Jackson-Charters

Miss Leila Jackson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson, of Whittemore, and Arden Charters, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Charters, also of Whittemore, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon in East Tawas by Rev. S. A. Carey of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Fuerst. Both young people are graduates of Whittemore high school and have many friends who wish them a happy wedded life.

They will make their home in Whittemore where they both have employment. The bride as assistant in Dr. Hasty's office and the groom is bookkeeper in the Danin & Company store. They left for a trip through Southern Michigan and Canada.

Farm Credit Meet Held at Grand Rapids

Directors of seven production credit associations of Michigan whose membership is approximately 4,000 farmers, meeting May 18-19 in Grand Rapids, were gratified with the announcement of further increase in local authority and responsibility in making loans, says Will Waters, director, who represented the Bay City Production Credit association.

The conference, an annual affair, was called by the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, which supervises the 15 associations in Michigan and 53 in three other states. George Susens, president, and Matt Ruddy, treasurer of the corporation, were in charge of the two-day program which was largely one of "shop talk" centered on the theme of "giving the members convenient service at reasonable cost."

Accredited delegates to the conference comprised five directors and the secretary-treasurer of each of the seven associations. Those from this association were:

E. W. Irwin of Saginaw, president; Maurice A. Parsons of Linwood, vice-president; John R. Staebler of Turner, Roy Sterling of Beaverton; and Will Waters of Whittemore, directors; and Harold R. Jervis, of Bay City, secretary-treasurer.

Tawas City Will Play Sunday at Alabaster

Rain and plenty of it caused the postponement of all games in the American division and two in the National circuit last Sunday. West Branch and Beaverton splashed their way through nine innings. West Branch winning 19 to 4. Pinconning and Bentley waded through five innings and decided to look for drier quarters. Pinconning nosing out Bentley 4 to 3. Standish and Sterling gave up in the third inning. Sterling was leading at the time 3 to 0. The postponed games will be played on a later date, some on Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30. The date for the Tawas City-Whittemore game has not been set.

Sunday the Tawas City team will journey to Alabaster to resume league play. This should be a game worth seeing as Alabaster, in their only game played this year, showed that they will cause a lot of trouble. Tawas City and Alabaster usually stage a good show and this year should be no exception. Why not drive over to Alabaster Sunday and help the boys to get started in the win column? The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. The team will leave from Cholger's garage at 1:00.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

U. S. Medical Group Hits Claim That 40,000,000 Require Care; Call Health Program Needless

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MEDICINE: 40,000,000?

Basis for the Wagner bill now before congress is the claim that 40,000,000 U. S. citizens are without medical care. If passed, the measure would provide federal subsidies for care of the indigent sick, amounting to $100,000,000 the first year. Such socialization is strenuously opposed by the American Medical association, which surveyed local physicians of 747 counties in 37 states to disprove the government.

Forty million people constitute roughly one-fourth the population. Of 20,000 physicians surveyed, 17,000 (or one-fourth the physicians in territories canvassed) reported free medical service to 2,611,451 persons each year, plus 1,909,713 hours of free hospital service each year. If all physicians furnish free service on this basis, A. M. A. figured that 10,000,000 of the 43,000,000 people covered in its survey are getting free service. On a nation-wide basis, multiplied by four, this would mean U. S. physicians are already taking care of the 40,000,000 needy citizens Uncle Sam would help.

Possible, though unsubstantiated, A. M. A. fallacies: (1) "Free" services may include those to solvent patients guilty of the good old American custom of not paying doctor bills; (2) not asking free services (nor would they ask help under a U. S. program) are thousands of medicine's "forgotten men," low-salaried white collar workers who can neither get relief nor pay doctor and hospital bills.

Socialized medicine is one side of the problem, but A. M. A.'s President-elect Dr. Rock Sleyster of Watousa, Wis., thought he knew a more basic side. Nationally known as a brain authority, President Sleyster pointed out that 10,000,000 of the nation's 130,000,000 people bear in their bodies seeds which may result occasionally in a feeble-minded child. Holding that mental troubles are the "greatest unsolved medical problem," he gloomily commented that medicine's strides in prolonging life have cost "far more than the goods are worth" if such protection from sickness brings unwillingness to battle against economic troubles.

A. M. A.'s DR. SLEYSER
Is it all worth while?

CONGRESS: Taxes

Most U. S. business men have an opinion on why the nation is glutted with idle capital. Their explanation: Too much federal spending and excessive business taxes discourage new enterprise. By coincidence, Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney's temporary national economics committee began investigating this problem just after the senate passed its huge farm bill, inciting a new congressional argument over economy and tax revision versus early adjournment.

Though the senate junked President Roosevelt's Florida ship canal, its farm bill spending spree gave the house courage to pass the record $773,420,000 naval appropriations bill. Tax revision apparently has a green light from the White House, but last January's anti-spending talk has been forgotten under pressure of 1940 elections. Net gain: Nothing.

If this is a neutralizing factor, General Electric Chairman Owen D. Young discussed a greater neutralizer before Senator O'Mahoney's committee. His argument: Government should remove threats and restraints to business, thereby making the administration's spending policies effective in putting idle capital to work. Said he: "I do not believe in... giving a stimulant and then neutralizing it," meaning that spending should only be used to boost lagging purchasing power.

Crux of Mr. Young's argument against the undistributed profits levy is that most industries must expand with earnings retained for that purpose, an experience of both General Electric and U. S. Steel, whose Chairman Edward R. Stettinius preceded Mr. Young to the stand. G. E.'s chairman believes the excess profits tax should be modified to stop penalizing business.

With $2,000,000,000 in "nuisance" taxes and corporate levies expiring

OWEN D. YOUNG
Why neutralize a stimulant?

this year, congress is scurrying around to replace them, remembering—but possibly revolting against—the President's admonishment that (1) total revenues must not be decreased, and (2) low income levies shall not be boosted. Already circulating are plans to tap new tax sources for $3,160,000,000 by looking to liquor and tobacco; personal income, corporation income and manufacturers sales taxes; tariffs, and taxes on state employees and securities.

RACES: Settlement?

During the World war anxious Great Britain enlisted Arab aid with a hasty, ill-reasoned promise of independence in Palestine. Britain also enlisted Jewish funds by promising to make Palestine a homeland for Jews. Twenty years after Versailles the bloody "holy war" which has kept British troops busy in Palestine shows no sign of abating. Last winter an Arab-Jewish conference in London failed because delegates refused to sit at the same table. Confronted with more pressing crises in Europe, Britain finally decided to dictate a settlement.

Released in London was a white paper decision providing gradual relaxation of British overlordship between now and 1944, during which 75,000 more Jews would be allowed to enter Palestine. Then, with population standing at 40 per cent Jewish and 60 per cent Arab, Britain would try to get delegates together to frame a constitution for the new independent state.

Observers thought Britain's haste to reach a settlement had precipitated chaos. Since 20 years' experience have demonstrated that Jews and Arabs will not live under the same flag, it was quite obvious Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain might have made more permanent peace by following the original plan: Creation of independent Jewish and Arab states separated by a British neutral strip.

SPAIN: Manna From France

What happened to Loyalist Spain's huge gold reserve is a perplexing mystery, especially to money-hungry Gen. Francisco Franco, who needs it to rebuild his war-torn nation. Part of Spain's gold rests in U. S. banks, another—and larger—part in France. Rumor has it that still more was shipped secretly to Mexico to support fleeing Loyalists.

