Tourists parks, camping grounds, hotels, tourists cabins and tourists rooms in the county were filled to capacity. CHINOOK WINS FIRST PLACE IN CLASS 1 RACE

Thunder Storm Curtails Tuesday Regatta Races

The 1939 Races of the Saginaw Bay Yacht club on Tawas bay, with the exception of being somewhat curtailed Tuesday afternoon by the storm, were successful and enjoyable events. The previous three days had been fine sailing weather.

Midway in the final races Tuesday afternoon, the boats were caught in a thunderstorm and squall. With the exception of the Harmac, owned by Roy MacDonald of Bay City, and the Gamble, skippered by James Nisbet of this place, all the craft were able to return to port under their own power. The two boats named were towed to shore.

The Class 1 trophy was taken by the Chinook, owned by Dick Wilson of Saginaw, finishing with 21 points. Others in this class, Irene 18 points, Sauk 16 points, "E" 11 points, Harmac 9 points.

Ken Ferguson's Lil Garm lead with three straight victories in the Class 2 races. Howard Mitchell's Ruth was second with 12 points, and the Neenah, owned by Millard Hahn, third with 9 points. The two last mentioned boats were from Bay City, the first from Saginaw.

The Len-Lad, owned by Ladd McKay and Clyde Soper of East Tawas, was the only entry in the third class and romped off with laurel without opposition.

Scoring 14 points, Wet Pants, owned by Walter Gardner of Detroit, took the trophy in the Class 4 events. The Howdy owned by Howard Ternes of Detroit won second place. The Harry Spot, owned by Lawrence Gardner of East Tawas was third.

The Regatta was climaxed with a banquet at the Tawas Beach club. Roy MacDonald, general chairman of this year's regatta, acted as toastmaster.

In addition to the racing events East Tawas celebrated July 4th with an Independence Day program which included a parade, athletic and swimming events and an excellent display of fireworks in the evening. The parade was especially noteworthy. The American Legion, Ladies Auxiliary, Forestry department, county highway department, various East Tawas merchants, and others were represented in the parade. Special features in this event were the twin parade and the little tots' pet parade. The Auxiliary presented a colorful section of the world were represented by auxiliary members and friends in costume, with Miss Liberty leading and Uncle Sam bringing up the rear. As they approached the state park they sang "God Bless America."

An unusual sight in present day parades was the float of the Curry Dairy. It was drawn by a team of horses, one of Iosco county's finest teams.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Defense Costs Zoom Skyward As Army, Navy Start Tapping Appropriations for New Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

HOESS HOMES AT HAMMOND, IND. (SEE HOUSING)
A 40-acre white elephant may become a national model.

DEFENSE: Spree

In 1922 the U. S. spent only $380,000,000 for its army. By 1929 the dove of peace cooed so pleasantly that only $780,252,163 was needed for all defense—army, navy and coast guard. The upward swing in arms costs did not start until 1936, gained strong impetus last year and zoomed to unprecedented peacetime heights in the current congressional session. As the 1938-39 fiscal year ended and military men reached for new funds provided by a new year, the next 12 months indeed looked like record breakers.

Summing up the past year, Undersecretary of War Louis Johnson told readers of the Army and Navy Journal that 703 new planes (heavy and medium bombers, pursuit, attack, observation, cargo and training) had been delivered and that 763 more had been ordered, most of them single engine pursuit ships. Upped 40 per cent under current orders were sound locators for anti-aircraft control; anti-aircraft artillery, 210 per cent; anti-aircraft artillery, 140 per cent; anti-aircraft control directors, 130 per cent.

UNDERSECRETARY JOHNSON
The army got its share.

Journal readers also heard from the navy's paymaster, Rear Adm. Ray Spear, that his extraordinary expenditures next year will help U. S. industry; 40.6 per cent will go for materials; 39.01 per cent will go for labor. But what interested most taxpayers was how much America's defense spree would cost. Figures:

ARMY
Regular appropriation	$ 548,995,812
1939 deficiency bill	119,330,287
Extraordinary army bill	229,655,587
Panama canal, new locks	277,000,000
Civil pilot training	5,675,000
Civilian Conservation corps	25,000,000
Civil functions & works	305,188,514
Total	$1,843,935,200

NAVY
Regular appropriation	$ 773,420,241
1939 deficiency bill	35,700,000
Shore establishments	54,000,000
Strategic materials	100,000,000
Supplemental construction	12,100,000
Total	$ 976,220,241

COAST GUARD
Regular appropriation	$ 25,003,210
1939 deficiency bill	1,929,075
Expansion	14,473,000
Total	$ 41,405,285

When taxpayers totaled these figures they found defense costs had risen considerably above 1929's mere $780,000,000. The total 1939-40 bill: $2,861,560,726.

HOUSING: Hammond Plan

Biggest criticism of Federal Housing administration homes is that they cost too much for the small wage earner. Likewise, huge metropolitan slum clearance projects merely add to a city's congestion instead of following the future's inevitable trend to decentralization.

Last year at Hammond, Ind., four brothers named Frank, William,

Joseph and John Hoess divided a 40-acre white elephant into one-acre homesteads, sized up Hammond's workmen (who earn from $25 to $30 a week and have neither savings nor guaranteed jobs) and decided to build homes for them. Each was to be a five-room house with two bedrooms, kitchen, living room and bath, costing $1,600 to $2,500 including land. Of each tenant they asked 10 per cent down and $25 a month plus 6 per cent amortized interest. Left to the occupants were painting, decorating, plumbing and fixture installation, though all homes were wired. By this summer 36 of the 40 homesteads were occupied, tenants were eating out of their gardens and were hard at work making homes out of houses.

This successful experiment might have gone unnoticed except for Nebraska's Sen. George Norris, who recently expounded its merits in the chamber as a comparison with FHA and PWA projects. Said he: "The idea is to build a home for as little money as possible. . . . We should extend assistance to the laboring men and poorer classes who do not now own houses, but desire to own them."

Next came a subpoena for Brother Frank Hoess to explain his project this month before Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney's temporary national economic committee, which may recommend it as the basis for a national program to amend the 1937 housing act.

