PIONEER IOSCO RESIDENT DIES LAST WEEK

Malcolm McLeod Funeral Services Held Sunday

Malcolm McLeod, pioneer Tawas township farmer, well known and highly esteemed throughout the county, died last week Wednesday at Swift Current, Saskatchewan. He had just started on his return to Tawas City after an extended visit with his son, Henry McLeod; daughter, Mrs. George Culham, and other relatives at Cabri, a short distance by train from Swift Current. His son, Henry, was accompanying him here and was with him at death.

The remains of the deceased arrived here Sunday morning. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the home of his niece, Mrs. Grace Miller, at East Tawas, and at the Tawas City Methodist Episcopal Church. In addition to all of his family, a large number of Iosco county residents were present to pay their last respects to a highly esteemed friend and neighbor and an excellent citizen. Rev. Frank Metcalf of the Tawas City Baptist Church officiated. Last Masonic rites were given by Baldwin Lodge of East Tawas of which he had been the oldest member, having entered the lodge in 1879.

He is survived by two sons, Henry McLeod of Cabri and Glenn McLeod of Chicago, and two daughters, Mrs. George Culham of Cabri and Mrs. Byron Groesbeck of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McLeod, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Allen, of Alpena; William Bradley, of Pontiac.

Those from out of the county who attended the funeral were Henry McLeod and Mrs. George Culham, of Cabri; Mr. and Mrs. Byron Groesbeck and son, Byron, of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McLeod, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Allen, of Alpena; William Bradley, of Pontiac.

Enjoy Birthday Party

A number of ladies, with kindly hearts and well-filled baskets, walked in on Mrs. G. A. Pringle on Ground Hog Day and informed the lady that they were going to eat dinner with her and talk about old times. She, being a full-fledged Michigan pioneer, welcomed them joyously.

You see, no one could deny her pioneerism. She, having been born in St. Clair county, and when two weeks old, her mother's bed was put in a sleigh box and they were driven 80 miles north into Sanilac county. She is still going strong. Beat that some of you who have never experienced the "horse and buggy days" if you can.

But back to last week. The table was soon set, decorated with flowers and a sleigh containing an infant wrapped in warm clothes. Such a repast, Swiss steak with trimmings and banana cream pie. Just in time to prevent us from overeating, up drives horses and sleigh, with bells ringing, and the hostess with her guests were invited to a sleigh-ride. Robes, blankets and cushions piled on the sleigh—bells ringing and the ladies singing—we drove around until we had about concluded happy days were here again. Returning to the Pringle residence the ladies wished their hostess many happy returns of the day departed for their homes hoping the ground hog had made a mistake and we would not have six more weeks of winter weather.

Then when evening came the W. H. Pringles from East Tawas with gifts in their hands and a delicious lunch in their baskets and after a delightful evening a receipt noted February 2, 1939, one of the brightest days in the life of one who remembers well—

East Tawas Club Holds Valentine Party

Seventy-five persons enjoyed the Valentine banquet in the new club rooms of the East Tawas club Tuesday evening when resident members entertained their wives and women guests at the gala event. Tables for the banquet were attractively decorated with bright red valentines and at the place of each lady guest was a bright red rose as a favor.

The banquet was prepared under the able direction of "chief chef" O. W. Rowley, vice-president of the club. Waitresses were dressed in gay colored heart-shaped aprons.

Following the dinner, Norman Salsbery, club president, gave an address of welcome to the lady guests and assured them there would be more "Ladies Nights" in the future in the new club rooms. Salsbery then introduced C. A. Pinkerton, general manager of the Detroit & Mackinac railway, and charter member of the club when it was organized 33 years ago, who gave a brief history of the organization and told of the part it has played in promoting community interests.

In a drawing for a large valentine box of candy, the prize went to Miss Betty Lenahan, of Standish. Dancing and card games were enjoyed during the evening.

Auto License Plates Now at Court House

Automobile license plates may now be secured in the register of deeds office at the court house, Tawas city. The books were audited Wednesday and the plates turned over to Register of Deeds Marjorie Lickfelt.

With well over 1,200,000 motor vehicles still without their 1939 license plates and the deadline set by law at midnight, February 28, Harry F. Kelly, secretary of state, in a communication sent out this week, points to an inevitable jam at every department of state branch office in the state at the end of this month. He stresses the fact that the 1937 legislature designated the last day of February as the final date for plate or permit purchase each year and neither the secretary of state nor municipal officer has any discretionary power to extend the date permitting the use of 1938 plates. He suggests that those deferring their purchase of plates through necessity make certain at this time that they have their titles available.

Motorists are urged to purchase their plates as early as possible to avoid the discomfort of standing in line. Half-year plates are now on sale at all branch offices of the department of state.

Mrs. John Armstrong

She leaves her husband, John, a son, Robert, daughter, Mrs. Jeanne Rosmussen, and a granddaughter, also a brother, Ray Bolter, of Ashville, North Carolina. Funeral services were held Monday in the Redeemer Presbyterian Church at 2:00 o'clock with burial in Grand Lawn cemetery at Detroit.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—At the old beanyery for the hired help in the New York World building, a few years ago, there was quite a stir and a stew of ambition. Swapping dream dreams, one Maxwell Anderson was going to write a play; Louis Weitzenkorn had the same idea; big, jovial Phil Stong had written 16 novels, to the quite considerable indifference of all publishers, but Mr. Stong said all this was just a little practice workout and he promised to deliver later on. Swarthy, saturnine James Cain thought he might have the making of a book or two in his system, but said little about it. Young, whippy Dudley Nichols, a demon reporter, trained as an engineer, had a writing career neatly blue-printed. Paul Sifton, burned up by social injustice, was going to write a few plays and tear the lid off things in general. Ben Burman, whom Phil Stong could carry around in his pocket, was going to be a bell-ringing novelist.

A kindly Destiny presided over the old beanyery. The above playwrights, novelists and Hollywood big shots probably could have bought the then sinking world with their collective resources of today—although Mr. Sifton, after pulling two or three lurid Broadway plays, now is sunk voluntarily in the somewhat undramatic federal wage board, as its assistant director.

The spot news of this chronicle is that Mr. Burman has been honored with the Southern Authors award for his recently published novel, "Blow for a Landing." This is the highest literary award in the gift of the South, in which non-fiction also was judged. His previous books include "Steamboat Round the Bend," which became Will Rogers' last screen play, and several other Mississippi yarns. He has more or less of a personal copyright on river tales.

Mr. Burman once told me how his dream was almost sidetracked. He quit the world, to become an author—with no luck, and, at long last, only a dime. The fragrance of freshly baked buns in a shop window de-throned his reason and he shot the dime for four buns. Back in his garret he found a letter from a magazine, saying they liked his "Minstrels of the Mist," which they had had for months, and which he had given up as lost. Would he come up and consult them on a minor change? He would, but lacked carfare.

He had seen a pretty girl in a nearby studio. He didn't know her, but he told her his troubles. She was similarly situated, but staked him to three two-cent stamps. He raised a nickel on them at a stationery store, saw the editor and got not only a check, but a big hand on his story.

And, naturally, he returned and married the pretty girl, who thereafter illustrated his books as they traversed, not only his pet river, but Damascus, the Sahara desert, Bagdad and other such mother-lodes of literary raw material.

Paris, London Woo Franco In Weak Bid to Oust Fascists

By Joseph W. LaBine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Spain

Germany and Italy would not have aided Rebel Spain if they had no aspirations in the Iberian peninsula. Nor, presumably, would Rebel General Francisco Franco have accepted Fascist aid if he did not expect to repay that favor. These simple facts are being ignored by France and Britain, who now hope to woo the Rebels away from their Rome-Berlin connections to make a peace which would save the defeated Loyalist cause. It is hoped thereby to end the war immediately, giving General Franco a partial victory when he could achieve a complete victory through a few more weeks' fighting on the Madrid-Valencia front.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE? (Shoemaker, Chicago Daily News)

The likelihood of a complete Loyalist surrender is evidenced by an apparent breakdown in morale, coupled with internal squabbling. An army of 200,000 government troops allowed itself to be routed out of Catalonia. Next day Loyalist President Manuel Azana plumped for unconditional surrender while Premier Juan Negrin boasted he would continue fighting. Meanwhile, in southeastern Spain, Loyalist Gen. Jose Miaja was a virtual dictator in his own right, ignoring both Senors Azana and Negrin. Whether he wanted to surrender or continue fighting was anybody's guess.

