IOSCO COUNTY CONTINUES IN G. O. P. RANKS

Moran Relected In Face of Spirited Fight by Bissonette

Iosco county continues predominantly Republican. There was no surge to the Republican ranks here, Tuesday, because very few had surged away from those very same ranks in former years. Two years ago Governor Frank Murphy received 1251 votes in the county. This year he received 1187. In 1936 Fitzgerald supporters here numbered 2117. Last Tuesday 2115 Fitzgerald votes were cast. Other state officials fared in a similar manner.

In the race for county offices where the Democrats had placed five candidates in the field, Frank Bissonette, of Oscoda, made a fine run for sheriff against John Moran, present incumbent. Bissonette put up a very spirited campaign for the office and was able to garner 1412 votes. Moran received 1848 votes. Bissonette carried four townships—Oscoda 253 to 167, AuSable 63 to 54, Tawas 120 to 106 and Sherman 85 to 55. Moran had very little to worry about, however, with 436 lead.

In the state, Fitzgerald upset the figures of many political dopsters. He went into the industrial sections, which were predominantly for Governor Murphy, with an outstate lead so large that it overcame the Democrat candidate with more than 87,000 majority. Other candidates for state offices trailed Murphy to the same defeat. Only eleven counties stood by Murphy.

Frank D. Fitzgerald, in an interview with the press said Wednesday, "The vote of confidence given me yesterday was most gratifying. I am deeply grateful to all who supported me. I pledge myself to give every ounce of my energy and ability to provide good government to Michigan."

The veteran Congressman Roy O. Harold C. Bellows with a two to one majority. Woodruff received more 40,000 votes. Bellows trailed with about 20,000.

In the fight for State Senator, Miles M. Callaghan, present incumbent, defeated John Doherty, of Clare, by a very large majority. The vote in Iosco county was Callaghan 2090, Doherty 1017. Alexander M. MacKay, of West Branch, was an easy winner in the contest for State Representative. Iosco county voters gave MacKay 2128 votes. The Democratic candidate, Henry J. Nehls, of Standish, received 954 here.

Irene Rebekahs Honor Past Noble Grands

Past Noble Grands night was celebrated Wednesday evening at the regular meeting of Irene Rebekah Lodge. A six o'clock dinner was served in the dining hall. The Past Noble Grands table was decorated with pink and green streamers, pink candles and pink asters. The Past Noble Grands entered in old fashioned costumes in remembrance of the early days of the Lodge. A few wore other masquerade postures. After the dinner the Noble Grand, Mildred Braddock, presented the Past Noble Grands with pink and green shoulder bouquets.

The guests were honored by the Noble Grand with an invitation to serve in the several offices for the evening. Twenty-two Past Noble Grands were present. Some gave talks on reminiscences of days when they were Noble Grands.

Fedora Nelem gave the delegates report of the Rebekah Assembly at Lansing. Mrs. Maude Klump also gave a report of the Rebekah Assembly Installation and events that followed honoring Noble Officers.

After lodge, the Past Noble Grands gave a little playlet. It was arranged as a mock wedding with all the characters generally figuring at a wedding. The costumes, the properties and the comedy enacted produced a great deal of applause and amusement. A social game of cards finished the evening's entertainment.

EQUALIZATION PETITION IS WITHDRAWN

Supervisors Reappoint Louis Phelan Poor Commissioner

Wednesday, Supervisor Victor Anderson, of Alabaster, withdrew his petition to the State Tax Commission asking for a review of the assessment rolls as equalized at the June session of the Board of Supervisors. The withdrawal was made during a hearing before State Tax Commissioner John Liebke at Wednesday's session of the board. In addition to the supervisors, representatives of the United States Gypsum company, National Gypsum company and National Gypsum company were present. It was the opinion of all contending parties that in the event of a long hearing, the tax rolls would be held up, which would then make an extended delay in the collection of this year's taxes and bring a hardship to the county, townships and schools.

Chief Examiner Fayette Harris of the Michigan State Tax Commission has been making an examination of the equalized assessments of the county for the past four weeks. During the review it appeared that the difficulties could only be overcome by a raise in the assessments on property owned by the U. S. Gypsum company, the Consumers Power company and the National Gypsum company. A hearing was called for Wednesday before State Tax Commissioner Liebke and the interested parties ordered to be present. After an informal discussion of the matter, Supervisor Anderson, who had objected to the equalization made last June, in so far as it affected Alabaster township, withdrew his petition. The matter now remains as approved by the majority of the board at the June session.

A reassessment of the county by the State Tax Commission is scheduled for next year.

The board resumed the work of the October session Thursday, the most important of which is preparing the budget of the county.

Louis Phelan was reappointed member of the County Poor Commission.

Iosco Bowling League

In the games bowled during the week ending November 5, Carlson's Grocery gained a few percentage points in their standings in the league by defeating the A and P. Co. team three games on October 31. But, this gain was wiped out when they failed to flash their real power in rolling off a postponed match with the Forest Service on November 4, and dropped three straight games, leaving them tied for 5th place in the league standings.

The Old Style team lost an opportunity to move into first place when they seemed to have difficulty in hitting their stride on Shuman's new alley in a regular scheduled contest with the Forest Service on November 1, and dropped two out of three games, leaving them tied with the Mobil Gas team for second place. By virtue of this victory, the Forest Service team found itself a little more firmly entrenched in the first place position.

The week ending November 5 marked the end of the first round of bowling in the Major League, all teams having bowled against each other in that contest, and with the start of the second round, the schedule was changed so that all teams bowl on Monday evenings, four teams starting at 7:15 and four at 9:15.

The remodeling work is about completed and four alleys are now in use.

Anyone interested in bowling on teams should stop in at Shuman's as several new teams are being organized.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—To administer the wages and hours law, which recently went into effect, Elmer F. Andrews left a job which gave him shorter hours and more wages. E. F. Andrews Has Taken on Full-Time Job

As New York state industrial commissioner, his salary was $12,000, and he could get by nicely with a seven or eight-hour day. This job pays $10,000, and, considering its volume of detail, its complications, its novelty and its controversial entanglements, it looks like a 24-hour shift for Mr. Andrews.

He is a professional engineer, born in New York, earnest and diligent, a glutton for detail, living moderately in Flushing with his wife and three children until his removal to Washington. In addition to his five years as state industrial commissioner, having succeeded his former chief, Miss Frances Perkins, in that office, his experience in wage and hour adjustments has been with industrial concerns and chambers of commerce.

After his graduation from Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, he was pilot in the U. S. army air service in the World war. He built railroads and factories in Cuba and engaged in construction work in New York City, planning civic improvements for the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, among other large-scale enterprises. In these years he engaged in compensation studies for various industrial groups. He was labor adviser for the National Labor board in the coal mining regions of Kentucky, Alabama and Pennsylvania.