Awaiting hearing time, Frank Hoess busied himself opposing a proposed $4,000,000 clearance program for Hammond and nearby Gary, Ind., both suburbs of Chicago. His reasoning: Not only will tenement apartments increase congestion, but they also eat up in rent the money a workman might use for easy payments on his own home.

MEDITERRANEAN: Rebound

One year ago Turkey's Premier Refik Saydam ruled a mediocre nation no more important to war-frightened France and Britain than her inconsequential neighbors, Iraq and Iran. But by early July of this year the Turks were so solidly locked with allies far and near that both Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler frowned when they looked at the eastern Mediterranean.

First anti-Axis move by Turkey came following Italy's invasion of Albania, which burst asunder the piffing Balkan entente. With Bulgaria leaning Axis-wise and Yugoslavia torn by a Croat-Slav feud, Premier Saydam made haste under British tutelage to form a new mutual defense pact with Rumania and Greece, both of whom are now ready to fight (1) a Nazi-Fascist invasion of Yugoslavia, or (2) a dictator drive starting in Bulgaria.

Next in quick succession came Turkish pacts with France and Britain, the former in exchange for French cession of the League of Nations mandated Hatay republic (Syrian Alexandretta). Upshot of these treaties was that western democracies gained control of the strategic Dardanelles and Bosphorus, gaining access to the Black sea to help Rumania in case of war and draw friendly Russia into the Mediterranean. Meanwhile came Turkish pacts with Iraq, Iran and Afghanistan, while Egypt opened conversations seeking Balkan aid should Italy invade Nile territory. In desperation, Axis powers attempted to form a Balkan counter block of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Hungary, only the latter of which could offer much help in war.

Adding to Mussolini's woes are three western Mediterranean developments: (1) Portugal's reaffirmation of fidelity to its alliance with Britain; (2) Spain's apparent insistence on neutrality in a general war; (3) increased British naval and military strength in the Gibraltar area.

POLITICS:

Decision

Not in many a moon has the U. S. seen a more popular politician than James Aloysius Farley, who lifted Franklin Roosevelt to the White House twice, who thus lifted himself from obscurity and who this year or next must make the greatest decision of his miraculous career: Shall he back the President for a third term, thereby forsaking his political friends who have left the New Deal standard? Or shall he desert, thereby losing the support of Roosevelt men?

Either path may be suicide, and best guesses hold that not even Jim Farley himself knows which path to take. But this much every politician knows:

Next year's Democratic convention must build its re-election platform on the record of eight years under Franklin Roosevelt, otherwise the party has no leg on which to stand. If Jim Farley is to desert the President and seek a very logical vice presidential candidacy for himself under either Vice President John Nance Garner or Secretary of State Cordell Hull, he cannot afford to speak against his boss lest it undermine the party's only platform. Neither can he speak in his boss' favor, for that would stamp him permanently with the New Deal stripe. For a man whose entire future hangs on a network of friendships, any commitment before the President announces his decision would be fatal.

Meantime the postmaster general is wasting no time building more political fences for whoever can use them—himself, the President or any of a baker's dozen potential candidates. When he tells audiences his party will win in 1940 on the Roosevelt record, it means nothing.

PENNSYLVANIA: Titans' Dream

In 1837 intrepid Pennsylvanians first thought of building a "South Penn" railroad cut through the rugged Appalachians from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh. Fifty years later two industrial titans almost did it, Andrew Carnegie because another line controlled rail traffic and "pegged" freight rates out of Pittsburgh, William H. Vanderbilt because the same railroad purchased a line which paralleled his New York Central tracks along the Hudson. They abandoned it in 1885.

By 1940 the 100-year-old dream will be completed, not as a railroad, but a four-lane, moderate-level express toll highway which uses eight of the nine tunnels started by Vanderbilt's workmen, knocks the tops of smaller hills and spans deep valleys. Total cost $63,000,000.

Pictorialized

TRANSFUSION—Switching of blood from one man's veins to another's has improved tremendously since 1492, when Pope Innocent VIII and three donors who attempted to save his life all died in the first crude attempt. But in one field where transfusion is most needed, saving mothers' lives in childbirth, the process is not used enough; 10 per cent of all maternity deaths result from hemorrhages. Next September at Cleveland, the U. S. Congress on Obstetrics and Gynecology will summon physicians, nurses, hospital administrators and educators to stimulate more interest in childbirth transfusion.

RECRUITING—To man its vast new arms expansion program, the army must sign up 112,500 recruits in the next 12 months. Facilities: 400 recruiting stations, including 18 on wheels. Most men will go to the air corps. They must be unmarried, in good physical shape and from 18 to 35 years of age. Enlistment is for three years.

SILVER—Under the senate amendment to boost silver price from 64.64 to 77.57 cents per ounce, western miners predict 150,000 men should get new jobs. Many mines, closed since silver lost its place beside gold as a monetary base, could operate profitably under the higher price but cannot make ends meet at the 64.64-cent level.

Serious Mien Required to Cure Hysteria

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

AN "UP" patient in a large hospital was suddenly stricken with what the attendants thought was some kind of fit. He threw himself on the floor, struggled with an imaginary foe, working his face, arms, legs and body. The visiting psychiatrist took one look at him, ordered the attendants away and advised the patient to behave himself as there was nothing really wrong.

The "fit" was simply hysteria where the individual, starving for attention, desires to be the central figure or hero in the "show."

Instead of a "fit," there may be loss of speech, no appetite, vomiting, inability to swallow food, or loss of memory. Dr. S. Barton Hall, Liverpool, in the Practitioner, states that before a patient's condition can be called hysteria it must fulfill the following requirements:

1. An examination of the patient from head to foot, including laboratory investigations, shows that there is really no organic cause for symptoms.

2. The underlying circumstances causing the patient to use any of these methods to call attention to himself should be found. There must be something giving him a feeling of inferiority, a feeling that he is not a success.

3. The underlying cause or reason must be related in some way to the patient's symptoms.

4. As there is always some background for the behavior of the individual, something that has happened in years past, this something must be located.

