

VOTERS APPROVE AUDITORIUM-GYM PROJECT

TAWAS CITY

BOND ISSUE PASSES IN THREE TO ONE VOTE

317 BALLOTS
CAST; 239
YES, 77 NO

Citizens Have Always Felt Community Needed An Auditorium

Yesterday afternoon the voters of Tawas City and that portion of Tawas township which comprises school district No. 7, fractional, set their stamp of approval on the proposed auditorium in a hearty manner. Each one of the two ballots carried by more than two-thirds majority in the largest vote ever cast on a bond issue in the city.

The vote on the bond issue was 221 yes, 68 no and three spoiled ballots. This vote was cast by taxpayers only.

The vote to raise the 15 mill tax limitation for a period of five years was 239 yes, 77 no and one spoiled ballot. On this issue both taxpayers and those having children on the school census were entitled to vote.

When the polls opened at four o'clock yesterday afternoon citizens were lined up ready to vote. During the four hours of voting there were few pauses in the stream of voters passing through the booths, averaging slightly more than one every minute, and taxing the speed of the election clerks.

"This is another step forward in making Tawas City a better place in which to live," said a member of the Board of Education late last night. "The waterworks and sanitary sewer system are important improvements. We better realize their value now that we have them. The auditorium, in its way, will be as important to the welfare of the city. The people of the city have always known this. At every opportunity they have expressed themselves as willing to go ahead with such a project. A number of years ago, with few dissenting votes, we approved a bond issue. Thousands of dollars were pledged to supplement that bond issue. One citizen alone pledged several hundred dollars, and placed the money in the bank in escrow to show his good faith. Others pledged a site in addition to substantial cash gifts. We have always wanted an auditorium. This afternoon's three to one vote indicates how we continue to stand on the subject."

JOHN SULLIVAN FUNERAL HELD LAST SATURDAY

Had Been Prominent In Iosco County Affairs

John Sullivan, for many years prominent in farming, political and civic circles of the county, died early last Thursday morning at his home in East Tawas. The deceased was 91 years old. He had been a resident of East Tawas for the past 20 years and of the county since 1869.

John Sullivan was born January 12, 1848, in Hastings county, Ontario. When 21 years of age he came to Iosco county where he was employed as bookkeeper and timber scaler. In 1878 he was united in marriage to Isabelle Grant. During 1884 he purchased a farm in Baldwin township where he made his home for more than 30 years.

Mr. Sullivan took an active interest in the various movements tending toward the improvement of agricultural conditions in the county. He was a prominent worker in the early farm institutes, was an influential member of the Grange and for many years he served in various official capacities in the Iosco County Agricultural society. He considered the Iosco County fair one of the important institutions for the improvement of farming in the county.

In civic affairs Mr. Sullivan served 12 years as superintendent of the poor, retiring in 1898. He served a number of terms as supervisor for his township and held various school offices. During all his life Mr. Sullivan took a keen interest in politics.

WINTER SPORTS BENEFIT DANCE FEBRUARY 11

Many Enter for Title In Carnival Queen Contest

With plenty of snow from Monday's blizzard, conditions for tobogganing, skiing and snowshoeing out in Silver Valley in Huron National Forest should be ideal for winter sports fans again this week end, Ralph E. Crowell, forest supervisor, reports.

Last Sunday, more than 200 winter sports enthusiasts drove out to Silver Valley to enjoy the many facilities provided for healthful outdoor activity. The two toboggan slides were in constant use and many tried their skill on the four ski runs down the slopes of the snow-covered hills.

A number of girls have entered the contest for the title of Queen of the East Tawas Winter Sports Carnival and are busy selling membership buttons in the winter sports organization. The girl, selling the most buttons, will be crowned Queen at the annual Winter Carnival Ball in the Community building, Saturday evening, February 18. The next four highest in the competition will serve as the Queen's Court of Honor. Jimmy Stevenson, sports and news commentator of WJTB, will crown the Queen.

Plans are being made for a Winter Sports benefit dance at the Community building next Saturday, February 11. This dance will mark the opening of the Community building, following extensive remodeling and redecorating operations. Music for this dance and for the Winter Carnival Ball, the week following, will be furnished by Applin's "Rhythm Wringers" orchestra. Rambling Bill Hurley will serve as Master of Ceremonies for both dances.

Everyone in the county and surrounding communities is urged to visit the winter sports park in Silver Valley and enjoy the thrilling toboggan slides and ski runs while weather conditions are favorable for winter sports. A comfortable warming shelter is provided.

In his younger days, Bischoff was a noted pitcher with amateur baseball teams around the State. For relaxation, he prefers poker, bridge and bowling. His wife Louise claims that because of his many social and political connections, her husband isn't at their home on Promenade Ave. more than ten evenings in a year. The children are Virginia, 17 years old, and Shirley, 13. Carl is an habitual smoker, would like to wear a cap all of the time and wouldn't attend a movie even on a pass.

Europe Rushes to New Crisis

As Loyalist Spain Is Crushed

By Joseph W. La Bine

EUROPE'S 'WALL OF NEUTRALITY'
Map shows how Hitler and Mussolini have built eastern European alliances to protect themselves from Russia while pressing new demands against France and Britain. (See EUROPE.)

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Europe

Except for Spain, January found all Europe immersed in an ominous calm broken only by occasional under-cover whispers among democracies on one side and dictators on the other. Europe was a theater and Spain was its stage. By the end of the month the play on Spain's stage was definitely approaching its climax because Fascist-subsidized Rebels had put the communistic Loyalist government to flight at Barcelona. This marked the beginning of Loyalist Spain's end, soon to leave both Italy and Germany free to press new demands against Britain and France.

The reason for this embarrassing situation is that Europe's democracies have followed a policy of non-intervention in Spain, declining to admit that non-intervention is really a disguise for the now-discredited policy of dictator appeasement. Regardless of the moral issues reportedly involved in Spain's war, London and Paris must now realize that their mistake has not been the refusal to side with Loyalists against the Rebels, but rather their permitting Germany and Italy to aid the Insurgents. The result is that Fascist nations now control Spain. France is therefore surrounded on three sides by potentially hostile nations, while the Mediterranean becomes predominantly dictator-controlled.

Spain's war is not finished, but it has been sufficiently localized to free Mussolini's hands for other pursuits. Almost every competent European observer has predicted a new crisis following Barcelona's collapse and the whispers throughout Europe have backed up that prediction.

Most important foundation work for the new Italo-German demands is the assurance that any resultant conflict will be localized. This means preventing huge, mysterious Russia from aiding Britain and France. Therefore Rome and Berlin have quietly established a solid bloc of "neutral" states reaching from the Baltic to the Adriatic (see map), which will stand as sentinels against Russian aggression while Italy and Germany turn their backs to face France and Britain.

The new crisis will center around Italian demands against France, though it may be enlarged through new declarations by Chancellor Hitler. Italy wants Tunisia (enabling her to blockade the Mediterranean), control of the Suez canal, and ownership of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad (providing an outlet from Ethiopia). These demands are vital to Britain, because Italian control of the Mediterranean might cut off London's "lifeline" to India and the east.

