ERNEST WRIGHT FUNERAL HELD LAST SATURDAY

For Many Years Engaged In Isosco Highway Construction

Don't forget the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce banquet at the Hotel Isosco, Monday evening. Miss Effie Prescott, of Bay City, spent the week end at her home. Walter Moeller was a Bay City business visitor on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Finley and son, Dwight, were week end visitors at Ithaca and Hartford. Several from here attended the birthday party on Roy Sims in Wilber on Tuesday evening and airport a splendid time.

The funeral services of Ernest F. Wright, highly esteemed resident of this city, were held last Saturday afternoon from the L. D. S. Church. Rev. M. A. Sommerfield officiated. Mr. Wright passed away last week Wednesday following a heart attack. He had been in ill health for several weeks.

Ernest Fredrick Wright was born December 25, 1882, in Clinton Mills, New York, a son of Robert and Mary Wright.

His residence in Tawas City dates from 1900. During that time he has engaged in highway construction and as a contractor.

He married Lilly Ann Fowler in Tawas City, July 4, 1901, who departed this life December 20, 1927. She bore him five children, four sons and a daughter, Hattie, who passed away in 1917.

January 2, 1933, Mr. Wright was united in marriage with Mrs. Katherine Bentley, of Detroit. She, with the four sons of the first marriage, Roy, Fred, Charles and Willard Wright, survive the deceased. Other surviving relatives are the aged mother, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, of Tawas City; a brother, Roy Wright, of Ellensburg Depot, New York; a half-brother, Fred McLaughlin, residence unknown; and four grandchildren.

Mr. Wright worshipped for many years in the Latter Day Saints Church, and his passing is mourned by not only his immediate relatives, but by a large circle of friends and neighbors as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLean spent Tuesday at Bay City, where Mr. McLean entered General Hospital for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Leslie visited their daughter, Arlene, at Ann Arbor on Sunday.

Mrs. Leo Hosbach entertained the Birthday Club at her home Tuesday evening. There were 24 present.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Musolf, of Genoa, Ohio, are expected Friday to visit relatives and friends for several days.

Miss Jean Robinson, who has employment at Lansing, spent the week end here.

Bruce Myles, of Alpena, spent the week end at the parental home.

Miss Sophie Fisher and Miss Leanoire Brabant spent three days in Detroit attending the Hair Stylist show. They studied all the latest coiffures for spring. Miss Fisher operates the Delmar Beauty Shop in East Tawas, and Miss Brabant manages Leanoire's Beauty Shop in this city.

Edw. Stevens attended the funeral services of the late Frank D. Fitzgerald at Grand Lodge on Sunday.

Mrs. John Koepke received a crate of oranges from her sister, Mrs. Fred Merze, who is in Florida.

Don't forget the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce banquet at the Hotel Isosco, Monday evening.

California Woman Enjoys Tawas Herald

In a letter renewing her subscription, Mrs. Margaret McCombs, of 1545 17th Ave., Oakland, California, says, "I am late in sending my check and do thank you for sending me the Herald anyway. I wouldn't know how to do without it. I have especially enjoyed Looking Backward. It is interesting to one who was a part of Tawas life at that time."

"I was more than pleased to know that the most beautiful spot around Tawas was not going to be used for a city dump any longer. I always loved the Glen so much. You can imagine the shock when I saw its condition while I was in the Tawas in '35. I thought 'How could they do it?' I send my best wishes to my Tawas friends."

Home Economic Notes

Spectacular Epic at Rivola, Sun.-Mon.-Tue.

"Stagecoach" which is at the Rivola, Tawas City, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, March 26, 27 and 28, is a spectacular outdoor picture, crammed with tense drama, comedy, suspense and pathos. The principal characters are all fellow passengers on the stagecoach journey to Lordsburg and their fates are narrated in the "Grand Hotel" manner. The entire cast is excellent, with Thomas Mitchell running away with top honors, and Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Donald Meek, John Carradine, Andy Devine, George Bancroft, Louise Platt and Berton Churchill all giving fine sincere performances. The magnitude of the photographic shots is breathtaking, and the most impressive scene is where the logs are tied to each side of the stagecoach to float it across the river, because the Indians had destroyed the ferry.

There will be a continuous show Sunday, shows starting at 3, 5, 7 and 9 p. m. Come early.

Wednesday and Thursday, March 29 and 30 "Gambling Ship" with Helen Mack and Robert Wilcox will be shown. This picture is an action drama of "Life on the Gambling Ships where hope springs eternal and death is the usual penalty."

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation for the kind acts of our friends and neighbors during our bereavement, also for the flowers and use of cars, and we especially wish to thank Rev. M. A. Sommerfield for his kind words. The Wright Family.

Gym-Auditorium Issue Carries by 4 to 1 Vote

In a vote yesterday of more than 4 to 1 Tawas City and Tawas township electors emphasized their intentions of having a school auditorium and gymnasium. At yesterday's election 276 votes were cast—219 yes, 52 no, and five spoiled. At the election held February 2 the bond issue carried by a little more than 3 to 1. One citizen said yesterday evening after the votes had been counted, "If we have to vote again we will make it unanimous."

Yesterday's election lacked much of the excitement exhibited at the first election and fewer votes were cast. Nearly everyone seemed of the opinion that the issue would carry when it was found that a second election would be necessary.

The result of the election does not effect the total amount of $18,000.00 which is to be raised for building the auditorium. It raises the rate from 2.3 to 2.5 per cent which may be assessed against the property valuation of the district.

Construction of the new building will be under the supervision of the Francis Engineering company of Saginaw. This firm supervised the construction of the city's water works and sanitary sewer systems. Plans are now being prepared and preliminary engineering work is underway for the new building.

Hale Boy Now Rides in Style of Gay Nineties

A relic of the "Gay Nineties" has appeared on the streets at Hale since the McLean farm auction last Tuesday. Dale Johnson, of that village, was the successful bidder on an old fashioned bicycle owned by the late Herbert McLean. It is one of the earliest makes of bicycles with a front wheel five feet in diameter and small rear wheel. The bike is still in running condition, but the new owner confesses that walking is preferred if comfort is sought—also much less dangerous to life and limb.

Anna Francis Devereaux was born October 7, 1862, at Port Huron, and was married December 25 1883 to William McMurray. They came to East Tawas immediately afterwards, and in 1901 purchased the Union hotel, which was operated until 1925. Mr. McMurray passed on March 25, 1915.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Christ Episcopal Church, with Rev. Colby officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the East Tawas cemetery.

Out of town relatives who attended the funeral were R. J. McMurray and family, of Saginaw; Mrs. John Foster and son, Charles, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Croft, of Cadillac; Mrs. Ben Kuehl, of Saginaw; Miss Joy McMurray, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kelchner, of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Finley and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Case, of Saginaw.

Bowling . . .

In last Sunday's games bowled on the Shuman alleys Coyle's Fish Market, of Tawas City defeated the West Branch Tigers 2347 to 2107. The Tawas City Merchants lost to a West Branch team 2116 to 2037.

Last Sunday Carlsson's Grocery bowled Rainbow Bread of Bay City on the latter's alleys and won this match by 34 pins. The score being Bay City, 2562; Tawas, 2596. Following are the local bowlers and scores of this match. Hatton, 524; Kussro, 523; Brown, 549; Carlsson, 491; Staudacher, 509.