"The patient appears to her (or his) friends as somewhat selfish and self-absorbed; there is a lack of genuine emotional power, a defect which the patient attempts to make up for by these melodramatic acts."

In treating these cases Dr. Hall suggests that the physician should adopt the same serious attitude that he applies to patients with organic disease. He must not try to ridicule or suggest that the patient is "acting." He must by careful examination and explanation show that there is no basis, no organic condition, that could cause the symptoms.

Dr. Hall further suggests that getting the patient away from the surroundings where his fits or other "behaviorisms" make an impression is an important part of the treatment.

Patients Should Tell Story

A few years ago when a patient consulted a physician about his nerves—sleeplessness, lack of appetite, anxiety—and the physician could find no organic trouble, he referred him to a "nerve specialist" because there might be something wrong with the patient's nerves which the general practitioner did not understand. Today, when the physician, after making a thorough examination, can find no organic trouble responsible for the symptoms, he does not refer him to the nerve specialist or psychiatrist but gives the necessary treatment himself.

In speaking of some of these nervous states—anxiety and depression—Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh, Denver, in Southwestern Medicine, says that in the anxiety state the patient often complains of being cold and unable to keep warm. He is tense, restless, uneasy, apprehensive, with cold, clammy hands and feet and dry mouth. There is a rapid pulse and high blood pressure, which are down to normal during sleep.

"In treating a patient with the anxiety complex it is important to avoid the pitfalls of telling him that he should stop worrying or that nothing is wrong with him, since he is unable to stop thinking about his trouble and knows quite definitely that something is wrong." The physician must spend an hour or more letting the patient tell his story about his family, business and social life. As there is no organic trouble present and the patient now has confidence in the physician because he has shared his story with him, the physician is often able to give the needed help or advice. This means that the physician, while not exactly acting in the capacity of a priest, minister or lawyer, nevertheless, with the whole background of the patient now known to him, can advise a holiday for the patient or a member of his family, a change of scene, perhaps a change of occupation, perhaps more rest and a gentle laxative.

The big point is that the physician now recognizes that the nervous or anxious patient needs to be given time to tell his story, if he is to obtain any real help.

'America,' Largest U. S. Boat, Is Launched at Newport News

JULY 15 is the proudest day in American maritime history. On that day the "America," new flagship for the United States lines and largest liner to be built in this country, slides down the ways at Newport News. How is a modern steamship built? These pictures tell the story.

Above: Scale drawings of each plate on the "America" were made on a 15-foot working model of the hull. These models were used in making full-size patterns of the plates. Right: The man who welds the plates electrically. Note his Martian-looking helmet, leather outersleeves and heavy gauntlets, which protect him day after day from the fierce heat of his welding apparatus.

Above: Blading the low pressure turbines. Some 15,000 of these delicate metal blades are required for the turbine casing shown here, arranged in semi-circular parallel rows. Some 15,000 more blades will be fitted into the rotor which fits into this casing. Left: An early construction picture at Newport News where seven cranes swing to and fro amid a clatter of riveting machines that would put most July Fourth celebrations to shame. Here the ship rises slowly as months go by.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Filming of Kipling's "The Light That Failed" on the New Mexico desert, near Santa Fe, was delayed the other day when a Sandstorm Mild savage wind compared to Director's Past blew the tents away. The pug-nacious William Wellman, the director, long known as "Wild Bill," enjoys fighting sandstorms, having licked one almost single-handed when he was filming "Beau Geste," in Arizona. He probably got a few good shots of the storm and will work them, into the film, with his gift for improvisation.

He was the flying partner of Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player, in the Lafayette Escadrille in the World war, and revealed an instinct for showmanship by playing tunes on a machine gun as he zipped around the belfry. It was said that, before the Germans dropped him in a tree and sent him home, he could peg out "Silver Threads Among the Gold" without a sour note.

In aviation films, he has employed effectively both his histrionic talents and his training in air acrobatics. His film, "Wings," of 1928, touched off his expanding fame. "Men With Wings," of last year, rated by discerning critics as a top-bracket film, told the story of aviation from the day of the Wright brothers' first flight.

He was known at times, around Hollywood, as "Screwball Bill," but has simmered down considerably since he married Dorothy Coonan, finding a desert sandstorm only mildly diverting, considering his rough-and-tumble past.

He is, however, as Irish as ever, and his famous serial fight with an unknown Paris antagonist probably will continue. On leave in Paris, he found it necessary to re-

Engages in a Serial Fight With Unknown by knocking him stiff as a plank. Late, in Chicago, the stranger, spying Mr. Wellman on the street, did the same to him. A year or two later, in Hollywood, seeing his unknown sparring partner crossing the street, Mr. Wellman put himself one up by a blow to the chin. There have been other encounters. I believe the score is now even. But he bears no grudge. It is just a detail of his native ebullience, which leads him to such devices as galvanizing the chairs on the lot so his working crew can't sit down.

With Capra, La Cava and Hitchcock, he is achieving a sharp characterization and finished technique, as the movies get into long pants and offer adult entertainment. He grew up in Brookline, Mass., tried to sell chocolates and woolen goods, but didn't, went to the war with an ambulance unit and won the Croix de Guerre with the Lafayette Escadrille. His friend, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., steered him to Hollywood, soon after the war, as a messenger boy for Goldwyn. In 10 years, he did almost everything for every studio in Hollywood, before he hit his stride with "Wings."

He is 43, slender, whippy, with a touch of gray in his curly brown hair, and is apt to sock anybody in an argument and then affectionately buy him a drink. "A Star Is Born" hiked his fame considerably.

THIS reporter asked several informed persons if they knew that a woman was assistant secretary of the United States treasury.

Women in Office No Longer Rate 'Scare Heads' None of them did. Mrs. Blair Banister, who holds that office, would find encouragement in that. She tells the Regional Conference of Democratic Women at Washington that the decreasing public excitement about women in office is a good sign. Their status in public life, if that's what interests them, is so assured that they no longer rate "glaring headlines" when they are put in a responsible post.

Mrs. Banister is a sister of Senator Carter Glass, one of a family of six boys and six girls, all following their father's business—newspaper work. Her sister, Dr. Meta Glass, is president of Sweetwater college. Mrs. Banister left Lynchburg, Va., in 1919, to assist George Creel's committee on public information. She was appointed to the treasury post in July, 1933.