Probable dictator strategy will be for Germany to assure France she will not help Italy, thereby encouraging Britain to stand aloof. Then Germany would aid Italy in a possible war just as she has aided Rebel Spain, with "volunteers." Whether London and Paris will wait for such an eventuality is another matter. Thoroughly scared by reports that joint Italo-German demands will be voiced by Chancellor Hitler before the Reichstag, by Italian mobilization of her 1908 army class, by threatened German mobilization of 1,500,000 men by February 15, the two democracies are beginning to wake up. Encouragingly, Great Britain has begun an intensive army recruiting campaign. But almost completely offsetting this practical step is the report that Prime Minister Chamberlain will soon invite Hitler, Mussolini and French Premier Daladier to a new "Munich" conference, there to buy peace with more concessions.

Chile

Earthquakes usually come when sea bottoms sink, forcing up mountainous areas and jarring the land for miles around. Squeezed along the rocky west coast of South America, Chile has often experienced such phenomena but never in such disastrous fashion as the earthquake which recently struck a zone 450 miles long and 100 miles deep. For newly inaugurated President Pedro Aguirre Cerdo, reportedly Fascist bent, it presented the worst initiation under fire ever experienced by any Western hemisphere chief executive. Total fatalities, which probably will never be determined, run from 8,000 to 11,000. Injuries run into even more thousands. Faced with a stupendous reconstruction job which will require several years, Chile will probably need all outside financial assistance available to stave off national calamity.

Congress

Last summer, Rep. Martin Dies and his committee on un-Americanism unearthed dirt concerning Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader who is not a naturalized citizen but nevertheless guides the destinies of many American laboring men as an unofficial mogul of John Lewis' C. I. O. This put Madame Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins on the spot, because the Dies committee claimed Harry Bridges was an alien and a Communist, that he advocated overthrowing the government by force and that he had made disparaging remarks about the President of the U. S.

Secretary Perkins has failed to give Dies committee what they consider a satisfactory answer. Her claim: That a court ruling is now pending on whether membership in the Communist party is a deportable offense.

Not since 1876 has an attempt been made to impeach a cabinet member, but that has not stopped one Dies committee member from setting a modern precedent. New Jersey's Rep. J. Parnell Thomas has introduced a resolution calling for an investigation to determine whether Secretary Perkins should be impeached, along with Immigration Commissioner James L. Houghteling and Labor Department Solicitor Gerard D. Reilly.

That Madame Perkins' unaggressive interest in the Bridges deportation case is not popular has been indicated at Sacramento, Calif., where the state legislature may ask her for an immediate report on Mr. Bridges' citizenship status. So far as he had determined, said Assemblyman C. Don Field, the labor leader has twice taken out naturalization papers but has failed to file them in the required time.

Aviation

Man's top running speed is 21.7 miles per hour; horse's, 45.1; train's, 127.1; boat's, 130.9; automobile's, 357.5, and airplane's, 440.6. But at Buffalo, N. Y., a pursuit monoplane being built for the French government has broken the old airplane record by about 150 m. p. h. With motor wide open but engine speed held down (by an electrically controlled propeller), H. Lloyd Child began diving at 22,000 feet, holding his vertical descent until he reached 9,000 feet. The graph chart chalked up his speed until it reached 575 m. p. h., then moved off the paper. Landing with no ill effects, Child estimated he had flown at 600 m. p. h. Since air reacts like solid matter at just over 600 m. p. h., scientists explained that Child had probably traveled faster as a modern plane could ever go.

White House

This year's congress was advertised as highly independent, probably ready to fight any proposal coming from the White House. But within three weeks after congress opened President Roosevelt had apparently introduced the bulk of his legislative program and could expect favorable action on most of it:

Defense. His $552,000,000 emergency two-year program is moving slowly but certainly, aided by war clouds over Europe and Asia.

Social Security. Broad revisions and extensions will probably be approved, though congress may demand an accounting on the huge social security reserve fund.

Reorganization. Defeated last year by Republicans and insurgent Democrats, governmental reorganization is again being broached in the house by Missouri's Rep. John J. Cochran. Since this year's anti-administration bloc is bigger than 1938's, reorganization is probably doomed for failure.

Public Health. Already introduced is the national health program bill, to be paid for jointly by states and the U. S. First year's federal appropriation would be about $50,000,000. Eventually the total annual cost to state and federal governments would be $900,000,000. Aided by growing public health consciousness, the bill is expected to pass.

Railroads. The White House has introduced no bill, but has given its blessing to railroad relief measures introduced by California's Rep. Clarence Lea and Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler. Since rail relief is an established need, not a political question, it is being justified on the bases of national defense, public safety and national economics.

Monetary Powers. The White House will probably be granted continuation of the treasury's currency stabilization fund, which reportedly netted a neat profit last year, and the presidential power to further devalue the dollar, which congress does not think has been abused. Only stumbling block is that stabilization fund operations have been secret, which congress does not like.

Communications. Not vital, but a White House fetish, is interest in the federal communications commission which President Roosevelt would like reorganized this session. His purposes: To improve FCC's legal framework and administrative machinery. If congress gets time, this will probably be approved.

Taxation. Legislation to permit reciprocal taxation of federal, state and municipal bonds and salaries, now exempt, is apt to be adopted in the face of strong state and municipal opposition to the bond exemption feature.

Labor

Last year Homer Martin, president of C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers of America, quarreled with his vice presidents. President John L. Lewis of C. I. O. stepped in, appointing Vice Presidents Sidney Hillman and Phillip Murray as mediators. But 18 of U. A. W.'s 24 board members were anti-Martin men and early last month they voted to strip him of power. Reason: Mr. Martin had been consorting secretly with Harry Bennett, personnel director for the Ford Motor company, only non-U. A. W. auto manufacturer. C. I. O. chieftains thought Mr. Martin was playing for personal control over the huge Ford labor vote.

The upshot has been C. I. O.'s refusal to recognize Mr. Martin as head of U. A. W., followed next day by Mr. Martin's resignation from C. I. O.'s executive board with the charge that Mr. Lewis has "personal ambitions and a dictator complex." The outcome of this scrap will be settled at a Martin-sponsored election March 4, and a C. I. O.-sponsored election 20 days later. Until then, no one knows who controls U. A. W.

U. A. W.'S HOMER MARTIN

While this row has made big headlines, observers are prone to dismiss the possibility that it may indicate a collapse of C. I. O. More likely it is an internal squabble. If the anti-Martin majority of 18-6 on U. A. W.'s executive board is any criterion, U. A. W. will remain pro-C. I. O. under a new president.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

By L. L. STEVENSON

Keen: At a party the other evening the host, not having any new material that was suitable for the gathering, told a story which is practically an antique. Curiously enough, none present had heard it before, hence the laughter was genuine. The yarn has to do with an expert mathematician who had merely to look at a flock of sheep to tell how many there were. Pressed for an explanation of his uncanny ability, he explained it was really simple. He merely counted the legs and divided by four. After the guests had gone, the wife of the host asked him to repeat the story. He did so and she mullied over it for quite a while without so much as a smile! Finally she announced: "I still think it would be a lot simpler to count the sheep."

Midnight in Manhattan: Lucille Manners, blonde songstress who looks Scandinavian but isn't enjoying the smorgasbord in any one of the dozen or more Swedish eating places in the smart East Fifties . . . Ezra Stone, youthful Broadway comedian, strolling along the Brooklyn water front not far from his Columbia Heights home. The minor echoes of tugboat whistles and the bobbing lights spell magic to him after an evening of make-believe in the theater . . . Alice Frost having fun in a Sixth avenue shooting gallery watching her husband and some of their nimrod friends trying to hit the white clay pigeons . . . Eugene Conley staring down at the mysterious activities of the underground workers in the modernistic nightmare world of excavation and twisted pipes which is slowly becoming the new Sixth avenue subway.