Never belligerent, Mr. Andrews has been more of an arbitrator than a fighter, although he did take on certain employment agencies for a battle when he was industrial commissioner. He swings no nightstick, and tells the employers this isn't going to hurt them in the least. He is a New Dealer, but goes to Washington with perhaps more political detachment than any similarly placed official down there. Mr. Andrews is 48 years old.

J. H. Amen Distinguished Non-Joiner

THE late Newton D. Baker liked to discourse on the importance of "keeping intellectually liquid," and free from embarrassing alliances and commitments. John Harlan Amen, runner-up for Thomas E. Dewey in the national racket-busting tournament, is that way, too. Assigned to the sensational crime and graft clean-up in Brooklyn, he allows the reporters to drag out of him the admission that he "never belonged to anything."

As an assistant United States attorney, he has been netting racketeers steadily since the United States put teeth in the Sherman act in 1934. In view of J. Edgar Hoover's revelations as to the overlapping of crime and venal politics, Mr. Amen's political detachment is interesting. It is also interesting in our new realization that federalization of our government has been in part due to the failure of the states really to govern. Mr. Amen, like Mr. Dewey, has made his name in this overlapping zone of state and federal authority.

He is a grave, aloof aristocrat, with an academic background of Phillips-Exeter, Princeton and Harvard. He is a son-in-law of President Cleveland, with a residence in Park avenue, great intellectual and social reserve.

Jas. Marshall Alarmed Over Jobless Youth

THIS writer happened to be in Italy when the fascist regime was emerging and saw underprivileged youth joyously engaged in beating up hold-outs and slashing up the library of an old professor who had indiscreetly affirmed his faith in democracy. James Marshall, president of the New York board of education, is alarmed about our jobless youth, aged from 18 to 24. He says it was this condition which made fascism in other countries and we had better watch our step. He proposes a drastic national solution.

Mr. Marshall is a lawyer by profession, the son of the late Louis Marshall, one of the most eminent lawyers in New York's history. He was appointed to the board of education in 1935 and became president of the board last June. He is a genial, philosophical pipe-smoker, an alumnus of the Columbia school of journalism, and the author of a novel, "Ordeal by Glory."

Germany, Italy Dictate Terms Of Proposed Four-Power Pact

By Joseph W. La Bine

EUROPE LAYS THE GROUNDWORK FOR PEACE (See FOREIGN)

Foreign

The European domination won at Munich by Germany and Italy is but a prelude to Hitler-Mussolini plans for relegating France and Great Britain into second-rate status. Still to come is a four-power pact, but first must come the groundwork (See MAP) in which France and Britain are fattening themselves for the slaughter:

ENGLAND sees growing resentment toward Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who claims: "Our sole concern is to see that this country and her colonial communications are safe." But recalling successive British diplomatic defeats in Manchukuo, Ethiopia, Spain, China, Austria and Czechoslovakia, Chamberlain's foes wonder what he means by "safety." The real Chamberlain policy is appeasement of dictators at any cost. Thus the prime minister has forced a 345-133 approval of his Italian friendship pact in the house of commons. Thus, too, he has dropped Britain's elaborate defensive armament plan and urged the retirement of War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha. Once active in opposing Spain's civil war, Great Britain must now grant belligerent rights to both Loyalists and Rebels. Still unfulfilled are Hitler's demands for return of war-mandated colonies and a 3-1 air domination over Great Britain. Then he will be ready to make peace.

FRANCE, now torn by financial distress resulting from feverish rearmament, has welcomed Reichsfuehrer Hitler's offer of a 10 or 25-year truce. This is more groundwork behind the eventual four-power pact. In return for German renunciation of territorial claims (in Europe) against France, Paris would re-establish normal diplomatic relations with Italy (already accomplished) and actually turn away from the League of Nations to live at the mercy of dictators. Since France faces bankruptcy unless she can halt rearmament, any kind of peace is welcome. Still another sign of French capitulation is Premier Edouard Daladier's renunciation of Communist party support, a move which gains favor with Soviet-hating Nazi-Fascist states.

ITALY AND GERMANY are now sure of their positions that they find it unnecessary to ask British-French advice on handling Czechoslovakia's minority problem. Although the treaty of Munich stipulated four-power action on Czech minority problems, Foreign Ministers Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano have just transferred a large part of Czechoslovakia to Hungary. For Germany, recent weeks have opened a wedge permitting a successful economic "drive to the east." For Italy they have brought Franco-British recognition of her Ethiopian conquest, placing Premier Mussolini's battle-won empire in good standing with Europe's highest diplomatic society. At best the highly touted four-power pact will be a mere formality for totalitarian states.

Labor

Chief among objections to the national labor relations act are that it (1) makes the labor board prosecutor, judge and jury, and (2) permits employers, but not employees, to invoke its aid. Industry agrees generally that NLRB is fundamentally sound if these abuses can be corrected. Industry claims further that NLRB was designed to cover abuses practiced only by a minority of employers, that it fails to recognize that the average employer is honest. Changes in the act have been endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, U. S. Chamber of Commerce and National Manufacturers' association. But when John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization meets in Pittsburgh this month, NLRB will be defended against amendment proposals on the ground that changes would make the act impractical. Along with NLRB amendment proposals next January, congress will also get A. F. of L.'s plea for nonconfirmation of President Roosevelt's appointment of Donald Wakefield Smith, NLRB member whom Federalists say is pro-C. I. O.

International

America's demand that Japan maintain China's "open door" trade policy is based on the nine-power pact signed by China, Japan, the U. S., Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Portugal. Under this territorial integrity agreement, Western powers have enjoyed profitable trade with wealthy and populous China. The situation began changing in 1931 when Japan walked into Manchukuo, and has become a greater threat to Western trade interests since the Chinese war began. Today, with the richest part of China under Japanese control, Western powers have feared that nation might go the way of Manchukuo, becoming a Japanese protectorate entirely dominated by Japan.

SEIHEI IKEDA
New sacrifices must be made.

This fear has been justified by Japan's statement of policy in the Far East; interpreted in part as an answer to the U. S. "open door" demand. Japan has announced she intends to create a political and economic union of her empire with China and Manchukuo, which means that Western powers will be left on the outside. Since a foreign office spokesman has said no part of eastern Asia shall be "westernized," British, French and U. S. concessions in China are considered threatened.

Part of the "new deal" for the Far East includes a united front against Communism, which has become popularized in China the past 10 years. In this respect, and in making a final withdrawal from the League of Nations, Japan has lined up definitely with the other two "have not" nations, Italy and Germany.

Thus, more than a year after her undeclared war on China began, Japan has taken time out to tell the world why. But if Tokyo's statement of future policy has given heart to war-weary Japs, they have also been confronted with the situation's realities. Seihei Ikeda, Harvard-educated minister of finance, has warned that new sacrifices must be made to complete China's conquest and rebuild that nation. Although Japan will make immediate and drastic slashes in her domestic expenditures, the war budget will be hiked to push China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek out of the picture. When that is accomplished, Western powers might as well pack out of the Orient.

