DEMOCRATS NOMINATE MISS WORDEN; REPUBLICANS PLACE RUSSELL ROLLIN ON TICKET

As a result of the two recent party conventions there are two nominees for the office of County School Commissioner. Miss Margaret E. Worden, Republican and present incumbent, was highly endorsed and unanimously nominated last Saturday by the Democratic convention. The Republicans nominated Russell Rollin, of this city, and teacher in the Plainfield schools, as a candidate for that office at the convention held here Wednesday forenoon. In the contest for the nomination the Republican delegates gave Rollin 28 votes and Miss Worden 20 votes. A recent change in the election laws placed nominations for school commisrecent change in the election laws placed nominations for school commissioner before the county convention. The nominations, have been filled by primary elections since 1911.

Iosco County has been fortunate in having excellent material for this office and there have been few changes in the administration since the office of county school commissioner was set up by the legislature in 1887. Rev. A. C. Kay was the first commisioner. He was succeeded by J. K. Osgerby and he by Frank Stevenson. In 1899 the late John A. Campbe'll and the succeeding the suc was elected to the office. He was an incumbent until he resigned in 1918. Miss Bradley was appointed to fill the vacancy and held it until her death in 1925. Miss Margaret E. Worden was placed in the office and by

Yacht Club Plans

The Tawas Bay Yacht Club has outlined a definite program of activities which will result in the construction of a club house and a fulltime operating basis.

Reorganized last summer for the purpose of developing the annual Regatta to the extent that class racing shou'd prevail, the club since that time has been preparing the course it is now ready to follow.

Realizing the value of its annual Regatta to the growth of this area as the ideal vacation land, the Yacht as the ideal vacation land, the Facht C'ub has decided to gain recognition for Tawas Bay through the development of the National One-Design class, which is fast proving to be the class.

The first step in this direction was taken when Oliver Alversor, Carl Babcock, Matthew Haglund, Clyde Soper and L'oyd McKay, Jr. .. registered their boats and joined the National One-Design association which is located in New York City, Three boats constitute a fleet. To this nucleus will be added the boats of other National owners. Each race sailed by members of the association is many found himself and knocked in the National owners.

In dealing with today's international situation the U.S. government has its choice of two methods. Any citizen may hold to one or the other method with equal righteous-

(1) Strict neutrality and isolation. Europe's affairs are no business of ours. We should have no arms secrets, no secret alliances; all U. S. activities should be strictly aboveboard because secrets are undemocratic and tend to create public doubt about the government.

(2) The antithesis. In 1939 one hemisphere's problems are another's. If the institution of democracy is worth saving we must join other nations in aggressive combat against dictators. This need not mean war, but constitutes economic and military favoritism to one group of nations, with sanctions against

In post-World war history, not until the current winter have these two contrasting foreign policies found such ardent champions as to cause a marked rift in Washington. Champions of the latter (favoritism) are President Roosevelt and administration leaders. Opposed is practically every Republican senator and congressman, plus a formidable bloc of insurgent Democrats. That this difference of opinion is partly a reflection of political animosity is a foregone conclusion. Administration forces favor internationalism as expressed in Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade treaties: contrariwise is the traditional Republican tenet of high tariff walls and the isolation that inevitably accompanies them.

This winter's foreign policy bating plane crashed in California. bouncing out a representative of the French air ministry whose presence in the U.S. had previously been kept secret. The subsequent revelations: That President Roosevelt had approved sale of U. S.-made warplanes to France, though army secrets were being carefully guarded from all foreigners. A few days later the senate's military affairs committee constituted itself a body of visiting firemen (see photo) to call on the President and get the real facts about a rumored U. S.-French mili-

The secret President Roosevelt reputedly told his visitors was so choice that some anonymous committeeman blurted to the press the minute the conference ended, which bespeaks the futility of any administration attempt at sharing its military secrets with congress. The alleged secret: That the U.S. is following a policy of selling arms to "independent states" as opposed to dictators; that the U. S. will give Britain and France every assistance but troops in case of war; that the "frontiers of the United States are in France.' If a vote were taken, most people would sympathize with the President's foreign policy, i.e., to help Britain, France and China against Japan, Italy and Germany; to improve trade and political relations with South America, where dictator states are attempting to gain sway. But for the President to speak openly of his purpose brings the situation into a shockingly sharp focus for the first time.

The net result will probably be open congressional revolt against secret alliances, against favoritism in military exports and even against the President's emergency defense program, which many legislators think is unjustified in view of the tax burden it would create. After a nation wins so many victories as Nazi Germany has won in the past 12 months (Austria, Czechoslovakia, Spain) it can practicably adopt a "peace" policy and continue to win concessions from weaker powers, who thereby gain the privilege of sighing with relief. In Germany's case a "peace" policy is the more practicable because the Reich must consolidate the past year's gains and pay temporary attention to repairing its internal structure.

