared before Federal Judge John H. Druffel last month, renounced his allegiance to his native Rumania and pledged it to the United States.

Frank, who served with the army of occupation in Germany, had failed to take advantage of a privilege accorded foreigners that enlisted in the army whereby he could have appeared before immigration authorities in company with a superior officer and won citizenship. With that channel closed, Frank went through the regular prescribed routine.

Circus Man Says Movies

Wrong on Wild Animals ORANGE PARK, FLA .- Dramatic scenes depicted by the movies of hunting wild animals are highly exaggerated and quite often impossible, according to Col. P. J. Mundy, former owner and manager of Mundy's circus. "Seldom are lions hunted in forests but in flat, open country where the brush is chin-high and the chief danger to the hunter is in wounding a lion," Mundy said.

"Hunting tigers is far more interesting and exciting, but the real test is in training wild animals. "A lion is never tamed, but by repetition of acts is well trained. Dope is never used in training, as the audience often suspects."

Arctic Climatic Changes The evidence that climatic conditions have changed in the Arctic and Antarctic zones is mainly geologic. It is believed that tropical conditions existed as far north as Greenland between the glacial epochs. Remains of animal and vegetable life have been found in these regions which indicate that once the climate was warm enough to permit of their growth and existence.

Owl's Mating Song

The mating song of the great horned owl is a succession of resonant bellowings in a single key-"Whoo, whoo, hoo-hoo, who"-quite variable as to length and form. Besides this the bird occasionally indulges in a sepulchral laughter, hoo, hoo, hoo, hoo, hoo, hoo, hoo-which arouses anything but mirthful feeling in the listener.

"...to find a better thing or a better way"

An 1884 scene in the Bell Laboratories, birthplace of telephone progress.

Back of the high quality of telephone service you enjoy today in Michigan is the group of several thousand scientists and experts in the Bell Telephone Laboratories and at the headquarters of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, whose sole job it is "to find a better thing or a better way."

The telephone employees who are engaged day by day in maintaining a high standard of telephone service are doing their part, and a most important part, in increasing the quality and keeping down the cost of service; but progress is assured by having a large group of scientists and experts devoted exclusively to seeking ways and means of making the service better and cheaper.

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former tempo-rary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's. Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle. Mr. and Mrs. Sen-try call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implica-tions and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during Aug-ust. He goes home to help. Sentry is ar-rested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the pobbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed rested and booked for murder. Dan Fisner explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time be-tween the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road. Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box forced open and his gun, which only his father knew of, gone. Meanwhile, the police find the stolen money burned in the furnace. Mrs. Sentry sees her husband, who swears his innocence, and tells her he had known of the robbery and murder the night before, but failed to call the police, and came home at 12:30. Phil and his mother are doubtful of Sentry's innocence, but keep silent.

CHAPTER V

-11-While they were at lunch, a little later, Dean Hare telephoned to say that Inspector Irons had decided to postone his interrogations, so for the afternoon they were free. Mary was to see Neil Ray when he went off duty; and as they finished lunch, Linda came to propose that Phil go for a drive with her.

"I have to go out to those mills in Norwood to get some homespun," she explained, "and I hate to go alone.'

Phil looked to his mother for consent. "Go along," she said. "Barbara and grandmother will be here." So Phil went, and found a measure of peace and forgetfulness in being thus with Linda. But when she brought him home, in late afternoon, he was reluctant to face them all; instead of going directly indoors, he walked around the house. He heard voices by the muddy stream beyond the pergola and went to look down over the bank. Policemen were there in boats with things like hinged rakes, dragging up debris from the bottom of the stream. One of them saw him and spoke quietly to the others, and they all looked up, silently. Phil went back toward the house, trembling.

He found his mother alone. with Neil," she explained, "and I sent Barbara in to stay overnight with grandmother. Professor Brace called, drove them in." She smiled reassuringly. "So we'll have dinner together, you and hearth, her lips bitten red, her hands twisting. And Mrs. Sentry tried in an awkward way-they were not a demon-strative family-to take the girl in her arms, but Mary said, "Don't, please!" So Mrs. Sentry sat down. "Shall we talk for a while?" she suggested. "Or are you sleepy?"