Transportation

In the opinion of three experts, American railroads have no right to cut 15 per cent from pay checks of 930,000 employees because: (1) it would be a stop-gap measure at best, only reducing the standard of living at a time when business in general is coming back; (2) the railroads' financial problem is still of short term aspect, having been critical less than a year; (3) although railway wages have not fluctuated so badly as wages in other industries, they have not been advancing proportionately so fast as in other industries; (4) a flat 15 per cent wage cut would not be equitable, since smaller roads—which are in worse shape—would derive less benefit than the larger, more prosperous lines.

This was the gist of a 40,000-word opinion handed down by President Roosevelt's emergency fact-finding commission after three weeks of deliberation. Board members: Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court; Dean James M. Landis of Harvard law school, once chairman of the securities and exchange commission; Professor Harry A. Millis, University of Chicago economist and former member of the national labor relations board.

Likelihood of enforcing the 15 per cent wage cut despite the commission's findings is considered small. But this does not lessen the plight of U. S. railroads, whose sorry condition will probably receive attention from next winter's congress. Since utilities are getting government aid under the guise of U. S. defense insurance (see below), moreover since the government plans to strengthen its defenses generally, railroad management will justify its request for federal aid on the same grounds. Already suggested is a revolving government fund for purchase of new equipment, plus a federal appropriation to pay one-quarter of railroad maintenance costs during a five-year test period. The American Association of Railroads' program includes (1) revision of ICC rate-making procedure; (2) low rate government loans; (3) abolition of government freight rates; (4) repeal of long and short haul rate law; and (5) new government regulations over competing water transportation such as the Mississippi river's newly-developed system.

Utilities

New Deal dams and power plants have offered public utilities serious competition, forcing down their prices and creating an unfriendly breach between electricity executives and the administration. One government power project not yet started is the St. Lawrence waterway, which President Roosevelt praised during September when the war scare first began. At that time, partly because he feared a lack of power reserve, partly because such a shortcoming might be good advertising for a St. Lawrence project, the President appointed a commission under Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war.

When the commission reported recently, it failed to mention St. Lawrence waterway plans. But it made bigger and more puzzling news by drawing executives of 14 large utilities to Washington and getting their promise to start expanding. If this was a peace gesture, it was overshadowed by explanations that utility expansion is an important step in the government's defense program and a healthy move toward business recovery.

The program: In 15 areas (all east of the Mississippi) utilities will spend an immediate $350,000,000, boosting it to $2,000,000,000 if power consumption increases normally the

Though generally regarded as an optimistic sign of recovery, utility expansion has been minimized in some quarters. The 1,000,000 new kilowatts in generating capacity is only a 3 per cent boost in U. S. power potentiality, considerably below the average increase in good business years.

Are Your Children Eating Clean Food? Asks C. Houston Goudiss—Points Out Hazards of Neglected Hand-Washing

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

"DO feed my Johnny correctly," a young mother said to me not long ago. "I give him milk and eggs and vegetables and fruits. And still he has colds! Would you mind telling me just how you reconcile that with all this talk about our newer knowledge of nutrition—and how it helps children to have better health?"

"I don't know," I answered. "But I wonder if it would be convenient for me to meet Johnny?"

"Certainly," she replied. "He'll be home from school in a few moments. He usually stops at the school playground for an hour or two, to play dodge ball with the other boys."

A moment or two later Johnny appeared. And a more grimy little lad I had seldom seen, certainly not outside of a neighborhood such as we sometimes describe as underprivileged!

Johnny's hands were dirty. His face was dirty. His knees and legs were streaked with mud. There was a lollipop in his mouth, though he quickly pulled it out when his mother made the introduction.

I could not refuse his hand when he put it forth in a gentlemanly gesture, though I noted that some of its visible soil, and doubtless some unseen germs, were transferred to my own hand during the greeting.

No sooner had we unclasped hands than a tremendous sneeze all but engulfed Johnny. And in spite of his almost adult manner at meeting a stranger, he had not learned to cover his nose and mouth during a sneeze. The lollipop was sprayed with moisture—and germs. Two seconds later, the child put the lollipop back in his mouth and continued sucking it!

And yet his mother could not understand why he had colds!

Contaminated Food

I have pointed out many times that in my opinion, a mother's foremost responsibility is to feed her children a diet that takes into account all the recent amazing discoveries of nutritional science. Only by so doing can she hope to give them a sturdy body with straight bones, strong responsive muscles, a good circulation and sound healthy nerves.

But the parent who permits her offspring to eat with unwashed hands and thus take countless germs into his body with every mouthful of food is scarcely giving that food a chance to build the kind of body and brain every mother desires for her child. On the contrary, she is risking the danger of grave illness. For the micro-organisms which cause 92 out of every 100 deaths from communicable diseases enter or leave the body through the mouth or nose.

Health Linked to Cleanliness

All of us have heard the expression: "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," though to observe some of our school children eating their lunches, one might have reason to believe that both mothers and school boards have forgotten this old copy-book maxim! But it bears remembering, every day and all day. For the writer who said that soap and civilization go hand in hand was not far from the truth. Certainly, soap-and-water cleanliness and good health are inseparably linked, and habits of personal cleanliness are a vital factor in safeguarding children against infections and disease.

We often compare a correct diet to the bricks with which a well-constructed building is erected. But if food represents the bricks with which the edifice of health is built, surely cleanliness is the mortar!

Keeping Everlastingly at It

Most babies are kept clean by their mothers because mothers know that they cannot keep their babies well if they do not keep them clean. If the same careful policy were followed in later childhood, it is almost certain that there would be less illness among children.

Unfortunately, many mothers relax their vigilance the moment their child is ready for school. In some cases, they believe that the child has had sufficient training and can be relied upon; in other instances, they believe, or hope, that further training will be supplied by the school!

A Mother's Job

But the mere fact that a child is old enough to go to school does not make him less of a child. Nor does it make his mother less of a teacher and guardian. On the contrary, it multiplies her responsibilities!

More than ever the child needs careful supervision of his health habits. For now he is in daily contact with countless other youngsters, from many types of homes. More chances to pick up germs! More chances to disseminate germs should he be permitted to go to school with the sniffles!

Mothers must increase, not decrease their vigilance. They must assume responsibility for the observance of all the habits that safeguard health. These include the daily bath; the daily change into clean clothing; the frequent washing of the hands, and always before eating; the twice-daily brushing of the teeth; regular elimination; regular hours for meals; and the necessary hours for outdoor play and for sleep.

What About the School?

Mothers must remember—and must emphasize to their children—that diseases may often be traced to unclean hands, and to germs sprayed in the air by persons having coughs and colds.

Teach your children to muffle every cough and sneeze in a handkerchief. And be sure they have a handkerchief handy for the purpose. Teach them to keep their fingers out of their mouths, likewise pencils and other objects. Teach them to wash the hands and face frequently.