Curiosity: Henry Youngman, not long after the automobile show, purchased one of those new ultra streamlined cars with a sliding roof, which he had seen on exhibition. The day after the new job had been delivered he was driving along Seventh avenue with the roof open, despite the cold, when he suddenly heard a yell, "Hey, pull over to the curb." The yell was a cop. Youngman, thinking he had done something wrong, meekly obeyed the order.

"What's the matter?" he asked nervously.

"Nothing," replied the officer. "I just wanted to look 'er over."

Manhattan moods: Young couples sitting on Central park benches evenings unmindful of freezing temperatures. A tribute to romance . . . The "Ohs" and "Ahs" emanating from gawkers who stand around the entrance to the Metropolitan Opera house to catch glimpses of society bedecked in ermine and sable . . . The skating rink in Rockefeller plaza. Imagine a skating pond in the heart of New York . . . A horse slipping on the ice at Eighth avenue and Forty-ninth street and no one paying any attention.

Echoes: History is repeating itself, says Emil Coleman. Hoopskirts are the newest deb rage. Stores display ship models in bottles. Movie houses are again advertising single features. Parlor games are popular at parties. Mittens, pantaloons, caps and ear muffs are coming back. Bicycles, including tandems, are already back. Movie serials are in vogue. The waltz is returning to favor. Lovers are still holding hands.

End Piece: Several radio stars who spent summer vacations in Europe were telling less traveled kilocycle conferees about their trip. "And in Paris," announced one, "they were wearing straw berets." "That's nothing," minimized Kay Kyser. "We eat them here . . . with cream."

Students and Faculty

Organize Flying Club
CLEVELAND—Students at Case School of Applied Science are taking to the air.

More than a dozen students and two faculty members have joined a newly formed flying club and soon will begin their instruction at Aircraft Service, Cleveland Municipal airport—largest city-owned airport in the country.

The president's office of the school has consented to the idea, which was conceived by Howard Dearborn, freshman, and Ray Donovan, sophomore.

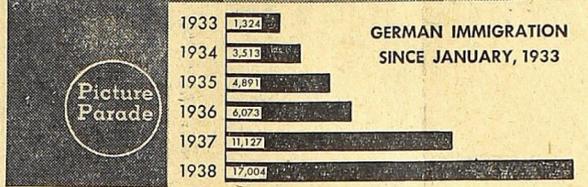

"I think it's a great idea," said John R. Weske, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, "and I've joined the club myself."

The other faculty member to join was Stanton L. Davis, assistant history professor. Both were already pilots.

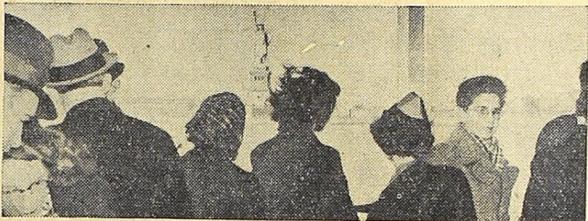

University Students

Give Hitch-Hike Cards
COLUMBIA, S. C.—Students of the University of South Carolina who "thumb" their way over the country will henceforth leave "hitch-hiking cards" with their benefactors. The cards will give the name and address of the student, list the reasons why he wanted a ride, thank the motorist and ask him to visit the university campus.

When Eyes Turn Westward

Until this year, Germany's annual quota of immigrants to the United States was 25,957, boosted to 27,370 since Germany took over Austria. As above figures show, this quota was never used up, though in the 12-month period ending last July 1, German emigration to America showed a decided upswing. In recent months this has become even more marked, and today every westbound boat carries more refugees. The current fiscal year's quota is already near exhaustion. Most immigrants have been Jewish people.

Refugees get their first glance at the Statue of Liberty, wondering what the new land holds in store for them. Once in New York, they are bundled off to refugee headquarters.

America owes many of its most prominent residents to German persecution. Above: Albert Einstein, famous scientist, who has taken out citizenship papers here.

Edouard Benes, resigned president of Czechoslovakia, who is now a visiting professor at the University of Chicago. He was known as "Europe's smartest little statesman."

Max Reinhardt, long an important figure on the stage, who came to the United States two years ago, and is now directing a Broadway play. He is becoming a citizen.

Lotte Lehman, star of New York's Metropolitan opera, is herself "Aryan," but has two "non-Aryan" step-sons. Her German and Austrian property seized, she became an American.

An American citizen (left) greets his Polish Jew brother and nephew as they arrive in New York in search of a haven. But thousands of others (right) still huddle in concentration camps.

Where can these persecuted men and women find a home?

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, the iron chancellor of prohibition, goes into action again, with Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas and several other famous old-time dry leaders who think they see a new and arid day dawning. A friend of this writer, scouting material for a magazine article on a trip through the Middle West, says the dries are coming back like an army with banners. Too many saloons, too much educational elbow-bending, too many tangles between barleycorn and automobiles, too much cutting of corners to meet heavy tax and license costs—all this, and more, is rallying the dries for a return engagement, say the above and other detached observers.

The massive and deliberate Mrs. Boole is 80 years old and looks much less. In New York, she addresses the luncheon of the state W. C. T. U., commemorating the centenary of the birth of Frances E. Willard, founder of the W. C. T. U. Her firmly set spectacles with gold bows, her crown of abundant white hair, the stern godliness of her features all are as they were. Nothing whatever has been repeated in Mrs. Boole's person or ideas.

For more than 50 years she has been fighting alcohol. With her husband, the late William H. Boole, pastor of the Willet Street Methodist church, she waged war against the Bowery dives, away back in the eighties. She had come from Wooster, Ohio, an alumna of the University of Wooster, where, immediately after her graduation, she had taken up her life-work for prohibition. From 1909 until 1919, there was no important piece of anti-liquor legislation in which she did not participate.

In 1925, she became national president of the W. C. T. U., and, in 1931, world chairman. During the prohibition years and in the preceding years of strife, she was the head of the combined prohibition board of strategy, shrewd, resourceful, tireless. Fittingly, her citadel is still a little Van Wert, Ohio, hedge-bordered house, set down in Brooklyn, holding its middle-western ground far in the enemy territory. As does Mrs. Boole, still standing firm and unshaken in her flat-heeled shoes.

In the last 14 years, Dr. Donald A. Laird of Colgate university has written 14 books and 500 articles, but has inspired many more than that. He has been heaven's blessing to the make-up man, needing a snappy little box to dress a page. As Dr. Laird retires, to engage in research at the callow age of 41, here are just a few of his stimulating findings:

Horizontal thinking is best. It is quite possible that a new stage of evolution is setting in which will take us back to all-fours.

When you feel jittery, snap up some red meat. Some cases of second sight are explained by an odorless scent which almost, but not quite, wells up into consciousness.

If you feel rotten today, you will be happy in just 28 days, as that is the life-ordained cycle of hope and despair.

The Dionne quint is in danger of growing up to be man-haters—on account of women nurses and governesses.

Brains are sluggish in summertime.

Eat candy to fight off sleepiness at work.

Never count sheep to put yourself to sleep. It doesn't work.

Noise makes city people smaller than country people.

Women employees are more adaptable than men and stay longer on the job.

Many of these discoveries have been made by Dr. Laird in his research as a consultant for concerns in heavy industries, in which field he has been busy and distinguished. He is a world authority on noise and sleep. Farm-reared in Indiana, he was educated at the Universities of Dubuque and Iowa and taught at many universities before joining the Colgate faculty 14 years ago. He has been out in front in the above novel ideas, with the exception of the one about our getting back to all-fours. That has been evident for at least seven years, as revealed by prevailing trends in world politics.