"Sleepy!" The word was fierce with scorn. "How is_Neil?' '

"Very sensible!" Mrs. Sentry said, "I knew he would-help you." "Oh-help? Of course!"

"He didn't, then?"

Mary said: "Don't worry about Neil! We were practically engaged, but I told him tonight we must forget that. That after all this, I was hopelessly disqualified to be a missionary's wife, even in China!"

Mrs. Sentry waited. Mary said in flat voice, passionless as ashes, 'He agreed with me." After a while her mother spoke, returned with them-they heard newsboys calling late editions, and one bawling youngster jumped on the running-board when they stopped for a traffic light to thrust a paper before their eyes. A headine, inches high. "Sentry Indicted." Mrs. Sentry closed her eyes, and the light changed, and the car leaped ahead. At home a knot of people scattered from the entrance to the drive, gaped at them as they drove in. Phil saw that one woman had broken off a branch of rhododendron, and he thought bitterly: For a souvenir! Indoors, Barbara asked in a shaken whisper, "Mother, what does 'indicted' mean?" Mrs. Sentry said, "Hush, dar-ling!" And she asked, "Do you know where Mary is, whether she'll be home to dinner?" She felt cold as iron. Barbara shook her head. "I think Mary's rotten!" Phil said "We've got to-stick to-tentatively. "I wish I could-hold | Mrs. Sentry explained. "Neil Ray broke their engagement." you in my lap, dear, as I did when you were little and were hurt."

not do it! Of course, he had lied to her about the time, that night, knowing she was too sleepy to recognize his lie; but naturally he would lie, after that dreadful moment at the office when he found the dead girl. Found her dead! Mrs. Sentry clung to that thought stubbornly, insisting to herself that Arthur did find the girl dead as he had told her, refusing to remember the panic in his eyes, refusing to remember his tone when he reiterated his assertion that Miss Wines was dead before he found her. Found her dead, he said; and was afraid, and left her and came skulking home.

And Mrs. Sentry hoped suddenly that he would not tell the District Attorney that story of chance dis-covery and craven flight. Anything was better than that shame. She thought that if he did not speak they might find some woman-any woman-to swear that he had been with her during the hours when the murder occurred. That crime at least would be robust, masculine; not weakly cowardly . . .

But of course anything, any story true or false that could be made credible, was better than to see him convicted of murder. If that happened, she could never lift her head again. The pride she lived by was worth fighting for. Even with lies! Linda came in as they finished dinner, and Mrs. Sentry welcomed her, and proposed a rubber of bridge. She clung to Linda's friendly loyalty. Linda agreed; but Bar-bara would not:

"I'm sorry," she said, trying to smile. "I'm afraid this is my might go on with the list almost indefinitely. Many men or women evening for-letting go." Phil would have gotten their own need and responsi-

They heard Barbara's door close, upstairs. Mrs. Sentry rose and they went into the living-room, and talk ran somehow, and a little after nine, a car grated on the drive.

"Professor Brace?" he echoed. He remembered warily that the District Attorney had questioned Professor Brace, but he did not say so. "Funny for him to-hang around."

"I suppose he's naturally interested. The scientific mind, you know." Her tone was edged. "We're under his microscope, like insects."

"He introduced himself to the reporters," Phil recalled. "Almost as if he-wanted publicity."

"I see you don't like him either." "Oh-I like him all right."

Dinner was served and they went in; and since they might here be overheard they spoke of other things. Phil talked at random, steadily, fighting down his thoughts: that his father had taken his gun, that his father had tried to burn money in the furnace, that his father was a murderer! He must not let his mother guess his dreadful certainty.

