TAWAS CITY WILL TRY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP NEXT SUNDAY

EAST TAWAS

LOCAL TEAM WINS IN TWO TO ONE BATTLE

Locals Head League After Last Sunday's Game

Tawas City continued in the league race by defeating Twining last Sunday 2 to 1. Bill Mallon started on the mound for the locals and pitched six complete innings during which time he allowed one hit and no runs. He issued two base on balls and struck out eight batters. Kussro took over the pitching duties in the seventh allowing Twining their lone run, and two hits in the three innings he worked. He issued three base on balls and struck out two of the opposing batters.

Stanyo was on the mound for Twining and had the local boys eating out of his hand. He allowed but one hit, walked three, hit one batter and breezed the third strike past nine of the local swatters.

Tawas City was the first to dent home plate. In the sixth Smith, the first batter up, was safe when G. Ostrander fumbled his grounder. Kussro singled to right sending Smith to third. Quick hit back to the box and was out Stanyo to Forshee. Katterman dropped a sacrifice bunt down the first base line and was out Stanyo unassisted. Smith scoring with the first tally of the game.

Twining evened up the game in the eighth. Lammy singled to right, Stanyo sacrificed him to second from where he scored on Young's long single. Young's long single was the throw in to the plate. Youngs was to center. Youngs was out trying for second on the throw-in. G. Ostrander struck out to end the inning.

Twining threatened again in the ninth. Healtley opened by drawing a base on balls and stole second. On an attempt to pitch Healtley off second, Laidlaw's throw got by Katterman and Healtley took third on the error. J. Ostrander walked and stole second. Forshee popped to Laidlaw for the first out of the inning. H. Munro was purposely walked filling the bases. "Nig" Norris struck out and Healtley was out trying to steal home.

Tawas City came to bat in the ninth with the score deadlocked at one all. Quick, leading off, drew a base on balls and stole second. He was sacrificed to third by Katterman. Forshee batted for Zollweg and was out bunting foul on the third strike. W. Mallon was intentionally passed, he stole second. Laidlaw lifted an easy fly to Norris in right field which looked like the third out, but Norris dropped the ball and Quick scored the winning run. And thus ended a wonderfully pitched ball game. All three pitchers did a fine job of twirling and deserved to win. By virtue of this victory, and Harrisville winning from Turner, Tawas City advanced to first place, one-half game ahead of Turner who are in second place.

Next Sunday, August 27, the most important game of the season will take place at the local field. Harrisville opposition in a game postponed along with a fast clip, will furnish the opposition in a game postponed from July 9 when rain prevented these two teams from playing their game scheduled for that day. Harrisville is in third place, one-half game behind Turner. Should Harrisville win this game it would create a three-way tie with Tawas City, Turner and Harrisville. If Tawas City wins it will give them the division championship and the honor of again representing the American Division in the "Little World Series" with Sterling the winner in the National loop. So, come on fans - If you want to see a game played for all that's in it, be at the Athletic Field Sunday at 2:30 (Turn to No. 1, back page)

Kocher-Greve

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Hale Baptist church Monday evening when Miss Eleanor Kocher, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kocher, and Richard R. Greve, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Greve, were united in marriage by Rev. Wm. Greve, uncle of the groom.

The church was beautifully decorated with evergreen forming a half circle and extending to the top of the central window, baskets of gladioli and white phlox, and a cross of gladioli at the center with white tapers at each window.

The bridal procession entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Dorothy Johnson. Myron Healy and Melvin Dorsey acted as ushers. Following the clergyman little Jacqueline Kocher in pink carried the ring on a small heart shaped pillow. Mr. Greve and his best man, Virgel Carter, followed, then Miss Bernice Grant, of Bay City, as bridesmaid, wore a peach colored gown and carried a bouquet of colored gladioli. Mrs. Virgel Carter, matron of honor, in a pale green, also carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Jeanette Montgomery, of Bay City, in blue as flower girl, preceded the bride who entered on the arm of her brother, Charles Kocher. The bride was lovely in a gown of white satin made in princess style, the neckline outlined in seed pearls, and a long train. Her veil edged with a wide band of Irish lace covered her face and extended the length of the train. Little Barbara Follette, of Detroit, in a lavender dress, and Joyce Montgomery, of Bay City, in yellow; carried the bride's train, and also a nosegay of cosmos, bachelor buttons and white alyssum. Rev. Greve used the ring ceremony and Mendelsohn's wedding march ushered the party out. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Dorcas rooms.

The young couple left for a trip to Niagara Falls and on their return will live in the apartment over the Dorcas room. Their many friends wish them a long and prosperous wedded life.

Cut of town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Parks of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. George Bux and Donald Karher, of Toledo, Ohio; Mr. Cornell, Darwin Staff, Mr. and Mrs. Al Meyers, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Guilford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Greve, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Greve, of South Branch; Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Greve, of Coleman; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bell, of Rose City; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Steinhauser, of West Branch; and Mrs. Clyde Montgomery, of Bay City.

According to a telegram from the Detroit Free Press, Detroit schools will remain closed until September 18. Parents are warned that, perhaps children should remain away from Detroit.

Mrs. Arthur Guest, of Saginaw, is visiting her aunt, Miss Lillian Fowler, this week.

"Among the pictures to be shown soon are 'Four Feathers,' 'The Man in the Iron Mask,' and one of the biggest hits of the season, 'They Shall Have Music,' starring Andrea Leeds, Joel McCrea and Walter Brennan."

House of David Team Wins From Tawas City

In the twilight game played Wednesday evening, Tawas City lost a six inning game to the Colored House of David by the score of 4 to 0. Gordon Myles, Tawas City's slim southpaw, handled the pitching assignment for the locals. He worked the first five innings and turned in a fine performance. During his time on the mound he allowed five hits, several were of the scratchy variety, one which was good for two bases, the four runs. He issued one base on ball, hit one batter and struck out two. Mallon pitched the sixth inning and struck out two batters and allowed one hit.

The local team was a bit jittery with men on base and as a result allowed three of the four runs to score. Smith, also a southpaw, was doing the slab work for the visitors. He allowed four hits, two doubles, one each by Quirk and Smith, and two singles, Zollweg and C. Libka collecting these. Tawas City was guilty of three mistakes while the guests made but one.

