Mrs. George A. Prescott, Jr., has returned from Birmingham, where she visited her brother, Carl Taylor, and family for a few days.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Vergil Dearth of Detroit on March 1, a son. He has been named Ralph Arthur.

Mrs. Joseph Tomaczewski, of Standish, was a week end business visitor in the Tawas.

A joint school of instruction was given Wednesday evening at the Masonic Temple in this city for Isoco Chapter and the Tawas City Chapter, O. E. S., by Mrs. Mary Holsapple, of Bay City, Grand Electa of the Grand Chapter of Michigan. Visitors were present from Whittemore, Sharron and Temple Chapters, with 54 attending. Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson and Mrs. Julia Palmer, of Bay City, accompanied Mrs. Holsapple. The dining room and tables were attractively decorated with shamrocks, and the lunch served by the committee carried out the St. Patrick decorations.

Tawas friends were sorry to learn of the death of Fred L. Simpson, of Bay City, on Monday night at General hospital. Mr. Simpson was a salesman for Lee and Cady company for many years and was well known to the business people and many others in this locality. He slipped on the ice February 28 and fractured his hip. For the past several years Mr. and Mrs. Simpson spent two weeks each summer vacationing in Tawas City.

George Sommerfield arrived Sunday for a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sommerfield. He left on Tuesday, accompanied by his brother, Michael Sommerfield, who has been visiting here the past week, for Ste. Anne, Bellevue, Quebec, where they are employed. They will be employed at Waterway, Alberta, Canada, for the summer. Waterway is about 2700 miles from here.

"Topper Takes a Trip" At Rivola Mar. 12-13-14

"Topper Takes a Trip" starring Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Billie Burke and an all star cast, is at the Rivola Theatre, Tawas City, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, March 12, 13 and 14, with a matinee Sunday at 3 p. m.

The first "Topper" was such a "howling" success in every sense of the word that it would be difficult for any picture to try to follow it up. This sequel is a very funny comedy. The cast does a fine job of keeping up the fast pace that the original demanded. Roland Young as Topper is outstanding while Constance Bennett gives him excellent support as the ethereal Marion Kerby. Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray, Verree Teasdale and the balance of the cast are fine in their respective roles.

Wednesday and Thursday, March 15 and 16, Jackie Cooper and the Little Tough Guys are in "Newsboys Home," which is a punchy drama bristling with action, and shows Newsboys fighting and living according to their code.

George Stevens, 28, of Bay City, and Albert Key, 23, of Lincoln, Arkansas, ended a day started with kidnaping and armed robbery, when they were picked up near the Grey-stone in Tawas City by State Police at about ten o'clock Monday evening. The two young men are being held in the Saginaw county jail.

At about six o'clock Monday evening word came to Sheriff John Moran's office that two cars had collided near John McArdle's gas station on the Hemlock road. A new Nash taxi, driven at a rapid speed, in passing over a bad spot in the road, had rolled and hit a car being driven by Victor Herriman, of Grant township, who was returning home from Tawas City. Both cars were badly wrecked but Herriman was not injured. One of the men in the Nash said he was hurt and asked McArdle to take them to Tawas City. McArdle told him that the sheriff would soon be on the scene and that they could go on to Tawas City with him.

When Sheriff Moran and State Police arrived the two strangers had disappeared, and it was found that they had secured a ride to East Tawas with Blythe Allen, 21, son of Mrs. Lucy Allen. A check on the Nash car disclosed that it was the one that had been stolen early that morning at Bay City from the Yellow Cab company. The driver had been kidnaped and forced to drive to Saginaw where he was robbed at the point of a gun and ordered to get out. Sheriff's departments and State Police had been on a lookout for the car all day.

A search was made for young Allen and the men in East Tawas, but they had disappeared. Fearing that the men had repeated their early morning program and that they had kidnaped Allen, all roads leading out of the Tawas and Isoco county were blockaded and a systematic search was made for the Allen car. It had, however, apparently disappeared in thin air.

At about ten o'clock Stevens and Key were picked up near the Grey-stone by State Police from Bay City, who were on their way here to investigate the case. After walking around the two cities for a couple of hours Stevens and Key were attempting to hitch-hike back to Bay City.

On their arrival at East Tawas earlier in the evening Stevens and Key had got out of the Allen car at the Klenow corners. Allen parked his car in an inconspicuous place on the street and had gone to the picture show.

Dafoe-Novotny

The home of Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Dafoe, 22154 Boulder St., East Detroit, was the scene of a quiet but impressive wedding, Saturday, February 18, when their daughter, Mildred Leone, became the bride of Louis Novotny, of Detroit.

Miss Dafoe was attended by her sister, Lois Dafoe, of Detroit. Mr. Novotny was assisted by Glenn Rugges, of Flint.

The bridal party was ushered into the living room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Frank Healy, of Detroit. The marriage was performed by Rev. H. M. Dafoe, the bride's father, pastor of East Detroit Church of the Nazarene, in the presence of friends and relatives. A buffet supper was served, after which the newly married couple left for their new home at 15326 E. Nine Mile Rd., East Detroit.

Former State Senator Dies at Rose City

Hortatio S. Karcher, prominent druggist and former state senator, died early Tuesday at his home at Rose City. Cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of death. He was 68 years old and had been a resident of Rose City 50 years.

The deceased went to Rose City as a young man and was employed in a general store owned by A. S. Rose. Later he became a teacher in the public schools, retiring from the superintendency in 1903. Since that time he had operated a drug store. This store was considered one of the finest in northern Michigan. He served the county as probate judge for many years and this district as state senator for three terms. Funeral services were held Thursday at the residence.

Garfield Provost Has Narrow Escape

Tuesday forenoon Garfield Provost nearly met death at the National Gypsum company plant when he was buried beneath tons of rock in a huge stock pile. More than 100 tons of rock were removed by a crew of rescuers before the entombed man could be reached.

Provost and a companion were working on the stock pile near the mill, attempting to loosen the frozen crust. His companion went into the mill for a minute and when he returned Provost was not to be seen, but his cries could be heard from beneath the rock. A rescue crew of plant employees were quickly assembled and set to work to rescue the trapped man. After about two hours he was removed. A small air space had prevented suffocation but he suffered from exposure. Slight bruises were his only injuries and he was taken to his home in Whittemore in an ambulance.

He told rescuers he had been chipping a hole through the frozen crust of the pile to place a charge of dynamite when the top of the mass of rock caved in and he dropped into a deep hollow underneath. Then ten feet of rock poured down upon him entombing him in a vital rock prison.

Prescott Lodge, No. 45, I. O. O. F. will be the host to the lodges of district No. 7 of the State of Michigan at a District meeting to be held Tuesday, March 14, at Prescott.

In conformity with legislation passed at the October Session of the Grand Lodge in 1938, Districts have been formed throughout the State of Michigan so that closer contact may be had with the individual lodges by the Grand Officers.