Britain and France could hardly expect General Franco to jump at a peace offer from such badly-tattered opposition, but they did. It was reliably reported that Anglo-French interests were offering to supply funds for reconstructing Spain if Franco would oust German and Italian influence. So anxious were the British that they sent a cruiser to carry Rebel Spain's envoy to the Loyalist island of Minorca, where a surrender was asked and won.

In return for these gestures, General Franco offered little to the two great European democracies who refused him recognition until all Loyalist hope was gone. His promise: To remove foreign troops, which does not necessarily mean removal of foreign influence. Expected daily is recall of the old Bourbon dynasty to Spain's throne. Probable ruler will be big, sport-loving Prince Jaime, not a sufferer from haemophilia (bleeding) like so many Bourbons. Highly grateful to the man who restored his throne, Prince Jaime would be more than willing to let General Franco rule as premier, a la Mussolini.

Vatican

Within 18 days of a pope's death, the Sacred College of Cardinals must meet in Rome to elect his successor. Locked in secret conclave at the Vatican during late February and early March, these princes of the Roman Catholic church will name a successor to the late Pope Pius XI. Attesting to the futility of prediction was the last election, on February 6, 1922, when Pius—only nine months a cardinal—was elevated over the heads of many more favored candidates.

Favored candidate this time is Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state who serves as temporary pope during the interim between Pius' death and the election of his successor. Though he confesses a longing to lead the church, Pacelli has the excellent record of papal diplomat that qualifies him for the job of pope in a year like 1939.

Only stumbling block to Cardinal Pacelli's election is the growing belief that a non-Italian might make more headway in settling the current European turmoil. Though the position traditionally goes to an Italian, it is recalled that in 1922 the Spanish Cardinal Merry del Val led early balloting.

Great Britain

Last January 13 the British foreign office received a mysterious "ultimatum" demanding withdrawal of English troops from Ireland within four days. Three days later bombs began exploding throughout the British Isles and between subsequent explosions Scotland Yard was able to place responsibility with the illegal Irish Republican army. While first arrests were being made and special guards were assigned to the king and queen, Irish Prime Minister Eamon de Valera found occasion to regret the incident.

Far from a terrorist, Mr. de Valera has won amazing concessions for Ireland by using much gentler tactics than the extremist Republican army advocates. Today Ireland is known as Eire, having become an independent state associated with the British commonwealth only for certain minor purposes. British overlordship is gone except for far North Ulster, which is largely English Protestant as opposed to the Irish Catholicism of southern Ireland. Main purpose behind the Republican army is British withdrawal from Ulster. Mr. de Valera also wants this but he believes in saner tactics.

While soothing London's nerves by asking laws to crush the illegal army, Mr. de Valera probably found himself blushing with embarrassment when P. T. Kelly, an independent senator, arose to "regret that the ultimatum sent by the Republican army to the British foreign secretary had not been sent by the Irish government."

Relief

It is paradoxical that this year's anti-administration congress should be the first to admit that federal relief is a permanent fixture. But this does not mean that the White House and Capitol Hill are agreed on how relief should be handled. No sooner had the nation recovered from the shock of congress' independence in slashing $150,000,000 from the relief deficiency bill, than relief again popped into the headlines.

'Emergency.' As President Roosevelt signed the reduced deficiency appropriation he begged congress to restore the $150,000,000. Reason: "In my opinion an emergency now exists." The President said WPA's alternatives are (1) to slash 1,000,000 relievers from the rolls by April 1 or (2) to oust from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 via week-by-week reductions from April 1 to July 1. Since each WPA client presumably has dependents, the President thought it was contrary to "human decency" to leave from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000 Americans stranded.

'URA.' The house received a bill from Virginia's Clifton A. Woodrum which would completely upset the administration's relief apple cart, creating 'URA' (unemployment relief administration). The bill's lightly-camouflaged purpose is to give congress complete voice over relief, hamstringing the White House. Stipulations: (1) halving the President's 1939-40 budgetary relief request of $2,266,165,000; (2) abolishing WPA and creating 'URA' which would report monthly to congress; (3) providing for congressional allocation of relief funds to individual state agencies; (4) giving the President $120,000,000 a year to spend as he sees fit; (5) attempting to divorce politics from relief.

'Off Again, On Again.' Created in 1933, PWA is soon to expire. But Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes has urged creation of a permanent PWA to prevent future de-pressions. Says he: "American growth has been an 'off again, on again, gone again' Finnigan." We owe it to our people to protect them... from the strains and stresses of an economic system which... periodically has hurred off the track. A program of 'timed' or 'balanced' public works... would act like a gyroscope." For proof Mr. Ickes pointed to PWA allotments last June, when the federal reserve index stood at 77. By October the index had risen to 97, and by November to 100.

Miscellany

In Harrisburg, Pa., State Rep. John J. Baker proposed a $50 "baby bonus" for needy mothers, "not to increase the population but to make sure mothers can depend on proper medical attention."

● In Cleveland, Safety Director Eliot Ness claimed 80 per cent of serious traffic violations are committed by WPA workers.

Business

As counsel for a New York state legislative insurance committee, Charles Evans Hughes made a name for himself in 1906 uncovering what he thought to be irregularities. The chief Hughes fear: That insurance company resources were so large as to make conservative, responsible management increasingly difficult. The Hughes remedy: Federal supervision of insurance investments.

Since 1906 Mr. Hughes has risen to the U. S. Supreme court and may have changed his mind. At least nothing has been done about it and the vast insurance fund has quadrupled. Whereas Mr. Hughes suggested limiting new policies to $150,000,000 a year per company, some now write $2,000,000,000 a year. Today there are $110,000,000,000 worth of policies in effect and insurance investments cover a surprisingly wide field. Samples: Government securities, $4,500,000,000; railroads, $3,000,000,000; farm mortgages and corporation securities, $2,000,000,000; state, county and city bonds, $1,500,000,000.

If this business was worth investigating 23 years ago it is even more vulnerable today. Just started in Washington is a 12-month probe by the temporary national economic committee, headed by Wyoming's Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney and better known as the "monopoly investigating committee." Chiming in is William O. Douglas' Securities and Exchange commission. Pertinent question marks include (1) what influence insurance investments exert on U. S. money markets, banks, railroads, etc.; (2) how insurance executives are chosen; (3) possibility of interlocking directorates between insurance firms and utilities.

Though the monopoly committee has often reiterated that it is not hunting witches, and although Mr. Douglas maintains he only wants to bring the Hughes report up to date, there is a good chance of new legislation providing federal regulation over all interstate insurance business. This would supplement state supervision now in effect.

Adding to their discomfort is the demand by Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler that insurance companies take a greater hand in helping reorganize U. S. railroads. The Wheeler charge: That present insurance company negotiations with carriers feature repeated concessions to investment bankers at the expense of bondholders. But if rail aid presents as many obstacles as insurance men claim, the probable solution of this problem will not be a federal whipping post for insurance companies but revision in the railroad reorganization statute.

Treasury

Statutory limit of the U. S. public debt is now $45,000,000,000, which will be reached when and if congress approves President Roosevelt's new budget. (Current debt: About $39,700,000,000). When congress convened last month it was rumored the administration would ask to raise the debt limit another $5,000,000,000. To congressional fiscal experts who questioned him about the U. S. financial outlook, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. explained that it might be a good idea to raise the debt limit. Said he: "I would not be worried to see it (the debt) go to another $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000, which is the present budget, and we are going to have to ask congress, if you vote this money, to increase the treasury's borrowing power." Mulling over this advice, congressmen decided the official request, which will come from the White House, may precipitate another feud between spenders and conservatives.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Some Timely Hints on How to Keep Up Fuel Value of Winter Diet; Discusses New Methods for Quick Baking

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

MIDWINTER weather calls for energizing breakfasts to get the day off to a good start... energizing midday meals to help keep children and adults functioning efficiently... energizing, but easily digested, evening meals to satisfy bodily requirements without over-taxing the digestive system.