If they are to carry out this last instruction, it is imperative that soap and towels be available in school washrooms, as well as at home. Investigate conditions at the school your child attends. If facilities are not adequate, do something about it. Either arouse other mothers to help rectify the omissions, or failing that—have your child carry soap and paper towels from home!

By teaching cleanliness to your children, by making it a regular part of their training, you will help to safeguard their health and the health of every other child with whom they come in contact in their daily lives.

- ★ Greta Suits Garbo
  - ★ Felix Gives and Takes
  - ★ Good, Hard Advice
- By Virginia Vale

PITY Greta Garbo! She has been criticized in the past for practically everything that she did, and when, on arriving in New York from Europe a short time ago, she did some of the things that she had been criticized for not doing, she promptly walked into more criticism.

People had jumped on her because she didn't go out more. So she went everywhere—to night clubs, theaters, restaurants. She walked down Fifth avenue and looked into windows. She had fun.

And she dressed as she likes to dress—in a tailored suit, flat heeled shoes, a classic felt hat. She wore her hair in a long, straight bob. And what a storm of criticism broke over her head!

She ought to dress up, said her critics. She ought to wear the kind of clothes that the department stores want to sell to other women, said they, (only not in so many words!). Because, if a glamorous person like Garbo could wear such simple clothes, all the other girls who want to be glamorous might decide that it was the woman, not the clothes, that counted.

And her hair! Here was all this controversy going on, about wearing the hair up instead of down, and all over town women were breaking down and having their hair done high—which delighted the hairdressers—and then along came Garbo with hers down, and uncurled! She ought to wear her hair high! She ought to wear clothes-horse clothes! She ought to be ashamed of herself!

And Garbo went right on wearing her hair down and wearing her comfortable old clothes, and looking beautiful and glamorous!

If you are in New York and go to the big movie houses on or near Broadway, the chances are that the other people in the audience will also be visitors from out of town. New Yorkers, most of whom used to live in smaller places, flock to their neighborhood movie houses, the kind they'd find in smaller cities. Much pleasanter!

"Sing in the shower if you are learning how to be a singer," says Felix Knight, who's become one of our most popular young tenors of the radio. "The tile walls of a bathroom lend resonance and size to the voice and this makes it easier to hear yourself sing." Neighbors who live on the same road in the Connecticut countryside with Felix report that they always know when he's taking a shower, so apparently he practices what he preaches.

According to Billy House, the CBS comedian, if you want to get on the air and stay on, all you have to do is be funny. Just as simple as that! He's been at the business of amusing people for more than 25 years—circus, vaudeville, musical comedy, motion picture and radio audiences have laughed at him. He admits that it's quite a trick to land on the air (complete with sponsor) in the first place, and that you have to work like a dog to keep the popularity that you've won, but he points to various headlines to prove that his advice is good.

There's Fred Allen, who's had the same sponsor since 1934. So has Jack Benny. Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor—any number of them have climbed to success on a ladder of laughs. And Bob Burns' record shows how fast you can shinny up that ladder, after years of trying, if you can just find the formula that makes people chuckle. Two others who have made a fortune by being funny are George Burns and Gracie Allen.

ODDS AND ENDS—It's a specially built microphone with an electric filter that makes "The Shadow's" laugh sound so creepy... When you see champagne in a movie it's really vinegar and bicarbonate of soda; if the actors drink it, it's soda pop... Horace Heidt is always looking for new voices, acts and faces; he's the only band leader who operates a complete stage show in connection with his band... If you'd like to have your favorite hymn sung on the air, write to Joe Emerson of NBC's "Hymns of All the Churches" program; it's broadcast every Thursday.

HEALTH

● Second growth tonsils sometimes cause serious trouble, authorities discover.

By Dr. James W. Barton

A PATIENT consulted his physician about a sore throat. The physician informed him that it was his tonsils that were likely causing the symptoms. The patient smiled and stated that if it were his tonsils he must have grown another pair as he had had his tonsils removed when he was 10 years old.

The physician made no reply but he knew that the tonsils had not been completely removed at that age or they would not have returned. When tonsils are removed at an earlier age than six years, our throat specialists tell us that they may sometimes return.

There are many patients with arthritis who have their teeth carefully examined by X-ray and other methods who never think of their tonsils being the cause because they had their tonsils removed in childhood. They admit that they have remnants of tonsils, or tags, still present in the throat, and also that they sometimes have a sore throat but there is such a small piece or pieces of the tonsils left that they could not possibly cause the arthritis or rheumatism.

In speaking of these "secondary" tonsils or tonsil stumps, Dr. Paul H. Browning, New York, in Medical Clinics of North America, states that they are one of the most vicious types of all infected tonsils in producing inflammation in joints and muscles at distant parts of the body.

Infection Often Hidden.

The great amount of scar tissue which resulted from the healing of the partly completed operation for removal, seals or covers the surface of the piece of tonsil left in, and underneath this scar there may be much infection. Because this stub or tag of tonsil is not a deep or dark red in color, as with the usual infected tonsil, it is not suspected of having this infection beneath it and so it continues to pour infection into the blood and arthritis or heart disease may follow.

The thought then in searching for the cause of arthritis is that not only the cases of inflamed tonsils with frequent sore throats should be investigated but these "second growth" tonsils and tags should be investigated also.

Insidious Nature Of Modern Ills

"The average person is not particularly interested in the fact that cancer may kill him, nor is he seriously concerned with his death. The average person does not think about his health, but he does think about the impression he will make, his social standing, his capabilities, his ability to beat a neighbor at a game, his chances of promotion and his appearance. And there are very few men and women, whatever they say, who, in their hearts would not like to meet their social circle with a greater confidence, their occupation with more proficiency, their embarrassments with calmer self-assurance, their domestic life with more complacent certainty and the world in general with the additional cheerfulness and vigor which renders life a vivid actuality rather than a passage or existence."

I am quoting Dr. T. Wingate Todd, Cleveland, in Clinical Medicine and Surgery, because, in the above simple manner, he points out the difference between a life that is a passage or an existence and a life that is a vivid actuality. There is certainly a great difference between simply being free of disease and enjoying buoyant health.

Disease Has Changed.

The trouble with the average person and his physician is that neither of them is interested in the other unless some real disease is present. Yet, as Dr. Todd points out, disease today has changed. "It no longer slays ruthlessly in epidemics, but insidiously (secretly) cripples hearts, hardens arteries, ruins teeth, warps and stunts development, shatters nerves and produces morbid moods and manners which destroy or cripple confidence and efficiency."

Tiredness, fear and despondency are the symptoms of the early stages of disability.

The thought then for the physician is not to spend all his time and energy on those who are already diseased in mind and body (worthy as this may be), but to look more fully or completely into the case of the average person who is restless, discontented and impatient.