Several months ago France and Britain hoped to woo Dictator Franco away from the Rome-Berlin axis with reconstruction loans which neither Italy nor Germany could furnish. Rejecting direct Anglo-French help, Senor Franco joined the Axis and turned to international bankers.

Seen recently in Paris was Paul Van Zeeland, former Belgian premier, internationally known economist and banker, sounding out private French banking sentiment on a $100,000,000 loan to Franco. Planned by French, Dutch and Swiss firms, one-fourth of the loan would be underwritten in France, where bankers have overridden government objections. Premier Edouard Daladier wants no truck with Franco Spain unless a permanent neutrality agreement is extracted in return.

Little does General Franco care about Premier Daladier's attitude, however. Thoroughly angry over Spanish gold held in French banks, equally angry over the 40,000 Basques who are drawing 15 francs a day out of funds brought with them from Spain, Franco would gladly borrow from private French bankers. He might even find it expedient not to repay the loan until these bankers talk their government into returning Spain's gold.

AGRICULTURE: Looking Ahead

Last year's agriculture act requires quota elections on the quantity of wheat each grower may sell when the supply reaches 1,021,000,000 bushels. At the same time, excess surpluses would justify lowering of acreage allotments. Only a few weeks ago the bureau of agricultural economics predicted wheat supplies would reach 1,018,900,000 bushels by July 1, only 2,100,000 bushels short of the level at which marketing quotas could be enforced for 1940.

A good crop this season might have driven surpluses over that mark, giving the administration an embarrassing job of clamping down on wheat farmers during election year. But unexpected dry weather in the spring wheat belt helped Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace justify radical changes in the department's original estimates:

Original July 1 carryover figure was 275,000,000 bushels; Mr. Wallace dropped it to 270,000,000. Spring wheat was first placed at 200,000,000 bushels; Mr. Wallace made it 160,000,000. Total current year's crop was first placed at 743,900,000; Mr. Wallace made it 704,000,000. Instead of 1,018,900,000 bushels, Mr. Wallace therefore got a July 1 total of 974,000,000, well under the mandatory quota figure. To further placate rebellious farmers during election year, he decided to let them plant 62,000,000 acres next year, 7,000,000 more than in 1939. Justification: The 974,000,000-bushel estimate for this July 1 is 47,000,000 bushels under last year.

WHITE HOUSE: Menu

President and Mrs. Roosevelt like simple food. When White Housekeeper Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt translated into English several menus served Britain's King George and Queen Elizabeth during last year's Paris visit she discovered they, too, liked simple food. Announced in Washington was the "typical American" menu scheduled June 8 when Britain's No. 1 citizens visit the No. 1 U. S. citizens:

- Clam cocktail
- Calve's head soup
- Broiled filet of flounder
- Mushroom and wine sauce
- Sliced tomatoes
- Boned capon
- Cranberry sauce
- Peas
- Buttered beets
- Sweet potato puffs
- Frozen cheese and cress salad
- Maple and almond ice cream
- Coffee

Meanwhile the lady of British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay forwarded 1,300 invitations for the garden party her husband will give for the visiting sovereigns, leaving 13,000 other would-be guests sulking out in the cold.

ASIA: Rebuff

Thus far self-righteous Japan has met little resistance from western democracies in such bold land-steals as Hainan island and Canton. In early May, Tokyo informed British and American ambassadors that she wanted greater voice in rule of Shanghai's vital international settlement. A few days later she landed marines in the international settlement (Kulungsu) of Amoy after a Japanese naval commander charged his life had been endangered in a street brawl.

If Britain thought of following precedent and bowing to Jap demands, the U. S. also followed precedent by setting Japan back on its heels. Within 24 hours American, British and French marines were pulled ashore at Amoy, a gentle hint which Japan's bluejackets accepted by bouncing back to their own warships. At the same time, in Tokyo, U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew expressed his government's views on Shanghai:

"The government of the U. S. is constrained to point out... that conditions in the Shanghai area are... so far from normal... that there is totally lacking a basis for discussion looking toward an orderly settlement of the complicated problems involved."

Placing the shoe on another foot, the U. S. ignored Japan's demands for a greater measure of control in the settlement's political and economic life, demanding instead that Japan return to the settlement land lying north of Shanghai's Soochow creek.

Windsors Mark 2nd Anniversary

Two years ago, on June 3, 1937, a king married a commoner at Monts, France. Still exiled from his native England, apparently resigned to a life of inconsequence, the duke of Windsor lives contentedly in France with his American born wife, the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. Some day he hopes to return to England with "the woman I love." Meanwhile the Windsors make the most of an uncomfortable situation, that of being notoriously unimportant.

Above: Night club life like this has recently become less important to the Windsors. Left: Grace Moore, American singer, who stirred a controversy among British at the Riviera when she gave the duchess the royal honor of a deep curtsy in public last winter. Below: Last autumn the duke and duchess of Gloucester visited the Windsors in Paris, giving rise to reports that Edward and his wife may soon return to the British Isles.

Diet Treatments Often Cure for Bladder Trouble

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

YOU may wonder why a physician in treating gall bladder trouble sends some cases into hospital for operation, treats others by medicine and still others by outlining a diet to be followed strictly. You have perhaps thought of the gall bladder as a small bag which should be removed if it contains any stones; whereas if all cases of gall stones underwent operation, all surgeons could be kept busy.

As a matter of fact the gall bladder is removed only when there is a new growth (cancer), excessive stone formations causing frequent attacks of colic, or when the symptoms of indigestion—nausea, vomiting and painful gas formation—make life hardly worth living. And the results from these operations when the patient follows diet and other instructions afterward are, in most cases, very satisfactory.

However, there are some borderline cases; that is when the physician would like to use medical and diet treatment or diet treatment alone, and thus try to avoid operation, and there are other cases that are severe enough to require operation but for various reasons—bad heart, old age, generally poor condition of the patient, unwillingness to undergo operation—in which diet treatment offers the only help.

Knowledge of Patient Needed.
The usual symptoms of gall bladder trouble are "belching, gas pressure, distress in the upper part of the abdomen coming on after the taking of food, biliousness, sometimes nausea and vomiting, occasionally headaches, constipation, and loss of appetite." To prescribe a diet to prevent or lessen these symptoms requires much thought and knowledge, not only about food but about the patient himself, his surroundings and his likes and dislikes.

The foods to be used are the non-irritating foods—fruits, some of the leafy vegetables, meat and fish once a day—never fried—very little butter, no spiced or smoked meat or fish, plenty of water, dilute fruit juices, milk, buttermilk and weak tea.

The foods to be avoided are cream, salted, canned and preserved meats and fish, cheeses except cottage cheese, corn, cabbage, cauliflower, onions, raw vegetables, gravies, pie, nuts, alcoholics, pastry.

Use of Venom Studied

At Pasteur Institute
From time to time you read about the great relief from pain obtained by cancer patients by the use of the poison (venom) of snakes. As a matter of fact, the use of the venom from that very poisonous snake, the cobra, has been used for hundreds of years, but when a research unit such as the Pasteur institute reports its findings, then we can rest assured that if snake venom has merit, it will be made known to the world.

Dr. D. I. Macht, in Annals of Internal Medicine, tells us that the first "scientific" use of a venom (that of the cobra) was made quite "recently" by the Pasteur institute.

First, special methods of sterilizing the venom had to be developed as the venom is destroyed by high temperature. Then a study of its effects on the body showed that its power to relieve pain was caused by its action on a certain part of the brain and that it had no effect when placed upon any painful spot in or on the body. Its action then is like that of morphine except that it is much slower in taking effect and its effect lasts much longer than morphine.

