TAWAS CITY PERCH FESTIVAL, APRIL 29 - 30

TAWAS CITY

COMMITTEES HAVE PLANS COMPLETED

Coronation Ceremony And Ball Saturday Evening

H. J. Keiser, general chairman of the Tawas City Perch Festival, announced today that plans are nearly complete for the big two-day event which will be held here Saturday and Sunday, April 29 and 30. Only a few of the minor details remain to be ironed out.

A Coronation Ball and the ceremony of crowning of the Festival Queen, surrounded by her court, will be held Saturday evening at the Edgewater Inn Pavilion. The Queen will be crowned by Ron Gamble, popular WJR announcer. He will be assisted by Bob Clark of WJR. The coronation event will be broadcast over WBCM, Bay City. Music for the ball will be furnished by Applin's Rhythm Ringers. A crown for the Queen, secured through the J. L. Hudson Company, is being specially made in New York.

Candidates in the contest for Queen, now being selected by patrons of the Rivola theatre, are Norma Jean Musolf, Grace Hill, Donna Fay Groff, Lydia Moore, Hazel Aernan, Lois Pfeiffer, Lorene Frank and Leona Ma'enfant.

Several bands and a large number of floats have been entered for the parade Sunday afternoon, said Albert Buch, chairman of the parade committee, today. The line of march will be from the Hays-Leslie Ford Sales building on Lake street to Matthew street. In addition to floats prepared by various business places of the city, there will be a number from surrounding communities. During the past years the parades were exceptionally fine and it is planned to make this year's parade an outstanding event.

In addition to the hotels and restaurants, elaborate plans are being made by the O. E. S. of this city to care for the hungry visitors to the Perch Festival Saturday and Sunday. Fish dinners will be a special attraction at all places.

In addition to the regular events of the Festival, the Lee United Shows will furnish a merry-go-round, rides and carnival concessions during Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The carnival will be located on Whittemore street.

According to old timers perch fishing in the river ought to be at its best during the coming Perch Festival. Usually the run has started by this time in April, but the ice and cold weather have held the fish in the bay, however a few days of warm weather will bring them up the river. Among those who are hoping for this is Ron Gamble, who plans to spend all of his time here, while not crowning the queen, fishing for perch.

Kane Garage Leased To Humphrey and Goupil

Stanley Humphrey and Earl Goupil have leased the Kane garage and automobile sales rooms from the Kane estate and have taken possession of them this week. Mr. Humphrey said that they will handle the Chevrolet sales and service in this city.

The new firm will be open for business about May 1. Extensive repairs are being made to the building and the classrooms and office are being redecorated. The garage will be modernly equipped with tools to handle all makes of cars.

Both young men are well known throughout the county and their many friends wish them success.

EAST TAWAS BUSINESSMAN PASSES AWAY

Charles Curry Succumbs To Long Illness Wednesday

Charles Curry, prominent businessman of East Tawas and highly esteemed citizen of Iosco county, died Wednesday at the Bay City General Hospital. Mr. Curry had been ill for the past four months. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, at two o'clock, from the residence, Rev. S. A. Crey of the Methodist Episcopal Church will officiate. Burial will be in the Greenwood cemetery.

The deceased was born January 22, 1866, at Lachute, Canada, and had been a resident of East Tawas for more than 50 years. During his life here he had been active in numerous business enterprises, including the livery business and dealer in ice and coal. For 50 years he had been one of the most extensive operators in the ice business on Tawas Bay.

Mr. Curry had taken an active interest in politics and had served as sheriff of Iosco county for two terms, from 1905 to 1907. The deceased was a member of Baldwin Lodge, I. O. O. F. and the East Tawas club.

The deceased is survived by the widow and one sister, Mrs. L. Schrand of Lansing.

Beginning Monday, April 24, a tournament will be held at the Shuman Recreation Hall. It will run three weeks and played under the two-thirds handicap. Any bowler who has an average is eligible to enter. Five-man teams, doubles and singles will be rolled.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock a Pav City girls team will bowl Marj Lickfelt's team, and the Pinebenders of Consumers Power league of Bay City will bowl Reta's Cafe of East Tawas.

The Girl's league ended the league season on Wednesday evening. The high individual single game score was rolled by Sophie Szumski with a mark of 182. Second high was 181 bowled by Helen Ketterer. Bernice Klumb had high score in Wednesday evening's games with a mark of 175.

Rollin Gains 7 Votes in Commissioner Recount

The election of Russell Rollin as school commissioner with a majority of eight votes against Miss Margaret E. Worden was confirmed by the recount held here yesterday and today. Four precincts, Osceola, Grant, Plainfield and Burleigh, were recounted and Rollin gained seven votes. The change in the count was principally due to inspectors failing to initial ballots.

4-H CLUB ACHIEVEMENT DAY PROGRAM

300 Attend Celebration Held Friday at East Tawas

The annual 4-H Club Achievement Day for Iosco county 4-Hers was held at the Community building in East Tawas Friday, April 14.

The celebration, which was attended by some 300 club members, parents, and interested friends, marked the completion of another year for those members who were enrolled in Clothing, Handicraft, Hot Lunch and Deer Yard Study projects during the past few months.

Fifty young ladies completed their clothing projects, 67 handicraft members, 21 hot lunch people and 45 other members completed their required work in the new conservation project known as Deer Yard Study. The clubs which completed their work and made exhibits last Friday came from 14 different communities of Iosco county and were made possible through the efforts of local leaders within those communities. The leaders are: Miss Doris Simmons and C. H. Nickel of Alabaster; Russell Mead, of Osceola; Miss Elsie Mueller, of Wilber; Miss Edna Bischoff, of Badwin; Mrs. Ernestine Kenkie, of Laidlawville; Miss Evelyn Ketterer, of Vine; Mrs. Nina Moore, of Watt; Mrs. J. H. Johnson and Edna Byce, of Hale; Mrs. Chas. Dorsey, of Londo; Mrs. Helen Sturvant, of Cottage; Miss Ruth Katterman, of National City; Miss Sarah Warren, of Turtle; Mrs. Jennie Valley and Howard Switzer, of Whittemore.

The day's program consisted of a free show from 10 to 12 a. m. at the Family theatre in East Tawas. During the afternoon the East Tawas High School Band entertained with their fine musical selections and Mr. Trestrail led the entire group in community singing. Mrs. Ernestine Renkie, President of the Iosco county 4-H Club Council, introduced Miss Margaret E. Worden, who acted as chairman of the afternoon program. Miss Alice Hertzler, Home Extension Agent, explained the style review in which nearly 60 4-H Clothing Club girls took part. State Club Leaders A. G. Ketterman and Miss Beatrice Boyle, who judged the exhibits during the morning, introduced the club

Tawas Team Will Hold First Practice Sunday

Weather permitting the Tawas City baseball team will hold its first practice session of the season, Sunday, April 23. Anyone desiring a tryout with the team is urged to round-up his glove and be at the diamond at 1:30 p. m. The prospects of the team look good for this season, and in order to give the newcomers a chance and to pick the required list which must be handed in before the season opens on May 14, they should have several practices so that no player prospect will be overlooked. A short meeting will be held immediately following the practice.

Alexander Bell Joins Film Great

Another immortal character joined the motion picture gallery of the great when Harry P. Zanuck produced "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" which will be shown, Sunday Monday and Tuesday, April 23, 24 and 25, at the Family theatre.

Don Ameche (as Bell), Loretta Young and Henry Fonda head a stellar cast in the Cosmopolitan production for 20th Century-Fox.

The screen play by Lamar Trotti, directed by Irving Cummings, brings out of the past of America a drama of accomplishment and stirring romance that symbolizes American tradition. Bell's is a story that only could happen here—of a young dreamer who struggled against powerful odds, loved and achieved. Simple, human and inspiring, "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" is a magnificent motion picture tribute to his genius and to a woman's devotion.