The thought for the average person is that life is more than existence and that it may be a physical reason (defects) that is causing the tiredness, restlessness, worry and discontent that a physician or dentist could locate and remove.

Milestones in Development Of the Automobile Industry

November is the big month in the automobile industry, with the displays of new models all over the country. Each November is another milestone in the development of this great but infant business, which typifies American industrial genius.

In a period of only 30 years, from 1900, the auto came from nothing to top the list in total value of manufactured products. The millions of streamlined cars speeding along our great highways today are the direct descendants of the primitive motor-driven buggies of the first of the century.

The first experimental automobile was built in Germany in 1885 by Carl Benz, and consisted of a gasoline motor installed in a sort of tricycle. In this country, some 10 years later, Charles E. Duryea and Elwood Haynes built creditable gasoline-driven vehicles. Electric and steam cars began to appear at this time too.

The first automobile contest on record took place in 1895 under the auspices of the Chicago Times-Herald. Thirty-one cars raced over the 54-mile course and Duryea won in 8 hours and 23 minutes, an average of almost 7 miles an hour. Five years later, in a 50-mile road race on Long Island, A. L. Riker averaged nearly 25 miles an hour. That was considered tremendous speed.

Most of the early cars were built on the lines of the horse-drawn buggy. Even the first standard designs retained the curved dash-board and the whip-socket, and many drivers wished they could use their whips on the engines. That was the age when bystanders urged motorists to "get a horse."

In 1900 organized production got under way. In 1910 front doors, windshields and folding tops were introduced. World war inflation of purchasing power gave the industry a tremendous boost in 1914, and another boost came in 1922, which brought balloon tires, wide adoption of the time payment sys-

The former record of 80 days, 5 hours was held by John Ennis. The famous walker, Edward P. Weston, made the distance from New York to San Francisco in a little over 104 days in 1909.—Detroit News.

Disasters Strike 41 States During Year

Red Cross Aids 420,000 Persons Following Catastrophes

That the past year has not been an easy one for the American Red Cross is shown in a recent report listing disasters necessitating Red Cross relief throughout the United States during the past twelve months.
The report reveals that 129 domestic disasters called for Red Cross aid in 247 counties of 41 states, and that assistance was given to 420,000 persons who were disaster victims.
"That this has been a very active year is obvious when one compares this year's operations with the average of 92 disasters requiring Red Cross aid annually for the past 15 years," Chairman Norman H. Davis said in commenting on the Red Cross Disaster Relief Service report.

These catastrophes included cloud-bursts, cyclones, epidemics, fires, floods, forest fires, hailstorms, mine explosions, a school bus accident, a shipwreck, tornadoes, typhoons, and wind storms.
"Disaster relief was the first humanitarian work of the American Red Cross after its organization in 1881," Mr. Davis said. "In the ensuing 57 years the flag of the Red Cross has flown upon every scene of major disaster in the United States. The Red Cross has carried relief—food, clothing, shelter, medical aid, rehabilitation of homes and families—to more than 2,200 scenes of disaster at home and abroad, and has expended over $140,000,000 contributed by the American public in this work of mercy."

The Red Cross policies of relief, the national chairman pointed out, have been established over a period of years through actual experience of its workers in the field. Relief is given on the basis of need of sufferers—not of losses. Loans, he pointed out, are never made, but relief is a gift from the Red Cross in the name of its members and contributors to its work.

"It would not be possible for the Red Cross to carry out such widespread relief activities without the help of thousands of volunteer workers," Mr. Davis said. "Volunteers are the mainstay of the organization, and in the past year's work assistance from many cooperating agencies has made it possible for us to answer the many calls for help."

While relief was being given to victims of natural catastrophes, the Red Cross was not unmindful of the necessity for preparedness plans to meet emergencies that may arise in any American community. Red Cross chapters in hundreds of counties, have organized disaster preparedness committees charged with responsibility to map relief plans in advance of need, and to organize resources of communities to prevent duplication of effort and waste of materials when calls for help are received.

These plans are proving especially advantageous in localities subject to frequent floods, tornadoes, or hurricanes, and actual tests of such planning have demonstrated the necessity for such measures.

"The administration of such relief for disaster victims is made possible by annual memberships of millions of Americans in all walks of life," Mr. Davis pointed out. "The extent of Red Cross aid to such sufferers is entirely dependent upon unselfish sharing on the part of all of us."

DISTRICT NO. 2, GRANT
Watts School

Teacher—A. Nina Moore
Alvin McCormick entered our school from East Tawas; consequently we have an enrollment of nineteen.

We had six who were neither absent nor tardy for the month. We would like to have a more regular attendance. As a pupil cannot do good work unless they are in school everyday, unless they are ill or some other legitimate excuse.

We organized a 4-H Club with Mrs. Moore as leader and Mrs. Fahselt as assistant. In sewing, Corrine Fahselt, third year; Mary Birkenbach, second year; Handicraft, Beryl Binder, fourth year; Roland Fahselt and Henry McCardle, third year; Don Herriman, Donald Coates, Dannie Ostrander, Jack McCardle, Melvin and Alvin McCormick, first year. We call our club "Jolly Workers" with Mary Birkenbach president; Henry McCardle, vice-president; and Beryl Binder, secretary-treasurer.

In art we are trying some chalk work on drawing paper. Sketching fruit, flowers, etc., particular attention being paid to shading and mixing colors.

We had no school for an hour on October 11, while Mrs. More attended her former teacher and commissioner's, J. A. Campbell, funeral at Tawas City. Also, two days, while she attended M. E. A. at Saginaw.

The fifth grade are learning fractions; the sixth, decimals; while the eighth grade are trying to learn how to find base, rate and percentage.

Roland Herriman and Raymond Weir have finished their pre-primers, Dick and Jane stories, and are starting in their primers.

We are using workbooks in connection with our Elson Basic Readers in all grades.

We had a Halloween party on October 31. We were pleased to have as our guests, Mr. and Mrs. Herriman; Mrs. C. Mason and son, Gerald; Mrs. Thomas Scarlett and daughter, Miss Lola; and Bobby; Mrs. Harry Latham and daughter; Mrs. Coates and daughter, Mildred; and Mrs. Binder. Prizes for contests were won by Alvin McCormick, Mrs. Herriman and Lillian Birkenbach. At the funfair costume. One room was decorated in keeping with the day with black cats, pumpkins faces, witches, owls, etc. We all had a good time and hope all the parents can be present at our next party.

Miss Worden, our Commissioner, has been a caller several times.

In sixth grade geography we are studying Europe. Maps have been made of rainfall, surface, etc. We worked out a unit on Holland.

In music, we learned in the higher grades "The Home Road" and "John Peel" and lower grades "Daisy Maids."

We have had several callers. We are glad to welcome anyone interested in our work.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Repelling Mice.—The smell of peppermint is most obnoxious to mice. A little oil of peppermint placed about their haunts will soon make them look for other quarters.

