N. E. M. LEAGUE WILL OPEN NEXT SUNDAY

Play Openers at Alabaster, Whittemore, Turner, Harrisville

Sunday, May 14, the Northeastern Michigan league will officially open its 24th year of organized baseball. Sixteen teams will swing into action with games being played at Harrisville, Alabaster, Turner and Whittemore in the American division and West Branch, Sterling, Bentley and Wickland in the National loop. The season is scheduled to close on August 20, after which the play-off series between the winners of the American and National division will take place to determine the Northeastern Michigan championship.

Three teams were added to the league this year, Henlock in the American division and Rose City and Pinconning in the National circuit. Gladwin, of the National division, withdrew this season.

Sunday's games in the American division will be: Tawas City, 1938 champions, at Harrisville, Twining at Alabaster, Prescott at Turner, and Hemlock at Whittemore.

In the National division will find: Standish at West Branch, National division champions of 1938, Beaver-ton at Sterling, Rose City at Bentley, and Pinconning at Wickland.

Local Team Looks Good

The local team is all set for the opener at Harrisville Sunday. With a good work-out last Sunday and several stiff practice sessions during the week the boys are showing up well and by Sunday will be in good condition to start the season where they left off last fall.

Most of last season's championship team is intact and with the addition of several new players to the roster, fans in this locality can again look forward to some snappy baseball this coming season. In the past six years the Tawas City team has won three championships and have been in the thick of the fight in their "off seasons."

We were unable to get any advance done on the opening day line-up, but John Forsten, who was elected to manage the team this year, in trying for the second straight championship for Tawas City will have a seasoned lot to choose from with the "Old Veteran" Walt Laidlaw, to do the receiving, "Bill" Mallon and Herman Kussro, righthanders, Ferry Brown and Gordon Myles southpaws, to do the twirling, Earl Davis, Jack Forsten (himself), and Carl Libka are available for the initial sack, Fred Pierson and Fred Luedtke, Jr., have been burning things up around the key-stone sack, "Litt'e Dutch" Staudacher and "Kip" Zollweg look good in the short field spot while Kenny Smith is as fast as ever on the hot corner.

For the outfield he has, the old reliable "Lefty" Quick in left field who is "poison," both in the field and with the stick, Harold Moeller, who natted the right field garden last year, Ed Sieloff, a veteran who romped the outer gardens several years ago, Laure Frank, the man with the bullet arm, John Brugger, who can haul them in with most of them. This should be a good crew to pick a team from for both, offensive and defensive play, besides, there will be several others around available for a bit of pinch hitting should the occasion arise.

That Mr. and Mrs. Fan, is the way the team stacks up at present. Why not drive to Harrisville Sunday and help the boys off to a flying start in this year's pennant race. The team will leave from Cholger's garage at 12:30. The game will start at 2:30.

Tawas City Receives Two Flags

Provided that the sounding of the fire alarm for a fire and the sounding of the same alarm after fire shall constitute the notice of the period when section shall be in force.

3. That this resolution shall have the same effect as a City Ordinance and violation thereof is declared a misdemeanor, and punishable by a fine of not more than $50.00 and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than 60 days or both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

4. That this resolution shall take effect May 1, 1939, and shall be published two successive weeks in the Tawas Herald.

Public Hearing Held On School Finances

A public hearing to permit citizens to present facts concerning the needs of the schools and to ask for a state appropriation sufficient to have a minimum school program during the ensuing two years was held before the Senate Committee of Education in Lansing on the evening of May 2. The Ways and Means Committee of the House has reported out a bill which would provide the schools with a sum which is more than seven million dollars to a small program as mentioned above and so many citizens are making desperate effort to conserve the youth of the state by the securing of a more equitable amount through an amendment by the Senate. The following is an excerpt from the speech

WJR Announcers Enjoy Perch Festival

In a letter to the Perch Festival Committee, Ron Gamble and Bob Clark, WJR announcers, express their thanks for the fine time they had at the festival.

The following is the text of the letter:

This letter is far later in being written than it ever should be. For some days now I've been trying to form some sort of thanks that would tell all Bob and I feel concerning the weekend in Tawas City. It is utterly impossible to put our exact feelings into words.

We want you to know that the 4th Annual Perch Festival will remain in our minds as one of the happiest occasions Radio has brought our way. You and all your citizens of Tawas City left absolutely nothing to be desired. ABSOLUTELY NOTHING!

Please see that everyone who had anything at all to do with the week end past, is given our heartiest thanks.

To the committees, Bob and I extend the warmest congratulations on a splendidly handled festival, and our appreciation in being accorded the honor of assisting. If at any time in the future, either one of us can do something to show our gratitude, please don't hesitate to call on us immediately.

Again, our grateful thanks for everything.

Most sincerely,
Ron Gamble,
Bob Clarke.

Dist. No. 1 Wilber Will Vote Again

On Friday, May 5, another petition was presented to the School Board and on Wednesday, May 17, the voters of this District will again assemble to vote on this "vital question."

The "honest to goodness" reason for this should not be a mystery to any thinking person. The reason for the eight more votes for the "keep it open" side, was that they "didn't" stop to think, but let sentiment alone decide their vote. Sentiment alone, My dear Mrs. Subscriber, plays no part in preparing a child for a life that is becoming more and more the "survival of the fittest."

True, this school is well equipped for a school of its type, but the fact remains that there is only "one" teacher to take care of six grades, perhaps seven next year, with only 15 minute class periods. Compare this with one teacher for two grades with 45 minute class periods and you cannot help but realize, if you have the best interest of the children at heart, just how much our children are missing.

That is just one of the main reasons for "my" wanting the school closed, although I had nothing to do with circulating the petition.

In your article last week you spoke of the figures on the blackboard being a conundrum and of the seventh

Finley Advises on Care of Horses

If horses in Isosco county knew how to swear, it's likely their language on too many farms might be bad, simply due to lack of attention to the proper fit of collars, warns Winton L. Finley, County Agricultural Agent.

Condition of the shoulders often determines the horse's attitude and in some cases may mean whether the horse will work on not. Some careful consideration and forethought may save veterinary bills as well as to assure that "Old Dan" will work every day during the summer months.

Collars must be fitted properly tight on sides to admit finger tips only. Long enough to admit the hand at the bottom. A deer hair sweat pad should be used if the collar is a little too large. After a few days work the neck may shrink so that a pad is needed, if so, by all means put it in the collar at once. Two pads for each horse is also marked economy and will facilitate the horse's usefulness if they are properly used. The pad used today should be thoroughly washed tonight and hung up to dry and then used again the day after tomorrow. In other words use a pad every other day allowing it to dry the day it is not in use.

The collar must be kept clean, rubbing by hand or washing with a damp sponge when it is taken off the horse. Oiling the collar twice a year and always holding it together when carrying it preserves the life of the collar.

In warm weather the collar should be lifted and shoulders of the horse wiped off frequently when the horse is at hard work. Washing the shoulders of the horse when the collar is removed will help prevent shoulder galls.

Once a gall develops, the sore area should be washed with a white lotion made of one ounce of sugar of lead, one ounce of zinc sulphate dissolved in quart of soft water.

Grooming the animal after a day's work or sparging off with warm water in hot weather are often horse savers. Cold water should not be thrown on the animal. The use of pasture as work decreases will contribute to the animal's health.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY HAS 175 IN ATTENDANCE

Home Economics Groups Exhibit Attractive Projects

About 175 members and guests of the Isosco Home Economics Extension Groups held their first annual Achievement Day at the Community Building in East Tawas on Thursday.

Sixty-seven rugs were on display showing a part of the work done in the home furnishings project this year. Other exhibits showing groupings of furniture and beauty in color and furniture arrangement were displayed, making one of the finest and most attractive county exhibits this year.

Members registered at 10 o'clock with Mrs. August Lorenz in charge. The short morning program was opened with everyone singing America, led by Mrs. J. Johnson and accompanied by Mrs. Giddings. Mrs. Victor Herriman presided as county chairman and first introduced W. L. Finley, county agent, who explained very well the farm program in Isosco county and how it helps the farmer.

L. H. Rhodes, district club agent, discussed the 4-H club program in Isosco county. Alice Hertzler, as well as the county agent, congratulated the members on their fine cooperation in the work this year. Two hundred fourteen members from 12 groups were enrolled in the project this year. Seventy-nine rugs were reported made from old clothing by these members with 22 of these being hooked rugs. One especially attractive rug was woven from burlap and made by Mrs. Lilliquist of Wilber, who is 78 years of age.

The home furnishings project will be continued next year in Isosco county as announced by the home agent.

Farm Women's Week at Michigan State College will be held July 23-29 for all farm women interested in attending. Total expense for the week is $6.00. Reservations must be made with Mr. Finley or Miss Hertzler by July 1 to be assured of space in the dormitory.