How permanent Europe's "peace" will be is conjectural. But following Chancellor Hitler's half-threat-

Russia. Thoroughly scared by the chance that Germany will dominate a Pan-Ukrainian movement in south Russia, the Soviet is ready to come to terms with Hitler. In exchange for surrendering his Ukrainian plans Der Fuehrer could tap Russia's endless supply of foodstuffs. The possibility is confirmed by Izvestia, Moscow Communist organ: "Should Germany extend a hand to Russia, it will not remain floating in the air." The gravest consequences might result from such an alliance, for Russian resources and manpower, coupled with German ingenuity, could throw a dictator scare into the entire world.

Colonies. Most of Germany's former colonies are mandated to Britain. Hitler's speech demanded their return and the next day Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons he would not discuss colonies with Germany without "an agreed and ample measure of disarmament." This showed Mr. Chamberlain is nevertheless willing to return the colonies, and since the Reich's conquest is already almost complete Hitler should have no objection to a temporary arms reduction.

Trade. Hitler's speech declared the Reich "must export or die." Next day Robert Spear Hudson of the British overseas trade department said he believed "there is plenty of export trade to go around.' More important was the announcement that German and British industrial representatives will soon meet at Duesseldorf to consider 'mutual trade and economic prob-

Italy vs. France. Hitler promsed to aid Italy in case of war, obviously referring to Mussolini's territorial claims against France. Since German-British relations are reaching an amicable stage, Britain would therefore not be prone to aid France against a German-Italian combination. Hence it can be pre-dicted that Italy may get her share in the Suez canal, plus ownership of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa rail-power, the Reich is now ready to press its pants and assume a role of respectability.

Public Works

Created in 1933, the public works administration pays 55 per cent of local-sponsored construction projects. Scheduled to expire in 1940, PWA still has $1,500,000,000 in projects on file and would like to become a permanent agency to combat unemployment and centralize federal relief projects. Soon to be offered is an administration bill embodying this program. No special annual appropriation will be asked but congress will get data to show the necessity of creating a "permanent financial reservoir" of $1,000,000,aged wives, (2) help widows and 000 a year.

Transportation

With fairs on both east and west coasts this summer, U. S. railroads figured most vacationists would take in one or the other, might even take in both with a little incentive. Just announced by the Association of American Railroads is a "grand circle" fare plan which bids fair to boom 1939 passenger travel. The scheme: Beginning April 28, a person in any point in the country can travel to both New York and San Francisco expositions and back home at a total coach fare of $90. First class fare is $135, plus space charges.

Those picturesque street merchants, the pushcart peddlers, are disappearing rapidly under the La-Guardia administration. The first to go were those on upper Park avenue between One Hundred and Eleventh and One Hundred and Sixteenth streets. They were put in a citybuilt structure under the railroad tracks which are elevated at that point. More recently, Paddy's market on Ninth avenue from Fortieth street on down to Thirty-fourth, was put out of business. The city made no provision for those pushcart men but a number banded together and rented a vacant lot just off Ninth avenue and have their carts there. The latest blow-or improvementhas come to the lower East Side which is the real stronghold of the pushcart industry. First avenue pushcart men have been put in stalls, in a market, built by the city at a cost of $225,000, at First avenue and Tenth street.

The First avenue pushcart market was one of the sights of the city. It extended from First to Fourteenth streets in a solid line. Almost every thing from fresh vegetables to second-hand caps and from kitchenware to women's dresses, could be bought from the carts. Prices were astonishingly low due to a minimum overhead and keen competitionmostly the latter. For a few cents, enough vegetables for a family dinner could be bought, and 50 cents would buy a pair of used but still serviceable shoes. Despite the low prices, most sales were made only after more or less bargaining. Customers were mostly tenement dwellers and to tenement dwellers, pennies are important. They are important to the pushcart men also. Some are worrying for fear their profits won't be sufficient to pay $4.25 a week rent to the city.

Many of the pushcart men welcomed the new market. Standing for hours in the street in all kinds of weather is not exactly pleasant. Nor does it improve the health. The weather does stocks no good either. Most important, there are days when it is impossible to do business outdoors. Then, too, there is something else. A pushcart man is a peddler. If he's in a market, he's a merchant.

