Opens New One Stop Super Service Station

Happy Birthday

(WNU SERVICE)

Wm. Look of East Tawas is announcing the official opening of his One-Stop Super Service station July 1, 2, 3 and 4. He invites everyone to inspect the new plant during one of the four days. There will be roses for the ladies, balloons for the children and key chains for the gentlemen.

If you are in the mood to purchase, Mr. Look has made a large number of special offers on gasoline tires, accessories and brake safety service for the four days. His official announcement will be found in the advertising section of this week's Tawas Herald.

The new super service station, together with the newly remodeled salesrooms and garage gives Mr. Look one of the finest plants in this section. It is of modern cement block and large construction throughout. This steel building has a handsomely arranged front of porcelain enameled tile and plate glass. The interior of the salesroom has been remodeled and redecorated giving fine appointments for the display of Chevrolet and Buick cars. The garage has been enlarged and has everything necessary in modern equipment.

We wish to congratulate Mr. Look on his enterprise and progressiveness. The new building will be the pride of the community.

Tawas City Wins Its Fifth Straight Game

The Tawas City Baseball Team run their string of wins to five by dropping Twining 7 to 2 last Sunday in a low hit game played on the latter's diamond. Tawas garnered six hits, including a triple by Lefty Quick, fleet-footed outfielder of the Tawas Clan. Twining collected four hits including a double by Forshee and a triple by Heatley off the combined offerings of Mallon and Kussro. Twining errors played a large part in the size of the score.

"Bill" Mallon was the starting pitcher for Tawas City. He worked three full innings and with one out and two runners on base as the result of a single and base on balls in the fourth he called it a day on the mound, and Kussro was sent in to finish the game. Mallon went to right field and Moeller to first base. During Bill's stay on the mound he allowed one run, three hits, walked three and struck out three. Kussro, who relieved him, allowed one hit, a three bagger by Heatley, one run, walked two and fanned seven in five and two-thirds innings.

Tawas scored a run in the first inning, Katterman, first man up, struck out, Zollweg grounded out second to first. Quick then drove one to left-center for three sacks and scored when the ball slipped out of Norris' hand on a bluff throw to third.

Twining evened things up in the second. Forshee opened with a double. Youngs walked, Ruthruff was safe when Laidlaw supposedly interfered with the batter, filling the bases. Szatany fanned for the first out, G. Ostrander walked forcing in Forshee to tie the score. Munro lined to Katterman who doubled Ostrander off first.

Zollweg took the lead in the fourth. Zollweg opened the inning with a single and took second on Heatley's bad throw to first. Quick grounded out short to first Zollweg moved to third on the play. Mallon hit a sharp grounder back to the box which caromed off the pitcher's glove to Heatley.

$7557.19 Paid Cities From Horton Fund

For the calendar year of 1938 the Iosco County Road Commission sent checks totaling $7557.19 to the three cities, of East Tawas, Tawas City and Whittemore as their share of the 1938 Horton Fund for that year.

This amounts to approximately $250.00 per mile on the streets in these cities. The law requires that this money be spent entirely on the streets.

The County Road Commission gets approximately $54.00 per mile for all former township roads taken over under the Holbeck-McNitt Act.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our deep appreciation for the many acts of kindness of our friends and neighbors during the illness and death of our husband and father. Also for the beautiful floral offerings and the use of cars.

Mrs. Henry Jacques, and family.

4-H BOYS AND GIRLS ENJOY IOSCO CAMP

Young People From Five Counties Take Part

Y. M. C. A. Camp Mahn-Go-Tah-See on Loon Lake, a beautiful spot with hills, rain, and sunshine, near Hale, Michigan, saw a gathering of the tribes of 4-Hers last Monday afternoon, June 19 under the direction of L. H. (Dusty) Rhodes, District 4-H Club Agent.

Upon arrival at the camp all club members were inspected by Miss Agnes Mitchell, Arenac County Health Nurse, for any evidence of diseases.

Following the 4-H boys and girls and some of the 4-H leaders of the past year were quickly organized into a cooperative camp of anxious helpers who lived in natural, healthful attitudes one toward another for three days. Under trained supervisors, many activities were eagerly participated in by everyone: swimming; crops; and animal husbandry; games; spontaneous programs; movies; yells; plenty of visiting and making of new friends. This well organized group kept faith with each other and with the group; high interest was paramount.

The good old-fashioned dinner bell called everyone to play and to eat the most excellent food in well-balanced varieties. The appetites of the growing boys and girls were easily recognized and did justice to the eats prepared by four volunteer cooks who worked from 5 o'clock in the morning

Katterman-Wendt

Evelyn Katterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Katterman, Jr., became the bride of Arthur Wendt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wendt, Sr., at 1:15 p. m., Sunday, June 25, which was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The ceremony was read at the Zion Lutheran church of Tawas City by Rev. Ernest Ross.

The bride wore a dusty pink dress and large white picture hat, and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Miss Ruth Katterman, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, she wore a pale blue dress and white hat and had a corsage of pink roses. The groom was attended by Martin Kasischke.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to sixty guests, many of whom were from out of town.

Late in the afternoon the young couple left on a short wedding trip through the southern part of the state, and on their return will make their home in Tawas City. Their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

Baker-Taylor

At a four o'clock ceremony on Saturday, June 24, Miss Kathleen Ann Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Baker, of Alabaster, became the bride of Luther H. Taylor, son of Mrs. Fred Stevens, of Detroit. The service was read in the St. Joseph rectory with Rev. Robert Neuman officiating.

The bride was lovely in a long white gown of silk marquisette over taffeta. She wore a short tulle veil and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Bernice Baker was her sister's only attendant. She wore a pale green marquisette over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of talesman roses.

Arlain Taylor, of Detroit, served his brother as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Alabaster for seventy-five guests from Detroit, Lincoln Park, Royal Oak, Lansing, Tawas City and East Tawas.

Joseph Maxwell

Joseph Maxwell, age 72 years, passed away at his home 2303 North Van Buran street, Bay City, Sunday afternoon. He had been a resident of Whittemore until he moved to Bay City 20 years ago. He was a member of the Episcopal church and also a member of the Forresters.

Mr. Maxwell was born in Gray county, Canada, July 12, 1866. He leaves his widow Agusta, three daughters, Mrs. Ray Higginbottom, of St. Charles; Mrs. Robert Donney and Mrs. Ralph Curler, of Bay City; three sons, George, Edward and Leroy Maxwell, all of Bay City; and 21 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the home at 12:30 and at 2:30 from the Whittemore Methodist church on Wednesday with Rev. Walter B. Williamson, of Bay City, in charge. Interment was in the Cedar Valley cemetery.

Forest Service to Show Pictures Here July 8

The U. S. Forest Service Show Boat will again be in Tawas City on Saturday evening, July 8, to show free motion pictures in the city park.

According to Forest Supervisor Ralph E. Crowell, the show will start at 8:30 p. m. and last for approximately one hour. Pictures of wildlife, planting, firefighting and other activities of the CCC will be shown. Many of these scenes were filmed in Michigan, and are of local interest to sportsmen and others concerned with the conservation of Michigan's forest resources.

School Meeting

The annual meeting of school district seven (7) will be held in the school building, Monday, July 10, 1939, eight (8) o'clock p. m., for the purpose of the election of one trustee for a full term and one trustee for a vacancy period of one year and for the transaction of any other business that may lawfully come before said meeting.

Dated this 24th day of June, 1939. A. A. Bigelow, Secretary.

REGATTA AND CELEBRATION AT EAST TAWAS

40 Boats to Participate In Saginaw Bay Yacht Club Events

Approximately 40 boats will cross the starting line in the different classes in the regatta sponsored by the Saginaw Bay Yacht Club of Bay City which will be held July 1, 2, 3 and 4 on Tawas bay, announces Roy MacDonald, general chairman of the regatta committee. These together with about 20 power boats will put a fleet of 60 boats on the bay during the regatta period.