A very tasty luncheon was served by the M. E. Ladies Aid after which the women convened for the afternoon program. At 1:30 the Tawas City band opened the meeting with several numbers. Frank Davis of the Eastern Michigan Tourist Association, talked on the subject "What the Tourist Season Means to Us," bringing out two points, first, to develop Michigan products; second, to familiarize ourselves with the interests within our own country and enable ourselves and our children to give directions correctly to points of tourists' interest.

All enjoyed the vocal selections by the chorus from the East Tawas high school. The feature of the afternoon was an illustrated talk by Mrs. Janice Zettel of West Branch, who spent two years in the Philippines and China. She showed beautiful linens embroidered by the Chinese as well as other interesting pieces of jewelry, hats, dolls, et cetera. Native costumes of China, Japan, Philippines and Hawaii were modeled by Shirley Milton, Beverley DeGrow, Josephine Carey, Majorie Soderquist, Kathryn Moss and Clare LaBerge.

In appreciation for the cooperation in the project, the women decorated with small sweet pea corsages. The leaders who successfully carried on this work were, Whittemore, Mrs. J. W. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Mid-June Adjournment Fought By Congressional 'Peace Bloc'; All-Summer Session Forecast

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Copyright, 1939.

CONGRESS: Three Months to Go?

Long congressional sessions handicap U. S. business, but self-esteeming legislators also think their presence in Washington helps stop an impulsive President from sticking his foot into Europe's pie. When Alabama's Sen. John Bankhead offered a resolution scrapping controversial legislation to guarantee June 15 adjournment, there were enough objections to constitute a very vocal "peace bloc." Retorted Texas Sen. Tom Connally: "Congress ought to stay right here . . . until all danger of involving the United States in war has disappeared . . . No one can determine the question of war or peace but congress, and I know the people do not want war."

But war is only one of several major issues confronting a congress which did little during its first four months, and which cannot hope to adjourn with anything like a good record before mid-August. Problems, and their status:

Defense. Neutrality and armament are No. 1 issues of the No. 1 problem. After weeks of testimony, senate and house investigators seem compromised on the administration's "cash and carry" neutrality to permit arms sales to warring nations. Probable modifications: (1) elimination of a clause forcing the President to invoke neutrality within 30 days; (2) insertion of a clause permitting continued shipping to outskirts of a belligerent's territory if outside the danger zone. Since England and France would control the Atlantic in wartime, thus being enabled to pay cash and carry off U. S. arms, the bill would subtly answer Reichsfuehrer Hitler's snub of President Roosevelt. But Japan, Hitler's friend, could control the Pacific, which neutralizes the effect of neutrality.

Defense attention focuses on aviation, the President asking congress for $206,502,500 to expand the army's air corps and bolster Panama canal fortifications. Meanwhile, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has urged immediate expansion of aviation research facilities, in which the U. S. now trails Germany, Britain, Italy and France. As a result, congress will probably get requests for more aviation funds.

A third defense proposal: Nevada's Sen. Key Pittman urges extension of the U. S. coastal boundary from three to twelve miles, thereby facilitating resistance to an enemy blockade.

Social Security. Recommendations of the house ways and means committee, headed by North Carolina's Rep. Robert L. Doughton: (1) a top limit of $3,000 wages subject to payroll contributions for unemployment compensation; (2) reduction of 3 per cent unemployment compensation tax in states which have built adequate reserve funds; (3) payment of old age annuities starting in 1940 instead of 1942; (4) liberalization of U. S. grants for aid to dependent children, creating a 50-50 contributory status; (5) exemption from social security of students and nominally paid employees of non-profit organizations. Total estimated annual saving to industry and labor via the Doughton program: $825,000,000.

Taxation. Adjournment-bound Sen. Alben W. Barkley predicts tax revision would necessitate an all-summer session, moreover says it will do business no particular good to be kept in suspense about new tax possibilities. His forecast: "That the house will simply extend 'nuisance' taxes and the undivided profits levy, the latter expiring this year and currently yielding about $56,000,000. This brought retort from Mr. Doughton, whose ways and means committee has not abandoned hope of general tax revision. The problem: President Roosevelt and his cohorts have agreed not to shift the load from large shoulders to small ones, also that federal revenues cannot be reduced. The only solution: Reshuffle taxes on big corporations.

Relief. Rebel Democrats and all Republicans are fighting the President's 1940 relief budget of $1,750,000,000, partly for economy's sake and partly because the White House insists on keeping WPA intact. Under several pending bills, WPA would be abolished and much of the relief load returned to states.

Labor Act. Modifications in the Wagner act to pacify business were promised before the U. S. Chamber of Commerce by Nebraska's Sen. Edmund Burke. By early May, almost a month of committee hearings had netted nothing not already known: (1) That A. F. of L. and business oppose the present act; (2) that C. I. O. favors it.

Railroads. Though it is a major economic problem which almost caused a national crisis last fall until legislative reform promises stilled an employer-employee squabble, rail rehabilitation is well buried in committee. Some think the issue may be compromised in the interest of a shorter session.

EUROPE:

Appeasement Again

Moons may come and go before the world knows exactly why Russian Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff "retired" at the crucial moment of Anglo-French-Soviet solidarity conversations. But there is every reason to believe French-British treachery is responsible. The argument:

Russia sought an all-embracing military alliance with the two democracies, meaning all three must march if Adolf Hitler carried out his threat to occupy Danzig in defiance of the Poles. But Britain and France have never opposed German occupation of Danzig; indeed a growing appeasement bloc (allegedly including Prime Minister Chamberlain) has hoped the Reich would satisfy its thirst by taking Danzig. Thus the broadest pact France and Britain would offer Russia was a series of unilateral guarantees to Poland and Rumania, the Soviet to aid only if the other two powers had already gone to the assistance of those countries. Hence it was obvious that Anglo-French offers were hesitant, half-hearted and a product of necessity rather than desire.

Maxim Litvinoff's release was the answer. Litvinoff is part Jew, hated by Germany for his anti-Nazi and pro-League of Nations beliefs. His successor, 49-year-old Premier Vyacheslav Molotov, is a military-minded No. 1 aide to Joseph Stalin. Thus, the development Paris and London fear most becomes significantly possible: A Russo-German alliance which would dominate all Europe. Since Dictator Stalin recently charged capitalistic powers are trying to force Germany and Russia into a needless war, and since Hitler's latest speech lacked its usual strong attack on the Soviet, this possibility is the more important.

VYACHESLAV MOLOTOFF

Adding to democratic woe is the Reich's notable success in neutralizing all Scandinavia and the Baltic states. Though Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden will probably refuse non-aggression pacts as superfluous, these countries have given neutrality assurances and thus helped crack the "encirclement" ring which Britain and France thought they had thrown around the Reich. Lithuania's neutrality was guaranteed at the time Memel went back to Germany, and other tiny Baltic states (Estonia and Latvia) are expected to fall in line.

In the Balkans, collapse of Russian-English negotiations would leave anti-Nazi Rumania, Greece and Turkey insecure, probably forcing them into the German sphere of influence. Observers believe the outcome may now be German occupation of Danzig in return for territorial integrity guarantees to all the Reich's neighbors, which is exactly what Hitler offered in his Reichstag speech.

BUSINESS:

Chamber Complains

Early this spring President Roosevelt declined a bid to address the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention, knowing full well his New Deal would be hung in effigy. The President's idea was right; after five days of speech-making during which New York's New Dealish Rep. Sol Bloom was booted from the dinner table because he said business men should be glad to pay taxes for the privilege of living in a free country, the schism between White House and Big Business was wider than ever.

Keynoted Chamber President George H. Davis, Kansas City grain man: "It seems that the greatest concern is to create divisions between groups, to incite discord between management and worker, antagonism between 'Haves' and 'Have-Nots.'"

"Divisions . . . discord . . . antagonism."

Followed Hugh S. Magill of Chicago, president of the American Federation of Investors: "I am convinced that the great body of prudent, hard-working men and women for whom I would speak are refusing to put their dollars to work because they know from experience that when debts are incurred they must be paid if credit is to be maintained."

A good sample of several "programs" which chambermen will offer direct to congress, stepping over the President, was the five-point plan of Chairman John W. O'Leary of the executive committee: (1) remove "uncertainties" caused by superfluous government control; (2) revise disension-creating labor laws; (3) revise tax laws to follow the rule of revenue purposes rather than reform; (4) stop needless spending "to bring approach" to a balanced budget; (5) modify restrictive laws to restore flow of capital.

Chambermen presented their plans to congress over the banquet table. Announced at the convention opened was a series of 26 dinners in which representatives of various branches of industry laid their complaints directly before well-fed congressmen and senators.