Not Habit Forming.

By careful experiments the exact dose with which to begin daily treatment has been worked out and when pain has been relieved, the needed amount to keep patient free of pain requires this dosage two or three times a week instead of daily.

"The results in incurable cancer were very satisfactory, pain and discomfort being greatly relieved. Later, cobra venom was found to be very useful in other painful conditions such as angina pectoris, severe neuralgias, arthritis (rheumatism), where not only was the pain relieved but also muscle spasm was relaxed. In a series of cases of Parkinson's disease, or shaking palsy, cobra venom was found to be effective in relieving pain and relaxing nerves and muscles."

Dr. Macht states that in his experience cobra venom did not appear to be habit forming as is so often the case with morphine.

While it is now available to a greater extent than heretofore, the patient must always be guided by the advice of the family physician as to its use in his particular case.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—An ecstatic young newspaper woman, reporting on Dr. Herbert Feis of the state department, averred that his dream-lit eyes "reflected the soul of a young Shelley." He may look that way, but the chances are that he is thinking of rubber and tin.

John Masefield had some such thoughts in mind when he wrote "Cargoes." This poet, however, scans only trade balances, and his dreams are precise and statistical. Dr. Feis is economic adviser to the state department, and it was he who schemed the barter deal by which we would acquire needed rubber and tin and get rid of the necklace of millstones hung around Uncle Sam's neck in the form of that government-owned surplus of 11,000,000 bales of cotton.

The news from London is that the barter deal is under way, Prime Minister Chamberlain having informed parliament that negotiations have been opened. Wheat also will be included in the bargaining, as England needs both wheat and cotton as much as we need rubber and tin. Here may be a working commodity axis, which Machiavelli so vehemently declared was always more important in the long run than any political axis. And, incidentally, Dr. Feis has read Machiavelli.

He is a hold-over from the Hoover regime, appointed to his present post by Secretary Stimson, who was impressed with the insight and information in Dr. Feis' book, "Europe the World's Banker." He has been used by the department in clarifying confusion and in boiling down vague policies to definite procedure.

Dr. Feis is a New Yorker with a Harvard Ph. D. He was professor of economics at the University of Kansas and the University of Cincinnati and director of research for the council of foreign relations. Like many men given to meditation, he smokes a pipe, blows rings and comes out of the haze with an idea or hunch as sharply defined as if it had been cut by a lapidary.

PHILOSOPHERS getting on in life are apt to think in T-time, as contrasted with our workaday Tau time, both of which are currently explained by E. A. Milne, the distinguished British mathematician. T-time, like tea-time, is stretchable, unlike the swingtime or springtime of youth—all of which was expounded in different terms by the aging Montaigne—and in this time zone there may be written off, or at least discounted, much imminent disaster; and somehow in this temporal king's-x irresistible bodies may meet immovable masses without any bystanders getting hurt. I have known wise old gentlemen who carried their T-time in one pocket and their Tau-time in the other.

Such is the 80-year-old (in Tau time) Lucius N. Littauer, whose $3,000,000 Littauer center is dedicated at Harvard. His foundation was established to "bring about a better understanding among mankind."

It was Mr. Littauer who, as a congressman from New York, sponsored and established the United States bureau of standards. It worked out nicely. Uniformity in machine appliances and spare parts was easily attained. Moving from machines into social adaptations and adjustments, Mr. Littauer found human variables could not—as yet—be calculated like metal variables. Hence his new bureau of human standards at Harvard.

Like the late Chauncey M. Depew, he has been honored by a statue in his own town, during his lifetime. The town is Gloversville, N. Y., where, after his graduation from Harvard, he picked up his father's glove manufacturing business. His later years have been absorbed in his manifold philanthropies, to which he has given many millions of dollars. Thinking in Mr. Milne's long stretch of time, he is calmly assured that, in due time, all will be well with the world, but that "we must oppose absolutism in any guise, from any source."

His father, a native of Breslau, Germany, passed on to him a heritage of Carl Schurz liberalism—which perhaps could be fittingly measured against Fritz Kuhn's importation. Just in passing, he played on Harvard's first football team and rowed on its first crew—back in his Tau-time days.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

The "puller-in," a picturesque, and sometimes quite bothersome, feature of East Side merchandising for many years, has joined the hurdy-gurdy, the sandwich man and a great number of pushcarts. The sandwich men were banished by the simple expedient of a police order. The hurdy-gurdy disappeared on orders of the mayor. The pushcart men in certain sections were put into indoor markets. The "puller-in" was abolished by a recently passed ordinance one which Mayor LaGuardia held should have been passed 20 years ago. Under the terms of the ordinance, anyone who pulls a prospective customer into a store may be fined $50 or sent to jail for 10 days or both. So the "pullers-in," most of whom worked on a percentage, though certain experts were paid a salary of $5 a day, are now scurrying around looking for other jobs.

Away back in the days when the immigrant flood was rolling into New York and the newcomers were settling on the lower East Side, the "puller-in" came into existence. Rivalry among merchants was keen and the immigrant was easy picking. So to get business, men were stationed outside the doors of the various establishments. If a passerby so much as paused, he was gone. Before he knew it, he was inside. If he escaped without making a purchase, he was more or less of a superman. Salesmanship was more than high pressure, it was dynamic, even forceful. In fact, when rival "pullers-in" concentrated on one victim, he not infrequently was so pulled and hauled that the coat was torn from his back. This was especially true in the district along the Bowery from Chatham square to Canal street, known in the old days as "the Bay."

Canal street in later years has been the happy hunting ground of the "puller-in," in fact just about his last stand. On occasions, some cheap Broadway stores have employed "pullers-in" but owing to prejudice against them by other merchants they have had to work with more discretion. But on Canal street they worked just as they did in the days of the immigrants, though not quite so strenuously, depending more on eloquence and persuasiveness than brawn to get a victim into a store.

Speaking of vanished links with the past, there is the Sixth avenue elevated railroad. It is now among the missing, the last of the steel structure that cast various streets in deep shadow having been removed some time ago. Sixth avenue is vastly different to eye and ear from what it was when trains rattled overhead. But what I had in mind was the new view of Trinity churchyard. In former days, it was hidden by the elevated structure. Now it is out in the open. And the resting place of Alexander Hamilton, Robert Fulton and others is now undisturbed by noisy trains.

Now that Sixth avenue has been relieved of what for many years had been an eyesore and a blight on property values, there is no question as to the future of that street. Development is already taking place and more is sure to come since the thoroughfare has emerged into the light. The question is whether the development will be along the lines of Broadway, with the emphasis on amusement, or whether the city will have another Fifth avenue, with the emphasis on fine shops. At any rate, the city will benefit through more taxes because of the rise in property values.

My sympathy goes out to those 11 lads who ran away from a Brooklyn institution to see the circus. None of them had any money but they were confident they could gain admittance without having to buy tickets. In other words, they planned to sneak under the tent. And it wasn't until the police found them after hours of searching that the boys learned that in Manhattan there is no tent, merely a big building with entrances and exits fully guarded.

Business Skill of Girls Displeases an Educator

HOBART, AUSTRALIA.—Before the Parents and Friends' association, E. J. Oglvie, minister of education, deplored the modern tendency of girls who "preferred to punch the typewriter instead of dough."

"I would prefer that a girl relation of mine," he said, "ranked high in domestic science instead of trigonometry and decimals. I would rather see her education directed toward balanced diets and kitchen problems."