Extensive plans have been made by the committee for the races and the entertainment of the yachtsmen and their families. In addition to Roy MacDonald the committee consists of Otto Sovereign, Charles Moulthrop, Harold Davis, Smith Bolton, Al Harvey, P. K. Fletcher and Commodore Emeritus, Charles Coryell, Sr.

The boats will leave Bay City Saturday morning. The regatta will begin with a "chance" race between Point Lookout and East Tawas dock, starting at 11:00. This race will include all classes. The class races will start at 2:00 o'clock and continue through the afternoon of each day of the regatta.

Monday evening and the day and evening of July Fourth, East Tawas plans a celebration with swimming events, athletic events and dancing. A parade will be held at 10:00 o'clock July Fourth. There will be a grand fireworks display in the evening at the State Park dock.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Predict New Pact With Brazil As U. S. Staves Off Nazi Bid For Entree to South America

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

PAN-AMERICA:

Hair's Breadth

Many years ago when the U. S. clamped down on immigration, millions of Germans, Italians and Japanese turned to unexploited Brazil. When Adolf Hitler came to power he began a diligent campaign to Nazify Brazil's Germans, just as Benito Mussolini tried Fascifying Brazil's Italians to the degree that Brazil's Japs were natively loyal to Tokyo.

To Hitler, one of Brazil's major charms was its unexplored iron deposits which might some day be taken by military force. As a foundation German crews began manning German airships from German airports established in Brazil, an expensive commercial aviation venture which could never pay out except in war. But one of Hitler's mistakes was to barter armaments and machinery for Brazilian coffee, which he then dumped on the markets to obtain badly needed foreign exchange, thus undermining world prices and damaging Brazil's coffee trade.

Even this blunder was almost overcome, however. Early this year a Brazilian commercial mission was about to leave for Berlin when the U. S. convinced Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha he should visit Washington. Result: Brazil gained a loan from the U. S., also received aid in developing her resources and agreed in return to begin servicing her payments to American bondholders during the current summer.

After this hair's breadth escape came another. In May Gen. Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro, Brazilian chief of staff, was about to visit Berlin for general staff consultations leading either to a co-operative understanding or a military alliance. Hastily dispatched to Rio de Janeiro was Gen. George C. Marshall, newly appointed U. S. chief of staff. Result: Back home in mid-June came General Marshall with the bacon. On an American cruiser he brought General Monteiro to Washington, where observers expected a military agreement would soon be reached between the U. S. and Brazil.

The agreement's substance: The U. S. could use emergency air fields in northern Brazil, thus perfecting the American plan to make an American lake out of the Caribbean, with bases at Puerto Rico and Guantanamo, Cuba, serving as miniature Hawaiias.

Simultaneously, the Atlantic Clipper's inaugural trip to Lisbon with 30 passengers and 12 crew members gave every layman an idea of transatlantic aviation possibilities and their bearing on a U. S. pact with Brazil. Should a European power beat us to the draw, Brazil might easily become an operations base from whence bombers (after crossing the Atlantic at its narrowest point) might work against the Panama canal, Guantanamo, Puerto Rico and even the U. S. itself (see map).

Germany has tried in two ways to hamstring the British. While William Strang of the London foreign office is conferring with Dictator Josef Stalin, the Reich's ambassador to Russia has been ordered to work for a stalemate by offering Moscow a commercial and credit agreement. If Germany thus joined western democracies in begging for Russia's friendship, it carried the begging to still greater heights during the Jap incident by singing a siren song that went something like this: "Why should a great power like you care to tie up with people like the British, who can now be kicked with impunity even by the Japanese?"

The Reich's second effort, obviously in desperation, has been to push its projected military pact with Japan. Although Tokyo's ambassadors to Italy and Germany both favor Jap participation in the anti-Communist front, the foreign office back home has shunned such complications for good reason—Japan has enough ambitions and troubles in the Far East without getting embroiled in Europe's woes. Moreover, both Russia and Japan—bitter enemies—doubt the sincerity of a nation which tries simultaneously to win the friendship of both.

Hence observers predict consummation of the Anglo-Russ alliance, with Britain asking help in the Far East as well as in Europe, thanks to Japan's clamping down on London's interests in China. For Britain this would be merely a last-ditch defensive alliance with a nation most Englishmen dislike. Russia would thereby gain British support in her projected Far Eastern war with Japan, also winning a comparatively free hand to expand westward by exercising Hitler-like pressure on Baltic states like Finland, Latvia and Estonia. Out of this, Britain may hope, will come a German-Russian war in which Europe's dictators will slaughter each other.

4-H Club Girls Taught Make-Up by N. Y. Ballerinas

Helen Margaret Michael and Marjorie Jensen, Oregon farm girls who won the National 4-H club social progress contest, learn the rudiments of stage make-up from Ruby Asquith and Grace Thomas of the Radio City Music hall. Miss Jensen, who is being made-up, and Miss Michael, standing beside her, represented 4,500 club units at the New York World's fair.

Zoo Baby Demands De Luxe Service

This 18-month-old baby elephant arrived recently at the Philadelphia, Pa., zoo to take up temporary quarters with two antelopes. When the zoo's newest tenant proves to her keepers that she is accustomed to and friendly with humans, she will be transferred to the baby zoo. The little elephant, three-feet, nine-inches tall, was caught in Rangoon, Burma, and is the gift of Frank B. Foster, a zoo director. Keeper Pat Cronin is shown feeding the youngster on its arrival at the zoo.

'Casey Jones Was the Rounder's Name'

Mrs. John Luther Jones, widow of the famed Casey Jones, hero of song and story, who was killed in a historic train wreck on April 30, 1900, shakes hands with Engineer Herbert Nicholson, who is in the cab of the "William Mason" of 1870. Many of the trains that were operating when Casey Jones died "with his hand on the throttle" are on exhibition at the New York World's fair. The song of Casey's death has become one of America's best known ballads, originating with the noted engineer's Negro helper.

No Fascist Salute for Prince Umberto

Even though his Belgian wife, Princess Marie Jose, snaps out the stiff-armed Fascist salute during ceremonies in Nuoro, Italy, Crown Prince Umberto—who has had several tiffs with the Black Shirts—seems to prefer the pre-Fascist military salute. The ceremonies were held in honor of cadets who fell in the recent Spanish civil war.

Traces Plains To Forest Fires

Farmer Believes Nebraska Covered With Trees In 12th Century.

NORTH PLATTE, NEB.—A forest fire which swept western Nebraska following a prolonged drouth in the Twelfth century may have been the contributing cause of the barren sandhills overlooking both sides of the Platte river.

So believes Harry Weekley of the Nebraska experimental farm at North Platte, who began studying trees as a hobby and after years of research has brought forth evidence that western Nebraska was covered in the Twelfth century by a forest of virgin red cedars.

By measuring and comparing the growth rings of trees which have died recently, Weekley developed a graph depicting the increased and decreased cycle of rainfall over a period of years.

Traces Rain to 1606.

Applying the graph to lumber from trees which died at an undetermined time, Weekley arrived at the dates of their death. Through this tedious method, he traced intermittent drouth and high rainfall periods back to 1606.

Three years ago, excavation for an irrigation canal brought to light three stumps of two red cedars which once grew in the Platte valley. Their growth rings did not correlate with any of the periods back to 1606 but did match the Twelfth century growth ring graphs of a University of Arizona scientist, Dr. A. E. Douglas.

Since then, Weekley has discovered in canyons along the Platte valley so many similar red cedars that he concluded the valley and foothills once were covered with virgin forest.

Drought for 35 Years.

Study disclosed, Weekley said, that the trees died from a drouth of 35 years duration. With the vegetation gone from the soil, prairie winds covered the canyons with dust, sometimes 13 feet deep.

Later Weekley said, a great fire apparently raged through the vegetation which arose above the drifts. The fact that two-foot trees were consumed indicates the intensity of the fire, he explained.

With all vegetation destroyed, winds played havoc with the soil and the sandhills formed from the drifting sands, Weekley theorizes. In the space of time, a period of light winds permitted grass to grow and the sandhills assumed their present form.