On Wednesday evening the Unlucky Five journeyed to Alpena where they lost a hard game to Crows. The score of this match was, Alpena, 2873; Tawas, 2757. Art Bartlett was high man for the local keggers with 618.

On Monday evening in the Major league games Arvid Carlsson, of Carlsson's Grocery, set a new individual single-game high with a mark of 279. He had nine straight strikes. This score ties the all-time high set by Roy Roper, Sr., several years ago for the local alleys.

In rolling this score several new marks were set for the season, which undoubtedly will not be bettered. It enabled Carlsson to set a new individual three-game score in the Girls and it also gives his team three-game high score for this season with 2632.

On Tuesday evening in the Good-fellowship league, Don Anderson, of the Beal Nursery, rolled high single game score with a mark of 213; Walt Lixey's 521 copied high three-game score; and Phoenix Beer won high team three-game score with 2285.

Marjorie Lickfelt rolled high individual three-game score in the Girls league on Wednesday evening with a score of 398.

Europe

Died, at the age of 20, Czechoslovakia; born of World war opportunism, succumbed a victim of its own unnatural unity.

Adolf Hitler might place that inscription on the national tombstone of a nation he snuffed out. Partially he would be right. But Czechoslovakia's "unnatural unity" might have become natural had not the flames of discontent been fanned by Berlin and Vienna. Immediate cause of death was a Slovakian independence movement, but good international physicians look behind the immediate cause to make their post mortem decision, finding that Czechoslovakia's death agony conforms with diagnoses made throughout its short life:

Birth: On May 30, 1918, Czechoslovakia was born at Pittsburgh, Pa. Attending physician was Thomas G. Masaryk, a modern George Washington who pooled the causes of two depressed peoples. Until the war Czechs were dominated by Austria, and Slovaks by Hungary. What could be more natural than a joint independence declaration? Though Czechs dominated the negotiations, shrewd Doctor Masaryk foresaw trouble if Slovaks were mistreated. Said the Pittsburgh pact: "Slovakia shall have its own administration . . . parliament . . . courts. The Slovak language shall be official . . ." But not until November, 1938, did German pressure force the central Prague government to grant Slovaks an autonomy which had been denied because "changing conditions" demanded a solid national front. Another excuse: May 30, 1918, was a U. S. national holiday, hence the pact was not binding.

Illness. Pride may keep the patient from admitting his ill health, but sometimes the body builds physical resistance to a point where the ailment becomes unimportant. Slovakia's autonomy cry has been the Czech nation's headache for 20 years, but meanwhile both Slovaks and Czechs found enough mutual delight in their newly won democracy to keep the autonomy movement well under cover. Even this novelty can wear off, however, and by 1938 Czechs, Slovaks, Sudeten Germans, Ruthenians, Hungarians, Poles, Ukrainians and Rumanians each found cause to complain of racial discrimination. This was the era of national unity, when Adolf Hitler was "rescuing" all good Germans from foreign flags, and when Poland, Hungary and Rumania followed the leader. Throughout last summer Berlin fomented dissension among Sudeten Germans in the Czech borderlands. At Munich a defeated Prague government—deserted by London and Paris—ceded Sudetenland. A month later Poland and Hungary each took their share, but debilitated Czechoslovakia soon regained its feet. One successful medicine was autonomy for both Slovakia and Ruthenia, which gave the patient rest if not recovery. Another was the Munich pledge by Britain and France:

"His majesty's government . . . and the French government have entered into the (Munich pact) on the basis that they stand by the offer . . . of Anglo-French proposals of September 19 relating to an international guarantee of the new boundaries of the Czechoslovak state against unprovoked aggression."

Death. (See Map). That Adolf Hitler hopes eventually to control Russia's rich Ukraine is no secret. Since Munich his overlordship in Czechoslovakia has aimed in that direction. Both Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) held the father of their autonomy in high regard, willing that he should build toward the day when German troops could use Czechoslovakia as a corridor to the Ukraine. But one weak state is easier to handle than three young upstart nations, hence Hitler preferred autonomy to independence. He also hoped Hungary would dare not grab Ruthenia to get its common border with Poland, since this might block the Ukraine drive.

Always an opportunist, Der Fuehrer made the most of overnight developments. Slovakia revolted against Prague. Carpatho-Ukraine declared its independence and was immediately gobbled up by Hungary and Rumania. Remembering that Bismarck once said "he who controls Bohemia is master of Europe," Germany forced what was left of Czechoslovakia (Bohemia and Moravia) into the Reich. Slovakia was granted "independence." The operation having been successful, the patient died as expected; Czechoslovakia was no more.

In Memoriam. Only a few days earlier London and Paris were boasting that dictator appeasement was ended, that democracy's star was rising and totalitarianism's falling. Prime Minister Chamberlain and Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare even proposed a disarmament parley, showing their blissful ignorance of the situation. When Prague collapsed, France and Britain blandly declared it was no concern of theirs because (1) the Czech guarantee had never been ratified and (2) anyway, this was "internal disruption," not "unprovoked aggression."

The real reason was far more cunning, though it could be interpreted only as a continuation of the modern Anglo-French disinclination to face issues squarely. Europe's democracies realize that Italy would never push her Mediterranean demands against France without German help, and digestion of his new conquests will keep Der Fuehrer busy for some time. But—most important—Germany moved its theater of activity away from western Europe and toward the borders of hostile Russia. France and Britain forlornly hope Hitler will march blindly into the Ukraine, engaging Russia in a war which might spell death for both Nazism and Communism.

But both Hitler and Russia's Joseph Stalin are probably too smart to invite such chaos. Even as Hitler marched into Prague the eighteenth Communist congress was meeting in Moscow. Dictator Stalin sent a prominent Ukrainian delegate to the platform with this unpleasant message: "Whoever dares . . . cut our frontiers will be destroyed like a mad dog. Fascist ringleaders send secret agents to our country . . . But let them know that we will annihilate them like loathsome creatures."

DICTATOR STALIN

Careful observers see one of three solutions, listed in order of likelihood: (1) Hitler will reconcile differences with Russia via a trade and military pact holding fearful implications for world democracies; (2) the entire Russ-German issue will be dropped, blocked by Polish-Hungarian-Rumanian unwillingness to surrender Ruthenia as a German path to the east; (3) a middle-Europe campaign will be started to nationalize all Ukrainians, inevitably leading to a Russ-German war.

People

Discovered, at work in an English motor works, 22-year-old Grand Duke Vladimir, claimant to the Russian throne. Reason: "Russia will need our practical experience."

Selected, as U. S. ambassador to Russia, Laurence A. Steinhardt, now ambassador to Peru, succeeding Joseph Davies, who was shifted to Belgium last May.

Congress

Said Virginia's Rep. Clifton Woodrum, house economy leader who was ousted as head of the relief subcommittee: "I have not changed my belief that the amount appropriated was sufficient to carry WPA through the year. However, I am open to conviction."

Answered President Roosevelt, who has repeated his request for $150,000,000 more WPA funds: "The responsibility . . . rests . . . with congress."