District No. 7 comprises the counties of Ogemaw, Isoco, Clare, Gladwin and Arenac. All lodges in this district are to send three delegates to the district meeting and all other Oddfellows are invited to attend.

The program will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon with an open forum on questions of interest to Oddfellowship and during this afternoon session Baldwin Lodge, No. 377, of East Tawas, will exemplify the funeral service. Supper will be served after which the Initiatory degree will be exemplified by one of the Lodges of the District. During the evening the various Noble Grands of lodges in the District will present parts of the ritualistic work.

The program will be in charge of Grand Master C. F. Klump, of East Tawas, and Grand Secretary Fred Rogers, of Lansing.

Charles Rhodes

Charles Rhodes, 65 years of age, died Saturday following an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Rhodes was born December 31, 1874, in Indiana. He came to Isoco county from Port Huron. For some time previous to his death he had been living at the Isoco county infirmary. Funeral services were held Tuesday from the Jacques funeral home. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery. Rev. Frank Metcalf officiated.

Overcrowding Old Habit

That overcrowding and squalor of buildings was a social problem in England in 1502, when an act of parliament was directed against it, has been found in ancient times.

Farmers Urged to Keep Accurate Records

County Agricultural Agent W. L. Finley announced this week that farmers of Isoco county are being encouraged to keep accurate farm account books, a practice which is always advisable, but which is more important this year, according to agent Finley, because of the fact that within less than a year now the United States Farm Census of 1940 will be started.

If a good accurate farm record is kept much of the intensive head-scratching will be omitted as the census taker continues to ask his volumetric questions which are always presented when these five year censuses are taken.

As a means of helping to prepare for the above mentioned job and to assist farmers in analyzing their year's business, Extension Specialist Clyde O. May, from the Michigan State College Farm Management Department, will spend Saturday afternoon, March 11, at the city hall in Whittemore. At a meeting scheduled for 2:00 p. m. Mr. May will explain the details of an adequate farm account book and will point out factors that may be studied when the year's business is summarized. Anyone wishing to establish one of these records is encouraged to attend the Whittemore meeting.

He should, according to Mr. Finley, take with him a list of all livestock, farm tools and equipment that were on the farm March 1. The only other requisite would consist of a list of farm produce bought or sold since that date.

Let's keep more accurate books this year than ever before and in that way Isoco county may contribute greatly towards making the 1940 census the most accurate one of its kind that has ever been taken.

Leslie Kefgen Gives Americanism Address

Last Tuesday evening the American Legion Post and Auxiliary sponsored an interesting program on "Americanism." Different organizations were represented in the audience. The Boy Scouts under the leadership of Howard Evans presented the flag with appropriate ceremony. Jack Carlson sang a stirring patriotic number and Mrs. Glenn Pierson gave a vocal solo "America My Country" accompanied Mrs. Irene Boice.

Leslie K. Kefgen, state chairman of Americanism, was then fittingly introduced by Superintendent of schools, C. J. Greaser. Mr. Kefgen gave a fine address on Americanism. Ed Donohue, of Bay City, state membership chairman, and John Mieloch, district adjutant, were given honored places on the platform. Remarks were given by Ed Donohue, Miss Helen Appin, president of the Auxiliary, and Elmer Kunze, post commander. The local post is organizing "The Sons of the Legion" and several boys lined up after the meeting with this organization.

Fire completely destroyed the post office and general store of Greve and Berry at South Branch early Sunday morning. The stock, store and fixtures were an entire loss as nothing could be saved as the fire spread rapidly through the frame structure.

The store with its entire contents were valued at eight thousand dollars and the loss was partially covered by insurance. All the post office fixtures and records not kept in the safe were a total loss.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Is the "czar" on his way out? Before and since the elevation of Jure Landis and Will Hays we have hired benevolent autocrats, in times of stress and confusion, but now the New York city hotel industry hires, instead, an "impartial chairman," with labor concurring, as he will represent both employers and labor. Is this a precedent, or is the title just a euphemism for "czar"?

Granite-faced, tight-lipped Edward P. Mulrooney gets the umpiring job, at $25,000 a year. He also is now entitled to his $6,000 yearly pension, as a former police commissioner, withheld while he held public office. In 1933, he became chairman of the state alcoholic beverage control board, and later state commissioner of correction, from which office he will resign to accept the hotel post.

He started pounding a beat in West street forty-eight years ago, when Theodore Roosevelt was police commissioner. He first hit the headlines by rescuing women and children in a small boat when the Slocum burned. As a "waterfront flat-foot," he was known as a "cop's cop," always having his mind on his work.

He became police commissioner in 1930. He gave his men orders to shoot to kill, and set shotgun squads patrolling the city. He roughed up the racketeers a lot, and when he was switched to the Albany liquor control job in 1933, the word was out that certain anti-social, anti-cop elements had desired the transfer and helped bring it about.

At 68, his reddish hair is turning brindle. His ferret eyes reveal a penetrating alertness of mind. He looks a great deal like General Pershing. It would seem unlikely that anybody in the hotel business here will be giving the umpire any back-talk.

NEWS reports from Havana are that, when Colonel Fulgencio Batista, Cuba's strong man, visited Mexico, he was regarded by some of his conservative supporters as having gone over to the "wrong side of the tracks."

There was particular displeasure over his fraternizing with President Cardenas of Mexico, and business representation at his welcome-home ceremonies was conspicuously lacking. He told the crowd of cheering workers that "if capital does not wish to respect the desires and rights of the people, the resulting confusion will work against its own aspirations."

This is one of several recent signs that the one-time cane-rustler, barber, buck private and stenographer who now runs Cuba is veering left, after a wide swing to the right. Soon after his seizure of power, with the downfall of Machado in August, 1933, he reassured the "law and order" elements, and left-wingers have been pasting him as the "Hitler of Cuba." He made peace with foreign and native industrialists, and, from all accounts, they are jolted considerably by his getting clubby with Cardenas, the 'Expropriator.' He is circulating much more than he used to, and there is talk that he aspires to be the "Napoleon of the Caribbean."

His hole-card is the army, which he commands efficiently as chief of staff. A big, reticent, swarthy man, 37 years old, he says little and keeps a sharp, wary eye on his soldiers.

WITH a bullet in his shoulder and one heel shot away, Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, is an effective emissary of peace in the western hemisphere, and the white hope of our State department, as he visits this country. He was the leader of five revolutions in eight years, including the one which established Dr. Getulio Vargas, the present president of Brazil.

Aranha Thinks It Time to Stow Shooting Irons

His present mission is mainly financial. It is possible that a central bank of Brazil will grow out of it, with the United States supplying $50,000,000 capital. He is 43 years old, the son of a wealthy Hidalgo in Rio Grande do Sul. His life activities have been the army, law and politics. When President Vargas set up his one-man state last year, Doctor Aranha's co-operation was taken in this country as reassurance against European fascism in that country.