Star Dust

- ★ Smart Claire Trevor
 - ★ The Beadle Is a Fox!
 - ★ Marg Wins Over Dad
- By Virginia Vale

CLAIRE TREVOR'S experience shows plainly that it's a wise movie actress who has a radio contract up her sleeve. If she hadn't all signed and sealed for that "Big Town" program with Edward G. Robinson she might still be making B pictures for 20th Century-Fox.

That's what she was doing when she was given the rather small role of "Francie" in "Dead End," the Goldwyn picture. She played it magnificently, everybody raved about her performance—and then she went back to her own studio, and into B pictures again.

She couldn't persuade Darryl Zanuck that she ought to break away from the type of thing that she had been doing for his company. So, last May, she stepped out. She was convinced that, as a free lance, she could get the kind of picture work that she wanted. If she couldn't, she'd do without it. After all, there was always that radio salary, rolling right in!

One thing that she wanted, and got, was the leading feminine role in "Stage Coach." One thing that she didn't want, and didn't take, was a long contract with Warner Brothers. One more thing that she wanted very much and took was marriage, last July, to Clark Andrews. He directs that radio program that has played such an important part in her life.

Ever since they told Cary Grant that he'd be the beadle on that new radio show entitled "The Circle" he's been asking other people if they knew what it meant. He does (he looked it up immediately,) but he's gauging other people's intelligence by their replies. First he queried the other star performers on the program—Ronald Colman, Carole Lombard, Lawrence Tibbett, Groucho and Chico Marx and Robert Emmett Dolan. His private quiz program brought out an amazing amount of misinformation. One girl said a beadle was something that hung on a necklace. And everyone was disappointed when they heard that a beadle is just a herald.

Cary Grant

Hal Roach has given his daughter, Margaret, a full-fledged dramatic role in "Captain Fury." That marks a victory for 17-year-old Margaret. Her father didn't want her to be an actress, so she went out and got minor roles in pictures made by other producers. She also sang in a night club. He finally gave in, and now she is happy, and all set to play an Australian settler's daughter who provides romance for John Warburton in the picture.

From Jean Hersholt, who is president of the Motion Picture Relief fund, comes a story on the "Screen Guild Show," which is broadcast by CBS every Sunday 7:30 to 8:00 p. m. eastern standard time. Practically all of Hollywood's famous folk, as well as many of those behind the scenes, are contributing their services to it.

They receive no salaries for their work. The money which ordinarily would go to the artists, writers, producers and technicians is turned over to the Motion Picture Relief fund. It will be used to build a home for the aged and needy of the motion picture industry.

Be sure to listen to this program if you want to hear your favorite screen stars; they are all booked to appear sooner or later.

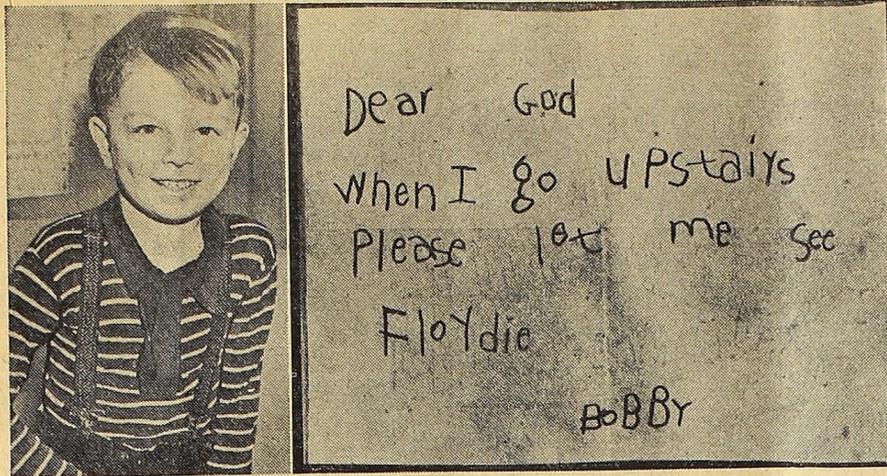

Nelson Eddy, whose marriage to Mrs. Ann D. Franklin, former wife of Sidney Franklin, motion picture producer, recently came as a surprise to studio officials, is taking a vacation from that coffee program. That is, if you call making a concert tour taking a vacation! He will return to it later in the year.

While he is gone Donald Dickson takes his place. He made several appearances on the program last season. Dickson is one of the few important singers who have come to the top by the radio route. He was singing regularly on a radio program when he was signed by the Metropolitan Opera company; before that he sang in local operatic productions in Cleveland, Ohio.

ODDS AND ENDS—The latest Cinderella story from Hollywood concerns young Dana Andrews, a lad from Texas. It's said that Samuel Goldwyn discovered him when he was piping gas and wiping windshields at a service station not far from Hollywood. James Ellison has been ordered to grow a beard for "Picardy Max," and his wife would like to use one of his razors on the man who cast him for the picture.

Playmate Gone, Six-Year-Old Writes to God

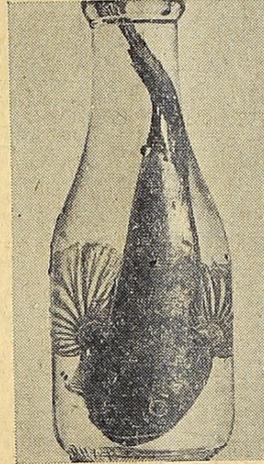

Bobby Lewis of Minneapolis, six years old, attended the funeral of his four-year-old playmate, Floyd Highstrom, and talked with Reverend Emil Heuhardt, who told him that Floydie had gone on a long trip to see God. Returning home, Bobbie addressed a letter "To God. In Heaven, Up in the Sky," asking that he be allowed to see Floydie when he went "upstairs."

Negroes Loyal to Mardi Gras Monarch

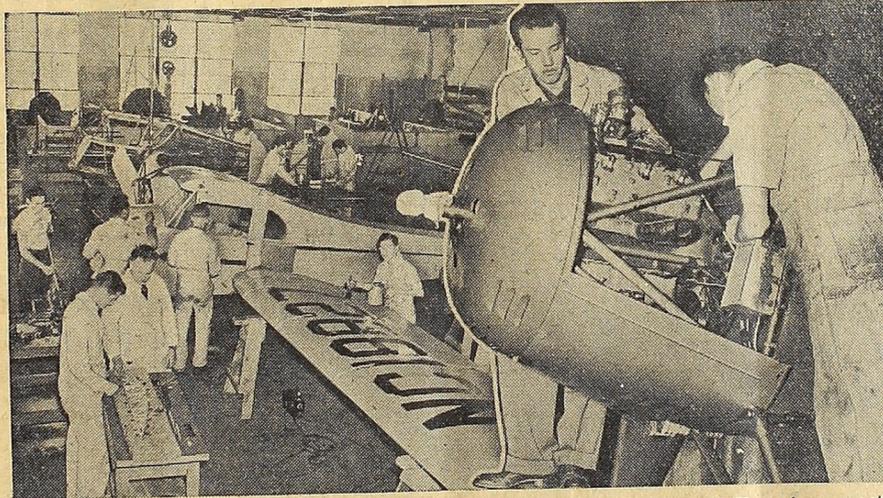

The Zulu King—colored monarch of Mardi Gras—arrives by barge at the New Basin canal and boards his throne float for the colorful trip through the main street of New Orleans Negro section. During the last day of Mardi Gras festivities, February 21, Negroes meet the tug boat, rechristened a Royal Yacht, and demonstrate their loyalty to their "monarch."