PEOPLE:

Latest Chapter

Most thoroughly bandied-about international rumor the past two years has been that the duke and duchess of Windsor would either return to England or visit the U. S., probably both. Latest chapter: On leaving a Paris showing of the American movie "Wuthering Heights," the duke was overheard to tell Son James Roosevelt: "Well, we will be seeing you in New York."

POLITICS:

Farley Forecast Verified

A master politician, Jim Farley called the turn in 1936 when hopeless Republicans carried but two states in the presidential election. Recently the master spoke again, warning his Democratic colleagues that 1940 will bring a hard fight and that no landslide may be expected. Verification of the Farley forecast came but a few days later when the American Institute of Public Opinion, headed by Dr. George Gallup, polled the nation to discover that 52 per cent expect Republicans to win in 1940.

Trend

How the wind is blowing . . .

MONEY—Income payments to U. S. individuals during 1939's first quarter totaled $16,105,000,000, an increase of 2 per cent over 1938's comparable period aggregate of $15,788,000,000.

RELIEF—WPA plans to cut 900,000 from relief rolls this summer to compensate for next fiscal year's reduced budget. Total expected clientele on June 30, 1940: 1,500,000.

NAMES—Smiths, 418,000 strong, head "first 50 families" on social security rolls, followed by Johnsons, Browns, Williamses, Millers and Joneses in order.

DRINK—U. S. coffee consumption is gaining at expense of cocoa and tea, 1938 imports reaching record volume of 1,987,127,018 pounds while cocoa dropped from 619,050,789 pounds in 1937 to 453,096,547 pounds in 1938. Tea import for 1937: 95,000,000 pounds; for 1938: 81,372,424 pounds.

Ear Specialists Now Measure Hearing Ability

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

WHEN one finds his eyesight failing, he does not hesitate to consult an optometrist or an eye specialist, to find just how much assistance is needed to bring his eyes up to normal vision. And this has been the case for many years.

When one finds his hearing impaired and is told by the ear specialist that nothing can be done from the treatment standpoint to restore the hearing, instead of seeking a hearing aid, as one does an eyesight aid (glasses), the hard-of-hearing individual tries to get along without the aids as he is ashamed to let his friends or acquaintances know that he is hard of hearing. This of course may be necessary in some cases as loss of employment might follow the discovery of his hearing defect.

It is certainly gratifying, however, to see that our hard-of-hearing friends, recognizing that impaired hearing should really be compared with impaired eyesight in that both need help or aid, are now more willing to use these aids.

Hearing Aids Increase. What is just as gratifying is to know that not only can the degree and range of hearing be measured with the new instrument—the audiometer—but the type of hearing aid to suit the various types of hearing defects can now be obtained.

Just as the optometrist measures the exact seeing ability and fits the glasses in the proper position, so can the ear specialist, after measuring the hearing ability, fit the right type of hearing aid to the patient. Sometimes the hearing aid is adjusted to the outer ear and the hearing is improved by magnifying the sound striking the eardrum in the usual manner, or by adjustment to the bone behind the ear from which sound goes to the inner ear and to the brain.

Valuable help on selecting hearing aids for those hard of hearing may be obtained by writing the American Society for the Hard of Hearing, 1528 Northwest Thirty-fifth street, Washington, D. C., enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Maintain Good Health

By Visits to Doctor

Most of us believe that the greatest asset or gift in life is to have good health. To have brains, ambition, money, all give life more fullness but cannot make up for poor health and a weak body.

If, then, good health is the greatest human asset, no one can be blamed for trying to attain and maintain good health. Regular visits to the physician, the dentist, the oculist and optometrist should be in the life plan of everybody.

On the other hand, there are some who appreciate good health but are so concerned about it that they worry constantly lest they lose it. These are the individuals who think and worry so much about health that they tire themselves physically and mentally; they are called neurotics. Socrates said that there is nothing in the world that so hinders us in making a proper demand on life as an exaggerated worry over our bodies.

Be Thoughtful, Not Anxious.

The point of course is that there should be thought, not anxiety, about our bodies, because an aching tooth or stomach, an infected tonsil, the sluggishness of the liver that manufactures insufficient bile and fails to remove poisons from the blood, the slowness of the gall bladder in emptying bile into the small intestine, can each so alter the thoughts of the mind and the actions of the body that we are not our real or true selves and our own life and the lives of those around us become changed.

Being anxious or worried, which is really a condition of chronic fear, not only fails to help but can, as Professor Cannon of Harvard has shown, cause real organic ailments in the body. This does not mean that you should not think of the body and its needs but that you should think of these needs in a constructive way—common sense in diet, common sense in sleep, and common sense in exercise.

Common sense about food or sleep is reflected in your weight. If you can keep your weight to within five pounds of the ideal for the shape of your body (length and width of trunk, not total height) you are fulfilling the body's needs and helping to lessen or prevent infection or other ailments due to underweight and overweight.

In regard to the third need of the body—exercise—we have but to remember Gladstone's comment, "All time and money spent in training the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

Parents 'Matched' to Babies At Evanston's Famous Cradle

Celebration of child health day, May 1, and boys and girls week, May 1 to 8, focuses attention on the Cradle, famed institution at Evanston, Ill., where in 15 years Mrs. William B. Walrath has cared for 3,000 babies deprived of their natural parents.

Picture Parade

Above, Mrs. Walrath, assisted by the chauffeur of a friend of the Cradle, brings a week-old girl from a maternity center to the home. Six thousand applications are on file, but they are filled with the greatest of care. Parents must meet social, personal and economic requirements. Foster parents are told only that their child is normal, that the natural parents are free of disease, that babies are "matched" to adopting parents as to racial, national and religious background, and that in the Cradle the baby has had scientific care.

Above, Mrs. Walrath's daughter, Gretchen, reviews in detail with a Kenosha, Wis., manufacturer and his wife, who have come to adopt a child, their original application filed several months before, making certain that conditions remain unchanged.

Above, the adopting parents see their child, who greets them with lusty howls since she has just been awakened from a sleep. But the crying soon subsided. Left, on the second floor of the Cradle's two buildings are special nurseries for 25 to 35 babies. Each crib is partitioned off by glass.

A nurse delivers the baby in the living room and the new father and mother, tears and smiles appearing together, take over. Beside the mother is Mrs. Walrath. The infant now has parents, a six-year-old brother, and a home on Wisconsin's Lake Michigan, its future happiness quite well assured in a better-than-average American home.

Adopting mothers may buy baby clothing at the Cradle.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—In the village of Woodbury, Ky., the son of a Czecho-Slovakian immigrant was commended by his teachers for his excellent drawings of ships at sea. He had never seen any big ships, but liked them and had a good idea of what they looked like. Today, tooling the United States fleet of around 300 ships down into the Pacific, Admiral Claude Charles Bloch has converted his youthful artistic urge into a vast and precise knowledge of ships and their behavior—particularly fighting ships.

Erect, ruddy and vigorous, quietly emphatic, the 60-year-old commander-in-chief of the fleet is a rarely spotlighted personage of tremendous responsibilities—technical, naval and administrative—as he quietly moves from Norfolk, not only his vast array of battle wagons, but 60,000 officers and men, nearly 1,000 planes and all the gear necessary for maintenance, operation, communications and fighting requirements.

On July 3, 1898, not long out of Annapolis, he was an ensign on the Iowa when Cervera's squadron of Spanish warships made its historic dash from Santiago harbor and was destroyed by Admiral Sampson's blocking forces. He was cited for "meritorious service" in rescuing Spaniards from burning ships of Admiral Cervera's squadron. In the World war, he commanded the transport Plattsburg and won the navy cross for distinguished service. During his 42 years' service on land and sea, he has held many high posts in the navy.

As a boy, the churning was his household chore. His brothers, now Louisville physicians, recall that he used to study his Latin book while churning and that he paced the "amo, amas, amat" to the beat of the plunger. They teased him about that and always found him ready for a fight if the provocation was sufficient. At any rate, studious, reticent and artistic, he followed his boyhood dream over far seas.

THE title of this particular article may well be the effective slogan of the modern world and the end of war if the words of Dr. Robert A. Millikan are to be taken at their face value. Addressing a dinner of the Merchants association in New York recently, the famous physicist said:

"It was the fear of the bombing of London and Paris that prevented the beginning of another World War last September. The peoples of all countries, including the dictatorships, are coming more and more to the realization that such another war can only bring death and destruction to everybody—the end of civilization, not the world domination which the demagogic leader promises."

All Greek mathematicians to the contrary, Dr. Millikan believes that Achilles will overtake the turtle. That is, feet-footed science has just about caught up with human stupidity, in spite of the latter's long head-start, and, with its command of new energies will romp on by into the "world of tomorrow," where there will be no war or rumors of war.