And she, as intent to hide her thoughts from Phil as he was to conceal his from her, helped him keep talk alive; but when they left the table and went into the livingroom and were alone, silence crushed them; and Phil noisily lighted a fire, and Mrs. Sentry telephoned old Mrs. Sentry's apartment to say good night to Barbara. She reported to Phil, when she left the phone, that Professor Brace had reflected. "Like that German tutor at the foot of the table in 'War and acter in your mind afterward."

Phil did not remember. "But speaking of Russians," he suggested, "how about some Russian Bank?" So they played till Mrs. Sentry said at last that they might as well go to bed. The house seemed very big and empty when they went upstairs, and parted for the night. Later, Mrs. Sentry, still awake, heard Mary come in; but the girl did not come upstairs, so her mother went down, a dressing-gown over

"And that young professor, Mr. Brace, dropped in," Mrs. Sentry persisted. "He took mother and Barbara to town."

"You're driving me crazy!" Mrs. Sentry sighed wearily, surrendering. "I'm sorry about Neil, Mary. Yet-if he couldn't-stand the gaff, isn't it a good thing to know?"

"No it isn't!" Mary cried. "What does that matter, if you love a man? What does it matter if he's weak, a sniveling coward, a drunkard, a thief?" Her eyes widened. "Even a murderer," she whispered. "You go on loving him just the same." And she cried: "Oh, why is love so deep a part of women, mother? Why can't we be reasonable, sensi-She spat the word. "Like ble!"

men!" And suddenly, seeing the older woman's face, she stopped, said then curtly: "Good night! I'm going to bed." The still room ached when she was gone.

When Mrs. Sentry came downstairs in the morning, Mary had departed, leaving no message; and the older woman felt a deep concern that was half despair. But she hid it from Phil. They stayed at home, together and yet each one alone. Phil wondered whether his mother knew that the Grand Jury might act today; he thought of a group of strange men, in a secret room somewhere, hearing evidence against his father, and trembled as though he were ill. He thought his mother might suggest that they go again to see his father, and knew that he himself had no strength to face the older man and to pretend he did not know what he did know. But his mother did not make the suggestion; and after lunch they drove in to see old Mrs. Sentry, and heard newsboys shouting the name of Sentry, and Mrs. Sentry shivered at last and said with a weary smile:

But the scientists in the General Research laboratories find to spin a fine thread no more 'than nothing but quartz will do for six one-thousandths of an inch in springs in making precise measurediameter. This is done by heating a fused quartz rod to more than 3,000 ments, says a writer in the New degrees Fahrenheit and pulling threads from the rod. The threads York Times.

Steel springs rust; quartz springs don't. Steel springs are affected by changes in humidity; quartz springs are not. Steel springs begin to lose their temper at about 250 degrees Centigrade (482 degrees Fahrenheit); quartz springs never lose their temper except at temperatures not attained in ordinary practice. A quartz spring has a sensitivity of one milligram. In other words, it can detect a difference of weight as little as one 28,350th of an ounce. And it always snaps back, after stretching, to exactly the original point of rest.

We may glorify God by being ready-yes anxious-to serve in the church. Our daily work is set aside on the Lord's Day not that we should be indolent, but that we should be free to do the Lord's work.

4. Contending for the faith (vv. 14-17). Jesus met the unjust criticism (which, by the way, was leveled at the poor woman because the critic feared Jesus) by a masterly appeal to the law of the Phar-isees (vv. 15, 16). But He did more than that, for He ably defended the rights of humanity as superior to the formalities of man-made law. The law is always supreme until six-mil size are saved. It isn't difficult to visualize why agriculture is the world's largest industry, after reviewing some of the figures just released by the Firestone Farm Service Bureau. These amazing facts were uncovered in connection with the Voice of the Farm moonday radio program.

(1) Five million dollars is the figure that's handed out in fair prize money each season. State fairs contribute about half of the figure and county fairs put up the remainder.

(2) C. P. Mills, St. Joseph, Illinois, farmer, has shown an extra profit of about $1,000 annually since he started keeping books on his farm operations. His bookkeeping takes about 208 hours a yearand that figures $5.00 an hour.