Spending is the woe of most U. S. senators and representatives, yet the early March economy bloc which threatened to wreck administration financial plans has already reached an amazingly effective stalemate. Reasons: (1) by placing responsibility for an economy-inspired business slump on congress' shoulders, President Roosevelt washes his hands of the consequences, thereby causing constituent-way legislators to backwater; (2) both the President and congress realize that while the legislative branch will fight new spending proposals, the White House can similarly exercise veto power over anti-New Deal legislation. Facts of the impasse:

Debt. Mr. Roosevelt is willing to drop his request for a boost in the public debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000. But the alternatives, offered by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., are little more inviting: (1) increase the bond limit over its present $30,000,000,000 to be reached by September 30; (2) borrow funds for the treasury through Reconstruction Finance corporation or other agencies not falling within the general budget's scope; (3) issue $3,752,000,000 in notes and bills, all that remains before the $15,000,000,000 limit is reached on these types of securities. White House insistence on one course or the other indicates the unlikelihood of shaving expenditures.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU

Taxation. Though repeal of capital gains and undivided profits levies is a major congressional aim this session, the normal tax rate must then be boosted unless a substantial budget slash is effected. The new burden would fall most heavily on the smaller 153,000 firms out of some 200,000 corporations which pay federal taxes. One of the few alternatives is to lower income tax exemptions, which would mean political suicide for congressmen.

Relief. Though $750,000,000 in deficiency funds were voted in February to maintain WPA until June 30, the President has twice requested restoration of the remaining $150,000,000 on pain of discharging 1,200,000 workers. White House estimate: If the $150,000,000 is not forthcoming, 400,000 must be dropped April 1, another 600,000 May 1, another 200,000 in June. This would also have major political repercussions.

Miscellany

Probably lost by Chicago Jews, their vote in Chicago's mayoral election April 4, which is observed strictly by orthodox Jews as the first day of Passover.

LUIGI CARDINAL MAGLIONE

The new, 62-year-old papal secretary of state is a lifelong friend and one-time classmate of the former Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who appointed him after being elevated to the post of Pope Pius XII. Ordained in 1901 in his native Italy, Cardinal Maglione immediately entered the Vatican's diplomatic service, going to Switzerland in 1918 and to Palestine in 1920 as archbishop of Caesaria. His first nunciature was in Switzerland but it was in France that he gained such appreciation that he won the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor. In 1935, when created a cardinal, he received his baretta from the hands of the French president. Since then he has been in Rome as head of the congregation of the council. His appointment to the papal state secretaryship is considered significant of the Vatican's continuing strong position concerning totalitarian states, since the Italian government has registered displeasure over the appointment.

MAN O' WAR BECOMES 22

The greatest horse in American turf history was born 22 years ago March 31 and now lives in happy retirement at Faraway Farms, the stud farm his owner—Samuel D. Riddle—built for him in Kentucky's blue grass region north of Lexington. Man O' War has brought his owner $1,000,000 in prize money, stud fees and sale of foals, though he cost only $5,000 in 1918. Man O' War's 277 registered children (to January, 1937) have won more than $2,500,000. Despite his age, the wonder horse is still sleek and sound, alert and full of energy. About the farm the powerful chestnut, heavier than ever, is known as "Big Red," and attracts thousands of admiring visitors each year.

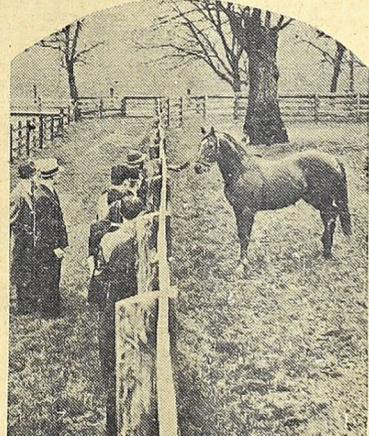

Picture Parade

Above, Man O' War leaves his stall for exercise in the paddock under direction of Will Harbut, his proud groom, who thinks he has a "better job than the President of the U.S.A." Left, Will brings his charge dinner of corn, barley, oats and bran and the big stallion, famous as a great eater since he was a colt, pushes forward.

Above, Man O' War as a champion three-year-old in 1920, with the late Clarence Kummer, as jockey, up. World and American racing records the horse set in 1919 and 1920 still stand. In the latter year he set five world records and in none of those races was he ever called upon to show what he could do under pressure. Right, Man O' War has an average of 100 visitors daily, who see him spend two hours in the two-acre paddock, weather permitting. He may also be seen in his stall, and visiting hours are from 7:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Young Sherman M. Fairchild inherited about $10,000,000, and the money took wings—not around the night spots, but in aviation enterprises which have made him one of the main panjandrums of the plane designing and building industry.

Just now, the Civil Aeronautics authority certifies Mr. Fairchild's new 500-horsepower "in-line" engine, which, he says, has more power for its weight than any other. For several years, Mr. Fairchild has been pioneering the "in-line" engines as against the radial type of foreign nations. In 1936, he sold 20 of them to the Greek government, which, it was later reported, found them highly satisfactory. His engine is about one-third the size of a radial engine.

His father, the late George W. Fairchild, began his business career on $8 a week, invented the dial telephone, the computing scale, and the adding machine. He wanted his son to become a junior executive of International Business Machines corporation. The young man, however, was interested mainly in cameras. At 17, he had invented a revolutionary flashlight camera, and, at 21, a radial aerial camera.

He organized Fairchild Aerial Surveys and in 1924 carried through an air camera survey of New York, with a six-mile camera of his invention which was a pioneering exploit in that field.

By 1927, he had corralled several companies in the Fairchild Aviation corporation, had Igor Sigorsky building planes, and soon unveiled the first cabin monoplane in the United States.

In Harvard at the start of the war, he was rejected for military service because of physical shortcomings, later remedied in Arizona. Intent on war duty of some kind, he brought out an aerial camera for war use, completed just before the Armistice. He is typical of a number of free and adventurous self-starters in Uncle Sam's industrial and technical establishment who can be rounded up in case of trouble—a refutation of the totalitarian belief that only the goose-step can yield efficiency.

SEVERAL notable moving pictures of recent appearance have achieved portraits rather than caricatures. They also have shown a trend away from the star system and a new reliance on coherent form in the picture as a whole. Chastened by hard times, the films are taking thought and adding cubits to their stature. This bystander hears much talk of a coming moving picture renaissance—not in any splendiferous outbreak, but in a new infusion of creative intelligence into the industry, and a longer tether for the same.

In focus here is "Stagecoach," opening in New York with generous salutations by reviewers, who note that, with a no-star cast, a natural-born horse opera has been conjured into an excellent film by the deft artistry of John Ford, director, and Dudley Nichols, scenarist. They also scored, jointly, in "The Hurricane" and "The Informer." This film is commended for its further trend toward simplicity and artistic integrity, and away from overemphasis, the traditional occupational disease of Hollywood—on or off the lot.

Mr. Ford, born Sean O'Farna, in Portland, Maine, 44 years ago, thinks moving picture directors see too little of the world about them in proportion to what they record. Renoir had the same idea, insisting that, if an artist observed intently enough and long enough, his line would be almost self-recording. So Mr. Ford stokes his pipe, meditates, observes, studies types, speech, dress, mannerisms, behavior, regional and occupational traits, and achieves characterization.

His older brother, Francis, was ahead of him at Hollywood, as a serial star and director. John Ford tagged along and soon had his brother working for him. Before he was 25, he had directed many westerns. When he was 28, he directed "The Iron Horse." He is an autocrat on the lot, apt to throw the script away and improvise business and lines, working usually in a frayed sports jacket and old dungarees. He sidesteps Hollywood parties and passes much of his off-shift time on his small yacht. He is big and bulky, with thinning, sandy hair and glasses.