In addition to the need for supplying meals that are adequate as to energy values and other nutritional requirements, the homemaker has two other important factors to consider; she must satisfy the appetites of various members of her family... and she must keep within her food budget.

Breadstuffs—The Staff of Life

One of her greatest aids is bread in various forms. Breadstuffs, or other foods made from grain, are undoubtedly the largest single item in the dietary of people throughout the world. They appear in some form at almost every meal. And they are also highly satisfactory as a between-meal lunch for rapidly growing school children.

Breadstuffs are notable for their energy values and for their ease of digestion. They contain some protein and minerals, and under some circumstances, they may also carry other significant food values.

Bread and rolls combine well with milk, cheese, butter and meat. They make good eating and give a comfortable feeling of satisfaction afterwards. Such simple combinations as bread and cheese, or rolls and milk, are highly effective in satisfying hunger. And they go a long way toward meeting nutritional requirements.

A Notable Food Team

Nutritionists have a high regard for the combination of bread and milk. Breadstuffs are generally regarded as a most economical source of energy and protein in the diet. Milk is our most nearly perfect food. And the proteins of milk supplement those found in the grains of which bread and rolls are made.

Children especially should consume some form of bread, toast, or well-baked rolls at every meal. These easily digested foods supply the fuel values that most active youngsters require in abundance. Rolls and bread with a well-baked crust have the additional advantage of encouraging thorough mastication.

During adolescence, the energy requirements are especially high. Boys sometimes eat more than their fathers, and it is desirable that the extra calories be provided in the form of such easily digested and wholesome foods as breadstuffs. This is also an advantage to the homemaker, from the point of view of economy, as breadstuffs rank as one of our most reasonably priced foods. Adolescent girls, on the other hand, frequently develop finicky appetites and strange food habits. They may wish to go to school without breakfast—a practice which must be discouraged as it may lead to undernutrition from which "nerves" may develop.

Adolescents Like Variety

One way to help growing girls to be energetic is to encourage them to eat some form of bread at every meal. This will help to keep up the fuel value of the diet at very little expense.

Mothers must, however, guard against loss of interest in breadstuffs by various members of their families, as a result of monotony. Luckily, there is no reason why this should occur in any home. For it is possible to provide breadstuffs in such a variety that the same kind need not be served twice in succession within the space of one or two weeks.

You can add variety to the diet by preparing bread from graham, whole wheat or rye flour. Rolls can be made from plain or sweet dough. Some of the more popular are Parker House rolls, sandwich rolls, finger rolls, cinnamon buns, butterscotch rolls and pecan rolls. Some homemakers may feel

Oddities

Prof. W. A. McKeever conducts a "school for maturates" in Oklahoma City, Okla., open only to men and women over 70.

Enrico Colangelo, of Malden, Mass., rather than destroy an 86-year-old elm tree, built his home around the tree, and now its six branches stretch out through two sides of the sun parlor.

Eddie Weise, of Aurora, Ind., because he is usually too busy to wave or speak to his friends who pass his barber shop, has rigged up a buzzer which, when stepped on, answers his friends' greetings.—American magazine.

ture content, however, and because of this, spoils rapidly. Hence, it must be purchased fresh, kept well refrigerated, and used within a few days. Dry yeast keeps several weeks at room temperature and has, therefore, been regarded as more practical. Its great disadvantage has been that it acts less quickly, owing to the fact that some of the yeast plants are destroyed during the drying.

Keeps and Is Quick-Acting

But nowadays homemakers can buy a new kind of yeast. A new, fast, pure yeast that combines the keeping qualities of dry yeast with speedy action.

This product is a dry yeast that comes in the form of small granules. It softens promptly in water, and is then ready for use. Moreover, it keeps its strength and activity for several weeks, so that it can be kept on hand at all times.

Homemakers can bake whenever it is convenient. And what delicious bread and rolls they can make. Such wholesome combinations as prune bread, combining both white and whole wheat flour with seeded, uncooked prunes... refrigerator rolls, coffee cakes, raisin bread, wholesome raised doughnuts, waffles and buckwheat cakes.

It cannot be denied that bread is one of the oldest foods known to man. But just to prove that even our most basic foods may be improved—along comes this revolutionary yeast to provide a leavening that is more satisfactory than ever before, perhaps, to homemakers all over the country.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE other day a letter came with an unusual request. "I have made so many useful things by just following the pictures in your Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator; and Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery; I wonder if you could tell me some way to use empty cans?"

Fortunately we have a very long memory. There came to life the picture of a fat little girl sitting on a small footstool in a very Victorian parlor while her Great Aunt rocked and visited. And there was something about that footstool—yes it had cans inside. The cans were filled with sand to make the footstool heavy. The cover was red carpet with handles of the carpet material at the ends. So we saved six cans. We substituted a piece of upholstery material for carpet, and here is a step-by-step sketch of the footstool we made. It is a great success.

Now is the time to give your house a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slipcover; new lampshades; or an ottoman will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step-by-step, easy to follow sketches. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery will give you a new interest for long winter evenings. It contains complete directions for making many useful things. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, a crazy-quilt leaflet is included FREE; it illustrates 36 authentic embroidery stitches in detail. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, head-achy days and then having to take an emergency medicine—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to the lack of "bulk" in modern diets. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need. Eat this toasted nutritious cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

HEALTH

Metrazol treatment may replace insulin shocks in treating mentally ill.

By Dr. James W. Barton

WHEN a leg or arm is so badly injured or poisoned that life is threatened, the patient's family does not hesitate to permit it to be removed by surgery. When the mind is so badly afflicted that the patient is unable to take his place in the community and the physician wishes to use the new treatment—large doses of insulin—that causes shock which is sometimes followed by a cure, the family are often afraid to permit their loved one to undergo this method of treatment. Despite brilliant results in many cases, there have likewise been many failures and also other cases where the improvement lasted but a short time.

Dr. Barton

The most satisfactory results have been obtained where the mental symptoms have existed for months instead of years.

What may prove effective in the treatment of these mental or "behavior" cases is metrazol (a heart and lung stimulant), which is now being tested in various parts of the world. Dr. A. M. Wyllie in Glasgow Medical Journal reports his results in a series of 20 cases of dementia praecox. These patients live in a persistent dream state which totally unfits them for the work, cares and duties of life. Their scheme or system of life satisfies them, however.

Test Cases Show Improvement.

There were 8 women and 12 men in Dr. Wyllie's series of cases and physical improvement was observed in 17. Those that were very much underweight gained weight rapidly, gaining from 14 to 21 pounds in two months. Their appetites improved and their complexions became healthier. These 17 patients also showed mental improvement, that is, they showed more common sense, more ability to face the real facts of life. One patient who had been mute for 10 years was enabled to speak. The others became less absorbed in themselves and spoke more freely. Some of the patients who were previously idle were induced to occupy themselves. A patient with profound melancholia greatly improved; two with persistent stupor showed slight improvement.

I am recording the above results so that families and patients themselves may be willing to undergo this treatment if so advised by their physicians. It is certainly worth while. "Owing to the simplicity and safety of the metrazol treatment, it may replace treatment by insulin shock."

Nervousness, Tension Disrupt Normal Working

A large industrial organization in an endeavor to find out why so many of their leading employees failed to keep their work at a high level and finally dropped out of the organization, engaged a professor of economics to investigate. He found that while domestic unhappiness was a big factor, the great cause of failure to continue work on a high standard was ill health.

In other words, an individual with brains and ambition can go only as far with his work or career as his body will take him. And the unfortunate part of this lack of health is that so much of it is due to nervousness and tension which disrupt the normal working of the various organs.