Dr. Millikan is possibly the world's most persistent champion of the social salvation inherent in scientific advance, and believes that his runner will break the tape ahead of "international wickedness, stupidity and folly." He believes that machines make jobs, rather than destroy them, and that the only way out is straight ahead.

Every once in a while he parachutes down from the stratosphere companionship of Einstein, Planck, Heisenberg et al, to bring a message to the market place—always hopeful, and usually a roundhouse swing at the demagogues and meddlers who cramp the scientists' style.

He leaves wide open a zone of Divine intervention if anything goes wrong in the laboratories.

A Nobel prize winner, chairman of the executive council of the California Institute of Technology, Dr. Millikan is an active liaison between the lay and scientific worlds, assuring both that everything will come out all right. Garnering many medals and prizes, enjoying world fame, he would have a lot to lose in a world crack-up. But his optimism is doubtless no mere "wishful thinking."

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Prosperity: In one of Fifth avenue's largest stores, noticed a perfume set, just over from Paris, with doors which slide open and reveal three tiny vials of liquid almost as costly as molten gold. Was informed that French chemists experimented for two years with 800 oils and essences to perfect the perfume and that an American designer worked equally hard to create a container resembling a dream tower from Arabian Nights with gold and crystal columns and imitation marble base in pastel shades of blue, rose and mauve and which, when closed, may be locked with a little gold key. Not being a perfume addict, the writer's interest in the gadget is purely academic but it does seem to indicate that at least one merchant believes that the days of expensive luxuries have returned—and that women will buy costly things if they have an eye appeal.

Opportunity: A few years ago, scientists, equipped with a decibel machine, toured the city and found that the town's noisiest spot was that fifth of an acre open space where Broadway and Sixth avenue come together between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-second streets. Nothing was done about the matter until recently when the Sixth avenue elevated was torn down. With no more trains pounding overhead, the noise has decreased noticeably. Possibly that is why the plot, known as Herald and Greeley squares, is to be improved with plane trees and the return of Huff and Gruff, the two bell ringers, presided over by Minerva, goddess of wisdom, perched on a pylon made of granite salvaged from the old post office building. At least the labors of Huff and Gruff, imported by the late James Gordon Bennett, who tolled the hours for 28 years atop the Herald building, may now be heard.

Jewels: These are New York's gems, according to songstress Joan Edwards, whose favorite gem, by the way, is the ruby:

Emerald: The green of the grass in Central park come summer.

Garnet: Geraniums in the windows of tenements.

Sapphire: The blue of the sky just before dawn as seen between skyscrapers.

Ruby: The flashing stop signal of traffic lights.

Diamond: The sparkling crystal of rain on the street during a sun shower.

Pearl: The silvery, fleecy clouds of a still summer day.

Topaz: The yellow of the sun's rays as they are redirected from the heights of tall buildings.

Woof-Woof: The Dog Walkers Club of America, at its annual "Bow-Wow-Pow-Wow," decided to hold a national contest to select the "glamour dog of 1939." A "glamour dog" was defined as one that has canine "it" irrespective of birth, breeding or blue ribbons. The winner and its owner will be the guest of the club in New York during dog days, it was announced, and will be feted, petted and photographed. No fee is required and any dog owner may enter his pet by submitting a 200-word summary of qualifications and a snapshot to Dog Walkers, Room 1612, 22 East Fortieth street. On the judges committee are Lowell Thomas, Tony Sarg, Jack Dempsey, Lew Lehr, Robert L. Ripley, Roscoe Turner, Captain Bob Bartlett, James E. Knox and F. Darius Benham. Mr. Benham organized the Dog Walkers club three years ago. The only membership qualification is a dog, a leash and a muzzle.

Manhattan: A customer on the fourth floor of a department store furtively drops a dress on the floor, steps on it and then calls a clerk. "Tell me," she asks with a winning smile, "how much will you mark this garment down—it's a trifle soiled." . . . Two stout women stand over a man in a crowded subway car. "It's a wonder," snaps one quite audibly, "that a gentleman wouldn't get up and give us seats. It would be a kind deed." "Good deed," echoes the man who is no giant. "If you two women could sit down if I got up, it would be a miracle."

Steinmetz Home Is White Elephant for N. Y. State

SCHENECTADY.—Officials of the New York conservation department are uncertain what to do with the home of the late Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, famed physicist and electrical wizard. The estate, filled with electrical formulas, copiously penciled notebooks, crude machinery and broken models used by the eminent scientist, is a "white elephant" to the department.

It was first purchased for a memorial by a civic committee through contributions of school children, engineers and philanthropists. The committee, without funds to develop the project further, gave the property to the state.

Of a dozen suggestions, the most fitting, according to the officials, was to petition engineering and scientific societies searching for a "home." History and scientific achievement associated with the massive brownstone house were thought to make it ideal as headquarters for an engineering group.

Census-Taking In Full Swing

Eight Months' Preparation Needed for Task of Counting Noses.

WASHINGTON.—Without benefit of ballyhoo, the 1940 census has been under way eight months.

Toward the end of last summer, Clarence A. Batchelet started it. Batchelet is a geographer at the census bureau. He started it by writing letters to various local officials.

As the replies came in, he built up a new map of census districts to fit the boundary changes that had been made by local agencies since 1930.

For the census must supply a statistical measurement designed to fit all local and federal needs during the next ten years. It must take into account congressional districts, district boundaries, city ward lines, city limits, judicial districts, counties, election districts and the other small units which fit into the national map.

Fine for Politicians. The figures must be so arranged that if a politician wants to know how many voters are in his district, he can simply glance at the census figures and go right out to the printer and order his campaign stationery.

After Batchelet began piecing his districts into a national map, the census bureau started to work on the series of questions that will make this coming nose-counting the most comprehensive the country has had.

Not only will an effort be made to find out how many persons live in the United States, but census experts want to know exactly where they live, what they are doing, how they are living, how old they are, how much money they make, and a lot of other information.

Need 140,000 Counters. After questions are worked out, an estimate of the cost is made and the plan is put before congress for approval. Then comes the selection of 140,000 enumerators and a denational blast of criticism about the fact that they are chosen through political channels.

The figures gathered by the enumerators are checked and rechecked by statisticians. The year and a half of preparation that goes into the census sets up a machine which does the job of collecting and tabulating the figures in about 30 days.

After that, the statisticians and economists begin to wring all sorts of facts out of them. The constitutional purpose that the census serves is to provide congress with the knowledge of where the citizens live, so that representation in congress may be shuffled among the states to conform.

Source of Stone Used by Delaware Indians Found

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Archeologists have discovered what they believe is the source of many of the kitchen and fighting implements of the Delaware Indians.

C. A. Weslager and Archibald Crozier, officials of the Delaware Archeological society, have uncovered a soapstone quarry near Christiansa, Pa., where they believe the implements were "manufactured."

Although many Indian relics of this stone, known as steatite, have been found in New Castle county, their origin was a mystery. No deposits of the stone, prized by the Indians, have been found in Delaware.

Weslager and Crozier found seven pits with the assistance of Harry Wilson, a West Chester, Pa., antiquarian, who knew the location through geological surveys.

Stone picks and chisels were found at the site, together with portions of vessels and fragments bearing marks of Stone age tools. Specimens were collected for laboratory study.

5,000th Language Goes in Collection of Librarian

CLEVELAND.—"Mud is your best food; eat more of it" or—in the original Orinoco language—"Mumesechecoco vexia egussa cagua," was the slogan of a rare-food dinner attended by executives and staff members of the Cleveland public library in celebration of Koko of the Congo, the 5,000th language to be added to the library's John C. White collection.

Income Tax 3 Cents, No Change for Nickel

BUTTE, MONT.—The government demanded its three cents due, but refused to take a two-cent tip in a minor income tax drama here.

A citizen, after burning the midnight oil, appeared at the local internal revenue office.

"How much do I owe you?" he asked the deputy.

"Three cents," was the reply.

A smile lighted the face of the citizen. "Here," he said, "take this nickel. You can keep the change."

"Sorry, sir, but I can't take a tip," said the deputy. "And I have no change."

The taxpayer went out and came back with a three-cent stamp which was accepted.

Student Weavers, Dressmakers Stage Fashion Show

Student spinners, weavers, designers and dressmakers of North Carolina co-operate once a year in presenting a cotton style show at the State college in Raleigh. Men students in the college's textile school, largest in America, plan the fabrics, select patterns and dyes, comb yarn, make the threads, then weave the fabric on looms. Then the material is delivered to students from nine girls' schools, who design and manufacture all types of garments. The finished product is shown at the State college style show. Left: Yarn as it goes through the comb, one of the first steps. Center: College girls measuring and manufacturing the various garments. Right: The completed garment being modeled.