Weekly News Analysis Papal Election Thought Retort Against Dictator Interference

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Religion

As Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Pope Pius XII was Vatican secretary of state and an important mediator in many a European squabble. His two most notable achievements were (1) leadership in the World War settlement attempt of Pope Benedict XV and (2) consummation of the concordat that brought peace between the Vatican and Italy. His most difficult job was negotiating a treaty with Protestant Russia in 1929, a feat that won him the red cap of cardinal when Pietro Gasparri retired in 1929.

POPE PIUS XII

When Pope Pius XI died last February 9, Secretary of State Pacelli immediately became camerlengo, interim chief of the Roman Catholic church until the college of cardinals could name a successor. Internationally better known than any other potential candidate, Cardinal Pacelli's name was immediately bandied about as the most likely successor. This, despite his confessed longing to lead the contemplative life of a monk, despite rumors that his selection would be none too welcome by totalitarian Germany and Italy.

If Cardinal Pacelli had never admitted anti-dictator sentiments, Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo, lost no time pointing out that a Pacelli appointment would be unwelcome in Rome. In Germany another newspaper, Das Schwarze Korps, chimed in. At the Vatican, German Ambassador Carl-Ludwig Diego von Bergen told the college that his nation was "assisting at the elaboration of a new world," and that "the papacy without doubt has an essential role."

Though conceivably unrelated to these events, Cardinal Pacelli's elevation to the papacy might be in direct retaliation against two governments which saw fit to interfere with church affairs. A further possibility is that the Rome-Berlin axis erred diplomatically to such an extent that the college of cardinals felt obliged to appoint an experienced statesman who could deal with Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini.

Europe

Britain's chief reason for backing down at Munich was unpreparedness. Subsequent appeasements have grown noticeably smaller as rearmament was sped. In January, Prime Minister Chamberlain gave nary an inch at Rome. In February he openly announced plans to aid France in war and to win the new Spain away from Fascist domination. Shortly after General Franco's government was recognized the army, navy and air ministers stepped before parliament to outline how their share of Britain's largest budget since the World War (more than $5,000,000,000) will be spent.

How army, navy and air expenses will mount is shown by the following:

FORECAST

BY THE U. S. TREASURY—March income tax collections of $425,000,000, considerably less than the $723,000,000 collected during the same period of 1938.

ing estimated budgets, compared with the current fiscal year:

	1939-40	1938-39
Army	$ 805,665,000	$ 532,500,000
Navy	768,333,405	618,535,000
Aviation	1,103,133,500	671,915,000

$2,677,131,905 $1,822,950,000
Not included is some $285,000,000 going for civilian defense, bringing the total armament outlay to more than $2,900,000,000, or more than the government will spend for all other purposes combined. Specifically:

Army. Standing at 563,700 (a new peace-time high), various army units will be boosted by about 185,700 during the coming fiscal year. Increases are planned both at home and in colonies.

Navy. Fearing German U-boats, English, Australian, South African and Hong Kong ports will be secured against submarines and mine-layers. Canada may purchase a naval flotilla leader to head its fleet of six destroyers. Six new motor torpedo boats are being shipped to Hong Kong. Planned construction: 20 fast escort vessels, two battle-ships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers, 16 destroyers, 30 smaller craft.

Aviation. Personnel will rise from 106,000 to 118,000, four times the 1934 total of 30,000. By March 31, a total of 1,750 first-line planes will be ready, with production paced at 500 a month against an estimated 600 in Germany. Within a year the air ministry expects 2,840 first-line planes.

Civilian. Fifty million civilian gas masks, 1,400,000 "toy" gas helmets for babies and 1,300,000 masks for children are on the list. Some 127,000,000 sandbags are on hand, with 200,000,000 ordered. Special electrical equipment is planned and "crisis" organization is being completed.

Der Tag, whose fear is responsible for this preparation, meanwhile remains at flirting distance. Points of potential trouble between France and Italy over Mediterranean demands have grown more prominent. Italy has repatriated her nationals in France, ousted French newspaper men, won Polish allegiance away from France and hastened mobilization. One new garrison is reportedly established at Genoa, only 150 miles from Nice. Meanwhile Spain emerges in clear focus as the new center of European balance.

Relief

Everyone knows relief costs much more today than in 1929. Everyone knows, too, that President Roosevelt's dream of an $80,000,000,000 national annual income may mean little even if it does come true, since increased governmental costs would eat up the profits. How much relief costs have gained, how much national income has dropped, is shown in reports of the social security board. (See graphs).

But far more impressive were facts not shown in the report, namely, that a noticeable share of 1938's

1929 INCOME: $78,574,000,000
Relief cost only .1 per cent, or $48,000,000, as shown by tiny piece of "pie."

1938 INCOME: $64,184,000,000
Relief cost 5.8 per cent, or $3,724,000,000, not including administrative costs. Since total income was smaller than 1929's, percentage for relief is actually larger than shown in "pie."

national income came not from private initiative but from government aid. For example, even the $3,724,000,000 total relief expense was included, as was $57,000,000 spent for war veteran payments. Emergency subsistence payments to farmers are also counted in.

Darkening the picture still more are estimates that total relief costs would have mounted to $4,468,800,000 instead of only $3,724,000,000 had federal, state and local administrative costs been included. Moreover, since 1938's national income was more than $14,000,000,000 under 1929's, the growth of relief cost over this period was bigger than shown.

Labor

For two years labor's ill-starred dove of peace has sought a resting place, hovering over the battleground of John Lewis' Congress for Industrial Organization and William Green's American Federation of Labor. This month, for three reasons, the dove hovers nearer earth. But there is still no indication that peace will come via mutual consent; a more likely solution is victory for the A. F. of L., thanks to growing anti-C. I. O. sentiment welling up since Homer Martin split the United Automobile Workers during January. The three indications of a showdown:

Supreme Court. The much cussed national labor relations board, allegedly pro-C. I. O., was rebuffed in three Supreme court decisions which effectively banned the sit-down strike. Specifically, the two major decisions ruled (1) that Chicago's Fansteel Metallurgical corporation could not be compelled to rehire participants in the notorious 1937 sitdown, and (2) that NLRB has misruled in charging a Cleveland firm with unfair labor practices for dealing with one set of organized workers after failing to reach an agreement with another set.

DANIEL TOBIN

Since C. I. O.'s most successful weapon has been discredited, C. I. O. itself is thereby discredited. But John Lewis' organization has already attained a big measure of success, so this effect is unimportant. Greater by far is the blow to NLRB's prestige, to be reflected in congress during the next few weeks.