Axis Adopts 'Confusion' Plan To Force More Concessions

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Europe

Almost forgotten by war-mad Europe this month has been little Albania, whose conquest by Italy really started the cauldron boiling. While Benito Mussolini quietly made the tiny Balkan state part of King Victor Emmanuel's monarchy, Europe became a frantic checkerboard of moves and counter-moves in which harried France and Britain seemed badly outmaneuvered. Biggest news came from the Balkans, where democracies concentrated on Grecian friendship while Premier John Metaxas quavered under threats of Axis invasion if he continued hobnobbing with Britain. Finally, al-

from Rhodes and other islands of the Dodecanese group, Italy could strike at either Greece or Turkey. Northeast Europe, Poland, fearful of invasion yet jealous of her independence, risks German invasion from north and west as the price for a military pact with Britain. Also to the north are Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, tools of the Reich and potential points of invasion into Poland. Likely sources of trouble here are Danzig, which seeks annexation by Germany, and the Polish corridor, where Germany wants to build a highway from its "mainland" to isolated East Prussia.

Western Europe, Mysterious German troop movements have brought reinforcements on both sides of Belgian, Swiss, Dutch and Danish frontiers, any of which might be crossed in a brisk German coup. Less likely is a strike against France, which would precipitate a general war. Result: Though forced by public opinion to stiffen, Mr. Chamberlain's government still hopes to woo Italy from the Axis and make peace by appeasement. Mr. Chamberlain will not declare war, which is the only alternative to a stronger foreign policy if the government would remain in power. This failing, parliament has become so hostile that Anthony Eden, ex-foreign minister, is an excellent bet to succeed Mr. Chamberlain when the next crisis arrives.

Domestic

In New York marine underwriters boosted war risk insurance. The treasury announced $365,436,000 in gold fled to the U. S. in March, while $49,000,000 more arrived in two mid-April days alone. At Rome, Mussolini Mouthpiece Virginio Gayda wrote in a caustic editorial for his Giornale d'Italia: "The United States should heed timely advice before those European nations (Italy and Germany) which have been chosen as targets by America, are forced to occupy themselves in the same spirit with American internal affairs." Back in Washington from Warm Springs, where he had promised to return next fall "if we don't have a war," President Roosevelt heard two cabinet officers (Hull and Morgenthau) warn that a European war is likely unless effective curbs are placed on Nazi-Fascist threats to the world economic structure. What his seemingly casual remark intended, the President later explained was that "we" meant not though British Prime Minister Chamberlain offered a weak "guarantee" of protection to Greece and Italy, Premier Metaxas took pains to proclaim joyfully that Italy promised to respect the Greek frontier. This, he said, symbolized a "new period of Italian-Greek relations," but it was merely symbolic of how lesser European states, one by one, are bowing to the Axis rather than accept doubtful "protection" from France and Britain.

GREECE'S METAXAS

Britain was nice, Italy even nicer.

By mid-April the post-Albanian crisis had subsided but another was plainly in the offing. Newly strengthened, Italy and Germany are expected to jab soon at any of 20 possible points, confusing the democracies so badly that all dictator demands will be granted. Among possible attack points:

Spain. The civil war is over but Italian troops are still arriving in defiance of the Italo-British Mediterranean pact. The excuse is a "victory parade" on May 2, but shrewd old Field Marshal Henri Petain, whom France named its first envoy to Burgos, has returned in disgust to explain that he was snubbed and treated insolently, and that General Franco is a tool for the Axis. If this is true, Italy or Germany could attack France's southern border, British Gibraltar or French Algeria from bases in Spain.

Mediterranean. Gaining nothing by howling for French Tunisia in northern Africa, Italy has changed her tactics, reverting to silence. But several German troop trains have passed through Italy bound for Italian Libya, potential operations base for a Tunisian campaign.

Balkans. Italo-German thrusts converge here, focused on Rumania, Greece and Turkey. Docile tools of the Reich, Hungary and Bulgaria have massed troops on Rumania's border, threatening to strike if King Carol gets too friendly with Britain. Yugoslavia is neutralized, surrounded by Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania. From the latter point, and

Taxation

Time was when the ambitious U. S. mother wanted her son to be a banker. But nowadays the hand that counts money keeps far less of it. Today's ambitious mother should tutor her son (or daughter) to enter the motion picture industry. At Washington, the house ways and means committee received its annual list of top flight U. S. wage earners and their salaries for 1937, disclosing that Movie Magnate Louis B. Mayer led the pack with $1,296,503 ($1,161,753 as production executive for Loew's, Inc., $134,750 as vice president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer). Second place went to Loew President J. Robert Rubin, $651,123; third, Publisher William Randolph Hearst, $500,000; fourth, Loew's N. M. Schenck, $489,602.

Louis B. Mayer

Of 63 salaries topping $200,000, an even 40 were reported by movie workers. Highest paid cinema star: Greta Garbo, $472,499. Highest paid radio star: Maj. Edward Bowes, $427,817. Highest paid industrialist: International Business Machines' Pres. Thomas J. Watson, $419,398.

One consolation for bread-and-butter workers is that the more a man makes, the more he pays the government. Sample: More than $800,000 of Louis Mayer's $1,296,503 probably went out in federal taxes. On net incomes of $50,000, the government gets 17.7 per cent, or $8,869; on $1,000,000 it gets 67.9 per cent, or $679,044. Often heaped atop this levy is a state income tax, like New York's, which ranges from 2 per cent of the first $1,000 taxable income to 7 per cent of all taxable income over $9,000.

Pan America

In late March Argentine officials reputedly discovered that Nazi agents were undermining their country. Papers unexpectedly printed a facsimile of the letter Germany's Buenos Aires embassy had written to the Berlin foreign office, saying: "We are able to annex Patagonia." Hardly willing to surrender a rich, unworked section comprising one-third of Argentina's territory, police dug for dirt, soon discovering a well-organized chain of Nazi centers directing the work of German agents throughout the nation. Alfredo Muller, chief agent, was arrested and charged with plotting against the state's security. More raids inland disclosed more Nazi communities, and after three weeks' probing it became evident Germany had probably committed a blundering tactical mistake.

Reasoning: Alone among the larger South American nations, Argentina has favored German barter commerce. The rest of Other America has eschewed it, knowing that Nazi political and military agents work hand in hand with Nazi tradesmen. Having discovered a Nazi threat to its security, Argentina is already clamping down on German imports, ready to join her neighbors in a solidarity declaration. Thus the Patagonian incident fits perfectly with President Roosevelt's often-experienced dreams of Pan-American unity.

Meanwhile, several thousand miles away, Ecuador is worrying over the chance that Germany may seize the strategic Galapagos islands, which lie 1,000 miles southwest of Panama, and which California's Rep. Edward V. Izak recently wanted the U. S. to purchase as a naval base.

Aviation

Some 4,100 miles southwest of San Francisco and 3,250 miles northeast of Australia, just south of the equator, are Canton and Enderbury islands, the former named for a Massachusetts whaler wrecked there in 1854. Both islands were officially unclaimed until March, 1938, when President Roosevelt saw them as a vital link in U. S. defense and a logical base for trans-Pacific aviation. When Great Britain disputed the claim it was announced last August that both countries would use the islands for commercial aviation, but not until recently was a formal treaty signed. Its 50-year provisions: U. S. and British administrators will reside there, exercising powers to be determined by consultation; American interests will build an airport, to be used by British aircraft in return for a fee.

Pacific aviation is boomed by the pact, for Canton and Enderbury lie only 1,850 miles from Hawaii, directly on the route a ship would take to Sydney, Australia. Canton boasts a quiet lagoon nine miles long and three miles wide, ideal for planes.

But aviation to the contrary, many a congressman was dubious when asked to ratify the treaty. Reason: If Britain were involved in war, an attack on British property in the Pacific might force the U. S. to defend the islands, thereby getting its own feet in the international puddle.

Miscellany

At Memphis, Tenn., juvenile court authorities played host to a 16-year-old Mississippi farm girl who said she (1) had never seen an electric light; (2) had never talked over a telephone; (3) didn't know Franklin Roosevelt was President; (4) had never eaten an ice cream cone; (5) had never seen a motion picture; (6) had never been higher than the second floor of a building and never heard of an elevator.

Migraine Held Direct Result Of Tenseness

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

I WRITE frequently about migraine — one-sided headache — because thousands suffer with it and the only relief usually obtained is by going to bed for two or three days to a week, by which time the attack passes. As the cause has been believed to be due to overwork — mental and physical — rest would thus seem to be the logical treatment.