California Woman Still Drives Buggy

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.—Whenever Santa Barbarans hear the clop clop of horses' hooves and the roll of buggy wheels they know that Mrs. A. D. Brinkerhoff has come to town.

Persisting in remaining No. 1 old-fashioned citizen, Mrs. Brinkerhoff declares that the very thought of driving an automobile gives her "cold chills."

Six Countries Eye Antarctica

Germany Is Latest to Claim Part of Ice-Covered Continent.

WASHINGTON.—With Germany now making claim to 230,000 square miles of Antarctica, explored from one of her whaling ships, five nations and Australia have set up claims for the division of the vast continent that lies under a thick layer of ice at the "bottom" of the world.

"The claims on behalf of Norway, Great Britain, France, the United States, and Australia have sliced the Antarctic continent like a huge pie; but title to some of the slices is by no means clear and uncontested," says the National Geographic society.

How Claims Rest.

"When Amundsen, first man to reach the South pole, arrived there in December, 1911, he claimed for Norway a relatively small circular area of land around the pole with a radius of about 110 miles. Since then explorers who have cruised the Antarctic coast, penetrated the continent a few miles, or flown over certain previously unexplored regions have claimed for their countries all the land between certain longitudes extending all the way to the poles.

"The so-called Australian claim is the largest single slice of the Antarctic 'pie.' It extends from 45 degrees east longitude to 160 degrees east longitude. France, however, insists that the region from Adeline Land between 136 and 143 degrees east longitude, wholly within the Australian claim, is hers; and in January Lincoln Ellsworth looked down from an airplane in the same Australian area on 80,000 square miles 'never before seen by man,' and announced his claim for the United States. The Ellsworth area lies between 74 and 85 degrees east longitude, and 70 and 75 degrees south latitude. Thus, it does not reach the edge of the continent.

Claimed for U. S.

"Besides the Australian claims there are two other pie-shaped slices claimed by Great Britain: the Ross Dependency between 160 degrees east and 150 degrees west longitude; and a large area between 20 and 80 degrees west longitude. Between these slices claimed by Great Britain are Marie Byrd Land between 120 and 150 degrees west longitude, which was explored by Admiral Richard E. Byrd; and James W. Ellsworth Land, the area from 80 to 120 degrees west longitude which Lincoln Ellsworth claimed for the United States when he traversed the region by airplane in 1935.

"The Norwegian claims are not as definite as some of the others, but are understood to cover the sector extending from 20 degrees west longitude to 45 degrees east longitude. It is inside this latter sector that the new German claim has been set up."

'Napoleon' Brings Peace To French and Italians

WARSAW, POLAND.—Warsaw's newest movie palace has opened as the "Cinema Napoleon" and not the "Paris Cinema," the name chosen originally.

The theater is in a building owned by an Italian insurance company and was leased by a French-Polish concern, which chose the name "Paris Cinema." The Italians objected to a French name. A compromise was effected on "Cinema Napoleon." The French are pleased because Napoleon was French and the Italians because "Napoleon was Italian anyway because he was a Corsican and Italy will get Corsica back some day."

Pheasants Seem to Know All About Their Rights

GILROY, CALIF.—Golden pheasants, rigidly protected under California game laws, cause considerable embarrassment to a municipality when they calmly walked up the main street.

Two have done so here recently. The last one, caught by three small boys, was gracefully turned over to Judge Leon Thomas. He could find no legal precedents for such a case, but called in a game warden, instructed him to take the bird outside the city limits and give it a good start for somewhere else.

Buck Scorns Wild Life After Tasting Comforts

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, CALIF.—If the public doesn't quit feeding wild animals, there soon won't be any more wild animals—they'll be tame—park officials here think. A fine three-point buck which used to come to Lon Oldham's blacksmith shop for a daily handout was removed from the park last spring.

The buck, however, apparently had lost its hankering for the wild life and six months later showed up again at the blacksmith shop for its daily manna.

Star Dust

★ A Promising Newcomer
★ Warning Bing Crosby
★ Radio Veterans Team Up
—By Virginia Vale

WHEN you see "Wuthering Heights" you'll probably want to know something about Geraldine Fitzgerald. She plays the part of "Edgar's" sister, who marries "Heathclife," and she makes a definite contribution to every scene in which she appears.

She was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1914, was educated in a convent school, studied painting for a while, and then joined the Gate Players. The Gate Players did repertoire, so Miss Geraldine got experience in all sorts of roles. Then she was asked to make pictures in England, and did; she appeared in "The Turn of the Tide" and "The Mill on the Floss," and went right back to the theater.

But this time it was the New York theater, where she was seen in "Heartbreak House." Hollywood discovered her then. Warner Brothers gave her a contract, (with six months off each year for the theater), and she made tests on the Coast, and then returned to Ireland.

She wouldn't believe that she ought to return for "Dark Victory" until she had received three letters and a cablegram; she'd known people who rushed to Hollywood and then sat around and waited everlastingly for things to get started. But she finally returned, was borrowed by Samuel Goldwyn for "Wuthering Heights," and made "Dark Victory."

If Bing Crosby is ever found mysteriously dead a lot of the other singers in motion pictures will probably be questioned by the police.

Some one of them will certainly be driven to commit the crime by the way in which the young man sings. For example, he strolled into the Universal sound room not so long ago, took the pipe out of his mouth, sang four songs, one after another, put his pipe into his mouth again and went home. The recordings were perfect—you'll hear them in "East Side of Heaven," which is probably his best picture to date.

All of which won't seem remarkable to you unless you know what a complicated business this matter of recording sounds can be.

Mr. Crosby has been known to astound fellow-singers even more by eating a heavy luncheon before he had to sing, without its affecting the result at all.

Erno Rapee, Jane Froman and Jan Peerce will be co-starred in a gala musical revue which has been signed to replace the Screen Guild show on the Columbia network for the summer months, beginning June 11. There will also be a 16-voice mixed chorus.

The three stars are radio veterans, but this is the first time they have appeared together. Rapee is one of the best known musical directors in America, Jane Froman has made a name for herself in both movies and radio, and Jan Peerce has long been a protegee of Rapee's as well as one of the screen's popular singers.

The Andrews sisters like nothing better than a practical joke. Recently, while making a personal appearance at a theater in Brooklyn, N. Y., they tried to enter an amateur contest at a neighboring theater. The master of ceremonies wanted to hear their act before they went on, and they told him they would do their version of the Andrews Sisters' original version of "Hold Tight."

When they finished he sadly shook his head. "Sorry, girls, but I can't use you," he said. "That was the worst imitation of the Andrews Sisters I ever heard."

ODDS AND ENDS—Rudy Vallee, who recently announced on the air that he'd like to direct pictures, recently wrote and acted in a dramatic skit on his weekly broadcast, as well as acting as master of ceremonies, directing the music, and doing a bit of singing. . . . Lewis Stone is proud of his record in pictures, but he's prouder just now of receiving an award for driving 500,000 miles in 34 years without having a traffic accident. ## Use Oilcloth Scallops And Red Rick Rack

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: The curtains I made from your Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, are so smart and modern looking that they have given our living room an entirely new appearance. Right now I need an idea that will pep up my kitchen windows. Everything is up to date but the curtains. They look old fashioned. The color scheme is red and white, but please don't tell me to use red and white checked gingham because I have done that before.—J. B."