Recently in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Sir Farquhar Buzzard, professor of medicine, University of Oxford, said that one-third of all the sickness in Great Britain was due to causes that were not really organic. If he should be placed at the head of a great business organization, the first thing he would do would be to take on a whole-time medical psychologist to study his employees and their conditions in health and deal with all cases of nervous disorder as they arose. The sick roll would rapidly become smaller.

Health of Worker Important.

Fortunately, medical schools are now so fully aware of the importance of the health of the worker to himself and to his employer that more time is given to this subject than ever before. So helpful have been the findings by laboratory examinations—blood count, X-ray, kidney, liver and gall bladder, and other tests—that there was danger that the body, not the mind, was receiving all the attention. As an upset mind can cause an upsetment of the various organs and the body processes to the extent that heart, blood vessel, stomach and other symptoms occur, it is only common sense that the upsetment of mind should be first treated, if these symptoms are to be made to disappear.

SAFETY TALKS

Walking on the Highway

IT'S an art, this walking along the highway, and not everybody who does it lives to tell about it afterward. At least a third of the pedestrians fatally injured in rural districts are struck while walking along the roadway, according to figures of the National Safety Council. And about two-thirds of these were walking with their backs to approaching traffic.

In many places, sidewalks are being built parallel to the highways to segregate motor and pedestrian traffic, but in places where they aren't yet built, the council has these four suggestions to offer:

- 1—Walk on the left side of the road.
- 2—At night, carry a light.
- 3—Wear light clothing or at least some article of clothing that's white, to make it easier for the motorist to see you.
- 4—Walk on the shoulder of the road instead of the pavement, where possible, to keep from forcing cars into the path of oncoming traffic.

C. H. Mark of Sherman township had the misfortune to have his hand crushed by his gasoline engine while sawing wood.

About 150 neighbors gathered at the Orange Hall Wednesday evening to help celebrate the 72nd birthday of George Culham and the 61st birthday of Mrs. C. W. Force. The fact that mercury outside stood 20 below zero didn't interfere with the genial warmth and merriment within.

It's at Butler's. What? That new stock of spring dress goods. H. N. Butler & Co.

Since President Wilson raised the embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico thousands of rounds of ammunition have been shipped over the border. The end that might be secured by intervention will not justify the loss of life and expenditure of money necessary to successfully place our troops in Mexico.

Those who were neither absent nor tardy at the Stevens school during the month of January were Louise Lietz, Rosetta Lietz and Emil Krueger.

Our ice fishermen have made some fine catches of lake trout out beyond the point.

A locomotive on the Rose City division broke down near Smith Junction last Saturday night and it was necessary to telephone to Tawas City for another engine.

The Way of Providence

From an ancient book of sermons we glean that among the many proofs of the wisdom and benevolence of Providence is the fact that the world was not created in the midst of winter, when Adam and Eve could have found nothing to eat, but in harvest time, when there was fruit on every tree.

"Arkansas" Name Used by Indians
"Arkansas" was the name formerly used by the Illinois Indians to designate the Quapaw tribes living near the mouth of the Arkansas river and was probably derived from the name of a Sioux clan division of which the present Omaha, Ponca, Osage and Kiowa tribes were part.

Score and Underscore
To score a passage means to obliterate it, as by drawing the pen through the passage thus to be canceled. To underscore a passage means to underline a passage, as by drawing a pen under the words thus to be indicated—Literary Digest.

Large Feather-Leaved Palm
Rabassu, a large feather-leaved palm, is very abundant in northern and central Brazil, and is especially well known from the state of Maranhao. For years the kernels of babassu, or so-called babassu "nuts," have been gathered for their oil content and exported, mostly to Europe.

Eagles Are Protected
Instead of being hunted, eagles are protected in some parts of the world. Many Scotch landlords forbid the killing of eagles so long as they do not carry off too many pigs, lambs and chickens.

Some Cannot Be Hypnotized
Many individuals cannot be hypnotized, particularly those who are strong-minded, feeble-minded or insane. On the other hand, says Collier's Weekly, persons who are especially susceptible to hypnotism may be put to sleep at once, even by a command in writing.

The Red-shouldered Hawk
About 20 inches long, the red-shouldered hawk has a wingspread of 44 to 50 inches. It is named for its reddish brown upper feathers. Beneath, it is a lighter shade, barred and streaked. Its substantial nest of twigs and bark often lasts for years.

Persian Cats
All Persian cats follow the same conformation, except in color of eye and color of coat. The latter are divided into three groups—solid color, silver and the tabby division. Each shade has a separate rule for eye color, which may be any of the following, deep blue, deep orange, copper or green.

Loam Is a Soil
A loam is a soil having a mixture of the different grades of sand, silt, and clay in such proportions that the characteristics of no one grade predominate. It is mellow with a somewhat gritty feel, yet fairly smooth and slightly plastic.

Telling Things
Jud Tunkins says it's always wrong to tell what isn't so, and sometimes foolish to tell what is.

SPLENDID natural advantages entitle Michigan to wider recognition as a fine winter playground; for probably no State offers greater inducements to ice-boaters, skiers, skaters and toboggan parties.

Michigan's centers of winter sport, well distributed, are reached by fine transportation systems. And the State Highway Department does an excellent job in keeping the highways open in all kinds of weather.

This advertisement, appearing in 250 Michigan newspapers, is one of a series which the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is publishing to help promote our State's outstanding attractions for lovers of winter sports.

SCHOOL NEWS

Watts School

A. Nina Moore, Teacher
Our attendance has been below standard owing to mumps, measles, and whooping cough.
Dannie, Sylvia and Mary Ostrander have gone to live with their aunt in Tawas City, while Kathleen has gone to Missouri with her mother. This leaves us an enrollment of fourteen.
Harold Coates celebrated his birthday January 27. Mrs. Coates and daughter, Mildred; Lola and Bobby Scarett; and Hattie McArdle were our guests that day.

Mr. Rhodes, the state 4-H leader, was with us one afternoon. He demonstrated the different articles that can be made from keeney cement. Most all of our first year boys are on their third project. Roland Fahselt, third year, is working on his second project.
Miss Alice Hertzler also visited our Sewing Club. We were pleased to have them.

Achievement tests were given the second week of January. These showed marked progress in the growth of the children mentally.

We have studied the Eskimo. This has been done by means of stories of their customs, dress and homes, and visioned by a mural of an Eskimo village depicting an igloo completed and one in progress of completion; kayaks, walrus, seal, white bear and whale.

In hygiene we are studying vitamins. A room book is being made to illustrate foods containing the different vitamins. Some very good posters of good lunches, breakfasts and dinners were made by the sixth grade.

In geography, the sixth grade is studying Asia. We are keeping a temperature chart and find it very interesting, as the weather changes so abruptly.

We had no school Wednesday, January 25, as Mrs. Moore was unable to leave home until the snow plow plowed out her road.

The nurse, Miss Klumb, visited our school one day.

Mr. Moffatt and Mr. Evans left us calendars for 1939. Thanks.

Our only beginner, Ronald Herriman, is nearly through his Primer. He is also doing supplementally reading.

Mary Birkenback attended a 4-H meeting and luncheon at the court house, January 18.

In music we are learning some 4-H songs. We have learned "Sing Your Way Home," and the "Ploughing Song."

Don Herriman and Henry McArdle wrote some very good poems.

Whittimore

Harry Hill, son of W. T. Hill, had the misfortune to cut his foot severely Monday while chopping wood. He was brought to the office of Dr. E. A. Hasty where it was treated. One bone in his foot was completely severed. He will be unable to walk for some time.

Da'e O'Farrell entertained a number of his little friends Tuesday, St. Valentine's Day. The occasion being his eighth birthday. He received several pretty gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Webster and son left Saturday evening for Jackson, Mississippi, where Harvard will enter a baseball school. They expect to be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. Richard Fuerst and daughter, Ruth, and Earl Schneider spent Saturday in Bay City.