In fact, her admirers state that she can remove a gnat's whiskers off at 50 yards.

HEALTH

—By Dr. James W. Barton—

I HAVE spoken before of one of four brothers—the only one who reached the age of three score and ten. When asked why he had lived to 70 years of age and his three brothers had died in their early fifties, he replied that he guessed it was because he had always had a poor appetite. It was this inability to overload his stomach and give his heart, blood vessels, and kidneys too much work, that had preserved his life.

While it might be better for most of us to eat less food, a combination of a little more exercise with less food would prevent that all too common ailment—diabetes. It is only too true that despite all our knowledge, diabetes is increasing.

There is, however, one class of citizens in whom diabetes is not causing great havoc these days. This class is the physicians.

An interesting advertisement of one of the large insurance companies published in Hygeia is headed "Few Doctors Die of Diabetes."

Few doctors who have diabetes die of the disease. Why? Because they know how to keep it under control. Insulin is the greatest modern defense against death from diabetes. It is now so dependable that many doctors feel justified in promising adult diabetic patients almost as long a life with the disease as without it. With insulin, a diabetic child can grow, study and play with other children.

Most Frequent Among Middle Aged.

"Diabetes is most frequent among middle-aged overweight persons and in those in whose family there is a history of the disease. But many people predisposed to diabetes may escape it by keeping underweight through correct diet and exercise."

It is a sad fact but true that many cases with a mild form of diabetes, because it is mild, neglect to follow the diabetic diet and absolutely refuse to take insulin although the new form of insulin—protamine insulin—need only be injected once a day. A great many of them die needlessly. The patient with severe diabetes, on the other hand, because it is severe, follows his diet and takes insulin daily, thus living out a useful, happy life.

"The usual reward for obedience to the doctor's orders is added years of comfort and life. Doctors know this and that is why few of them die of diabetes."

"Faith Reaction" Will Aid Worried Patient

The recent death of Professor Pavlov, Russia, brings to the minds of physicians his famous experiments with dogs. It is known that the digestive juices—mouth, stomach, pancreas—all begin to flow at the sight of food in man, dogs or other mammals. At the very moment that the food was shown to the dogs a bell was rung so that the dogs learned that at the sound of the bell the food would be there for them to eat.

It was found that the sound of the bell so acted on the mind or brain of the dogs that their digestive juices began to flow without any food being in sight. The same thing happens to all of us as we think of some food we greatly like. This is known as brain appetite and in man lasts for 45 minutes after the sight, smell or even thought of food we like. This "extra" amount of digestive juices naturally aids digestion.

Similarly there are foods we do not like and the digestive juices are slow in appearing and may, in some cases, be less in amount than is needed to handle or digest the food properly. Foods we do not like but which we should eat usually get digested, but the process may take hours longer than it would if we liked them.

'Faith Reaction' Is Important. There are other reactions in our minds at the sight or memory of people, places or circumstances, and so we may be pleased, comforted, afraid, anxious or worried, hot or cold, according to how these people, places or circumstances have affected us in the past. It is the knowledge of what your family physician has done for you or yours in the past that gives what might be called a "faith" reaction when he comes to the bedside of the sick one. He removes the fear from your mind.

In Annals of Physical Therapy (treatment), Drs. Dail and Moor state:

"The physician who is able to banish fear and the fear of pain by a calm, assured, personality and by means of fear-dispelling explanations using simple language, is, other things being equal, the best physician. The patient wants to be reassured as to his health, both present and future."

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Shows How the Right Foods Can Help to Guard Against Springtime Debility

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THE gap between winter and spring has always been recognized as a trying period. Work seems a burden, tempers are short, appetites are poor, and little enjoyment is derived from meals.

Just as the daily tide of human vitality is at a low ebb during the hours before dawn, so does the annual tide of health reach a low ebb in the weeks that mark the end of winter and the official beginning of spring.

Bodily reserves have been gradually depleted until many children and adults suffer from lassitude and fatigue that cannot be dispelled merely by getting a good night's sleep.

The Best Spring Tonic

A generation ago it was believed that sulphur and molasses, and sassafras tea would overcome springtime debility. Homemakers dosed their families with a variety of so-called tonics, in a frantic effort to put color into pale cheeks, to soothe irritable nerves, to overcome that tired feeling.

We know today why their efforts met with little success. For we have learned what they could not know—that the best possible tonic is a carefully chosen diet rich in minerals and vitamins.

In those days, the science of nutrition was in its infancy. Vitamins were still undiscovered, and there was much that we had not learned about the role of the mineral salts in regulating body processes. No wonder mothers grasped at any mixture that promised to put roses back into the cheeks of their anemic-looking children.

How lucky we are today! For science has taught us what we should eat to help increase pep and vitality, and build rich red blood. And modern methods of transportation, refrigeration, food preservation and packaging, have made the necessary foods easily available. It merely remains for the homemaker to acquaint herself with the nutritional needs of her family.

Enriching the Blood

The blood is frequently impoverished by the time spring puts in an appearance. That is not surprising, for in many households the winter diet contains a preponderance of carbohydrates and fats, with far too few of the precious minerals and vitamins. It is often deficient in iron, the mineral that is required for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood, and in copper, which is required for the proper utilization of iron.

Inasmuch as 3 per cent of the blood cells are destroyed daily, it is obvious that unless adequate amounts of iron-rich foods are available to replace them, the number will soon become subnormal. Moreover, it has been found that many minor disturbances of the body cause a loss of iron, and that mild infections are a common cause of iron loss.

Thus, individuals who have been consuming a diet that is barely adequate in respect to iron may find themselves on the borderline of iron deficiency following an infection.

Iron-Rich Foods

Every homemaker, therefore, should make a determined effort to include plenty of iron-rich foods in her menus. These foods include liver, eggs, whole grain cereals, dried fruits, lean meats and green leafy vegetables.

Green vegetables cannot be emphasized too strongly, for they tend somewhat to be crowded out of the winter diet by the starchy and fatty foods which provide more heat and energy. And investigations with children have demonstrated that when vegetables and fruits are limited, there is a certain sluggishness of blood formation. Green vegetables not only supply iron in significant amounts, but their iron has been found to be especially well absorbed from the digestive tract.

Eat More Greens

Right now it is most important to provide large amounts of dandelion greens, spinach, kale, chard, watercress, lettuce and green cabbage. Serve a cooked green vegetable at one meal each day and a generous green salad at another.

Top the salad with fruit, if you want to add more minerals and vitamins. . . segments of orange or grapefruit, slices of banana or pineapple, or a mixture of apple and celery.

These fruits also supply important minerals and vitamins, and like the green vegetables, they leave an alkaline ash following digestion, and therefore help to maintain the acid-base balance of the body.

Plenty of Bulk Required

There is still another reason why green vegetables and fruits should be consumed in liberal quantities. These foods, along with whole grain cereals, provide an abundance of bulk or cellulose which is necessary to help promote regularity. They tend to offset the effects of a too highly concentrated winter diet. Very often that feeling of lassitude, mistakenly called spring fever, can be overcome by adding to the diet a larger proportion of these naturally laxative foods.

It's also desirable to take an adequate supply of fluids to help flush the system of waste. In addition to a generous amount of water, there should be a pint of milk daily for every adult, a quart for every child, and fruit juices in abundance. Orange juice, grapefruit juice, pineapple juice and tomato juice all supply vitamins A, B and C, and their refreshing fruit acids have a beneficial effect upon the appetite.