Alright, no checked gingham! How about some nice crisp dotted swiss with the widest red rick rack you can find for the edge? Then make a border around the top and sides of the window by pasting scalloped red oilcloth on the window frame, using wall paper paste. Cut the oilcloth in strips first, then mortise the corners by cutting them on the bias. Start marking the scallops at the corners, as shown here, making the center top scallop wider than the others. The tie-backs for the curtains may also be made of the red oilcloth.

With the help of Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, you can make many of the things you have been wanting for your home. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts, is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making useful things. Books are 25 cents each. Enclose 50 cents for both books, and leaflet illustrating 36 authentic embroidery stitches will be included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are antiseptic to the tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Ask your neighbor!

Wornout Money Into Sewer

An average of $60,000,000 in Canadian money goes down the sewer annually from the parliament building in Ottawa, observes a writer in Capper's Weekly. This total represents Canadian paper money of all denominations taken out of circulation due to wear and tear. The average life of Canada's paper money bills is less than ten months. The wornout paper currency is boiled beyond recognition with the aid of chemicals to obliterate the print and coloring. The bills are then put through a beater and then dumped into the sewer pipe.

Much credit for the fine reception must be given to John Mango.

Lelia took the yellow slip from Mary's hand, and read Balianci's farewell to arms. "It's just what I expected would happen," she commented, "after the little talk he and I had last night."

"Little talk? When? Where?" Lelia told Mary of the previous night's conversation.

Mary was silent for a second; then in a low voice, "I was terribly depressed last night. Jerome Taylor had just asked me to go to Florida with him, and I was so shocked, so stunned by it all, that when I came home and found Balianci here . . ."

"Oh, Mary! I tried to tell you about Taylor, too! He's been nothing but a rouse all of his life!"

Mary leaned back against her pillow, her eyes closed. "I've been an awful fool, Lelia," she confessed.

"Yes, darling, you have," Lelia agreed unflatteringly. "I wouldn't mention any of this to Linnie. We're sailing day after tomorrow. There's no need for her to be told. And now you'll be able to settle down to writing."

"Oh, I wouldn't think of telling Aunt Linnie—ever! But, Lelia, I'm afraid my writing's gone on the rocks. I'm just no good at it, that's all."

"Don't say that, Mary. Nobody could write under the conditions that have been smothering you for the past two months. Wait till Linnie and I sail. You'll have the apartment to yourself then, darling; and you won't be seeing any more of Balianci and Jerome Taylor."

"Maybe you're right, Lelia. Maybe this is my chance—to do my stuff! In fact, I was working up a plot while lying here waiting for you to wake up."

Within an hour after she and Lelia had finished breakfast, Mary had written her father a letter, secured a money-order, and posted them together to Hawkinsville.

Judge and Mrs. Byfield were giving a farewell lunch for Aunt Linnie at one, but there were several hours to spend between now and then, and Mary decided to walk to Central Park, sit on a bench, and make a mental outline of the plot which had conceived itself in her mind earlier that morning.

The air was brisk, and a mid-March sun shone valiantly through the clouds. Invigorated by her walk, happy beyond words to have sent her father a money-order of such substantial proportions, relieved though humiliated by the outcome of last night's happenings, she soon found a bench on a quiet path in the park, and sat down to think. "Imitation of an author creating a plot," she told herself sarcastically; but, nevertheless, found that a story was actually brewing in her mind. Finally, so enthralled by its intricacies, and wishing to set down its situations in black and white, she extracted a pencil from her purse, and began making notes on the covering of a package of face powder she had just bought.

When Mary hastily glanced at her watch it was a quarter past twelve! The morning had flown by as if on wings. She leapt from the bench, and started swiftly towards Aunt Linnie's apartment, eight blocks away. She must dress and be at the Colony by one.

The luncheon lasted, as might have been expected, until half past three. Mary sat grudgingly through it all. She was impatient to be off, to get to work; but she, Aunt Linnie's niece, of all people, could not be the first to make a move. Finally, by mutual consent, the party came to an end.

Mary, having made her proper adieux all around, started toward the apartment on foot. She felt dulled from having eaten so much food in the middle of the day, and she wanted exercise in the fresh air to put her mind back on a working basis.

Once home, she took a shower, and slipped into her woolly bathrobe. "I believe I'll call up Mr. Buchanan," she said to herself as the icy water from the shower poured over her body. "He's willing to see me again and talk over my so-called literary work, and now that a plot is actually percolating through my mind, it might be best to accept that luncheon invitation for Saturday."

Ten minutes later, she was on the telephone, Miss Hickenlooper at the other end. "Miss Hickenlooper," she began, that feeling of inferiority which the woman's voice always inspired in her now flooding through her mind, "this is Mary Loring. May I—would it be possible—for me to talk to Mr. Buchanan for a moment?"

It was, apparently, not so difficult, after all, for within a very brief moment, Phil Buchanan's voice said, "Hello, Mary Loring! How are you?"

"I'm all right," Mary replied, her self-possession having returned. "How's Oscar?"

"Oscar's swell now. All his heaves have left him. Did you get my note? Are you lurching with me Saturday?"

"Yes, I . . ."

"All right. That's fine. I'll be waiting for you at the Brevoort at one."

And without the formality of a good-bye, he hung up.

Mary regarded, for an instant, the telephone instrument still clutched in her hand; then, with a smile, placed it slowly on its hook. "Well," she told herself, "he certainly doesn't waste words! Maybe that's because he has to pay five cents apiece for them when he buys them!"

Aunt Linnie and Lelia were being speeded on their way. A noisy crowd had come to the boat to see them off, and cocktails were being drunk; hasty kisses exchanged. Their stateroom, with the double beds, and yellow low silk curtains bedecking the port-holes, was filled to capacity with flowers and books, boxes of candy and baskets of fruit.

Lelia, looking swank in a jaunty hat of dark blue and suit of blue to match, pulled Mary to one side. Three incomparable orchids perched gaily on one lapel of her jacket. "Mary," she whispered, "I simply must tell someone! Jim sent these orchids to me!" She was dewy-eyed with excitement; lovelier than Mary had ever seen her.

Aunt Linnie caught Mary in her embrace. "Good-by, Mary, my dear little girl. Have a good time, darling, and write your silly little head completely off, if you like. But remember, my dear, Aunt Linnie still thinks you're far, far too pretty to get yourself in a dither about plots."

Phil Buchanan was sitting at a table near a glass door in the Brevoort cafe when Mary arrived.

He saw her, looking very spring-like and smart in her green wool suit, as she approached his table.

"Hello there," he said, rising from his chair as if the action were something of an effort. "You're late. I thought you'd stood me up, or whatever the expression is. Sit down. And what'll you have to drink? I've just meandered through three highballs."

"Nothing, thank you," Mary returned, sitting down. "I had to gollap up an 'old fashioned' while bidding my aunt and Lelia bon voyage. They sailed for the West Indies at noon, and naturally, quite a party was held in honor of their departure. Then, everybody seemed to think we ought to wave to them till they'd practically disappeared from view. That's why I'm late."

Phil grinned at her. "All right, Miss Mary Loring. All is forgiven. Now let's order some food. I haven't had nourishment for hours."

Their order given, Phil got out his usual crushed package of cigarettes, and offered Mary one.

"No," she replied. "I can't smoke and think right now; and I gathered from your letter that you wanted to give me a proper call-down today."

Buchanan regarded her with amused eyes. "Yes, I do."

"Well, go ahead! I'm prepared for the worst! The stuff I've been handing in is tripe. You're disappointed in me and . . ."