The rain which fell during the forenoon left the field muddy and also slippery making base running and fielding difficult.

Tawas City used 15 players during the course of the game. Every player who turned out in uniform played part of the game.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Perhaps it is the heat, general, it seems, throughout the civilized world these days, or more likely it is one of those waves of human aspiration that sometimes sweep the world. At any rate in announcing intention to return to Antarctica to seek to learn some of the primal secrets hidden in the interior of the continent at the bottom of the world, Lincoln Ellsworth shares ambition with Admiral Byrd, as with British, Norwegian, French and Argentinian flyer-explorers. Difference is that, whereas Mr. Ellsworth's motives are purely scientific, in other cases international politics in their relation to geographical claims are the incentives.

Love of adventures manifested when yet in his teens sent Ellsworth forth to explore unknown regions in different parts of the world. Scion of wealthy parents, born in Chicago in 1880, he could have ordered his career, had he wished, along many lines less strenuous and of fewer hazards than the one he chose and in which he has become so distinguished. He came east to a crack seat of secondary learning, the Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., and upon graduation entered Columbia where he won scholastic honors in the department of civil engineering. But, becoming restive under the sedentary routine of student life, he did not wait to be graduated.

Faring forth into the wild, he became an axman on the first Grand Trunk Pacific railway survey of the transcontinental route across Canada. For five years he saw the virgin land of the Northwest, lived among Indians, shared the hardships of pioneers. In 1907 he became resident engineer of the Grand Trunk at Prince Rupert, B. C.

But his work, filled though it was with hardship and adventure, was not enough. Restlessness was in his soul and the unknown beckoned. So 1909 found him in the Peace river district in northern Canada, prospecting for gold. Then the World war came and, seeking action, he went to France where he became an aviator long before the United States entered the strife.

The real turning point in his career came with his meeting with Raoul Amundsen in Paris in 1924. With the great Norwegian explorer he participated in various expeditions culminating in 1926 with the famous flight in a dirigible over the North pole. Since then subsequent trips of exploration won him enhanced fame and added thrilling chapters to a gallant life of action.

PROFESSOR J. B. S. HALDANE, the famous British biochemist, who just now offers to sit inside an air-raid shelter while it is bombed from the outside, is the only living test-tube—still unscarred.

Last month he sealed himself in an air-tight chamber for 14 hours to learn how the victims of the Thetis submarine disaster felt in their last hours. He once ate an ounce of ammonium chloride a day, survived it and learned a lot about tetanus and saving children's lives. Studying fatigue, he shut himself for long periods in a tight chamber, the air charged with carbon dioxide. Tracing effects of acid on the body, he ate daily three ounces of bicarbonate of soda, following it with a chaser of hydrochloric acid, diluted with water. Twice gassed in the World war, he seemed to enjoy himself a lot, writing down his sensations with gusto and later qualifying as an expert on mustard and other gases.

With all that, he hasn't a scratch on him and doesn't suffer even from indigestion. Husky and vigorous, he doubles as guinea pig and a writer, the latter pursuit greatly enhancing his fame, notably with his book Daedalus, which was quite a sensation in this country in 1924. He experiments on his mind just as he does on his body. He is moved mainly by the idea that we know precious little about life and death and the human body and mind, and that in the short time allotted to us we ought to try anything once, which he consistently does. He is a spirited writer, giver to epigrams, and is known as the G. B. Shaw of Science.

The son of a distinguished Scottish scientist, he was educated at Oxford and gained increasing reputation before he was 30. He is 47.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Second Season of 'Ism' Probe Has Rough-Tumble Beginning; Hundred Witnesses to Come

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DOMESTIC: Un-Americanism

Dearly beloved by congressional investigating committees are the hot days of a Washington summer when the slightest ruffle of news makes national headlines. Into this scene last summer came a new figure, Texas' Rep. Martin Dies with his loud-but-not-accurate committee investigating un-Americanism.

This summer Martin Dies came back with a new committee and a new appropriation. At its first session the committee gave reporters a story as newsy as last year's accusation that Shirley Temple was a Communist.

Up to the witness stand strode German-American Bundmaster

FUEHRER KUHN
Who's a liar?

Fritz Kuhn. After hearing his life story, Alabama's Rep. Joe Starnes made so bold as to ask Fuehrer Kuhn if his organization wasn't intended to establish a Nazi government in the U. S.

"That's an absolute lie—a flat lie!" shouted Kuhn.

Flaming with anger, Joe Starnes jumped to his feet. Showing reporters and photographers aside he strode toward the witness crying: "Don't call me a liar!"

When Capitol policemen had put an end to these fighting words, the committee got down to more serious work. With calm deliberation, Illinois Rep. Noah Mason drew enough information from the witness to make German-American bundism distasteful. When faced with the accusation that his bund is "a money-making racket based on the credulity of the American people," Kuhn countered by listing these strange objectives: (1) To unite the German-American element, (2) to fight communism, (3) to give the German element "political background."

The committee also learned Fuehrer Kuhn had visited Hitler in 1936, had given him $3,000 for winter relief and had worn a Nazi uniform in a Berlin parade. His brother is a Berlin supreme court justice. His 20,000 bund followers (whose records have been destroyed) are pledged to defend the "good name of the mother country—Germany."

Most Americans, reading about Martin Dies' newest revelations, agreed the committee had made a good start. Still on the docket, however, was a list of some 110 witnesses whom agents have rounded up since last February. Observers hoped this summer's investigation wouldn't follow last year's pattern—a forum for unburdening grudges.

RELIEF: Wages Up

A key provision of this year's $1,477,000,000 relief appropriation was that WPA wages should be juggled to prevent any more geographical variation than the difference in living costs necessitated. For the South, where labor is cheaper, this meant a raise. For the North it meant wage cuts. For big cities it meant elimination of the 10 per cent differential up or down, which was allowed for local conditions.

Cast into three regions, south, north and west, new wage scales were announced by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington:

Region No. 1 (wage range, $39.30 to $94.90 per month)—Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin.

Region No. 2 (wage range, $44.20 to $94.90 per month)—Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wyoming.

Region No. 3 (wage range, $31.20 to $81.90 per month)—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia.

Net result of the changes, observers figured, will be to raise the national monthly average from $53 to $55.50. In the South rural wages will jump from $26 to $35 in rural areas, and from $40 to $50.70 in big cities.