Loser in Fight for Girl Wins Her in an Upset

LONDON.—Two young men, in love with 18-year-old Joyce Williams of Maesteg, Glamorgan, Wales, decided to settle their quarrel by fighting for her.

They met—Ronnie Jones and Billy Thomas—in the local boxing ring. Joyce could not watch them. She agreed to wait outside for the result. Inside the two men fought toe to toe in a battle that made on-lookers gasp.

Jones hit harder. He wore Thomas down. His partisans yelled encouragements. After four rounds the referee held up Jones' hand. "Ronnie wins! Ronnie wins," they shouted.

Joyce, waiting outside, heard them. Thomas, bruised and beaten, slipped off unnoticed on his way home. But Joyce caught his arm and went with him. When Jones came out Joyce had gone. Later Joyce said:

"The loser in this case won, I suppose I loved Billy all along."

Said Billy: "Ron and I have settled our squabbles and shaken hands over it. But Joyce is my girl now."

Pelican Gets First Aid

NEW ORLEANS.—Pete the Pelican's first brush with the law wasn't so bad.

Patrolman William Reese found the bird on a street in New Orleans' business district. He took Pete home and discovered that the bird's pouch had been badly cut.

Thirty-two stitches took care of the pelican's fish carrier.

Reese kept Pete for a week on charges of reckless flying.

Recovered, Pete took off from the policeman's back yard for his home in the swamps where regulations are dictated by nature's migratory urges.

Boy Keeps Snakes and 'Gators in Bedroom

CLEVELAND.—Harvey Camin, 16, has been collecting snakes and other reptiles for eight years, and keeps now, in his bedroom, a slithering collection of 10 snakes and two small alligators.

"But I have trouble," he said, "in getting live animals to feed them."

Harvey's collection, he says, require live meat to be healthy, but the Animal Protective league objected to a live bird diet.

Harvey hopes to extend his collection—including bigger and better reptiles.

"I hope," he said, "to have a rattlesnake sometime."

By L. L. STEVENSON

During the recent visit of Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark, an incident occurred which I believe could happen nowhere except in America. Months ago, Al Smith, through the Danish Consul General, Georg Berch, extended an invitation to the prince and princess to see New York from the tower of the Empire State building. The invitation was accepted and on the day set, the prince and princess and the consul general and his wife arrived. It happened, however, that that day, the ex-governor was out on the Pacific coast attending the Al Smith day at the Golden Gate exposition. So Mrs. Julia Chandler, who is in charge of the observatories, acted as hostess and in the course of time, the party saw all of the tower, even making a stop on the 103rd floor terrace which is closed to ordinary visitors.

At the conclusion of the tour, Mrs. Chandler stopped at the souvenir department to make gifts of alligator-skin compacts to the princess and the wife of the consul general. Right after the presentation, a pretty young girl came up and whispered to Mrs. Chandler. The girl is Miss Alice Carlson, who was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and is hostess of one of the tea rooms. As is well known, Sweden is the home of the wife of the crown prince, and it was Miss Carlson's timidly put wish to be allowed to speak to the princess. Naturally, the permission was granted at once. Then followed the unusual scene of a working girl from her own country welcoming Princess Ingrid to this working girl's adopted country.

The princess was charming, Mrs. Chandler reported, and talked with Miss Carlson longer than she did with any member of the party except her hostess. She asked Miss Carlson if she were an American citizen and Miss Carlson, who has been here nine years, replied that she wasn't yet but hoped to be. Miss Carlson also told the princess all about the observatories and how she never tires of the views, enjoying them even on cloudy days. To that the princess replied that she never had had a more thrilling experience and that she would not have known what New York was really like had she not seen it from the tower. And when they parted, a princess shook hands with a working girl.

Needless to state, the whole experience was quite a thrill for Miss Carlson. How much of a thrill the actual meeting really was may be gauged from the fact that on the night Lauritz Melchior, of the Metropolitan, gave an after-opera supper for the prince and princess, Miss Carlson went to the Grisholm restaurant just so that she might catch one glimpse of Frederik and Ingrid.

A recent survey disclosed the fact that Columbia university students who attempted to finance their own education did so in such varied ways as acting as an audience at a dedication, counting the number and kind of weeds on Long Island, walking dogs and watching babies, as well as looking after pets while owners were out to movies. In addition, they entertained guests on a yacht, gave impersonations at parties and aided those whose contract bridge was of the kind that makes partners see red. Judging contests, speaking in high schools and teaching Sunday school also helped.

Tutoring furnished the greatest number of jobs, about 800 students receiving from $1 to $8 an hour for such work. Tutoring varied widely also. While most of it had to do with higher education there was one job of teaching an 84-year-old woman arithmetic. She wanted to keep track of her sons who run her business for her.

A group of show people were discussing the present day crop of song writers and soon the conversation centered on one composer.

"I think," remarked Al Donahue, band leader, "that his songs will live after him."

"I don't know about that," offered Genevieve Rowe, soprano, "but they certainly did live before him."

Famous Comstock Bar

To Go on Auction Block

SAN FRANCISCO.—The famous long, mahogany bar of the equally famous Comstock room of the Palace hotel, which had existed for years before the San Francisco earthquake and fire, is to be sold at auction—crowded out by the "electric eye."

Situated on one of the upper floors of the hotel the bar was frequented by almost every celebrity that came to San Francisco. Now, patrons prefer a bar on the ground floor where an "electric eye" sends a beam that automatically opens the door for them.

Globe-Trotting Cyclist

Visits New York Fair

Peggy Allin, 25-year-old girl from Mayes, Kent, England, arrived in New York recently after cycling across England to Port Talbot, Wales, where she took a freighter to Montreal, Canada. She continued her bicycle trip to New York, and will cross the continent before visiting New Zealand and Australia.

World Traveler

Little Stephen Swanson, six months old, has already seen a lot of the world. With his mother, Mrs. Ted W. Swanson, the infant recently left Northern Rhodesia, Africa, and traveled to Seattle by air, rail and steamer. They were en route to Norrie, Quebec, Canada, where they met Mr. Swanson, an engineer.

Socialite Waitress

Carol Woodman, foster daughter of Dr. James Angell, president emeritus of Yale university, is working as a waitress in a Krumsville, Pa., restaurant—and likes the job. She left Smith college recently, informing her parents of the move, and intends to stay on the job and earn her own way.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—If the king and queen had talked with Lawrence Tibbett, after he sang for them at the White House when they visited our capital, they might have been pleasantly assured that they had dropped in the America of authentic British tradition and not a parvenu nation without a past. In the California badlands, when Lawrence Tibbett was 7 years old, his father, a deputy sheriff, cornered the bandit, wild Jim McKinney, in a Chinese joss house in Bakersfield. At that time, McKinney ranked Billy the Kid, previously the leading bad man in those parts. Shooting his way out, he killed Tibbett. Tibbett's brother, Bert, then sheriff of Bakersfield, stepped in in time to land a load of buckshot between the bandit's eyes.

Just the other day, Lawrence Tibbett's Uncle Bert gave him the shotgun which had dropped McKinney. The boy had a hard scramble, getting an education and helping support his widowed mother and, at long last—speaking in the manner of the house of Windsor—here's another distinctive American touch—Lawrence Tibbett is the first American singer to gain fame without European training.

Betty Lee Tibbett, his sister, taught him his first songs, and how to play the piano. Joseph Dupuy, the southern California tenor, was his first professional teacher.

Takes on a 'T' And Luck Does A Happy Turn

He knew he had a voice, but was determined to be a Shakespearean actor. However, his fame as a singer grew in Los Angeles, and he began studying with Frank LaForge in New York. On January 2, 1925, he stole the show from Scotti, in Verdi's "Falstaff." The record shows one score for the numerologist. His luck wasn't so good until he added another "T" to his name—it is properly Tibbett.