"Yes, I'm disappointed in you, but I still have enough faith in your ability to want you to keep on trying. Listen—those last two stories were—trash! You've fallen down terribly since you did 'At Sea.' In fact, it's hard to believe the same person wrote 'Their Son' and 'Concerning Anne.' What's the matter, Mary? Been too busy running around New York? You know, you can't be a socialite and an author at the same time."

Mary looked down at the table, the dark curtain of her eyelashes hiding the tears that were near the surface. "I hate him," she was thinking, stung by his words, "yet maybe he's right. Maybe he's trying to help me!" Aloud, she said, "Perhaps I'll be able to do better work now. I'm to have Aunt Linnie's apartment while she and Lelia are on the cruise, and I shan't be going out at all."

"Well, that ought to help," Buchanan replied dryly. "Have you written anything since I last saw you?"

She raised her eyes to him. "I haven't exactly written anything," she finally said, "but I've formed an idea for a new story, and I've typed the outline."

"Got it with you? . . . Here's Ben with our shrimps."

"Yes, I have it here in my purse. I thought perhaps you—that you might . . ."

Mary took the two typed pages from her purse, and silently handed them to him. He unfolded the sheets, and, with a shrimp poised in mid-air, hurriedly began to scan them.

Several minutes of silence followed; then Phil Buchanan looked across the table at her. "You have something there, Mary," he said quietly. "You've really found yourself. That's an excellent plot—human, realistic, different enough to be fairly new."

"You really think it'll make a good story?"

"Not a good short story. Not a story for The National Weekly. But material for a novel."

"Oh," Mary replied, crestfallen. "I supposed it was too involved for a short story, but I'd hoped it'd please you sufficiently to . . ."

"It pleases me enormously," Buchanan broke in. "It's great stuff, but we never publish serials—and that's what this should develop into. After that, book publication. After that, Hollywood production, perhaps. You know, Mary, there are far bigger opportunities for this tale than mere publication in The National Weekly. Now, if your style of writing just measures up to the grand plot you've conceived, you'll have a sure-fire hit on your hands."

"But won't it take me ages to write a full-length novel?" Mary asked, thinking of the all-important matter of working against time—of making money in a hurry.

"Not necessarily," Buchanan replied. "Your outline having been created will facilitate matters; and you say your aunt and Lelia Ormsby have flitted to the South, and you'll have the apartment to yourself for several weeks."

Mary nodded. "At least four. Maybe longer. They're thinking of leaving the ship at Jamaica, if they find they like it awfully well, and staying there a while."

"Well, even four weeks is a lot of time, if you'll only make the best of it," Phil said, looking ridiculously serious, businesslike and boyish all at once. "Make up your mind to cut out the frivolity. Go to bed early. Get up early. Stick to your typewriter at least six hours a day, and forget New York's a swell town in which to have a good time."

"Maybe I can do it!" Mary exclaimed, too excited to eat. "Maybe I really can do it!"

"And maybe Aunt Linnie'll decide to lengthen her stay in the West Indies!" Buchanan offered lazily. "If she does, well—so much the better! You haven't touched your food, Mary. Go on and eat! Don't ever, no matter what happens, let genius spoil your appetite!"

"I am rather excited!" Mary confessed, and cut into her steak.

"So am I."

"You?"

Phil grinned at her. "Because my first glowing opinion of your ability hasn't had to be thrown into the heap of lost hopes. When your first story came in, I went about telling everybody in the office I'd made a find; but, later, when I read 'Their Son' and 'Concerning Anne,' I was a little stymied, as you would say. I thought I'd fallen down as a hunting dog in search of rare game. Now, I believe I'm about to be vindicated."

Mary smiled at him. "Your liking my outline's made me forget everything else in the world! I'm going to get busy on it the minute I reach home."

CHAPTER XIII

Mary wrote all that evening, and far into the morning. Now freed of the loathsome complex that she must marry somebody, now spurred on to new literary ambitions by Philip Buchanan's approval of her outline, and temporarily relieved of financial worries, she had started her novel with a light heart and a clear head. Phil Buchanan had given her any number of valuable suggestions; she remembered them all, and put them into execution.

Situation after situation presented itself, and satisfactorily worked out. Word after word. Page after page. "Storm on the Mountain" was coming to life!

Physically exhausted, yet mentally elated to an almost abnormal degree, Mary glanced at the chromium and blue timepiece on the mantel. It was three o'clock in the morning. "Perhaps I'd better stop," she told herself. "Mr. Buchanan said not to write too long at a stretch in the beginning, or my thoughts would go sluggish on me. And I've been at it since eight o'clock last night!"

She piled her typed sheets together in numerical succession, covered her typewriter, and turned out the lights. Everything could be left just as it was, ready for work on the coming day.

The next few days flew swiftly by, undisturbed by outside interests, the apartment devoid, hour after hour, of all sound except for the tap-tap of Mary's typewriter. Then, on Wednesday morning, came a telephone call from Philip Buchanan. "Thought I'd call up and see how you're getting on with 'Storm on the Mountain,'" he said without preamble.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Buchanan," Mary returned. "Why, I believe it's going along fairly well. I've finished four chapters."

"What? Really? Well, I'd call that swell! I'd like to read them."

"Would you—honestly?"

"Yes, I want to see if you've introduced your characters properly, and if you're bringing out the high spots of those opening chapters with the force that you should. Are you doing anything tonight? Will you have dinner with me, and go over the chapters afterwards?"

Mary hesitated. "Go over the chapters?" But where? She couldn't read them to him in a restaurant! Did he mean Aunt Linnie's apartment or his own? And would her mother approve? Yet, this was New York, not Hawkinsville, and it would be silly and provincial to go "prissy" on this man who usually acted as if he positively disliked her.

"Yes," she finally replied, "I'd like to have dinner with you tonight, and it's generous of you to want to help me with the novel."

"All right," Buchanan replied. "I'll tell Spike to scare up something for us to eat, and I'll drop around for you at seven."

And as usual, he hung up without the formality of a good-bye.

PAUL THINKS IN WORLD TERMS
LESSON TEXT—Romans 1:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"I see chaos . . . only one thing will stop this coming chaos . . . a sweeping spiritual revival. Unless we have such a reawakening of religious forces we shall have a depression within the next 10 years that will make the last one look like a Christmas eve program." So wrote a prominent business advisor recently, as quoted in the Practical Commentary. His view is shared by others not only in business but in governmental circles. Religious leaders, some of whom until recently were presenting glowing pictures of the beautiful fellowship of the peoples of the earth in a modernistic faith which is far from the gospel, are now either silent or prophets of despair. Faithful witnesses for God have long seen the approach of this day, and like prophets of old have warned the people to turn to God. God still lives. The good news of the gospel has lost none of its redeeming power. The Light of the World is ready to shine in the darkness. Now is the time to preach

I. The Gospel (vv. 1-6).

Paul knew himself as the bond-slave of Jesus Christ, recognizing that he had been set apart by God for the exalted purpose of preaching the gospel. The word itself means "good news," that is, any good news. But because there is but one bit of good news in the world entitled to a place of supremacy, it has come to mean the good news of the grace of God in Christ Jesus.

Note the three points made by Paul. First, it is "the gospel of God," good news from God. "Humanly speaking, from every reasonable standpoint, God can have only one message for fallen, rebellious men—a message of judgment and death. If there is to be good news from God, then God Himself must undertake to change the relationship between man and Himself so that He will be able to bestow His richest blessings upon men. This is the good news, that God is undertaking to save men from the judgment and doom that man deserves" (Wilbur M. Smith).