Perhaps the most efficient treatment that has been discovered is that of ergotamine tartrate, full details of which were given by Dr. Mary O'Sullivan some months ago in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The ergotamine tartrate is given by a physician or may be taken in tablet form by mouth. Even when taken by mouth, however, the size of the dose should be as ordered by the physician, the dose usually depending upon the severity of the attacks. This drug is given different names by the different drug manufacturers, but druggists know these names.

Physicians have found that migraine occurs in families and in individuals who work hard or do things in the hard or "tense" way.

Migraine Causes. Some further information on migraine is given by Dr. W. H. Riley, Battle Creek, in the Michigan State Medical Society Journal, who, among other points, mentions the following:

1. Among the exciting causes of migraine are depressive emotions such as those associated with worry, anxiety, fear, anger, fatigue, exhaustion, loss of sleep, eyestrain, excessive use of eyes, using the eyes in a bright light.

2. Being sensitive to certain foods — eggs, fat rich foods, milk, cream, ice cream, wheat and others.

3. Increased alkalinity of the blood. These individuals often work so hard they starve themselves and often do not eat enough meat and fish.

4. Spasm in the blood vessels in the brain. In the opinion of Dr. Riley the spasm of the arteries of the brain, which of course prevents a proper supply of blood from reaching the brain and removing wastes, is responsible for many other symptoms besides the headaches, such as temporary loss of sight and speech and also dizziness. Those individuals who have this tendency to migraine should learn then that it is tenseness that causes the spasm of the blood vessels, and thus the migraine.

Gland Changes Cause Many Skin Eruptions

I find myself writing very often about acne — pimples, not because the condition is painful or dangerous, but because it is spoiling the lives of many boys and girls just when manhood and womanhood is opening up to them. They avoid playing games, going to parties or enjoying other forms of amusement.

Physicians now agree that as acne appears about the time of puberty, gland changes in the body cause the skin eruption. Just how gland changes cause the trouble is unknown, but in some manner the body processes find it difficult to handle various foods, and this improper burning or handling of foods results in the change in the skin.

For years the results of X-ray treatment of acne have been excellent; in fact, the X-ray treatment has been considered "the best single treatment of acne." It would seem, however, that this top position or standing of the X-ray treatment is to be challenged by the treatment of which I have written many times, that is, the treatment by viosterol. The viosterol treatment of acne was first given to the profession by two members of the staff of the University of Chicago, who cured themselves and many of their students by this method.

255 Acne Cases Reviewed. Dr. M. T. R. Maynard, San Jose, Calif., in California and Western Medicine reviews 255 cases of acne treated since 1930. Of these, 123 patients were treated by other means than the use of viosterol; 86 were treated by X-ray. The diet and application of lotions or ointments were the same in the two groups.

Of the 86 patients treated by X-ray the acne was better in 30 at the end of three months; in 13 it was much better and in 26 the condition was healed, and of the 132 cases treated with viosterol, eight were better, 20 were much better and 32 cured. Of those cured or helped by the X-ray there were 26 in whom the acne returned, whereas the acne returned in only one case where viosterol was used.

'Batter Up!' Echoes Once More —But Woe to the Poor Batter

The sharp crack of bat against ball resounds throughout America April 17 as another big league season starts. All summer long the man at the plate and the man behind it face two of baseball's toughest assignments. The photo-diagram below shows how easily a catcher or batter can be beamed by a pitched ball which goes 60 feet, 6 inches in less than half a second. Both must think with lightning rapidity. No wonder that Mickey Cochrane lost track of the pill two years ago.

Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee slugger, demonstrates a batter's coordination of mind and muscle. Especially noteworthy for both safety and success is the way Joe keeps his eyes riveted on the ball from the time it leaves the pitcher's hand.

In the above two pictures DiMaggio illustrates how he puts his shoulders and full weight behind the bat as he brings the old hickory around to connect with the ball. Notice that full attention is still focused on the ball, a rule that holds true in any sport.

Jolting Joe's strong follow-through is shown to advantage in these last two continuous action pictures of his swing symphony.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—On August 2 of this year, Dr. Gustavus Adolphus Eisen will be 92 years old. It was his research that established, so far without authoritative challenge, the Chalice of Antioch as the "oldest surviving record of the faith of the Apostles." The chalice was exhibited during holy week at St. Thomas Episcopal church, New York, with the conjecture that its inner cup may have been the beginning of the legend of the Holy Grail. In a book published in 1926, Doctor Eisen established the use of the chalice in the Church at Antioch not later than the end of the first century of the Christian era.

At the age of 85, Doctor Eisen learned to decipher cuneiform inscriptions, to write a treatise on Mesopotamian cylindrical seals, or glyptics. In 1936, he published 15 volumes summarizing his research in legends of the Holy Grail, and is now at work on studies of early portraits of Christ and the apostles. His eyesight and hearing are still good and he puts in a full working day.

Doctor Eisen has published more than 150 books covering his amazing range of inquiry in a half-dozen sciences, including studies of earthworks, fig culture, archeology, ancient grass, portraits of George Washington and geological, zoological and botanical subjects.

Born in Sweden, he was a frail child, unable to attend school, frequently in the country, with tutors who stimulated his scientific interests.

Horticulture Is Modern Field Of the Scientist

In the University of Upsala, he wrote a thesis on earthworks which attracted the attention of Charles Darwin. His correspondence with Darwin put him in touch with Alexander E. Agassiz, the American naturalist, and, when he obtained his doctorate in 1873 and removed to America, the two men formed a long and fruitful association. For 40 years, Doctor Eisen was on the Pacific coast, working at times with the late Luther Burbank on plant research.

Last year, the California Academy of Science honored him as the founder of the state's great fig-growing industry. Smyrna figs frequently had been taken to California, but there was no yield. Doctor Eisen studied this problem and reached the conclusion that the failure was due to lack of fertilization. Male trees were brought over and California began gathering fig crops.

The chalice, which had been found in the ancient ruins of Antioch in 1910 and placed in the Louvre, in Paris, was brought to this country in 1914, to safeguard it during the war. Doctor Eisen's conclusion was that it had been made by a great Roman artist, Apollodorus, who lived from 50 to 120 A. D.

Doctor Eisen's avid scientific studies continue on, unabated, into his tenth decade. He is a bachelor. None has ranged farther into the past, while pressing eagerly into the future in his zest for knowledge.

ON A cotton patch in the high mountains of North Carolina, a lad leaned on his hoe, and, in his imagination, followed out in the world the 11:15 train, in the valley far below. One day, he did follow the lingering plume of smoke and that is linked, in the long chain of causation, with the Sperry corporation's harbinger of one more spring.

Gyroscope Aids Lad With Hoe In Whirl to Wealth

The lad with the hoe, one Thomas A. Morgan, president of the corporation, announces a net income of $4,961,398 for 1938, against $2,949,860 the year before.

He joined the navy when he hung up his hoe, qualified as an electrician, and, running a gyroscope, sank his career in this magic whirligig. That geared him in with the Sperry company, and, just as the great war was breaking, he chased the czar's navy all over the far-eastern map to sell it gyroscopes. He caught up with it and rang up a sale, in one of the epics of free American enterprise.

Thereafter he planted gyroscopes on all the great fighting ships of the world and sailed a true course to the presidency of the Sperry corporation in 1928. He became one of the grand panjandrums of aviation. He says he got where he is by thinking of today, and its demands, rather than of yesterday or tomorrow. He had ten months' schooling when he trailed the train in the valley.

AVIATION — Round-the-world airplane tickets, placed on sale for the first time, are priced at $1,785 for a trip requiring 14 days, including 11 overnight stops.

SHIPPING—A total of 165 vessels, aggregating 678,000 gross tons, are under construction in U. S. shipyards, compared with 105 ships weighing 389,000 tons last year at this time.

EXECUTION—Maj. Edward J. Dyer, retired U. S. army officer, suggested before the Washington Society of Philosophical Research that euthanasia (mercy killing) be adopted for aged indigents, hopelessly insane and diseased persons, children born as monsters and first degree murderers. Justification: "One of the Ten Commandments might be modified."