Connecticut Tries Toll Roads a la Lending Plan

Toll roads like Connecticut's new $20,000,000 parkway system would become commonplace throughout America under President Roosevelt's original $3,850,000,000 lending plan, which provided funds for construction of self-liquidating highways and bridges. Connecticut's experience provided a bird's-eye preview of public reaction to the plan, which departs from the traditional free highway system. Many motorists protested Connecticut's 10-cent fee, but they paid anyway.

School Children Examined in Mass Poisoning

A thorough examination is in order for these youthful victims of Staten island's recent mass food poisoning "epidemic," which struck 368 students in 41 public schools. New York school officials investigated the epidemic and found it the result of tainted food served to the children during school hours. Emergency hospital resources of island towns were strained to the utmost. Left: Abraham Churchrow, investigator for the federal bureau of food and drugs, carrying canisters of food to be analyzed.

Gov. Long Promises Louisiana Purge

Earl K. Long, recently inaugurated governor of Louisiana and brother of the late Huey ("Kingfish") Long, has promised the state a "ruthless purge from within." Long, former lieutenant-governor, replaced Gov. Richard W. Leche, who resigned because of illness, postponed his resignation when Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of the state university, disappeared, and then announced his final resignation. Smith, accused of embezzling $100,000, had previously quit his post. Long is pictured here with his wife, an ardent movie camera fan.

Donkey Cart Returns to Tokyo Streets

Japan's war-time economy has resulted in the reappearance in Tokyo of the old-time donkey cart, used to transport goods on even the busiest streets. Gasoline, an important munition, is so valued that a drop of it is now compared to a drop of blood. Charcoal burning automobiles, a new invention, have also made their appearance.

IT BEGINS to look as if those girls who made "Four Daughters" what it was (with the aid of John Garfield), have a life-time job. They appear again in the new "Daughters Courageous" with him, and will shortly make "Four Wives." The studio had intended to have them do "Four Mothers" as the next of the series, but now the wives will come first. Of course, they could go on forever, becoming grandmothers, widows, and then possibly "Four Second Wives." Just see what you, the public, started when you acclaimed the three Lane sisters and Gale Page in that first picture!

In case you're interested in that picture Samuel Goldwyn has been making, bringing Jascha Heifetz to the screen, the title has been changed again. "Music School" has been abandoned in favor of "They Shall Have Music," which is going to be a bit harder on the men who fit the names of pictures into theater marquees.

When you see Brian Aherne in "Juarez"—if you haven't already seen him—you might pretend that you're a movie mogul and study his performance with the idea of offering him the role of "Christopher Columbus" in the movie version of that famous Italian's life. That's what Edward Small did.

On second thought, maybe you'd better not bother. For it would be a shame to do anything that would take your mind off the grand picture that Aherne, Paul Muni and Bette Davis made together. "Juarez" deserves all your attention.

For a long time it seemed likely that Rudy Vallee would be remembered as the man who started the "crooner" wave that swept over the country. Now it seems far more likely that he'll be famous as the fellow who discovered and developed more celebrities than anybody else.

Tommy Riggs, Edgar Bergen, Bob Burns—they're just three out of a list of more than one hundred radio celebrities who owe their fame to the chance that he gave them.

Those quiz programs, in one form or another, seem likely to go on forever, which is bad news for all the singers whom they have crowded off the airways.

One of the newest and most ingenious is that presided over by the two writers of mystery stories who sign their output "Ellery Queen." It's known as "The Adventures of Ellery Queen." Each week a mystery story is dramatized, with Mr. Queen and four guest detectives listening. As soon as Queen knows who the murderer is he stops the play, and each guest is asked to give his solution of the mystery. Then the dramatization is resumed and the author's solution given. It's lots of fun to follow from your own arm chair.

One of the radio singers for whom quiz programs hold no threats is Felix Knight, who's just had another renewal of his contract on that half-hour preceding the Vallee show. He appeared on it for one guest appearance, something like 84 weeks ago, and has been a regular ever since.

Lum and Abner are going back to their old home in Arkansas this summer, partly for a vacation, partly to make sure that they haven't lost their accents (as if they could!) and the home folks are beginning now to prepare a proper celebration.

ODDS AND ENDS—"Tarzan Finds a Son," with little Johnny Sheffield as the son, is a lot of fun, and just about the time it was released Maureen O'Sullivan, who plays "Tarzan's" mate, was celebrating the birth of her first baby. . . . BAKED EGGS IN HAM NESTS
See Recipe Below.

Meals That Are Different

A slice of golden-yellow cheese with a time-mellowed sharpness of flavor is the perfect accompaniment for a piece of rich, juicy, apple pie—but all too often we forget that its usefulness doesn't stop there. There are so many varieties of cheese, and so many uses for each, that menu making with this versatile food is fun.

There are rich, full-flavored cheeses, cheeses with a tempting sharpness of flavor, and delicate, mild cheeses—cheeses to suit every taste, and for every use, from appetizer to dessert.

Because cheese is high in food value and comparatively low in cost, meals built around it are nutritious and economical, too. And if you're feeding a family that won't drink milk, remember that serving cheese is an excellent way of getting more milk into the diet, for most cheese is concentrated whole milk (or milk which has been partially skimmed).

This group of cheese recipes, which I've found temptingly delicious, will help you to plan meals that are different and very good to eat. There are new flavor combinations—the sharp tang of mustard added to the mellow taste of old cheese, pungent chives with cottage cheese, and an old favorite—ham and eggs with richly flavored cheese to bring out the best in both. These recipes, which have been tested in my own kitchen, are practical and easy to use.

Swiss Cheese French Toast.

- 8 slices bread
- ¼ cup butter
- 4 square slices Swiss cheese (¼-inch thick)
- 3 eggs
- 3 tablespoons milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- Dash paprika
- ¼ cup butter

Remove crusts from bread. Spread one side of bread with creamed butter. Make sandwiches of cheese and bread, firmly pressing edges together. Beat eggs and add milk, salt, pepper and paprika. Melt remaining butter in a skillet. Dip sandwiches in egg mixture and fry in hot butter. When golden brown on both sides, remove from pan and serve very hot.