PRE-CANNED FISH

Colleges Prepare to Train Civilian Aviators

The plan of the United States to train 20,000 civilians annually as reserve pilots will receive a practical five-months test at 13 leading universities this year. One of the first to try out the plan is Pomona Junior college of Los Angeles, Calif., where 15 young men between the ages of 18 and 25 started the course in February. In June they will have qualified for private piloting certificates. Students rebuild smashed aircraft "from the ground up." At the right students Jack Spansall (left) and Dean Newman are busy working on an engine in the instruction hangar.

Burns Volume Guarded in Transport

Poet Robert Burns received $80 for this edition of his work. When the securely wrapped single volume was transferred from the Morgan library in New York to Kearny, N. J., it was transported in an armored truck and insured for $30,000. Reverend Richard D. Jones (third from left) borrowed the book from J. P. Morgan for the celebration of the Scottish bard's 180th birthday. It is a first edition volume, published in 1786 in Kilmarnock, Scotland.

HEALTH

Proper ventilation is being obtained as long as air remains in motion.

By Dr. James W. Barton

YEARS ago in lecturing on ventilation to school teachers I gave the old rule. "Every pupil should have an air space of 1,000 cubic feet—10 feet high, 10 feet wide and 10 feet long—and the air should be changed three times in each hour."

Today, and for many years past, air space is not discussed because, as long as air is in motion—carrying used air away and allowing fresh air to enter a room—proper ventilation is being obtained. That the air may not be moving too fast, thus causing drafts, is now being carefully watched.

However, in addition to moving air, air must be of a certain temperature and moisture for both health and comfort, so trains, cars, and even homes, offices and other buildings, are now equipped with what is well known as air conditioning.

In order that the general public should know more about air conditioning, what is the proper rate of movement of air, and also the proper temperature and moisture, the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers has made a code of minimum requirements for comfort air conditioning.

Set Ideal Conditions.
"For winter air conditioning, 70 degrees (Fahrenheit) indoor temperature with 35 per cent relative humidity (moisture) when outdoor temperature is 30 degrees, is set as a minimum design standard."
"For summer air conditioning an indoor design schedule of 'effective temperatures' (which are an index of comfort based on a combination of temperature, relative humidity, and air motion) is established, ranging from 71 degrees effective temperature when it is 80 degrees outside to 75.5 degrees effective temperature when it is 105 degrees outdoors."

"The code specifies the introduction of outside air for ventilating purposes at a rate of not less than 10 cubic feet per hour per occupant or not less than 15 cubic feet in premises where smoking is permitted, with removal of 95 per cent of ordinary dust particles to provide the necessary air purity."

The rate at which air is allowed to flow into the room should be total more than 50 linear feet per minute.

Give Heart Chance To Fight Influenza

During the influenza epidemic of 1918 the military hospital with which I was connected asked for volunteers from a certain unit to each give a few ounces of their blood as they were leaving hospital after recovering from influenza. Without exception these men of excellent physique gave the amount requested. This blood (which had fought influenza successfully) was then injected into the more serious cases of influenza with excellent results, the record for the hospital standing among the first half-dozen for the continent.

This blood, fresh from withstanding influenza, had developed so many "antibodies"—disease fighters or resistors—that it was, of course, a great boon to the tired or worn blood of the patient.

Notwithstanding that it is able to reduce the power of influenza, this power in the blood does not last for very long, according to studies by Drs. R. W. Fairbrother, and E. A. Martin in the Lancet, London. These physicians state that in view of the great number of antibodies in this blood, it is surprising that it is not able to protect patients developing influenza as they may be again attacked with influenza within 10 months or a year.

Antibodies Soon Exhausted.
It may be that there are a number of "strains" of poison in influenza, so many strains to be controlled or prevented from causing trouble that the antibodies developed by the previous attack soon get used up or exhausted.

"As a number of recently infected persons were available, Drs. Fairbrother and Martin studied the fluctuations or changes in the number of antibodies in the blood over periods of 10 to 12 months. The number or proportion of antibodies in the blood seems to tell the exact ability of the individual to resist infection; a large number shows high resistance and a small number shows low resistance. But whether high or low, the body's ability to fight influenza again is back to where it was (before the attack of influenza) within 10 to 12 months."

This means that if the symptoms—head cold, headache, tiredness, sore muscles, prostration—occur you should get off your feet at once and give your heart every chance to fight it again.

PETER PREACHES AT PENTECOST

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:12-18, 36-41. GOLDEN TEXT—Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.—Zechariah 4:6.

We need a revival. With one accord leaders of the Church agree on that point although they may differ widely on other matters. Social and civic leaders agree. One prominent government official recently said that the only hope for the world in this hour of conflict and confusion was a return to the Christian faith of our fathers. He was but one of many outstanding men who have expressed such a belief.

How may such a revival of faith toward God (with its quickening of the believer and the resultant salvation of sinners) be brought about? Certainly it is not in the power of man to produce it, although he does have a vital part in surrendering himself to God's plan and purpose so that He may work again in the midst of His people. Our lesson for today clearly indicates how God worked on Pentecost, namely, through a Spirit-filled people, proclaiming His own Word, with astonishing results following. Will not God work in the same way today if we only give Him a chance?

I. An Amazing Spiritual Experience (vv. 12, 13).

Read the first 11 verses of this chapter and you will learn of the coming of the Holy Spirit upon the disciples—as the rushing of a mighty wind, in tongues of fire, and in the ability to proclaim the Word of God to all men.

There is no use talking about another Pentecost as though God needs to repeat that marvelous day. But the essence of what occurred on Pentecost is the deep need of both individual Christians and of the Church today. In much (one is almost ready to say most) of our Christian work there is not only a failure to recognize the Holy Spirit, but what appears to be an actual ignoring of Him. One of the great experiences of literally thousands of students who have come under the writer's care during the years is their sudden understanding of the fact that the Holy Spirit is a person—yes, a convicting, regenerating, directing, and energizing member of the divine Trinity, working in and through man.

II. An Effective Spiritual Message (vv. 14-18, 36. See also vv. 19-35).

The characteristics of a real gospel message are found here. First of all there must be a Spirit-filled preacher. He may be a minister or he may be a layman, but if the Spirit of God is upon him, there will be the right kind of message.

That message will not be an essay, book review, or dissertation on social or civic problems, but an exposition of the Word of God. Note that Peter preached and interpreted prophecy—a subject which no preacher should neglect—but that he did so not for the purpose of having a sensational sermon subject, but in order to reveal the glories of the person and work of Christ—a lesson some preachers need to learn.

The manner of preaching is also important. Peter was definite, earnest, bold, and decidedly personal in his preaching. A man who is speaking in the energy of the flesh should beware of such marks upon his preaching, but a Spirit-filled man should rejoice in the holy boldness and assurance which the Holy Spirit gives. He will be delivered from any temptations to be extreme or unkind, but will at the same time be led to say those things which will prick the hearts of people and cause them to turn to Christ.

III. An Appropriate Spiritual Result (vv. 37-41).

We often say that there is very little old-time conviction of sin today, and alas, it is all too true. It is not even the privilege of many spiritually-minded preachers who present a true gospel to see such a response as Peter saw on Pentecost. But that does not mean that the Spirit is not working.