ARMY: Before the Battle

At the second battle of Manassas in 1862, famed Stonewall Jackson sent his men a-raiding General Pope's headquarters. They returned with everything but the general himself. Manassas again made headlines this month when the regular U. S. army units duplicated Stonewall Jackson's strategy, captured a brigadier general's outpost and advanced toward Washington against defending national guardsmen.

This was the first phase of spectacular military maneuvers unmatched in U. S. peacetime. The second phase began at Plattsburg, N. Y., where 36,000 national guardsmen and regulars began their battle, this invader piercing from the north to meet the invader coming up through Manassas.

Bigger than either battle, however, was the realism of Plattsburg's commander, Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum. Night before the war began, stern-jawed General Drum assembled 3,000 officers on the parade ground to present a few facts. Publicly scorned was the suggestion that his troops fight at "paper strength," i. e., with imaginary armament the army hopes some day to secure. The general demanded a campaign of reality, "to bring home the actualities of our state of preparedness." Only in tanks, he said, is the army up to strength. Other deficiencies: manpower, 77 per cent; machine guns, 67 per cent; trucks, 83; automatic rifles, 57.

Said he: "I do not intend to belittle the advantages of speed. But mobility off the battlefield cannot compensate for inefficiency in the conduct of a fight. What we need to learn is how to fight."

BUSINESS: Oil

A simple law of economics is that prices drop as surpluses increase. No exception is crude oil, which in one week dropped a rough 30 cents a barrel. Major reason, thought oilmen, was the rapid recent exploitation of new oil pools in Illinois, which operate full-blast without production restrictions enforced by other states in the midcontinental area. Meeting in Oklahoma City, the interstate oil compact commission decided to let each state handle the problem in its own way. Five states (Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas and Arkansas) found a way. Production was stopped for 15 days.

In Tennessee . . .

UTILITIES—Wendell Wilkie's Commonwealth & Southern power corporation said good-by to Tennessee, where its lines had been purchased by TVA. Said a full-page newspaper ad: "We still believe that the interests of the public are better served by privately operated utilities. . . . We could not stay in business and compete with virtually tax-free . . . plants." Next day TVA gave Mr. Wilkie $78,600,000.

EUROPE: War of Nerves

Last summer it was Britain's Viscount Runciman who volunteered to mediate the scrap between Czechoslovakia and Germany. Mediation—and Czechoslovakia's hopes—came to a sudden end when Viscount Runciman turned pro-Nazi.

This month there arose a new potential Viscount Runciman named Dr. Karl J. Burckhardt, internationally respected Swiss scholar appointed by the League of Nations as high commissioner of Danzig. Off to Hitler's Berchtesgaden eyrie he flew one day without notifying the League. There, while he listened in silence, Der Fuehrer lectured angrily and at length about Danzig. Why had he, as high commissioner, allowed "incidents" in Danzig? And why should Danzig not be returned immediately to the Reich?

BURCKHARDT
A Runciman?

Dr. Burckhardt had no chance to divulge his secret, that Great Britain alone knew about his mission and had empowered him to bespeak her official attitude on Danzig. Next day, back in Danzig, the commissioner forwarded a highly confidential report of proceedings to London. Significantly, neither Poland nor France got copies.

Meanwhile, grasping at the chance, the controlled German press started another war of nerves, pouring out rumors of British-sponsored "peace plans." Veteran students of propaganda decided this had two purposes: (1) To make Poland think the British are ready to desert them, and (2) to find out, via the report-and-denial method, just how far Britain really will go toward appeasement.

This latter point was indeed important. High German circles confidently expected Danzig would be returned to the Reich within a few weeks, since there was little chance Britain would aid Poland in rescuing Danzig from an internally inspired anschluss. So great was the confidence that Der Fuehrer himself planned to cross into East Prussia late in August. Greater still, the press soon took Danzig for granted and began talking about German acquisition of Pomorze (Polish Corridor) as another aim in the appeasement-to-come. For the fourth time in one year, Europe remembered that Adolf Hitler only gets hungrier each time he's fed.

AGRICULTURE: Rail Rebellion

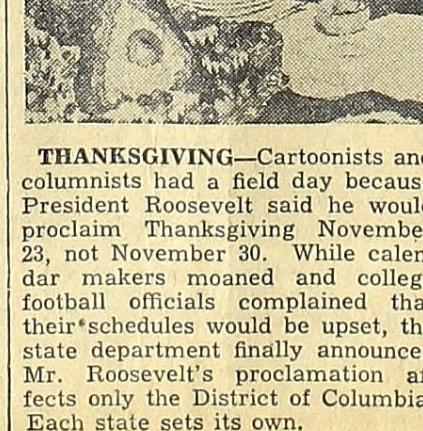

Expiring August 1 were loans on some 255,000,000 bushels of farm-sealed corn. Although the Commodity Credit corporation has offered to extend these loans, the consensus holds most farmers will turn their old grain over to the government, thereby making room for the 1939 crop.

Last month the department of agriculture saw what was coming. Bids were called on 33,000 storage bins for defaulted corn. Topping this problem came another—the railroads.

First rebuff was the carriers' refusal to let the government erect its bins without cost on railway property. Also denied was a reduced rate and elimination of demurrage charges on movement of the bins to their destination. The railroads thought they had good reason for being stubborn, because there was handwriting on the wall.

This autumn will see first practical application of the "ever-normal granary" program, designed to set aside excess supplies of grain in years of large production, to be held for lean crop periods. As it affects corn, this program will raise havoc with the normal flow of grain from farm to market via railroads. By buying its 33,000 bins, the U. S. will make storage at the farm end. Later, when finally moved, corn will be hauled as government property and will thus bring additional loss of revenue to railroads because land-grant statutes call for reduced (50 per cent) carrying charges.

THANKSGIVING—Cartoonists and columnists had a field day because President Roosevelt said he would proclaim Thanksgiving November 23, not November 30. While calendar makers moaned and college football officials complained that their schedules would be upset, the state department finally announced Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation affects only the District of Columbia. Each state sets its own.