Macaroni and Cheese.

- 1 cup macaroni (uncooked)
 - ½ cup grated cheese
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - Black pepper
 - 2 tablespoons butter
 - ¼ teaspoon paprika
 - 1 cup milk
 - 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- Break macaroni in short lengths, cover with boiling salted water, and cook until soft (25-30 minutes). Drain thoroughly, and place layers of the macaroni, grated cheese, salt and pepper in a baking dish. Dot with butter. Garnish with paprika. Mix the milk and prepared mustard together and pour over the macaroni. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) about one-half hour.

Baked Eggs in Ham Nests.

Baked or boiled ham
Eggs
English muffins
American cheese (grated)

Line custard cups with thin slices of baked or boiled ham. Drop a raw egg into each cup, and bake them in a moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, 15 to 20 minutes, or until the eggs are done.

Split the muffins, toast them, then sprinkle each half generously with grated cheese. Return to a moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, to melt the cheese. Remove the egg and ham nests from the custard cups and place one on each muffin half. Serve immediately.

Cheese Souffle.

(Serves 5)

- 1½ cups milk
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ pound American cheese (sliced thin)
- 4 eggs (separated)
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 2 drops tabasco sauce
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Combine milk, bread crumbs, and butter in the upper part of a double boiler and heat. Add the cheese, and stir until the cheese is melted. Beat egg yolks until very light, add paprika, and tabasco sauce, and gradually stir in the cheese mixture. Add salt to egg whites, beat until stiff, and fold into a hot cheese mixture. Pour into greased baking dish and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

Hot Cheese Dreams.

(Serves 4-5)

- 6 slices bread
- 6 slices American cheese
- ½ cup chili sauce
- 6 slices bacon

Remove crusts from bread. Toast one side of each slice. On the untoasted side place a slice of cheese and a tablespoon of chili sauce. Cut bacon slices in halves and arrange two strips of the bacon on each sandwich. Broil until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve with small sweet pickles.

Tomato Jelly Salad With Cottage Cheese.

- 4 cups canned tomatoes
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ cup celery (chopped)
- 1 tablespoon onion (chopped)
- 4 whole cloves
- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- ½ cup water
- ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Combine the tomatoes, salt, pepper, bay leaf, celery, onion and cloves. Cook gently for 10 minutes and strain. Soak gelatin in cold water and add to the hot tomato mixture, together with Worcestershire sauce, stirring well. Chill until set. Turn onto a large platter and serve with cottage cheese with chives in lettuce cups.

Where Sun Never Sets
Great Britain, France, and Holland are the only nations on whose dominions the sun never sets, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The British possessions are by far the greatest in total area and are so scattered in the two hemispheres that while the sun is setting in one it is rising in another. France, which ranks second, likewise possesses dominions so scattered that the sun is always above the horizon of some of them. Holland, third colonial empire of importance in the world, similarly keeps always unrolled in the sunlight the flag of the Netherlands.

SYNOPSIS

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafeld Simms, wealthy New Yorker. However, she still mused over it when she met Evans Follie, a young neighbor, whom the war had left completely discouraged and despondent. Evans had always loved Jane. That morning Baldwin Barnes, on his way to work in Washington, offered assistance to a tall, lovely girl in distress.

When at last Baldy drew up at the little way station, and unfastened the curtain, he was aware that she had opened the suede bag and had a roll of bills in her hand. For a moment his heart failed him. Was she going to offer him money?

But what she said, with cheeks flaming, was: "I haven't anything less than ten dollars. Do you think they will take it?"

"It's doubtful. I have odds of change." He held out a handful.

"Thank you so much, and—may I must let me have your card—"

"Oh, please—"

Her voice had an edge of sharpness. "Of course it must be a loan."

He handed her his card in silence. She read the name. "Mr. Barnes, you have been very kind. I am tremendously grateful."

"It was not kindness—but now and then a princess passes."

For a breathless moment her amazed glance met his—then the clang of a bell heralded an approaching car.

As he helped her out hurriedly she stumbled over the rug. He caught her up, lifted her to the ground, and motioned to the motor-man.

The car stopped and she mounted the steps. "Good-by, and thank you so much." He stood back and she waved to him while he watched her out of sight.

His work at the office that morning had dreams for an accompaniment. He went out at lunch-time but ate nothing. It was at lunch-time that he bought the violets—paying an unthinkable price for them, and not caring.

It was after office that Baldy carried the flowers to his car. He set the box on the back seat. In the hurry of the morning he had forgotten the rug which still lay where his fair passenger had stumbled over it. He picked it up and something dropped from its folds. It was the gray suede bag, half open, and showing the roll of bills. Beneath the roll of bills was a small sheer handkerchief, a vanity case with a pinch of powder and a wee puff, a new check-book—and, negligently at the very bottom, a ring—a ring of such enchantment that as it lay in Baldy's hand, he doubted its reality. The hoop was of platinum, slender, yet strong enough to bear up a carved moonstone in a circle of diamonds. The carving showed a delicate Psyche—with a butterfly on her shoulder. The diamonds blazed like small suns.

Inside the ring was an inscription—"Del to Edith—Forever."

Del to Edith? Where had he seen those names? With a sudden flash of illumination, he dropped the ring back into the bag, stuffed the bag in his pocket, and made his way to a newsboy at the corner.

There it was in startling headlines: Edith Towne Disappears. Delafeld Simms' Yacht Said to Have Been Sighted Near Norfolk!

So his passenger had been the much-talked-about Edith Towne—deserted at the moment of her marriage!

He thought of her eyes of burning blue—the fairness of her skin and hair—the touch of haughtiness. Simms was a cur, of course! He should have knelt at her feet!

The thing to do was to get the bag back to her. He must advertise at once. On the wings of this decision, his car whirled down the Avenue. The lines which, after much deliberation, he pushed across the counter of the newspaper office, would be ambiguous to others, but clear to her. "Will passenger who left bag with valuable contents in the car call up Sherwood Park 49."