God does not hold us responsible for outward evidence of results. He does hold every teacher and preacher responsible for faithful discharge of his sacred stewardship. That includes more than the public ministry of teaching a Sunday School class or preaching a sermon. It means that the individual's life is right with God—no trickery, no dishonesty, no double dealing with God or man; a life yielded to the control of the Holy Spirit. Next comes diligence in study of God's Word, and a willingness to proclaim its whole truth without fear or favor, in season and out of season.

The Living Word

Christ is the Living Word; so it is the Word of God that has come from God, and has come into this world, and by which all and every operation of God is effected. Where the Word of God is received the soul is begotten of God.

The members of Tawas City Masonic Lodge gave a very pleasant social meeting at their hall last Friday night. It was in the form of a surprise to the women, and it was truly a surprise, for the men had been very successful in keeping the elaborate preparations for the event from them. Many of the women balked when ordered to get ready for a party that evening with no information as to where they were going. After much persuasion and some force the guests were brought to the hall. Imagine their amazement when they entered to sit down and partake of a fine four course dinner. And the hall was beautifully decorated, as the ladies discovered when they had recovered from their astonishment enough to look around. Many "Ohs" of enlightenment escaped from their lips when long missed articles of home adornment appeared before their unbelieving eyes. The articles had been surreptitiously purloined over a period of several weeks in anticipation of the reception. The ladies were invested with many secrets of Masonry, one of which is that a sublime cook has found his way into the institution.

Carp Numerous
Carp in the United States has multiplied enormously, particularly in some of the lakes and rivers of the central states, where it frequently attains a weight of 15 to 30 pounds. It is so abundant in many places as to be regarded a nuisance, but it furnishes a supply of cheap food. Its yearly consumption is more than 20,000,000 pounds.

Papyrus Earlier Than Vellum
Papyrus is of much earlier origin than vellum and probably is the second process in writing from the engraving on stones or rocks. This was succeeded by the engraving on clay tablets, which were afterward baked.

Rubber Content of Goldenrod
The rubber content of goldenrod is entirely in its leaves, it has been found after analyzing 24 species.

Introduced Gunpowder
Gunpowder was introduced into Europe by the Saracen invasions.

Owing to the snow storm on Monday, our Tuesday meeting of the Home Economics Group was held up as our leader, Mrs. Victor Herriman was snowed in. However, William Herriman came to our rescue with "Old Dobbin" hitched to a sleigh. He started up the road gathering the members, and the more he picked up, the more noise they made, until it sounded like a snow train. We really surprised our leader when we pulled in. That was the most fun we have had this winter. Thanks to William.
Mrs. Moore, teacher in Grant school, spent Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Herriman, owing to the drifted roads.

The Home Extension Group for Upper Hemlock met at the Grant township hall, Tuesday, January 31, at 1:30 p. m. Owing to drifted roads, the leader, Mrs. Victor Herriman, was not able to be present. After a time of waiting we were informed that Wm. Herriman was taking a load of grain over to Victor's to be ground. We ladies, eight in number, went along and held our meeting at the home of our leader. The lesson was on the making of rugs for the home, and was very ably presented. All in all we had an enjoyable day and thanks a lot to Bill for the sleigh ride, which was a real treat. Let's do it again.

When Phil again looked at his mother, he saw that she had dropped the telegram, had bent down to pick it up, and he saw that she seemed unable to do so. Her arm hung straight down from her shoulder; and her fingers lay with their backs on the floor, two or three inches away from the telegram, her knuckles touching the rug. Her hand was white and bloodless.

He stooped for the yellow paper; and she said, laughing uncertainly: "That's funny, Phil! I was trying to pick up the telegram and I couldn't seem to reach down far enough and then I saw my hand was touching the floor, but I couldn't feel it at all."

Her utterance was hurried; she mumbled the words as though her tongue were thick. One side of her face, Phil saw, was lifeless, sagging as though the flesh were dead upon her bones.

They could hear Dan's voice, swift and eager, up in Barbara's room.

CHAPTER XIII

When in that moment after Dan went racing to find Barbara, Mrs. Sentry stooped to pick up the telegram she had dropped, and could not do so, and saw—though she felt nothing—her own nerveless fingers lying like a dead hand on the rug. She thought: This is the beginning of the end for me. As she thought: Oh, I am glad, glad! Let it not be too long. To be with Arthur soon!

But then when Phil returned and she spoke to him, mumbling her words, feeling her tongue thick and clumsy in her mouth, she saw the terror in his eyes, and she made herself smile to reassure him; and he came toward her, urged her quickly: "Sit down, mother. Lie down. I'll call Doctor Maitin."

"I'm all right, Phil," she said. "It's nothing. My hand went to sleep, that's all." He started toward the telephone; but she checked him. "No, Phil. It's nothing, really. I'm all right now." Her tongue was normal; her hand too. Only she saw that her thumb was uncontrolled, when she tried to straighten it she could not, and she thought: It's my left side, of course. As though it were asleep. If only it would not wake. If only I could sleep, sleep, all of me. Till Arthur comes.

Dan's voice above-stairs was no longer audible. Phil said heartily, fighting his own fears: "Of course you're all right! But just the same, Doctor Maitin—"

"I'll see him tomorrow," she promised. "At his office."

Phil looked toward the hall, as though expecting his sister to appear. "How do you feel—about that?" he asked. "About Dan?"

"Barbara is the one to decide. If she is—she loves him, then I shall be happy too." She was thinking: Since I am to die, what does it matter? Certainly not to Barbara. She is so young, such a child. Dan will love her; and she will forget . . .

Then she heard their voices, their steps on the stairs; and they were here, their eyes shining, yet with a sober gravity. Barbara came to her mother; and Mrs. Sentry waited, and Barbara asked slowly, "Dan has told you, mother?"

"Yes, Barb."

"We've been hoping and hoping he could find something!"

Mrs. Sentry smiled almost teasingly. "Oh, you had it all decided, already planned?"

"If he could—find the job he wanted, yes," Barbara confessed. "And I hoped it would be soon."

Mrs. Sentry's eyes fell, so that Barbara might not read them. Dan said quickly, "I have to be ready to start work out there on Monday, Mrs. Sentry."

"That is—July first?"

"Yes."

Phil thought her voice was miraculously steady. "You will come back for Barbara later?"

"I thought we'd be married at once, go to Cleveland together!"

Mrs. Sentry nodded gently. "I used to think hurried weddings lacked dignity," she confessed. "But I expect they are sweeter than—dignity." Nellie came to announce dinner, and she said, "Stay, Dan?"

But he could not. "I've still a job here," he reminded them. "I'll have to run." Barbara went with him to the door; and Phil asked his mother in a low tone, "All right now?"

"Of course, Phil."

"If Barbara knew about you, she'd wait!"

She shook her head, smiling. "I won't cry-baby, spoil Barbara's happiness. She loves him, Phil. Only—it will be hard to have her go."

They heard Dan depart, heard the door close. Then Barbara, as they moved toward the dining-room, met them in the hall; and for a moment she held her mother close.

"Thank you, mother," she said. "You're wonderful to me. Dan wants to take me with him; and—I want terribly to be a coward and go." She looked at Phil, reading his thoughts. "He says—even if we get married this week—he can fix it so there wouldn't be anything in the papers."

Mrs. Sentry said, "I'm sure he can!" Barbara looked at her keenly; and after a moment the girl cried: "But—I'm not going! I'll stay with you till—till afterward, mother. I'll go to Dan then."

Mrs. Sentry spoke carefully. "It's for you to decide," she said. "But—I should be glad to have you stay."