(3) In Nehawka, Nebraska, Harry Knabe paid $83.00 for a Hampshire brood sow. The $1750.00 he received for the first litter

Through the efforts of the Firestone Farm Service Bureau millions of farmers throughout the country are receiving authentic information concerning problems that confront them in the adoption of better farming practices. PULLETS DO BEST gins.

By H. H. Alp, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois -- WNU Service With higher egg prices in prospect, poultry producers will find it doubly important to see that pullets are in their winter quarters a week or 10 days before laying be-

Failure to observe this fundamental rule has many times resulted in lowered egg production when pullets are confined to winter quarters.

If the poultry house is in good shape, if the pullets have ample space, at least four square feet a bird, if the house is kept clean, if there are ample feeders and if a good ration is provided, wellmatured pullets can be confined to houses all the time and maintain good production.

In the event that the poultry house is not particularly satisfactory and where a good clean range with plenty of young tender green feed adjoins the house, pullets might well be allowed outside at least the latter part of each afternoon until snowy weather arrives. However, confinement following range privileges and during good egg production is likely to cause a drop in production. Once pullets become accustomed to being kept in they can be expected to lay well if properly fed. All things considered, pullets will usually do best when they are kept separate from older hens. Many poultry houses can easily be divided into two rooms by using poultry inches; materials needed; illustra- netting as a partition.

Off-Flavor of the Milk

Not From Well-Fed Cows If the milk from cows becomes off-flavor because they eat weeds, the remedy lies in providing feed other than that in the pasture, advises W. B. Combs, member of the St. Paul university farm dairy staff. Experiments at University farm indicate that cows may not eat enough weeds to flavor milk if other palatable feed is available. In working with well-fed cows, it was necessary to starve them to the weeds, says Combs. When pepper grass flavor occurs in milk or cream, the cow has likely consumed as much as 80 pounds of the weed daily, University dairymen believe, for it was difficult to obtain more than a mild off-flavor in milk or cream by feeding 60 pounds of pepper grass. This would indicate that when pepper grass flavor occurs in milk, the animals are receiving little more feed than the weed itself.

When cows eat such weeds as French weeds, wild onion and pepper grass, the milk they produce becomes almost worthless. This not only leads to a loss for the individual dairyman, but to the industry as a whole, since in products from weed-flavored milk and cream, the off-flavors are intensified. Combs reports that if pasture is supplemented by a grain ration, and some hay or silage, cows are less likely to eat enough weeds to flavor the milk.

Group Pullets by Ages

When pullets in the same stage of naturity are placed in the one pen they are much easier to handle, and produce better results than when birds of various stages of maturity are mixed. Because pullets all of the same age can be fed to better advantage, production will often climb to 70 or 80 per cent, because they are all laying at the same time. When production begins to drop the whole pen may be given the same change in management at the same time to bring the pullets back into laying. Thus a change to artificial lights, wet mash or any other phase of management may be made to better advantage.

Sore Shoulders on Horses

Clean cold water is very effective in washing sore shoulders on horses. Where animals are troubled with tender skin, advises the Indiana Farmer's Guide, it is possible to bathe the troubled areas noon and evening with a mild astringent wash as follows: Lead acetate 4 ounces and zinc sulphate 3 ounces in 1 gallon of water. This solution should be shaken well before using. At first an attempt should be made not to work the horse too hard for a time. Frequent curryings and brushing, clean collars, well-fitting collars and constant attention will do much to keep shoulders in working condition.

Laying House

One has a considerable investment in the pullets raised this year. And a little bug or two can upset the profit cart so easily, says Hoard's Dairyman. The laying house should be given a pretty thorough going-over inside. Use a lye solution or other good disinfectants. And don't neglect the feed hoppers and water utensils. They need a real cleaning up. Repair nests and put in new shavings or other nesting material. Shavings usually keep eggs cleaner than straw.