Mrs. Jesse Porter, of Flint, attended the funeral of Floyd Webster here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Huff, of Flint, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Huff and also visited Mr. and Mrs. George Hunt.

The Morrison family are out again after being quarantined for scarlet fever.

Mrs. C. E. Huff, who has been quite ill for several weeks, is improving.

Miss Lyndel Strong, music instructor in the high school, returned to her home at Clarksville the past week due to ill health. Mr. Grimm will continue the music in school.

Miss Eunice Beardslee, of Detroit, spent the week end with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schuster and family spent Sunday at Prescott.

Miss Lucille Williams, of Bay City, spent the week end with her parents.

The P. T. A. held open house at the high school Tuesday evening. A large attendance of parents were present and enjoyed the classes very much.

Hemlock

Bruce Burt returned home from Flint on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Binder and sons spent Sunday evening in Reno.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Mr. McLeod. Some from here attended the funeral at Tawas City on Sunday.

Aid at the home of Mrs. Louise and Josie McArdle on Thursday last was well attended and a good time was had. The ladies will meet again in two weeks for an all-day quilting. Anyone who would like to quilt is welcome to be there.

Greenwood Grange met on Wednesday evening. A debate will be held in the near future. Sides will be chosen and will be in the hands of two leaders.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Claude Irish is improving from her recent illness.

Paul Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brown were business visitors at Tawas City on Tuesday.

City of Jeanne d'Arc

Rouen, France, a busy center for weaving, spinning and the manufacture of handkerchiefs, is the city of Jeanne d'Arc. There is the old castle in which she was imprisoned while she awaited trial; a tablet on the archbishop's palace states that she was tried there, and a slab in the marketplace marks the site of the stake where she was burned.

Gallant Flora MacDonald

At the gate to Inverness castle, Scotland, stands a statue of Flora MacDonald, "maid of the isles," who gallantly aided Prince Charlie to escape to the Hebrides with a price of $150,000 upon his head.

Wilber

There was no school last Friday owing to the slippery condition of the roads. However, the school-bus, operating out of Oscoda, made an effort to get the children on their routes. But, had to give up as the slippery roads and strong winds made driving too hazardous. Arthur Furtaw, the driver of the Wilber bus, despite of all the necessary precautions, had his bus overturned on a narrow piece of road. There were eleven children in the bus when it rolled over. They were the following: Billy Tomlinson, Floyd Schaaf, Dorothy Ruggles, Shirley Ruzeles, Jean Christian, Leota Davidson, Lloyd Davidson, and Ted, Audrey, David and Ruth Olson. None of the children were seriously hurt, but, everyone had a bump or bruise. The driver, with the help of Ted Olson, broke open the emergency door and in no time had the children all out. The road crew, with the help of nearby neighbors, soon had the bus righted and on its way back to Oscoda.

The strong wind last Friday did considerable damage in this vicinity, blowing down trees and unroofing buildings. A large portion of the up-to-date and almost new poultry building on the Harry Brooks farm was demolished.

Several of the Wilber school children are absent from school this week owing to illness.

Gus Olson is feeding a flock of pheasants, eleven in number, seven male and four female. They make their appearance only when the ground is covered with heavy snow.

The school bus route in Wilber has been rerouted so as to eliminate the narrow half mile of road between Vern Alda's corner and the Albert Thompson corner. This piece of road should be taken care of as it is dangerous for any kind of vehicle when roads are slippery. Here's hoping something will be done.

Ruth Olson visited last Sunday in Oscoda with Joan Haglund.

Dr. Dickenson, of Oscoda, was sent out to check up on all the children who were in the school bus accident as to their injuries.

Farmers are now filling their ice-houses. This ice will be much appreciated a few months from now.

The parents join the children in thanking the Albert Thompson family for all they did in making the children who were in the bus accident, comfortable in their home until arrangements could be made to get them to their homes. The same goes for Herbert Phelps, who took a good many of the children to their homes in his car.

Meadow Road

Melvin McCormick spent the week end with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Seal.

Jerry Whitney was a Tawas City caller Sunday evening.

Henry Burt spent Wednesday evening with Philip Giroux.

The young people of this community held a skating and coasting party at Sand Lake Saturday evening.

Johnnie Burt and Neumann Bamberger were Tawas City visitors Sunday evening.

In spite of the ice and cold, Olen Herriman made his usual trip Saturday morning delivering papers. Few would have attempted the trip, and Olen, being a small boy, deserves much praise for his courage.

L. Grandre, of Hale, was a business caller in this vicinity this week.

Coconut a Beautiful Tree

The coconut tree, bare to within a few feet of the tassel-like top, is one of the most beautiful in the West Indies.

Growth of Fishes

The growth of fishes probably decreases with age, but under favorable circumstances it never stops. If fish growth were shown on a graph, the weight curve would show a steady upward line, but the length curve would ascend rapidly at first, then almost straighten out. That is because as the fish grows large, the corresponding increase in girth tends to make the weight increase rather constant. - Detroit Free Press.

Great Dane, Boarhound

The fact that the Great Dane was called the boarhound gives a clue to its early use in Europe. It is generally conceded that this big dog was at one time employed to hunt wild boars, wolves, and bears. The breed survived the longest in Germany because there wild game was preserved after it had disappeared from the forests of England. And after the Danes were no longer used for hunting purposes German royalty kept Danes as companion dogs.

"Keep" a Secret

Never inquire into another man's secret; but conceal that which is entrusted to you, though pressed both by wine and anger to reveal it. - Horace.

Bridge Across Atlantic

There is a bridge across the Atlantic. This sounds like an untrue statement, but it is perfectly true, and the bridge is the only one that spans the Atlantic ocean. It is the Clachan bridge near Oban, which joins Seil island to the mainland of Scotland. The strip of water between them is narrow, but it is part of the Atlantic. So the bridge spans the Atlantic.

Linda dared not tell Mr. Wines, dared not admit to herself how important this might be. He stopped uncertainly; and she said, half-sobbing with excitement:
"No one had seen this bullet hole till you did, Mr. Wines. I want you to stay and tell them how you found it. Wait. You will, won't you? Till I telephone?"
"Why, guess I can," he decided. "But—what's the idea?"
She closed the door, carefully, as though afraid that to do so might erase the indications his keen old eyes had been the first to see. Her thought was of Phil; but she would not give Phil a hope that might yet fail. She must first be sure. While old Mr. Wines watched in a puzzled way, she called Mr. Falkran.

He was, his office reported, out of town; to be gone till tomorrow afternoon.
In sudden frantic haste and fear, she called the District Attorney's office, asked for Mr. Flood. The operator said: "He's away for the week-end. Will anyone else do?"
"Someone who knows about the Sentry case," Linda pleaded desperately. "Anyone."
"Who is this, please?"
"Miss Dane, Mr. Phillip Sentry's secretary."

"I might give you Mr. Weldon? He assisted in the trial, and he is here."
"Oh, do, please!"
And a moment later she had Mr. Weldon on the phone. He said guardedly, "Mr. Weldon speaking."
"I'm Miss Dane, Mr. Weldon. Mr. Phillip Sentry's secretary."
"Yes."

"Can you come down to Mr. Sentry's office, quickly, please?"
"Why, if necessary, yes. What is it? Let me speak to him."
"Oh, he's not here! But it is necessary. We've just found—" She hesitated, then spoke carefully, explicitly. "Mr. Wines is here," she said. "The father-of-the-dead girl, you know. And he has found what looks like a bullet hole."
"A bullet hole?" Weldon's tone was puzzled.

"Yes. In the lock of the door."
"But I don't see—"
"It might mean," she urged, "that Miss Wines was shot by someone else; was already dead when Mr. Sentry got here. You remember they said the gun was pushed against her, but he said he didn't feel her when he fired. Can't you come, please?"
"I see!" Weldon was alert now. "You've found a bullet?"
"No, just a hole."
"Don't touch anything," he directed. "I'll be down there in ten minutes."