On a recent Monday, the subway lines of the city carried a total of about 5,760,000 passengers. By no means does that represent the total travel within the city on that particular day. In addition, there were 618,000 passengers on the elevated Trend. Having boxed its way into a position of dominant European lines and hundreds of thousands who went here and there in busses, lines and hundreds of thousands who street cars, taxicabs and private conveyances. New York is an uneasy, ever moving city. Transportation, even though it may not be beyond the limits of the city and with a five-cent fare, cost subway riders alone $288,000 on that day. And it wasn't a record either.

> Weather plays an important part in the number of nickels that go into subway turnstiles. The worse the weather, the more nickels. On fair days, surface lines gain in volume of passengers as fewer persons go underground. Surface transportation may be slower but it is out in the open air. Also there is less congestion. But subways take passengers to wherever they wish to go, and so when the skies are dark and the streets are slippery, millions pour in and out of the tubes.

Central park horseback riders are not entirely deterred by weather. On a recent stormy day, when the streets were all but blocked, I noted a number of riders following the bridle path in the park. Most were attired in the conventional habits, stiff hat and all. One young woman, however, had prepared herself for a cold canter. Not only did she have a Mackinaw jacket on over her habit but she wore ear muffs as well. Noted also on that same day, a number of walkers making the turn around the reservoir. Some metropolites are hardy.

Scholars Determine First Use of 'Cooler'

CHICAGO.—Scholars preparing a new dictionary gave a pedigree to the term "cooler" which, of course, means the clink, the pokey, the hoosegow or maybe just plain jail.

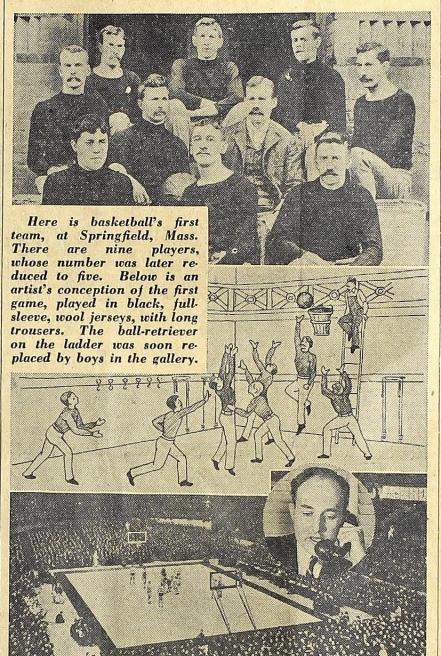

University of Chicago experts who have another section of the New American English Dictionary in page proofs said they traced "cooler" as a slang term for jail 'way back to 1884 when a middle western newspaper said one day:

"Two Milnor boys were arrested on the charge of drunkenness, lodged in the cooler over night and then fined $5 in the morning.

Basketball Goes Big Time

In December, 1891, a staff member of the Springfield (Mass.) YMCA training school invented a new game by corraling two peach baskets, a soccer ball and a smooth floor. That man was Dr. James 4. Naismith, now a 76-year-old professor emeritus at the University of Kansas. Basketball, now played by 20,000,000 people each year, got its real start at Lawrence, Kan. A member of the first girls' team, organized there, was the future Mrs. Naismith, now deceased. The "parents" of this remarkable game are shown above, in 1928, during a celebration in their honor.

Basketball now attracts more fans than baseball or football. Partly responsible for this growth is Ned Irish (inset), who brings big college teams to New York's Madison Square Garden each year. The above photo was taken during the Fordham-New York university game in January, 1936, when 10,074 people attended. This tilt established a new attendance record.

It ran slapbang into the impenetrable wall of the Rocky mountains. There was an Indian legend that there was a pass over the divide, along the course of the Marias river. Mr. Stevens, a young engineer for the railroad, talked to the Blackfeet about it. There was such a pass. They knew all about it. But not all of Jim Hill's wampum could bribe them even to point in that direc-tion. This Marias pass was the dwelling place of evil spirits, of sorcerers, of dreadful demons, and all who went that way lost either their lives or their reason.

at its eighty-sixth annual meeting in

Mr. Stevens mushed over the mountains with the thermometer at 50 degrees below zero and found no pass. But, by chance, he found a wanderer in the wilderness, a Blackfoot driven out by his tribe because he had killed a man. The Indian had been having a difficult time. A few devils and monsters, more or less, meant little to him. They made a deal. The story of their days-on-end scramble to the roof of the continent through five feet of snow and bitter cold, with Mr. Stevens sleepless as he kept an eye on his homicidal guide, is one of the classics of the conquest of the wilderness. They found the pass, and their return was another desperate adventure. But soon the scream of locomotives was crying down the demons, who, presumably, moved on.