CATTLE—Because eggs bring only 11 cents a dozen, A. W. Ellsworth, dairy farmer at Hurd, N. D., is feeding his cattle egg-nog, raising the "milk-fed" standard.

Nature Made to Order by Movieland Technicians

Nature is merely a pawn in the hands of Hollywood movie technicians who make it rain or snow, and even make the grass grow—all at a moment's notice. A downpour was one of the desired effects in a production starring Merle Oberon, left, but rainfalls are somewhat unruly. So the whole company moved indoors. There in the studio a complete countryside was rebuilt and overhead sprinklers were installed. Wind machines scattered the water and gave the "even downpour" effect. Cameramen had to don oilskins. Miss Oberon (pictured in circle) is braving an indoor Hollywood "rainstorm," manufactured to order.

NO CAR—NO WORK

Because Sir Reginald J. T. Hildyard, governor of Bermuda, was unable to persuade the Bermuda assembly to allow him the use of an automobile on the island he recently tendered his resignation to the British colonial secretary's office. Comfort? Home Was Never Like This

When easy-going William Porter, 59-year-old odd job man of East St. Louis, Ill., decides to rest a bit, he really wants to rest. He has designed an easy chair equipped with 17 (at the last count) accessories. Built from the frame of an old bed, the chair contains a built-in radio, book case, fan, food compartment, bar, gear shift for raising and lowering the back, and many other conveniences. Porter plans on adding still more as he thinks of them.

PAUL WINS RECOGNITION FOR GENTILE CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:23-29; Galatians 2:1, 2, 9, 10. GOLDEN TEXT—A man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ.—Galatians 2:16.

Persecution from outside was soon followed by what was even more serious—difficulty within the Church. If Satan cannot destroy God's work in one way, he cunningly tries another plan. Although the first council at Jerusalem (Acts 15) had decided that "to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life," the question did not stay settled, for there were persistent Judaizing teachers who now contended that even though the Gentiles could be saved, they had to come into the Church by way of Judaism and first fulfill the Jewish rite of circumcision.

I. A Serious Difference of Opinion—Grace Versus Law

The story of how this vital and fundamental question came up is found in the early verses of Acts 15. The entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religious faith in the world that presents justification by grace as the way of redemption; all others follow (more or less) the path of salvation by works. The question now was: Shall works of the law be mingled with grace—can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation through Jesus Christ plus something else? How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to go on until the stronger party prevailed? Better judgment indicated the desirability of

II. A Christian Method of Settlement—Council not Controversy

There may be times when it becomes the duty of the Christian worker to take an uncompromising stand for the truth of God and refuse to be moved, come what may. But certainly there should be no such spirit in dealing with differing interpretations of Scripture on the part of sincere and earnest Christian brethren. How much would be gained in the Church today if, instead of magnifying differences and permitting personal desires and ambitions to intervene, men were willing to sit down in the spirit of Christ around the tables of Christian council and brotherhood, presided over and directed by the Holy Spirit (see Acts 15:28).

The whole question was honestly and carefully considered by the second council at Jerusalem, with the result that there was a vindication of the preachers of God's grace. After presenting a plain disavowal of those who had troubled them and subverted their souls (what a serious thing it is to teach error concerning God's Word!), the council being of one accord, gave recognition to Paul and Barnabas as men who had "hazarded their lives for the name of the Lord Jesus" and were worthy of confidence and support.

No man should think more highly of himself than he ought. Humility is a Christian grace which well befits a sinner saved by grace. But the Bible abounds with admonitions to honor one another, to recognize the laborer as being worthy of his hire, to give recognition to those who are over us in the Lord. The brethren at Jerusalem were thoughtful and courteous enough to so honor and encourage Paul and Barnabas. We could well follow their example in recognition of faithful servants of Christ in our own church or Community.

III. A Momentous Decision—Salvation by Grace

The final decision of the council is sent not only by Paul and Barnabas, but also by a committee from Jerusalem, a gracious gesture of fellowship. Courtesy is not out of place in dealing with even such difficult things as controversies on Christian doctrine—in fact it should be most in place in such a situation.

As a matter of record (a wise procedure in such a case), a letter was sent which, after addressing the Gentiles as "brethren," reviewed the history of the matter and then, without mentioning circumcision at all, puts upon the Gentiles "no greater burden than the necessary things." And what were these? Those things which relate to purity of life as those who were enjoying Christian liberty. The law of Moses need not be kept as a ground of salvation. They were saved by grace. But grace can never be the cloak of careless living, nor can liberty in Christ be interpreted as license to live in sin. We are set free in Christ, not that we may sin, but that we may "go and sin no more."

Blessed is the day whose morning is sanctified! Successful is the day whose first victory is won by prayer! Holy is the day whose dawn finds thee on the top of the mount!—Joseph Parker.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Grandmother Surprised Everyone.

YES, a certain grandmother surprised everybody—even herself. She had always enjoyed making hit and miss rag rugs in cheery colors. Then one day her favorite grandson brought home the girl he was going to marry. She was a bright young thing, and chattered away about color schemes for her new home. The living room and hall were to be peacock blue and rust with touches of black. "Well, peacock is just a greenish blue," thought Grandmother, "and rust is a brownish red." So she got out her dye pot and her best wool rags, and she mixed and she dipped and dipped again. Then, instead of sewing her braided rags into one big oval, she made five ovals of the size shown here—3 black and 2 blue. She sewed these together, then around them came 4 rows of rust; 2 rows of black next; then 4 of rust; 1 of black; 4 blue; 2 black; then 8 rows of blue around the outside.

When the wedding day arrived this gift was a great surprise; even Grandmother was amazed at how handsome it looked at the foot of the stairs in the new house.

Women everywhere are using their leisure to make their homes more attractive, with slipcovers; curtains; bedspreads and lampshades. They are again taking up embroidery and handwork so that they may beautify their homes and there is a revival of interest in old time hand crafts.

Mrs. Spears' Book 1, SEWING for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, clearly chart the way for you. If the old craft of rag rug making is your new hobby, you may have free Mrs. Spears' leaflet on rag rugs with your order for both books at 25 cents each. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

CURE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

"THE only way to restore prosperity in the United States is to cure as far as possible the evil of unemployment. This can only be done by speeding up private agriculture, commerce and industry to employ more people. Existing industry must be encouraged to expand. Individuals must be encouraged to spend their own time and their own money in developing new enterprises and new products."—U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft.

TIPS to Gardeners

Care in Transplanting

TRANSPLANTING is an important activity in almost every garden, but a gardener will save time and possible disappointment if he knows what should and what should not be transplanted.

The following should not be moved: Celosia, didiscus (blue lace flower), four o'clock, hennemannia, and perennial sweet pea. Because of their peculiar root growth, these flowers are damaged, sometimes even killed, when transplanted.

Flowers which may be transplanted with little fear of damage, as long as the moving is done properly, include ageratum, alyssum, snapdragon, aster, calendula, marigold, pansy, petunia, pinks, salvia, scabiosa, verbena, Canterbury bells, columbine, hollyhock, pyrethrum and viola.

There is a third division of flowers, according to Harry A. Joy, flower expert of the Ferry Seed Breeding Station, whose lives will not be endangered by transplanting, but whose growth will be stunted. Both plant and blossoms will be smaller but earlier. Larkspur, zinnia, phlox, nasturtium and bachelor button are in this group.

Removing Fish Smell.—One tablespoon of vinegar added to the washing-up water for dishes that have been used for serving fish will help to remove traces of smell.

For Stained Tables.—Dressing tables often get stained with cosmetics and scents. To remove such stains, rub well with paraffin, leave for a few hours, then rub with furniture cream and polish with a soft cloth.

Cotton Strengthens the Socks.—If you knit socks for the menfolk try knitting in a strand of ordinary cotton, together with the wool when turning the heels and shaping the toes.

For "Pump Bumps."—If you have "pump bumps" on your heels, tape a covering of cotton or gauze over them. Dust the tape with talcum powder to keep it from sticking to your stocking.