There's still another touch of quaint Americana in Mr. Tibbett's story. Whenever he has a headache, he walks around on his hands. He says that sluces the blood out of his head and stops the pain. Many a time, just before he was to sing a specially exacting role, members of the Metropolitan cast have seen him off stage, running around upside down. Our reception to the king and queen was necessarily routine, but they would have learned much of interest if they could have circulated in disguise like good King Alfred who burned the cakes.

THE Duke of Windsor gave the Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine a pair of cufflinks for marrying him, and the duchess sent him a piece of wedding cake.

Jardine Had but Walk-On Part on History's Stage

That was about the net return for the little vicar's defiance of his clerical superiors. As the captains and the kings depart, he's broke in Hollywood, which, some people say, is worse than being broke in Death Valley. Those who liked to think they had a ringside seat at great events projected the plump, sandy-haired little priest into history, along with the parish priest mixed up in Napoleon's divorce and marriage—an event which set up the "Black Cardinals" and set churchly hierophants wrangling ever after.

Soon forgotten was the Rev. Mr. Jardine. His lecture tour in this country was a failure. He found engagements mysteriously cancelled. He now says, "Bigotry and persecution have followed us across the sea. My wife and I hardly know where to turn, but we're fighting on. I found that America thus far is a land of promises, not of promise."

He was a low-church, Evangelical pastor in Darlington, county of Durham, working in the slums and appealing for better conditions for the Welsh miners, known as "the poor man's parson." It was King Edward's sympathetic reference to the sad plight of the miners that claimed his loyalty, even to the extent of sacrificing his living of $2,000 a year. He had hoped to gain a living by lecturing in this country.

"People seem to shun me," he says. "I can't quite understand it." He is a rather bewildered, meager little man. He sent the duke a cablegram congratulating him on his recent peace speech, but got no reply. However, he has no regrets. He believes it was clearly his duty to perform the wedding ceremony. "If I had to do it all over again, I'd do it," he says.

Household News

Salads for Summer Meals

When the mercury soars skyward and appetites are on the wane, nothing tastes quite so good as a crisp, cool mixture of fresh greens, or fruits, or vegetables with a tart, taste-teasing dressing.

Salads are summer favorites. There's hardly a dish that's so simple yet so satisfying to make, and there's such a pleasant way of making sure that we get the minerals and vitamins we need!

Suggestions on Salads. Salad ingredients must be clean and cold and crisp. Contrast is important, too—contrast in textures, in flavors, and in colors. Combine crisp foods with soft; sharp, pungent-tasting foods with mild-flavored ones; and pale, uninteresting looking foods with foods that are vividly colored. Make your summer salads as light or as substantial as you please. Find a few good basic recipes, and vary them to suit yourself. Here are some of my own favorites—practical, everyday recipes that are easy to prepare and serve, yet delicious enough for almost any social occasion.

Summer Tossed Salad. Dip edges of lettuce leaves in paprika and arrange in salad bowl. Add green pepper rings, cucumber slices, radish roses and tomatoes, cut lengthwise in eighths. Toss together with french dressing made as follows: grate 1/2 clove garlic on two tablespoons granulated sugar. Add one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon paprika, one cup salad oil and 1/2 cup lemon juice. Shake vigorously, chill, and shake again, before mixing with salad.

Festive Potato Salad. (Serves 5) 3 eggs (hard cooked) 4 cups cooked potatoes (cut fine) 1/2 cup green pepper (cut fine) 1 bunch green onions (cut fine) 1/2 cup celery (cut fine) 1/4 cup sweet pickles (cut fine) 1 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing Salt to taste Cut hard cooked eggs in slices. Combine ingredients in order given, reserving a few of the egg slices for garnishing. Chill. Serve in large bowl lined with lettuce. Garnish with radish roses and hard cooked egg.

Crab Salad. (Serves 5) 1 13-ounce tin crabmeat 3/4 cup celery (cut fine) 1/4 cup sweet pickles (cut fine) 2 hard cooked eggs—riced egg yolk 3/4 cup mayonnaise dressing 1 head lettuce 1 tablespoon capers Flake crabmeat and remove membrane. Add celery, sweet pickle and egg white (finely cut). Mix with mayonnaise dressing. Arrange on bed of crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with egg yolk (riced) and capers.

Frozen Tomato Salad. 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin 1/4 cup cold water 1 No. 2 can tomatoes 1 cup celery and celery leaves (chopped) 2 tablespoons diced onion 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon sugar 6 whole cloves 6 peppercorns Sprig thyme 1 bay leaf 1 cup whipping cream (whipped) 1/2 teaspoon paprika Soak gelatin in cold water. Heat tomatoes, celery, onion and all seasonings in a saucepan and simmer gently for about 10 minutes. Strain and add at once to the softened gelatin. Mix thoroughly and chill. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in the whipped cream. Pour into freezing tray and place in freezing compartment until thick. When frozen, unmold and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Marshmallow Mint Salad. (Serves 6) 1 package (1/4 pound) marshmallows 1 tablespoon fruit juice Peppermint extract Green vegetable coloring 1/2 cup mayonnaise 3/4 cup mixed fruits (cut in small pieces) 1 cup whipping cream (whipped) Place marshmallows and fruit juice in saucepan and heat over low heat. Fold over and over until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from heat and continue folding until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Cool. Then add peppermint extract and green food coloring (these can be omitted, if desired). Blend in mayonnaise and fruits and fold in whipped cream. Turn into individual molds and chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on lacy endive ring and garnish with a sprig of mint and halved maraschino cherry.

Cinderella Salad. (Serves 6) 2 cups cooked lamb (cut in small cubes) 2/3 cup french dressing 2 tablespoons fresh mint (chopped) 1/2 cup cooked peas 1/2 cup cooked carrots 2 cups shredded cabbage Salt and pepper to taste Place lamb in salad bowl, add french dressing and chopped mint. Chill in refrigerator for one hour. Then add remaining ingredients and toss together lightly, adding additional french dressing, if desired. Garnish with strips of green pepper and wedges of tomatoes.

Get This New Cook Book. Who said that Father doesn't like salads? Of course he does! To be sure it's a sheer waste of energy to make a fancy creation in the hope of pleasing him, but there are plenty of plain, substantial salads that he likes. In her new cook book, "Feeding Father," Eleanor Howe tells just how to please him with salads and other of his favorite foods. French Provincial Style Of Furniture Is Revived French provincial furniture, now that it is being revived, is sure to be with us for a long time for it is beautiful in itself, it is moderately priced, and it can be combined so well with early American styles. Many women, who like a little variety in their rooms, will delight to find that the simple, graceful chairs of beechwood and of cherry in this French vein mix perfectly with maple tables and chairs.

There are charming upholstered armchairs, too, from which to choose, and many handsome little occasional tables, some of the tiered variety, others with sunken receptacles for plants, and still others for bedside use and for service for afternoon tea or after dinner coffee. Whether you are doing an entire room or are merely investing in a piece or two you'll have no difficulty in finding charming furniture in French provincial style.

SOLOMON: A RULER WHO BEGAN WELL

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 3:5-15. GOLDEN TEXT—Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart . . . that I may discern between good and bad.—1 Kings 3:9.

Success or failure in life is determined by the measure of a man's devotion to God and obedience to the will of God. We speak now of real success, not according to the ideas of the world. We are concerned with what a man is and what he does for God, not with what he may happen to possess.

An excellent outline taken from Points for Emphasis, by Dr. Hight C. Moore, most effectively presents the lesson.

I. Wisdom Offered (v. 5). Solomon had properly opened his reign by going to Gibeon to offer a thousand burnt offerings because he "loved the Lord" (v. 3). Having returned from his day of worship, he had fallen into a deep sleep when God spoke to him saying, "Ask what I shall give thee." It was an unusual offer, a kind of blank check that God gives only to those whom He can trust to fill it out right, as MacLaren suggests.

Sometimes we wish God would give us such an opportunity. "That is just what He has done. He has appeared to you not in dreams, but in broad daylight and by His Son Jesus Christ has said as plainly as He could, Ask and it shall be given you." He has repeated it three times, saying, ask, seek, find. And then He has returned to say, "Everyperson that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." We have no right "to say that Solomon was more favored than we. We are more favored than he. If we have not, it is because we ask not. If we lose peace and joy, happiness and heaven, it is all for want of asking" (Joseph Hammond).