Then observe that this salvation was prophesied beforehand (v. 2). This gospel we have is not something suddenly prepared to meet an emergency. It was prepared before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4; Rev. 13:8). And in verse 3 we read that the good news is "concerning his Son." He is the only Saviour and unless it is concerning Him that we are to speak, the news is not good news.

II. The Gospel for the Whole World (vv. 7-15).

Religious cults flourish only where conditions prosper them. "Buddhism, we are told, succeeds best in warm climates. Mohammedanism flourishes among people of low culture. The gospel of Christ breaks through all barriers of geography, climate and race, and has proved itself to be equally adapted to men of 'all nations' (LeRoy M. Lowell).

Paul was called to preach to Greek and barbarian, to Jew and Gentile, to the wise and the unwise, to every living soul. What is more, he regarded himself as a debtor to them, and that is the spirit that brings forth a sacrificial determination to make Christ known to the ends of the earth. Let us recognize that we too are in debt to the whole world because we have the gospel that men need. Then in Christ's name let us as honorable men and women pay our debt. Perhaps some who would not wait overnight to pay the grocer for what he has delivered, have never felt the slightest compunction about standing in debt to all men for the preaching of the gospel.

III. The Gospel for the World's Salvation (vv. 16, 17).

Paul was not ashamed to take the gospel into the very heart of that ancient world, the magnificent city of Rome. Had he come with some new philosophy of life which had no power to transform men, he might well have been ashamed, but he knew that what he had would meet the deepest needs of humanity for deliverance from sin and sorrow and eternal death. He knew that the name of the "up and out" was the same as that of the "down and out"—namely, the redeeming grace of God—the gospel which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (v. 16).

Why should we who follow Christ be so timid when Paul could be so bold? Certainly we should not speak to men about this good news in an apologetic, "hope-you-won't-mind" attitude. Men need Christ. We know Christ will meet their every need. Let us not be ashamed to tell them about Him in the home, in the church, in the office, on the street, in America, in China, in Africa, yes, even to the very ends of the earth.

Dogs Learn Easily to Solve Problems Of Great Variety of Would-Be Masters

This may sound very strange, but it's true, none the less, and you can stop off at the little place on St. Clair street and rent a dog for any possible purpose, relates Jerry Greene in the Chicago Daily News.

You can rent a dog, and a fancy one, for a stroll along the avenue on a nice Sunday afternoon. You can hire a bird dog for a day's hunting and you can name your breed. You can get a dog to keep around the house for a couple of weeks to impress somebody—one Chicago business man rents dogs to show his friends how well he can handle animals. You can rent a dog to watch a car, a baby or a wife if necessary.

This all began five years ago, and today the man whose grandfather established the training kennels, where the dogs are rented, claims to be the only person in the United States who does a commercial business in dog-leasing.

The commercial photographers began it. They demanded dogs to pose for advertising photographs. Now a dog draws from $25 to $100 for posing for a portrait. Then the kidnaping scare came along, and people began to want to rent watch dogs.

Then there were fashion shows and other special occasions where an individual or a group needed a spirited pup for show purposes. Of course the bulk of the shop's business is in training dogs for obedience, for protection or for show purposes. But the rental trade has grown rapidly.

Each dog is trained to obey the person holding the leash, but the dogs seem to know their business and soon learn their temporary masters. When one job is done the dog can go along to a new master without difficulty.

One big St. Bernard has an unusual job, at the rate of $50 a month. The dog used to be a kidnap guard, but today he reclines behind a bar in a tavern, trained to jump at the throat of the next person who enters the place and shouts "hands up!"

Horseshoe-Shaped Temples
Long before horseshoes were nailed over doors and on the bows of ships to ward off bad luck, the design had a religious significance in various parts of the Orient. In the Rajputana region of India there stand several Hindu temples built in the shape of a horseshoe.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Role of Phosphorus In Nutrition; Tells Where to Obtain This Mineral

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE are at least 11 different mineral salts which are essential to the structure or functioning of the human body. But of these, only four—calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine—require the careful consideration of the home-maker. That is because a diet which furnishes adequate amounts of these four will automatically provide the others. But when the diet is deficient in any one of these four minerals, disastrous consequences may result.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that every homemaker should know something of their functions, and what foods supply them. In this article, we shall deal specifically with phosphorus.

Versatile Phosphorus

It has been said that if the biographies of the elements could be written, that of phosphorus would be the most interesting of all. That is because there are 14 different ways in which compounds of phosphorus may function in the body. In fact, it is doubtful if any other inorganic element enters into such a diversity of compounds or plays an important part in so many functions.

This mineral is indispensable for all the active tissues of the body and likewise helps in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It is found abundantly in nerve tissue.

Needed for Teeth and Bones

Its most significant role, however, is to team with calcium in giving rigidity to the bones and teeth. Approximately 90 per cent of the total phosphorus of the body and 99 per cent of the calcium are found in the bones and teeth.

Both these minerals are required in generous amounts, but almost twice as much phosphorus as calcium should be supplied every day. Moreover, children should have about one-and-one-half times as much phosphorus as adults, to meet the requirements for growth.

The muscles and soft tissues need phosphorus as well as the bones, and in the dietary of the child, they must share with the bones, the phosphorus that is provided by the food. Hence, the greater need for this mineral during childhood.

Phosphorus and Rickets

If a child's diet is deficient in phosphorus or calcium, or if conditions are not favorable for their proper absorption, rickets will occur. This devastating nutritional disease may result in deformities of the chest and pelvic bones, as well as the more familiar bow legs and knock-knees.

Investigators have spent many years in discovering how to prevent and cure this disease which has made life miserable for so many children and which has far-reaching effects that carry over into later life. For example, adults who have bow-legs or a pigeon breast as a result of childhood rickets, are always self-conscious because of their defects. And motherhood may be far more difficult for young women whose pelvic bones were deformed by rickets in their early years.

A Low-Phosphorus Diet

It was found that rickets may be associated with a low-phosphorus diet, even when the calcium content is high. And investigations also determined that there is a seasonal tide of blood phosphorus which corresponds to the amount of available sunlight. This led to the realization that sunlight—which we now know helps the body to manufacture vitamin D—is closely related to the proper utilization of phosphorus. And today it is well established that rickets can be prevented, or cured, by a diet containing liberal amounts of phosphorus, calcium and vitamin D. Vitamin D can be obtained from direct sunshine, but where this is not available in adequate amounts, cod-liver oil, irradiated foods, or those fortified with a vitamin D concentrate will supply this necessary substance.

Make Use of Sunlight

As we approach the season when the greatest amount of sunlight is available, homemakers should see to it that not only the children, but every member of the family spend as much time as possible in the sunlight. This will help to promote the proper utilization of phosphorus and calcium. And both teeth and bones will benefit, as well as the general health.

Where to Find Phosphorus

Every homemaker should acquaint herself with the foods that supply phosphorus most abundantly, so that she will be prepared to include this mineral in the diet every day. Egg yolk and dried beans are both valuable sources of phosphorus. So are whole grain cereals and lean meats. In fact, cereals and meats have this in common—both are rich in phosphorus and deficient in calcium. Whole grain breads are likewise important for their phosphorus content. And on a percentage basis, cheese ranks very high as a carrier of this mineral.

Cocoa also contains a large percentage, though it must be remembered that, as a rule, only small quantities of cocoa are consumed at one time. Many nuts, including almonds, peanuts, pecans and walnuts, furnish significant amounts. And this mineral is found in dried fruits such as raisins, figs and prunes, and in much smaller quantities in vegetables, such as spinach, cauliflower, string beans, carrots and Brussels sprouts.