Broken Glass.—Use a wet cloth or dampened absorbent cotton to pick up broken glass. Even the tiniest bits will adhere to it. For safety, discard cloth and all.

Mending the Wringer.—If a crack appears in the rubber roller of your wringer, bind the cracked part tightly with adhesive tape. It stops the crack from spreading and it does not come off.

On Heat Appliances.—Lamp sockets and cords waste electricity and deteriorate rapidly when used with heat appliances. If the cord on the toaster or electric iron gives out, a new cord suited to that piece of equipment will save current and possibly a serious accident.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnny Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy. Endie, Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implication of a suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help. She is arrested and booked for murder. Then she explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a lock over the door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girls' purses, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road. Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box open and his gun, which only his father knew of, gone. Meanwhile, the police find the stolen money burned in the furnace. Mrs. Sentry sees her husband, who swears his innocence, and tells her he had known of the robbery and murder the night before, but failed to call the police, and came home at 12:30. Mary quarrels with Neil Ray, and runs away with Jimmy Endie to the Caribbean. Linda Dane, friend of Barbara and Phil, tries to comfort Phil.

A curious crowd stared at them as they came out, and Phil said, as they drove away, "You can wear a veil next time we come, Mother."

"I shall not wear a veil," she answered, fighting to forget Arthur, to forget how gray and lifeless the flesh on his cheeks had seemed, and how dull his eyes were. She must forget, so that she could be brave enough to come to him again.

At home, Barbara was waiting with questions. They told her he was fine; was cheerful, confident, and unafraid. They brought her back to comfort for a while.

Dean Hare, a day or two later, brought Falkran to see Mrs. Sentry and Phil. Phil was not at first favorably impressed. The lawyer was a big man, bald save for a fringe of red hair above his ears, with the wide, loose mouth of the natural orator; and Phil thought he studied the rugs and the furniture with a shrewd appraising eye, and he saw his mother visibly conquer her distaste for the man.

She asked, after introductions were done, "Are you familiar with my husband's case, Mr. Falkran?"

"I see the newspapers have convicted him?"

Her eyes hardened. "You think him guilty?"

Falkran, suddenly, smiled; and Phil at that smile felt a quick liking and trust for him. The lawyer said, "Mrs. Sentry, no man was ever electrocuted on a newspaper verdict."

Her eyes closed at that word, then opened again as he went on. "If I could have my choice," he said, "I should choose to defend men who have already been convicted in the newspapers. When everyone is convinced a man is guilty, the smallest grain of evidence in his favor has a tremendous effect in provoking doubt of his guilt." He added, "And from the practical point of view, such a situation makes it easier to disqualify jurors, easier to get the jury we want."

Mrs. Sentry had not surrendered her question. "You think him guilty?" she insisted.

"No man is guilty till a court has found him so, after a trial by due process, and till all appeals have failed."

"I asked whether you think my husband guilty?"

He smiled again. His smile had won many a jury. He said reasonably: "Mrs. Sentry, I haven't even talked with him. I don't know his side of the case at all. I only know the published facts. Mr. Hare has told me nothing. The evidence is damning, difficult; but there are a thousand explanations that might meet the situation as it appears."

Phil saw that his mother too was being won to liking. She put her question in another way. "If you thought him guilty, would you defend him?"

Falkran smiled again. "Even a guilty man is entitled to his day in court, to a fair trial, to all the protection afforded by the law." Then he answered her directly: "Yes, Mrs. Sentry. Even if I knew Mr. Sentry guilty, I would defend him with all my powers."

dead; then remembered Phil was here and caught herself.

Falkran went on: "You see, Mrs. Sentry, until I talk to your husband, remind him of small circumstances he has himself forgotten, I can make no plan."

They talked a further while; and Mrs. Sentry said at last that she would let him know her decision next day. She used the interval to consult Arthur's mother.

Old Mrs. Sentry said: "Falkran? Oh, yes. I've heard of him."

Mrs. Sentry explained: "I should have preferred—one of our friends, of course. I hoped for a certain dignity! But Mr. Hare says we must have a good criminal lawyer, and he recommended Mr. Falkran."

The old woman said harshly: "Dignity! Ellen, sometimes you—!" Then she caught herself, spoke almost in apology. "Of course you'd prefer some fine name; but Falkran's a clever man. Arthur will need a good lawyer. Better take him."

So it was decided; but Mrs. Sentry thought, driving home: Even Arthur's mother knows. The whole

Phil. And so are we. We're glad to have her come to you."

And Mrs. Urban, Mrs. Sentry had always thought of Mrs. Urban as a mouse of a woman, with no mind of her own; yet she found in her now strength and loyal understanding. Of the others, Mrs. Furness invited Mrs. Sentry to luncheon, but she declined. I will not be made a show of, she promised herself; and Mrs. Harry Murr's persistent advances likewise she put aside.

There was one loss which hurt her keenly. She and Mrs. Waring had been closest friends; and the families were intimate. The two mothers had even discussed the possibility that Phil might marry Ann Waring. But a week after Mr. Sentry was indicted, Mrs. Waring took Ann away to Europe to school there. The decision was sudden; Mrs. Sentry knew it had not been planned in advance. And Mrs. Waring left without even a note to say good-by.

Mrs. Sentry never spoke of this hurt to anyone. In the same way she ceased to resent the curious groups of people who drove past the er, mother. Grandmother likes him."

"But a reporter, Barbara!" Carl Bettle chuckled. "Whoa, there, Mrs. Sentry!" he protested. "Reporters aren't so bad, nowadays. You're prejudiced!"

"I'm prejudiced against any young man who meets my daughter secretly."

Barbara cried: "Oh, now, mother, that's silly! It's not secretly, with grandmother there; but even if it was—"

Mrs. Sentry said, yielding: "Of course, dear. I'm afraid it really is prejudice. Ask him to have tea here too, Barbara, if you wish."

"I'm at grandmother's now more than I'm at home," Barbara reminded her; and this was in fact true. Old Mrs. Sentry had since her son's arrest surrendered to physical immobility. Her mind was as keen, her tongue as sharp as ever; but she stayed in her room at the hotel where she lived, had her meals served there, even submitted to an indignity she had long declined, and hired a companion who was also nurse and masseuse.

And Phil had used the old woman's helplessness to dissuade Barbara from her desire to see her father. "You and I have to make it as easy as we can for mother, Barb," he pointed out. "And mother can't be with father and with grandmother too, and she can't go to the jail without me, so grandmother's your job! Don't you see?"

So Barbara yielded—Phil thought she yielded very easily—and spent much time with her grandmother; and old Mrs. Sentry by degrees forgot to use toward her that tone of sharp disapproval which had so long been her habit toward both girls. There was during these weeks something deeply and wistfully appealing about Barbara. She was thin; her eyes seemed larger; her color had faded; she looked at people eagerly, anxiously, as though hoping someone would say—what no one ever did say. And Grandmother Sentry was very gentle toward her, warned Mrs. Sentry once:

"That child is ready to crack, Ellen. Look out for her."