Harvard Student Upsets Girls' Hoop-Rolling Derby

Edward C. K. Reed of Villanova, Pa., president of the Harvard Lampoon, disguised himself as a girl and won the traditional Wellesley senior class hoop-rolling contest on the college campus in Wellesley, Mass. Reed is shown emerging from icy Lake Waban where he was tossed by the angry girls. The ducking occurred after Reed coyly accepted a bouquet of sweet peas and bashfully pointed out another Harvard youth as the "fiancee" he would soon wed. Traditionally, the winners of the hoop-rolling race will be the first of her class to marry.

Newsmen View New Low Priced Car

A new low-priced, two-cylinder car, designed for a top speed of 50 miles per hour and a fuel consumption of 50 miles to the gallon, was recently previewed by newspaper men at the Indianapolis speedway. The car, which will sell for a $350 top price, is only 10 feet long, weighs 925 pounds, has a gas tank of four-gallon capacity and the crankcase holds only two quarts of oil. The engine is air cooled.

'Worthless' Outchews Goldfish Eaters

"Worthless," a South American cuscus, who looks something like an American opossum, enjoys his favorite food at a Los Angeles animal hospital. He is swallowing an American Beauty rose, after the manner of goldfish eaters. "Worthless" is dappled brown with a white tail.

CHIEF OF STAFF

Brig. Gen. George S. Marshall, appointed by President Roosevelt to succeed Gen. Malin Craig as chief of staff of the army when the latter retires in August. The new chief of staff is a native of Uniontown, Pa., and rose from the ranks.

QUEEN OF COTTON

Lovely Alice Hall, 19, of Memphis, Tenn., King Cotton's 1939 "Maid of Cotton," has brought new acclaim to the South's white gold in a nationwide crusade which has taken her to 22 cities. Her visits with celebrities, appearance in style shows, in which she modeled smart cotton garments, and radio broadcasts told the story of cotton to the nation.

FARM TOPICS

URGES RUBBER TIRES FOR FARM TRACTORS

Work Faster, Rutgers Researchers Find.

By E. R. GROSS
The rubber tire constitutes one more step in the progress of farm machinery. It costs about the same to operate a tractor at part load as at full load, and tractors on rubber tires work faster, more economically and last longer than they do on steel, it has been determined by tests at Rutgers university.

Farm machinery and wagons also have lighter draft on rubber. The rubber tire increases the effectiveness of the machine and the operator by making it possible to do more work in less time and with less wear and tear.

The farmer is interested in tractor use because it is cheaper to feed a tractor during the time of operation than to feed horses all the time. This is one of the reasons why tractors have superseded horses to so great an extent. Other reasons include: The tractor conserves man time; it does not need to rest at night; it can work in extreme summer heat; it reduces farm chores; it requires little attention when not working. These things the farmer recognized and appreciated as soon as he learned that he could place dependence in the tractor.

The tractor is being improved steadily. Additional operating speeds and rubber tires are among the important improvements made so far. The tractor will travel faster with less slippage and will pull more with less fuel on rubber tires than on steel rims with lugs. This is a general statement but conditions vary so much for different jobs that one cannot reduce it to an exact per cent of extra power and fuel or time saved.

Rubber tires are also being used on other farm machines and wagons. They reduce draft and make it possible to pull heavier loads with the same power. The rubber tire has opened new possibilities of tractor loading, using the right size machine, combinations of machines and selecting proper operating speeds. The greater use of high gear for field operations and for hauling on the road is now recognized. So, with rubber-tired tractors, farm machines and wagons, the farmer can work faster, save time and fuel and, at the same time, reduce the jolting and strain on equipment generally increasing its life.

American Oats Output Exceeds Other Nations

The United States' oats crop, like our corn crop, far outranks that of any other nation in the world. According to reports of the United States department of agriculture the American oats crop for 1937 totaled 1,146,258,000 bushels. This was 38.56 per cent of the world total of 4,429,000,000 bushels.

In the drought year of 1936 the United States produced 785,506,000 bushels, or 19.4 per cent of the world crop of 4,043,000,000 bushels. In the preceding year domestic production reached 1,194,902,000 bushels, or 39.4 per cent of the world crop of 4,715,000,000 bushels.

Other leading oats producing countries in 1937 were Germany, with 404,304,000 bushels; France, 313,987,000 bushels; Canada, 291,622,000; Poland, 166,034,000; United Kingdom, 165,000,000; Czechoslovakia, 94,545,000; Sweden, 86,475,000; Argentina, 48,915,000, and Finland, 46,159,000. Accurate figures on the Russian oats crop are not available but it is generally considered to be among the largest.

In bushels produced the oats crop ranked second to corn, which totaled 5,050,000,000 bushels. The other principal crops were wheat, barley, and rye in that order.

Hard Corns on Fowls

Hard corns may be seen upon the feet of many old fowls without appearing to cause the bird any inconvenience. When abscesses form through infection, however, the condition may be more serious. The commonly advised curative measure, says the Rural New-Yorker, is to open the abscess freely, flush out the cavity with some simple disinfectant, and place the affected bird upon soft, clean litter. Joint abscesses may be caused by tubercular infection of the joint, when no treatment is indicated except to get rid of the possible carrier of the infection to healthy fowls.

Farm Population

Farms continue to be the chief sources of increased population in the United States. More than 719,000 babies were born on farms during 1937, and 341,000 of the farm population died. This leaves a net increase of 378,000 persons. In addition to this number, 288,000 more people moved from farms to town than those that moved in the other direction. The net increase in farm population in 1937 was, therefore, 90,000 persons.

Dr. Hasty dressed the hand, and Mr. Streeter was taken to West Branch where he remained until Sunday. The men had finished their work and Glenwood was cleaning the machine when his mitten caught and drew his hand into the shredder. His thumb was badly mangled, but no bones were broken and unless infection sets in it will not be necessary to amputate.

Sunday morning s'mbers were rudely shattered by the fire siren at 5 a. m. when a call from Long Lake sent the department to Kokosing resort where the hotel owned by John Mortenson burned to the ground. One of the oldest buildings at the resort, it was constructed of concrete, and boasted a beautiful fireplace of field stone, and many of the best known and most able ministers in the country have preached in the foyer when the Christian Outing Association of Michigan, Ohio and Indiana owned the resort. The cause of the fire is unknown, the resort had been closed for the winter and Mr. and Mrs. Mortenson were in Wisconsin for a short visit with relatives, expecting to open the hotel on their return. It would not be fair to slight the fire-ladies, who turned out in pajamas and bathrobes at the sound of the siren, and made the run with their husbands despite the early hour and loss of beauty sleep.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy DeLand and son, and Mrs. Deo Schofield of Toledo, Ohio, were called here by the death of Mrs. N. H. DeLand.

"I shan't have lunch with Mr. Buchanan and talk things over," Mary thought bitterly as she slowly sipped the water. "There's no use in that. There's nothing to talk over! I've tried for years to be an author, and I've failed. My writing one story that was worthy of acceptance was evidently just an accident. There's only one thing left to do now, and no matter how repugnant and cheap and vile, I'll simply have to do it. I'll marry Jerome Taylor. Perhaps Aunt Linnie was right all along! At least, it's the only way out—to save my family."

She had an engagement for dinner and the theater with Jerome Taylor that evening. He would "make love" to her sometime during the evening. He always did. He would tell her how beautiful she was, and how he never tired looking at her; and he would ask her, if she didn't care for him "just a little bit." She had always evaded this question, or else answered, "Why, of course, Jerry, you know I like you very much," in a manner so definitely platonic that it forthwith brought the topic to a close.

She dressed with unusual care, wearing, as she had for that first dinner at Jerome's penthouse, her frock of silver and white; pinning, as she had also done on that night, his superb orchids high on her left shoulder. And again, as on the evening of their first dinner together, she wore Lelia's ermine wrap. Casting one last glance at herself in the mirror before going to the living room to greet him, she smiled with bitter approval. "Yes," she told herself with acerbity, "I look just what I am—a glorified gold-digger—orchids, ermine cape, and all!"

Jerome rose hastily from a chair as she entered the room. "Mary!" he exclaimed at sight of her. "My dear, you're more beautiful tonight than I've ever seen you!" And, lifting her hand to his lips, he kissed it.

She did not withdraw it immediately, although the touch of his lips on her hand made her cringe. She must not be aloof, as she heretofore had been with this man. She must pretend that she liked him. She must bring on a proposal to-night—tonight.

He evidently noticed the change in her, for they were hardly settled in his car before he again sought her hand and held it. She did not attempt to draw it away, although she felt as if it were imprisoned in the claw of a large eagle. "This is part of the business of getting engaged," she scathingly informed herself. "I'll have to grin and bear it. It's—it's all in the day's work!"

"You're—different tonight, darling," Jerome was saying in that purring, tender voice she hated. "And, my dear, I've never seen you quite so beautiful. That coronet braid around your lovely little head makes you look like a queen! You do like me, don't you, dear? Somehow, tonight, I feel..."