Exercise and Fresh Air

Two more splendid antidotes for the let-down feeling that comes at this season are moderate exercise and fresh air. The proper use of the muscular system is important to health and vitality, yet many people go through the winter taking far too little exercise.

In general, you will eat better, sleep better, feel more alert and at the same time more relaxed, if you make a point of getting out into the open every day.

Sleep, sunshine, fresh air and the right food—these are Nature's tonics!

Questions Answered

Mrs. F. M. T.—Vitamin B is sometimes called the nerve vitamin, because it has been found to be essential for the prevention of certain nervous disorders. It also helps to promote appetite, and aid digestion. Fruits and vegetables as a group contain important amounts of vitamin B. Other sources include yeast, milk, and whole grain cereals.

Rugged Individualist Attends College the Hard Way

To be "on his own" is the ambition of Horace Carson, University of North Dakota freshman from Monango, N. D. Carson, son of a farmer, refused to ask for NYA assistance when he started school at Grand Forks, and built his own eight by eight tarpaper-covered house rather than accept a room in Camp Depression, the University's free dormitory. It cost him $60 to build the house. Cooking his own meals, Carson's living expense are approximately $10 per month. He bought the lot, on an open prairie, for $5.

The Man Was Waiting And Did Just That

The magistrate was not exactly clear as to what the case was all about, so he tried to find out by questioning the prisoner. "What were you doing when you were arrested?" he asked.

"Waiting, sir."
"What for?"
"Money, sir."
"Who was to give you the money?"
"The man I was waiting for."
"What did he owe it to you for?"
"Waiting, sir."
The magistrate made a last effort to get a definite idea. "What do you do for a living?" he demanded.
"Waiting, sir."

Growth of Fishes

The growth of fishes probably decreases with age, but under favorable circumstances it never stops. If fish growth were shown on a graph, the weight curve would show a steady upward line, but the length curve would ascend rapidly at first, then almost straighten out. That is because as the fish grows large, the corresponding increase in girth tends to make the weight increase rather constant. - Detroit Free Press

"N," Middle Initial

In America "N" is probably more widely used than any other letter as a meaningless middle initial in personal names. Many having it are World War veterans. Their enlistment papers, says Collier's Weekly, had a space for a middle name and, they had none, "None" was inserted. Afterward None was contracted to N.

40 Years Ago—March 24, 1899
About eight years ago an effort was made to secure a flowing well at Whittemore, and while at work three small veins of copper ore were discovered. One at a depth of 80 feet, the second 90 feet and the third at 104 feet. This mineral has been found at other points in and near that village. Since that time many of the citizens consider that it exists there in paying quantities. An attempt is being made in interest capital sufficient to explore this territory for minerals.

Apologue, a Story
An apologue is a story or relation of fictitious events intended to convey some useful truth. It differs from a parable in that the latter is drawn from events that pass among mankind, whereas the apologue may be founded on supposed actions of brutes or inanimate things. Aesop's Fables furnish excellent examples of apologues.

SAFETY TALKS

How About Your Safety?

IF YOU know all the rules about wearing rubbers when it rains, red flannel undies in the winter, and if you don't sleep in a draft, you probably take pretty good care of your health. But how about your safety?

The National Safety council reports that from the age of three years to 21, accidents kill more persons (both sexes) than any disease; from the age of three years to 40, accidents kill more males than any disease.

Among males of all ages only heart disease claims more victims than accidents—301.6 of every 100,000 males die of heart disease each year while accidents kill 119.6. Among the ladies, six diseases rank above accidents as a cause of fatalities. They are heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, pneumonia and chronic nephritis.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly. Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40¢. All druggists.

Meaning of Poverty

Poverty does not mean the possession of little, but the nonpossession of much.—Antipater.

HOW DIFFERENT . . . from other CASTOR OILS

A revolutionary refining process now gives you a really tasteless castor oil—full strength, dependable, EASY TO TAKE—taste and odor are removed. Almost unbelievable, you will say when you take Kellogg's Perfected Tasteless Castor Oil. Use this newest and purest of all castor oils. Your family will take it readily because it is so different. Insist on Kellogg's Perfected—accept no so-called "tasteless" substitute. Sold at all druggists in 3 1/2 oz. refinery-sealed bottles, which insure freshness and purity—only 25¢ a bottle. That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are antiseptic to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. SYNOPSIS

Mary Loring and her father, Jim, an ineffectual attorney, meet a train which brings his wealthy sister-in-law, unmarried Linnie Cotswell and her friend, Lelia Ormsby, divorcee, for a Christmas visit. Waiting at home for them are Mary's mother, her younger sister, Ellen, Aunt Mamie, and Peter, the baby of the family. At the depot Dr. Christopher Cragg helps the guests with their luggage. Though secretly in love with Doctor Cragg, Mary has paid little attention to her beauty. In leaving, her Aunt Linnie urges Mary to visit her in New York, but Mary refuses. At work in a rental library, where she spends her spare time writing short stories, Mary is dismayed when her father tells her that he has been let out as railroad attorney, the fees of which were almost the sole support of his family. To earn money she decides to begin writing in earnest.

Mary placed her typewriter and paper on Mr. Hormel's oak desk at the rear of the shop, inserted a sheet of paper, and pounded out a title and her name: At Sea by Mary Loring. For half an hour, she sat there, cudgeling her brain, her vague thoughts for a plot jangling about in her mind along with the harassing and insurmountable questions: "What will we do, now that Dad's been let out? Where will money come from? How will Mother react when she hears?"

At last, her fingers fell upon the keys. She had an idea. A simple, straightforward idea, about a large family at loose ends financially. She wrote with eager haste, the homely, fluid thoughts of her story conceiving themselves in her fertile mind; passing magically through her fingers and on to the sheet of white paper before her. At last, it was finished—nearly five pages of neatly compiled thoughts, of swift, clearly defined action. She had done it! She had at last written a story that seemed, even to her own critical mind, to be worthy of editorial notice.

"Of course," she thought, "I'll have to read it over again and again, and revise it, and retype it, but, at least, I'm on my way."

It was not until the following night, just before six, that Christopher Cragg made his appearance at Hormel's shop. Mary had re-typed her manuscript, slipped the story into a long envelope, and directed "At Sea" to the magazine she prayed would accept it.

The front door opened, and Mary, a copy of Sabatini's most recent tale of adventure clasped mid-air in her hand, turned about.

"The late Doctor Cragg," he announced with a grin. "People will have babies in this town, and thus, my dear Mary, keep enterprising young doctors away from the best sellers. But thank God for it! A baby yesterday at four o'clock! A baby today at half past three!"

"Paying babies, Doctor Cragg?" Mary demanded in mock seriousness. "I do hope you haven't been wasting your time!"

Chris brought his eyebrows together in what was supposed to emulate an expression of severest reprimand. "Any baby is a paying proposition, my dear Miss Loring, for a guy that's just starting out in business. Experience, my child, is nine-tenths of the price, or something to that effect. However, if you must know, one of the arrivals into this vale of tears will bring me absolutely nothing in dollars and cents. The other—well, do you think fifty dollars is too much to charge for the safe, sane, and most—modernistic of deliveries?"