SAFETY TALKS

Defective Cars in Accidents

COMPILATION by the National Safety council of state motor vehicle accident reports shows that 9 per cent of the motor vehicles in fatal accidents were reported as defective.

In non-fatal accidents defective vehicles numbered 4 per cent. The council commented that "it seems certain that mass statistics understate the true importance of this problem. A careful study made several years ago indicated that vehicular defects were at least a contributing cause in 15 per cent of the accidents.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 33 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

HERALD WANT ADVS PAY

See The New, Improved JOHN DEERE Model "L" TRACTOR It's Built for REAL ECONOMY

NO matter how small your crop acreage—you will want to come in and get full information on this new John Deere tractor built for market growers and small-acreage farmers. Its engine is of simple, 2-cylinder design. Its operating costs are amazingly low. Many owners use only 5 or 6 gallons of fuel for a full 10-hour day's work.

On small acreages, it is the only power unit needed—it does the plowing, seed bed preparing, planting, cultivating, hauling and other jobs—completely replacing horses. Best of all, the price of the tractor and equipment is within reach of every pocketbook.

Everyone should see this new John Deere—the only way to really appreciate its easy handling, its compact design, and its flexibility, is to come in—get the feel of the wheel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Loring and her father, Jim, an influential attorney, meet a train which brings her wealthy sister-in-law, unmarried Linnie Cotswell and her friend, Lelia Ormsby, divorcee for a Christmas visit. Waiting at home for them are Mary's mother, her younger sister, Bern; her father's nagging maiden sister, Aunt Mammie, and Peter, the baby of the family. At the depot Dr. Christopher Cragg helps the guests with their luggage. Mary is secretly in love with Doctor Cragg. In leaving, her Aunt Linnie urges Mary to visit her in New York, but Mary refuses. Mary works in a rental library, where she spends her spare time writing short stories. Mary's father is let out as railroad attorney, the fees of which were almost the sole support of his family. To earn money she decides to begin writing in earnest. Mary feels sure that her newest story, "At Sea," would please the editors of National Weekly. After finishing it she calls Doctor Cragg, who comes to the book store for a current novel. Falling from a ladder while getting his book, she regains consciousness to find his arms around her. He tells her he loves her, and then tells her he is to be married the coming month to a girl he has known all his life. Despondent, Mary decides to accept her Aunt Linnie's invitation. In New York her aunt laughs at her for her plans, but she is so sure that she meet as many eligible men as possible. The new week brings two letters. One, from the National Weekly, with a $100 check. The other, from her sister, tells her that financial conditions at home are getting worse. The next day, at a party given by her aunt, Mary meets distinguished Jerome Taylor, wealthy middle aged man-about-town, and effusive Count Umberto Ballant, the county's city manager. She reads a note from her father the following day pleading with her not to mention the family's financial plight to her aunt. After reading it she forces herself to begin work on her next short story, which is more difficult to write than the first. She labors on until her aunt informs her that Count Umberto, whom Lelia terms a sponger and fortune hunter, is to take them to dinner that evening. He takes them to a garish restaurant in Greenwich Village. The evening Mary sends her story, "Their Son," to the National Weekly. She goes to see Phillip Buchanan, editor of the National Weekly, to whom she has just sent her story. He invites her to lunch. He congratulates her for the simple treatment given the first story, and says she has just received immediate attention. At lunch she is introduced to attractive Jim Ormsby, Lelia's former husband.

Mary watched Jim Ormsby as he walked across the room, and finally disappeared through the door into the foyer. She liked his voice, the way he carried his shoulders, the perfect "hang" of his well-cut clothes. He looked just the sort of person whom Lelia might well have loved—whom Lelia might still love with all her heart. "He's very attractive," she said, more to herself than to Phillip Buchanan.

"He's—tops," the man replied almost belligerently, "and, to my way of thinking, he's been given a dirty deal. His wife divorced him a couple of years ago on what was merely circumstantial evidence. Never gave him a chance to explain; and he was too damned proud to do so later. Seemed to figure that if she didn't have more faith in him than she appeared to have, he might as well let her go."

Mary leaned across the table. "Is his wife, by any chance, named—Lelia?" she asked excitedly.

"Yes," Buchanan replied, surprised, "it is! Do you know her?"

"Well, rather! In fact, she's a sort of cousin of mine, and she's visiting Aunt Linnie right now!"

"Oh, Lord! I hope I haven't said anything I shouldn't have!"

"No, Mr. Buchanan, not at all.—By the way, isn't it time we were leaving?"

Buchanan looked at his watch. "Yes, it is. How are you going up-town?"

Mary smiled at him. "Literally, in the bus," she replied. "Metaphorically, on wings. You see, I'm terribly excited over this assignment you've given me, and I'll do my best to make good."

Buchanan motioned to Alphonse, glanced over the check, and, leaving some bills on the table, indicated to Mary that he was ready to leave. "You'll hear from us as soon as we've made a decision on 'Their Son,' Miss Loring," he said when they reached the foyer. "Thanks for lunching with me."

Mary extended a gloved hand. "Thanks for asking me," she replied, her eyes dancing. "I loved it, although I confess you had me stymied for a while."

"Stymied?" the man replied. "Stymied! What do you mean?"

But she was out of the door now, and either did not hear him, or else would not turn around. Her heart was lighter than it had been in weeks, and her feet barely touched the pavement as she fled down the steps and turned up Fifth Avenue.

CHAPTER VII

Lelia Ormsby was seated at the desk by the east window in the living room when Mary returned to Miss Cotswell's apartment. "Mary!" she called, hearing the click of a key in the latch.

"Right here in the living room, having a perfect whirl for myself, studying all the travel literature I can find about the tropics. There's a boat sailing for the West Indies March fifteenth, and I believe that'd be just about right for our trip."

Mary came into view, her eyes wide and stary, her face flushed.

"Good heavens!" cried Lelia. "What in the world have you been doing? You look as if you'd caught the world by the tail! I've never seen anybody quite so—aglow! Did you see Mr. Buchanan?"

Mary fell into the cushions of the lounge and prepared to relax in comfort. "That's just it, Lelia," she replied, her voice husky with excitement. "I not only saw Mr. Buchanan, but he took me to lunch at the Lafayette. And, Lelia, he wants me to write a series of 'shorts' for his magazine."

"Darling! That's wonderful! Did he mention the delicate subject of pay?"

"Yes, Lel, he did! He's going to increase the size of the checks as time goes on, providing, of course, my stuff clicks with the public. I'm so happy. You can't imagine what it means to me."

"It means," Lelia said, her blue eyes serious, "that 'At Sea' must be a darned good tale, and that Phillip Buchanan feels he's made another of his well-known finds! Congratulations, my dear. By the way, how did you like Phil Buchanan?"

"I liked him—well enough," Mary replied, "but he acted as if he were bored to death with every word I uttered, and he looked at his watch at least six times."

"Oh, well," chuckled Lelia, "he is a busy man."

"Lelia," Mary began.

"Yes?" replied Lelia, not looking up.

"Lelia,—I—I—met Jim Ormsby today."

The older girl did not move, but Mary could see a deep red slowly rising to the nape of her neck. "He's a friend of Phil Buchanan's," Lelia returned evenly, her attention apparently riveted on a colorful picture of the race course at Havana.

"Yes," Mary returned. "He asked Mr. Buchanan to spend the week-end at his house in Connecticut."

Lelia turned about, a little smile twisting her lips, her eyes as blue and unfathomable as a wintry sea. "That house in Connecticut is—"

"Yes," Buchanan replied, surprised, "it is! Do you know her?"

sweet. White clap-board, and sort of straggling all over the side of the hill, and a fireplace in every room. We lived there most of the time, Jim and I."

There was a revealing nostalgia in Lelia's tones as she spoke of the home she and Jim had shared together, and Mary, sensing the ache that lay beneath those words, longed to rush to her and place sympathetic arms about her shoulders. Instead, she continued to stand by the window. "He's attractive, Lelia."

"Yes," Lelia replied dully. "There has never been anyone else like him in my life. And, Mary, there never will be. Did he seem well, and—and happy?"