"Is she really as beautiful as that?" Jane demanded.

"As what?"

"Her picture in the paper."

"Haven't I said enough for you to know it?"

Jane nodded. "Yes. But it doesn't sound real to me. Are you sure you didn't dream it?"

"I'll say I didn't. Isn't that the proof?" The gray bag lay on the table in front of them, the ring was on Jane's finger.

She turned it to catch the light. "Baldy," she said, "it's beyond imagination."

"I told you—"

"Think of having a ring like this—"

"Think," fiercely, "of having a lover who ran away."

"Well," said Jane, "there are some advantages in being—unsought. I'm like the Miller-ess of Dee—

"I care for nobody— No, not I, Since nobody Cares— For me—!"

She sang it with a light boyish swing of her body. Her voice was girlish and sweet, with a touch of huskiness.

Baldy flung his scorn at her. "Jane, aren't you ever in earnest?"

"Intermittently," she smiled at him, came over and tucked her arm in his. "Baldy," she coaxed, "aren't you going to tell her uncle?"

He stared at her. "Her uncle? Tell him what?"

"That you've found the bag." He flung off her arm. "Would you have me turn traitor?"

"Heavens, Baldy, this isn't melodrama. It's common sense. You can't keep that bag."

"I can keep it until she answers my advertisement."

"She may never see your advertisement, and the money isn't yours, and the ring isn't."

He was troubled. "But she trusted me. I can't do it."

Jane shrugged her shoulders, and began to clear away the dinner things. Baldy helped her. Old Merrymaid mewed to go out, and Jane opened the door.

Towne's tone showed a touch of irritation.

"It's snowing hard," she said.

The wind drove the flakes across the threshold. Old Merrymaid danced back into the house, bright-eyed and round as a muff. The air was freezing.

"It is going to be a dreadful night," young Baldwin, heavy with gloom, prophesied. He thought of Edith in the storm in her buckled shoes. Had she found shelter? Was she frightened and alone somewhere in the dark?

He went into the living-room, whence Jane presently followed him. Jane was knitting a sweater and she worked while Baldy read to her. He read the full account of Edith Towne's flight. She had gone away early in the morning. The maid, taking her breakfast up to her, had found the room empty. She had left a note for her uncle. But he had not permitted its publication. He was, they said, wild with anxiety.

"I'll bet he's an old tyrant," was Baldy's comment.

Frederick Towne's picture was in the paper. "I like his face," said Jane, "and he doesn't seem so frightfully old."

"Why should she run away from him, if he wasn't a tyrant?" he demanded furiously.

"Well, don't scold me." Jane was as vivid as an oriole in the midst of her orange wools.

She loved color. The living-room was an expression of it. Its furniture was old-fashioned but not old-fashioned enough to be lovely. Jane had, however, modified its lack of grace and its dull monotonies by covers of chintz—tropical birds against black and white stripes—and there was a lamp of dull blue pottery with a Chinese shade. A fire in the coal grate, with the glow of the lamp, gave the room a look of burnished brightness. The kitten, curled up in Jane's lap, played cozily with the tawny threads.

"Don't scold me," said Jane, "it isn't my fault."

"I'm not scolding, but I'm worried to death. And you aren't any help, are you?"

She looked at him in astonishment. "I've tried to help. I told you to call up."

Young Baldwin walked the floor. "You trusted me."

"You won't get anywhere with that," said Jane with decision. "The thing to do is to tell Mr. Towne that you have news of her, and that you'll give it only under promise that he won't do anything until he has talked it over with you."

"That sounds better," said young Baldwin, "how did you happen to think of it?"

"Now and then," said Jane, "I have ideas."

Baldy went to the telephone. When he came back his eyes were like gray moons. "He promised everything, and he's coming out—"

"Here?"

"Yes, he wouldn't wait until tomorrow. He's wild about her—"

"Well, he would be." Jane mentally surveyed the situation.

"Baldy, I'm going to make some coffee, and have some cheese and crackers."

"He may not want them."

"On a cold night like this, I'll say he will; anybody would."

Baldy helped Jane get out the round-bellied silver pot, the pitchers and tray. The young people had a sense of complacency as they handled the old silver. Frederick Towne could have nothing of more distinguished history. It had belonged to their great-grandmother, Dabney, who was really D'Aubigne, and it had graced an emperor's table. Each piece had a monogram set in an engraved wreath. The big tray was so heavy that Jane lifted it with difficulty, so Baldy set it for her on the little mahogany table which they drew up in front of the fire. There was no wealth now in the Barnes family, but the old silver spoke of a time when a young hostess as black-haired as Jane had dispensed lavish hospitality.

Frederick Towne had not expected what he found—the little house set high on its terraces seemed to give from its golden-lighted window squares a welcome in the dark. "I shan't be long, Briggs," he said to his chauffeur.

"Very good, sir," said Briggs, and led the way up the terrace.

Baldy ushered Towne into the living-room, and Frederick, standing on the threshold, surveyed a coziness which reminded him of nothing so much as a color illustration in some old English magazine. There was the coal grate, the table drawn up to the fire, the twinkling silver on its massive tray, violets in a low vase—and rising to meet him a slender, glowing child, with a banner of orange wool behind her.

"Jane," said young Barnes, "may I present Mr. Towne?" and Jane held out her hand and said, "This is very good of you."

He found himself unexpectedly gracious. He was not always gracious. He had felt that he couldn't be. A man with money and position had to shut himself up sometimes in a shell of reserve, lest he be imposed upon.

But in this warmth and fragrance he expanded. "What a charming room," he said, and smiled at her.

Jane felt perfectly at ease with him. He was, after all, she reflected, only a gentleman, and Baldy was that. The only difference lay in their divergent incomes. So, as the two men talked, she knitted on, with the outward effect of placidity.

"Do you want me to go?" she had asked them, and Towne had replied promptly, "Certainly not. There's nothing we have to say that you can't hear."

So Jane listened with all her ears, and modified the opinion she had formed of Frederick Towne from his picture and from her first glimpse of him. He was nice to talk to, but he might be hard to live with. He had obstinacy and egotism.

"Why Edith should have done it amazes me."