But Lorgan, the chauffeur, was pulling up at the curb in front of the Waldorf, and the uniformed doorman was opening the door of the car.

Thankful that the drive was at an end, Mary withdrew her hand from Jerome's clasp, and slipped on a long white glove. "That's over—for a while," she told herself, an imperceptible shudder going over her body.

It was not over for long, however. Jerome Taylor, warmed by her apparent encouragement, waited only until after their entree had been served to begin again. His eyes, no longer quizzical, held a new glow of sanguinity; his voice had lowered to a new note of fervor. "Mary," he began as soon as the waiter had left their table, "I believe you're beginning to like me just a bit after all this time. How about it, dear? You know I've been simply mad about you ever since the first day I saw you."

"Have you really?" Mary countered. And then, desperately forcing herself, "I'm—I'm glad, Jerry."

The man placed his fork on the side of his dinner plate. "Darling, how can you ask? You certainly have known it all along. You're the sweetest and the loveliest and the most beautiful thing I've ever seen. And, Mary, I want you always."

Eventually, she raised her eyes to the man, and forced a smile to her lips. Jerome, wrapped in his own thoughts, saw nothing amiss in her long silence; that cynical twist to her lips. "Darling," he was saying, and now he had pushed aside his untouched food, and lighted a cigarette. "I want to take care of you always—give you the rare jewels that only you are suited to wear; the exquisite clothes you should have to accentuate your beauty. We'll travel everywhere, Mary—see everything—do everything there is to be done! I'll always be proud of you. So very proud of you!"

her lips, she sat there; now lifting her goblet of water to her mouth; now sipping some water; now placing the goblet back on the table.

Jerry, unmindful of the people about them, reached across the table and placed his hand over hers. "Darling, why not go down to Palm Beach with me tomorrow? My yacht's down there, you know, and..."

Mary glanced sharply across at him. "Tomorrow? But, Jerry, how in the world could we get married in such a short time?"

The man hastily relinquished her hand, and leaned back in his chair. The warm glow that had filled his narrow gray eyes disappeared. "My dear," he purred, "you seem to have misunderstood me."

Mary stared at him with incredulous eyes. "You weren't asking me to marry you?"

Jerome Taylor laughed. "What a provincial little thing you are! Why, everybody knows I'm not the marrying sort. But, my dear, there are so many things I can do for you..."

Mary felt for the cape which lay across the back of her chair, and with trembling fingers, pulled it over her shoulders. "You conceited old fool! I hate you! I've always hated you! I never want to see you again!" And grabbing her gloves and bag from the table, she rose from her chair.

As unperturbed as if she had told him she'd just remembered a telephone call she had to make, Taylor rose too, his sleek gray head inclining in a suave little bow. "Don't make a scene, my dear," he said in a low voice, his lips fixed in a smile. "Remember, we're in a public place. Besides, you're not exactly suited to melodrama, you know."

Mary flashed him an enraged look; then, with steps which she tried desperately to keep steady, made her way blindly through the tables, and out of the room to the lobby.

Eventually, she reached the door, and, in a voice that was still throaty with anger, asked the doorman to call for a taxi. She wondered if she had enough money in her bag to pay for the cab, but she was so dizzy with anger, she could not even bring herself to look.

"My dear, you're more beautiful tonight than I've ever seen you!"

She was whirling up the Avenue—away from Jerome Taylor—closer, closer to Aunt Linnie's apartment and the safety and security which it betokened. Now, the cab was pulling up before Aunt Linnie's apartment house. Mary glanced at the meter; then emptied her purse into the driver's hand.

She stepped to the curb, and ran across the canopied walk to the entrance door. Her head was down, and in her eagerness to get into the foyer, she did not see the man who was leaving it. He caught her arm in an attempt to prevent a collision; then, as they both came to an abrupt standstill, she looked up. "Why, Umberto!" she exclaimed. "I didn't see you!"

"That is quite evident, little Mary!" he replied with a smile. "I had just dropped in to call on you, and but now was leaving with a heavy heart."

"Mush! Mush! Mush!" thought Mary. "Why can't other men talk as sanely as Philip Buchanan?"

"You are back early, my beautiful!" Balianci continued, his hand still on her arm. "Is something wrong?"

"No, Umberto, I wanted—to come home."

ry!" she exclaimed. "I just told this gentleman you were out for the evening!"

"I changed my plans, Addie," Mary returned and, slipping Lelia's wrap from her shoulders, handed it to the woman. "Addie, I wonder if you'll make us some black coffee. I have a headache."

"Yes, ma'am, honey!" Addie replied. "I'll have some for you in just a few minutes."

Then, as Addie disappeared into the kitchen, Balianci came towards her. "Darling," he murmured in the honeyed tones that Mary loathed, "something has gone wrong with you! Something has hurt you! I can see it written on your lovely face. Tell Umberto, my sweet."

Mary glanced up into his somber eyes—eyes that were filled with compassion and pity. "It's nothing," she began in a voice that was husky with emotion. The ugly shock of Jerome Taylor's words had left her at last, but in its place there burned a blind rage against the man, and a fear for all things to come. "It's nothing," she repeated. And then, bursting into wild, uncontrollable sobs, she cried, "Oh, Umberto, it's everything! It's everything! Yes, something has hurt me terribly!"

And, quite without knowing how it happened, she found herself in his arms, his lips softly pressing her cheek, her head against his shoulder.

"Darling! Darling!" he was saying softly. "Cara mia, I love you!" And, for the moment, she felt safe, supremely secure in his arms. "Tell Umberto all about it, my sweet."

She shook her head. "No! No! No! I can never tell anyone!"

Taking a handkerchief from his pocket, he dried the tears on her face. "You've been crushed by something, my darling, and I could kill the beast who hurt you. Oh, Mary, my dear, I love you! I want to take care of you. I want you to be mine always, so that no one can ever hurt you again. Darling, will you marry me?"

"Oh, no, Umberto, I can't marry you! I don't want to marry anybody!" And then, with a badgering persistence, the thought, "But, I must marry somebody. I must do something!" again flooded her mind.

"Ah, darling," Umberto replied, touching his lips lightly to her eyes, "you say that tonight because you are upset by this dreadful something; but tomorrow, tomorrow, it will be different! Ah, feratasa, say you will consider it! Say I may leave you tonight with my heart warmed with the hope you will marry me soon."

Mary withdrew from his embrace, moving towards the fireplace, her cold hand against her throbbing forehead. "I—don't know, Umberto. Let's not talk about it tonight. Maybe..."

Balianci followed her. "Maybe?" he repeated softly. "Maybe! Oh, cara mia, that means you will make me the happiest man on earth!"

He attempted to take her in his arms again, but she pulled away, grateful to hear Addie approaching from the kitchen.

She had hardly finished pouring the coffee when a key could be heard turning in the latch of the entrance door. An instant later, Lelia Ormsby came into the room. Her eyes widened when she saw Mary sitting there with Count Balianci.

"Why, Mary!" she began. "What are you doing at home? I thought—"

Umberto jumped to his feet. "Mrs. Ormsby," he exclaimed, his dark eyes flashing, "congratulate me! I am the happiest man on earth! My lovely lady has promised to marry me!"

A look of consternation flashed across Lelia's face. "Why, what do you mean?"

"But just that!" Balianci returned, with a grandiose wave of his hand. "You will facilitate us, yes?"

Lelia moved towards the lounge where Mary sat, her gaze riveted on her coffee cup. "Mary," she demanded, "is this true? You're not really going to marry Count Balianci, are you?"

Mary could not look up, nor could she speak for a moment. "I—don't—know—Lelia," she finally replied in a remote voice. "Maybe I shall."

Lelia continued to regard the girl with eyes that were cold with unbelief. "Well," she said at last, and her voice was crisp, "I wish you both happiness. Perhaps Linnie

"I—don't know, Umberto. Let's not talk about it tonight."

Cotswell will be satisfied now. She'd sit in the lobby talking to the manager of the building. She'll be up here in a minute and you can break the joyous news to her. We were planning to go on to Club Torquay to join the Bascoms for a bit of roulette. No doubt, she'll want to make a party of it in celebration of this—ah—happy event."

"But that is wonderful!" cried Umberto. "I shall buy champagne, and everybody will drink a toast to my bride-to-be!"

Mary finally glanced up at Lelia. "You—you will come, Lelia?"

A pregnant silence followed—a silence in which Lelia snapped open a cigarette box that lay on the table beside the lounge, removed a cigarette and lighted it. "Yes," she finally said, "I'll go along."

CHAPTER XI

Aunt Linnie arrived on the scene a few minutes later. "Don't say anything!" Mary admonished Balianci and Lelia. "Please. Please!" And her voice was so importunate that they both nodded their acquiescence.