"I saw him for just an instant, Lelia," Mary countered, wishing she had more to tell the other woman. "He merely came to our table at the Lafayette, and spoke to Mr. Buchanan about going to Connecticut for the week-end. He said two other men whose names I don't remember were to be in the party, and that they'd play Badminton and Bridge."

A second of silence followed, broken finally by Mary. "Was there any mail for me, Lelia, in the eleven o'clock delivery?"

Lelia's shoulders jerked, as if she had been abruptly jarred out of a reverie. "Yes, I believe there's a letter from Hawkinsville. And, by the way, there's a box of something or other for you, delivered about an hour ago by a Western Union boy. Looks like candy, and I hope it is. I'm perishing for the want of a chocolate-covered mint."

"The letter from home can wait an instant," Mary thought. "At least, until I see what's in this package."

She untied the ribbon, and tore away the glossy orange tissue that covered the box. An envelope-enclosed card, tipped from its position by her eager fingers, fell to the floor. Stopping, she picked it up and read, "Fruits from Italy to a lovely lady, with the felicitations and adoration of Umberto." "Just so much—eyewash!" she told herself. "The man scarcely knows me. I'll give the stuff to Addie. Maybe she'll like it."

Then with a commingling of eagerness and apprehension, she opened the letter from Ellen.

Mary dear: There's really not a thing to tell you, but I know that you worry when you don't hear from home every now and then, so am writing anyhow.

Dad still hasn't been able to make any connections. Mother is getting thinner every day from worry, and Aunt Mammie goes sadly about with the usual chip on her shoulder. She has taken to referring wistfully to one Harry Archer who visited at Grandfather's house twenty-five years ago, intimating that he was desperately in love with her, and that it was just too bad she didn't marry him. I asked Dad on the Q. T. if the guy really had been in love with her, and he replied that if he was, he managed to exert wonderful self-control. All Dad can remember about Harry Archer's visit was that there had been two picnics at Hick's Bluff, and, in both cases, Harry had to be hit over the head with a club in order to get him even to go through the motions of being Aunt Mammie's escort.

Brown's Business College have put me first on their list for any possible job that may present itself, but I'm afraid the chances aren't so hot.

I hope you're having a wonderful time. Have you seen Radio City yet? Give my love to Aunt Linnie and Lelia. Devotedly, Ellen.

P. S. Chris Cragg was married to that Issa Graceland in Chicago last Saturday, and is bringing her to Hawkinsville the end of the week. Everybody's dying to see what she's like.

For an instant, the room went quite black before Mary's eyes, and it was only with supreme effort that she kept from slumping to the floor. So, Chris had married, after all! Of course, he had told her that he was going to. Of course, he had been honor-bound to carry through; yet all along, there had smoldered in the back of her mind the thought, "If he really loves me, he won't marry Lissa. He can't! He'll surely tell her that he loves someone else—that his marriage to her can't go through!" But the marriage had gone through—last Saturday! Chris had now been married for five days.

With fingers that seemed numb, she picked Ellen's letter up, tore it into tiny pieces, and dropped it into the waste basket. How surprised Ellen would have been had she dreamed of the portent of that postscript! "Thank God," Mary thought gratefully, "nobody—not even Ellen—knows how desperately I care for Chris! Nobody knows that I care at all!"

At last, she turned from the dressing-table, and moved toward the bed. Blindly, she dropped to the bed, heedless of the satin spread that covered it, and lay there in a disconsolate heap, like a child that has been sent to his nursery for punishment. At last, the tears began to come, and still un mindful of the coverlet, she buried her face against the protecting privacy of the pillow, and gratefully let them fall.

She did not know how long she lay there, but the winter darkness had fallen outside when Lelia finally entered the room and snapped on the light. "Mary, I didn't know you were here!" she said, glimpsing the huddle of Mary's body on the bed. "Have you been asleep?"

Mary sat up, trying to avert her haggard face from Lelia's gaze. "Yes," she lied. "I was asleep. What time is it, Lelia?"

"Six o'clock, darling. Hadn't you better start dressing? This is the night you and Linnie are going to Jerry Taylor's, isn't it? He's sending the car for you, Mary?"

"Yes?"

"I wish you'd wear my ermine wrap tonight. It would look simply ravishing on you, and I know Aunt Linnie wants you to appear particularly beautiful. Jerome's quite a person, you know—even though he is, in my humble opinion, the worst sort of renegade."

"But, Lelia," Mary demurred. "I might get it soiled or tear it."

"Don't be ridiculous, darling. I want you to wear it. It'll look divine with that silver-threaded evening frock of yours."

"All right," Mary replied listlessly. "Thank you." But she was thinking, "What difference does it make how I look? What difference does anything make. Chris is married."

Three-quarters of an hour later, Mary, a transformed person, stood before the mirror of the dressing-table. The hot bath and icy shower had brought life and color back to her weary body; miraculously wiped from her face the ravages of sorrow. Lelia had dusted just enough rouge over the soft curve of her cheeks to disguise their pallor. Her lace frock clung lovingly to her body, and fell to the floor in an eddy of silver and white. Three orchids of deep purple perched lightly on her left shoulder, and now and then smoothed their soft petals against her cheek. Addie had just brought them in with the announcement that Mr. Taylor's chauffeur had delivered them, and that Mr. Taylor's car was waiting at the door.

She picked Ellen's letter up and tore it into tiny pieces.

"Well, if you ain't a dream!" Addie cried. "Why, honey, you look just like a princess."

Mary, suddenly aware that, had it not been for Lelia, she would never have been able to dress that evening—that Lelia had practically pulled her together—turned impulsively and kissed the other girl on the cheek. "Thank you, Lelia. You've been sweet to me tonight. You're always sweet to me."

Linnie Cotswell, looking handsome in a trailing gown of maroon-colored lace, appeared in the doorway. "Ready, Mary? Why, my dear, you're a dream! I didn't know my family tree could produce such royal fruit!"

Mary never quite knew how she managed to get through the hours that followed. It was like a hectic nightmare—a nightmare made up of spacious, flower-filled rooms in Jerome Taylor's penthouse; of Jerome Taylor himself, faultless in black and white, a gardenia in his lapel; always at her side, always looking at her with admiring eyes. Dancing with Jerome Taylor to the tune of "September in the Rain," and thoughts of Chris! A constant pain in her heart, a lump in her throat that could not be swallowed, and thoughts, unforgettable thoughts, of Christopher Cragg!

Gorgeous Temple Built to Win the Love of a Woman, but Proved Failure

Of all the Buddhistic remains in Java the Temple of Boroboeoer is the most famous.

It dates from the Eighth or the Ninth century and is built of volcanic stone over a huge mound, the latter forming the core of the stupa and being inclosed by four sculptured galleries, on the tops of which are three terraces, the uppermost being surmounted by a central dagoba. Each of the four sides of this immense structure measures 530 feet and there are something like two miles of bas-reliefs and carvings on the walls of the galleries.

According to legend, relates a writer in the Los Angeles Times, Boroboeoer was built to win the affection of a capricious young woman. She insisted that her lover, an architect, should design, construct and complete the finest temple on earth as a wedding gift to her within the space of 12 months. She stipulated that it should be perfect in every detail.

All this the energetic youth promised, as he was very much enamored of the young woman. Being wealthy and closely allied to the ruling powers of the country he was able to enlist the services of thousands of men from near and afar. The greatest sculptors and builders of the time were pressed into service, a year of high-pressure construction resulting.

At the close of 12 months the temple was completed. The architect conducted his lady love upon a tour of inspection, watching all the time the glistening sparkle in her eye. But the sparkle was not for him. She had set her mind upon finding a defect and this caused the smile that gave a light to her gazing. Coming at last to the end of the tens of thousands of figures decorating the walls and terraces she found one statue that was unfinished. Whereupon she coldly reminded her lover that her conditions had not been fulfilled—left him and later married a more favored youth.

Builder Becomes Saint Pagodas, religious shrines, are to be found in every village in Burma, for the building of a shrine there makes one a saint on earth, and one is certain to enter Nirvana when he dies if only he builds one.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Revelation: At a luncheon at the Engineers' club, I witnessed a preview of Dr. Georg Roemmert's microvivarium, which is a major exhibit of the Westinghouse company at the World's fair. The microvivarium magnifies a drop of water 2,000 times on a five-foot screen.