"She was hurt," she said, "and she wanted to hide."

"But people seem to think that in some way it is my fault. I don't like that. It isn't fair. We've already learned it will be rewarded for walking, we remove a central support, allowing the plank to bounce and sway under the animal's weight.

"Next we substitute two narrow planks for the wide one, gradually training the lion to walk the narrower planks until he finds himself walking a couple of pieces of two-by-four planks. The next step is to substitute one and one-quarter-inch iron pipes, then thick steel cables which the lion can grasp with his non-skid pads, and finally the smaller cables on which he performs his act.

"During all this time we gradually lengthen and heighten the supports so the animal finally learns to walk ropes 20 or 30 feet long that may be 20 feet in the air. During the first part of the training the lion may take an occasional spill, so we use a pile of wood shavings under the planks as a safety mat."

George Eliot's Country Visitors to Staffordshire in England find it the Loamshire of George Eliot's novels. Ellastone is the "Haythorpe" of Adam Bede, and the cottage of the novelist's childhood can be seen there.

Lions Walk Tightrope and Seals Ride Horseback

Lions that walk tightropes and seals that ride horseback are two of the latest attractions produced by crack animal trainers. In the circus world new bags of tricks are necessary every year or so, and now that motion pictures are demanding wild animals to do tasks that seem almost miraculous, trainers are educating their animals to perform stunts of which no one dreamed before.

Teaching a lion to walk two swaying tightropes high in the air seems like a nearly impossible task until an experienced trainer tells how he does it, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Charles Gay, who has a tightrope-walking lion at his lion farm at El Monte, Calif., starts to teach his cubs tricks when they are nine months old, after their trainers have gained their trust through frequent petting and feeding.

"Teaching a lion to walk the tightrope takes about six months of steady training," says Gay. "We start with a wide plank 10 feet long on supports a few feet off the ground. We tempt the animal to walk this plank by leading it with a piece of meat. After it has ways been the best of friends—more like brother and sister than niece and uncle."

"But not like Baldy and me," said Jane to herself, "not in the least like Baldy and me."

"Of course Simms ought to be shot," Towne told them heatedly.

"He ought to be hanged," was Baldy's amendment.

Jane's needles clicked, but she said nothing. She was dying to tell these bloodthirsty males what she thought of them. What good would it do to shoot Delafeld Simms? A woman's hurt pride isn't to be healed by the thought of a man's dead body.

Young Baldwin brought out the bag. "It is one that Delafeld gave her," Frederick stated, "and I cashed a check for her at the bank the day before the wedding. I can't imagine why she took the ring with her."

"She probably forgot to take it off; her mind wasn't on rings." Jane's voice was warm with feeling.

He looked at her with some curiosity. "What was it on?"

"Oh, her heart was broken. Nothing else mattered. Can't you see?"

Jane swept them back to the matter of the bag. "We thought you ought to have it, Mr. Towne, but Baldy had scruples about revealing anything he knows about Miss Towne's hiding place. He feels that she trusted him."

"You said you had advertised, Mr. Barnes?"

"Yes."

"Well, the one thing is to get her home. Tell her that if she calls you up," Frederick looked suddenly tired and old.

Baldy, leaning against the mantel, gazed down at him. "It's hard to decide what I ought to do. But I feel that I'm right in giving her a chance first to answer the advertisement."

Towne's tone showed a touch of irritation. "Of course you'll have to act as you think best."

And now Jane took things in her own hands. "Mr. Towne, I'm going to make you a cup of coffee."

"I shall be very grateful," he smiled at her. What a charming child she was! He was soothed and refreshed by the atmosphere they created. This boy and girl were a friendly pair and he loved his ease. His own house, since Edith's departure, had been funereal, and his friends had been divided in their championship between himself and Edith. But the young Barneses were so pleasantly responsive with their lighted-up eyes and their little air of making him one with them. Edith had always seemed to put him quite definitely on the shelf. With little Jane and her brother he had a feeling of equality of age.

"Look here," he spoke impulsively, "may I tell you all about it? It would relieve my mind immensely."

To Jane it was a thrilling moment. Having poured the coffee, she came out from behind her battle of silver and sat in her chintz chair. She did not knit; she was enchanted by the tale that Towne was telling. She sat very still, her hands folded, the tropical birds about her. To Frederick she seemed like a bird herself—slim and lovely, and with a voice that sang!

Towne was not an impressionable man. His years of bachelorhood had hardened him to feminine arts. But here was no artfulness. Jane assumed nothing. She was herself. As he talked to her, he became aware of some stirred emotion. An almost youthful eagerness to shine as the hero of his tale. If he embroidered the theme, it was for her benefit. What he told her was as he saw it. But what he told her was not the truth, nor even half of it.

JEROBOAM: A MAN WITH A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 11:26-31, 37-49. GOLDEN TEXT—In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.—Proverbs 3:6.

Strength of personality apart from good character will not assure success but will, on the other hand, cause only intensified failure and disaster. We may even add divine promises of blessing which are given on condition of right living, and the man of courage and strength without good moral or spiritual character will only dissipate both promise and power and will become what is even worse than a failure—a bad example and a leader of wickedness.

I. Opportunity and Treachery (vv. 26-28).

Opportunity misused may become a curse, but that is the result when a man takes what might be a blessing and turns it into a blight. The life of Jeroboam is a warning against such sinfulness and at the same time it offers us an occasion to encourage young people to make the most of their opportunities for the glory of God.

That which commended Jeroboam to Solomon was that he was a man of courage and industry (v. 28). That combination will carry a man or woman to unlimited heights. The world is so full of timid and lazy folk, that the one who has a heart of valor and a willingness to work hard stands out in bold relief. Every sensible employer knows that fact and is quick to lay hold of and advance such an individual. Times are hard and work is scarce, but opportunity still knocks at the door of the boy or girl, man or woman who is brave and diligent.

The sad thing was that there was treachery in the heart of Jeroboam. Had he been willing to wait God's time he would have received all that he did ultimately receive and more, but his strength of personality did not include good character, and he at once began to plot against the king who had given him his chance to develop and advance. Let us teach our young people to be loyal and true, as well as to be brave and ambitious.