Picture Parade

ONE-FOURTH of the world's sulphur, used for everything from automobiles and weed killers to xylophones and rubber boots comes from limestone deposits far beneath coastal plains of Texas and Louisiana's delta. Working on the surface, sulphur miners, like other U. S. industrial workers, benefit from exemplary labor conditions. This year's Labor day finds the typical operator punching a time-clock (right) working 40 hours a week and earning an average of 86 cents an hour. Twenty years ago the same job paid 35 cents an hour, 70 hours a week.

FREEPORT SULPHUR COMPANY

This launch carries workers 10 miles through a canal from Louisiana's Grande Ecuille mine to Port Sulphur, miners' town on the Mississippi's banks. Old days saw miners walking miles to work, painfully hauling materials across the plains and swamps by plodding mule train.

Financial worries are reduced. This typical worker at Grande Ecuille has just discussed a problem with his personal manager and is receiving a loan. Employees also get group insurance, hospitalization, pensions, service bonuses and discharge compensation.

Left: Miners and their families are ardent sportsmen. Here is a regularly scheduled night softball game between Port Sulphur and Belle Chasse, nearby community. Right: Son of a Grande Ecuille employee receives from operation at the Port Sulphur hospital.

It's good old summer time six or seven months of the year on the gulf coast and the children's swimming pool at Port Sulphur is always popular. Grownups find the gulf of Mexico, only four miles away, as good a swimming pool as it is a fishing ground for tarpon and black bass.

A miner's son strolls on Labor day through laboring man's city.

Cold Shower May Do Harm To Individual

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
IT IS hard to understand how the idea started that a cold tub or shower bath the first thing in the morning was good for the health, hardened up the body and warded off disease.

As a matter of fact, the morning cold bath does much harm to a great many, not because there is anything wrong with a cold shower and a brisk rub first thing in the morning for a strong, hardy individual, but because the average individual is not strong and hardy.

The reason so many feel that despite the discomfort and shock the morning cold tub or shower bath is helpful is that after the bath and rub there is a "bracing" reaction for a short time. However, one or two hours afterwards there is a feeling of tiredness and depression which they do not know is due to the cold bath.

Why is the morning cold shower a mistake for so many?

When we awake the body is really at its lowest point of resistance due for the most part to the need of food or fuel. The temperature is low, the blood pressure low, the heart beat slow and not as strong as at any other time. To make the body, in this low condition, undergo the "shock" of a cold bath is like licking a person when he is down.

One in four have resistance. However, there is the individual (about one in four) who, because of inborn or acquired resistance, can take this cold bath, have a brisk rub, feel a good reaction without any "let down" during the day.

An idea used by many who wish to get the refreshing reaction to the cold water without too much shock to the system is to run a few inches of hot water into the bathtub, stand in it for a minute to let the heat of the water strike the large blood vessels of the ankles and then step into the cold water shower. The heat of the water, by adding warmth to the blood and a little more speed to the circulation, prevents the severe shock of the cold water. A brisk rubdown stimulates the circulation and the benefit of the morning cold shower is felt all day.

Those who are thin, have thin blood, or a poor circulation would do well to avoid cold showers or tub baths unless prescribed by their physician.

Exercise and The Kidneys

It has been thought and taught that exercise was harmful to the kidneys owing to the great amount of wastes resulting from exercise which the kidneys would have to remove from the blood. Evidences of too much work being put on the kidneys are (a) too many red blood corpuscles and (b) too many "casts" (little casts or molds of solid matter in the shape of kidney tubes) in the urine.

Dr. A. Naeraa in the Scandinavian Medical Journal, Stockholm, states that as a certain number of red blood corpuscles and hyaline casts (little plugs of proteid material) are found in the urine of normal individuals, there is great interest in the various amounts of these cells and casts. The question arises whether physical exertion produces an increase in the number of red blood corpuscles and casts normally present in the urine and whether other kinds of casts besides the hyaline may appear under the same conditions. In order to learn exactly what happens when exercise is taken, Dr. Naeraa made sediment counts on 35 specimens of urine from 12 men who took part in a six-day bicycle race in 1934.

Sediment Study Made.
Dr. Naeraa states that his studies on the sediment of the urine of these men who had indulged in this severe exercise for six days showed no signs of any failure or breaking down of the kidneys, as there was no increase in the blood corpuscles or hyaline casts.

The belief that exercise, by creating wastes, would swamp the kidneys with work as they removed these wastes from the blood is unfounded, according to Dr. Naeraa's findings.

It is of course true that when the heart begins to fail there is considerable congestion of the kidneys. It is likewise true that severe exercise will put too much work on a failing heart. Thus exercise in one with a failing heart, because of congestion and damage already present in the kidneys, might readily cause further damage.

However, the average individual need not fear that exercise is going to damage his kidneys because of extra wastes manufactured by the exercise.

Grand Central terminal is never a quiet place. Throughout the 24 hours there is activity. Grand Central never sleeps. Ordinarily, it is noisiest and busiest when the flood of commuters reaches its crest. These summer days, however, there are hours when it is just about as busy and far more noisy though all the commuters may be at their desks. Hundreds of youngsters, carefully shepherded by adults, come swarming in and with their arrival whatever dignity Grand Central may have vanishes. The groups are noisy. They couldn't be quiet if their lives depended on silence. They are entirely too excited for successful repression. And so a clatter of conversation has overtones of shouts, yells and whistles which blend into sound waves that rise to those twinkling stars dotting the ceiling of the lobby. Travelers hurrying to trains forget their haste, and baggage-laden porters grin.

The youngsters come from homes where rooms are apt to be dark and stuffy, where there are steep stairs instead of elevators, and where cold water may be the only suggestion of modern conveniences. They are bound for the mountains, the country, the seashore. They will be away from the slums for a week or two weeks and in some instances even longer. In the main, their vacations have been made possible through the generosity of the more prosperous. It doesn't cost much to give a tenement kid a vacation. Various organizations, through years of experience, have worked things out to such a fine point that a week's stay costs only a little more than $5. In this supposed-to-be granite-hearted city there are always those willing to help the less fortunate. And so those noisy, happy regiments at railway terminals.

Pale faces. Pinched bodies. The tale of cramped living, scanty food and sidewalk playgrounds told in human documents. Yet on most of those young faces, a strange brightness. The brightness of anticipation of close contact with old Mother Earth. Of swimming without being chased by cops. Of a real beach instead of a fipeplug. Food that doesn't come from a pushcart . . . dreams of freedom from the slums . . . freedom to play to the heart's content. God love all those youngsters. May all their dreams come true.