Thus I learned that a water drop is really a miniature world inhabited by curious creatures with their loves, hates and battles unto death, engaged in a never-ending dance, all seemingly senseless yet possibly fully as sensible as so-called civilization.

And to end the show, a death ray was introduced and the residents of that strange universe swelled until they actually burst. Doctor Roemmert raises his actors by means of bits of hay and vegetable mould in distilled water and makes up his transparent performers by feeding them minute portions of harmless coloring matter. And the microvivarium makes a drop of vinegar look like a lot of jittersbugs under a full head of steam.

Relics: Workmen engaged in tearing down the Sixth avenue elevated railroad structure find their job more interesting than the ordinary run of such work. For instance, station platforms. There cracks between boards have been collecting mementoes through the years. One worker picked up a half dime minted in 1851 and another a time sheet which showed that in the seventies an elevated employee earned $1.20 in 12 hours. There are 60 Indians in the crews, which is not at all uncommon, I was informed, because Indians like to tear down steel structures. Why native Americans should favor such an occupation is still a matter of doubt despite inquiries. The most logical explanation seems to be that razing is open-air work.

Commercialized: It was my belief that hat snatching was a prank of those who like to annoy subway riders. The hat snatcher lurks on a platform and, when the train starts, reaches in through an open window and grabs a hat. The owner can do nothing about it since he is locked in the car and stays that way until the next station is reached. Well, the police recently caught two hat snatchers and put them in the hoosegow. After awhile, detectives went out and brought in a hat renovator and charged him with receiving stolen property. According to the police, the lads who lifted the lids sold them to the renovator. After refurbishing them, he sold them at a profit. Thus, professionalism instead of sport.

Loss: Getting back to the Sixth avenue elevated for one more paragraph: Thomas Harris, head of the contracting firm doing the razing, holds that the job will cost his company $160,000. Red-ink items include removing 32,000 ties apparently laid to stay; taking nuts off 150,000 bolts on a string piece 147,000 feet long and the fact that the iron bases of the pillars, instead of being solid, are filled with bricks and concrete, making them worthless as salvage. The company sells the scrap steel to domestic firms rather than to foreign nations which would use it for munitions of war. And such patriotism costs $4 a ton.

Irony Note: "Quick Wit," that new quiz game which is a hit with the intelligentsia, was invented by Roy Veller, a Long Island real estate dealer, who never finished high school. His is the third amateur-invented game to score a smash hit in the last two years. David Whitelaw, an English magazine editor, made a fortune out of his "Crossword Lexicon" and Charles Darrow, an unemployed engineer, who used idle time to work out a game called "Monopoly," has retired in luxury through his royalties.

End Piece: According to Bea Wain, who is very particular about good diction, your speech is normal if you can recite the following without stumbling: Are our oars here? Many a wit is not a whit wittier than Whittier.

The menu is not less important than the men you will meet. His suit showed spots of suet and snot.

And to that I might add the late Odd McIntyre line: "Mrs. Smith's fish sauce shop," because it usually throws me.

Farm Return Is Down for 1938

Grower's Share of Consumer Dollar Is Lowest in Four Years.

WASHINGTON.—Last year the farmer's share of the consumer's food dollar—40 cents—was the smallest in four years, according to the bureau of agricultural economics.

This means, the bureau explained, that out of every dollar paid by a city worker for a farm product 60 cents went to processing, transportation and selling costs and only 40 cents to the producer of the raw product.

The study included a representative list of 58 foods. The farmer's share of the food dollar in 1937 was 45 cents, 44 cents in 1936, 42 cents in 1935 and 37 cents in 1934. The 1913-15 average was 53 cents.

Food Prices Down 9 Per Cent.

A drop of 9 per cent in the retail value of the 58 foods last year, compared with 1937, was borne almost entirely by producers, it was shown. Processing, transportation and distribution charges declined 1 per cent.

The bureau estimated that the average city worker's family last year spent $321 for the 58 principal foods. Of that amount farmers received $130 and those who handled it between the farm and the family food basket divided $191.

In 1937 the family food bill was $353, of which the farmer received $160 and the others $193. The study showed that the spread between what the farmer receives for the raw product and what the city worker pays has increased steadily in the last 25 years.

Producer's Percentage Cut.

In the 1913-15 period the average worker's family paid $256 for the 58 foods, the farmer receiving $135 and all others $121. In the boom period of 1929 food costs reached a high of $415, of which the farmer received $195 and the others $220.

The low point both in the cost of food and the percentage received by farmers was reached in 1932, when the total cost was $270. In that year the farmer received $88 of the family food budget and all others $182.

"An improvement in 1939 consumer income over 1938 such as is now anticipated should lead to some increase in the proportion of the consumer's food dollar received by farmers," the bureau said.

Paper Matches, 3,362 of Them Go to Make Violin

TARENTUM, PA.—A violin made from paper matches is the latest work of Jimmy Work, Allegheny valley's most unusual hobby man.

This is not the first time that Work has fashioned violins out of strange materials. Once, he built a violin made of paper held together by large quantities of glue. Another time he made a fiddle of wooden matches.

The instruments are not mere toys, either. Work plays them at social events, church affairs and amateur shows throughout the district. The tone quality is considered fairly good.

Work used 3,362 paper matches for his latest instrument. It took him 227 hours to complete the job. His total cash outlay was 25 cents. The violin made with wooden matches required 130 hours and cost 60 cents. He used 1,195 matches. The paper fiddle has 23 layers of paper on the top, 17 on the bottom and 12 on the sides. A piece of sugar cloth was placed between each six layers of paper.

New Device Flies Plane At Ten Miles an Hour

EAST PORTCHESTER, CONN.—Invention of a stabilizing device permitting airplanes to fly at heretofore unheard of low speeds and to take off after a run of 40 or 50 feet is claimed by Daniel Thompson, a mechanical engineer.

Thompson believes the invention will be invaluable for bombing planes in war times because the speed can be checked to 10 or 15 miles an hour, and thus assure greater accuracy.

The device, adjusted to the motor and propellers, can be fitted to any plane, according to the inventor, and will "revolutionize the airplane industry."

Oldest Palm Tree Is Raided by Vandals

BRISBANE, AUSTRALIA.—The oldest living thing on earth, a giant palm which is believed to be 15,000 years old, has been replanted by botany students.

The tree was uprooted by vandals recently. Called Grandfather Peter, it stands 25 feet high. Others in the grove vary in age from 3,000 to 8,000 years. These palms—they are not strictly speaking trees, are a cross between a fern and a palm—grow exceedingly slowly. The fern-like leaves are six to seven feet long, 15 inches wide, rigid, and beautifully green and glossy. The palms bear a huge seed cone, not unlike a pine apple, and one was found to weigh 85 pounds.

Australian Wool Growers Fear Synthetic Products

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA.—Australian wool growers—wool being Australia's greatest output—frankly admit that the discovery of synthetic wool, made from cow's milk, is worrying them.

They have had samples of the synthetic product examined by technicians at the Sydney Technological museum and the report made is to the effect that only expert microscopic examination can distinguish between real wool fiber and the synthetic product.

Small Waists and Becoming Necklines

THE neckline is a very important detail in making your dress becoming. Thus No. 1719, designed for large figures, has a plain, deep V-neckline which is especially slenderizing. Darts at the waistline tend to make you look inches slimmer. This is a particularly comfortable dress to work in, with its deep armholes, slashed sleeves, and easy waist. It's easy to put on and to iron, too, thanks to the button-front. A diagram design, it may be all finished in a few hours. Calico, gingham, percale or seersucker are nice for this.

For slender, youthful figures, the heart-shaped, frill-trimmed neckline of No. 1726 is perfectly charming and as flattering as can be! The pointed basque bodice diminishes your waistline to practically nothing, and the wide-shouldered sleeves and flaring skirt accent the slender youth of the silhouette. Make this pretty dress of silk crepe, taffeta or prints, and see if it doesn't win you many compliments!

The Patterns.