"Fifty dollars? Why, it's really pretty cheap, I think, providing the proud new parents possess the fifty.—I've saved your book for you, but not, I must admit, without considerable difficulty. It's hidden away on a shelf in the back of the shop. A bit of favoritism I'm showing, Doctor Cragg. Come on back and I'll root it out for you."

He followed her to the shadowy, rear room of the shop, noting, as he did so, the valiant way she held her shoulders, the slender lines of her young back. "It's up here," she said, pointing to the shelf that seemed to be the carry-all for everything not wanted for display, and, before he could say anything, she had ascended the ladder.

"I could have done that," he remonstrated. "Here, Mary, let me—" "No. You wouldn't be able to find it. I've hidden it behind a lot of trash. Back there, somewhere—" And, reaching beyond her distance, she lost her balance and toppled to the floor.

For an instant, she felt herself to be swirling in a great, black void. She couldn't remember where she was, or what had happened. Then, she felt Chris' arms about her, and heard his anxious voice.

"Mary! Mary, darling!" he was saying. "Are you hurt, dearest? Darling! Look at me! Say something!"

He had called her dearest and darling. He was clutching her close to his heart as if he would never let her go, as if—as if he loved her! And now, his lips were touching her closed eyelids.

"Mary!" he pleaded. "Can't you hear me, darling? Are you all right?"

Mary lifted a limp hand, and swiftly, fleetingly, touched his lean cheek. "I'm all—right," she murmured, thinking, "I'm happier than I have ever been in all my life. He loves me! Chris loves me!"

His lips were on hers now, bringing them back to joyous consciousness. "I love you, Mary," he was saying in quick, breathless words. "I've loved you from the very first moment I saw you, darling, that night last summer at the country club, but I shouldn't tell you so. My God, I shouldn't tell you!"

"Why not, Chris? Why be afraid to tell me?"

Silently, he lifted her to her feet, and gently, firmly, pushed her from him. "Because," he said, his voice clipped and tense, "I haven't the right. I—I'm going to be married next month—to a girl I've known all my life."

With a vague movement of her hand, Mary sought for something to hold to, found the corner of a table, and clung to it. Thank God, the gathering dusk prevented his seeing her face with any clarity. Thank God, she hadn't told him that she, too, cared—desperately. He would never know now. He would never know. She managed at last to speak, and even to her own ears, her voice sounded calm, almost careless. She said, "Good luck to you, Chris. I wish you the greatest happiness."

"Nothing's sensible for a pretty woman except a good marriage," Linnie decreed.

"Happiness!" the man repeated sardonically. "Happiness!" And then, "Well, I must be getting on, Mary. Are you sure you're all right? Are you positive nothing's hurt?"

"Nothing—but my heart," she thought; but aloud she said, "Quite positive, Chris. You aren't going without your book, are you?"

Chris was swinging away from her and towards the entrance door. "I don't want the damned book," he almost shouted, and disappeared into the darkened dreariness of Main Street.

"There goes my very life," Mary said to herself. "And now that that is over, there's nothing left for me to do but hitch my wagon to a star. It won't be the kind, though, that Aunt Linnie meant. It will be a career. I'll mail 'At Sea' tonight; and tonight, I'm going to tell the family that, after all, I shall accept Aunt Linnie's invitation to visit her in New York. I can write there, perhaps, really write. And I can't stay here! I simply couldn't bear to stay here, and meet the girl Christopher Cragg is going to marry."

Jim and Janet Loring were quite amenable when Mary informed them that night that she had decided to accept Aunt Linnie's invitation to visit her in New York. Janet, always eager to give her children every possible advantage, felt that a sojourn in her sister's comfortable apartment would be a great treat for Mary.

As for Jim, he thought, "Mary must have her chance, God bless her! A change will do her a world of good, and Linnie will be a fine influence. She's a wholesome woman, in spite of her sophistication, and she has both feet on the ground."

Mary could pay her own expenses, fortunately. There was the magnificent balance of ninety-seven dollars in her savings account—a balance that represented meticulous saving over a period of five years. With a feeling of daring, she went to the First National Bank the following morning and drew out every cent of it. This final gesture buoyed her up considerably.

The entire family went to the station to see her off. "Don't worry too much, Dad dear," she whispered to her father as he held her in his loving farewell embrace. He looked so gaunt, standing there on the wind-swept platform, waiting for the train to pull in, so sort-of-hunted. Mary had kissed him first; then, with terror in her heart at his appearance, returned to him, after bidding the others good-by, to give him one last hug. She thought for a mad instant of panic, "I don't believe I'll ever see him again. Oh, God help him. Help us all!"

Lelia met her at the Grand Central Station, a redcap already in tow, and guided her dexterously through a milling crowd that had gathered to pay homage to Robert Taylor, boarding a nearby train for Chicago.

"We'll find a taxi," Lelia said, putting an arm through Mary's, "as soon as we plow through these movie fans who are doing their best to get a lock of that poor man's hair. Aunt Linnie sent me down to meet you, and to inform you, post-haste, that she is simply enchanted over your change of heart about visiting her. She's attending a guild meeting at Saint Thomas' this afternoon, but she'll be home by the time we get there."

Aunt Linnie, true to Lelia's promise, was at home when the two girls arrived at the smart Park Avenue apartment house. Rising quickly from her deep, chintz-covered chair before the fireplace, she came the length of the room to welcome Mary with outstretched arms.

"Darling!" she cried. "I'm so glad, so very glad, that you decided to come. Did Lelia tell you that she's staying with me, too?"

Mary laughed. "Poor Lelia didn't have a chance to tell me anything," she replied. "I was so busy exclaiming about the sights and lights and sounds and smells!"

"And you haven't seen anything yet. Oh, Mary, you'll adore New York! Well, about Lelia here, she's subtle her own apartment for a few months, contemplating, as is her habit, a dash down South later on, so I prevailed upon her to come and stay with me in the meantime, and thus brighten a few moments of the declining years of my life."

"And, at the same time, save me a large number of precious dollars on hotel bills!" Lelia added with a grin, removing her fur turban, and brushing her hair back from her forehead. "Come on, Mary, I'll show you our room, and you can 'rest' your hat and coat, as Addie says."

"Addie?"

"Aunt Linnie's very pretty Mulatto maid, counselor, bodyguard and friend."

"She's been with me for ten years," Aunt Linnie added, "and she's a treasure. Ring for her right this minute, Lelia. We'll have some tea. I know Mary's tired from her journey, and needs something to brace her up. We don't dine till eight."

"Eight?" Mary repeated automatically.

"Darling, you're in a dream," said Linnie.

"I feel as if I were, Aunt Linnie," Mary admitted. "I've never before seen a room to compare with this! Or such loads of flowers! Or so many photographs of fascinating-looking people!"

"Well, you're going to meet some of those intriguing creatures Sunday. I'm giving a party to introduce you to my friends, and," she added dryly, "I hope you'll find them just as fetching as the camera has made them, but I doubt it."

Mary placed a hand on Linnie's shoulder. "Oh, but you mustn't give parties for me, Aunt Linnie. I'm here just to see you, and to work."

"To work! What doing, for heaven's sake?"

"Writing, Aunt Linnie," Mary returned, her dark eyes wide and serious. "I want to be an author."

Aunt Linnie uttered a little shriek. "Heaven help us! An author! Darling, you're far too pretty to spend your time messing around with words. I've never met a woman writer yet who didn't look like the witch of Endor! Besides, the Cotswells have never been noted for their brains. It's been all they could do to write a fairly decent letter."