Wagner Act. C. I. O. has stood pat against amending the labor act, and well it might, since most NLRB decisions have been favorable. Chief sentiment for change has come from A. F. of L., which lost prestige by NLRB decisions, and employers, who claim the act discriminates against them. Adding its voice is the public, which apparently dislikes the idea of giving NLRB jurisdiction which traditionally has belonged to the courts. Revision of the Wagner act is the No. 1 certainty of this year's congress, probably stripping NLRB of its power and establishing another tribunal more to the liking of conservative elements. How C. I. O. would suffer, how A. F. of L. would gain by this move, is strikingly obvious.

Peace Talks. Encouraged by court rulings and public sentiment, A. F. of L. could afford to accept President Roosevelt's current labor peace bid, with reservations. Hope of the administration is that labor's two factions will settle their dispute in conference, precluding a fiery congressional debate over Wagner act changes. But Mr. Roosevelt had not counted on such independence as that of William Green and Daniel Tobin, A. F. of L. stalwarts. Appointed a delegate to the peace talks, Mr. Tobin refused to attend on the excuse that he had too much work. A more logical reason is that Mr. Tobin, famed as a peacemaker, failed to see a chance for harmony. It was recalled that at last autumn's Houston A. F. of L. convention he argued for arbitration "provided the points do not involve fundamental laws of the organizations." The same feeling of futility probably led Mr. Green to demand that senate labor committee hearings on the Wagner act be continued, not postponed until after the conference. Recognizing a good chance for congressional victory, A. F. of L. is probably willing to junk the peace talks and play every card while the time is ripe.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Recommends Generous Use of Eggs; Shows How This Protective Food Helps to Balance the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ANY experienced homemaker knows the many cookery uses of eggs. Indeed, she is likely to feel that she could not keep house without this indispensable ingredient, which a French chef once described as "the cement that holds the castles of cookery together." It is true that we should have to do without some of our most delectable dishes if eggs were not available to use as thickening, leavening, coating, binder, clarifier, stabilizer or garnish. But even more significant than their contribution to good cooking are their splendid nutritional values.

A Notable Protective Food

Eggs rank next to milk in that group of mineral- and vitamin-rich foods that we call "protective." They contain substances that are very efficient for growth and development. And in the opinion of nutritionists, they are more nearly interchangeable with milk than any other food.

Eggs are among the first foods to be added to the milk diet of infants. And homemakers who desire to give their families well-balanced meals should provide an egg daily for every individual. This requirement can be reduced, if necessary, to four eggs weekly. But luckily, as we head toward spring, eggs become more plentiful, and lower in price. And it is usually possible for every family to obtain a full quota of this splendid food . . . so rich in the elements that help to build muscle, bone and blood.

A Fine Body Builder

Eggs contain proteins of high quality, and their proteins seem to be particularly well adapted to building body tissue. That is one reason why this food is so desirable in the child's diet . . . so useful in constructing the diet for adults who need "building up." It also makes eggs a logical choice as a main dish for Lenten meals.

It's interesting to note that the proteins of the white and yolk of an egg are quite different in their properties. Egg white is almost pure protein and water, while the protein of the yolk is composed of a different assortment of amino acids, or building stones.

The yolk also contains fat . . . in a finely emulsified form, so that like milk fat, it is comparatively easy to digest. And it is the yolk which is highly prized for its rich store of minerals and vitamins. It is therefore considered the most important part of the egg for young children, and the white is often withheld and only the grated yolk given.

Rich in Iron and Phosphorus

Eggs are notable as a source of iron and phosphorus. Iron is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment of the blood, and the iron in eggs is valuable for this purpose. Phosphorus is the mineral that pairs with calcium in building teeth and bones. It also plays an important part in regulating the neutrality of the blood. The phosphorus in eggs occurs in a form that is particularly well adapted to the needs of the growing body.

Four Important Vitamins

As our knowledge of vitamins has increased, nutritionists have urged that eggs be accorded a wider place in the diet, for they supply four of these vital factors—vitamins A, B, D and G. They are an important source of vitamin A, which promotes growth and helps build resistance to disease. The appetite-promoting vitamin B occurs in lesser amounts than A, but its presence helps to increase the quantity of this essential substance included in the daily diet.

Eggs are one of the few foods naturally containing vitamin D, sometimes called the sunshine vitamin. And it has been determined that they are rich in vitamin G, which is required for health and vitality at all ages.

Raw Eggs vs. Cooked

Eggs are one of the foods that digest most satisfactorily, about 97 to 98 per cent of their protein being digested and absorbed. Moreover, the thoroughness of digestion does not seem to be affected by the method of cooking, and a hard-cooked egg, when well masticated, is as completely digested as one that is soft-cooked. Raw egg white on the other hand is not as completely utilized as when slightly cooked. This shows the fallacy of the old-fashioned idea that raw eggs were more desirable for invalids than cooked eggs.

Brown Eggs vs. White

Some people have an idea that the color of the shell has a bearing upon the nutritive value of an egg. In certain parts of the country, homemakers will pay a premium for eggs with white shells. In other sections, brown eggs are in greater demand, and therefore sell at a higher price. There is no justification for attaching any importance to the color of the shell.

Avoid "Same Old Thing"

Occasionally homemakers tell me that some member of their family doesn't like eggs. It is true that some people have an allergy to eggs, that is, they cannot eat them without having some abnormal reaction. But more often, any antipathy to eggs is due to the fact that they have been served in the same way, day in and day out. There is no excuse for that, for eggs are so versatile that they may be served in dozens of different ways, and in some dishes, their identity can be entirely concealed.

"Sunny side up" may be the most popular method of preparing eggs. But don't get into a menu rut, whether you are serving them for breakfast, dinner, lunch or supper. Cook them soft. Cook them hard. Transform them into omelets and souffles. Scramble them, plain, or dressed up with cheese, diced bacon, frizzled dried beef or sausages.

Eggs for Lenten Meal

As a main dish for a Lenten meal, hard-cooked eggs may be creamed and served alone, or combined with cooked vegetables or fresh or canned fish. Use them as a binder in croquettes and loaf mixtures, as a coating for deep-fried foods.

French toast is a simple luncheon dish, combining the energy values of bread with the fine nutritive values of eggs. Hearty luncheon salads or sandwiches can be made by combining chopped or sliced hard-cooked eggs with fresh or cooked vegetables.

Since eggs admirably supplement the food values of milk, puddings made from milk and eggs are an ideal dessert for children, and help to balance the diet of adults. Custard pies, fruit whips and cakes are also delightful dishes that bring to the diet the protective values of eggs.

HEALTH

• Skin specialists are agreed that eczema is due to variety of causes.

By Dr. James W. Barton

ONE of the sayings among medical students is that if one wants a good "specialty" he should choose to be a skin specialist, as the patient never calls you at night, he never dies of his skin ailment and the skin ailment itself never gets better or gets better for a short time only.

Still another reason why being a skin specialist is not so difficult is that, as half the skin ailments are some form of eczema, if every skin ailment were to be called eczema the skin specialist would be right at least half the time anyway.