If Aunt Linnie felt any surprise at seeing Mary sitting in the living room with Balianci when she had supposed her to be at the theater with Jerome Taylor, her face did not betray her. "How nice to find you and Balianci here," she exclaimed. "Lelia and I are going to the Club Torquay to meet the Bascoms and play a bit of roulette. Will you join us?"

"Thanks so much," Balianci replied. "We'd love it."

"I'll change in a jiffy," Lelia was saying, as if from a great distance. "Will you excuse me for five minutes?"

Lelia appeared in but a moment, looking slender and lovely in a frock of flame-colored chiffon, and carrying over one arm her ermine wrap, and a black velvet coat with a white fox collar.

Elephants' Memories as Short as Their Tails, According to an Expert at Zoo

Experts at the zoological park in Brookfield are busy disputing time-honored fables about animals. You can forget the following, advises a Chicago United Press correspondent in the Detroit Free Press:

An elephant has a good memory. Monkeys like bananas. The humming bird has a small appetite. Beasts of the jungle are cruel.

In fact, name any of the popular beliefs about animals and Robert Bean, assistant director of the zoo, will give you a two to one bet that you're wrong. He and his assistants based their conclusions on observations.

The elephant, for example, has a memory no longer than his tail. Doctor Bean cited the case of Honey, a baby elephant which was rescued from starvation in the wilds of Africa by Christoph Schulz. Schulz brought the animal to Chicago and for months nursed it along on a bottle. He was absent from town for eight months and when he returned Honey gave him the snub; didn't remember him at all.

PAUL EVANGELIZES A PROVINCE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:1, 8-10; 20:17-21; Ephesians 2:19-22. GOLDEN TEXT—But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.—Ephesians 2:13.

The Christian Church (that great organization which outwardly represents in the world the mystical organism which is the true Church) seems to be "stalled," if we may borrow a word from the automobilist. Just like a well-designed and carefully built machine which has "died" on the road.

Perhaps the lesson for today may serve to stir up some of us to the responsibility of the Church, and particularly of its individual members, for an aggressive testimony for Christ. Certainly Paul knew nothing of the defeatism which seems to have laid its paralyzing hand on present-day Christianity. Our lesson finds him again making the rounds of the churches he had earlier been used to establish. He knew of their dangers, the tendencies to backslide, the need of new life in the daily conversion of others, and he went about that business with the flaming zeal of an evangelist, with the tender compassion of a pastor, and always with the vision of the heavenly goal before him. Let us learn of Paul.

I. The Evangelist—Fearless and Tireless (Acts 19:1, 8-10).

At Ephesus Paul did the work of an evangelist with such a passion for souls and such power from God that even his enemy, Demetrius, testified (Acts 19:26) that "not alone at Ephesus but almost throughout all Asia this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people" from their heathen worship. He met great opposition both in the synagogue (v. 9) and from the worshippers of Diana (Acts 19:23-41). He also found that God had opened for him "a great door and effectual" (I. Cor. 16:9), and we read that many believed and showed their faith by destroying the books of heathendom which were in their homes (Acts 19:19).

Are the days of such evangelism gone? Since only the power of God can explain what was accomplished by Paul, the answer would depend on the reply to the question, Has the power and purpose of God changed? Obviously the answer is "No." God is the same, and when we are ready to meet His spiritual requirements He will move again in mighty power. Am I ready? Are you ready?

II. The Pastor—Lover of Souls (Acts 20:17-21).

Having completed his journey through Macedonia and Achaia, Paul is hurrying back to Jerusalem, and not having time to stop at Ephesus he sends for the elders to meet him at Miletus, the nearest seaport. He recalls to them the experiences which he has passed through, tells them of the bonds and afflictions which await him, but above all he wants to admonish and encourage them to go on for Christ. As a pastor who has been true to God and faithful in his ministry, he is able to point to his own walk and work among them as an example, doing this in all humility. Pastor, shall we ask ourselves if we could do the same, or would we need to blush in shame over our failures?

Especially noteworthy is Paul's reference to having gone from house to house as well as teaching publicly. The work of the pulpit or from the teacher's desk loses much of its savor and usefulness if not backed up by personal contact. Some men who preach well, excuse themselves from pastoral work on the ground that they are really preachers, not pastors. Others love to do pastoral work but do not apply themselves to the work of the study, and so they say their calling is that of a pastor rather than a preacher. Brethren, let us face that matter honestly and perhaps we shall find that we are simply taking the line of least resistance. Paul had none of that spirit. He preached with all zeal and power, but he also went from house to house, "serving the Lord with all humility of mind and with many tears."

III. Fellow Citizen in God's Household (Eph. 2:19-22).

The evangelist and pastor here reminds his Ephesian converts that they have entered a goodly fellowship—"the household of God"—and have become "fellow citizens with the saints."

Some folk are called "joiners" because they like to join every possible society, organization, lodge, or what not. Well, here is the supreme fellowship of all, which knows no barrier of race, creed, social position, age, sex, or nationality, and which brings us into fellowship with the eternal God Himself. You may "join" if by faith you will take the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour and thus enter into eternal life. Will you join God's people now?

Making a Practical Valance for a Bed

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
A SMART new house it was, and all the curtains and slip-covers were made by following my sketches in Book I, SEWING, for the Home Decorator! But when we came to the second floor it was my turn to get a few pointers.

The treatment of each of the two principal bedrooms was quite different. One was very simple with a lovely old quilt used for a bedspread; the other was in flowery glazed chintz with strong accents of bright greenish blue. Both beds required a valance that would not be removed with the spread.

Here is the flowered bedspread and the small sketch shows you how the valance problem was solved. As my clever young hostess pointed out, this is really a bright idea because the valance and its foundation make a cover for springs not of the boxed type. With the help of Book I, you can make many of the things you have been wanting for the house. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts, is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making things for yourself or to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, the quilt leaflet illustrating 36 authentic embroidery stitches will be included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

Alone in a strange city. It is pretty dull. Even the newspapers don't seem to print many of the things that interest you. Headline stories are all right, but there is something lacking. That something is local news.

For—all good newspapers are edited especially for their local readers. News of your friends and neighbors is needed along with that of far off places. That is why a newspaper in a strange city is so uninteresting. And that is why this newspaper is so important to you. NOW is a good time to get to...

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Timely Advice on Planning Meals for Languid Appetites

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

AS THE weather begins to get warmer, many families develop a finicky attitude toward food. They come to the table with little appetite and claim that nothing tastes good. Before you reproach them, however, give some thought to the type of meals you are serving. Do they contain an abundance of crisp, succulent greens which tempt the eye and the palate and furnish important minerals and vitamins? Do they include juicy fruits with their refreshing flavors and appetite-stimulating fruits acids? Have you cut down somewhat on carbohydrates and fats? Or are you still offering enough energy foods at each meal to supply the fuel requirements of cold winter days?

A carefully chosen diet is an excellent remedy for the let-down feeling that both children and adults often experience at this season. For science has discovered what food substances are necessary to promote appetite and digestion, to help maintain buoyant health.

Get Plenty of Milk

Milk is another food that should be used generously, because it contains such a wide assortment of protective substances. It is our foremost source of calcium, which is required for the teeth, bones and for sound healthy nerves. And it contains every known vitamin in varying amounts.

If your family does not care for milk as a beverage, make frequent use of cheese which is essentially milk in concentrated form. And use milk freely in sauces and for making desserts. It can also be incorporated in nourishing cream soups, to be served for luncheon or supper. Follow the soup with a salad made from crisp greens and including a protein food, such as cheese, nuts, or hard-cooked eggs. And top off with a fruit dessert. This type of meal appeals to the appetite and provides substantial amounts of minerals and vitamins.

Obtaining the Appetite Vitamin

We know for example that when the appetite is poor, there may be a deficiency of that part of the vitamin B-complex which nutritionists call B<sub>12</sub>. There is both experimental and clinical evidence that this vitamin is essential for the maintenance of a keen appetite. In addition, it is also required for the normal functioning of the digestive tract, so that it must be provided in sufficient amounts if food is to be utilized to best advantage.

Among the foods which supply this vitamin are whole grain cereals, bran, eggs, milk, peas, beans, carrots, spinach and cabbage. It is also found in many fruits, though usually in lesser amounts. In general, a most satisfactory way to insure a liberal intake of the appetite-promoting vitamin is to include in the diet generous amounts of whole grain cereals, milk, vegetables and fruits. As these foods likewise contribute many other necessary substances, they rate a prominent place in the dietary.