The city of New York also provides outings for underprivileged children. And for underprivileged mothers. Among other activities are those three ferryboats that go up the Hudson every day. The passengers are mothers and children from the slums. Everything possible is done to make the outing pleasant. There is milk for babies and ice cream for older children. Also there are doctors, nurses and police. The cops are taken along not to keep order but to protect the kids. The outings are only for a day. But they are better than none at all and by the end of summer thousands will have enjoyed them.

The hospital ship of St. John's guild has been mentioned in this space previously. But I like to write about that trim, white, engineless vessel which each morning is towed down to Sandy Hook, if the bay is smooth, or up the Hudson if the waves dance. The passengers are mothers and children. Tired mothers and sick children under 12 years of age. The list is compiled from names supplied by various organizations and city hospitals. That sail down the bay or up the smooth river is not a mere outing. It is a part of treatment designed to bring back health. And it too is made possible by generosity, the ship being maintained by private contributions.

A real hospital ship is the Lloyd I. Seaman. A part of the crew are doctors and nurses. There are dietitians also and others to look after the comfort of passengers. The comfort of passengers is the reason why there are no engines aboard the Lloyd I. Seaman. Vibrations might be bad for the patients. A cargo of sick youngsters . . . I always see the Lloyd I. Seaman through a mist.

Bridge Key Misplaced; It Weighs 100 Pounds

MODESTO, CALIF.—Everyone has lost a key or two, but can you imagine misplacing one six feet long and weighing 100 pounds? A key answering that description, used to open the span of the Nine Mile bridge across the Tuolumne river, disappeared, and it had authorities worried. It was feared the thief might use the key to open the draw swing, unused now for 30 years, and go away without saying anything.

HOME-CANNED FOODS ALWAYS WELCOME (See Recipes Below)

Sugar and Spice

I've long believed that one reason the art of canning and preserving has been neglected is that many of us have forgotten just how good some of the home canned foods can be. We've forgotten the teasing tang of pickling spices, the mellow aroma of rich fruit butters that used to make the air fragrant at canning time. Maybe we need only to be reminded of all this to restore a lost art to favor!

What pride of accomplishment row upon row of jewel-colored jams, jellies and marmalades can create! And how simple it is to make them in the modern manner! You'll find these tested recipes from my own kitchen as practical as they are delicious. Detailed instructions are included in each recipe; you'll find these general suggestions helpful, too.

For Success in Canning and Preserving.

1. Make only a small amount of the product at one time.
2. Follow the recipe exactly.
3. Be sure that jelly glasses, jars, and covers are sterilized.
4. When they are to be filled with hot food, place the hot glasses or jars on a clean towel wrung out of hot water.
5. Use a small, inexpensive teapot for melting paraffin and pouring it. It eliminates dripping wax all over the glasses and your work table.
6. Store jams, jellies and preserves in a cool, dry place.

Apple Chutney.

2 pounds sour apples
1/2 pound onions (chopped)
1 pound tomatoes (chopped)
Juice 1 lemon (strained)
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1 1/2 tablespoons ginger
3/4 teaspoon red pepper
2 pounds raisins
2 cups vinegar
1 cup brown sugar

Pare, core and chop the apples. To them add the remaining ingredients. Simmer gently until tender, then rub through a fine sieve. Seal in sterilized jars.

Peach Conserve.

3 pounds of peaches (peeled)
2 oranges (cut in small pieces)
1 pound seedless raisins
3 pounds sugar
1 pound chopped walnuts

Scald peaches, remove skins, cut into small pieces; discard pits. Place in a saucepan with small pieces of orange pulp and peel, raisins and sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Set over a slow flame and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Add the chopped walnut meats, pour conserve at once into hot sterilized glass jars or glasses.

Amber Jam. (Makes 8 glasses.)

3 oranges
2 lemons
4 apples
2 cups crushed pineapple
Sugar

Grate rind of one orange and one lemon. Then peel the remaining 2 oranges and the lemon, being careful to remove all of the white part of the skin. Peel and core the apples. Put all of these fruits through the food chopper and then add the grated orange and lemon rind, and the pineapple.

Measure this fruit and to it add an equal amount of sugar. Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook, stirring frequently, for 1/2 hour. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and top with paraffin. Note: Amber Jam is delicious when used as a cake filling or as a topping for ice cream.

Lindbergh Relish.

2 medium heads cabbage
8 large carrots
8 green peppers (or 4 red and 4 green)
12 medium sized onions
1 bunch celery
1 cup grated horseradish

Put all through food chopper. Add 1/2 cup salt and let stand two hours. Drain and mix 3 pints vinegar, 6 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed. Do not cook. Pour into sterilized jars.

Whether your cookie jar is an old-fashioned earthen crock, or a brightly painted tin on the pantry shelf, it needs to be kept filled to satisfy a hungry family. In this column, next week, Eleanor Howe will give you some of her favorite cookie recipes—"Grandmother's Sugar Cookies," and "Butterscotch Brownies" are just two of the delightful recipes you'll find here.

Blackberry Jam.

Wash and drain berries; then pick over and remove the hulls. Take 4 cups of berries and 2 cups of sugar; let come to a boil, and boil 5 minutes. Add 1 more cup sugar and boil 5 minutes longer. Then add 1 more cup sugar and boil approximately 5 minutes more, or until the jelly stage is reached. Then place in sterilized jelly glasses and seal when cold. Makes 4 small or 3 large tumblers.

Pickled Peaches.

1 peck small peaches
4 tablespoons whole cloves
2 quarts vinegar
6 pounds brown sugar
4 teaspoons mace
1 tablespoon stick cinnamon (broken in small pieces)

Peel the peaches and stud with whole cloves. Make a syrup of vinegar, sugar, mace and cinnamon. Add the peaches and boil until tender. Pack in hot sterilized jars; cover with syrup and seal.

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—its life—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headaches, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have been used more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Inset on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Panics Favor Autumn
It seems that most panics occur in the autumn. Black Friday, one of the worst in September, 1869, and the panic of '73 started in September. The 1907 panic was in the autumn. An exception was the beginning of the 1920-21 depression, which broke in April. The panic of 1929 began in October.