As a matter of fact, the symptoms of eczema usually stand out sufficiently to be recognized because of the moist, "weeping" or catarrhal condition of the skin with itching, burning and heat, but the cause of eczema may take some weeks or even months to discover. This is because skin specialists are now agreed that eczema is due to both inside and outside causes. The inside causes may be gout, rheumatism, disorders of digestion, lack of thyroid being, being sensitive to various foods or other substances. The outside causes are what are called "contact" cases of eczema, due to the fact that the patient touched or came in contact with certain substances known to cause eczema.

Among the common contact eczemas is that due to contact with plants. As the testing of these plants as a cause of eczema in any patient often takes weeks or months, Drs. Bedford Shelmire and J. Harvey Black, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, tell of their "short method" for testing suspected cases of contact eczema from plants by using plant oils as the testing material.

Method Is Simple.

After explaining their simple method of obtaining these oils from the dried plants, they state:

"The back is the part of the body chosen for application of the tests. In applying an oil a capillary tube (tube of glass so small that it allows just one drop at a time to flow) is used. A drop of oil is then placed on the skin and spread by the tip of the capillary tube over about two-fifths of an inch skin surface. The tests are applied up and down in four rows of 10 each; no covering is placed over these 40 spots. After a few minutes allowed for drying, the upper test in each row is numbered with 10 per cent silver nitrate. Patients are advised not to bathe for 24 hours. About five minutes is required to apply and properly number the 40 tests with 40 oils."

The skin will show a reaction if any of the numbered oils is responsible for the eczema.

Emotions May Cause Stomach Disturbances

Generally speaking, physicians, when there is pain in the stomach, have in mind always the possibility of cancer in patients past 40 years of age and ulcer in patients under 40. He keeps in mind also that most pains in the stomach are due to liver and gall bladder conditions. There are a great many young adults, especially the nervous or emotional type, who fear that if their stomach pain or distress is not cancer it must be ulcer, yet their very nervousness or their emotional upsets can cause disturbance of the stomach and intestine.

Fortunately an examination by the X-ray is of great help in finding out the cause of the symptoms.

There are certain points about ulcer of the stomach and of the first few inches of the small intestine (duodenum—into which the stomach empties), which stand out so clearly that they are considered to be practically proof of ulcer.

Dr. Charles Gordon Heyd, in American Journal of Science states:

Chronic Condition.
"The indigestion of stomach and duodenal ulcer is a chronic condition, characterized by four outstanding features:

"1. It is tolerated without great distress. That is, patients can usually bear the pain or distress but are always aware of it.

"2. The pain or distress always bears a relationship to the eating of food, as it comes on from 2½ to 3½ hours after eating.

"3. It is cyclic in character, coming on day after day at the same period after meals.

"4. This pain occurring every day and at the same time after meals is present in the history of most patients.

"This regularity and cyclic occurrence (2½ to 3½ hours after meals) of the symptoms in ulcer makes it easy for the physician to tell what is wrong with the patient before even the X-ray examination or the examination of the test meal is made.

I have been thinking that now with slipcovers used so much, one could make a chair out of plain lumber and cover it. Perhaps you could publish something like this in the paper. D. M."

Those who are not so clever about driving nails, may want to call on Dad or Young Son to help with making the simple chair I have sketched here. The metal angles and straps to strengthen the back may be bought at any hardware store along with the nails and screws. When the chair is covered in two tones of chintz with edges of back and seat piped in the darker color, it is really very smart. It is especially useful in a bedroom or hall. If covered in the right colors, it will also look well in the living room.

The Safety Sensation of 1939!
THE NEW
Firestone CHAMPION
The Only Tire Made with the
NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY
and NEW GEAR-GRIP TREAD...

NEVER before in our experience has a tire met with such instant and unanimous approval as the new Firestone Champion Tire. It's the Safety Sensation of 1939! Our customers have started a word-of-mouth campaign that is making this the biggest selling tire we've ever had. Motor car manufacturers have been so impressed by its superior performance that they have adopted it for their 1939 models.

Why? Because the Firestone Champion Tire is an entirely new achievement in safety engineering.

Stronger Cord Body. This is accomplished first, by the use of a completely new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to assure cooler running and provide greater strength. Then, the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves, are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping which provides amazingly greater strength. And greater strength means greater safety.

More Non-Skid Mileage. The new Safety-Lock cord construction provides the extra strength needed for the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip tread which delivers remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design — it has more than 3,000 sharp-edged angles which grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and assure a safe stop.

Let your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a new set of Firestone Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

UNIFIED TELEPHONE SERVICE MEANS BETTER SERVICE FOR YOU

THE MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY and 23 other regional telephone companies, with the Western Electric Company, Bell Telephone Laboratories, and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, make up of the Bell System. Our association in this group is of advantage to every telephone user in Michigan.

It enables us, through the Western Electric Company, manufacturing unit of the Bell System, to get the finest equipment more economically than we could buy it elsewhere or make it ourselves. SAFETY TALKS

What Are You Going to Do?
IT DEPENDS on whether you're going to kill someone or just injure him.

If the automobile accident you may have next week is going to do a lethal job, the chances are your car will strike a pedestrian. On the other hand, if only non-fatal injuries are inflicted, it's an odds-on bet that you'll bump smack into another motor vehicle.

National Safety Council statistics for 1937 show that when a traffic accident produces a fatality, the collision is between a car and a pedestrian in 39 per cent of the cases. Collisions between two motor vehicles produce 26 per cent of the fatalities with other types of collisions contributing smaller numbers to the total.

However, the Council says, it is collisions between two or more motor vehicles that produce the bulk of non-fatal injuries—53 per cent or 725,000 cases in 1937. Collisions between a motor vehicle and a pedestrian produce the next largest number of non-fatal injury cases—25 per cent or 335,000 cases.

In 1937 traffic accidents killed 15,400 pedestrians and 10,300 deaths occurred as the result of collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Over-Modesty

Too much modesty sinks to a weakness.

They won't BELIEVE ... it's CASTOR OIL

Good old reliable castor oil, a household stand-by for generations, has been "modernized" at last. A brand new refining process washes away all the impurities, which, in the past, made castor oil so objectionable, leaving Kellogg's Perfected Tasteless Castor Oil odorless, tasteless, EASY TO TAKE, full-strength, always dependable. Get a bottle of Kellogg's Perfected today for general family use. Demand genuine Kellogg's Perfected—accept no substitutes. "Tasteless" substitute. Sold at all drug stores in 3 1/2 oz. refinery-sealed bottles—only 25c a bottle. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau.

Mamie turned about, and gazed dolefully at her sister-in-law. "Too many years, I'd say," she remarked. "Seems to me a woman that was born and raised in Hawkinsville would see fit to return to her home town a little oftener; but, of course, Linnie always was a gadder."