"I shall!" Barbara promised. "Oh mother, I shall." She was suddenly mature, a woman; and yet, Phil thought at dinner, she seemed conscious of this, and faintly diffident, so that beneath the cloak of maturity which she put on he saw still the child, terrified yet brave . . .

He thought with a deep affection and solicitude: I wish she could marry Dan and go. She could if mother did not need her so. But mother will need her, tomorrow, after we see the Governor . . .

Barbara was still asleep in the morning when he took Mrs. Sentry to Doctor Maitin's office. The doctor heard their story, and then with that calloused insensibility characteristic of physicians, left Phil to wait alone for two hours while he applied to Mrs. Sentry every test known to scientific medicine.

But his report in the end was reassuring. He said to them both: "Well, Mrs. Sentry, I've checked up in every possible way; and—there is nothing organically wrong with you. I am satisfied there has been no cerebral accident. Your nerves are worn out, and just before this happened you had your arms tight folded with your clenched fist under your left arm. That shut off the blood supply, perhaps; and the strain you have been under, and a cramped position, and fatigue did the rest. That is all, I am sure."

Phil asked, "Ought we to do anything about it?"

Doctor Maitin hesitated. "Take your mother away somewhere," he said then. "To your summer home at York Harbor, perhaps. Can you go today?"

Mrs. Sentry said, "I am to see the Governor at two this afternoon." She thought Doctor Maitin might forbid this, tell her not to go; and she prepared to resist him. But he did not.

"Then afterward?" he urged. "Later in the afternoon. Go up there and get plenty of rest and sleep. Those are the only drugs you need."

At home they found Barbara awake, and wondering where they had been, and surprised to find Phil not gone to his office; but she was too much absorbed in her own happiness to be diligent with questions, and they put her off. Then she remembered that Mr. Falkran had telephoned, to speak to Phil.

"I told him he could catch you in town," she said. "Maybe you'd better call him up."

Phil met his mother's eye, and he went into the library to phone. Falkran said, "I've bad news, Mr. Sentry."

Phil felt the blood pound in his ears against the receiver. "Yes?"

"I saw the Governor," Falkran explained. "He is willing to see Mrs. Sentry if she insists, but only as a matter of courtesy. His decision is already taken."

Phil found himself nodding, without speaking; and then Falkran's voice came in his ear. "Hello? Sentry? Did you hear?"

"Yes. Oh, yes."

"He says the interview would be useless, but of course he will see her if she wishes."

Phil's shoulders straightened, he assumed the responsibility of decision. "Thank you, Mr. Falkran," he said. "I should say it will not be necessary."

"She will not come?"

"She will not come," said Phil. He waited a little before returning to the others. They had gone out into the garden together; and he saw them through the window, walking arm in arm, his mother with her head bent, Barbara talking in swift eager fashion.

When he came out to them, she was still chattering; and he asked with a wry grin, "Broadcasting, Barb?"

"Oh, what did Mr. Falkran want?" she demanded. "Nothing," he said. "Business." He spoke to his mother. "That meeting is off," he told her in tones which he tried to make casual. "Falkran is satisfied it would do no good."

He saw her instant understanding; but Barbara protested: "What meeting? Don't be so mysterious!"

"Why, I wanted to see Dan's boss," Phil said with mock gravity. "To see if he wouldn't meet that Cleveland offer, try to keep Dan here; but he says Dan isn't worth what they're already paying him, much less more! Says Dan can go and welcome!"

Barbara laughed. "All right, have secrets if you want to. I can't bother for he goes." She hesitated. "But I'm not going to leave you yet. I'll wait with you, go to him by and by."

"There's nothing to wait for here." The girl spoke bravely. "I think there is. I can't help thinking there will be something. But if you don't mind our getting married first, before Dan goes—"

Mrs. Sentry smiled. "No, I don't mind."

Barbara caught her mother rapturously, kissed her hard, whirled away toward the house like a dancer. "I've got to telephone Dan this minute!" she cried, and was gone.

Mrs. Sentry looked after her; and Phil put his arm across his mother's shoulders. "That was great, mother!" he said. "You've made her so darned happy! And—I know what it meant to you to let her go."

She said, half to herself: "I've built my life, Phil, on—pride. And I've been selfish too. But we've nothing of pride left, and—I'll be happier if Barbara is happy. I'll have to start rebuilding my life on—some other foundation besides pride and selfishness now."

So Dan and Barbara were married, in the big living-room, with Phil, Linda and Mrs. Sentry as only witnesses. Mrs. Sentry during the intervening days and on that wedding day sometimes clung secretly to Phil's arm; but she managed to do nothing to alarm Barbara or distress her. They were married just after noon; then Dan took train for Cleveland and was gone.

This was Friday, the twenty-eighth of June. After Dan's departure, Phil proposed to his mother that they all drive away to York. "Just for the week-end?" he suggested.

She hesitated, asked then, "Phil, when will it be?" She added firmly: "What day? What hour?"

He spoke in a low tone. "Why, usually just after midnight," he said. "The first day?"

"Yes. Monday."

"I—wanted to know," she explained, apologetically. "I'm—much better here than in York, till then."

He urged: "But Doctor Maitin—"

"Afterward, possibly," she said decisively. "For now, we will stay here."

So they stayed. Saturday morning, at Mrs. Sentry's insistence, Phil went to the office as usual. He and Linda drove in together, Phil at the wheel, Linda close against his side; and they spoke little. At his desk he ran through the morning mail with her; and when she had gone to her typewriter he sat idle, his hands in front of him, palms down upon the top of the desk, and he stared at his own hands as though he had never seen them before.

Then Linda came back in. He raised his eyes heavily; and she said, "Phil, Mr. Wines is here."

For a moment the name was meaningless to him.

"Mr. Wines?"

"Her father," Linda reminded him. "He—wants to see you."

Phil came tautly to his feet. "What about, Linda? Is there anything—?" He could not shape the words.

But she shook her head. "No," she said. "It's about a letter he's had from Mr. Hare. Some money your father's sending him."

Phil remembered that his father had created a trust for the old man; he said miserably, "I don't want to see him, Lin." He picked up his hat. "You take care of him. I suppose he wants more. Try to satisfy him. I'm going home to mother. You can handle him, can't you?"

"Of course," she promised. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Chlorophyll as Essential to Flower Foliage as Is Blood to Human Beings

It is generally understood that growing plants require light. But few gardeners know the effect that certain colored rays have upon green stems and leaves. Dr. Earl S. Johnston, of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, has carried out some interesting experiments with colored light to discover what hue is the most favorable for growing plants.

Sunlight is necessary for the formation of chlorophyll. Chlorophyll is as essential to flower foliage as is blood to human beings. It is the substance that gives the plant its green color. Without it, leaves turn brown, wither and die.

Doctor Johnston has discovered that chlorophyll is formed better under red light than blue. Sunlight, we know, is made up of many colored rays. The plant seems to pick out the colored ray it needs for substance.

Plants require blue rays as well as red, in order to produce starch and sugar. Both red and blue rays are necessary to absorb carbon dioxide, which is part of the process involved in the manufacture of starch.

Doctor Johnston has made a rotating wheel, which varies the hues. He has found that as the mixtures of color rays closely meet the combination of rays in pure sunlight, the plants grow normally. While, on the other hand, plants appear to grow abnormally if any particular hue is accentuated.

The shapes, heights, and types of plants in one part of the world seem to differ from those in another locality. This seems to prove that the sunlight in the polar regions is unlike that in tropical places.