Curiosity of a Boundary
North of the forty-ninth parallel and separated from the main part of Minnesota by the Lake of the Woods is a land area of nearly 124 square miles including a number of small mountains which became United States territory by treaties of 1783 and 1818. The inclusion of this area in the United States resulted from the use of inaccurate maps by the treaty makers, and has been described as a "political-geographical curiosity of a boundary."

25 Years Ago—August 28, 1914

President Wilson is strongly opposed to the idea of floating loans in the United States for any of the warring nations of Europe. This will prove an unpopular policy with Americans. Germany and her allies, and France and her allies need food and the munitions of war. The loans will be used for purchasing these materials from us at good prices. Industry and agriculture have been in a slump and these sales would bring prosperity to the nation again. The president's policy will paralyze the whole industrial fabric because in peace these nations are our best customers. In a story from Germany yesterday it was stated that Germany had 1,000,000 men massed along the frontiers of France and Belgium.

Among those who are compelled to remain in Europe by the war conditions prevalent there are Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Friedman and little daughter, Leah, who have been in Hungary during the past two months.

Milo Stevens, during the past week, received an interesting letter from Charles Maxwell of Puyallup, Washington. Mr. Maxwell, a former resident here, is working as millwright in one of the large lumber mills at Puyallup. He says that many logs that come into the mill scale as high as 10,000 feet.

David Love, one of the first pioneer settlers of Plainfield township, passed away last Monday. The Love family originally settled on the plains east of Hale. Later he moved south of the village where he became one of the township's most substantial farmers.

Albert Nunn and Stanley Morrison of Hale left Monday on a trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points in the east.

In a dispatch from Berlin, it was said that Germany would refuse to accept Secretary Bryan's proposal for a general treaty under which all disputes would be arbitrated before a resort was had to war. The ground was taken that the uncertainties of European politics require a free hand for speedy mobilization.

Dish Towels Marked In Your Hand Writing

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
THERE is logic in the idea that glasses, china and pots and pans should have their own towels. Here is a simple way to make that logic work. Write across the corner of each towel with a soft pencil the purpose for which it is to be used. Use a soft pencil and your best script with the tall letters at least two inches high. If you want to trace the words from paper, blacken the back of the paper with your pencil, place it black side down on the material, then draw the outline.

Work over the hand writing with heavy, bright colored embroidery thread. Chain stitch, as shown here at the upper right, gives a good strong outline and may be done quickly. Use a different color for each kind of towel. Colored facings of prepared bias binding used flat as shown at the lower left make a practical edge finish. If you use flour and sugar sacks for dish towels, these suggestions for adding color will be especially useful.

'Twas High Time to Call Halt, Thought the Lady

Former Senator Fess was condemning in Atlantic City the war talk that is troubling the world.

"How unreasonable war is," he ended. "It is more unreasonable than the prize fight seemed to the old lady. An old lady said on her return from the big city:

"One evening my son-in-law took me to a prize fight. I never saw such a thing. The two men came out on the stage and shook hands like the best of friends, then they began to punch each other all for nothing. They kept on punching till a man in the corner yelled 'Time' and nobody answered, so I pulled out my watch and shouted, 'Ten o'clock!'"

THE STORY THUS FAR

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafeld Simms, wealthy New Yorker. However, she still missed over it when she met Evans Follette, a young neighbor, whom the war had left completely discouraged and despondent. Evans had always loved Jane. That morning Baldwin Barnes, on his way to work in Washington, offered assistance to a tall, lovely girl in distress. Later he found a bag she had left in the car, containing a diamond ring on which was inscribed "Del to Edith—Forever." He knew then that his passenger had been Edith Towne. Already he was half in love with her. That night he discussed the matter with Jane, and she called her uncle, worldly, sophisticated Frederick Towne. He visited them at their home, delighted with Jane's simplicity. He told them Edith's story. Because her uncle desired it, Edith Towne had accepted Delafeld Simms, whom she liked but did not love. She disappeared immediately after the wedding, and a note asking if he might call again. Mrs. Follette, widowed mother of Evans, was a woman of indomitable courage. Impoverished, she nevertheless managed to keep Evans and herself in comparative comfort by running a dairy farm. Evans, mentally depressed and discouraged, had little self reliance and looked to his mother and Jane for guidance. Edith Towne phones Baldy in answer to an ad. She asked him to bring her pocketbook. Jane calls on Frederick Towne in his elaborate office. He gives Lucy, his stenographer, a letter to Delafeld Simms, in which he severely criticizes him. Unknown to him, Lucy and Simms are in love with each other. Towne takes Jane home in his limousine. She introduces him to Evans, who convinces her that she should return home and face her friends. She is interested in Baldy. Later they eat in a restaurant, where Edith sees several friends. She knows they will see to it that the news is spread.

On this same afternoon little Lucy Logan was writing to Delafeld Simms.

"It seems like a dream, lover, that you are to come for me in February, and that then we'll be married. And that all the rest of my life I am to belong to you.

"Del, it isn't because you are rich. Of course I shall adore the things you can do for me. I am not going to pretend that I shan't. But if you were poor, I'd work for you—live for you. Oh, Del, I do hope that you will believe it.

"The other day, Mr. Towne said in one of his letters that you had always been fickle, that there had been lots of girls, Eloise Harper before Edith. And I wanted to scream right out and say, 'It isn't true. He hasn't ever really cared before this.' But of course I couldn't. But I broke a pencil point, and as for Mr. Towne, who is he to say such things about you? I haven't taken his letters for the last three years for nothing. There's always somebody—the last one was Mrs. Laramore, and now he has his eye on a little Jane Barnes, whose brother found Miss Towne's bag and the ring. She's rather a darling, but I hope she won't think he is in earnest.

"And now, my dear and my darling, good-night. I wonder how I dare call you that. But I am always saying it to myself, and at night I ask God to keep you—safe."

"Jane, in Baldy's absence, dined on Sunday with the Follettes, in the middle of the day. In the afternoon she and Evans went for a walk, and came home to tea in the library.

Stretched in a long leather chair, Evans read to Jane and his mother. "The Eve of St. Agnes."

At the moment, Mrs. Follette was weighing seriously the fact of Jane as a wife for Evans. She was pretty as well as cheerful. Had good manners. Of course, in the old days, Evans would, inevitably, have looked higher. There had been plenty of rich girls eager to attract him. He had had unlimited invitations. Women had, in fact, quite run after him. Florence Preston had rather made a fool of herself. And Florence's father had millions.