Mrs. Loring flushed to the roots of her dark hair. "Well, why shouldn't she be a gadder, Mamie? She has no ties, whatsoever; she loves to travel, and she has a very nice income."

Mary hadn't seen her mother's sister, Linnie Cotswell, for ten years, but she was quite willing to fly to her defense. "I think she's a darned good sport," she said defiantly, "and if I were in her shoes, I'd live just the sort of life she's chosen to live—Europe in the summer, New York in the autumn, Florida for the winter."

"And dashing about, spending other people's money, like a drunken sailor!" Mamie persisted, the tip of her long thin nose twitching convulsively.

Mrs. Loring seated herself in one of the armchairs by the round center table, and with apparent calm, picked up the Hawkinsville Journal, fluttered it open, and pretended to read the headlines. "The money Linnie spends is her own," she said, her eyes fixed unseeingly on the print. "It was bequeathed to her—by several different people."

Intrigued by this revelation, Mary asked, "How come, Mother?"

"Stop saying 'how come,' Mary! I've told you again and again that I hate that expression. Well, when your Grandfather Cotswell died, Linnie was the only one of us who had not married, and he naturally felt that what money he had should go to her. He thought—that since all the rest of his daughters had husbands; we would, of course, be provided for."

"Dirty trick, I'd say!" sniffed Mamie. "I can't see why one daughter should have been singled out. How did he know Linnie wouldn't later marry some man that'd outshine the husbands of all the others? Too bad he didn't set aside a tidy sum for you, Janet."

Mrs. Loring's eyes clouded. "Jim was a very promising young lawyer at the time, Mamie. My father had no reason to believe that—that we would later have to struggle—as we have had to do."

"We're having a very nice dinner," Mrs. Loring went on, trying valiantly to avert a clash. "I bought a lovely roast beef at Haubert's, and Phrony's going to try Mrs. Upham's recipe for French-frying those little hearts of cauliflower."

Mamie's eyes glittered with anticipation. She was inordinately fond of food, although she was constantly telling how little she ate. Even hearing about a meal was a pleasure, and now being informed that beef and cauliflower were in store for her, her attention was diverted from the topic of the inconvenience caused by Linnie Cotswell's and Lelia Ormsby's visit.

"Mother, are you going to the station with Dad, or shall I?"

"You go, darling. I know you can hardly wait to see Aunt Linnie."

Five minutes later, Mary was speeding through the wintry dusk, arm. "If my eyes are sparkling, Daddy, it's because of Aunt Linnie's coming—and not the weather conditions, although it is getting snappier every minute outdoors. Hurry, Dad, and close up shop. The train's due now in ten minutes. Good heavens, I don't believe you're at all excited over the arrival of our prodigal relatives!"

Mary linked one arm through her father's as the train blustered in. They were coming! They were coming! Those creatures from another world! Suddenly, she caught sight of them through the snow-spattered windows of the Pullman.

Mary pressed forward, reaching Miss Cotswell as she stepped to the ground. "Aunt Linnie!" she exclaimed. "Aunt Linnie!"

Linnie Cotswell caught her in a swift, fragrant embrace, kissed her lightly, then wheeled about to the porter. "Are you sure all my bags are here?" And, being assured that her six, and Lelia's three pieces, of pigskin luggage were duly piled together, she returned her attention to Mary. "My dear!" she exclaimed. "What a lovely young woman you've grown to be! This is Mary, isn't it? Darling, you were terrible in glasses and dental braces the last time I saw you! And Jim! Dear old Jim, how nice it is to see you! And, of course, you know this is Lelia!"

Lelia, one lovely blue eye almost obscured from view by the dipping fur of the Cossack hat, extended a hand, first to Mary, and then to James Loring.

The train began chug-chugging its way from the station, and Linnie, glancing at her brother-in-law, sensed his dismay. "Poor Jim," she laughed, "are you wondering why in the world we brought so many bags? Well, six of them are mine. When a woman reaches my age, you know, she simply has to carry about a lot of clothes, and astringents and cold creams in order to be constantly warding off the ravages of time. Isn't there a redcap in the place?"

Mary laughed. "Not one in a carload, Aunt Linnie, but I can manage at least three of those gorgeous bags. I'm young and strong and willing, as they always say in advertisements."

"And I can manage the other six," said Christopher Cragg, appearing suddenly from behind a baggage truck. "Why not let me take all of them in my car?"

"And why not?" retorted Mary, although her heart skipped a beat as it always so foolishly did when she came upon the young doctor unexpectedly. "Aunt Linnie, this is Christopher Cragg, Mrs. Ormsby, Doctor Cragg."

Five minutes later, James Loring's car, carrying the three women, was crawling discreetly up Johnson Street hill, while Christopher Cragg's sedan, filled to the roof with luggage, followed sedately.

"Where in the world did that young giant come from?" Linnie Cotswell demanded. "If only I were thirty years younger, I'd fall in love with him. He's not a Hawkinsville man, is he, Jim?"

"He's not from a Hawkinsville family," Mr. Loring returned, his eyes ahead of him as he piloted his old car towards Main street, "but he's chosen to live here. Old Doctor Ehinger died a year ago, you know, and this chap happened to finish his internship at the Henrotin Hospital in Chicago just at that time. Well, he had gone to Harvard with one of the Johnstone boys, so Johnstone, knowing Doctor Cragg was looking for an opening in a small town, wrote him about the practice and the office and the little house Doctor Ehinger had left without a head. Cragg dashed right down to Hawkinsville and bought out the whole works from Jessie."

"But, Jim," asked Linnie, "wasn't Doctor Ehinger's equipment terribly antiquated? I can't see how a doctor just starting off in life could put up with it."

"It was simply incredible," interpolated Mary. "Chris has thrown most of it out, and bought beautiful new stuff. Everything is white tile and glistening metal now. It seems he went through the deal with Miss Jessie just as a matter of good will, and really he's profiting by it. All the younger people in town are taking their children to him."

"Even so," Linnie Cotswell said meditatively, "he can't expect to make a fortune in a town of this size. After all, a city's the place for a modern young doctor."

"Most people think he's just a little too modern for their tastes," returned Jim Loring. "After all, the old ways are the best."

"Oh, fiddlesticks," Linnie Cotswell chortled. "Why, isn't this your house?"

Mrs. Loring had lighted the place from top to bottom, and the freshly washed windows cast shafts of brightness into the night. It was evident she had been watching for the car to turn the corner, for she stood waiting in the doorway.

"What will Lelia Ormsby think of our home?" Mary asked herself.