Mrs. Sentry nodded. "I—do all I can!"

Grandmother Sentry sought in her own ways to serve; she welcomed Barbara, and welcomed Professor Brace, or Dan Fisher, when one or the other came with Barbara to be with her.

The old woman did not like Professor Brace, and she told Barbara so. "He's a Middle-Westerner, of course, but he's a rank Puritan at heart, Barbara. Believes in the mortification of the flesh or something of the kind. Believes in duty. The wrong kind. If he were a Spartan he'd nurse a gnawing fox to his bosom. Any man with sense knows that you ought to dodge suffering when you can. He's the 'grin and bear it' type."

"He's been sort of nice," Barbara argued. "Standing by."

"I know. The boy stood on the burning deck! Anyone but a fool would dive overboard!"

"Whence all but him had fled," Barbara reminded her. "But there are a lot of us still on the burning deck, grandmother. And he doesn't have to stay. He's just doing it to be friendly."

"Like him, do you, child?"

"It's sort of nice to have friends—"

The old woman saw in the girl's eyes a secret terror, a mounting fear she had seen there before; and she was silenced. Whenever they spoke of Mr. Sentry, and Barbara cried, "He didn't do it, grandmother!" old Mrs. Sentry always assented, always spoke quick reassurances. Barbara was grown so pitifully frail.

world knows, I expect. All my friends know; all of them are feeling sorry for me. Oh, hateful!

And she thought again, desperately: Perhaps Mr. Falkran can persuade some woman to say she was Arthur's mistress, that he went to her that night. Pay her to say it, perhaps. No price would be too high, to save him!

And she reflected that by thinking this, she was admitting to herself her actual opinion of Mr. Falkran; and she felt a contamination of the spirit. Felt herself unclean. To be pitied by her friends, to seek the help of scoundrels...

Nevertheless, for all their sakes, if Arthur was to be saved, Mr. Falkran it must be.

The weeks that elapsed before Mr. Sentry could be brought to trial were long, but they were curiously empty; and Mrs. Sentry, used to activity, came in the end to accept this emptiness, to understand that their world would hereafter be thus constricted, whatever the outcome of the trial. It was not so much that her friends dropped away. Some did so; yet others, upon whom she had not counted, surprised her by their understanding loyalty.

But the larger world in which she had been active, all the organized benevolence in which she had taken a virginal part, now—though with polite expressions of regret—nevertheless closed its doors against her. The resignations which she felt it her proud duty to offer were accepted. She hid as she could her fierce resentful pain.

She missed Mary dreadfully; clung passionately to Barbara and Phil. Linda came often to the house, and Mrs. Sentry thought: Perhaps Linda will marry Phil, even after this. I had hoped Ann Waring. . . The Warnings are so fine. But Linda is nice. He might do worse. And she thought: Barbara will marry, too. She's a child. After this is over, she will forget, as children do. I must be sure she marries well. The right marriage means so much, especially for a girl. Once I get Barbara married, I can rest, can surrender. For me there can never be a new beginning. I am too old, old, old. And I can never face people again without knowing their thoughts, imagining their whisp-ers. . . Mrs. Sentry nodded, surrendered her point. "You said," she suggested, "that any one of a thousand explanations might cover all the evidence."

"An infinite number, yes."

"Have you anything in mind?"

"Mr. Sentry may suggest something," She started to speak, to tell him that Arthur had found the girl house in cars, and even alighted to pluck flowers or break down branches off the shrubbery for souvenir. Only when one night someone dug up a young tree in the front yard and took it away did she accept District Attorney Flood's suggestion that a policeman stand guard in front of the house night and day.

For all these things, Mrs. Sentry found strength and courage; but one thing she could not face. She could not read the newspapers, or look at them. Since the first few days, reporters had been kind. Carl Bettle had been of service in that respect. He had put through with the publishers of the other papers an agreement not to print photographs of Mrs. Sentry or Phil or Barbara, and to use their names as little as possible in news stories. When Mrs. Sentry thanked him, he said:

"I don't deserve all the credit. One of our reporters, a young man named Fisher, suggested it." Barbara was in the room and he looked at her, smiling a little, and explained: "He had met you, he said. I think he had you particularly in mind."

Barbara nodded. "Yes, I like him," she agreed. "We've seen each other since, once or twice."

Mrs. Sentry protested, "Seen him, Barbara? Where?"

"In town," Barbara confessed. "He has tea with grandmother and me, sometimes. It's perfectly proper duty, when all efforts to save the life of a pain-wracked dying person had failed, was to thrust her elbow into the breast or stomach of the patient until the merciful relief of death resulted.

One may wonder what was the basis of Shakespeare's suggestion ("Hamlet," Act III, Scene 4): "Come, come, and sit you down; you shall not budge; You go not till I set you up a glass Where you may see the inmost part of you."

Had some alchemist or wizard man hinted at what is now known as X-ray photography?

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-22, 38-42. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not kill.—Exodus 20:13. Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

The sanctity of human life finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man. Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

Life is held rather cheaply in our day. Nations count their boys and girls as only so much "war material." Life is destroyed on the highway, in the shop, or in the home. Let us declare again the solemn command of God, "Thou shalt not kill."

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13)

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder." Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another. There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is too prevalent in our land. In 1936 there were 13,242 outright killings—a murder every 40 minutes. The head of the United States secret service estimates that there are 200,000 persons at large in our land who "have murder in their hearts and who will take human life before they die." Also in 1936 there were 37,800 deaths in automobile accidents. Some of these were by unavoidable accidents, but many were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say again, that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Cause of Murder (Matt. 5:21, 22)

The Sermon on the Mount, from which the rest of our lesson is taken, while it "describes the character of the citizens of the earthly kingdom which the Messiah came to set up" and "assumes a class of people already saved, regenerated, and in fellowship with their King" (James M. Gray), does provide fundamental principles for the guidance of the Christian.

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-42)

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus puts the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has aught against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable, but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

The full interpretation of this passage is not possible in our limited space. It is clear from other scriptures that it does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must not explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment. Let us seek His grace that we may, like Him, silence by our loving deeds and words even the bitter gainsayers of the gospel.

Reserve Corps Is Army's Backbone

5,000,000 Can Be Recruited In 18 Months for War Of Defense.

WASHINGTON.—An army of a million American men can be mobilized for service within a few days for the defense of the nation.

Within 18 months 5,000,000 men can be placed under arms and, in the event of a prolonged war, twice that number could be recruited.

These estimates of the vast manpower of the nation were made by military authorities close to high War department officials.

Preparations Speeded.
Preparation of the nation for war began almost as the World war closed and has been accelerated in recent months by the threatening situation in Europe and the Far East.