So Linda waited, and Zeke Wines waited; and when Weldon arrived and had seen what there was to see, he sent for another man who was expert in such matters to examine this that they had found.
Time thereafter dragged interminably, while Weldon questioned Wines and Linda, and while the expert made his examination. Linda, watching, fretted with impatience; and once she urged, "Oh, can't you hurry?"
But Weldon reassured her. "We've plenty of time. Miss Dane. Today and all tomorrow."
"Something might happen!"
He said gently: "Trust me, please. We've time to make sure of our ground."

And Linda, longing to telephone Phil, nevertheless held herself in check. Better that he should remain in ignorance of this crumb of hope than find it turn to ashes in his mouth.
It was mid-afternoon before Weldon was satisfied. He told her then:
"Miss Dane, there's no doubt a bullet did strike here. There are bits of lead in the wood. And the bullet was pruned out, later, with a knife blade, or something of the kind. And it was of the same caliber as the one which killed Miss Wines. Or at least approximately so."

"But Mr. Sentry fired only one shot. At least, there was only one empty cartridge in the gun when we recovered it. And we found where his bullet hit the wall at the end of the corridor out there. That bullet matched his gun."
"Of course, that shot of his may still have killed Miss Wines. There is just a chance it didn't. Just a chance, the Medical Examiner says, that if she were shot here in the doorway she could have taken two or three steps to where she fell. It is possible, that's all." He hesitated. "There are many possible explanations of this other bullet hole," he said.

She nodded fearfully. "I see. But mightn't it mean—What will you do?"
"I'll get in touch with Mr. Flood," Weldon explained. "He's down on the Cape; probably playing golf just now. He will have to decide what to do."

"Can I—tell Mr. Sentry's family?"
"Suppose you wait," he suggested kindly. "Wouldn't it be better to have something definite to tell them?"
"But doesn't this prove Mr. Sentry is innocent?"
"Hardly that," he warned her. "I think you'd better wait, really."
"Can't we drive down to the Cape and see Mr. Flood?"
"I intend to."
"Please let me go with you."
He smiled. "I don't know why not," he agreed. "Yes." He added, "I'll locate the Governor before we start, so that we will know where to find him, later today, if Mr. Flood wishes to do so."

Half an hour later they were on the road. At a little before five they met District Attorney Flood at the golf club near his summer home. At a quarter of eight they were all back in Phil's office, while the District Attorney himself examined the bullet hole.
He turned at last to Linda. "Well, Miss Dane," he said, a deep relief in his tones, "I shall see the Governor, ask him for a reprieve."
"What does that mean?"
"A postponement." He hesitated.

Phil leaped up the two or three steps to her side. He caught her close and tenderly.
"Mother! Mother!" he cried. "The Governor has commuted the sentence to life imprisonment!"

The newspapers were again filled with the story of the case. The Governor had to meet editorial and public criticism for his commutation of the sentence; but he met it silently, and without revealing the fact that the discovery of new evidence had been responsible for his change of mind. The secret of the bullet hole was well kept. The District Attorney believed that—assuming Mr. Sentry was not the murderer—the actual killer, whoever he might be, would feel a false security if he supposed Mr. Sentry's guilt remained unquestioned. So except for a few individuals, no one knew the truth; but the District Attorney's office meanwhile was busy, checking back, following every line that promised a solution.

The secret was well kept; but Dan Fisher knew. Barbara wrote him the truth; and over the next weekend he came on from Cleveland, California, Canada, Europe; and Phil brought home travel folders and they studied them diligently, and at night they might be decided on an early departure. But in the morning Mrs. Sentry always reflected:
"You know, Phil, we're perfectly comfortable here. And I don't want to go away from him."

Yet toward the end of July, at Linda's suggestion, they decided on a fortnight in York. Mrs. Sentry would go a day or two ahead, with the servants, to open the house; Phil and Linda would follow later. That Linda should go with them seemed a matter of course. Phil found as always deep happiness in her companionship. She demanded nothing—except to be with him. And—he could give her nothing. If any dreams ever took shape in his thoughts, he remembered his mother's pleading cry, "Stay always with me, Phil!"

And more than ever she needed him now.
His mother and the servants left for York on Wednesday; and on Friday morning, Phil and Linda followed, in Linda's car. The girl drove; and as they picked their way through traffic toward the Turpike, Phil said:
"Linda, I saw your father, yesterday. He suggested that he put my name up at his club." He added, "I was mighty grateful to him; but they'd be sure to turn me down."
"Father wouldn't have offered, if there were any chance of that."
"He's like you, Linda. He and your mother. So darned—loyal. But others may not feel the same."
"Haven't all your friends been the same?"
"Some have. Some have not. Mother felt hurt at first when Mr. Hare suggested another to defend father, though doubtlessly it was for the best. Occasionally he stops in to discuss affairs and to encourage Mother."

"The Warings—the way they acted grieved Mother," Phil continued. "And then, she resigned from all her committees and things; and they accepted her resignations. That was tough on her. She's been happier lately. Happy in just—loving father. But she doesn't really seem well. I'm pretty worried about her, Lin."

Linda, grave eyes upon the road, changed the subject. "Do you hear from Mary?" she asked.
Phil nodded grimly. "She's married again, a South American; beef baron, something of the kind." Their thoughts, as sometimes happens with two people as close to one another as they had come to be, ran together. Thinking of Dan and Barbara, they said aloud in a sort of chorus:
"But Barbara—"
Then they looked at each other, and laughed, and he said, "We were going to say the same thing!"
"Yes. Just the way married people do—"
"He protested: "Lin, do you have to keep—torturing me?"
"My dear," she said, "don't you know by this time that you and I are already married, in so many real, deep ways? And I'm not asking anything more than we already have, Phil." She added, half to herself, "At least, I don't think I am."
He said: "There's no help for it, Lin. I can't ask—"
She smiled, her eyes upon the road. "You wouldn't even have to ask me, Phil."
"And—mother needs me. I'm all she's got to hold to now, with Mary and Barbara both gone."
Linda did not argue with him; but during the next few days at York, watching Mrs. Sentry and Phil together, she was sometimes secretly angry.

When the time came for Dan's departure, Barbara went with him; and days passed, and Phil's first hope for some quick proof of his father's innocence insensibly faded. Days ran to weeks; and hope began to die in Phil again. He and Mrs. Sentry, though they stayed at home, considered a North Cape cruise, and they thought of California, Canada, Europe; and Phil brought home travel folders and they studied them diligently, and at night they might be decided on an early departure. Linda did not argue with him; but during the next few days at York, watching Mrs. Sentry and Phil together, she was sometimes secretly angry.

Occasionally Mr. Hare Stopped In to Discuss Affairs.

"In fact, I may even suggest a commutation. This other bullet certainly creates a grave doubt that Mr. Sentry actually killed Miss Wines."
"But then won't the Governor pardon him?"
"I'm afraid not. Not yet, certainly. Of course, this means a further investigation of the case. The Governor—I'm speaking frankly, you see—may suspect that some of Mr. Sentry's friends have faked this evidence. But there must be a reprieve at least. I'll see the Governor this evening—"
Linda considered. "When you know what he decides, Mr. Flood, will you let me tell them? Tell Mr. Sentry's family? You can telephone to me at my home."
"Of course. You've certainly earned that."
"Mrs. Sentry isn't well," she explained. "The shock even of good news—"
Linda meant to wait, to hold her peace, till she could go to Phil proudly with this word; but when she came home, she found it hard to wait. In the end, despite her resolution, she telephoned the Sentry home.
Barbara answered. Linda asked for Phil.
"He's with mother," Barbara told her. "They're outdoors somewhere. I couldn't bear to be with them." Barbara's tones were shaken. She said: "I can't bear to see mother. She's so strange and still."

Linda said quickly, "Come over here, Barbara." She hesitated, then added: "Don't let them know you're coming. I've—something to tell you."
"Something about my father?"
Barbara cried, a quick hope in her voice.
"Come," Linda insisted. "I'll be here."
So Barbara was the first to know what had been discovered; and when, at last, the District Attorney telephoned, Barbara was after Linda the first to know the Governor's decision. Mr. Sentry's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.
Barbara was still weeping when in Linda's car they raced to the Sentry home; and Phil met them in the hall there, and the quick word was spoken, and the three young people for a moment clung fast together, half-laughing, half-crying, in a happiness almost too great to be borne.