When the Panama canal was pro-jected, John F. Stevens fought through, against weighty opposition, the lock principle against the sealevel plan. The engineer in charge, from 1905 until he was succeeded by General Goethals, he flattened all the demons of disease and disorder which had licked De Lesseps. deneral Goethals rated his work as among the greatest of engineering achievements. He was minister plenipotentiary to the Soviets in 1917, remaining six years and reorganizing and rebuilding their railroads.

him a medal for it. One can think offhand of a lot of vexing problems that might be tossed into its hopper these days. Set up in congress, dealing the answers on war and peace, national defense, relief and a balanced budget, it ought to save a lot of money.

Dr. Bush, former vice president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, became president of the Carnegie institution on January 1 of this year. He is one of the most distinguished mathematical physicists in America. A tall, genial, bespectacled scientist, with a slightly stooped and somewhat stringy figure, with untamed hair, he leads reporters quite out of their depth. His metallic cerebration was just one of many of his interesting devices and discoveries, including, particularly, research in the transmission of electric power, to which he has made notable contributions.

The son of a distinguished Boston clergyman, he romped through Tufts, Harvard and M. I. T., picking up three degrees in three and onehalf years, thereafter teaching at M. I. T.

On February 19, 1936, addressing the New York Patent Lawyers' association, he was severely critical of the American patent system, for its "appalling fixity and lack of adaptability." At the current com-mittee hearing, he commends it, but both meager news reports are out of their context, and Dr. Bush doubtless could defend himself against charge of inconsistency.

THEY'VE been having trouble with "Idiot's Delight." In the play, the hero and heroine prepared to die together. But that didn't seem to work out too well when the picture was previewed, so another ending was prepared, to be used if other pre-release audiences liked it better than the original one.

Now that Vivien Leigh is scheduled to shoot into stardom (if "Gone With the Wind" turns out well for her), some of the pictures in which she appeared in England will be released again over here.

Meanwhile we have the word of Ernie Westmore, the demon makeup man, that another girl from the British isles will "burn up Hollywood." Her name is Maureen O'Hara, for screen purposes; in real life it's Maureen Fitzsimmons. She hails from Dublin, is 18 years old, and is the discovery of Erich Pommer, discoverer of Marlene Dietrich. She is working in London in the new Charles Laughton picture, "Jamaica Inn" as Laughton's leading lady.

Tex Ritter, Monogram's singing cowboy, is on a two months' personal appearance tour, with four members of the musical unit used in his pictures. They are traveling by car, with Tex in his trailer, and expect to stop in 52 towns before they return to the studio and another series of westerns.

There's to be a new hair cut for the ladies, named for Ina Claire; it will be launched with tons of publicity. Of course, Miss Claire has the kind of hair that will take and hold any kind of hair-do, and can have it whimped into shape by an have it whipped into shape by an expert three or four times a week, or even every day, which makes things tough for her imitators.

George Raft's departure from George Raft's departure from Paramount was not exactly unexpected. It came as a result of his refusal to play the lead in "Magnificent Fraud." Lloyd Nolan has formed the habit of stepping into the parts that Raft doesn't want, so he did it this time. Last August, when Raft refused a role in "St. Louis Blues," the same thing happened.

To this desk came a touching story about a cocker spaniel named "Rudy," given to Tommy Riggs by Rudy Vallee a year ago. It began to pine in a corner when a dog character was introduced on the program, not knowing that the dog was played by Brad Barker, an animal imitator. mal imitator.

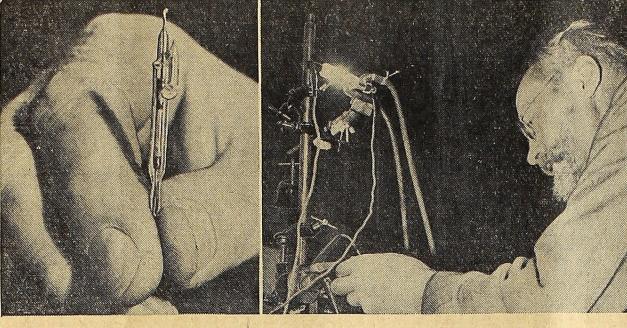

And, ran the story, a doctor friend of Riggs' claimed that, when "Rudy" died the next day, it was because of "the nearest thing to a broken heart that he had ever seen in an animal."

That doctor should have consulted the elevator boy in Riggs' apartment hotel, who confided to me the fact that the dog died of distemper. But distemper doesn't make a touching little story for press agents.