II. Wisdom Chosen (vv. 6-9). The noble and intelligent choice of Solomon has been much admired and rightly so, for he chose the greatest gift that could come to any man, "an understanding heart." He might have asked for money or power, but with the lack of wisdom to use them properly they would have been a curse to him and to others. Long life is but a continued blight to a foolish man because it only extends the time of his folly. All things in the way of possessions must be outside of a man, therefore they may be lost or misused. But what he is and what he has in his heart, these are what make a man worth while. Solomon showed the beginning of wisdom when he chose, above all things, an understanding heart.

III. Wisdom Granted (vv. 10-14). There can be no higher word of commendation than to say that a man's choice "pleased the Lord" (v. 10). To have that attitude of mind and heart which expresses itself in conformity to the will of God that the Almighty Himself is pleased, is to be ready for God's unlimited blessing. Solomon asked for wisdom, and because he received that gift from God, he was ready to receive riches, honor, and power. We may by God's grace go the same way and take from His blessed hand numberless gifts.

Note the qualifying word "if" in verse 14. Solomon failed God in his later years as king. The tragic results are written for all to read. That way none of us should ever go. The lesson is plain—faith takes blessing from God; unbelief brings failure and sorrow. Let everyone that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

IV. Wisdom Exercised (v. 15). When Solomon awoke from his dream he showed his faith in God's promise and in fact demonstrated the wisdom which was now his possession, by returning to his capital city, Jerusalem, to stand before the ark of the covenant in reverent worship, then to lead his people in a public service of confession and consecration, which was followed by a great religious feast which drew the king and "all his servants," the people of Israel, into a blessed unity before the Lord.

One could wish and pray that all the rulers of the earth whether in democracies or under dictatorships might have the wisdom and humility of Solomon. The world is in utter confusion and really confesses that it does not know the way out of its difficulty. It has not yet turned to God. If rulers and people would fall upon their faces before Him in contrition and supplication, it would not be long before we would see both spiritual and material peace and prosperity.

Make It Positive

Scripture seems to make it positive that every soul has everlastingness, but Scripture also seems to make it positive that for Jesus' kind of everlastingness every soul has got to qualify.

And the Mistress Grew Red With Indignation

The housemaid was under notice to leave, and her mistress summoned her to tell her a few truths. "So I'm a flirt, am I?" demanded the maid, after a few preliminaries. "Well, I know them as flirts more than I do. And another thing, I'm better-looking than you. Your husband told me."

"That's enough!" snapped her mistress.

"Oh, no, it ain't," the girl went on. "I can kiss better than you can, too. Do you know who told me that?"

"Don't you dare to suggest that my husband—"

"Oh, no," interrupted the maid, "it was the butler."

5. No. If there is anything in the universe that is actually motionless astronomers have not yet discovered it.
6. It has suction cups on its legs.
7. A chuckle is a small noise, giggling comes in short spasms, and a laugh is everything.
8. Because of oil in their feathers.
9. A bale of cotton weighs 480 pounds.
10. Buffalo is the general term given to many species of wild oxen, including the bison. The American buffalo may properly be called a bison.

Adopt Regulations

Governing Plumbing

The Water Board of the city of Tawas City, Michigan, adopt the following rules and regulations, governing the alterations, extensions and repairs (except repairs to leaks) to the plumbing in buildings serviced by the Tawas City Waterworks system, for the purpose of protecting the health, and safety of the users thereof, and to control all service shut-off boxes.

1. That no alterations, extensions or repairs (excepting repairs to leaks) to the plumbing, shall be made in any building serviced by the Tawas City Waterworks system, until a permit has been secured, from the Superintendent of Public Works.

2. Written application shall be presented to the Superintendent of Public Works setting forth the nature of the work contemplated, location of the premises, setting forth the name of the person, firm or corporation that is to do the work, and such other information as the Water Board shall deem necessary, and further to pay a fee of 50c for a permit which will be issued by the Superintendent of Public Works, upon approval of the application.

3. That said alterations, extensions and repairs shall be started only after the issuance of said permit and upon completion thereof, the same shall be inspected by the Superintendent of Public Works or authorized agents of the Water Board, and approved before that same can be put into use.

4. That it shall be the duty of any person, firm, or corporation, employed to do any plumbing works upon such premises to ascertain whether a permit has been obtained, and further that said permit shall be posted in a conspicuous place upon said premises.

5. That no person except the authorized agents of the Water Board shall at any time operate the service connection shut-off boxes, either to open or close them.

6. These rules shall have the same force and effect as city ordinances and any violation thereof is hereby declared a misdemeanor and punishable with a fine of not more than fifty ($50.00) dollars and costs of prosecution or imprisonment in the county jail for a term of not more than sixty days or both fine and imprisonment within the discretion of the Court.

7. These rules and regulations shall be published in the Tawas Herald for two successive weeks and shall be effect on and after July 1, 1939.

Edison Disliked Decorations

Upon Thomas Edison's second trip to Europe the French Telephone company offered him a decoration which required that he wear a long sash. But the Ohioan flatly refused with the assertion that he couldn't "stand for that." Persuaded by his wife, he did however consent to wear the little red button of the League of Honor. But whenever he saw any American approaching he would slip the button into his pocket for fear, as he said, "they might think I am trying to show off."

NOTICE OF MEETING OF DRAINAGE BOARD

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that on the 8th day of June, 1939 a petition was filed with Clare L. Forshee County Drain Commissioner of the county of Arenac asking for the widening, deepening, straightening or extending and cleaning out of the east branch of the AuGres river drain located in the township of Whitney, county of Arenac.

And Whereas, a certified copy of said petition was served upon George Schroeder County Drain Commissioner of the County of Iosco, Elmer E. Scott County Drain Commissioner of the County of Ogemaw, and the Commissioner of Agriculture, by Clare L. Forshee County Drain Commissioner of the County of Arenac.

Now, Therefore, in accordance with Act No. 316, P. A. 192, as amended by Act No. 318, P. A. 1929, a meeting of the Drainage Board of said drain will be held at northwest corner of section 16 in the township of Whitney, county of Arenac, on the 13th day of July 1939, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, to determine the necessity of said improvement.

Now, Therefore, all persons owning lands liable to an assessment for benefits or whose lands will be crossed by said drain, or any municipality affected, are requested to be present at said meeting, if they so desire.

Dated at Lansing, Michigan, this 15th day of June 1939.

Elmer A. Beamer,
Commissioner of Agriculture.
By John Hudson,
Deputy.

Received and filed this 15th day of June A. D. 1939.

George W. Schroeder,
Iosco County Drain Commissioner.

SYNOPSIS

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Deland Simms, wealthy New Yorker.

Down the path Jane went, the two pussy-cats like small shadows in her wake, until suddenly a voice came out of the dark.

"I believe it is little Jane Barnes."

She stopped. "Oh, is that you, Evans? Isn't it a heavenly night?"

"I'm not sure."

"Don't talk that way."

"Why not?"

"Because an evening like this is like wine—it goes to my head."

"You are like wine," he told her.

"Jane, how do you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Hold the pose of youth and joy and happiness?"

"You know it isn't a pose. I just feel that way, Evans."

"My dear, I believe you do."

He limped a little as he walked beside her. He was tall and gaunt. Almost grotesquely tall. Yet when he had gone to war he had not seemed in the least grotesque. He had been tall but not thin, and he had gone in all the glory of his splendid youth.

There was no glory left. He was twenty-seven. He had fought and he would fight again for the same cause. But his youth was dead, except when he was with Jane. She revived him, as he said, like wine.

"I was coming over," he began, and broke off as a sibilant sound interrupted him.

"Oh, are the cats with you? Well, Rusty must take the road," he laughed as the little old dog trotted to neutral ground at the edge of the grove. Rusty was friends with Merrymaid, except when there were kittens about. He knew enough to avoid her in days of anxious motherhood.