CHAPTER I

Mary looked about the living room with mingled emotions of affection and despair. Phrony had just completed the first thorough cleaning it had undergone in two months, and the place did not seem quite as cluttered as usual. "The woodwork and furniture had been polished with something Aunt Mamie had bought from a door-to-door salesman; the windows shone from yesterday's washing; the nap of the Axminster 'nine-by-twelve' positively stood up as a result of Phrony's vigorous sweeping with the ancient, but still active, vacuum cleaner. Holly wreaths, tied with rather too narrow red ribbon, hung at each window, while Aunt Mamie now labored over the arrangement of a bunch of the same leaves for a vase on the mantel.

"The house looks more festive than it has for years," Mary remarked happily. "Christmas decorations certainly help."

Aunt Mamie compressed her thin lips. "Not half as much as a good, first class cleaning," she replied. "Why your mother puts up, year after year, with incompetent help is beyond my understanding. Of course, this isn't my house, and it's not up to me to interfere."

Mary's young shoulders straightened defiantly. "You know why Mother puts up with incompetent help, as you call it, Aunt Mamie. Phrony's the only maid we can get in Hawkinsville who'll cook for this big family, and clean, and wash, for five dollars a week."

Aunt Mamie, her father's maiden sister, was getting more and more on Mary's nerves as the years went on. She had been dependent on Mother and Daddy's hospitality for two decades now, yet she eternally found fault with Mrs. Loring's housekeeping, criticized the conduct of Mary, her eighteen-year-old sister Ellen, and their harum-scarum and adorable little brother, Peter; and complained constantly about her health, which, as far as the Loring's could determine, was about on a par with that of a truck horse; continually referred to the purely imaginary men she might have married. In fact, as time had worn on, Mamie's illusory suitors had become more and more real in Mamie's mind, increasingly ardent in their affection for her; their words, never actually spoken, their deeds never actually committed, more and more colorful and graphic in her frequent recitals of them.

Mrs. Loring, always eager to avert unpleasant feeling, eternally seeking peace at the cost of any concession she might make, forced a smile to her lips. "How charming everything looks!" she exclaimed brightly. "I know Linnie and Lelia will think the house is sweet. It's been years since they've seen it, you know."

Mamie turned about, and gazed dolefully at her sister-in-law. "Too many years, I'd say," she remarked. "Seems to me a woman that was born and raised in Hawkinsville would see fit to return to her home town a little oftener; but, of course, Linnie always was a gadder."

up Concert street to Seventh, down Seventh to Main, and up the rather dirty brown steps that led to her father's dingy law offices in the Cactus building. A light snow had begun to drift earthwards, and to cover the little town with a magic carpet of white.

James Loring was seated at his desk when Mary, without knocking, opened the door of his office. He was alone, his one office assistant being Ellen, who had left an hour before to do some last-minute Christmas shopping. A green-shaded electric bulb shone down upon his thinning hair and the well-thumbed law book over which he was poring. "Poor Daddy," Mary thought, a quick hard lump filling her throat, "sitting here in this dreary old office the afternoon before Christmas, and reading up on a case that was probably tried somewhere fifty years ago! Well, it's a good thing the railroad keeps him on as their local attorney. Heaven knows, his cases of any other sort are few and far between."

He glanced up as she entered, his face lighting with a smile as he saw how smart she looked in the new fur coat she had bought from her own savings, and the little hat that dipped rakishly over one eye. "How pretty you look, my dear!" he exclaimed, rising from his chair with that old-world courtliness which he extended even to his female children. "It must be getting colder. Taste Turning To Vegetables

Americans Are Eating More, But Less Meat Is Being Consumed.

WASHINGTON. — The average American is gradually becoming more of a vegetarian, a department of agriculture survey of food consumption since 1920 indicates.

The trend toward more vegetables and dairy products and away from meats may have been due in part, it was believed, to higher meat prices resulting from droughts during the 1933-1937 period.

The average per capita consumption of meat and fish declined from 138 pounds in the 1920-1924 period to 126 pounds in the 1934-1937 period. In the same periods average consumption of vegetables increased from 135 to 169 pounds.

The average American eats slightly more now than in the early twenties, the report showed. Total per capita food consumption in the 1934-1937 period was 1,440 pounds, compared with 1,425 pounds in the 1920-1924 period.

1900 Turning Point.

"The trend in the per capita consumption of meat has been downward for a considerable period," the department said. "The trend in consumption was definitely downward from the turn of the century to 1931, but since then the move has been upward. Consumption of pork was downward until 1917, upward until 1934 and downward since, due in part to droughts."

Among the most important community groups over the last 19 years, tendencies to decline were most apparent in cereal products, potatoes and meats. The most marked increases were noted in fresh and canned vegetables, citrus fruits and dairy products.

More than half of the increase in fresh vegetables was accounted for by greater consumption of carrots, celery and lettuce. The sharpest rise among canned vegetables was noted in tomatoes, half of which was due to a marked increase in consumption of tomato juice since 1929.

Industry Little Affected.

Officials said the slight shift away from meats was not enough to affect the live stock industry greatly and probably would not in the near future.

Changes in the annual per capita consumption of principal foods between the 1920-24 and 1934-37 periods were: Cereal products, from 229 to 196 pounds; all potatoes, from 178 to 157 pounds; sugar and syrup, from 106 to 110 pounds; milk and cream, from 315 to 337; manufactured dairy products (principally ice cream, butter and cheese), from 40 to 49 pounds.

Woman Has Four Surnames But Married Only Once

HARRISBURG, ILL. — Although she has been married only once, Mrs. Marjorie Vincent, wife of Rev. John Paul Vincent, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Harrisburg, has legally had four different surnames in her lifetime.

Born Marjorie Brown, the daughter of a mining engineer, her parents died when she was a baby. Grandparents, adopting the orphaned child, gave her their name, Brookings. At the death of the grandparents, Marjorie Brookings was legally adopted by her maternal aunt, whose applied surname made her over into Marjorie Johnson. Thus it remained until she met and married the minister, John Paul Vincent.

'Chronoscope' Invented; Tells Time Over World

LONDON.—An instrument which tells the time in all parts of the world has been invented by G. Fisher, 91 years old, of London.

He calls his invention "The World's Chronoscope." It consists of a white revolving disc of cardboard with the figures of a clock around the edge. By turning a pointer to Greenwich time, one is enabled through a series of cross-indexings to tell the time almost instantaneously in 570 states and countries.

VISALIA, CALIF.—Joe Faria believes he has the oldest living goose in the United States. It will celebrate its twenty-fifth hatching-day this spring.

Even in 161 B. C.

Jurors Rolled Dice LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Dr. Arthur P. McKinlay, professor of Latin, points out that human nature has changed little, at least in some respects, since the days of the Romans. He cites an article in a recent magazine in which the author depicts jurymen of the present age as being much more interested in playing poker than in performing their court duties.

Dr. McKinlay related what went on in Rome more than 2,000 years ago. In 161 B. C. the senatorial jurymen were said to have played at dice. Occasionally they would send a messenger to find out how things were going on in the Forum.