Then Mrs. Sentry appeared on the stair landing above them. Wakeful, she too had heard Linda's car arrive. They did not see her till she was halfway down the stairs. They heard her then, and turned, and point of view, the team sports will undoubtedly continue to be the center of student interest. Many students believe, too, that they can shift with little difficulty from the group sports to golf or tennis or any other generally available type of recreation when they are graduated.

It would be hard to prove that shifting the emphasis from the team sports to the individual sports would increase the number of students participating in athletics, if such is the purpose. Students who like a sport will take part in it regardless of its importance. There is a large group, however, that would probably have but a passing interest in any sport were it not for its prestige value.

At meals in Arabia there are neither knives nor forks, eating being done with the right hand. In time, one develops the knack of forming the incredibly hot rice which the Arabs serve into artistic little balls, and if one is particularly skillful one manages it without burning the fingers.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND ITS SOCIAL PERILS

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-6; I Peter 2:11, 12; 4:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything where-by thy brother stumbleth.—Romans 14:21.

"Hazards in the use of alcohol in a machine age"—this is the topic assigned for our lesson today. It is a good one and worthy of the careful thought of every intelligent citizen. With automobiles alone killing over a hundred persons a day, and the obvious connection between alcohol and death on the highway, we might say much about the folly of trying to cut down traffic accidents while we are licensing more and more "taverns" along the road to fill the drivers with the destructive stuff.
There is much that might be said about the social havoc that is being wrought by alcohol. It is bad enough that a man pays 25 cents for a drink, but even worse, that he gives 25 minutes of his life for each indulgence. But the liquor industry covers that up under a mask of festivity, making booze look like a desirable adjunct to congenial and successful living. It does not picture the bleary eye and the babbling tongue of the drinker, nor does it present the broken-hearted mother, the devastated home, the ragged children, and the empty cupboard. Liquor is one of America's major problems. Let us face it.
The Scripture portions assigned for our lesson rightly emphasize fundamentals, the first being a call to awake from a false sense of security, the second emphasizing that this is a spiritual battle, and the third pointing the way of victory as being in holy living.

I. Foolish Security When Surrounded by Danger (Amos 6:1-6).
Surprise attack is always effective. Satan would lull us all to sleep in the assurance that "God's in his heaven—all's well with the world." God is in heaven and it is certain that ultimately He will reign over all, but just now the world is in the hands of the Wicked One (I. John 5:19).
The people of Amos' day, to whom the message was addressed, had come to the point where prosperity had made them at ease when they should have been active, foolishly secure when they should have been sacrificially serving their fellow men who were in need. The picture is astonishingly up-to-date. Today in our own land the Gold Coast and the slums rub elbows, but few of those who have plenty are concerned about those who have not. In the eyes of most people the purpose of gaining possessions is to relieve one from the necessity of work and to enable one to evade life's responsibilities.

America needs to awaken to its dangers, and we repeat that not the least of these is the liquor question. We must either win a victory over it, or it will destroy our people.

II. Spiritual Warfare—While at Peace with God (I. Pet. 2:11, 12).
"Fleshly lusts, which war against the soul" (v. 11) are the object of serious concern on the part of every sincere Christian. There is a battle on, and the enemy of our soul knows how to make the abuse of the normal impulses and appetites of man his strong ally. The rush of modern life, the increasing use of stimulants, both natural and artificial, the very luxury in which many live, these things tend to give the flesh and its desires undue prominence, and not infrequently cause even God's children to fall into sin.

We are called to a holy warfare, but that does not mean that we live in a constant turmoil. We are, after all, pilgrims and strangers in this world. Our citizenship is in heaven (Phil. 3:20) though we live on earth. In the heart we have peace, and that enables us to fight a good fight against the world, the flesh, and the devil.

III. Doing the Will of God in a Self-willed World (I. Pet. 4:1-5).
Essentially there are two opposing principles operative in the lives of men—we either are controlled by God's will, or by self-will. The flesh is really man's personality controlled by his own self-will. It results in the kind of life described in verses 2 and 3. When a man becomes a Christian he should move over into the will of God.

Such a man may be regarded as strange, but as a matter of fact, men will recognize his godliness (see I. Pet. 2:12). Dr. Will H. Houghton tells of "a soldier who ultimately was made a Christian believer through seeing his companions make fun of another soldier, who was a believer in Christ. The thing that impressed him was the fact that though they made fun of this man, they left their money in his possession for safekeeping!" Do we have that kind of a testimony?

Little Man Found More Trials Were to Come

A big man and a little man were having an argument on the bank of a canal. They got very hot about it. At last, the big man said, "I could pick you up and throw you across the cut."

The big man said, "Done," picked him up, whirled him round, and pitched him right into the middle.

The little man scrambled out, and said: "Where's my dollar?"
The other replied: "Dollar be blowed. I'm going to do it if I stay here all day."

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

There is many a story among the uniformed men who stand at the doors of various New York establishments, night clubs and apartment houses. Though their attire is often glittering, the job is a menial one, bowing and scraping and opening and closing doors of imported cars or mere taxicabs. But in the ranks at the moment are a former star of the silent screen, a former boxing champion, a one-time big contractor, several members of Russian nobility as well as men who have held positions of trust and responsibility. Then there is Elmer Szemzo, guardian of the portals of Zimmerman's Hungaria. He seldom plays cards. When he does, it is never for more than a penny a point. Yet Szemzo, a member of a noble family of Hungary, is a doorman because of gambling.

Szemzo's uncle was known throughout Europe as the man who played cards with gloves on. Naturally there was a reason for such action. When a young man, he had promised his distressed mother that he would never touch a card. The gloves enabled him to keep that promise. But luck was against him and his fortune went over the gaming tables. Then there was Szemzo's father, also a well-known but more conservative gambler. For years his lucky streak continued and finally he became known as one of the richest men in Hungary. But the turn came and the fortune he had amassed went back over the gaming tables. Now he lives on the Riviera, his sole income a small pension which he receives as a retired Hungarian general.

When the family estate shrank from 30,000 acres to a small plot near Budapest, Szemzo came to this country to study agriculture, intending to cultivate that last bit of land. But word came that his father had lost it in a card game. So he looked about for a job. As that was just after the World war, jobs were scarce. But he finally obtained a position in a restaurant. He worked his way up quickly and became manager of that restaurant. He held other similar positions, then married a young American girl, a physician. She preferred to practice in the Mid-West and they separated. Then bad breaks came. When Zimmerman opened his new restaurant, Szemzo applied for the doorman's post. Zimmerman knew his father in the old country and put him to work. And he has no taste for gambling.

Daniel E. Eisenberg is president of an organization which in the last 15 years has found more than 162,000 missing persons. Well, Mr. Eisenberg recently turned over to the police the job of finding a missing person. When he returned to his Brooklyn home the other evening, he found that a burglar had been there ahead of him and had stolen a number of valuables. It was a bit embarrassing for him to call up the Seventieth precinct station and give his name and occupation but there was nothing else to do. And that embarrassment hasn't been lessened by telephone calls and letters, as well as telegrams, advising him how to go about finding the culprit.

There's something appealing in this homely bit of philosophy expressed by Gertrude Berg, whose radio serial, "The Goldbergs," has been running for the last nine years: "When your clothes are soiled, you soak them thoroughly, wash them and then iron them out. The same should apply to your worries, your opinions of others, your general viewpoint on life itself. Take stock once in awhile, rinse your mind of bad opinions and you'll find it easy to iron out most of your troubles."

The old publicity stunt of rushing a star from one show to another with a police escort failed to materialize when Mary Martin did a piece on the Eddie Cantor broadcast. Plans were all made to hurry Miss Martin from "Leave It to Me," in which she is featured, when it was learned that "Leave It to Me" was playing next door to the theater from which Cantor was to broadcast.