Jane picked up the kitten. "They would come."

"All animals follow you. You're sort of a domestic Circe—with your dogs and chickens and pussy-cats in the place of tigers and lions and leopards."

"I'd love to have lived in Eden," said Jane, unexpectedly, "before Eve and Adam sinned. What it must have meant to have all those great beasts mild-mannered and purring under your hand like this kitten. What a dreadful thing happened, Evans, when fear came into the world."

"What makes you say that now, Jane?" His voice was sharp.

"Shouldn't I have said it? Oh, Evans, you can't think I had you in mind—"

"No," with a touch of weariness, "but you are the only one, really, who knows what a coward I am—"

"Evans, you're not."

"You're good to say it, but that's what I came over for. I am up against it again, Jane. Some cousins are on from New York—they're at the New Willard—and Mother and I went in to see them last night. They have invited us to go back with them. They've a big house east of Fifth Avenue, and they want us as their guests indefinitely. They think it will do me a lot of good—get me out of myself, they call it. But I can't see it. Since I came home—every time I think of facing mobs of people—again his voice grew sharp—"I'm clutched by something I can't describe. It is perfectly unreasonable, but I can't help it."

For a moment they walked in silence, then he went on—"Mother's very keen about it. She thinks it will set me up. But I want to talk to her, she'll listen to you, Jane—she always does."

"Does she know how you feel about it?"

"No, I think not. I've never told her. I've only spilled over to you now and then. It would hurt Mother, no end, to know how changed I am."

Jane laid her hand on his arm. "You're not. Brace up, old dear. You aren't dead yet." As she lifted her head to look up at him, the hood of her cape slipped back, and the wind blew her soft, thick hair against his cheek. "But I'll talk to your mother if you want me to. She is a great darling."

They had reached the kitchen door. "Won't you come in?" Jane said.

"No, I've got to get back. I only ran over for a moment. I have to have a daily sip of you, Jane."

"Baldy's bringing a steak for dinner. Help us eat it."

"Sorry, but Mother would be alone."

"When shall I talk to her?"

"There's no hurry. The cousins are staying on for the opening of Congress. Jane dear, don't despise me—" His voice broke.

"Evans, as if I could."

Again her hand was on his arm. He laid his own over it. "You're the best ever, Janey," he said, huskily—and presently he went away.

Jane, going in, found that Baldy had telephoned. "He kaint git here until seven," Sophy told her.

"You had better run along home," Jane told her. "I'll cook the steak when it comes."

Sophy was old and she was tired. Life hadn't been easy. The son who was to have been the prop of her old age had been killed in France.

There was a daughter's daughter who had gone north and who now and then sent money. Old Sophy did not know where her granddaughter got the money, but it was good to have it when it came. But it was not enough, so old Sophy worked.

"I hates to leave you here alone, Miss Janey."

"Oh, run along, Sophy. Baldy will come before I know it."

Jane went through the kitchen to the back door, throwing an appraising glance at the things in the warm-

Jane loved her little home with almost passionate intensity. She loved to have Baldy in a mood like this—things right once more with his world.

She knew it was so by the ring of his voice, the cock of his head—hence she was not in the least surprised when he leaned forward under the old-fashioned spreading dome which drenched him with light, and said, "I've such a lot to tell you, Jane; the most amazing thing has happened."

CHAPTER II

When young Baldwin Barnes had ridden out of Sherwood that morning on his way to Washington, his car had swept by fields which were crisp and frozen; by clumps of trees whose pointed tops cut into the clear blue of the sky; over ice-bound streams, all shining silver in the early sunlight.

He had the eye of an artist, and he liked the ride. Even in winter the countryside was attractive—and as the road slipped away, there came a few big houses surrounded by wide grounds, with glimpses through their high hedges of white statues, of spired cedars, of sundials set in the midst of dead gardens.

Beyond these there was an arid stretch until the Lake was reached, then the links of one country club, the old buildings of another, and at last on the crest of a hill, a view of the city—sweeping on the right towards Arlington and on the left towards Soldiers' Home.

Turning into Sixteenth Street, he crossed a bridge with its buttresses guarded by stone panthers—and it was on this bridge that his car stopped.

Climbing out, he blamed Fate furiously. Years afterward, however, he dared not think of the difference it might have made if his little flivver had not failed him.

Once when he stopped, a woman passed him. She was tall and slender and wrapped up to her ears in moleskin. Her small hat was blue, from her hand swung a gray suede bag, her feet were in gray shoes with cut-steel buckles.

Baldy's quick eyes took in the details of her costume. He reflected as he went back to work that women were fools to court death in that fashion, with thin slippers and silk stockings, in this bitter weather.

He found the trouble, fixed it, jumped into his car and started his motor. And it was just as he was moving that his eye was caught by a spot of blue bobbing down the hill below the bridge. The woman who had passed him was making her way slowly along the slippery path.

On each side of her the trees were brown and bare. At the foot of the hill was a thread of frozen water.

It was not usual at this time to see pedestrians in that place. Now and then a workman took a short cut—or on warm days there were picnic parties—but to follow the rough paths in winter was a bleak and arduous adventure.

He stayed for a moment to watch her, then suddenly left his car and ran. The girl in the blue hat had caught her high heels in a root, had stumbled and fallen.

When he reached her, she was struggling to her feet. He helped her, and picked up the bag which she had dropped.

"Thank you so much." Her voice was low and pleasing. He saw that she was young, that her skin was very fair, and that the hair which swept over her ears was pale gold, but most of all, he saw that her eyes were burning blue. He had never seen eyes quite like them. The old poets would have called them sapphires, but sapphires do not flame.

"It was so silly of me to try to do it," she was protesting, "but I thought it might be a short cut—"

He wondered what her destination might be that this remote path should lead to it. But all he said was, "High heels-aren't made for—mountain climbing—"

"They aren't made for anything," she said, looking down at the steel-buckled slippers, "useful."

"Let me help you up the hill."

"I don't want to go up."

He surveyed the steep incline. "I am perfectly sure you don't want to go down."

"I do," she hesitated, "but I suppose I can't."

He had a sudden inspiration. "Can I take you anywhere? My little flivver is up there on the bridge. Would you mind that?"

"Would I mind if a life-line were thrown to me in mid-ocean?" She said it lightly, but he fancied there was a note of high hope.

"They went up the hill together. 'I want to get an Alexandria car,' she told him.

"But you are miles away from it."

"Am I?" She showed momentary confusion. "I—hoped I might reach it through the Park—"

"You might. But you might also freeze to death in the attempt like a babe in the wood, without any robins to perform the last melancholy rites. What made you think of such a thing?"

He saw at once his mistake. Her voice had a touch of frigidity. "I can't tell you."

"Sorry," he said abruptly. "You must forgive me."

She melted. "No, it is I who should be forgiven. It must look strange to you—but I'd rather not—explain—"

On the last steep rise of the hill he lifted her over a slippery pool, and as his hand sank into the soft fur of her wrap, he was conscious of its luxury. It seemed to him that his mustard-colored coat fairly shouted incongruity. His imagination swept on to Raleigh, and the velvet cloak which might do the situation justice. He smiled at himself and smiling, too, at her, felt a tingling sense of coming circumstance.

It was because of that smile, and the candid, boyish quality of it, that she trusted him. "Do you know," she said, "I haven't had a thing to eat this morning, and I'm frightfully hungry. Is there any place that I could have a cup of coffee—where you could bring it out to me in the car?"

"Could I?" the morning stars sang. "There's a corking place in Georgetown."

"Without the world looking on?"

"Without your world looking on," boldly.

She hesitated, then told the truth. "I'm running away—"

He was eager. "May I help?"

"Perhaps you wouldn't if you knew."

"Try me."

He helped her into his car, tucked the rug about her, and put up the curtains. "No one can see you on the back seat," he said, and drove to Georgetown on the wings of the wind.

He brought coffee out to her from a neat shop where milk was sold, and buns, and hot drinks, to motor-men and conductors. It was a clean little place, fresh as paint, and the buttered rolls were brown and crisp.