Got any hobbies? Dave Elman, conductor of "Hobby Lobby," declares that, according to statistics, the life of modern man is prolonged for several years through intelligent use of leisure time in cultivating them. If Elman himself doesn't look out he'll need something more than a hobby to prolong his. Since none of his "Hobby Lobby" guests arrive in New York before Monday morning, he works from nine o'clock Monday morning until at least midnight Monday night interviewing them and preparing the material for his broadcasts.

and observations." I am quoting Dr. Frederick F. Tisdall, Toronto, in National Health

"It is interesting to note that one of these essential substances was isolated but a few months ago—nicotinic acid. This substance, known to chemists for 75 years, was not suspected of having anything to do with human nutrition until some months ago when it was discovered that it would cure that dreaded disease — pellagra — of the Southern states." As pellagra affects the stomach, intestines, nervous system, skin and eyes, it can be seen how important food can be to the entire body.

Nicotinic Acid Necessary.

"It is now established that tiny amounts of this acid are necessary to life. It is found in many food substances, such as wheat germ, liv-

A further interesting and valuable discovery was made in that if patients with pellagra have some infection present also, such as an ordinary cold, the amount of nicotinic acid necessary to overcome the pellagra is increased many times. The substance just as infection increases the need for iron in the system.

-Dr. Tisdall shows also the need of each of the vitamins and other food egg yolk, milk, liver, green vegetables are rich in vitamin D) and you can be sure that you are getting all of the 30 food elements necestal of the 30 food elements sary for health and life.

Psychoanalysis Is Study Of Unconscious Self

It has been well said that this face and body each of us presents to the world is really not our true self. It is just like a coat or cloak which others see and judge us by. Our words and actions can be what we want them to be. The true self may be really better than what the world sees, but with most of us we present our best side, our show window as it may be called. While we realize that we do not present our real selves to the world, we do not realize that we do not really know scious moments.

us, a very big part, that we our-selves do not know and this unknown part of us may make us bemal. This different action or behavior on our part is said to be due to this unconscious (not subconscious) part of us.

Unconscious Part Important.

As a matter of fact this unconscious part is really the biggest or most important part. "It is more important for two principal reasons: First, because it covers a far larger range, both as to time and extent, reaching back into our life before we were born and into the lives of our ancestors, and, second, because it is free from any interference or handling by us, and therefore when it is made to speak it tells the frank and unvarnished truth."

A psychoanalyst is one who by patience and skill makes us answer directly and without prepared thought the significant questions he asks. The words in these questions arouse certain words or expressions of thought in our minds. The psy-choanalyst can interpret the words or expressions which come from our part of us and caused certain behavior on our part. When this is all explained to us we can see the reaget rid of it to behave normally.

are really eating in a sensible or scientific manner.

* As a matter of fact, we really do need all the vitamins and minerals of which you read and hear.

There are no less than 30 different food elements which are essential or absolutely necessary for life. If any one of these 30 feed that it is the only faith that has proved itself in the crucible of daily experience.

There is a sense, however, in which Christianity as a whole is on trial. The Church which professes to represent Christ on earth has failed most miserably at so many points that the world is looking at it with the same cold suspicion with which the Church was viewed in the time of Peter. The question which one can feel on every hand even though it is not asked in words, is, though it is not asked in words, is, "What have you that will meet the unprecedented need of the individual—the social order—the whole of humanity?" There is a sufficient and a satisfying answer, but it is not found so much in the temporal realm as in the spiritual. We have something to offer that is better than silver or gold—the salvation which silver or gold—the salvation which is found in none other than Jesus Christ, our Lord.

I. Better Than Silver and Gold

The lame man had long since abandoned hope of anything more than the coins that he could beg as he sat at the temple gate. He is typical of our hardened and cynical ago which is interested only in cal age which is interested only in what it can get in cash, and in what that money will buy. Even Christian that money will buy. tian people seem to have forgotten that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15).

God has for us things far better than silver and gold—deliverance from the power and penalty of sin, glad liberation from the limitations of spirit which hold us down and make us content with the paltry infection increases the need for this alms of men. Where are these things to be found? In Christ. How are they ministered? Through His faithful servants. Peter and John were the kind of men who, though were the kind of men who, though substances and one naturally asks himself how can it be known that all these food factors are present in the diet. "Build up your diet around milk, meat, eggs, vegetables and fruit, add some vitamin D in the wintertime (cod-liver oil, butter, you will receive that which is between their silver and gold."

were the kind of men who, though busy, had time to pray (v. 1). If you know men or women like that, cultivate their friendship, look intently to them in faith (vv. 4, 5), receive their help (v. 7), and above all, believe in their Christ (v. 6), and you will receive that which is between their silver and gold. ter than silver and gold.

of healing for the spiritual cripples of our day. The weak-kneed, lameankled, and spirit-darkened individuals in our churches and communities need the touch of God. Perhaps you may be used to bring them His message of deliverance and power. II. Wonder and Amazement (3:

It has been suggested that one of the weak points in the ministry of the modern church is the lack of such miraculous deliverances from sin as those which caused the unbelievers of a generation or two ago to look with wonder on the ministry of the Word. After all there is no testimony just like that of a redeemed and transformed life. Men know is what might be called our thoughts and actions during our conscious moments. All we may argue with our philosophy, question our theology, but a residue moments. There is, however, another part of in a community that no scoffer can

There are two reactions recorded in the context of our lesson which have a little differently from nor- reveal the possible attitudes of men toward such experiences. Some were amazed and believed in Christ. (4:4). Others hated the cause of Christ (4:16, 17) and they cast the preachers into prison (4:1-3). Did this discourage them? No, indeed. They knew that they owed allegiance to God rather than man (4:19, 20), and consequently used their very trial as an opportunity to proclaim III. The Pre-eminent Saviour (4:

Note here again that the speaker was a Spirit-filled man. That is the absolute prerequisite to effective proclamation of the truth. Observe also the care with which Peter makes known that he and John are to have no personal credit or glory. They "have something there" that might well be applied to presentday religious activity when many men must either have all the glory, or go off and start a new work where they can have it.

Let us make much of the clear teaching concerning the person and work of Christ which is found in unconscious mind, explain their meanings fully and tell how these thoughts or expressions became a the control of the control as the one and only, and, at the same time, the all-sufficient Saviour of mankind. Let us not forget that son for our acquiring this abnormal belief or thought and why we must belief or thought and why we must "there is none other name under we must be saved" (v. 12).

MICHIGAN'S natural facilities for winter sports, perhaps unexcelled anywhere in the country, are worthy of promotion. Thousands of visitors should be attracted here from outside the State, and Michigan residents can be shown that they need not leave their own State to enjoy the finest of winter sports.

All Michigan will profit from such promotion, in which the Michigan Bell Telephone Company wishes to do its part. This is the first of a series of three advertisements, appearing in 250 Michigan newspapers, to promote Michigan as an outstanding winter playground.

"Phil," Linda said, "I shan't see you today or tomorrow. You will be with your mother. You won't want

He assented: "Yes, Barbara and I will be with her."

She said, "But you'll feel me with

"Yes, Lin."

She did not kiss him, nor touch his hand; only their eyes met firmly, met and held and clung.

Then Phil went down by those back stairs up which his father had come on that October night months ago; and he took the car and drove home. Barbara was there with his mother. Mrs. Sentry was sitting quietly in the living-room, her hands limp in her lap, a curious deep peace in her eyes. Barbara and Phil stayed with her, talking in low tone, till lunch was announced. But afterwards Barbara caught Phil's eye; and Phil moved with her through the hall toward the door.

"I've got to get out of doors for a while, Phil," she said desperately. "I can't stand it. She's so-still. Almost as though she were happy, were - waiting for someone. It scares me."

He hid his own fears. "Sure, run

"I'll be back," she promised; and he returned into the living-room and Mrs. Sentry asked, "Has Barbara gone somewhere?"

"Just for a walk," he said, and she nodded silently, thinking: Mary is gone, and Barbara is gone, and soon Arthur too will go, and there will be only Phil and me. Phil and me. Just two. There were five of us, but now there are two Phil seems tired. I am tired, dreadfully; tired and old . . . They will shave Arthur's head . . . I mustn't think of it, of that; not concretely. I mustn't scream. I must help

And she began to talk to her son, almost happily. Somehow the afternoon passed. Barbara returned, but she stayed upstairs, writing to Dan, till dinner-time.

At dinner, Mrs. Sentry tried to eat, but the first mouthful choked her. She could not swallow it; the utmost compulsion of her will would not make the muscles of her throat do their task. Phil, she saw, ate readily, easily, rather more rapidly than his usual habit was. He urged her to drink a cup of tea.

"I'm afraid it would keep me awake," she said, and then smiled at the absurdity of that. Awake? Would she ever sleep again? After tomorrow night, Arthur would sleep with a shaved spot, on his head. She resented that shaved spot, as though it were a desecration of the dead. His hair was still so plentiful and thick; no hint of baldness any where. Where was the spot they would shave? On his brow? The top of his head? Phil saw her shudder, and rose and took her arm. "Let's walk in the garden, mother," he said. She went with him submissively. Barbara watched them go, but made no move to follow them. They strolled around the house arm in arm, past the garage and the tennis court to the pergola, and sat down there; stayed there talking quietly together, careful now to avoid silences, since into silence, just as dreams come in sleep, hideous thoughts come crowding. Presently it was dark, and she asked, "What time is it?" "Almost ten."