"Don't discourage the child, Linnie!" admonished Lelia. "There's an exception to every rule. I think it's grand that Mary wants to try her hand at something sensible."

"Nothing's sensible for a pretty woman except a good marriage," Linnie firmly decreed. "I know—because I've never been either beautiful or married!"

CHAPTER IV

The days which preceded Linnie Cotswell's cocktail party were like a dream to Mary Loring—beautiful, enchanting, unreal, yet bedeviled by the ever-present worry over home conditions in Hawkinsville, beset at all times with thought of Christopher Cragg. Aunt Linnie dragged her triumphantly through one mad orgy of shopping after another, on to lunch at the Marguery or Pierre's; thence to a first showing at Knoedler's or Harlow's; then on to someone's apartment for tea; finally back home for a quick bath and change to evening clothes, and dinner at the Plaza, or the Waldorf.

Swank-looking boxes of all sizes, shapes and colors were daily being delivered to her from the shops, and although she reveled in the luxuries which Aunt Linnie insisted on presenting to her, her enjoyment was decidedly tempered by the thought: "The money spent on these frivolities would just about support Mother and Petey and Dad for a month."

"I suppose I do look well enough," she conceded to the person in the mirror, "but what difference does it make? Chris is marrying someone else—and this thing called beauty doesn't get you to first base in a literary career."

It was at this moment that Lelia, taking a hasty shower in the adjoining bathroom, called to her, "Mary! I say, Mary! Did you find the letters that came for you in the afternoon mail?"

Mary, applying a dash of color to her lips, glanced towards the door which Lelia had opened a fraction of an inch in order to be heard above the noise of the shower. "No, I didn't, Lelia. Where are they? Is there anything from home?"

"You'll find them on the bedside table, propped against the lamp. I believe there was one from Hawkinsville. Sorry I forgot to tell you sooner."

Mary's lipstick fell to the dressing table, and with a mad dash, she made for the table between the twin beds. Two letters reclined intriguingly against the lamp. The top one, she could tell at a glance, was from Ellen. Dear Ellen! Darling Ellen! She hungrily tore open the envelope and began to read Ellen's cramped, school-girl scrawl; then, having got just to the end of "Darling Mary, we do miss you so," her eyes wandered to the other letter that awaited her. It was a long, legal-looking affair; her address was typed; and in the upper left-hand corner was printed those magic words: The National Weekly.

Placing the fluttering pages of Ellen's letter on the bed, she gazed, as if fascinated, at the impressive, businesslike envelope staring at her from beneath the lamp's soft glow.

Early American Silversmiths Served Their Country or Their Communities

Many early American silversmiths, it is well known, took prominent parts in the public affairs of their times and served their country or their communities ably and well, writes Stephen Decatur in the American Collector. In this connection, of course, the name of Col. Paul Revere, of Boston, comes first to mind.

Although New York cannot boast of having produced a silversmith of corresponding fame, nevertheless in the person of Ephraim Brasher it possessed a member of the craft who was able, at a critical time, to render services to his fellow citizens which, if not spectacular, were of almost inestimable value.

With the close of the Revolutionary war and the recognition of the independence of the United States, business in the new nation was at a standstill. As it attempted to revive, an acute shortage of hard money developed which seriously hampered the efforts of the merchants. Consequently gold and silver coins became profitable to import. Every vessel making a successful voyage to a foreign port brought back foreign coinage and this money immediately passed into circulation.

Such a heterogeneous currency offered a great opportunity to counterfeiters. By 1786 the country was flooded with bogus coins. At the time Ep Brasher was a leading silversmith and jeweler of New York. Fortunately, he was also an expert on precious metals and this knowledge enabled him to pass on the genuineness of coins.

He soon conceived the idea of stamping each good piece which passed through his hands with a punch he used for the silver of his manufacture. This mark was E. B. in a rectangle. Brasher's reputation for probity was unquestioned; it was immediately recognized that his initials on a gold or silver coin were a guarantee of its purity.

PETER INTERPRETS CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS AND DEATH

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 1:17-23; 2:20-25. GOLDEN TEXT—For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit.—I Peter 3:18.

A witness is one who knows by personal experience about that concerning which he testifies. Certainly no one could speak with more propriety or assurance concerning the sufferings and death of Christ than Peter. As one of the inner circle, he, with James and John, was with Jesus on almost every important occasion. He was on the Mount of Transfiguration, and with the Lord in the garden of Gethsemane. He witnessed His trial and in all probability His crucifixion. He was first at the empty tomb. Furthermore, he could speak as one who had in a moment of weakness denied the Lord and who had come by way of doubt and despair back to his faith in the Saviour. It is not only appropriate that we should study Peter's words on this subject but it is also the greatest possible theme with which to close our three-month study of the life and work of Peter. For all that he was and all that he did, can be explained only by his faith in a redeeming Christ.

I. Christ—the Saviour (I Pet. 1:17-23).

It is highly important that we meet the flood of smoothly phrased recognition of our Christ as the Master which at the same time denies Him as dying Redeemer. Hence we stress

1. A redemption by blood (vv. 17-20). This is a subject that all those who know God and "call on him as Father" (v. 17) approach in that reverential attitude which we call the "fear of God," which is not a cringing fear but a loving reverence. In that spirit we should proclaim that apart from the shedding of Christ's blood there can be no remission of sin. Money and other material things can only purchase other material and corruptible things. Our redemption could be bought only by the precious blood of the sinless, divine, and eternal Son of God, Jesus Christ (vv. 19, 20).

2. A life of faith (vv. 21-23). The faith and hope of the Christian are "in God." We do not trust in the arm of flesh. Our assurance is not in man or his devices. The gathering of riches, the increase of armaments, the acquisition of new territory by fair means or foul—let foolish men who know not God rejoice in such assurances of safety, but our faith is in God.

This life of faith is not an inactive thing, a settling back into a comfortable but effortless appreciation of God's great gift. It leads to obedience to the truth; fervent, unfeigned love of the brethren; purity of life (v. 22). Being born again means living in newness of life in Christ.

II. Christ—the Example (I Pet. 2:20-25).

Christ is not our example in the sense that we are to attain to eternal life and joy by an imitation of His life. That would be manifestly impossible, for we would have to begin where He began—He was without sin. But we "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." We need a Saviour, not an example, as far as redemption is concerned. Having been saved by faith in His blood, we are ready to look upon Him as our example.

1. Our suffering (vv. 20, 21). One of the serious problems of life is suffering, and as we suggested last week, being a Christian does not grant us any immunity. If we suffer because of our own sin, we must expect to bear the result patiently; but even above that, when we find ourselves suffering for well-doing, we are to glorify God by bearing it patiently for Christ's sake. Nothing is a stronger testimony for Christ than a true Christian spirit in time of trial and sorrow.

2. The suffering of Christ (vv. 21-25). Our minds turn to Isaiah 53 and Psalm 22, as well as to the Gospel narratives, as we think of our Lord's suffering. As we read the words, "Christ . . . suffered for you," we join the saintly expositor of the Word who fell upon his face sobbing, "For me, for me, He bore it all for me." How can anyone reject Him? How can you, unsaved reader of these lines, any longer turn this loving Saviour away?