"I never tasted anything so good," the runaway told Baldy. "And now I am going to ask you to drive me over the Virginia side—I'll get the trolley there."

"Would I mind if a life-line were thrown to me in mid-ocean?"

ing oven, and stood waiting on the threshold, hugging herself in the keenness of the wind.

Presently her brother's tall form was silhouetted against the silvery gray of the night.

"I thought you were never coming," she said to him.

"I thought so, too." He bent and kissed her; his cheek was cold as it touched hers.

"Aren't you nearly frozen?"

"No. Sorry to be late, honey. Get dinner on the table and I'll be ready—"

"I'm afraid things won't be very appetizing," she told him; "they've waited so long. But I'll cook the steak—"

He had gone on, and was beyond the sound of her voice. She opened the fat parcel which he had deposited on the kitchen table. She wondered a bit at its size. But Baldy had a way of bringing home unexpected bargains—a dozen boxes of crackers—unwieldy pounds of coffee.

But this was neither crackers nor coffee. The box which was revealed bore the name of a fashionable florist. Within were violets—single ones—set off by one perfect rose and tied with a silver ribbon.

Jane gasped—then she went to the door and called:

"Baldy, where's the steak?"

He came to the top of the stairs. "Great guns," he said, "I forgot it!"

Then he saw the violets in her hands, laughed and came down a step or two. "I sold a loaf of bread and bought—white hyacinths—"

"They're heavenly!" Her glance swept up to him. "Peace offering?"

There were gay sparks in his eyes. "We'll call it that."

She blew a kiss to him from the tips of her fingers. "They are perfectly sweet. And we can have an omelette. Only if we eat any more eggs, we'll be flapping our wings."

"I don't care what we have. I am so hungry I could eat a house."

He went back up the stairs, laughing.

Jane, breaking eggs into a bowl, meditated on the nonchalance of men. She meditated, too, on the mystery of Baldy's mood. The flowers were evidence of high exaltation. He did not often lend himself to such extravagance.

He came down presently and helped carry in the belated dinner. The potatoes lay like withered leaves in a silver dish, the cornbread was a wrinkled wreck, the pudding a travesty. Only Jane's omelette and a lettuce salad had escaped the blight of delay.

Then, too, there was Philomel, singing. Jane drew a cup of coffee, hot and strong, and set it at her brother's place. The violets were in the center of the table, the cats purring on the hearth.

'Pronghorn' Distinct From All Other Antelopes

A recent census of the American antelope, or "pronghorn," shows these animals are decidedly on the increase. A survey made during the years from 1922 to 1924 showed there were only about 26,600 antelopes left of the millions which once roamed the range. The last census shows there are now 131,555 in the country.

In other words there are more than five times as many on the range as there were 15 years ago. There is no animal on this continent more typically American than the "pronghorn." He is so distinct from all other antelopes that he is classified as a species, genus and family all by himself, says the American Wildlife Institute.

Antelopes are very vain about their speed and cannot resist an opportunity to match their prowess with anything that runs. They have long been the swiftest animals on the range. Any fast moving object is a challenge and the antelopes dash along in a parallel course until they are well in the lead, and then as if to make a convincing display of their prowess, they dash across the front of their competitor's line of travel and soon disappear over the horizon.

In addition to their gracefully curved prong horns, the American antelope have another characteristic feature. When alarmed, the skin muscles on the animal's rump throw the long white hairs out into two brightly conspicuous rosettes. When the "pronghorn" takes to flight, these rosettes are visible long after the rest of the animal has merged into the protective coloration of the landscape and can be seen as brilliant white spots dancing over the horizon.

When the "Iron Horse" came to his range the antelope met more than his match in speed for the first time. The locomotive was more than his nemesis in speed for it was the symbol of a mechanized advance which, by the end of the Nineteenth century, had threatened the antelope with complete extermination. The return of these splendid animals is a tribute to the growing and intelligent interest of our people in wildlife.

Pattern 6381.

IT'S easy to be smart when you can turn out crocheted accessories like these in no time. The hat of single crochet with chic roll brim in puff stitch—the roomy bag to match—are accessories for which you'll have endless use. There's an adjustable band in back of the hat. Pattern 6381 contains instructions for making hat and bag; illustrations of them and of stitches; materials needed.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Spare the Soap and Gilt.—Use very little soap on gilt china.

In the Living Room.—Too many cushions on the davenport often spoil its proportion.

Cleaning Cement Ornaments.—Use a medium stiff wire brush to clean the bird baths and other cement ornaments in the garden.

Economical Dessert.—One and a half cups of cooked prunes (chopped) added to a quart of partially frozen vanilla ice cream makes an economical dessert.

Plant Food Spreader.—Supply plant food to your garden from the first. A kitchen colander is a handy utensil to use for spreading the food.

Whipping Egg Whites.—Egg whites beat easier when at room temperature. Remove from refrigerator and let stand a while before whipping.

To Make Meat Tender.—Meat is often tough because it has not been hung long enough before cooking. To make sure of steaks or cutlets being tender, soak them in olive oil for an hour or two before cooking.

QUICK QUOTES

CLEAN GOVERNMENT
"TODAY the extermination of organized crime is gradually progressing from city to city. Its sponsors are being exposed and driven from power. The people have learned they need no longer tolerate the furtive alliance between the upper and the under world. In high places it has been learned that clean government can also be good politics."—Thomas E. Dewey, District Attorney of New York.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THERE comes a letter from a reader who says: "Thanks for the article telling how to make a chair of lumber and cover it. I wish there were more things that husbands and wives could do together."

Here is something that looks ambitious but is really simple. Anyone that can make three wooden boxes and then screw or bolt them together, can make this davenport frame. The center box is made to fit an inner spring mattress of any size desired. All the other dimensions are given here.

One way to make the cushions is to bind flat sheets of newspapers together and then pad this base with cotton. Covering material in a rather heavy, rough textured cotton goods in a plain color or a conventional design will harmonize best with the modern lines of this piece of furniture.

NOTICE ABOUT BOOK PRICES: Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator; and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, are now 15 cents each, or both books for 25 cents. Readers who have not secured their copies of these two books should send in their orders immediately, as no more copies will be available, when the present supply is exhausted. Your choice of the QUILT LEAFLET illustrating 36 authentic patchwork stitches or the RAG RUG LEAFLET, will be included with orders for both books for the present, but the offer may be withdrawn at any time. Leaflets are 6 cents each when ordered separately.

Everyone should have copies of these two books containing a total of 96 How to Sew articles by Mrs. Spears, that have not appeared in the paper. Send your order at once to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Metabolism Tests Help In Diagnosis

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

ONE of the pieces of apparatus that is coming more into use in physicians offices is that used for the metabolism test—rate at which the body processes are working. This rate is controlled by the thyroid gland in the neck. The body processes would go on without this gland but this gland decides or determines how fast the processes will work.

Dr. Barton

Some patients get so upset by going to the hospital before breakfast in the morning that it is necessary to have them rest for a half to as long as an hour and a half before they are sufficiently quieted down to undergo the test.

And even after this rest there may be the "inward" emotion that makes the body processes go a little more rapidly than they would if the patient were completely calm in mind.

Tests Thyroid Gland.
For years, the use of this metabolism machine has enabled physicians to learn whether the thyroid gland was pouring the normal amount of juice into the blood, or if, on the other hand, it was pouring too much or not enough. One of the results of too much thyroid juice is a rapid heart beat and loss of body weight; where there is not enough juice, the heart is slower than normal and there is an increase of fat in and on the body.

A more recent finding is that when the thyroid gland is overactive—too much juice—the ability of the liver to filter harmful substances from the blood is lessened so that the individual loses some of this protection from the waste substances resulting from digestion. It was found that when a part or all of the thyroid gland was removed in these cases, the liver's ability to rid the blood of harmful substances became normal or nearly normal.

It can thus be seen that with a metabolism equipment in the physician's office, the patient will undergo the test just as his heart, lungs, or blood pressure is tested. It will not disturb or upset him and so spoil the reading.