"I suppose," she decided, "we had better go in."

When they came in, Barbara was gone. Gone to bed, perhaps, Phil thought; and he turned on all the lights in the living-room, till he banished every shadow. She asked: "Is it cold, Phil?" "Would you like a fire?"

"I'm-sort of shivering." He set logs burning on the hearth; and it was hot and he perspired. He thought tomorrow would be long; and he thought he would have to be early at the office Monday morning. Monday was apt to be a busy day. "Warmer now?" he asked. She sat down on the low bench in front of the fire, hugging her knees, watching the flickering flames. She had heard or read that when during an electrocution the current was thrown into the body of the doomed man, all the lights flickered—as these flames were flickering-and were for a moment dimmed, and she thought of this now, but she said "Will you be busy next week,

"I thought we'd go up to York for a few days," he replied.

She was thinking: When the lights in the prison are dimmed, the other prisoners know what is happening and they scream and rattle the bars in their cell doors. I mustn't scream.

She said: "That might be very pleasant, son. Barbara will be gone, of course. There will be just you and me. I can take cook and Nel-

She thought of all those men in the prison yammering and howling and screaming, and then she remembered reading somewhere that nowadays there was a spcial wire to carry the electricity to the chair, not connected with the prison circuit at all, so that the prisoners did not see the lights dim; and she won-dered about the lights in the room where the chair was, and whether they would go dim, and whether any of the witnesses ever screamed when that dimness came to shadow what was happening.

"I should like that," she agreed. 'The hot, bright sun." Phil said: "And we'll go fishing for flounders, or maybe off shore, for cod. That's always fun." Men sitting in straight chairs, she thought, around a small brick-walled room, all side by side, except that one chair was set by itself, facing the others . . . She said: "Sit here by me, Phil." He sat down on the bench close to her. "And we'll take long drives,"

Then Linda came back and sa he said. "Back through the woods, a low tone, "Come in, please." She

"We'll lie in the sun and rest," he some word, and then the little man But I dunno why I should go out of volunteered, "Mr. Hare told me I'd my way, do something I don't want better come see Mr. Sentry.' "Mr. Hare?" She spoke like a par-

He fumbled in his pocket, produced a shabby, soft, worn old leather wallet, searched among its contents, found what he sought at last and extended it to It was a check for $250, Linda. signed by Mr. Hare, as Trustee. Linda looked at it without touching it, and the old man said:

"I might have wrote a letter, but I ain't much hand at writing, and I knowed likely I'd git up t' the city before long; so I kep' it and cal'lated to see Mr. Hare when I come."

Linda said hurriedly, "Wait a minute, please." She went into Phil's office, closing the door behind her. The old man stood turning his hat in his hands, looking wistfully around. The other girls be-

She clung to his hand, so that he felt her tremble; and suddenly she was weak. "Stay with me, Phil," she whispered. "Oh Phil, Phil, be always with me!"

"I will, mother." "Mary's gone, and Barbara. I've

"You'll always have me," promised.

"I don't mean to be selfish, Phil.

But I need you so."
"I'm here," he said again. "And

I will always be-' The logs burned bright, burned low, were embers cooling to gray ashes, before at last they went slowly up the stairs. Mrs. Sentry went to Barbara's room. "Just to be sure she's tucked in,

Phil," she said. "I've always done that, since you were babies.' "I know, mother."

But-Barbara was not in her room. Phil felt a surge of anger mixed with fear. Mrs. Sentry half-smiled. "Perhaps she's gone to Dan," she said submissively. Phil made his mother go to bed;

but he did not. He thought Barbara might be at Linda's home, thought of going to see. Then, grimly, refrained. He at least would stand by his mother here.

After a while he heard a car turn into the drive in haste. He went downstairs.

He saw Linda and Barbara in the hall. Barbara was weeping terribly; but Linda's eyes were like stars. He stared at her, bewildered, and as though he were a baby to be comforted, Linda took him in her

Hours before, that morning at the office, Linda's typewriter had been clattering as she typed the letters Phil had dictated, when she became conscious that someone stood beside her. She looked up and saw a shambling little man with absurdly long legs that made him look like a stork, and a small body and a smaller head perched atop them. Linda had not attended Mr. Sentry's trial; did not recognize this man.

She rose and asked, "Whom did you wish to see?"

The man, confused and ill at ease, said doubtfully: "Why, Mr. Sentry, if I could. Dunno as he'll want to." "And who shall I say?"

"I'm Zeke Wines." He looked at the other three stenographers, busy at their desks beyond Linda, and said apologetically, in a lower tone, used to work here."