II. Promise and Condition (vv. 29-31, 37-39).

God had reached the end of His patience with Solomon. He who had begun on his knees in the house of God, seeking wisdom that he might rule his people aright, had come to the end of his life in apostasy and in wicked indulgence of the wishes of his heathen wives. Through His prophet Ahijah, God made known the purpose to divide the kingdom into ten tribes and two—a separation which knew no reunion while Israel was in the land.

Jeroboam was promised the ten tribes with the assurance of the great blessing which had been given to David, but this was definitely on the condition that he would "hearken—walk—do—keep" (v. 38) God's statutes. The fact that he failed only emphasizes the folly and wickedness of the man, for he went on his way to destruction in spite of opportunity and blessing. Men are doing the same thing today. Oh, that we who teach this lesson might be enabled to stop some such prodigal on this coming Lord's Day.

III. Danger and Exile (v. 40).

Although Jeroboam did ultimately come to his throne, it was by way of danger and a flight into Egypt. Solomon determined to destroy him and Jeroboam had to flee into exile. If he had gone God's way to the throne and had abided God's time, he might have spared himself both danger and exile in a heathen land.

Perchance some one who reads these lines is just now languishing in the exile of an Egypt of despair because he has failed to obey God. To such a one we say, do not follow Jeroboam who went from exile into greater sin and sorrow. Turn back now, seek God in confession and contrition, and if need be, in salvation. Get back to God's way and enjoy His blessing.

In making application of the lessons learned from the life of Jeroboam, let us not fail to point out that all down through the historical records he is referred to repeatedly as the man "who made Israel to sin." "Jeroboam's sins were not the sins of a common man. It is only kings, and kings' counselors, and popes, and bishops, and ministers, and elders, and such like, who can sin and make nations and churches and congregations to sin. But they can do it. And they are doing it every day. . . . The commonest and meanest man among us has more than enough of this terrible power of both sinning himself and making other men to sin" (Alexander Whyte).

To Be Saved

When a man is saved he is saved from something that does him harm. But that isn't all. He is saved to something that is good for him and everybody he comes in contact with.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

EVERY efficient kitchen has a book shelf. The paper back booklets that all homemakers love to collect may be placed in bright oil cloth folders so that they will make a brave show along with the bound cook books.

The prettiest folders of this sort that I have seen were made in green and yellow to match the kitchen color scheme. The diagrams given here show exactly how they were made. It is generally best to sort the booklets according to subjects rather than size.

The folders are stiffened with cardboard so they hold booklets of different sizes neatly. The cardboard should be cut the size of the largest booklet in the group. The fabric side of both pieces of oil cloth should be entirely covered with paste to make it stick smoothly to the cardboard. Letter or write the general subject of the booklets on a label and paste it on the back. Place the

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

For Yellowed Knife Handles.—If the handles of knives become yellow soak them in peroxide for four hours, then place out of doors in the sun.

Refreshing White Paint.—White paint which has gone yellow should be cleaned with a solution made by mixing a handful of ordinary whiting with a pint of water.

Storing Honey.—Store honey in a warm, dry place. It should not be kept in the cellar or in a damp place as it will absorb moisture and ferment.

Clean Ice Trays.—Each week wash the ice tray with a baking soda solution. This prevents the development of stale and musty odors in the ice cubes.

Separating Covers.—When jam-pot covers become glued together, do not soak in water, but pass a hot iron over them with a thin paper laid between. They will then separate easily, though the gum will remain intact.

TEMPLE BAILEY
writes

THE DIM LANTERN

Frederick Towne, wealthy, arrogant business man, thought he could buy the love of attractive, unphosphicated Jane Barnes.

He couldn't understand her love for melancholy, despondent Evans Follett, who had always worshipped her. Towne could offer her everything Evans lacked—servants, a beautiful home and assured social position. But he didn't need her.

Temple Bailey's warm, close to life story, "The Dim Lantern," is one of her best. You'll thoroughly enjoy every installment. Read it second and scored two of their own on an error and Joe Dixon's home run. They scored two more in the third on a base on balls a stolen base, a two base hit and a couple of errors. The Americans evened the count in their turn at bat on a single by Quick, he stole second and took third on an error and scored on Reid's sacrifice bunt.

The Nationals took the lead in the fifth by scoring a run on a single, base on balls and two errors. And two more runs in the sixth on two hits and an error.

However, the Americans hung on and tried to come from behind and null the game out of the fire. They scored one run in the seventh on two hits and a base on balls, and again in the ninth on a single and an error.

Next Sunday league play will again be resumed with the Tawas City team playing host to Harrisville. Harrisville defeated Tawas City in the opening game of the season, the only setback the local nine has suffered this year. The Tawas boys will be out to square accounts and Harrisville will try to take Tawas again and remain in the running in the league race. A good game is anticipated. Let's all come out and help the team make it six straight wins and hold their place in the league standings. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30.

Last Sunday a baseball team composed of some of the Tawas City reserves and a few additional players journeyed to Hale where they were defeated by the score of 16 to 3. The score read: Hale, 16 runs, 16 hits, 2 errors; Tawas City, 3 runs, 4 hits, 10 errors. Myles and Hogaboam formed the battery for Tawas City. Opposing them was Johnson and Bloomfield. Myles had three strikeouts and Johnson four. Hale is leading in the Northern league. They haven't lost a game this season.

Tomato Considered Vegetable

Botanically a tomato is a fruit. The supreme court, however, has decided that since tomatoes are grown in kitchen gardens and eaten generally as part of the body of a meal, and as they are sold as vegetables, they should be considered vegetables so far as commerce and general use are concerned.

Paisley Shawls of Fine Wool

Paisley shawls were made of the finest wools, sometimes combined with silk or cotton. At the height of the mode in about 1860 there were 8,000 looms spinning away in Paisley, Scotland. The entire population was occupied in shawl making and the people thrived.

The Word "Pamphlet"

The word pamphlet was originally Pampela, the name of a Greek lady who left behind her a vast quantity of literary material in the form of short notes and essays, and this proved to be of such value that it gave a name to a new style of publication.