This & That: Popular meeting places in midtown are Grand Central information booth, the Astor lobby and in front of the Paramount building . . . Downtown, in front of the Stock Exchange, Trinity church, No. 1 Wall street, and the George Washington statue . . . Uptown, Grant's tomb, various entrances to Central park and streets along Riverside drive . . . Ilsa Vaile defines pedestrians as persons usually found in front of automobiles . . . A magazine article stated that there was an Enoch Light who is a member of Father Divine's cult . . . Which caused the band leader at the Taft no end of worry . . . Despite the fact that the two Enoch Lights were differentiated in a broadcast over a national hookup . . . Doris Rhodes took vocal lessons from a teacher who knew how to teach singing . . . But it was otherwise with his advertising . . . His window sign read: "You are never too old to start a career in music. Enroll now. Special pains given to beginners."

Continuing: Peter Van Steeden says the English spell humor, h-u-m-o-u-r because, having less of it, they make more of it . . . Bums are not allowed to enter California, reports Ben Bernie, unless they have movie contracts . . . and Alice Frost says that when Hollywood couple marry nowadays the first thing they have is a little divorce . . . New knowledge: Front bumpers were offered on a number of automobiles as early as 1906 as "optional equipment" . . . and in 1907 the automotive industry used 70,000,000 square feet of laminated safety glass . . . Kay Kysner received this ad from a laundry last week: "Why kill your wife? Let us do the dirty work for you" . . . Pitchmen fear the Forty-second Street association more than they do the police . . . The association has means of its own to enforce orders.

Still more: Somebody forgot to buy whipped cream, which since "Victoria Regina" opened three years ago, has been used as lather in the shaving scene . . . and so Werner Bateman, the Prince Albert of the play, used real lather . . . and found it worked better than the imitation . . . Joan Edwards, soloist with Paul White-man's orchestra, stopped suddenly before a cut-rate shop that sells recordings . . . She was listening to her own voice . . . and Toscanini, the eminent, shook his head sadly as he listened to modern swing played by a Rockefeller Center phonograph shop.

Additional: Backstage of an important musical the other afternoon, a director was explaining his woes when he was interrupted by a sweet young thing who announced she was a stage aspirant . . . "I've got enough headaches now!" yelled the director. "I don't want aspirants, I want aspirin" . . . Jerry Cooper takes candid camera pictures of friends and gives them the prints . . . He holds they help correct bad habits such as nail biting, slumping in chairs, etc. . . . Butch, the official Winter Garden cat, became the mother of two bouncing kittens recently . . . Libby Holman, of "You Never Know," has adopted them.

Manhattan Miracles: Old women juggling heavy baskets of pretzels on their heads . . . Blasters who stand 30 feet away from dynamite explosions without holding their ears . . . Cops who stand in the midst of speeding traffic without batting an eye . . . Crowds and crowds of people without a smile to be seen . . . Subway riders who suffer every known inconvenience from overcrowding yet never complain . . . Health faddists who walk around in shirt sleeves in the cold.

Finish: Gertrude Berg knows a young physician who asks each patient a long list of questions as to what he eats . . . It doesn't help him in the diagnosis . . . But does help him in fixing his fee . . . Frank Novak heard a man threatening an actor that unless he paid up, he'd turn off the gas . . . He wasn't a public utility employee but a press agent . . . and I guess I'd better write THE END.

Swimming Motion Found

Way to Fight Snowslide WINNIPEG, MAN.—If you find yourself engulfed in a snowslide just swim for all you are worth. That is the advice of R. B. Miller of Jasper, Alta. He said it's the only chance in the world you have to survive.

"If you swim—just as if you were in water—you may keep yourself near the surface of the snow, which rolls over you in waves, all the time forcing you under. By swimming you may end up near the top when the slide stops."

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL
The percentage of attendance in the high school for the past month was 93.0. The percentage for the entire school was 90.7. These figures show the results of the "fit."

At a class meeting held Monday, the seniors decided the following factors: Class motto, "Don't try dying, but die trying." Class colors, yale blue and gold; class flowers, yellow roses. It is expected that this year's class will consist of 19 members, and the commencement will be held June 15. No speaker has yet been secured.

The Junior class will hold a bake sale at Pierson's restaurant, Saturday, March 11, at 2:00 o'clock. We will appreciate your patronage.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES
Our attendance record is still much below normal.

Those absent this week because of illness are Ruth Giddings, Donald Pfeiffer and Leland Britting.

The seventh grade have been studying safety in hygiene. We have been using a little booklet, "Calling all Drivers."

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
Janet Musolf was the winner in a spelling contest Friday afternoon. The fourth grade geography class is studying about Holland. They have started making Dutch booklets.

The fourth graders finished their health booklets Wednesday afternoon.

PRIMARY
Mrs. Nordman came Monday. We had a clinic. Then she talked to us. She said: 1. Eat good food. 2. Keep clean. 3. Sleep at least ten hours. 4. Play out in the fresh air. Copied by Marie Luce.

We enjoyed Mrs. Nordman's visit. We are working on our play about milk. It is called "Dickie's Dream of the Vita-Men." This will complete our study of health.

Lumberjacks to Appear at Bay City I. O. O. F. Meet

Those who enjoy the folklore of the forest will be happy to know that on Friday, March 17, the "Michigan Lumberjacks," sole remaining organization in the United States, made up of men who logged in Michigan's woods, "drove" her streams, betimes "ripped her up" at were a part of the saga of the lumbering days of a past era, will "roam again" in song and story—this time at Central High School Auditorium, Bay City.

And what is best (as the "Jacks" of other days, of whom they are the surviving few, would have liked it) every penny of the receipts of their entertainment above actual expenses will go to help build a fund to send needy boys and girls to a summer camp.

The "Jacks" are not unknowns. They have broad casted their programs over a national hook-up from New York City, have been as far south for entertainment purposes as Mississippi, and as far west as St. Louis, Missouri.

Last spring they were "news reeled" in Washington, D. C., looking at our National Capitol.

In April, 1939, they will represent the State of Michigan at the Sixth National Folk Festival to be held in Washington, D. C.

Five of these old-timers are seventy-five or better. Their program is wholesome, entertaining, and inexpensive.

Lovers of the open doors and students of earlier days "doings" will find this a "red letter" day of entertainment at very modest cost.

AMERICAN BOY MAGAZINE COMPANION TO THOUSANDS

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read The American Boy magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

"It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum," writes one high school senior. "The American Boy seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips I read in The American Boy."

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in The American Boy magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basketball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys clubs also recommend The American Boy enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of The American Boy advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce in The American Boy, the sort of reading matter boys like best.

The American Boy sells on most newsstands at 15c a copy. Subscription prices are $1.50 for one year or $3.00 for three years. Foreign rates 50c a year extra. To subscribe simply send your name, address and remittance direct to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit Michigan.