Milk supplies phosphorus, though not in such generous amounts as calcium. However, if you follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child and a pint for each adult, you will contribute materially to the phosphorus and calcium content of the diet.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. E. N.—The three- or four-year-old child who wakes early should not be allowed to go for a very long period without breakfast. For this reason, seven o'clock is recommended as a good hour for his first meal of the day. After such an early breakfast, however, a mid-morning lunch of milk and crackers will be necessary. A child of this age may be expected to go to bed not later than seven o'clock.

For Shiny Linoleum.—Dissolve a lump of sugar in the water when washing linoleum or oilcloth and a brilliant polish will result.

Prevent Soiled Curtains.—Paint patent clothes pins the color of your decorations in different rooms and use a pair to pin back curtains at night or during showers. This keeps the curtains from being soiled by the screens.

Keeping Linens White.—Stored linens will not become yellow if the inside of the linen closet is painted a deep blue.

An Appetizer.—Celery stuffed with crabmeat salad can be used for a variety of an appetizer tray.

Beat Brown Sugar.—If dark or light brown sugar is too hard to measure, heat it in the oven, then measure it quickly while it is soft. Store it in the refrigerator or bread box, where it will remain soft.

Grease on Carpet.—Grease can often be removed from the carpet by rubbing with bicarbonate of soda applied with a piece of flannel. Rub well into pile with fingertips and then sweep vigorously with a small hand brush.

Sharp Kitchen Tools.—One of the most effective aids to speeding up cooking preparations, is to see that paring knives for fruits and vegetables, and knives for trimming up meats and fowl, are kept sharp. Dull knives not only waste an unbelievable amount of time, but they are disconcerting to thoughtful planning.

Burnt Aluminum.—If you burn an aluminum saucepan when cooking, boil an onion in it. The burnt part will rise to the top like scum and leave the saucepan clean.

For Glue Stains.—White vinegar will remove glue stains.

A Good Sink Brush.—A worn whiskbroom makes a fine sink brush if you cut off the worn bristles clear up to the stiff part. Always rinse clean after using.

Perilous Leave

Unless necessary no inhabitant of Albinen, Switzerland, ever leaves the village, which is built on a mountaintop, because the only way to get to and from the outside world is by a ladder that is 600 feet, or 50 stories, in height. —Collier's.

Real Climbers
Rubber-like pads and the sharp edges of their hoofs aid mountain goats in their agile mountaineering.

Some Great Musicians
Victor Herbert was taken to Germany at the age of seven and all of his musical education was obtained there. John Philip Sousa, born in Washington, began his musical education in that city at the age of six, under Espata and Boskoff; he was a violin soloist at eleven and a teacher of harmony at fifteen.

Plough Monday
Survival of an old rustic festival, Plough Monday (January 7) was regarded as the end of Christmas holidays, and was called St. Duff's day when spinning was woman's chief occupation. On this day judges return to the law courts, and a mansion house dinner recalls the time when the city's agricultural lands were farmed by citizens.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL
The typing II class has finished its project of typing a History of Tawas township and Tawas City. The information was taken from a book "History of the Lake Huron Shore" published in 1883 and loaned by Mrs. Walter Taylor. This little booklet, made by the class, consists of 45 pages and will be bound and put on sale to those who care to buy a copy. This work was exceptionally valuable to members of the typing class. Each student typed from three to five stencils and was given the opportunity to run these stencils off on the mimeograph machine. The ordinary exercise in a text book gives each student a chance to type only one stencil and run only this one off on the machine. No student can learn to operate any machine with but one treat. The project just completed gave the student a real chance to learn how to manipulate the machine independently and the added satisfaction that this material would be put to some use.
The booklets that will be put out are not flawless. Some may question the advisability of completing a project with this degree of efficiency. There are two points of view. The one is that perhaps the three best typists in the class would be given the job. The work would be more uniform and accurate. On the other hand every student given a share gives eleven people a chance to learn how to operate the machine even though there were some mistakes. The question is one of supreme efficiency against equal opportunity for all. We preferred the latter course. Don't you? We hope many will enjoy reading this history—it gives an account of the development of the church and fraternal orders, industry, school, court house, and post office. Several biographies are given including the familiar names of Prescott, Curry, and Nesbit.
Saturday, May 27, the Seniors will hold a bake sale at McElliott's store at 2 o'clock. Do your week-end baking an easy way by buying our delicious and tempting bake goods.

Several bouquets of spring flowers have been brought in our room. Inez Ulman brought a flowering maple plant.

The following people have had perfect attendance for the month: Wanda Fowler, Gerald Ward, Shirley Boomer, James Smith, Bobby Ward, Marie Luce and Billy Ward.
The pages for our spring books are almost finished. We still need to find more pictures. Only a few people have brought theirs.
We hope that Louis Pfeiffer can soon come back. He has had scarlet fever. Arlene and Russell Monroe are out of school with scarlet fever too.

Greatest Tea Drinkers
About 53 per cent of the world's annual supply of tea is drunk in Great Britain. The entire British empire drinks about 40 per cent of the world supply.

MUSIC
May 26 is the Band Festival in Standish. We are looking forward to this trip, and are anxious to make a good showing. We will have the largest band there.
The Band is planning a concert and music jamboree for June 6. Many new features are to be given. You will hear and see the new clockspies, hear the Girls Glee club and many other attractions. There will be free gifts to all who attend and a blanket is to be given away. Fun and pleasure for everyone.
We plan to have music classes during the summer, and anyone interested will be given a chance to participate.
The band and glee club will take part in the Decoration Day program.
SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES
Last week our room received a letter from Floyd Sieve, of Milbank, South Dakota. Mrs. Allen read the letter to the class which contained many interesting things about Milbank.
The following people are on the honor roll for the month of May: Dick Clark, Evelyn Colby, Roy Landon, Maxine DePott, Hazel Galliker, Linda Lou Libka and Willard Musolf from the seventh grade; Charlotte Hughes, Lyle Hughes, Ruth Giddings and Maxine Smith from the eighth grade.
The seventh grade hygiene class is studying the life of Edward Jenner and the history of small pox and its inoculation. Other health heroes they have studied about the past few months are: Louis Pasteur, Walter Reed, Florence Nightingale and Edward Trudeau.
FIFTH and SIXTH GRADES
The fifth grade has been studying about plants. Lewis Mark, Ruth Ulman and Norman Koepke brought some plants to school for the class to examine. Billy Galloker brought a planted grape fruit seed and it is beginning to grow. Beverly Bigelow added a hornet to our collection. We are finding our science book very interesting.
Raymond Westcott and Henry Brown haven't been absent or tardy this semester.
THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
The following people were neither absent nor tardy during the last month: Richard Berube, Donald Britting, Donald Gingerich, Sylvia Ostrander, Leslie Smith, Elizabeth Westcott, Russell Cornac, Ida Koepke, Janet Musolf, Inez Ulman and Rhea Ulman.
Ruth and Norma Monroe are absent due to scarlet fever in their home.
Lloyd Hughes was the only one in the third grade who had perfect spelling papers last week.
The fourth grade memorized the poem "The Birdie Ball" for their language lesson Monday.

Fleas Carry Typhus Germs
Rat fleas are largely responsible for the spread of typhus fever in America. The fleas are not mere mechanical carriers, according to an authority, who states that the virus of the disease multiplies in the bodies of these insects.