No. 1719 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch material; 4¼ yards of braid.

No. 1726 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 takes 4¼ yards of 39-inch material; 1½ yards of pleating or ruffling.

Fire Walkers

Fire walkers claim faith protects them from injury as they walk barefooted across a bed of hot stones or smoldering ashes, says Collier's. Others claim fire walking is a trick the fanatics are able to stage because they use a fuel that is a bad conductor of heat, because they walk so rapidly that the contact is too brief to cause a burn and lastly, because they are able to induce some kind of anesthesia.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Practical Advice on Feeding 'Teen Age Child; Describes Some Special Food Needs of Both Boys and Girls

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

BEGINNING around the twelfth year in girls and the thirteenth year in boys, the rate of growth is greatly accelerated. Then children require large quantities of food to meet the needs of their rapidly maturing bodies and they usually develop huge appetites. Unfortunately, however, they are often inclined to overlook the foods that are most necessary to health, to eat at odd hours, and to stuff themselves with rich combinations that may severely tax the digestive system.

Mothers may find it exceedingly difficult to deal with their offspring all through the 'teens, when physiological changes are taking place which mark the transition from childhood to maturity. For along with the development of his fast growing body, the child's emotional life undergoes a profound and disturbing change. The boy or girl who was formerly amenable to direction suddenly exhibits a desire for independence. He becomes jumpy and irritable, and he wishes to direct his own life extends even to his choice of food.

Mothers must mobilize all the patience and forbearance at their command—must make it their solemn duty to see that their adolescent children have the foods they require for growth, for stamina, and for building resistance to disease. For the stress and strain of adolescence will be far more easily weathered by boys and girls who are properly nourished.

Quality Important as Quantity
During the years of greatest growth, boys and girls frequently require more food than their fathers or mothers. But it is essential that the diet be well balanced and of the highest nutritive value. It should include an abundance of easily digested energy foods, such as breadstuffs, potatoes, cereals and macaroni products, as well as liberal quantities of the more concentrated fuel foods, such as butter or margarine. There must be an ample supply of high quality protein—which is furnished by meat, fish, eggs, cheese and milk—to build the new muscle tissue required to cover the lengthening frames of the boys and help build the rounded contours of the girls.

Need for Minerals and Vitamins
There must be ample amounts of the various minerals—especially calcium and phosphorus for the teeth and bones, and to help build sound, healthy nerves; iodine for proper functioning of the thyroid gland; iron for building increased quantities of rich red blood. Every vitamin must be included in the adolescent's diet to promote normal health and development, but vitamin A is especially valuable at this time of rapid growth, and vitamin B is also required in liberal amounts to meet the extra demands of increased activity and growth.

A Quart of Milk Daily
It is highly desirable that the diet should include a quart of milk daily, because milk is such a splendid source of calcium and vitamin A, as well as other necessary minerals and vitamins. If children have been brought up with a wholesome respect for this master food, they will continue to drink it during their 'teens.

However, if they complain about taking it as a beverage, mothers should see that it is supplied by way of cream soups and sauces, with cereals, and in nutritious pudding desserts, which can be enriched with eggs, thus providing additional proteins, minerals and vitamins.

Fruits and Vegetables
Fruits should be eaten freely—at least twice a day—and the high-caloric dried fruits, such as prunes and dates, may be used to advantage along with bananas, oranges, grapefruit, apples and other fresh fruits, as well as the many varieties that come in cans. Cooked and raw vegetables should be provided liberally—if possible, at both lunch and dinner. Dressing cooked vegetables with butter or margarine will increase their fuel value, and make them more satisfying for hungry boys. Girls, who are often finicky eaters during their adolescent years, can usually be tempted with crisp, raw vegetables served in the form of salads; and protein can be added by means of eggs, cheese, fish or chicken.

There is a marked difference between the fuel requirements of 'teen age boys and girls. Both must have a well balanced diet. But the boys need many more calories, and therefore should have a more generous allowance of highly concentrated foods which supply necessary fuel with a minimum tax on the digestive system.

They should have cereals in generous-size portions—and it's advisable to choose part of the cereals from those retaining the bran and the germ. And they'll welcome nourishing desserts, such as custard, tapioca, bread and cornstarch puddings.

Girls Warned Against Reducing
Girls, on the other hand, may become fussy and try to cut down radically on the fuel foods, with the foolish idea of keeping fashionably thin. This must not be permitted, because it may result in under-nutrition, which opens the way to fatigue and nervousness, and may lead to serious disease.

In addition to wholesome, nourishing food, 'teen age boys and girls should have plenty of rest, sunshine and healthful outdoor exercise. And they also deserve the sympathy and deep understanding of their parents.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL

The junior class is sponsoring a high school dance at the City Hall Friday evening, April 21. The practice sets will be completed in bookkeeping class this week. The European history class is now studying the French revolution.

The English IV students have completed the study of Victorian poets. The last poet to be studied was Rudyard Kipling. He is the most popular of the Victorian poets on account of his appeal to the common people. The reasons for his appeal to the common people are his lack of literary style, his choice of commonplace people for his characters, and his praise of the dignity of work. For supplementary work, the students reported on other poems of Kipling, besides those given in the textbook.

The ninth grade citizenship class recently completed the study of the book, "What Every Driver Must Know." The questions used throughout the state to determine the fitness were furnished us by Sheriff Moran and these questions were administered to the class immediately after completing the above booklet. All members except one secured the necessary score to obtain a license.

The twelfth grade American Government class is now studying in regard to the civil rights guaranteed to the people by the Constitution of the United States and by the various states. The civil rights enjoyed by our citizens should be appreciated at this time when so many of the citizens of Europe are having so few.

MUSIC

The band has now grown to 42 members and we are making use of new equipment. We wish to thank everyone for making it possible for us to get our new instruments. Our band is the only one in this part of Michigan that has a glockenspiel or a tenor drum. We have two of each. You will be surprised to see the dandy band we have now. It will be even larger and better next year.

Our beginners are showing much improvement and will soon be reading music out of easy books. We have nine clarinets, nine coronets, one baritone and one trombone in our beginners band. It is interesting to watch how some of these look hopeless and then suddenly make a great change and will be among the best in the class. We are used to that sort of thing and must a little patience will make players out of them.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Junior Camp Fire girls plan to have a bake goods sale Saturday afternoon, April 29, at Buch's grocery store.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES

The fourth grade memorized the poem "The Dutch Lullaby." Betty Brown brought us a bouquet of pussy willows Monday.

We are studying about the Mediterranean countries in the fourth grade geography class.

Most of us are planning on seeing the free baseball movie at the Rivola Theatre Wednesday afternoon.

PRIMARY

Ardath McMullen entered our room Wednesday. She is from Oscoda. We have chosen these for our part of the West Branch health program for April 26. Songs: "Six Best Doctors," "Shining Teeth," "My Handy Hanky," and "Ready for School." Poems: "Timothy Terry," "Sniffly Sneazy," and "A Clean White Tub."

Use for Visnaga Cactus

Not only is the visnaga cactus of the American southwest a source of sweetish sap, which serves as water to the thirsty traveler, but a profitable industry has developed around the use of its pulp in the manufacture of candy.

Do you know what your fire insurance policy covers? If not we will be glad to explain it to you.

Whittemore

The Whittemore Women's Club held Gentlemen's Night Friday evening at the Roll-Inn Hall. The Junior Girls' Club were also guests. Games of all kinds were played, after which Dr. E. A. Hasty entertained the audience with a reel of moving pictures he had taken of the business places and many of the businesses in Whittemore. This was quite a surprise to many of the men present to see themselves on the screen turning into actors. A delicious lunch was served at the close of the evening.

Salary of U. S. Justice

It is provided in the Constitution that the compensation of Justices of the United States cannot be reduced during their term of office—while since it is during good behavior, is the same as life. This does not apply to retired pay. A retired Supreme court justice ordinarily draws $25,000 annually.

Little Things
Little things! Life and death, prosperity and ruin, happiness and misery, hang upon little things: they are like the linch-pin to the wheel, on which depends the safety of the vehicle; they are like the rudder to the vast mass which it guides; like the slender nerves to the hollow muscles.