The nation's first line of defense, when mobilization begins, is the regular army, composed of 12,760 officers and 165,000 enlisted men, and the national guard, whose trained personnel are available for service in a few hours, brings the total to 400,000.

Another 600,000 men can be placed under arms within a few days. In this category are the organized reserve officers—veterans of the World war, retired regular and national guard officers, graduates from the reserve officers training corps and citizens' military training camps—and enlisted men with previous military training.

Draft if Invaded.
A selective draft similar to that used during the World war would be placed in effect upon any invasion of the nation or declaration of war. Officers and enlisted personnel from the regular army, national guard and organized reserve would be used for the training of drafted men.

While preparing the machinery for a quick mobilization of men, the War department has redoubled its efforts to modernize the army's equipment.

Emphasizing speed, the army has streamlined its services. Mechanization of several cavalry regiments has been completed. The tank corps has been given greatly improved tanks of all sizes. Artillery has been motorized and the motor equipment of the signal and quartermaster corps improved.

New arms of the nation include .50 and .30 caliber machine guns, the former an anti-tank weapon; an .81 millimeter trench mortar, and a light semi-automatic infantry rifle.

The air force, with 1,378 modern planes, and 961 under construction, includes the world's fastest fighting, observation and bombing ships.

1,000 on a Side Chess Match to Run Until 1941
CHICAGO.—The world's greatest chess match, that between 1,000 British players and 1,000 in the United States, is still on and is not expected to be finished until 1941.

Since it began in January, 1936, more than 20 players have died. According to the normal death rate another 20 may die before play ends.

Every move is sent by postcard, and about 80,000 of these will have crossed the Atlantic by the time the last move is made. The total cost of the correspondence will be near $2,500. London's latest report showed that England led by 174 games to 151, while 37 games had been drawn. W. Ritson Morry, an attorney of Warwickshire, England, who organized the match, said: "By the time the match ends some warm friendships will have been made."

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND.—A 45-year-old transplanted apple tree, in the yard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy L. Miller, in West Wash avenue, bore apples for the second time this year.

Earlier in the year, the tree bore its usual number of apples and just recently the fruit appeared again which is just as tasty as that which ripened earlier in the season.

Never before, according to Mr. Miller, has fruit appeared twice the same season.

The barrel, he said, will be six feet in diameter and 10 feet in length, specially reinforced. It will have a telescopic mast carrying 320 square feet of sail with an 18-foot jib.

Biegajski plans to take along an auxiliary motor to be used when sailing conditions become adverse.

The Freshman class recently wrote imaginary telephone talks. These were to be of three kinds, social, business, and emergency. Brevity and courtesy were emphasized.

In English II we have been attempting to use words which appeal to the senses of sight, sound, touch and taste. Some of the titles of the composition which were to appeal to these various senses are "A Fish Market at a busy hour," "The Laboratory," and "A Scene in The Post-Office." We also picked out our favorite colors and tried to recognize the various shades of the favorite color.

The English IV class has begun the study of the Reign of Form in English literature. We found the diary of Samuel Pepys and the resulting subject of diaries in general to be very interesting.

The Latin I class attempted letter writing the other day. Considering the still limited vocabularies and lack of knowledge of important basic construction, the letters will have improved immensely.

Beata Buch will entertain the Junior class at her home on Friday evening. This is the first of a series of birthday parties to be held by the class. Each member contributes ten cents toward a small gift for the guest or guests of honor and the remainder of the money will go into the treasury. All hope to have some grand times and also increase the exchequer considerably.

The Junior Class will hold a Thanksgiving bake sale at Bing's Hardware, Wednesday afternoon, November 23. We will appreciate your patronage.

The Typing I class are participating in an accuracy contest. Members of the class are newspaper reporters working for two contesting newspapers, namely, The Class Leader, and the Independent Student. The object is to see which newspaper can get its paper to press first. In order to get the paper to press the firm must have all ace reporters. To qualify as an ace reporter, the student must type three five-minute speed tests with not more than one error. This contest will require a great deal of hard drill. Each student will make progress in proportion to his willingness to spend time on these drills. The reward is well worth the effort.

The typing II class is also conducting a contest to increase both speed and accuracy. It is conducted in the form of a tournament. The class is given a ten-minute speed test. Each member of the class has an opponent against whom he is competing. Scores are earned on the gross speed. Each person is penalized for typographical errors and faulty technique. These penalties are added to the score of his opponent. Records will be kept to show individual progress and to ascertain the winning team, high-score student, and tournament winner.

The shorthand class has completed Volume I of their text book of fundamentals and are now studying from Volume II.

The Seniors had a total of 22 tables at their party which was held at the school building Friday evening of last week. This caused the class to clear about $18 on the venture and so adds a goodly amount to the savings for the commencement period. The class desires to express its appreciation to all for the patronage.

Charles Hamilton, of the Bay City Business College, addressed the high school assembly Friday of last week on the subject of Occupation. It is seldom that the school is favored with a speaker who presents his material in as clear and forceful a manner as Mr. Hamilton does. He has spent much time and thought on this subject and so gave all of the students some good material.

The high school students who received no mark lower than that of "B" for the second month of school are as follows: June Brown, Ruth Clark, Elma Herman, Dorothy Herriman, John Katterman, Hazel Moran, Marion Musolf, Erma Lou Pfahl, Harold Ross and Otto Ross.

MUSIC

The band has been severely crippled, because the measles have crept into our ranks. The players have been doing well in making their tones blend and balance with those of other players in the band.

It would be a great help if we could find time to give these people individual help or divide them in groups so that each might get the attention needed.

The Girl's Glee Club is assisting in a program, "Memories of 1918," which is to be presented for P. T. A. and for the general assembly. We hope you will like our interpretation of it.

The grades are being taught the important fundamentals of music so that they will be a great help to any musical organization by the time they are ready for high school. They are doing very well.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

On Saturday, November 5, the older group of Campfire Girls sponsored by Mrs. Nordman, departed on a hike. Though the weather looked threatening, they continued on their way through East Tawas to Isosco Beach where they enjoyed their first meeting around the campfire. Roasted cookies tasted mighty good. We hurried our campfire much too soon, and hastened home. All fared well, and only two girls reported blisters the next day. We hope to have many more outings, and learn more of our lovely natural surroundings.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES

We had two visitors last week. They were Kenneth Rann and Harold Blust from the Vine school.

The following people had one hundred on their history work books: Maxine DePott, Evelyn Colton, Neil Libka and Richard Clark.

FIFTH and SIXTH GRADES

The sixth grade hygiene class is working out a project on food. Menus were planned and pictures gathered to illustrate a well balanced meal.

Vernon Beaubien is absent because of illness.

We were studying about beavers in the 6th grade and Ruth Ulman brought a part of a pole and some sawings to show us how a beaver cuts the poles he uses.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES

Richard Berube had a perfect paper in a subtraction test Tuesday. We made Thanksgiving decorations Friday.

The fourth graders are studying about Norway in geography.