But now—? Mrs. Follette knew how little Evans had at the moment to offer. She hated to admit it, but the truth was evident. Watching the two young people, she decided that should Evans care for Jane, she should erect no barriers. As for Jane, marriage with Evans would be, in a way, a rise in the world. She would live at Castle Manor instead of at Sherwood Park.

It was after five when Baldy telephoned triumphantly: "Jane, Edith Towne has agreed to go home tonight. And I'm to take her. I called up Mr. Towne and told him and he wants you to be there when we come. He'll send Briggs for you and we are all to have dinner together."

"But, Baldy, I don't know Edith Towne. Why doesn't he ask some of her own friends?"

"She doesn't want 'em. Hates them all, and anyhow he has asked you. Why worry?"

"I'll have to go home and dress."

"Well, you're to let him know at once where Briggs can get you. I told him you were at the Follettes."

Jane went back and repeated the conversation to Evans and his mother. Mrs. Follette was much interested. The Townes were most important people. "How nice for you, Jane."

But Evans disagreed with her. "What makes you say that, Mother? It isn't nice. It will simply be upsetting."

"I don't see why you say that, Evans," Jane argued. "I am not easily upset."

"But with all that money. You can't keep up with them."

"Don't put ideas into Jane's head," his mother remonstrated; "a lady is always a lady."

They found it somewhat difficult to keep to the road. They were almost smothered in the thick gray masses. Their voices had a muffled sound. Evans' hand was on Jane's arm so that they might keep together.

"Jane," he said, "I made a fool of myself about Towne. But honestly—I was afraid—"

"Of what?"

"That he might fall in love with you—"

"He's not thinking of me, Evans, and besides he's too old—"

"Do you really feel that way about it, Jane?"

"Of course—silly."

He could not see her face—but the words in her laughing lovely voice gave him a sense of reassurance.

"Jane," he said, "if I could only have you like this always. Shut away from the world."

"But I don't want to be shut away. I should feel—caged—"

"Not if you cared."

There was in his tone the huskiness of intense feeling. She was moved by it. "Oh, I know what you mean. But love won't come to me like that—shut in. I shall want freedom, and sunshine. I'll be a gull over the sea—a ship in full sail—a gypsy on the road—but I'll never be a ghost in a fog."

His hand dropped from her arm. "Perhaps you'll be a princess in a castle. Towne can make you that."

"Why do you keep harping on Mr. Towne? I don't like it."

"Because—oh, I think everybody wants you—"

And now it was she who caught at his arm in the mist, and leaned on it. "I'm not the least in love with Frederick Towne. And I shall never marry a man I don't love, Evans."

When they came to the little house they found old Sophy nodding in the kitchen. She always stayed with Jane when Baldy was away. So Evans said "Good-night" and started back.

He found the path between the pines, walked a few steps and stumbled. He sat down on the log that had tripped him. He had no wish to go on. His depression was intense. Night was before him and darkness. Loneliness. And Jane would be with Frederick Towne.

He had for Jane a feeling of hopeless adoration. She would never be his. For how could he try to keep her? "I'll be a gull over the sea—a ship in full sail—a gypsy on the road—never a ghost in a fog."

And he was just a ghost in a fog! Oh, what was the use of ever "climbing up the climbing wave"? One must have something of hope to live on. A dream or two—ahead.

How long he sat there he did not know. And all at once he was aware of a pale blur against the prevailing gloom. And then he heard Jane's voice calling, "Evans? Evans?"

He answered and she came up to him. "Your mother telephoned—that you had not come home—and she was worried."

She was holding the lantern up to the length of her arm. In her orange cloak she shone through the veil of mist, luminous.

"My dear," she said, gently, "why are you sitting here?"

"Because there isn't any use in going on."

She lowered the lantern so that it shone on his face. What she saw there frightened her. "Are you feeling this way because of me?" she asked in a shaking voice.

"Because of everything."

"Evans, I won't go to the Townes if you want me to stay."

He looked up at her as she bent above him with the lantern. She seemed to shine within and without, like some celestial visitor.

"Would you stay, Jane, if I wanted it?"

"Yes."

He stood up. "I don't want it. Not really. I'm not quite such a selfish pig," his smile was ghastly.

She was silent for a moment, then she said, "I'm going home with you, Evans. Wait until I tell Sophy to send Briggs after me."

He tried to protest, but she was firm. "I'll be back in a minute."

She returned presently, the lantern in one hand and her slipper bag in the other. "I put on heavier shoes. I should ruin my slippers."

As they trod the path together, the light of the lantern shone in round spots of gold, now in front of them, now behind them. The fog pressed close, but the path was clear.

"Evans," said Jane, "I want you to promise me something."

"Anything, except—not to love you."

"It has nothing to do with love of me, but it has something to do with love of God."

He knew how hard it was for her to say that. Jane did not speak easily of such things.

She went on with some hesitation. Her voice, muffled by the fog, had a muted note of music.

"Evans, you mustn't let what I do make you or break you. Whether I love you or not, you must go on. You—your couldn't hold me if you weren't strong enough, even if I was your wife. And there is strength in you, if you'll only believe it. Oh, you must believe it, Evans. And you mustn't make me feel responsible. I can't stand it. To feel all the time that I am hurting—you."

She was sobbing. A little incoherently.

"And you are captain of your soul, Evans. You. Not anyone else. I can't be. I can be a help, and oh, I will help all I can. You know that. But—I love you like a big brother—not in any other way. If anything should happen to you, it would be dreadful for me, just as it would be dreadful if anything happened to Baldy."

"Jane, my dear, don't," for she was clinging to his arm, crying as if her heart would break.

"But I do care for you so much, Evans. I was frantic when your mother telephoned. I wasn't quite dressed and I made Sophy get the lantern, and then I ran down the path, and looked for you."

He stopped and laid his hand on her shoulder. Her weakness; her broken words had roused in him a sudden protective tenderness.

"My little girl," he said, "don't. God helping me, I'm going to get back. And you are going to light my way. Jane, do you know when I saw you coming towards me with that dim lantern it seemed symbolic. Hope held out to me—seen through a fog, faintly. But a light, nevertheless."

"Oh, Evans, if I could love you, I would, you know that."