Foods That Build Blood

It is also extremely important that menus for finicky eaters should be rich in iron. For this mineral is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood—and it is the hemoglobin that carries purifying oxygen to every cell in the body. Iron-rich foods include liver, eggs, whole grain cereals, dried fruits, and green, leafy vegetables. I have repeatedly urged the generous consumption of green, leafy vegetables, and I cannot too strongly emphasize their importance as a source of iron, as well as other essential minerals; and vitamins.

Keep the Diet Laxative

Another piece of advice that warrants repetition is my frequent recommendation that you include in the diet adequate amounts of bulky foods. These are necessary to help promote normal elimination. If your menus contain too many highly concentrated foods, irregular health habits may re-

Salads Twice a Day

A crisp appetizer salad makes a good beginning for the main meal of the day. A combination of watercress, dandelion greens, lettuce or shredded cabbage, with fruit, or a small amount of a savory fish paste will intrigue the most reluctant appetite. And when the salad is served at the beginning of a meal, you can be sure that it will be eaten before the hunger is satisfied.

Another way to get additional vegetables into a meal is to mold them in gelatin and serve as a dinner salad. Or an assortment of fruits can be treated in the same way and used as a combination salad and dessert. If prepared gelatin desserts are used, a wide variety of color and flavor combinations can be achieved with very little effort; and children will eat them with relish.

You'll be surprised to discover how quickly interest can be stimulated by serving familiar foods in a new way!

Questions Answered

Mrs. M. P. G.—Types of fats which are generally regarded as relatively easy to digest are the finely emulsified forms found in egg yolk, milk and cream. Also those in bacon, cheese, ice cream, butter and salad oils.

Mrs. G. M. F.—The green outer leaves of lettuce or cabbage are richer in vitamin A than the colorless leaves at the inside of the head. For this reason, it's advisable to shred them and use for a salad or sandwiches.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Longer Life for the Broom.—An ordinary broom will last longer if dipped in boiling soapsuds for a minute or two each week.

When Buying Kitchen Tools.—Consider their weight, the sharpness of the cutting edge, and how comfortable their handles are.

To Clean a Sponge.—Leave a dirty sponge to soak for a few hours in peroxide and cold water. To a basin of cold water add two tablespoonfuls of peroxide. Rinse the sponge well in several clean waters.

For Tar Stains.—Rub tar stains on cloths with lard, and afterwards wash out in hot water to which a little liquid ammonia has been added.

Save the Crockery.—Crockery will not be so easily broken if you wring out a spare dish-cloth and spread it over the draining board before placing the washed china on the board. The dishes will not slip and will need less drying, as the water drains into the cloth.

To Stiffen Hairbrush Bristles.—Dissolve an ounce of alum in a quart of boiling water, and when cold pour into a pie-dish. Stand only the bristles in the solution for half an hour, then shake well and allow to dry with the bristles downwards.

No More Frayed Edges.—Trousers will not fray along the edge of the turn-up if a strip of skirt binding is sewn just inside, where they rub on the wearer's shoes. Replace the binding when worn.

Wrap Up Meats.—Steaks, pork and lamb chops, ground meat, bacon and other cuts of meat will shrink if stored in the refrigerator unwrapped.

HIGH SCHOOL

In connection with the study of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," the English I class made maps of the Roman territory. The class is now completing the study of this play.

The English II class has been studying a unit in which interesting persons such as John T. Aulubon and John Hays Hammond were discussed. Among the most enjoyable personalities was Julie, the French servant, who is described by Christopher Morley in a collection of essays entitled "The Romany Stain." The lovable Julie with her roguish yet irresistible gestures is one of Morley's never-to-be-forgotten characters. Some of the students made good drawings of this French servant in one of her characteristic poses.

The European history class is studying the Napoleonic era. A number of devices are being used to gain knowledge about this period as well as the view point of the various peoples of that time. One group of students represented a French home after Napoleon's Coup d'Etat, carrying on a conversation which might have occurred at that time. Other groups discussed the Continental System in a French home and in an English home. A debate was held on the question "Resolved, that Napoleon has done more good to the world than harm." News reports were given of the Battle of Waterloo and the Battle of Trafalgar. Cartoons were made to resemble those which have appeared in the papers following different events in his career. To conclude this project, the class will study the Reconstruction of Europe following the fall of Napoleon. Members of the class will represent delegates who met at the Congress of Vienna for this purpose. Among the notables present will be Prince Metternich, the dominant figure of the Congress, the great diplomat Talleyrand of France, Czar Alexander of Russia, and the Duke of Wellington from England.

Dorothy Blust, president of the Junior class, has announced the committees for the Junior-Senior banquet. They are as follows: Program committee, Richard Zolweg, chairman; June Smith, Mabel Simons and Walter Koepke; Menu committee, Kathleen Davis, chairman; Betty Ulman, and Hazel Herman; Decorating committee, Beata Buch, chairman, Norma Malcolm and LaVerne Koepke. All members of the class will have a part in the preparation for this big annual event which will probably take place on June 9.

The percentage of attendance during the past month for the four grades is as follows: twelfth grade, 97.1%; eleventh grade, 94.7%; tenth grade, 90.3%; and the ninth grade, 90.4%.

Ten students are on the high school honor roll for April. They are: Ruth Clark, Dorothy Herriman, Norma Musolf, Emma Lou Pfahl, Harold Ross and Otto Ross.

The high school students recently had their eyes tested by Miss Hall of the primary department. Those whose eyes were shown to be deficient by this test will be given an opportunity soon to have their eyes inspected by an ophthalmologist of the Children's Fund of Michigan. It will be necessary for the parents to sign a permit before the student will be given this advantage.

Commencement will be held this year in the theatre building, the same as for the past two years. This fortunate circumstance is due to the kindness of Mr. Ives who makes no charge for the service.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES. Hazel Galliker, Ellen McOm and Lee Griggs have been absent for some time.

We have pictures of some wild life animals tacked on our bulletin board.

The seventh grade is studying on the construction of triangles and circles for their arithmetic class.

The eighth grade is having a little trouble with the diagramming of sentences in their grammar class.

Lee Griggs donated some reading books for our library. Phil Mark brought some other books for the pupils to read.

Plans are underway for opening-day ceremonies when Tawas City plays their first home game, Sunday, May 21. Whittemore will furnish the opposition. On this day the pennants will be flown from the tall flag staff in center field along with "Old Glory." Complete details of the day's program will be published in next week's edition of The Tawas Herald.

League All-Star Game, July 2. On Sunday, July 2, the All-Stars of the American division will play the All-Stars of the National division at the Tawas City Athletic Field. The players, umpires and manager will be picked by the managers of the various teams at a meeting to be held Monday, June 26, at Standish.

Each team in the circuit will be represented with at least one player during the game. Four umpires will be used, two from each league, who of the game. Each team roster will include 20 players, four pitchers, and two men for each of the other eight positions. The pitchers will work three innings each with an extra man in case one of them is knocked out of the box.

Tickets for the game will go on sale several weeks previous to the day of the big event. In case of rain on the Sunday, the game will be played on July 4. The proceeds of the game will go to the league treasury to be used for operating expenses.

grade tuition which the district must still pay.

Last year when we were threshing out the advisability of transporting the higher grades, Mr. Jaquay and the man from the State Department, explained that very clearly.—In order to get the tuition paid by the state for our high school pupils, it was necessary to close from the eighth grade up. As we had no eighth grade, they explained, it would be necessary to close the seventh grade to take the place of the eighth. This we did, and the tuition for the seventh grade has already been paid by the state. So the cost this year of transporting the high school pupils was only $400.00—Believe it or not.

The majority of us who have children riding on the bus have been very well satisfied with the way the bus has been operating. The children, with but a few exceptions, would not want to change schools. The primary children riding on the bus, in the event that the school should close, would get on the bus later and would get home earlier than they do now. So I don't think we need look around for a suitable landing field.

In looking over the list of voters who voted against us I found—One bachelor, three grass widowers and one widower, all without any children. Then too, there were nine or ten older people whose children are no longer in school. Speaking of mysteries and conundrums, it's a mystery to me why these people should care one way or the other "where our" children attend school.

There were about seven votes on our side, of people who have no children, but they have realized the pleasure of going to Oscoda on a road kept free of snow in the winter. On more than one occasion, before the bus operated on that road, some of them who make weekly trips to Oscoda, were forced to go there via East Tawas.

made by Dr. Eugene B. Ellett, Superintendent of Public Instruction, at the hearing:

"The time has arrived when the people of Michigan must decide the manner and the extent of educational opportunities for her boys and girls. The problem cannot be taken lightly. On its adequate solution depends the stability of democracy itself. Uneducated or poorly educated people cannot be expected to govern themselves with discipline and foresight. That cannot go on forever as we have for some time is evident. Further neglect of our school property can be classified only as wasteful and extravagant negligence. But further neglect of our boys and girls would be repudiation of our constitutional, legal and moral responsibilities, something that no generation in Michigan history has yet done."