Linda heard the others quiet be-

"Well, it's this," the old man told her after a moment, and extended the check again. "Mr. Hare sent it to me, and he said it was from Mr. Sentry, the other one. Said there'd be another check every month right along."

"Well, I don't want it," Zeke Wines told Linda gently.

"Mr. Sentry wanted you to have "I know. Mr. Hare told me all about that in the letter. But I never "That's all right," he said. never was here before. I—kind of hankered to come." He looked around the room. "This's where it happened, ain't it?"

"Just outside the door there," she said, after a moment. "In the hall." She passed him and opened the door. "Out here," she said.

"She'd be'n in here, hadn't she?" "Yes." Linda fought to hold her voice steady. "But—they found her outside in the hall."

He came slowly toward her as though to step through the door; but on the threshold he paused, halfturned, set his shoulders against the jamb to which the door was hinged. "Dunno as I need to look," he said in a low tone. He stood with his head a little lowered, staring straight ahead, not speaking. The silence seemed to Linda long. She scarce heard him when he spoke. Yet what he said was like a crash of thunder. "Guess here's where the bullet hit, ain't it?" he asked, and pointed, and looked at her inquir-

Linda after a paralyzed moment said hoarsely, "What?"

"Right here," he repeated. "The bullet hole." And he extended his hand. He touched, she saw, the brass latch plate set on the door jamb and designed to receive the tongue of the lock. Her knees wavered, but she mustered enough strength to go toward him, almost staggering; to look where he pointed. She bent down, the better to see. The latch plate had an opening in it, rectangular, perhaps an inch and a quarter from top to bottom, something over half an inch across. Inside this opening there was a recess where before the plate was set the wood had been chiseled out to make a slot into which the bolt slid home. But there was more. There was a round hole in this raw wood, not very deep, somewhat discolored; and Linda, leaning close, saw that the edge of this round hole was marred as though a knife blade had been inserted there to serve as a pry, to pry something out .

Old Zeke Wines said in a low tone, "Bullet must have gone right through the hole where the bolt goes, never even touched the sides,

For one phrase was ringing in her thoughts, over and over. Barbara's words: "If father didn't kill her, there'd be another bullet, some-

And Linda thought: There is! There is! But no wonder we didn't find it! In the shadow, and it's dark here by the door. You can't see it even now unless you peer in through the lock. How sharp the old man's eyes must be . .

"Well, thank'ee, Miss," said Zeke Wines meekly. "I'll bid you good day.'

And he would have moved away. But Linda came to life; her thoughts began to clear. She caught his arm. "No," she said eagerly. "Don't go. Please! Wait. This is important. This—"

Merganser Family of Ducks Destructive; Found to Be Menace to the Trout Streams

The three members of the mer- | of ducks, their appetite never apganser family of ducks can well be named "wild fowl without a friend."

No one cares to fight their battles for protection. Despised by the duck hunters, considered by epicures as unfit for food, condemned by fishermen as a menace to our trout streams, the merganser ducks, called useless, destructive and predatory, are seriously threatened with the death penalty, notes Albert Stoll,

Jr., in the Detroit News. The thousands of conservation officers and fish culturists throughout the United States have been empowered to destroy mergansers if they appear to be destructive to fish life. There will be few so deputized who will refrain from "shooting on sight" the first merganser coming within range of the gun. Those who are on intimate terms with these birds, and know of their food habits, seem to agree that they constitute one of the greatest enemies of our brook trout. They remain in their northern habitat until as though the confession were a shameful one: "You know. Possibly a thinning in the ranks of the merganser is justified, but it is a certainty that ornithologists will not countenance their complete extermination.

> > Is Your Child Lazy?

We often hear mothers complain that their children are lazy in cold weather . . . and they seem to have less pep and energy than in other seasons. If by that they mean that their children are less active, it may be that this can be attributed in part to the bleak, shorter days that do not always invite outdoor play. But sometimes a child displays such a reduction in his activities as to appear indolent. Then the mother must seek the physical or emotional factors that may be responsible. For true laziness suggests a body that is not functioning normally.

Quite possibly the child's diet is not meeting his bodily requirements. An undernourished child C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping usually tires easily and is disinclined to exert himself. The food may be adequate as to quantity, but not as to quality. For example, a diet that is too highly concentrated, contains too little bulk or cellulose, may cause a tendency to faulty elimination. This, in turn, is frequently responsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetaoles besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised.

Children Need Healthy Mothers Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too . . . and better still every member of the family . . . follows this same sound health pro-

SAFETY TALKS

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase Traffic accidents in the rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1924, the National Safety council says, motor vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 30 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal acci-dent problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty of too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