"I know. You'd tie up the broken wings of every bird. You'd give crutches to the lame, and food to the hungry. And that's the way you feel about me."

He had let her go now, and they stood apart, shrouded in ghostly white.

"God helping me," he said again, "I'll get back. That's a promise, Jane, and here's my hand upon it."

She gave him her hand. "God helping us both," she said.

He lifted her hand and kissed it. Then, in silence, they walked on, until they reached the house.

Plates Are Most Sought of the Steel Products

Plates of iron or steel are, historically, the oldest of the industry's rolled products; commercially, one of the leading tonnage products, and functionally among the most widely used and more indispensable.

In an ordinary year, three million or more tons of steel plates are produced, says Steel Facts. Major uses include the construction of ships, railroad locomotives and cars, oil tanks, gas holders, water tanks and a variety of other articles essential to modern industry such as floors for bridges and buildings, standpipes, etc.

Plates, sheets and strip steel are all flat rolled products, of different thicknesses and widths, and it is difficult to define exactly where one product stops and the other begins.

The two principal classes of plates are sheared and universal, the names deriving from the type of mill on which the plate was rolled.

Mills which have only horizontal rolls and produce a plate with uneven edges and ends are called sheared plate mills. Products of these mills must be sheared on all four edges to produce a rectangle.

Universal mills have in addition to horizontal rolls, at least one pair of vertical rolls so placed as to roll the edges of the plate straight and parallel. Some types of universal mills align plate edges with grooved rolls like the rolls of a bar mill.

Regardless of the mill on which they are finally rolled, all plates are rolled from slabs or slab ingots. Slabs, which are a semi-finished product rolled from conventional square or rectangular ingots, are always more than twice as wide as they are thick. Slab ingots are cast with their width greater than twice their thickness.

Both types of ingot are "broken down" by being put through a slabbing mill to reduce their cross-section, after having been heated slowly and uniformly in soaking pits. This heating operation must be done very carefully in order to prevent excessive scaling, which will injure the surface of the plate, and to insure proper grain refinement which enhances the ductility of the steel.

Life of Big War Guns

The war department says that the life of a big gun is 200 to 500 rounds. This does not mean, however, that the gun is absolutely worthless after 500 rounds, only that it has to be relined. A big gun would be considered a 14 or 16 inch gun.

ISAIAH: A LIFE DEDICATED TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 6:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Here am I; send me.—Isaiah 6:8.

Crisis! We have had so many of them that they have almost become commonplace. There has been one war crisis after another. There have been world crisis and domestic crisis until the word has almost lost its meaning.

In the life of the individual, however, the times of crisis are very real and important. In a critical illness one knows when the crisis comes, and he who safely passes that hour is on the road to recovery. More vital than a physical crisis is a spiritual crisis, when a man meets God face to face and his future destiny is determined by the response which he makes to God's call. Isaiah had such an experience when he came to realize God's glory, confessed his own unworthiness, and sought cleansing of life as a preparation for commission to service.

I. "I Saw the Lord" (vv. 1-4). King Uzziah, who had begun well but had forgotten God, was at the end of his life, a leper because of his sin, and dying in disgrace. Israel which had known unprecedented prosperity under God's blessing now hardened its heart nationally against God and was also about to go into eclipse. God needed a man to speak for Him in such an hour, to bring to His people a message of judgment and also of blessed invitation. To prepare that man, the great Isaiah, God gave a remarkable manifestation of His glory and power.

It is essential that the man who speaks for God should first see the Lord high and lifted up and to hear of His holiness and glory. The negative tone of the present-day message, the lack of enthusiasm and interest in holy things, the low standards of personal holiness, the failure to preach boldly the truth regarding God's holy standards are to be explained by the fact that there has been no vision of the eternal holiness and glory of God. The need of the people today is the same as it was in the time of Isaiah. Where are the men and women who are ready for a vision like his and for the commission which will follow.

II. "Woe Is Me! for I Am Un-done" (v. 5). To see the holiness of God is to be immediately conscious of one's own sin and unworthiness. The obvious conclusion which one draws from that fact is that anyone who is proud, who is not concerned about his own sins and the sins of his people, is living far from God and has either never known or has forgotten about His divine holiness.

Isaiah spoke of the pollution of his lips, thereby confessing that his heart was not right. Whereof the heart is full, thereof speaketh the mouth, for we read in Matthew 12: 34 that out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. Remember that even though Isaiah was a believer he recognized the need of cleansing.

III. "Then . . . He Touched My Mouth" (vv. 6, 7, R. V.). "Then" — what an important word! When Isaiah called out in humble confession, "then" he was cleansed. The turning point is right at that place for any life. Only when we come to the place of confession and contrition which Isaiah knew, can we expect the Lord to send the cleansing fire and the enabling power.

None but God can give this cleansing. Man is unable to wash himself clean. "For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord" (Jer. 2:22. See also Jer. 13:23). Reformation, turning over a new leaf, character development, all commendable in their place, are not sufficient. There must be divine cleansing of the life if there is to be a commission to service.

IV. "Here Am I; Send Me" (vv. 8-13). God had a difficult and unpopular message to be delivered but now He had a man who was ready to carry it. Isaiah had to proclaim to Israel that because they had turned from the sunshine of God's love, which would have melted their hard hearts, it had for them become the sunshine of His wrath, which could only progressively harden them and turn them from Him. The same sunshine that melts the wax hardens the mud.

The work of God in our day awaits the man or the woman of vision—the one who has been prepared by confession and cleansing and who has then received the divine commission.

Faith

Of all the forces at the disposal of humanity, faith has always been one of the most tremendous, and the gospel rightly attributes to it the power of moving mountains.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Cretonne Curtains.—When you wash curtains or loose covers of cretonne, put a large cupful of vinegar into the rinsing water. It brightens the colors.

Colorful Berries.—To make sure berries will retain their bright color, be careful not to overcook them. If they are used in preserves store the jars in a dark place.

Sandwiches.—Left-over liver, passed through a sieve, well seasoned, and moistened with lemon juice and a little melted butter, makes a tasty and unusual sandwich filling.

Add Horseradish.—A little horseradish added to salad dressing or white sauce makes a piquant sauce for fish. Horseradish also may be added to whipped cream and served with baked, boiled or fried ham.