Vegetarian Or Meat Eater?

I watched two men exercising in a gymnasium and was struck with their excellent muscular development.

Noticing my interest, the instructor smiled and said he got a great "kick" out of hearing them argue about food. One was a vegetarian and the other ate meat three times a day. While friends in every way as they played on various teams together, they could not agree on the merits of meat or vegetables.

I told the vegetarian that he was really a meat eater because he ate eggs, and I told the meat eater that he was a vegetarian because the beef he ate was really the grass the cow had eaten.

Intestines Important Factor.
I have spoken before of one of the university exhibits at the hall of science, Chicago's Century of Progress. This particular exhibit showed the intestine of a cow, of a dog and of a man. The length of the intestine in a cow is nearly 30 times the length of the cow's body. It has to be this long because the food the cow eats is bulky and it takes a long time for the intestine to take the nourishment from this bulky food. "Such animals have even developed four-pouched stomachs and cud-chewing to absorb the nourishment from this food."

The intestine of the cat or the dog, meat-eating animals, is only three to four times the length of its body; meat is a rich, concentrated food and is easily absorbed through the walls of the intestine into the blood. The length of the intestine in man is about seven times the length of his body (not considering head and legs).

Vegetables, Fruits Needed.
I believe the above facts make it plain that as man's intestine is not as long in proportion to body length as is the cow's and not as short as that of the cat or dog, he should eat both meat and vegetables, as at present.

Some of the foods which replace meat in certain countries—rice, soybeans and others—are rich in protein, the body-building and repair factor in meat.

As Professor E. V. McCollum, Johns Hopkins university, has pointed out, all that the average individual needs to do to get an all-round, suitable diet is to add some raw vegetables or fruits daily to the regular meat, bread and potato diet. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

Pick-Me-Ups for Summer Wardrobes

SEVERAL gay sets like 1762, including a fitted, broad-shouldered jacket, beret, gloves and envelope bag, will make a simple wardrobe look like a lot more! It's stunning with your day frocks and white skirts. Easy to make. Choose linen, gingham, pique or sharkskin for this smart design.

New Slenderizing Fashion.

Large women who want a soft, pretty afternoon dress will find 1742 extremely becoming, and it's decidedly new and smart. The paneled skirt, with a graceful circular flare, is markedly hip-diminishing. The bodice fits nicely over the bust because it's gathered under the smooth shoulders. Loose sleeves always look so pretty and feel so cool. In voile, georgette or chiffon, this will be your favorite for afternoon parties.

The Patterns.

No. 1762 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 1/4 yards of 35 inch fabric for short-sleeved jacket; 3/8 yard for beret; 3/8 yard for bag and 1/2 yard for gloves. A piece 1 1/2 inches wide by 7/8 inch long for glove insert.

No. 1742 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/8 yards of 39 inch fabric without nap and 3/4 yard of lace or braid.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

who in turn threw Bill out at first, Zollweg scoring on the play. The local boys scored again in the fifth. Moeller opened with a single and stole second and third, Smith fanned, Kussro singled scoring Moeller. Kussro stole second and when Munro let the ball get through into center field he took third. Zollweg fanned but was safe a first on a dropped third strike. Quick ended the inning by grounding out short to first.

Twining scored their final run in their turn at bat in the fifth. Heatley led off with a triple, the only hit made off Kussro, and scored while Smith threw out Ostrander. Forshee hit back to the box and was an easy out at first. Youngs struck out.

Tawas scored two more runs in the seventh. Smith drew a pass to open the inning, Kussro sacrificed him to second, Katterman was safe when the first baseman fumbled his grounder. Smith taking third, Katterman then stole second. Both runners scored when Heatley let Zollweg's grounder get through for a two base error.

Tawas City scored their final runs in the eighth. Staudacher was safe on Heatley's error. Laidlaw got a Texas League single over the first baseman's head. Moeller sacrificed, both runners advancing. Smith hit a grounder to short and both Staudacher and Laidlaw scored when Norris let Heatley's throw get away. Kussro struck out and Katterman popped to short.

Kussro's relief hurling was the outstanding playing of the game. Four men reached base during his time on the mound. He walked two batters, allowed one hit, and the other man to get on base was on an error.

The boys did a neat job of fielding as only two errors were chalked up against them.

Next Sunday all teams in both divisions will be idle in order to make way for the All-Star game to be played on the local diamond. On Sunday, July 9, league play will be resumed. Harrisville will furnish the opposition for the local team. Harrisville defeated Tawas City in the first game of the season for the only game the locals have lost this season.

Wilber Methodist Church

Minister S. A. Carey
We ask all the friends of the Wilber Methodist to notice that the hours of worship in this church have been changed for the months of July and August.

Commencing with July 2 the worship and preaching service will be held at 8:30 a. m. The Sunday school will follow after the worship service.

These hours are set because of the number of homes where friends come to visit in the afternoon and because of other conflicting interests.

We hope that all who can will make the attendance at the worship service and Sunday school a regular part of their Sunday program. In this way the best interests of the individual and the community will be served.

Following are the Iosco county 4-H members and leaders were as follows:

Pauline Hass, Eloise Anderson, Helen Dorsey, William Bamberger, Robert Stoner, Wilford Buck, George Blust, Melvin McCormick, Fredrick Barnes, David Webb, William St. James and Jack Kregg, club members. Miss Ruth Katterman, Mrs. Ernestine Reinke and Russell Mead, club leaders.

The following agents, leaders and officers were on duty, making a complete day for each member of the camp:

County Agents—R. B. Coulter, Ogemaw County; W. L. Finley, Iosco County; James M. Gorseline, Arenac County; Casper Blumer, Alcona-Oscoda counties. Assistant State Club Leaders—Beatrice Boyle, P. G. Lundin, Nevels Pearson. Conservation Officers—Charles Welsh, B. L. Foreman. Y. M. C. A. Camp Director Wilson Jansen, was especially cordial and helpful at all times, day or night. Two registered nurses were also in attendance, Agnes Mitchell, Arenac County, and Alberta Wadey, Alcona County.

L. H. Rhodes, District 4-H Club Agent, has blazed a trail to Loon Lake and Camp Mahn-Go-Tah-See which seems likely to become a well beaten road for 4-H'ers, if the expressions of the boys and girls and leaders, as heard on the grounds, mean anything.

Innovations for a few were jokingly but seriously carried out when four boys were discovered in their cabin when they should have been in some class, as they were given the job in the backyard of helping the cooks peel potatoes. Then when one table of eight were all late for breakfast on the last morning they were given the job of cleaning up a large table in the back yard that had been well plastered with Keene cement and plaster of Paris.

Camp was broken with much reluctance on Thursday morning, June 22. Several visitors were well entertained and expressed their appreciation for the hospitality extended them. Parents and guardians can well feel proud and happy to have their boys and girls so roally cared for.

For her daughters wedding Mrs. Baker wore a printed beige crepe and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Stephens chose a white printed crepe dress and wore a corsage of sweet peas and roses.

Soon after the reception the young couple left for a two weeks' motor trip through the upper peninsula. For her going away outfit Mrs. Taylor chose an ashes of roses costume with brown accessories. She had a corsage of orchids.

The bride is a graduate from the St. Joseph high school, class of 1934, and attended the Pharmacy College at Wayne University. She is now employed in the biological laboratory at the Parke, Davis Co., Detroit. Mr. Taylor is employed by the Gottsman-Matthes Co. After the wedding trip the young couple will make their home in Detroit.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stephens, Mrs. Wm. "Adobe," Clay Formation
"Adobe" is the name given to certain clay formations, or soils, which cover thousands of square miles in the Southwest.

Width of Moon Craters
Some of the craters of the moon are 100 miles in width.

Lion-Fixing in South Africa
Lion-fixing was formerly a profitable occupation in South Africa. Natives would poison an antelope, kill it and place it in a likely spot. Lions eating the poisoned meat would become groggy, and white hunters, for a price, were then permitted to shoot the beast in the open without danger to themselves