Steamships on the Atlantic

The Savannah, built in New York, is usually considered the first ocean steamship. On May 26, 1819, she left Savannah, Ga., and reached Liverpool in 25 days, during 18 of which she used her engines. Regular steamship service across the Atlantic was started by the Great Western and Sirius. Both ships arrived in New York on April 23, 1833, the Sirius having finished the trip from London in 17 days and the Great Western from Bristol in 15 days.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Touches Upon the Food Values of Fish and Shellfish; Shows How They Can Help to Improve Nutritive Quality of the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A PRESENT-DAY nutritionist might easily quarrel with the traditional distinction between fish, flesh and fowl. For the flesh of fish, cattle, swine, sheep and poultry is commonly referred to as "meat;" and the nutritive values of all these foods properly may be considered together. Their composition is very similar, consisting principally of protein, water and fat, with the chief variation occurring in the fat content. They also average about one per cent of minerals and contain some of the vitamins in varying amounts.

Fish vs. Other Flesh Foods

There is a wide variation among the different kinds of fish in the amount of fat they contain. In general, fish have less fat and more water than other forms of meat. Their tissue fibers are also shorter, which makes for ease of digestion. In many cases, their flavor is less pronounced because there are fewer extractives.

For this reason, fish is considered less stimulating, and that is also why it is often served with some sort of sauce, or with a lemon garnish to point up the flavor.

The proteins of fish are regarded as equally useful with other forms of meat for helping to build and repair body tissues. Most lean fish are richer in minerals than fatty fish; in this respect, they resemble lean meats.

Salt water fish are notable as a source of iodine, required for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland. It is desirable that this mineral be included in the dietary to help prevent simple goiter.

The Cattle of the Sea

The most significant difference between fish and most other flesh foods is that with the exception of certain shellfish which are produced under government regulation, "crops" from the sea are neither planted by man, nor cultivated by him.

Unlike the farmer or the cattle man, the fisherman gathers his "harvest" without the previous effort of sowing seeds or cultivating plants; without the necessity of providing shelter or fodder.

To a man or woman who has never enjoyed the experience of catching fish for dinner, the sea may suggest nothing but an expanse of blue-green water. But to those who are familiar with the habits of its denizens, the sea is a fascinating place . . . teeming with life. It contains many forms of vegetable materials, of which seaweed is the best known. These provide food for the lower forms of animal life which inhabit the waters. They, in turn, are eaten by larger creatures. In the final analysis, all forms of animal life in the sea, as on land, are dependent for their sustenance upon the sun, which stores up energy in green plants.

Fish as a Source of Vitamin D

The sun is concerned, too, with the production of vitamin D, as it is by means of sunshine that our best source becomes available. Fish liver oils are the richest natural sources of vitamin D. This vitamin is necessary for the proper utilization of calcium and phosphorus in building strong bones and sound teeth. We prize highly the liver oils of the cod, halibut, salmon, swordfish and tuna for their fine amount of this precious vitamin.

The body oils of certain fish are also valued for their vitamin D. Some varieties that are notable in this respect are salmon, herring and sardines. It is agreeable as well as economical to obtain vitamin D by serving seafood, because fish supplies so many other valuable nutrients at the same time.

Fish Is Universally Available

There are perhaps more varieties of fish than any other type of first-class protein food. A government bulletin has listed 40 kinds besides smoked and salted fish and the various shellfish.

Thus the use of fish provides ample opportunities for varying the menu. Moreover, though fish is more perishable than other flesh foods, it is available today in every town and hamlet, however remote from the waterways.

No matter where she lives, the homemaker can choose from a wide variety of canned, dried, smoked, salted and quick-frozen fish. And both transportation and refrigeration have been so improved that fresh-caught fish are distributed far inland.

The quick-frozen fish should be handled as carefully as fresh fish, kept under refrigeration, and gans, such as liver and kidney, as a source of three vitamins, A, B and G.

Place of Fish in the Diet

The most important contribution of all forms of fish is their proteins, which as we have seen may be used interchangeably with those of beef, pork, lamb, veal and poultry. The iodine of sea-foods and shellfish is also extremely important, and in some varieties, the content of vitamins A and D. The more fatty fish, including mackerel, salmon, eels, herring, catfish and shad are comparatively rich in energy values. The fuel value of cod, flounder, perch, smelts and haddock, which are low in fat, and halibut and whitefish which have a moderate amount, may be increased through the use of a rich sauce, or they may be cooked in fat.

Taking into consideration its food values and economy, and when the preserved forms are utilized, its ease of preparation, the homemaker who desires to feed her family well should serve fish or shellfish, in some form, much oftener than once each week!

Questions Answered

Mrs. M. McK.—It has been calculated that the amount of vitamin G now believed to be necessary for helping to maintain good health might be supplied by a pint of milk, one serving of grapefruit, one whole egg, five slices of whole wheat bread and one serving of turnip greens.

Mrs. L. C. A.—There is absolutely no basis for the old superstition that fish and milk should not be taken together. Some persons might have been made ill by taking fish and milk at one meal. But in that case, we must conclude that the individual must have been allergic to one of these foods; or possibly the fish was not fresh.

Knitted Rag Rug to Make in Soft Colors

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
 HERE is news for those who have been writing me for more rag rug designs. A special Rug Leaflet has been prepared for you. It will be included free upon request with your order for the two books offered herewith. If you already have these two useful books, send 6 cents in stamps for the Rug Leaflet.

Wooden knitting needles 3/8-inch in diameter are used for this rug. Cut or tear the rags 3/4-inch wide and knit them in strips 10 inches wide, changing colors every 10 inches by cutting the material close to the needle and sewing a new color to it.

When three strips have been knitted with the colors arranged as shown here, sew them together on the wrong side with heavy carpet thread. Use a crochet hook of about the same size as the knitting needles for the edge of single crochet.

NOTE: Be your own decorator. Make new draperies; curtains; slipcovers; bedspreads and dozens of other things for every room. Crossing the Road
 HERE'S the modern counterpart of the ancient chicken poser:
 Why does a pedestrian cross the road—at the wrong places and without looking?
 That's what the National Safety Council is trying to find out after an examination of its records which proved that at least a third of the pedestrians killed in rural areas and 40 per cent of those killed in cities were crossing at places other than intersections.
 In 1937, the loss of life from these classifications mounted over the 5,600 mark.

Hoboes of Today

According to Jeff Davis, a prominent hobo, there are 40,000 girl hoboes and 1,000,000 man hoboes on the road. Where these hoboes end up is a matter of conjecture. It is likely that some of them become disgusted with the life and go into some form of business or take up a trade. Others continue the life until they die a natural death or are killed in an accidental manner.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL

The Sophomore English class is studying a unit on scientific discoveries. As supplementary work, the student gave reports on various fields of scientific progress, such as the airships, implements of warfare, telescope, and agricultural machinery. The students are also reading about such men of science as Faraday, Pupin and Volta.

The English IV class has just begun the study of the prose of the Romantic period. An important phase of the prose writing of this period is the development of the familiar, or personal essay. In this connection many of Lamb's "Essays of Elia" were discussed.

The Latin I class studied the story of Jason and the golden fleece. From this story the valuable lesson that nothing is impossible is obtained. The class also read about the gladiatorial combats in the Roman amphitheatres.

By the time these items are published, the special school meeting to determine whether or not the school and public will have an auditorium-gymnasium will be an event of the past. All of us believe that the democratic form of government is the kind to be desired, and so all of us will be willing to abide by the decision of the voters.