These are trying days for the souls of men. In many parts of the world Christians are tasting the bitter cup of persecution. The day may come when we must meet the same fate, and even now we know what it means to bear the scorn of unbelievers. Shall we become fearful or embittered in our hearts? No, "consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin" (Heb. 12:3, 4). But He did! Wonderful Saviour!

TIPS to Gardeners

DON'T put an added burden on your flowers by asking them to grow in conditions to which they are not suited. Flowers are like races of humans. Some thrive in warm, moist climates. Others, through the centuries, have become accustomed to intensive cold.

Certain flowers, for instance, may be grown successfully in comparatively cool, semi-shaded locations. If you have such spots in your yard, don't plant your zinnias or petunias there.

Any of the following will prove more satisfactory, according to Harry A. Joy, flower expert: Annuals—balsam, clarkia, coleus, nasturtium, pansy, calendula and vinca; perennials—English daisy, campanula, columbine, myosotis, sweet William and viola.

If you live in drouthy sections or if your flower beds are on well-drained soil in full sun, try the following: Annuals—abronia, ageratum, alyssum procumbens, arctotis, calliopsis, candytuft, cosmos, four o'clock, lupin texensis, petunia, portulaca, sunflower, verbena, and zinnia; perennials—coreopsis and hollyhock.

Knit Oval Rag Rug In Various Colors

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
Here is a sketch of another interesting rug. Be sure to order the leaflet to add to your collection of rug ideas.
Cut or tear the rags 3/4 inch wide and use knitting needles 3/8 inch in diameter. Knit the oval center first. Cast on four stitches and increase one at the end of each row until the depth of the work is 4-inches, then knit evenly for 10-inches. Bind off one stitch at the end of each row until you have four stitches left. Bind these off. The diagram gives the dimensions and colors for the bands that are sewn to this center oval. Cast on seven stitches to start each band. For the outside band, start with color 3. Knit 7-inches, then cut the fabric strip and sew color 4 to it. Continue. Use a large crochet hook and fabric strips to crochet around the oval and the outside edges of the bands. Sew together with double carpet thread.

Note: Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, copy of the new Rag Rug Leaflet will be included free. Those who have both books may secure leaflet for 6 cents in postage. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. HIGH SCHOOL.
The local contest in declamation and oratory was held Friday, March 17. The winners in these contests Marion Musolf in declamation and Dorothy Blust in oratory. These people will represent Tawas City high school at the sub-district contest to be held at the Lincoln high school.

The other declaimers contending in this contest were Irene Cuniff, Harold Ross and Julius Musolf. The orators were Mary Cuniff and Richard Zollweg.

Our judges for the local contest were Supt. Creaser, Mrs. William Leslie, both of East Tawas, and Supt. Laughlin, of Alabaster.

We wish to thank these judges and those who judged at the preliminary contests in declamation and oratory. The judges for the preliminary contests in declamation were Mrs. Ira Horton, Mrs. John Campbell and Mrs. James Mark. For the contest in oratory Mrs. Allie Bigelow, Mrs. George Leslie and Miss Margaret Worden. We appreciate the services of all these people who kindly consented to judge at these contests.

The educators of Michigan feel that education has lost a real friend by the death of Governor Frank Fitzgerald. In his opening address to the legislature, he recommended that the state appropriate the sum of $45,000,000 for each of the next two fiscal years as aid for schools, and that this sum be so appropriated that it would be impossible for any person to use any portion of it for any other purpose. A bill to this effect has now been introduced into the legislature.

The eleventh grade American history class is now studying that very exciting free silver campaign between William McKinley and William Jennings Bryan in 1896. Probably the blood of many patrons of the district will yet tingle at the mention of the above time. Historians assert that Bryan traveled over eighteen thousand miles and spoke to over five million people. This is estimated to be the greatest number that ever listened to a human voice before the invention of the radio. The class is reading the famous speech, "The Cross of Gold," which was given that summer at the Democratic convention in Chicago by Bryan. It was this speech which undoubtedly caused his nomination for the presidency by the above convention.

School will be closed Friday of this week because of the combined institute of four counties which will be held at West Branch.

MUSIC.
Plan to be at the Band Frolic on April 4 and enjoy a different type of entertainment. Meet Professor Fizz and try to outguess him. Hear the band play modern tunes. See with your own eyes the band leader only seven years old; see Mary and her Little Lamb. If you help us we can help you by having a better band representing your city.

The people in the newly organized instrumental classes have received their instruments, and we plan to start our classes immediately. They are the future leaders of our band. The Girls Glee Club expects to go to Alpena for a music festival in May. They are doing fine work and they should be the outstanding club at this festival. We are planning a very striking costume for them to wear, and very inexpensive.

See you at the Band Frolic.
SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES.
The seventh and eighth grades are making posters to advertise the Band Frolic.

The eighth grade is taking Michigan history this semester. Everyone agrees that it is the most interesting subject they have studied in a long time.

The seventh grade is studying interest in arithmetic, and the eighth grade is working hard finding the area and circumference of circles.

PRIMARY.
Quite a number of pupils were absent Monday because of illness, but five were back at school Tuesday.

Donald Lansky visited our room Monday afternoon.

We are sorry that Miss Hall is sick this week.

ciules of good business as applied and taught in the commercial course of our schools.

Mr. Nordman, music teacher, was the second speaker. He stated that music provides the student not only with recreation but in it he can find something worth while that he can carry with him through life. He said it gives the student a purpose in his spare time, something definite he can do in his spare time. He stressed the importance of teaching the pupil to read notes. He stressed the great need of feeding the band. He related several true life stories that illustrated the value of music in helping young people to go straight.

Mrs. Allen, grammar room teacher, was the third speaker. She had for her subject the "Activity Program" which she interpreted as putting into practice skills and knowledge the child has secured in the text books. She cited the following as things to be gained from the activity program:

1. Thinking a thing through.
2. Working independently and cooperatively.
3. Taking initiative.
4. Developing individual talents.

Mrs. Allen urged that a child be taught to finish his job. She stressed that a child should be allowed to express himself in other ways than through his lesson. Every subject, she said, offers opportunities for activities. To develop ideas, attitudes and good habits is the aim of such a program. She closed with the admonition that activities should not be suppressed by the teacher.

Miss Aittama, English teacher, was the fourth speaker. She discussed briefly the advantages and disadvantages of objective tests as compared with the essay type.

She gave an illustration of teaching principles of English by means of a class newspaper containing, page for household hints, page for gardening, sports page, comic strip, fashion sheet, etc. From such project, she said, the student gains enjoyment as well as practical knowledge along with mechanics of English.

Miss Hall, primary teacher, was the fifth and last speaker of the jury. She had for her subject "Manuscript Writing." Following is content of her argument:

This writing affords easy forms such as circles, boxes, sticks. Writing not joined affords better rest conditions for the little child's muscles. In a few weeks one can read manuscript writing of little children. The child can associate his writing with reading so that he is not easily confused. Manuscript writing helps in spelling and makes a good foundation for later writing. It fulfills its purpose at the end of the second year. It takes a child of average ability only three or four weeks to change to new form. The advantages derived therefrom make up for extra time required to change over. Manuscript writing is attractive. It is used in advertisements to catch the eye. Its form is appealing. Children like to feel that their form of writing is also used by grown-ups.

A fine discussion followed. It is deeply regretted that more parents were not in attendance. For after all, such type program promotes a real function of P.-T. A., namely, the dis-