Native's Death Blamed To 'Pointing the Bone'
BRISBANE, AUSTRALIA.—"Pointing the bone," which corresponds among Australian aborigines with the "evil eye," caused the death of at least one native recently, according to Mount Isa police.

During a dispute one of the adversaries "pointed the bone" at his fellow tribesman, a man of about 40. The latter fled from the sinister omen and a little later was found dying. An autopsy report gave as the cause of death "obsession and persecution complex."

In "pointing the bone" the natives use the thigh bone of a turkey, topped with beeswax, which is said to be capable of scaring the victim to death.

Tells Horrors Of Chinese War

Major Chin, American Born, Relates Confusion at Fall of Canton.

HONGKONG.—There are things about this war that must be termed fantastic.

You can meet and talk to war refugees, and when you see a ragged Chinese peasant who has carried his wounded wife for miles to find sanctuary, you stare at first and then fight the desire to run away from it. And you can meet some one like Maj. George B. Chin, of Boston, who is also a refugee, in a sense, and, talking to him, you find yourself staring at him.

Here you have a young man who was born in San Jose, Calif., who played on the streets of Boston, and who still has his home there.

He talks about the fall of Canton, and his voice is quick, impatient, with bits of American slang:

Uses American Slang.

"It was one for the books. Here I was with 500 men, ordered into third-line position, and finding myself in front-line position instead. That shows how fast the Japanese came through. I had my men on both sides of the highway, in rough, hilly country. No equipment to speak of, but we did have a couple of anti-tank guns and a lot of hand grenades.

"The Japanese showed up with five tanks. We let go at them with the anti-tank guns and got two of the tanks. Then the Japanese came back with 15 tanks and about 30 airplanes. They bombed us, and how. All I could see for a time was men bouncing into the air as the bombs hit all around us. There was nothing we could do against that. I got back to Canton with about 275 of my men.

"In Canton it was all confusion, with troops moving out. Things were all washed up. There was nothing to do but get out. I made it."

In Dirty Prison.

Without realizing it, he gives you a perfect word picture of that strange and awful imprisonment. How they were unable to identify themselves, as a group of fleeing Chinese officers, and how they were arrested by the troops of another district on suspicion of being spies.

"It was a wet, dirty hole of a place where you wouldn't keep a dog. (He is an educated Chinese-American.) They chained us to a wall. I got loose and managed to get my comrades loose. Then we heard some one coming and we had to run. There was just one old man left."

"What happened to the old man?" you ask.

"I told him, 'Here, perhaps they won't kill you because you're an old man.' And I managed to find a piece of iron that he could use in getting himself free. Then we had to run for it."

You start to say, "sort of tough on the old man, wasn't it?" but he doesn't give you a chance. He talks on, as youth, and it is so apparent that he sees old age as being close to death anyway, so what difference does it make.

And it is, after all, war in China.

Ruins in France Yield Vases of Fifth Century

NANCY, FRANCE.—Fifteen glass vases dating from the Fifth century were discovered in the village of Haut-de-Tombeaux on the banks of the Moselle when a cemetery of 72 tombs dating from the Middle ages was excavated.

Modern spectographic analysis at the Paris Optical institute established the age of the vases, which were made in the region, but from materials which could only have come from the Far East and probably peddled by wandering nomad traders of that period.

Systematic excavations have been started to find further medieval objects.

Australia Laments Lack of 'Housemaid's Knee'

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—What has been described by the Country Women's association of Victoria as the "national tragedy of Australia" is the lack of "housemaid's knee."

The lack of housemaid's knee, they have pointed out is due to almost the acute shortage of housemaids. They have launched a scheme for group nomination of migrants from Great Britain who will work in country homes.

Blast It, You Know, It Isn't Being Done

LONDON.—Forty-five unemployed persons, including three women, marched into the grill room of the fashionable Ritz hotel in Piccadilly, sat down and demanded that they be served tea. All the men politely removed their caps.

The staff of the hotel was in consternation. The management conferred and refused to serve the demonstrators, who offered to pay for the tea.

The grill room was closed and police called in. Before police persuaded the demonstrators to depart, their leaders made speeches demanding winter relief.

Blushing Bird Bride
The paradise tern has been termed the blushing bride of the bird family because when a female of this species accepts the advances of a suitor the white feathers on her breast change to a brilliant rose color. After mating and the bride becomes absorbed in raising a family, the gay bridal attire becomes more and more subdued until finally no trace of the lovely rose coloring remains.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL
The English I class is studying William Cullen Bryant's translation of Book IX of Homer's "Odyssey." Ulysses, the hero of the "Odyssey," represents the Greek ideal of "cunning" or intelligence. In this division of the epic the class read of the adventures of Ulysses with the Cyclops, the Lotus-eaters and the Cyclops. The students are preparing individual reports on the various other adventures of Ulysses during his long wanderings after the fall of Troy.

The English II class is studying a unit "Sharing through Language," the essential part of which is story telling. There are few born story-tellers, but most of us can acquire skill in story telling by individual effort and practice. One of the first steps of story-telling is selection of an experience. The students related various personal experiences which were very much enjoyed. One of the factors for successful story telling is the consideration of the interests of the audience. Some of the member of the sophomore class are successful story tellers for they obtained the interest and attention from their class members.

The Parent-Teachers Association was fortunate indeed to be able to secure the film, "George Washington, His Life and Times" for the February meeting. The film consisted of four reels; that is, "Conquering the Wilderness," "Uniting the Colonies," "Winning Independence," and "Building the Nation." This film is the property of the Bay county schools and was shown by Charles Hamilton, president of the Bay City Business College and Earl Goodman, Bay county commissioner of schools. Many high school students were present to see the pictures. We certainly are much indebted to Messrs. Hamilton and Goodman.

The seniors cleared something over five dollars at their bake sale which was held at Moeller's store Saturday. The botany class made use of the school's compound microscope for the first time this week. The cell, which is the unit of all living material, was observed in order to more fully comprehend its different parts.

The entire semester honor roll consisting of eight Seniors, four Sophomores, three Freshmen, and one Junior, are the following: June Brown, Ruth Clark, Kathleen Davis, Fidalis Groff, Dorothy Herriman, Elma Herman, John Katterman, Marion Musolf, Norma Musolf, Janet McLean, Harold Ross, Otto Ross, Lucille Rollin, Erma Lou Pfahl and Mary Sims. SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES.

Everyone enjoyed the Valentine party we had on Tuesday. Candy and apples were served and later valentines were distributed. We had a spell-down last Friday in which Donald Pfeiffer won. Ruth Giddings, Maxine DePott, Agnes Toms and Willard Musolf were outstanding snellers also.

We are planning an activity program in our room for Washington's Birthday. We expected a test Wednesday morning but were disappointed as Mr. Giddings didn't have copies enough. That means we have a treat coming in the future.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
We enjoyed our valentine party Tuesday afternoon. Rhea U'man Janet Musolf and Jean Smith won prizes at games we played. Everyone received a number of valentines. Joan Musolf, Jimmie Herrick, Nancy Cornack and Dwayne Wright were visitors.

At a recent standardized reading test which was given, Donald Briting had high score in the third grade and Janet Musolf had high in the fourth grade.

We are learning poems and songs for Washington's Birthday.

PRIMARY
Our valentine party was lots of fun. Everyone received several valentines. We fixed treats for Louis and Bobby who were unable to be here.

Wednesday afternoon all the people in our room went to the dairy at East Tawas to learn how milk is cared for. Mr. Henry showed us how milk is pasteurized, cooled and bottled, how bottles are washed, how butter is cut and wrapped, how butter fat tested. Last of all he gave each one a bottle of chocolate milk, then a bottle of plain milk. We feel that this trip has helped much in our study of health.

We are planning a play that tells more about milk and why it is good for us. Our rhythm band is showing much improvement. Everyone thinks it much fun. Donnie Ward and Ernie Mueller visited our room Tuesday afternoon.
